NOW IT CAN BE Ridiculed Dept.: When we had local auto dealers in the past, I had to be careful not to offend them, because they advertised in our newspaper, and we do love those who advertise. Especially I had to be careful not to say anything bad about whatever brand of vehicle was sold locally.

Now that we no longer have a local dealer, I can at least criticize some of the sales tactics that car dealers use.

One of the worst tactics, I think, is the ad that says payments are just $249 a month, with little or no down payment. This, of course, is a bid to attract those car buyers who can't afford a very big payment. There are lots of folks in that category, but they should realize what the fine print says about the deal. In letters smaller than a gnat could read up close, it says things like "249 a month is your payment all right, but it goes for five years, and first you have to pay $2400 for tax, title, license, something called a document fee, something we call dealer preparation and vehicle enhancement, sign up for a year of internet service, buy our totally useless extended warranty and pay for the sales manager's lunches for three years. And at the end of the five years, or after 59 payments, you have one payment left, of only $17,500. But if you're dumb enough to accept a deal like this, come on in—we have lots of great cars to choose from."

Another really bad tactic, I think, and one which I haven't run across in Lubbock, but did find in Dallas a couple of times and heard about in Midland, is the "hide the keys" practice. You look at a car, have them drive yours to figure out a trade, and when you get back, they hold your keys so you can't drive away until they have fired all their sales ammunition at you. This stinks, and when they try to do this to you, you should throw a major fit and demand your keys at the top of your voice, and then get out of there.

Sometimes a salesman will not tell you how much the dealer wants for his car. You say "how much is this car?" and he comes back with "how large a payment do you think you could make?" Later you ask him again and he says, "Why don't we go in here and talk about what kind of a good deal we can make for you." Or, "we can come 'way off the sticker price."

As Dave Barry once said about such deals, you feel like pulling out a gun and placing it against the guy's forehead and saying "Tell me how much this car is or I'm going to shoot."

Our son, who is an insurance claims adjuster for vehicles involved in accidents, hates the way dealers sell cars these days. "Somebody buys a car for nearly nothing down, with low payments and a big balloon payment at the end, then it gets totaled out in a wreck six months later, and he can't understand why you can't put him back into another car just like it at the same payments. The problem is, he still owes a lot more than the first car was worth before it was wrecked. The insurance company pays what it is worth, and he still owes the original lien holder thousands of dollars. He still has a car payment, but no car."

But dealers do sell a lot of cars that way.

TAKING BIDS NOW—Auctioneer Billy Miller (left) gives his auctioneering spiel at the Lynn County Hospital District Fun/Food Festival Saturday, as Cal Huffaker holds up a cake for auction. The 21st annual event raised at least $17,400 at last count, with some funds still coming in according to Hospital Auxiliary members. The total is expected to be close to $18,000 - perhaps the best fund-raising event ever in the festival's history. All proceeds benefit the local hospital and Lynn County EMS. (LCN PHOTO)

County Population Down By 208, But New Home Shows Big Increase

Lynn County's population has dwindled by 208 people during the last 10 years, according to preliminary figures released by Census 2000 officials, but the population of New Home city residents has almost doubled. City of Tahoka residential population also increased, but Wilson and O'Donnell city populations showed decreases since the 1990 census.

New Home showed the biggest increase in population in the county, with 145 more people residing within

Geographic Area	1990 Census Population	2000 Census Population	Percentage Increase/Decline
New Home	175	320	82.8% increase
Tahoka	2865	2910	1.6% increase
Wilson	568	532	6.3% decline
O'Donnell	1102	1011	8.3% decline
Lynn County	6758	6550	3.1% decline

city limits than the 1990 census of 175 population compared to 320 residents tabulated in the 2000 census. That's an increase of 82.8 percent.

And, although the city population signs at Tahoka indicate a population of 3,262, that figure was from the 1980 census and the signs were never changed when the 1990 census figures were released. The 1990 census indicated a decrease in population with figures of 2,865, and since then Tahoka has grown by 45 people, with the 2000 census figures totaling 2,910 for the city of Tahoka. That figure represents a 1.6 percent increase since the 1990 census.

The county population in 1990 totaled 6,758 people, according to census figures. During the past 10 years, 208 people have left Lynn County, with 2000 census figures tabulating 6,550 people in the county - down 3.1 percent.

The city of O'Donnell has lost 91 residents during the past 10 years, from 1,102 population in 1990 to 1,011 in 2000, representing an 8.3 percent decrease. City of Wilson had a 6.3 percent decline in population, with census figures indicating a decrease of 36 residents, from 568 population in 1990 to a population of 532 in 2000.

