Early voting in this year's primary begins February 18, and Primary Election Day will be March 4.

Fire damages rural home Monday

Several personal possessions and a family dog was lost during a house fire on County Road W this week.

Clarendon Fire Chief Jeremy Powell said his department was paged to the fire Monday, January 27, at 10:41 a.m. and were on the scene by 10:55. The home which is owned by Jim Mitchell was being rented by Joel Layton.

Powell said a female and child were inside the residence when the home caught fire and were unable to suppress the fire and were forced to evacuate and call 911.

When firemen arrived, the stucco home was showing heavy smoke with one window showing fire. The initial attack was made through that window while an entry team entered through a door on the northeast corner of the home.

Aided by a thermal camera, the team quickly knocked down the fire and made a quick search of the home before exiting to allow for ventilation teams to clear the home of smoke.

Powell said firemen were able to retrieve some valuables for the family. No people were injured. The cause of the fire is under investigation at press time.

Thirteen firemen and seven unites were used on the fire. The fire was under control within 10 minutes of firemen arriving on scene.

On a side note, this was the first structure fire in which the Clarendon VFD was able to utilize a new tool that they just received this month.

The department purchased an Argus Thermal Imaging Camera which allows firemen to see in low visibility conditions. The camera can be used to locate victims in a home filled with smoke, locate the seat of fire in a smoke filled environment, or locate persons in the dark. The camera needs no light to see. The camera aided Clarendon firemen's efforts to quickly control the fire on Monday.

Powell said the camera will be a huge asset to the department and will aid greatly in ability to save life and property. The camera, which cost nearly $8,500, was purchased with funds donated to the department.

Open Roads...

The Rosenfield Street Bridge opened for last week traffic following a half-million project that rehabilitated the structure and built a new bridge near City Park. The 1940 Warren truss bridge on Rosenfield was disassembled, reinforced, and rebuilt.

The new Seventh Street Bridge at City Park is also opened for traffic last Friday. The project bypassed a 1908 Pony truss bridge that was closed for safety reasons in 2008. The new bridge has room for traffic in both directions, and the old bridge was left in place as a foot bridge due to its historic nature.

Candidate filing opens for May elections

Filing is now open for those interested in serving on local boards as seven local governments prepare for May elections.

The Donley County Hospital Board, which oversees indigent care and the local ambulance service, has four positions up for election this year. The two-year terms are elected at-large in Donley County, but candidates must sign up for a specific place. Those seats are currently held by Jan Farris - Place 4, Jeannie Owens - Place 5, Mark C. White - Place 6, and Lori Howard - Place 7.

The Clarendon College District has three six-year terms available on the Board of Regents, and the positions are also elected at-large in Donley County. Those seats are held by Dr. John Howard, Dr. Bill Sansing, and Jack Moreman.

Clarendon ISD has two at-large positions available on the Board of Trustees for three-year terms, and Reneé Betts and Weldon Sears are the incumbents.

Hedley ISD also has two at-large positions on its Board of Trustees, and those are also three-year terms. Those seats are currently held by Karen Watt and Tonja Ruthardt.

Three seats on the Clarendon Board of Aldermen are up this spring. Those are two-year terms elected at-large in the city. Will Thompson is finishing one of those terms, and Beverly Burrow and Larry Jeffers hold the other two positions, having been elected to serve out unexpired terms in a special election last November.

The City of Hedley has three positions available on the May ballot. The two-year, at-large terms of Mayor Leon Ward and Aldermen Lonnie Roby and Carrie Butler are up this year.

In Howardwick, the terms of Gene Rogers, Cory Longan, and Robert Brewster on the Board of Aldermen are expiring. Those are two-year terms elected at-large.

Filing for these positions runs through February 28. Elections will be held May 10.

Local property taxes due to appraisal district this week

The Donley Appraisal District is reminding those who have not paid their 2013 taxes that those taxes are due today, January 30.

Statements were mailed two weeks ago to taxpayers still owing 2013 taxes. Taxes not paid on or before January 31 will incur penalty and interest of 7 percent if paid in February. The amount increases each month thereafter until the tax is paid. Accounts unpaid on July 1 will incur an additional 20 percent collection penalty in addition to the regular penalty and interest of 18 percent. Texas state law prescribes the penalty and interest amounts.

Delinquent notices will be mailed in May to those who still owe 2013 tax at that time. Partial payments will be accepted.

Taxes are payable to the Donley Appraisal District, PO Box 1220, Clarendon TX 79226.

Arrest made in school zone

A Clarendon man is in custody this week on charges of theft and possession of a controlled substance in a school zone.

Donley County Chief Deputy Randy Bond said the Sheriff's Office received a complaint from a local landlord that she had purchased a new water heater for her tenant, Jerry Perkins, after he reported that the home's water heater had gone out. The purchase was made a Lowe's in Amarillo for $386.45, and Perkins was to pick up the appliance and install it. When an inspection was later made of the home, there was no water heater.

Perkins, age 43, was arrested at the house at 708 W. Third and charged with theft on January 24. A pat down of the suspect revealed an amount of methamphetamine in his pocket, Bond said. The residence is less than 1,000 feet from the Clarendon Public School and therefore within the Drug Free School Zone, which enhances the possession charge.

Perkins remained in the Donley County Jail at press time with bond set at $5,000. He is facing a Class B Misdemeanor Theft charge and a Third Degree Felony for the enhanced possession.

ObamaCare's Ugly 'Progress'

By Michael D. Tanner

No one expected President Obama to say much about ObamaCare in his State of the Union Address on Tuesday — because there isn't much good to say about his signature achievement.

Yes, we get a perfunctory apology for those Web site "glitches," plus a suitably uplifting story about how someone finally found health insurance thanks to the Affordable Care Act. But it's just too risky for him to say much more, because "the State of ObamaCare" is growing ever more troubled.

For starters, it's falling far short of the goal of universal coverage. The White House admits that only about 2.2 million people have signed up for health insurance through the program so far — but even that number's padded: It includes all who've "picked" a health plan, even if they haven't yet paid for it, sort of like Amazon counting every item a shopper puts in their "cart" as a sale. So far, just 1.5 million have actually completed the ObamaCare checkout, including payment. Worse, surveys indicate that less than a third of those enrolling were previously uninsured.

