Election fight not big in city

SKELLYTOWN—The race for mayor in this city of 1100 is certainly not to the swift.

It doesn't have to be. Edna Chaney, city secretary, said Skellytown has never had more than one candidate for mayor in any election since its incorporation in 1959, although there have been contests for the city's five alderman positions.

As of early Thursday afternoon, only six days before the filing deadline, incumbent Mayor P.M. Cousins, said he still hadn't made up his mind about running again.

"If a sterling candidate comes along, then I might acquiesce," said Cousins, who was ushered into office unopposed in 1977 on the strength of 283 votes.

Alderman Richard Mills filed late Thursday for the unpaid job which Cousins says takes about two hours of his time a day. So, the incumbent has taken the chance to "acquiesce."

Cousins said he was still trying to solicit a successor Thursday.

Before Mills through his hat into the ring, Cousins said he'd talked with seven or eight people about running for office.

"So far no one has been interested," said Cousins Thursday before learning of Mills' candidacy. "And I can understand. A large number of the people in Skellytown work for companies, they're shift workers. But there are a lot of retired people who I think are good personnel. I've called a few, said 'Would you like to run?' But apparently they want to retire, which I can understand."

Cousins, a twenty-year air force veteran, is retired himself, albeit rather actively. In addition to spending on the average of two hours a day with the city's business, he pastors the Church of Christ (four services a week plus varied ministerial duties), rises at 6 p.m. to run a local grocery, and serves as a volunteer fireman.

"No one would run in 1977, so I was asked," he said. "I believe every citizen has a responsibility to do his bit, to become involved, if he can."

Mills, a twenty-year native of Skellytown and a warehouseman for the Getty Oil Company, laughs when asked if he expects to run unopposed. "It would be fantastic if someone would make it into a race," he said.

Mills said he expects he will find someone to run for the alderman position vacated by himself.

"Some will hold off to see what's going to happen," he said. "Then at the last moment they'll jump in. At least that's the way it's been in the past, so that's what I go by."

Mills and Cousins both believe that the most pressing issue facing Skellytown is proposed state legislation which would bypass city contract negotiations with utility companies. Under the legislation, power to negotiate with utility companies would go directly to the State Public Utilities Commission, who now has power to oversee and approve contracts the cities negotiate with utility companies.

Area hospital talks begin

By DAN LACKEY
Pampa News Staff

The Gray County Commissioners Court met with representatives of Hospital Corporation of America (HCA) this morning to begin negotiations on a proposed $2.7 million leasing package for Highland and McLean County Hospitals.

According to HCA's original proposal of November 1978, the corporation will lease hospital property and equipment for 30 months, and purchase its assets for $2,275,000. The company will also assume responsibility for the hospital's $483,000 loan, according to Judge Carl Kennedy.

Kennedy said Thursday that HCA had verbally agreed to the assumption of the loan.

Under the original proposal, the county would have had to pay off the loan from funds received from the lease arrangement.

HCA has also made a commitment to build a new hospital within 30 months.

According to Commissioner Ted Simmons of Precinct 4 in McLean, HCA proposes to lease McLean Hospital for 30 months, with an option to renew the lease for another 30 months at the end of that period. Simmons also said that the corporation will attempt to recruit a second full-time physician for the McLean facility.

The decision to begin negotiations with HCA was made unanimously in regular session of the court Thursday.

HCA is a publicly owned corporation with about 6000 stockholders. The corporation owns or manages 100 hospitals in the United States and overseas, including 11 hospitals in Texas.

Although negotiations have been scheduled with HCA, Kennedy said Thursday the court had not ruled out the possibility of negotiating with Hospital Affiliates International, the third corporation to have expressed interest in the hospitals.

American Medical International, the first corporation to submit a proposal to the court, is apparently the third choice.

Simmons said commissioners intend to schedule talks with local community groups to explain the court's preliminary choice of HCA and the future of medical care in Gray County.

In a hospital-related issue, the court tabled a request by Richard Levofsky for a change in the hospital board of managers. Levofsky, a

States start own fuel saving steps

State governments, fearing that federally imposed conservation measures would limit driving, cut into tourism and create "economic havoc," are initiating steps of their own to reduce oil consumption.

Faced with an oil shortage spawned by the Iranian revolution, officials say they are particularly concerned that the federal government might mandate the weekend closing of gasoline stations, a step one governor says would wreak "economic havoc" in states heavily dependent on vacation travel.

Among the options being considered by states are stricter enforcement of the 55 mph speed limit, changing school calendars to save on heating fuel and changing pollution standards to allow the burning of lower-grade heating oil, which is cheaper and more plentiful.

New York state already has allowed two companies to sell oil with a higher sulfur level to replace the low-sulfur oil found in Iran. Utilities in New York and Florida, both of which rely heavily on imported oil, are seeking permission to burn high-sulfur fuel in their generating plants.

Other proposals aim to reduce consumption. For example, a bill pending before the New Mexico Legislature would expand a pilot program under which some school districts have switched to a four-day school week.

And a Florida task force studying methods for reducing consumption has suggested the possibility of raising the minimum driving age to 21 and setting a maximum age of 65, closing downtown parking lots, thereby forcing people to take mass transit, and allowing workers, where possible, to work at home several days a week.

Most states, however, are emphasizing conservation efforts already in place.

"We're simply stepping up what we've been doing all along, such as rigidly enforcing the 55 mph highway speed limit and promoting in every way we can the voluntary conservation programs," said J. Boyd Spencer, director of Virginia's State Energy Office.

The states hope that by pushing conservation they can head off something they think is much more dangerous than the oil shortage itself—a federal edict to close gasoline stations on weekends.

Good afternoon

News in brief

RAIN

The forecast for Pampa calls for windy conditions today with a chance of thunderstorms late this afternoon and tonight. The thunderstorms may be locally severe and there is a wind warning in effect for area lakes. The storms are expected to end early Saturday and there will be decreasing cloudiness and cooler conditions during the day. The high today will be in the upper 60s with the low tonight in the low 30s and the high Saturday in the upper 50s. Gusty winds are expected to be south to southwest at 20-30 mph today decreasing to 15-25 mph tonight.

Pampa leads in baseball tournament

The Pampa Harvesters were leading the Canyon Eagles by an 8-5 score at press time this morning, following five innings of play during the opening game of the Pampa Baseball Tournament at Optimist Park.

Pre-trial testimony heard

Pretrial testimony was heard this morning in 31st-District Court on a motion by attorney Robert McPherson to suppress from evidence a statement made to police by Benito Rodriguez, charged with murder and aggravated assault in connection with the Feb. 17 stabbing death of Roberto Lira, 25, of Pampa, and the injury of three others. Rodriguez's wife reportedly wrote out a statement to police dictated by her husband the morning after his arrest.

Fighting breaks out in Uganda

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Fierce fighting with jet planes and tanks broke out today in barracks of the Tororo Battalion in eastern Uganda, in an apparent battle between forces loyal to President Idi Amin and others opposed to him.

Officials at Mbale Hospital, 25 miles to the north, said they had received an undetermined number of dead and wounded.

Residents said the fighting began about dawn and was continuing late this afternoon.

"It started about 6 a.m. So far, it has been confined to the barracks, about 1 1/2 miles from town," said a Tororo resident telephoned from Nairobi.

"There are jet fighters flying overhead and tanks and armored personnel carriers in the town. We don't know exactly what is going on but we can see the barracks burning."

Some informants said it was a mutiny within the 1,000 men of the air and waterborne battalion at Tororo, eight miles west of the Kenyan border. Others said a force fought their way to Tororo from the area of Lake Victoria a few miles to the south.

Either way, the fighting posed what could be the gravest threat so far to the eight-year rule of Amin, who in recent weeks of war against Tanaanian invaders has had reported mutinies in the Suicide and Lion Battalions in the key southern towns of Masaka and Mbarara.

Tororo controls the road and rail routes from Kenya, over which Uganda receives virtually all its civilian and military supplies.

Ugandan exiles in Nairobi described the Tororo fighting as a mutiny. They said anti-Amin soldiers removed weapons from the battalion armory and distributed them to civilians.

Military sources in Jinja, near Kampala, the Ugandan capital, said Amin ordered troops from the Khaddafy barracks at Jinja to go to Tororo, 75 miles to the east. But they said the Khaddafy units were blocked on the Jinja-Tororo road by anti-Amin forces.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

National nanny to plan menus

There may be no clearer example of empire building by government regulators than the Federal Trade Commission's current crusade to dictate the content of television advertising aimed at children.

To save America from the menace of pre-sugared cereals, candy bars and toys that fail to meet a bureaucrat's arbitrary standard of suitability, the FTC is considering:

- Banning all television advertising directed at children under eight years of age.

