CINDERS

By John King

Clarence Key of the Ruth Shurley Jewelry said Tuesday afternoon that one Del Rio Rancher came into the store disgruntled about the large crowd at the stockpards opening—so large he couldn't get into the building where the sale was going on.

The crowd was a huge tribute to the work of so many men who had helped make the stockpens a reality.

The expected 3 to 4,000 goats turned out to be closer to 10,000, by the time the sale began and spectators numbered over 1,500.

One visitor who has had experience with other livestock installations like Sonora's said that he had found retail business to jump from 10 per cent to 40 per cent on special sale days when adequate promotion was used to encourage the wife to accompany her husband to the sale. He said that grocery volume could jump 10 per cent to 20 per cent while other stores such as dry goods could increase sales up to 40 per cent.

A quote from the Devil's River News of 69 years ago is so good I must borrow it from its regular place in the "Years Ago" column: "Newspaper men are like the rest of mankind. They will celebrate and are also subject to ills of the flesh. Kindly take this into consideration and do not blame us for not getting out a better paper this week."

I understand that Steve Murphy did like his whiskey.

And State Senator Dorsey Hardeman, at the stockpens opening, said that he had to get all of his talking in before the auction started. He explained that during auctions was one time when he didn't talk. Hardeman explained that once he had broken this rule and raised his hand to gesture. He ended up buying two calves.

Discussion was held on the renovation of upstairs rooms in the junior high school building and the financial condition of the district for the fiscal year beginning September 1.

The board inspected the grandstands and fieldhouse now under construction.

All Right, Folks, Sale Time—Sonora Stockpens Open

GOATS GOING BY RAIL FROM SONORA—Even before the Grand Opening of the Sonora Stockyards Tuesday, a shipment of goats was streaming up the loading chute to be carried by Santa Fe from Sonora to California. Wednesday, May 6, H. G. Haby, county agent from Rocksprings, brought in a load of goats to be sent to Eldred L. Lane in Calaveras County, California. The shipment consisted of 282 two-year-old nannies from Roger Hutto of Carta Valley and 169 yearling nannies from Ivan Smart, 4 yearling billies from Brooks Sweeten, 4 yearling billies from Jimmy Rudasil, and 1 yearling billy from Tinker Tomlinson, all of Rocksprings. Rudasil and Tomlinson are 4-H members.

"All right, folks. Sale time," said Red Simpson, auctioneer from Brady, and the first sale at Sonora Stockyards was underway as the gates clanged and the handlers whistled and cracked their whips to bring in the goats. Simpson chanted out the bids, and then sang out, "$11.70, sold to Glidewall." And the first sale of the day had been made.

The goat sale was the climax of the activities Tuesday celebrating the opening of the Sonora Stockpens, Inc.

The dedication began at 11 a.m. when H. V. (Buzzie) Stokes welcomed visitors. Stokes, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, was presented a lifetime membership in the Chamber on behalf of the board of directors by Albert Ward. In making the presentation Ward praised Stokes' energy, friendliness, and service to his community.

Speakers on the program included Senator Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo, Clayton Puckett of the Texas Animal Health Commission from Fort Stockton, Vestel Askew, president of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association, and Loyal Walker, Agricultural Manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce from Abilene. All praised the community for recognizing a need and then doing something about it.

Following the dedication the crowd lined up at eight serving tables to pile on their plates 2,200 pounds of meat, 200 pounds of beans, 10 gallons of pickles and some 50 pounds of onions. B. M. Halbert was chairman of arrangements for the meal. Boyd Lovelace, who was in charge of the meat, estimated the crowd at 2,000. Most of the people were served within a 20-minute period.

Before the sale began at 1 p.m., an airplane of the Miller Cron Duster Company gave an exhibition of stunt flying above the yards.

Then the visitors squeezed into the bleachers above the sales arena in the air conditioned building to watch 8,301 head of goats being sold at the initial auction at the pens. Bill Glidewell of Mineral Wells bought the first bunch and requested that they be shipped by rail to Brazos County. Charlie Schwartz is paying the transportation on those first goats. Other buyers included O. O. Smith of Goldthwaite and Roy Martin of San Angelo.

Highest price of the day was $13.50 for yearling muttons.

Ticket writer was Mrs. Joyce Brown, and Hollis Phillips was the scale man. Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Carleton Massey posted buyers, and Mrs. Charley Craig posted sellers. Mrs. A. J. Ivey was checkwriter, and Mrs. Charlie Schwartz was calculator. Resident manager of the stockyards is John Lockett.

