

Boston blacks out under 1½ feet of snow

By The Associated Press
The Northeast from Pennsylvania to Massachusetts was paralyzed today in the wake of a blizzard that brought more than a foot of snow, knocked out power in parts of Boston and disrupted virtually every facet of life for millions.

Chicago was snarled by an unexpected storm that brought 9 inches of new snow to the city; up to a foot fell in lakeside areas of Wisconsin and Michigan; a blizzard lashed parts of Montana and North Dakota; and Northern California was braced for a new round of torrential rains.

More than 24 weather-related deaths were reported around the country. The blackout in Boston, which was expected to get about 1½ feet of snow before the storm ends, left 75,000 Boston Edison Co. customers without electricity early today. Authorities said power had been restored to all but 20,000 customers by 8 a.m.

Elsewhere throughout the region, workers who had spent hours trying to get home Monday night faced equally difficult commuting today with transportation operating sporadically — if at all. Snow continued but was expected to taper off during the day. Thousands remained in hotels, hospitals, schools and emergency shelters where they took refuge from the wind-driven snow, which drifted to 6 feet and more.

While Easterners had been warned of the storm — the second for the area in 17 days — Chicagoans, who faced another blizzard only 12 days ago, were unprepared for the snow that fell on their city starting Monday afternoon. Forecasters had predicted the possibility of snow but no major accumulation.

A state of emergency was declared across Southern New England, and the National Guard was called out.

"We've stopped clearing snow. We're starting to life save. That's the best way to put it," said an emergency official in Boston.

As in many other areas, all traffic except for emergency vehicles was banned from Boston streets. Buses were not running.

Road, rail and air transportation throughout the Northeast was snarled. Airports were closed. Commuter trains were canceled, when they did operate, there were lengthy delays. Highways were blocked by disabled cars. Schools, businesses and offices — many of which closed early Monday as the snow built — remained shut.

The Western blizzard struck on Monday and the National Weather Service said the blizzard warning for western North Dakota and eastern Montana — the parts east of the Continental Divide — would continue into tonight.

Sheriff's deputies at Beach, N.D., said at least 20 motorists had to be rescued by four-wheel drive vehicles after their cars became stalled in snowdrifts on Interstate 94.

Rain was the problem on the West Coast. Storms fronts were expected to come at 24-hour intervals, with the worst storm predicted for Wednesday morning. At the height of the rains on Sunday some 44,000 homes and businesses were without power and hundreds of residents still had no electricity on Monday.

In Boston the trouble started when a roof from a neighboring building blew into Boston Edison's largest generating station, setting off a chain reaction that led to the power cuts.

The city subway system was reported operating under its own emergency power, but with long delays.

Off the coast of New England, a Coast Guard cutter searched Salem Sound in blinding snow for three vessels which reported they were disabled in 60-mph winds and 30-foot seas. The three — a Greek tanker, a pilot boat and a fishing vessel — carried 42 persons.

Weather-related deaths included those of three heart attack victims in Rhode Island who could not be reached by rescue vehicles.

Hundreds of families were evacuated from their homes by amphibious vehicles in New Jersey, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and New York when wind-driven surf vaulted seawalls.

Airports shut down from Philadelphia into New England. Air traffic controllers at Boston's Logan International left their posts in the 285-foot control tower, the tallest in the world, when winds were clocked at 79 mph. Gusts of 92 mph were recorded on Cape Cod.

Hundreds of stranded persons awakened today in movie houses, sports arenas and hospitals used for shelters. Hotels were mobbed in Boston and New York when commuters could not get home.

Some 500 motorists were evacuated from Massachusetts 128 at Dedham, 20 miles southwest of Boston, put aboard buses creeping behind snowplows and taken to a Dedham movie house for the night.

Some 12,000 fans who attended a college hockey tournament at Boston Garden were told to spend the night there. Cots and food were brought in, but officials said only those who chose to stay overnight.

"Wet snow and salt spray from the ocean" shorted out Boston Edison Co. transmission stations, cutting off power to some 75,000 customers in the core of the city, said John Murphy, the company's public information officer.

Blacked out at 3 a.m. were Beacon Hill, the downtown and Back Bay sections, and the suburbs of Waltham, Sharon, West and Weyland. Scattered outages were reported in other towns served by the utility.

States of emergency were declared by governors in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey, activating National Guard troops to help rescue people and clear roads.

A guard convoy making its way from its base at Fort Indiantown Gap, Pa., to Harrisburg, 17 miles away, picked up dozens of stranded motorists along Interstate 81.

Rhode Island Hospital in Providence "admitted" hundreds of stranded motorists who abandoned their cars on Interstate 95 and slid down embankments to reach the hospital.

Even as snow still fell Monday night, New York residents were startled by the flash and crash of a thunderstorm, but a spokesman for the National Weather Service said it was not that uncommon.

The storm whipped the Atlantic Ocean into 5-foot waves that flooded low-lying areas. Up to three feet of water washed through the streets of Hampton Beach, N.H. Hundreds of homes were flooded in communities east of Boston.

Winter residents of Long Beach Island, a half-mile-wide sliver of land off the New Jersey coast, were trapped when snow drifts and abandoned cars clogged the only bridge to the mainland. The Army and Coast Guard sent amphibious vehicles to rescue them.

Flooding and evacuations were also reported in shore areas of New York City and Long Island, where severe beach erosion was predicted.

The Midwestern storm, which stretched from the Northern Plains to Oklahoma, did not reach the here winds gus 50 mph wind dropped the chill factor to 45 degrees below zero in western North Dakota.

On the rain-soaked West Coast, crews labored north of Los Angeles today to scoop thousands of tons of mud from Interstate 5 — California's main north-south highway. More rain was expected Wednesday from a fresh storm.

Jury out on cops

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — An all-Anglo federal court jury of seven men and five women will begin deliberations today in the trial of three former Houston policemen, accused of violating the civil rights of a young Mexican-American laborer who drowned while in police custody.

The jury, after almost three weeks of testimony, received the case at 6:54 p.m. Monday, but said they wanted to rest during the night after listening to some eight hours of final arguments and instructions from U.S. District Court Judge Ross Sterling.

In final arguments, defense attorney Bob Bennett, a former Harris County assistant district attorney, said the jury mustn't return a verdict. "On the whims of politics, or the pressure or the whim of a certain group of citizens. Truth will set you free and that is what Terry W. Denson has done."

There have been several meetings and demonstrations in Houston during recent months by Mexican-Americans protesting police brutality. Bryan McDonald, the chief attorney for the government, said in reply to statements made by defense lawyers, "I make no apologies for being from Washington. I am with the civil rights division."

But remember this, no citizen can be deprived of the due process of law. Denying liberty to the guilty will soon mean denying liberty to the innocent. These three men shouldn't get away with this because they are policemen. If enforcers of the law have no respect of the law, then no others will respect the law," he said.

Denson, 27, Stephen Orlando, 22, and Joseph Janish, 22, all former Houston city officers, are charged in the civil rights violations that could, on conviction, carry a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

Denson and Orlando were charged by the state with murder after the body of Joe Campos Torres, clad in Army fatigues and heavy combat boots, was found floating in the dirty waters of Buffalo Bayou, a stream that twists and turns through a downtown section of Houston and moves near the city police headquarters.

Torres was arrested on the night of May 5, 1977, during a disturbance at a tavern in a predominantly Hispanic section of the city.

His body was found three days later in the reeds and weeds that grow in the bayou.

A state court jury in Huntsville, a town located about 70 miles north of Houston and the center of the Texas prison system, rejected the murder charge, convicted Orlando and Denson of negligent homicide, a misdeamnor, and gave them one-year probation sentences.

It was then federal civil rights violation charges were filed.

The names of Janish and Louis Kinney, 27, were added to the list of defendants. Kinney later was removed as a defendant because he had testified against Denson and Orlando in the earlier state proceedings.

Two of the six officers allegedly involved in first the beating and then the drowning death of Torres have testified against the other policemen.

Charles Elliott, a rookie officer at the time, was the first to reveal the details of the Torres death. Then Glenn Brinkmeyer, a five-year veteran of the force, pleaded guilty to a civil rights misdeamnor charge and testified that Torres was first beaten and then pushed off a 16-foot high embankment by Denson.

Prosecutors said Elliott "alone had the courage to break the code of silence. Without this rookie officer we never would have known about the death of Joe Campos Torres," McDonald said.

The defense argued that Torres used profane language and tried to harm the officers at the time of his arrest and on the way to the jail.

The defense said it was necessary to stop before arriving at the jail in an effort "to calm down Torres. And all of the officers were shocked and surprised when Torres went into the bayou."

School singers win many ones

Pampa junior high and high school students brought home a total of 35 first division ratings Saturday from a University Interscholastic League (UIL) vocal solo and ensemble contest at West Texas State University in Canyon.

More than 120 students made the trip. About 70 of them, high school choristers, were members of three ensembles which all earned first divisions.

Soloists from PHS who sang their ways to first divisions in Class 1 competition included Carol Speakman, Diane McNeely, Kim Kotara, Pam Homer, Pam Mills, and Cindy Quattlebaum. Class 2 soloists with first divisions were Mark Lehnick, Kim Morrison, Deanna Eakin, Suzy Carter, and Janine Van Kluysse.

High school choir director is John Wolcikowski. Elena Donald, PJHS choir director, said she had 34 entries in the junior high level competition, with 21 first divisions and nine second divisions resulting.

First place winners were Shelly Anderson, Tyler Berry, Julie Collier, Bill Combs, Donna Conway, Danny Davis, Dana Dykes, Misty Edwards, Tina Hardin, Dean Lynch, Lisa Michael, Steve Mills, Kay Quattlebaum, Cindy Raymond, Lisa Raymond, Kelly Russell, Lisa Sims, Bobbie Skaggs, Andora Smith, and Sharon Willis.

Police robbed

CAMERON, Texas (AP) —

Two bandits rewrote the traditional holdup script early Monday when they robbed the local police headquarters at gunpoint and made off with $300 in money from fines and bonds.

Karen Saunders, night dispatcher, told supervisors that two men about 25 or 30 entered the station in this South Texas town and greeted her with a .38-caliber revolver.

Police Chief Kent Butler said one of the masked bandits pointed the pistol at the dispatcher while the other grabbed the money from a cash drawer.

