Woodwork. by Dalton

TRADITIONALLY a man's work role around the house has been to fix sticky doors and replace lights and locks, fix leaky faucets, change the oil in the car and mow the lawn at least once each summer. But in two-worker households, where the wife also has a 40-hour job outside the home, men who really love their wives are also pitching in to help with what normally would be considered woman's work, such as washing dishes, changing diapers, vacuuming, doing the laundry and changing sheets on the bed every month or two.

In other words, when a man starts helping around the house, he has become, depending on one's point of view, either (a) more considerate and helpful, or (b) a total wimp, too cowardly to insist that his wife do all that stuff in addition to working all week and making him a living.

Being helpful around the house gives a man a new appreciation of what a woman has to deal with. This was especially impressed on me when I tried to launder some of my own wash-and-wear things last weekend. I not only made a mess of my clothes, but also made a mess of the whole utility room.

My first clue that males are not supposed to wash clothes was back when our son went off to college and he decided he needed to know how to use the laundry equipment. His first question was "Do you put the soap in the washer or the dryer?"

Since then, I have done my own washing on occasion, so last weekend was not a first for me. It was the first time I had to wash the same load of stuff three times, though. First I separated my dirty clothes into two stacks:

1. All the shirts and pants which you are supposed to pour a cupful of blue stuff over at a certain point in the wash cycle, only I nearly always miss the opportunity to do that, so I have to tear off a sheet of fabric softener paper, or whatever they call it, and throw it in the dryer so my shirts and britches will look neat like they have been ironed.

2. Stuff that it doesn't matter what they look like, since only you or somebody you're not trying to impress will ever see them. You can wash these sox and underwear and putter pants on regular cycle, without worrying about having to put in any exotic chemicals at a certain time, except maybe a quart of bleach once in awhile.

Anyway, I ran a load of wash-wear fabrics through, then put the clothes in the dryer, throwing in a sheet of that softener paper, since I forgot the liquid as usual. I started the dryer, put the second stack of grungies in for regular wash, and only as I added soap to this wash did I suddenly realize I washed the first load without putting

I pulled the first load out of the dryer and tossed them into a basket, knowing I'd have to re-wash them, with soap. A little later, the grungies were done, and I pulled out some of them to put into the dryer. As I pulled them out of the washer, I noticed that each item of clothing was dotted with little bits of paper. I had washed something with a Kleenex in the pocket. I decided to shake them out as I transferred them to the dryer, and soon there were little pieces of paper all over the utility room, only there still were lots of pieces stuck to the clothes, and which I had to pick off one at a time.

It couldn't have been just one facial tissue. There were 11,000 pieces of paper, so I must have had all my pockets stuffed with tissues. I like to never have got all that stuff off the clothes, not to mention the floor, my shoes, the throw rugs and the inside of the washer.

So I finally started this load drying, and put the first load back into the washer, this time with soap. Later I removed the grungies, and took the wash-wear stuff out for the second time and put them into the dryer. I figured I could re-use the blue softener paper, since it had only been used a few minutes the first time.

This, of course, was another mistake. A half hour later, when I took the things out and hung them on hangers, I could see my dress shirts and beautiful slacks had more wrinkles than Ann Richards. I had enjoyed all the laundering I could for one day, so I waited until the next day to put them back into the washer for the third time, just on the rinse cycle, so I could immediately put some of that blue gook

This finally worked, although the clothes still don't look quite right. But that's okay, since clothes always look strange anyway when I wear them. Conclusion: Housewives and wimpy men lead a hard life.

Tahoka Police officers said two Chevrolet Camaros were stolen in Lubbock and apparently were driven together to Tahoka, where one of them was abandoned about 4:30 a.m. Wednesday when it was about out of Mayor Jim Solomon said he discovered the 1985 Blue Camaro up in his yard on N. 1st St. about 5:30 a.m. The lights were on and the motor was running, although it was showing empty on the gauge. He said the car apparently had been driven across some other yards in the vicinity. Meanwhile, officers reported, the other Camaro had been left in O'Donnell, where a Buick Regal, model and owner not immediately known, had been stolen. This car, in turn, was left on Rock Crusher Rd. in Dawson County, where a 1974 Dodge pickup was stolen.

