estimates an Egyptian-Israeli treaty will cost American taxpavers about $5 billion. Key members of Congress say that's a small price to pay for peace.

Both Republicans and Democrats said Wednesday they foresee little trouble in approving new military and economic aid

Military aid under the treaty is now estimated to cost the United States about $4 billion, divided about equally between Israel and Egypt. There would be an additional $1 billion in economic aid to bolster Egypt's relatively backward economy

"I think it's worth it," Baker said. "I think if this is a fair estimate of cost it's a good buy.

One participant in the briefing, who Pryunsieu anonymity, said Congress would not be asked to approve the bulk of the aid package until 1981 and 1982.

Baker and others said the United States made neither a commitment to a defense treaty with Israel nor a commitment to use U.S. forces to guarantee that the two nations abide by the treaty.

Car makers fearful of possible disaster WASHINGTON (AP) — Major automakers say the government's schedule for boosting car mileage could trigger an economic disaster for the industry and consumers while saving little or no gasoline.

Industry spokesmen told the House Commerce subcommittee on energy Wednesday that they can meet the overall goal of producing cars that average 27.5 miles per gallon by 1985. But they quarreled heatedly with the Transportation Department's step-by-step schedule to meet the target.

The department administers a 1975 statute which established a decade-long goal of doubling auto mileage from the 1974 average of less than 14 mpg. The automakers are on schedule so far, having boosted that figure to about 19 mpg.

But the industry is upset that the department's rece tly3established sihedule for the 1981-85 model years were "front-loaded" - meaning the biggest increases are required early. The proram calls for averages of 22 mpg in 1981, 24 mpg in 1982, 26 mpg in 1983, 27 mpg in 1984 and 27.5 in 1985.

"The American automobile industry will invest nearly $80 billion in new plants, tools, equipment and technology" to meet the front-loaded schedule, said S.L. Terry, Chrysler vice president for Terry and other industry spokesmen said the standards should increase by a steady 1.5 mpg annually.

Sen. Donald W. Riegle, D-Mich., testified that the fuel standards as now written would add $590 to the price of a car by 1985.

Changing them to the annual 1.5 mpg increase would trim that figure by around $150 per car for a savings of $1.3 billion to customers. "even after adjusting for the cost of extra gasoline."

Terry said a Chase Manhattan Bank study showed that front-loaded standards would raise the nation's unemployment by 1 per cent by 1984, and could "negatively affect our balance of trade by $5 billion" by forcing the industry to rely more on import sales.

"For that heavy cost. Chase estimates that the country will reduce its annual oil usage at most by three-tenths of 1 per cent." Terry said. However, Clarence Ditlow, director of the Center for Auto Safety, a consumer group founded by Ralph Nader, said, "Front loading is particularly important because of the projected fuel shortages for

The administration has told the House subcommittee it will review the program in light of industry complaints.

Ministers Hying to U.S. to complete peace plans

The Egyptian Cabinet today approved the proposed Egypt-Israel treaty, but, as a peace pact neared, violence mounted on the West Bank of the Jordan River where Israeli troops killed two Arab student protesters in the week's bloodiest clash.

In Israel, Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan disclosed that under terms of the compromise engineered by President Carter Egypt will take early control of the Sinai capital of El Arish, a Davan spokesman said The Israeli minister also reportedly disclosed that Egypt has demanded further "good-will gestures" from Israel, but for now has dropped its demand that Egyptian officers be stationed in the Gaza Strip to oversee autonomy In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said he thinks "we have achieved peace thanks to Jimmy" and he praised President Carter for his "marvelous" job of peacemaking

The Egyptian Cabinet's approval of the treaty had been expected. Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil announced the 32-member body had voted unanimously in favor of it after a four-hour debate.

The Egyptian Parliament's approval is considered certain. The Israeli Cabinet is expected to endorse the full treaty Sunday. and the Israeli Parliament soon afterward.

In announcing the Cabinet approval today. Khalil said he hoped that soon "the past enmity between the two nations will be something of a memory

But he added, "The Palestinian question can never be ignored.

Palestinians in Israeli-occupied territories fear that their chances for statehood will be eclipsed by the proposed

Arab protesters demonstrated today in Halhoul and five other towns in the occupied West Bank. The military command said Israeli troops opened fire when "a group of soldiers and civilians was caught in a violent outburst by hundreds of students on the main road in Halhoul." 20 miles south of Jerusalem.

A 21-year-old Palestinian man and a 17-year-old schoolgirl were killed and another Palestinian was wounded, it said. It was the second day of demonstrations against the peace treaty in the West Bank.

Davan briefed ambassadors to Jerusalem on details of the negotiations during Carter's dramatic Mideast trip, and a spokesman then reported his remarks to foreign correspondents.

The Israel foreign minister did not say when Israel would pull out of El Arish, a town of 30,000 some 100 miles east of the Suez Canal and 30 miles west of the Israeli border, his spokesman said.

The agreement to evacuate El Arish and northern Sinai in the first phase of the Israeli withdrawal was included in a timetable Israel granted Egypt in return for Cairo's acceptance of an early exchange of ambassadors. Dayan was quoted as saying.

Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman flew to Washington today to work out the details of the timetable with his Egyptian counterpart, Kamal Hassan Ali

Dayan also was quoted as saying the Egyptians had demanded a series of gestures from Israel to improve the atmosphere - the release of political prisoners held without trial, freedom of movement for Palestinians in the West Bank and the Israeli-occupied Gaza, the right for Palestinians to hold political assemblies, and the shifting of Israeli military government headquarters in Gaza out of Gaza city

The spokesman said the Israelis replied that the Palestinians already have freedom of movement. The Israeli Cabinet made no decision on the other requests.

Passengers unaware of death

Pilot dies during flight

DALLAS (AP) - Capt. Lloyd G. Wilcox, two months away from retirement and the end of a distinguished 35-year career, locked the gleaming orange Boeing 747 into automatic pilot as it cruised 33,000 feet over the Pacific Ocean, about an hour west of Los Angeles.

Hours later, the 331 passengers on the Honolulu-to-Dallas flight and many of the Braniff International crew were still unaware of the drama that had taken place - the unexpected death of a critical member of the flight crew.

Wilcox, 59, suffered a heart attack about 3 a.m. Wednesday as Braniff's "Great Pumpkin," with its orange body, white tail and black nose, was about a half hour west of Los Angeles.

Not even Wilcox's wife of three years, Theresa, who supervised Flight 502's team of 16 stewardesses, was aware her husband was dead until shortly before the plane landed in Dallas.

Co-pilot James Cunningham and 2nd Officer Robert Barnes landed the plane without incident at 6:19 a.m., 19 minutes behind schedule at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

As passengers drifted into sleep or followed the disco gyrations of John Travolta in "Saturday Night Fever," Wilcox chatted with Cunningham and watched the computerized controls guide the 727. Small talk gave way to silence, and a stewardess poked her head into the darkened cockpit to ask the captain if he wanted anything. Wilcox, his chin resting on his chest, didn't reply, and Cunningham nudged him. When nothing happened, Cunningham nudged again, then rose and shook hard.

