Babcock asks court to review decision

An attorney for convicted child killer Robert Babcock is asking an appeals court to take a second look at the case.

The Donley County Clerk's office says Babcock's attorney filed a motion for discretionary review on July 12 with the Seventh Court of Appeals in Amarillo. The motion came less than one month after the court upheld the decision of a Hall County jury that found Babcock guilty of killing his four-year-old son, Chance Mark Jones, and sentencing him to life in prison.

District Attorney Luke Inman says the defense's next course will likely be to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, but the DA remains confident that the trial court's decision will hold.

"We prepare all of our trials to minimize the number of issues that can be raised on appeal," Inman said. "The Babcock trial was no different and at least one appellate court has agreed with the trial court's rulings and judgment in affirming the case. "I am confident that this case will not get overturned, and Chance's justice will stay in place which resulted in the life sentence of his killer."

The Commissioners' Court first considered a petition with 547 verified signatures and voted 3-0-1 to order a Local Option Election to legalize the sale of all alcoholic beverages in the county, including mixed drinks. Judge Jack Hall and Commissioners Dan Sawyer and Andy Wheatly voted to accept the petition and order the election. Commissioner Donnie Hall abstained, and Commissioner Mark White was absent.

The court then considered the petition of 35 legal voters in the City of Clarendon asking the county to adopt a resolution ordering a special election, and the court voted 4-0 to accept that petition and order the election. Both elections will be held Tuesday, November 5, 2013. Voters must be registered by October 5 to be eligible to vote.

Sales tax revenues up again

Donley County cities continued to enjoy higher sales tax revenues when Texas Comptroller Susan Combs made her August allocation last week.

The large increase in local sales has been attributed to a petroleum by-product pipeline crew that has been making its temporary home in the area.

After seeing growth of more than 40 percent each of the last two months, Clarendon's sales tax revenue for this month was up 23.62 percent compared to the same period in 2012. The city received $44,009.31 compared to $35,600.20 last August and is now running 26.04 percent

Making rules that do harm

By Richard W. Rahn

Terrorists, money launderers, drug dealers and tax evaders use automobiles, airplanes, telephones, computers, banks and countless other goods and services that we all use. Yet all too many government policymakers think that if we make these things very difficult to use, the bad guys will go away - forgetting, of course, that all the rest of us suffer from mindless regulation and control. Banks and other financial service firms have become the targets of choice for the unthinking government class and its allies - because in popular culture, bankers are often cast as the evil villains, despite the fact that the world economy could not function without them.

Thirty years ago, the excuse for more financial services' regulation was that "drug dealers" used banks. That argument morphed into "banks facilitate money laundering," which was made a crime in the United States in 1986. Then after Sept. 11, 2001, that excuse evolved into "terrorists use banks." More recently, the justification for more rules has become "banks around the world enable businesses and individuals to avoid taxes." There are always new excuses for more regulation - but the demands are always the same: Banks must give more information about their customers and operations to government officials.

Obamacare not all that bad really

Accompanied by wailing and gnashing of Republican teeth, Obamacare, better known as The Affordable Care Act, goes fully into effect at the beginning of next year, and Republican predictions of unmitigated disaster are being shouted from rooftops and mountaintops throughout the red lands of America. A full-blown GOP panic is leading to outrageous and silly attempts to "defund" the thing, which ain't gonna happen. Give me an Amen! Republicans frantically proclaim that there will be an administrative "train wreck," and, we're repeatedly told - ad nauseam; consumers will face a terrible shock, and the end of the world could be nigh. Republicans, according to "those who know," are already counting on the law's troubles to give them a big electoral advantage. Hmmmm?

be problems, as there are with any large rating everywhere - which means no new government initiative, and in this case, we have the added complication that many Republican governors (including ours) and legislators (ours, too) are going the extra mile to do all they can to sabotage much needed reform. Even so, important new evidence - mainly from California, the law's most important test case - suggests that the real Obamacare shock will be one of unexpected success. Really?

