Our first norther brought delightful temperatures plus much needed rain. The rain no doubt was a result of Delia, but it was delightful all the same for us West Texans. Although we've had some hot weather since the delightful rain and cool days and nights, fall is definitely in the air. If you don't believe it, just count the football games you have seen on television. I knew that football season would all run together some day, and it seems it's going to be sooner than later, like maybe this

I've tried to think of all the things I needed to discuss with Tom, prior to football season, but all this pre-season now until after the Super Bowl.

Another sign of fall is the other season of watching old movies for entertainment. I'm unimpressed with what I've seen so far.

I mention this in order to point out to whom it may concern that we have a small but very competent staff out for the score. Equal Rights

Stung by setbacks in many states this year, leaders of various American women's action groups say they are launching a new campaign to win ratification of the socalled equal rights amendment to the Constitution by 1976.

Having originally targeted victory by this year, this is an admission of defeat, at least in the immediate future. What hurt the movement was the growing conviction by many women that the much-publicized amendment would take away many special privileges they now enjoy. They then turned against political and sociological theorizing.

As a result, the amendment was defeated in eighteen states this year, and rescinded by one state (Nebraska) which had earlier passed it. Most Americans obviously have come to agree with the vast majority of less publicityminded women, represented by Phyllis Schlafly of Alton, Illinois, among others.

Mrs. Schlafly told reporters recently: "You have an occasional woman built like an Amazon but there aren't many," referring to heavy work. The military draft, the ending of the tradition that men should support their wives, the end of women's many special privileges, all seem to have doomed the idealistic-sounding amendment, and rightly so; the sexes are different and laws can't change that fact.

In Greece, that country's first President, George Papadopoulos, has startled his enemies and surprised his friends, by freeing practically all political prisoners, promising to remove all the military men from his Cabinet, promising parliamentary elections for next year and taking other steps to ease the regime's restrictions.

This followed a nationwide referendum which abolished the monarchy, probably for the good, and installed Papadopoulos for eight years as the first President of Greece's new constitutional government-also set up in the referendum by an overwhelming vote.

Though promises do not make a democracy of a dictatorship, and while it might be, as his opponents claim, that Papadopoulos will retain final authority, it is also possible that his refreshing announcements might portend the beginning of the evolution of a democratic era for Greece; certainly President Papadopoulos' action should be welcomed, and he should be encouraged along the road to de-

It's too early, as some of his enemies attempt to do, to convict Papadopoulos of hypocrisy and insincerity. There must be hope that he is sincere and that he is now ready to guide Greece out of an admitted interlude of dictatorship, a dictatorship Papadopoulos says was necessary to stabilize and save the nation from a fate more grim.

Marijuana

Following a period when it seemed fashionable for medical authorities to minimize dangers stemming from the smoking of marijuana, recent months have produced several highly impressive warnings from medical authorities that marijuana is indeed a dangerous, destructive habit.

One of the latest is the report by two U.S. psychiatrists that regular smoking of marijuana can cause serious psychological disturbances. They say marijuana distorts perception of space and time and that young people are particularly susceptible.

Other recent studies have shown convincingly that marijuana's danger is in sapping the strength, ambition and industry of regular users. They are sometimes content, as a result, to sit around in a make-believe world rather than face the responsibilities of the real world. Obviously such an effect is devastating, and if experienced by a sufficient percentage of the population could doom the nation, its productivity and security.

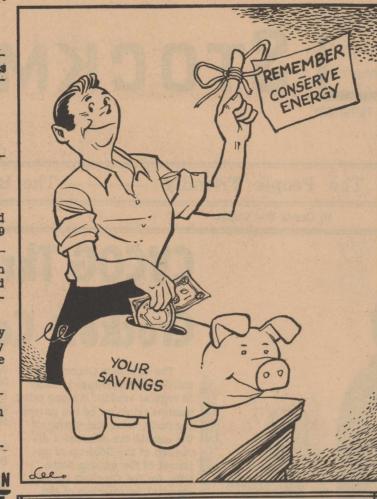

The dangers of marijuana, not being immediately physiological, then, are, for that reason, more insidious and serious than some have been led to believe.

