Fire Department to hold Open House

The Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department and Clarendon Firebelles will be hosting their annual Fire Prevention and Open House on Saturday, October 15 at 10 p.m. at the fire station.

Students from Clarendon Elementary submitted their entries for the poster contest. The posters will be anonymously judged by the firemen, and the winners will be awarded on Saturday during the open house. Posters will be judged on how well the student expressed this year's Fire Prevention theme, "Protect Your Family from Fire".

Everyone is invited to attend the event to enjoy a tour of the fire station, refreshments, and learn more about ways to protect your family from fires. ,

2012 filing period begins November 1

Political primary elections will be held next March 2012, but the filing period for persons wanting to seek county offices next year begins November 1.

Any person who wishes to file for the Republican Primary can call Tom Stauder at 290-5525 to arrange a time to meet and receive the necessary forms. Those wishing to run in the Democratic Primary can call Jean Taylor at 856-5961 to receive the proper information.

According to the County Clerk's Office, positions up on next year's ballot include: District Judge, District Attorney, Sheriff, County Attorney, Tax Assessor-Collector, and County Commissioners in Precincts 1 and 3.

Filing for local offices closes on December 12, 2011.

CHS to host dinner theatre next week

The Clarendon High School Theatre Department and the FCCLA is proud to announce the first Clarendon High School dinner theatre, in several years. This year's show "Death?!! Before Dessert?!!" will be presented on Saturday, October 22.

The play is a collection of three comedic scenes about the difficulties in finding true love. The meal will be provided by the FCCLA. The meals will give people a taste of Fredericksburg Farms and their gourmet spices, courtesy of the Clarendon Outpost.

The meal will begin at 6 p.m. in the school cafeteria. The play will begin at approximately 7 p.m. in the Clarendon High School auditorium and will last approximately 75 minutes.

The cost for the meal and show is $15 for a single ticket or $25 for a couple. Tickets must be purchased in advance. Tickets can be purchased in the Clarendon High School office, from Mrs. Reynolds or Mr. Boone, at the Donley County State Bank, or with a credit card online at http:// www.cisdnet.net./boone/. Online tickets must be purchased by Thursday, October 20. All other tickets must be purchased by 8 a.m. on Friday, October 21.

3 DAYS,

THE CLARENDON NEWS &

By Ashlee & Roger Estlack, Clarendon Enterprise

trip to Dallas' Fair Park recently resulted in a vacation to remember I for two kids from Donley County.

Benjamin and Elaina Estlack, ages four and three, and their parents Roger and Ashlee made their first trek to the Texas State Fair this month to experience the sights, sounds, and tastes that are the hallmarks of a Lone Star legend.

A scheduled professional conference in Dallas for Ashlee opened the door to the possibility of taking a memorable trip, something more for the kiddos than the annual trip to a big city zoo. For days the kids' anticipation built as we made our plans to attend "the fair." They weren't quite sure what that meant, but they had a vague idea having attended the Tri-State Fair last year in Amarillo. Their main goal for the trip was to see some horses.

And so as soon as the Bronco pep rally was over on September 30, our family of four loaded up and headed to Big D, pulling into our hotel just before midnight after stopping in Wichita Falls for supper and the discount store in Bowie to invest in a couple of cheap strollers. (By far the wisest $30 we spent on the trip.)

Our day started not terribly early on Saturday. By 11:30 we were headed out of our hotel, and Ben wanted to know if we were taking the car.

"No, son. We're taking the train," Roger said, adding to Ben's excitement.

So adventure number one began as we pushed the kids four blocks through downtown Dallas to the Akard Station. Ben stared at the tall buildings and commented, "These skyscrapers are really scraping the sky!" Once at the station, Ben and Ella quickly spotted our train - the Green Line - and we were on our way to Fair Park with nary a worry of traffic or parking. The train dropped us off at the Fair's main gate, we grabbed our tickets at the "will call" window and headed inside, where were met by several friendly staff members and the expected Texas friendliness.

TIP: The Dallas Area Rapid Transit (DART) is a great way to get to the Fair. The cost is only $1.75 per person for a one-way ticket, and a kiosk at each station makes getting a ticket quick and easy. The trip from downtown to Fair Park takes less than ten minutes.

Our first stop was the information booth to grab a park map and plan our next move. After finding the petting zoo on the map, we started to make our way across the park. We took an discovered a log house on the other side. Not a log cabin as you might be thinking, but a house built inside a section of a felled giant California redwood. Ben and Roger put a dollar in the donation box and went inside the "tree house." Allen's Original Redwood Log House is a hollowed out section of a 1900-year-old redwood 33 feet long and more than eight feet wide. More than 11,000 board feet of lumber - enough to build a five room home - were removed to make the threeroom house. The walls are all sanded and varnished to show the wood's natural beauty. "It was a house made in a log, Ella," Ben matter-offactly reported to his sister afterward.

