RAMSEY RESIGNS; COLQUITT ACCEPTS.

Resignation From Texas Supreme Court Bench Causes a Sensation at Austin.

Austin, Tex., March 25.—William F. Ramsey will leave the bench of the Texas supreme court on Friday of this week at midnight and will be succeeded by Nelson Phillips of Dallas.

Justice Ramsey today placed his formal resignation in the hands of Governor Colquitt, his opponent for the governorship in the forthcoming contest, at 3:45 o'clock this afternoon. It was immediately accepted and almost instantly the name of his successor announced.

The resignation created a profound sensation in the state house and was the sole topic on Austin street corners this evening. It is a comparatively short time since Justice Ramsey, in a formal statement, declared he would not resign but would continue to hold the position, not actively serving, and would refund the salary to the state. Because of this his resignation came as complete surprise. It is effective the day before he begins his formal campaign for governor with an address in Gonzales, Saturday. In a formal statement to the people of this state he wrote that "the impracticability of discharging a divided duty, with due consideration for either, is forced upon him."

Justice Ramsey was appointed to the supreme bench by Governor Campbell from the bench of the court of criminal appeals, to which position he had also been appointed by this executive. This court promotion followed the resignation of Chief Justice R. R. Gaines shortly before the incumbency of Governor Colquitt.

With the appointment of Mr. Phillips, Governor Colquitt will have named a majority of the court of last resort, his first appointment Justice J. B. Dibrell of Seguin. Mr. Phillips, before moving to Dallas, where he is now engaged in the practice of law, resided in Hill county and was judge of the district court of Hill and Johnson counties, the latter being the home of Justice Ramsey.

The district judgeship, as far as known here, is the only public position Mr. Phillips has ever held. He is regarded throughout the state as a strong lawyer and has been called as counsel for Galveston in the fight of that port against the onerous differential imposed by the railroad commission. An unusual coincidence is that this case is now pending in the supreme court and a decision is confidently expected on Wednesday of this week. It also happens that as a member of the railway commission Governor Colquitt insisted on the retention of the differential. Mr. Phillips won this case in the appellate court and writ of error was at first refused in the supreme court, but subsequently granted and the case submitted on argument.

Five minutes after Justice Ramsey's resignation was placed on the governor's desk by official Stenographer Clamp of the supreme court, it was sent out to Private Secretary Bowman with Mr. Colquitt's acceptance hastily written over the bottom of the sheet. Word of the appointment of Mr. Phillips was sent the secretary simultaneously. The governor would make absolutely no comment on the resignation.

"My statement gives fully my reason for this action," was all Justice Ramsey would add for the press. "I have made it a point all my life whenever I determined what was the right thing to do, by George, to do it."

Justice Ramsey's formal statement follows:

"To the people of Texas: The question as to whether I should resign from the bench has been the matter of anxious thought and deep solicitude since I first concluded to become a candidate for governor.

"After discussion and consultation with my friends, I had concluded that the course outlined in my letter to Colonel A. R. McCullum would fairly meet the demands of the situation. As the hour approaches for me to open the extensive and prolonged campaign which I propose making, the conviction is forced on me, with such strength as to compel the conclusion that I ought now to resign. This conclusion is reached at a time when my friends are reconciled and committed to another course, and no insistent demand is being made for me to depart from my original announcement.

"I greatly fear that I could not give even the partial attention to the duties of the bench which I had promised without compensation until the primaries had determined my successor.

"The impracticability of properly discharging a divided duty, with due consideration for either, is forced upon me.

"Further, while I am entirely sure that I shall not do or say anything in my campaign unworthy of my present high position, I am solicitous lest during my candidacy for governor, in the heat of an absorbing campaign, I might give opportunity to critics to wound the sensibilities of friends, properly jealous of the dignity of the great court from which I will soon retire. The friends who advised against my resignation were just as sincere as I was in adopting such view.

"Now that my duty appears plainly to demand my resignation, I feel sure that they will cheerfully acquiesce in such action, whether or not they agree with me in the wisdom or necessity of the conclusion reached, and will understand that I am actuated solely by what seems to me to be the clear demands of right and duty. Such demands I have always met at any cost of pride or profit and hope I will always do so.

"W. F. Ramsey."

Lufkin Chronicle Closed.

The office of the Lufkin Chronicle, a weekly newspaper published in this city, was closed at 4 o'clock yesterday evening by Constable Scroggin, by writ of sequestration issued by J. J. Singleton against Jno. L. Dolan and Harry Weimer, the editors and managers. The Chronicle suspended publication in December. J. J. Singleton was owner and editor at the time, but in February it was sold to the parties named above. Just what steps will be taken in the matter the News has been unable to learn, as the principal party to the suit, John L. Dolan, has been out of the city for several days.—Lufkin News.

FOURTH WEEK OF DISTRICT COURT.

First Week of the Criminal Docket—Disposition of Cases on the Civil Docket.

The criminal docket in the district court was taken up Monday morning. Trial of the cases against George Mason and Marshall Oliver for theft of hogs was entered into and was still in progress Wednesday morning.

Disposition of cases on the civil docket, not heretofore mentioned in the Courier, were as follows:

Will Newberry vs. J. G. Matlock, suit for damages; verdict of the jury for the defendant, Matlock. This suit was for $10,000 and was the outgrowth of a personal encounter in which Newberry was shot in the shoulder by Matlock. The grand jury had failed to indict Matlock.

Mrs. I. A. Kilgore vs. J. R. Kilgore, suit for divorce filed by Kilgore and for possession of child by Mrs. Kilgore; divorce granted and custody of child given to mother, but case kept on docket as to future disposition of child.

E. A. Blount vs. Essie Henry, suit for land; verdict for plaintiff for all sued for except 100 acres for defendant.

Chester Teal vs. I. & G. N. Railway company, suit for personal injuries and on trial as the Courier went to press last week; the jury, failing to agree and both sides consenting, was dismissed.

W. T. Bruton et al. vs. Wells Fargo Express company, suit for damages; continued by consent.

Mrs. M. E. McCullar vs. George F. McCullar, judgment by agreement.

R. S. Willis vs. E. A. Bean, suit on notes; case on trial Saturday and jury still out Monday afternoon. Failing to agree, jury dismissed Tuesday afternoon.

La. & Tex. Lumber company vs. G. C. Goss Lumber company, injunction; judgment for the plaintiff for $300. Defendant excepted and gave notice of appeal.

W. H. and M. E. Smith vs. Western Union Telegraph company, for damages; dismissed at defendant's cost.

Exparte Tom Kennedy, to remove disabilities; dismissed.

George A. Lawyer et al. vs. J. M. James, to try title and for damages; judgment for plaintiff.

S. H. Knox vs. A. Harrington et ux, foreclosure of vendor's lien notes; dismissed by plaintiff.

W. A. Bell vs. Joe H. Hickman, to try title and for damages; judgment by default for plaintiff.

W. E. Brown vs. S. W. Shaw, to try title and for damages; judgment by agreement.

West Lumber company vs. Daniel & Brinson; judgment by default for plaintiff.

