

STATE BOARD RECOMMENDS TO WRITE OFF OLD BANK BALANCES

SANTA FE—The State Board of Finance Friday afternoon adopted a resolution recommending the state legislature make provisions to permit the state treasurer and treasurers of various political sub-divisions of the state to charge off, with the approval of the Board of Finance, balances in banks which have been closed more than 10 years.

State Treasurer Clinton P. Anderson informed the board the state treasurer's office had been carrying on its books approximately $110,000 which was tied up in banks closed since 1922 and that some provision should be made to charge off these accounts. He said various counties, municipalities and school districts of the state were in the same situation.

The resolution recommending suitable action by the legislature followed.

The board also recommended the attorney general take such action as necessary against all counties and other political sub-divisions indebted to the state comptroller for audits so as to reduce the accounts to judgment and compel counties to make a levy to pay the amounts due, which the board was informed, total approximately $5,000.

The board approved a motion restoring the full appropriation for the first six months of the fiscal year to the Spanish American Normal School at El Rio for that period, eliminating the 10 per cent cut imposed by the board, will give the school approximately $1,800 and enable it to meet certain emergencies, the board explained.

Purchase of a light truck and a passenger automobile for the State Game and Fish Department was also approved.

To Preserve Surveying University Lands In West Texas Is Now Underway

The story of the two million acres of land that the University of Texas owns in west Texas and the first complete survey that has been made of the lands set aside by the state's pioneers for the benefit of the University and its branches, is now under way.

While oil royalties and leases have brought millions to the state school and its branches, Texas A. & M. College, the Medical School at Galveston, and College of Mines at El Paso, it is the grass leases that have furnished the steady income, though not the largest, since the two one million acre allotments were made.

The contract of Frank Friend, San Angelo surveyor, to go over the the University land, permanently mark each section on the ground and prepare the first book index to and description of the property, dates back to June, 1929.

The appropriation for the survey started out at $28,000 a year but has been reduced now to about $23,000—in connection with which the salary of Mr. Friend was reduced from $6,000 to $4,000 despite his contract—and will be cut to just a fraction of that amount as soon as the actual surveying is finished next year.

The University lands in west Texas counties are divided as follows (county and area of university land in square miles or sections):

Andrews, 462; Crane, 91; Crockett, 556; Culberson, 72; Dawson, 1-4; Ector, 9; El Paso, 18; Gaines, 4; Hudspeth, 760; Irion, 33; Loving, 41; Martin, 24; Pecos, 270; Reagan, 349; Schleicher, 97; Terrell, 96; Upton, 123; Ward, 28; and Winkler, 77.

The surveying job has often been troublesome, but always interesting. Finding the markers or "footprints" left by the old surveyors is a big job. These surveyors were R. M. Thompson of Austin, who surveyed the constitutional million acres along about 1880, Dennis Corwin, now dead, who surveyed the second million five years later, O. W. Williams of Fort Stockton, who surveyed the "horse trade" lands in El Paso and Hudspeth counties, and B. P. Eubanks, who, on a subtle job, went over the El Paso lands in 1886.

One time the surveying crew searched for a week before finding a rock mound needed to go on with the survey. Again they dug for a stump designated in the field notes as a marker. On another occasion, Friend chartered an airplane at McCamey to locate the long-abandoned Emigrant Trail between Castle Gap and the Horsehead Crossing on the Pecos river. From the air the trail of the pioneers was easily seen and the surveyors' findings were verified.

Bills Entertained By Local Chapter of P. E. O. New Year Eve

Members of the P. E. O., Chapter J, ushered out the closing hours of 1934 with a party for the BILS Monday evening, starting with a three-course dinner at the Artesia hotel roof garden. Two baby BILS, W. Leslie Martin and R. G. Knoedler, were special guests on this occasion and were provided with bibs to keep their clothes clean.

The entertainment in charge of a committee composed of Meses. R. A. Shugart and W. C. Martin included a scavenger hunt, started after the dinner was served and ending at the Rex Wheatley home. The assembly was divided into six groups and each group was given seven clues to search for in the hunt which took the searchers to seven different localities over town. The event was speedily ended and the searchers although hunting for the same items brought in the entire party wardrobe of S. W. Gilbert, consisting of six pairs of gray pants, six pipes of Mark Corbin, an assortment of buttons from the shirts of V. L. Gates, several caps including a dunce cap belonging to Dr. Russell, and the bold hunters even brought a baby member's nanny; they got R. G. Knoedler's goat for probably the first time.

Between turns of tending the wants of the baby members the party members engaged in several contests which included a descriptive contest, uncovering an unknown quantity of latent literary ability and a nursery rhyme contest, which was forfeited to the group headed by Supt. W. E. Kerr.