Another 3.9 million people have been enrolled in Medicaid, though it is not clear how much of that's a direct result of ObamaCare's expansion of the program.

Even using the most optimistic reading of these figures, fewer than 11 percent of uninsured Americans have gotten coverage because of the ObamaCare law; most likely, fewer. This is what we're getting for the $2.7 trillion that ObamaCare will cost over the next 10 years?

Plus, we should subtract the roughly 500,000 Americans who, by the White House's own count, have lost insurance because of ObamaCare. They're some of the 5 million to 10 million Americans whose plans got canceled because they didn't meet ObamaCare standards (despite the president's promises that "you'll be able to keep your health-care plan, period"). Most of these victims ultimately found new plans, though they might have been more expensive or no longer included their current doctor.

Yet that's just the tip of the iceberg, because those policy-killing rules will hit another part of the market over the course of this year — namely, the "small group" market, where employers now buy health policies that cover about 78 million Americans. Many of those with cancelled plans will ultimately end up with similar, if more expensive, employment-based policies, but some are likely to simply wind up uninsured.

Universal coverage? I think not.

Then there's the bad news about who is enrolling in ObamaCare plans — or rather, who isn't: not enough of the young and healthy folks that the program needs to overpay for insurance so as to offset the costs of covering older and sicker people.

If the insurance pool is composed largely of people who use more (and more expensive) care, insurance prices will have to rise to cover their costs. That rate hike will then cause even more young and healthy people to drop insurance, leaving the pools even older and sicker than before. That raises premiums yet again, leading the healthiest remaining folks to drop out, and so on. Actuaries call this the "adverse selection death spiral."

To avoid the death spiral, the Obama team estimated that it needs roughly 38 percent of people buying coverage via the exchanges to be under age 35. But data the administration released this month suggest that it's turning out to be just 24 percent so far.

Data from individual states appears equally troubling. In New York, only 27 percent of exchange enrollees are 35 or younger, while 53 percent are over age 45. In New Jersey, 35-and-unders made up only 23 percent of enrollees; in Connecticut, less than 20 percent.

Oh, and a Reuters survey finds that new enrollees are also less healthy than ObamaCare's designers hoped, too. Humana, one of the nation's largest insurers, reports that so far enrollment in its exchange-based plans has been far "more adverse than previously expected."

Worried about the insurance companies taking a bath on this? Don't: ObamaCare's designers set up a $25 billion reinsurance fund to protect insurers from losses due to adverse selection, funded by a $63-a-year tax ... er, fee on all health policies.

So the "death spiral" may well leave ObamaCare exchanges covering far fewer Americans than planned, but the insurance industry will be OK because we'll essentially be bailing it out.

This on top of the fact that ObamaCare already directs more than $1 trillion of taxpayer funds to insurance companies in the form of subsidies to help people buy their products — products that the law mandates that people and companies purchase. You can't say that ObamaCare has no winners.

But those winners won't include most of the rest of us, who'll end up paying higher taxes and higher premiums, while getting less health care.

I suspect the president isn't saying much about this. And, really, can you blame him?

SNEAKING IN THEIR GOODIES ON YOUR DIME.

The high cost of income inequality

Last week, I wrote about the rising income inequality that is afflicting America and American prosperity. This inequality has enormous economic costs: wages are stagnant even though productivity is increasing, and rising debt that makes us much more vulnerable to the next financial crises. Income inequality also carries big social and human costs. It is becoming clear that high income inequality leads to worse health and higher mortality.

Even worse, extreme income inequality actually creates a class of people who are so detached from reality that it is scary. Additionally, these people have great power, and they are not shy about welding it to enrich themselves at the expense of the middle and lower classes.

A good example of such a person is billionaire investor Tom Perkins, a founding principal of the venture capital firm Kleiner Perkins Caufield and Byers. Recently, in a letter to the editor of the Wall Street Journal, the aforementioned Mr. Perkins complained about the public criticism of the "one percent" — and had the gall to compare such criticism to Nazi attacks on Jews, even suggesting that we are on the road to another Kristallnacht.

"So what?" you ask. This is just another crazy guy, you might think. Perhaps you may even wonder why the Wall Street Journal would print such drivel. However, Mr. Perkins is not much of an outlier, if the truth be known. Shoot, he isn't even the first financial titan to compare advocates of progressive taxation to the Nazis. In 2010, Stephen Schwarzman, the chairman and chief executive officer of the Blackstone Group, indignantly declared that proposals to eliminate tax loopholes for hedge fund and private-equity managers were "like when Hitler invaded Poland in 1939." Really, he actually made such a claim? Wow!

Fortunately, there are many plutocrats who manage to keep Hitler out of their remarks, but who still hold, and loudly proclaim their political and economic opinions that seem to combine paranoia and megalomania in equal parts.

Seriously, check the record. Look at all the speeches and opinion pieces by Wall Street Wolves accusing President Obama — who has never done anything other than state the obvious, that many bankers behaved badly — of demonizing and persecuting the rich. Look closer and you will notice how many of those who are making these accusations also made the outrageously self-centered claim that their personal angst was the main thing holding the economy back.

Now, to be sure, the very rich, those on Wall Street in particular, are doing much worse under President Obama than they would have done if Mitt Romney had won the presidency. Thanks to the partial rollback of the Bush tax cuts and the tax hike that partially pays for Obamacare, tax rates on the one percent have returned to healthier pre-Reagan levels. Additionally, financial reformers have managed to win some significant victories over the past year or so, and this should dampen the enthusiasm of the entrepreneurs whose wealth comes from exploiting weak, tepid regulation. So, the case can be made that the one percent have lost their fair share of recent policy battles.

Even so, democracy usually dictates that every group eventually finds itself facing criticism, and occasionally ends up on the losing end of policy disputes. Such is life. The important question is what happens next. Normal people (if there is such a thing) take it all in stride; even if they are frustrated, upset, even bitter over political setbacks, they don't cry persecution, associate their critics with Nazis, and insist the world revolves around their hurt feelings and angst. Most of us know that the rich, the one percent, are different from ourselves.

