

Good afternoon

News in brief

CLOUDY

The forecast for today calls for cooler temperatures and partly cloudy skies, becoming fair tonight and warmer on Tuesday. The high today should be near 60, with the lows tonight reaching the lower 40s. Winds will be out of the northeast this afternoon at 10 to 15 mph, becoming southeasterly at 10 to 15 mph tonight. The high Sunday was 70 and the low was 35.

Hopkins Board meets Tuesday

The Grandview Hopkins Independent School Board will consider the adoption of a new elementary handwriting book and the renewing of three teachers' contracts at its meeting Tuesday night.

Superintendent T.J. Adkins will report on the progress of the school's electric generator, which was installed earlier this year to run when the school's regular power source gives out.

The status of the Steering Committee, which is formulating goals and goal indicators along with a survey of the institution for its community, will be reported.

The current bills and invoices are also on the agenda for approval.

Special meeting scheduled tonight

A possible increase of the over-scale of teachers salaries will be considered at a special meeting of the Pampa Independent School Board at 5 p.m. today.

Re-employment of faculty members and major spending projects will be other areas of concern.

Bids for renovation of the bathrooms at the high school will also be up for a board vote.

Public hearing Tuesday

A public hearing concerning the annexation and zoning of a tract of land west of Pampa will be conducted by the city commission at its regular meeting at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Rosa Fields, owner of the land, has requested the annexation. She is contracting with industry to locate on the property, known as Country Garden Estates.

A resolution granting a 14-percent rate increase to the Yellow Cab Co. of Pampa will also be considered at the meeting. In addition, commissioners will consider on second and final reading an ordinance providing for the continued collection by the city of a one percent sales tax on electric and natural gas utility bills.

Prudential gets insurance program

The Texas Municipal League (TML) has announced the award of its Uniform Group Insurance Program to the Prudential Insurance Co. of America. Prudential will act as carrier for the voluntary health insurance program, developed for municipal employees throughout the state.

TML and Prudential will conduct a regional workshop in Amarillo April 24 to advise city officials of the options, rates, enrollment procedures and other details of the plan.

City Manager Mack Wofford, a member of the TML committee that developed the plan, said today the city commission hasn't made a decision yet whether Pampa will enroll in the program. The city staff will first have to "do a very thorough comparison" of the TML plan and the city's current coverage with Blue Cross - Blue Shield, Wofford said.

Pact ready for signing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin prepared to sign a treaty today to end 30 years of war between their countries and, they hoped, lay the cornerstone of peace in the Middle East.

The treaty they planned to sign at 2 p.m. Eastern time did not come easily. The bargaining lasted until late Sunday evening as the two ancient enemies haggled over the final details of their new and fragile peace.

This morning, State Department officials said experts from the three countries were still going over the language of the treaty, although all issues had been settled in principle.

As a result, the text was not made public until after Sadat, Begin and President Carter met at the White House and sat down at a table used by Ulysses S. Grant. They planned to sign three treaty versions, in English, Hebrew and Arabic.

Egyptian officials said the final compromise involved an Israeli pledge to withdraw from the Sinai oil fields seven months after the signing of the treaty, instead of nine months after, as the Israelis had wanted, or six months after, as the Egyptians proposed.

American officials confirmed that schedule and said that it represented basically a return to an agreement tentatively struck several months ago.

Sadat arrived at the White House for the treaty signing and a conference with Carter at 11 a.m. EST. They posed for pictures and Carter told the Egyptian leader he saw "a good opportunity in the next few months to open up Egypt to American investments."

They planned to celebrate the occasion with a state dinner this evening with 1,300 guests under a red and yellow tent on the South Lawn of the White House. "This is the day we hoped for. Let us rejoice," said Begin.

But until late Sunday evening, there seemed some chance tonight's celebration might not be held.

On Sunday morning, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said in a television interview that the exact timetable for Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai oilfields had not been settled and that he did not think Israel should sign the treaty until that question was resolved.

Begin arrived at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington a few hours later in a light rain and added a few more issues to the agenda.

He said he wanted to talk to Sadat about a three-part signing ceremony in which he and Sadat would leave Washington to sign the Arabic and Hebrew versions of the treaty in Cairo and Jerusalem. He said Sadat and Carter had agreed to this idea.

