Just Because

MANY, MANY YEARS AGO, someone who was far smarter than we ever expect to be, said, "Never do a friend a favor expecting a reward for doing that favor."

How true, of course, that is. First, it is often true that we do favor expecting other people to appreciate that favor and perhaps return it. And how true it is that the average person does not appreciate that favor and feels they are under no obligation.

We have known many people, who never wanted a favor done for them. They did not want to be obligated to anyone. They took the attitude if a favor was done for them they, in turn, should return that favor. They preferred the favor not to be done for them.

Most of us, however, want favors done for us; we gladly accept them; we voice a rather shallow appreciation for the favor and not only fail to return it but we turn right around and, as a rule, take advantage of the person who has done us a service.

Someone has said that most people appreciate us more if we refuse to do favors; if we accept and expect pay for the things which we have that others want; and if we are more or less independent in our attitude, our conduct, and our action.

And we believe there is more appreciation and respect shown such individuals than there is for those, who perhaps try to perform services and extend courtesies to others.

We believe, as we go along life, we find that life contains more happiness never to do favors to others expecting those favors to be returned; and if we do not place too much faith in human nature until we are sure of that particular individual.

There is no greater disappointment that we can suffer than to be disappointed in human nature. And the safest way to avoid this is to be slow to place confidence in human nature and to be sure before we do place that confidence.—O.E.P.

Paying Your Bills?

THERE HAS BEEN LITTLE SAID about credit, paying our bills, and the government regulation which requires payment of accounts within a 60-day period, or refusing to extend further credit.

This regulation received considerable attention when it was put into effect. Many stressed this regulation on their statements and in their dealings with individuals.

The regulation, so we were told, was adopted to discourage the extensive use of credit, or perhaps we should say, the abuse of credit.

With many of the wartime rules and regulations being dropped, it is easy to figure that most of the regulations do not matter any more.

Recently, however, the government is reminding the public that the government regulation on credit is still in effect.

They are reminding the public, as well as the merchant, that those who have not paid their account at the end of 60 days are not entitled to further credit until that account is paid?

How about your credit? Are you paying your bills within the 60 days? Are you remembering if you haven't or aren't keeping your accounts current that your merchant is violating a federal regulation by permitting it go longer than the 60 days and by still selling you merchandise?

The regulation still requires you to pay your account within 60 days if you expect to continue to use your credit.—O.E.P.

Attention Speeders

THIS IS MERELY A REMINDER to those who still find they can't keep their foot off the accelerator that city police are still arresting those caught speeding.

The police can't be everywhere. There are not enough of them.

And oftentimes they are at the wrong place at the wrong time, or don't happen to be at the right place at the right time.

But Chief of Police Kelly Stout still warns all drivers, and the parents of youthful drivers, they are continuing their campaign against speeders. They hope to reduce, if not eliminate, the speeding on Artesia streets.

The best co-operation the public can give them in this campaign is just to observe speeding and traffic regulations.—O.E.P.

Library

ARTESIA HAS CAUSE to be proud of its library.

Despite any shortcomings it may have or its needs it is still doing an outstanding job of serving the community. It continues to grow and expand. It secures the latest and newest books and helps provide new books for Artesia readers.

The help and assistance it is given is limited. The city does a great job providing quarters, janitor service, lights, water, salaries and funds for the library.

But such an institution can always use more funds than those available.

There are always things which a library can use, that can be bought with funds if the funds are available.

Every now and then gifts and contributions of various kinds are made by firms and individuals.

And these gifts, of course, usually are used to purchase new and more books.

There are, perhaps, those who might like to donate books or make a cash gift. This is merely a reminder that such gifts are very acceptable. A set of reference books also would be acceptable.

Any time that anyone desires to make a contribution to the library—we merely want to say that the gift will be deeply appreciated and it will be put to a good use.—O.E.P.

Cheaper in Long Run

PARADOXICAL AS IT MAY SEEM, we probably will pay less in the long run for certain food products which are selling at higher prices than we have in recent months, provided we do not have out-and-out inflation.

The principal difference is that we realize at the moment that we buy a loaf of bread or a cotton product that we are being charged more than we were prior to July 1, whereas up to that time the extra charges—and more—were extracted from our pocketbooks in a more roundabout way.

Few of us understand all there is to know about subsidies, but the average man realizes the government has been for months paying the farmers and others money on the side in addition to the controlled ceiling prices for the crops or products.

Billions of dollars, billions, that is, son, not millions—have been paid out in subsidies, in order that producers be compensated for what they grew, yet keeping retail prices down.

And those billions of dollars amount to more than the billions the consumers will have to pay through increased retail charges, if prices in general level off and do not kite sky high, because tax dollars must amount to more from the vast expenses incurred in their collection and distribution.

That is why we say that the necessary increase in prices on some items will be cheaper in the long run than we have been paying in the past.

It is hard for the merchant to explain to all customers the principle of the thing, or why he must charge a penny or two more for an item, but he understands it, and he would that you understand it too and bear with him.—A.L.B.