Butler said the two turned and dashed out the door, leaving Mrs. Saunders free to broadcast a futile all points bulletin.

"It's the first time ever," said Butler. "I'm hoping it doesn't happen again. We still don't have anything to go on."

The two were still at large Monday night.

Pampa was caught unawares by a snowstorm Monday afternoon, which caused freezing temperatures and slick roads. Highway, schools closed

Two accidents in the area involving a total of 34 cars prompted the Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) to discourage all travel today.

Interstate 40 east of Amarillo is open, but the road is reportedly very slick and hazardous. The DPS recommends use of chains.

A 20-car pileup with injuries was reported at 11 a.m. in Groom. No details were available at noon. A 14-car accident was reported on I-40. Both were blamed on icy roads, according to highway patrolmen.

Highway 87, north and south, is open, but the road is reportedly very slick and hazardous. The DPS recommends use of chains.

All area roads are slick and hazardous road conditions due to snow, according to the DPS.

Weather forecasters see no likelihood of improvement in conditions during the day.

Schools in McLean and Alanreed were closed today as a result of the one or two inches of snow that blanketed the area Monday afternoon, bringing an end to the three days of sunshine and 50-plus degree temperatures.

Amarillo received freezing drizzle and dense fog Monday, with reports of an early morning snowfall today.

Some towns in the Eastern Panhandle reported as much as two inches on the ground by early Monday evening.

The band of snow east of Amarillo extended from near Canadian to the south through Shamrock and Childress.

Pampa and surrounding area may receive light snow with freezing drizzle and fog with continued cold weather today.

Dependency Deductions
(Seventh of 10 columns)

To take a dependency deduction on your '77 return, you must have contributed more than half of the dependent's total support last year (except in those limited cases where a multiple support agreement is used). This seemingly simple requirement becomes crucially important if you are a parent whose child had earnings or an independent income of his (or her) own in '77, or if you are a divorced parent and the question is how much support you and your divorced spouse contributed to the child, or if you are a grandparent or some other person who contributed to the child's support in addition to the parent's contribution.

When all the support is in the form of cash, it's easy to figure out whether you contributed more than half of the dependent's support. But it's not easy at all when you or the dependent buy "capital items" such as a car, TV set, and similar products that the dependent can use for more than a year.

For the millions of you who may face this type of problem, the IRS in 1977 finally came up with some simple answers:

(1) If you bought, say, a $150 TV set as a '77 Christmas present for your 12-year-old which is kept in the child's room, you thereby contributed $150 to the child's support in '77 (in addition to the other support you gave). You count this as support contributed by you, even if you bought the set on credit and didn't actually pay for it until 1978.

(2) If you bought a $5,000 auto titled and registered in your own name, which you and your 17-year-old son used and use equally, you cannot count this as $5,000 of support contributed by you. You did not give your son the auto, you merely let him use it. But you can count as support contributed by you any of the operating expenses for which you pay while your son is using the auto.

(3) If you furnished all the ordinary support for your child during the year — which totaled $4,000 — but your son also bought a $4,500 auto using personal funds which he had accumulated in his own bank account, you contributed less than half the $8,500 total support. Under an old IRS ruling, the son's $4,500 auto purchase was disregarded as an item of support, so that your $4,000 clearly was more than half his total support. But in 1977, IRS said it revoked this old ruling and now considers the son's purchase as an item in his total support of $8,500 in 1977. You contributed only $4,000. But the IRS says that if this new rule hurts you on your '77 return, you can still rely on the old ruling for 1977 — if the auto was bought on or before Dec. 31, 1977.

US observers attend Soviet military games

MOSCOW (AP) — American observers are attending Soviet military maneuvers for the first time since World War II.

Winter war games for 25,000 Soviet soldiers and airmen began Monday in Byelorussia, in the western Soviet Union, with military representatives of the United States, West Germany, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Switzerland attending.

The American observers are Brig. Gen. Richard X. Larkin, the military attache in Moscow, and Col. William Odom of the National Security Council.

(4) If you are among the rapidly mounting millions of unmarried, unrelated persons who live together ("mingling singles"), here is the rule on whether the one of you who furnishes more than half the support of the other can claim the other as a dependent. You can claim the other as a dependent if he or she is a member of your household and makes your household a principal place of abode, except where the relationship between you and the other person is a violation of the local law. A '77 Tax Court case involving the North Carolina law underlined this rule.

The applicable state law provided that if an unmarried man and woman "shall lewdly and lasciviously associate, bed and cohabit together, they shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

Because of this law, IRS barred a dependency claim by an adult man for an unrelated adult woman who lived with him and whom he supported. The Tax Court upheld IRS because the state law had not fallen into disuse as shown by state appellate court decisions as recently as 1970.

If there is no local law prohibiting cohabitation of unmarried persons, there would seem to be no bar to a dependency claim by the one of you who furnishes more than half the support of the other, assuming all other dependency requirements are met. And this would appear to apply no matter what the sex of the cohabitating person.

(5) If you claim dependency or medical expense deductions for your parents who also receive Medicare payments, you received vital tax help from a '77 decision by the Second Circuit Court of Appeals (agreeing with the Tax Court). Despite an IRS rule, you may disregard both Part A and Part B Medicare benefits to your parents in determining whether you contributed more than half their support.

Pump Station 8 rebuilt after disaster

By WARD SIMS
Associated Press Writer
PUMP STATION 8, Alaska (AP) — In the aftermath, the five men in the pump house at Pump Station 8 on the trans-Alaska oil pipeline that muggy summer day were incredulous that such a thing could happen.

"Everything had been tried and tried and tested and tested," Herbert Robson recalled. "We had done nothing else for the past 10 weeks but check the system out."

But the trying and the testing and the checking were found wanting last July 8 when a valve that was supposed to be kept closed was opened by mistake.

Crude oil under high pressure sprayed into the pump room. Within moments the pump house was destroyed by an explosion and flames.

One man was killed. Robson and four others were injured. The flow of oil through the 800-mile line did not start again for 10 days, with Pump 8 bypassed.

It has taken more than seven months, but now the reconstruction work on Pump 8 is almost complete. It should be back in operation pushing oil through the $7.7 billion line next month.

Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. says the cost of replacing the pump house and other damaged facilities is not yet known. Unofficial estimates put the cost at about $50 million.

The destruction of the pump house delayed the delivery of millions of barrels of crude oil from Alaska's North Slope to markets in the lower 48 states.

Alyeska had planned to be running 1.2 million barrels of crude a day through the line by last fall, but with Pump 8 down the flow has been held to about 700,000 to 750,000 barrels a day.

Investigators found that through "human error" a valve that had been closed while Robson and his four co-workers were cleaning a strainer in one of the three huge pumps at the station was opened.

Oil spurted into the pump room, vaporized and ignited. Robson and the others got out before the pump house ripped apart.

Shock waves were felt more than 10 miles away, and a huge plume of black smoke was visible for twice that distance.

"We have a fire. We've had a hell of an explosion," a supervisor at Pump 8 shouted over the telephone to the pipeline Operations Control Center at Valdez.

It took only four minutes to halt the flow of oil along the entire length of the line, but by that time flaming oil had flooded what was left of the pump house and rivers of fire flowed from it.

Fire engulfed construction equipment and burned through a birch and spruce forest. The air smelled like burning rubber.

Reconstruction started almost immediately and continued through the winter months when the temperature here, 33 miles southeast of Fairbanks, often dips to 40 or more degrees below zero.

A mantle of snow now masks the damage caused by the streams of burning crude. The twisted hulk of the pump house has been replaced by a new structure.

After another period of trying and testing and checking, crude oil from Prudhoe Bay will soon again be flowing through Pump Station 8.

Bentsen backs farmers' plea

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Agriculture Committee was told today "if we can spend $125 billion to defend ourselves then certainly the time has come when we can afford a little more to feed and clothe ourselves."

Rep. Bo Ginn, D-Georgia, also said, "Agriculture is at the end of its rope and if we don't give it a chance to save itself, we're all going to hang together. It is time for the farmer to become a partner, not its slave."

Again Rep. Robert Sikes, D-Fla., opened today's testimony before the committee which will hear from congressmen, farmers, bankers, and agribusinessmen for the rest of the week.

Rep. George Mahon, the Texas Democrat who chairs the House Appropriations Committee, was scheduled to open the morning session but informed the committee he was delayed by snow in Atlanta.

The "plight" of the American farmer echoed throughout Capitol Hill on Monday as 10 congressmen testified before the committee and a Texan announced from the Senate floor legislation aimed at easing the "worst cost-price squeeze in modern times."

Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen agreed to team with Republican Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas to cosponsor a bill calling for higher target prices to farmers who reduce their production.

And Democratic Rep. Ray Roberts, noting "our farmers are facing a very real financial crisis, that of decreasing prices and rapidly escalating costs," was one of 10 congressmen voicing his support in testimony before the House Agriculture Committee.

The House committee resumes testimony this morning with Rep. George Mahon, the Texas Democrat who chairs the powerful House Appropriations Committee, the first of 21 people scheduled to testify.

The House committee, scheduled to hear from 39 more Texans before concluding testimony on the farm problem on Valentine's Day, also heard on Monday from Haskell farmer Ken Lane, State Rep. Lyndon Olson, D-Waco, and officials of the Lubbock-based National Grain Sorghum Producers Association.

"Serious damage has been and is being done in rural America," Lane said. "It will take years to repair. However, parity price will turn this trend around and begin to heal the scars in these rural areas. "Money in the hands of agricultural producers changes hands approximately seven times, thus creating new jobs and new markets. Better markets and jobs will put this country back to work. Also, the U.S. budget may look better if we in rural America get a chance to pay more income tax."

"I am not a farmer and I cannot pretend to speak for the very real concerns for survival that our farmers have today," Olson told the committee.

But he urged Congress to use "legislative processes which will allow the free market system to work its way... government should not say what shall be, but rather how it is to be done in the market place."

Larry Abeldt, from Hope, Kansas, and executive vice president of the National Grain Sorghum Producers Association, said, "farmers must have a good, workable farm program in order to survive. And, our association does not believe the new farm law is adequate, especially now in the way it is being administered. Properly executed, the bill could have been effective in raising market prices which would have given additional protection to farmers, but is already evident this is not the administration's intent. Therefore, a more workable program must be mandated by Congress."