Begin also said he wanted to open the borders between Egypt and Israel 10 months after ratification of the treaties so Egyptians might visit Israel and Israelis might gaze at the Pyramids, "in which their forefathers invested some labor."

Shortly after 6 p.m., Begin arrived at the Egyptian Embassy, where Sadat was staying. The two leaders conferred until 7:35, when Begin, his expression grim, got into his car and drove back to his hotel.

During the conversation, Begin apparently gave up on his plan to get Sadat to visit Jerusalem. Israeli and Egyptian spokesmen announced that Begin would make a one-day visit to Cairo on April 2 to repay Sadat's historic visit to Jerusalem in November 1977. All three versions of the treaty would be signed at the White House.

The spokesmen would not disclose what the two said about the oil issue, but Begin's spokesman, Dan Patir, said the issue was still open.

A short time later, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance arrived at the hotel to confer with Begin, repeating a visit he had paid in New York on Saturday night.

When Vance emerged, he and Dayan were smiling. There would be a treaty signing, Vance said. Asked if the oilfields problem had been settled, Vance responded, "I believe it has."

Arabs react to treaty with violence

By The Associated Press

Arab foes of the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty protested the pact with bombs, demonstrations and strikes today, and Arab governments prepared to mount economic sanctions and a political quarantine against Egypt. Israel set nationwide celebrations to coincide with today's treaty signing.

King Hussein of Jordan flew to Damascus to talk with President Hafez Assad to coordinate opposition to the treaty. Two bomb blasts Sunday night outside the U.S. Embassy in Damascus kicked off the wave of protests that spread today to other Arab or Moslem capitals. Palestinians staged general strikes in East Jerusalem, other cities in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, the occupied Gaza Strip, Lebanon and Jordan. Thousands of treaty foes marched in Kuwait. Palestinians and their leftist Lebanese allies took to the streets in Moslem West Beirut, firing rifle volleys into the air and setting fire to auto tires. They also ensured that shopkeepers observed the strike.

Effigies of President Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin went up in flames at Palestinian refugee camps in Beirut and Moslem cities in Lebanon. Palestinian spokesmen said the demonstrations were peaceful.

The bomb blasts at the U.S. Embassy in Damascus shattered windows but caused no casualties or major damage. No one claimed responsibility for the attack. Syrian witnesses said one bomb was hurled into the embassy garden from a passing car and the other went off near the rear of the building. One witness said someone in the car shouted "To hell with the traitorous agreement!"

The State Department already had alerted U.S. missions in the Middle East to the possibility of terrorist attacks as the signing of the U.S. sponsored treaty approached. Israel and Egypt also have taken massive security precautions.

Almost every Arab government has scorned the pact. Sadat and Begin will sign today on the White House lawn. The other Arabs are opposed to the treaty because Sadat did not obtain a state for the Palestinians, the return of East Jerusalem to the Arabs and the return of the Golan Heights to Syria.

Iran's Moslem patriarch, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, denounced the treaty Sunday, saying it was "against the interests of the Arab world" and increased "the dangers that have always been posed by Israel in the region."

Khomeini, who engineered the Islamic rebellion that toppled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi last month, severed the shah's ties with Israel, cut off direct Iranian oil exports to the Jewish state and allied Iran with Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization.

Thousands of Iranians massed outside the Egyptian Embassy in Tehran Sunday to protest the pact, and today scores of persons calling themselves "Arab students" took over the embassy, hoisted Palestinian flags on the roof and put up poster photos of Arafat and Khomeini throughout the building. Iran is not an Arab country.

Four Egyptian members of the embassy staff were held hostage in the building. The ambassador, Ali Samir Safwat, reported by telephone that a group of armed men came to his suburban residence at 4 a.m. and told him they were putting him under "protective custody" because his life might be in danger.

Within 24 hours of the treaty signing, leaders of the other Arab nations will meet in Baghdad Tuesday to implement a series of secret resolutions censuring the Sadat government. They range from hardliners, including Syria, Iraq and the PLO, which want Sadat overthrown and are threatening a new war on Israel's eastern flank, to moderates, including conservative Saudi Arabia and Jordan, which appear to favor economic and political action.