Really!

applicants with past medical problems. In others, like New York, insurers can't reject the quick, applicants, the dead, and must offer similar & fred coverage by fred gray regardless of personal medical history (using a "community rating" as a guide); unfortunately, this leads to situations in which premiums are very high because only those with current health problems sign up, while healthy people take the risk of going uninsured.

Obamacare closes this gap with a Make no mistake about it, there will three-part approach. Firstly, community more exclusions based on pre-existing conditions. Secondly, the mandate (so often disparaged) - you must buy insurance even if you're currently healthy. Thirdly, adding subsidies to make insurance affordable for those with lower incomes. Thanks to the Mittster, Massachusetts has essentially had this system since 2006; and, as a result, nearly all residents have health insurance. It must be noted that the program remains very popular. So there is evidence that Obamacare can work. Skeptics argue, however, that Massachusetts was special: it had relatively few uninsured residents, even before the reform, and it already had community rating. What would happen elsewhere? More particularly, what would happen in California, where more than a fifth of the nonelderly population is uninsured, and the individual insurance market is largely unregulated? Would there be "sticker shock" as the price of individual policies soared? Well, the California bids are in - the insurers have submitted the prices at which they're willing to offer coverage on the state's newly created Obamacare exchange. Surprisingly, the prices are really low! A handful of healthy and affluent young people may find themselves paying more for coverage, but it looks as if Obamacare's first year in California is going to be an overwhelmingly positive experience. Imagine that.

Thanks primarily to the Republicans, things can still go wrong, especially if G.O.P. rascals are persistent and creative in their sabotage. Obamacare is a very complicated program, understood by no one (even our senators and representatives in Washington, DC, who passed the law – for heaven's sake!), primarily because simple options, like Medicare for all, weren't considered politically feasible. So, there will probably be a lot of administrative confusion as the law goes into effect, again especially in states where (does Texas ring a bell?) Republicans have been doing their best to sabotage the process.

Also, some people are too poor to afford coverage even with the subsidies. These Americans were

This assumes, of course, that the government officials will not share the information with competitors, not use it for political or personal purposes, nor allow it to fall in the hands of evil governments or the bad guys. As anyone who can read a newspaper knows, none of this is true.

Development experts have known for decades that the most effective foreign-aid program is private remittances. Millions of people have left poor countries to get jobs in rich countries.

Most of these people send money back home to their families - remittances - which enable their families to better their own lives and even start small businesses. They most often use money-transfer businesses, because the workers and the recipients do not have bank accounts, or they find that bank transfer fees are very expensive, particularly for the small amounts of money that are frequently sent. The unholy cabal of Treasury and finance ministries, tax collectors of major countries, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, and the Financial Action Task Force are making it increasingly difficult for major banks to deal with the money-transfer service providers. They claim that drug dealers, money launderers, tax evaders and terrorists might use these services.

This is true in the same way criminals also might use telephones, pencils and paper. Bankers can be held criminally liable if one of their customers or even a customer's customer misbehaves, so they are fearful of serving many types of businesses. Under these criteria, the secretary of the Treasury should be sent to jail anytime a criminal uses U.S. dollar bills. If governments are nothing else, they're hypocritical. The legitimate and properly regulated moneytransfer businesses cannot exist without corresponding banking relationships. If they are shut down, money transfers will be driven underground and run by criminal operators moving cash in the same way they do drugs. For example, the whole banking structure collapsed in Somalia during the civil war, so there is no banking structure in the country. More than $1.2 billion is remitted each year - by Somalian workers who have left the country - through legitimate moneytransfer services, accounting for more than half of Somalia's gross domestic product. Nongovernmental organizations such as Save the Children, CARE and other humanitarian groups also rely on money-transfer services.

Before we go any further about this gospel of good health, and what it actually means, a crucial point needs to be made: Obamacare is, and always has been, a deeply conservative reform, not in a political sense (although it was, after all, originally a Republican proposal) but in terms of leaving most people's health care unaffected. Americans who receive health insurance from their employers, Medicare or Medicaid – which is the vast majority of those who have any kind of health insurance at all - will see almost no changes when the law goes into effect.