J. N. Darden vs. J. C. Funk et al., to try title and for damages; continued by agreement.

The divorce docket shows disposition of cases, since the beginning of the present term, as follows:

Lewis Davis vs. Lou Davis, dismissed for want of prosecution.

Romeo Wells vs. Ellen Wells, same entry.

Frank Weis vs. Ella Weis, same entry.

Ida Scott vs. Charles Scott, same entry.

M. Richards vs. J. A. Richards, same entry.

Cornelius Owens vs. Sank Owens, same entry.

Hattie Foreman vs. Simon Foreman, granted.

Bessie Davis vs. Jim Davis, dismissed for want of prosecution.

George Beasley vs. Jerdine Beasley, granted.

Charles Allen vs. Fannie Allen, granted.

Mrs. Alma Alexander vs. J. A. Alexander, granted.

John Berry vs. Jessie Berry, refused.

Cleora Hawkins vs. Ben Hawkins, granted.

Sandy Edwards vs. Georgia Edwards, granted.

Nick Rogers vs. Allie Rogers, granted.

Minnie Hawthorn vs. A. T. Hawthorn, granted.

Mary Pierce vs. Tom Pierce, refused.

A. T. Sherman vs. Birdie Sherman, granted.

Elic Price vs. Teller Price, granted.

Ida Pouncey vs. Alf Pouncey, granted.

Luella McGaughey vs. Sam M. McGaughey, granted.

Katie Cooper vs. Nathan Cooper, granted.

Will Denby vs. Sophia Denby, granted.

Simon Perryman vs. Fanny Perryman, granted.

T. L. Murdock vs. C. H. Murdock, granted.

Hattie V. Turner vs. Walter I. Turner; evidence insufficient and suit held up for further evidence.

Elmer Grounds vs. Ellie Grounds, granted.

Della Parks vs. Jim Parks; held up for investigation.

County Board of Education.

A meeting or convention was held in the office of County Superintendent J. F. Mangum Tuesday for the purpose of nominating candidates for the county board of education. The meeting was called by the county superintendent, and each school district was entitled to representation and many of them represented. The county board of education is to be elected Saturday when school trustees are also to be elected. One member of the board is to be elected from each commissioner's precinct and one from the county at large. Following are the candidates nominated: D. E. Holcomb and H. Scarbrough, precinct No. 1; S. A. Cook, C. M. Streetman and W. T. Warner, precinct No. 2; J. R. Elliott and J. R. Hairston, precinct No. 3; S. D. Ratcliff, Lee Brown and W. T. Brown, precinct No. 4; J. N. Snell and William Baumgardner, the county at large.

RANDELL STILL IN RACE.

Representative Issues Statement Denying Reports He Intends Quitting Senatorial Contest.

Washington, March 29.—Representative Randell today gave out the following statement, denying that he intends to quit the senatorial contest:

"My attention has been called to a statement widely circulated in some Texas newspapers to the effect that I would withdraw from the senatorial race and be a candidate for representative from the Fourth District.

"This absurd and hypocritical story is utterly false. It is the work of my political opposition. The battle I am waging for democracy and against those who would make the party either a prohibition party or an anti-prohibition party, as well as those who trying to republicanize the party, will be continuously and vigorously urged from the time I am able to return to Texas until the primaries.

"I rely upon the good sense of Texas democrats to reject such false reports as my enemies may promulgate. I have no intention of withdrawing from the senatorial race, and will not be a candidate for re-nomination as representative from the fourth district.

"I am not able to maintain a press bureau, and I hope the newspapers who favor decent politics will kindly publish this statement.

"(Signed) C. B. Randell."
Colonel Randell expects to leave for Texas shortly to press his candidacy for the senate.

Grand Jury Reports Bills.

The grand jury adjourned Saturday to meet again on Monday, April 15. At the time of adjourning it reported bills as follows: For felonies, 11; misdemeanors, 15. Two of the bills are for murder and one for assault and attempt to murder. Eight are for bootlegging. The murder bills are against J. F. Small for killing Dr. R. C. Hale near Weldon and Jake Lewis, a negro, for killing one of his own color in Crockett.

J. F. Small was in Crockett Monday and made bond, which was placed at $2000 by District Judge Gardner. His sureties are Will and Duncan Eastham, on whose farm he is employed. Jake Lewis also made bond, which was placed at $1500 by Judge Gardner Monday.

The new cash store will be open for business in a few days (exact date announced later). We will occupy building formerly occupied by Wm. M. Patton, southwest corner of the square.

¶ We are receiving daily by express, and freight in carload lots, a line of first-class, dependable spring and summer merchandise direct from northern and eastern markets.

¶ We take the liberty of saying when you visit our store we will be able to show you the newest and most up-to-date line of merchandise at the lowest prices ever before shown in Crockett or East Texas. Why can we do this? Because we keep a buyer in the eastern markets at all times who is on the job every minute and does nothing but buy goods for our fourteen stores. Therefore we feel safe in making the above statement.

¶ We wish to call your attention especially to our ready-to-wear and suit department. We will have in this department spring's newest creations in ladies' coat suits, fancy dresses, one-piece dresses, tub dresses, a full line of muslin underwear, also misses and children's dresses of all kinds.

¶ Watch for the opening announcement and try and be on hand. We will positively make it very interesting to those who are there the opening day.

HARMON AND TARIFF TAX.

Letter to Chairman Maxey Takes Issue With a Reported Statement.

Greenville, Tex., March 27.—Byron Mock of this city has given to the press a copy of a letter written by him to Hon. Rice Maxey as chairman of the Texas Harmon campaign committee, in which he takes issue with the alleged statement that Judge Harmon is in favor of a tariff tax on raw materials. The letter is in part as follows:

"On March 5, 1912, you and associates, representing the candidacy of Governor Harmon for the democratic nomination for president, issued a letter wherein it was stated that Governor Harmon favored a tariff tax on raw materials. Recently you, in a public statement, reiterated same. I have made a thorough investigation of what I believe to be all utterances of Governor Harmon upon public questions and have been unable to find where he has ever at any time said anything that would warrant even a conclusion to the effect that he favored such a tariff tax. However, believing that you would not intentionally misrepresent Governor Harmon's views, I would be pleased to have you advise the public as to when and where Governor Harmon ever announced a belief in such a policy and just what was said by Governor Harmon on the subject."

East Texas Development Association.

Jacksonville, March 30.—The East Texas Development Association which closed its first annual session in this city last week was made a permanent organization, officers were elected and plans for continuing the work on a larger and broader scale were perfected. Delegates from all sections of east Texas were in attendance and the gathering was one of the most enthusiastic ever held in this section of the state.

