Four-way county judge's race emerges

A horse race has developed in the Republican Primary with four candidates now jockeying for position to succeed Donley County Judge Jack Hall.

Jack Craft is the most recent addition to the lineup. Filing on the deadline day Monday, Craft is a local rancher and businessman who spearheaded the petition drive that led to Donley County voting to allow alcohol sales this year.

Gary Campbell was the first candidate to step forward several weeks ago. He is a retired haz-mat engineer and realtor who is currently representing Clarendon on the Greenbelt Water Authority Board.

Randy Bond is also seeking the county's top job. He has more than 30 years in law enforcement and is currently Donley County's chief deputy as well as a local businessman.

Last week, Dr. John Howard threw his hat in the ring. In addition to serving as the community's medical doctor, Howard is active in the United States Navy and serves as the chairman of the Clarendon College Board of Regents.

All four men will face each other in the March 4, 2014, Republican Primary. If one candidate does not get more than 50 percent of the vote, the top two candidates will be in a run-off election. The top Republican is facing no opposition in the November General Election.

A competitive primary race has also developed for the Precinct 2 County Commissioner's seat currently held by Donnie Hall, who is not seeking re-election. Three candidates will be on the March ballot.

Daniel Ford signed up last week and joins Mitchell Martin and John Grady in the race.

Two competitive races have emerged for the November election. Precinct 1&2 Justice of the Peace Connie Havens is running for re-election as a Democrat and is being challenged by Republican Pam Mason. Precinct 1 County Commissioner Dan Sawyer seeks re-election to his post on the Republican ticket and faces a November challenge from Ricky Rattan on the Democratic side.

County Treasurer Wanda Smith (R) and County/District Clerk Fay Vargas (D) are unopposed for re-election as is Precinct 3&4 Justice of the Peace Denise Bertrand (R).

Also of local interest, State Rep. Ken King (R-Canadian) and State Sen. Kel Seliger (R-Amarillo) have both announced their filings for reelection.

US Rep. Mac Thornberry (R-Clarendon) is also running for re-election and is being challenged by Dr. Pam Barlow of Bowie and Elaine Hays of Amarillo.

Donley County enacts burn ban during red flag events

Donley County Commissioners enacted a burn ban during their regular meeting Monday, December 9.

No outdoor burning is allowed 24 hours prior to or on the day of a forecasted Fire Weather Watch or a Red Flag Warning issued from the National Weather Service in Amarillo.

Under Donley County's Burn Ban conditions, anyone engaging in outdoor burning must contact the Donley County Sheriff's office prior to ignition and give the dispatcher a burn location, a contact phone number, and approximate burn time.

The persons engaging in outdoor burning needs to be present on site of the burn until the burn is completed.

Anyone engaging in any form of outdoor burning is asked to burn with extreme caution at all times.

Forecasters can issue the watch or warning for all or selected portions within a fire weather zone. The Red Flag event is verified when the weather and fuel conditions listed below are met simultaneously for any three hours or more during the period.

The following weather and fuel conditions must be forecast to occur or already occurring before issuing a Fire Weather Watch and/or Red Flag Warning for the Oklahoma and Texas Panhandles: Minimum relative humidities equal to or less than 15 percent; 20 foot winds of 20 mph or higher and/or gusts to 35 mph or higher; and an NFDERS adjective fire danger rating of "high" or higher.

The burn ban will stay in effect for the next 90 days.

the county will put money into the project over a three-year period.

Commissioners also approved a contract for assessment and collection services presented by the Donley Appraisal District, and the court voted to cast the county's support to Jerry Green and Bonnie Campbell for seats on the appraisal district board.

Let a unified Chamber lead the way

The Christmas spirit is alive in Clarendon with special programs and opportunities at every turn. Several organizations are doing their part to make this season brighter for those less fortunate, and local businesses are working hard to provide fun activities for local families while encouraging them to shop at home.

This holiday season there is reason to be optimistic about Clarendon and Donley County. If you look, you can see signs of progress and hints of good things to come. We have a city council that is working together in a positive manner; and while there may be an occasional disagreement on a particular issue, they seem to be unanimous in wanting to move our city forward.

editor's commentary
by roger estlack

We see signs of increased business activity in our community, and a report from the state comptroller that will be printed next week will show another month of dramatically increased sales tax revenues for Clarendon. We have welcomed new businesses to Kearney Street where, again, we see signs of improvement, most notably with the Mulkey Theatre lighting the way.

But one area that we still need to improve on is working together in our business community by furthering the revitalization of the Chamber of Commerce.

It is exciting to see a new event — the Clarendon Christmas Bazaar — being held this weekend, sponsored by the Chamber and organized by some of its newest board members. And it is exciting also to see the return of Late Night Shopping in downtown. These are great opportunities for local citizens and local businesses. But in your editor's observation, coordination of the two events has been something of a problem because we have the Chamber doing one and the Merchants Association doing the other and sometimes there has been something lost in the communication between the two groups.

