

There is, I believe, one principle and only one principle upon which taxation could be based which avoids injustice to any citizen. It is the same principle which underlies all market transactions. You pay for what you get.

Texas' GOP governor inaugurated

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bill Clements became Texas' first Republican governor in 105 years today with a promise that he would persist in fighting for better and less government.

"I want to conduct government in a business-like manner, with elected officials and government leaders responsible to the taxpayers just as a board of directors and company officials are responsible to the stockholders," the 61-year-old multimillionaire said in his inaugural address shortly after taking the oath as Texas' 41st governor.

"You will hear voices during my administration expressing doubts about some of my proposals. But, I will persist, we will prevail."

The traditional swearing-in ceremonies on the front steps of the old pink granite Capitol attracted a large crowd in the foggy, cool weather.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who took the oath just before Clements, called for "limited government."

"We need more of the services that state and local government provide and less of the prying and second-guessing and regulation that the federal government imposes."

Clements had compliments for outgoing Gov. Dolph Briscoe and promised cooperation with Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton.

"This inauguration, where a Republican governor takes office with a Democratic lieutenant governor, stands as living proof of the independent thinking of the people of this state," he said.

He said Briscoe would be remembered as the governor who successfully fought the creation of new taxes.

"And he will be remembered as the governor who took the first steps toward returning the tax-generated surplus in our state treasury back to its rightful owners. This is Governor Briscoe's legacy to Texas, and it's one he can be proud of and one this state will always appreciate."

The new governor, in firm tones, repeated again and again he would "persist" in his legislative plans.

"I will persist," he said.

"With my plans to return to you, the taxpayers, $1 billion of the state's surplus ... with my plans to give you long-term constitutional safeguards — including the right of initiative and referendum.

— With my plans to reduce the size of our state bureaucracy.

— With my plans to improve the quality of our education system.

Clements started his first day as Texas governor with a hearty breakfast of steak and eggs.

"If I didn't know better, I would think I was going to work on a drilling rig or a pipeline," Clements told an inaugural breakfast sponsored by the Dallas Chamber of Commerce.

"This breakfast indicates you expect a lot out of us and we are ready to go to work."

More than 600 persons, including a large number of Texas state officials and legislators, attended the opening event of the inaugural day.

"I promise you I will work in every way of full cooperation with your other elected official, ... responsive to the taxpayers of this state," Clements said.

Clements wore a typical businessman's gray pinstripe suit and striped tie.

Those in the audience included former Texas Gov. John Connally and his wife, former United Nations Ambassador George Bush and his wife and Mrs. John Tower, wife of Texas' Republican U.S. senator, and the senator's daughter, Jean.

Prosecutor: Davis' aim was killing

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutor Terry Wilson, in final arguments, told the jury today that Cullen Davis had "an objective in life and it was killing people."

Wilson, leading off the four hours allotted to the prosecution, said the Fort Worth millionaire forced David McCrory to help him plot a mass murder and said "He told McCrory, 'If you don't have it done, I'll get you and your family.'"

He said Davis had testified that McCrory was so poor and so broke in 1978 that he was begging for a job and that out of sympathy he gave his one-time friend employment.

"Have you ever seen a sign of sympathy on that face?" Wilson said, pointing to the solemn-faced Davis.

The prosecutor hit hard at Davis' testimony that McCrory had given him $25,000 for safekeeping.

"How could a man who was so poor come up with $25,000, claiming he won it in Las Vegas? He was so poor how did he win it on two-dollar bets?" Wilson said that Davis had mentioned killing people even in idle conversation and he asked the jury: "Doesn't that show you the mental process of this man? The man with the same cold stare on his face for the past 12 weeks?"

As the prosecutors delivered final arguments, Fort Worth Judge Joe Eidson sat on the front row only some five feet from the jury box.

Davis is accused of hiring a gunman to kill Eidson, who had presided over the defendant's long and bitter divorce case.

Earlier, outside the presence of the jury, the defense asked that no mention be made of Davis' financial standing. Judge Wallace Moore said it would be permissible to say that Davis was wealthy, but he would not permit a description of Davis as "immensely wealthy" or any other description of his riches.

The defense will have four hours to deliver its final argument to the jury this afternoon.

Wilson pointed on several occasions at Judge Eidson, who was leaning forward with his head in his hands.

halation. The fire killed an exotic South American cat and four exotic birds valued at over $10,000. Lee Simmons, left, son of the zoo's director, and Julie Morris, a zoo staffer, gave the orangutan oxygen at an Omaha emergency animal clinic.

China policy attacked in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional opponents of President Carter's China policy are opening a scattershot attack that threatens to delay the confirmation of Leonard Woodcock as Ambassador to Peking and to disrupt the legislative schedule of Senate leaders.

Within a few hours of the 96th Congress' opening Monday, there was a flurry of proposals dealing with relations between the United States and Taiwan.

Opponents of Carter's decision to recognize mainland China at the expense of full diplomatic and military ties with Taiwan are expected to concentrate on three separate issues.

— The ambassadorial nomination of former United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, announced Monday.

— A collection of legislative proposals to establish an American Institute in Taiwan to handle official dealings with that country.

— A move, led by Sen. Harry Byrd, to force Senate floor debate on the administration's China policy before Carter wants the discussion.

Meanwhile, it was announced that former President Richard M. Nixon will attend a White House dinner for Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping Jan. 29.

The visit will mark Nixon's first return to the White House since he resigned 4½ years ago. One White House official, who asked not to be named, said inviting Nixon "seemed the appropriate thing to do." He said Nixon was asked "because of his role in opening up the process of normalization" with China.

Former President Gerald R. Ford was also invited, but a Ford spokeswoman said he would be out of the country.

The Woodcock nomination, although not controversial itself, provides a likely target for opponents of Carter's China policy because a single senator can, under Senate rules, delay a confirmation.

Woodcock, who has headed the U.S. liaison office since it opened in Peking in June 1977, has said he thought the confirmation hearing could become a "battleground."

SIX-YEAR-OLD Jared Reisman wears a sort of 'space suit' to filter out many substances in the air. He met with newsmen Monday at the National Jewish Hospital in Denver. Doctors are studying the boy and attempting to diagnose the condition which causes him to wear the protective suit.

County school board dies

By DAN LACKEY
Pampa News Staff
The Gray County School Board is a thing of the past although some officials say it should not have been dismantled.

All common school districts were disbanded on Dec. 31 as a result of action taken by the Texas Legislature in August 1977. It was a step toward consolidation of all local schools into independent districts and more central control by the state Department of Education. The state will no longer have a middleman in the form of the county superintendent. Although the position could not be legally abolished since it was an elected office, the legislature is no longer appropriating money for the job.

Since 1973, with the consolidation of the Grandview and Hopkins schools, all Gray County schools have been part of independent districts, so one may question what the county board had left to do.

According to law, the county boards were responsible for the establishment and approval of school bus routes, approval for buying school buses and for taking school census every ten years. The county board was also responsible for renewing contracts of county co-op employees, such as the physical education teacher for McLean and school nurses.

The Gray County board met five times in 1978, according to records now filed in the County Clerk's office.

During that year, the board approved the purchase of five buses for the Pampa and McLean Districts, the bus routes for all the districts and a new bus route for the Grandview-Hopkins District. It rehired the county co-op physical education teacher.

During 1977 the board met seven times and approved the purchase of a 53-passenger bus for the McLean District. The county co-op physical education position was abolished by the Texas Educational Agency and the McLean gym teacher was not rehired. And the board agreed to take charge of the employment of bus drivers and the maintenance of buses for Lefors Independent District. Bus routes for all districts were approved.

During 1978, the board met seven times and approved the purchase of two 71-passenger buses for the Pampa Independent School District and the bus routes for all the districts.

According to Pampa School Superintendent Bob Phillips, these responsibilities will be picked up by the local school boards.

One local administrator, however, has mixed feelings about the change. Tommy Adkins, Superintendent of the Grandview-Hopkins School District, said Monday that "while many felt the county board was an anachronism, I felt it should have been retained. There are still laws on the books concerning consolidation and annexation of land which are part of the county board's jurisdiction."

"I don't think these powers should necessarily be handed over ex-officio to the county judge," Adkins added.