Continuing to make our way to the pettingzoo, we took another detour through the Craft Pavilion, where Ben picked up his first souvenir, a custom Western belt with his name stamped on the back.

Ben, not losing sight of our goal, tried to head us toward the Ferris wheel, but Mom and Dad guided him and his sister to the nearby "Kidway" - a section of rides exclusively for the younger crowd. Ben rode a "motorcycle" and Ella rode a "whale." Afterwards, tried to direct us to again the giant wheel, but he was easily sidetracked into taking a ride on a little train. When the little train stopped though, nothing would deter Ben from going to the Ferris wheel.

After parking our strollers and standing in a serpentine line for several minutes, we were finally locked into a steel cage and began our journey high above the park on the Texas Star Ferris Wheel - the tallest Ferris wheel in North America. According to official sources, the wheel was built in Italy and debuted in Fair Park in 1985. It carries riders 20 stories high; and on a clear day, those on board can see the downtown Fort Worth skyline some 40 miles away.

As the wheel began turning, Ella took cover in the seat before finally being persuaded to look down. Ben, however, peered out of the cage and said, "Whoa!" On the second revolution, Ella exclaimed, "I like it when it goes high, high, high into the sky!" And Ben added, "Up, up, up, and away!"

After two revolutions, we exited the big ride headed for the commercial exhibits in the coliseum. We quickly came across the "Old Time Photos" booth and decided now was as good a time as any for a family portrait. Ben and Roger were quickly dressed up as outlaws, Ella became a pistol-packing saloon girl, and Ashlee became a "working woman." A few cheesy pictures, lots of laughs, and $130 later, we were back in the strollers and touring the exhibits. We ended up at the coliseum stage just in time to see the final performance of the day of Billy Roy's One-Man Band. The kids sat spellbound as the multi-tasking musician played instruments with his feet, knees, legs, hands, mouth, and head. At one point he got all twelve instruments going at one time, and it actually sounded pretty good.

A quick picture underneath the big flashy "State Fair of Texas" sign and we headed out the door in search of more fun. Just a few steps See 'Fair' on page 6.

Rainfall dampens Cotton Festival

Rain and cool weather greeted people attending Hedley's 60th annual Cotton Festival last Friday and Saturday, but the welcome weather did not dampen any spirits.

The Lioness Club got things rolling Friday evening with a Chili & Stew Supper at the Lioness Den, and Lioness Susie Shields reported having a good attendance.

Saturday's events were cold and damp, but there were still several activities to enjoy, including several games for kids, pony rides, the Lions Club barbecue, and bingo games.

No winners were announced for the kids parade and regular parade. Harold and Mary Ruth White served as parade marshals for the big parade.

Winners of raffles at the festival included Jack Moreman for the Lioness Quilt, Courtney Newhouse for the bale of cotton, Billy David Ballew for the Cow Patty bingo, and Frannie Nuttall for the Two-Person Hunting Package.

The ex-students reunion was qualified as a success, and the dance Saturday evening was attended by 100 people, Mayor Dusty Wilkinson reported.

"We probably had half as many people [at the festival] as we did last year, but it wasn't bad for the weather we had," Wilkinson said.

City urges shots for cats, dogs

Clarendon officials are urging folks to get their pets vaccinated for rabies after a family dog had to be put down and tested.

City Administrator Lambert Little says state law requires dog and cat owners to get rabies shots for their animals, and a city ordinance also requires a those pets get a tag from City Hall. The tag costs one dollar, and the only requirement is proof the animal has had its shots.

"Besides being the law, it's just the smart thing to do if you care about your neighbors and your pets," Little said.

The administrator said a recent dog bite case in the city resulted in one family's dog having to be put down and tested for rabies. The dog, which bit a neighbor's child, had been a family pet for five years but had never been vaccinated. The test came back negative.

"The sad thing is when a human is the victim of an animal bite, we have to err on the side of caution," Little said.

According to state sources, the Texas Panhandle has reported 76 percent of the rabies cases in the state this year, and Little believes the drought is driving more wildlife into populated areas, raising the risk of rabies transmission. Skunks and raccoons are two species of wild animals seen in Clarendon recently, and both have a high rate of carrying rabies.

"If a human is exposed to rabies, they have to go through a series of expensive and painful shots," Little said.

