Tractorcade Faces Washington Police

Amid reports by farmers that Washington, D.C. police 'over-reacted, and acted in some instances in a brutal manner' members of the tractorcade in Washington were still surrounded Tuesday at a mall near the nation's capitol. Confrontations Monday when the farmers entered Washington on their tractors led to words with members of the Washington police, and eventually to several arrests by the police, and the hospitalization of several persons.

Reportedly the man did not move his tractor out of an intersection and the tear gas was shot into his tractor through the glass window. Most of the farmers reporting back to this area expressed surprise at the reception in Washington, and said the riot-gear Cont. page 6, Col. 1

Area Youth Disco Dance Saturday

Poised and waiting for the inevitable are the group of sponsors of the disco dance scheduled from 8 p.m. to 12 a.m. Saturday night at the Bailey County Exhibition Center and Coliseum. They have made all the plans and will be ready for an expected large group of young dancers. Individual couples decided to sponsor the disco dance following numerous requests from local and area youth.

AAA Entertainment of Clovis will provide disco sounds and charges will be $3 per couple or $2 for singles. A spokesman for the parents sponsoring the dance said tables will be set up, refreshments available and the music loud with the rotating bright lights. They invite all interested youth to attend the dance as future disco dances depend on the enthusiasm and attendance at the first dance.

Firemen were forced to remove inside walls to get to the fire. One room in the home received damage from the fire.

Adding to winter's woes was a 'sneak' snow that surprised area residents as well as weather forecasters Tuesday morning.

Most weather services predicted the snow would stay well south of this area as they gave amounts of up to seven or eight inches in the Carlsbad, Artesia and Roswell areas and down through the southwestern part of Texas.

However, light snow started falling in Muleshoe around 10:30 p.m. Monday and by morning, approximately four inches of snow was on the ground, and snow continued throughout most of the morning.

The warm weather that had prevailed in the area for the last few days caused the snow to melt quickly and by noon when the sun broke through the clouds, almost all of the snow had melted.

In south Bailey County, snow piled up to more than seven inches, forcing school at Three Way to be released early, and school buses were permitted to run only on the paved roads.

Burglaries Reported To Police

One of the largest home burglaries to ever be reported within the City of Muleshoe is currently under investigation by the Muleshoe City Police Department.

Between the hours of 1 p.m. and 3:45 p.m. Monday, an unknown person or persons entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Merritt and removed a large amount of household items.

Reports on the missing items included a stereo, guitar, two radios, digital clock, 10 inch black and white television, two Polaroid cameras and three other cameras.

Also, a CB radio, microwave oven, tape recorder, two calculators, high school ring, tape player, a jewelry box, two watches, tape box with twelve tapes, two silver dollars, jewelry and other miscellaneous items.

Tuesday morning, Jimmy Pitcock, who lives near the Merritt home, reported an additional loss. Pitcock reported to the officers that between the hours of 6 p.m. Monday and 8:30 a.m. Tuesday morning, he lost more than $750 in tools from his pickup.

Both incidents are under investigation at this time, according to the city police department.

Many reports were received of vehicles skidding off the roads and into ditches and several minor fender benders were reported, especially in the south part of the county.

Snow did not interrupt school in Muleshoe, and students who already missed two days of school this winter because of

City Council Will Name Members

Vacancies on the city planning commission and airport board were discussed by members of the Muleshoe City Council. Both Derrell Oliver and Curtis Walker have resigned from the planning commission and Jerry Hicks resigned from the airport board after becoming a Muleshoe City Policeman.

Council members will present names for consideration during the next meeting of the city council, February 20.

Freddie Locker attended the council meeting Tuesday morning to discuss portions of the proposed airport lease. Discussed were provisions for insurance and solving roof leakage problems.

Council members approved the annexation of 3.11 acres of land adjacent to the Country Club Addition, presently owned by Lee Atwood. Atwood requested the annexation so he could be extended city water service.

Muleshoe Mayor Pro-tem Max King presided over the one hour meeting in the absence of Mayor Ken Henry.

City Manager Dave Marr explained that he and Mayor Henry would be visiting in Austin Friday morning with Speaker of the House Bill Clayton and asked council members to propose items for discussion with the Representative.

Mules Take Home Game; Down Morton

Every player scored Tuesday night when the Muleshoe Mules met the Morton Indians in the Muleshoe Junior High School gym for the final home basketball game of the season.

At the end of the game, the Mules had outdistanced the Indians by a score of 64-49.

Morton came alive in the last quarter of the game, scoring 22 points to 20 for the Mules, but were unable to overcome a large deficit noted in the earlier periods of the game.

Jeep Shanks and Charles Briscoe each had 13 pts.; Mike Northcutt, 12; Dickey Sudduth, 10; Terry Shafer, seven; James Atwood, three and Dennis Patterson, Lary Hooten, Sam Whalin each had two pts.

Friday night, the Mules and Mulettes will travel to Dimmitt, and end up the season next Tuesday when they play the final game at Littlefield.

MULETTES
The Muleshoe Mulettes, behind a solid 16 points by Shelly Dunham, blasted the Morton girls, 44-25.

They led all the way in the girls' action and were never threatened by the Indian girls.

Also scoring in the game were Karen Stovall with 15 points; JoRonda Rhodes, six; Lupe Pacheco, four; Cindy Hamblen, two and Debra Washington, one point.

