SELFISHNESS

An outstanding example of how a newspaper editor can let politics warp his reasoning power is contained in a couple of editorials in the Carlsbad Current-Argus of last week. On February 14, Editor Robinson says the opposition to the severance tax is motivated entirely by selfishness and to quote one paragraph he says: "The chief argument against the tax is that it isn't fair to assess Leas county's principal industry for the purpose of getting the entire state out of the red." and then he says in the face of an attitude like that the legislature would be justified in suspending the rules and enacting the severance tax right now. In other words wield a wicked political stick to show the boys from Eddy and Lea county a thing or two.

The following day Editor Bill comes out with another editorial saying that a Carlsbad delegation is going to Santa Fe to battle for justice for the potash industry and has the well wishes of every right thinking citizen. And further that it is not unreasonable to ask that the potash industry be given a chance to produce a little at a profit instead of a steady loss. Bill evidently fails to realize that all mineral interests in southeastern New Mexico are jeopardized and are in the same boat. The fact that the oil industry is not making a nominal profit under the present conditions is the only reason oil operators are opposing the severance tax. Is this condition any different from the potash industry?

Bill, however would act as a rubber stamp to find favor with the administration because he thinks Carlsbad isn't particularly interested in the oil industry. How about this for selfishness? If Robinson expresses the sentiment of Carlsbad, oil operators, making their home in Carlsbad should take cognizance of this fact and move to a community that is in sympathy with their interests.

DANGEROUS SITUATION

A large delegation of Chaves county taxpayers will go to Santa Fe next week to join other county organizations and the New Mexico Federation of Taxpayers' association in an effort to secure passage of a law which will distribute the burden of taxation in New Mexico.

Naturally no new system of taxation in this state will accomplish any purpose unless governmental expenditures are reduced to the minimum and unless the revenue derived from a sales tax is directly applied to a reduction of property taxes.

Beyond any question leaders in both the house and the senate are antagonistic to the sales tax proposal. One senator from Bernalillo county has gone so far as to advocate a denial of a hearing to New Mexico taxpayers.

Such an attitude is beyond understanding and Chaves county and eastern New Mexico taxpayers have taken the position that if the State of New Mexico belongs to J. W. Tackett, of Bernalillo county, now is the time to discover this fact.

Such announcements coming down from the seat of state government have made the taxpayers of New Mexico only more determined and more militant and nothing is going to be left undone to bring about a system of tax relief in the state.

If the relief is not granted there is but one alternative. Chaves county taxpayers—the 3,500 people in Chaves county who have been carrying the burden for 19,500 persons—will refuse longer to support the state or county government, and if this is treason the law makers of New Mexico may make the most of it.—Roswell Dispatch, Sunday.

INDIVIDUALS MUST HELP

The attempted assassination of President-Elect Roosevelt last week does not create any envy for the responsibilities Mr. Roosevelt will assume on March 4th. Mr. Roosevelt is a popular man now, much more popular than he will be after March 4th, when he is president and must decide on a number of momentous questions and decisions that are not so momentous to the general welfare including the distribution of federal jobs. There are lots of folks who supported Mr. Roosevelt under the impression that he made many promises. So far as carrying out these impressions, many of which are impractical, there must necessarily be some disappointments. Mr. Roosevelt is no miracle man, even though he has promised "a new deal." He must have the cooperation of every good citizen if the nation is to be brought out of the present crisis without a disastrous calamity. Further it is largely up to the individual as to what progress we shall make. There must be individual effort.

GOOD FIDDLERS

Figuratively speaking both the state and national legislatures have some good fiddlers who are doing a good job of fiddling while Rome is burning. The fiddling at the national capitol is supposed to be due to the lame ducks, but since both branches of the state legislature at Santa Fe are of the same mind politically, we wonder what kind of ducks inhabit the state capitol. Maybe they don't belong to the feathered tribe at all but to the burro family. Anyway about all the good done so far is to cause the citizens and tax payers to be disturbed and several expensive trips to Santa Fe in an effort to stop some damphool legislation.

Some guys would still have the town full of horses, horse flies and livery stables, if they had their way, so we are told. Now, if we had depended on these fellows for leadership, we would still be swinging clubs in some cave.

Formerly the girls entertained us by giving us good things to eat which they had cooked themselves, but now they invite us to take them out to some swell joint.

"Have you any old clothes?" the collector asked Tutt. He replied, "Goodness knows, I have nothing else but."

The young people are urged to keep up with the times, but it is more difficult for the times to keep up with them.

The Missing Heiress

By ISABELLE WAITT

JUDY was furious at herself for blushing; furious at the man beside her for catching her looking up at him. Yet she could not help it. Ever since that first, "Pardon me, is this seat engaged?" she felt his hypnotic gaze upon her. He, too, she saw from his ticket, was going to New York city. His luggage was high grade. Gold initials—were they J. S.?—adorned a black walrus case.

As the train stopped, Judy reached the aisle first. Two strangers accosted her at the foot of the steps. "Miss Herrick? We'd like a word with you." They took hold of her arms.