Rena Belle Anderson, former Gray County School Superintendent, said Monday, "No, I certainly don't think it was fair, the state had no right to abolish the superintendent's office, but I can't cry over spilled milk."

W. A. Rankin, past president and a member of the county school board for 11 years, refused comment on the dismantling of the board, except to say "It was always harmonious. We enjoyed each other, enjoyed Rena Belle, and I think she did a real good job."

Caravan heads to capital

By The Associated Press
A five-mile-long caravan of protesting farmers rolled into Fort Worth on Interstate 20 today en route to Washington, D.C., to dramatize the farmers' protest.

The group left Sunday morning as other farmers pulled out of Amarillo, heading for the nation's capital by another route.

They were to join other farmers from the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Florida and Georgia who plan to be in Washington Feb. 2.

The Abilene caravan camped near Mineral Wells Monday night and moved into the Fort Worth-Dallas area Tuesday afternoon.

The Amarillo caravan held a rally in Sayre, Okla., Monday night and planned to arrive in Washington, Okla., today and Oklahoma City by Wednesday.

The caravans will average about 100 miles of travel a day, said a spokesman for the American Agriculture Movement.

The spokesman added that communications with the northern leg of the tractorcade had broken down and he had no reports on the progress of other caravans.

The Abilene caravan set its goals for Ranger, Texas, Monday evening.

The tractorcade of farmers and supporters carried signs and slogans ranging from "Dump Carter to ease the nation's food crisis" to "Education just desperation."

Farmers dubbed the caravan "National Tractorcade 1979."

The American Agriculture Movement had 1,000 farmers in supporters in Washington last year; they hope to have 2,000 this year.

Gerald McCathern, a Hereford farmer who has been a principal figure in the movement, said the key difference in this year's Washington protest will be the number of tractors on the streets of Washington.

The movement will be successful only "if we can get 100,000 tractors in Washington," McCathern said.

J. L. Cox of Littlefield, Texas, said the presence of the tractors would make the difference.

"I don't think all the farmers walking around Washington (last year) will have the effect the tractors will," Cox said, calling last year's protest mainly a publicity effort.

Shah's relatives in Lubbock
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Relatives of the Shah of Iran slipped quietly into the home of Iran's crown prince early this morning, but for the prince — undergoing flight training here — it was business as usual.

The sprawling house is in a plush residential district of this city in oil-rich West Texas.

"There's a possibility he may fly today," said Capt. Robert Brus of Reese Air Force Base, where the son of the shah is training.

Brus said he could not comment on whether any of the prince's family was on the base.

An early-morning flight to Reese brought the shah's mother-in-law and three of his children to Lubbock, while the shah and his empress were in Egypt and expected to go later to the United States.

Personal debts big but still manageable

The American consumer is headed for the Trillion Dollar Debt Club — and some observers don't think that's very healthy.

At the end of last year, consumers' installment credit (used to finance autos, appliances, etc.) and mortgage debt combined hit $927 billion, up 15 percent on the year.

It will probably hit $1 trillion this year — particularly since the growth in installment credit has many economists worried.

In March, consumer installment credit expanded by $4.07 billion — the largest gain in history. In April, it shot up $3.72 billion, in May, $3.86 billion — the second largest gain.

At the end of May, total consumer installment credit came to $227.56 billion, up 18 percent from a year earlier. Over that period, consumers' personal income had gone only up 12 percent.

Extensions of installment credit as a percentage of people's disposable personal income (purchasing power, or after-tax income) are running at 17.8 percent — a level exceeded only once in history (in the first quarter of 1973, just prior to the onset of the last recession.)

Similarly, people's combined home mortgage and installment debt as a percentage of their net worth (assets minus liabilities) has risen to an all-time high of 50 percent.

However, some statistics are not particularly worrisome. For instance, mortgage and installment credit as a percentage of disposable income is high, but not much higher than it was in the middle 1960s. And repayments of installment credit as a percentage of disposable income has been running level for many years.

In the light of such statistics, economists are asking these two questions:

1. Is consumer debt so high today that before long, people will start pulling in the horns, perhaps sending the economy into a recession?
2. Or, have we simply moved into a new era in which consumers will regularly carry a higher level of debt than they once did?

Surprisingly, the answer to both questions can be "Yes."

It's quite likely that consumers are now a little uncomfortable with their debt load, and will retrench, but on the other hand, they won't go back to the old levels of the 1950s — and could quickly return to today's levels after the next economic downturn.

An explanation for the consumer's historically high debt level may lie in demographics:

1. There are relatively more families in which both husband and wife work;
2. There are relatively more childless families;
3. The percentage of young adults in the population is growing rapidly; in fact, the 25-34 age group (the postwar baby boom children grown up) has grown by a whopping 4.2 percent a year since 1972, and will continue to soar. Young people of this generation may be more willing to incur heavy debt loads than were their parents.

Said S. Lees Booth, economist for the National Consumer Finance Association in Washington, D.C., "The ratio of installment credit (extensions) to disposable income could go from above 17 today or 14 or 15 on the short run, but it won't go back to the old levels of World War II."

"The recessions which have occurred since World War II have not been severe enough to make people fear they could never pay off their debts."

"Also, many more items — such as the TV set — are high-ticket items which have to be financed on credit."

Booth thinks an economic slowdown is on the horizon: "Watch very carefully the first quarter of 1979," he said.

However, once the economy has recovered, consumer credit ratios will probably work their way back to current levels again — but they're not likely to go up to new, higher plateaus, he said.

Red exploitation threat to Iran

That the Iranian Revolution is being powered by religious fanaticism suggests it will not be placated by anything less than abdication by the shah, who is the focus of discontent.

The Shia sect of Islam, to which 90 percent of Iran's 35 million people belong, differs from the Sunni sect, adhered to by the vast majority of Moslems in the Arab world because it does not separate religion and politics. The Shias follow their religious leaders who are implacable in opposing the shah.

Informed observers predict the religious leaders will dominate any Iranian government that succeeds the shah in the short run, but in the long run, Communists may seize control. Iranian Communists, aided by Soviet arms and agents, skillfully have exploited religious discontent and will continue to do so.

Perhaps the most effective step Washington could take now would be to persuade Shia leaders of the extent of Communist involvement in their protests and of the perils they thus invite.

Besides being the second biggest oil producer in the Middle East, after Saudi Arabia, Iran has the second largest oil reserves in the world. It is also a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

Already, the west has had a bitter foretaste of Iran's importance with the surprisingly severe 14.5 percent oil price hike by the OPEC nations.

The crippling of Iran's oil production — down from five million barrels a day to a little more than one million barrels — was a powerful factor in reducing the world's supply, which in turn encouraged OPEC to increase its price considerably more than had been expected. The permanent loss of Iranian oil would be devastating to Japan and Western Europe, not to say to this country.

Such a calamity is a real possibility in view of the new Soviet shortage of oil. Moscow cannot regard oil-soaked Iran prostrate on its doorstep as anything but an irresistible prize, especially when the risk from a takeover by subversion is slight.

The worst of it is that if Iran is drawn into the Soviet orbit along with Afghanistan and South Yemen, other Arab oil states that are relatively weak and defenseless will probably not be far behind.

The Carter administration seems to be awakening to this peril. Word comes quietly from Washington that George W. Ball, who was an undersecretary of state in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, has been asked by the president to lead an interagency study on American policy options in the Persian Gulf. The study is to have some recommendations by early February. It is because the West is fairly powerless to intervene in a revolution such as that threatening Iran's stability, it would appear our options are extremely limited.

By W. STANLEY MOONEYHAM, President

World Vision International
KUALA TRENGGANU, Malaysia — the warning flags have been flying for months, long enough for even the lumbering sea turtles which lay their eggs near here to prepare for the storm. Yet the cascading waves of Vietnam refugees which now roll into these shores have caught the world unprepared.

Headlines tell the shocking and shameful story. Boats pushed away. Capsizings. Many lost at sea. Thousands dead. From my vantage point here at the scene the spectacle is both awesome and frightening.

I am awestruck by the sheer numbers and raw courage of the refugees and I am appalled and scared by the world's manifest indifference to their plight. Civilized savagery is more frightening than the primeval kind, to my mind, for it cannot plead ignorance.

It is not hard for me to sympathize with the Malaysian government. Until 1978 the nation was dealing with a manageable few thousand refugees. Now there are more than 50,000, with over half of them coming in the past two months.