'SHEEP WINNER...Mitsze Robertson, who won grand champion of the show during the Bailey County Junior Livestock Show, extended her win to the Three Way FFA Show last weekend and swept the lamb division at that show also.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor Muleshoe Journal, Reprinted from the American Agriculture News Letter Article by: Herb Karner, Tulsa World Farm Editor

Webster defines parity: "The quality or condition of being equal or equivalent; a like state or degree." When a company grants an increase in wages to cover the rise in cost of living, that worker has PARITY. When a labor union fights for an increase in wage and fringe benefits to bring earning power in line with the cost of living, the struggle is for PARITY. Rarely, however, is 'parity' ever used in this fashion. Why not? All that is being done is to create the condition of being equal or equivalent. Public utilities faced with increased cost go before the Corporation Commission and ask for rate increases to cover those added costs...and they usually get what they ask for. Why? SO THEY CAN BE EQUAL, so they can show a return on investment and make dividend payments to shareholders. But is a request for a rate increase ever called a request for parity? Not to our knowledge.

The only time the word 'parity' appears is when it is applied to agriculture; when farmers say they believe they, too, should be able to pass on added cost. But when farmers talk of parity it becomes a dirty word because people do not understand the working of a free, competitive enterprise system.

Current misinformed stories say farmers are striking for guaranteed profits. All farmers want is parity for what is consumed and exported -- they want parity. Equality, they want to be equivalent with the rest of the economy.

When an auto maker raises the price of his product, he is not asking for a guaranteed profit; merely the opportunity to make a profit. That's all farmers want...the opportunity to make a profit which is being denied them when they are denied parity for what the public uses.

At best, this explanation of parity is simplistic. What we tried to do is put into proper perspective the word 'parity' and inform readers no matter what part of the economic arena you occupy, you're dealing with parity -- the state of being equal.

Farmers know they have the same alternatives as the makers of farm tools. Cut back on production, refuse to sell; refuse to buy, merge or quit. Parity is not an agricultural word exclusively. It applies to ALL.

Potatoes Require Special Handling

Just because a potato is firm, there is no reason to view it as other than delicate produce, according to Texas Tech University researchers who are working to insure better potato quality for eastern consumers.

Handlers are careful to avoid nicking or bruising tomatoes and apples, Dr. R. Max Miller and his research assistant, Donna Huffington, contend, but this potato skins are carelessly scraped and the vegetable dumped from place to place as though bruises make no difference.

"Handling does make a difference," Miller said, "and so do the temperatures at which potatoes are kept in shipment from the field to the supermarket bins in Cleveland, Philadelphia and other eastern cities." Miller and Huffington have found that boxed potatoes ship better than those in burlap bags, and either is better than perforated plastic bags.

Potatoes harvested when the field temperature is above 100 degrees F. should be slowly lowered to about 60 degrees and 80-81 percent humidity, then held at those levels three days. They should be shipped at about 60 degrees F. with enough circulation to insure that the potatoes throughout the load are all at that temperature.

At each step of the way potatoes should be handled carefully and dropped no more than six inches at any stage.

Miller, the principal investigator, is a member of the food technology faculty at Texas Tech. Huffington is a candidate for the master's degree in food technology.

They began their research at Hereford, Tx., studying the effects of harvesting and handling on injuries and subsequent shelf life of Norgold Russet and Viking potatoes. The goal is to assure producers the best possible market prices.

The researchers sampled potatoes in the field, on trucks enroute to packing sheds, throughout the packing process, in trucks enroute to wholesalers, in wholesale houses and finally at retail markets in Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland and Washington, D.C. Miller said it takes a week or 10 days to move West Texas potatoes from the field to the consumer.

They found that potatoes sometimes are dropped as much as six feet. In loading and unloading from a truck, workers were observed frequently throwing sacked potatoes several feet. A 6 inch drop should be the maximum to prevent bruising, the researchers said.

Temperatures varied in the refrigerated trucks which carry potatoes to market and during the few days that wholesalers keep them. Variations ranged from 40 degrees -- too cold -- to 75 degrees -- too warm.

Vital to maintaining quality, Miller said, was the "hardening" process, slow cooling after leaving the field and high humidity for a three day period. In shipping, air circulation in the refrigerated truck is important. Miller said loads should be kept at 60 degrees throughout the trip, no matter whether the potato sampled is from the top, middle or bottom of the load. "West Texas potatoes are not storage produce," Miller emphasized. "They come off in the summer and are shipped speedily to retailers to take advantage of a break in the potato market."

Here are the Bronze Medal essays from the Lazbuddie students: Travel in the Thirteen Colonies... by Aaron Hargett, Muleshoe, fifth grade, Lazbuddie Elementary. Traveling in the thirteen colonies was hard and dangerous because the trails were so poor. Most of the people were poor and had to walk when they were traveling. The people who had horses were very lucky, most of those people were wealthy.

On narrow trails in the forest the sense of direction was poor. Because trails were so narrow and forest were so thick, many of the colonist lost their way. Sometimes the traveling colonist stopped at Taverns. Taverns were inns on the side of the road. The colonist stopped to rest, eat and feed the horses so they all would be ready for the long journey ahead.

In the winter the colonist made sleds because wagons could not make it in the snow and ice. Many of the colonist froze while traveling from place to place in a blizzard.