This difference is much more than because they have more money, and the power that goes with that money. They surround themselves with assistants and advisors who tell them what they want to hear, much like the ancient kings and queens of Europe. These assistants and advisors never, ever tell them that they are being foolish and stupid. They are accustomed to being treated with reverence, not just by the common folk they hire but also by the politicians who want their money. When they discover that money cannot actually buy everything, and sure as heck cannot insulate them from all adversity, they are genuinely bewildered.

I strongly suspect that today's Wolves of Wall Street are somewhat insecure about the nature of their success. We are not talking about captains of industry here, men and women who make stuff and contribute value to Americans and the American economy. These are folks who for the most part, contributing members of American exceptionalism, adding value to our economy. We are, rather, talking about wheeler-dealers, men and women who push money around and get rich by skimming some off the top as it passes by. Even though they may falsely claim that they are job creators, the valuable people who make the economy work, but are really not adding value. Most of us know this, as do many of the wealthy themselves. Thus, this self-doubt causes them to lash out even more furiously at their critics.

Anyway, we've been here before. It is impossible to read drivel like that of Mr. Perkins or Mr. Schwarzman without thinking of the trials of Theodore Roosevelt and his cousin F.D.R. Both faced the hatred of "organized money", welcomed that hatred, and overcame it.

While President Obama has not done nearly as much as the two Roosevelt's to earn the hatred of the undeserving rich, he has done enough (simply by breathing) that he should welcome their hatred. It is a sign that he is doing something right, much to the anguish of the tea partiers across the land.

Ad Mad Man and the Super Bowl

We are on the cusp of THAT DAY, Super Bowl Sunday. We won't need reminders from camels tromping around to make sure we know what day it is.

A grand majority of folks in the free world—as well as a big chunk of others in shackles—will put more serious pursuits aside, deeply interested—or appearing so—in the year's ultimate sports spectacle.

I confess to planning a "home-gating" party—as opposed to "tailgating"—with the promise of a big pot of queso. I cut a deal for Velveeta with my 101-year-old Uncle Mort, who drove around in his golf cart buying up all the cheese "before the Super Bowl hoarders get it..."

Hours before kick-off, I will replace batteries in my TV remote, make sure record buttons have been properly pushed and then re-comb my hair. I'll part it on the wrong side, thus causing me to walk like a badly aligned car pulling to the right. The something-not-right feeling such parting produces will help me to mentally shift into "reverse thinking," that is ads first, game second.

This approach is helpful for annual ultimate enjoyment of the ultimate game. I'll resist turning on the TV until an hour AFTER it starts.

My interest will lie in the commercials that are going for $4 million per half-minute. Competition on the field can't be as fierce as ad agencies fighting for choice accounts. I'll fast forward through game action to catch the ads, many of which are bound to be good. If it turns out to be a good football game, I can watch it later. I hear one of the ads features Arnold Schwarzenegger playing ping pong!...

Some ventures flopped. Motorcycle rentals, aluminum homes and "Muntz Motor Mansions" tanked, but he forged on, never minding fortune losses "because it was so much fun making another one."

He wasn't "lucky in love;" he was married seven times. He admittedly had a hard time keeping their names straight, yet remained friends with them after divorces. He called their new spouses "husbands-in-law."

So many ways a pioneer in advertising and merchandising, he was inducted posthumously into the Consumer Electronics Hall of Fame in 2001. If he were still alive to crash the Super Bowl party, we'd all be telling "Muntz stories" the next day...

Watch out for new credit card con

Hi gang! Watch Out for $9.84 credit card charges. With this new con, scammers are banking on the fact that many consumers don't check their credit card statements all that carefully. Don't fall for it. Review your recent statements for unexplained charges of $9.84 and contest them with your bank or credit card issuer (call the number on the back of your card).

How the Scam Works: You spot a recent strange charge of $9.84 on your credit card statement. The source listed on your bill is an unfamiliar website. You check out the web address, and it's not the business website. It's a generic landing page that claims to offer "Customer Support." The text promises to "refund 100% of your last payment" and provides a phone number and email address. What's going on here? Scammers are charging stolen credit card numbers for a small amount of money. (Recent victims were all charged $9.84, but scammers may change that amount as word gets out.) The expectation is that many cardholders won't notice the relatively small charge, and the credit card companies won't go after such a minor sum. Victims report calling the "customer support" site and receiving verbal confirmation that the charge would be canceled. However, don't take the scammers at their word. Contact your bank to report the charges and request a new credit card. Your card information has been compromised, and it's likely scammers will be back for more.

Reduce Your Risk of Credit Card Fraud: Report lost cards and incorrect charges promptly. In the United States and Canada if your credit card is lost, stolen, or used without your permission, you may be responsible for up to $50. If you report the loss before the card is used, you're not responsible for any unauthorized charges. In addition, many cardholders are protected by zero liability policies set in place by credit

"Unfortunately, when victims are taken advantage of their money is gone from the economy and little if anything can be done at that point," said Janna Kiehl, BBB CEO. "That's why information and education is the first step the BBB takes with callers".

If you have received notification of winning a prize, remember: Most prize notifications are fraudulent. If you win a prize you will be contacted by certified mail and you will not be asked to send money up front. If you wire money as a promise to claim your prize - wire transfers are like cash and cannot be recovered. You should never have to send money to receive any winnings from a lottery or sweepstakes. When you win, the money comes to you. Be suspect of winning something you never bought a ticket for or entered, especially if you have to pay for it.

If you have questions about a sweepstakes offer, contact the BBB at www.bbb.org or by calling 806-379-6222.

If you want to report a scam, click on ScamSource on the website. Federal law dictates that no money has to be paid in order to win a prize. Typically, other well-known companies are never involved in these scams nor do they contact consumers regarding potential winnings.