Which brings up the question of why do we have two groups that really should have the same goal? That goal, of course, being the promotion and fostering of commerce in our city. It would be for the good of the entire community for there to be one organization that all businesses could join and have everyone rowing in the same direction.

The logical outlet for such a movement would be the Chamber of Commerce, but for such an idea to be successful though, the Chamber needs to further the revitalization it has been experiencing. This column has in the past called for certain reforms to be adopted by the Chamber, and some have been implemented. But for us to really get on the road to progress more needs to be done.

In addition to restructuring the Chamber's member benefits and dues structures, the primary reform needs to be to the Chamber board itself. This is not to slight any current board member, but we need the dues-paying members of the Chamber to take a stake in the organization and get more involved with its leadership. The organization has not had a full board for more than a year, and board members are only supposed to serve three years before stepping aside.

The Chamber has been fortunate to attract some energetic new members, but again more people need to get involved in the process. The most needed reform is that we need to have an actual election of board members. The Chamber, this month, needs to put forth a slate of board nominees (which can include current board members), accept other nominations from its members, and then mail ballots to the members or hold a general membership meeting. Once the new board is elected, officers should be elected from the board.

In this way the Chamber will best represent its members, and a member-driven organization led by local business people can effectively lead efforts to promote commerce in Clarendon and Donley County.

A wise man, the late Dr. Charles Deyhle, told your editor more than once that there is nothing that people of Clarendon cannot accomplish if they would work together, and he's right. So too it is with our businesses if they worked together toward common goals under the unified umbrella of a reformed Chamber of Commerce. We all want the same thing — a vibrant downtown, successful businesses across our community, and growth for Donley County. Let's join together to make those goals reality.

Editor's Note: Fred Gray is under the weather this week. His column will return next week.

The Idle American: Wherefore art thou, simpler stage?

By Dr. Don Newbury

In his play, As You Like It, debuted some 410 years ago, Will Shakespeare said "all the world's a stage."

We can only guess whether theatre audiences nodded in agreement or shook their heads vigorously to object. Most of them likely were ambivalent, much like "players" on the world's stage today, when we face more issues than anyone cares to count.

So let us consider an addendum to his quote: "and cameras as well as microphones." ...

We, the populace, may whimper, protest, mutter, lament or whatever. We are now at that place where sights and sounds are part of public records. Such has been stuffed into our collective pipes, ours to smoke, whether or not we inhale.

Nations spy on nations, corporations on competitors, political parties on each other, and, of course, traffic cameras on motorists.

We may "cry uncle" or not, but it is clear that "uncle's" intrusions have taken over like kudzu, tentacles fully engaged....

More info whizzes about in cyberspace than mere mortals can imagine. The US mail, though, provides sobering reminders.

One came in a foreboding envelope from the City of Fort Worth the other day. It was addressed to me, and I opened it hastily, not dreaming that contents would apply to my wife, not to me.

Lo--and throw in "behold," too--the document, somewhat harshly worded, alleged that a motorist driving a vehicle registered in my name "did then and there commit the following violation... failure to stop at a red light." Supporting evidence included photos shot from three angles, as well as a video. The "knock-out" blow was unmistakable—a picture "front and center" of my car's license plate....

I did what any spouse with a lick of sense would do. Racing to my calendar, I prayed that it would provide proof of my being other-where on the fateful day.

Hallelujah! I was in Dallas--driving our "good" car. I was "committing" a speech in the morning and visiting with a friend's family gathered in a hospital surgery waiting room in the afternoon.

After establishing innocence, it was mine to inform my wife that she had committed a grievous traffic infraction and to contact the county tax office. After all, it seems best to get both our vehicles in her name. That way, she can open future such notifications herself....

She doesn't believe she had done anything wrong, of course. After all, she's been driving for a full half-century, NEVER having received a citation.

Stopped just once for driving a "teensy-weensy" bit over the speed limit, she cried real tears that rolled down reddened cheeks. The officer put away his citation pad, apologizing for causing for causing any inconvenience.

Alas, while tears worked on the officer, they do no good for an emotionless camera. The $75 check for the fine has been mailed, so officially, the matter is closed. The saga continues verbally, however....

Views of such matters depend on whose foot the shoe pinches. Ours is major surgery; yours is minor, probably even "out-patient." I could probably stand your minor illness on my eyeball.

Brenda "sort of" remembers the errant turn, vowing that the light was primarily amber, maybe with the slightest "pinkish" hue.

My guess is that it was at the epicenter of red—the brightest hue sold at the paint store....

The recent holidays were joyous with convergence of kids and grandkids. At mid-morning, though, "technological overkill" tempered Thanksgiving joy. Daughter Jana and her hubby received frantic phone calls from Tyler. Police, they learned, had converged on their home, responding to a "911" call. Relax, it was a false alarm. After all, no one was home. Some phone line fault triggered the "911" call. (Emergency responders explained that such calls are often the result of such breaches.)