Traveling on rivers in riverboats and in dugout canoes was very dangerous. Some of the dangers of traveling on rivers were waterfalls, rapids, and logs in the river. Many colonist were also attacked by Indians or ambushed by highwaymen.

Sometimes the colonist traveled together for protection from Indians or highwaymen.

The colonist carried their things on pack horses or in clumsy two-wheeled carts. When the colonist went on narrow roads with their wagons, sometimes they had to take the wagons apart to go on the roads.

Sometimes Indian trails wound into roads, and the colonist made them better.

The colonist also learned a lot of ways to travel from the Indians. One of the ways was, traveling by canoes.

The canoes were made of logs which were dug out half was in the middle. One other way is a horse pulling two poles, one on each side of the horse. In the middle of poles there was wood or animal skin for carrying the freight on.

Traveling in the city was a lot easier than traveling in the country.

The colonist rode coaches in the city. Coaches were made of boxes on springs, they had a top so the people would not get rained on. Most of the people walked or rode horse in the city. The people who lived in the country wagons to the city.

Finey the coloist made better roads through the country and in the woods so the colonist would have a better way to travel.

My Adventures Travelling by Stacy Ivy, Friona, sixth grade, Lazbuddie Junior High

My name is Heather Brown. I was born on December 6, 1755. I have brown hair and blue eyes.

My story started when I woke up and heard my Father and Mother talking. My Father said, "Mary, it is about time we told Heather about our moving to Rhode Island".

I came into the room and told my Father that I liked our home here in Richmond, Virginia, and I didn't want to move. My Father said "You'll like it in Rhode Island."

The next day we finished our packing and was soon on our way to a new colony. As we set down the road in our wagon I had a feeling of great excitement. We passed alot of taverns and woods.

When we finally got to Rhode Island it was nearly dark and we stopped at an inn to spend the night. The Innkeeper told us about the five Indian tribes that were living in Rhode Island. They were the Narraganset, Niantic, Nipmuck, Pequot and the Wampanoag. They all belonged to the Algonkian family. These peaceful tribes hunted and fished, and raised corn, beans, and other crops.

I enjoyed listening to his stories and later slept good in my warm room.

The next day we went to our new farm and mother was very, very pleased with the cabin Father had built for us. There was a stream running behind the cabin and a lot of trees around.

Early the next morning, I went down to the stream and sat down with my fishing pole and caught nice big fish. Mother cooked them for lunch and they were really good.

One day as I was watching my Father plant cotton, I saw a young Indian girl about my age peaking at me from behind a tree. I went over to her and said Hello. Her name was Bright Star and she was a member of the Wampanoag Tribes. She and I became real good friends and had a lot of good times together. That Thanksgiving Mother invited Bright Star and her family to our house for dinner. We had a great feast and I realized how much I had to be thankful for. I had a nice family, a good home and a new friend. I was glad we had moved.

Travel in the Thirteen Colonies During the 1700's by Franky Garcia, Muleshoe, seventh grade, Lazbuddie Junior High

They traveled by boats on the frighten bass and coast waters they also had many sails they were called the brigantines, and the schooners, the shallops and the sloops, also the yaws. The first road was lead in to the Indians trails. Later they made roads for people to ride on horse back and carts or wagons pulled by horses.

In 1760 Philadelphia had two stone bridges. In 1760 people could all ready traveled from New Hampshire to Georgia. By the mid 1700's vehicles were being used in towns by the government officials, and wealthy colonists. They also included carriages, chariots and coaches, drawn by four, six or eight horses.

They used to drag their loads from place to place after a little later they learned to tame animals. That's when they started to build wagons and carts also sleds so the tamed animals could pull the wagons and the carts and made transportation faster for the people to go from place to place with out dragging a load on their back. The first long road they made was from Boston to Providence, R.I. was not opened until 1654. Later the road extended to New York City and it was called the Shore Road.

The people were so poor that they couldn't afford to lose a horse or any thing they bought. In some towns they had private coaches. In 1700's stage wagons and stagecoaches were introduced. If the stage coaches got stuck the passengers had to help get it out or they would have to stay their and start walking but if they had to get mud on a special occasional they often got mad and they never got where they were going.

In two days if they were going from New York city to Philadelphia the trip would be slow and tiresome but they always made it to were they were going. The early settlers were always located on the ocean or near a navigable river. Some stage coaches would leave at a certain time to a certain place or town. At first the people used brick - bark canoes and dugouts as the indians did. In 1631 the ferry was used to cross a large stream. Some of the people were famous and rich. The shallops and sloops which carried passengers through all large streams. Some people wished you good luck when you went on the waters because some waters were dangerous and angry. They couldn't use buggys because of the roads they were to buppy and to crooked. The people at the town tried to afford money for the roads and the town but they were just to poor. The way the people used oxens to plow and to grow their crops. Back then they had hogheads and tobacco. They also had a border and they traded their stuff for better things and for things they needed. The hogheads were dragged by horses or oxen. Two pins were stuck through the top of the wooden ties. The people liked to kill the hogs for meat and bones for the dogs. The hogheads were brought in the Richmond, fredericksburg, falmonth and other fall lines towns. The people they all were hungry and thirsty.