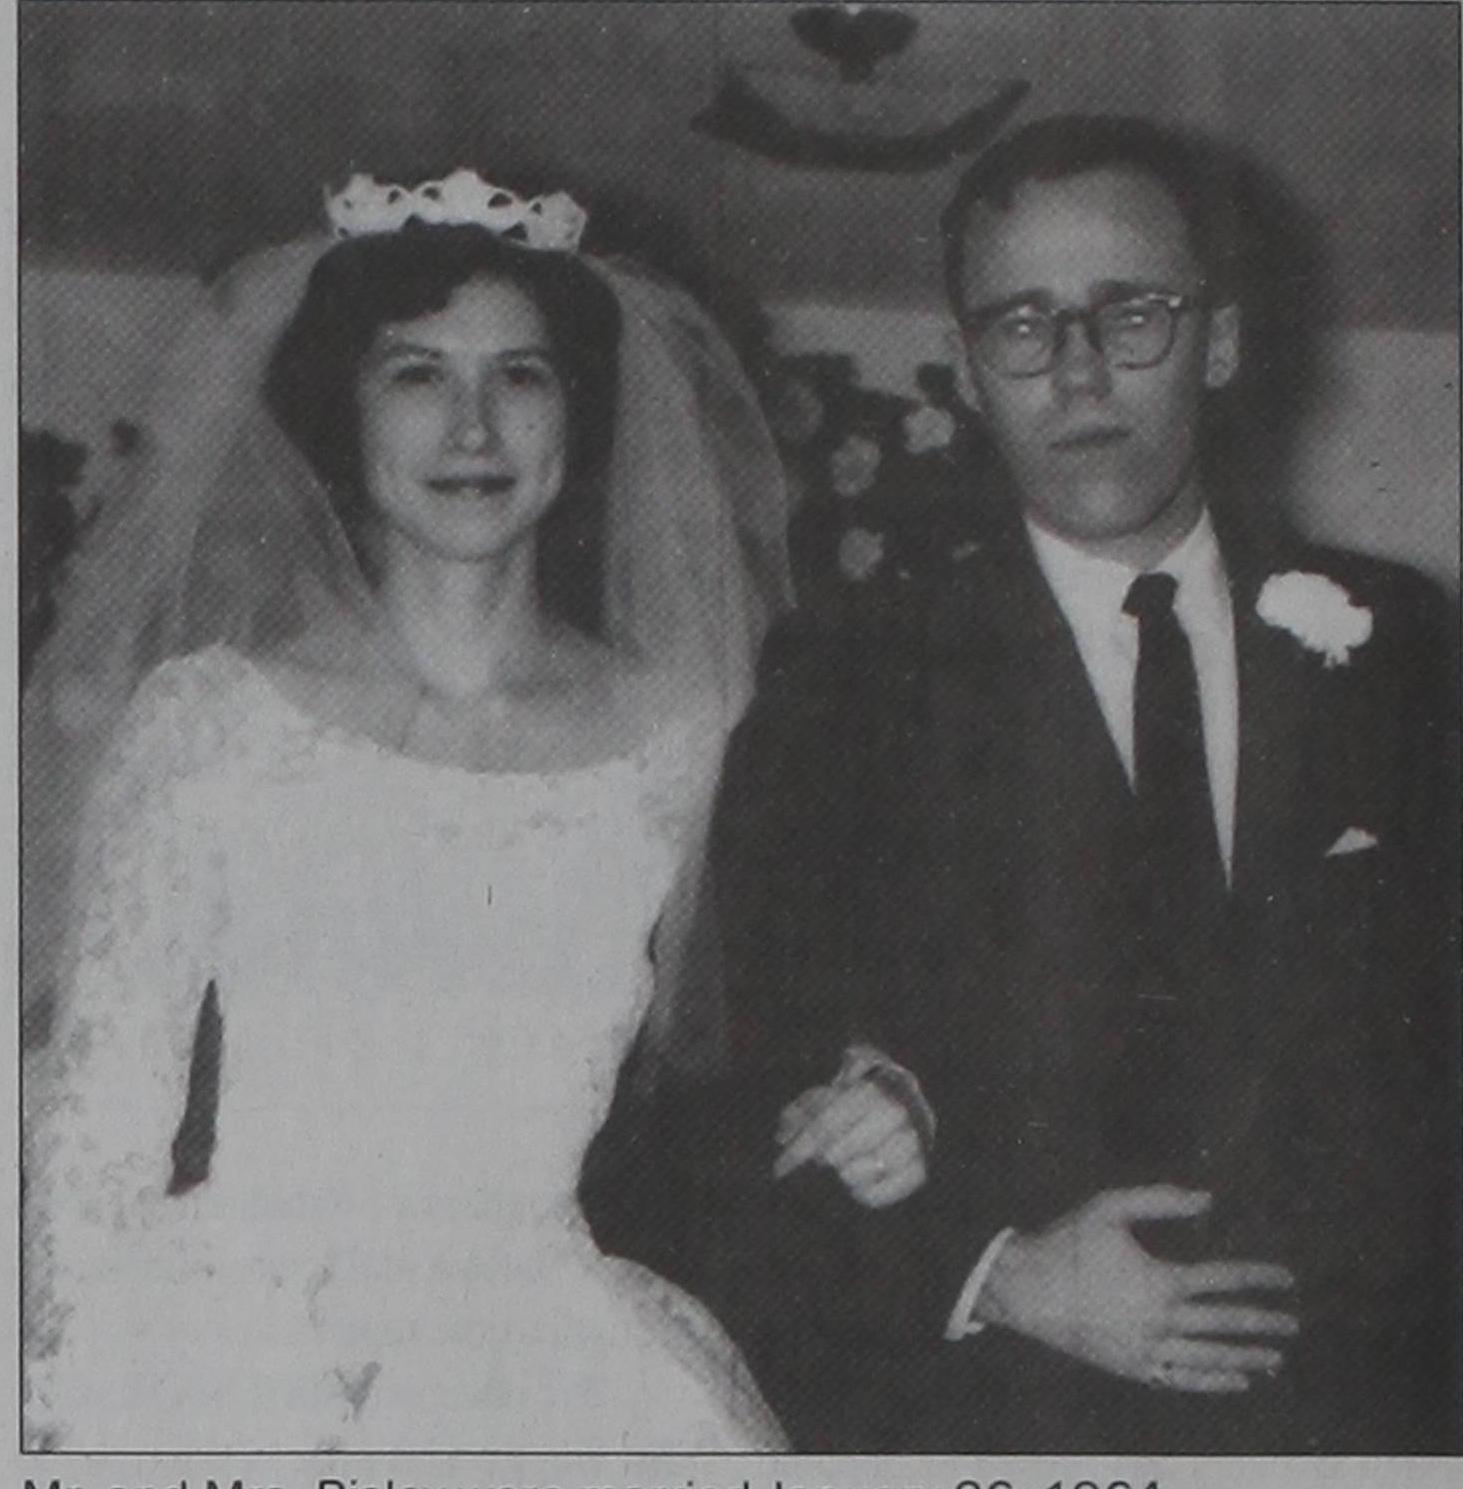

Publishers Clearing House Sweepstakes: Scams will abound around popular news stories as a way for scammers to capitalize on current headlines. It's the season for Publishers Clearing House Sweepstakes and the scams that go along with the real deal are already apparent. Recent calls to BBB indicate the recipient has won millions of dollars but first has to send money to receive their winnings. The BBB receives phone calls daily asking about sweepstakes notifications received by phone, email or regular mail. Some callers want to let the BBB know about the scam while others tell us they have already sent money and are looking for a resolution.

7th grade Colts' runner-up in tournament

The seventh grade Colts participated in the Childress Tournament over the weekend and walked away with the runner-up trophy. They took on the host team in the championship game and lost 22-42.

The Colts played Floydada in the opening round and won 41-22. After a slow start, the Colts put things together and finished strong. Noab and Preston Elam each finished with twelve points to lead the Colts.

"We looked sluggish in our first game against Floydada," coach Brad Elam said. "We started off slow, but finally picked it up in the third quarter scoring 18 of our 41 points."

Also scoring: Bear Smith 8, Ryan McCleskey 4, Payton Hicks 4, and Cole Franks 2.

The Colts took on Ft. Elliott in the second round and won big at 59-13. The Colts executed their press, which caused their opponent to turn the ball over. Smith and the Elam brothers finished in double figures with 19, 14, and 12 points respectively.

"We looked much better against Ft. Elliott," Elam said. "Our defense and press really hurt them which led to many fast break points."

Also scoring: Franks 5, McCleskey 4, and Hicks 4.

The Colts were down early in the championship game against a good Childress team according to Elam. Turnovers plagued the Colts and they were never able to get anything going. "We came up against a really good team and got down early," Elam said. "We were never able to mount a comeback as we turned the ball over to many times."

Earlier in the week, the Colts took on Vega on the road and defeated them, 58-24. Clarendon was spot on from the three-point line and played very aggressive defense in the second half.

"This was actually a closer game in the first half than it looks," Elam said. "Vega came out and played us tough and had 20 points in the first half. Offensively, we was pleased with the turnaround.

"We made a few adjustment after the Floydada game and played really good against Quanah," Elam said. "Andy Davis was a spark plug for us. Our defense and press troubled them. I was really pleased with how we played against Quanah."

Scoring: Smith 19, P. Elam 17, Franks 8, N. Elam 5, McCleskey 5, and Hicks 3.

The eighth grade played in the Childress Tournament also and finished with one win and one loss. In the first round of play, the Colts took on Floydada and narrowly lost 33-36. Missed shots haunted the Colts in the loss. "Against Floydada, we missed eleven free throws and ended up losing by three points," Elam said.