Jana was chagrined. Kinfolks and neighbors inspected every room, making sure the home was free of intruders. With disarray associated with both the holidays and "getting out of town," Jana had postponed housecleaning until right AFTER Thanksgiving. She winced at the thought of others seeing the, uh, mess.

Ah, this stage on which we mortals strut may be far better illuminated than we like....

Immigration good for Texas economy

By Alex Nowrasteh

Many immigration opponents are focusing their ire on Republicans who support expanding legal immigration — an important part of immigration reform — to dissuade them from restarting the reform effort. Radio host Laura Ingraham recently wrote that Congressman Ted Poe, R-Humble, who supports an expanded guest worker visa program, "does not see what (immigration) does to U.S. wages."

Does Ingraham realize she's making the same argument that famed union organizer and immigrant-worker opponent Cesar Chavez made on behalf of his United Farm Workers? Chavez said: "As long as we have a poor country bordering California, it's going to be very difficult to win strikes." By his rationale, if the number of migrant workers could be restricted, he could raise wages — something that union organizers from Samuel Gompers to today have realized.

But Ingraham, like Chavez did, exaggerates the downside and ignores the economic benefits of immigration for Americans — an especially silly omission in Texas.

To address the wage concern directly, immigrants can only temporarily drive down wages if they compete directly with American workers. That rarely happens. That's because, for the most part, immigrant and American workers have different skills.

A third of immigrants have less than a high-school degree while only 8 percent of U.S.-born American workers do. Immigrants with less than a high school degree just don't work the same jobs as U.S.-born, high school or college-educated workers do.

Dartmouth economist Ethan Lewis found that because immigrants tend to speak English poorly, at least initially, many specialize in jobs that don't require much English. That creates opportunities for Americans to specialize in jobs that require more communication skills in English — like management — that are also higher paying. Take restaurants as an example. Immigrants with poor English language skills are the busboys and dishwashers — jobs that don't require much communication. Instead of working those jobs, lower-skilled Americans use English skills as hosts, waiters and managers — all higher-paying occupations.

More immigrants working jobs at the bottom pushes up American workers who would otherwise be working there. American and immigrant workers are not interchangeable.

But immigrants aren't just workers; they are also consumers who create jobs by buying goods and services from Americans. Asian and Hispanic-Americans have almost $2 trillion in national purchasing power. Now, how does this stack up in Texas?

In 2006, on the eve of the housing collapse, Texas' population was 15.7 percent immigrant. In July of that year, Texas' unemployment stood at 5 percent. Today, immigrants are 16.4 percent of Texas' population and the unemployment rate was 6.2 percent — more than a full point below the national average.

Lower taxes and fewer regulations have produced a better recovery in Texas than in other states. As a result, immigrants and native-born citizens have flocked there. The number of immigrants has increased by more than half a million since 2006, while the number of native-born Americans increased by 2 million. High wages, not low ones, have attracted people to Texas.

Texas has also avoided state-level immigration enforcement bills, and a lot can be learned about what that means by comparing Texas to Arizona, a state that has cracked down on immigration enforcement since January 2008.

Texas' unemployment rate has been below Arizona's since February, 2008 — one month after Arizona's first immigration enforcement bill went into effect. Arizona then passed a more stringent bill in mid-2010. In 2012, the immigrant population in Arizona was 53,000 below what it was in 2006. Arizona's unemployment rate is currently 2 full points above Texas', at 8.2 percent.

Ingraham and other immigration restrictionists think kicking out unauthorized immigrants will create jobs for native Texans. Arizona's restrictive immigration laws likely worsened its economic decline — proving once again that reducing the number of people does not create more jobs or raise wages. Immigrants are attracted to economic growth and, in consequence, help the economy grow even more once they arrive.

The Bridge goes digital and completes expansion project

The Bridge's capital expansion campaign entitled, Building a Stronger Bridge for a Brighter Tomorrow, has been completed. The Center located at 804 Quail Creek, Amarillo, has finalized construction and will host an open house on Thursday, December 12, 2013 from 4-6 p.m.

In January 2012, The Bridge embarked on a capital campaign in order to expand the existing facility, adding new offices, and a brand new Education Conference Center. This goal was initiated through a strategic plan which involved the board, staff and representatives from partner agencies. In May 2013, funding of the more than $600,000 project was complete. The renovation added approximately 1800 square feet to the existing building and a garage to house vehicles used in rural travel.

"We are excited to have completed construction of our project and show the community our new Education Conference Center. We are grateful to everyone that has supported us in our efforts," Says April Leming, Executive Director of The Bridge. Major contributors to the project include: Amarillo Area Foundation, Dr. Kent Roberts and Ilene Balliett Foundation, C.J. and Syble Fowlston Charitable Trust, Gilliland Family Foundation, Mary E. Bivins Foundation, High Plains Christian Ministries Foundation, Josephine Anderson Charitable Trust, The J.E. and L. E. Mabee, Mays Foundation, Meadows Foundation, several anonymous donors, individual donors and the board and staff of The Bridge.