City animal control officer Jason Christopher also encourages everyone to get pets vaccinated. The shots are inexpensive and are required for animals older than four months, he said.

In addition to the recent dog bite. Little knows of two other recent rabies tests in or near Clarendon. One was on a goat, which came back negative, and another test on a horse was positive for rabies.

We strolled through the food corridor and scoped out several tasty treats for later, and then five dollars bought a Solo cup of feed. We went from pen to pen feeding and petting a variety of animals. There were zebras, ponies, pigs, kangaroos, llamas, cows, donkeys, dromedaries (camels), goats, and several interesting animals whose identities are still a mystery to us. Several dozen photos and a generous amount of hand sanitizer later and we were headed for our next adventure - the Texas Star Ferris Wheel.

However, Ben and Ella were getting hungry so we visited the nearest Corny dog stand on our way to Midway. The kids went for the "safe" foods - chicken strips and mini corn dogs, while Roger and Ashlee went for foot-long corn dogs with frozen sweet tea and frozen lemonade. We sat down at a table next to two locals who we'll call Rob and Liz. This young couple leaves their kids with grandma every year to spend a day at the State Fair trying out the new foods. "Rob" quickly pointed out that we had already made a critical error in our choice of corn dogs. Fletcher's, he said, are the only corn dogs to eat at the far as they were the original corn dog. As it turns out, Carl and Neil Fletcher are reported to have invented the deep-fried corn-battered hot dog in their kitchen in Dallas and sold it for the first time at the State Fair of Texas in 1942. Today, the Fletcher family says they sell about 500,000 corn dogs during the 24-day run of the state fair.

Democrats use envy as political tool

By Dr. Paul Kengor

Envy is sadness or discontent at another's good fortune or excellence. Dante defined it as a perversion of one's own good; a "wish to deprive" others of their own good. Augustine deemed it "the diabolical sin."

Conservative columnist George Will quips that envy is the most miserable of the deadly sins because it brings not even fleeting pleasure.

No, envy simply makes you downright miserable and angry, at best providing perverse pleasure only when your prosperous neighbor suddenly suffers misfortune—or, in current application, when the federal government forcibly takes an even larger chunk of that neighbor's money.

But what happens when a political party crafts its appeal around envy? Of course, the Democratic Party has been doing just that for a long time. When I was in my early 20s and apolitical, class-warfare rhetoric was one of the first things that struck me about the Democratic Party, and it was one of the first things that drove me away from the Democrats.

Now, class envy is back with renewed vigor under the presidency of Barack Obama. The rich are suddenly scapegoats for the nation's fiscal/economic woes. Yes, that's right-the rich. It is an amazing spectacle. Consider:

Did you know that from 1965-2009 the federal government never, not one time, cut annual spending? Yep, not once-not even by one penny one single year over 44 consecutive years. If you don't believe me, consult the historical tables of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). Look at Table 1.1, "Summary of Receipts, Outlays, and Surpluses or Deficits: 1789-2016." You'll notice that once upon a time our nation's political officials were capable of cutting spending. It happened often under both Democrats and Republicans. That changed, however, in 1965, the start of LBJ's Great Society. In that watershed year, our federal government began an outright spending addiction, like a junkie who can't push away a needle.

To see the figures on a chart is an awakening. The annual rise in spending by your government is a steady, unbroken, upward climb for over 40 years.

Apply this to any other walk of life. Do you know of an individual or family or business or anything that has spent more money than it takes in for 44 consecutive years? If you've done that, then you're reading this article from a prison cell.

And yet, that is precisely the behavior of your federal government, which passes along this generational debt to your children and grandchildren.

But who's at fault? The Democrats and President Obama have an easy answer; it's the envy-based answer the rich

Of course, it wasn't the rich who, from 1965-2009, could not manage to cut federal spending by literally even one penny one year. It wasn't the rich who then, on top of that, printed and borrowed another $800 billion for a 2009 "stimulus" package that didn't stimulate. And guess what? The president is pleading for hundreds of billions more for the same failed

And it isn't like the rich haven't chipped in, even as President Obama demands they finally "pay their fair share." In fact, the top 1 percent of income earners in America pay nearly 40 percent of all federal tax revenue (click here). The top 5 percent pay almost 60 percent. The top 10 percent pay 70 percent. The top 25 percent pay 86 percent.

But President Obama excoriates the rich for allegedly not paying enough. He also blasts Republicans for opposing tax increases that would merely further subsidize our government's spending addiction. Obama bitterly derided "tax cuts for the wealthy" as the Republicans' "Holy Grail."