A summary of the resolutions passed shows that east Texas is waking up to her vast possibilities and the subjects taken up for consideration by the association embrace every feature of material development. The resolutions endorse the co-operation of the association with commercial organizations of the state and encourage the holding of county fairs, the building of good roads, the development of agricultural industry, the opening of mines and the building of factories.

F. W. Mack of Sulphur Springs was elected president of the organization, J. R. Nichols of Timpsonton vice-president, R. S. Bolton of Jacksonville secretary and treasurer, and the next meeting of the association was set for May, 1913, at Palestine.

Glenwood Cemetery.

The earnest appeal that the Houston County Times has been making for a cemetery association strikes a responsive chord in the hearts of those who have long been interested in this work.

Many years ago, before our able and efficient editor came to make his home with us, we had an association, and one that did some fine work.

Previous to that time, the cows had possession of the old cemetery; the fences were nearly all down, and there was not a walk in either old or new cemetery. In going from lot to lot, one had to get through the briar-patches in the best manner possible.

A small band of Crockett women seeing all this, felt the dire necessity of doing something at once, called a meeting at the public school building and organized an association. The name "Glenwood" was selected and given to the cemetery. Active work began. Suppers, concerts, all kinds of entertainments were given to raise money. The two cemeteries were put in almost perfect order and so kept for many years. A sexton was employed by the year. New fences were erected, walks were laid, wagon loads of gravel were put in the drive-walk, trees were planted and a well was dug to give water for flowers and shrubs. When the old iron fence was removed from the court house grounds, the ladies secured it as a gift from the mayor and city council for use around the old cemetery. But the ladies of Glenwood association never had as much support and encouragement from property owners as they should have had. They finally became discouraged and tired of so much hard work.

But while we have been resting we have not lost interest and have ever been ready and willing to take up the work again when we have the encouragement and support of the entire community.

A meeting has been called for next Saturday afternoon, April 6th, at the residence of Mrs. D. A. Nunn at 3 o'clock p. m. A most cordial invitation is extended to all who may feel an interest in the improvement of both cemeteries to meet with us.

Mrs. Corinne Nunn Corry.

Champ Clark's Pension Vote.

Champ Clark eliminated himself as a presidential possibility when he cast his vote for the great Sherwood pension steal. Such a method of playing politics is unbecoming any man who aspires to the presidency, and the people of the South will not tolerate it; their politics has always been above trading and trafficking in the tax money of the people; sentiment still nestles in their hearts, and they have strong ideals that they expect to find exemplified in the expressions and in the acts of those whom they would select as their standard-bearers.

This vote of Speaker Clark was a fatal mistake, and he has severed by this act his claim to Southern democratic allegiance, where the people place principle above money and honor above success.—Cleburne Enterprise.

The Farmers and Stockmen of Houston County

Can save thousands of dollars each year, that is now being paid out to Missouri and other states for mules and horses, by breeding their mares to first-class jacks and stallions.

I have selected Crockett as one of the coming breeding sections of Texas, and have located at the Fair Grounds two of the very highest bred stallions to be found in any state in the United States, both of which are standard and registered and both of them grand individuals, and you must see them to appreciate them.

I also have two of the very highest bred jacks and both are fine individuals. Call and see them at the Fair Grounds any "old time," as it is always a pleasure to show them. I am going to breed this stock only to a limited number of mares, as I expect to race both horses this summer, so I will appreciate the favor if you will book your mares just as early as possible. I will be pleased to furnish terms and breeding on application. These horses not only produce fancy show horses, but they produce early and extreme speed. The jacks produce fine-styled mules.

I will pay $25 for the best colt from each of these horses and jacks and $25 for the second best, to be decided each year at the Houston County Fair. Yours very truly,

C. T. HUNTER.

WINGED THIEVES.

Kites That Rob Tea Tables and Golf Courses in Egypt.

Out at Gezira, where all Cairo has its rendezvous at the Sporting club every afternoon in and out of season, there exist large colonies of kites and crows. No sooner are the tea tables laid out than the former, who have been perched, on the quiver, on the adjacent trees, start circling round and round. With a sudden dive one of these hawklike birds will swoop down on the table he has chosen and pick off the bread and butter and cake.

New arrivals in Egypt are always disconcerted by these antics. It matters not how many people are seated around the tables. The kite is no respecter of persons, and on one crowded afternoon when the German crown princess was taking tea I remember seeing no fewer than eight tables swept of their eatables by as many kites in the space of a few minutes.

These monster birds add to the terror which they strike to the heart of the new arrival by the fact that their flight is so sudden and the theft is committed without stopping. They describe a curve, the lowest point of which is the plate of bread and butter or cake, and so accurate is their descent that rarely do they leave or drop anything. An amusing factor in this otherwise annoying situation is furnished by the crows, who invariably act as scouts for the kites, and the presence of whom, hopping about the grass, always precedes one of these predatory flights.

When the coup has been successfully brought off the crows evince their pleasure by ear splitting caws and proceed to follow the plunderer at a respectful distance, possibly in order to express their unbounded admiration in the vain hope of obtaining a few crumbs. On the golf course the kites are a source of endless trouble to the players—and incidentally one of great profit to the golf ball vendors—for it is no unusual thing for your ball to be whiffed off just as you are making ready to put after a record approach.—Cairo Cor. Pall Mall Gazette.

A Few Directions to Servants.

Dean Swift had something to say concerning tips in his ironical "Directions to Servants." "When a gentleman is going away after dining with your master," he wrote in the section of advice to butlers, "be sure to stand full in view and follow him to the door, and as you have opportunity look him full in the face—it may bring you a shilling. If the gentleman has lain a night in the house get the cook, the housemaid, the stableman, the scullion and the gardener to accompany you and stand in his way in the hall in a line on each side of him. He must have less money or more confidence than usual if any of you let him escape. And according as he behaves himself remember to treat him next time he comes."

A Risk.

The doctor looked at Miss Cambridge with his most professional glance; then he made her exhibit her tongue, gazed down her throat, felt her pulse and sounded her lungs.

"You've taken a severe cold," he said. "Were you exposed to any draft yesterday, or were you careless in any way that you can remember which might account for it?"

"I don't know," said Miss Cambridge thoughtfully, "unless my going out to drive yesterday afternoon without my spectacles would do it. I felt at the time it was a slight risk, doctor."—Youth's Companion.

Cromwell and Christmas.

When Oliver Cromwell was protector he ordered all the most important towns in England not to observe Christmas, as he considered it to be a hurtful custom. Yet a stricter law he commanded to be kept so that people might forget Christmas. That was that all the markets were to be held on Dec. 25. Naturally this created a great stir among the country folk, and they determined thenceforth to refuse to obey his strict and extraordinary law, which he tried to enforce, but all to no purpose.—London Mail.

One or the Other.

When Lord Howe was captain of the Magnanime a negro sailor on board was ordered to be flogged. Everything being prepared and the ship's company assembled to see the punishment inflicted, Captain Howe made a long speech to the culprit on the enormity of his offense. The negro, tired of the harangue and of having his back exposed to the cold, exclaimed, "Massa, if you floggee, floggee, or if you preachee, preachee, but no preachee and floggee too!"—London Chronicle.