Also new at The Bridge, is a digital upgrade of its forensic interview equipment. The upgrade has been made to each location of The Bridge and to mobile interview equipment used in rural areas. The Bridge's main location is in Amarillo and has satellite offices in Pampa, Dumas and Hereford. The improvement of this mobile forensic technology will go a long way to help underserved child victims of abuse in our area," said Leming. "We are grateful to the Governor's Office and Children's Advocacy Centers of Texas (CACTX) for providing the resources that will significantly increase the availability of services and resources for underserved children and families who have been victimized by sexual abuse."

Law enforcement, prosecution and Child Protective Services across the state rely on trained staff at children's advocacy centers (CACs) to conduct forensic interviews of suspected child victims and witnesses. CAC forensic interviewers are professionally trained to interview children about their experience in a non-leading, legally defensible manner. This interview is digitally recorded and often becomes a key piece of evidence in these difficult cases. Traditionally, interviews are conducted onsite at a local CAC. These facilities provide a neutral, child-focused environment which can lessen the trauma to victims and families.

Unfortunately, some suspected child victims are unable to travel to our center due to geographic distance and/or hospitalization. The use of mobile forensic interview equipment alleviates such barriers by allowing investigators and interviewers to travel to the child. The equipment package includes a video camera, a specially-equipped laptop and microphone.

The Bridge CAC in Amarillo is no stranger to having to cover a large territory with one full facility and three satellite offices. The Bridge covers 26 Texas counties with a staff of 10. This equipment will bring the technology to the 21st century, allowing interviews to be recorded digitally.

The Bridge (www.bridgecac.org) was the first children's advocacy center in the state of Texas, opening its doors in 1989. The Bridge started utilizing mobile forensic interview (MFI) equipment in 1995; however this equipment required heavy lifting and a large vehicle to transport. In 1996, The Bridge went to Amarillo Media Systems to look for a better solution and they were able to deliver developing a concept that is still utilized today but has made advancements in the recording process through the years. Through the use of MFI equipment, The Bridge has been able to reach more victims who cannot travel to one of their facilities due to distance or other circumstances. This method has been proven to be a creative and efficient way to deliver high quality services to children in all 26 counties.

Since that time, the Bridge has provided services to more than 20,000 children who have been victims or witnesses of crime in the Texas Panhandle. In 2012, the Bridge interviewed 1,038 children in the Texas Panhandle, and provided community education to more than 3,000 adults and safety education programs to more than 700 children, ages 5-10. The Bridge strives to bring a comprehensive approach to child abuse investigation, facilitating communication among 72 partner agencies in the top 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle. Our Mission is: To Provide a Child's Path to Healing and Justice.

Online shoppers, beware of shipping Email scam

Hi, gang! Made it back from Houston for Christmas then back in January, Lord willing. Don't let some scammer, house or car burglar, or ID thief ruin your Christmas. Now is the time to be extra careful.

Scammers are taking advantage of the holiday shopping season with fake email shipping notifications that pose as FedEx, UPS or the United States Postal Service. Don't let these scams fool you into opening a virus on your computer. How the Scam Works: You receive an email message that appears to be a shipping notification for a package. You've been doing your holiday shopping online, so you figure it must be something you've ordered. Curious, you open the email and attachment. When you click on the file, you find that it isn't a tracking notification after all. It's really a virus that will download to your computer. Typically, these viruses phish for personal and banking information on your machine. But the FBI recently warned about the resurgence of a type of virus called "ransomware."

Once downloaded, this virus will lock your computer and urge you to pay a ransom to the scammer responsible.

Like all scams, this one has many variations. Scammers have posed as FedEx, UPS, USPS and even big online retailers, like Amazon. They also change up the email content. A common version of this scam is a fake delivery failure notification. Scammers claim the attached virus is the receipt you need to collect your package from the local office.

Tips to Avoid Email Scams: Spot common email scams by following these tips: Don't believe what you see. Scammers make emails appear to come from a reputable source. Just because it looks like an "@ups.com" address does not mean it's safe. Be wary of unexpected emails that contain links or attachments. As always, do not click on links or open the files in unfamiliar emails. Beware of pop-ups. Some pop-ups are designed to look like they've originated from your computer. If you see a pop-up that looks like an anti-virus software but warns of a problem that needs to be fixed with an extreme level of urgency, it may be a scam. Watch for poor grammar and spelling. Scam emails often are riddled with typos. Immediate action is necessary. Scam emails try to get you to act before you think by creating a sense of urgency. Don't fall for it.