The burden has become intolerable. Both Malaysia and Thailand have said, "Enough! No more!" The tortoise-like speed with which the Western nations are resettling the refugees gives them justifiable reason to question our commitment. Then, too, our record of promises kept in Southeast Asia doesn't exactly inspire confidence.

As a result, the government here at one point called on the people to send the boats back to sea, but more reasoned statements since have softened some of the earlier hostility. Nonetheless, the mood here on the east coast is ugly. A few days ago a boat with nearly 250 refugees was pushed away by local residents. As it tried to navigate through the treacherous estuary to the open sea, the boat struck a sandbar and capsized. Nearly 200 drowned.

But my heart, chilled by that episode, was greatly warmed today. A fragile boat, battered for more than 24 hours by 10- to 12-foot waves while it was anchored about 2000 yards offshore, finally was washed toward the beach. It, too, capsized, but all 153 victims were saved. A local man told me that he and two friends nearly drowned in the turbulent sea trying to take a line to the boat. He said, "I kept remembering what Christ said, 'Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.'"

Such selflessness greatly moved me. Earlier I had met another gentle and compassionate man. He was a police superintendent who personally escorted us to some new refugee arrivals, permitted us to buy them food and other basic items, then delivered the $250 worth of supplies in his own shiny Mercedes.

In the camps life is tougher. They are not, after all, tourist resorts. Most of them are on offshore barren islands. Adequate facilities are non-existent on these stretches of coral. The most notorious is Pulau Bidong, about 25 miles from here. Uninhabited until a few months ago, it now has a refugee population of 25,000. The food supply is tenuous because of stormy seas. There is no water except that which falls with the daily monsoon rains. Sanitation is a major problem.

Mothers with babies sleep on the beach with no blanket and nothing but a thin sheet of plastic to protect them from the cold rains.

It is a disaster waiting to happen. There is plenty of blame to go around for this international scandal and Malaysia is not the chief culprit. That opprobrium goes to Vietnam itself. Any government which is so repressive that it drives thousands of its citizens to escape at an exorbitantly high risk of perishing in the attempt can make no pretense at being either democratic or free.

The Western nations with their dilly-dallying resettlement policies certainly must shoulder some major responsibility.

Nor can the international political and bureaucratic systems go blameless. I have searched through their mazes for a full year, looking for some compassion that would put the plight of these desperate people above politics. It is, I found, a rare and precious commodity. A few expressed sympathy, others were merely insensitive, some bordered on barbarism. And I cannot avoid the conclusion that the whole cynical attitude is laced through with more than a little racism for I cannot imagine white-skinned Caucasians or Jews from Russia being treated with the same indifference and disdain.

Yesterday I saw the world in microcosm. A small boat with about ten refugees anchored about 200 yards from the main harbor here. A man jumped into the sea and waded ashore. Waiting for him was a local vigilante who slapped him and pointed toward the boat. The Vietnamese fell, picked himself up and waded back to the boat. I was filled with a terrible sadness. After 20 centuries, there is still no room in the inn.

Something better than boom or bust

by paul harvey

There is enough recession talk among economists to cause one.

There is no need for one, but since the economic barometer is influenced largely by psychological factors it is possible that our "pace of progress" this year will be slowed to what statisticians can call a "recession."

That's not all bad. Certainly "recession" is preferable to either boom or bust!

The Wall Street Journal has made the rounds of corporate executives and most of them are most fearful of a continuing high rate of economic expansion.

It sounds incongruous until you recognize that the one factor which could unravel the entire fabric of our complex United States economy is "inflation."

Should Americans continue demanding more and spending more without producing more — our worth less dollars could become worthless.

The basic inflation rate in our nation was six percent two years ago. It's running eight to nine percent now.

It does not take more than 10 fingers to compute how close we are to a waste-paper currency if this trend continues.

That is why most American business leaders would prefer a growth rate of two percent next year — rather than the predicted rate of 3.75 percent.

Should the growth rate actually decline for as long as two consecutive quarters, technically that would constitute a "recession."

And even that would be preferable to a continuing boom that would kick the inflation rate above 10 percent.

This is not to say that a recession next year would cure inflation; it would not.

Any real cure is going to require a drastically reduced federal government budget over a period of years.

But a downturn in 1979 would temporarily remove some of the upward cost-price pressure, moderating this inflation rate.

This would give the Administration time in which to institute long-term fiscal and regulatory policies which would further take the pressure off.

Also, a downturn in our nation's economy inevitably would reduce imports and pressure American companies to try harder to sell overseas.

That combination should reduce the balance of payments deficit and knock some cents back into the Yankee dollar.

It is understandable that labor unions are reluctant to accept annual wage increases of seven percent when dollars are shrinking nearly 10 percent.

A downturn in our economy — even a temporary downturn — should make it possible for union leaders to settle for less, further relieving the pressure.

With a downturn would come lower interest rates, relieving that pressure.

Moderation is never as much fun as celebration, but history says the alternative, overindulgence, inevitably results in a skull-busting hangover.

COMMENTARY

Cambodia again

by don graff

The more things change ... as the French and others might be inclined to comment on several aspects of the Cambodian situation.

Norodom Sihanouk is off to the United Nations to present the case against the Vietnamese-backed takeover of his country. After that, in apparent anticipation of nothing more effective in way of response than words, the on-again-off-again leader intends to take up residence in Peking as an exile. Again.

Nine years ago Sihanouk was similarly protesting the loss of his country and off to exile in Peking. Only that time the takeover was by American-backed Cambodian rightists.

The complex course of events in Cambodia may not be coming exactly full turn. But, as the Sihanouk story is a current if minor example, it does have a way of doubling back on itself. And Cambodia, unfortunately for that very gentle land, has a way of being in the way when it happens.

During the early phases of the three-decade Indochinese war, Cambodia appeared to be lucking out. It was not in immediate contention itself and managed to remain on the fringes of fighting, thanks in very great part to the fast diplomatic footwork of Sihanouk. Powerless to keep the Vietnamese communists out, he counteracted their utilization of neutral Cambodian territory. But at the same time this prince of the royal house who had run Cambodia under one title or another since 1941 cultivated his own close relations with the backers of the Viet Minh-Cong — the Soviet Union and People's China. Particularly the latter.

He refused to have anything to do with the U.S. sponsored Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, and fomented against American intrusion into local affairs. But he also let it be known that he considered the American presence a stabilizing influence and at one point had a mutual assistance agreement with Washington.

It was an interesting if frequently confusing act, but the curtain came down at the end of the 60s. U.S. and South Vietnamese forces yielded to the temptation to strike heavily at communist forces holed up just inside the Cambodian borders. Air attacks, at first secret, began in 1969, and in 1970 came invasion — a move which the U.S. public was informed had cleaned out the "sanctuaries," bringing light to the end of yet another Indochinese tunnel.

The real consequence was that not only had the Vietnamese struggle been exported to Cambodia, but the country had acquired its very own civil war between the military regime that had overthrown Sihanouk and the local Khmer Rouge communists. When the end came, Cambodia went under along with Vietnam and Laos. And with, according to reports out of self-isolated country in the past several years, the most horrendous consequences of all for the civilian population.

So here we are again — "we" in the abstract sense for Americans and everyone else except the unfortunate Cambodians. There is no point at this late point in speculating on what might have been had Cambodia been allowed to remain on the fringes, an option which in hindsight it appears clear could have had no significant effect on the Vietnamese outcome. And it is, of course, a different time and a different administration in Washington determining the policy and making the statements.

But it is another interesting aspect of the convoluted course of events that the government today expressing concern about the dangers of expanding the Cambodian conflict through "third party" involvement was so decisively involved in expansion of war to Cambodia in the first place.

The more things change, they may not be precisely the same — but often close enough, close enough.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nervous, squirming children sat next to their fathers on the floor of the House, squinting at the bright television lights.

Constituents, in town to view the pomp and participate in the revelry associated with swearing-in ceremonies, crowded the hallways and reception rooms where closed-circuit TV sets offered a view of their man taking the oath of office.

Outside, a group of Indians sat in a circle on the cold, sun-splashed Capitol grounds, pounding a tom-tom and chanting mournful songs over low lands. An old man sat on the marble steps, holding a hand-lettered sign calling for lower social security taxes.