- Prohibiting commercials for sugared products that might contribute to tooth decay in children under 12 years of age.

- Requiring advertisers to pay for "nutrition" and "health" ads whose content would be determined by the commission.

In short, the Federal Trade Commission proposes to become, in the words of the Washington Post, a great national nanny.

The legitimate role of parents gets short shrift from the commission. Overlooked is the simple fact that children too young to understand that television commercials are sales pitches rarely do the family shopping. Mom and dad buy the food. And mom and dad are perfectly capable of saying no to a child whose vision of dinner is a dozen candy bars or a box of Fruit Loops.

Has it occurred to the commission that even children who have never watched an hour of television in their lives might still favor a breakfast of ice cream and lollipops?

Admittedly, the FTC staff report on which these proposals are based does mention parents. The report suggests that parental disapproval of a child's television-induced gastronomic fantasies fosters "alienation" and "child-parent conflict." Bunk. Any responsible parent finds it necessary to say no to a child several times a day, and does so without producing neurosis.

As for tooth decay, even the FTC doesn't pretend that there is a direct correlation between watching television commercials and the incidence of dental cavities.

Another real puzzler is how the commission would square its compulsory health and nutrition advertising with its own staff report's conclusion that "the representation that one food is more healthful than another... is false and deceptive." But should the proposal be adopted, it would cost food marketers and consumers tens of millions of dollars to find out.

As if all this were not enough to bury the FTC proposals under an avalanche of ridicule, consider the First Amendment implications of these potential regulations. If the commission, acting on the basis of bogus or nonexistent scientific evidence, can ban or restrict ads for cereal, candy and toys, what form of commercial speech is safe from the Washington censors?

Will asparagus marketers have to include a 30-second homily on the need for a balanced diet as the price for getting their ad on the air? What about potatoes? An undiluted diet of spuds surely must contain its own special threat to health. Are teenagers sufficiently cognizant of these dangers to resist a pitch for french fries? And how is the commission to decide which commercials are beamed solely at seven year olds and thus subject to outright prohibition?

There simply is no end to the mischief that might be wrought under the precedents inherent in these proposed regulations.

All this is not to condone false and misleading advertising. But we do think the agency should give parents a modicum of credit for common sense in raising their own offspring.

This year, it will cost American taxpayers $66.4 million to maintain the Federal Trade Commission in the style to which it has become accustomed. For that kind of money, we are receiving a holy war on chocolate bars and breakfast cereal.

Clothespins consumers fell the pinch

Some nations on Earth, which we need not name, have taken to the practice of "dumping" wooden clothespins on the markets in both the United States and Canada.

By dumping, the two offended nations mean the mercantile exporters are selling the pins for less than the prevailing world market price. So both nations are cranking up their regulatory agencies to impose what amounts to trade barriers against wooden clothespin imports.

Much ado about nothing? Yes, in a sense, but the whole business does point up some aspects of the flagrant disregard felt in both Washington and Ottawa for the consumers (i.e., most of us.)

The trade barriers will allow domestic manufacturers of clothespins — or the makers of any other articles, from shoes to locomotive engines — to price their products higher than they need be, which tends to keep inefficient businesses in operation at what amounts to a subsidy extorted from the public.

The barriers also deprive the consumers of what should be their right to buy whatever they want from whomever they want at the best price they can find.

It also points out an inconsistency, however small, in the Carter administration. The domestic market for clothespins is growing because many Americans are taking Carter's energy conservation pleas seriously enough to hang their clothes out to dry instead of using energy-wasteful clothes dryers. The result is the government will now force them to pay higher prices for those clothespins.

And, such barriers inevitably lead barred nations to erect retaliatory barriers of their own. The result is a tendency toward more and more trade restrictions, to the detriment of consumers, private businesses and workers the world over.

The restrictions against dumping came about, of course, because of the concentrated political power of individual industries and the unions within those industries. Both businesses and unions are taking the narrow "me first" view, perhaps failing to realize that the same view taken by other industries hurts everybody, in the same way that trade barriers between nations eventually damage them all.

Free enterprise ought truly to be free, and international in scope.

An example of what goes wrong when trade barriers rise can be well illustrated in the area of automobiles.

We are acquainted with an auto worker who earned $25,000 last year. His job? He drives new cars from the end of the assembly line to a parking lot. He freely admits he is overpaid, and would do the same job for a lot less. His high pay — and the consequent high costs for cars to consumers — is the fault of General Motors, the United Auto Workers, and a government which insists on protecting such foolishness.

Khomeini's new challenge

VLADISLAV KRASNOV
(Dr. Krasnov is Director of Russian Studies at the Monterey Institute of International Studies and is visiting research fellow at the Hoover Institution at Stanford.)

Copy right: Public Research, Syndicated, 1979

On the surface, the whirlwind of dramatic events in Iran has ended triumphantly for the ayatollah Khomeini: the Bakhtiar government appointed by the Shah was overthrown, the Bazargan government appointed by the ayatollah was installed, the pro-Shah army was beheaded, and the ayatollah's dream — up Islamic Republic has begun to take a definite shape in the midst of cheering crowds and incoming recognitions by other nations.

Beneath the surface of his triumph, however, there is a challenge in the making, compared to which his toppling of Bakhtiar's government may seem a trifle.

The swiftness and completeness of Khomeini's victory over Bakhtiar made one columnist compare it to the victory of Lenin over the provisional government of Kerensky in the wake of the fall of the Russian monarchy. But in fact Khomeini's present situation is more analogous to that of Mujibur Rakhman, who had presided over the birth of the Bangladesh nation in 1971 only to be overthrown and murdered in 1975. More to the point, it is analogous to the case of President Muhammad Daoud, a devout Muslim, who overthrew the King of Afghanistan and installed a republic in 1973 only to be overthrown and murdered in 1978 by the Khulq Communists who now control the country, at the doorsteps to Iran.

By toppling the government of Bakhtiar, who was a long-time opponent of the Shah and has a considerable following, Khomeini may have alienated from himself moderate and conservative Muslims who had until then sympathized with his movement. What is worse, the breakdown of social order which followed the overthrow, led to the emergence and strengthening of some new forces which will inevitably challenge the Islamic Republic.

Like a magician in the Muslim legend, Khomeini may have released from the broken jar of the monarchy evil forces which are now beyond his control and which may destroy him. Who are these geni?

They are those who attacked the American embassy in spite of his orders to cease and desist; who caused the exceptionally bloody fighting in the northwestern region of Tabriz; who ignored his appeals to return the weapons looted from the armories; who rendered him incapable of protecting foreign nationals, especially American petroleum engineers, and thus forced their departure from Iran.

They are the Moscow-line Tudeh Communists, who turned out to be much stronger than our press had been willing to admit; the Marxist-Leninist Fedayeen whom we saw on television riding a captured tank, brandishing their weapons, and displaying the red star and the hammer and sickle; and the 8,000 men-strong "Sahkal Marxist Group," thus named after a village at the Caspian Sea which the Communists had captured fourteen years ago. They are women, and perhaps some men, who wear the black chador not out of Muslim piety but to hide under them machine guns and Molotov cocktails. In short, they are the leftists and atheists who simply outran the mullahs in arming themselves.

The concurrent murder of Adolph Dubs, our ambassador to Afghanistan, was only one of many reminders that the events in Iran cannot be understood, much less controlled, in isolation from those in neighboring countries and without taking stock of Soviet penetration of the area. Not that the Soviets were directly responsible for Dubs' murder. But it occurred in their client state and they did little to save his life, as our State Department protest duly noted.

Ironically, the ambassador was murdered by the Shiite Muslim terrorists who are fighting for survival under Afghanistan's Marxist regime. The irony here is in the question which Khomeini must now face: Can an Islamic Republic succeed in Iran when it so miserably failed to take root in Afghanistan? Although the majority of Afghans are not Shiite but Sunni Muslims, the ayatollah can hardly proceed with his Islamic Republic in Iran without expressing a concern for the fate of his Muslim brethren next door.

As Robert Moss of the Institute for the Study of Conflict (London) pointed out, of the nearly half a million Afghani citizens living illegally in Iran, many engage in subversion on behalf of the Soviets. He also found evidence of the KGB penetration of Iran's army and intelligence and cited the subversion by Iranians trained in Cuba.

The Soviets are also favored by the advantage of a long border with Iran. Moreover, the ethnic composition of the border area is such that huge chunks of Iran may be viewed as a natural extension of the Soviet "republics" of Armenia, Azerbaidzhan and Turkmenistan. The language spoken in another Soviet "republic," Tadzhikistan, is very similar to that of Afghanistan and Iran.

Furthermore, the Soviets have already gained in these "republics" extensive experience in using nationalist and religious sentiments to their advantage. First, they instigated the local population against the czar, then, once the nationalists proclaimed their independence, they overthrew them with the help of a fifth column and replaced them with the Soviet regime.