"It was then that I became concerned," said Cunningham, himself a veteran of 21 years flying for Braniff. He reached for an overhead mask, fastened it over Wilcox' face and ordered a flight attendant to inquire if a doctor was aboard.

Dr. Ronald Stockstill and his wife, Dr. Dianne Beach, both pathologists at a Dallas hospital, were on their way home after a week's vacation. But it was too late.

"By the time we got upstairs, his eyes weren't reacting to light." Dr. Beach said.

They administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation while massaging the captain's heart. They took turn for 40 minutes as stewardess Deborah Head wiped the sweat from their foreheads.

Finally, it was no use. The decision was made to keep the news from Wilcox' wife.

Just minutes before the plane landed, Dr. Stockstill, accompanied by another stewardess told Terry Wilcox her husband had died of a

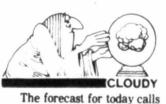

"She obviously was very much in love with him," the doctor said. He said it probably would have made little difference if Wilcox' attack had occurred on the ground.

"It was so fast and so massive. There was just no response out of him at all," Stockstill said.

Wilcox had complained of chest pain the day before the flight, but when his wife asked him to see a doctor he said it was probably indigestion.

OPINION PAGE

Making resources rare

The U.S. Forest Service has been blasted for its RARE II proposal to ban development in the Overthrust Belt. Allen Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said, "At a time when this country is heading into a crude oil crisis through loss of Iranian shipments, it is ridiculous for the U.S. Forest Service to suggest for the U.S. a permanent ban on development and use of the tremendous oil and coal reserves lying under federal lands.

Grant, heading an organization which claims three million members in 49 states, is protesting the Forest Service's recommendations on Roadless Area Review and Evaluation, or RARE II, in its second evaluation. The Forest Service wants 62 million acres considered for wilderness inclusion

Of that total, 15 million would be "instant wilderness" with no development permitted at all. Another 11 million acres would be put under further study with the remaining 36 million acres to have 'multiple usage,' including grazing and timber cutting

At the press conference, Grant said, "There was no need for us to be placed in this vulnerable position, no need to be so dependent on imports of foreign oil. Because of administration and congressional refusal to deregulate the petroleum industry. America is more dependent on foreign oil now, five years after the oil embargo, than it was at that time.

Many villains have been paraded before us in our energy and petroleum problems. There has been and is only one. Grant has pointed squarely to that villain, the federal government. Interference in the marketplace by the federal government created the nurtured the problem. Every move the politicians make to "correct" the problem only adds greater problems which hinder private enterprise in the supply of energy sources.

The Rocky Mountain Oil and Gas Association estimates there are 600 million barrels of oil and more than 200 trillion cubic feet of nutural gas in the overthrust Belt, a fault zone that runs beneath the Rocky Mountains of Utah and Idaho.

Petroleum industry sources say still unexplored reserves in the overthrust Belt may add up to another 24 billion barrels of oil and almost 100 trillion cubic feet of gas.

"The shortsightedness of this wilderness proposal is matched only by the administration and the Congress in consistently ignoring the positive incentives of the free enterprise system to increase domestic gas and oil development," Grant said. Besides energy, Grant insisted the RARE II restrictions would remove minerals, timber and grazing. "Pursued fully, as many as 160 million acres of federal land could be involved. That would eliminate enough timber to supply wood to construct 300,000 single - family homes a year and we are in a housing crunch," he said. It is hoped that more thoughful people will speak out against RARE II as has the organization. We believe that most of the pressure for the wilderness proposal is coming from a realitively small group of urban elitists who have never had to worry about the sources of their living standards.

People looking for "causes" to occupy their time are the ones we have noted in the forefront of most of the anti-growth and anitindustrial activist movements. We have failed to note any of those who beat the drums for the status quo as being hesitant to utilize all the modern conveniences which resources and industry can the Senate Budget Committee that they "will pay the biggest price" if they force Congress to balance the federal budget. In the wake of pressure from many states to curtail federal spending, this threat was bound to be made

"If Congress must suddenly chop the deficit, it will land in the lap of the states," said Sen. Edmund Muskie the committee chairman. He also said, "That isn't a threat. It is a matter of arithmetic."

Threatening or not, the senator is overlooking some very basic problems which finally fall in the laps of every taxpayer in every state of the union He equates the amount of the needed cuts to balance the budget only to "federal funds" going to the states in the form of many types of grants.

We believe spending could be reduced by the simple process of cutting waste in the federal bureaucracy. But, just to grant the senator his illusion, let's analyze what would really happen to the citizens of the states if all federal grants are needed enough for local taxpayers to be willing to pay for them in direct taxation.

The assumption that use of those funds when brought that close to the people who will pay the bill is suspect. We doubt that local taxpayers would be willing to tolerate even half the amounts now being used in these "free" federal goodies.

However, let's go along with the assumption, false though it probably is. If the money now spent in federal grants is provided locally as it is spent, the taxpayers in every state would gain much and lose little over the next few years.

of added national debt, it still has been, or will be, taken from local taxpayers, moved to Washington, subjected to bureaucracies, handling charges and then, after much dilution, filtered back down through state bureaucracies. That "free" dollar will be all that is left of several tax dollars taken.

or to be taken, from local taxpavers. Now if that "free" dollar becomes an addition to the national debt, more dollars must be added to service the debt plus some more handling by the federal

We won't go into the addition of the most insidious taxation the one which causes the dollar to buy less each day, except to say that all spending by the feds places pressure for more unbacked paper dollars to be printed.

There is every reason to believe that if the Congress should make good on the senator's threat to cut off federal grants to the states, such a thing could easily become the best thing that could possibly happen to American taxpavers.

Muskie said, "We don't need fiscal handcuffs to wipe the deficit out. We need fiscal discipline.

We are afraid he will find it difficult to sell those ideas to U.S. taxpavers. There has been no fiscal discipline in the federal menage for so long that perhaps taxpayers might suggest straightjackets instead of handcuffs.

Letting local citizens handle their own local problems may be the only way to keep politicians' and bureaucrats' hands out of the public cookie jar.

A constitutional convention?

The U.S. Constitution's Article V may possibly soon replace the First Amendment as its most discussed provision. The reason is that apparently 27 states have petitioned Congress either to pass a proposed amendment to the Constitution requiring a balanced budget, or to convene a constitutional convention for that purpose. As the source of the federal budgetary problems, Congress is not expected to propose a restraint on its powers. Therefore, if seven more states make similar applications, Congress will be confronted with calling the first constitutional convention since the document's ratification in 1789.

Article V states that "Congress ... on the Application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of the several States, shall call a Convention for proposing Amendments to the Constitution. Not having been invoked previously, considerable uncertainty exists as to its meaning. All other amendments to the Constitution have come by way of another provision of this article that enables amendments to originate by a two-thirds vote of Congress.