Good Old Traits

BACK A FEW YEARS AGO, 25 to 30, we as a people had many fine traits, which we, seemingly, have lost today.

Yes, even in Artesia, these traits prevailed. We remember hearing some of those, who have resided here, done business here, and helped to contribute to the growth of Artesia, discuss these matters.

They recall the day and the time when a man's word was as good as his bond and when the sky was the limit on the credit of those who had established for themselves such a reputation.

These were the days and the times when we not only borrowed money on our name and purchased merchandise without any special guarantee of payment. These were the days and times when our word was good and when we sought to keep our word.

Those were good old traits—traits which we need today and which would help eliminate many of the things which occur.

Most of us would not be interested in the return of what we call the good old days. Most of us would not want to give up our car for the horse and buggy; or the modern bath tub for the wash tub; the electric lights for the old coal oil lamps; or the modern communications for those in use long ago.

But there were some traits and characteristics back in those days which we need today.

The fact that we lost these traits somewhere along the line during the last 25 to 30 years is, to some degree, responsible for what is or has happened to us today.

The fact that we have given up, lost or sacrificed some of those fine characteristics of years gone by has not made our relations with one another as pleasant as they were then. It has not helped to make the solution of our problems any easier. And it has not helped to bring about better business relationships and greater happiness.

It might take considerable effort to gain back these traits, but we can't help feeling they would be worth whatever effort we put forth.—O.E.P.

Promptly

UNDER THE AUDIT BUREAU of Circulation membership, The Artesia Advocate must remove the names of subscribers from the mailing list if subscriptions are not renewed and paid promptly.

Every effort is made not only to mail out one notice, but to mail out three notices before names are removed from the mailing lists. After this a fourth reminder is mailed out.

Those who have charge accounts at The Advocate can have the subscription charge placed on their bills if they request it.

But the subscribers to The Advocate can aid The Advocate in observing ABC rules as well as postal regulations if they will pay their subscriptions promptly when they are notified their subscription is about to expire.

Many do just that. The Advocate deeply appreciates this fine co-operation and merely hopes that all others will follow the fine example set by those who pay up their subscriptions promptly.—

Up and Down Main Street

DOESN'T MATTER UP AND DOWN MAIN GETS THE JOB DONE

We feel confident that the request, which is always made by the infrequent advertiser, for a special spot or "place in the matter where it will be seen" is made by those not too familiar with advertising in the home town paper. But practically every time someone desires to place a small advertisement they request a special spot, "some place where it is sure to be seen." That request, of course, isn't necessary. We know that. And the fact remains if there was only one spot or a few spots where articles and advertisements could be seen—then there would be no use to run more than that one part of the paper. Naturally, we feel that it doesn't matter too much where an advertisement appears. We are rather convinced it is just as good on one page as it is on another page. We are sure that all the pages are read, are of interest and if not—then those advertisers who buy space on those pages would not continue to accept space there. Experience, we believe, has shown that our argument is correct. For instance, we have never felt that only articles and items on one page are read—we are sure this isn't true. We have frequently offered to run an advertisement free, any size from one small eight-point line to a large ad, for anyone, who wants to give away something, just to prove that the advertisements are read. If only the front page was read, then classified advertisements would not do the job they do every week. And we believe that little if any argument is necessary to prove that classified advertisements will do the job. Only this week we have had a letter back from Rockwell Bros. at Midland, Tex., on their little classified ad on hay ties. They said eliminate that part of their advertisement because all their hay ties were shipped out to Artesia. Their classified ad sold those hay ties for them.

Katherine Simmons down at Carters cafe wanting a little information . . . Mr. Acuff, new Hill line agent, talking over the phone early in the morning . . . Ray Bartlett doing a little window polishing at an early hour . . . Some discussions on the weather being plenty warm . . . Wesley Sperry having a little trouble keeping track of some tear sheets for some advertising . . . Owen Hensley rather proud of his Grizzly Bear skin He killed the bear in Wyoming in May . . . Mrs. Alice Brown busy at the Artesia Floral shop . . . D. I. Clowe headed for the postoffice to get his mail during the morning . . . R. L. Parise settling up on what he called "borrowing 51 cents" . . . Several explaining that the advance in the price of butter, milk, milk products and meats, as well as some other items, has resulted from the removal of subsidies, which the government has been paying these producers for several years now . . . Static Collier headed for the Allied Supply company office on Main . . . Howard Whitson looking for a particular type of table . . . Waldo Ports headed out for the oil fields and planning a trip to the middle of the state . . . Ralph Petty explaining why he was having to make a little advance in the price of ice cream . . . Dallas Golden leaving the fire station for a few minutes in the morning . . . John E. Cochran, Jr., going toward his office in the Carper building . . . Shirley Hager declaring he was saving a good job with plenty of work attached for D. D. Archer . . . A. W. Harrall still plenty busy with plenty of jobs to be done . . . Preston Clevenger waiting for some more air conditioners to arrive . . . W. W. Battie declaring meat salesmen advising him there should be plenty of ham and bacon soon at only a small increase in price . . . C. C. Nelson busy at Neson-Pounds . . . That was Up and Down Main this week.

