Future of County Fair in doubt

By Wendell Faught

Unless there is enough interest to continue the Haskell County Fair, the 25-year-old county show will have to be discontinued.

That's the prediction of Bobby Hobgood, president of the Haskell County Fair Association.

And this interest must be evidenced by response from volunteers. "Too few people are carrying the load," Hobgood said.

He pointed to dwindling interest, dwindling profitability and dwindling entries.

Last year's fair lost $1,500 and Hobgood said there is no way it can continue on this basis. "One more year like that and we won't have a choice," he said.

Although one day of last year's fair was practically "rained out", this was only a small part of the

"We need more people to become involved," Hobgood said. "More people involved in the fair means more interest by them and their familes."

Hobgood said that for many years, much of the work on the fair has been done by the same people. Their numbers are shrinking and some have reached the age where they can no longer be expected to do what they have done in the past. "We need new blood," he said.

Especially needed are more volunteers from the Haskell area. Although help is needed from all areas of the county, Hobgood said residents of the communities of Rule, Rochester, Weinert, Sagerton and Paint Creek support the fair much better than those in Haskell.

Anyone interested in volunteering to help put on the fair should contact Hobgood at the First National Bank (phone 864-8555) or Iva Lee Gipson, secretary (864-Hobgood feels that the lack of workers has had much to do with the dwindling interest. And the lack of interest has been felt financially.

Total income from the 1990 fair was $6,900, while expenses were about $8,400. Ribbons and tags for exhibits, along with the printing of the fair catalog, account for the major expenses. Maintaining fair facilities is another big item, as is

The top revenue producer is gate receipts, which are steadily decreasing. Bad weather, as was the case last year, and reluctance of some fair-goers to pay admission have affected the income. Stock show entry fees and revenue from the queen contest are used to support those two activities.

Hobgood said he feels the fair is very good for Haskell. "It's a fun time for everyone and it ushers in the fall season."

With exhibitors from all over the county, as well as stock show entries from five or six counties, it brings many out-of-town people to Hobgood would like to see the fair not only continue---but to grow and prosper. With renewed interest from the public, he feels this is possible. Without that interest, the Haskell County Fair may be nearing its end.

Students hear author

Haskell students in grades four to seven received a special treat Friday afternoon as they listened to a visiting author at Haskell Elementary School.

Martha Tannery Jones, an author of children's books from Conroe, was in this part of the state to talk about her books, about early times in Texas and about writing.

A former elementary teacher, she began writing five years ago and has published two books: The Great Texas Scare: A Story of the Runaway Scrape, and "The Ghost at the Old Stone Fort.

A third book, The Mystery of Y'Barbo's Tunnell, is scheduled for publication later this spring.

Mrs. Jones appeared in costume to discuss her books, and displayed toys and other articles from early Texas. She offered some valuable insight on writing as she explained how many of the ideas and characters for her books have come from real incidents and people she has known or heard about.

After her presentations, the author welcomed questions from the audience. Many of the students took this opportunity to ask about her experiences as an author, and about tips on writing.

tax bill $350,109

West Texas Utilities 1990 bill for ad valorem taxes in Haskell County was $350,109.

The county's four school districts received $190,617 and the county government another $94,209. Cities and towns received $6,033 in WTU taxes and the other WTU's share of support to the taxing entities within the company's 52-county service area amounts to $9,284,735 for 1990, making the electric utility one of West Texas'd largest ad valorem taxpayers, said Mike Martindale, local manager in Haskell.

Approximately 57 percent of that total went to school districts with the balance distributed among other taxing entities, such as city and county governments and water, fire, hospital, drainage and road

Perry supports HB2553

Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry has voiced his support for House Bill 2553, saying the intrastate trucking measure would help make the Texas cattle industry and other livestock industries more competitive.

Texas is America's top cattle and calf producer, with livestock sales accounting for nearly 50 percent of the state's entire agricultureal income. However, Texas ranks second nationally in the number of cattle slaughtered and fourth in the production of red meat. "We can and should be No. 1 in both instances," Perry said.