Elk City greets a president

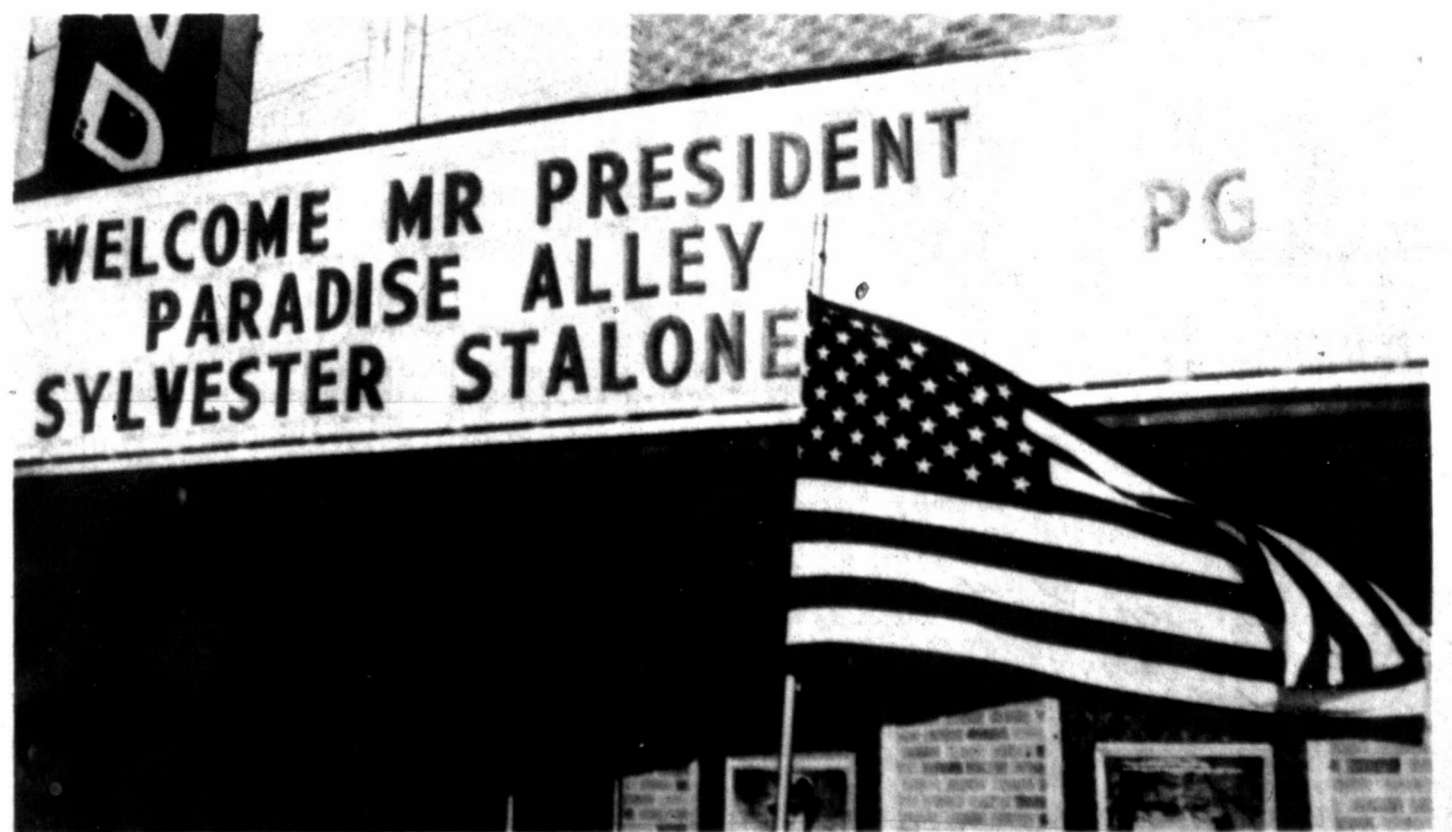

If there were any Republicans in Elk City Saturday, they must have been in hiding during President Carter's return visit to the western Oklahoma town that befriended him when he was virtually unknown in the 1976 presidential campaign. With the exception of well-behaved American Agriculture Movement protesters, the residents of Elk City staged a red-carpet welcome for Carter.