Scoring: Smith 19, P. Elam 17, Franks 8, N. Elam 5, McCleskey 5, and Hicks 3.

The eighth grade played in the Childress Tournament also and finished with one win and one loss. In the first round of play, the Colts took on Floydada and narrowly lost 33-36. Missed shots haunted the Colts in the loss. "Against Floydada, we missed eleven free throws and ended up losing by three points," Elam said.

"This was a tight ballgame," Elam said. "Defensively, we played good at times, but we struggled to score. We were able to build on the lead late and hold them off. We have got to have players step up with two more tough district games."

Scoring: Wood 25, Shadie 6, Christopher 4, and Cortez 3.

The Colts came back on Saturday, changed their game plan, and solidly defeated Quanah 35-19. Elam said.

Bronco JV slams the Mustangs

The Broncos had little trouble doing away with the Claude Mustangs at home Friday night defeating them, 60-12. Several Broncos contributed to the win to put the Broncos back on a district-winning streak.

The Mustangs were never able to contest the Broncos, as they were sharp on both ends of the court. Teamwork was key in their blowout and coach Alton Gaines feels the Broncos are peaking at a great time.

"The boys played at a high level from the start," Gaines said. "That's what good teams do. I am so proud of this bunch of young players. They all do their part for the team and that is so important for team success. Be teammates first and be teachable and the wins will follow. This bunch of guys has done both."

Keandre Cortez finished in double figures with ten points and Marshal Johnson was strong inside with nine. Chance Lockhart added the outside threat and finished with nine points as well.

Scoring: Cortez 10, Lockhart 9, Johnson 9, Riley Shadie 8, Cheson Sims 8, Clay Koetting 7, Joseph Jaramillo 7, and Seth Greer 2.

The Broncos will take on White Deer at home Friday, January 31, at 5:00 p.m. and travel to Panhandle on Tuesday, February 4, to end their regular season.

Eighth grade Lady Colts win by two

The eighth grade Lady Colts pulled off a great win aided by a fourth quarter surge against Vega after coming back from a five-point deficit at the break. The Lady Colts won 34-32. The first time the Lady Colts played Vega; they lost by fourteen according to coach Johnny Nino.

The Lady Colts jumped out to the early lead, but fell off their game in the second quarter allowing Vega to rebound and grab the lead at halftime. But the Lady Colts fought back to tie the score at 26 after three and squeeze out the win in the final period.

"They played a good game," Nino said. "We are still turning the ball over too much. The girls played hard and never quit even when they hit some threes and we fell behind. They kept on playing hard and came back to tie and take the lead. This was a good victory for the girls and they are learning how to win the close games."

