

1936 Master De Luxe and Standard Chevrolets are Replete with New Features

New Master De Luxe and Standard Chevrolets for 1936 show marked advances in appearance and in engineering. Perfected hydraulic brakes, high-compression engines with full-length water jackets, and balanced carburetion are among the mechanical improvements. The solid steel Turret Top Fisher body is now used on the Standard as well as the Master De Luxe models. Either Knee-Action or conventional springing may be had in the Master models. The illustrations show: Top left, the Master De Luxe sport sedan, with built-in trunk; top right, the re-styled, deeply moulded radiator grille, used on all models; lower left, the simple arrangement of Chevrolet's perfected hydraulic brakes, all models; and, lower right, a Standard sedan.

Chevrolet Plants All Are Reopened

The Chevrolet Motor Company, preparing for the introduction of its 1936 models on November 2, has reopened all its manufacturing plants and its ten assembly plants, and will have built more than 65,000 units by the end of October. Schedules for November and December call for a greatly increased production. The introductory day for the 1936 Master de Luxe and Standard models, Chevrolet officials say, will find every one of the company's 10,000 dealers stocked with display cars and in a position to take orders for immediate deliveries. It is expected that sales in November and December, months that heretofore have been dull, will be brisk, under the impetus of the new model announcement, and the large automobile shows, formerly held after January 1. The former show dates were not conducive to large selling, coming as they did in the coldest months of the year. This year's shows open with two whole months of pleasant weather remaining, and it is the industry's belief that many motorists will buy new models at once. Employment is increasing rapidly in Chevrolet plants, as the supply of units and bodies for the new models increases daily. The change over from 1935 models to 1936 models was completed early in October, after a brief shut-down during which plants were re-aligned for increased production. According to W. E. Holler, vice-president and general sales manager, Chevrolet dealers will have the advantage of an ample supply of the new models from the very start of the new selling year. "There will be no shortage of models this year," said Mr. Holler. "We have not only got under full sway long in advance of the auto shows, but we have, in addition, the advantage of a twenty-five per cent increase in our production capacity, both in assembly plants and in our factories making engines, transmissions, axles, and other units. May Add 2 New Grazing Districts

Organization of two new grazing districts in New Mexico, in addition to the four already established under the Taylor grazing act, is scheduled for consideration at Gallup Monday by a committee appointed by New Mexico stockmen at the Taylor act hearing in Albuquerque last January. The proposed districts would be called District No. 1, covering 302,000 acres of public domain land in the Rio Grande valley between the Carson and Santa Fe National Forests, and District No. 2, comprising about 1,759,300 acres of public domain west of the Rio Grande and north of Sierra county. The latter would be one of the largest grazing districts in New Mexico from the standpoint of area. Calling Cards 100 for $1.75, on best grade paneled or plain stock. —The Advocate

Go Down Before Heavier Roswell Line By Score Of 35 to 0.

Fighting all the way, the lighter Artesia grid squad went down to a 35 to 0 defeat Friday before the repeated charges of the heavy Roswell line. The local team managed to hold the visitors scoreless in the first quarter. Roswell scored twice in the second quarter, using deceptive spinners and reverses and made the extra points. The half ended with Roswell leading 14 to 0. In the third quarter Roswell scored another touchdown using reverses, spinners and end runs, and two more touchdowns in the final quarter, making the point each time. The local squad made their biggest threat to score in the third quarter when they recovered a fumble and completed a pass on Roswell's twenty-yard line, but were stopped on the Roswell ten-yard line as they lacked inches of carrying the ball over on the fourth down. The performance of Haynes and Johnson was outstanding for Artesia, while good offensive playing was done by Holloman for the visitors. ### World's Champion Horse Shoe Pitcher To Give An Exhibition Here Tuesday

Those interested in horse shoe pitching will have a splendid opportunity to improve their knowledge of the game Tuesday evening when the champion of the world, Ted Allen, will give an exhibition at the Central auditorium. Mr. Allen has been world's champion since 1933 and has just closed an extended exhibition in Madison Square Garden in New York and is now on his way to the coast to defend his championship. His stunts here will include knocking a cigar out of a man's mouth, throwing ringers through human loops, knocking a sock off a man's head and at the same time ringing a stake at 40 feet, and many other like tricks.