After more than three months of relative inactivity, Capitol Hill burst into its congressional bustle on Monday welcoming newly-elected members who will join the veterans in wrestling with a familiar family of problems: inflation, energy and the federal deficit.

The nine newcomers to the 24-member Texas delegation in the House spent most of the day attending receptions crowded with well wishers from home.

The homefolk were shown the Capitol by congressional staffers and one group of West Texans got a surprise visit from First Lady Rosalynn Carter during a VIP tour of the White House.

Before the day's festivities began, House Majority Leader Jim Wright sat down and evaluated last year's congress and the challenges that await the 96th.

Additional energy legislation in the form of encouraging development of alternate energy sources such as coal gasification and solar energy topped Wright's "most important" list. "Another problem is inflation," he continued. "And inflation and energy are so interrelated. You can't discuss one without the other."

The Fort Worth Democrat ranked the 95th Congress as "an unusually productive congress, rivaled only by the first congress to serve LBJ and the first to serve with Franklin Roosevelt."

"Judge it by results," added Wright pointing to reductions in unemployment, the projected budget deficit and a "moderate" tax decrease.

"The crowning touch to the 95th was in Wright's view, the controversial energy bill even though it still needs some polishing. "It's not enough of an energy bill but certainly a long-delayed beginning on a national energy program," he said. "And we did all those things without the artificial stimulus of a war or national emergency. In fact, these past two years are the first two years in the past 16 in which not one single American military person was engaged in a single act of engaged hostility anywhere on earth."

"On balance, I think all that adds up to a substantial record."

Three make state choir

The marching band is not the only musical pride of Pampa. Three Pampa High School vocal music students have recently earned themselves a place on the Texas All-State Choir. And that's no easy task.

Debbie Gattis, an alto, Diane McNeeley, a soprano and Marvin Goad, a tenor, will make the 250 voice choir better when it meets at Fort Worth Feb. 7 through 10 for rehearsals, workshops and choir concerts.

The meeting is being held in conjunction with the Texas Music Educators Association Convention.

"If you have one student representing your school, that's an honor," says John Woicikowski, Pampa High choir director and vocal music instructor. "But three is a real honor," he added. He said that Pampa's three are the largest number of representatives from any one Panhandle school.

According to Woicikowski, 10,000 students originally auditioned for the All-State Choir, being screened at regional and area auditions.

Woicikowski said that eight Pampa choir students went on to the area auditions.

All in all, those who finally make the All-State Choir have to endure four auditions, in which they are judged for voice quality, tone, precision and all aspects of singing. Each auditioner sings from behind a screen for a panel of three judges. Solo selections are taken from work which will be part of the All-State Choir's two concerts on Feb. 9 and 10, including selections from Verdi and Aaron Copeland's "Promise of Living" and "Stamp Your Foot".

The three students survived their last audition in the area one competition last Saturday at Midland.

All three say they were nervous because it was an individual contest.

"We couldn't eat all day," says Diane McNeeley. "Not till that night. Then we ate until we couldn't hold anymore."

"It was upsetting for those who didn't win," said Debbie Gattis. "But most of them are juniors and they'll bounce back."

Junior Marvin Goad says it has been his dream since junior high school to make All-State.

Goad is the only junior of the trio.

The three singers say they would like to continue their music education at Texas Tech.

Local group to seek funds

Mothers are planning to march door-to-door from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday evening to help stamp out birth defects.

The Gray County Chapter of the National Foundation for the March of Dimes has named Phil Vanderpool, local attorney, as city campaign chairman while Darlene Courtney was named Mothers' March Chairman.

Area chairmen are: Glenda Budd, Austin; Barbara Roe, Baker; Faye Coleman, Lamar; jo Mumford, Mann; Helen McGill, Travis; and Paula Graves, Wilson.

The National Foundation March of Dimes was formed Jan. 3, 1938, by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, primarily to stamp out infantile paralysis. After conquering this dreaded disease, the National Foundation turned its attention to birth defects.

The funds are used for local education, medical aid, national research and education to prevent birth defects.

The greatest child abuse occurs before birth because young mothers - to - be are not educated to the dangers of bad habits and the importance of good health habits during pregnancy.

Progress has been made by research on causes and cures of birth defects but this can only continue with the help of the public.

New Congress filling vacancies

By TOM RAUM
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Congress, having convened with traditional ceremony and celebration, now is turning its attention to filling committee vacancies and other house-keeping chores.
 Special committees in the House and Senate were meeting today to fill out committee rosters for the 96th Congress — a tedious chore that will take most of the week.
 Both chambers convened for their first session of the year Monday with opening-day ceremonies including the formal swearing-in of members who were elected last November and the election of leaders for the next two years.
 From the outset, though, it was clear that the No. 1 domestic issue facing the new Congress will be fighting inflation.
 Members on the Republican and the Democratic sides of the aisle applauded when House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. declared, "Together we must find a way to control inflation without throwing people out of work."
 And bills designed to curb government spending began accumulating on both sides of the Capitol — clearly reflecting what the members perceive as a national mood for less government.
 One hundred House members endorsed a bill by Rep. L.A. Bafalis, R-Fla., to keep Congress from spending more than the government takes in — except during war or certain other national emergencies.

 And in the Senate, a variety of bills was filed to accomplish roughly the same ends. One, by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., would amend the Constitution to raise taxes automatically after any year in which spending topped tax collections.
 Although Monday's sessions were mainly ceremonial, another major national issue — diplomatic recognition of mainland China — commanded attention.
 Sen. Harry Byrd, Ind.-Va., interrupted the opening Senate session to demand a vote on President Carter's decision to end the nation's quarter-century-old defense treaty with Taiwan.
 Such a vote would be non-binding, but it would be a clear embarrassment to the Carter administration as it seeks to normalize relations with mainland China.
 Byrd's proposal was put off to another day, with Vice President Walter F. Mondale, presiding as Senate President, saying, "That wasn't in the script, Harry."
 Legislation reflecting some of the other issues that are sure to be debated during this Congress was proposed or introduced Monday.
 The bills included measures to provide federal health insurance, to revive military registration or the draft itself and to improve health care for veterans.

Violence reported
 ATHENS, Texas (AP) — A five-week-old strike by the electrical workers union against Gulf States United Telephone Co. has brought minor violence, arrests and acts of vandalism in the company's East Texas service area.
 A Gulf States supervisor was assaulted as he left an Athens restaurant last weekend. Roger Mize told police he saw two men putting sugar in the gasoline tank of his utility truck and they attacked him. His wounds required 16 stitches to close, and doctors said he suffered multiple cuts and a possible skull fracture.
 Two men were charged with simple assault but authorities said that would be changed to criminal mischief, a felony.

 The vice president of International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 1506, Melvin Pulliam, was arrested on a charge of burglary after a set of keys turned up missing from the Neches central office of GSU.
 Pulliam charged harassment, saying he had gone to the Neches office to report his telephone out of order.
 A Tyler supervisor said his keys were in the door when Pulliam stopped by, but were missing after Pulliam left.
 There were reports of hand-made spikes being placed in front of wheels of GSU vehicles and trunk cables being cut in the Lake Athens area.

Briscoe appoints

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Outgoing Gov. Dolph Briscoe has appointed former State Rep. Ruben Torres of Port Isabel to the state Board of Pardon and Paroles, a post Briscoe had earlier tried to fill with a member of his staff.
 Torres, former superintendent of the Port Isabel Independent School District, will replace Clyde Whiteside, whose term expired.
 Earlier, Briscoe had nominated Jay Floyd to the position but formally withdrew the nomination on Monday. Floyd had been the member of Briscoe's staff who reviewed parole recommendations from the board.
 His appointment ran into opposition from Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin.
 In early 1978 Briscoe had selected Torres to run his embattled Governor's Office of Migrant Affairs.

Seniors get tax break

If you are over 65 it may be an advantage when filing your federal income tax return this year.
 To qualify for a federal tax break, you need not be rich or poor; employer or employee; homeowner or renter. You just have to be 65 or over.
 There are several tax breaks for senior citizens, one of which concerns the requirement to file a return at all. Single persons over 65 whose income for 1978 was less than $3,700 are not even required to file. Married couples must file a return.