Eleven student transfers were approved as presented, and policy updates were approved. Trustees voted to approve a Life Skills Program for the school and authorized Supt. Parker to hire a teacher and teacher's aid for the program. The program will be paid for through special education funding, school officials said.

Trustees gave approval for bids to be solicited for resurfacing the high school track, and Supt. Parker gave an update on legislative hearings regarding school health insurance and declining enrollment.

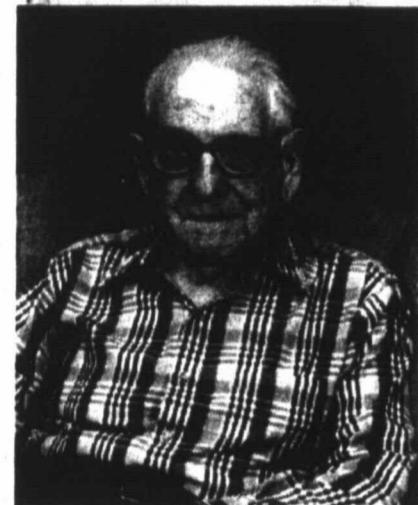

Trustees adopted a TASB resolution honoring the local news media for fair and accurate coverage of school activities, naming Juanell Jones and Vendell Elliott of The Lynn County News for the Texas Association of School Board's Media Honor Roll.

Campus principals reported on attendance rates and other activities on each campus, and district counselor Sherri McCord told trustees that results of the Exit Level TAAS test should be in soon.

The board will canvass the May 5 election at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 8 at the Harvick Educational Building, with the regular trustee meeting to follow immediately after.

All seven trustees were present for the meeting, which lasted just over three hours.

OUTSTANDING EMPLOYEE - Helen Saldana (left), district secretary for Lynn County SWCD, was presented an award at the annual Soil and Water Conservation District Awards Banquet on April 3 for her dedicated service and outstanding performance. Leland White Named Outstanding Conservation Farmer At Banquet

Leland White of New Home was honored as the Outstanding Conservation Farmer of Lynn County for 2000 during ceremonies at the Lynn County Soil and Water Conservation District Annual Banquet held April 3.

"Leland is stewardship oriented, a progressive and innovative farmer, a leader in agriculture and in his community, and a devoted family man. The Lynn County Soil and Water Conservation District is proud to honor him with this award," said Michael White, SWCD director, when presenting the award.

White has lived all his life in Lynn County and is a second-generation Lynn County farmer. He began his farming career 50 years ago near the two-room schoolhouse where he started school. White's farming operation consists of 1,000 acres of irrigated cropland and 310 acres of dryland. His principal crops are cotton and grain sorghum.

"Leland is a profound believer in the conservation ethic and stewardship of our natural resources. He believes that a farmer's greatest legacy is to conserve our natural resources for future generations. Leland is also an ardent believer in the locally led conservation process and has been a cooperator with the Lynn County Soil and Water Conservation District since 1951. Working in partnership with the Lynn County SWCD, he has implemented several practices to protect his land from wind and water erosion, that conserve water quantity, improve water quality, and provide wildlife habitat," said the SWCD director.

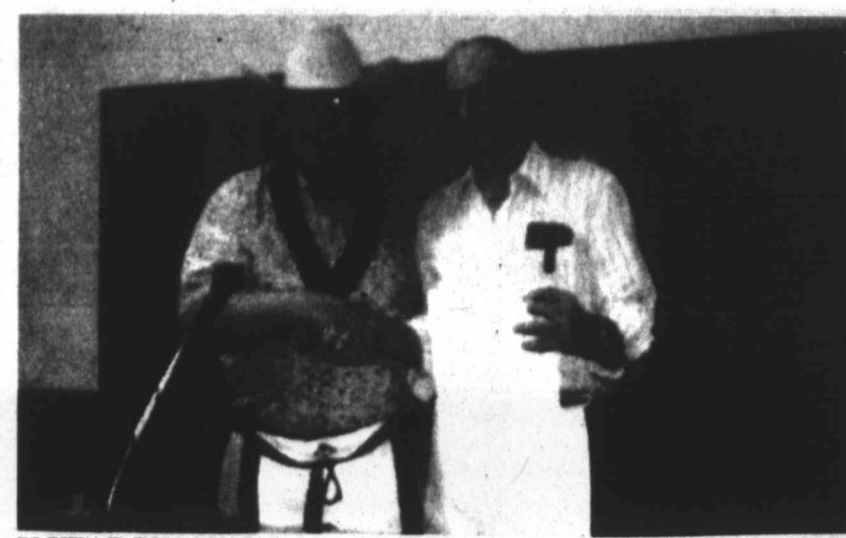

White has used an additional water quality improvement tool available through the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board. In partnership with the local SWCD he enrolled 130 acres of his most sensitive land in a Senate Bill 503 Water Quality Plan. The plan includes the following conservation practices: a crop rotation system with high residue crops, crop residue management, pest management, nutrient management, maintenance of the existing sprinkler, surface, and subsurface systems, and irrigation water management.