"HB 2553 would address this challenge," Perry said, "by making the Texas cattle industry and other livestock industries more competitive through a reduction in intrastate transportation costs for cattle moved to and from feedlots, livestock marketing facilities and slaughter hosues."

Rolling Plains PCA has annual meeting

Lance Morris of Crosbyton was re-elected to a three-year term as director of the board in the annual stockholders' meeting of the Rolling Plains PCA. The two-day annual meeting was in Childress Thursday and in Stamford Friday.

Commemorative belt buckles were presented by Stamford office manager Gary Decker to three 50year members present, A. B. McLennan of Stamford, John Michaels of Knox City and Ben Loe of Spur.

Dean Turner of Matador, director, gave the board report. With a capital-to-total-assets ratio of 27.00 percent, Rolling Plains PCA is one of the strongest capitalized of all Farm Credit institutions in the Texas district. A 1990 net profit of $45,342 after federal income taxes of $347,340 enabled the association to further strengthen its financial base, Turner reported.

The association was in the last year of a four-year requirement to pay federal income taxes on the recapture of its allowance for loan losses into income. This IRS tax law mandated a tax on the allowance account of each PCA in the nation, causing the association to be in a 92-percent tax bracket for book income purposes. Large claims in the credit life insurance program in 1989 and 1990 also reduced the net profit figure.

Rolling Plains PCA had 1990 net loan recoveries of $12,090 compared to net loan losses of $148,409 in 1989. On Dec. 31, 1990, the surplus and allowance for loan losses accounts contained $8,447,828 and $1,958,023 respectively. These account balances are now 221 percent greater than they were 11 years ago.

Based on capital, asset quality, management, earnings and liquidity, Rolling Plains PCA has been designated a Tier I association by the Farm Credit Bank of Texas for the third consecutive year. Tier I is the highest rating possible granted by the Texas district regulator.

President John S. Rike III discussed the Advance Conditional Payment Accounts, known as the "Funds Held Accounts." The present rate being paid to the membership on these accounts is 7.75 percent compounded quarterly, wich gives an effective annual yield of 7.96 percent.

Ag roots run deep in high-tech Texas

By Rick Perry Agriculture Commissioner From the Superconducting Super Collider in Waxahachie to Sematech in Austin, high-tech enterprise has placed Texas on the cutting edge of new and exciting industries. Economic sectors that were just a dream a few years ago now are diversifying and expanding our economy.

This economic transformation clearly is remarkable. Yet, it shouldn't blind us to the tremendous contribution still made by our most fundamental industry--agriculture---not only to our economy, but to our lifestyle, our values and even our outlook. To be sure, today's high-tech industries are being built on the strong foundation laid by agriculture, by farmers and ranchers who long have been and continue to be innovators of technology.

Farming and ranching is now our state's second largest industry--providing work, either directly or indirectly, for one out of every five Texans. Today some 186,000 farms and ranches---more than in any other state in America---dot our landscape, generating $11 billion a year in sales and pumping more than $32 billion into the Texas economy.

In fact, we now are the nation's top producer of four leading mainstream commodities: livestock, cotton, wool and mohair. Our annual livestock sales total nearly 50 percent of our state's agricultural income. We generate 16 million pounds of wool a year and raise 90 percent of the country's Angora goat population. Last year, we produced four million bales of cotton---one-third of the entire U.S. production.

It should come as no surprise, then, that Texas is the second largest agricultural producer in America, behind only California. Our food and fiber system is one of the most vital in the world, and the quality of our goods and products is unbeatable. Truly, we stand head and shoulders above all others when it comes to the production of good and wholesome commodities.

However, too much of what we produce is being sent out of state for processing. Others are adding value to our commodities and profiting as a result.

The unfortunate fact is Texas now lags far behind the rest of the world in treating, preparing or refining what it produces. For instance, two-thirds of all foreign imports entering our country are processed goods. Nationally, 20 percent of all commodities are taken to the processing stage in the state where they are produced.

But in Texas, that number is 8 percent. We ship 92 percent of all Texas-grown commodities to others for processing---meaning we also send them our jobs and dollars that otherwise would go into Texans' pocketbooks.