They did not want to kill the hogs because the people and the families did not like to kill or stiel. People back then got sick and they didn't have a doctor or a nurse for the people some people had to die. The people that did not like the roads they had because of the holes bupps and rocks on the road. They also didn't like the way they plowed. Some people died and some still live.

eighth grade, Lazbuddie Junior High

If you wanted to go to grandmother's house in 1760 you didn't hop in a car and run there. You would leave a few days early if she lived way off. Because you had to go on horse back or in a wagon or on foot. There were many different ways to travel in the early colonies. Most colonist rarely traveled. By rule, traders, merchants, or wealthy farmers were the only ones that traveled.

Travel by land was very slow. The fastest thing was probably horse back. If you got a good horse you could go three to four miles an hour. If you went by wagon it took much, much longer, or if you were poor, you either walked or didn't go. You could ride with a friend then it wasn't so bad. When a farmer had to take his crops into town, He took it by wagon. The mail was delivered by horseback. There wasn't that many real roads they mostly were paths made by the Indians.

Their Fords and Chevrolet were carriage and curricles; which is a two wheel carriage pulled by two horses. They also had Grayhound Buses; it was a stagecoach. They even had a cadillac; which was phaeton; which is a four wheel carriage with a front and back seat, with a folding top. Travel may have been slow, but they traveled in style. Some of the carriages were hand carved and the seats were upholstered in leather or brightly colored cloth.

Travel by sea wasn't as fast as it is today either. It took months to travel across the sea. If the stores ran out of tea you would have to wait for some to come in on a ship from another country. There were many different kinds of ships back then. There were Brigantiner; that is a two masted ship with a fore-and-aft-rigged mainmast and a square rigged foremast and a Schooners; a ship with two or more mast-rigged fore and aft. Shallops; a small open boat fitted with oars or sail or both, and then the Sloops; a small boat with a single mast and a jib. There were many dangers on the sea. Storms, which could blow a ship off course and it may take days fore it to get back on course or it might even sink the ship. There were also some Pirates running around. They would steal every thing they could and then kill the crew of the ship and then sink the ship. The navy ships aren't the same as today either. They didn't have dishoyer or carrier or subs. They mainly had ships called Men of War. They were very big ship for those times, but they were clumsy and awkward looking.

There were many dangers in traveling. There were the Highwaymen; who rob you every chance they got. There were swamps to. The swamps were full of wild animals And it was very muddy. If you went in a carriage it was likely you would get stuck and have to push. If it was the first time you had been in that certain swamp it was likely you would get lost. There were the Taverns along side the road that were like Motels of to day. Most of the Taverns were pretty nice; but there were some where thie:es hung out. Some Taverns were the meeting places for some of the most historical meetings in our nations history. The Indians were bad, but, not as bad as later on.

During the War the soldiers had to walk from place to place. They weren't drove around like our's are today. About the only ones with horses back then were the officers and the calvery. Thier artillery was pulled around by horses. They had a problem when they had to retreat and the cannons got stuck and the horses couldn't pull it out.

It may have been slow and dangerous. They did it and made America what it is today.

the tractors started moving toward the capitol building.
 Farmers went to Washington to make a dramatic effort to obtain 90 percent of parity on loans instead of the 70 percent allowed at this time.

National Wagonmaster Gerald McCathern, of Hereford, said, "With tractors from all over the country, this should show the American people that this is a national problem. We're looking at 1948 prices for our commodities and the 1979 cost of production."

Washington officers blocked the tractorcade to keep them from moving onto the streets and freeways when the heavy evening traffic started, and kept most of the tractors 'penned' overnight.

Members of the American Agriculture Movement in the Muleshoe area were urging telegrams and mailgrams to be sent to the Senators and Congressmen protesting the actions of the police during the day Monday.

They said a telegram costs $8.10 and has a five hour delivery and a mailogram is $2.95 with an overnight delivery. Headquarters for the American Agriculture Movement in Washington is at the Skyline Inn, South Capitol and I Street Southwest, Washington, D.C. 20003. A toll free number to call for the mailogram is 1-800-325-5300 or 1-800-325-5380.

Tuesday night, Texas Senator Kent Hance was sponsoring a chili supper for members of the American Agriculture Movement in Washington.

Local people who were on the tractorcade included Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Killough, Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Kittrell and Kem Bales. Other local farmers and their wives were flying to Washington to join the group already there.

Snow...

 adverse weather trekked off to school in the snow, only to find it almost all gone by the time the school day ended.

All of the moisture is expected to prove to be a boon to farmers who have been facing possible planting problems a little later in the year with depleted subsoil moisture.

Although the county received their average moisture last year at 17.59 inches, a depletion of water supplies was expected to hamper planting efforts. The usual rainfall, or moisture received in this area averaged 17.42 inches.

For persons who think we have had a colder than usual winter thus far, you are absolutely correct. Temperatures in Muleshoe were 10.9 degrees colder for January than the average. The average temperature for January stayed below freezing at 29.2 degrees. The average maximum for January in this area is 42.1 with the average minimum 16.2. Also, precipitation is above average for the month of January. Average precipitation for Muleshoe in January is .81 inches, and we ended January with .96 inches, and added approximately .3 with the very wet snow that fell late Monday night and Tuesday morning.

National Weather Service predicted no moisture throughout the rest of the week, but said additional moisture may be received in a cold front that is expected through the area this weekend, or the first of next week.