Dawson County officers arrested four of the suspects on foot and one in the pickup about nine miles north of. Lamesa, headed north.

Shannon Bishop reported that someone burglarized her residence on Ave. M sometime in the last week and took items valued at a total of $415, including an Emerson VCR with remote control, some painted sea shells and miscellaneous articles.

A 1994 Chevrolet van owned by Al Griggs Autocenter was burglarized last Friday, with a 9-inch color TV, VCR and table tops stolen. A 36year-old white male suspect from

Commissioners Conduct Routine Business Here

Lynn County Commissioners Monday conducted routine business in a regular meeting, including approving reports of county officials.

County Treasurer Janet Porterfield reported that a representative of Mutual of Omaha insurance company wanted to meet with the court in the near future to discuss insurance coverage.

John Webster met with the court to ask the county to participate in a calendar project depicting drawings of area businesses, as a fund raiser for the local school. Commissioners decided to participate as individuals, not as a county project, and to pay for the project out of their own pockets. All four commissioners and County Judge J.F. Brandon were present for the meeting.

Diggs Wins Nomination For Sheriff

Jake Diggs won the Democratic nomination for the unexpired term of Lynn County Sheriff in a primary runoff election Tuesday. Diggs received 723 votes to 325 for Elton Childress.

The turnout, with a total vote of 1092, was considered good, since only 1327 votes were cast in that race in the first primary, when Diggs had 640 votes to 446 for Childress and 241 for Clayton Laws.

In three state races on the Democratic ballot, Richard Fisher had 420 votes for attorney general to 575 for Jim Maddox, although Fisher won statewide. In Lynn County, the vote on nominee for Supreme Court, place 1, was close, with Raul Gonzalez getting 496 votes and René Haas getting 497. Gonzalez won statewide. Betty Marshall, the state winner in the race for judge of criminal appeals court, won 534-355 over Gene Kelly in Lynn County.

Ten votes were cast in the Lynn County Republican runoff, with two state races on the ballot. Don Wittig was an 8-2 winner over Patricia Lykos for attorney general, and Sharon Keller had a 6-4 margin over Sam Bayless for judge of criminal ap-

District Attorney Victim Of Barrage From Own Gun As His Car Burns

A few weeks ago [in 1930] our columns carried a news story about the car of District Attorney T.L. Price becoming ignited and burning up on the highway a few miles this side of Seagraves.

But another story, which we did not get at the time, has leaked out and Price has "fessed up" to the whole affair

It seems that exercising the right given him by the law and the precaution which a wise man should take in these days of hi-jackers, Price had slipped a big .44 into the side pocket of the new Buick. When he discovered that the car was afire, he jumped out of it and began jerking off one of the front tires in an effort to save as many of the accessories as possible, keeping one eye skinned in the direction of the gas tank in the meantime with a view to absconding as soon as an explosion might

"Bang! bang!," went the gun, and a bullet or two whizzed by Price's left ear. He "lit out" across the terrain in a seeming effort to overtake the bullet. When he came to himself he was over behind a sand bank 30 or 40 yards from the burning vehicle. Hearing no further report, he finally decided to peep over the sand bank and find out what was doing. He had scarcely gone over the top when that .44 got busy again. Price says he doesn't know how many shells exploded but it sounded to him like a regular bombardment from the whole Hindenburg line, or some such battlefront. Not having a speedometer attached to his person he doesn't know just how many miles per he made during the next few seconds, but when he again regained consciousness he found that it was a long, long walk back to the ruins of his car.

He finally recovered the gun, but had to catch a ride back to Tahoka. - Oct. 16, 1930

Mildred Aldridge Ingle

Services for Mildred Elizabeth Aldridge Ingle, 79, of Tahoka were at 10 a.m. Friday, April 8 in First Baptist Church with the Rev. Jerry Becknal, pastor, officiating.

The Rev. Marvin Gregory, pastor of First United Methodist Church, assisted. Burial was in Tahoka Cemetery directed by White Funeral Home.