Unfortunately, this rhetoric has astonishing success among the Democratic faithful. Every time I write an article like this I get bombarded with emails from Democrats enraged at "rich" people, who they blame for their problems. It is sad to see, especially when you understand that this self-destructive mentality is being fostered by a political party.

One person who emails me is just desperate—and I mean desperate—to increase taxes. He will not be satisfied until taxes are raised on the rich. He will not even consider spending cuts. He wants revenge. He is

When I asked him if there is such a thing as government greed, he didn't answer. He didn't want to answer. His worldview allows for no greed in a government that spends pathologically, and then coerces wealthy people taxed at rates of 36-70 percent (from 2011 back to 1965) to send to Washington more and more money. In his mind, there is greed only in the wealthy for not wanting to surrender more and more.

This kind of rhetoric is poisonous, destined to yield the bitterest fruit. Nonetheless, the Democrats' class-based rhetoric continues undaunted.

Envy is a vice, not a virtue, and certainly should not be political strategy.

State Fair continues Texas tradition

I recently had the great honor of cutting the ribbon to officially open this year's State Fair of Texas. Like most Texans, the State Fair has a special place in my heart.

Attending the State Fair is a fall tradition for many Texans. When I was in college, I came to cheer on my beloved Longhorns as they played the Sooners in the Cotton Bowl during Texas-OU Weekend. The national Red River rivalry during the State Fair has been a time of reuniting friends from both universities for years. And now, I bring my children to enjoy the sights, sounds and tastes of

The State Fair has been a Texas institution for 125 years. What began in 1886 as the Dallas State Fair and Exposition has evolved into an annual celebration of Texas' diverse history, culture, culinary arts, agriculture and commerce. More than 250 million visitors have attended the State Fair since it first opened. Whether from East Texas or Far East Asia, fairgoers are welcomed with open arms and a "Howdy Folks!" from Big Tex.

The State Fair has also been a robust economic engine for the region, creating more than 300,000 jobs. It has brought an economic impact of $10-$12 billion to the area. Even during difficult economic times, the Fair gives visitors a tremendous value for their entertainment dollar. This has been a hallmark of the State Fair through-capitol out its history. During the comment Great Depression, Texas celebrated its Centennial. To mark this anniversary, Fair Park embarked on a massive building project to include museums, exposition halls, a band shell, a lagoon and many terraces and waterways. More than 8,000 people were hired for this project, including builders and laborers, artists and sculptors. In 1936, more than six million visitors attended the Fair, including President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

We still enjoy these magnificent buildings designed for the Centennial. They have been renovated and restored and are considered some of the finest examples of Art Deco architecture and art in America today. This year, Texas celebrates its 175th anniversary, and in the splendid Hall of State the Fair has brought together memorabilia and artifacts from Sam Houston and Santa Ana showcasing our state's unique history. And to show once again that everything is bigger and better in Texas, they even hope every school in the state will take the opportunity to bring students to see

The State Fair of Texas is full of wonderful sights, sounds and smells. Texas cooks and bakers have been bringing their prized recipes for judging since the Fair's early days. Our best craftsmen and women compete for the "best in show" and the winners are on display. And the State Fair's Big Tex Choice Award for tastiest and most creative fried foods has been a culinary staple competition for the past seven years. This year's winners are fried buffalo chicken in a flapjack and fried bubblegum - proving once again that Texans can fry - and eat -- just about anything!

There is something for every generation to enjoy at the State Fair that runs this year from September 30 through October 23. Whether you are coming for the football -- Texas-OU or Grambling-Prairie View A&M; or to taste the variety of foods; to ride the Midway rides; take in this year's State Fair Musical; or walk through the craft and cooking demonstrations and contests, the State Fair of Texas creates fond memories and continues a great Texas

Gladney Center celebrates 125 years

Lured by advertisements painting a "land of milk and money" and promises of "free land," thousands of European families immigrated to the United States in the 1800s. Sadly, overcrowding in northeastern port cities led to unsanitary conditions and diseases that claimed the lives of many overworked parents. This resulted in a growing population of homeless orphans. In 1853, philanthropist Charles Loring Brace, founder of the Children's Aid Society, began an unconventional experiment aimed at finding well-rounded homes for the orphans of Brace's social experiment, the Orphan Train Movement, would come to be widely recognized as the beginning of the foster care concept in the U.S. From the 1850s through the early 1900s, the Orphan Train Movement placed more than 120,000 orphans in homes throughout the country. Brace's intention was for the orphans, many of whom lived in the slums or on city streets, to find shelter and a healthy upbringing in farm homes in the West. Children would be placed in homes at no cost but with the promise of providing extra help with daily chores on the farm or in the house.