Adding to weather woes are other side effects of prolonged cold, including "potholes" in streets, burst pipes and dented vehicles, along with higher utility bills.

Water, Inc. Membership Meet Slated

The 12th Annual Membership Meeting of Water, Inc., will feature Dale Raitt, assistant regional director for the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation, and Harvey O. Banks, project director of the six state High Plains Ogallala Study, as speakers here Feb. 17.

Raitt and Banks will join Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, Congressman Kent Hance and Harvey Davis, executive director of the Texas Department of Water Resources, on the program in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Registration for the annual meeting is $7.50 per person and may be made in advance by writing Water, Inc., P.O. Box 367, Lubbock, Texas, 79408. The registration fee includes the cost of the luncheon at which Commissioner Brown will speak.

Associated with the Reclamation Bureau for 30 years, Raitt is involved in the planning, construction and operation and maintenance of Bureau projects in a five state area which includes sections of Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

Banks is employed by the engineering firm Camp, Dresser and McKee, Inc. That firm is the prime contractor in the $6 million High Plains Ogallala Study, which is designed to determine the local and national impact of declining groundwater supplies in the agriculturally productive Plains States.

Children listen -- and imitate -- to learn to speak. Therefore, one of the requirements of human speech, besides the physical and mental equipment for making and understanding sounds, is a model -- someone to imitate.

Babies start to develop language skills from early infancy. The first time they cry, they've begun to communicate -- they have successfully "spoken."

By the time babies are three months old, they usually recognize familiar voices and experiment on their own.

Researchers believe that babies can understand language and formulate fairly complex thoughts before they can speak words.

The reasons they don't speak sooner are physical: their tongue is too large in proportion to their mouth, their voice box or larynx hasn't matured and their brain hasn't developed sufficiently.

Because of the physical maturity necessary for language, children rarely speak in sentences before age two.

By the time children are three, they understand most of the language they will use in ordinary conversation for the rest of their lives.

Therefore, equally as important as physical readiness to speak, experts say, is interaction with speakers of the language.

Imitation is a vital part of language development.

Cotton Council Plans New Export Efforts

National Cotton Council delegates today broadened their export objectives to include efforts to step up overseas sales of American made cotton yarn, textiles, and made up goods. The industrywide organization endorsed a series of wide ranging actions aimed at boosting all cotton exports, including negotiations to assure these products "reasonable access" to foreign markets without undue restrictions in the form of tariff or non-tariff barriers.

The Council also (1) urged the Administration to make maximum use of authorized export credit; (2) agreed to cooperate with other industry organizations in developing more effective foreign market development programs; and (3) called for continuation of a weekly export sales reporting system under USDA's exclusive jurisdiction.

On farm matters, the Council urged the Secretary of Agriculture to consider a minimum 10 percent voluntary paid diversion program for 1979 cotton plantings. Delegates opposed establishment of a reserve program for excess cotton stocks, noting that under the present farm law the Secretary can adjust cotton supplies through set aside and diversion programs. They also called for cotton and cottonseed to be eliminated from proposed farm bargaining legislation, and favored continued freedom for buyers and sellers of these products to bargain without government restriction.

The Council requested USDA to (1) delay its planted acreage survey in late-planting areas until June 15; (2) include its first estimate of acreage for harvest in the August crop report; and (3) eliminate the July production estimate initiated last year. Delegated called on Congress to increase its control over federal regulatory agencies through "sunset" or "one-house veto" laws.

While continuing to support "appropriate" protection of consumer interest by the federal government, they maintained this should not include grants for lobbying activities or for expenses in testifying before federal agencies or similar groups unless under government subpoena.

Regarding textile imports, delegates reaffirmed their position that present textile tariff levels should be retained during the multilateral trade negotiations. In addition, they supported countervailing duties for competitive products shipped to the U.S. at prices made possible by foreign subsidies.

Among other actions called for in the Council's 164 resolutions were: --Efforts to assure the cotton industry of the lowest practical non-discriminatory transportation rates, adequate equipment and services;

--Congressional restoration of $1.7 million in funds for cotton and cottonseed research that would be eliminated under the President's proposed 1980 budget;

--Increased research on aflatoxin problems in cottonseed;

--Continuation of the federal law requiring labels to show the individual fiber content of consumer products;

--Protection of citizen's rights to participate financially in Congressional elections by insisting on private rather than public financing of campaign costs; and

--An amendment to income tax laws that would provide for indexing tax rates on the basis of inflation.

optimistic about Senate passage of his resolution to reassure that the U.S. has no intentions to abandon Taiwan.

On another matter of special interest to cotton growers, Cranston predicted Congress will substantially change the 1902 Reclamation Act. While he expects some limit to be retained on lands using federal project water, the Senator said the limitation "certainly will not be 160 acres."

Rep. Ken Holland urged industry leaders to continue communicating their problems and proposed solutions to the Congress. "Only together can we correct what is wrong, and continue what is right," he said.

House Cotton Subcommittee Chairman David Bowen said he has urged a voluntary paid diversion program for cotton in 1979. Expressing confidence in the 1977 farm act as "sound legislation," Bowen said he believes the Administration can work within the law's flexibility to adjust farmers' problems. Regarding disaster payments, he pledged to work for extension of the present program "or something similar" if a federal all-risk crop insurance program is not developed. Bowen also expressed concern over what he described as disproportionate cuts for cotton research in the President's proposed budget, and said he believed Congress would restore some of the funds.