Needy Youth Should Register For Benefits Of NYA At Once

Tom L. Popejoy, assistant director for the National Youth Administration for New Mexico, announced recently that single youth, sixteen to twenty-five, from families on relief or employed on WPA projects, should register at once with the United States Employment Service in the district in which they now live. Plans of the NYA include placing unemployed youth from these families on WPA projects, after heads of families have been cared for. These young people are to be employed in addition to the adult labor for one-third of the security hours and at one-third of the security wage. Selection of the individuals will be made after consultation with local relief and welfare workers, and the youth should come from large families. It is intended that the earnings of these young people should go to supplement the income of the primary wage earner of those families particularly in need of aid.

First Aid Treatment Taught Thousands By Red Cross

More than 187,000 certificates showing completion of first aid courses were issued last year by the Red Cross. This shows a gain of 55,000 certificates over the previous year. Approximately 64,200 boys in C.C.C. camps throughout the country passed first aid tests. Since the Red Cross first entered the field of first aid teaching, being one of the first organizations in the world to do so, almost one million persons have been trained in handling emergency treatment.

The annual report of the Red Cross further reveals that more than 327,000 copies of the Red Cross First Aid Handbook have been sold at home and abroad. Junior Red Cross members increased by 402,000 enrollments during the year which has just passed. Junior members carried on an exchange of correspondence with junior members in 62 other countries having Red Cross Societies.

Last year 3,837,941 persons became members of the Red Cross. The annual roll call takes place each year between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day.

Plans Made For Xmas Seal Sale

The New Mexico Tuberculosis association, in the state office, located at Santa Fe, is actively engaged in organizing local committees in communities throughout the state in preparation for the twenty-ninth annual Tuberculosis Christmas Seal sale, which begins on November 29th, 1935.

This campaign follows immediately after the close of the American Red Cross roll call, the two organizations having an agreement not to conduct their drives for funds at the same time.

Ninety-five per cent of all funds collected through the sale of Christmas seals, is used in health education and preventive work in New Mexico. Five per cent goes to the National Tuberculosis association, to pay for research and health education activities, and administration. Sixty per cent of the state funds is retained in the community in which it is collected for health work there, while thirty-five per cent is used by the state office in the purchase of health literature for free distribution to schools, health agencies, and for such general health and research projects as the recent health survey, conducted under the direction of the state association, and also for the administration of the state office.

Last year only $3,961.30 was raised throughout the whole state, which indicates an average contribution of nine-tenths of a cent per capita.

852 Acres of 1935 Cotton Certified

A total of 852 acres of 1935 cotton has been certified by the New Mexico Crop Improvement Association, according to T. M. Reid, of the New Mexico State College.

Of this acreage, 695 acres are what is known as College Acala cotton, while the remaining 157 acres are of the Pardue Acala variety.

Listings of acreages by counties is as follows:

Chaves county, 347 acres of College Acala cotton, grown in the districts of Roswell, Dexter, and Hagerman; Dona Ana county, 273 acres of College Acala cotton and thirty-seven acres of Pardue Acala cotton, grown in the districts of Chamberino, Picacho, San Isidro, and Hatch; Eddy county, fifty-six acres of College Acala cotton and 120 acres of Pardue Acala cotton, grown in the districts of Carlsbad and Loving; Otero county, nineteen acres of College Acala cotton, grown in the district of Tularosa.

There was a noticeable increase in the total number of applications for cotton certification inspection in 1935 over that of 1934. Many of the county branches of the New Mexico Crop Improvement Association are taking a greater interest in the certification of different crops. Consequently, many new members are affiliating and the requests for inspections are increasingly yearly.

New Mexico Cotton Grade Improves

Cotton classed during the week ending October 24 showed some significant changes in grade and staple from that classed during the previous week. The proportion classed as strict middling and above was only slightly less than during the week ending October 17, but the proportion classed as good middling was considerably less in all states with the exception of New Mexico.

The proportion classed as 1-1/8 inches and longer was less in every state except California, which showed a decided increase.

NEW MEXICO: Cotton from this state alone showed an improvement in grade over that classed last week, 96 percent having been classed as strict middling and above. Less than 1 percent has been classed as spotted to date.

Staple lengths show little change from last week, however, there was slightly less classed as 1-1/8 inches. Ninety-three percent was classed as 1-1/16 inches and longer this week and for the season to date.

COTTON USE MAY EXCEED PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON—Asserting the export demand for American cotton is the "greatest ever," Secretary Wallace expressed belief last week exports and domestic consumption will exceed this year's estimated crop at 11,478,000 bales.

Wallace at his press conference discounted European war scares as a factor in the increased demand attributing it to the fact that only a small part of the 1934 crop was exported and one-third of normal foreign supplies of American staple.

operation of the various religious groups represented in this community. On evenings which we shall announce later, a number of our neighbor churches will in turn be invited to meet with us, the minister of each church being asked to give a brief history of the church which he represents.