This, of course, don't just happen now and then—it happens every week, not on one ad, but on classified and display advertising. It does it because The Advocate is read—read thoroughly from the front to the back page. Every page is read and the items and advertisements are read. Not by everyone, of course, but by far more than our circulation figure, because many people read one copy of The Advocate. We have always argued that newspaper advertising can't and won't sell the articles or items advertised. In many instances and cases, of course, it does. But advertising's big job is to bring individuals into the stores and business places here. It is the salesman's and the clerk's job to do the selling after the prospective buyer arrives at the store. It is the advertising, which creates the contact between the buyer and the seller. And after all, most of us can sell what we have to sell when we know who wants to buy or who might be interested in buying. Most of us can do the selling when we get the buyer. And this is true about classified advertising and about display advertising. There, of course, is another angle to this business too—that of creating in the mind of the buyer the name of a particular firm when they want a particular article. For instance, the L. P. Evans store wants you to think of them when you think of hardware, sporting good and tin work. The Brainard-Corbin hardware store wants you to think of them when you need hardware. The Mann drug store wants you to think of them when you need drugs. Automobile dealers for various cars want you to think of their firm name when you need an automobile and when you think of the particular car they handle. This is true about all advertisers. But the important thing about advertising is not that it be placed where it will be sure to be seen—that can't in reality be done—but the important thing is consistent advertising. In other words, advertising week after week and time after time. This results in readers and buyers watching for your advertisement and it results in them associating your firm's name with the merchandise which you handle, and they may want to buy. That is, after all, the important thing.

WHEAT SET-ASIDE IS SUSPENDED

Immediate suspension of the requirements that farmers sell half of their wheat they deliver to country elevators and requirements that trucker-merchants sell wheat they deliver to grain elevators was announced by the Department of Agriculture June 30. In an effort to avoid interruption of farm export shipments, the Commodity Credit Corporation has offered to buy wheat at market prices, but not exceeding prices based on the selling prices available at terminal markets as of June 30. Only grades No. 3 or better and Nos. 4 and 5 on test weight only will be purchased.

New Mexico Churches Join College Campaign

MEMORIAL HALL

Methodist Churches of New Mexico will join in a voluntary campaign this month to raise a portion of the funds needed to build the new Memorial Hall for men on the campus of McMurry College at Abilene, Tex., officials announced. The college is owned jointly by the New Mexico and Northwest Texas Methodist Conferences.

An organized campaign being conducted by the Northwest Texas Conference, but churches of New Mexico will participate only on a voluntary basis, it was said. Bishop W. Angie Smith of the Oklahoma-New Mexico area and district superintendents of the New Mexico conference have endorsed the campaign.

The structure, to house 150 men, will be a companion building to President Hall for women, to be ready late this fall. The Iris Graham memorial dining hall, named in memory of McMurry's late registrar and alumni secretary, will be ready for the fall term.

Approximate cost of the Memorial Hall will be $250,000. The campaign is a part of the $1,750,000 endowment and building campaign inaugurated for McMurry College, of which approximately $1,225,000 has been subscribed to date. The entire campaign is to be completed by July 13.

Compensation Insurance Is No Bar to Disabled

In response to numerous complaints from widespread sections of the country that some employers are failing to hire disabled veterans on the ground that it is either forbidden or heavily penalized by workmen's compensation insurance contracts, J. Dewey Dorset, general manager of the Association of Casualty and Surety executives, issued a sweeping denial that there is any provision in insurance policies or rates on which to base such erroneous statements.

"Employers who make any such claims are sadly misinformed about the provision of their workmen's compensation insurance policies," Dorset said. "There is nothing either forbids or even advises against the employment of any disabled person, veteran or non-veteran. Neither is there anything in the rating formulae which even takes into account whether or not an employer has disabled persons in his hire."

Dorset's statement was made public solely in an effort to help relieve an acute unemployment problem among the very class of veterans who are most deserving of the nation's consideration. The claim that insurance companies are even partially to blame for this condition, Dorset said, is so entirely contrary to the facts that in justice to employers, veterans, and insurance, he could not remain silent longer. As the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives is the public service organization of 66 leading capital stock casualty and surety insurance companies, which write a substantial part of the country's workmen's compensation insurance, he may be regarded as speaking on high authority.

Garments for Women Being Sized to Height

No, women are not being stretched or squeezed into average sizes, but the average sizes of readymade garments are being sized to height.

Slips, dresses, coats, and suits are being made in proportionate lengths which will fit the short, average, or tall, although all three wear size 14. "Know your size," says Mrs. Pearl C. Gohl, clothing specialist of New Mexico A. & M. College.

The junior miss is for 'teen-agers, and includes sizes 9, 11, 13, and 15.

Misses' sizes are 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20.