Just a Suggestion.

A woman bought several pots of jam, and, being about to go out, she told her little daughter not to touch them. But no sooner was she outside than the child took one of the pots, ate some of the jam and then put the pot back in its place.

Her mother on her return noticed it at once and said in a severe tone:

"What would you do, you naughty child, if you were in my place?" "I should say, 'Finish the pot, as you have begun it, but don't do it again.'"—London Tit-Bits.

Points of Difference.

A young heiress with a penchant for farming was explaining at length the many difficulties she encountered in pursuing her fad. "I really am a farmer," she protested, and then added regretfully, "although it must be confessed that almost all I plant I lose."

"Therein differing from me," courteously rejoined her table companion, a rising young physician, "for I find in my case that all I lose I plant."

A Wet Umbrella.

Never leave an umbrella standing on the point in the ordinary way when wet. The water trickles down, spoiling the silk and making the wires rusty. It is also a mistake to open it and leave it standing, as this stretches the silk, making it baggy so that it is impossible to fold it smoothly. The proper way is to shake out as much of the water as possible, then stand the umbrella on its handle to drain.

Trying Something New.

"George, is our automobile in good condition?"

"Yes, sir. I have put on a new tire, and it is in first class running order."

"How about the aeroplane?" "I have just given it a thorough overhauling, and it is ready for instant use."

"Very well. Bring me my hobbled boots. I think I'll go for a walk in the country this morning."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

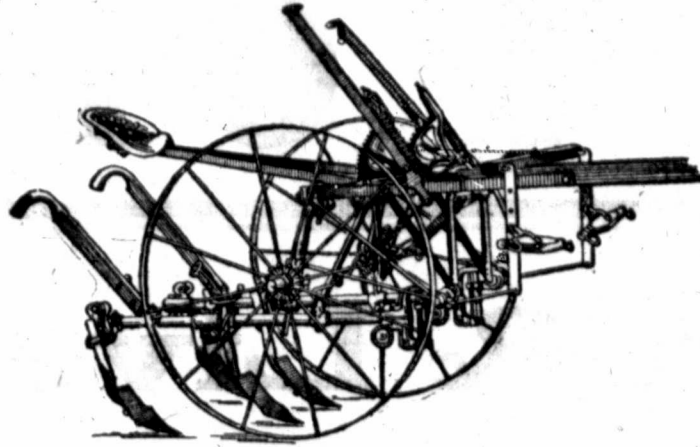

No Sale.

Mrs. Irving—You didn't buy that oriental rug after all, did you?

Mrs. Clint—No; we took a friend of George's to see it, and he said that while it was a genuine Bokhara, beautifully woven and all that, it wouldn't last more than a hundred years, so we decided to look further.—Newark News.

No Doubt About It

Equipped with solid or parallel beams. With or without spring trip.

We have carried an "Ad" in this paper to the mutual advantage of up-to-date farmers and ourselves. Many sales have been made after reading our special book on cultivators. The results have been very gratifying so far.

R. L. Whatly says: "I have run my Standard Cultivator about fifteen years and it is good yet, but I will need one more. Give me a cash price by return mail."

Mr. W. S. Jackson of Troupe, Texas, says: "I want to get another Standard Cultivator. Please send me your cash with order price."

Mr. W. B. Anderson, Cooper, Texas, says: "I bought a Standard Cultivator ten years ago. Since then I wore out two cultivators of another make, and now I want another Standard Cultivator. Have had no expense on the Standard except a few bolts. The others are worn out."

Mr. W. E. Humber of Hale County writes: "The Standard Cultivator gives me perfect satisfaction. I am now using nothing but your implements. I am offered other cultivators for less money but I don't want them."

H. W. Middleton & Co. of Smithville, says under date of June 6th, 1911: "Mr. John Claiborne, who owns a several hundred acre farm, is running twelve Standard Cultivators, some of them have been in use a good many years. Mr. Claiborne says he wants nothing better than the Standard."

We will mail a special book on cultivators on receipt of address. We will on receipt of address mail a book in which can be kept a record of crops grown, and the cost, for a period of six years. Many farmers have found it very useful. Send for one.

DALLAS, TEXAS

A SOLDIER OF FORTUNE.

Marshal Brune, Who Was Killed by a Mob After Waterloo.

Marshal Guillaume Marie Anne Brune, one of the most prominent leaders of the great army of France, became a soldier in consequence of the sneer of a pretty actress. During the early days of the republic he had written a brochure on military operations, and one day, while dining with a party of Danton's guests, the publication was casually mentioned. One of the guests, an actress, addressed Brune mockingly in these words:

"You will be a great general, since you fight with a pen."

Stung to the quick, he applied for a commission and entered the army as a major. The witty actress, having wagged her pert tongue at Robespierre, was sent to the guillotine.

In the army Brune showed that will power can conquer natural nervousness. In his earlier battles he suffered tortures from the sight of blood and the noise of the guns.

Every discharge of a fieldpiece gave him such a shock in the pit of the stomach that he would have bent double with pain but for his will, which gave him power to stiffen his legs in the stirrups and throw his body back. When the battle was over his muscles remained paralyzed for hours on account of the tension to which they had been subjected.

He had a quick temper, which he mastered after many trials. While governor of the Hanse towns he gave certain orders which were not obeyed by the burgomaster of Hamburg. The official sought the marshal and began a long explanation. Now and then Brune, without saying a word, poured himself out a glass of water and drank it.

At length the burgomaster stretched out his hand for the decanter and said:

"Will you allow me?" "Hold!" exclaimed Brune. "We had better ring for a fresh supply. I always pour down water when I feel a fire rising which might explode!"

Brune was massacred by a royalist mob at Avignon, after Waterloo, because of his opposition to Louis XVIII.

"Shout 'Live the king!'" cried the mob.

He refused.

"Shout 'Down with the emperor!'" called out the mob.

"The emperor is low enough now; this is not the time when I can say aught against him," was the spirited reply.

The enraged rioters answered this noble rejoinder by striking the marshal on the head with a shutter. He fell on one knee, exclaiming:

"To have escaped a hundred deaths for this!"

He was then killed by pistol shots, his body being dragged through the streets and flung into the Rhone.

BROUGHT TO LIGHT.

Crockett People Receiving the Full Benefit.

There have been many cases like the following in Crockett. Everyone relates the experience of people we know. These plain, straightforward statements will do much toward relieving the suffering of thousands. Such testimony will be read with interest by many people.