For example, when we come to study the Methodist body, we shall designate this as "Methodist Night" at our church. The Rev. A. C. Douglas will be asked to review the Methodist history, and members of the local Methodist church will be our special guests. The general public will also be invited to these meetings. The first few sessions of this series will be given over to a preliminary consideration of religions of the non-Christian world, of the Jews, and of the Catholic church. This will better prepare us for a clearer understanding and appreciation of the protestant denominations of our day. The purpose of the entire series will be to promote a more tolerant spirit among all denominations with a view to bringing about a more vigorous growth of christian unity; of finding and making use of the best things in all the churches. Plan to attend these services.

Officials Hope To Speed Relief Work

WASHINGTON—A speed-up in the work relief drive was indicated Saturday when Administrator H. L. Hopkins reported employment figures showing a 110,737 gain in dole-replacing jobs in two days.

Checking over November allotments, which have been forecast as the last federal contributions to direct relief, Hopkins said 1,421,470 persons were at work last Saturday, compared with 1,310,733 on the preceding Thursday.

Officials predicted that Comptroller General J. R. McCarl's release Saturday of most of the funds allotted to WPA would pave the way for a two-weeks drive, beginning Monday, which Hopkins hopes will bring him within striking distance of the goal.

Hopkins intimated on his return to the capital Thursday that he would provide his full quota of jobs before December 1, the date when states and communities must assume responsibility for the 1,000,000 "unemployable" families and individuals on the dole.

GOOD vegetables are so good that we want all we can get of them. Our systems want them—our health demands them.

Which is all very nice for everybody except the one who stays in the kitchen to shell peas, string beans, scrape carrots and husk corn. It is very nice to know, then, that you can buy canned mixed vegetables all ready to serve hot with butter, or to toss into a crisp salad, or into a puffy tender omelet melting with goodness. You'll like them prepared in such ways as these:

- Full of Vitamins
- Vegetable Spanish Rice: Cut two slices of bacon in small squares and fry. Remove from the fat and then sauté one cup of mixed vegetables which have been drained (and the liquor reserved) in the bacon fat for a few minutes. Then add the vegetable liquor and one and one-half cups of tomatoes. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Simmer for a few minutes. Add two-thirds cup rice which has been boiled and drained, and pour into a baking dish. Cover with one-fourth cup grated cheese and bake for twenty-five to thirty minutes in a 375 degree oven. This serves six persons.
- Vegetable Omelet: Make a French omelet using four eggs, one-half teaspoon salt, a few grains of pepper and four tablespoons milk. Meanwhile have ready a white sauce made with one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour and three-fourths cup of milk. Add one cup of canned mixed vegetables which have been drained, season with salt and pepper and heat thoroughly. Spread this over half the omelet just before folding. This serves four persons.
- Quick Vegetable Soup: Simmer one slice of onion with one cup of canned tomatoes for five minutes. Press through a sieve. Add the contents of one can of consommé, one cup of canned mixed vegetables and one cup of water. Season to taste with salt and pepper and boil for several minutes.

Corn-Hog Plan Gets A Majority

WASHINGTON—AAA officials, expressing delight at the overwhelming majority endorsing the 1936 corn-hog control program in a nation-wide referendum Saturday, made plans Monday to increase pork production in 1936.

They indicated that an average of twenty-five to thirty per cent over this year would be made. Present high prices of pork have been much under discussion recently with new deal critics hitting at them. AAA officials blamed the shortage on the drought.

In incomplete returns from thirty-one states, a seven to one majority in favor of the plan was shown. In not one single state was the plan opposed.

Gene Cody, former employe of the Palace Drug Store, spent a short time here Sunday en route to his home at Odessa, Texas, from a hunting trip in the mountains.

GOLDEN PHANTOMS

Fascinating Tales of Lost Mines

SUNBURNED GOLD

STRANGE, dark ore from a hidden mine—copper gold!

The padres of San Diego mission were using it before the annexation of California. How much they knew about its source they did not reveal. But it is said that when the new dispensation began they caused the Indian to hide their mine and "forget" that it existed. And it stayed hidden and forgotten until the day when it was found by Pegleg Smith.

Pegleg was, as his name implies, a one-legged man—a roustabout, sometimes a prospector. What he was doing in the Colorado desert on that day in 1884 is unknown. But somewhere between Yuma and San Diego, instead of going from one water hole to another as sensible people should, he decided to make a short cut, and as a result, he became lost.