Charlie Schwartz, manager-operator of the stockyards, said that the new all-steel pens worked beautifully. He says that he sincerely appreciates the welcome given to the Sonora Stockyards. He says he thanks those who consigned goats, who came as buyers and as visitors, and all those who worked so hard to make the day a success.

Ban the Bug

"SUMMERTIME an' the livin' is easy," the song tells us. Unfortunately, in summertime the livin' is also apt to be messy.

This is the time when trash-tossing litterbugs come out in great numbers, reminds Keep America Beautiful, Inc., the national litter-prevention organization.

"Though littering goes on twelve months a year," says a spokesman for the group, "the time between Memorial Day and Labor Day is the heyday for the litterer."

As vacation time arrives, more and more people take to the highways across the nation. More people go boating, hiking, fishing and picnicking. And the volume of litter strewn across the landscape increases in direct proportion. Furthermore, this litter will continue to increase unless we intensify our efforts to prevent it.

The national bill for cleaning up after litterbugs along highways is more than $100 million a year. The taxpayer, of course, pays it. What a blessing if this money could be put instead into such projects as new schools, better roads, or other constructive uses!

We can take consolation, however, in a pioneering study of the litter problem sponsored by the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, Inc. This study turned up some facts that raise renewed hope for the litterbug's eventual extinction.

It was found, for example, that litterers, by and large, are not psychologically, economically or socially different from other people. Littering, rather, was found to be a careless or thoughtless act. Carelessness and thoughtlessness certainly can be overcome.

Also on the hopeful side, the study proved that people are readily responsive to vigorous anti-litter campaigns. The No. 1 remedy for littering, it was indicated, is public education—education that emphasizes the fact that littering is an anti-social, costly and often hazard-producing pursuit.

Additionally, the educational program must be bolstered by adequate litter disposal facilities and up-to-date state and local laws against littering.

The significance of these findings is that littering can be stopped, if we apply the proper measures against it.

With the help of organizations like Keep America Beautiful on the national scene, and clean-up and beautification groups on the state and local level, the litter problem can be controlled. The rewards for success will be great—in terms of our esthetic enjoyment of a beautiful America, and in terms of the taxpayers' satisfaction in whittling down a national clean-up bill of half-a-billion dollars.

takes a look at the economy this week. We're not sure what he sees.

Dear editor:

I have often heard that economists break out in a cold sweat at the thought of everybody's suddenly becoming thrifty, that if people adopted the old-fashioned methods of paying cash or doing without, the wheels of industry would grind to a halt, on account of the whole system of manufacturing and selling is geared to installment buying, from washtubs to roller skates, dishwashers to fishing tackle, automobiles to summer vacations, but I have a notion they're worrying over nothing. People are going to start paying cash about the same time Washington does, which leaves the future unlimited. Modern man does everything from fighting wars to getting married, if there's any difference, on credit.

My only complaint is that installment buying isn't expanded more. There are many ways it could be used to stimulate buying even more. For example, I have long contended that if the government would let the post office sell me a $50 money order on the installment plan, and I could use that to make the downpayment on a $250 item out of a mail order catalog, I could make the economy hum even faster. I don't know why the government is asleep on this splendid idea.

Yours faithfully, claim to be staying up nights worrying about the national debt.

The government ought to stop reporting the national debt is 115 billion, or is it 300 billion, I forget, I have no hand for details. What it ought to say is the national debt will be increased this year, if it has to be increased, by $2 per week per man. What's two dollars? Anybody can stand that. Who'd stay up all night tossing and turning over two dollars?

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

YOUR MINISTER SAYS

By The Rev. George R. Stewart, Pastor, Church of the Good Shepherd

ABOUT THE INSPIRATION OF SCRIPTURE:

Through the years there has been much disagreement about how the Bible is inspired and exactly what its authority is.

There are three theories of the inspiration of the Scriptures that are the principal ways churches and Christians view the Bible as an inspired book. Some persons hold to a literal or mechanical theory that says God actually dictated the words of the Bible to the men who wrote it. Such a concept makes the Bible a history book and a science text useable by students of history, anthropology, geology, archeology, zoology, and many other branches of the arts and sciences. Other persons hold to a theory called vital inspiration. This concept says quite simply that the Bible is so inspired that it contains all that is vital to a saving faith. According to the Westminster Shorter Catechism, "The Scriptures principally teach what man is to believe concerning God and what duties God requires of man." Still others believe the Bible unfolds a progressive revelation of God. This concept sees the biblical narrative as a reflection of man's growth of grace by the power of the Holy Spirit, outgrowing childish conceptions of the universe and primitive relationship to each other and gradually learning the fullness of God's will.