However, there are millions of Americans who don't have any insurance at all, either from their employers or from government programs. They can get insurance only by buying it on their own, and many of them are effectively shut out of that market. In some states, like California, insurers can reject supposed to be covered by a federally financed expansion of Medicaid, but in states where Republicans have blocked Medicaid expansion (once again, Texas), such unfortunates will be left out.

Even with all the problems, here's what is likely to happen: millions of Americans will suddenly gain health care coverage (happy, happy), happy), and millions more will feel more secure - knowing that such coverage is available if they lose their jobs or suffer other misfortunes - say like getting hit in the head by a wayward Perseid's meteorite. Only a few individuals will actually be hurt. And, as contrasts emerge between the experience of states like California that are making the most of the new policy and that of states like Texas (whose politicians are doing their best to act like the south end of north-bound mules), that are doing their best to undermine it, the sheer meanspiritedness of the Obamacare opponents will become ever more obvious.

Indeed, it does look as if there's an Obamacare shock coming; the shock of learning that a public program designed to help a lot of people can, it's strange to say, end up helping a lot of people, especially when our elected representatives actually try to make it work. Imagine that, if you can.

If these companies are shut down, are the world's taxpayers, through official aid programs, going to make up the difference, or will the poverty worsen and create more terrorists?

The government class (particularly at the Treasury, Federal Reserve and Internal Revenue Service) is always in denial about the consequences of its actions. The same group that is undermining economic development in the Horn of Africa and many other poor regions is also promulgating a truly wicked and destructive regulation - which will make it too costly for many foreign financial institutions to service U.S. citizens and invest in the United States. This regulation, the Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act, will stop perhaps trillions of dollars of needed foreign investment from coming into the United States, costing millions of jobs and economic growth. To be fair, it is not only the people at the IRS and Treasury who fail to think beyond Stage One and deliberately ignore sound cost-benefit regulation. The rocket scientists at the Food and Drug Administration last week decided that acetaminophen (Tylenol) must contain an additional warning label for Stevens-Johnson Syndrome - a rare skin disease that caused 12 deaths associated with acetaminophen (out of an estimated 1.3 trillion pills consumed over a 43-year period). That is one death per 100 billion pills. You are more likely to die by having a cow fall on you. Such an action unnecessarily scares people, many of whom will suffer far more by not taking Tylenol and similar products.

Voter ID law will protect equality

In June, the Supreme Court held that Section 4 of the Voting Rights Act was unconstitutional. The provision, which determined the states and jurisdictions that would have to ask the Justice Department for permission to implement any voting law, was based on outdated data from the 1960s and '70s. The data came from an era of obscene racial discrimination that bears little resemblance to the reality of today. In the intervening years, Texas and other era, and made great strides towards voter equality. In today's America, access to voting booths and voting information is broad and not subject to discrimination.

2011, Texas adopted a commonsense voter ID law. It requires voters to present one of a number of approved forms of photo

ID at the by sen. john cornyn polling place, just like you have to do to buy beer or states have repudiated that sad and unjust get on a plane. The state offers voter ID voter turnout: According to a Census cards free of charge. And the law allows voters unable to present a valid photo ID to cast a provisional ballot and return within a week with proper identification. It even makes exceptions for people who have a religious objection to being photographed or lost their ID as a result of a recent national disaster. The law is reasonable, and it is popular. Protecting the integrity of the voting process is something that benefits everyone. The Supreme Court has held that voter ID laws are constitutional. But Section 4 subjected Texas to preclearance, giving Holder the ability to block Texas from implementing the law - which he did. After the Supreme Court struck down Section 4, the Justice Department wasted no time announcing that it would file a lawsuit in federal court demanding that preclearance be reinstated over

Monday at noon. Advertising and Classifleds are due by five o'clock Monday afternoon. Deadlines may be altered for holidays or special issues.

And consider the current facts on Bureau report, 68.2 percent of registered Hispanic voters in Texas went to the polls in the 2000 general election. By 2012, with an additional 747,000 Hispanic Texans on the electoral roll, the rate had risen to 71.2 percent. Meanwhile, the rate for African-American Texans rose to over 86 percent in the same period – the highest among all racial groups tracked in the Census Bureau report. Unfortunately, these facts mean little to a politicized Justice Department bent on inserting itself into the sovereign affairs of Texas. As Texans, we reject the notion that the federal government knows what's best for us. We deserve the freedom to make our own laws and we deserve not to be insulted by a Justice Department committed to scoring cheap political points.