There was a mountain close by and Pegleg knew that the only thing to do was to reach its top and get his bearings from there. It must have been an unpleasant climb, with but one good leg to go on, but finally Smith stood on the summit and looked about him.

He also looked down—and there at his feet was ore—strange, dark ore. He was not certain that it had any value, but picked up a few chunks anyway, and resumed his delayed march to San Diego.

For several weeks the ore lay about unnoticed. Finally, just because it was curious-looking stuff, Pegleg showed it to his acquaintances. Some one recognized it as gold in spite of its odd appearance, and a new search was on.

As such things will, this search proved profitless. Finally the excitement died down.

But it had no more than done so when there came a soldier from Fort Yuma with more of that same unusual ore. He had a slightly more detailed location to give: there were three peaks, he said, instead of one. He was anxious to return, and lost little time in outfitting and choosing several companions. They set out with vast confidence that they would soon return with loads of gold. Then the desert swallowed them.

East of Warner's Pass all trace of them was lost.

Later, an Indian woman appeared with some of the ore at a place where workmen were laying tracks for the railroad. She had lost her way, she said, and like Pegleg, she had seen the mountain and had climbed it to discover the ore. She claimed, also, that there were three peaks, which substantiated the soldier's story. From the mountain top she had seen the tracklayers, and she had headed for their camp.

The tracklayers took one startled inspection of her little load of ore, and then most of them immediately threw down their tools and "made tracks" in the direction from which she had come, without waiting to hear the end of her story. This was a fatal mistake, for she told the rest that she had circled around and approached their camp from an entirely different direction than that in which the mountain lay. The men who had so hastily rushed off were never seen again.