He has also been an active leader in agriculture on the South Plains. He has served on the Farm Bureau Board for 30 years, serving as County Director for 30 years, Vice President for six years, and President for seven years. He also served as a State Director for six years. He was a member of the Lubbock Agriculture Club for 15 years, serving as Director for three years. Currently he represents the New Home area and Lynn County on the South Plains Caprock Boll Weevil Eradication Zone, and is currently serving as Vice President of the Boll Weevil Eradication Steering Committee.

White is also active in his community. He has been a strong supporter of the youth of the county. He has served as treasurer for the New Home Livestock Show and is active in the Lynn County Livestock Show. Leland also served on the Lynn County Hospital Board for 15 years, serving as President for ten years. Additionally, he served as Treasurer and Trustee for seven years for the New Home Methodist Church, where he and his family are members.

He and his wife, Barbara, have two children, Debbie and Michael. Debbie lives in Dallas and Michael and his family live in Lynn County.

50 YEAR PIN - W.P. Scott of Tahoka (right) was presented with his 50 year pin and a certificate from the Masonic Lodge No. 1041 on Tuesday, April 2. Presenting the award was Master Gene Ingle. Scott was honored with a supper attended by 35 lodge members, family and guests.

Letters To The Editor

Dear editor,

There is no way to express gratitude for the way our lives have been touched by the people of Tahoka. We have an ever-increasing list of names of those who have sent cards, encouragement, fasted and prayed on our behalf. We entertained everyone at the doctor's office as we read the many signatures on the pillow cases sent from the town. Of course everyone wanted to know where this Tahoka was. We loved telling about the people of Tahoka. Your kindness has touched many others here. It was such a surprise to receive the package and it brought many smiles.

We have to add a special thank you to the group that met to pray before we left. It is impossible to describe how deeply moving it is to read over that list. May God bless you richly.

What a blessing you have all been! Forever grateful, Guy and Connie Ward

Dear Editor,

I am writing about an incident that happened on Monday, April 2nd, at the Elem. gym. I went to watch my granddaughter play Little Dribblers. I took my billfold in with me so I could pay my way in. I guess I was caught up in the excitement of watching my granddaughter and her friends play basketball for the first time, because when the games were over I walked out of the gym without picking up my billfold. I realize that was my mistake for not remembering I had it with me, but the real disaster began when someone found it and picked it up. I don't know who you are, but I am writing this to you and to anyone else that finds something that doesn't belong to you and there is a way to know who it does belong to and you don't return it. There was identification in my billfold along with other personal belongings and, of course, some money. Everything in my billfold was mine, but if you thought you needed my money worse than I do, you could have at least left my billfold where someone that is honest could have found it and returned it to me with my driver's license and Social Security card and the other items inside.

Whoever you are, I hope this doesn't ever happen to you, but it probably will and you will be furious, especially if it turns out to be someone dishonest, because you won't get what belongs to you back, it will become theirs.

I truly hope you see this letter, because I want you to know that this was a very hurtful thing that you did to me, and remember the billfold is mine and so is everything in it — it belongs to me. Just because I don't know who you are doesn't mean you got away with keeping my billfold — God knows who you are.

IRS TAX TIP: CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS

When preparing to file your 2000 federal tax return, don't forget your contributions to charitable organizations. Your donations can add up to a nice tax deduction if you itemize on IRS Form 1040, Schedule A.

Here are a few tips to help make sure your contributions pay off on your tax return.

To be deductible, contributions must be made to qualified organizations. Organizations can tell you if they are qualified and if donations to them are deductible. The IRS Web site at www.irs.gov also has an Exempt Organization search feature to help you see if an organization is qualified.

If your contributions entitle you to merchandise, goods, or services, including admission to a charity ball, banquet, theatrical performance, or sporting event, you can deduct only the amount that exceeds the fair market value of the benefit received.

For a contribution of $250 or more, you can claim a deduction only if you obtain a written acknowledgment from the qualified organization. Generally, you can deduct your cash contributions, as well as the fair market value of any property you donate, to qualified organizations.

If you have questions about the deductibility of charitable contributions, call the IRS at 1-800-829-1040 or look on the IRS Web site at www.irs.gov.

You will need to fill out a nomination form (available at New Home High School) for your child or any other student. Forms must be completed by Tuesday, April 17.

If you have questions, please call 924-7543.