Bentsen, in a Senate speech, said, "Over the past three weeks I have met with numerous farmers, ranchers and businessmen from agricultural areas of Texas. These discussions have borne out what many of my colleagues have become increasingly aware of in recent years: the American farmer is caught in the worst cost-price squeeze in modern history."

"Last year farmers in Texas had high crop yields," he continued. "This efficiency should have been rewarded with good profits. Instead, the low prices they received for their products, coupled with tremendous cost increases, pushed them further in debt. Their projections for this year's crops, based on the 1977 Farm Bill, once again show not only no profit but greater losses than last year."

The bill Bentsen is cosponsoring would increase target price incentives up to parity levels for an individual farmer, depending on the amount of land the farmer withdraws from production.

TORONTO (CP) — Keith Richard, guitarist for the Rolling Stones, has been ordered to appear March 6 in county court to have a trial date set.

Richard, 34, was charged with possession of heroin for the purposes of trafficking and possession of cocaine after a police raid on his Toronto hotel room last Feb. 27.

Lawyer Austin Cooper said Richard, free on $25,000 bail, was in France on Monday but would appear in Toronto for the trial.

LONDON (AP) — Rosalynn Carter says she is strong, not tough, and adds that she could never imitate an earlier American first lady, Eleanor Roosevelt.

In an hour-long television profile of the Carter family Monday night, Mrs. Carter was portrayed as an independent woman valued as a trusted aide by her husband and happily accepting her duties as wife and mother.

For the British Broadcasting Corp. special, film crews accompanied her on trips to Mexico and Puerto Rico and filmed the first family in the family quarters of the White House.

"I get very upset when my children are talked about," she said when asked if the constant attention journalists pay to her life upsets her.

Of her youngest child, Amy, 10, she said: "Of course she's spoiled. She's our first daughter and she has three older brothers. But I really think she's well adjusted. I'm proud of her."

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — "Bubbles" Beverly Sills, who recently announced plans to retire as a soprano to become codirector of the New York City Opera in 1980, has been named woman of the year by Harvard University's Hasty Pudding Theatricals. Actor Richard Dreyfuss was named man of the year.

The theatricals is an undergraduate group that claims to be the oldest dramatic organization in the United States and the third oldest in the world, dating to 1844.

Miss Sills and Dreyfuss, star of "Jaws," "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" and "The Goodbye Girl," join such previous winners as Katherine Hepburn, Elizabeth Taylor, Bob Hope and Robert Redford.

Mrs. Snyder qualifies as a longtime critic — she turned 100 years old Monday and attended the weekend craft fair as part of her birthday celebration.

"I feel pretty good," Mrs. Snyder said at a birthday gathering. "I can stand most anything. I just get a lot of sleep."

KINNEY, Minn. (AP) — The town council of Kinney, population 325, has voted to secede from the United States—and threatens war.

"It would be a war of words," adds Mayor Percy Anderson. "We're a peaceful people."

In a tongue-in-cheek resolution forwarded to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, the council said it is easier to get foreign aid than domestic aid, so they propose becoming an independent country.

Mrs. Anderson said the letter expresses the frustration of the small village in wading through the federal red tape in grant applications.

Hot races predicted

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer
Anyone who thought the U.S. Senate and governor races would hog the spotlight in the May 6 primaries had better take another look at the ballots.

First glances indicate there will be at least five hotly contested statewide races in the Democratic primary and probably more.

Even the Republicans will find an excuse to get excited over a GOP gubernatorial duel, not to mention half a dozen intra-party fights in the congressional races.

Shortly before the filing deadline at 6 p.m. Monday an unexpected rough-and-tumble contest developed for a Texas Railroad Commission seat.

Full results of the filings for the Democratic and Republican primaries May 6 may not be known for at least two days because mailed filing fees post-marked before 6 p.m. Monday will be accepted.

Jerry Sadler, the former railroad commissioner and land commissioner with a reputation for upsetting political plans, decided Monday to get into the race for the two years remaining in the term of retired Railroad Commissioner Jim Langdon.

His appearance broke up what had appeared to be a quiet campaign between Democrats John Poerner of Hondo, Gov. Dolph Briscoe's appointee, and Ray Lemmon, former state legislator from Houston.

Then, to add spice to the race, there were the filings of Jake Johnson, former San Antonio legislator and a bitter political enemy of Sadler, and Jack Strong, Longview, well-known and influential former state senator.

Just before the deadline, Republican James W. Lacy, Midland oil and gas producer, joined the contest.

The winner of the race will serve on the commission until Jan. 1, 1981.

Sadler, 70, of Grapeland lost a hot runoff battle for the commission in 1976 with present commissioner John Newton. Sadler led the field of eight candidates in the first primary although he said he spent only $900 for campaign expenses.

Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace got a last minute Democratic primary opponent with the filing by John Thomas Henderson of Austin.

Another filing surprise Monday was the late declaration of former state senator Henry Grover of Houston to run as an independent in the U.S. Senate race in November. He will have to support the declaration with a petition containing thousands of signatures of voters who do not vote in the May 6 primary elections.

Otherwise the big time U.S. Senate race continues as it has been, with Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, slated to meet the winner of the Democratic duel between Rep. Bob Krueger, New Braunfels, and Joe Christie, former state insurance board chairman.

The governor's race remains a big time duel among Democrats Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Attorney John Hill and former Gov. Preston Smith with the winner to meet the survivor between Republicans Ray Hutchison, former state GOP chairman, and Dallas businessman Bill Clements.

Statewide candidates filed with state Democratic and Republican headquarters included:

Governor — Democrats Ray Allen Mayo, San Juan; Preston Smith, Lubbock; John Hill, Austin Dolph Briscoe, Uvalde, and Donald Beagle, Nederland. Republicans William Clements, Dallas; Ray Hutchison, Dallas, and Clarence Thompson, Fort Worth.

U.S. Senator — Democrats Bob Krueger, New Braunfels; Joe Christie, El Paso and Lou John Pappas, Houston. Republican John Tower, Wichita Falls.

Lieutenant governor: Democrats Bill Hobby, Houston; John Hill Westbrook, Tyler; Troy Skates, Leander, and James L. McNeen Jr., Dallas.

Attorney general — Democrats Price Daniel Jr., Liberty, and Mark White, Houston. Republican Jim Baker, Houston.

Comptroller — Democrat Bob Bullock, Austin.

Treasurer — Democrats Charlie Sanderson, San Antonio; Warren G. Harding, Austin, and Harry Ledbetter, Austin.

Land commissioner — Democrat Bob Armstrong, Austin. Agriculture commissioner — Democrats Reagan Brown, Austin; Joe Hubenak, Rosenberg, and Dan Sewell, Nocona.

Railroad commissioner (full term) — Democrats Mack Wallace, Austin and John Thomas Henderson, Austin.

Railroad commissioner (unexpired term) — Democrats Ray Lemmon, Houston; John Poerner, Hondo; Jerry Sadler, Grapeland; Jake Johnson, San Antonio and Jack Strong, Longview. Republican James W. Lacy, Midland.

Chief justice state supreme court — Democrat Joe Greenhill.

Associate justice state supreme court, Place 1 — Democrat Franklin Spears, San Antonio.

Associate justice state supreme court, Place 2 — Democrat Sam D. Johnson, Austin.

Associate justice state supreme court, Place 3 — Democrat Charles W. Barrow, San Antonio.

Judge, court of criminal appeals, Place 1 — Democrat Wendell A. Odum, Austin.

Texas Weather

By The Associated Press
A variety of winter weather blanketed the Lone Star State today.

Residents of North Central and Northeast Texas awoke to find one-to-two inches of snow on their lawns, and many workers were expecting to show up late for work because of icy streets and highways.

The remainder of the state was under a cloud cover, with scattered light rain or drizzle east of the Pecos River. Foggy conditions were reported over much of the state east of the mountains.

Two make bids for Hightower seat

An Amarillo restaurant owner and a Perryton farmer and oil and gas producer announced Monday that they will run on the Republican ticket for the 13th District Congressional seat now held by Democrat incumbent Jack Hightower of Vernon.

Larry Kelly, 34, owner of Kelly's Seafood Restaurant in Amarillo, and Clifford Jones, 53, of Perryton, announced that they will seek the Republican nomination in the May 6 primary election and the right to oppose Hightower in November in his bid for a third consecutive term in Congress.

Kelly said he was entering the race "because the residents of the district need a more effective, more conservative voice in Washington."

Jones, who labeled Kelly a "bartender" and Hightower a "fence straddler," said he entered the race because he's "after Carter, labor, the bureaucrats — all of them, I want to clear them all out."

Both men are opposed to the Panama Canal treaties and criticized Hightower for not insisting that the U.S. Constitution requires both Houses of Congress to vote on the treaties before they are ratified.

Kelly, an Amarillo resident for three years, is a native of Morse in Hansford County. He said the farm problem could be solved with a combination of tax incentives and an opening of foreign markets for Texas farm products.

Jones, who organized the American Agriculture movement in his hometown, said the farm problem is one of prices and the solution is to limit imports.

Kelly said Presidents Carter's energy program could make Texas an "economic wasteland." Jones said the solution to the energy problem was to limit imports.

Kelly and Jones are both the parents of three children.

Spencer home burns

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Spencer at 524 S. Cuyler was engulfed in flames early this morning.

The Pampa Fire Department answered the 2:15 a.m. call and when they arrived at the scene, the house was burning heavily.

The cause of the fire is unknown and the damage is heavy.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer were taken to Highland General Hospital by Metropolitan Ambulance and are listed in satisfactory condition today.

The Spencers were out of the house when the firemen arrived.

Record strike nears end

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller met with regional union leaders today to try to sell them a proposed contract that could end the record 64-day-old coal strike.

The bargaining council, comprised of the UMW's district leaders, met to go over terms of the tentative accord, which would boost wages and fringe benefits for miners by nearly 37 percent over three years.

The bargaining council must approve the agreement before it is submitted for rank and file approval, a process that could take an estimated 10 days.

Some members of the 39-man council reportedly were skeptical over the agreement, especially a provision that would discipline miners who participated in wildcat strikes, and may be reluctant to accept the new contract.

Initial reaction after announcement of the proposed settlement Monday was cautious.

"I think our miners are ready to go back to work, provided they get what they want," said Valerio Scarton of UMW District 2 in Western Pennsylvania. "If they don't, I'm sure they will stick it out some more."