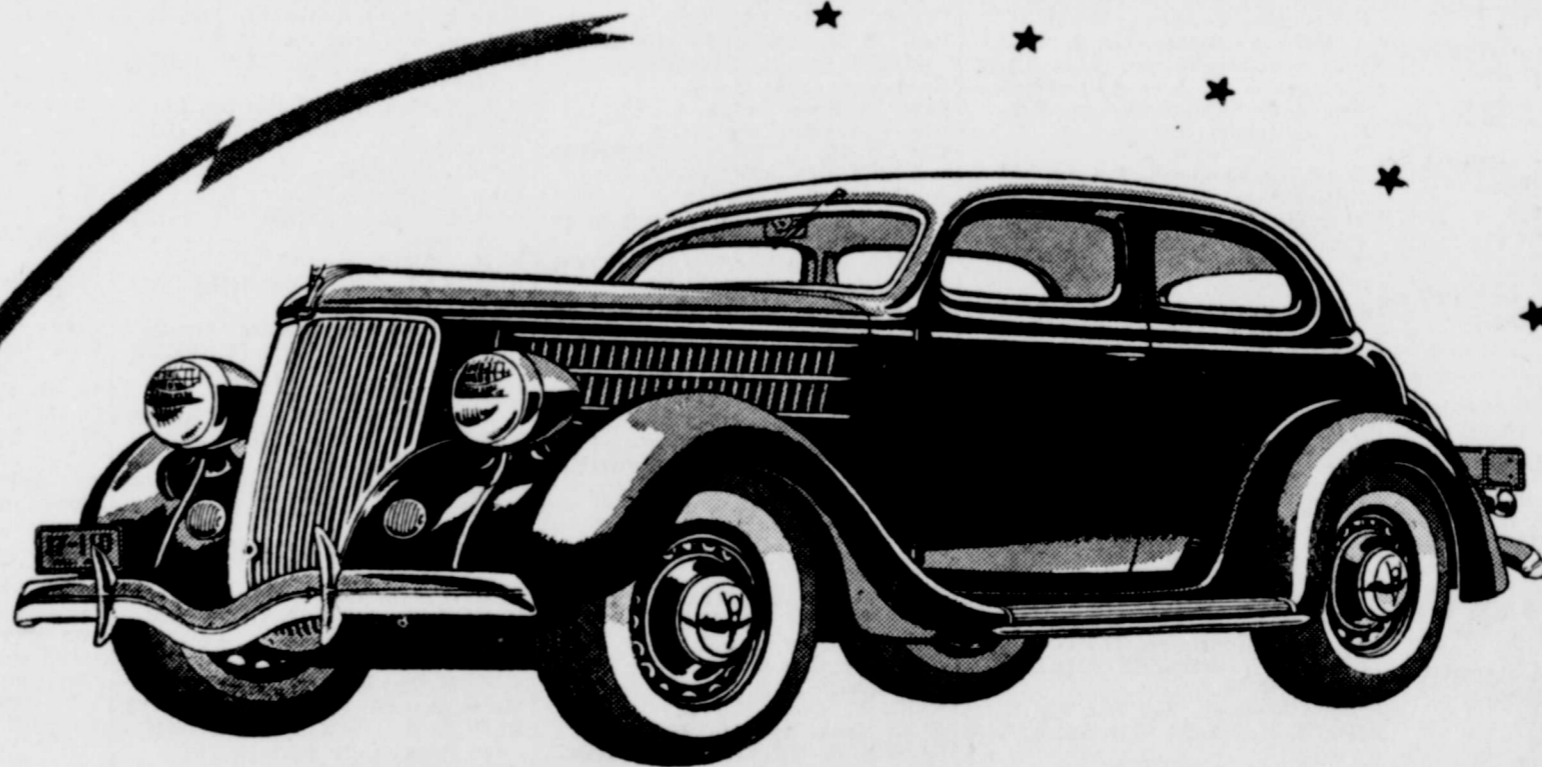

The Indian woman refused from the first to disclose the location of the gold. At last a prospector, Jim Denslow, became her friend, and after many years she told him of the three peaks, and that the mine was near a dry lake. Then he set out, as so many had done before him, seeking for the strange dark ore. He found the three peaks at last, but between him and them stretched, not a dry lake, but a vast, shallow, wet one, with such dangerous quicksands around its margin that he could not cross it.

Denslow decided that the thing to do was to return to San Diego, re-outfit, and come back prepared to do some work. This he did, and succeeded in skirting the lake and climbing the peaks only to find nothing but obsidian, volcanic glass.

The next to locate the mine was a Mexican cowboy. He disappeared for several days from the ranch where he was employed, and on his return he showed some of the copper gold. This he squandered on fine saddles and other such matters dear to the cowboy heart, and on gambling. When he was broke again, he disappeared as before, and returned with more gold. This he did several times, managing each time to elude all those who tried to trail him. Of course he would not tell the location, but the character of the ore revealed that it had been taken from the same place as that which Pegleg and the others had visited. At last the cowboy was killed in a knife duel, and his secret died with him.

A former sheriff of the county, however, had seen the Mexican riding in a certain direction. He decided to ride that way, too, and see what lay out there. He set out, but never returned.

A Higher Tax Rate For State Made for 35-36

Average Rate Is Over One Mill Higher Than Last Year.

SANTA FE—New Mexico's average tax rate for the twenty-fourth fiscal year, July 1, 1935, to June 30, 1936, will be 22,807 mills, an increase of more than a mill over the previous fiscal year, according to a table issued Monday by the state tax commission.

Last year the average rate was 21,539 mills.

Budgeted allowances or appropriations for state funds, county funds, schools and cities, towns and villages total $13,698,063 of which sum there are credits of $6,985,486, according to the table.

This leaves $6,712,577 to be raised from taxation. Figuring on the basis of delinquencies collected, a full 100 per cent collection, $7,354,230 will be taken in, the tax commission shows on the table.

However, only a 90 per cent collection is allowed for, which brings the revenue and cost to about the same level instead of showing a surplus collection with an estimated 100 per cent collection.

The total taxable valuation for municipalities, towns and villages is $71,655,517.

The state will get six mills, which on $285,003,833 has to bring in $1,566,076, the table shows. The counties, with their average rate lower than last year, will add 6.312 mills to the total, which has to bring $1,635,399.

School levies of 10.397 mills, up from last year, have to produce $2,717,436. The municipal levy averages the same this year and is 3.098, which has to bring in $793,666.

Red Bluff Dam To Get $700,000

According to word from Pecos, Texas, $700,000 to continue the construction of the Red Bluff dam was made available last week when PWA officials authorized the third requisition for the sale of four percent bonds to cover that amount.

The Federal Reserve was authorized to deposit this amount in the First National Bank in El Paso by WPA officials in Washington and requested to notify local Red Bluff officials that the money was available.

J. H. Miller, secretary of the Red Bluff project, said that this amount is for a period of four months and will finance the project up to March 1, 1936.

Work at the dam continues at a rapid pace, according to reports from there this week. Lundin Brothers, general contractors, this week put several new trucks to work and pouring of concrete into the conduit which will divert the waters of the Pecos river during construction was started.

The number of men working on the project was increased by thirty-one last week when 301 men were employed.

Of the men working there, 115 are from Reeves, sixty-nine from Pecos, forty-seven from Ward, and one from Loving county. Texas has forty-three men employed other than those of the above counties, and forty-six are from outside the state.