 However, the only way to obtain a refund is by filing a return. If you have had any tax withheld from money you received in 1978, you should file for a refund.
 There is an additional tax break for persons over 65. It involves an additional $750 exemption, in addition to the regular $850 personal exemption to which every taxpayer is entitled. Couples who are both 65 receive an automatic reduction to income of $3,000 through their CHICAGO (AP) — With new snowfall predicted for today, the Midwest struggled to cope with hip-deep snow that threatened to disrupt fuel and food supplies.

 The storm-related death toll climbed to at least 36.
 A 44-year-old Columbus, Ohio, man was found 12 feet from the front door of his home on Monday. Police said he apparently slipped on ice, couldn't get up, and died of exposure.
 In the hard-hit Chicago area, where up to four inches of snow fell atop the 20.3 inches that arrived over the weekend, authorities counted 17 deaths linked to the city's worst storm since 1967.

WEATHER FORECAST by the National Weather Service calls for snow from the Midwest and Great Lakes to the Northeast. Rain is forecast for the central Appalachians, part of the Midwest and northern Pacific coast. Showers and snow are forecast for the Southwest. Warmer weather is predicted for the Southeast but cold weather is expected in central areas.

Texans introduce legislation

By MILLER BONNER
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen led a trio of Texans in introducing new legislation on the first day of the 96th Congress.
 The Democrat put some modifying touches on some year-old bills dealing with beef imports and government paper work while Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Texas, reintroduced his version of a flexible parity farm pricing bill.

 Freshman Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Texas, was among 100 House members who co-sponsored Florida Republican L.A. Bafalis' bill calling for a Constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget and repayment of the national debt.

 Texas' senior senator — Republican John Tower — did not announce any specific legislative initiatives on Monday but after being re-elected without opposition to a fourth term as chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee noted "several important matters which will receive early consideration" by GOP members of the senate.
 "We will address ourselves to both economic matters and foreign policy and national security matters," said Tower. "One thing I very much want to get at and that is the basic causes of inflation; one of these being productivity, another being government spending. These are two areas of concern I expect to begin work on right away."
 Jazz musician Dave Brubeck was born in 1920.

Election contest rejected

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Don Cartwright, D-San Antonio, no longer is in a state of legislative limbo.
 The Texas House voted unanimously Monday to reject an election contest filed by Kae Thomas Patrick, a Republican whom Cartwright defeated by 738 votes in the Nov. 7 General Election.
 Cartwright, a two-term member, had been temporarily seated since the legislative session opened Jan. 9 and had taken part in all House votes.
 A select House committee had heard testimony and arguments in Patrick's contest and reported back it could find no evidence that would justify seating Patrick or throwing out the Nov. 7 results and calling for a new election.
 Patrick's lawyer, Tom Joseph of San Antonio, repeated the argument made to the committee that Patrick was denied Republican votes by an allegedly illegal redistricting in 1973.
 But the committee said the Legislature acted within its rights in changing district boundaries ordered in 1972 by a federal court.

The Music Teachers Association agreed to establish a student affiliate at a recent meeting.

 Haley said since the affiliate has just been established, two students will enter the theory contest, both to be held soon.
 He said there has been no decision on whether any students will enter the piano competitions, which won't be held until April.
 During the meeting, members also considered an analytical comparison between Baroque and contemporary periods.
 They listened to music by Bach and Stravinsky and performed the piano works of Bartok and Shoenberg.
 The meeting was held at Mr. Haley's house and Myrna Orr is the president.

by bernice bede osol

January 17, 1979

Opportunities this coming year may come from some very unusual sources. However, you could be wishy-washy over taking advantage of them. Determine those you want, and go after them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can't be too explicit with directions and intentions today. A misunderstanding might fold things up and everything would have to be done over. Getting along with others is one of the sections you'll enjoy in your all new 1979 Astro-Graph Letter. Get yours by mailing $1 for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The gentle methods you hoped to use today won't work. To produce the desired results, you'll have to firm be firm and, possibly, even hard-nosed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something can be done today to shore up a relationship with a valuable ally with whom you've been on the outs lately. Take the initiative.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An influential friend has all the data you need to get an important job done. He's willing to share his knowledge. Don't hesitate to take him up on it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) By placing less emphasis on your material goals and concentrating more on the friendly encouragement you're receiving, you'll come out much better in the long run.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although it may not make you too popular with the family, you may have to choose between doing what is practical as opposed to doing something merely for effect.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You can't please everybody anyway, so make the necessary decisions and do what must be done. It'll turn out to be the popular answer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Something mutually satisfactory can be worked out today regarding an old obligation you have with a friend. Talk it over.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have the support of your allies, but the methods you're using might be a little confusing. They're on your side, so clarify your aims.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't try to talk yourself out of something just because it looks difficult at first glance. With concentration and confidence, you'll breeze through the job.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A touchy financial situation can be resolved today if you are willing to take a harder line.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Better to leave out of your act people whose goals aren't in harmony with yours, if you can't reach a compromise.

Cowboys make it to Miami

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The defending world champion Dallas Cowboys returned to Florida Monday night — a place where they have known nothing but heartbreak — for next Sunday's Super Bowl XIII clash with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The flight arrived 15 minutes behind schedule and one unidentified Cowboy was in such a hurry to get off the plane that he left his playbook behind. An alert pilot fetched the playbook and hustled it to the team bus just before the Cowboys motored to their Fort Lauderdale hotel.

After a red carpet send-off in Dallas in which a hardy band of some 300 fans braved a biting cold wind, the Cowboys arrived in 66-degree weather and were greeted by the Cooper City, Fla., cowboy band.

Each player received a sack of citrus fruit.

Linebacker Thomas Henderson, the Cowboys' controversial ambassador of the pop-off, was asked if he thought the American Football Conference Steelers had any class.

"They have class, but they don't have the depth," said Henderson, resplendent in Cowboy hat and boots.

Henderson stopped at the top of the steps to announce, "Hollywood is here!"

Henderson fueled controversy two weeks ago when he said the Los Angeles Rams didn't have the class to go to the Super Bowl. The Cowboys whipped the Rams 28-0 in the National Football Conference title game punctuated by Henderson's 68-yard touchdown return of an interception.

The Cowboy charter flight was more somber than the one a year ago to New Orleans for a game the Dallas players felt they were certain to win (against Denver). There was a lot of talk about Pittsburgh's ability to intimidate its opponents.

Dallas linebacker D.D. Lewis said, "Pittsburgh doesn't have a weakness. They are tough — the best I've seen this year. But we beat them in the pre-season and we know they are beatable."

"We know they'll try to come out and try to intimidate us, but they won't be playing the young Cowboy team they faced in the 1975 Super Bowl. Those players (Dallas team) have much more experience now."

The winner of the game becomes the first three-time Super Bowl winner. Cowboy strong safety Charlie Waters said,

"This is a big motivating factor. We wanted to beat Los Angeles but so we can be a part of history."

Cowboy President and General Manager Tex Schramm said, "This is the biggest pressure game for the Cowboys since Super Bowl VI in 1971. There has been so much time of AFC supremacy. This talk of AFC supremacy puts an added burden on us as far as we are concerned."

The Cowboys have lost two Super Bowl games in Miami. The superstitious Cowboy front office moved to another beachfront hotel after two losses at a nearby hotel.

Colorado can't sign Fairbanks

By DICK BRAUDE
AP Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Chuck Fairbanks doesn't have to coach the New England Patriots, but a federal judge has ruled he can't sign a coaching contract with the University of Colorado.

The preliminary injunction ordered Monday by U.S. District Court Judge A. David Mazzone left the controversy where it began last month — with the coach and university pitted against the National Football League team.

Fairbanks has four years left on his NFL pact but has accepted a coaching job with Colorado.

Fairbanks, reportedly in Colorado, was unavailable for comment.

University officials studied Mazzone's ruling. And Patriots owner William H. Sullivan expressed only pleasure that Mazzone supports "the sanctity of a contract."

The university and Fairbanks have filed their own suit in Boulder, Colo., claiming the Patriots are holding the coach against his will.

Boston lawyer Earle Cooley, representing the university, said Monday that Mazzone's order will be appealed, adding, "There's always a chance of a settlement" out of court. But the legal strategy of the participants in the dispute was kept private.

Mazzone, meanwhile, effectively extended a Jan. 3 temporary restraining order against the university's officials and Jack Vickers — a football booster. He dropped businessman Robert Six, another booster, from the list of defendants sued by the Patriots. Fairbanks was not a defendant.