As the trains made their way west, the stronger, healthier children had better chances of being adopted first. Many of the remaining children made it as far west as Fort Worth, where Methodist minister I.Z.T. Morris provided them with shelter as he worked to find adoptive families. Morris established the Texas Children's Home and Aid Society in Fort Worth in 1887. His conditions were clear - children would only be placed with parents and families that were appropriate for them, not just the first parties to show interest and meet eligibility requirements. The home was chartered by the state of Texas on January 25, 1904. Morris' wife Isabella and

social worker Edna Gladney

ran the home. Following the death of Morris in 1914 and his wife in 1925, Gladney, from Milwaukee, Wisconsin, took over as

by sen, john cornyn

superintendent of the home. Over the next 33 years, Gladney would leave a lasting impression on the center, the families and children it served, and also on society's perception of orphans and unwed mothers. Gladney oversaw the expansion of the center to include a maternity facility, where expectant mothers could receive prenatal care, as well ' as a Baby Home, where infants received specialized care until they were adopted. Gladney also led the fight to enact two major pieces of legislation improving the adoption process. The first bill, which passed the Texas Legislature in 1936, required the word "illegitimate" to be removed from birth certificates. Gladney also successfully lobbied the State to allow adopted children to have the same inheritance rights as biological children. This resulted in Texas issuing second birth certificates for children in the name of their adoptive parents.

By the 1960s, the newly renamed Edna Gladney Home, now under the direction of Ruby Lee Piester, had expanded further to include an on-campus middle and high school, a counseling department, dormitory, and living center for older women. Over the next several decades, the home would also expand to offer adoption services for children with special needs.

Today, the Gladney Center, renamed in 1986, is the nation's oldest, largest, most comprehensive maternity and adoption agency. Since it was founded by I.Z.T. Morris in 1887, the Gladney Center has placed nearly 30,000 children and helped more than 37,000 birthparents. This past month, the Gladney Center began a year-long celebration of the institution's 125th Anniversary themed "Where Hope is Born." All Texans can be proud of this first-rate center and the fine work it has been doing for 125 years to make a positive difference in the lives of children, birthmothers, and adoptive parents.

This kind of rhetoric is poisonous, destined to yield the bitterest fruit. Nonetheless, the Democrats' class-based rhetoric continues undaunted.

State Fair continues Texas tradition

I recently had the great honor of cutting the ribbon to officially open this year's State Fair of Texas. Like most

Attending the State Fair is a fall tradition for many Texans. When I was in college, I came to cheer on my beloved Longhorns as they played the Sooners in the Cotton Bowl during Texas-OU Weekend. The national Red River rivalry during the State Fair has been a time of reuniting friends from both universities for years. And now, I bring my children to enjoy the sights, sounds and tastes of the fair!

The State Fair has been a Texas institution for 125 years. What began in 1886 as the Dallas State Fair and Exposition has evolved into an annual celebration of Texas' diverse history, culture, culinary arts, agriculture and commerce. More than 250 million visitors have attended the State Fair since it first opened. Whether from East Texas or Far East Asia, fairgoers are welcomed with open arms and a "Howdy Folks!" from Big Tex.

The State Fair has also been a robust economic engine for the region, creating more than 300,000 jobs. It has brought an economic impact of $10-$12 billion to the area. Even during difficult economic times, the Fair gives visitors a tremendous value for their entertainment of the State Fair throughout its history.

Great Depresby sen, kay bailey butchison sion, Texas celebrated its Centennial. To mark this anniversary, Fair Park embarked on a massive building project to include museums, exposition halls, a band shell, a lagoon and many terraces and waterways. More than 8,000 people were hired for this project, including builders and laborers, artists and sculptors. In 1936, more than six million visitors buildings designed for the Centennial. They have been renovated and restored and are considered some of the finest examples of Art Deco architecture and art in America today. This year, Texas celebrates its 175th anniversary, and in the splendid Hall of State the Fair has brought together memorabilia and artifacts from Sam Houston and Santa Ana showcasing our state's unique history. And to show once again that everything is bigger and better in Texas, they even have a life-sized replica of the Alamo! I hope every school in the state will take the opportunity to bring students to see the Texas history exhibit.