For more information about scams, see BBB's Scam Stopper. Check out FedEx and UPS websites for more information about fake shipping emails and examples of typical scams. Note: FedEx and UPS are BBB Accredited Businesses.

Scam Email Poses As Award Message From Microsoft

by bob watson

Don't be fooled into downloading the attachment. It's not a letter of congratulations as the email claims; it's a virus. How the Scam Works: You receive an email message that appears to be from Microsoft. The email says you were randomly selected as a winner of the "2013 Microsoft Edinburgh Products Anniversary Award." There's an attachment, which the message claims is a letter of congratulations. When you click on the file, you find that it isn't a congratulatory note after all. It's really malware that will download to your computer. Typically, these viruses phish for personal and banking information on your machine.

The email above is just one version of this scam. A popular variation claims that you won a lottery conducted by Microsoft and you need to pay a fee to collect your prize. In another version, the recipient is urged to claim the money by replying to the email with personal information. Tips to Avoid Email/Sweepstakes Scams: Spot common email and lottery scams by watching for the following warning signs: You can't win a contest you didn't enter: You need to buy a ticket or complete an application to enter a contest or lottery. Be very careful if you've been selected as a winner for a contest you have never heard of. The lottery is overseas: Sweepstakes scams, such as the one above, often claim to take place overseas, frequently in the UK. Don't believe what you see. Scammers make emails appear to come from a reputable source. Just because it looks like a legitimate business email address does not mean it's safe. Be wary of unexpected emails that contain links or attachments: As always, do not click on links or open the files in unfamiliar emails.

Watch for poor grammar and spelling. Scam emails often are riddled with typos.

Stay Safe out there during this Christmas season.

Use the winter chill to make Jell-O

It is cold. I know you folks around Houston complain at 40°F, but we are talking serious cold in Howardwick. It is the middle of the morning and the temperature has warmed to 22°F.

One day (Saturday I think) the low was 3°F, and high was around 15°F. The Lord was good to us because we were spared the wind and ice storm that covered Ft. Worth and Dallas, but the cold lingers on.

Growing up on the ranch, our houses were cold, and I remember one particular cold winter in the late 1940s. We had no electricity or running water with a couple of wood stoves for heat except my bedroom, which caught some heat when doors were opened and quickly closed. A hot water bottle was slipped under the pile of quilts to warm the bed and the only bad memory I have of that winter was attempting to turn or move positions under the pile of quilts. That cold bedroom served another good purpose - making Jell-O. Yes, my smart Mother mixed up a bowl of Jell-O, set it in my bedroom and served it for supper fully gelled. I wish I had thought of that one this weekend, the utility room was cold and I think we could have had cold-weather Jell-O.

Our condolences to the family of Bobby Murdock who passed away last week. He and Donna lived in Howardwick for a number of years where both were very involved in the running of the community. Bobby was an alderman for several years and helped keep our roads and other parts of the community running smoothly. They moved a few years ago because of his health but kept the friendship alive. Please keep this family in your prayers and God Bless them.

Christmas program to be held in Hedley

Hedley First Baptist Church wants to invite everyone in the community to attend our Christmas Program and Service at 6:00 p.m. on December 15, 2013.

Baby, it's cold outside! Keep warm and keep your pets warm. If it is cold to you outside, then it is cold to them. If you have your pets chained up outside, make sure their shelter is warm and dry. If you have pets, it is your responsibility to keep them out of bad weather. A little work goes a long way. How would you like to be chained up with no shelter?

Binger & Burgers will be cancelled for December. We will begin again on the second Saturday in January.

Mary Ruth and Harold White will celebrate their 60th Wedding Anniversary on Saturday, December 14, at the Lions Club from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. No Gifts just come by and celebrate with them.

By the time you read this Santa would have already been here for his visit. The grade school kids made ornaments for the tree, we had cookies and chocolate milk, sang Christmas Carols and visited with Santa. Wonderful time.

Bacon-Cheese Biscuit Bites: 4 ounces cream cheese, softened, 1 Eggland's Best Egg, 1 tablespoon 2% milk, 1/3 cup real bacon bits,

1/4 cup shredded Swiss cheese, 1 tablespoon dried minced onion, (OR chopped green onion), 1 large plum tomato, seeded and finely chopped, divided, 1 tube (10.2 ounces) large refrigerated flaky biscuits. In a small bowl, beat the cream cheese, egg and milk until smooth. Stir in the bacon, cheese, onion and half of the tomato; set aside. Cut each biscuit into four pieces; press each piece into a greased miniature muffin cup. Fill with cream cheese mixture; top with remaining tomato. Bake at 375° for 14-16 minutes or until a knife inserted near the center comes out clean. Yield: 20 appetizers.

Merry Christmas everyone! Let's keep Christ in Christmas! May god bless us everyone! The beauty of Christmas is not in the presents, but in his presence.