She died Wednesday, April 6. 1994 in Lubbock Methodist Hospi-

She was born on July 13, 1914 in Normangee, Texas. She grew up living all along the Brazos River. Mildred had six brothers and sisters and only one survives, Eddie Estel Fuller of Tahoka. She worked for Mrs. Maude Donaldson cooking for a large number of ranch hands in Tahoka and Snyder. She married Calvin Hubert Aldridge in Lubbock. A daughter, Edith Alline was born in Earth, Texas and was killed in 1955 in a car accident. Jerolene (Jerry) was born at New Moore, and she married Joe Taylor Brooks in Mildred headed maize, pulled bolls with a cotton sack, drove a tractor, chopped cotton, fed cows. raised chickens and hogs, gardened and planted a yard full of flowers, as well as her house work. She was an excellent cook and seamstress.

In later years she kept great grandchildren who called her mamaw and had a garden and flowers until a few years ago. She is survived by grandchildren Brandon Britt Brooks and his wife Mary; Sherri Dawn McCord and her husband Gary; Angela Jo Ehlers and her husband David. Great grandchildren are Marissa Brooke, Brandon Stephen and Wesley Cameron McCord and Zachary Taylor Ehlers, Reghan Elizabeth and Rhyan David Ehlers.

Pallbearers were Neely Brooks Jr., Gary Brooks, Eddie Aldridge, Ray Ehlers, Michael Rivas, Jim Solomon, and Tom Ellis.

The family suggests memorials to Senior Citizens (Lynn Co. Pioneer Club), Tahoka First Baptist Scholarship fund and Ronald McDonald House.

Local Volunteers Honored During Volunteer Week

National Volunteer Week 1994 will be observed the week of April 17-23. The Senior Companion Program has six volunteers that work in Lynn County for 20 hours a week.

The volunteers are Audelia Casarez, Dora Hernandez, Beulah Hubbard, Dorothy McCullough, Trudy Schuknecht, and Edith Wallace. These individuals are working in Tahoka and O'Donneli.

In 1993 these people contributed 5,930 hours to others within their communities. Thus far in 1994 they have accumulated 1,486 volunteer hours.

The Senior Companion program has been funded through ACTION by the Domestic Volunteer Act of 1973. The program has been moved under the Corporation for national and Community Service as a result of legislation this past September - The National and Senior Volunteer Corps. Local program keeps active senior citizens who in turn help other adults who have a physical, mental or emotional need that must be met in order that independent living be maintained.

The Companion Program is active in the following eight counties of the South Plains: Bailey, Cochran, Garza, Hockley, Lamb, Lynn, Terry and Yoakum.

Hair Dye Doesn't Cause Cancer

Good news for women who dye their hair. According to a study by the American Cancer Society, hair dyes pose little or no cancer risk. In this large study women who colored their hair had a slightly decreased risk of all fatal cancers and a 35% lower risk of urinary system cancers. However, women who used black hair dye for at least 20 years - 1% - faced a higher risk of fatal non-Hodgkins lymphoma and multiple

WON'T YOU BE MY NEIGHBOR?

Mister Rogers of the children's television show is always singing about how he would like for "you" to be his neighbor. The idea of being a neighbor entails more than just living in close proximity to another person. Neighborliness includes a caring, loving relationship and a willingness to become involved in the lives of another. A good neighbor is willing to risk himself for you.

In Luke 10:25-37 Jesus is asked what is required to inherit eternal life? Jesus asked, "what does the law say?" The response is to love God and your neighbor as yourself. Jesus was then asked, "Who is my neighbor?" He then told the story of the "Good Samaritan." The Good Samaritan was a man who was willing to get involved with another, even when it was at cost to him. There were others who should have become involved, i.e. the priest and the Levite, but they did not. Jesus then told the disciples that the samaritan was the true neighbor and that they should go and do as he did.

The moral for us all is to be willing to help and get involved in the lives of one another in a beneficial way. We want to be your neighbor. Won't you be ours? This may be the key to a better community and a better way

Cancer Golf Tourney Set For April 30

The annual Lynn County Cancer Society Golf Tournament, sponsored by the Lynn County chapter of the American Cancer Society, will be held Saturday, April 30 at T-Bar Country Club, according to Gary McCord, chairman of the event. This is also the annual fundraising drive for businesses, and Lynn County Chapter volunteers will be calling area businesses for donations prior to the tournament.