The defendants are prohibited from signing Fairbanks to a coaching pact — worth about $150,000 in salary and fringe benefits.

"I cannot say that Chuck Fairbanks has breached his contract or that he must coach the Patriots," said Mazzone. "I'm not ruling that Chuck Fairbanks can't sign a contract. But at this time Chuck Fairbanks and the defendants cannot enter a contract at Colorado."

At a court hearing Friday, Fairbanks admitted he has been recruiting for Colorado while on the Patriots payroll for $150,000 per year.

"I find there was intentional interference" in Fairbanks' NFL pact by Colorado officials, said Mazzone. Athletic Director Eddie Crowder, Vickers and others tried to persuade the coach "to abandon his responsibilities under the (Patriots) contract," the judge added even after Dec. 18 when Sullivan refused to release the coach from his NFL pact.

Mazzone granted the injunction after deciding that the departure of the team's coach and general manager would cause "irreparable injury" to the Patriots franchise.

Carew talking to Angels

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — After snubbing San Francisco, Rod Carew and his agent are negotiating with the California Angels this week. But the ever-present New York Yankees are still waiting their turn to court the seven-time batting champion.

"The Twins and the Giants agreed on everything, but Rod didn't want to go to San Francisco," said Carew's agent, Jerry Simon.

San Francisco withdrew its offer to the Twins when Carew didn't give them an answer by Monday. But Giants owner Bob Lurie left the door open.

"I haven't given up hopes totally and we may ask Calvin Griffith for another chance to talk with him," Lurie said Monday night.

On Sunday, Carew insisted he hadn't ruled out signing with the Giants but he also said he preferred to stay in the American League, where he is familiar with the pitches and the stadiums.

A trade to an American League team could be made any time, whereas the Twins couldn't swap the 33-year-old Carew to a National League club until Feb. 15 when the inter-league trading period opens.

Carew could not be reached at his suburban Minneapolis home Monday night, at his wife, Marilyn, said, "Nothing has changed. He's still thinking."

When asked if he knew the Giants had withdrawn their offer, Carew's wife said, "Oh, yes."

The Angels have five days left to talk with Carew, California General Manager Buzze Bavasi is reportedly ready to offer Carew $4 million over five years, but the Twins say they haven't received a reasonable offer from the Angels yet.

Minnesota said any trade must include outfielder Ken Landreaux.

Travel agency accused of football ticket fraud

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Civil Aeronautics Board unit is accusing a Buffalo, N.Y., travel agency of advertising Super Bowl tickets as part of a charter-flight package without assuring the CAB that the tickets could be provided.

The CAB's bureau of consumer protection asked the board Monday to levy civil penalties of $10,000 in connection with five advertisements Funflights Inc. placed in the trade publication Travel Weekly in November and December.

However, Barry Diamond, a lawyer for Funflights, said the firm had been "in technical violation" of CAB regulations in placing the ads, but he said no customers had been promised tickets and then denied them.

He also accused the bureau of being "high-handed" and said it was "not trying to do anything but get some publicity."

The bureau said Funflights' advertisements for charter flights from several East Coast cities to Miami for the National Football League championship game Sunday included offers of game tickets for an extra charge.

Those ads ran in Travel Weekly on five occasions from Nov. 2 to Dec. 7. But the company did not file a prospectus for the charter flights with the CAB until Nov. 27, and that prospectus, which is required by the CAB, did not include an assurance that Funflights had a binding commitment for the tickets, the bureau said.

Most of the charter flights involved will be from Pittsburgh, home of one of the two teams playing in the final game, and Diamond said many purchasers of the charter packages already had tickets to the game.

Girls tripped at Liberal, boys at Tascosa tonight

LIBERAL, Kan. — Sparked by Melody Marcellus' 28 points — which nearly equalled the number of fouls called on Pampa — Liberal recorded a 54-53 upset of the Harvester girls here Monday night.

Very little went right for Mary Thomas' charges, who dropped to 10-10 with the setback. The Harvesters were assessed three technical fouls in the second quarter, but poor free throw shooting by the Redskinettes kept Pampa on top by a 31-29 count at halftime.

Still, the barrage of whistles against Pampa continued in the second half. The Harvesters were called for 26 fouls in the game to just nine for the home team, and Liberal sank 20 free throws — to five for Pampa — to win the game.

Down 54-49 with 1½ minutes to play, the Harvesters rallied to close the gap to one point before time ran out. Dwinnna Treadwell hit a pair of free throws with 16 seconds left to make it 54-51, and Teresa Adair garnered a basket after an offensive rebound to make it 54-53 with five seconds left.

The Redskinettes simply held the ball to claim the victory, their fourth of the year against 10 losses. The Harvester girls already owned a win over Liberal, claiming a 53-35 decision in Pampa Dec. 15.

Unofficial statistics had Kellye Richardson leading Pampa with 18 points, while Becky Davis put in 12. Cindy Harmdierks added nine points to the Liberal cause, although it was Marcellus who did most of the damage to the Harvesters' chances.

Despite being hit with a technical of its own, the Pampa junior varsity claimed a 39-24 win. No details on the game were available at press time.

Pampa's girls begin their district schedule at Palo Duro Friday night. The Harvester boys, meanwhile, face Tascosa in Amarillo tonight for their second 3-AAAA game.

Pampa and Tascosa are currently tied for the district lead with 1-0 records. The Harvesters took a 67-57 decision at Caprock Friday night, while the Rebels were downing Palo Duro 55-42.

Pampa will enter the game looking to reach the 500 mark. The Harvesters are 10-11 while the Rebs, preseason favorites to take the district crown, are 16-5. That's the best record of any 3-AAAA team.

The Harvies will host Palo Duro Friday night for their first home game since Jan. 2.

Millions celebrate after shah leaves Iran on trip

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi left Iran today for Egypt and the United States, touching off jubilant celebrations throughout Iran.

"The shah is gone forever!" people chanted as millions poured into the streets, showering each other with candies and rose water, cheering and shouting with joy.

Motorists honked their horns and jumped from their cars and hugged each other.

The 59-year-old ruler, in a statement to the official Pars news agency, said he was going "on vacation because I am feeling tired." He left his royal powers with a Regency Council and appealed to the Iranian people to preserve the monarchy during his absence.

The shah said the length of his stay abroad would depend on his "physical condition." But many believe the vacation will turn into permanent exile and the end of the dynasty his soldier-father founded 54 years ago.

"I hope the government will be able to make amends for the past and also succeed in laying the foundation for the future," said the shah. "This work needs a long period of cooperation and patriotism in its utmost meaning. Our economy must start rolling again and we must have better planning for the future."

Ayatollah Khomeini, the Shiite Moslem religious leader who is the shah's most influential opponent, congratulated the "heroic people of Iran" on the shah's departure and said it was "the first step toward ending the Pahlavi dynasty."

Khomeini, an exile in France, said he would return to Iran "at the first proper time" and would name his own "provisional government" to supplant Prime Minister Shapour Bakhtiar and the new government appointed by the shah.

The lower house of the Majlis, the Iranian Parliament, confirmed Bakhtiar and his cabinet today by a vote of 149-43 with 13 abstentions. The Senate gave it a vote of confidence Monday.

The palace sources said the 59-year-old ruler and Empress Farah left "according to schedule" at 12:15 p.m. after giving reporters the slip with a false announcement that they were delaying their departure until Wednesday.

The government said the shah was going abroad for an extended foreign vacation.

Sole Cambodian port recaptured

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Forces loyal to the ousted Cambodian government recaptured Kompong Som, the country's only deepwater port, informed sources reported today. But they said, Vietnamese warplanes flew the heaviest strikes of the three-week-old war, and it was not known who held the port now.

Thai intelligence officials and other reliable sources said Kompong Som, 135 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, was retaken Monday after stiff fighting. Then the Vietnamese air force went into action, and the situation today was unclear, the sources said.

The sources also reported naval fighting around several islands in the Kompong Som area and a Vietnamese attack on the largest of them, Kong Island, where holdouts from the former government were reported setting up a base for guerrilla resistance.

It was not known whether the Vietnamese and their Cambodian rebel allies seized Kong Island or others in the area.