Sizes 36 and up are women's sizes for mature figures of average or taller height. Women of

Fowl Pox Can Be Prevented By Vaccine

"Diseases are pickpockets. Too frequently they dip their hands into the poultryman's earnings, taking most or all of his profits for the preceding months. Fortunately one of these diseases, fowl pox, can be prevented by an easy precaution—vaccination." So says E. E. Anderson, extension poultryman of the New Mexico A. & M. College.

Fowl pox, sometimes known as chicken pox, takes a huge toll from New Mexico flock owners every year, Anderson declared. It strikes in entirely unexpected places, as it is carried or spread by many agents, which make it possible for pox to appear in flocks where it has never been known before. Fowl pox is most prevalent in the fall and winter months, when egg prices are the highest, the extension poultryman said. The death rate is usually not high if the flock is in good condition. The heavy financial loss due to this disease is usually through decreased egg production. A mild case of pox usually runs its course and clears up in a few weeks. However, if it is accompanied by colds, canker, and roup, it may continue all winter.

In discussing fowl pox prevention, the question is usually asked, "Should every flock owner vaccinate?" Anderson said. The answer is very definitely "yes," especially if fowl pox occurred on the premises or even in the community last year or in recent years.

The time to vaccinate is during warm weather, preferably in June or July, the extension poultryman advises. Most poultrymen prefer to vaccinate when the pullets are between 8 and 12 weeks of age. Some vaccinate any time from the age of 6 weeks on. Apparently, development is not checked as much if birds are vaccinated at an early age. At any rate, Anderson declared flock owners should be sure to vaccinate at least a month or six weeks before production starts.

Control of Lygus Makes Alfalfa Growers Profit

Alfalfa seed growers should check their fields for lygus and stink bugs, County Agent Dallas Rierson advised this week.

Yields of alfalfa seed can be greatly reduced by lygus, and fields having a high population of lygus are usually poor producers, Rierson said.

Farmers should check their alfalfa fields before the bug stage to determine if lygus is present in sufficient number to cause serious damage, the county agent declared. Using a bug net, farmers should make sweeps at different points in the field to determine the number of lygus per 100 sweeps. If an average of 20 or more lygus is obtained per 100 sweeps, then dusting will prove profitable.

Rierson said farmers should remember the lygus does considerable damage to the alfalfa buds, so dusting should be made in the early bud stage to reduce the bug population.

Dusting with a 5 per cent DDT dust has reduced the population of lygus in alfalfa fields, he added. DDT mixed with talc or pumice has proven satisfactory.

MOST MEAT SET-ASIDES ARE SUSPENDED

All meat and lard set-aside now in effect with the exception of set-aside ordered under the authority of the Second War Powers Act were suspended by the Department of Agriculture on July 1. Meat packers will remain subject to all unfulfilled set-aside and the delivery provisions of the order covering their production through midnight June 30. The order suspending includes beef, pork and lard, veal, and canned meat.

Trench Type Silo

By W. J. Dryden, WNU Farm Editor.

While a trench is the cheapest form of a silo from the standpoint of cash expenditure, it offers the additional advantages that it can be constructed in a short time, less expensive to fill, is wind- and fire-proof as well as frost-proof. It has the added advantage that it is easier to operate than above-ground silo. To dig a trench silo economical, a Fresno and plow should be used. In some silos the walls may be given the final smoothing by sprinkling them and cutting them down with a hoe.