Finally, the Soviets also had the experience of occupying the Tabriz region of Iran between 1941-46. They withdrew their forces only after energetic demands from the West, substantiated by United States strategic superiority and the verge of a bygone era. Certainly it would not be so easy for Iran to extricate itself from the grip of the northern bear as it was for Egypt and Somalia.

This suggests a direction which Khomeini must now promptly take if he is to avoid the fate of Afghanistan's Daoud. That direction must be towards a reconciliation not only with all the moderate and conservative Muslims whom he had needlessly antagonized by the overthrow of Bakhtiar but also with the United States and its allies. To succeed in this direction both the and the United States would have to exhibit a greater amount of statecraft and resolve.

Investment in fulfillment

Talent is often hidden, even from the possessor. Bringing it out can make an individual wiser, happier and possibly, even somewhat wealthier.

These are truisms which are being tested and found valid for business and operations by one firm, Pitney Bowes. The business systems and equipment company is funding a new program to encourage its employees to discover and develop special interests for personal fulfillment or, if feasible, second careers.

It is an addition to existing programs preparing employees for the problems of retirement, which often include finding new activities and interests to fill unaccustomed free time.

Where most of the pre-retirement assistance focuses on the over-60 employees, the special interest program is open to anyone over 50, spouses of employees included. The firm reimburses participants for tuition, books and fees up to $300 per year in approved courses at accredited colleges, universities, technical schools and in some cases individual tutoring.

Employees, the firm reports, are taking up the opportunity to develop interests in areas ranging from real estate to golf. One has returned to an old interest in art and is not only painting but selling the results.

Sounds like a promising return on an investment in individual fulfillment.

Let's stop pretending

Following the collapse of Iran, President Carter played down the talk about an impending energy crisis.

He noted that the net shortfall of petroleum supplies caused by the loss of Iranian production amounts to about half a million barrels a day as far as the United States is concerned — or only about 2.5 percent of our consumption.

This could easily be met, he said, if we did what we were asked to do back in 1974 — reduce our driving, honor the 55 mph limit, form car pools or switch to public transportation, turn down our thermostats. It was a call for a renewed conservation effort by Americans. And, the facts are, conservation may be forced upon us whether we want it or not.

The oil companies are already cutting allocations to their distributors. Even if the new Khomeini government eventually cracks up Iran's wells and resumes oil exports — which is by no means certain — it cannot happen soon enough to avoid an almost sure gasoline crunch beginning in the spring.

Long lines at stations and mandatory Sunday closings may be the least of the inconveniences we face. At the best, prices are going to soar.

At the worst, if the other major oil exporters stop taking up much of the slack left by Iran and if the United States is called upon to share its oil with the countries it is aligned with in the International Energy Agency, that shortfall the president spoke of could quickly be doubled.

To call the developing energy situation a crisis may be overstating the case. But to pretend that we will be able to go along as we have been is the purest wishful thinking.

In their own interests, Americans should anticipate the worst and begin, or reinforce, personal conservation practices.

If we don't do it voluntarily as individuals now, this will only increase the likelihood that we will do it involuntarily as a nation later — and much more strenuously.

Soviets clear intentions

All the people of the free world owe a debt to the Soviet Union for the frankness with which it has revealed its ambition to see Iran taken into the Communist bloc.

In a speech (reported in Pravda), Boris Ponomarev, one of the Kremlin's most important strategists, expressed satisfaction with the path taken by Russia's oil-rich southern neighbor.

He said that Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, Ethiopia, Angola, Mozambique and Afghanistan had all "embarked on the road to socialism," by which he meant communism, and added:

"The government of (Shahpour) Bakhtiar has fallen in Iran. The army took the side of the people. The revolution is winning."

When Ponomarev or other Politburo members talk favorably about "the revolution," they mean a process to bring to power a Soviet-style Communist Party. He has been very clear, even indiscreet.

Iranians, who have just thrown off one tyranny, have been forewarned.

If there was any doubt about the leftist danger to an Iran still in chaos, it was dispelled by the armed seizure of the American Embassy in Teheran by Communist guerrillas. Fortunately they were expelled by forces loyal to Ayatollah Khomeini before many lives were lost.

The purpose of the well-planned attack on the embassy was to provoke a confrontation between the United States and the ayatollah's new Islamic regime. The guerrillas hoped for an overreaction by this country, which would poison relations and cause Teheran to look to Moscow for aid and friendship.

In time it is possible that the few Iranian leaders will set aside anti-Americanism (engendered by our support of the shah), and see that the two countries have interests in common.

Washington should lose no chance to reiterate that it respects the choice the Iranian people have made and has no designs on the country.

That could prove a winning contrast to Russia's historic goal.

Unemployment rates often misleading

The federal government each year hands out more than $17 billion to state and local governments on the basis of unemployment rates in their areas. But statistics on these rates are, at best, educated guesses and, at worst — in one expert's estimation — "almost useless."

This is the report of Sheldon Engelmayer and Robert J. Wagman, correspondents for the National Association of Manufacturers publication Enterprise.

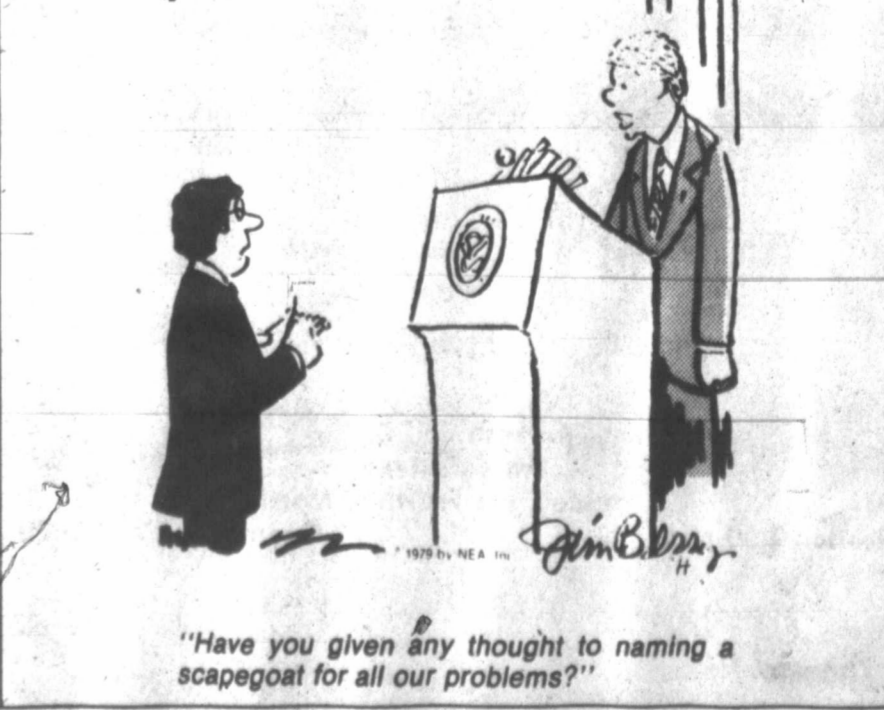

Some students of the problem say the jobless numbers are too low, citing "undercounting" in inner city areas and the inclusion of part-time and occasional workers in the employed category. Others say the numbers are far too high. Engelmayer and Wagman give an example:

"Bill is relaxing on a bench in Waikiki. He is tired. For the last year and a half, he has worked day and night for a major defense contractor putting together a bid for a new missile system. Now his job is done, the bid has been accepted and Bill has earned his $75,000 and his rest. Next month he starts a new job with another contractor. Bill is unemployed, the government says. Lying next to Bill is Jim, a foreman who for the last 11 months has averaged almost 20 hours a week overtime. He can relax on the beach because he has been laid off for three weeks while the company retools its assembly line. Jim, too, is unemployed."

On the national level, the authors said that the total unemployment rate can be misleading as a gauge of distress. Using October 1978 as a sample, they noted the overall jobless rate was 5.8 percent. But if those who were only temporarily out of jobs were excluded, the rate drops, with the relatively long-term unemployed (five to 15 weeks) measuring 1.8 percent and the so-called hard-core unemployed (27 weeks and over) pegged at 0.6 percent of the work force.

'Truce' needed on issues

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A slowdown in the nation's economic growth is probable through the rest of the century and requires a truce among special interest groups, says President Carter's special representative for trade negotiations.

Robert S. Strauss said, "Slower growth rates will present us with new and difficult economic and social issues requiring us all to pull together.

"We need cooperation, not confrontation, and involvement, not isolation. ... It is essential that we move toward national consensus on the key economic issues of our times."

Strauss, participating Thursday in a University of Texas symposium on business and government partnership, said social tensions in the past were often smoothed over by a rapidly expanding economy.