Western sources in Bangkok said earlier that the Cambodian gunboat navy was helping remnants of the ousted government establish a headquarters or supply base on the southwest islands and that some of the 20,000 Chinese advisers and technicians who had been reported advising the old regime were in that area.

Officials of the former government have also been reported refuge in the Cardamom and Elephant mountains of southwest Cambodia to carry on guerrilla resistance to the new pro-Vietnamese government which took over Phnom Penh on Jan. 7.

A radio station believed to be in China went on the air today to speak for the ousted government. Calling itself the Voice of Democratic Kampuchea (Cambodia), it broadcast on the same frequency as Radio Peking's Cambodian-language station, and its broadcasts were very similar in style to those from Phnom Penh before the Vietnamese victory.

Troops loyal to the ousted government were reported still fighting to retain control of a provincial capital in northwest Cambodia and harassing the Vietnamese invaders and their Cambodian allies at numerous other scattered points.

Western sources said Pursat, 100 miles northwest of Phnom Penh on the main highway to the Thai border, had not fallen to the Vietnamese invaders and the rebel Cambodian movement Hanoi sponsored.

Fighting was also reported continuing around Battambang, northwestern Cambodia's chief city; near Sisophon, 30 miles east of the Thai border; at Nimit, 13 miles from the frontier, and around Kompong Som, the country's only deep-water port.

Informed Western sources said Svay Rieng Province on the Vietnamese border and parts of northeastern Cambodia, were still not secured for the new government.

Refinery strike threat lessens

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — The threat of a strike by 4,500 oil workers at Texaco's huge refinery here has diminished greatly after the company's withdrawal of several issues from contract bargaining talks.

A spokesman for the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union said the strike was "narrowly averted" by Texaco's action early Monday, although final agreement still has not been reached.

The oil workers had threatened to strike at 6 a.m. Monday until Texaco withdrew the contested issues from the bargaining talks.

Texaco dropped an attempt to prohibit strikes for non-arbitrable issues, allowed under the 1976-1978 contract; deleted a proposal that would have required the union to drop a suit against Texaco seeking back pension benefits; and decided against trying to exempt new Texaco employees from wage increases voted in the 1979-1980 contract.

"I think we are in the ballpark for negotiating the national program now," OCAW negotiator Larry Steffen said, referring to the agreement reached last week in Denver between the union and Gulf Oil.

Texaco has offered the union a two-year contract similar to Gulf's, offering workers an across-the-board increase of 73 cents an hour the first year, a 5 percent increase the second year, and increased health insurance contributions.

Meanwhile, contract talks involving about 12,000 additional oil, electrical and mechanical workers at Beaumont-Port Arthur area petrochemical plants continued Monday.

About 3,000 workers are still off the job at Gulf's big refinery here. Although the OCAW has given approval to a contract, workers have struck over local issues. About 500 more workers are refusing to cross OCAW picket lines at the nearby Atlantic-Richfield polymers plant, where local labor issues are still under negotiation.

Electrical workers at Union Oil Co. in Port Neches and American Petrofina in Port Arthur ratified new two-year contracts Monday, although both companies are still negotiating with the oil workers.

The contracts for electrical workers, and for machine workers, follow the OCAW "model" contract that calls for an 8 percent wage increase in 1979 and a 6 percent hike in 1980, along with increased company contributions for health insurance premiums.

Oil workers at the American Petrofina plant here are voting today on their new contract.

Clements is blunt

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bill Clements has been blunt and tough-talking all his life and shows no signs of changing as Texas' first elected Republican governor in 105 years.

"This is where the whole process comes together," the 61-year-old multimillionaire told The Associated Press in a recent interview. "I represent all of the people of the state...I intend for us to have a legislative program that is responsive to this state."

William Perry Clements Jr. was born and raised in Dallas, attending Highland Park High School where he was an All-State football lineman.

But he turned down athletic scholarships to work in South Texas oil fields when his father, a real estate man and farmer, found the Depression tough going.

After eight years as an oil roughneck and driller, he graduated from Southern Methodist University in 1939.

In 1947, he and I.P. Larue launched SEDCO Inc. with borrowed funds and two old drilling rigs. He bought out Larue in 1955 for $1.2 million.

SEDCO now operates in 22 countries, has 11,000 employees and $750 million in assets. One of its subsidiaries is SEDIRAN Drilling Co. of Iran, with half of the stock owned by SEDCO and the rest by Iranian interests.

During his campaign, Clements said he would give up all company positions which currently pay him $150,000 annually, and place his stock in a blind-trust.

He became a director of First International Bancshares, Dallas, and Electronic Data Systems Corp.

After heading Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign, Clements was named U.S. deputy secretary of defense in January 1973. He served that post until January 1977.

Clements says his idea of running for Texas governor started just a few weeks before he announced last Spring. He and his wife, Rita, 47, an attractive brunette and former national Republican committeewoman, decided to make the race.

He has called her his "secret weapon" in the race. She was always at his side.

Clements first swamped Ray Hutchison, Dallas, former State GOP chairman, in the primary. After spending about $7 million for both campaigns, he defeated Democrat John Hill by 16,909 votes in the general election.

Children have simple recipes

DALLAS (AP) — Most of us — caught up in the dizzy world of post-Christmas bills, work, family problems, responsibilities and the hassle of just being an adult — likely have forgotten how simple and wonderful life really is when you're only three feet tall, and your pajamas have "feet" in them.

Take, for example, the ancient art of feeding one's self. Big people in most cases have no problem. But if you depended on Pat Parker's elementary school class to "whip up a little something," well, read on.

Here are some simple recipes from this crop of tow-heads at Armstrong Elementary School:

Bologna and cheese sandwich: "Take bologna, put it in the oven, then after it dings, you put cheese on it and let it cook. So you sorta take it out — I eat juice with it and toast."

Pancakes: "I'd get some powder, put it in this things, put a little milk in it, then you mix it up. Put it on the oven and then you turn them over. Put them on a plate. I put peanut butter on them and make them into a sandwich. Then I eat it."

If one has survived the sandwich and pancakes, then, of course, it is time for dessert. And here is the most sane of several chocolate cake recipes:

"You roll up the cake up —

I mean you get some cake mix and then you stir it up and then put chocolate syrup and then you put it in the oven for 10 hours and then you take a toothpick and put it in and if it does not come out as it should and it should have stuff on it and if it doesn't you put it back in for 10 more hours."

Of course, if one can't wait 20 hours while the cake is baking, here is one child's idea of how moms prepares roast:

"She puts it on the oven and puts peanuts on it, leaves it for a while then she goes upstairs and cleans then she comes down and takes it out then she makes some roasted peanuts for me with jelly beans. My daddy gets deers. He goes out in the woods and we cook them."

The perfect compliment for any peanut roast is, of course, spaghetti but, perhaps, not prepared this way:

"Sauce and you know little strings of you know what. First, she cooks the little strings and then she gets the sauce from the grocery store and then she gets hot sauce and then she chots it then... then..."

Oh well. Perhaps this child's recipe for red beans is wisest of all: "My maid makes some red beans for dinner and we wait a little while and they get bigger and bigger and get redder and redder and we eat 'em."

Murder charge laid

DALLAS (AP) — A 32-year-old Dallas woman has been charged with two counts of attempted murder in connection with the beating and mutilation of her young children.

Municipal Judge Lee Clements set bonds of $100,000 each Monday on the charges against Kathleen Gradi.

Both her children remained in critical condition as a result of the wounds they received last Friday in their northeast Dallas apartment.

Clifford Cecil Gradi, 11, was taken to Parkland Memorial Hospital after police found him and his 8-year-old sister in their blood-spattered apartment.

The boy underwent two operations for damage from a screwdriver that was rammed to the hilt through his right eye.

New Job for Wallace

For more than 15 years, he was one of the most widely recognized voices in American politics. As governor of Alabama, he spoke out strongly for segregation and states' rights. As an independent candidate for president in 1968, he won almost 10 million votes. But an assassination attempt in 1972, during his third bid for the presidency, left him with paralyzed legs, and now it appears that his long political career may be over. Wallace, retiring this month as Alabama's governor, will continue to be busy. Today at age 59 he takes on a new job, as director of development for rehabilitation services at the University of Alabama.

Budget dispute continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rift between urban leaders and the White House over budget language persists despite President Carter's personal assurance that his new budget will provide more money for the poor.