The authority of the Scriptures according to the Westminster Confession of Faith in its statement, "The Bible is the only rule of faith and life", is seen as absolute for the believer. The authority of the Bible lies in the belief that it is the Revelation of God to man, the same in every generation. The Bible tells one story, the story of God's love for man and His action of man's behalf. The Bible is the chief authority for all believers, and it is the primary basis for the common life of the believers as they gather together in a worshiping, working congregation.

A word about the interpretation of Scripture seems important at this point, for there is a growing tendency in protestantism today to allow the pulpit to be the only reader and interpreter of Scripture. This tendency is akin to the factors that precipitated the Protestant Reformation. Not all the Bible is clear and understandable to all who read; but by the guidance of the Holy Spirit, through prayer and diligent reading anyone may discern for his faith all that is necessary for salvation and Christian living. The Bible itself is the best help one can turn to in understanding difficult passages of Scripture. Many Bibles today have footnotes to refer the reader to other parts of the Bible. These references are a great help in understanding the meaning of a particular passage and its relation to the whole Bible.

The inspiration, authority, and interpretation of the Scriptures are all a part of man's faith in God and His love given to man in Jesus Christ, which has imparted to man new life under the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cusenbary have a lovely custom at their ranch home. For many years they have asked each visitor to sign a guest book. Some of the first pages are now brittle and yellow, and Mrs. Cusenbary (Dorothy) has covered them with plastic.

Thumbing through the book brings back memories of many happy gatherings. Some of the signatures look strange to our eyes, as they were made by people who have since returned to their native lands far away. Others are names of people who have since moved away. "Don't you remember her, Ben?" Dorothy may say. "She was a school teacher here for two years."

Other names are of people who still go out to the ranch regularly. You can trace some of them through the years from the first round childish scrawls, through neat penmanship, to the mature scribble. Some of the early scrawlers are now bringing little scrawlers of their own.

Last week was the time when we gave a little extra thought and long-deserved appreciation to our mothers on Mothers Day. This week might be a good time to pay a little attention to the other woman in our lives—our mother-in-law.

Isn't it strange that the same woman who is grandmother passing out cookies to the children, who is mother with a cheery smile, is also Mother-in-Law—the object of so many cartoons?

The dear woman bears many jokes at her expense, and usually must grit her teeth and take them with a smile. It is high time that the mother-in-law received a kind word, and I can think of no better way to do it than to quote a tribute Mrs. Albert Ward paid to her mother-in-law, Mrs. Rip Ward: "She gave me her only son. She untied the apron strings. And then she gave me the apron."

Mrs. Pat Cooper was joined by her daughter, Betty Jack, and Francine Fields last week when she went to Bryan to visit her son Don. Coming from Houston to be with the group was Mrs. Edith Phillips. Francine and Betty Jack are students at TCU, and Don is a student at Texas A&M.

Johnny McClelland is home on leave for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McClelland.

Mother's Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Lovelace were Mr. and Mrs. Donald McGara, Bonnie, Mike, and Paul Wayne of San Angelo.

Congressman O. C. Fisher reports as recent visitors in his office Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ward.

Miss Maxine Davis accompanied her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. (Tom) Davis, to Brownwood Saturday, May 10, when Davis attended the sheep sale.

TIME OF HOSPITAL STAY CUT ALMOST IN HALF

In pointing out that this week, May 9-16, is Texas Hospital Week, the "Texas Hospital Association Magazine" reports that the average length of a patient's stay in the hospital in 1962 was 7.6 days, compared with an average of 14 days in 1932. The average period in Texas in 1962 was 6.4 days.

We drove 3,243 miles to make a point about our Super Turbine transmission

You can do it on the way to the grocery store

Would we drive a Buick with a Super Turbine transmission* all the way from Pasadena to New York City just to win Class C in the Mobil Economy Run? Of course. And just in case anyone failed to get the message, we did it twice again. And won Class D and Class G. In all, Buick entered 4 classes, and won 3—more than any other make of car. (Remember when people used to think Buicks used a lot of gas?) Did we make our point about the Super Buick Motor Division

Turbine transmission? You bet. Obviously you aren't planning to drive 3,243 miles to prove your new Buick is economical. And you can't expect to get as many miles per gallon as the experts in the Economy Run. Still, it is nice to know you can win the economy run around town. And the good looks prize at the same time. See your Buick dealer about it. No doubt he'll think of a number of other reasons to drive a Buick. *Optional at extra cost.

Piano Day Camp
 Will Be Conducted
 By Mrs. A. C. Elliott

Mrs. Cecil Elliott, in announcing a day camp for piano pupils from June 1 through July 10 at her home, says, "I hope to prove that music can be fun".