Fears have been voiced that such a convention might not limit itself to the budget balancing amendment, but also might alter drastically the Constitution to the detriment of our liberties. The major protection against a runaway convention is that whatever it proposes must still be ratified by three-fourths of the states to become binding, and as ERA supporters would readily acknowledge, this is hardly a simple achievement.

According to an American Bar Association report, Congress may protect against a runaway convention. In 1971 the House of Delegates of the association created a committee to determine, among other things, whether such a convention could be limited to the intended purpose. Subsequently the committee reported back to the House of Delegates, which in 1973 adopted a resolution approving the group's recommendations. While only an opinion not necessarily shared by other authorities, the association's position is important because its membership includes the nation's most eminent attorneys.

The resolution states that (1) Congress has the power to establish procedures limiting a convention to subjects stated in the applications from the states, (2) Congress should allow the federal judiciary to review the legislation it passes concerning the convention and (3) delegates to the convention should be elected in accordance with the principle of one person, one vote.

Meanwhile there are still some laws in some states which discriminate against women, and that injustice can be corrected Indiana is one state wherein a widow really gets shortchanged. When the wife dies first, all property held jointly goes to the surviving husband and is not assessed a state inheritance tax. But should the husband die first, all property held jointly is legally construed as . his and thus subject to a full inheritance

For any part of their jointly held property to be construed as hers, she has to prove that she contributed to it from salary, cash, gifts or previous personal inheritance. The fact that she was a marriage partner and homemaker gets no consideration at

Let me say that there are a few tax live - in lovers are demanding "community relieving possibilities and conditions, a certain marital exemption. However, for the bereaved widow these are more likely to compound estate problems than to relieve them - and considering the inflation rate in recent years the relief is absurdly inadequate.

What the tax - and - spend lawmakers try to help us forget is that accumulated property has already been subject to income tax at the time of the accumulation. When it is corporation stock income, it has already been subject to tax at least three times. But rather than debate the punitive injustice of redundant taxes, let's here concern ourselves only with the question of equitability - of "fairness" - when a wife, mother and homemaker if construed by the law to be less than a full "marriage partner."

This inequity should be especially

For quite a few years now, Mexico has had one export specialty. People.

One of the highest birthrates in the world, an underdeveloped economy and high unemployment have compelled masses of its very poor to seek a future elsewhere - in the United States, which millions of them have entered illegally. They have become the issue between the two countries. coloring all other aspects of a long and complex relationship

But within a very few more years, there could be a dramatic change in this relationship. If the more ambitious estimates of Mexican oil reserves turn out to be anywhere near close to the actual mark, the nation has the potential of becoming one of the world's major producers and exporters, a new Iran if not a full - blown Saudi Arabia. And where there has been no demand abroad for its human surplus, there is a powerful one for its oil - not the least of it from the United

There is still considerable question as to the actual extent of Mexican oil. Total reserves of some 200 billion barrels (Saudi Arabia, for comparison, is credited with 800 billion) are a frequently heard estimate, with guesses at the recoverable portion conservatively put at 50 billion barrels. But there is no question that oil does exist and that it gives Mexico new importance on the world scene as a potential economic power rather than a chronic aid case. Energy - conscious Western Europe and Japan are already signaling interest in developing closer and more profitable relationships.

Mexico's relationship with the United States in this respect is at the moment cool, a consequence of U.S. refusal to pay its asking price for natural gas available for export now. This in turn has raised Mexican suspicions as to how comfortable a customer its northern neighbor may turn out to be once oil begins to flow in quantity. But it has to be the best prospective customer for Mexican oil.

In doing business, the two countries will also have an opportunity to deal cooperatively with the problem of unemployed Mexicans. Well - planned investment of oil revenues with maximum American technological assistance should contribute massively to the development of a mature economy capable of absorbing Mexico's own work force.

In these circumstances, President Carter's mid - February mission to Mexico assumes something more than ceremonial significance. Officially, he is repaying the Washington visit to Jose Lopez Portillo when both were presidential neophytes. With Carter disclaiming any intention of substantive negotiations or major policy initiatives, banner headlines from Mexico are not anticipated. Which is probably just as well, following as closely as he is on the heels of Pope John Paul II. In the a country as overwhelmingly Roman Catholic as Mexico, the papal act is tough to follow and virtually impossible to top.

But considering the developments of the two years since the presidents met in Washington, this visit is more than a formality. It may serve as an appropriate symbolic beginning of a new phase in the Mexican - American relationship with, paradoxically, both countries in positions of some strength - Mexico because it has oil and at last the prospect of curbing the unwanted export of people as the United States wants, the United States because it has the markets and know - how Mexico

Georgraphy compels Mexico and the United States to live with each other. But through their shared history to date, the relationship has not been one of equals. The former's role has tended to be that of a victim - client of the latter. Now economic and social interests combine to make them need each other

The developing relationship may not turn out to be any easier for either partner, but it should be a great deal healthier.

Some Americans have imagined that all discriminatory laws had already been eliminated. That is not so. Nor would ERA automatically obviate all state laws relating to inheritance, for example. What appears prima - facie discrimination to you and me would still have to be measured against the test of "constitutionality."

Meanwhile, if the United States cannot do everything that should be done at once there are some things individual states can says, to determine if two-thirds of the states' legislatures have actually concurred on the subject matter, and if so to limit the convention accordingly. It also has the power to decide such matters as time and place of the convention, its composition and financing, and the manner of selecting delegates. The report doubts that Congress can regulate the internal proceedings of the convention, such as required vote margins. The convention itself will have to decide whether a majority or two-thirds vote is necessary to propose an amendment

The report sets forth four reasons why a consitutional convention can be limited to only specified matters. First, such a conclave provides an alternative means by which the people and the states could seek to remedy specific abuses of power by the national government. Second, historically the amending process has been so confined since Congress in the past has proposed only specific amendments to the states. Third, some states have held limited conventions under constitutions that, like the federal document, did not expressly sanction a limited convention. Fourth, the convention delegates will be chosen by the people in elections in which the subject matter would be known and the issues identified. Thus the voters would be electing delegates only on the basis.

If the country has to rely entirely on the methods set forth in its text, the Constitution would indeed be very difficult to amend. But as we all know, the Constitution has a far different meaning today than it did in prior years. The Supreme Court has made critical changes, most of which would probably never have received concurrence of three-quarters of the states. Many prefer this method for altering the document because it has resulted in changes to their liking.

Thus, the authority for the abortion, forced busing and the pro-press decisions of contemporary years cannot be found in the Constitution or in the intention of the Framers of the original document or any of its amendments. People who insist that the Constitution requires forced busing to accomplish integration or prohibits laws banning abortions, cannot show support for their position in any constitutional authority other than the views of a majority of Supreme Court justices. A constitutional convention is clearly a more credible means for altering our fundamental law.

superintendent of the Hidalgo-Reynosa bridge. "If you want a bridge in 10 years you better start today.