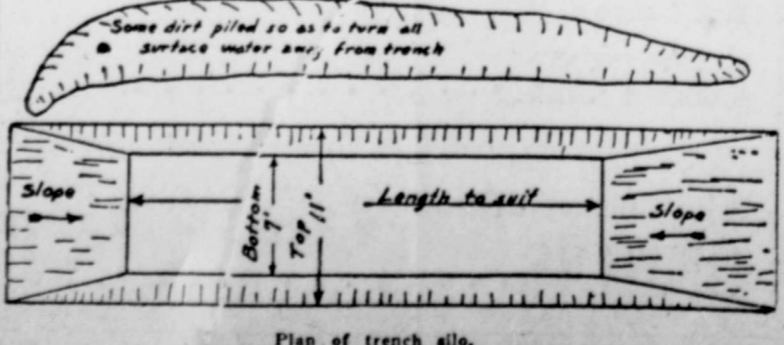

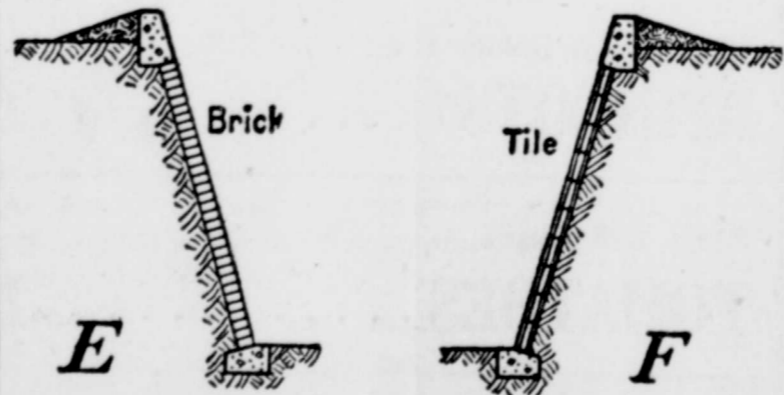

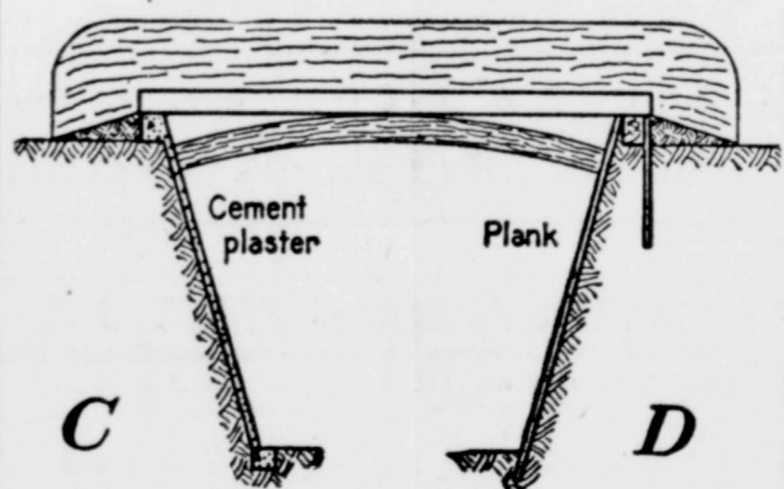

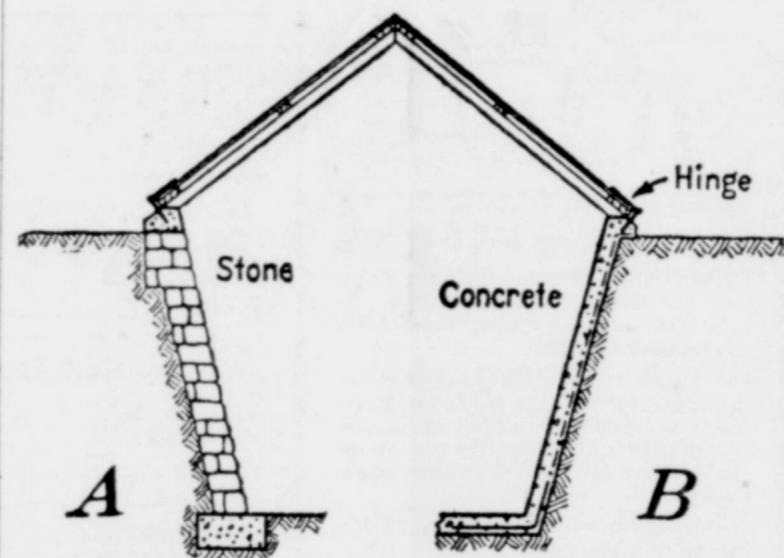

Photographs show types of lining and roofs for silos as adopted in Texas. (A) stone, (B) concrete, (C) make them strong enough to stand vertically. The trench sides should first be covered with two layers of hog fencing, running in opposite directions.

In many cases it may be more economical over a period of years to even borrow money and construct an upright, above ground silo. Or it might be advisable to build such a silo in sections as funds are available. When this is not advisable or possible, good results can be secured by the trench-type silo, as it does offer many advantages, particularly to the small farmer.

National Program Is Set for 1947 Ag Conservation

Key features of the national outline of 1947 agricultural conservation practices is the increased responsibility placed on county and state committees for adapting the national program to meet local conservation needs. The national outline has been formulated from county and state recommendations which meet the specifications of the legislation authorizing federal payments to aid farmers and ranchers with practices needed to conserve soil and water resources.

From the national outline, the state PMA committee will select practices needed to meet conservation problems within the state, establishing rates of payment designed to achieve maximum results from the amount of funds available. As a guide, a survey of conservation needs within the state was completed this spring. It is a fundamental operating principle of the Agricultural Conservation program to use available funds to promote needed practices not being formed in adequate volume to meet the conservation problem. A technical committee composed of representatives of the Soil Conservation Service, the Extension Service, and other agencies directly concerned with conservation assist the state PMA committee in fitting the national program to state needs.

A further aid in adapting the national program to local conservation needs has been provided in the 1947 Agricultural Conservation Program by authorizing the county ACA committees to select a sound soil or water conservation practice not included in the national practice list, which will meet a definite conservation need within the county. Ten per cent of the funds allocated to a county may be used for payments to farmers for carrying out the special practice, which requires only state committee approval as authorization.

Construction of Republic Supply Building Starts

Construction of a prefabricated steel building for the home of the Republic Supply Company, a new supply firm in Artesia, is now under way on North First Street and just south of the Bolton Oil Company.

The contract for the erection of the building was given to a Hobbs contractor. The Republic Supply Company, one of the large firms which supplies oil operators, is preparing to open their new store in Artesia as soon as their building is completed.