Texas under a rarely used provision

It will come as no surprise to Texans that

That accusation is offensive, has no minority voters.

Those in government are unlikely to start considering the consequences of their actions until citizens are empowered to bring suits against those who act in such irresponsible ways.

Richard W. Rahn is a senior fellow at the Cato Institute and chairman of the Institute for Global Economic Growth.

So the question must be asked: Why are President Barack Obama and his Attorney General, Eric Holder, so upset about this decision? The answer is as simple as it is disturbing: partisan politics.

Section 4 determined which states were subject to "preclearance," a procedure under which Texas - and other covered jurisdictions - had to seek permission for any change to voting law. Until the Supreme Court struck down Section 4 as unconstitutional, Texas needed permission from the Justice Department to implement even a change in a polling place. That arrangement was good for Eric Holder. Take voter ID as an example. In

Clarendon Church of Christ OCTOBER 19TH, MARK IT DOWN ON YOUR CALENDAR!

Why? On October 19th from 9 a.m. until 3:00 p.m., a seminar will be conducted on our college campus at the auditorium. Dr. Dave Miller will be conducting the seminar called: "THE SILENCING OF GOD (The Dismantling of America's Christian Heritage).

The seminar is not a religious event per se. There will be no "come to Jesus" moment and there will be no collections taken. His seminar is to help combat the "rewriting" of history by liberals and progressives over the last 50 years. For years, Christianity and the fact that our country was founded upon Biblical values have been systematically attacked. A new narrative has been formed that basically says that our country is to be neutral to religion, that our founding fathers were atheists or neutral to God. Their "new" history makes the constitution not understandable because our Founding Fathers weren't "clear" and left a lot of "fill in the blanks" concerning gay rights, abortion, etc.

Come see for yourselves as Dr. Miller will show you in the Founding Fathers' own writings what was meant when the Declaration and the Constitution were written. For example, did you know that in the 18th century, homosexuality between men was called sodomy and was punished by death in 3 colonies? Thomas Jefferson serving as the governor of Virginia, once proposed a law for punishment of sodomy to be dismemberment! The punishment ended up being prison with hard labor. Now, do you really think the Founders had no opinion on homosexuality? The media will not tell you these things nor will the far left groups whom attack those of us who dare to speak out. Anyone who loves Christ and enjoys studying the history of our country would enjoy themselves and be educated during this program. Bring your kids and grandkids as they are the ones who have been indoctrinated with incorrect history books. Several generations have been lied to about the constitution and the men who wrote it. Truth should have no enemies! Let us all educate ourselves and try to stem this "avalanche" of misinformation. If you can stay for the whole program, you will be fed lunch. It is divided into several segments so you can come and go as you please. I plead with you as a fellow American who believes that our country was founded upon Biblical principles, to come and bring as many friends as you can. I've heard the seminar once before and it is top notch. You will literally walk away with your "eyes opened." I hope to see you there. God bless you and our country.

2013 Property Tax Rates in City of Clarendon

This notice concerns 2013 property tax rates for City of Clarendon.

It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

The Clarendon Consolidated Independent School District Board of Trustees met August 8, 2013, in regular session and filled two teachers' positions among considering other agenda items.

Following a 22-minute closed session, the board approved offering employment contracts to Amber Williams, first grade, and Karissa Huffman, high school Spanish/math.

Trustees also approved West Texas Gas as the school's provider for transportation fuel for 2013-2014, and heard several administrative reports. The superintendent presented a report on the 2013-2014 Budget Development. Trustees voted to set the Budget Hearing/Adoption meeting on Tuesday, August 27, 2013, at 7:00 p.m. in the Clarendon CISD Video Conference Room.

2013 Property Tax Rates in Donley County

This notice concerns 2013 property tax rates for Donley County.

It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.