Brownsville has the only two crossings in Cameron County. Edelstein said the need for new bridges is "extremely critical." "If there is an emergency and we have to get fire trucks or medical vehicles across they just couldn't get there." the mayor said. Cameron County owns Gateway Bridge here. Henry Hickford, bridge manager, said the span carries 9,000 vehicles per day. During busy hours it can take more than a half-hour to make the short

"Coming back from Mexico it's congested almost all the time," Hickford said.

The second bridge is a narrow crossing owned by the Mexican National and Missouri Pacific Railroads. The bridge can barely carry two lanes of traffic - and no cars cross when the trains crawl County Judge Ray Ramon agrees with Edelstein on the need for more bridges.

"We need as many bridges as the government will let us build. The more bridges, the more commerce and the more communications,"

But that's about the only thing Ramon and Edelstein agree on. The city had applied for a bridge permit but U.S. officials turned it down. "The State Department wants to force the city to work with the county on a joint venture on it," Edelstein said. "I can't for the life of me understand why.' So now the city and county are trying to hammer out a joint application. One of the stickiest questions involves the splitting up of revenue from the profitable bridge. Edelstein said the prime site is downtream from the Gateway Bridge. In addition to a multi-million dollar crossing, the mayor hopes to see an extenstion of an existing expressway. A second site - in western Brownsville - is also being looked at.

A third effort in Cameron County is being made by Port of Brownsville officials. A new bridge proposed for the port area would be part of a massive program aimed at relocating railroad tracks now running near the downtown area.

Ramon is confident the city and county can work out their differences. But that may be less than half the battle, he added.

"The very difficult problem lies ahead in Mexico. It's always been our position that they pay 50 percent. It's a question of the Mexican federal government appropriating the necessary funds." the judge

Thompson addresses democratic women

Mayoral Candidate Ray Thompson, in an address Wednesday to the Tri - County Democratic Women's Club, said he has a conservative attitude about government.

"I believe the least government you have, the better off you are," Thompson told the women at their monthly luncheon meeting. He then added, "I know that's not as easy as it sounds."

Thompson said he realizes government now must enter into some areas in which it had no business before. He described the situation as "complicated."

Asked about rising utility costs, Thompson said "community authority is getting more limited on utilities."

Referring to state legislation that would remove jurisdiction over electric rates from local government, he said "I'm pretty much in favor of keeping it at home. I think we need a lot more work done on energy."

Thompson, the only candidate to file for the mayor's race April 7, acknowledged he is running unopposed, but added jokingly, "I may have lots of opposition."

Thompson was a city commissioner for two terms, the last ending in 1977. His father, H.R. Thompson, was mayor for one

"I'm proud of Pampa, and I want to do a little bit if I can," he said. "I think we have a pretty good group over there (in city

School reimbursement rejected

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Dollar-for-dollar reimbursement of the revenue school districts would lose to the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment was narrowly rejected by the House on Wednesday.

But a predominantly rural coalition indicated it would retool its proposal and try again

House members voted 68-66 Wednesday evening to table an amendment to the tax relief implementation bill (HB1060) that would require the state to repay each dollar a school district lost. The bill as approved by the House Ways and Means Committee does provide dollar-for-dollar reimbursement in 1979-80. But in 1980-81, districts whose appraisals of homes fall below the statewide average percentage of true market value would get only 90

"The way this bill is written, you are going to give them tax relief the first year and take it away from them the second year," said Rep. Bennie Bock II, D-New Braunfels. "...It's hide the ball for the second year."

Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, said Bock's dollar-for-dollar proposal was so simplistic it was "like trying to build an atomic bomb with a hammer and saw.'

He said Bock's approach would reward districts that under-appraise property. He said the U.S. Supreme Court had struck down a Louisiana reimbursement plan because it failed to recognize differences in local taxing practices.

The constitutional amendment automatically exempted $5,000 of the market value of each owner-occupied house from school taxes. The bill adds another $10,000 exemption for the elderly and the disabled. School districts also would be reimbursed the difference between hat they would receive from taxing agricultural land on market value and the generally smaller revenue from taxing the land on its productivity.

The House approved, 75-61, an amendment giving school districts $2 million a year to cover administrative costs involved in applying the Tax Relief Amendment.

It also voted 75-65 to reimburse junior college districts for revenue they would lose from taxing rural land on productivity instead of market Rep. Frank Gaston, R-Dallas, amendment, said he had "no

Prisoner admitted to hospital

A Pampa man who was arrested and jailed Wednesday night was admitted to Highland General Hospital this morning for observation Carl Hardin Blackwell Jr., 24, of 932 E. Francis was transferred from the city jail to the hospital after he said he was having trouble breathing, according to Police Chief Richard Mills. Blackwell was arrested after he was reportedly seen driving in an erratic manner and running a stop sign. An officer tried to stop the vehicle, which drove to Blackwell's residence on Francis. Blackwell got out of his car and was fighting with two female passengers. The officer attempted to arrest Blackwell, who reportedly continued fighting. Three more officers were called to the scene, and Blackwell was subdued and arrested. He was charged with driving while intoxicated, aggravated assault on a police officer, disorderly conduct and simple assault on a female.

Inmates resent Burnett

BEAUMONT, Texas (A) - A woman on trial for her life in the execution-style slaying of five persons choked back the tears as her lawyers objected to the harassment of other women inmates they say has stirred resentment against their client.

Linda May Burnett's lawyer Hellmut Erwing complained Wednesday to District Judge Larry Gist that a district attorney's investigator had harassed women inmates, questioning them about "my comings and goings at the jail.'

Gist agreed to investigate the matter, but not at the expense of delaying the trial which resumes today

Erwing attacked the credibility Wednesday of an incriminating tape recording in which Mrs. Burnett purportedly relates to a hypnotist her version of how five members of the Bishop Phillips family were gunnèd down in a common grave.

On the tape, a woman's voice admits to shooting the four adults to death and said "Joe" killed 3-year-old Jason Phillips.

The 31-year-old mother of three is accused, along with co-defendant Joe Dugas Jr. of Port Arthur, of killing the family members last July. Dugas is scheduled to go on trial later this year in Corpus Christi.

Durwood Williams of 1124 Finley reported that about 20 asbestos shingles were torn from the side of his residence, and a storm window was damaged. Thad Ward of 423 N.

Somerville told police an unknown male chipped the glass on a window of his vehicle with a steel rod.

The Gray County Sheriff's Office received a report of a 1966 Dodge stolen from the Catalina Club, 1300 S. Barnes. A police officer had run a check on the car at Allsup's Convenience Store, 500 E. Skies were to remain clear to partly cloudy over extreme West Texas and mostly cloudy over the remainder of the state.

Forecasters said locally heavy thundershowers were possible in South Central Texas.