Another steel structure being erected on North First Street and nearing completion is that to house the Pecos Valley Garage and Machine Shop. Their new all-steel structure is farther north on First Street and the company plans to move to the new location as soon as the building is ready.

Other construction work in Artesia, of course, has been slowed down to some extent while the contractors and builders are either waiting on materials or waiting for priorities or approval.

The new Ben Pior building, which is located on North First, just south of Wells' Drive-in, also is rapidly being completed and will be ready for occupancy soon.

The construction of new homes is being continued as rapidly as possible and repair and remodeling work is still underway over the city.

Plenty of new building work is expected to be started here as soon as the materials are available for this work.

News Shorts

The influence of returned war veterans on university life is being reflected even in excuses for absence from classes, say Loyola University officials. Apartment-hunting and baby-minding have taken their place alongside such old favorites as alarm clock failures, funerals, and dental appointments, they said. One married vet's excuse was: "An eight-pound boy, wow!"

In Evanston, Ill., Policeman Henry Rumsfield was without his motorcycle because he parked it behind an automobile while he was writing out a ticket for a motorist who drove through a stop sign. After getting the ticket the motorist started the car but it was in reverse and it backed over Rumsfield's motorcycle, wrecking it. The driver pleaded that the "gear shifter" stuck. Rumsfield couldn't find any violation in his book to cover faulty shifters, so the motorist was released, but told to appear in court.

Danville, Ill., police are hunting for the husky and noisy banquets who broke into a chain food store in the early morning hours. They carried a heavy safe up to a front plate glass window and let it drop to the sidewalk. Before the bandits could get the safe onto a truck the crashing glass had attracted the attention of motorists and persons living near the store. They fled, leaving the unopened safe in the street.

Police arrived at the scene of a traffic accident in Spokane, Wash., and found a young woman enthusiastically administering "first aid" to the male victim. "I've got the pressure points," she declared, pointing to the man's clothing, well ripped up to reveal spots where pressure would halt any bleeding. Rushed to emergency hospital, the victim was found to have suffered only a slight bump on his head and a scratch on his nose.

In Nonco, Tex., a patient thought she was seeing things when her family physician showed up in a horse and buggy. But Dr. L. M. Radusky set things straight. His car had been stolen and it was either the horse and buggy or a foot.

One Oklahoma City restaurant believes in keeping up with the times. On its menu is posted: "Please be careful with the atomic waitresses employed by this establishment. One wrong word and they blow up."

Miss Jean Margaret Richey Becomes Bride of John W. Gates on Sunday

The marriage of Miss Jean Margaret Richey and John Withington Gates, which took place at the First Presbyterian Church at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, was an occasion of unusual interest and appeal. The wedding was informal and was attended by the members of the families of both the bride and the bridegroom and some 50 friends. The marriage service was conducted impressively by Rev. Paul L. Brown, pastor of the church.

Preceding the ceremony organ music was played by Russell Floore, and Mrs. Donald Bush sang two numbers, "I Love You Truly," and "At Dawning."

Miss Richey was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her sister, Mrs. Robert Harper, as matron of honor, and by Little Linda Nelle Gates, 4-year-old niece of the bridegroom, as ringbearer.

Wallace Gates, brother of the bridegroom, acted as his best man. Assisting as ushers were Fletcher Hornbaker and Stanley Sutton.

Miss Richey was charming in a street-length dress of navy blue sheer and wearing a white garland and carnation corsage. A family tradition was preserved by her wearing a pair of beige kid slippers, which have been worn as the wedding shoes by each succeeding daughter in the family bearing the name of Margaret for more than 100 years.

Mrs. Harper was lovely in a two-piece costume of melon color with a gladioli corsage of a harmonizing shade.

Little Linda Nelle Gates was winning in a dress of gay plaid taffeta.

The bridegroom and his best man wore dark business suits with white boutonnières.

After the bride and bridegroom left the sanctuary they formed a receiving line together with their parents and the other members of the wedding party in the adjoining reception room where they were greeted by the guests. A beautiful three-tiered wedding cake and coffee were served from a lace-covered tea table on which the crystal and silver service gleamed in the candlelight. After the serving of the bride and bridegroom and their mothers, the cake was cut by Mrs. Hall, the bride's sister. Also assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Elsie Johnson and Mrs. J. C. Cathey. Mrs. Rex Wheatley and Miss Barbara Wheatley helped with the serving and Mrs. Pete Thomas presided over the guestbook.

Guests from out of town included Mr. and Mrs. Norris D. Richey of Anadarko, Okla., father and mother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Hall, also from Anadarko, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, with their small son, Edward.

Mrs. Gates is a graduate of the Baylor University School of Nursing at Dallas, Tex., and Menninger's School of Physiological Nursing. Besides her general nursing she served as a lieutenant four years in the Army Nurse Corps. Thirty-one months of that time was spent in North Africa and Italy with the Fifth Army. She came to Artesia only during the past year, and in the comparatively short time that she has lived here, she has made a great number of sincere friends who have discovered her exceptional generosity and capacity for unselfish service.