Clarendon Church of Christ IT HAS A CAPACITY TO HEAL

When I was told that in the past year I had a heart attack, I was shocked and scared. Oddly, my heart attack wasn't due to blockage or buildup. I have spasms that are made worse by stress and high blood pressure (weight). Even if my stress and weight were where they need to be, I would still have the spasms, but less frequent and severe. If I take medication, try to relieve stress, and watch my food, my heart has the capacity to heal. I've already seen some evidence of this on an ultra-sound. The enlargement that was so pronounced on one side is much better. The doctor was pleased and so was I.

But, before I knew what I know now, I thought the damage would be irreparable. It is not! This line of thinking got me to thinking about our Christian "hearts" and our capacity to heal those, with God's help of course. There are times that Christians lose zeal or some tragedy causes them to leave God's presence. You might say, "They have 'lost heart.'" Obviously we teach that we can overcome these types of things but sometimes I don't think we believe it. I've heard brethren who have left the church say that they have no desire or that their heart isn't right. We need to understand that our spiritual hearts have a capacity to heal also. But, they must be filled up with good things.

(Philippians 4:8) "Finally, brethren, whatever things are true, whatever things are noble, whatever things are just, whatever things are pure, whatever things are lovely, whatever things are of good report, if there is any virtue and if there is anything praiseworthy—meditate on these things." This is God's prescription for healing a damaged heart. I take 3 pills for my physical heart, every day. Would it not make sense to take Paul's advice every day and expect to see some improvement? God has the cure and no one is beyond reach if they have just a little conscience left. As my doctor told me, "Take your medicine, and you will be o.k." The Great Physician gave us a cure for every spiritual thing. You just gotta take the medicine.

Colts corral the Longhorns

The 7th and 8th grade Colts executed a great offensive plan against the Vega Longhorns last Monday at home, which in turn led to two big wins for the junior high players.

The seventh grade left no doubt and won 49-19.

The Colts jumped out to the early lead while holding their opponent to single digits in the first two quarters of play. The Colts' great offense and solid defense helped to stifle anything the Longhorns tried to do. Preston Elam and Bear Smith led the Colts on the scoreboard finishing in double figures with 15 and 14 points respectively. Noab Elam finished with nine points, Ryan McCleskey had six, Payton Hicks helped with four, and Gavin Word had one.

The eighth grade picked up where the seventh grade left off and won 48-14. Just like the seventh grade, the eighth grade Colts held their opponent to single digits for three quarters, and thanks to solid defense, allowed them no points the entire first quarter of play. After setting a tempo for the game in the first half of play, the Colts were able to cruise to the win. Colt Wood hit three three-pointers and racked up 31 total points in the win and Damarjae Cortez helped with nine. Nathan Shadle added six points and Justin Christopher had two.

Coach Brad Elam was happy with the win and how his players took control of the game.

"I was really pleased with both games and they were very similar," Elam said. "We started off a little rough at times, but we were able to wear them down in the second half and really pull away." Elam knows the season is early and the kids have to improve. "We still have a long way to go and a lot of things to improve on, but for the third game of the year, the kids played well."

The Colts will travel to White Deer December 9 beginning at 7:00 p.m.

Lady Colts fall to Lady Longhorns

Both the seventh and eighth grade Lady Colts fell short against Vega on the road Monday night. The seventh grade lost 11-41, and the eighth grade was defeated 21-35.

The game began similar for both teams, as they got off to a slow start in the first quarter of play. After falling behind by 10 points in the first quarter, the seventh grade Lady Colts matched the Lady Longhorns almost point for point before the break. A slow offensive third quarter proved to be too much and Clarendon took the loss. Brandalyn Ellis and Chardy Craft put in four, Jessica Lowrie had two, and Kyla Dunham had one.

"The seventh graders improved from their last game," coach Johnny Nino said. "I feel like the girls are understanding the offense and defense better. The execution was much better this game."

The eighth grade Lady Colts were very much in the game in the opening first half, but like the seventh grade, had a slow shooting third quarter that made the difference between getting the win and taking a loss.

Shaelyn Owiti ended the game with nine points to lead the Lady Colts and Hannah Hommel helped with five. Abby Cenicerros put in four and Trinity Stribling had three.

"The eighth graders played better as well," Nino said. "We had some turnovers in the third quarter that hurt us. Hannah Hommel had a good game on the offensive and defensive end of the floor, and Shaelyn Owiti had a good game offensively. Abby Cenicerros had a good game on the defensive end of the floor."

The Lady Colts will travel to White Deer Monday, December 9, and play at 5:00 p.m.

A New Way to Prevent Another C. diff Infection

Canadian researchers have developed an unusual way to help fight the recurrent bacterial infection of Clostridium difficile (also known as C. diff). This infection occurs when the bacteria enters the digestive system and kills all the good bacteria. That causes life-threatening diarrhea. Canadian researchers have been investigating the use of pills containing purified bacteria from donated fecal material from a family member to help restore good bacteria in the affected person's stomach. In the investigational studies, participants took anywhere from 24 to 34 such pills in a single day. The results showed that there was a one hundred percent cure rate among participants who took the pills. This experimental research was presented at a scientific meeting recently. Such pills may possibly be a better alternative to the current standard of therapy.