The bargaining council is not a rubber stamp. In 1974, it ordered Miller to renegotiate portions of a proposed three-year accord, and then rejected the revised pact before approving it in a second vote.

The council is expected to take a particularly close look at reported union concessions concerning wildcat strikes.

Miller said the agreement would restore the miners' health benefits and improve their pension plan.

"If that's the case, it sounds like he may be sending down something that's pretty good," said George White, a miner from Lincoln City, W.Va. He called the top minimum wage boost — to just over $80 a day after three years — "one hell of a raise."

The walkout by 160,000 miners, which began Dec. 6, has cut the nation's coal production in half, and electrical output has been reduced in several locations because of "twinding coal supplies."

Even if ratification goes smoothly, the walkout is unlikely to end soon. The union's ratification process takes about 10 days, and it will be several days beyond that before coal can move through the supply pipeline.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall hailed the proposed settlement as "genuinely good" for both sides.

which I hope will end this protracted and difficult strike."

Rockefeller, whose state is home for thousands of miners, made a surprise appearance at the news conference. He said the proposed pact would meet the "human needs" of UMW miners and their families.

Officials of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association declined comment on the settlement. The association's member companies must ratify the proposal, but that is regarded as a formality.

Voters boycott Nicaragua election

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Sandinista guerrillas urged Nicaraguans to take up arms against President Anastasio Somoza as his government acknowledged that nearly two-thirds of the voters boycotted the nationwide municipal elections.

A statement from the guerrillas called for attacks on the National Guard, Nicaragua's army, to obtain weapons. It said guardmen who join the rebellion will be "pardoned" and urged workers to convert their tools into weapons.

"Every hatchet, hammer, shovel, knife, cleaver, wheelbarrow... must be converted into the means for gaining liberty and popular democracy," said the Sandinistas.

"The workers' strike is not enough. It must be turned into an armed struggle."

Protest demonstrations and a general strike have beset Somoza since the assassination a month ago of one of his leading opponents, Pedro Joaquin Chamorro. The president's foes are demanding that he resign, but he vows he will stay in office until the end of his term in 1981.

Range course tonight

A two-night short course on pastures, range and brush control will begin at 7 p.m. today in the McLean High School Agriculture Building.

This meeting will center around Weeping Lovegrass establishment, fertilization, management and production economics.

Dr. Frank Petr, area extension agronomist, and Dr. John McNeill, area extension beef cattle specialist, will present the formal program. A panel discussion which will include some local producers will participate in a question answer session at the conclusion.

The second night program will be at the Pampa Courthouse Annex at 7 p.m. Thursday.

This program will cover range management and topics discussed will include brush control, weed control, grazing systems and expected economic returns from improved management practices.

These topics will be explained by Dr. Bob Ragdale and Dr. Tommy Welch, both extension range and brush specialists.

Somoza's opponents called for a boycott of the elections in 132 municipalities last Sunday as a protest against the president, and official returns showed only 258,59 of the 700,000 eligible voters cast ballots.

Somoza's National Liberal Party claimed there were 238,529 votes for its candidates to 12,313 for the Conservative Party, the only legal opposition party. But 52 of the 132 Conservative Party slates had been withdrawn, and one opposition senator, Alfredo Mendiate, said the government "vastly inflated" the figures.

"In my district, there were 107 voting tables and they were empty all day," he said. "We believe 95 percent of the voters stayed home."

The general strike went into its 18th day today with more than half of Managua's stores closed Monday.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have just had an operation that has altered my facial expression. Some nerves were severed and now half of my face is permanently paralyzed. The operation was easy to endure compared to the pain I have suffered from the remarks of some of my friends. One woman said, "Now you will know how the rest of us plain Janes feel. Welcome to the club." Another said, "It will be harder for you than the average woman to adjust to being homely. That's one of the penalties of having had good looks and suddenly losing them." Abby, I have never been vain about my looks, knowing that real beauty comes from within. I am crushed at these so-called "condolences" in the name of friendship. What would you make of such friends?
BETTY

DEAR BETTY: Strangers.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 21-year-old college graduate who never has been married. A year ago I fell in love with Phil, a wonderful man who is perfect for me in every way. He's 33, divorced and has a 15-year-old son, Sonny. And that's the problem. Sonny has lived with his father since he was 2. Phil was married at 17 and divorced at 18. Sonny's mother wasn't much good, but Sonny has a fierce loyalty to her, and for some strange reason, he doesn't like me. He has said some cruel things to me, such as, "You don't really love my Dad, you just want his money," and "You're too young to know what love is," and "It's just a crush," and "You'll never take my mother's place." Meanwhile, I am very much in love with Phil and I know he loves me, but he keeps stalling the marriage because Sonny is so hostile to me. How long should it take a 15-year-old boy to adjust to a stepparent? I feel that I'm losing Phil. How can I win Sonny's trust and love and get Phil to marry me?
LOSING OUT

DEAR LOSING: Sorry, it's Phil's move—not yours. If he loved you as you love him, he'd deal with Sonny. In the meantime, if the wedding is off because Phil's son doesn't like you, you are obviously No. 2 in a winner take all contest.

DEAR ABBY: My father (age 62) is having an affair with a young woman and the whole family knows about it. Everybody but my mother, that is. This isn't the first time my father has been involved. If it were really a love affair I could understand it, but these girls are always much younger (about my age—30) and they wouldn't look at my father if he didn't have money. I just hate to see Dad make a fool of Mom this way. I considered typing Mom an anonymous letter, giving her Dad's current girlfriend's name and address and where she works. But I discussed it with my older brother and he said I shouldn't do it—it would hurt Mom too much. Well, I think it would be doing Mom a great big favor. What is your opinion?
ANONYMOUS DAUGHTER

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Your brother's advice was good. Take it.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I had a light stroke the first week in September. The doctor said it was a blood clot in the brain. It temporarily paralyzed the left side. I got over the paralysis, but my balance is not good. The doctor told me to take three aspirin a day. Is this harmful to me? I have lots of nose bleeds and have heard aspirin can cause nose bleeds. Do you think it does? What do you recommend to prevent blood clots?

DEAR READER—You must tell your doctor at once about your tendency to have nose bleeds. Aspirin is used in treating strokes and after heart attacks because of its action in preventing normal blood clotting. Aspirin in moderate amounts can prolong normal clotting time. The precautions in using aspirin are about the same as those we have followed in the past for using other anticoagulating medicines. I might add here that the effectiveness of aspirin in preventing strokes and heart attacks is still under study and a final answer concerning its usefulness versus any harm it might cause has not been reached. Medicines that are effective in preventing clotting cannot be used or must be used with extreme caution in people who have a tendency to bleed from anywhere, the nose, the stomach, or the kidney as examples. And it is wise to avoid taking even one aspirin for at least a week before any surgery or a delivery. To give you more information on aspirin and medications that you might buy without a prescription that contain aspirin I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-8, Aspirin and Related Medicines. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. DEAR DR. LAMB—Regarding your column on zinc tablets, only one druggist out of six that I questioned said he knew where to get zinc sulfate. He tried, but the smallest he could obtain were 220 milligrams and he would need a prescription for any dose that large. He also said zinc sulfate is used as an emetic. Is that so? Do you know where 66 milligram zinc sulfate tablets may be obtained? Will they make you vomit? DEAR READER—You have had a problem. If your pharmacist will simply consult the latest edition of the Physician's Desk Reference (PDR 1977) he will find that zinc sulfate tablets containing 66 milligrams of zinc sulfate are manufactured by Mericon Industries of Peoria, Illinois, and that it is a nonprescription item. Yes, zinc sulfate is an emetic if you take a big dose. The PDR source I mentioned states that if you take nine 220 milligram capsules together it will make you vomit. The usual amount recommended, one of the 66 milligram tablets a day with meals or more frequently if a zinc deficiency is present, is far, far below the emetic dose. Frankly, I am astonished that you have so much trouble since the PDR is a standard reference text. I do think that anyone who has symptoms that leads him to think he should take zinc should see a physician. As I have mentioned before, serious illnesses are sometimes the cause of deficiencies that lead to loss of taste or smell and these need attention.

Plants in the Home...

House - plant topiaries

Elvin McDonald

Last winter, my sunny dining-room window was filled with a sprawling, totally ungainly flowering maple. All that saved it were the apricot-orange bell blooms that appeared almost daily.

Now, thanks to some radical pruning, staking, tying and pinching, this same flowering maple (a hybrid form of abutilon, related to the hollyhock and not the maple) has turned into a stylish, tailored tree. It has a single trunk supported by a half-inch-thick bamboo stake 4 feet tall, crowned by a many-branched head of leaves as big around as a bushel basket. The pot, a 14-inch size with matching saucer, rests on a plant dolly which makes it easy for me to give it a quarter turn to the left each time I water - so that all parts of the tree receive equal amounts of light.

What I did with my flowering maple you can do also with almost any woody-stemmed house plant - and some not so woody. From now until early spring is the best time of the year to start training such a topiary or standard and, while the mature size can vary from 12 inches to 4 feet tall or more, the age-old techniques used are essentially the same for all plants.

Besides the flowering maple, some plants you can train as trees include geranium, angelwing begonia, fuchsia, dwarf citrus, heliotrope, button chrysanthemum, tibouchina, miniature rose, ornamental pepper, lantana, gardenia, avocado, pink polka-dot, shrimp plant, coleus and even such vining or trailing types as Swedish and English ivies. Herbs such as sweet basil, rosemary, bay and lemon verbena respond to the same training.

In my experience, the easiest of all these plants to turn from a bush into a tree shape is the coleus. I suggest you practice with it, then apply the same training techniques to any of the plants I have suggested - or whatever strikes your fancy. My next trainee is going to be a potted cherry tomato.

Here's how: (1) Start with a single-stem, sturdy, rooted cutting or seedling. Place a bamboo stake next to it in the pot; select a stake approximately the same length as you want the trunk of your tree to be, plus whatever will be inserted in the soil.

(2) Use twist ties or half-inch-wide strips of dark green plastic to tie the plant stem to the stake every 2 to 4 inches. Make a loose loop around the stem to give room for expansion, then tie securely to the stake.

(3) Remove all side or lateral branches from the stem but do not remove the main leaves until later in the training process.