Miles Per Gallon

The U.S. automobile industry has long stressed style, speed, power and a comfortable ride in selling cars. Rather far down the priority list in sales publicity has been miles per gallon.

Now the Environmental Protection Agency wants U.S. makers to list prominently on all new cars the miles they go on a gallon of gasoline. The EPA's interest is in reducing pollution through better milage (less gasoline burned), which can be achieved by more efficient engines and

Considering the fact that some of today's personal luxury models get only six or seven miles to a gallon, EPA is striking a blow not only against pollution but for the pocketbook of the consumer. U.S. makers should agree to the government request in the public interest, and prominently display milage performance data on new models.

An executive order has been issued by Gov. Dolph Briscoe creating the Division of Rural Community Services in the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

Governor Briscoe, who has listed rural development as one of the priorities of his administration, created the new division in response to what he termed "the urgent needs of rural areas.

In announcing the new rural services office, Governor Briscoe said the role of the Texas Department of Community Affairs is to make all state resources available and accessible to local communities as they strive to help themselves.

The Rural Community Services Division will provide information and technical assistance to rural communities and will assist in development of a state policy for rural development, the Governor said. The new office will serve as a clearing house and will be a central state office that rural communities can go to for help, said Briscoe.

Raymond L. Prewett, executive director of the Texas Rural Development Commission, has been named to head up the Division of Rural Community Services.

A major part of his new duties, said the Governor, will be to assist rural communities in their relations with state and federal agencies and to direct communities with specific problems to the appropriate agencies. Along the same line, the Governor has acted to expand the Texas Industrial Commission to include three members from rural areas. In the past, membership on the Commission has been two employers of labor, two employees or laborers and five members from the general public. The Texas Industrial Commission is responsible for planning, organizing and operating a program for attracting and locating new industries and to promote the expansion of existing industries in Texas.

New rural members of the TIC are James Hunt of Sonora, president of Stockman's Feed Company; James B. Bond of Navasota, an attorney and director of the Navasota Industrial Foundation; and William A. Porter of Terrell, a farmer and businessman.

REVISION COMMISSION REVERSES ITSELF-- The Texas Constitutional Revision Commission reversed its August 25 decision--that the Texas Legislature should meet annually-- and voted that the proposed new Constitution should require the legislature to meet once every two years. But the time and duration of session or sessions would be set by the lawmakers them-

POT LAW RULING DUE--The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals is expected to rule later this fall on an amendment to the state's criminal code to allow resentencing of persons previously convicted of possession of marijuana.

Travis County Dist. Atty. Bob Smith, who argues against implementation of the resentencing provision, claims it amounts to commutation of sentence, a power which the constitution gives only to the

"Just because you call a horse a cow doesn't make it a cow, " Smith told the Criminal Appeals Court. "Just because they (the Legislature) call it a resentence doesn't mean it's not a commutation," said Smith.

Lawyers on the other side of the question claim the resentencing provision is an authorization for the courts to review sentences, upon request from the defendant, and amend them, if justified.

About 800 persons serving terms in Texas could be affected by the outcome of the ruling. Conviction of possession of marijuana carried possible sentence of up to life imprisonment prior to revision by the 63rd Legislature to reduce first-possession penalties.

Truth In Insurance

Filling out an application for life insurance, Edwards came to a question about his health. He said he had a clear record, failing to mention that a doctor had once given him aspirin for a

After Edwards died, his family put in a claim for the insurance. But the company refused to pay off, charging that he had not told the whole truth in his application. And in a court test. the judge agreed with the company that the policy was null and void. The family didn't collect

Plainly, that was a harsh decision. But it was handed down almost a century ago. It is hard to imagine a court today throwing out a family's life insurance on such flimsy grounds. While you are still expected to tell the truth in an insurance application, modern courts would judge your answers more reasonably.