The golf tournament fundraiser begins April 30 with a 1 p.m. tee-off time. Cost is $100 per four-member team (at least one member must be female), or $25 per person. Concession items of cookies and brownies will be offered during the day. The tournament will conclude with a dinner, which is included in the cost for all players.

Guests are also welcome at the dinner; cost is $5 per plate for adults and $3 for children.

All proceeds from the tournament will go to the American Cancer Soci-

Anyone wishing to participate in the tournament can sign up by calling T-Bar Country Club at 998-5305 or contact Gary McCord or Stan Gill.

Last year the tournament netted $1697 from entry fees and concession sales and the local business drive netted $1610.

Center Pivots Improve Irrigation Water Management

In Lynn County, irrigation efficiency has improved as more producers have converted to center pivot sprinklers, says SCS representatives. Efficiencies of 75 percent or higher can be obtained with a new center pivot, whereas furrow irrigation can be in the 20 to 40 percent range.

Pumping water from the Ogallala Aquifer to apply to crops is a major cost to Lynn County farmers. To keep irrigation costs down, producers must apply the water as efficiently as possible. By converting from furrow irrigation to a center pivot a producer can reduce labor cost, decrease fuel cost, and save water. A center pivot allows a producer to irrigate in a more timely manner. Crop yields can be increased as a result of better crop Producers in Lynn County have averaged putting in about 20 center pivots a year between 1990 and 1993 according to a recent pivot inventory update by the High Plains Underground Water District.

Producers who have questions about irrigation water management are encouraged to call the local Soil Conservation Service at 998-4507 or year, especially in the newly infested areas of the southern High Plains, says Tommy Doederlein, Dawson/ Lynn County Extension Agent. Entomologist.

A 6.0-8.5% survival has been predicted for this year's overwintering weevil populations. In relative terms this prediction looks very good compared to the historical average of 7.7% and last year's 22.4%. The prediction is generated by a very good computer model which has been shown to be fairly accurate. One assumption that had to be made was the quality of food available prior to weevils going into overwintering habitats. Food quality will greatly influence survival and emergence timing. An early maturing crop, as we had last year, will provide a poor diet and should decrease survival and early emergence. However, a value of 0.9 was used (on a scale of 0 to 1, with 1 being the best). This being the case we suspect that the model is overestimating survival. The data was generated from shinnery oak litter habitat, the best there is for weevil survival. We expect much lower survival in CRP and pasture situations. In addition to survival rate, numerous other factors (number weevils entering overwintering habitats in the fall, time of cotton planting, time of the onset of cotton fruit production and the amount of rainfall prior to and during the growing season) will influence the

There has been a lot of publicity about boll weevil attract-and-kill devices such as the boll weevil "bait stick" and the BWACT (Boll Weevil Attract and Control Tube). The BWACT tubes are being actively marketed in Texas across boll weevil infested areas of the Cotton Belt. The idea and concept behind this technology is intriguing, but data from six experiments in Texas and Oklahoma do not support the claims by the manufacturer.

size of the overwintering population that successfully colonizes this year's cotton crop.

During the period 1991-1993, six tests were conducted with boll weevil attract-and-kill devices. Test locations ranged from the Texas Gulf Coast area through west Texas to southern Oklahoma. Boll weevil infestations in the various tests ranged from very light to moderately heavy. Tests in 1991 and 1992 used the original boll weevil stick developed by the USDA Boll Weevil Research Unit at Mississippi State, Mississippi. The commercial BWACT marketed by Plato Industries Inc., Houston, Texas was used in a 1993 test. Overall, 74 commercial cotton fields were involved in these tests. Forty-two fields were treated with attract-and-kill devices and 32 fields served as untreated checks. In all tests, boll weevil infestations in treated fields were compared with those in untreated check fields.