J. A. Jones, Crockett, Texas, says: "The public statement I gave in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills in July, 1908, still holds good. I have received more benefit from this remedy than from any other I have ever taken. I use Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally, when in need of a kidney medicine and they always help me. For several years I had kidney and bladder trouble, being obliged to get up four or five times a night to void the kidney secretions. The passages were often painful and I had a dull soreness across the small of my back. After using Doan's Kidney Pills I was in a better condition than I had been for years."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Mrs. A. L. Van Ankenbauer, 3216 Marshall St., Little Rock, Ark., a descendant of one of our finest southern colonial families, writes: "I suffered greatly with kidney trouble, had severe pains across my back, and felt altogether miserable. After taking Foley Kidney Pills for a few days the pains left me and now I have no kidney trouble. In fact, Foley Kidney Pills have cured me completely." I. W. Sweet.

SOME EGYPTIAN WAYS.

An Arrest For Theft and the Story of a Family Quarrel.

Here is an illustration of the primitive ideas of native justice in Egypt as told by Mrs. Butcher in "Egypt as I Knew It." Mrs. Butcher, who was the wife of Dean Butcher, a clergyman conspicuously identified with the English church at Cairo, once lost some property from a hotel at Luxor. The local police insisted on seizing all the hotel servants and carrying them off to prison, although there was no evidence that these unfortunate people were at all culpable.

"A day or two passed, and the servants did not return. One evening I found three or four women who wailed and beat their breasts on the threshold of my door. They were the wives and mothers of the youths in prison, and they assured me that they were to be sent off as convicts to Kenneh next morning and were not likely ever to return."

Mrs. Butcher promptly wrote to the police and demanded the release of the servants, and the request was granted without demur.

The following account of a family quarrel is too good to be missed:

"A certain young pasha of high rank had a difference of opinion, not many years ago, with his brother-in-law. He went to discuss the question with that gentleman, and, finding him in a public room with several other pashas, he proceeded to rebuke him with a revolver. The brother-in-law caught hold of the nearest pasha as a shield, but the indignant one dodged round and round, shooting wildly. Most of the pashas left hurriedly to fetch doctors, they afterward explained. One of the ministers, according to rumor, entrenched himself beneath the sofa. Finally the brother-in-law was left for dead upon the field and the excited young Turk rushed out into the street, still brandishing his revolver. There happened to be a solitary English soldier strolling by, who was subsequently called upon to give an account of himself.

"Well, sir," said Tommy, "I was walking along, and I see a native rush out of a house with a revolver in his hand and a lot of people shouting 'Murder!' behind. So I just gave him a clout on the head and took away his revolver. I hope I didn't do no harm, sir."

"Much to the young pasha's astonishment, he was sent to prison for several months. But to this day he does not understand why the English should take upon themselves to interfere in a family quarrel."

The Poet and the Cook.

On one occasion Mr. Browning's son had hired a room in a neighboring house in which to exhibit his pictures. In the temporary absence of the artist Mr. Browning was doing the honors, the room being half filled with fashionable friends. Mr. Browning was standing near the door when a visitor, unannounced, made her appearance. He immediately shook hands with the stranger, or tried to do so, when she exclaimed:

"Oh, I beg your pardon, sir, I'm the cook. Mr. Barrett asked me to come and see his pictures." "And I am very glad to see you," said Mr. Browning, with ready courtesy. "Take my arm and I will show you around."

Economizing.

The young man and woman from Smalltown wore on their wedding trip and he was spending money generously. They stayed at the good hotels, went from city to city in Pullmans and rode unnumbered times in taxis and sightseeing cars.

There was a good show at one of the theaters, and they decided to see it. She did not accompany him when he went to get the tickets. "I'll buy two good seats," he assured her.

"No, no," she replied. "Just rent them for tonight."—Buffalo Express.

Her Suggestion.

Mamma—Well, Margie, what shall we call the baby?

Little Margie—Suppose we call her "Early," mamma.

Mamma—Why, dear, I never heard of such a name for a girl.

Little Margie—Well, I did. I read in a book about a little girl who wanted her mother to call her Early so she could be queen of the May.—Exchange.

HE DID NOT POUR.

And Bartlett's Career as an Orator Ended Then and There.

Fourth of July oratory, no less than our other observances of the glorious day, tends year by year to become more safe and sane. It was through the extra "highfalutin" quality of his eloquence, in a day when it was still usual to let the eagle scream pretty loudly on such occasions, that Thomas Bartlett, Jr., of Vermont, at one time a really noted lawyer, was disappointed in his ambition to become a shining light in congress. He was addicted to grandiloquence, and when he attempted one year to deliver a Fourth of July oration at St. Johnsbury a crowd of riotous Dartmouth students interrupted his extravagant similes and flowing periods with tin horns and finally broke up the meeting in disorder.

In the circumstances the sympathy of the public would assuredly have been accorded to Bartlett and its condemnation to the disturbers had he preserved a dignified silence, but unfortunately he wrote a letter of remonstrance in exceedingly bad taste and temper, which provoked in turn a cruelly clever reply, in which all Bartlett's foibles, phraseology and personal peculiarities were held up to merciless and brilliant ridicule. He was made a laughable figure, and, worst of all, a copy of the article was laid on the desk of every member of congress, to which Bartlett had recently been elected, at the opening of the session. The members were in no mood to take him seriously when he rose to make his first speech on the floor of the house. He desired to defend a proposition which had just been vigorously attacked.

"Sir," he began impressively, "were it not for the rules of the house I would pour upon the opponents of this measure the vials of my wrath."

He was interrupted. Mr. Polk of Tennessee was instantly upon his feet and with a voice of eager sympathy moved "that the rules be suspended and the gentleman be allowed to pour!"

From all sides and all parties such an outburst of laughter followed that his career as an orator in the halls of the nation was ended there and then.—Youth's Companion.

He Didn't Like Kings.

As narrated by Edward Walford in his "Greater London," Frederick, prince of Wales, sometimes visited Alexander Pope at his villa. On one occasion when the prince was on a visit Pope, after expressing the most dutiful professions of attachment, gave his royal highness an opportunity of observing very shrewdly that his (the poet's) love for princes was inconsistent with his dislike for kings since princes may in time become kings. Said his royal highness:

"Mr. Pope, I hear you don't like princes."

"Sir, I beg your pardon."

"Well, then, you don't like kings."

"Sir, I must own that I like the lion best before his claws are grown."

No reply could well have been happier.

Queer Plant of Arabia.

There is a mysterious plant that grows in Arabia. It produces flowers of a bright yellow, with seeds that resemble small black beans. The natives dry and pulverize them and the powder, taken in small doses, makes the soberest person behave like a circus clown or a madman, for he will dance, sing and laugh most boisterously, cut the most fantastic capers and be in an uproariously ridiculous condition for about an hour. When the excitement ceases the exhausted exhibitor of these antics falls asleep, and when he awakes he has not the slightest remembrance of his frisky doings.

Food For Thought.

Captain Prescott of the Fifth infantry was leading a long hike in the Philippines. Food gave out and his command was forced to resort to the emergency rations, which consist of condensed food of one kind and another. The captain was riding past some negro soldiers at breakfast time one morning. An old negro sergeant saluted.

"Cap'n," said the sergeant.

"What is it?"