It's time we changed all that. It's time we increased our exports not only of raw commodities, but of processed goods. It's time we kept our jobs and our opportunities at home. As your new Commissioner of Agriculture, I am committed to doing just that by working with farmers and ranchers---with business and industry as a whole---to increase our in-state processing and our agricultural export trade.

Let me give you an example of the potential in adding value to our commodities through processing. If Texas processed an additional 5 percent of its raw products, an estimated 30,000 new jobs in agriculture and manufacturing would be created. Income would increase by $500 million, and our state's economy would enjoy a $2.5 billion boost.

The possibilities are remarkable, the potential striking. Agriculture, this most renewable or resources, continues to have the capacity to create new jobs, to nurture economic growth and to serve as a pillar of strength for our economy.

In the coming months, I plan to discuss some of the new initiatives we are developing at the Texas Department of Agriculture to seize the opportunities in our food and fiber industries. At the department, we are dedicated to helping mainstream producers reap the benefits of their hard work and, at the same time, bolster the statewide

School financing

Editor: I have been reading about the attempts to reach an equitable solution for public school funding. I have no quarrel with these attempts, but I do have some questions that keep nagging me.

Since the courts seem compelled to make rulings about accidents of geography, I wonder why these wise men did not make it illegal for us to have droughts, sandstorms and tornadoes.

I have read with interest the story about the self-proclaimed savior of Texas education. I have found out that his school district. Edgewood ISD, has a tax rate of 67 cents. It is my understanding that most of the school districts in this area have tax rates that range from $1 to $1.50. I wonder why he thinks that we should be compelled to pay his bills?

I have read where Jayton ISD will have a new tax rate that is about 333 percent of their old rate. This translates into an increase of about 234 percent (.27 to .90). This seems to please the poor school districts of the state because they think they will receive this money. I wonder if they know that their new tax rates may be anywhere from 134 percent to 200 percent of their old rate?

I have noticed over the years that the people in this area will reluctantly, but voluntarily, consolidate a school district when it becomes cost prohibitive. I wonder why the legislature is intent on destroying the state educational system when they could dissolve 30-odd school districts that can't or won't tax themselves enough to support their schools. These schools could be assimilated into surrounding school districts.

I understand that Abraham Lincoln said, "You can't make a poor man wealthy by making a wealthy man poor." I wonder why judges and politicians of this day are not aware of this. I also wonder how much longer the people of Texas are going to put up with the emanations that come from the courts and lelgislature.

Does anyone out there have any answers? I have one more question: When is the tax revolution going to happen?

It's the First Assembly of God--not the First Assembly of God Church.

I asked pastor J. C. Amburn for a clarification. It's redundant, he says, to use the word "church" in a name that already contains the word "assembly," which means church.

I guess, putting the word "church" in the name would be akin to adding the word "river" to Rio Grande.

Every sports fan knows that Tom Landry coached the Dallas Cowboys for 30 years, compiling a 273-191-6 record.

That makes him the third winningest coach in NFL history, behind George Halas and Don Shula. His 30 consecutive years as head coach of one team is a record.

During his reign, Dallas won 13 division championships, five NFC titles and two Super Bowls. He had 20 consecutive winning seasons, 18 playoffs appearances and five trips to the Super Bowl.

Older fans remember Landry as an all-pro defensive back, and later a coach, with the New York Giants

Still older fans remember Landry as an all-Southwest Conference fullback and defensive back at Texas after he returned to college following service as a bomber pilot during World War II.

But not many remember Landry's high school career.

During his senior year at 1A Mission, he led his team to a 12-0 record, playing quarterback and defensive back. Mission scored 319 points that season, while holding its opponents to a single touchdown (7 points). Landry scored 132 of those points. Mission won the regional championship, as far as 1A schools went in the playoffs in those days.

Next week, Landry will be inducted into the National High School Sports Hall of Fame, not for his accomplishments with the Dallas Cowboys, New York Giants or Texas Longhorns, but for what he did at Mission.

Mary Kaigler:

From the Inside Out

then adorn yourself accordingly," said Epictetus (c 50-120).