In four of the tests, boll weevil

New Tenderizing Process May Revolutionize Beef Industry

by KRIS BELEW

Texas Tech Journalism Student It's an invention that could revolutionize the beef industry - taking no roll beef (USDA Standard Grade), and injecting it with Calcium Chloride (CaCl2), to improve its tender-

The result is an extremely lean cut of beef, low in fat and cholesterol, with the tenderness and flavor people expect in a USDA Choice steak.

In cooperation with USDA, Texas Tech University is testing this solution to a "tough" problem.

The problem is that USDA Standard beef is generally too tough to eat as a steak, therefore, it is sold at a lower cost to retailers and packaged as hamburger or stew meat.

T-Bar Ranch Manager Frank McLelland said,"This could potentially boost the price we receive on our cows and bulls we take to market each fall."

T-Bar culls approximately 30-45. head of old breeding cattle per year. The lack of tenderness is a direct result of a low grade of intramuscular fat, or marbling. However, if CaCl2 is injected into Standard beef, the tenderness is increased to a point where it is acceptable to serve as a

This is why the CaCl2 injection system is seen as a tremendous breakthrough in the beef industry. It opens up a new market for Standard beef, and has the potential for a higher profit margin.

Mark Miller, Ph.D., Texas Tech, said, "This innovation offers the cattle industry an immediate solution until we can provide naturally tender beef through breeding and genetics."

Consumer panel studies conducted by Texas Tech show that out of 425 consumers, all found the CaCl2 injected steaks as "acceptable" in ten-

Moreover, the benefits of a lean beef product, with added calcium, are passed on to the consumer at no extra charge. Also, consumers are not burdened with any special cooking or preparation instructions.

Implementing the program into beef packers' programs is the only step left. The National Cattle Association, and the National Livestock and Meat Board are working together with Texas Tech to help packing plants across the country begin this program.

One of the trailblazers who is planning to implement the program is Capital Meats of San Antonio. Working together with the Texas Beef Industry, Capital hopes to offer CaCl2 Standard beef to restaurants in the near future.

(Editor's Note: The Texas Tech journalism program with area newspapers is made possible by a grant from the Reader's Digest

Public Notice

On February 22, 1994, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company ("Southwestern Bell" or "Company") filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("Commission") to restructure the Company's Local Transport and Directory Transport categories of its Switched Access Service. This matter has been assigned to Docket No. 12784. The tariff sheets in Southwestern Bell's application, if approved, will bring the Company's intrastate Access Service Tariff into structural parity with the Company's interstate Tariff No. 73 for Local Transport. Southwestern Bell's companion interstate tariff became effective on January 1, 1994.

The transport rate elements provide for the transmission facilities between the cutomer's premises and the end office switch(es) where the customer's traffic is switched to originate or terminate the customer's communications.

Southwestern Bell proposes to implement the revised tariffs on a revenue neutral basis. Although the proposed tariff changes will affect all customers subscribing to Switched Access Service, the Local Transport and Directory Transport categories of Southwestern Bell's Switched Access Service is primarily for interexchange carriers. If approved, this application will result in an increase in Southwestern Bell's revenues of approximately $1682.00 during the first year. Southwestern Bell proposes that the changes be effective on December 1, 1994.

Persons who wish to intervene in or comment upon these proceedings should notify the commission as soon as possible, as an intervention deadline will be imposed. A request to intervene or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission's Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256 or (512) 458-0221 for text telephone. The deadline for intervention in the proceeding is May 6, 1994.

Tahoka Students Win At Young Authors Competition

Three Tahoka students recently won awards at the Lubbock Arts Festival Young Authors competition. Ryan Curry, Klyssa Kelln and Diana Saldana were selected from among 600 entries in this year's competition as winners in their division.

Because 1994 marked the 25th anniversary of the Lubbock Arts Alliance, the theme for the competition was "Silver Salute." Students were given the opportunity to write about the accomplishments and occurrences in the past 25 years, and their dreams and desires for the coming 25 years.

Ryan Curry, a fifth grader and son of Zane and Danna Curry, received second place and a $50 savings bond for his poem "My House." Ryan's poem elevated his treasures and memories which could not be measured by silver or gold.