"Cap'n, we-all don't like these yere imaginary rations!"

GREELEY'S REVENGE.

Outcome of the Editor's Tiff With Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

The late Elizabeth Cady Stanton was particularly apt at retort, and one of her swift parries of a thrust delivered by Horace Greeley against her favorite doctrine of woman suffrage is historic.

"Madam," said Horace one day during the civil war, "the ballot and the bullet go together. If you want to vote, are you ready to fight?"

"Certainly, sir," she responded. "I am ready to fight, just as you are fighting, through a substitute."

Notwithstanding their difference of opinion, however, Mrs. Stanton and Mr. Greeley were personally friendly until the New York constitutional convention of 1868. A woman suffrage clause was strenuously pressed upon that body and as vigorously opposed by Mr. Greeley. One day, after the Tribune editor had made some particularly rasping remarks upon the subject, George William Curtis rose and said:

"I have the honor, Mr. Chairman, to present a petition in favor of the woman suffrage amendment signed by Mrs. Horace Greeley and 300 other ladies."

Mr. Greeley was furious and rightly ascribed the appearance of the memorial at that moment to Mrs. Stanton.

"Why did you not put my wife's maiden name on that petition and call her Mary Cheney Greeley?" he demanded the next time they met.

"Because," said Mrs. Stanton, "I wanted all the world to know that Horace Greeley's wife protested against her husband's report on the suffrage amendment."

"All right," retorted the editor. "Hereafter you shall always be spoken of in the Tribune as Mrs. Henry B. Stanton." And so it was to the time of her death, although the name of Elizabeth Cady Stanton was known to hundreds of thousands who could not identify the woman by the name under which she appeared in the columns of the Tribune.

A Use For Old Pianos.

A Labrador tribe, it is said, made the barrels stolen from a wrecked whaler serve as chimney tops, the West Indians utilized Timothy Dexter's warming pans for sugar ladders, and the Shans find no worse use for English beer bottles than to stick them up as household gods to keep away evil spirits. But the drollest instance of converted usage occurred when that adventurous Frenchman, De Tonnant, while in Patagonia gave an old chief a worn-out grand piano which he had bought for 80 francs. A few days after making this generous present De Tonnant went one morning to pay an early visit to the Patagonian. He found him sleeping peacefully with his wife inside the piano, from which he had carefully removed sounding board, strings, etc., and which, thus transformed, constituted a not uncomfortable bedstead.

Stricken With Generosity.

A Scotsman brought his entire family of seven to visit a relative in London. They were entertained in a manner that left nothing to be asked for two weeks—theaters, suppers, cab rides about the city, excursions into the country. The whole time McPherson never put his hand in his pocket to pay for a thing.

When the family was going home the Londoner and his cousin went into the buffet for a final glass. From force of habit he groped for his wallet, but Sandy gripped his arm.

"Na, na," said he. "Ye've been verra gude ta me an' mine this fortnight past. Mon, we'll hae a toss for this lasht wee nippie!"—Success Magazine.

The Unexpected.

The automobilist had stopped at the humble cottage for a drink. On the table lay a penciled sketch. The stranger looked at it with interest.

"Why, that's quite good," he said.

"Our son drew it," the woman told him.

"Indeed! It certainly shows promise. The little fellow should be encouraged. I'd like to talk with him. Where is he? At school?"

"No, sir. He's in New York."

"In New York?"

"Yes, sir. He's been a magazine illustrator for ten years."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SPRING TIME IS HERE

And We Are Anxious to Have You Know
That We Want Your Spring Business

Never before were we better prepared to serve your spring needs than now. Every department is full of bright, new merchandise. Come in—stroll around at your leisure and you will see much to admire, and all at the right price.

The best stock of high classed clothing ever shown in Crockett, the most up-to-date ladies' ready-to-wear goods to be found anywhere, and in order to start them off we will make you special prices on these for the next two weeks. We are also very strong on shoes, the leather kind, that are especially inviting from the style viewpoint and remarkably low in price. Our stock of piece goods was never so good as now. Come in and let us show you about it and price it to you and we know you will buy.

And now before we close we wish to call your attention to the kind of fertilizer we sell, which is the old reliable, true and tried "Meridian"—the kind that has made good and has never fallen down. We wish to have you understand in the outset that we are not selling, nor would we attempt to sell you, cheap fertilizer; because, my friends, cheap fertilizer, like cheap goods of any other kind, is dear at any price. We sold last season over four hundred tons of the old reliable "Meridian," and have yet to hear of a single dissatisfied customer. We have seen it used on old sandy land that was worn out forty years ago, and last year this old land produced more than a bale of cotton per acre with this fertilizer. We can show you testimonials from more than a hundred satisfied customers. Buy the Meridian and increase your yield more than one hundred per cent.

SUPREME COURT ON NEWSPAPER

Decided That Juror Holding an Opinion
Based on Press Report Not Evidence of Partiality.

In a previous issue of the Journal we commented on the practice of challenging jurors for opinions founded merely on newspaper reports, and pointed out that its effect was to disqualify many men of intelligence who read the newspapers and thereby render difficult the selection of juries in cases which have attracted widespread attention in the community. We are therefore glad that the United States supreme court, in the case of James H. Holt, decided Oct. 31, 1910, has ruled that refusal of a trial court to sustain a challenge on such a ground is not necessarily a reversible error. The juror who was challenged in this case had taken the newspaper statements for facts, but stated that he had no other opinion than that derived from this source. He also stated that if the evidence presented in court should fail to prove the facts alleged in the newspapers he would return a verdict according to the evidence or lack of evidence at the trial, and that he thought that he could try the case solely upon the evidence, fairly and impartially. The supreme court held that the mere holding of an opinion based on newspaper report was not conclusive evidence of partiality and did not therefore constitute a valid ground for disqualification. This ruling strikes us as being thoroughly in accord with reason, and if followed in the practice of state courts more generally would remove one of the most common sources of delay in impaneling jurors.

In the same case the supreme court disposed of a number of other

"meticulous objections" with the same disregard of precedents. It held that an indictment which alleges that the assault complained of was made feloniously and with malice aforethought is not defective because of failure to make the same allegation in the preliminary averment of assault; that the action of the trial court in permitting the jurors to separate during the trial was not a reversible error; that the conduct of the trial judge in requiring the accused to put on a certain blouse was not requiring him to testify against himself; and that the refusal of the judge to give an instruction requested as to reasonable doubt, though he had impressed upon the jury the nature of the belief they must entertain in order to

SERVANTS IN ENGLAND.

The Strict Etiquette That is Enforced Below Stairs.

Though the etiquette which prevails among the servants of the wealthy in England differs in various establishments, there are certain customs which all servants recognize among themselves and strictly observe and, what is more, expect their masters and mistresses to observe.

For example, in every large establishment the butler is the only servant who has the entree during the day to the dining room; no other servant has this privilege. It would be a grave violation of etiquette were a footman or even the valet—who occupies equal rank with a butler—to enter the dining room except in the course of their work.