Startled, the girl jerked to free herself, but the men held on. "Who are you?" she demanded. "Let go my arms. You've got a nerve!" The two men held their ground. We've been detailed to take you home."

"Well, I never! I'm not this person you're looking for and I can prove it. Hey, George!" She had caught sight of the man who'd occupied the train seat with her. He was coming down the steps, carrying two large suitcases. "These men," she confronted him, "think I'm somebody named Angela Herrick. You can vouch for me. For goodness sake tell them I'm Judy Smith. There—my initials are on that overnight case he's carrying for me," she pointed out to the detectives. "You can see for yourselves."

"You can see for yourselves," acquiesced "George" gallantly. "I can speak for this young lady."

Puzzled, but reassured, the men breathed hasty apologies. This girl, they said, just fitted the description of an heiress, missing now several days, who had been reported en route from Boston to New York.

"Thank you—George," Judy smiled, when they were alone.

"You're welcome, Judy. Do you believe in wish fulfillment?"

"That's something to do with dreams, isn't it?"

"Um-h-m, so I've heard. Anyway, I was dreaming on the train I had met you and now I have."

"Well, you'd better wake up and help me get out of here before those private detectives come back. See them over by the gate? I'll wager they're still watching me."

He looked at her queerly. She was, then, the missing heiress. He'd read something about it in the paper.

"Suppose I stick around a bit, Miss—Miss Smith. We seem to have lots of things in common—initials and glances, for instance. How about a common lunch?"

"I think you're being horrid, but I'm starved and I would like to give those dumb sleuths the slip."

Downtown, in a restaurant noted for its excellent cuisine, Judy's eyes touched her companion's. This time he blushed. "I don't wish to seem impertinent, Miss Smith," he accented the name slightly. "It's your own affair if you want to be among the missing, but if I could be of service in any way—you—you can trust me," he blurted out.

"So you think I'm Angela, too?"

"I've seen your picture in the ro-togravure."

"I know. We do look alike. Well, I owe you some explanation, I suppose. I'm Miss Herrick's double. It's a terrible thing to be a millionaires. You're watched every minute. Poor Angela ran away to have a little peace. She's on her way home now. Gave me the wink when she walked past those detectives who detained me. You see, I stall off reporters and camera men, while she sails by incognito in a wig."

He was, she saw, looking at her with misgivings. "You're disappointed that you didn't rescue an heiress? I'm sorry."

"I'm tickled to death you aren't that Herrick girl. I was just wondering how many other travelers you call George."

"Why, George, I—"

"Because I won't have it! Do you hear? Suppose I hadn't been me, but some other fellow, why—here you'd been, having luncheon with some other George."

"Why, George—Say, what is your name, anyway?"

"It's George," George confessed. "George Jarvis Saunders. Only I dropped off my first name. Always hated it till I heard you say it. Say it again, will you?"

"All right, silly old—George. I never went out with a man before, really," she confessed. "But I have to have a little life of my own."

"Sure you do, Judy," Saunders stared at her in open admiration. "Suppose I run along now and show my samples. I'm in jewelry—got a big discount on engagement rings you know. Couldn't you meet me for dinner and begin that little life of your own—our own?"

"I'd love to," smiled Judy. "I don't have to double for Angela this evening, thank heaven!"

George paid the check. "I have a hunch," he said at parting, "that you won't be anybody's double very long because you'll be somebody's better half. Are you good at arithmetic? Well, figure that out for yourself." Then he left her, blushing furiously.

PICKED UP ON MAIN

The editor of the Tucumcari News wonders if strip poker won't be replaced by scrip poker.

Chas Rogers thinks the depression is over. He said the last cottontail rabbit he saw in his neighborhood, there were only two men after it.

A friend of ours said he'd rather watch the state legislature in session any time than to see the best zoo in the country.

A man came in the other day and said he wanted to swap his oil business off for a farm provided he did not have to take the farm.

Now we are sure the election is over, C. J. Dexter and G. U. McCrary walked four blocks together the other day.

"What's your name?" asked the teacher. "Bobby Jones," replied the little boy. "But I thought your mother's name was Johnson?" "It is, but she got married again and I didn't."

Fred Cole says chiropractors are fellows who get paid for doing what others get slapped for.

Mayor Clayton believes in cutting personal expenses as well as expenses of the city and when he registered at a Santa Fe hotel the other day and the clerk asked him if he wanted a room with a bath, he replied: "Heck, why should a feller want a bath in the winter time."

An editor received from a lady a little poem entitled "I wonder if You Miss Me?" After reading it the editor returned the poem to the lady with the following note: "Dear Madam: If he does, he ought never to be trusted with firearms again."

A couple of old Artesia boys who are rather glib, decided to find out something about the so-called lame ducks and whether or not you could catch them by sprinkling salt on their tails. Well anyway, they got a motor boat and a salt shaker and sallied forth on Lake McMillan. They scared up 2,000 or more of the wild critters without any luck. Well, the game warden he "heered" about about it and must have concluded that the boys had made a goose of themselves, maybe it was a couple of geese. The warden, who probably loses his job on March 4th decided the boys ought to pay off for salting the water in the lake or molesting the ducks. There was some psyrology involved in the charge and the boys never exactly understood just what molesting ducks meant, but rather than be jerked up to Santa Fe or some other federal seaport and

WOMAN LOST 20 POUNDS IN 4 WEEKS

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 years old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drug store—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—Money back.