Mr. Gates was born and reared in this community, where he is now a successful real estate and insurance agent. After his graduation from the Artesia schools, he attended Westminster College at Fulton, Mo., and Occidental College at Los Angeles, where he was a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. During his junior year at Occidental it became necessary for him to withdraw from college because of an incipient trouble, which later caused total loss of sight. It is his complete and triumphant victory over this disaster that so compels the admiration and respect of the community.

After a brief honeymoon at Ruidoso, Mr. and Mrs. Gates will return to make their home in Artesia.

Miss Galloway, Leland Borland Wed in Carlsbad

Miss Eleanor Galloway became the bride of Leland Borland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer G. Borland, in a quiet double-ring ceremony in the Methodist parsonage at Carlsbad last Friday evening. The service was read by Rev. Trone, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Carlsbad. Mrs. Trone and her son served the couple as witnesses.

The bride chose for the ceremony a simple summer frock of blue. Her accessories were of white and she wore a shoulder corsage of pink roses.

The bride has been living in Springfield, Mo., and will return there soon for a short visit and to attend to personal business before returning to Artesia, where the couple will make their home.

Mr. Borland, a resident of Artesia for many years, has just recently been discharged from the Navy after about two years of service. He is working with his father, Western Auto Supply Company dealer here.

Little Friends Help Celebrate Birthday Of Leland Tolbert

Leland Tolbert was the honoree at a birthday party given at his home on Saturday afternoon. Thirteen little friends gathered to help in the celebration of Leland's third birthday. The boys and girls participated in the delightful games played on the lawn with the mothers acting as judges and directors.

After a play period, the children gathered in the house, where Leland was presented a new wagon full of presents to open. A large pink and white cake was brought in and the children sang, "Happy Birthday," and blew out the candles. The cake was served with pink ice cream and party favors to the following little guests: Glenn Bass, Kenneth Diller, Dennis Gillilan, Raymond Bass, Robert Morris, David Archer, Earnestine Hill, Garry Kennedy, Paul Calvin Morris, Janie Sue Lee, Tommy Hager, Jimmy Hearrell, and Jackie Lynn Moreland, and the honoree, Leland Tolbert.

After the refreshments, the children completed the afternoon playing with the new toys.

AUXILIARY PLANS COFFEE FOR KITCHEN BENEFIT

The American Legion Auxiliary is having a silver coffee at the home of Mrs. Raymond Bartlett from 9 to 11 o'clock Friday morning.

This is to raise funds for the kitchen of the proposed American Legion building. It is stressed that this is a "come as you are" affair and the public is invited.

Mrs. Watts Honored With Shower Last Thursday Morning

Mrs. G. W. Watts was honored a "pink and blue" shower at the Woman's Club last Thursday morning. The hostesses for this delightful occasion were Mrs. C. B. Miller and Mrs. R. C. Gardner.

An entertainment program consisting of several piano selections and a vocal arrangement of "That Little Boy of Mine" was under the direction of Mrs. C. B. Dungan.

Coffee and doughnuts were served to nearly 40 guests. The serving table, centered with sweetpeas and lighted by pink tapers, was covered with lace. Other decorations were of floral arrangements.

After the refreshments, the curtain of the stage was drawn to reveal a large assortment of lovely gifts which held the attention of the group for the remainder of the time.

Miss Culbertson And Mr. Rogers Exchange Vows

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Culbertson have announced the marriage of their daughter, Geraldine, to Albert Quentin Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rogers. The ceremony took place on Wednesday, June 10, in the First Baptist Church in Carlsbad. Rev. Barbee read the impressive double-ring ceremony.

The bride, a popular member of the younger set, was attractively gowned in a blue summer suit with white touches. A shoulder corsage of carnations completed the ensemble. Following tradition Miss Culbertson wore a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom, for something new; her suit was blue, an old coin worn in her right shoe for luck, was borrowed.

Attending the bride as matron on honor was her sister, Mrs. W. D. Cunningham, Jr., and Jack Rogers, brother of the bridegroom, served him as best man.

The ceremony was witnessed by only a few close relatives.

Past Nobles Grand Honored Wednesday At Thorpe Residence

Members of the Past Noble Grand Club were honored at a delightful breakfast at the B. E. Thorpe home from 8 to 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

This was another of the functions for the purpose of supplying all members of the organization club emblems.

After being served in the kitchen, the guests went into the backyard, where tables were set up for them. All the tables were centered with roses from the Thorpe expansive rose garden.

though the opera is distinctly of an Italian cut, there are certain descriptive passages where one feels a certain breath of Brazilian lands and nature. Other of Gomes' operas, such as "Fosca" and "The Slave," also enjoyed world-wide popularity.

In the interval between the romantic and the modern period, names such as those of Leopoldo Miguez and Henrique Oswald are to be remembered. Others are Alexandr Levy (1864-1892), who was the first Brazilian composer to introduce national folk songs in his compositions, and Alberto Nepomuceno (1864-1920), the champion of singing classical music in the Portuguese language instead of French or Italian.