"This is quite a bigger reception than he got when he was campaigning," said one woman in the crowd on Main Street. In the true American fashion, a downtown boutique turned the event into a money-maker by selling Carter t-shirts — in two different styles, of course.

Hundreds of people stood along the curbs of Main and Third streets for hours, waiting to get a brief glimpse of the presidential motorcade as it arrived in town shortly after sunset. For most of them, it was a once-in-a-lifetime experience. For Jimmy Carter, it was a chance to escape the pressures and feel truly appreciated, at least for a few hours.

Davis trial claims judge

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The search for a new judge for the high-stakes Cullen Davis divorce trial began today.

The judge with overall responsibility for civil proceedings in Tarrant County said he would meet with attorneys for both Cullen and Priscilla Davis today to find a successor to District Judge John Barron, who angrily withdrew from the case Saturday night.

Barron, although insisting he had done nothing improper, quit the case and declared a mistrial in the 5-week-old case Saturday night after the Fort Worth Star-Telegram learned he had met privately in his hotel room on two recent occasions with Cullen Davis.

Barron was the second judge in the case. District Judge Joe Eidson of Fort Worth removed himself from the case after Davis was charged with attempting to have Eidson murdered.

Davis faces a retrial on those charges, since a Houston jury deadlocked, 10-2 in favor of conviction, and a mistrial was declared.

Davis, a multi-millionaire industrialist from Fort Worth, and his estranged wife were $19 million apart in the settlements they were asking. The trial, which began five weeks ago, had been expected to conclude Tuesday.

Administrative Judge Charles Murray said he would insist the attorneys pick a new jurist from a list of retired judges he considers eligible. A district judge lacks the time to devote to the complicated Davis divorce, Murray said.

Barron, bristling with anger, said it was impractical to proceed with the divorce case because "the local news media and others have impugned my integrity."

Barron, 65, quit after a Star-Telegram reporter called for comment on reports he had met with Davis privately.

His wife fielded calls for him Sunday, and the judge refused to talk to newsmen over the phone. But he granted a 90-minute interview to a Dallas Times Herald reporter who drove to his home at Bryan, about 100 miles northwest of Houston.

"They were going to run a big, lurid story that would make me look like a left-handed baboon, and I just couldn't stand it anymore," said Barron, clad in pink pajama bottoms and a royal blue robe.

"I made up my mind I don't care how anyone looks at it. The turmoil was too great for me to continue and for justice to prevail," Barron said.

"I know in my mind I didn't do anything wrong, and if I had it to do over again, I'd do it substantially the same way. I don't know why in the world I ever took it on in the first place. I was just a fool, I guess."

Barron said he met in his hotel room with Davis twice, for about a half hour, in recent weeks and with Mrs. Davis in the courtroom, trying to persuade them to agree on an out-of-court settlement.

"I did nothing in the world another judge wouldn't have done. I do it in practically every case," the judge said. "That's just my way of doing business. I turn every peg I can in an attempt to settle the case."

However, Murray questioned Barron's practice.

"I never, repeat never, discuss any part of a case with a litigant unless both attorneys are present, and I never do it except in the courtroom or in my chambers. Here in this case it's easy to see that people will suspect something. Nobody can really say nothing happened," said Murray. "It hurts the system."

Foreign business, education to attract Senate's attention

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators will look at foreign business and academic matters in Texas this week, as well as working overtime on the state budget and studying proposals to finance public education.

Pooling of the state's 36 aircraft, plus two old issues dealing with felon voting and property tax rollbacks, go before the House.

A bill requiring the disclosure of foreign purchase of Texas land was on the agenda today in the Senate Economic Development Committee. Tuesday, and an education subcommittee will review attempts to raise tuition for foreign students at Texas colleges.

Another education subcommittee scheduled its first session on 13 major proposals, including four to finance the expensive public school program.

"We'll hear anybody who wants to be heard," said chairman Oscar Mauzy of the education committee.

Floor action was expected today in the Senate on proposals by Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, to establish a state housing program for lower income families, patterned after the Veterans' Land Program.