The jury brought in 161 true bills and 75 no true bills; examined 272 witnesses, considered 225 matters or cases, involving 318 defendants.

Small matters, under instructions of the court, were disregarded. One case was not considered, because it was dismissed by order of the court. Another was not considered because the witnesses were unable to attend, by reason of deep snows in Rio Arriba county.

TAKES FIRST AID COURSE

Among the 91 engineering seniors and faculty members who received certificates last week upon the successful completion of the first aid course required of engineering graduates at the Oklahoma A. and M. College was Carlos C. Blount of Artesia, New Mexico.

The first aid course was given by J. B. Hynal, foreman of the United States Bureau of Mines at McAlester and district chief of rescue work. Pocket certificates and first aid manuals were issued to the members of the group who had completed the 10 clock hours of the first aid work.

"I decided to take Theodor's Black-Draught, as I had been having bilious spells," writes Mr. Chas. E. Stevens, of Columbus, Ind. "When I get bilious, I feel sleepy and tired and do not feel like doing my work. After I found how good Black-Draught is, that is what I have used. I guess it rids me of the bile, for I feel better—don't feel like I am dropping off to sleep every time I sit down. That, to me, is a very bad feeling. CUTTING DECLINES CABINET POSITION
WASHINGTON, D. C.—Senator Bronson Cutting, independent New Mexico republican, was represented by friends on capitol hill Saturday as having decided against accepting a Roosevelt cabinet offer in belief he would be of greater service in the senate.

One of the staunchest admirers and supporters of Mr. Roosevelt, for whom he spoke in the campaign, Cutting himself maintained an absolute silence as to whether he had been offered or had declined the portfolio of secretary of the interior.

It was generally understood in informed quarters, however, that the cabinet place was his for the taking but that he had declined, feeling he could do more for the administration, the nation and his state by continuing his senate service.

Here's the Champion Flying Baby

WIFE OF APACHE KID DIES AT MESCALERO

MESCALERO.—Mrs. Jacinto Ramirez, the woman who was the stolen bride of Zenogalache, "The Apache Kid" real terror of the southwest is dead.

Although the captive wife of an Indian outlaw she led as sheltered and protected a life as any modern housewife and died at her home at Mescalero.

Kept in chains for two years after her capture, the woman came to love "The Kid," was released from bondage, lived in this mountain lair for 12 years and bore five children.

One sunny fall day about 1892 Zenogalache swooped down upon Mrs. Ramirez, then a girl and her mother as they were picking pinon nuts near the Crosby camp, above Three Rivers, now the ranch of A. B. Fall, former secretary of the Interior.

Spurring his horse, the kid captured the girl and rode away with her into the mountains. Nothing more was heard from her and her family mourned her for dead.

During the next 12 years the Kid spread terror from Duncan, Ariz., to the San Andreas mountains and from Magdalena into Mexico.

About 1905 stockmen of the Magdalena country determined to halt his depredations. Two cowboys traced him to his mountain hideout, laid for him near his hobbled horse and at daylight shot and killed him as he came for the animal. He was buried where he fell.

Mrs. Ramirez later revealed that the kid had a premonition the day before he was killed that his career was about to be ended by a bullet. He took her to the top of a high hill, pointed the way to Mescalero and told her if anything happened to him she was to return to her people.

After the kid was killed Mrs. Ramirez took her five children and went to San Marcial, finally making her way back to her former home.

The kid was well known in the Mescalero region before he turned outlaw. His mother was killed in a battle with cowboys. Two of the cowboys, W. A. Paxton of Elk and W. H. Mauldin of La Luz, saw a squalling pupoose on the back of the dead woman, and rescued him. They intended to trade the Indian child for a white one that had been captured a short time before but the exchange did not materialize. As the Indian grew older he was sent to an eastern school and learned to speak English fluently. He ran away from school and when next heard from was with a band of marauding Indians of the southwest—the Apache Kid.

He was accused of many things. A railroad brakeman was shot from the top of a train. After the kid's death the brakeman's switch key was found tied about his neck. A miner was killed and part of his personal effects were found in possession of the kid.

Mrs. Ramirez remembered him as a dashing, swashbuckling outlaw who was always kind to her and a good father.

CORBETT DEAD

NEW YORK.—James J. Corbett "Gentleman Jim" of the prize ring and the stage, died at his home in Bayside Long Island Sunday.

Conqueror of John L. Sullivan, the toughest gladiator of his time, it was Jim Corbett whose spectacular personality did more than any other human act to make pugilism "respectable" in an age when the ring was scorned by society and outlawed by nearly every state in the union.

Corbett was 67 years old. His death, due to a glandular disorder which induced heart disease, was not unexpected, for he had been in critical condition since January 30th.

PRESIDENT SIGNS $43,000,000 INTERIOR BILL

President Hoover Saturday signed the $43,000,000 interior department appropriation bill, the second of the big supply measures to be enacted with the close of the session rapidly nearing.