Reagan In?

There's a growing admission among conservative and moderate Republicans Ronald Reagan now has next year's Republican nomination almost in the bag. That worries some because the latest Gallup Poll shows President Carter ahead of Reagan in public popularity, 57 to 35 percent. (Mr. Carter leads former President Gerald Ford 53-39.)

Reagan only narrowly missed the nomination in 1976. Whether he could have carried several southern states and beaten Mr. Carter is a much-argued question even today. Some Ford backers have blamed Reagan's limited help in 1976 for their narrow defeat, etc.

But in recent weeks there are several signs differences between the two camps are being forgotten. A number of Ford supporters are now turning to Reagan, as perhaps the inevitable candidate. Reagan has not yet committed himself but he seems to have been running (for delegates at least) for some time now. One Ford supporter thinks Reagan already has enough delegate support lined up to insure nomination, though experts point out that, since most delegates haven't yet been chosen, this is impossible.

The Issue Of SALT II

The current nuclear treaty danger facing Americans is that politics and ignorance will block a SALT II accord which is better than no treaty, though it allows the Russians to retain some advantages accepted when SALT I was signed in 1972.

This is not to argue that the Carter Administration has negotiated a treaty which should be ratified by the Senate. Treaty negotiations have not yet been completed. If the newly proposed pact concedes further advantages to the Soviet Union, it should probably be rejected (though if they are minor the treaty might still deserve ratification in our own interests).

The point the American public must keep in mind, and which some proud, vociferous Senators lose sight of, is that America today cannot demand much in these treaty negotiations. We go into them with our hands tied.

First, the Soviets can spend about what they please on nuclear arms. That's a prerogative of dictatorship. The U.S. can't spend enough to equal Soviet arms production. With our current high pay, voluntary manpower system, only a minor percentage of our defense money is left for weapons. So, to begin with, U.S. negotiators can't win. Further, when we first got in the mood for nuclear arms limitation treaties, we were already behind the Russians. We didn't seek limiting treaties in the earlier years when we were ahead.

WASHINGTON NEWS REPORT

Carter's Budget Reductions Likely - Press Manipulated - Media "Had"

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Media coverage of President Carter's presentation of the 1980 budget provides a good example of the gullibility of most reporters and the low quality of today's news writing.

For several weeks before Mr. Carter presented his budget, stories emanating from the White House told of sharp objections from various sources about cuts the President was making. The words austere, tight, lean were used frequently in describing the Carter budget. The day after it was presented to Congress the New York Times used the word austere in describing it, on page one. Commentators on the three television networks used similar descriptive words.

Yet the truth was that the Carter budget was larger than last year's, after taking into account inflation--and that in the face of last November's elections! That was the story the taxpayers should have gotten from the media--not that the budget was a lean one, which simply wasn't true.

Carter made some cuts in domestic spending, but not big ones and he actually increased spending for the poor, young people, the unemployed, etc. His much-publicized reduction in the budget deficit--to $29 billion--is a hoax. Many feel that the 1980 deficit is likely to be nearer $45 billions. Even if the 1980 deficit is $29 billions, that's just $8 billions below the 1979 deficit--$37 billions. And Treasury income is up sharply, which is what is allowing Carter's greater spending--including a $10 billion hike in defense spending.

In short, the press was nicely "had" in the recent budget news.

What is likely to happen to the Carter budget? Just as happened last year, Congress is going to cut it. Most voters don't realize that the much-criticized Congress last year trimmed some $20 billions from Carter's 1979 budget. If the last session of the 95th hadn't done that, the current deficit would be over fifty billions! Think what would be happening to the dollar if that were the case.

This first session of the 96th Congress is likely to trim Mr. Carter's 1980 budget too--and that's what the November elections were all about. The question is where and how much this new Congress will trim the budget. If Congress cuts twenty billions, the deficit next year would be only $9 billions. That would greatly help the dollar and be a major contribution to the fight against inflation.

In summary, the budget fight this year is the same as last--between a free-spending President and a more fiscally responsible Congress. And that story is almost untold.

FOOD AID APPROVED
ROME -- The U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization has approved $11 million in emergency food aid for seven countries, with Vietnam getting the largest amount, it was announced.

By Bob Hill

The Ayatolla Khomeini is no friend of ours. He has already demanded the cutting off of the foreign countries activities in Iran. What is the man like? What kind of government will he head if he manages to take control?

He is inconsistent, a religious fanatic. He is anti-American and his contradictory statements from one day to the next promise chaos if he would take over the government of Iran. It is doubtful that his sponsors are Communist inspired. But the old-line Tudeh Party, which tried to twist Iran from Western influences immediately after World War II, is ready for another opportunity.

It would be difficult to expect a man who has hated a regime brought to power by the U.S., to change his attitude. He also claims that the Shah's government killed members of his family. So, it is wishful thinking to expect him to safeguard U.S. interests in the middle-east.

The support which the Ayatolla comes from the unique religious organization with Iran. Religious leaders have a tremendous influence over Iranians, dispensing cash and cutting government red tape for those believers with numerous problems. The money they receive is accountable only to the conscience of the Ayatolla. There are five influential Ayatollas active in Iran.