C. diff infections typically infect people who stay at a hospital or long-term care facilities after taking strong antibiotics for a long time. While older people are more likely to get infected, the infection rates have risen in young and healthy persons as well.

Broncos defeat Groom

By Sandy Anderberg

Chance McAnear brought the heat against the Groom Tigers on the road last Tuesday night and racked up 19 points in the Broncos' 48-40 win. Several Broncos stepped up the intensity of their game and aided in the win.

Clarendon had the upper hand on the Tigers, never relinquishing their lead after each period of play. They stayed focused throughout and earned the win with their biggest lead of the game.

"We did a good job of crashing the offensive boards," coach Brandt Lockhart said. "We just need to get better at finishing our shots. We were able to extend the lead in the fourth quarter and get the win."

Also scoring: Cedrick McCampbell 9, JoJo Cartwright 5, Ashton Smith 5, Charles Mason 3, Bryce Hatley 3, Chance Lockhart 3, and Chesson Sims 1.

The Broncos will play at home on Tuesday, December 17, against Valley beginning at 8:00 p.m. They will play in the Canadian Tournament over the Christmas holidays.

Lady Broncos slam Groom

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos made the game look easy as they rolled to a 66-15 win over the Groom Lady Tigers Tuesday night.

The Lady Broncos were on fire in the first half of play and played strong defense to hold the Lady Tigers scoreless in the first half of play. Taylor Degrate added 18 points in the game, Brittney Braim helped with 13, and Taylor Gaines added 11. Head coach Molly Weatherred was more than pleased with the effort.

"We started the game off with a lot of energy on the defensive end, which allowed us to get steals and shoot layups to jump start our offense," Weatherred said. "I thought we ran the floor well and did a great job of getting the ball to the open girl."

Also scoring: Ryann Starnes 7, Deborah Howard 6, Phara Berry 6, Camra Smith 3, and Haley Ferguson 2.

The ladies will play Valley at home December 17 at 6:30 pm and participate in the Canadian Tournament after Christmas.

Former Lady Bronco and Tarleton freshman Audrey Shelton participated in the NCAA Division II National Cross Country Championship at Planters Ferry Athletic Complex in November in Spokane, Wash., and finished 160th out of a field of 244 runners. The Tarleton team placed 24th in the event. Shelton will start preparing for the spring track season at Tarleton after the Christmas break.

Extension to offer marketing program in Vernon

VERNON - The Master Marketer Program, only offered in a region about every five years, is set to return to the Rolling Plains in 2014, according to Stan Bevers, Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service economist in Vernon.

The training dates will be Jan. 22-23 at the Texas A&M AgriLife Research and Extension Center near Vernon.

The 64-hour curriculum is offered as four, two-day sessions held every two weeks, and is the most intensive marketing/risk management training provided by Extension anywhere in the U.S., Bevers said. Other dates are Feb. 5-6, Feb. 19-20 and March 5-6.

The Master Marketer Program is a national, award-winning curriculum that provides in-depth, intensive risk management education training. It teaches participants how to develop marketing plans, evaluate marketing alternatives, manage production and price risk, and helps teach the skills and discipline necessary to execute those plans, he said.

"It's been six years since the last Master Marketer training was held in Vernon," Bevers said. "If a producer ever thought about attending the training or a past graduate wants a refresher, they need to sign up early. It may be their last chance for a while."

The registration fee is $340, which includes meals and materials. The registration fees fall short of covering all costs of the program, he said.

Most of the costs are covered by grants and partnerships with other organizations, including the Texas Corn Producers Board, Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board, Texas Farm Bureau, the Cotton State Support Committee, Texas Wheat Producers Board and the U.S. Department of Agriculture Risk Management Agency.

Anyone interested in attending can get more information by contacting their local AgriLife Extension county agent or by calling Bevers at 940-552-9941, ext. 231. Registration is available online at <http://agrilife-register.tamu.edu>. Due to the hands-on nature of the course, attendance is limited. The deadline for registration is Jan. 15.

Bevers said in post-training surveys in the previous years, 186 Vernon Master Marketer participants indicated their gross income increased on average $34,000 annually based on what they had learned in the training.

"There is no reason that program graduates shouldn't receive this level of increased returns for the next 10 years," he said.

"Interested participants should weigh carefully the registration fee, the time commitment and travel costs associated with the program against the potential of a $250,000-plus increase in returns over the next decade when considering signing up for the program. Personally, I think it is a no brainer."

The instructors are top professionals from industry and universities from around the country, Bevers said.