The interior bill is broken down into scores of comparatively small items for specific projects and purposes.

Among them was one of $95,300 "for the suppression of the traffic in intoxicating liquors and deleterious drugs, including peyote amonib."

Many of the larger items were allotted to the bureau of reclamation. Some of them are:

$305,000 for the Rio Grande project in New Mexico and Texas together with the unexpected balance of the appropriation for construction during 1933; $1,577,000 for the Owyhee project, Oregon; $620,000 for the Yakima project in Washington; $8,000,000 for construction at Hoover dam and work on the Colorado river at Black Canyon.

$300 PER FARMER IS LIMIT ON SEED LOAN

WASHINGTON.—Secretary Hyde announced Friday that $300 will be the maximum loan to any farmer from the $90,000,000 fund set aside by congress for crop production financing.

In addition to reducing the maximum from $400 in 1932, Hyde issued regulations providing that farmers who are delinquent in repayment of two or more prior loans will be limited to $100 in order to conserve the fund from which nearly one million farmers are expected to seek assistance. The loan will be a first lien on the crop produced.

Congress authorized the secretary of agriculture to require acreage reduction up to 30 per cent as a loan condition, and Hyde said this will be enforced except in the case of minor producers and growers of perennials. Orchardists will not be required to cut down their trees or otherwise reduce their producing capacity to qualify for aid.

Hyde said the acreage reduction requirement will not apply to farmers who intend planting no more than 8 acres of cotton; 2½ acres of tobacco; 40 acres of wheat; 20 acres of corn; 2½ acres of truck crops; 12 acres of sugar beets; 30 acres of rice, or 8 acres of peanuts.

The aggregate loans for tenants of an individual land owner will be limited to $1,200, compared with $1,600 in 1932.

Borrowers will be required to agree to plant a garden for home use, and to grow a sufficient acreage of feed crops to supply their livestock. A total of $1,000,000 of the appropriation has been set aside for feed loans for livestock in drouth or storm-stricken areas.

HEALTH COLUMN

DIGESTION AND EXERCISE

Here is a question that has troubled the medical mind at least from the time of Hippocrates and probably long before that: Is it wise to exercise before or after a meal?

The most precious item in my library is a book published "about 1589" entitled "The Haven of Health." I believe it is the first college text book of personal hygiene to be printed in English. In it the author, Thomas Cogan, writes as follows:

"Wherefore I counsele all students not to exercise immediately after meate, for by that meane the meate is conveyed in to all the members before it bee concocted or boyled sufficiently. Yet to rise up after meate, and to stand upright for a while, or to walk softly a little is very holosome . . ."

Five years ago a series of experiments was carried out in England on normal young men who were made to exercise after test meals. The conclusion derived from these experiments was that mild exercise (walking) does not interfere with digestion but that more violent exercise (running) does delay digestion.

The most recent investigators have carried out their experiments in the University of Wisconsin. Their results, published last October in the American Journal of Physiology, again confirm the judgment of Thomas Cogan given in the sixteenth century. Mild exercise before or after meals may actually be beneficial, severe exercise either before or after meals is bad for digestion.

Certainly the Wisconsin scientists write in a language that would have been mysterious indeed to the doctor or to the students of sixteenth century Oxford. But what care they (or we) about the hydrogen ion concentration of the blood plasma? They believed it unwise to play football just after lunch and it seems that they were right.

Strange Trick of Mind That Has Puzzled Many

The condition that causes a person to feel that he has had exactly the same experience before when he knows that it is not possible is known as paramnesia. It is a common experience, and, briefly explained, the reaction depends upon a little trick of the mind manifested by a momentary loss of a sense of time and space. The individual enters an experience or a situation, obtains a fleeting impression of this situation, then the attention is momentarily attracted to something else. The period of time may be almost infinitesimal. Then upon the return of the attention to the original situation this lapse of time is lost to the individual and the period between the two experiences seems occasionally to expand into a long period, even into the remote past. Another explanation, which is based on more recent psychological investigations, holds that one's unconscious mind sees much more than the attentive conscious one, and that a situation, even to its details, may be taken in without paying direct conscious attention to it. Then a moment later when the faculties of the conscious mind are at work on the situation the experience seems to have been experienced before. Here, again, the lapse of time between the two impressions may be greatly overestimated and expanded.—Washington Star.

Funeral Made Occasion for Joyous Ceremonies

Veronica Kantor, a wealthy old peasant woman of Temerin, in the Backsa, had her "wedding" celebrated by scores of guests who attended her funeral, says the New York Times. As a young girl she vowed never to marry and kept it to the day of her death at the age of eighty-two years. In her will she ordered that she should not be buried with funeral services but with marriage rites.

Her instructions were carried out according to Serbian wedding customs. Her body was arrayed in a wedding dress and a crown of myrtle leaves. Horses decked out with white and silver ribbons drew the gayly decorated hearse to the cemetery, followed by scores of peasants in their rainbow-colored festival garments singing gay wedding songs of love and romance. All carried multicolored bouquets. After the burial the guests returned to the dead "bride's" former home, where music, dancing and feasting were kept up until a late hour.