The French influence is much stronger than many realize. Bakhtiar is French educated. His opposition enemy is also French educated. During the recent riots, the office of Air France were hung with garlands by one group of demonstrators. And Khomeini spent his exile in France. French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing tried to persuade President Carter at the Guadeloupe meeting that the Shah had to go.

Senator Introduces New Regulatory Bill

"With almost a unanimous voice," Tower said, "my constituents in Texas have urged me to help get government off their backs. It is an outcry Americans all across the country are voicing in growing numbers. But instead of action to solve the problems, Americans only hear the 'rhetoric of reform.'"

"More, not less, regulation results. For example, in the January 19, 1979 Federal Register, HEW reported that it had 453 significant regulations under development. The President's budget for Fiscal Year 1980 reveals that outlays for civil rights enforcement are projected to increase by 32 percent from $448 million in 1978 to $592.5 million in 1980. Outlays for pollution control and abatement enforcement activities are due to increase by about $100 million in 1979. The Federal agencies' budgets are targeted for sizeable increases."

"I do not know of a responsible legislator who would argue that a share of our capital resources should not go for social purposes. But we are in an era of hard new economic realities. We must assure the American public that the dollars spent in its behalf are dollars well spent; that dollars spent achieve their purpose."

Tower pointed to the fact that regulation reduced the supply of capital available for investment in new technology and production, threatening further reductions in productivity and eventually lowering Americans' standard of living.

Tower said the Citizens Commission could help in significant ways to reduce regulation and bureaucracy because its appointed members, all distinguished Americans outside government, would be empowered to recommend for the first time the elimination of useless agencies and regulations. The public would also participate through a series of hearings, Tower said, in an attempt to develop a national consensus on the appropriate role of government in the market.

The Citizens Commission, Tower said, would "help channel public disenchantment with government meddling and mismanagement in the direction of constructive action -- to give the public a forum and the tools to apply pressure on Congress to make changes by cracking down on unnecessary regulation. It would help develop the necessary public consensus for action."

Regaining control over government regulation and bureaucracy gone haywire is the expressed intent of a bill introduced today by Sen. John Tower (R-Tx.), which would create a citizens commission with authority to recommend to Congress the elimination of agencies, laws and regulations outdated or not living up to their intent.

Tower's bill, to create a Citizens Commission on Economic Regulatory Oversight, would be empowered by the Congress to review existing regulation, agencies and laws and recommend their elimination if warranted. Tower told his colleagues that burdensome regulation and bureaucracy cost the American taxpayer billions, stifle capital formation by business and lower productivity, and more importantly, embitter a public weary of government ineffectiveness and inefficiency.

'78 Agriculture Census To Get Underway Soon

Final preparations are underway at the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce, for the next Census of Agriculture which will begin in January to canvass farm and ranch activities across the Nation for calendar 1978. Every household which conducts agricultural operations will receive its form in the mail at the turn of the year.

Report forms for the 1978 census have been drastically reduced from the 22 pages of the last farm census. In this census, 21st in a series that started in 1840, most farm and ranch operators will receive a four page form in the mail, while some will receive a five page version.

On the report form, each farmer or rancher will need answer only questions that apply to his or her operation. The form is arranged so that individual questions or sections dealing with crops and livestock not produced can be skipped.

The overall time required by farmers to complete the form has been reduced an estimated one-third.

In developing the report forms, the Census Bureau obtained the advice of farmers, representatives of farm suppliers, agricultural universities, Congress, and State and Federal program agencies. Two tests of the census form were conducted to determine that the questions were easily understood so farmers and ranchers could accurately supply the information requested.

There is always a right and wrong way, and the wrong way always seems the more reasonable.

The new farm census has been advanced one year to put it into phase with the five year cycle of censuses of retail and wholesale business, industry and manufactures starting in 1982. After that, the farm censuses will be held for years ending in 2 and 7.

The 1978 Census of Agriculture will be conducted as follows:

---All respondents will be asked: the amount of farm acreage by type of ownership; land use; acreage, production and sales of crops; inventory, number sold, and sales value of livestock and poultry and selected characteristics of farm operators and farm management.

---About 20 percent of farmers and ranchers will receive an additional page seeking information on value of land and buildings; selected production expenses; selected farm equipment; hired farm labor; fertilizer and pesticide use; grain storage capacity and petroleum fuel usage and storage capacity.

These data will be summarized and published for each of the over 3,000 counties which have agricultural operations, for each State, for regions and the entire Nation.

---Additional data for States or the Nation will be obtained in follow-up sample surveys of farms early in 1980. Subjects being considered for these surveys include the following:

Thrift Shop $2,800 Last Quarter

Mrs. A.M. Bradley announced that the Christmas Card Project sponsored by the Muleshoe Hospital and Nursing Home Auxiliary netted $3,084. It was used to purchase new and more comfortable furnishings for the remodeled day room in the Muleshoe Nursing Home. Also in the donations was a grandfather clock from the Kiwanis Club for the day room.

Mrs. S.M. Ethridge reported that $2,800 was made from the Thrift Shop in the last quarter. It was announced that two paintings have been purchased from Keith Taylor and Mildred Williams in memory of Frances Graham and Margaret Jones. Also from the memorial fund, two lamps have been purchased for the day room.

Mrs. R.L. Kimbrough reported that three babies were sent home in the Completed forms should be mailed back as soon as possible in January in the confidential, postage-paid envelopes provided. Estimated are acceptable and should be reported in the absence of firm records.