"We find this extremely interesting," said John Gunther, director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, after Carter's promise of more money.

"But we continue to be fearful that the actual number of dollars available for fiscal 1980 will not come up to the current services level," Gunther said. In an interview broadcast said, "We will have a substantial increase...in the total budget expenditures for the poor people of our country."

The president added, "I think when the budget is analyzed, these intense fears that did exist among city officials and special interest groups around the country will be substantially alleviated."

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: My wife, Bess, is a registered nurse. She worked until our children came along, but quit to be a full-time mother. The kids are all out of school, and Bess went back to part-time nursing because she enjoys it. I have a good income and it's not necessary for her to work at all.

My mother recently suffered a serious stroke. She divorced my father when I was four, and devoted her life to raising me. She made many sacrifices to send me to the best schools, etc. Mother is in the hospital now, but when she is well enough, I want her to make her home with us. No way will I put her in a nursing home.

I told Bess this and she said, "Fine, but you had better plan on getting someone in to take care of her because I am going back to work full-time."

I was shocked. My wife, a registered nurse, would rather care for strangers than stay at home and nurse my mother! She knows I never could repay my mother for all she's done for me. What do you make of this?

MIXED EMOTIONS

DEAR MIXED: Your wife obviously does not share your deep feeling of obligation insofar as your mother is concerned. Hire a nurse to take care of your mother and take good care of yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I was divorced at 57, after 30 years. I lost my husband to his secretary, who was 25.

I soon found out that men my age prefer women half my age. I didn't want to settle for a sick old man.

I joined the weird world of wandering widows, and made the best of it.

I got a job and decided to be good to myself, instead of waiting on a man who'd never appreciate it.

I still weigh 130, have beautiful clothes, do what I want to do, eat when I'm hungry, sleep when I'm tired, and have had some exotic vacations!

I have never been happier! And as for my ex-husband—who needs him?

H. IN BENSONVILLE, ILL.

DEAR H.: That 25-year-old girl he married.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I've seen a letter in your column about a family feud, I've wanted to write and tell you about my own experience, but never got around to it. Today I'm getting it off my chest with the hope that some feuding families will patch up their foolish quarrels.

When I was in my teens, my parents and an aunt and uncle got into an argument about some petty thing that got so blown out of proportion they quit speaking to each other. My cousins and I still associated with each other, but we didn't go into each other's houses because of our feuding parents.

Things went on that way until one morning our phone rang at 7. It was my aunt calling to tell us that her son had been killed in Vietnam. My folks went over there immediately and, of course, the feud was forgotten.

I hope other families who are feuding will open their eyes and put their petty grievances aside before it takes tragedy to bring them together.

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I must comment on your column about foot odors. I am 55 and wear sturdy nurses shoes daily and have tried everything. I find standard foot soaps and powders irritating. Feminine deodorant sprays, mild and effective, do the trick. Cleanliness comes first. Plain cornstarch sprinkled lightly in the shoes helps also. Stockings with cotton feet are better than nylons.

A wintergreen lotion for the feet after cleansing is heavenly at the end of a hot summer day. And, as you said, open sandals for off-duty hours are great. I also sponge the insides of my shoes periodically with a mild solution of water and laundry bleach and I haven't had a complaint in years.

DEAR READER — Thank you for your comments. I've received a lot of letters from people who have had foot odor problems. This merely serves to point out how common the problem is. I'm also intrigued about how many different forms of treatment people use.

The most important thing, of course, is to find a treatment that works for you. As I stressed in my earlier column, frequent washing of the feet is important. Changing shoes so that you have a different pair of shoes each day while another pair is airing out is also important.

I agree that you should use cotton or wool socks and change them as often as twice a day if need be. These are much better than any of the synthetic socks which tend to trap moisture and enhance odors. The same can be said in regard to leather shoes as opposed to plastic shoes.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I see mangoes for sale and want to put up a sign, "Mangoes May Be Dangerous To Your Health." My husband had never had a bad reaction to any food in 48 years. Then when we were in Honolulu, he had a fruit salad that contained mangoes. He was rushed to the hospital and was given adrenaline because he had trouble in breathing. He was the only one of 70 guests who had trouble although they all ate the same food so it wasn't the quality of the food.

At first the doctor thought it was a fish allergy but that didn't prove to be the case. Then I read an article in a magazine where a man said he broke out in hives within minutes of eating his first mango and nearly passed out and had to be hospitalized and given cortisone and adrenaline.

Apparently, mangoes seem to have this effect in less than 3 percent of the population. I wish you would tell those 3 percent what might happen if they eat mangoes. I realize that writing this, if you publish it, might not be good for the mango market but it might save a few lives in the process.

DEAR READER — You're describing a severe food reaction and there are an awful lot of commonly used foods that will produce reactions in susceptible people. The reaction can be very severe as your husband experienced. There are people who are allergic to strawberries, tomatoes, various kinds of pickles and peppers and the list goes on to be as long as your arm. That doesn't mean that any of these foods are bad.

Polly's Pointers

by polly cramer

DEAR POLLY — Instead of rolling cracker crumbs on a piece of waxed paper try rolling them in a plastic food bag. I find the one-quart size is best. There will be no messy rolling pin or crumbs to clean up and the bag can be used for storage of leftover crumbs. — MARGIE

Beauty improvement plan

by josephine lowman

USE MIND OVER MATTER

(This is the seventh in a series of 15 articles in which Josephine Lowman, author of "Why Grow Old?" and leading authority on health and beauty, tells you exactly what to do to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks. You may want to save these menus and exercises to refer back to during the eight-week period.)

Reducing is a question of mind over matter. Your mental attitude when embarking on a weight loss program is crucial. Think of it as an exciting challenge with wonderful prizes when you win, not as an awful experience you must endure. This, along with other tricks I am listing today, will help you over any rough spots.

— Think thin! Picture yourself as a slim person. Today many psychologists believe that our behavior is influenced more drastically by our mental images than by our reasoning. Behavior therapists are convinced that we can change our behavior by changing our images. I have always thought that people tend to live up or down to the picture they have of themselves.

— Paste a picture of a very fat woman and one of a very slim woman on the front of your refrigerator. If you have a snapshot of yourself before you gained weight put that up beside the fat lady, or paste pictures of thin women all around on the kitchen walls.

— Look at pretty clothes you would love to wear but can't until you lose some weight. Imagine how you will look in them.

— Don't skip meals. You are sure to more than make up for it with snacks or a heavy evening menu.

— Do not wait until you have lost your overweight to begin improving your general appearance. If you need a permanent, have one. Try a new hair style. Experiment with makeup. This is activating toward self-improvement.

— Arrange the food in the refrigerator so that things you might snack on are in the back.

— Do not test your will power by having candy, cookies and other temptations in the house or at least not within easy reach. Ask for your family's cooperation.

— Think of foods you should not have as enemies. They are! Imagine your abdomen getting bigger or picture your hips swelling up when you look at them.

— Chew sugarless gum when you get the urge to snack.

— Remove your portion of food from the pot before adding seasoning for the family.

— Eat slowly. It is more satisfying.

— Serve plates in the kitchen.

— Do not look at pictures of food in magazines or on TV commercials.

— Keep busy. Try to plan activities that will keep you out of the house much of the time, if this is possible.

— It's a great idea to buy a zippered dress that is too small for you but one you will be able to wear when you lose your overweight. Try it on once a week. Every inch higher you can zip it up will be a real thrill.

— Keep crispy celery, carrot sticks and cauliflower buds ready in the refrigerator for emergencies. Prepare them ahead of time. A cup of bouillon has only 15 calories. Keep some on hand for occasional use.

It is not too late to join BIP. If you would like to lose from 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks to get ready for spring clothes, send for the BIP kit which gives you all of the instructions necessary, plus two full weeks of new slimming menus including a calorie chart, spot reducing exercises and a wall chart on which to plot your progress and watch your beauty line rise as your weight line drops. For your kit, send $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the BIP kit to Josephine Lowman, in care of this newspaper.

NEXT: SHOP BEFORE YOU LOSE.

Stand with your feet comfortably separated and your hands behind your head. Let your head drop forward and force your elbows as close together as possible. Raise your head and open your elbows as widely as you can. Continue for 10 times.