Temperatures were to remain cool with highs ranging from the 50s in Northwest Texas to near 80 in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and in the Big Bend country of Southwest Texas.

Scattered showers were reported over most of the state Wednesday night. Some pea-size hail was reported in the Lubbock area, but there were no immediate reports of serious damage.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 30s in the Panhandle to the 60s and lower 70s in the Valley. Extremes ranged from 37 at Amarillo to 70 at

National

By The Associated Press An Arctic front pushed through the Northeast and the Ohio Valley today, while winds of 25 to 35 mph howled across the Great Lakes and into Kentucky and the Allegheny Mountains. Some snow was reported from the Great Lakes into western New York and the Ohio Valley. Blizzard conditions developed briefly in western Pennsylvania with gusty winds whipping snow about, lowering visibilities to near zero. Light snowshowers whitened the New Mexico mountains, while light rain and a few thundershowers covered most of Texas.

A cold front forced damp weather into the Pacific Northwest. Rainfall was light but a few thundershowers accompanied the cooler weather. Freezing weather dipped into Kansas and Missouri with Minnesota and North Dakota reporting sub-zero temperatures.

DEAR ABBY: I am 40 and my life is worth absolutely nothing. This is not just middle-age depression. I've been this way all my life. I have failed in every relationship I've ever had, beginning with my family while growing up.

I was a complete failure as a wife, too. (I cannot have children, but I probably would have failed as a mother, too.) I have failed in the business world also. I can't seem to succeed in anything.

I have really tried, Abby, but everything I do ends in failure. Suicide seems to be the only solution. Please don't tell me I need a psychiatrist. I have been going to the same one every week for 14 years, and he hasn't helped me. If he had, I wouldn't feel this way.

Other than suicide, is there any answer for someone who is so hopelessly miserable?

I guess maybe I'm trying to find some reason to go on living because I'm really afraid to die. Please help me. DISCOURAGED IN ARLINGTON

DEAR B.J.: I think you husband should quit drinking and looking at bags.

DEAR ABBY: My mother recently remarried and told us she was selling the family farm. Because my sisters and brothers (and I) loved the farm so much, we asked her to sell it to us to keep it in the family.

DEAR READER - If you want my personal opinion, just looking at a raw egg would be enough to keep me from adding it to any drink. The feel of the raw egg white doesn't tickle my palate,

But I suspect you want my professional opinion. There s some basis of truth in your letter, although I'm afraid it is a little exaggerated. The relationship of raw eggs to vitamin deficiencies is based on the egg white and not the yolk. The raw egg white contains an anti-vita-min called avidin. It is able to inactivate biotin which is a vitamin and is important in human metabolism.

In fact, biotin was first discovered because of the effects of feeding raw egg whites to rats. Fortunately, we are not rats so we don't have as much of the same problem.

Now, raw egg white will not affect any of the other vitamins or minerals that you consume. That's what I mean by saying your letter does exaggerate the case a

In man, you'd have to consume a lot of raw egg whites to produce such an effect. Biotin deficiency can cause loss of appetite. nausea, vomiting, a shiny tongue, pale complexion, depression and dry, scaly skin.

We don't normally see biotin deficiencies in man. Why? Because the bacteria normally present in our own intestine manufactures it. In fact, there is so much biotin manufactured in your own intestines that there is three to six times as much biotin in the urine you eliminate as there is in all the food you

DEAR POLLY - Before dissolving a gelatin dessert in hot water I rinse the bowl and spoon before putting the dry powder in the bowl. This keeps the gelatin from clinging to the sides of the bowl and the spoon. Saves time, too.

DEAR POLLY — C.E.M. wanted to know what to do with leftover coffee and some of us like it hot rather than iced. Pour it into a glass jar and keep in the refrigerator. Reheat one cup at a time in a small stainless steel pan over low heat or in the microwave oven in a mug for two minutes on high. Tastes better than badly made instant coffee. -

DEAR POLLY — My useful suggestion is for car owners who do not carry matches or a lighter and have their door locks freeze. Simply expel air from your mouth over the keyhole and key. Do this several times and it should do the trick. If the key hole is ice covered you must first remove the ice. — MRS. G.P.

DEAR POLLY — I had the same problem as one of the readers has with black heel marks on my no-wax kitchen floor. My wise mother-in-law told me to dampen a clean cloth or sponge and sprinkle it with baking soda. I just rubbed gently, rinsed the spots with water and it worked.

. The people's pharmacy

by joe graedon -

Q. I keep switching around between regular strength pain relivers, extra strength pain relivers and arthritis pain formulas. So far, I haven't noticed much difference in headache relief but there sure is a big difference in price. Is there any benefit to buying the more - powerful brands?

A. Drug companies keep trying to outdo each other when it comes to their extra, adult, added, and arthritis strength pain relivers. They realize that most of us are suckers for the "more is beter-- principle - if one is good, two must be better.

We wouldn't be at all surprised to see a "super strength" pain reliver one of these days and if the trend continues, there will probably be an "extra super strength" pain remedy for extra sized headahces.

Most of the added strength hoopla that you hear and see in commercials is pure hype. These products are not really "stronger" pills, they just contain a little more analgesic, usually aspirin or acetaminophen. Inother words, instead of going with the standard 5 grain tablet (324 mg) they may make a 400 or 500 mg preparation.

Does this mean that they will take your headache away faster or more effecitvely? The answer is no. There is a limit to how much benefit you can obtain from aspirin or any other analgesic. Doubling or tripling the dose does not correspondingly double or triple the benefits.

Two regular strength aspirin tablets are usually all you need for the average, garden variety type of headache, no matter what size head you have. But if you feel impelled to seek "added strength" all you would have to do is take an extra half a tablet. That will be a lot cheaper than buying an expensive "super strength" brand name preparation. Q. I'm a great believer in vitamin C. I usually buy large quantities of the cheap brand in order to save money, but recently my wife suggested that I ought to be taking the organic kind. This is much more expensive in our health food store. Is it that much better to justify the higher price?

The other thing I wonder about is how long vitamin C will last. If I keep it in the refrigerator will it keep longer?

A. We went straight to the horse's mouth on this one - the Great Guru of Vitamin C himself. Dr. Linus Pauling. His words of wisdom are the following: "The labels of some preparations of vitamin C emphasize that the tablets contain natural vitamin C or natural ascorbic acid in such a way as to suggest that this fact justifies a high price. You should not be taken in by this, because all vitamin C preparations contain natural vitamin C.

"The best way to buy vitamin C is to check the price and the content of vitamin C and then to get the most for your money.

In response to your question about storage, Dr. Pauling had this to say: "With respect to aging, pure ascorbic acid is stable indefinitely and can be kept for years providing the closure is tight and it is keep in a brown or opaque white bottle out of direct sunlight. Under normal conditions it retains 99 percent or more of its activity for several years. Vitamin C should not be refrigerated while it is being used."

So there you have it. We don't promise any miracles for vitamin C but as long as it works for you, you might as well follow Dr. Pualing's advice and save some money.