Important Science

Demography is the science which deals with the statistics of health and disease, of the physical, intellectual, physiological and economical aspects of births, marriages and mortality. The first to employ the word was Achille Guillard (1855), but the meaning which he attached to it was merely that of the science which treats of the condition, general movement and progress of population in civilized countries, i. e., little more than vital statistics. The word has come to have a much wider meaning and may now be defined as that branch of statistics which deals with the life conditions of peoples.

COOKING SCHOOL

Wed., Thurs., Friday—March 8-9-10, at American Legion Hall

Three days of Kitcheneering are coming . . . three days in which the Safeway Stores Homemakers' Bureau will reveal a succession of modern cookery secrets. There'll be magic for your pots and pans, new ways to make familiar foods more tasteful and gay new frills for dinner time and party time.

Just as Julia Lee Wright, famed home economist of the Safeway Stores, sends you something new and exciting over the air each week, so this Course in Kitcheneering will bring you and show you three days of fascinating variety...the best that a year of testing in the Bureau's own modern kitchen has produced.

KITCHENEERING! The new . . . the modern . . . the scientific! Three days of recipes of the sort that will make you royalty in your own home. Don't miss a minute of them. Remember the time and the place.

It's the modern way to do things With the old things and the new things, It's a science and a pleasure And an art rolled up in one; So we call it Kitcheneering, And a happy course it's steering To your town, your home, your table And we hope you'll think it fun.

Friends of Mrs. Harold Scoggins will be interested to learn that she was recently elected president of the Elinor Truder unit of the Legion Auxiliary at Las Vegas. Stuart of Jal, Misses Modine Folkner and Geneva Gilliland of Artesia and the groom's mother, Mrs. J. F. Dew of Roswell.

Mrs. Dew had lived in the Artesia community for a number of years and enjoyed a wide acquaintance among the younger set. She was a senior in the Artesia high school. Mr. Dew is the son of The Rev. Dew, former pastor of the First Baptist church here.

They will make their home in Abilene, Texas, for which place they expect to leave the last of the week.

The theme of the play was stewardship. The annual election of officers was held and resulted in the re-election of all officers, who were: Mrs. Gail Hamilton, president; Mrs. J. H. Jackson, vice-president and Miss Emma Clark, secretary and treasurer. Lovely refreshments were served by the committee, Mmes. Wheatley, R. L. Paris and Ralph Shugart. ## ROTARY ANN MEETING

A very enjoyable social meeting was provided the Rotary Ann by the members of the Artesia Rotary club, Tuesday evening in the roof garden of the Artesia hotel. Robertson, who had not been out nights for the last twenty years.

The only guests of the Ann meeting were Mr. and Mrs. C. Bert Smith. Mr. Smith, first president of the Artesia club was not allowed to make a public speech. Included in a short but interesting program was a five minute talk by Dick Clowe on the functions of Rotary of interest to the new members and their Anns, a piano solo by Mrs. Florence Morgan, congregational singing, led by two noted revival singers, Earl Bigler and Hollis Watson. The plan of the campaign is to raise money by having the members donate to the convention any old and out-of-date gold and silver they may possess. This metal, when converted into cash, it is expected will yield a tidy sum for the church, for practically every family has old jewelry and other articles that it will gladly donate. The speakers at the rally were The Rev. Julian Atwood of Roswell, The Rev. Black of Loving, The Rev. Hatchell of Dexter, The Rev. Rowland and Fred Cole of Artesia.

One of the Bible citations is from 1 Tim. 2:5 and is as follows: "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus."

A correlative passage from the word was made flesh in the Christian Science textbook: "The word was made flesh." Divine truth must be known by its effects on the body as well as on the mind, before the science of being can be demonstrated. Hence its embodiment in the incarnate Jesus,—that life-link forming the connection through which the real reaches the unreal, soul rebukes sense and truth destroys error."

Our young brother, Ray Pate will fill the pulpit at the regular morning worship and will bring to us the message on the great subject of "Charity." The attendance last Sunday for Bible school had an increase over the previous Sunday. Sickness has been keeping several from attending our services, but considering the membership, the attendance is above the average. Every member of the church should take advantage of the opportunity and be present at every service when possible. Your presence will add very much to the advancement and growth of the church. Visitors are always welcome. Come out next Sunday and hear this young brother preach, you will enjoy the message and will encourage him with your presence.

Artesia Drubs The Dexter Five 42-13 In Rough Contest

Handicapped by lack of two or three first string players, the fast Dexter quintette took a drubbing here Tuesday night to the tune of 42-13. The Bulldogs were hot and would have won against the regular Dexter lineup, as the locals excelled in every department. If Artesia plays the same brand of ball during the district tournament, the squad must be reckoned with in the finals. Brown was the leading scorer for Artesia with nine field goals.

ROOSEVELT NAMES TWO IN CABINET

NEW YORK—Two tried and successful veterans in the fields of politics and business were announced Tuesday night by President-elect Roosevelt for his premier cabinet posts—Senator Hull of Tennessee, for secretary of state and William H. Woodin, of New York, for secretary of treasury.