The Senate Finance

Committee tried to resolve scheduling conflicts by meeting from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. on the proposed 1980-81 budget. It plans to follow that schedule through Wednesday each week and then meet from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursdays, after the Senate has adjourned for the weekend.

The finance committee also listed for votes proposals to dedicate 1 cent of the 7.2-cent natural gas severance tax to a fund for utility relief for the elderly and disabled and to hold increases in the state budget to the personal income growth of Texans.

Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, a farmer and pilot, will seek approval Tuesday of his bill creating a state board to take possession of all aircraft owned or leased by state agencies.

If Laney's bill passes, an agency needing a plane would have to see what was available and wait in line behind those who had asked for a plane first.

The proliferation and occasional misuse of state airplanes has concerned the Legislative Budget Board for years. The board recently inventoried aircraft and found agencies owned 18 fixed wing aircraft and leased 11 more. Add to that seven helicopters owned by the Department of Public Safety for enforcement purposes.

Agencies differed widely in aircraft operating costs in 1978, from a low of $55.65 per hour for the one airplane owned by the Texas Aeronautics Commission to $276.14 for the attorney general's plane.

Also on Tuesday's calendar is a bill by Rep. Clay Smothers, D-Dallas, that would restore voting rights to convicted felons who have served their sentences, including parole, probation or mandatory supervision time.

Monday's calendar includes Rep. Bill Clark's bill that would allow referenda to roll back increases in local property taxes.

Child drowns

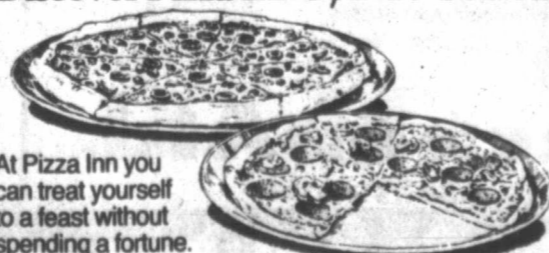

HOUSTON (AP) — A 19-month-old girl drowned Sunday while her father was controlling a horse that began to buck while they were riding.

Investigators said Tarra Roseanne Joe wandered off after the father, David Joe, put the child down when the horse began to buck. The body was found about 150 feet away in a shallow pond.

HEALTHFUL HINTS
 Most often asked Questions On Nutrition
 BY: KATRINA BIGHAM

Q. Is the amount of potassium obtainable without a prescription limited to a certain number of milligrams per tablet by the FDA? How much do we need, and how can we get it?

A. Yes, the FDA limits the amount of potassium available in tablet form without a prescription. Adelle Davis recommends as much as 5,000 mg. daily, and the "Nutrition Almanac" says 2,000 to 2,500 mg. a day.

A teaspoon of potassium chloride salts stirred into water, though far from palatable, will supply 4,000 mg. potassium. Filling your salt shaker with a mixture of equal parts iodized sea salt or table salt and a potassium-chloride salt substitute is helpful in obtaining adequate potassium. Some food sources of potassium are all vegetables, especially the green leafy ones, oranges, bananas, whole grains, sunflower seeds and potatoes, especially the peelings.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your best ideas will come to you today if you're off somewhere alone, where there is peace and quiet and you can set your own pace.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A friend of long standing could introduce you to a new and interesting person today who could fit comfortably into your future plans.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Because people are paying attention to you today and your words carry weight, be sure what you say leaves the impression you want to make.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Spend time on mental projects today. You are especially sharp in this area, and could come up with a new twist to a tired situation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Digging beneath the surface and getting down to the root cause of problems will be a snap for you today. Direct your mind to this task.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you're looking to make your thoughts understood and to receive cooperation, this is the day to do so. You'll find people receptive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today, there is a strong possibility you'll come up with a better way of doing something to make your job a whole lot easier.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Whereas yesterday you may have been withdrawn, today you'll do an about face and want to be around as many fun and active people as possible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something from the past could be terminated today as your interests shift to a new situation. If you didn't investigate the change, you'll still welcome it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Tackle correspondence or catch up on paperwork today. You're alert and creative and could breeze through this type of activity.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your chance for getting a lot more mileage out of what you have to spend are greater today than they'll be tomorrow. Take advantage of these good conditions.