The State Fair of Texas is full of wonderful sights, sounds and smells. Texas cooks and bakers have been bringing their prized recipes for judging since the Fair's early days. Our best craftsmen and women compete for the "best in show" and the winners are on display. And the State Fair's Big Tex Choice Award for tastiest and most creative fried foods has been a culinary staple competition for the past seven years. This year's winners are fried buffalo chicken in a flapjack and fried bubblegum - proving once again that Texans can fry - and eat -- just about anything!

There is something for every generation to enjoy at the State Fair that runs this year from September 30 through October 23. Whether you are coming for the football -- Texas-OU or Grambling-Prairie View A&M; or to taste the variety of foods; to ride the Midway rides; take in this year's State Fair Musical; or walk through the craft and cooking demonstrations and contests, the State Fair of Texas creates fond memories and continues a great Texas tradition.

Lured by advertisements painting a "land of milk and money" and promises of "free land," thousands of European families immigrated to the United States in the 1800s. Sadly, overcrowding in northeastern port cities led to unsanitary conditions and diseases that claimed the lives of many overworked parents. This resulted in a growing population of homeless orphans. In 1853, philanthropist Charles Loring Brace, founder of the Children's Aid Society, began an unconventional experiment aimed at finding well-rounded homes for the orphans of New York City.

Brace's social experiment, the Orphan Train Movement, would come to be widely recognized as the beginning of the foster care concept in the U.S. From the 1850s through the early 1900s, the Orphan Train Movement placed more than 120,000 orphans in homes throughout the country. Brace's intention was for the orphans, many of whom lived in the slums or on city streets, to find shelter and a healthy upbringing in farm homes in the West. Children would be placed in homes at no cost but with the promise of providing extra help with daily chores on the farm or in the house.

As the trains made their way west, the stronger, healthier children had better chances of being adopted first. Many of the remaining children made it as far west as Fort Worth, where Methodist minister I.Z.T. Morris provided them with shelter as he worked to find adoptive families. Morris established the Texas Children's Home and Aid Society in Fort Worth in 1887. His conditions were clear - children would only be placed with parents and families that were appropriate for them, not just the first parties to show interest and meet eligibility requirements. The home was chartered by the state of Texas on January 25, 1904. Morris' wife Isabella and

texas by sen. john cornyn

superintendent of the home. Over the next 33 years, Gladney would leave a lasting impression on the center, the families and children it served, and also on society's perception of orphans and unwed mothers. Gladney oversaw the expansion of the center to include a maternity facility, where expectant mothers could receive prenatal care, as well as a Baby Home, where infants received specialized care until they were adopted. Gladney also led the fight to enact two major pieces of legislation improving the adoption process. The first bill, which passed the Texas Legislature in 1936, required the word "illegitimate" to be removed from birth certificates. Gladney also successfully lobbied the State to allow adopted children to have the same

inheritance rights as biological children. This resulted in Texas issuing second birth certificates for children in the name of their adoptive parents. By the 1960s, the newly renamed

Edna Gladney Home, now under the direction of Ruby Lee Piester, had - expanded further to include an on-campus middle and high school, a counseling department, dormitory, and living center for older women. Over the next several decades, the home would also expand to offer adoption services for children with special needs.

Today, the Gladney Center, renamed in 1986, is the nation's oldest, largest, most comprehensive maternity and adoption agency. Since it was founded by I.Z.T. Morris in 1887, the Gladney Center has placed nearly 30,000 children and helped more than 37,000 birthparents. This past month, the Gladney Center began a year-long celebration of the institution's 125th Anniversary themed "Where Hope is Born." All Texans can be proud of this first-rate center and the fine work it has been doing for 125 years to make a positive difference in the lives of children, birthmothers, and adoptive parents.

Last week I wrote about learning in school how Christopher Columbus discovered America by sailing the ocean blue in 1492. Volumes have been written about Christopher Columbus and his voyages, so I cannot cover everything known about him in my little column, but he is a fascinating man.

He was totally wrong in all his calculations for the first voyage, and I'm not sure if or when he realized this was new land to explore not just another part of the world no European had seen. It is known at the end of his first voyage, the letter he sent to the king describing his travels his claim of reaching China was really Cuba and instead of an island off the China coast it was Hispaniola. Oh my, Chris, were you lost.

Columbus made four voyages to the new land, reaching the mainland of South America on the third and Central America and Panama on the fourth. His last voyage was in 1504, he was arrested, charged with misconduct, stripped of all his wealth and honors; but with his son's assistance, his wealth was reinstated and he was living well when he died at the age of 54 in 1506. He opened the America's to trading and colonization, where would we be without Ole Chris?

These elections, to be conducted in 145 Texas counties, are being held pursuant to the Texas Commodity Referendum Law, Texas Agriculture Code, Title 3, Chapter 41, Subchapter C, Section 41.