As growth proceeds, repeat steps (2) and (3). When the main stem reaches the top of the stake, here's what to do:

(4) Pinch out the tip of the main stem. In its place two new branches will form. When these have two sets of leaves, pinch out the tip from each. Soon you will have four branches; when each has two sets of leaves, pinch out the tips. Repeat this step over and over until you have a many-branched, leaf-covered tree head.

(5) After you pinch out the tip of the main stem and at least two new branches have begun to grow, remove all the leaves that remain along the trunk.

(6) From the time your tree reaches step (4) it is important to give the pot a quarter turn to the left each time you water so that all sides of the tree will receive equal amounts of light. If you do this faithfully and keep the tips of all new branches nipped out before they become too long, your tree will develop a perfectly shaped, uniformly rounded head.

Since I live in an apartment and have no terrace, my house-plant topiaries, or standards as they are sometimes called, stay indoors all year, but if you have a garden outdoors, enjoy them there in warm, frost-free weather. One word of caution: Situate topiaries where they will have some protection from strong winds.

House Call

Q. What causes my English ivy leaves to turn a dusty gray color, shrivel and die?

A. Sounds like red spidermites. Here's the cure: Wash the leaves thoroughly in water every day or two. Meanwhile, increase fresh-air circulation, take special care to keep the soil evenly moist at all times, and place the pot in a pebble humidity tray. If the mites persist (examine the leaves with a magnifying glass), spray with a miticide.

Muriel B. Humphrey, widow of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, has become the only woman in the Senate.

Eager Muriel takes seat in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — An eager Sen. Muriel B. Humphrey is picking up her husband's unfinished legislation where he left off while keeping Minnesotans guessing whether she'll run for election in her own right next fall.

Beginning a 10-month term as an appointed senator, the 65-year-old widow of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., is promising "to help people wherever I can and pass the legislation Hubert had under way."

The new Sen. Humphrey, who becomes the only woman in the 100-member Senate, also says she doesn't intend to "leave things hanging," but wants about two months to decide whether to seek election to the remaining four years of her husband's term.

"I feel a little like the astronaut when he stepped off the space ship on the moon," she said Monday after being sworn in by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, her husband's political protégé.

"I must say that I don't know of another day that felt quite like this, except the day Hubert and I were married," she said. "I just hope with all my heart that I can do a good job and fill the shoes that he filled."

Hubert Humphrey died of cancer last month. The new senator said she is eager to get started on her husband's unfinished work and promised to "come to work at 9 in the morning and put in a full day, just like Hubert did." But she said she also realizes that it will be impossible to complete work on all the pending Humphrey legislation in just 10 months.

Alleged inmate beating investigated in Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Federal and local authorities have launched separate probes into an alleged prisoner beating that resulted in a county jail inmate being hospitalized and the reassignments for three city officers.

A hospital spokesman here said the 19-year-old victim was suffering from a swollen nose, bruises and possible internal injuries when he was admitted Sunday.

He has not been formally charged, although police said they arrested him on several counts including assault and resisting arrest.

A report from Lubbock County Sheriff C.H. Blanchard, released Monday, said deputies saw the officers drag the man into a booking room, his hands cuffed behind his back, and slam his head into the concrete floor.

Blanchard said he reported the alleged beating to the criminal district attorney's office Saturday night because he thought the alleged beating was "an uncalculated measure." He said a deputy told him, "They worked him (the inmate) over."

"I want the blame laid to where it is supposed to be," said Blanchard. "I don't see any way that much force could have been necessary. He was in handcuffs."

FBI agent Ben Harrison and Tom Cannon of the district attorney's office officially began investigating the alleged beating Monday. They declined further comment.

Meanwhile, Lt. Ray Huffman said the three officers have been reassigned to desk jobs

Her husband's Senate staff is intact and Mrs. Humphrey said she intends to lean on it for any expertise she may lack.

At the top of her agenda is the Humphrey-Hawkins full-employment bill, which has been stripped of most of its mandatory job-creating provisions and diluted mostly to an expression of intent.

Next in priority is the sweeping reorganization her husband charted of the U.S. foreign aid program.

Other unfinished Hubert Humphrey bills concern urban and rural development, child and adult nutrition, agricultural trade expansion, solar energy, small businesses and aid to the handicapped and victims of crime.

Both Humphreys had a special interest in the problems of handicapped children that was stimulated when their first grandchild, Vicky, was born mentally retarded.

ENI completes four gas wells

The ENI Exploration Co. has successfully completed testing of four gas wells in Texas and Oklahoma.

A 15,524-foot well drilled in Roger Mills County produces between 3.7 and 8 million cubic feet of gas per day. Another Roger Mills well that started production Jan. 5 is expected to produce about one million cubic feet per day.

A well in Wise County, Texas, is producing 860,000 cubic feet of gas per day and one in San Patricio County flowed at rates of 202,000 to 848,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

Close files for re-election

State Representative Bob Close of Perryton has announced his intention to file for re-election. As State Representative of the 64th Legislative District, Close serves the top ten counties in the Texas Panhandle.

Close, a Republican, was cited for outstanding service in the last legislative session by "Texas Monthly Magazine."

Close presently serves as vice chairman of Appropriative Matters on the Natural Resources Committee and as Chairman of a sub-committee overseeing the newly created Texas Department of Water Resources. He is also a member of the Constitutional Amendments Committee and the Select House Committee on Child Pornography.

Teenager wins $128 million from Ford

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A California jury has awarded nearly $128 million in damages from the Ford Motor Co. to a teen-ager who has had 52 operations since being maimed in the explosion of a Ford Pinto's gas tank. "This is probably the loudest noise that the jury has made in any civil suit in American jurisprudence," Mark Robinson, attorney for 18-year-old Richard Grimshaw of Orange, said after the verdict was returned Monday. A spokesman for Ford Motor Co. in Detroit termed the award "a staggering amount of money," but said the automaker would have no further comment on the verdict until the firm's lawyers had been consulted.

Under Monday's decision by an Orange County Superior Court jury, Grimshaw was awarded $125 million in punitive personal injury damages and $2.84 million in compensatory damages.

Since the May 1972 accident that burned 95 percent of his body, Grimshaw has undergone 52 operations and will have to undergo 20 more, Robinson said. The youth, who was 13 when the accident occurred, lost four fingers, his nose and left ear.

Grimshaw was a passenger in the car driven by 52-year-old

Lily Gray of Anaheim, who died in the accident. The jury awarded her family $665,000 compensatory damages. No punitive damages were sought in her death.

Mrs. Gray was a neighbor of the Grimshaws, who at the time lived in Anaheim.

The entire passenger compartment of the 1972 Pinto ignited when it was hit from behind by another vehicle traveling about 35 mph on Interstate 15 near San Bernardino. Evidence at the seven-month trial indicated that because of faulty welding, the gas tank was punctured by the impact and that burning gas leaked inside the car.

Robinson said three similar suits involving Pinto gas tanks have been filed, but that this was the first effort to obtain punitive damages. The highest compensatory damage award in the other suits was for $3.3 million in a 1975 Florida suit.

Robinson said Ford had failed five crash tests on the Pinto model involved in the accident.

"We were charging that Ford Motor Co. had consciously, knowing that those tests had failed, put out that model to save 10 bucks a car at the risks of hundreds of human lives and hundreds of more injuries like Grimshaw's," Robinson said.

Robinson said he expects Ford to appeal the verdict.

Last August, Ford characterized as "distortions and half-truths" claims by consumer advocate Ralph Nader that the company knowingly permitted the sale of Pintos with fuel tanks that would rupture in rear-end accidents. Nader had demanded investigations by Congress and the National Traffic Safety Board.

Chinese greet year

By PETER H. KING Associated Press Writer SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chinatown greeted the Year of the Horse today with hope that the bleak specter of a bloody massacre has slipped away with the Year of the Snake.

It has been five months since three masked gunmen invaded the Golden Dragon restaurant and sprayed a crowd of 75 diners with bullets, killing five and wounding 11. No one has been arrested in connection with the shootings.

The Sept. 4 outburst — blamed on warring between rival Chinese youth gangs — cast a pall over the rickety-ticky neighborhood, the largest enclave of Chinese outside Asia. Sidewalk traffic thinned and once-bustling restaurants began to close early, spurring rumors that several would go out of business.

But there was a spirit of optimism among shopkeepers and street vendors Monday night on the eve of Chinatown's traditional two-week celebration of the lunar New Year.

"Chinatown has been so crowded you can hardly move," said the Rev. Tao Tin Tamm, a community leader who has lived 55 of his 77 years in Chinatown. "Everyone has been shopping for the New Year goodies — flowers, oranges, fruits, chicken.

"I knew it would just take some time before the people started coming back, especially the tourists," he said. "Time will heal."

Chinese traditionally spend the eve of Tet quietly at home, saving the biggest celebration for a giant parade at the end of the New Year holiday. But Chinatown's shops and restaurants were busy with tourist trade Monday night. And firecrackers exploded with ear-splitting regularity.

The Chinese lunar calendar classifies 12 years as a cycle and names them after animals in the following order: rat, cow, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, goat, monkey, cock, dog and pig.

Chinese say the Year of the Horse — an animal they praise for its spirit, alertness, loyalty and penchant for hard work — is better than most.

Among the nations of the world, the U.S. population ranks fourth, says the Census Bureau. The People's Republic of China holds first place with 850 million, India is second with 622.7 million and the U.S.S.R. third with 259 million. The U.S. population now numbers 218 million.

Gov says aging confab 'political'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe's decision to postpone his Feb. 20 conference on aging to avoid "political controversy" came at the peak of enthusiasm among the elderly, a planner says.

Announcement of the delay came after details were virtually complete and "at a time when their enthusiasm was the highest," said John McDonald of Interlink, a consulting firm.

McDonald's partner, M. E. Walker — a former employee of the governor's division of planning and coordination — held a $200-a-day contract with the Governor's Committee on Aging to plan the conference. Thus far, $7,000 had been earned.

Alton Bowen, committee chairman, said the San Antonio conference would be rescheduled after the Democratic primaries.

He said he believed enthusiasm for the conference could be rekindled among elderly people.

Bowen said when the conference was planned, nobody noticed it would occur during the political season.

"We just weren't thinking about the political aspects of it," he said.