Haskell's own Suzanne Starr foes a superb job on television urging Big Country women to do just that when she says, "Be a Lane Felker woman." Realizing that a certain look bespeaks a certain frame of mind, she skillfully merchandises the total package for which the local fashion mecca is

It seems that "clothes are inevitable," as James Laver wrote in Style in Costume ."They are nothing less than the furniture of the mind made visible." Whether or not we like the idea, and whether or not it should be that way, serious students of the psychological effects of wearing apparel on how we perceive one another tells us that clothing is a language, a sign system by which, for thousands of years, human beings have communicated with one another.

In her interesting book, The Language of Clothes, Alison Lurie says that long before we are near enough to talk to one another on the street, at a party or meeting, we announce sex, age and class through what we are wearing---very possibly giving important information (or mis-information) as to occupation, origin, personality, opinions, taste, sexual desires and current mood. We may not be conscious of it, but "by the time we meet and converse we have already spoken to each other in an older and more universal longue," she says.

As a not-so-serious student of doubt he knew she was saying,

"Know, first, who you are; and communication through the written word, this premise gives me a different way of looking at what I wear and how I wear it. Becoming conscious of some of the things I've "said" makes me want to run upstairs and banish them from the vocabulary of my closet. The poor construction and convoluted sentences of mis-matches, the bad grammar and sloppy syntax of missing buttons and loose hooks, the split infinitives of ripped seams, the dangling participles of uneven hemlines are "telling off" on me. I just wish they weren't so talkative.

> The language of our clothing is not new, probably going all the way back to the beginning. One can well imagine that no sooner than they knew who they were and adorned themselves accordingly, Adam saw that Eve had arranged her fig-leaf ensemble somewhat different to his, provoking him to observe, "Now here's a chick chick. What is she trying to tell me?" (We don't have to guess that he got the

Even though there were only these two---each owning a single all-purpose wardrobe---the idea was already slithering in whispering, "Why not have a dressed up fig leaf for those special occasions, and a sturdy one for tending the garden?" When Adam pulled on his leafy jumpsuit Eve immediately knew that he was going out to tend. When she donned her spiffied-up greenery, perhaps ad-libbing with a little serpent's tooth necklace, no "Let's party."

Thomas Carlyle, in Sartor Resartus, said that "man's earthly interests are all hooked and buttoned together, and held up by clothes." In London last year with a group of fashion marketing students from Woodbury University in Burbank, brought there on a field experience by Dr. Karen Kaigler Walker, I could almost believe Carlyle was right about it. The whole emphasis was on clothing; the pace steady and exciting. I was along for the fun and perhaps a bit of balance to all of the bubbly, youthful exuberance of the ten smart fashion majors (who looked like fashion models). They were there for academic credit, with merchandising assignments, lectures and appointments at the Wool Secretariate, the Institute for Cotton, Liberty of London, Harrods, Laura Ashley and Bond Street, plus various museums of costume design.

Sitting in on all of this, I loved every minute of it, but I was forced by the tenor of the whole trip to be aware of how I looked---every minute of it. One particular time stands out.

The last assignment was an interview with the designer, Gina Fratini. Excited and dressed to the teeth, we rode with our London guide by special bus to the loft studio-workshop on Bishop's Road in Fulham, London.

Mrs. Fratini, one of London's leading designers of ballgowns and evening wear, was warm and gracious in telling and sharing with the girls her background in the industry. Ovbviously enjoying their enthusiasm and interest in her career, she spoke of designing for the Princess of Wales, Princess Anne and the Duchesses of York and Kent. While she stopped briefly to help with a fitting of one of her designs, she let the girls try on some of her romantic party dresses, even a pink faille bridal gown that has been featured on the cover of the English Vogue magazine.

From the sidelines, the middleaged guide and I watched and listened to the delighted oohing and aahing of the girls, as they tried on, modeled and took pictures of each other in the elegant, one-of-a-kind

'Are you one of Dr. Walker's university associates from California?" he asked in impeccable, clipped London English. "No," I answered in unmistakable, drawling West Texan. "I'm the doctor's mother; I'm from Texas."