The announcement came suddenly from the Roosevelt residence after the president-elect had spent a swift moving day in international affairs.

Impending developments in war debts and world economics impelled Mr. Roosevelt to make his announcement of these two counselors. They will go to work immediately with foreign envoys on the Roosevelt program to bring a revival of world trade and prosperity.

GOT MARRIAGE LICENSE ON INSTALLMENT PLAN

DICKENS, Texas—A wife in hand is worth twice as much as one in prospect!

A McAdoo, Texas man apparently thought so when he filed an intention-to-wed application at the county clerk's office. Upon completing the formality the clerk told him that the fee was $2 cash on the barrel head—or no license.

But the applicant requested a temporary moratorium.

"You see," he told the clerk, "we have never seen each other. I have written for my wife-to-be and she is due to arrive from Arkansas in a few days. I'd rather not pay for the license until I am sure we are to get married."

The situation was compromised on the basis of a dollar down and as much more payable when the license was delivered. A few days later the prospective bridegroom paid the last installment and got married.

CHANGE PROHI VOTING DATE

Speaker Alvan N. White of the house stated definitely that his constitutional bill would be amended by the judiciary committee, which has it, to provide for the election of delegates to be held September 19th, this year, instead of at the next general election.

"Inasmuch as congress has already passed the repeal resolution we might just as well have the question decided in New Mexico at the earlier date," said White. "An election is already slated to be held September 19th on the state repeal question, and there will be but little additional expense."

Odd—but TRUE

30,000 PEOPLE ARE ADDED TO INCOME TAX PAYING CLASS

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The phalanx of the nation's most well-to-do—the income tax payers—are marching by the government's coffers these days dumping in their dollars.

In the last fiscal year, ending June 30, 1932, they paid $1,057,000,000 compared with more than twice that amount in 1929. For the present fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, government estimates put receipts at $860,000,000.

Exemptions have been lowered this year to bolster the falling receipts. In 1932 single persons had an exemption of $1,500, and married persons, an exemption of $3,500. These have been reduced to $1,000 and $2,500 respectively. These rates probably will add two to three million persons to the total number filing returns, but may not materially raise the number paying taxes or the amount of the taxes since incomes both corporation and individual have declined considerably.

If you fall in any of the three following classes you must file a return, although exemptions and deductions may save you from paying a tax:

All single persons having a net income of $1,000 or more.

All married persons having a net income of $2,500 or more.

All persons and businesses having a gross income of $5,000 or more, regardless of net income.

Net income is income after deductions of expenses necessary for running a business, such as cost of goods, salaries paid out, office expenses and so on. Gross income is income before these expenses. Wage and salary receivers generally have no such expenses so that the salary or wage is net income.

A traveling man, however, who paid his own expenses and was not reimbursed for them by his company might deduct them from his salary to calculate his net income.

SALT PLANT CAUSES BOOM AT MONAHANS

Monahans, in the Texas & Pacific territory, about 200 miles southeast of Artesia, and just south of the corner of New Mexico, is turning over a 1933 prosperity page with the construction of a plant costing between $200,000 and $250,000, the drilling of 20 oil wells within a radius of 25 miles and the buildings of natural gas pipe lines.

The salt lake, 12 miles south of Monahans, is the locale of the big plant being erected by the Ozark Chemical company of Tulsa, Okla. The company first put in a pilot plant to make a test of the salt of the lake, which is reported to contain practically an inexhaustible supply. Now, materials and machinery are being hauled in for the plant proper which it is estimated will cost $200,000 or $250,000.

The salt, it is said, can be used in the manufacture of paper and glass.

The gas pipe line is being constructed from Monahans to Grand Falls, an inland town, 15 miles south of Monahans. The line will connect at Monahans with the pipe line from the Wicket field that has been supplying Pecos with natural gas for some time. The line is being built by the Southern Union Gas company of Dallas.

DAIRY RECORDS FOR FOUR N. M. COUNTIES

The first six months of the present year's dairy records on 75 herds in Roosevelt, Quay, Harding and Union counties show some interesting results on herd management, says E. E. Anderson of the New Mexico state College.

While six months is not a sufficient period from which to draw definite conclusions, it does indicate what the trend is. In this brief study feed fed, (pasture not included) was the only cost taken into consideration.

The ten highest producing herds had a production of almost three times as much butterfat per cow, a feed cost per cow nearly six times as great, and an income over feed per cow five times as much as did the ten lowest producing herds.

As an average, this study showed that the greater the production, the greater the income over feed cost. It also showed that on the average the more the cows were fed, the greater was the income over the cost of feed. However, in studying individual cases, it was found that some herds had apparently been fed beyond the point where the cows were capable of responding, thus greatly reducing their income. On the other hand, the study indicated that some herds would doubtless have made a greater income over feed cost had they been fed more liberally.

Those who provided cultivated pastures (sudan, rye, wheat, etc.) for their herds were awarded by an income over feed costs per cow of over one and a half times as much as did those who relied on native grass pastures.