"When the pie keeps growing, everybody can get a bigger slice," he said.

A possible way to strengthen the nation's position in the international market might be to follow the example of Japanese and Korean trading companies, Strauss said.

The Japanese steel and shipbuilding industries soared to world prominence after World War II because of "carefully planned investment and export promotion strategies," he said.

Similar methods were first applied to the Japanese computer industry in 1972 and the aircraft industry is next, Strauss said.

Strauss said small and medium-sized American companies hesitate to enter the international market but suggested that joint operations might help them weather its unpredictable nature.

"This will require a careful re-examination of our antitrust laws and a balancing of competing national priorities. Maybe we should, maybe we shouldn't. But it is the type of question we need to be asking," Strauss said.

Investment banker Felix G. Rohatyn, keynote speaker at the two-day conference at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, also predicted a harsher future.

"With many of our governmental institutions paralyzed or inept, with overregulation and bureaucracy stifling the basic entrepreneurial drive of business, austerity is where we are headed if we are lucky, much worse if we are not," he said.

Rohatyn, a partner in Lazard Freres and Co., was the first chairman of the Municipal Assistance Corp. for the City of New York that was formed to head off the city's bankruptcy in 1975. He now is a special adviser on economic affairs to New York Gov. Hugh Carey.

The nation's economic situation today resembles the plight of New York City in 1975, he said.

Improved appraisals sought

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee voted Thursday to punish school districts that undervalue taxable property and reward those with accurate, up-to-date valuations.

It said state reimbursement for revenue losses caused by the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment should work as a lever for better appraisals.

The committee expects to take a final vote Monday on a bill (HB1060) implementing the amendment. Speaker Bill Clayton wants House floor action on March 12.

Under the proposal approved by the committee Thursday, the state would reimburse a district dollar-for-dollar in 1980.

After that, a district could receive as little as 90 cents on the dollar if its appraisals stray from market value by more than the state average.

But districts whose appraisals are as good as the statewide average would receive more dollars than they lost.

"We are not cutting anybody out. ... This will make them all get out and do a good job and actually lower taxes because they will reappraise," said committee member Wayne Peveto, D-Orange.

Clayton favors straight dollar-for-dollar reimbursement for the next two years.

But committee Chairman Bob Davis, R-Irving, says federal courts held that approving unconstitutional in Louisiana because it rewarded districts for under-appraising real estate.

Art courses coming to area

An art professor for an upcoming course at Clarendon College - Pampa Center enlivens many of his canvasses with paintings of wild game and molds casts of the same creatures for sculptures.

James Ivey Edwards of Canyon said that wildlife, such as deers, elks, and bears, dominate the subject matter of his acrylic paintings and bronze - in - cast sculptures. Edwards also paints and sculpts portraits.

He said he studied at the University of Texas at Austin where he did extra work in sculpture and life-drawing for his bachelor of arts degree.

His knowledge about macrame resulted from self - study, he added.

He can teach watercolor, oil, acrylic, toll and other decorative painting, as well as stone and wood carving, pottery and macrame.

He will teach a basic painting techniques course here in which a student will have a choice of learning or improving watercolor, oil or acrylic painting skills.

He now instructs courses in hobbies, drawing and art education at the school in Clarendon. He has also led art classes at West Texas State University.

He said that he is interested in the development of fine arts in Pampa on academic and community levels.

His course, he said, can be taken as a pre-college course or as a non - credit course for those who want to paint for pleasure.

He said that Clarendon College is also processing an outline of courses for an associate's degree in art.

However, he said the plan will fail if too few people are interested.

Those interested in the development of the fine arts in Pampa can write Edwards at the college in Clarendon.

Man sticks to story

HOUSTON (AP) — A defense attorney did everything he could, including stretching out on the floor, to shake the testimony of the key government witness in the trial of four men charged in connection with the shooting death of Randall Alan Webster.

But John T. Olin stuck to his story Thursday and appeared uncertain only in minor details of his description of the incident in which the 17-year-old Shreveport, La., youth was killed Feb. 8, 1977, at the end of a high-speed police chase in southeast Houston.

Olin was fired from the Houston Police Department in the aftermath of the Webster incident along with Danny H. Mays, Paul Dillon and Norval Wayne Holloway.

Mays, Dillon and Holloway are charged along with current police officer Robert Bloodworth with violating Webster's civil rights, conspiracy and perjury.

Olin told the federal court jury that he lied about Webster's shooting because Mays might be prosecuted for the shooting.

"I was concerned because Mays had struck the boy and in so doing the gun discharged," he said. "He was a fellow police officer and he might possibly be prosecuted for what he had done."

Olin told about a "throw-down" gun being placed beside Webster's body to make it appear the youth was armed.

Clinics offered

The Marcus Sanders Community Center, located at 407 S. Crawford, will be offering vaccinations against some childhood diseases Thursday from 1-4 p.m.

The service is free of charge and includes protection against polio, diphtheria, lock jaw, whooping cough, rubella and mumps.

There will also be a clinic at Canadian on Tuesday from 1:30-5 p.m. at the first floor of City Hall.

Other scheduled clinics will be held throughout the Panhandle area during March.

Pizza shop to open

A new pizza business will open in Pampa soon, featuring as a first, delivery service anywhere in the city limits.

It is hoped that Pampa Pizza will open on or before March 15. The shop, which will be at 300 S. Cuyler, will feature pizza and foot-long submarines.

The owner - manager will be Frank Costa, former chef at the Pampa Country Club and Hilton Inn at Lubbock. He says he hopes to serve a pizza that will be out of this world and that can be enjoyed by everybody.

Frank asks that the public watch The News for opening details.

police report

Police reported the theft of several narcotics from Keys Pharmacy at 928 Hobart St. sometime between 6 p.m. Wednesday and 7 a.m. Thursday. Entrance to the pharmacy was reportedly gained through a window by the use of a prying tool. The intruder used a catering cart to climb into the building and made an exit by prying the lock off the east door of the building.

minor accidents

A car driven by Charles Atkinson of 1201 Farley St. struck a parked car in the 900 block of S. Banks Street.
 A car driven by Brian Williams of 1017 E. Foster was in collision with an auto driven by Rita Smith of White Deer. The accident occurred at the intersection of Gwendolen and Sumner streets when Smith reportedly failed to yield the right of way. Smith was treated for minor injuries at Laycock's Clinic.

Trial set for Estes

DALLAS (AP) - Paroled West Texas con man Billie Sol Estes and three associates have been ordered to stand trial May 14 on federal charges similar to those which landed Estes in prison in the early 1960s.
 Estes was released on a personal recognizance bond Thursday after pleading innocent at arraignment here to federal fraud and conspiracy charges.
 U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes ordered Estes and his three co-defendants tried in the court of U.S. District Judge Robert Hill.
 Estes pleaded innocent to four indictments charging mail fraud, interstate transportation of fraudulently obtained securities and conspiracy.
 The indictments were returned Feb. 22 by a federal grand jury in Dallas.
 In the 1960s, Estes stockpiled a fortune on mortgages using non-existent anhydrous ammonia tanks as collateral. He was convicted of fraud in 1963, sentenced to 15 years in prison and paroled in 1971.
 One of the new indictments spells out a similar scheme to bilk investors using non-existent oil field steam cleaners.

Efforts made to revive Mideast talks

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter and Menachem Begin, publicly ignoring the Israeli prime minister's tough arrival statement, are casting their efforts at reviving stalled Mideast peace talks in a hopeful light.
 After meeting alone for nearly two hours Thursday night, Carter and Begin planned morning and afternoon sessions today in the crucial talks which could lead to a new Camp David summit. They also agreed to a festive evening dinner with their wives at the start of the Jewish Sabbath.
 Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance also arranged a luncheon meeting with the prime minister at the State Department.
 The encouraging tone was in sharp contrast to the blunt thrust of Begin's vow, voiced upon arrival at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., that his government "cannot be pressed into signing a sham document" with Egypt.
 Mincing no words, Begin said, "We are asked to sign documents which are in contradiction of the Camp David peace agreements (reached last September) and enabling our southern neighbor (Egypt) at any moment to declare the treaty null and void and to make war against Israel."

Later, though, declaring himself encouraged by his initial discussion with Carter at the White House, Begin told reporters, "There was not even one difficult moment."
 As he entered Blair House, the official guest residence across Pennsylvania Avenue, Begin added, "I think it was one of the most important and constructive talks I ever had with the president."
 Before their discussions in the White House Oval Office, Carter and Begin stood shoulder to shoulder and talked with muted optimism about the task before them.
 "There may be ups and downs," Begin told reporters, "but when it comes to a time of crisis, we make another intellectual effort and we overcome the difficulties. Hopefully, this will be the case also during my several days in Washington." There has been no indication when the talks will conclude.
 Although Carter acknowledged "we still have some way to go," he declared: "We're determined to succeed. We'll be tenacious in our efforts... hopefully leading to the conclusion of a comprehensive peace in the Middle East."
 Before Begin's arrival, diplomatic sources made it clear the United States backs Egypt on issues blocking completion of a treaty which once was expected to be signed by last December at the latest.