Dr. Burack contends that expensive promotional schemes encourage doctors to write an excessve number of prescriptions in the first place and many of thse drugs are too costly.

Something that is often overlooked is that many people never even get their medications in the first place. Some studies have shown that as many as one - fourth to one - half of the doctor's prescriptions go unfilled. For older folks on fixed incomes, the price of medicine may be out of reach, especially if they have to take more than a few drugs on a daily basis.

Most pharmacists set strict standards of quality and effectiveness for their generics and we think it is only reasonable that they be allowed to make the decision to substitute. Reducing the costs may enable some people to purchase needed medicine that they might otherwise be unable to afford.

CIA employee freed from drug charges

DALLAS (AP) - A CIA employee, jailed in Virginia for a week as a suspect in an El Paso-based investigation of a drug-smuggling ring, has been freed after convincing federal officials they had the wrong man, a Dallas newspaper said today.

The CIA employee, William R. Hartley, has the same name as that given by a man who flew a plane into Mexico four months ago and returned to Waco Texas, with marijuana debris

Hartley was released Tuesday from Fairfax Conty Jail in Fairfax, Va., where he had been held on $100,000 bond.

The Seal Hunt

Human beings normally don't spend much time on the ice floes off the Newfoundland coast. But each year in early March, hunters, environmentalists, and reporters brave the cold North Atlantic weather because of a small, white, fur-covered animal: the baby harp seal. The hunters, who kill the seals with clubs, claim that the hunt is humane, and that the animals are in no danger of extinction. Opponents of the hunt argue that the practice is cruel and unnecessary, especially because the seals are killed mainly for their fur. Despite worldwide protests, this year's hunt is scheduled to begin today, with a quota of 180,000 seals.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The high cost of prescription drugs may be killing some Texans, a Senate committee heard Wednesday

D-Pasadena, committee chairman and the bill's sponsor, said the bill would remain pending before the committee while a substitute proposal to clarify its language is prepared.

Brooks said the substitute bill will state more strongly that a physician or a consumer would be able to specify that a pharmacist could not substitute.

Driver education course may include motorcycles

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The popular driver education course in Texas schools could be expanded to include motorcycle training under a bill approved by a Senate committee.

The 10-0 vote of the state affairs committee Wednesday indicates the bill should easily clear the full Senate Students would pay a fee to take the motorcycle course, just as they do to lea n how to dripe a car at school.

The course would permit riders as young as 15 to obtain a restricted $7 operator's license after completing the course. The license would would be good only for motorcycles with piston displacement of 125 cubic centimeters or less.

At age 16, however, the youth could drive any size motorcycle. Presently, riders must merely pass the Department of Public Safety test to get a motorcycle license. "We do believe there is some need" for the course, said Walter Roberts of the DPS The DPS would certify the instructors, and the Texas Education Agency would administer the

The sponsor, Sen. Gene Jones, D-Houston, said the bill represents an effort to save lives and recognizes the fact that as a result of rising gasoline prices, more people will be riding motorcycles.

Several motorcycle associations endorsed Jones' bill, and the Texas Motorcycle Coalition also has urged that motorcycle license fees be increased to pay for the driver training.

Jones said earlier a report by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation showed 25 percent of all motorcycle accidents involve riders with less than six years riding experience. A 23-hour course developed by the foundation could be a model for the school program, Jones said.

There are an estimated 300,000 registered motorcycles in Texas and 270,000 unregistered motorcycles, according to the Texas Motorcycle Roadriders Association.

Bill to raise foreign tuition 'punitive and just plain mean' Moore and Blake, D-Nacogdoches, said a 1977

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Merry Nell Drummond, a woman who tries to make foreigners more comfortable in this country, says a bill to raise foreign student tuition is "punitive and just plain mean."

Sens. Bill Moore and Roy Blake are asking the Legislature to require foreign students to pay $75 Some 85-90 percent of the foreign students in Texas now pay $12 a semester hour or a minimum of $200 a semester. Tuition for most foreign students taking a normal 15-hour course load would rise from approximately $400 to $2,250 a year. Moore, D-Bryan, told the Senate Education Committee on Wednesday the bill is designed to stop a "national scandal" - the recruiting of foreign students by American colleges. After the committee hearing, Director Joe

Neal of the University of Texas' international office said he knows of no public college that is recruiting foreign students but said some private colleges are recruiting. Mrs. Drummond, a "volunteer" lobbyist for International Hospitality Committees of Texas, said the bill would deprive American colleges of the "best and brightest" foreign students.

The Moore-Blake bill also would triple graduate tuition for Texas residents from $4 to $12 a semester hour, and several students registered against the measure.

law raising foreign tuition to $40 a semester hour had a loophole which students have used to keep paying lower rates. Another bill by Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, would raise foreign tuition to $40 a semester hour - which is what out-of-state students pay at Texas state colleges — and close the loophole. Yet another Mauzy bill would enable persons with permanent visas or classified as refugees to qualify for the lower "resident" college tuition.

All three bills were sent to a subcommittee, with instructions to report to the committee within two weeks

Moore said "somebody in this country is making a business out of recruiting students" so colleges with declining enrollments will not lose

Of the 23,310 Iranians enrolled in American colleges, for example, 4,487 - or 19 percent are in Texas, he said.

"Texas taxpayers are subsidizing foreign students, and they would be very unhappy if they knew about it," Moore said.

The Texas College Coordinating Board endorsed Mauzy's $40 bill.

Mrs. Drummond said of 550,000 college students in Texas, only 17,000 are foreigners. California and New York have four times as many students in Texas colleges, she said.

Policies may seem at odds with interest

NEW YORK (AP) - Sometimes official policies seem at odds with the national interest

We are concerned about household debt, for example, but we subsidize it through tax deductions. We badly need greater productivity, but we regulate and harass the factories we depend upon to bring it about.

A couple more are worth considering: We need oil but, say producers, we discourage the search for it; we need jobs for teenagers but, say the critics, we eliminate jobs by raising the minimum beginning wage."

And, almost everyone agrees, we need more savings if we are to have capital sufficient to build more factories to make more jobs to raise living standards. But we discourage savings by taxing their

There's little mystery to why the U.S. savings rate recently fell to 4.6 percent of disptsable income, while it has at times exceeded 20 percent in Japan, and smaller double digits in Western Europe.

The reason, according to savings institutions, is that these countries encourage savings through financial incentives. In West Germany, for example, a bonus is given after 4 to 6 years of saving The American saver receives a penalty. He and she mut pay taxes on the alleged income from savings. Consider that the highest passbook savings rate is 5.25 percent; consider that inflation The small saver, therefore, has been in the position of paying taxes on an illusion, the illusion being that the savings produced income, when in fact the savings shrank, even before the taxes.

So when and from where is help liable to come? From Congress, perhaps, or maybe from regulatory agencies.