Among those enjoying the party were: Meses. and Meses. S. W. Gilbert, R. A. Shugart, G. R. Brainard, W. C. Martin, Rex Wheatley, V. L. Gates, M. A. Corbin, R. G. Knoedler, W. Leslie Martin, W. E. Kerr, R. L. Paris, Fred Cole, Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Stroup, Dr. and Mrs. Chester Russell, and four visitors: Mrs. Alethea Phillips of Roswell, Miss Dora Russell of Clovis, Miss Helen Sage of San Diego, California, and C. E. Mann of Gallup.

Miss Mary Jane was beautifully gowned in a Rose Elizabeth crepe, trimmed in cut steel beads. Miss Margaret wore a long black velvet dinner gown. Mr. Irving Cox sang softly throughout the calling hours, he was accompanied at the piano by Miss Iva Ruth Glasscock.

The tea table was lovely with an exquisite lace cloth, a bouquet of yellow roses in a cut glass bowl was reflected in an old-fashioned mirror, making a beautiful centerpiece, white, lighted tapers in triple candelabras cast a soft glow over the table. The handsome silver tea service which has been in the Williams family for the past four generations was presided over by Mrs. Robert Cole at the first hour and by Mrs. Nora Johnson at the last hour.

Miss Frances Johnson, Mrs. Laura Gordon and Miss Marjorie Johnson, each attractively gowned in after-dinner frocks, served a cup of tea, dainty individual white cakes, decorated with pink rose buds, and pink mints. These New Lamps Will Mean a Lot To Eyes That Are No Longer Young . .

Watch the oldest members of your family group. Do they sometimes put aside reading or sewing, as if the effort involved were too great? Often it is! As birthdays mount, the pupil of the eyes become smaller. No matter how skillfully corrected with glasses. Old eyes need more light than young ones do. More light than they get in 99 homes out of a hundred.

Here are three simple rules to follow if you want eye comfort in your home for both young and old.

1.—Provide plenty of the new Better Sight reading lamps, each equipped with at least one 100-watt or two 60's or three 40's, according to the number of sockets.

2.—See that walls and ceilings are light in color. A fresh coat of light-colored paint or paper will work wonders.

3.—Have the eyes of your family examined regularly by a competent specialist.

Southwestern PUBLIC SERVICE Company

W. A. Wunsch Submits Summary Of Annual Report Covering The Extension Work In The County

Period From November 1, 1933 to November 1, 1934 Is Covered and Includes Seven Major Projects.

The annual report of W. A. Wunsch, Eddy county extension agent, covering the period from November 1, 1933, to November 1, 1934, shows much work in agriculture and home betterment being done in Eddy county. It covers fourteen projects and thirty-seven sub-projects dealing in agriculture and home betterment. Seven major projects were selected at the beginning of the year and outlined in detail for special work. These included cereals, cotton, home gardening, poultry, agricultural engineering, foods, and farm management. Due to the inauguration of the Agricultural Adjustment program early in January and the drought relief work in June, the work on all projects was changed as the AAA and drought relief work were given first attention.

In order to effectively handle all extension work, the Eddy county extension and AAA committee was organized. This committee consisted of twenty-eight farmers and livestock men. The Eddy county extension council was organized which consisted of twelve women in the county. Agricultural work was done in fourteen communities and home management work in six communities of the county. There were forty-four volunteer leaders consisting of twenty-eight men and sixteen women aiding in county extension work. These leaders spent 286 days in aiding extension work. Their work consisted of holding meetings, assisting tourists, and furnishing their neighbors with information on various subjects. There are seven clubs or groups which carry on extension work with a membership of 180. These groups meet at stated intervals and study various problems in agriculture and home work.

There are twenty-one paid local leaders engaged in the AAA drought relief work. Work was done by this group, totaling approximately 2,000 days by all the leaders together. In the cotton work a total of 500 farmers were contacted at least twice during the year and under the livestock program 289 ranchmen were contacted from one to six times during the year.

4-H Club work consisted of work in livestock feeding for boys and food and clothing for girls. Two boys completed their livestock work and there were twenty girls enrolled in food and clothing, eighteen of which completed their work. Two demonstration teams were trained by the agent in cooking demonstration work.

Work conducted in various projects during the year was represented by a total of 1,500 farm and home visits made by the agent to 578 farms or homes. 3,051 telephone calls were received or made and 7,209 office calls were received. 617 news articles were written and published and 1,967 individual letters were written. Sixty-three different circular letters were prepared and 6,512 copies were sent out. 682 bulletins were distributed and 303 meetings were held which were attended by 4,157 people. Three tours were conducted, having a total attendance of 121.

There are 1,054 farms or ranches listed in the county, and extension and agricultural work was done with 754 farms. 131 homes reported changes in practice under home management. There were 865 farm families influenced by one phase of extension work. The extension agent devoted a total of 293 days, 160 of which were spent in the field. Twelve days were devoted to relief work and seventy days devoted to AAA work. In addition to work done by the extension agent, W. E. Flint, assistant in cotton, devoted 110 days to work under the Bankhead act pertaining to cotton.