This study indicates that there is little enough profit even under the best of conditions. In general, however, those who made the better returns were those who had good cows, fed them fairly liberally and, in addition, provided cultivated pastures.

ARE THESE HARD TIMES?

People who think they are having one heck of a time in this country might be slightly enlightened by reading an account in an exchange of a man who just returned from several years' sojourn in Europe where he had been engaged in business. This man left New Mexico eleven years ago, expecting to make merely a visit to his native land, Jugoslavia, and then return to America. Instead he became interested in a business venture and stayed this length of time, part of it caused by the fact that he could not get released from his own country under the immigration laws—was not free to return.

This man is reported to have stated that conditions in Europe are much worse than here. For example, the prevailing wage rate is 15 cents per day, and prices of commodities are by no means in proportion to the wages paid. A man must work ten days, he said, for enough to buy himself a pair of cheap shoes. He states that laborers could buy but one meal at a restaurant for a day's wage. Miners, however, were better paid receiving the munificent sum of 25 cents per day. He added that half the people of that country would come to America if they could, but that they are far too poor to make the move.—Magdalena News.

SAFWAY COOKING SCHOOL TO START ON MARCH THE 8TH

While local housewives are looking forward with excited anticipation to the Safeway Stores Homemakers' Bureau cooking school which will be held here for three days commencing Wednesday, March 8, in American Legion hut, not all of them have a full understanding of the scope of the organization which is sponsoring it.

These women who have, in the past, availed themselves of the many services which the bureau renders are keenly aware of its value to the thousands of housewives who call upon it for assistance and advice, but even these women do not, perhaps, comprehend either its size or its scope.

Now in its third year of operation, the Safeway Stores Homemakers' Bureau is not a one-woman organization, nor is it operated by four or five persons. As a matter of fact, it employs 20 women at its headquarters in Oakland, California, and many more serve the Bureau in various capacities in different sections of the United States.

Founded nearly three years ago by Julia Lee Wright, who is serving as national director, the bureau at the outset confined its operations to one small office. So swiftly, however, has it gained the confidence and the enthusiastic acceptance of western housewives that it now finds even its present four commodious departments cramped quarters at times.

The homemaking public has been made conscious of the bureau through two principal informatory channels, newspapers and radio broadcasts, and the cooking schools which the bureau conducts throughout the western states have also done much to familiarize women with the services available to them without charge. Last year, approximately 160,000 western women in 112 cities attended these schools, and this year's total is expected to exceed that figure by many thousands.

How carefully Mrs. Wright has built up the organization which she heads is shown by the fact that not one of the home economists of the bureau lacks either university training in household science or practical experience in the commercial field of home economics. Mrs. Wright is herself a graduate of the University of Washington and has been in charge of the home economics department of a newspaper of national prominence as well as serving a number of leading manufacturers of food products. Her weekly broadcasts are heard over 19 leading western stations and her audience is reckoned to the millions.

Western women have found the Safeway Stores Homemakers' bureau a veritable mine of information on recipes, entertainment ideas, table settings, meal planning and dietetics. Since its inception less than three years ago, the bureau has sent prompt replies to more than 50,000 letters of inquiry on these and other subjects pertaining to home economics, and thousands of homemakers in the west look upon the bureau as being vitally important in the routine of their domestic duties.

In selecting the personnel under her, Mrs. Wright stresses the importance of a youthful outlook and of youthful enthusiasm.

"So long as they are amply equipped with training and experience," she says, "I favor the employment of young women for the various duties of our staff."

The result has been that while every home economist in the bureau is a veteran in knowledge and its practical application, they are, in a large measure, women who have brought to their tasks the enthusiasm and curiosity of youth. Housewives throughout the west have found that they have benefited by this policy through the untiring research work in food preparation which these highly skilled home economists have performed and are performing every day in the year.

This refreshing attitude toward accomplishment, Mrs. Wright states, is reflected typically in the bureau's novel cookbook, "Recipes you'll Enjoy," which has recently been published and the sale of which has already mounted into the thousands. It contains the same sort of zestful recipes which will be demonstrated in the course in "kitcheneering," which the forth-coming cooking school has been termed by Mrs. Wright, and for which hundreds of local housewives are already sharpening their pencils and their enthusiasm.

HOUSE PASSES THE REPEAL MEASURE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The 13-year-old constitutional amendment for national prohibition went back to the states for a new decision Monday, on a 289 to 121 vote in the house of representatives.

Duplicating the senate action of last week, when it favored submission of a repeal amendment to state conventions by a 63 to 23 vote, the house acted before being in session an hour and a half, cheered on by part of the galleries and in the face of ominous silence on the part of others there. The latter represented many of the prohibition organizations, which served notice at once through the anti-saloon league that the issue would be "fought to a finish in state capitals."

The vote was fifteen more than two-thirds required.

Immediately, Chairman Sumners of the judiciary committee and others moved for a federal law setting up the machinery for state conventions. A hard road was in front for this effort, however, as Mr. Garner and others on both sides of the capitol have expressed the view that calling of the conventions is a state function.

Thirty-two democrats and 89 republicans voted against the resolution; 179 democrats and the farm-labor member and 109 republicans voted for it.