The day camp, which will be open to girls who have completed the first two grades of school and have had at least one year of piano lessons, will run from 8:30 until 11:30 each morning except Saturdays and Sundays. In addition to piano lessons, singing lessons, musical and singing games, handicrafts, and twirling lessons will be offered.

Students will audition for Mrs. Elliott to determine which group they should work in. Three pianos will be placed in Mrs. Elliott's garage for the piano lessons, and enrollment will be limited to twelve.

Mrs. Reggie Trainer, teacher in the local schools, will assist with handicrafts, and games such as handball, table tennis, and archery will be played.

During sessions of Bible School, the day camp will be held from 3 to 6 in the afternoons.

Mrs. Elliott received a degree in piano from Hardin-Simmons University and has done graduate work at the University of Missouri. Her practice teaching in piano was done with students working in groups of ten.

After teaching music in the public schools here for six years some years ago, she taught in the Odessa public schools.

Mrs. Elliott states that a few openings remain for the day camp.

Cathy, the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. A. F. Moffitt Jr., won second place in the high school division with her somewhat surrealist cat which placed first in the local art contest earlier this spring. Cathy studied art for the first time in school last year, and she has been working under Mrs. Bill Whitehead this year.

Researcher Uses Throat Tap To Discover What Sheep Eat

By Pat Billingsley

A doctoral dissertation has always brought to my mind pictures of tall stacks of books and many hundreds of hours spent poring over them. Strictly indoor work, conceiving and developing ideas, and after much writing and re-writing, turning out perhaps a hundred pages to explain or set forth some subject that has never been dealt with before.

Merwin Kothmann, who, with his wife, Kathy, has been in residence at the Texas A&M University Experiment Station since the end of February, is working on his doctor's dissertation, and the research he is engaged in is strictly outdoor work. It consists of observing a selected group of sheep to see exactly what they eat.

This is not simply a matter of following some sheep around and taking notes on what plants they consume. It has taken several months of preliminary work to prepare the animals which will be used and to work out a system for conducting the research. Some time ago Kothmann took nine animals to Texas A&M and had them operated on and a plastic cannula or tube placed in the esophagus of each sheep. Each tube has a top just like the end of a water hose and a cap that screws on and off. When he wants to get samples of what the sheep are eating, Kothmann will unscrew the caps, and the food they put in their mouths will come out the hole and drop into a bag tied around the animal's neck. When samples are not being taken, the caps will be screwed on, and the food consumed by the sheep will go into their stomachs.

Two pastures will be used in the study: one will be lightly stocked and grazed for twelve months, and the other will be heavily stocked and grazed for the same length of time. Four sheep will graze on each pasture. By observing exactly what they eat and in what portions, and by analyzing the nutrient content of what they consume, comparing the results from the lightly grazed pasture with the ones from the heavily grazed pasture, Kothmann hopes to show the advantages of improving pastures—and how, by management of grazing, the rancher can encourage the growth of certain plants that the sheep like best and that are most nutritious.

Two of the sheep which were operated on have already recovered from surgery, and Kothmann planned to start taking food from them last week. The first official collections will begin on June 1, after the other seven animals have had a chance to recover fully. After about a year of research at the Experiment Station, Kothmann plans to return to A&M to take course work and complete his Ph.D. in range management. Others will follow up his work at the Station. (What Kothmann is doing is a supplement to the work Dr. Leo Merrill has been carrying on in range management for quite a few years at the Experiment Station.)

And what will become of sheep with the holes and tubes in their necks? For the rest of their lives they will have to have special care and handling.

Screwworm Menace Demands Diligence On Ranchers' Part

The Southwest could experience a serious explosion of screwworm cases this year, unless farmers and ranchers diligently inspect their livestock and report infestations so that emergency eradication action can be taken, the board of trustees of the Southwest Animal Health Research Foundation recently warned.

The board noted that during 1962 and 1963, when screwworm populations were reduced by more than 90 percent, temperature and moisture conditions were less favorable than normal for screwworm development. Ideal weather conditions could cause serious outbreaks of the insect anywhere in the state.

Some eradication program officials fear that livestockmen are relying too heavily on sterile screwworm flies to keep their animals free of infestation, and are not using good management practices such as treating wounds and spraying livestock after they have been worked.

The trustees also expressed concern that too many stockmen were trying to diagnose their own cases. U. S. Department of Agriculture officials said that various species of blowfly larvae look so much alike that only trained technicians using high-power microscopes can definitely ascertain whether a sample contains screwworms or not.