Under the Agricultural Adjustment program there was a total of 478 contracts signed, 443 dealing with cotton and 35 with the hog program. A total of $302,249.80 was received in cotton reduction payments. The cotton acreage of the county was reduced 13,785 acres, or an average of 37 per cent of the acreage in the county. Corn cooperators received a total of $1,755.75, and hog cooperators received $7,975.00. Under the drought relief program, which started on June 1 and on sheep and goats in September, there were 921 dairy cattle purchased at a total price of $10,740.00, 511 head of which were condemned and 410 accepted. A total of 18,254 beef cattle were purchased for $290,260.00, 3,560 condemned and 14,694 shipped. 14,044 sheep were purchased at $28,088.00, 6,935 of which were condemned and 7,109 accepted. $1,162.00 was paid for 830 goats, 521 of which were condemned and 303 shipped.

Work on cereals and legumes dealt with problems in the preparation of the soil, assistance in securing good pure seed, recommendations on irrigation, and time of harvesting. Economic information on readjustment of various crop acreages was given to 611 farmers. Projects under fruits, vegetables, and home beautification covered the work on recommendations in regard to varieties and time of planting, particularly stressing fertilizing and insect control. A total of 123 farms or homes followed recommendations made by the extension horticulturist and the extension agent on fertilizer and insect control. A marketing organization was formed consisting of thirteen members, which dealt mainly with cantaloupes. Thirty-two homes established lawns following recommendations made. Special meetings, at which demonstrations on the beautification of home grounds were discussed by the extension horticulturist, were held in Carlsbad and Loving. 250 pecan scions were ordered and specific grafting recommendations were followed by six people. These scions made exceptionally good growth, many growing as much as five feet during the year. Scions placed on trees in 1933 bore nuts this season.

Recommended practices improving poultry flocks by the purchasing of high quality baby chicks, and the blood testing of breeding flocks, were followed by thirty-two people. The production of flocks increased by eliminating the non-layers by systematic culling, by improving sanitation through systematic disease and parasite control, and by eliminating worms through the treatment of individual fowls. Forty-seven producers followed recommendations made by the extension agent. Work in livestock dealt with problems in culling and range management. Ranchmen were given a special opportunity to cull their herds and flocks through the government buying program. 286 ranchmen followed these practices. Recommendations were made in regard to insect control, particularly among lambs, and 13,400 animals were treated. The vaccination of sheep and cattle against hemorrhagic septicemia was recommended to twelve ranchmen, and 8,000 head were vaccinated.

Work under agricultural economics dealt with problems of summarizing and interpreting farm accounts, in making recommendations, and in assisting farmers in securing credit. 392 farmers followed recommendations made in their business operations. The organization of the county council, which is composed of representatives from various communities, has done much to increase interest in the work connected with the home. Definite programs have been planned for the women in six communities in the county. These programs have been closely followed by 180 women. New members were secured in the various communities and better programs planned for the coming year. The extension service in the county has taken a vital part in such community activities as locating relief, rural rehabilitation, and general educational work. The agent is a member of the various welfare and planning committees, and has taken a vital part in programs planned for the various organizations.

Eddy Health News

One might think, logically, that there is an almost constant rate of heart disease, since the human body does not change from generation to generation and probably is the same today as it was ten thousand years ago.

However, vital statistics do not bear out this logic in fact. According to statistics given in "Pennsylvania's Health," a quarter century ago 9 per cent of the total mortality in that state was attributable to heart disease, while today 22 per cent is referable to this cause.

Twenty years ago heart disease occupied third place in the causes of death, with tuberculosis and pneumonia in first and second places. Since 1920, heart disease has been the leading cause of mortality. This tremendous mortality is the concern of the medical profession and public health officials, but it should become an individual matter in which every person must inquire into his own personal affairs and his own way of living.

It is thought that much heart disease is aggravated, if not dire-pressure life. It has been demonstrated that persons with good hearts can sustain irreparable damage through over-exertion in games and sports; the man with a heart condition is certainly not the one to go in for athletics. Too fast a pace in business life is another killing procedure, and it is usually the tired business man who is the golf addict; it is the combination that sometimes proves too strenuous.

Some persons who know they have serious heart trouble prolong their lives through their own and their doctor's care.

In a second group are those who have symptoms of heart disease and do nothing about it. They continue to demand as much of their bodies as they did when they were young.

The third group is made up of the thousands who are strong and do not have any symptoms of heart trouble; yet they are the one on whom this disease will feed in the future if they live improperly. Contributing to this premature wearing out of the heart are too great use of stimulants; too much work and worry; hard, strenuous play, and lack of rest and sleep.

Up to December 1, there had been seventeen deaths reported in Eddy county from heart diseases or complications for the year 1934.