 As he left Israel, Begin expressed unhappiness with the U.S. position, saying "the American delegation should think again and change their attitude." He said U.S. officials also should work to change Egypt's stance.
 It was understood that if the talks go well both men would consider asking Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to join them for a renewal of the Camp David summit.
 The obstacles are formidable, however.
 "It is not our intention to pressure anyone," White House press secretary Jody Powell said Thursday. "The pressure is on us all."
 Powell said "it is not a matter of the United States having and insisting on a position" but rather one of Egypt and Israel resolving their treaty differences.
 The talks between Carter and Begin are being held amid growing signs of strain between the United States and Israel.
 Carter has expressed frustration over the deadlock, and the Israelis, unhappy because the United States is supporting key Egyptian demands, have said they will not be pressured by the United States.

Canadian Chamber gives awards

By MARVIN MORGENSTERN
 Pampa News Staff
 CANADIAN - Texas has placed a high priority on educating its youth, having set aside two million acres of land to help finance education, Max Sherman, president of West Texas State University (WTSU), said Thursday night.
 Sherman was the keynote speaker for the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet here.
 Sherman is not new to the Canadian area. He was raised only a short distance away in Phillips, and he served as a Texas senator for the 31st District for six years.
 Sherman spoke about the role education has played in the development of democracy in the United States, and the role WTSU has played in the development of the Texas Panhandle and the surrounding area.
 The development of democracy in the United States was brought about largely because of the great emphasis placed on education in the early colonies, Sherman said.

Texas legislators were concerned for the education of West Texas people, so WTSU was started as a teacher's college, Sherman said.
 "Education is the liberation of the human spirit and its potential. Teachers take on this commitment daily in the classroom and the cause is advanced daily," Sherman said.
 Sherman said that drawing from the raw resources found in the youth of the Panhandle, WTSU could provide the caliber of men and women that is needed to make the difficult decisions that lay before our nation today. Sherman then urged strong support for WTSU so the school could continue to provide the best education possible for the student.
 "Learning should be a lifelong process," Sherman said. "The willingness to learn should not end with graduation from college, but instead should begin there."
 "Then there should be morals in our intellectual decisions. There must be a moral influence in training the mind. We must make the effort to train our young to have a moral standing to take on the heritage that has been set before us and carry it on into the future," Sherman said.
 Mayor George Arrington presented the awards for Man of the Year and Woman of the Year. The awards went to Bud and Clata Hoobler for their contributions to church, civic and municipal causes.
 Nan Ezzell, president of the chamber, presented a special award to Phil Harris, the former chamber president who had to resign mid-term due to a company transfer. Ezzell also presented a special recognition award to Don Wilkinson who had served as manager of the chamber for 27 years.
 Entertainment was provided by folk singer Juni Moon. She began her career ten years ago at Territorial House in Corrales, N. M. and is now a resident of Canadian.
 Jim Pollard, president of The United Fund of Hemphill County, gave a report on the

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm 17, pregnant, and not sure what I want to do about it. Some say I should marry the father, but I'm not sure who the father is because I was going with three guys at the same time.

I'm afraid of abortion, although I've heard there's nothing to it. I sure don't want to raise a kid without a husband, but I wouldn't feel right about giving it away to strangers either. I suppose my mother would take it, but she's got her hands full with 12 kids, and the youngest is only 2.

I'm nearly three months along. Everybody I talk to tells me something different. I'm confused and need some good advice fast.

IN A MESS IN L.A.

DEAR IN: Please quit talking to friends. Get some sound advice from a professional counselor. Call Planned Parenthood. It's listed in your phone book. Tell them Abby told you to call for an appointment for counseling.

The counselor will help you make a decision you can live with. You will also be taught how to prevent unwanted pregnancies in the future.

DEAR ABBY: I am happily married to a handsome, hard-working, successful executive. I've never had any reason to doubt him until last week. While hanging up his overcoat, a key from a local motel fell out of the pocket. Since we live in town, I wondered why my husband would need a motel room, so I asked him.

He told me he has a lot of business to talk over with his new secretary, and that he can't very well take her out to lunch because she's an attractive young divorcee with a reputation as a swinger, and people might talk. Since he values his reputation as a straight-laced family man, he rents a motel room occasionally so they can have lunch and talk business without stirring up gossip.

What do you think about this?

L IN INDIANA

DEAR L: Your husband says he's concerned about gossip. What does he think he'll cause if people find out he goes to a motel to talk business with his new secretary who's an attractive young divorcee with a reputation as a swinger?

DEAR ABBY: I discovered quite by accident that one of my children has an entirely different blood type than mine. I made some inquiries and have been informed that it is not possible for me to be this boy's father. Obviously my wife has been unfaithful to me.

After more than 12 years of a fairly happy marriage, I am at a loss as to what I should do.

Should I confront my wife with this and demand that she tell me the whole story? Or since there is nothing I can do about it now, should I keep my mouth shut and try to live with this very disturbing knowledge?

SHOCKED AND UNDECIDED

DEAR SHOCKED: You have been misinformed. It IS possible for a child to have an entirely different blood type than the father. So unless you have more conclusive evidence to support your suspicions, the word from here is cool it, Dad.

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I don't believe there is such a thing as milk allergy. It's all caused by the plastic it's in. You know that milk is a universal antidote, so it keeps busy absorbing the poisons out of the containers until it's used and you have a bad reaction.

DEAR READER — I'm not going to defend all the types of packaging present in commercial food marketing, but I can assure you people have trouble with milk because of the milk itself, not because of its container.

There are basically two problems that can occur. The first is a true milk allergy which is noted primarily in infants, because their digestive system hasn't matured properly and some of the milk protein is absorbed directly into the bloodstream. The allergy, in this case, is to milk protein.

The other, and larger, problem is lactose intolerance which is not an allergy. It is the problem one sees in adults. It's very well defined. Lactose is a sugar and you can dissolve pure lactose sugar in water, and people who drink this have difficulties. So, the problem can be created irrespective of the container, just with milk sugar.

About 10 percent of the adult Anglo-Saxons have this problem and as high as 80 percent of most other ethnic groups in the world may have some degree of it. I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad, which will give you more information about this disorder.

Primarily, it causes digestive complaints — gas, bloating, abdominal cramping and, in some people, severe diarrhea. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's Pointers

by polly cramer

DEAR POLLY — I have so many brand-new dish cloths that are too pretty not to be used, but I no longer use such cloths as I prefer brushes and various wipes for cleaning chores. What can I do or make with them? — MARGARET D.

DEAR MARGARET — I am sure you will soon be getting many ideas from our readers who are so ingenious about using this and that. Keep watching for them. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — Those who have to have a cast on the foot or leg should pull a pillowcase over the cast when they go to bed at night. Fasten it in place with a large rubber band. This certainly helps keep the bedding clean as any of us who ever worn a cast knows how dirty they can get. I have one on a broken ankle right now. — MARY S.

DEAR POLLY — I get so tired of hearing people say that to soften brown sugar it should be put in a jar with a piece of apple and then left for a few days. Often the sugar is needed immediately and all one needs to do is to spread it out in a pan, put in a warm oven and see the lumps crumble very quickly. — JUNE.

DEAR POLLY — The small rug on my tile bathroom floor started to slip around so that it seemed dangerous. The underside of the rug had become worn and smooth. I put rubber a bath mat that had been used in the shower under the rug and found this stopped slipping. So I was saved the expense of buying a new rug because I was afraid someone would slip on the old one. — HELEN

Dallas Mart hosts Hong Kong gala

DALLAS, TEXAS. 'Clothes: A Hong Kong Fashion Experience' sponsored by the Hong Kong Trade Development Council was the highlight of the women's and children's midsummer apparel market at the Dallas Apparel Mart.

The gala showcased a complete cross-section of high quality ready-to-wear merchandise from leading Hong Kong manufacturers. Top designers coordinated with the manufacturers and choreographed the show with special techniques using sound and multi-visual effects.

The gala opened with simplicity, using black as the main color theme. Styles ranged from quilted and padded ski-inspired shapes, to fashion leathers in black, to classically simple contemporary sportswear in woven knits and silks.

The second variation on the theme added arid pastels to the black palette, using a wide range of garments from unconstructed sportswear to the new soft knits. Leather was shown in dusty terra cottas and mustards in combinations with black.