Robert Kelley To Go On European Tour With Driskill Family

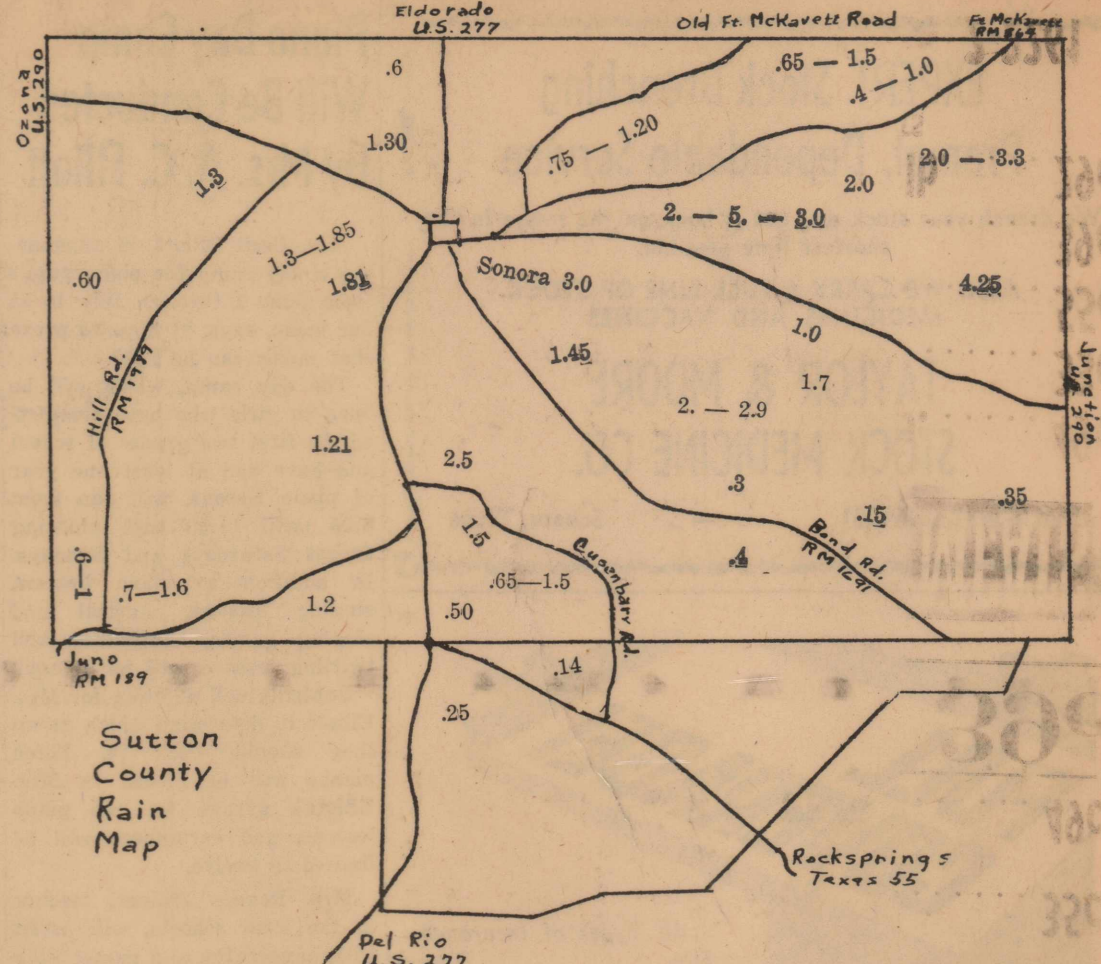

Last Christmas Robert Kelley got an inkling of a grand opportunity when a letter came from friends of the family, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Claude Thomas Driskill. The Driskills are stationed in England, and have been planning a tour of Europe for some time. They asked last Christmas if Robert might be able to go with them this summer. After some thought, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kelley Jr., agreed.

The Kelleys will leave Sonora June 1 to drive to New York, where they are planning to see the World's Fair. June 15 Robert will board the jet in New York (with the 44 pounds of luggage he is allowed) to fly to London, where he will be met by Col. and Mrs. Driskill and their three children.

The Driskill family and Robert are planning a 30-day tour of Europe by automobile. They will see Spain, France, Belgium, West Germany, and Switzerland. Camping out several nights is on their schedule.

Driskill, who is the son of Mrs. Juliet Driskill, has been stationed in Europe for about ten years.

After touring England, Robert will return on August 29 to Dallas, where he will be met by his parents.

RAINFALL in the Sutton County area on Saturday, May 9, varied from .15 measured on the George Brockman ranch in the southeast part of county to 4.25 measured on the Terry Baker ranch east of Sonora. A sampling of the rainfall measurements is shown above.