Under-estimating the size of the State of Texas and over-estimating the state of the size of my pocketbook, he said, "That is a handsome suit you wear; you must be a Neiman-Marcus woman. Do you shop in Dallas often?"

Amused at this assumption and at myself for feeling the need to identify myself to this man, I said, "Oh no, I'm a Lane Felker woman. I shop at home, in Haskell."

Thus identified, there in the midst of this haute couture design studio in London, it was fun, for a little while, to know who I was and to know that, with the Ellen Tracy suit Frances Lane and Mattie Felker English had sold me, I was adorning myself accordingly.

Josselet reunion draws 172

Children also enjoyed an Easter egg hunt while adults had an auction of homemade items. The auction was a big success. After the auction, the meeting was adjourned and guests began to leave.

The reunion proved to be a lot of fun and family members are looking forward to the next reunion on Easter weekend in 1993.

Notes From The Rolling Plains

(Note: The following is one of a series of stories by noted wildlife photographer

A cool breeze rippled the croton waters as I strolled along the creeks rocky banks. Waiting for the light to attain the perfect angle,

I had time to kill on this extraordinary April evening. Nearing a huge boulder on the west bank I could clearly make out the outline of a log imprint in the rock. Apparently felled millions of years before, this tree landed in a muddy loblolly, rotting away with time, but not before leaving its imprint for modern man to see. Searching about I soon found that two or three more petrified imprints were nearby. Such a facinating discovery! Soon it was time to venture to the petroglyphs and decide how to photograph them for the upcoming article on rock art. The sun was only a few minutes from dropping behind the distant hills, releasing its grip on the land and its life. The sandstone cliffs of the creek shown golden as I shot from various angles in an attempt to reveal the stone figures in bold relief. Soon, with only a few shots left on the roll, I noticed that these last rays of light would perfectly illuminate one area of the cliff that held some of the more handsome rock art. Backing into the little overhang to face the west, it was facinating to think that these ancient people may have actually planned their stone figures to be highlighted by these natural rays! Shimmering, golden sun rays revealed a lifelike warrior with hands fanned vide. A man and woman stand side by side, perhaps in wait, for an event that died with the artist who gave birth to these inscriptions. Shadowed by the overhanging rocks by day, the unseeing faces of these nameless figures seem to come to life in the waning moments of sunset. The skeletal shadows of a saltcedar shivered in the winds of evening as I made my way back to the vehicle, past the ancient tree imprints and along the winding water course.

Turning to close the door on my truck, I heard the calls of the poorwhill flowing through the canyon, like the waters of the turbid stream. For a moment I sat and listening to the land and its life of the twilight hour; the coyote, the poorwhill, and the wind. Could these sounds of night be a spiritual manifestation of the ancient plains hunter - perhaps channeled through the stone images

Tax rep to be here Wednesday

"Texans shouldn't need their own CPA in Austin to get their state tax questions answered," State Comptroller John Sharp said this

"Instead, we in the State Comptroller's office are coming to Haskell on Wednesday, April 17, to give local business people a chance to talk one-on-one with a state tax expert," Sharp added.

"Whether it's a sales tax question, a problem with the franchise tax or an issue surroudnding the state gasoline tax, we'll be there to help," he said.

Baker Rudolph from the Abilene Enforcement Field Service office will be in the Haskell County courthouse, commissionners court room, from 10 a.m. to noon. The public is welcome to drop by any time during the visit.

"Meeting with taxpayers in their home counties makes tax collecting more efficient both for them and the state," Sharp said.

If at first you succeed, try something harder.

Revocable Living Trusts (What They Are And When To Use Them)

One estate planning technique you might want to consider is a revocable living trust. Such trusts take effect during your lifetime and can be changed or revoked anytime before your death. You can appoint a trustee, or you can manage the trust yourself.

Under certain circumstances, revocable living trusts can provide

1. Probate savings and quicker distribution of assets. Assets held in revocable living trusts need not pass through probate upon your death. Because the assets are distributed directly to your beneficiaries, the procedure is quicker and less expensive. You will, however, incur time and expense in transferring your assets to the trust in the first place. The net benefit you recieve depends upon probate costs and the value

When using the trust, include a "pourover" will to ensure that property inadvertently left out of the trust will "pour over" into the trust upon your death. (These assets will be probated.)