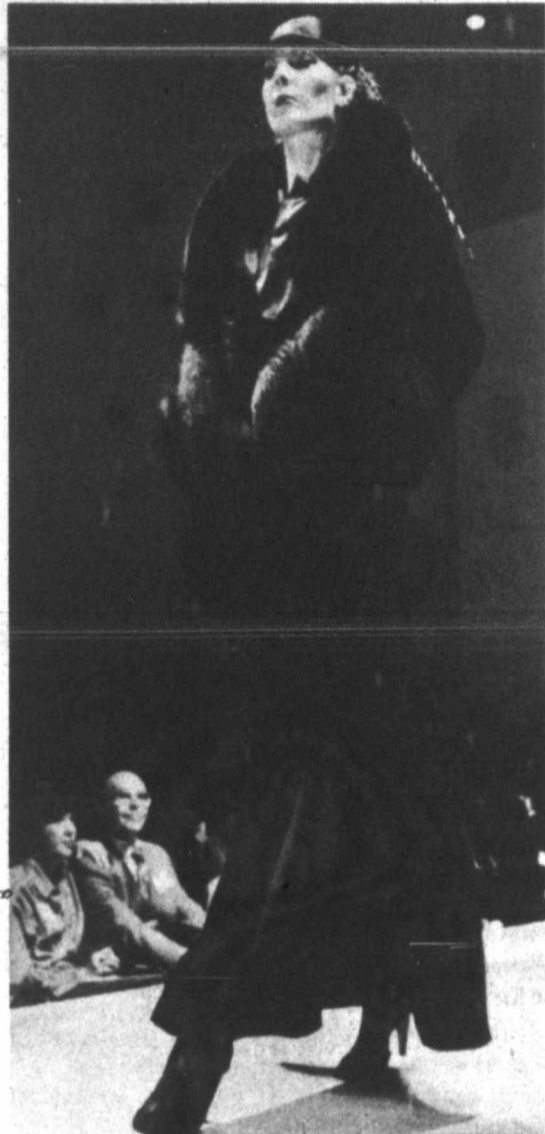

The third color variation added burgundy, jade, and inky blue, with black still dominating the scene. The styles were the essence of chic, ranging from smart frocks to costumes and dressy ensembles.

The climax of the fashion story in color was the finale, presenting a whole spectrum of bright and brilliant colors. Fashions in this scene still reflected the contemporary sportswear influence, but interpreted with glamor and innovative styling.

The garments, shown by models from Hong Kong, New York, Paris and London, included luxury furs, leathers and suedes, unconstructed sportswear, contemporary coordinates, knitwear, menswear, childrenswear, disco fashions and superb silks in late-day and evening wear.

The fashion gala was accompanied by a delegation of Hong Kong textile and clothing manufacturers led by the Hon. T.K. Ann, chairman of the Hong Kong Trade Development Council.

Solutions necessary for hunger

By REV. L.B. HALL
Associate Minister
First United Methodist Church

Hunger in America was brought to public attention just over ten years ago. Although a few individuals and agencies have known of the problem for a longer time, it was a tour of the country by two U.S. Senators that began the latest outcry of concern.

According to the Bureau of Census more than 12 million children were living below the poverty line in 1977. Poverty fosters hunger and malnutrition because it means, quite simply, that families have less buying intended results. Perhaps we have been to naive in our view of the capacity of government to solve problems. Perhaps we have expected others to perform miracles. The important question is this: Who is responsible to alleviate hunger and poverty among children in America?

This article is concerned primarily with the needs of children and is not intended to be a political essay. Yet the needs of children are our needs - we are one! Therefore it seems to me that both the responsibility and the hope for adequate feeding of our children rests with us. The solution will not be simple and will not appear on a silver platter ready made for us. Is it possible that we have become lulled into a state of apathy? Do we really want others to make our decisions for us?

It is time that we awoke from our rest and put on our thinking caps. No single solution - the federal government programs - will work. It will take the cooperative effort of every person, every family, every business, every church, and perhaps finally the government to solve the problem of under-nourished children. Twelve million plus (the figure is continuing to grow) children are depending upon our collective effort. With the spirit of the Lord leading the American ingenuity we will pull together and solve this terrible and immediate problem.

power and less food. Chronic malnutrition, in turn, is responsible for major mental and physical health deficiencies. Children who survive a malnourished infancy (many do not) are physically and mentally unable to perform at maximum levels. Nor are children who sit hungry in a classroom able to learn their lessons as well as their more adequately fed peers.

It is a national disgrace to have hungry children while we are the most dynamic and productive growers of food in the world! There are happily, five major federal food programs that attempt to provide for the nutritional needs of persons. These include programs to provide food for expectant mothers, and breakfast lunch for school age children. Given the scope of these and other programs it is unbelievable that malnutrition should still exist, yet it does!

It is far too easy for us to place blame for failure with others who we do not know. Especially when plans do not achieve the

Evangelist to preach

Evangelist and author H.L. Moore of Toccoa, Ga. will preach at Hi-land Pentecostal Holiness Church from Monday through Sunday.

Moore has recently returned from gospel crusades in Europe, the Holy Land and South Africa.

Some sermon topics may include "The Rapture of the Church", "What will Happen in Heaven after the Rapture", "What will Happen on Earth after the Rapture" and "The Great White Throne Judgment". The services will be held Monday through Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

PSALM 16:11

HERE IS THE PATH

MOUNTAIN TOP

"MOUNTAIN TOP EXPERIENCES" . . . It is not yet vacation time, however that time is approaching and we start remembering the wonderful feelings and experiences of our last trip to the mountains, and now we can start to plan new adventures.

That closeness, and the exciting feeling when worshipping the Lord is often referred to as a "MOUNTAIN TOP EXPERIENCE." We invite you to come worship the Lord in his house, and receive the joys of being close to God. Attend church this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

15 subpoenaed in deaths

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal grand jury investigating possible civil rights violations in the 1977 deaths of two Mexican-American prisoners in the Bexar County Jail has subpoenaed the former chief jailer and 14 present and former jail guards.

The grand jury is looking into the deaths of Hugo Ellis Saenz, 22, and Juan Zepeda, 42. Saenz' body was found Sept. 17, 1977 hanging by a torn mattress cover in a jail shower stall. But the medical examiner ruled Saenz was strangled by hand before his body was hanged to make it appear he had committed suicide.

Four jail inmates were convicted in Saenz' death and another awaits trial. One of those convicted, Johnny Salinas, testified last October that FBI agents investigating the case asked him about "corruption at the jail."

Jail records used in the state murder trials show Saenz was moved seven times after being jailed July 25, 1977 on a murder charge. The final move was to the fourth floor with his five accused killers.

U.S. Justice Department attorney Karen Moore has subpoenaed those jail records. Also called to testify Monday before the grand jury was convicted drug trafficker Robert Farias Riojas, whose sister, Connie Zuniga, was allegedly slain by Saenz.

Zepeda was beaten to death hours after an arrest Feb. 20, 1977 on a charge of public drunkenness. His battered body was found in the jail's "drunk tank."

No arrests have been made in connection with Zepeda's death.

Ray Olivari was replaced Thursday after more than five years as chief jailer in the wake of another scandal. Nine guards were fired and the assistant chief jailer resigned after submitting fake high school equivalency certificates required by a new state law.

Subpoenas do not imply guilt, but are issued when the government attorneys feel a witness might have information concerning the investigation.

Ms. Moore was one of two government attorneys who successfully prosecuted former Castrovillo Police Chief Frank Hayes in 1977 on a civil rights charge. Hayes was sentenced to life in prison for civil rights violations stemming from the death of a Mexican-American prisoner in his custody.

Revival services begin next week

Revival services will begin at First Christian Church, in Miami, with Dr. John Bridwell, pastor of First Christian Church of Amarillo, speaking. Services will be held nightly, Sunday through Wednesday, at 7:30 p.m.

Bridwell is a graduate of the University of Western Ontario in London, Canada, and was valedictorian of his class.

His divinity degree was received from Lexington Theological Seminary, Lexington, Ky., and he has received the honorary Doctorate of Divinity degree from Texas Christian University in Fort Worth. He is a minister's son and has held pastorates in Ft. Thomas, Ky., Warren, Ohio and Falls Church, Va., before coming to Amarillo in 1970.

His wife, Bette Jean, is a native of Windsor, Canada. They have two children.

The special song leader will be Dr. Bill Boswell, pastor of First Christian Church in Pampa. Glynda Martin and Jackie Jackson are chairpersons for the music.

Mary Harter will lead the children's division with a program of singing, stories and refreshments every day at 3 p.m. The children's choir will bring special music Sunday and Wednesday nights.