The butler, however, in all big establishments can and usually does sit in the dining room in his leisure hours and read the papers, but he must not write any letters in the room, and he must, of course, leave it at once when his master or any member of the family enters it.

In some houses the upper servants—that is, the butler, the valet, the chief lady's maid and the housekeeper—take their meals in their own apartments and in others in the servants' hall. When the latter custom prevails the upper servants have their meals served to them by the lower servants, who take their food either before or after the upper servants, but not with them.

The butler and the housekeeper in all big establishments have each, of course, a private sitting room allotted to them.

It is a curious point of etiquette that prevails in the servants' hall in all large households that the butler may invite any of the servants he pleases to his room to tea, both "upper" and "lower," but if the housekeeper entertains in her room she must only invite either members of the "upper" staff or "lower," but not both at the same time.

A gross violation of the etiquette of the servants' hall is for one servant to ask another about the previous places he or she has been in. All such information must be entirely voluntary.

When a servant is under notice to leave it is quite contrary to etiquette for any of his or her fellow servants to ask him anything about his future movements or if he is looking for a situation, but if he is known to have given notice the fact of his leaving may be freely discussed in his presence.

In all big establishments the butler rules the roost in the servants' hall. He is the final authority who decides upon all disputes or questions that may arise among the other servants upon matters of custom. In all well ordered establishments the butler's authority in such matters is never questioned.

A dreadful violation of etiquette in the servants' hall would be for one of the maidservants to speak to a visitor who may have come to see any one of the servants unless she was introduced to the visitor. The simple reason of this rule is that it often happens that a lady who is visiting the mistress of the house may come down into the servants' hall to see one of the maidservants who possibly may have been in her service or in whom for some reason she takes a special interest.—Pearson's Weekly.

Wouldn't Worry.

"I am going down to the club tonight, dear," said the husband with an ingratiating smile. "I won't stay a bit longer than I have to, and I intend to get home before midnight. But if something should happen to detain me please don't wait up for me."

"I won't," said his dear little wife.

"That's right. I'll feel better if I know you're not waiting."

"Don't worry about it, dear. I won't wait up for you. If you aren't in by 12 I'll come after you."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Walking With an Object.

One of those charming but dense young women who always take literally what is told to them was out walking one day. Not far from the park she met Martin.

"Ah, Miss Gertrude, so you are out for a walk in this bracing air. Will you permit me to go with you?" he asked.

"Oh, I suppose so," she replied. "The doctor says I must take a walk daily, but always must walk with some object. You'll do, I guess."—Philadelphia Times.

Sure It Was a Present.

"That's a nice umbrella you've got."

"Yes; it was a present."

"Indeed! Who from?"

"I don't know, but it says on the handle, 'Presented to John Robinson.'"—Boston Transcript.

A Change of Front.

Wife—How do you like my new hat?

Husband—The idea of paying big prices for—

Wife—Big prices! Why, I made it myself.

Husband—Um—yes—er—as I was saying, the idea of paying big prices for such monstrosities as the milliners are showing! Now, your hat is a work of art. Looks as if it came straight from Paris. Beautiful, my dear!—London Telegraph.

Sarcasm.

"Last summer I had a bully vacation," a bachelor friend of ours confided yesterday. "I met a bully girl the first day I was there, and she made it pleasant for me. Only once in awhile she was sarcastic. One day, for instance, we were out rowing, and I said, 'Do you know, I'm awfully fond of rowing?'"

"Are you?" she answered with a surprised note in her voice. "Then I should think you'd learn how."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Lose Their Freedom.

"All men are born free and equal," said the philosopher.

"I know," said the matter of fact person. "but some of 'em get married afterward."—Baltimore American.

Sleep.

Sleep begins, in its first phase, by a state of distraction which brings on states of absent mindedness accompanied always by numerous and separate hallucinations closely connected with the length of the absent minded states. Immediately afterward, in a second phase, these states of distraction pass into a very delicate motor disturbance, due to the absence of parallelism in the axes of the eyes or by the deviation of their conjugate movements. Then, in a third and final phase, which indicates the very near approach of actual sleep, the vasomotor system seems to conform to laws very different from those that regulate its mechanism during waking hours.—Revue Scientifique.

Peculiarities of Odor.

No substance that cannot be dissolved in water has an odor. It is the actual substance itself, floating in particles in the air, that appeals to the nose, and not simply a vibration of the air, as in the case of light and sound. The damper a thing is the more powerful the odor it gives off. A pleasant proof of the fact can be had by walking in a garden after rain. There is no end to the curiosities of smell. It is, for instance, the vapor of a liquid that smells and not the liquid in the mass itself. If eau de cologne be poured into the nostril the nose refuses to recognize any odor there at all.

Long Sermons.

Of one of the sermons preached by Dr. Samuel Parr in 1800 the lord mayor for the year is said to have remarked to the preacher that there were four things in the sermon which he had been very sorry to hear.

"Dear, dear, my lord," exclaimed the doctor anxiously, "what were they?"

"Sir," was the reply, "I mean the quarters struck by the church clock."—London Chronicle.

A Critic Disappointed.

An orator, having written a speech which he intended to deliver on a certain occasion, gave it to a friend to read and desired his opinion of it. The friend, after some time, told the author he had read it over three times; the first it appeared very good, the second indifferent, the third quite insipid.

"That will do," said the orator, very coolly, "for I have only to repeat it once."—Life.

Richelieu's Rise.

Statesmen who take their dismissal with humor are so rare that one of whom Mr. Bloundelle-Burton tells in his book, "The Fate of Henry of Navarre," seems to merit further commemoration.

The Duc d'Epéron had fallen into disfavor with King Henry. Descending the great staircase of the Louvre, he met Richelieu ascending.

"Is there anything new taking place?" the cardinal indifferently asked.

"Nothing," returned the duke, "except that, as you see, I am going down and you are going up."

THE VALUE OF ATTRACTIVENESS

JAMES E. DOYLE, JR.

PRINTED Advertising in offering an economical and effective method of placing a proposition before prospective customers is simply a means of presentation.

This being the case, the principal and important topic to be considered is the presentation.

The method of presenting a proposition regulates the way it will be received.

If a proposition is to be received favorably it must be presented effectively.

Of two propositions of equal merit, presented through the media of advertising, one may succeed and one may fail.

It is simply a matter of presentation.

One of the most successful manufacturers in the country attributes his success to good goods, backed up by good advertising.

By good advertising he means good presentation of his proposition.

A proposition is well presented when it makes a favorable impression.

Many successful men attribute their success to the favorable impressions made by their advertising.

Results from advertising cannot be regulated by the amount of money spent.

Greater returns will be received from a small list appropriately presented, than from a large list with cheap presentation.

Some advertisers claim to receive good returns from the use of cheaply printed advertising. They get returns, not because of the use of cheap advertising, but in spite of it.