2. Privacy. When wills are probated in most states, the list of the testator's assets is disclosed in court and becomes a matter of public record. With revocable living trusts, the information usually remains confidential.

3. Reduction of challenges. Revocable living trusts are generally more difficult to challenge than are wills. Such protection is especially important if disappointed relatives receive less than they expected and want to sue for whatever they can recover.

4. Protection during incompetency. By establishing successor trustees, you can ensure that your trust assets will continue to be properly managed if you become incompetent for any reason. These are just the basics. Consult an attorney and an accountant knowledgeable in estate planning to determine whether a revocable living trust is suitable in your situation.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has filed two separate applications with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to introduce two new optional directory services. One service is Directory Assistance Call Completion (DACC) and the other service is Multiple List Directory Assistance (MLDA).

DACC is an optional service that provides customers the option of having their Directory Assistance call completed to the requested number (when they call Directory Assistance for a number) by either the Directory Assistance operator or a mechanized audio response system.

The proposed rates* for fully-automated DACC calls are: $.30 if the call is sent paid or billed to a calling card, $1.00 if the call is collect or billed to a third number and $.25 from a coin telephone.

The proposed rates* for semi-automated (operator assisted) DACC calls are: $.85 for calls that are sent paid or billed to a calling card, $1.20 if the call is collect or billed to a third number and $2.60 for a person-to-person call.

Multiple List Directory Assistance (MLDA) allows the customer to request more than two listing requests per call to Directory Assistance. Customers can either call on "demand" and receive up to 10 listings, or schedule an "appointment" and receive the assistance of a Directory Assistance operator for as long as required. The rates for "demand" MLDA are $.30 per listing request (after applicable allowances), with a maximum of 10 listing requests per call. The rates for "appointment" MLDA are $1.00 per minute, with a 15-minute minimum.

The optional services DACC and MLDA are intended for use by both residence and business customers. Those persons who qualify for exemption of Directory Assistance charges because of visual or physical handicaps will be able to use DACC and "demand" MLDA free of charge. If approved by the commission, DACC and MLDA will be available beginning May 13, 1991. Firstyear projected revenues for DACC are approximately $9.6 million. First-year projected revenues for MLDA are approximately

A message from the ABILENE EYE INSTITUTE CATARACT SURGERY CENTER DEDICATED TO EXCELLENCE

We specialize in cataract surgery with intraocular lens implant and routinely use the small incision phacoemulsfication technique. We have 2 modern, fully equipped operating rooms each with its own Zeiss operating microscope and Phacoemulsifier. We also have an observation room so that family and friends may view the surgery while it is happening. Our ambulatory surgery center is State licensed and Medicare approved. We have performed over 3,000 cataract implant operations since 1987. Our doctors accept Medicare Assignment and we think you will find our fees very competitive with most hospitals. Our friendly, dedicated staff is available to answer any of your questions. If you need transportation, we can help.

--Social Security--

By Glyn Hammons District Director

People who work while they are etting Social Security benefits eed to report their earnings by pril 15, if their earnings are above ertain limits.

For 1990 earnings, the reports re required from beneficiaries who ere age 65-69 and earned more nan $9,360, or under 65 and earned nore than $6,840, and received ome benefits in 1990. Earnings ver those amounts count in etermining the amount of Social ecurity benefits due.

People who were 70 or older uring all of 1990 do not have to le an earnings report no matter ow much they earned.

The annual report forms were railed automatically to anyone who indicated they would be working and earning over the exempt amounts while they were getting benefits. Anyone who needs to file a report but didn't get one in the mail should call Social Security to ask for an Annual Report of Earnings form.

In their earnings reports, Social Security beneficiaries show the exact amount of the past year's earnings and provide an estimate of their earnings for the current year. For 1991, earnings over $9,720 for people 65-69, and earnings over $7,080 for people under 65, count in figuring the amount of Social Security benefits that can be paid.