Other activities include a twenty-four hour prayer vigil beginning tonight. A women's coffee will be held Saturday morning at 10 a.m. at the home of Mildred Breeding. A youth cookout will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Doss beginning at 6:30 p.m. Saturday. An all church salad supper will be held at 6 p.m. Sunday at the church honoring the guest speaker. A men's breakfast will be held Monday morning at 6:30 a.m. with Bridwell bringing the devotion.

Ministry for singles being started

A new single adult ministry will begin at Central Baptist Church Sunday.

The church, at Starkweather and Browning, will start the program at 9:15 a.m. with coffee and fellowship followed by a Bible Study Hour at 9:45 a.m. and a special Single Adult Recognition during the morning worship service at 10:55 a.m.

The program will provide opportunities for older single adults and divorced persons. Joe and Anna Dunn will direct the Single Adult Department which will meet on the second floor of the Adult Educational Building. The Duns will be working jointly in the project to reach the many singles in Pampa. All singles are invited to attend.

Bible study groups to compete

Area Bible study departments will compete for six weeks beginning Sunday in a contest designed to stimulate the groups to increase their efforts to reach new members. The competition, which will involve 22 departments, will be held at Central Baptist Church located at Starkweather and Browning. Other areas of concern will be attendance, visitation, studying the Bible and worship attendance. The theme is "Light Up Your Light".

Singing family to appear

The Singing Kacho Family will sing all day Sunday at the Grace Baptist Church at 824 S. Barnes. Mr. Kacho will also preach at the evening service at 6:30 p.m. Dinner will be served following the morning service. Everyone is invited.

Drug probe broadens

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Three more persons have been indicted by a federal grand jury probing narcotics trafficking and other alleged crimes.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Mike McDonald said Thursday the three were named in a sealed indictment handed down earlier in the week.

The federal grand jury is conducting a wide-ranging investigation into narcotics trafficking, prostitution and other areas. It is an outgrowth of the shooting death last December of defense attorney Lee Chagra, whose specialty was defending persons charged with narcotics-related offenses.

The special agent in charge of the FBI office in El Paso has warned local businessmen who may be involved on the fringes of narcotics traffic to come forward now if they expect any help.

"We have found in this area that some of our finer businessmen have been corrupted by some of the young ladies that they have access to around here," Special Agent O. Leon Dobbs said. "They've been placed in an extortion-demand situation. All of a sudden, they're in and they're forced to give financing and other things."

Dobbs called for such persons to come forth in a speech he gave Wednesday to an El Paso civic group.

"It was more or less a pitch to businessmen who had somehow got corrupted, either with women, money or other things, to assess their situation and let us know about it," he said.

One Name on the Ballot

Voters in the Soviet Union go to the polls Sunday, to elect members of the Supreme Soviet, their country's parliament. But in each voting district, only one name will be listed on the ballot. The Communist Party, the Soviet Union's only political party, selects all candidates before the ballots are printed. Citizens may then either vote for the name on their ballot, or scratch out that name and write in another. Recently, a group of Soviet artists and workers chose two candidates of their own, and tried to get their names on the ballot with the Communist Party candidates. But those two names are not likely to appear on Sunday's ballots.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is the president of the Soviet Union?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — King Juan Carlos I succeeded Francisco Franco in 1975. ©VEC, Inc. 1979

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

March 3, 1979
 This coming year you are likely to have more opportunities dropped in your lap than you have had for some time. Treat every one with the attention it deserves.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone may ask you for advice today, but you won't be helpful if you tell her what she wants to hear instead of leveling with her. Be forthright. Find out which signs you are most compatible with by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $3 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y., 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Trust nothing to luck today where your resources or the assets you are managing for others are concerned. Gambles could backfire.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you may be tempted to embellish your achievements and you could appear to be a braggart. Modesty is more becoming.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Think twice before requesting favors from associates or companions today. It could embarrass them if they have to refuse.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be on your best behavior at social gathering today. A lack of tact could leave an impression that would be difficult to erase.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Whether you like it or not, the spotlight will be on you today. Your audience won't be solidly packed with admirers. Watch your demeanor.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In social situations today try not to corner the market on conversation. Others may have topics as interesting as yours to discuss.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be wary of butting in today where you don't belong, or assuming responsibilities of others that are beyond your scope. You may mess things up.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Normally, when making decisions, you weigh all alternatives carefully. Today, you could cloud your judgment with overly optimistic reasoning. Tread cautiously.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do-it-yourself projects could turn out to be rather costly today if you lack expertise. Look before leaping.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Flattery will get you nowhere today, so think twice before laying it on a bit too thick. Sincerity is a safer option to adopt.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This may not be a very productive day for you, owing to a tendency to put things off. You may never get around to those projects you shelve today.

Richardson Player of Year

Davis, Polson also honored

Kellye Richardson, whose scoring and rebounding sparked Pampa High's Lady Harvester basketball team to several of its 11 victories this season, was honored as Player of the Year on the District 3-AAAA Coaches All-District Team for 1979.

Richardson, who tossed in 20 points per game and averaged nine rebounds per contest to lead Coach Mary Thomas' crew to an 11-17 mark, was joined on the All-District first team by two players from Palo Duro and one each from Caprock and Amarillo High.

Underclasswomen dominated the first team. Debbie Ballew of Caprock was the lone senior on the top squad that included three juniors and Sophomores of the Year Tonya Folsom of Tascosa; Junior Marcy Dale of district champion Amarillo High was the Sandies' representative on the elite unit, while Valerie Wells, a Tascosa junior, rounded out the top squad.

Amarillo High Coach Rosemary Jackson was named Coach of the Year for guiding the Sandies to the district title.

Richardson, also a junior, scored 527 (or 43 percent) of her team's 1,232 points on the season and snared 229 rebounds in the 27 games she played.

Pampa's second and third leading scorers and rebounders, senior guards Becky Davis and Melissa Polson, were tabbed for the Honorable Mention list by the district coaches.

Davis scored eight points per game and pulled down 135 rebounds on the season to take second place honors for Pampa in both categories. Polson, meanwhile, tossed in five points an outing and grabbed four rebounds per game to place third in both categories for the Harvesters.

The All-District second team consisted of four juniors and a pair of sophomores. Tascosa placed junior Janet Brogdon and sophomore Rhonda Schniederjan on the second unit, while the Caprock Longhorns had junior Sheila Lamb and sophomore Celene Felton on the second team. Juniors Theola Freeman of Palo Duro and Kim Helfenbein of Amarillo High rounded out the second squad.

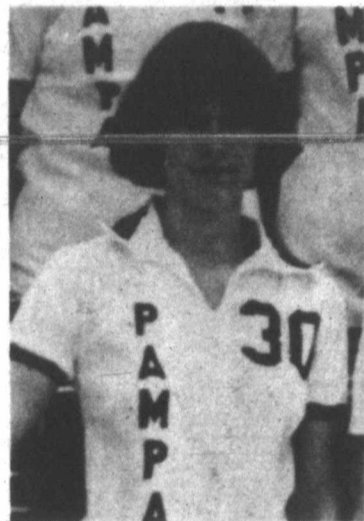

Others tabbed for honorable mention included Sandie seniors Jonell Moran and Doris Henke, Caprock senior Theresa Cummins and junior Karen Digby of Tascosa.

Harvesters take opener

DUMAS — The Pampa Harvesters combined 11 hits with a strong pitching performance by Julian Clark to whip Dumas 13-2 in the baseball opener for both schools here Thursday afternoon.

The Demons got their runs on three hits, an error and three walks, while Clark used his off-speed mastery to strike out a pair of Dumas batters.

"He gave up his first earned run in two years," Coach Steve Scott said, indicating just how well Clark was able to fool batters in the past.

"He only threw 90 pitches," Scott added. "That's just a good workout for him. If he can make it through the third inning he's pretty salty. He gets that curveball going and he's an intelligent pitcher. He does a super job."

Clark got all the support he needed from his teammates, who rapped out 11 hits to go with three Dumas errors, eight walks by Demon pitchers and a batch of passed balls.

Mark Jennings led all batters with three hits — including a triple — in five trips to the plate and had two runs batted in. Richard Wuest added two RBIs with his one hit, as did Joe Jeffers.

Greg Koch and Keenan Henderson had two hits apiece, while Clyde Coffee got a hit and RBI in his one official plate appearance. Jeff Copeland added another hit for the Harvesters, who scored five runs in the second inning and added four-run outbursts in the fifth and seventh to put the game on ice.

Dumas scored single runs in the second and fourth innings. The second-inning explosion started when Koch reached base on an error. Copeland singled, and Henderson doubled Koch home before Greg Quarles walked.

Jeffers promptly singled to score Copeland and Henderson, and Wuest followed with another single to bring home Quarles and Jeffers.