In a recent case, an applicant for life insurance was asked whether he used liquor to the point of intoxication. The man said he did not. Actually, however, he had been somewhat intoxicated on two occasions during the previous five years.

Was his answer wrong enough to invalidate the policy? No, ruled a court, ordering the company to pay the family's claim, "An occasional use of intoxicating liquor," said the court, "does not (make) a man intemperate."

Moreover, most life insurance policies now include an "incontestability clause" to further protect the beneficiaries. Under this clause, the insurance company has only a limited period-usually, two years—to quarrel with answers in the application. After that time the validity of the policy is beyond challenge.

Still, even the incontestability clause won't help if the fraud is extreme. One man, sickly himself, sent a healthy friend to take his insurance examination for him. This fraud, discovered after the man's death, was held so basic that not even the incontestability clause could save the

Washington News Letter

Congressman O. C. Fisher

Following a month-long recess the Congress is back at work, and should be able to wind up its business by November 1. Unfortunately, I was forced to be absent for several weeks during June and July, during which time I underwent open-heart surgery in Houston, at the hands of the world renowned heart surgeon, Dr. Denton Cooley. The operation was highly successful.

As a result of this experience I have learned quite a bit about heart ailments which never knew before. Actually. did not have a heart problem, as such. My problem was occlusion of coronary arteries which supply the heart with blood. The operation to correct this condition is a delicate one in which vein segments are borrowed from a patient's leg and then transplanted to bypass the deficient veins in the heart area. In my case there were three such transplants.

The bypass technique, described by Thomas Thompson in his book entitled HEARTS as "the newest and hottest operation in heart surgery, works like this: Through the use of coronary arteriogram cardiologists can determine with remarkable accuracy exactly where occlusions occur in arteries. Before bypass came along less than 10 years ago, surgeons were baffled in efforts to find ways to deal with vein blockages. They tried reaming arteries and even wrapped bloodstarved portions of the heart with adhesive, hoping that the abrasion would force new vessels to spring up and serve the heart. None proved satisfactory, but the search continued -- and led to the remarkable bypass discovery.

Today in the Heart Center in Houston and in scores of other medical centers over the country, bypass heart surgery is commonplace. And in most instances the results are very much on the plus side.

In my own case, although not yet fully recovered from the surgery, I feel better than I have felt in several years.

CLEAN ENERGY

FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW

A Natural Energy Home uses natural gas for heating, cooling, water heating, cooking and clothes drying to save you money and help conserve our cleanest natural energy resource . . . natural gas.

That's because electricity in West Texas is generated by burning natural gas, and in the process of generating and transmitting electricity to your home, 2/3 of the gas energy is lost.

So, by using gas directly in the home for the jobs it can do, you're helping to conserve it and you're getting more energy for your money.

More than ever... America's Number One Luxury Car.

It is a matter of record that in the model year just ending more people chose to own Cadillacs than ever before in history-more than double those of the nearest competitor. And it is true that Cadillac traditionally leads all U.S. car makes in both resale value and owner loyalty. It's a record without equal. Yet in many ways the Cadillacs of 1974 are superior to the cars that established this record.

It's what you expect of Cadillac ... and something more.

More choice. And what a choice it is-the greatest in the luxury field. There are the three you see here. The classic Fleetwood Brougham. The magnificent new version of America's only luxury convertible—Eldorado. The newly styled Coupe deVille. Plus six other basic

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club Mrs. Bailey Post

With the late afternoons becoming cooler, outdoor living will be more enjoyable as the fall months approach. Usually we have pleasant weather, beautiful fall flowers, and colorful foliage throughout our area.

There are plenty of garden chores to be done this month. Special attention should be given to crowded iris, daylilies and other perennials.