There are two seats open in Voting Region 2, which consists of the following 40 counties: Archer, Armstrong, Baylor, Borden, Briscoe, Carson, Childress, Collingsworth, Cottle, Crosby, Dickens, Donley, Fisher, Floyd, Foard, Garza, Gray, Hall, Hansford, Hardeman, Haskell, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Jones, Kent, King, Knox, Lipscomb, Motley, Ochiltree, Roberts, Scurry, Shackelford, Stephens, Stonewall, Throckmorton, Wheeler, Wichita, Wilbarger and Young.

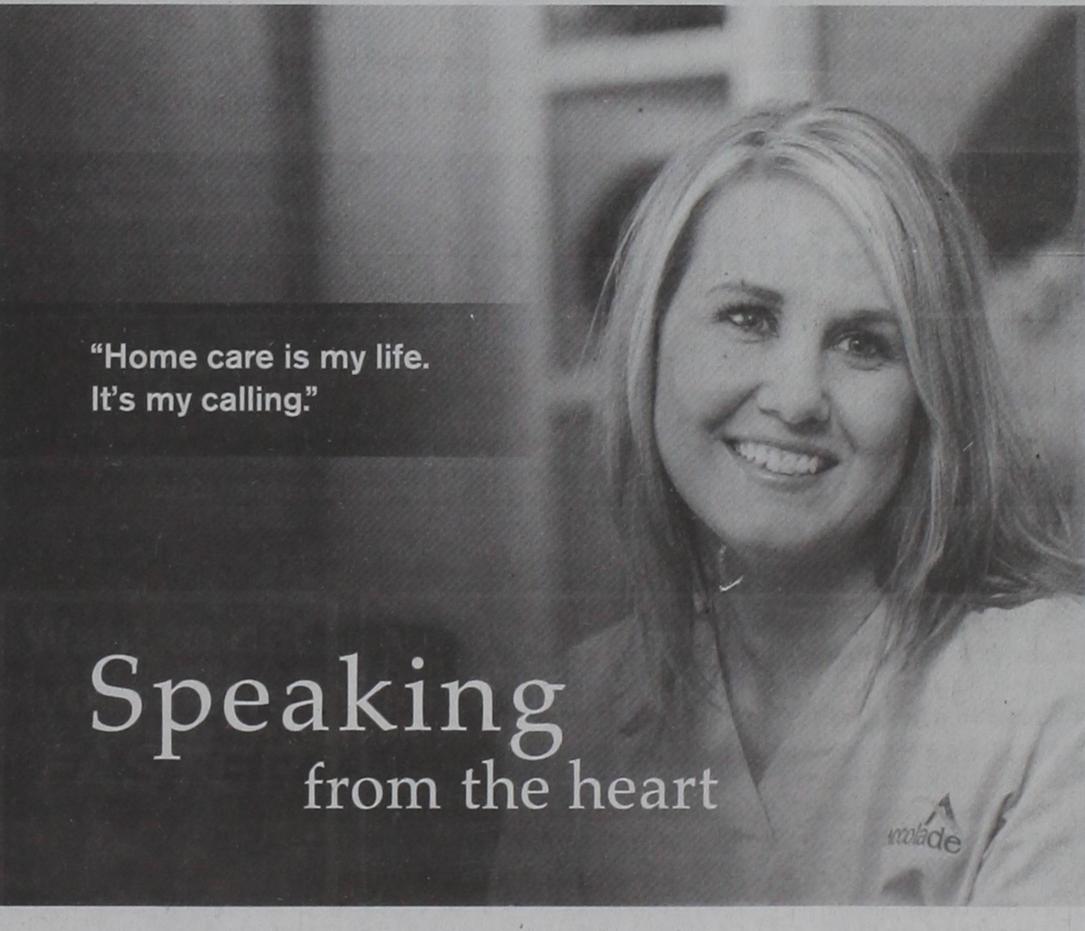

A person is eligible to vote in the board election if he or she is, or for at least one production period during the three years preceding the date of the board election has been, a producer of, or caused to be produced, peanuts for commercial purposes. This includes owners of farms and their tenants or sharecroppers, who would be required to pay the assessment. For a producer to vote in this voting region, the producer must reside within the counties stated above.

Any eligible voter-producer may place his or her name in nomination to serve as a director on TPPB. Nomination applications must be submitted to TPPB, signed by the applicant and ten additional eligible voters.