Klyssa Kelln, also a fifth grader, received honorable mention for her story of her great-greatgrandmother's immigration from Russia to the United States. Klyssa, daughter of Jay and Karen Kelln, related in "My Silver Heritage" that her grandmothers' life is a constant reminder to have faith and courage in all of life's adventures.

Ryan and Klyssa's writings were submitted to the competition by Gwen Cate, Learning Resource Specialist at Tahoka Elementary.

Diana Saldana, a junior at Tahoka High School and daughter of Ramon and Josefina Saldana, won honorable mention for her Spanish story, "La Princesa y El Collar de Plata" (The After a recurring dream about a prince dressed in blue, holding a silver necklace, the princess meets and marries the man of her dreams. She then understands that the silver necklace symbolizes their love. Diana's story was submitted by Danna Curry, Spanish teacher at Tahoka High School.

Other entries from Tahoka, submitted by Mrs. Cate and Mrs. Curry, were by Amy McAfee, Leigh McAfee, Callie McKay, Juan Luna, Lynette Trevino and Jerry Torres.

Presenting this year's awards was Texas author, James Rice, known for his theme books Prairie Christmas, Cowboy Christmas and the Cowboy

Following the presentation of awards, the students were honored by the Lubbock Arts Festival with a reception. Students visited with other recipients and autographed the bound collections of their writings.

MUSEUM NEWS

The replication of the courtroom at the Tahoka Pioneer Museum, especially the display of handcuffs, knives, guns and miscellaneous weapons, is "awesome" according to the Elementary students that have recently toured the Museum. The "brass knuckles," displayed in one area brought "oohs and ahhs" from the oungsters and as they would approach the mural by Bill Craig, they would suddenly recoil as they saw moved or what? When I was a kid (I can't believe I'm saying that), we heard sonic booms all the time. Why, it got so that you couldn't hardly go outside without some jet whizzing around and breaking the sound barrier. I'm pretty sure my science teachers must have covered sonic booms in our textbooks at some point or another, but for the life of me I can't remember exactly (or even vaguely) why we have a sound barrier, or how one goes about breaking it, except by going extremely fast, even faster than the teenagers hot-rodding down my street in their pickups.

The wayward thoughts of Juanell (Wood) Jones a plan nevertheless, and at the very least signifies a smidgen of hope that, someday, God and weather fore-

The basis of the plan calls for a massive, ear-splitting burst of noise from the earth, directed towards the heavens. Remember sonic booms, those loud booms from the heavens made when a jet broke the sound barrier, and how they got everybody's attention on the ground? How come we never hear those anymore? I know jets have gotten faster than ever before ... has the sound barrier caster John Robison willing, we will get some rain.

I have a plan. It's not a very good plan, granted, but it's Anyway, back to my plan. I suggest that we choose a time convenient for everyone, say about 12:45 p.m. so that you've had time to eat lunch, when we can all (everybody in the county) go outside. Bring with you any noise-making piece of equipment that you can find, including teenagers, barking dogs, jam boxes, band instruments, old cars with bad mufflers, rifles and pistols, small children who haven't yet had their naps, and, if you can find one, any loud blustery politicians. We'll send a barrage of noise into the heavens so loud and obnoxious that surely we can break the rain barrier. of which I am convinced is centered squarely over Lynn County. We can do this every day until (a) we drive each other stark raving bonkers until we wouldn't know a rain drop if we saw it anyway, or (b) God takes pity on us and sends us some rain.

Hey, I know it's a lousy plan, but until you offer one better, we go with this one. We begin Friday. I'll bring a barking dog, and an umbrella.

the coiled rattlesnake.

The Board of Directors met Monday, April 11 at noon at the Museum.

A current acquisition of two football jackets, pictures, and programs from the estate of Willie V. Lee, a 1954 graduate of Tahoka High School and a star football player was appreciated.

The Display committee is working on moving pictures to the new picture rack and several items will be added to the new display case.

Members present were Arlys Askew, Melvin Burks, K.R. Durham. Mary Louder, Madeline Hegi, Weesie Carroll, Betsy Pridmore, Bitsy Wells, Edde Lockaby and Mildred Abbe.