Where the proposition itself is of such apparent value that it overshadows the method of presentation, the advertiser is sure of good returns. If good advertising is used—the returns will be much greater.

Good printing creates a stimulus to read—and when coupled with a simple, strong statement, carries great conviction.

Courier printing is carrying conviction into the homes of Houston county. Are you using it?

Why It Pays to Buy Advertised Goods

When you buy goods of a man who advertises, you can always count on getting the worth of your money for several reasons, two of which we give here:

FIRST: No man who charges exorbitant prices for his merchandise is going to turn on the light that newspaper advertising gives. It is the man who believes that he can sell you goods at a saving that will carry the message to you through your local paper. And ninety-nine times out of a hundred he will back up his advertised statements.

SECOND: When you buy goods of an advertiser, you can always depend upon the quality, for that man could not afford to advertise an inferior article. His merchandise is always new, because his stock does not lie on his shelves until it is worn out or out of date.

It will always pay you to buy goods from Courier advertisers.

High Paint

Paint is higher than ever before since the great improvement of making paint in works with all the facilities—think of a painter mixing and grinding by hand!

Good paint is still cheap; poor paint isn't cheap at any price.

The advance is only $5 on the whole job; it would cost you that to wait a year. A 10-gallon job this year would be a 11-gallon job next year; besides the risk.

Everybody knows that paint has gone up. Not everybody knows that his job has gone up a paltry $5.

Reckon the costs.

A PRESIDENTIAL PREDICTION.

There are four candidates in the race for the democratic presidential nomination, all maintaining headquarters and promoting active campaigns. There is Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, Governor Harmon of Ohio, Champ Clark of Missouri and Congressman Underwood of Alabama. Champ Clark will carry his home state and perhaps one or two other southern states and the same thing will happen to Underwood. But the bulk of the democratic vote in the south will go to Wilson and Harmon, as it is generally conceded that a southern democrat cannot draw enough votes in the north and west to elect him. And, while the Courier is making these election predictions, and at the same time realizing that election predictions are about as uncertain as weather predictions, it will go further and predict the nomination of Wilson to head the democratic ticket. Wilson will draw more votes from the west and far-west than will Harmon and he will not develop less strength in the north and south. His chance to carry New York is as good as Harmon's and to carry New York is necessary for democratic success. Taft will be nominated by the republicans and much of the Roosevelt independent vote, necessary to democratic success, will go to Wilson. Thus Wilson stands to win not only the nomination but the election. Harmon, although a good man, would only draw, in our estimation, about such a vote as did Judge Parker four years ago. He is possessed of the same conservatism and imbued with many of the same policies. Wilson strikes a medium between the Harmon and the Bryan types of democracy and is the only hope of democrats to draw away from the republicans enough of the independent vote necessary for success.

The Courier is in receipt of additional printing material, including more new type. We thought some time ago that our equipment was complete, but we found something lacking and bought it. Now we would like to have our friends call and look our plant over, and if there is anything else lacking we will have it shipped out right away, as the type founders advise us that our credit is yet good. It has been and will continue to be the policy of the Courier to invest all earnings from the paper in improvements, and our friends can help us out in this ambition with their patronage. The next improvement to be made will be the enlargement of the paper, which will be done just as soon as conditions seem to warrant.

When we think of the greatness of our country our minds revert to the farmer—the man behind the plow; he is the real sustaining power of the prosperity of the United States.

The prosperity of the farmer is the measure by means of which the progress of the country is determined.

U. D. C. Notes.

The D. A. Nunn chapter met on Saturday, the 30th of March, with Mesdames Wootters and Painter. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Jno. LeGory, all members repeating the Lord's prayer. Miss Lucia Painter then played one of the much loved old melodies—Kathleen Mavourneen. This little lady always gives much pleasure with her music. Minutes were read and adopted, treasurer's report given and dues paid. One new member was added to the chapter, Miss Buena Gilder. The entertainment for the benefit of the D. A. Nunn chapter to be given at the residence of Col. Adams was discussed, and Friday the 12th of April from 3:30 to 6 p. m. was decided on, and the following committees appointed: Telephone, Mesdames W. C. Lipscomb, Smith Wootters, Norris, J. W. Young, J. L. Jordan and J. Barbee; music, Mrs. J. P. Hail, chairman; decoration, Mesdames Jno. LeGory, J. Arledge and I. W. Sweet; dining room, Misses Bella Lipscomb, Augusta Adams, Sue Smith and Susie Carlton. This entertainment is to be given in the form of a penny party. The guests will be met at the door by Mrs. Jno. Millar and each one is requested to bring (5) five cents for each letter contained in surname. As this is the first entertainment of this nature the chapter has given we anticipate a large attendance. Every effort will be made to give pleasure to all. The chapter then enjoyed a most beautiful musical solo by Miss Sue Smith, after which the president read a touching appeal from our beloved historian, Mrs. Nunn, in reference to the cemetery work. The discussion on this matter resulted in a called meeting to be held at the residence of Mrs. Nunn on Saturday the 6th of April, at 3 p. m. for the purpose of outlining plans for work in the cemetery. Each member is urged to be present. All business having been finished, Mrs. Adams took charge of the historical program which proved to be very interesting. Among the "Heroes of the Lost Cause" mention was made of those who went from Houston county and the fact was elicited that with the entire vote amounting to only 1000, 1200 soldiers left this county and were actively engaged in defending their beloved Southland. The address given by Mr. J. W. Young on the occasion of the reunion of Col. D. A. Nunn's old company on their 50th anniversary was read by Miss Bella Lipscomb and followed with a vocal solo by Mrs. Dudley Woodson, her sweet bell-like voice giving pleasure to all. A sketch of Gen. Sam Houston's life was read by Mrs. Fisher Arledge and a paper on the life of Gen. Sul. Ross by Mrs. Smith Wootters. The president having requested each member to give an account of some Texas hero, Mrs. Fisher Arledge read from the page of an old worn Houston Post, dated many years back, a character sketch of Col. Jno. Durst, grandfather of Mrs. Pinkney Hail, a member of the D. A. Nunn chapter. This account of the struggles and warfare of the times of the Republic was indeed interesting. After partaking of delicious cake and brick ice cream served by little Miss Lucia Painter, the chapter adjourned to meet with Mrs. Estelle Wootters on the afternoon of the 27th of April at 3 p. m. Mrs. D. F. Arledge, Sec. D. A. Nunn Chapter.

Survival of the Fittest.

This agitation of the parcels post question merely resolves itself into a question of the "survival of the fittest." If the small country merchant is a necessity the adoption of the parcels post will not disturb him, unless it be to arouse him to more modern methods. It is not a necessity, then the refusal or neglect to establish the parcels post will not save him. The so-called "mail order house" or "department store" is merely an evolution of business. Just as the old-fashioned fireplace and crane have given way to the gas stove and the steel range, so must the old-fashioned mercantile system give way before the systematized establishment that eliminates waste labor, waste rents, etc.—The Nebraska Farm Journal.