When dividing thick clumps of iris that have sparse blooms and hollow-centered foliage, this chore should be attended to before September 30. Before replanting rhizomes, cut out old bloom stalks, and pull off withered leaves. Cut leaves back in a fan shape to 6 or 8 inches high to reduce loss of moisture. Discard the deteriora-

Debra Says: By HD Agent

Do you sometimes have trouble with your pie crust? Tender, flaky pastry is not so hard with a little practice. The most common problems are dry dough, tough pastry, and pastry which buckles and shrinks. If you know how to prevent each problem from happening you can make good

Debra Price

A tough pastry is caused by too much flour or too little shortening. Use at least 1/3 cup of shortening to each cup of sifted flour. Use as little flour as possible when rolling the dough. To keep the pastry from buckling and shrinking, prick the sides and bottom of the crust before baking. Do not stretch the pastry during fitting. Do not prick a pastry which is to be baked at the same time the custard is.

NEVER FAIL PIE CRUST 3 cups flour (not sifted) 1 cup shortening 7 tablespoons cold water 1 teaspoon salt 1 egg slightly beaten 1 teaspoon vinegar

Lightly spoon flour into measuring cup and level. Add salt to flour. Cut shortening into flour until mealy. Add the remaining ingredients. Stir only until dry ingredients are moist. Dough may be rolled, re-rolled, handled or patched. Make fluted edge on pie as you desire. I trim my crust about ½" to 1" larger than plate--then fold edge of dough up and over to form a rim-pocket. Then you are ready to make the edges.

Dough can be frozen either cooked or uncooked. Recipe makes 2 double crust pies or 4 singles.

Life would be more enjoyable if you tried to enjoy it.

The Food and Drug Administration has spent the past decade investigating consumer needs and the FDA role in regulating vitamins, minerals, and food supplements. This study included two years of formal hearings on every aspect of the various issues. Industry, science, medicine, and consumers participated.

The FDA has published new regulations based on this study. The FDA aim is to protect the consumer against proven hazards from toxic amounts of nutrients and to require accurate labeling, honest promotion, and rational formulation of vitamins and mineral products. The FDA believes that with full and valid information the consumer will be better able to make informed decisions about personal nutrition practices.

The new regulations have been the subject of much misinformation and some misrepresentation. Here, to set the record straight, is what the Agency is trying to do and why.

FDA's regulations begin with a series of basic definitions:

The term "United States recommended Daily Allowance" or U.S. RDA describes a new and more effective system for measuring human nutritional needs. Based on continuing study for many years by the National Academy of Sciences, the system represents the best available scientific judgments on the daily intake of vitamins and minerals needed to maintain a positive state of health. It replaces the old and generally lower Minimum Daily Requirement or MDR which was based on the minimum intake necessary to prevent deficiencies and related illness. With adoption of the U.S. RDA standard, the FDA is recommending generally higher daily intake of essential vitamins and minerals. Products supplemented with up to 50 percent of the vitamins and minerals needed to maintain health (U.S. RDA) are general foods.

Products supplemented with 50 percent to 150 percent of the U.S. RDA are dietary supplements. The term "dietary supplement" is limited to the use of vitamins and minerals by well and healthy individuals seeking "insurance" against irregular or poor eating habits. The term does not cover the use or promotion of vitamins or minerals for the treatment of any disease or medical or mineral used at any dosage for therapeutic purposes is a drug and should be understood by the consumer, regulated by the FDA, and marketed by industry as such. This definition implies no automatic restriction on public availability any more than does the FDA disignation of aspirin as a drug. High-potency nonprescription vitamin-mineral products have been available for many years, and FDA does not intend to require all high-potency vitamin-mineral products to be sold on prescription. This point has been broadly misunderstood and broadly misrepresented to the pub-

Another major misunderstanding concerns the broad range (50-150 percent) allowed for the definition of dietary supplement products. Although 100 percent of the U.S. RDA is sufficient to meet the nutritional needs of essentially any healthy individual. FDA has provided for an additional 50 percent of the U.S. RDA in these products in recognition of the possibility that the nutritional needs of some individuals may vary greatly. Thus, the permitted range covers the dietary supplement needs of all individuals except for circumpriate. The single most important purpose and effect of the new FDA regulations is to require full and honest labeling as well as promotion of vitamin and mineral products, whether marketed as foods, dietary supplements, or as drugs. The regulations redefine and clarify FDA's intentions to act against false labeling or deceptive promotion of such products.