Scoring: Sandra Smith 10, Shaelyn Owiti 9, Hannah Hommel 7, Whitney Laro 6, and Kendra Weatherton 1.

The seventh grade played hard, but finished with a 13-18 loss to Vega. Both teams opened the game slowly, but Vega found a rhythm in the second quarter and held the Lady Colts to only one point. That quarter of play was crucial and the Lady Longhorns went on to win the game.

"We have been playing very good defense," Nino said. "And we played good defense again on Monday. They scored forty points the first time we played them, but only scored eighteen on Monday. They hit a couple of long jump shots on us. One came right before half that put them up by five at halftime. The girl have been working hard, but we need to find our offense to go with our defense."

Scoring: Emily Johnson 6, Kyla Dunham 3, Alandra Williams 1, and Jessica Lowrie 1.

Both Lady Colt teams will travel to Panhandle February 3 for their last game of the season beginning at 5:00 p.m.

Lady Bronco JV beat the Lady Mustangs

The Lady Broncos showed a lot of poise as they easily defeated the Claude Lady Mustangs 47-24 at home Friday night. The win was the second over the Lady Mustangs this year.

Several Lady Broncos stepped up and played solid basketball executing their offense and staying aggressive on defense. After jumping out to an early lead, the Lady Broncos cruised in the second half of play to get the win. Briley Chadwick finished in double figures for the ladies with eleven points.

Scoring: Jensen Hatley 8, Berkeley Alexander 6, Briana Butler 5, MaRae Hall 5, Myra Castillo 4, Karlee Adams 2, and Brooke Smith 1.