Rural task force told to improve system

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new rural transportation task force made up of diverse interests has been told to put aside old prejudices and come up with fresh ideas on how to improve the nation's farm-to-market system.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland and Tansportation Secretary Brock Adams, co-chairmen of the 16-member panel, told it Wednesday to ze tough a d not avoiddifficult questions that confront the beleagured transportation system.

For example, the panel was told that while perennial rail boxcar shortages are important to some commodities, that situation should not be dwelled upon in coming up with solutions to the national

"I've heard about boxcar shortages since I was born, and I'm tired of it," Bergland said at the panel's first meeting.

"We hope to take tn all comers," he said. "There are no limits, no holds barred, and we hope that you can produce some concrete

The task force was authorized by Congress last year to study the agricultural transportation situation and to submit a preliminary report by June 1. Public hearings will be held this summer and a final report to Congress is due Jan. 1. Selected from among more than 200 nominations, the 14 appointed members represent a cross-section of agriculture and transportation interests, many of which have had rivalries and conflicts over public For example, the panel includes representatives from rail, barge and trucking industries; agricultural producer and trading interests; universities; the Interstate Commerce Commission; and one each chosen by the House and Senate agriculture committees. Bergland said it was "purely coincidental" that panel members geographically are weighted toward the the huge Midwest farm production areas and urged members "to bend over backwards" to make sure other parts of the country are included in their

It is to be a study of national transportation problems and must not be bogged down in provincial discussion about specific commodities and transportation difficulties, Bergland said.

Adams, a former member of Congress as is Bergland, noted that the "very first case" before the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1888 was the boxcar shortage and that the problem has not been solved by the ICC ordering cars from one part of the country to another or by other tools at its disposal.

Another old complaint about abandonment of railroad branch lines also should be avoided as much as possible by the panel, Adams said. Also, he said, the trucking industry cannot be expected to fill gaps created by declining or inadequate rail service. The rising costs of energy are a major factor, he said. "Massive bulk shipments such as we are discussing in the agricultural community -- we cannot put them out on the highways," Adams said. "We're beating our highways to death with too heavy loads in some areas now.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has adopted a number of changes aimed at tightening flue-cured and burley tobacco marketing quota programs to discourage farmers from over-production.

Proposals for the changes were announced on Reb. 14 and were open to public comment until the end of the month.

Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said Wednesday that beginning with the 1979 crops of burley and flue-cured, marketing agents of farmers will "no longer be permitted to store carryover

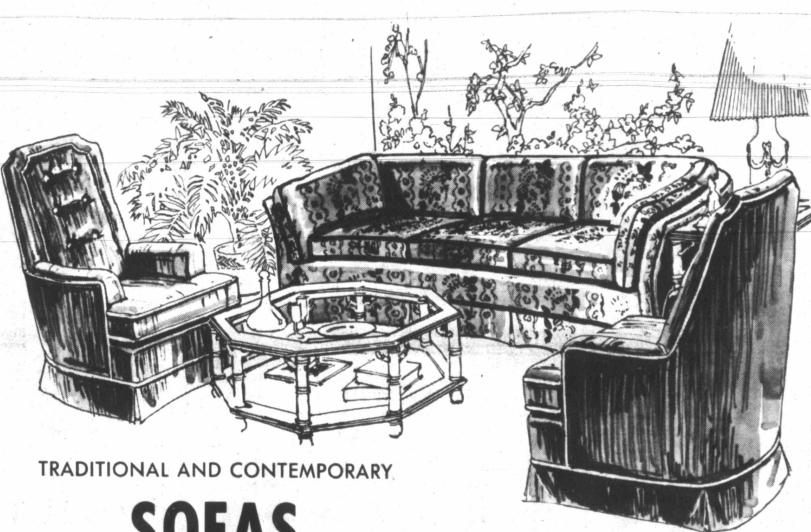

Fitzgerald said the previous carryover provision "may have" stimulated excess tobacco production and could have some effect on the price support program.

Another major proposal adopted zy USDA will alltw flue-cured tobacco producers to plant up to 110 percent of their effective allotments and get price supports if they agree not to harvest the four lower leaves on tobacco plants.

Previously, flue-cured tobacco producers were allowed 120 percent of their allotments if they agreed not to harvest the lower leaves, which are of lesser quality

Other changes adopted, for both burley and flue-cured or for one of the two as noted, included: -Producers of burley and flue-cured will be required to file reports of tobacco on hand at the end of the marketing season.

According to tradtition, last columns are supposed to full of sentimental slop. Foure supposed to say thank you to everyone for making your job easy and fun. You're supposed to bow out with grace.

But I used up my March ration of sentiment in last week's offering. Those who have made my job easier know who they are and those who made it a hair-tearing experience know who they are. And since I'm not leaving Pampa but merely switching assignments within the newsroom, I don't see any particular need to bow out gracefully.

Therefore, I'll let you know what's in store for Pampa High athletics, at least according to the pattern I established while beginning my newspaper career in Alliance, Nebraska.

I started in Alliance about one week after graduating from college. I'd only been there 10 days when the Alliance High football coach resigned to take another job in his home state of Minnesota. The American Legion baseball team that summer was fair, but didn't make many waves in the district tournament.

That fall, Alliance High's football team went 4-5, the St. Agnes Academy team was just barely over the .500 mark and the cross country team at the high school was a bad joke. The girls volleyball teams at AHS and St. Agnes were the bright spot.

The St. Agnes girls made it to the finals of their district tourney before bowing out, and the Alliance High girls were 21-0 before falling in the first round of the State Tournament.

Last winter's basketball campaign was a dull supposed to be contenders for a state title, but dian't make it past the second round of their district tournament. St. Agnes Academy didn't field a girls team and the boys squads from both schools weren't anything to crow about.

But just as I was ready to leave Nebraska for Texas, things started to turn around for athletics

Every one of the town's entries at the boys state track meet placed. The Legion baseball teams looked better than they had in several years and a general feeling of optimism was taking hold in Alliance, which was growing by leaps and bounds via the railroad.

Anyway, that's when I left Alliance. Since I've been gone the town's had a baseball team at the state tournament. The St. Agnes volleyball team won the Class D state championship last fall. And while the town's football teams won just one game between them, rumor has it that the track squads at Alliance are going to be at their highest peak in some time this spring.

In short, it would appear the best thing I can do for a high school athletic program is to get off the sports desk. It would probably be even more advantageous to Harvester followers to get me to leave town completely.

But I hope Jerry Gunter, who takes over this desk tomorrow morning, will let me keep my nose in sports somehow. If nothing else, I want to reacquaint myself with sports photography. which I haven't had much chance to practice the last few months

Besides, photographing athletic events is a lot more fun that just watching - or reporting from the stands.

Every one of the town's entries at the boys state track meet placed. The Legion baseball teams looked better than they had in several years and a general feeling of optimism was taking hold in Alliance, which was growing by leaps and bounds via the railroad.