Nomination forms will be available in all counties where elections are to be held or can be obtained by writing TPPB, 4205 North I-27, Lubbock, TX 79403. Please state your county of residence if you request a nomination form in writing. Nomination forms will be available November 23, 2011 and must be filed no later than December 23, 2011.

The election will be held by mail ballot. Ballots containing the nominations of all persons who have validly filed petitions under Section 41.025 of the above stated code will be available January 9, 2012. Ballots will be available at all peanut buying point locations and county agent offices in each of the appropriate voting regions, or by writing TPPB at the address stated above. Voters may also vote for board members by "writing in" the name of any eligible persons. Ballots must be postmarked no later than January 23, 2012 to be counted.

TPPB is certified under Section 41.011 and Section 41.021 of the Texas Commodity Referendum Law to conduct this election, and has obtained all approvals and determinations required by law from the Commissioner of Agriculture, Texas Department of Agriculture.

As a nurse with Accolade Home Care, I can give individualized treatment. The thing I love is that Accolade is owned by a nurse and run by nurses who believe in providing uncompromised medical care in the comfort of a patient's own home.

When I am in someone's home, I'm able to do and teach and take care of all of their needs right there. One patient has eight physicians, and one of the greatest things that home care can do is help him and his family coordinate everything with all of their specialists. To be able to offer home care needs in the home setting...it's a privilege and an honor to be able to do that.

Shelton runs 4th in Canyon meet

By Sandy Anderberg

Junior runner Audrey Shelton ran a 12:17 on the two-mile cross country course in Canyon last Saturday. The high finish from Shelton helped to put the Lady Broncos in a fifth-place finish out of 16 teams at the meet.

Sarah Luttrell finished 34th at 13:26, and Deborah Howard was right behind her in 36th place with a time of 13:28. Abby Johnson was 44th at 13:37, and Haley Ferguson was 52nd with a time of 13:57. Phara Berry ran 53rd at 13:58, Trevela Dronzek was 59th at 14:07, and Maci White was 73rd with a time of 14:33.

Caleb Cobb finished second in the junior high boys division, but no times were available at press time.

"We will be preparing this week for our District Meet that will be Monday, October 17, in Canyon," Coach Molly Weatherred said.

Broncs send Greyhounds to the pound

By Sandy Anderberg

The Clarendon Broncos totally controlled the Gruver Greyhounds on the road Friday night and easily defeated them 41-7.

According to head coach Gary *Jack, the Broncos had over 420 yards of total offense, while holding Gruver to only one touchdown.

Wes Williams had a great game rushing as he scampered over 165 yards for the game. Charleston Harris added to the total with a little over 100 yards and freshman Charles Mason helped with approximately : 75 yards rushing.

"We definitely controlled them with our running game," Jack said. "The wind was really blowing, so we did what we had to do on the ground. We controlled the game with our running game, and our line blocked well."

Jerami Johnson was ballet-like from his receiver position as he made several great catches. Jack said quarball well.

Skins game held; no skins awarded

By Sandy Anderberg

Twenty-six teams participated in the Fall Six-Person Skins game at the Clarendon Country Club.

Since no skins were won, the team with the lowest score took first place.

The team of Zach Norrell took top honors with a 51 and the Alan Segura team took second with a 53.

There was a four-way tie for fourth place between the teams of Kyle Haiduk, Grayson Benson, Jon Permenter, and Michael Casey with Todd Curry's team won closest to the pin on number 8 at 28" and the team of Nick Orasco won closest to the pin on number 15 at 10".

Todd Curry was the winner of the Wednesday men's game with a net 64 and Ellis Knight shot a net 71 for second place.

Bo Morrison and Forrest

Newton tied for third and fourth place with a net 72.

Positive Test Results for Rare Childhood Arthritis

Last month an international pharmaceutical company announced positive results from a month long evaluation of a product they call ACZ885 compared with placebo (false medication) in children with an autoimmune condition called SJIA (Systemic, Juvenile Idiopathic Arthritis). Test results indicate that most children with SJIA who got ACZ885 experienced significant improvement. Most experienced at least a 30% improvement in symptoms. About a third of those tested experienced 100% improvement in arthritis symptoms. Researchers associated with the pivotal study indicate that ACZ885 neutralizes a compound in the body called interlukin-1 beta, a substance associated with inflammation, which is a part of the body's immune system.

SJIA is a serious childhood condition. It is the most severe form of juvenile (childhood) arthritis. This rare condtion affects less than one child in a population of 100,000 children. When it occurs, however, it causes inflammation that affects the entire body resulting in joint pain and damage, swelling, skin rash, fever, and disability in some instances.