Briscoe's office said Monday he was "concerned that this conference might be subjected to political controversy which might hurt the work of the Committee on Aging and the older Texans who would attend the conference."

"Since statements were being made that the governor was using this as a political forum, we felt we should not move forward with this until after the election," Bowen said.

He said he had heard no such statements, but "our staff had heard this from people in the field."

Estimates of the possible crowd ranged from 5,000 to 12,000, and some local Area Agencies on Aging (AAAs) were lining up buses.

Vernon McDaniel, director of the committee on aging, said his office had allocated $28,000 in federal funds to the 28 AAAs for "gasoline money."

The conference was to differ from those in the past, which usually consisted of speeches and discussions by experts and program operators.

Elderly persons would attend sessions where they could voice their gripes and problems to persons with authority to do something about them.

Speakers were to have included Briscoe and Robert Benedict, newly appointed commissioner of the U. S. Administration on Aging.

McDonald said posters and other materials urging old people to come billed the conference as one "for the elderly, not about them."

"I've had people ask me, 'Is this a political rally for the governor?' It had nothing to do with the governor. I thought it was a courageous move by the committee on aging, where people from the federal level on down would have to answer some pretty direct questions and receive some direct input," he said.

Childress man sentenced to year in pen

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Childress cotton broker Vaughan B. Nowlin has been sentenced to one year in federal prison for failure to pay taxes withheld from the wages of his cotton company employees.

Nowlin pleaded guilty Nov. 30, 1977 in a Lubbock federal court to one felony count. U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward handed down the sentence on Monday.

On Oct. 26, 1977, a federal grand jury in Lubbock charged Nowlin with 39 counts of alleged tax law violations in relation to 1976 employment tax returns at three of his businesses in Childress.

The maximum sentence Nowlin could have received Monday was five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The charges against Nowlin resulted from an IRS investigation.

Harvies entertain Dons

By TOM KENSLE
Pampa News Sports Editor
On Paper, tonight's Harvester Palo Duro clash in the Fieldhouse should be a ho-hum affair.

The Dons, coming off a 61-49 whipping from Tascosa, are winless in District 3-AAAA play. They have both the worst offensive (53 ppg) and defensive (69 ppg) statistics in the league, and suffered a 77-54 home shellacking from the Harvesters Jan. 20.

Pampa, on the other hand, is riding high off an interme 74-62 victory over Tascosa Friday. Wins over PD tonight and the Sandies Friday would send the Harvesters, now 18-7, into bi-district play for the fourth straight year.

"I feel like we've really got momentum now and it should carry us through the last two games," said Pampa Coach Gary Abercrombie after Friday's win. "But we'll still have to hook up and play."

"We can't afford to look behind or ahead. If we slip against Palo Duro, our wins won't mean as much."

While everybody talks about Friday's "revenge" clash with the Sandies, Pampa can't afford to look past Palo Duro. With a lineup of good athletes, the Dons have the potential of pulling upsetting any team taking them lightly.

Leading the Dons are 6-2 point guard Deon Green (11.6 in loop play), post Maderia Hardy (11.2), 6-3 forwards Tracy McLain and Victor Wells and bulky Scott Loftis. Ed Shaffer who scored 10 against Pampa in the first meeting, is an impressive sophomore off the bench.

Abercrombie said he will probably go with the "altitude" lineup which worked so well in the second half against Tascosa. Rusty Ward, who broke out of a shooting slump Friday in high style with 27 ppgs, will work at guard with captain Tim Reddell. Ricky Buntun, leading the district in both scoring (24.5 ppg) and rebounding (13.8), and Darrell Hughes will team at forward, surrounding pivot Steve Stout.

"I like the way Stout passes from the high post," Abercrombie said. "And playing at guard seems to give Rusty a lift."

As is customary, a 6 p.m. junior varsity battle between the two schools will precede the main event.

In the other District 3-AAAA contest, Tascosa, 1-1 in second-half play, faces a must-win situation against the Sandies (2-0) at Amarillo.

PAMPA NEWS Tuesday, February 7, 1978 9

N.O. names Nolan

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dick Nolan was the first man John Mecom Jr. interviewed as a potential head coach for the New Orleans Saints, and the young team owner hopes he'll be the last one for a while, at least.

Nolan succeeded Hank Stram as head coach of the National Football League team Monday, becoming the fifth head coach hired by Mecom since the team was formed.

The Saints were formed in 1967, and the team has never posted better than a 5-9 season record.

"Nolan was my first choice, the first coach I ever interviewed," Mecom said Monday after formally introducing his new coach.

Nolan was a defensive coordinator at Dallas in '67. Instead of choosing him, Mecom named Tom Fears as the first coach of the Saints.

Mecom said he settled on Fears, instead of Nolan, "because I was talked out of it by Vincent Lombardi." Fears was an assistant under Lombardi.

The following year, Nolan left Dallas to take the top job at San Francisco. Nolan was 54-53-5 at San Francisco, winning three division championships and being named NFL coach of the year in 1970. But he was fired after losing seasons in 1974 and 1975.

Mecom said Stram was fired because he failed to show any progress toward building a winner. Stram's teams were 4-10 and 3-11, and he was fired with three years to go on his contract.

Coaches showing Frogs respect

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Texas Christian Coach Tim Somerville says his basketball team has gained so much respect that other coaches are actually scouting the lowly Horned Frogs.

"(Texas Coach) Abe Lemons scouted us twice...I think he was wondering why we were holding some of the scores down," said young Somerville who took control of the 3-17 Frogs only four days before the season started.

Somerville said "At least we are making some of the coaches sweat. We don't have a lot of talent but we'll hustle. We lead the league in floor turns. I've got one kid who has one (a floor turn) under his arm pit."

TCU is idle tonight but could present a sticky problem for second-ranked Arkansas in Fort Worth Saturday night.

Arkansas could only down the Frogs by eight points in an earlier meeting in Fayetteville. "We slowed it down so much I think we put their guys to sleep on the bench," said Somerville.

In the key game tonight, third place Texas Tech (8-3) is at Southern Methodist (5-5). Texas, which leads Arkansas by a half-game with a 10-1 ledger, is at Houston to play the (2-9) Rice Owls.

Somerville said he hoped his team could improve enough to win six or seven games next year.

"Steve Scales has played great but we have to get some more players to go with him," said Somerville. "He has to do it all himself. I feel sorry for him. He's our only rebounder and only shooter."

"He has even been double-teamed in some games if you can believe that. He dumped the ball off and we missed six layups. Scales could play for any team in the league. He is already a great player."

In cage poll

New Mexico leaps to 6th

By DAVE KAYE
AP Sports Writer

The top five teams in The Associated Press College Basketball Top Twenty won all their games last week and so each retained the same position it held last week. But it was another story for many of the other ranked teams.

The teams that were ranked sixth through 20th last week combined to lose 13 of 31 games and jockeyed for position with three new teams entering this week's poll.

Kentucky, 16-1, routed Southeast Conference rivals Georgia 90-73 and Florida 88-61 and remained atop the heap with 1-140 points.

The Wildcats received 52 of 57 first-place ballots cast by the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Second-place Arkansas received two first-place votes, No. 4 Notre Dame got two and sixth-place New Mexico received one.

Arkansas, now 21-1, beat Southwest Conference foe Texas 75-71 and Rice 69-48 and received 879 points to remain No. 2. Third-ranked Marquette beat Penn State 73-60, then was forced to two overtime periods before prevailing over South Carolina 69-66. The Warriors, 17-2, received 836 points.

Fourth-ranked Notre Dame, 16-3, garnered 723 points as the Irish beat LaSalle 95-90 and Davidson 100-76. UCLA, No. 5, beat Stanford 101-64 and California 94-75 to improve its record to 16-2. The Bruins received 566 points.

New Mexico, 17-2, beat Wyoming 94-91 and Colorado State 91-82 and leaped from 10th to No. 6. North Carolina beat Mercer 73-70 and Virginia Tech 101-88, but lost to Furman 80-83 and fell from sixth to seventh with an 18-4 record.

Kansas, 18-3, beat Oklahoma State 83-85 and Oklahoma 69-68 to remain No. 8. Louisville beat Marshall 85-69 and Cincinnati 83-76 to stay at No. 9 with a 14-3 mark.

Michigan State, 16-3, fell from seventh to No. 10 on a 71-66 loss to Indiana and a 65-63 loss to Michigan before beating Indiana 68-59.

Girls game tonight

The Pampa girls - Caprock basketball game, cancelled yesterday due to poor driving conditions, has been rescheduled for tonight in the Longhorn gym. The JV game will begin at 6 p.m., and varsity is slated for 7:45.

Wildcats keep rolling

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

James Lee is the No. 1 man on the No. 1 team in college basketball, and that's quite all right with Lee, Kentucky Coach Joe Hall, and the top-ranked Wildcats.

Lee came off the bench to score 25 points in Kentucky's 104-81 rout of Auburn Monday night. He admitted after the Southeastern Conference contest that, "If it would help, I'd be willing to start, but right now I'm happy doing what I'm doing."

Coach Hall is equally happy with the situation and has no plans of changing his starting lineup just to give the 6-foot-5 forward more playing time.

Lee's 13 first-half points helped the Wildcats to a 45-40 halftime margin. Then Rick Robey and Mike Phillips each scored 4 points in a 10-0 Kentucky spree that ruined any hopes of an Auburn upset on the Wildcats' home court.

"A team might beat them on the road, but nobody's going to beat them here," said Coach Bob Davis after his Tigers dropped to 8-11 and 4-7 in the SEC.

The Wildcats, who raised their record to 17-1 and 9-1 in the SEC, will lose seniors Jack Givens, Robey and Phillips to graduation after this season.

Other games involving teams ranked in The Associated Press Top Twenty saw No. 15 Illinois State rip Oral Roberts 84-71 and No. 16 Florida State edge Memphis State 95-89 in double overtime.

Georgetown, which was rated 14th last week but dropped out of the rankings after losing two games, ended the streak with a 77-55 drubbing of Stonehill.

Controversy flared briefly in another SEC clash at Nashville, Tenn., where Vanderbilt trimmed Florida 59-57 in double overtime. It may have been the only contest in college basketball history which required 11 minutes for the playing of the final three seconds.

After Vanderbilt's Tommy Springer made two free throws, Ric Clarson rebounded for Florida. The final seconds ticked off and the Commodores rushed off the court to celebrate their victory.