Nile Perch A Possibility For Texas Rivers

Braving crocodile-infested streams and four types of mainitial preparations for study of the Nile perch in Africa.

The two, Bob Chew of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and Dr. Clark Hubbs of the University of Texas, have been making contact with authorities and members of the scientific and engineering communities in Ethiopia in order to set up research. In a report to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department authorities, they say opportunities in Ethiopia are good for studying the fish, but there were a few drawbacks.

One problem is the plentiful supply of crocodiles which accounted for the deaths of three Peace Corpsmen last year. Other drawbacks are the many parasites and diseases. including malaria.

All water consumed by the biologists is purified by adding 10 drops of laundry bleach to five gallons of water, but Chew has already become ill and recovered from what might have been typhoid.

The fish which they will be studying, the Nile perch, is one which biologists hope can be introduced into Texas waters, especially the warm waters connected with cooling lakes for power plants.

The fish is hugh, some more than 300 pounds, and could give anglers quite a tussle. In Africa, they grow to 20 pounds in a year and up to 200 pounds in five years.

The biologists report good relations with the Ethiopian government and personnel of the University of Ethiopia.

Young Hunters Must Be Supervised

Hunters under 17 years old who wish to hunt on one of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's wildlife management areas must be supervised by adults 21 years of age or older on a one-toone basis, according to department officials.

Department policy allows hunters as young as 12 years old to participate in public hunts, but there must be one adult for every child under 17 years during both hunts for which drawings are held and for open hunts such as those for quail, dove, squirrel and waterfowl on certain manage-

Department officials say there were several misunderstandings of this policy last year when applications to hunt arrived at department headquarters in Austin for one adult and two or three juveniles.

According to department officials, failure of the sponsor to supervise the minor during the hunt will be considered cause for forfeiting hunting rights for both the sponsor and

NUMBER FOUR ON THE BALLOT (S.J.R. 1)

Article XVI, Section 59, of the Texas Constitution is amended by adding a new Subsection (e) which:

Provides that no law creating a conservation and reclamation district shall be passed unless a copy of the proposed law is delivered to the commissioners court of each county and to the governing body of each incorporated city or town in whose jurisdiction said district or any part thereof is or will be located. Each such commissioners court and governing body may file its written consent or opposition to the proposed law with the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Speaker of the House of Representatives. Each special law creating such a district must comply with general laws then in effect relating to consent by political subdivisions to the creation of such districts.

Judge Williams was directed to continue working with COG in an effort to secure their approval of the geriatrics wing. A meeting was set for September 12.

Routine reports were received during the day from various There will be lots of fun and boards and county departments.

The Food Stamp Program was discussed. The program is to be in operation October 1, with the final issue of commodities scheduled for Sept.

John Berkley appeared before the court to discuss problems with health care at the hospital. The discussion came about over the treatment or or lack of treatment of two wreck victims last week. Jack Williams was authorized to secure a lighted sign marking the hospital and emergency room.

RM Roads

183.1 miles or 70 percent are school bus routes and 168.3 miles or 64.3 percent are rural mail delivery routes.

But FM and RM roads have benefited more than just those Texans who live in the country. Thousands of miles of FM and RM roads provide primary access to the greater outdoor recreational resources in the state.

The FM system also provides access to new industrial enterprise located in smaller Texas cities. Many employees at some plants enjoy both a good paying industrial job and the benefits of country living because of easy access afforded by the FM system.

Farm to Market Roads also serve as the framework for distribution of finished goods and supplies moving from commercial and industrial centers. In that sense, the Farm to Market system also could be called the "Market to Farm" network.