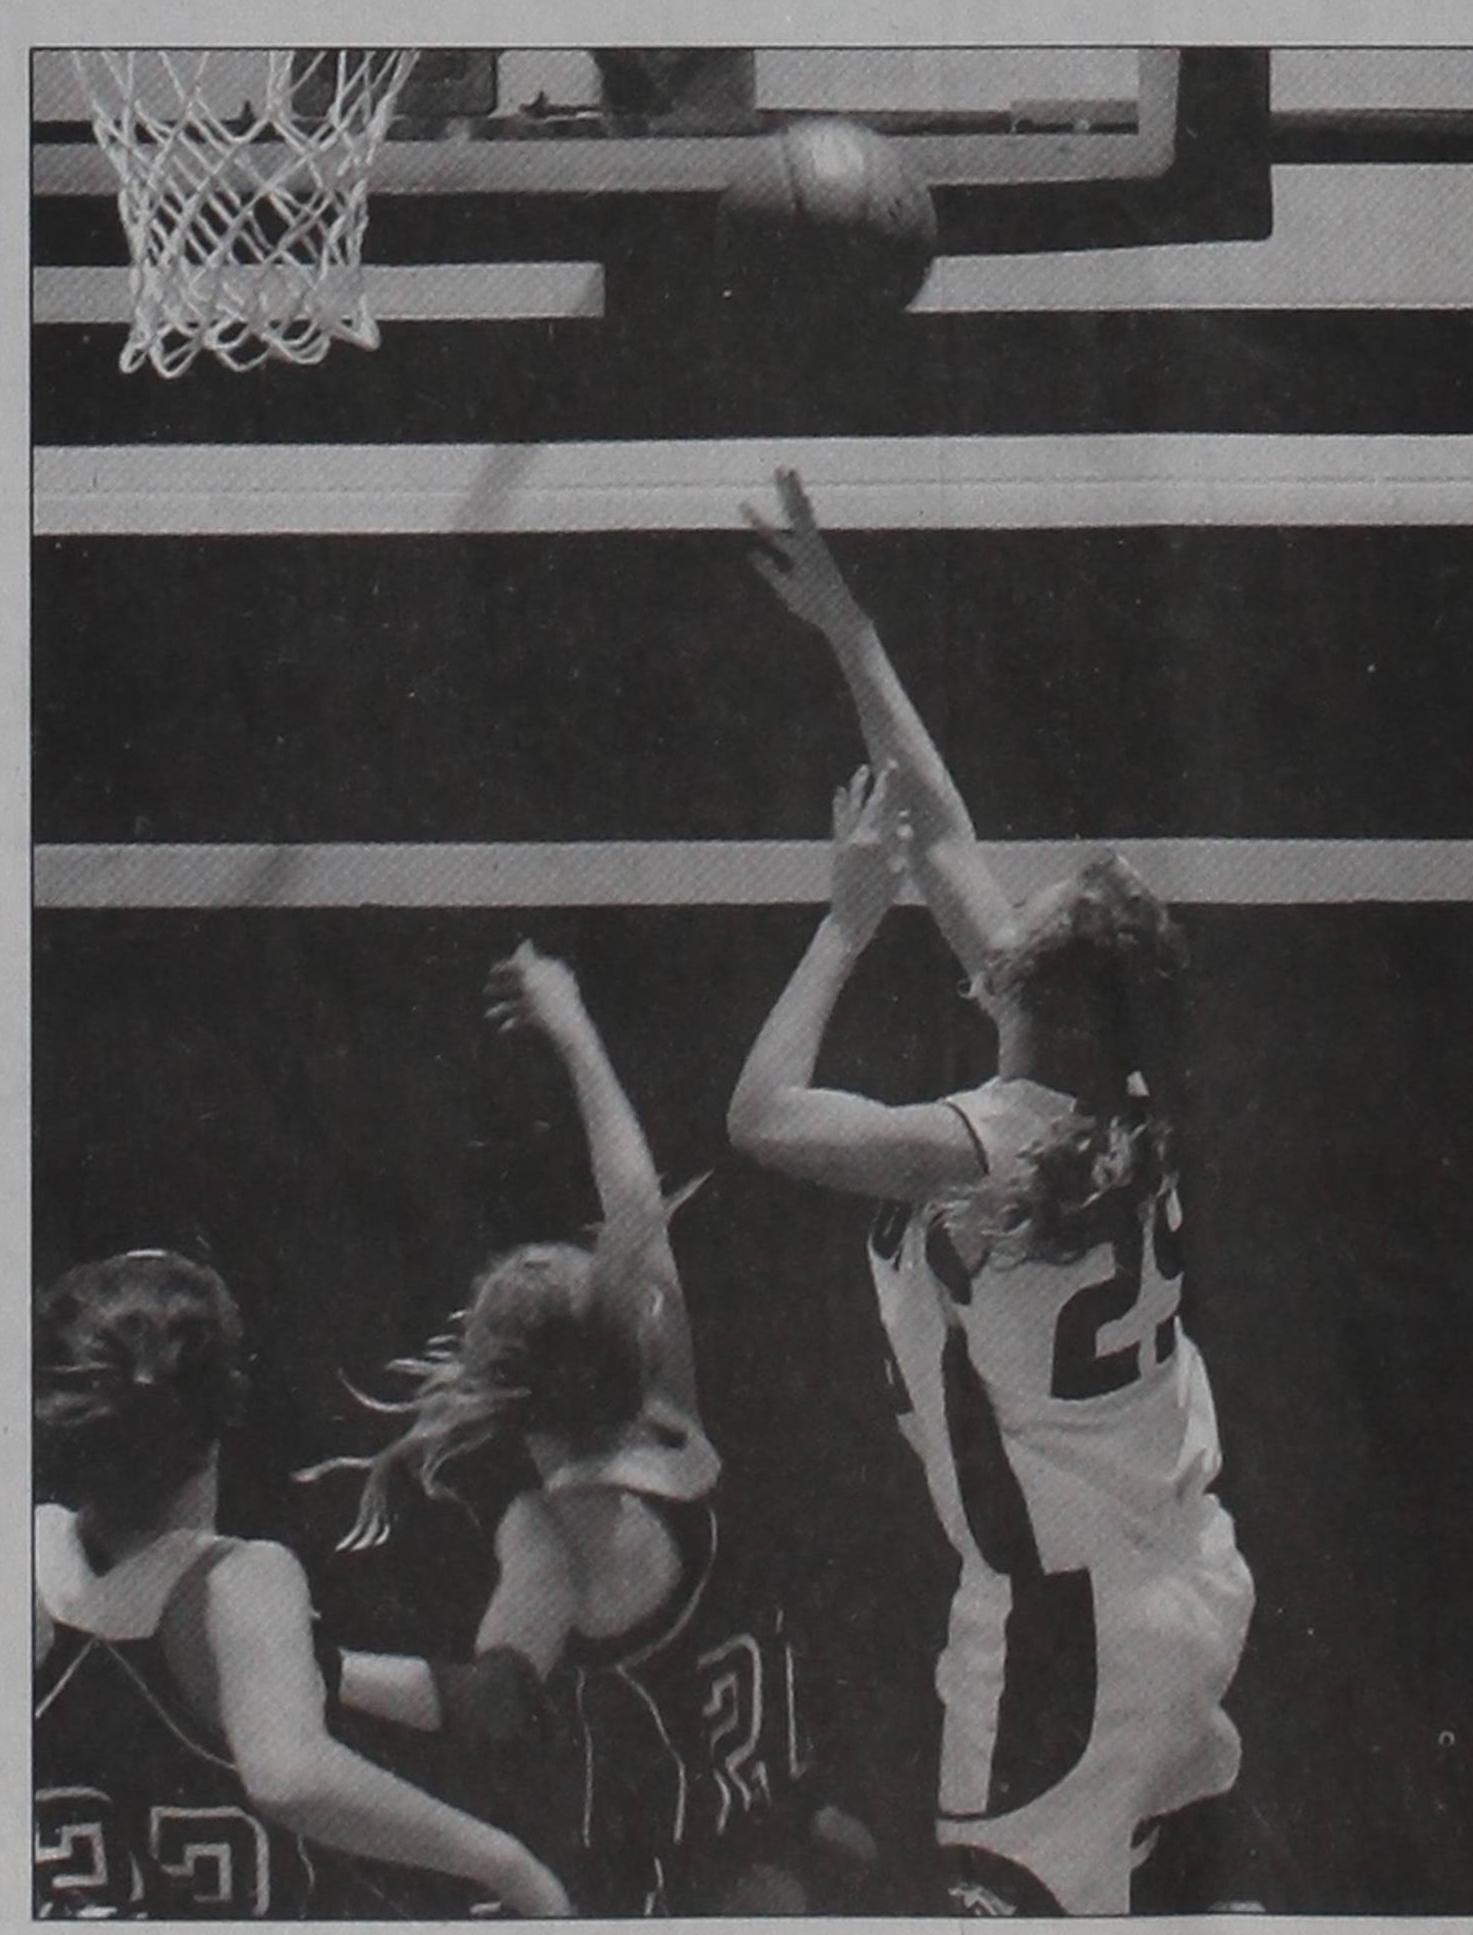

The ladies will play White Deer at home on Friday, January 31, at 4:00 p.m. in their final home game. They will take on Panhandle on the road on Tuesday, February 4, for their last game of the season.

THANK YOU

I would like to try something new, at least for a while. Radio is a medium that is still very helpful for things that are local. I've enjoyed writing for the last 6 or 7 years for the paper but now I'm looking to do some one minute spots on the radio during the week. Hopefully we can reach a few people that we haven't in the paper's circulation. Of course, I hope to still reach all the friends that we've made over the years.

Thank you for your interest in our articles over the years. So many of you have reached out and told us that you have enjoyed the articles. Some have not but that's ok also. Our articles were to promote God and His word, most of the time. There were times that we applied principles from God's word to local issues. Some took issue with that, but for the most part, most were always courteous and civil when there wasn't agreement.

Thanks to Roger and the Enterprise for allowing us to have our articles printed without being edited for content. There are a lot of papers that my preacher friends can't put their articles in because it "offends" some folks. We've always been able to write what we wanted and for that we will always be grateful. It could be that the radio thing doesn't work out and maybe we would like to use the paper again.

While we have time in our lives to promote God, we must. Jesus once said this: (John 9:4) "I must work the works of Him who sent Me while it is day; the night is coming when no one can work." Sometimes we can get in a rut and need to try something different but we seek to accomplish the same thing. We must teach His word and promote Godly principles in our centers of influence. I believe we did that with the articles. We hope to do that with our new venture.