On December 5 the house voted down the Garner proposition, 272 to 144, six short of the two-thirds majority necessary.

Technocracy VERSUS Swapping

The gentlemen of the Technocracy group have given a new twist to the old adage about money being the root of all evil. The Technocrats would abolish money altogether, because it does not represent a constant value. They would measure purchases in terms of "energy units" such as the erg and the joule.

Most people agree that the worst thing about money is not having it. And today no one has very much of it. But don't hold your breath until the Technocrats solve all problems. If you're short of money try swapping for what you want. Swapping was an old practice long before the first Technocrat set foot upon American shores. Swapping will get you what you need even though you don't have money.

A swap ad in the Advocate want ad columns will put you in touch with others who have what you need and want what you have to trade. Anything from dental service to an overcoat can be obtained this way without money. Technocracy may solve the problems of the future, but swapping will solve your problems right now!

Mrs. Renwick and her husband were ardent golf enthusiasts; they spent all their spare time at the club, and all their time at home talking about what they did at the club. ### To Promote Discoveries

The Royal Geographical society of England was founded in 1830. The object is to collect, register, digest and print in a cheap and convenient form such useful and interesting facts and discoveries as the society might from time to time acquire. It has always welcomed to its fellowship those anxious to further this object by their interest and support as well as those able to take more active part in the work of discovery and exploration. Candidates for admittance into the society must be proposed and seconded by the fellows.

Salt's Effect on Stone

Solid stone is apt to play strange tricks. Extremely rapid decay occurred in the stonework of a war memorial. No one knew why until it was discovered that the memorial had been erected by a local mason, who conceived the idea of lowering a particularly heavy stone into position by supporting it on blocks of salt which were then gradually dissolved with water. The resulting decay was serious enough to cause the memorial to be dismantled within a year or two, and certain of the blocks replaced with new stone.

Pitfalls for Criminals

In a recent case where a safe had been rifled two men were suspected, but no evidence sufficient to convict them could be found until the dust on the sleeves of their coats was examined under the microscope. The examination showed that this dust was tiny particles of the fire-proof cement used for the packing of the safe. A man's occupation can be discovered by the minute particles of dust taken from his ears. Flour shows the baker, minute particles of wood the carpenter, and tiny threads the weaver.

Lavish Hospitality in California in Forties

California hospitality of the forties is quaintly and accurately described by Rev. Walter Colton, who was alcalde of Monterey in the early forties, says an article in the Los Angeles Times.

"I have never seen a community to rival this in its spirit of hospitality and generous regard," he writes. "Such is the welcome to the privileges of the private hearth that a public hotel has never existed in California. You are not expected to wait for a particular invitation but to come without the slightest ceremony, make yourself entirely at home and tarry as long as suits your inclination. You excite no flutter in the family, awaken no apologies and are greeted every morning with the same bright smile. If a stranger you are not expected to bring a formal letter of introduction. No one thinks any the better of a man, who carries the credentials of his character and standing in his pocket. If you turn out to be different from what your first impression and fair speech promised, still you are met with no frowning looks, no impatience for your departure. You still enjoy in full that charity which is long suffering and kind. Generous, forbearing people of California! there is more true hospitality in one throb of your heart than circulates in years through the courts and capitals of kings."

Increased Stature of Americans in Prospect?

Physiologists tell us that the conditions of American life, with its traditions of youthful exercise and abundant nutrition, tend to increase the average height of our people and they also point out that tall people, who have plenty of room for the development and expansion of their organs, are the healthiest. If this circle, beneficent rather than vicious, were followed to its logical conclusion it would seem that the possibilities for linear growth are practically limitless. Perhaps the time will come when the six-footer will only be Jeff to the national Mutt. As for the matter of regional size, in the Civil war the tallest fighters came from New England and Kentucky. "Long John" Wentworth, Chicago's famous seven-foot mayor, was a New Hampshire man, and Lincoln still stands as prototypical of Kentucky ranginess. Mark Twain once remarked that westerners probably never achieved an extreme average height because of the weight of weapons they insisted on wearing around their waists.—New York Herald Tribune.

EDDY COUNTY G. P. A. WANT CHANGES IN STATE GAME LAWS

At the special meeting of the Eddy County Game Protective Association, Saturday night, two specific immediate objectives were decided upon:

An amendment of the state regulations, which will declare the Pecos river and its tributaries, from the Dayton bridge south to the state line, open to fishermen the entire year round, except during the month of May, the spawning period at some points. By instruction of the assembly President Roy V. Carey later in the evening took up the matter with Ross L. Malone, Sr., by telephone, and was assured of the hearty support of that gentleman who succeeded Judge McGhee on the state commission recently.

An amendment to the federal game laws in the migratory bird division, under which the state would be zoned in conformity with climatic conditions, and by which the open season in Eddy county would be from December 16 to January 15, instead of from November 15 to December 15 as now.

This is purely a federal matter and will require the approval and request of the State G. P. A. and the game commission, both of which forces have for some time recognized the necessity of a change in the present laws as the ducks and geese do not normally begin their flights down the Pecos until the middle of December.—Carlsbad Current-Argus.