Recipients of census report forms are asked not to discard the. Follow-up mailings costing additional public funds in postage will be required until all forms are received. Despite careful screening of the mailing lists used, some persons not engaged in agricultural activities in 1978 will receive report forms. Those persons should return the form with that fact noted, so that additional mailings can be avoided.

Response to the census is required by law, Title 13, United States Code. By the same law, information furnished on report forms is kept confidential and even other government agencies cannot obtain or use the report made by any farmer or rancher. The law also provides that copies retained by the operator are immune for legal process.

Prune Shade Trees
While Still Dormant

Major pruning on shade trees should be done during the winter months while the trees are dormant. However, before you start whacking away at your favorite tree or shrub, make sure you have a justifiable reason for pruning, cautions Spencer Tanksley, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Tanksley points out that there are a number of reasons for pruning. First and foremost is to maintain a strong framework for the future development of the tree. Other reasons are to reduce the size or to keep the tree within specific bounds and to remove dead, diseased or weak growth as well as broken limbs and rubbing branches. Another reason for pruning is to improve the size and quality of flowers and fruit. A final reason is to balance the top growth with the root system at transplanting time.

Unless pruning can be justified for one of these reasons, it is better to place the shears and saw in the shed and obtain the desired exercise by spading the flowerbed, says Tanksley.

Some of the general principles that will apply when pruning shade trees include the removal of all dead or diseased wood, broken limbs and weak growth. Also, long, unsightly branches should be shortened or removed as they offer too much resistance to the wind and are frequently subject to storm damage.

Never stub back limbs or branches, advises Tanksley. Rather, cut back to a main branch or trunk so that there will be no stubs remaining. The so-called stubbing back or topping large branches will result in a proliferation of sucker growth and will leave a wound that is impossible to heal.

Recent research indicates that the use of tree wound paint on wounds is not essential, adds Tanksley. Woody plants have the ability to wall off the wounded area and will heal over just as effectively without the dressing. However, there is no harm in using a wound paint.

Tanksley suggests using a saw or chisel to smooth broken stubs and torn bark to promote healing.

While the homeowner can handle most pruning operations, it may be best to hire a professional arborist or tree surgeon if trees are large or need extensive work, adds Tanksley.

If the tree or shrub being pruned is diseased, it is important to dip pruning equipment in a disinfectant after each cut to kill disease organisms so as to prevent their spread to other portions of the tree or even to other trees. A 10 percent household bleach solution makes a satisfactory disinfectant, says Tanksley. This can be prepared by mixing one part bleach to nine parts of water.

Tax Credit Given To Energy Savers

Taxpayers who take certain steps to save energy in their homes can cut their income tax bills by up to $2,500 as a result of recent legislation.

The law, which is retroactive to April 20, 1977, provides for a tax credit of up to $300 for energy conservation materials installed in the home, with a separate credit of as much as $2,200 for taxpayers who install "renewable" energy source devices as solar or wind equipment.

The smaller credit is figured at 15 percent of the first $2,000 spent on such items as storm or thermal windows and doors, insulation, weatherstripping and caulking. Also qualifying are furnace replacement burners, flue opening modifications, electrical or mechanical ignition systems to replace gas pilot lights, and clock thermostats.

The "renewable" energy source credit is 30 percent of the first $2,000 plus 20 percent of the next $8,000 invested in qualifying solar, wind or geothermal equipment used to heat, cool or provide hot water for use in the home.

Both credits are available for items purchased and installed on a taxpayer's principal residence between April 20, 1977 and December 31, 1985. The "renewable" energy credit is available for both existing and newly constructed homes. Renters as well as homeowners are eligible for the credit.

Taxpayers need not itemize deductions to claim the residential energy tax credit. They do, however, have to file Form 1040 attaching IRS Form 5695, showing how the credit was computed. Form 5695, "Energy Credits," is available at IRS offices and many banks and post offices.

The credits for property installed after April 19, 1977, as well as the credits for property installed in 1978 must be claimed on the 1978 return. However, no credit is allowed on any return for any taxable year if the credit is less than $10. Any unused energy credits may be carried over to the extent the credit is more than the taxpayer's liability. The carryover extends through 1987.

Paul R. Dickson, Area Director at Lubbock's Marketing Services Office.

Growers sold mixed lots of mostly grades 42 and better, staples 30 - 33, mikes 35-49 around 52.15 cents per pound. New crop lots of mostly grades 43 and 53, staples 30 and 31, mikes 35 - 49 brought about 46.80 cents per pound, Dickson said.

Gins paid High Plains growers $115 to $130 per ton for cottonseed. USDA's High Plains Marketing Services Offices graded 68,000 samples this week, bringing this season's total to 1,810,000. This compares to 2,922,000 graded by February 2 last year.

Predominant High Plains grades this week were grade 41 at nine percent, grade 51 accounted for nine percent, grade 42 amounted to 39 percent and grade 52 was 24 percent. Thirty three percent was reduced one grade because of bark. Staple lengths were staple 31 at 32 percent, staple 32 - 40 percent and staple 33 - 12 percent, according to USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

Micronaire was mostly in the desirable 35-49 range at 62 percent of the total. Thirty seven percent was lower, and one percent was higher.

Breaking strength averaged 84,000 pounds per square inch.