While this isn't goodbye, maybe its "See you later". I hope you will tune in to the local station starting in February for our one minute messages. Again, thanks. We love you all and pray God's blessings on you.

Lady Broncos kick Lady Stangs

By Sandy Anderberg

The Clarendon Lady Broncos went 4-0 in the first half of District and continued their winning streak at home Friday night defeating the Claude Lady Mustangs 53-45. The win puts the ladies in control for the remaining games left on their district schedule.

The Lady Broncos trailed by two points after the first eight minutes, but came storming back in the second quarter and outscored the Lady Mustangs by eight points. Determination and focus kicked in for the ladies in the second half and they were able to get a big win over their opponent. The Lady Broncos went to the free throw line twenty-four times and made good on sixteen of those. The two Taylors on the team led the ladies on the scoreboard with seventeen and fourteen points, respectively. Camra Smith was perfect from the bonus line going four for four and put seven total points on the board.

"We played really, really hard," head coach Molly Weatherred said. "They came out ready for us and we didn't shoot very well. But our defense kept us in the game. Not playing Tuesday night hurt us somewhat, but we were able to get it done and get the win."

Scoring: Degrade 17, Gaines 14, Smith 7, Deborah Howard 7, Phara Berry 5, and Ryann Starnes 3.

The Lady Broncos will play in their final home game on Friday, January 31, against White Deer beginning at 6:30 pm. They will travel to Panhandle on Tuesday, February 4, for their final regular season game.

Broncos struggle against Claude

By Sandy Anderberg

Things did not go as the Broncos planned against Claude at home last Friday night and they were defeated 31-48 after getting a win against them in the first half of district.

The first half of play was fairly even with Claude only holding a three-point lead at the break. The Broncos were right where they needed to be, but a slow-shooting third quarter was devastating for the Broncos as the Mustangs increased their lead to ten. Fouls worked against the Broncos as Claude went to the line numerous times while the Broncos only went thirteen times and made good on only four of those.

"We did not shoot the ball well for the entire game," head coach Brandt Lockhart said. "We could not buy one inside or outside in the second half. It was a tough loss."

Scoring: JoJo Cartwright 10, Cedrick McCampbell 6, Charles Mason 6, Taylor Knorr 4, Chance McAnear 3, and Ashton Smith 2.

The Broncos will host White Deer at home Friday, January 31, and travel to Panhandle on Tuesday, February 4, beginning at 8:00 p.m.

By Sandy Anderberg

Several Broncos and Lady Broncos participated in a powerlifting meet at Highland Park and finished with good results according to coach Johnny Nino.

Ray Jaramillo finished fifth with a lift total of 620 pounds in the 123-pound class. Clint Franks also earned fifth place in the 132-pound class with a total of 530 pounds, and Ethan Ballard finished 19th in the 165-pound weight class with a total lift of 685 pounds. Joseph Jaramillo participated in the 148-pound class and lifted a total of 765 pounds for third place, and Nick Shadle finished 11th in that class with a lift total of 600 pounds. Lady Bronco Emberli Holland lifted a total of 500 pounds in the 165-pound class for 4th place, and Chelsea Morris was second with a total lift of 530 pounds in the 198-pound class. Karlee Adams also participated.

"This was a new experience for all but one lifter," Nino said. "I felt like they competed very well and they all have room for improvement."

The lifters will travel to Childress February 1.

Drugs in the News

Popular Diabetes Drugs May Change Heart's Function

A recent study showed that certain diabetes medications may affect the hearts of men differently than women. Men and women were divided into three groups to receive different combinations of diabetes medications: metformin only, metformin plus rosiglitazone, and metformin plus Lovaza. Effects on functioning within the heart appeared to be different in men compared to women. Metformin caused the heart to burn more fat than sugar in the hearts of men. Researchers warn that this could possibly lead to heart failure. However, in women, metformin had positive effects on the heart. When rosiglitazone was combined with metformin in women, the heart responded even better. The Lovaza metformin combination did not have any remarkable effect on the hearts of men or women.

Metformin (Glucophage) helps reduce sugar made in the liver, which reduces high blood sugars and increases insulin sensitivity. Rosiglitazone (Avandil) increases glucose uptake by fat cells to reduce blood sugars. Lovaza is a tablet made up of fish oils that help reduce a certain type of fat in the blood.

NOTICE OF RATE CHANGE REQUEST

Southwestern Electric Power Company (SWEPCO) has filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (Commission) for approval of a Transmission Cost Recovery Factor (TCRF). SWEPCO made the filing on December 19, 2013. The filing was made in accordance with the Public Utility Regulatory Act and Commission Substantive Rule 25.239. A TCRF allows a utility to recover its reasonable and necessary costs for transmission capital and wholesale transmission charges approved by a federal regulatory authority incurred since the end of the test year in the utility's last base rate case. In this application, the time period for SWEPCO's transmission capital investments, to be recovered through the TCRF, is December 31, 2011 through September 30, 2013. SWEPCO also seeks to recover approved transmission charges that are not otherwise being recovered through current rates.

SWEPCO requests that the Commission approve a TCRF that would result in an increase in revenues of $9,843,696 per annum, an increase of 3.50 percent in overall annualized revenue. All customers in SWEPCO's Texas retail rate classes are affected by this request.

Persons who have questions or who want more information about SWEPCO's application may contact SWEPCO at 428 Travis Street, Shreveport, Louisiana 71101, or call toll free at (888) 216-3523 during normal business hours. A complete copy of this application is available for inspection at the address listed in the previous sentence.

The Commission has assigned Docket No. 42089 to this proceeding. Persons who wish to intervene in or comment upon these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible, as an intervention deadline of March 7, 2014 has been imposed. A request to intervene or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, P.O. Box 13326, Austin, Texas 78711-3326, and should refer to Docket No. 42089. Further information also may be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission at (512) 936-7120 or (888) 782-8477. Hearing- and speech-impaired individuals with text telephones (TTY) may contact the Commission at (512) 936-7136.