Case studies, group discussions and simulation exercises will be utilized to provide students with experience using real tools they can apply on their farm and ranch operations when they leave the class, he said.

Campaign promotes Merry Christmas law

By David Maly, Texas Tribune

Politicians, advocates and even a Santa Claus turned up at the Capitol on Monday to promote a new law that aims to protect Texans' right to wish one another "Merry Christmas."

Texas Values, a faith-based political advocacy organization, on Monday hosted an educational event to make sure that parents, students and others know about House Bill 308, the so-called Merry Christmas Law that the Texas Legislature passed this year. The law is meant to ensure that public school districts can educate students about the history of traditional winter celebrations and can use traditional winter greetings, such as "Merry Christmas" and "Happy Hanukkah," without fear of litigation.

"School districts for too long have either wanted to or thought that they had to be speech police," Jonathan Saenz, president of Texas Values, said Monday.

Critics of the law, however, say the Texas Values campaign is unnecessary, because the right to say

"Merry Christmas" and use other holiday expressions was never at risk.

"It's crazy to think that somehow there is a war on Christmas when the vast majority of people celebrate Christmas," said Dan Quinn, a spokesman for Texas Freedom Network, a political organization that advocates for the separation of church and state.

Saenz told The Texas Tribune on Friday that one has only to look to recent conflicts in public schools to see the need for the law and the Texas Values campaign.

"For many years, there have been court cases in the state of Texas where students have been restricted from making these expressions and told that they cannot say 'Merry Christmas,' and even not being allowed to wear the colors red and green at parties during this time of year," Saenz said.

He pointed to a recent instance at Nichols Elementary School in Frisco in which a member of the parent teacher association who was organizing a "Winter Party" sent out an email forbidding red, green, Christmas trees and references to Christmas or other religious holidays at the party.

Following local media coverage and concern from state Rep. Pat Fallon, R-Frisco, the association released a statement reassuring the public that the school was in compliance with the new law.

"Our December celebration is called a 'Winter Party' in an effort to include all holidays celebrated in our Nichols community," the statement said. "Our effort is focused on allowing all children to celebrate any winter holiday without excluding anyone."

Saenz said the Frisco incident and recent court cases, including a federal lawsuit against Katy Independent School District over removing a Christmas card from a fundraiser sale and other actions, are evidence that the campaign is necessary. Lawsuits against school districts can be costly for taxpayers, so he said it's important to make sure the new law is followed.

Saenz said the campaign, which also uses radio ads in major Texas cities, is mainly meant to educate students and parents about the law, so that they can advocate for themselves if school districts attempt to restrict holiday expressions that the law allows.

But Quinn, of the Texas Freedom Network, said he believes the intent of the Texas Values campaign promoting the law is more secular in nature than religious.

"It's a great fundraising tactic for them," Quinn said.

Justin Butterfield, a staff attorney for Liberty Institute, a national organization that advocates for religious freedom, said the Merry Christmas Law simply makes clear what is allowed under the US Constitution and what's not.

"It sets those bright-line rules and makes things a lot easier for the school districts, the parents, the students and for everyone involved," Butterfield said.

State Rep. Dwayne Bohac, R-Houston, who authored the legislation, said states, such as Oklahoma, are making similar proposals.

Merry Christmas to all

Merry Christmas from the Donley County 4H and the Donley County Clover Kids! Over 200 care packages of trail mix and candy canes were assembled at our regular December meeting. These were handed out to the nursing home, the Donley County Senior Citizens, and the Hedley Senior Citizens. The Clover Kids helped decorate the paper sacks, while twenty-six 4H members and their parents combined the trail mix ingredients and packaged them for delivery.

DPS increases DWI enforcement

AUSTIN – The Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) will increase DWI patrols for a 21-day period that includes both the Christmas and New Year holidays. From December 13 – January 2, DPS troopers will focus DWI patrols in high-risk locations at times when alcohol-related crashes are most frequent.

“Historically, the holiday season brings an increased potential for drinking and driving incidents, and these enhanced DPS patrols will help save lives,” said DPS Director Steven McCraw.

“Impaired driving can easily turn a holiday celebration into a tragic situation. By designating a sober driver or finding alternative transportation if drinking alcohol is expected, Texans can do their part in keeping our roadways safe and making the holidays memorable for the right reasons.”

The increased patrols that target impaired driving are funded through a grant from the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT).

DPS offers the following additional tips for safe travel during the holidays:

Don't drink and drive. Designate a driver or take a cab.

Eliminate distractions, including the use of mobile devices.

Buckle up everyone in the vehicle – it's the law.

Slow down – especially in bad weather, construction areas and heavy traffic.

Slow down or move over for police, fire, EMS and Texas Department of Transportation vehicles and tow trucks that are stopped on the side of the road with emergency lights activated – it's the law.

Don't drive fatigued.

Drive defensively, as holiday travel may present additional challenges.

Make sure your vehicle is properly maintained before your trip begins.