But it was established that the timekeeper had started the clock before the ball was touched in play. Vanderbilt was called back from the dressing room and the clock was reset at three seconds.

It mattered little, since the Gators botched their second chance after the long delay. Clarson's inbound pass was batted away and the game came to an official conclusion.

Senior Billy Lewis scored 16 points to become the third-leading scorer in Illinois State history and help the 15th-ranked Redbirds, 19-2, beat Oral Roberts.

Elsewhere, Lavon Mercer's close-range shot with 4 seconds to play lifted Georgia past Mississippi 57-56 in another SEC contest; Randy Boarden scored a career-high 2 points and grabbed 18 rebounds to help Ball State blast Kent State 88-64, and Lovell Joiner scored six points in overtime to carry Eastern Kentucky past Western Kentucky 78-74 in an Ohio Valley Conference game.

Class field begins Bob Hope Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The 19th annual Bob Hope Desert Classic — the only 90-hole event on the Professional Golf Association tour — gets underway Wednesday at four locations.

A field of 128 professionals and 384 amateurs will play 18 holes each at Bermuda Dunes, La Quinta, El Dorado and Indian Wells Country Clubs Wednesday through Saturday.

The field will then be cut to the 70 low pros and ties for Sunday's final round at Bermuda Dunes in the $200,000 tournament.

Tom Watson, the No. 1 PGA money-winner last year, and seven former Bob Hope Classic champions are among the entries.

Watson, whose 1977 earnings of $310,653 places him third on the all-time 12-month earning list, is off to a fast start this year with consecutive victories in the Tucson Open and the Bing Crosby Pro-Am last month.

Among former champions shooting for the $40,000 first prize are Rik Massengale, who won last year with a 23-under-par score of 337, and five-time winner Arnold Palmer.

Other past winners of the Hope Classic in attendance will be Hubert Green, who captured the Hawaiian Open Sunday in a playoff with Bill Kratzert; Billy Casper, Bob Rosburg, Tom Niporte and Doug Sanders.

Also competing will be, among others, Kratzert, San Diego Open winner Jay Haas, Lanny Wadkins, Bruce Lietzke, Lou Graham, Lee Trevino, Dave Hill, Lee Elder, Jerry Heard, Gene Littler, Andy Bean, Tom Kite and Jerry McGee.

The field was filled Monday with 12 players qualifying, led by Don Pooley and Woody Blackburn, who carded 5-under-par 67s.

Don Iverson, Bobby Baker, Jim White, Allen Miller, Bob Zender, Chris Piggot, Perry Leslie, Rex Caldwell, Monte Kaser and Bill Galloway were the other qualifiers.

Among the amateurs playing will be former President Gerald R. Ford.

NBC will televise portions of the final two rounds.

Naber wins Sullivan Award

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joan Naber got out of bed at 5 o'clock in the morning day after day to make sure her son had a warm breakfast. It was worth all the effort when he accepted the Sullivan Award as the nation's outstanding amateur athlete of 1977.

Mrs. Naber of Menlo Park, Calif., shrugged off the difficulties of her chore Monday, saying, "I'm really a morning person and I like to see the sun coming up."

Her son, who also rose at the early hour, became a five-medal winner at the 1976 Olympics at Montreal and added to his fame by being named the outstanding amateur athlete in the United States by the AAU.

Naber turned down monetary offers after his great Olympic swimming performances to return to the University of Southern California and finish the work toward his degree.

Six grapplers win medals

All six of the Pampa Optimist Wrestling Club member who travelled to Richardson for the Skyline Invitational Tournament, placed in the top four at the prestigious event Saturday.

Garnering third-place finishes were junior high grapplers Jeff Franks (81 pounds), David Burns (77) and Brent Bradford (166). Rusty Rice, competing in the grade school class, took third at 73 pounds.

Fourth-place finishers were junior high student Mark Campbell (81) and elementary-aged wrestler Trace Robbins (73).

The junior high wrestlers are scheduled to compete in the Irving Invitational Tournament in Irving, Feb. 18, while the grade-school grapplers are slated to enter the Carrollton Invite at Carrollton the same day.

Coach Manny Holden will accompany Verne Cave to Austin Friday where he will compete in the Texas High School State Championship Tournament.

A woman in the neighborhood who has chosen to remain childless announced the other day that she and her husband had found a solution to their empty nest. "Since children are so expensive and make such demands on your time, we've decided to adopt a doll. After all, they do everything a baby does and you don't have all the fuss and responsibility."
We stared at her in disbelief. Is it possible someone could be so naive?
"Look, Kay," I said. "I don't know how to tell you but dolls today are not your dimpled, soft rubber, huggable cuties that you take off all their clothes and sling under the bed. Dolls today move, and demand, and nag and nag and nag. There's Baby Comeback. When you turn her arms down, she walks away, but when the arms start going up she returns to you with arms outstretched and cries.

There's Baby-Telefoam-who yells, "Ma!" until you squeeze her to shut her up. There's Baby Won't-Let-Go that grabs tablecloths, fingers, walls, toys, people... anything, until her batteries go. And do you want to fall over Crater Crunchers and drive over Ultrasonic Scooters in the driveway?
"Baby Alive eats and fills her diapers all day long. Her brother comes with all the parts and you'll have to worry about their playing doctor."
"There's also Baby Heartbeat, who comes equipped with stethoscope and a thermometer and is sick all the time, and there's the baby who blows bubbles, slobbers all over you and another called Baby Pretend that hangs on the phone all day.
"Wait until you see Tippy Tumbles who stands on her hands to get your attention — and the Mashatron which, when you reach out to strike it, the arms, legs and head fall off."

Kay thought for a moment. "So, I'll get an older child."
"You want a foot the bill for Cher's wardrobe and her dressing room with an American Indian motif? Or Suntan Tuesday who tans but comes with three homes? Or pick up the tab for Barbie's interchangeable heads? Or Donnie and Marie Osmond's own TV studio?
"How are you going to run a home with a Bionic man and woman running around with their bionic ear, bionic eye and bionic arm? Not to mention the Micronaut Biotron who converts to a tank. Believe me, Kay, you're asking for trouble when you adopt Super Joe Commander. Press his back and he delivers a quick left or right uppercut."
"My husband wants a Farrah Fawcett-Majors doll."
Frankly, I didn't know Kay's marriage was that stable.

Eagle killers fined $6,000

By RICK SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal judge, who fined three West Texas men a total of $6,000 Monday for conspiring to hunt and kill protected golden eagles, warns that future violators face prison terms.
Acknowledging that some would consider the punishment too lenient, U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. warned of "the maximum consequences" for anyone who violates the controversial law protecting the eagles that prey on newborn lambs from West Texas ranches.
Ranchers say they should be allowed to use helicopters to hunt and kill the predatory birds they claim decimate their herds of lambs. But environmentalists say the birds are decreasing in number and should be protected.

Wood, in an unusual 10-minute speech from the bench, said the case was the most controversial he has tried in eight years as a federal judge.
On Dec. 9, a federal court jury convicted Real County Commissioner Lanny Leinweber, former government predator trapper Andrew Allen and Real County ranch foreman Norman M. Pape of conspiring to illegally hunt and kill the eagles.
Pape, 45, and Allen, 31, also were convicted of illegal airborne hunting and of killing eagles.
Each count of the conviction carried a maximum punishment of one year in prison and a $5,000 fine. There was one count against Leinweber, three against Allen and five against Pape.

Wood fined Pape $3,000. Allen was fined $2,000 and sentenced to a year's probation. And Leinweber, 41, was fined $1,000.
Testimony during the trial showed that about 70 golden eagles were killed on helicopter hunts over Real County ranches between December 1975 and January 1977.
All three defendants denied killing any eagles or conspiring to hunt them. They said they had hunted from the air, legally, for predatory coyotes, bobcats and wild boars.
Judge Wood said he thought the men might have been acquitted if they'd claimed self-defense of their property, rather than denying any involvement in killing eagles. He said the jury's verdict was supported by evidence in the week-long trial.

Wood also said he had received "a mountain of pre-sentence mail, reports, petitions, newspaper articles and other material, almost all of which contend that eagles are predators and destroy livestock and should be exterminated as mortal enemies of the area ranchers."
He said violating the law was not the proper method for changing it, although he said the law protecting golden eagles "is probably one that needs Congressional attention."
But Wood warned that violation of the present law would not be tolerated.
"This case, and its widely publicized ramifications should serve as an ominous warning to those who have threatened continued future violations of these laws, rather than changing or modifying them through appeals to the congressmen," he said.

While bald eagles are on the endangered species list, the golden eagles are not officially considered endangered.
The government's star witness was Gerald Heintzelman, a 31-year-old helicopter pilot who said he flew the men on eagle-hunting trips.
Heintzelman testified that while Allen, Pape and Leinweber all flew as "gunners" on flights, only Allen and Pape shot any eagles.
Heintzelman, an unindicted co-conspirator in the case, was granted immunity from prosecution for his testimony. He also said he had received $1,200 from the government for "living expenses" since agreeing to cooperate with prosecutors late last summer.
Prosecutors said the case was the first of its kind ever to go to court in Texas.
Ranchers have sought unsuccessfully in the past to get government permission for controlled hunting of the golden eagles, which were not originally covered by a federal law which protects American bald eagles. But they were later included because they are virtually indistinguishable from bald eagles until they are two years old.
Subpoenas on file in the office of the federal court clerk here that a federal grand jury is still investigating alleged eagle killings in Real County.

Storm hampers rescue efforts

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The weather over rugged Mount Charleston begrudgingly yielded just before darkness, allowing the body of an Arkansas man to be removed from the wreckage of his light plane.
The mountain about 35 miles northwest of here had been covered by swirling clouds which produced blizzard-like conditions for nearly two days, keeping rescue teams at bay.
But the storm system broke for a short time late Monday, permitting an Air Force helicopter to retrieve the body of Michael Helton, 23, North Little Rock, Ark.
Two paramedics were lowered on a cable to the area where the single-engine plane crashed last Thursday. The rescue workers spent about 30 minutes digging their way through the snow to the aircraft only to find Helton dead.
Helton and his father, Lt. Col. Billy J. Helton, 46, rented the plane last week to survey a Boy Scout camp, according to Maj. Jerry Broening, a spokesman for nearby Nellis Air Force Base, where the elder Helton is stationed.
After the crash, the elder Helton was able to scramble away from the wreckage. He wandered for two days before coming upon a search party which had been looking for both his plane and an Air Force O-2 spotter craft which went down last Friday killing both crewmen aboard.