Anyway, that's when I left Alliance. Since I've been gone the town's had a baseball team at the state tournament. The St. Agnes volleyball team won the Class D state championship last fall. And while the town's football teams won just one game between them, rumor has it that the track squads at Alliance are going to be at their highest peak in some time this spring.

In short, it would appear the best thing I can do for a high school athletic program is to get off the sports desk. It would probably be even more advantageous to Harvester followers to get me to leave town completely.

But I hope Jerry Gunter, who takes over this desk tomorrow morning, will let me keep my nose in sports somehow. If nothing else, I want to reacquaint myself with sports photography, which I haven't had much chance to practice the last few months.

Besides, photographing athletic events is a lot more fun that just watching - or reporting from the stands

Hayes remains free on the same $30,000 bail set following his arrest last April.

Addison officer Dennis Kelly testified he met Haves early last year through a secretary which Hayes served as a vice president. Kelly said he and the secretary joined Hayes and his wife for dinner and that Haves mentioned using narcotics while playing with the Cowboys.

After dinner, they headed for the Playboy Club and Hayes noticed he was using nose drops.

"He made the statement that he had something for my nose that was better than nose drops," the officer added

Later in the evening, when the subject of narcotics came up again, Kelly said, he asked Haves "if he could secure me narcotics. He said yes, he could secure me anything I wanted."

PLANO - Competing in what coach Mike Eckhart called "one of the toughest meets Texas could host at this time," four Pampa Dolphins swam with the best of them at an age group meet at the Plano AcQuatic Center last weekend.

Eckhart said the 28-team field was very strong, since it was one of the last chances to qualify for the Texas age group meet that takes place in April.

Lisa Raymond, who competed in just three of eight races for which she qualified, brought home three fourth places from the finals. She competed in the 100 breast stroke, 200 butterfly and 200 individual medley before the Pampa contingent left the meet because of the late hour.

Her sisters Cindy and Amy were also at Plano. Amy took first place in the 100-yard breast stroke consolation finals, while Cindy was fifth in the finals of the 200 individual medley and sixth in the 50 freestyle finale.

Cindy also took sixth in the sonsolation finals of the 200 freestyle and fifth in the conolation 500 freestyle.

Clay Douglass, meanwhile, was fourth in the consolation finals of the 200 freestyle and sixth in the consolation 200 individual medley.

NEW YORK (AP) - Fifteen. years after they were introduced to America on the Ed Sullivan show, 10 years after they last entered a recording studio together, the Beatles are still big business.

It's not exactly that the Beatles need it. The four members of the group that revolutionized music in the 1960s Paul McCartney, John Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr - made millions in the first flush of success and now have separate, successful careers. But now their work together is making loads of money for other people.

Their label, Capitol Records, reports that the group's records still sell millions of copies a year. "Beatlemania." a stage show using Beatle look-and sound-alikes, is doing well on Broadway and on a nationwide tour. And Beatle memorabilia is highly prized by collectors and commands impressive prices

The Beatle boom is not just attributable to nostalgia. Many of the fans are teenagers, some of whom weren't born when the group's long hair was shocking the nation in 1964.

At a recent gathering of Beatle fans in New York at the fifth annual Beatlefest, half the crowd appeared to be younger Lapidos won't say how much he makes from organizing Beatlefests, but it's enough toallow he and his wife, Carol, to make a living doing it full time.

Lapidos put together his first New York Beatlefest in 1974, and they've played to capacity crowds ever since. With a minimum of advertising, this one drew more than 6,000 Beatlemaniacs at an average price of $8 a head.

And that was just where their spending began. Inside, there were 4 large meeting rooms and a huge ballroom full of Beatles' films, artwork by fans, guest speakers and a flea market, the latter the event's most popular

There, devotees of the four Liverpudlians could buy anything from buttons to trading cards to records to movies - all at impressive prices.

A copy of the rare "Yesterday And Today" album with the rare cover showing the Beatles holding what appear to be dead babies can fetch $250 - 50 times what it cost new. Reproductions of the cover photograph were selling for $3 each - and were also available on T-shirts and posters them or not. "In Houston I sold over $300 worth of films to a woman who didn't even own a projector," he said. "She just wanted the films."

Bob Iuliucci, who was selling films and videotapes of old Beatle performances, said

For the most hardcore Beatle fans, Beatlefest is heaven. And the fans react to the goings-on with fervor reminiscent of the height of Beatlemania in 1964: girls still scream when their favorite Beatle's face appears during one of the endless string of movies being shown. And Beatle sound-alike contests are perennial favorites.

The less devoted partake of more moderate celebrations. The "Beatlemania" stage show is scoffed at by a lot of Beatle fans who resent the slick presentation of ersatz Beatles, but it's heading for its third year on Broadway.

And the real thing, or at least recorded versions of it, keeps Capitol Records' financial affairs healthy. Rarely is a Beatle album out of the list of 200 best-selling albums, and any time new interest in the group flares, several of the albums re-enter the ranks of 100-top-selling albums.

The Beatles themselves are still highly commercial. Harrison's latest album and single are heading up the charts, and McCartney recently signed a recording deal with Columbia Records said to be worth $2 million an album plus $2 for each record sold - the most lucrative recording contract in history

Of course, not all Beatle-related ventures make money. Two of 1978's biggest box-office flops were movies peripherally involving the group's music: "I Wanna Hold

Powell to contest death law

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - While Death Row inmate David Lee Powell awaits the outcome of his appeal in criminal court, his attorney is taking another avenue to challenge the state's death by injection law.

J.P. Darrouzet says W.J. Estelle Jr., director of the Texas Department of Corrections, violated the Administrative Procedure Act by failing to publish in the Texas Register the procedures for death by injection.

Darrouzet, of Austin, presented his case Wednesday to a 3-judge panel of the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals.

"This is a civil case and we're getting to you first," he said when asked why he was not leaving the question up to the criminal courts.

The civil appeals court will not hand down a decision immediately but advised Darrouzet that in a similar case it ruled there was no civil iurisdiction over a case pending

Police say no deal to Iranian officials

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Police officials have threatened three representatives of Iran's new revolutionary government with arrest for criminal trespassing if they try to occupy the former residence of Iranian Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi.

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, in a copyright story in today's editions, reported the three were ordered by officials of the Islamic Republic to confiscate all property left behind by the prince.

The son of the deposed shah reportedly flew to Morocco Sunday to join his family living in exile.

Assistant Police Chief C.G. Bartley told the newspaper Wednesday that the men, who asked not to be identified, informed him of their intentions when they arrived Tuesday night.

He said the trio presented him with a letter of introduition signed by Hassan Ali Hanji, the revtlutionary government's consulate general in Houston.

Bartley said according to the letter, the trio was appointed to travel to Lubbock to "confiscate all property left by former Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi.'

Hanji declined to comment on the Lubbock delegation or its purpose Wednesday, and the newspaper reported Iranian embassy officials in Washington were unavailable for comment.