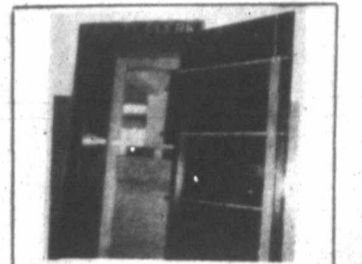

Jennings' three-bagger was the big blow in the seventh, while Coffee and Koch added singles to the Harvester cause. Koch's single, meanwhile, was the only hit of Pampa's four-run fifth. Three walks, a hit batsman and a passed ball added up to disaster for the Demons.

The Harvesters stranded 10 men on the basepaths and struck out 16 times against Dumas' pitchers, including losing hurler Kent Hazen, but Scott said he wasn't disturbed by the figures. "I don't mind," he said in reference to the strikeouts. "We were aggressive at the plate and we'll improve on that."

Pampa opened its tournament at Optimist Park this morning at 10 against Canyon. If the Harvesters won, they played the winner of the Dumas-Hereford game in the championship tilt at 4 p.m. If they lost, they played the Herd-Demon loser at 2 for third place.

Pampa will host Berger in a double header at Optimist Park Saturday afternoon. John Davis will be on the mound for Pampa in the first game, slated to begin at 1. Henderson will pitch the nightcap.

The Gray County Courthouse is one of the community's most important buildings—even if you never enter it. In its vaults are stored the vital statistics of our community—the birth certificate containing the community's first recognition that a human life has joined the community; the marriage certificate stating the community's recognition that two people now live as one; the tax records, litigation records, and finally, the death certificate which is the recognition that a life has finally left the community. The funeral is also a public record—sort of a certificate given by the entire community that a person has lived, had worth and meaning, has loved and was loved, and now has died. At Duenkel-Smith Funeral Home, the funeral—the community's death certificate for an individual—is handled with care for the same reasons valuable records are placed in carefully protected vaults.

Finalists set for golf tourney

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Defending champion Fred Rohde of San Antonio meets Jim Cason of Harlingen today in the championship match of the Life Begins at 40 Golf Tournament.

Rohde, 58, sank a 15-foot birdie putt on the 14th hole Thursday to wrap up a 5 and 4 victory over two-time winner

Billy Bob Coffey of Fort Worth, Texas, in a semi-final match.

Cason, a former defensive back with the San Francisco 49ers who won the tournament in 1972, defeated Jack Williams of Plainview, Texas, 2-and-1. Cason and Rohde overcame gusty winds to post victories at the Harlingen Country Club.

Rohde fired a 1-under par in defeating Coffey, the winner here in 1974 and 1975. In addition to his long birdie put on 14, Rohde also birdied the eighth hole. But he suffered bogeys on the seventh and 10th holes.

"Fortunately, my only mistakes were the bogeys," said Rohde.

Final PHS basketball statistics given

Steve Stout, Steve Duke, Doug Skaggs and Ronnie Faggins were the leaders in final Pampa High boys basketball statistics released recently, while Kellye Richardson led the girls team in three of the four categories compiled by Lady Harvester Coach Mary Thomas.

Duke paced the Hustling Harvesters in total steals, assists, scoring, while District 3-AAAA Sophomore of the Year Faggins led Pampa in offensive rebounds, shooting percentage and fouls.

Stout, a second-team All-District choice, crashed the boards for 171 defensive rebounds and placed third in the squad scoring race, but committed a team-high 92 turnovers. Skaggs, who won Honorable Mention accolades from the district's coaches, handed out an average of 2.81 assists per game and canned 69 percent of his free throws in 16 games to lead the team in those two categories.

Richardson, the district's Player of the Year, scored at a 20-point per game clip and pulled down nine rebounds a game to lead the girls team in both categories. Senior center Pat Coats had the best eye from the free-throw line, hitting 63 percent of her 35 attempts. Becky Davis, who was named to the league's Honorable Mention list, was right behind at 62 percent.

The following statistics on the boys team reflect all 28 games played by Stout, Faggins and Duke. The figures on Joe Jeffers, Darryl Hughes and Steve Glover cover 27 games, Cedric Parker's 26, Doug Skaggs' 16 and Darrell Narron's eight.

The average figures on the girls reflect only the games in which they played. Figures in parentheses are per-game averages or percentages.

Defending champs win

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Three defending champions — Huntsville, Snook and Krum — survived the semifinals at the state schoolboy basketball tournament Thursday but hot-tempered Whitehouse fell in an upset.

Semifinals were scheduled today in Class A and 4A, where Houston Madison, with a 39-0 record, was the favorite.

Huntsville was awesome in crushing once-beaten Daingerfield, 69-37, in 3A and will play Mineral Wells in a rematch of last year's championship game, which Huntsville won, 55-49.

Mineral Wells defeated Bay

City, 57-50, breaking away from a 45-45 tie with five minutes left in the game on Darrell Milton's 18-foot jump shot.

Milton, a 6-foot-2 senior, had only two points as the two teams ended the half tied 19-19 but pumped in 16 in the second half, including six long jumpers.

Todd Chambers, Bay City's 26-point-a-game scorer, had only 14 when he fouled out with 5:14 remaining. Wilson Gee led Bay City with 16 points. Rory Nowak had 16 for Mineral Wells.

Huntsville's chest-to-chest defense held Daingerfield to the lowest point total in its 26-2 season, and Huntsville's Edgar Crawford led a 17-point spurt — while Daingerfield was scoreless — that put the game out of reach.

Crawford scored 13 of his game-high 17 points in the second quarter as Huntsville enlarged a 14-8 lead to 31-8. Curtis Wallace, a 1978 all-tournament player, tallied 13 for Huntsville and grabbed 14 rebounds.

Darryl Lewis and Warren Everett, both 6-5, made only a combined total of seven field goals in 33 attempts as the Daingerfield squad shot a miserable 24.6 percent. Everett scored 12 points and Lewis had 9 before fouling out early in the fourth quarter.

Officials tagged Whitehouse Coach C.L. Nix; his son, Jamie; and Kevin Carlile with technical fouls for arguing with the officials in Altair Rice's 72-60 victory over Whitehouse.

John Grammer, the son of Altair Coach Jack Grammer, converted the technicals into four free throws, and Altair also got possession of the ball on each technical, scoring seven more points.

Grammer scored 24 points but trailed 6-7 teammate Lionniel Bluntson, who poured in 12 of 14 field goals and 6 of 7 free throws for 30 points.

Nix scored 20 for Whitehouse. Carlile fouled out with only eight points, 10 below his average, and one college scout said it was his worst game of the season.

Seminole captured the other 2A semifinal game by sinking nine of 10 free throws in the final one minute 16 seconds to beat Boling, 49-42. Surprisingly, Seminole hit only 13 of 25 free throws for the game.

Mike Grass scored 12 for Seminole, including four straight free throws within 30 seconds, and Albert Villalva also had 12. James Greenwood was high for the game with 18 for Boling.

In Class B, Krum extended its record to 44-0 with a 68-56 victory over Petty West Lamar, and Snook xalopped Whitharral, 69-41, to raise its record to 44-2.

Krum won the B championship last year and Snook was the Class A champion before a declining enrollment dropped the Bluejays into the smaller school division.

Krum and Snook also played for the B title in 1971, with Krum winning 52-51.

Snook's full-court defense forced Whitharral to make 28 errors, with Snook turning those mistakes into 21 points. Mike Juneke, a burly junior who made all-tournament as a sophomore, scored 19 points for Snook and James Washington added 17.

The two combined for 18 of Snook's 42 rebounds.

Jimmy Avery with 16 led Whitharral, which collapsed in the final period as Snook outscored the Panthers, 25-8.

Chuck Hall, a two-time all-tournament star, paced Krum to its 50th consecutive victory over two seasons with 24 points and numerous assists and fine defensive plays. Keith Copp had 20 and Kenneth Dodd 18 for Krum.

Jerry Washington's 17 was high for West Lamar.

Optimist basketball

The Bucks got nine points apiece from Jeff Gaines and Gene LaRue on their way to a 24-21 win over the Celtics Thursday night in Pampa Optimist Boys League basketball play. It was the Bucks' fifth straight victory.

The Celtics, meanwhile, were led by Brent Cryer's seven points. Jimmy Bridges and Richard Rogers added six apiece in a losing effort.

The Rockets whipped the Warriors 34-21 behind John Tarpley's 18-point performance. Tate Eldridge added 10 and David Jackson five to the winners' total, while Lewis Niblett paced the Warriors with 15. Jeff Chisum had the other six points for the losing team.

The Lakers got by the Spurs 25-20 as Rodney Young scored 10 points and Wiley Kennedy six. Dwayne Roberts' six points led a balanced Spur attack. Tony Santa Cruz added four points for the Spurs.

Monday night's games will match the 76ers and Warriors at 7 and the Bullets and Rockets at 8:30.