The O-2 had been searching for another O-2 which disappeared last Monday on a training exercise. Two other Air Force officers died in that crash.
The elder Helton, who was hospitalized in satisfactory condition, told rescue workers that his son was alive when he left the downed plane, but that he couldn't move.
Darkness curtailed the rescue operation Saturday night, and a fierce storm moved onto the 12,000-foot mountain on Sunday, forcing a suspension in the aerial efforts.
However, ground crews continued without much success to dig their way into the isolated Wallace Canyon area where the plane crashed.
The younger Helton's body was removed from the wreckage and was flown to North Las Vegas. An autopsy is scheduled to determine whether he died of the injuries he suffered in the crash or from exposure to the blizzard-like conditions.
An early report indicated that the younger Helton suffered severe head injuries in the crash. All three downed aircraft were spotted during a two-hour period Saturday afternoon. The Air Force spotter which crashed Friday came down in an area near where the Heltons crashed, while the other O-2 from Nellis crashed about 50 miles north of here.

Nellis officials Monday positively identified the two bodies taken from the plane which crashed last Monday. The two men were identified as Capt. Anthony J. Rosa, 30, Palm Bay, Fla., who had been assigned to the 27th Tactical Air Support Squadron at Davis-Monthan AFB near Tucson, Ariz., and Capt. Victor Vallelunga, 31, Alhambra, Calif., who was assigned to the 23rd Tactical Air Support Squadron out of Bergstrom AFB in Texas.
The bodies Capt. Vergene Johnson, 27, Hawthorne, Nev., who was assigned to the 27th Tactical Air Support Squadron, and Capt. Lawrence K. Wilson, 36, Memphis, Tenn., with the 23rd Tactical Air Support Squadron, were recovered from Mount Charleston on Saturday.
The two support squadrons were temporarily assigned to Nellis to participate in an intensive training program called "Red Flag."
In addition to the three planes which crashed, an Air Force helicopter which was participating in the search crashed Saturday, seconds after takeoff from Mount Charleston.
The pilot and four others aboard the chopper suffered minor injuries.

of explosion but it would have reverberated longer."
James discounted any weather phenomena that could have caused the noise.
"There's no way. There is nothing in the weather that could have caused that," he said.
Similar unexplained booms have been heard along the East Coast from Nova Scotia to South Carolina. Authorities also remain mystified about the origins of those booms.
HOW ROD DID IT
NEW YORK (AP) — Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins not only won the 1977 American League batting title for the sixth time, he also captured the $10,000 prize that goes with the Seven Crowns of Sport computer evaluation award.
Carew finished with a .388 average. That was the highest mark in either league in 20 years. He had 239 hits, the most in 47 seasons. He also scored 121 runs, the most in the American League since 1961, and collected 18 triples, the best in his circuit since 1954.

New rules make SS cards harder to get

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government, hoping to prevent illegal aliens from getting Social Security cards, is going to make it a little more difficult for everyone to get a card.
Starting later this year, anyone who applies for a new card will have to submit "documentary evidence of their age, identity and citizenship or alien status," Social Security Administration spokesman Michael Naver said Monday. Currently, only adults 18 and older are required to submit this evidence.
The adults also will have to appear in person at a Social Security office for an "in-depth" interview to make sure they never held a Social Security card, Naver said. They have been able to mail their application and documentary evidence in until now.
The government has not yet decided the youths will be able to mail their forms in or if they, too, must appear in person, Naver added.
Eighty percent of the 8.2 million new Social Security cards issued in fiscal 1977 went to persons under 18, Naver said. The government expects to issue seven million new cards this year and 6.8 million in 1979.

It does not want them to fall into the hands of illegal aliens, estimates of whose numbers range from 4 million to 12 million.
Congress passed legislation in 1972 requiring the Social Security Administration to tighten up its card-issuing procedures to deal with the illegal alien problem as well as fraudulent use of Social Security cards by Americans.
The more than two million Americans who report losing their cards and ask for duplicates annually "also will have to submit evidence to show that they are who they say they are," Naver said.
The government has issued 256 million Social Security cards since 1937, with 170 million held by persons alive today, he said.
The applicants will have to submit two pieces of evidence, with a birth certificate being the preferred document.

Mystery booms shake Texas coastal cities

PORT LAVACA, Texas (AP) — None of these easy-going coastal dwellers are panicking, but they're still mystified by what it was that authorities said shook buildings and rattled windows last Friday.
It was about noon. Office workers were heading for lunchrooms or the corner cafe. Fishermen put down their nets and drove home or reached for brown paper bags.
"Boom... Boom."
Almost simultaneously, residents in Matagorda, Victoria, Joliad and Calhoun counties along the Texas coast grabbed telephones, calling police and neighbors to find out what happened. One startled fisherman called it a "hellacious big noise."
Port Lavaca Mayor K.A. Wallis said Monday he was working in a noisy printing shop and didn't hear the sounds. He figures it "was probably just a sonic boom."
Then again, Wallis said it had been five or six years since the area was last rocked by a sonic boom.
A spokesman at a nearby U.S. Coast Guard Station said no aircraft appeared on the station's radar screens when the booms were heard.
Military spokesmen at six naval stations and Air Force bases denied having any aircraft over the affected area that day.
"It is not a normal occurrence," conceded Lt. Cmdr. John School at Chase Field in nearby Beeville.
Officials at local industrial plants also reported no explosions and Central Power and Light Co. said no blasting occurred at their two power plants under construction in the area.
Bob James, chief meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Victoria, said he believed the sounds were sonic booms but couldn't explain how the noise managed to trigger alarm over a four-county area at what appeared to be the precise same moment.
"I don't know what it was," he said. "My first thought was it might have been some type

Planes remove rafts

MIAMI (AP) — At least two airlines flying overwater routes have removed life rafts from their aircraft with federal permission, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said today.
The airlines include National, owner of the Boeing 727 that lost power in all three engines while flying off the Florida coast Jan. 27. The pilot restarted the engines and made an emergency landing at Jacksonville, but the 103 passengers would have had to rely on their life jackets had the plane been forced to ditch in the Atlantic.
Jack Barker, FAA spokesman at Atlanta, said National and Braniff have removed life rafts from 727s flying over the two affected overwater routes — the Atlantic coastal corridor between Miami and the Northeast and on Gulf routes between South Florida and the West.
At least three other airlines — Eastern, Delta and Western — were given permission to remove the life rafts on aircraft flying those routes, but apparently have not done so.
"The requirements were drawn up during the days of propeller craft," said Barker. He said the reliability of jet aircraft is much greater. "The idea of three engines going out is unreal."

The requests apparently were granted chiefly for economic reasons. National 727s flying without the rafts — which cost $19,000 each — result in a reported saving of $19,000 in fuel costs annually.
Braniff was the first to request and receive permission to remove the life rafts, Barker said. National followed in June 1977, about seven months before the incident involving one of its Boeing 727s.
All aircraft continue to carry life preservers for all passengers and crew "and the emergency chutes (used to deplane during emergencies) float and can carry passengers," Barker said. He did not know if the emergency chutes were capable of carrying all passengers aboard a 727.
Barker said all aircraft normally are required to carry life rafts if the routes take them more than 50 miles over water.

What's up in tall buildings

The World Almanac's list of tall buildings attracts more mail from readers than almost any other section of the book. Civic boosters from around the country suggest additions or dispute altitude figures, which vary depending on whether basements, pediments, TV towers or statues are included.

According to the Almanac, these are the tallest buildings in those U.S. cities having buildings more than 700 feet high:

City	Building	Height (ft.)
Chicago	Sears Tower	1,454
New York	World Trade Center	1,350
Los Angeles	United Calif. Bank	858
San Francisco	Transamerica Pyramid	853
Pittsburgh	U.S. Steel Bldg.	841
Boston	John Hancock Tower	790
Minneapolis	IDS Center	772
Detroit	Detroit Plaza Hotel	748
Atlanta	Peachtree Center Plaza	723
Houston	One Shell Plaza	714
Dallas	First International	710
Cleveland	Terminal Tower	708

Lose a twang, gain an accent with dialect doc

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When an actor comes down with a severe case of bilabial split frictives, he usually turns to one doctor for the cure: Robert Easto, O.D.A.S.

Easto recently returned from Switzerland, where he spent eight weeks treating Jill Ireland during the filming of "Love and Bullets, Charlie."

It was Miss Ireland who laid the O.D.A.S. on him. It means, "Orkensaw Dialects a Specialty." Easto is dialect doctor to the stars.

He had been called to Europe to teach the British-born actress to speak with an Arkansas accent.

He is better known as the "Henry Higgins of Hollywood," transforming cockney-accented Liza Doolittle into fair ladies or vice versa.

He taught Beau Bridges to speak like an upper-class Englishman for "Four Feathers." And Laurence Olivier to talk like an American for "The Betsy." Gregory Peck came to him to acquire a German accent for "The Boys From Brazil."

Just prior to an interview at his Pasadena home, Easto had a rush call to help a young actress, Sally Boyden, lose her Australian accent for "Lassie, My Lassie."

Easto, a lanky Texan with red hair, moustache and spade beard, was in 56 movies and hundreds of television shows before his dialect coaching began to squeeze out acting.

"As a character actor I had specialized in dialect roles," he said. "I always lost the leading lady. In 'Coming Round the Mountain' with Abbott and Costello I walked around saying, 'I wuz kicked in tuh haid by uh mule. ha, ha, ha.' Intellectually stimulating as these roles were, I wanted to extend my repertoire." Although largely self-taught — he had to overcome his own Texas twang — Easto studied phonetics at University College in London during three years he lived there with his British-born wife, June.

Death blamed on electricity

CANADIAN — An Amarillo pathologist ruled death by cardiac arrest due to electrical shock in the oil field death of John L. Groves, 24, of Sayre, Okla.

Justice of the Peace Bob Gober said that Groves had apparently been dead before he fell into the water.

Groves, who was employed by H & P Drilling, was dispatched to the rig to check the electrical pump.

Funeral services for Groves were Jan. 31 in Sayre.