At the outbreak of the first World War, the influence of the revolt against musical romanticism was already beginning to be felt and the nationalistic movement was intensified. Brazilian composers began to wake up to the fact that they had a wonderful wealth of material at their disposal.

The most original and daring of the moderns who was destined to sever Brazilian composers completely from romanticism was Heitor Villa-Lobos. Born in Rio de Janeiro, Villa Lobos received his early training in Brazil and went to Europe for further study. He did not, however, cut his works on entirely European molds but based them on his assimilation of the primitive forces of Indian music from which he drew exceptional melodic and rhythmic inspiration. It is probably through Villa-Lobos that the Old World first became acquainted with the Indian and Negro element in the music of the Americas.

A dynamic personality, he has written an amazing number of compositions, conducted orchestras throughout the world, and given, of late, most of his attention to being director of music in the schools of Rio. The mass singing under his direction of 30,000 children of the Brazilian capital has become famous throughout the Western Hemisphere. Villa-Lobos believes that "in singing is found the supreme expression of collective well-being, and that through music, souls are united, human sentiments purified, character ennobled, and the spirit raised to a more complete ideal."

Although Villa-Lobos may still claim the leadership of the movement in Brazil, other new stars have recently risen in the musical spheres of the country. Francisco Mignone (1897) is one of the most outstanding. Inspired mostly by folk music, his compositions show not only a great originality but an extraordinary knowledge of modern orchestration. His "Congada" (an Afro-Brazilian dance) has become a classic in its style. A prolific composer of solo, chamber, and symphonic music, Mignone is, besides, Brazil's foremost conductor.

Ownership of Meteorites Is Legal Question

Dr. Lincoln LaPaz, director of the University of New Mexico Institute of Meteoritics, has pointed out that there are at the present time no uniform laws in regard to the finding of a meteorite on another man's property.

There has been a rapid rise in interest concerning the recovery of meteorites, Dr. LaPaz asserts, and with that rise in interest there will undoubtedly come controversies as to the ownership of the meteorites which are found.

Dr. LaPaz then calls attention to one of the oldest laws of its kind in existence, Roman Law XXX, which pertains to the division of treasure between the finder and the owner of the land upon which the treasure is found.

Something similar to the Roman law, Dr. LaPaz believes, should be passed in states where no such law exists now. Unlike precious stones, he points out, meteorites have no practical or commercial value except as souvenirs. To the scientist, however, they can tell the age of the universe and the composition of interplanetary material.

FARMERS COLLECT MONEY FOR CONSERVATION

Operators of 11,108 New Mexico farms will collect close to $3,000,000 for carrying out approved farm and range conservation practices under the 1945 Agricultural Conservation Program.

C. V. Hemphill, state PMA director, said, in releasing figures, that approximately $2,500,000 of this amount has already been paid to New Mexico farmers and ranchers. Substantially all applications have been approved and the balance of the money should be in the hands of the farmers and ranchers in the near future.

Speaking of "too little too late," with soil losses increasing, "Too much too soon!"

American people have been inspired by actions of the government which eats every morsel of sight until it faces starvation rather than by the farmer who repairs every break in the soil to protect his food supply.

BRAZIL'S PLACE IN MUSIC OF TODAY

If one country were to be chosen to represent the serious musical production of Latin America today, that country would most probably be Brazil. Nowhere else, perhaps, have the autochthonous and classical musical trends blended as well, nowhere have young composers adapted more completely the treasures of rich folklore to the esthetics of modern music.

Music in Brazil is composed, as elsewhere in Latin America, of the familiar fusion of Indigenous, Negro and European elements. If we consider that aspect of the question which is not purely folkloric, it may be said that music in Brazil started with Father Jose Mauricio Nunes Garcia, the greatest composer of the Colonial period. Born in Rio de Janeiro in 1767, Jose Mauricio became a priest and devoted himself to writing religious music, inspired principally by Haydn and Mozart.

When the royal family of Braganza came from Portugal to Brazil they brought with them their intense love of music. Dom Joao VI, the monarch, soon heard Jose Mauricio and, delighted at finding such excellent native talent, promptly appointed him "Inspector of Music of the Royal Chapel" and organizer of the Royal Theater, requesting him also, in time, to compose the funeral march for the obsequies of Queen D. Maria I.

During the romantic period, musical production in Brazil was spurred on again by the interest of the royal family. The reign of D. Pedro II, second emperor of Brazil and grandson of D. Joao VI, saw the appearance of Francisco Manoel da Silva (1795-1865), a talented pupil of Jose Mauricio who composed, among other things, the hymn that was later to become the Brazilian national anthem.

To this period, too, belongs one of the most outstanding composers of lyric music of the Americas, Carlos Gomes. Born in a little town of the state of Sao Paulo in 1836, he was befriended by the emperor through whom he was admitted to the Imperial Conservatory of Music in Rio de Janeiro. His first operas were so successful that he was granted a pension to study in Italy.

It was there that, in 1870, his opera, "Il Guarani," based on a Brazilian theme, was presented at the Scala, where Verdi is said to have exclaimed, "This young man begins where I leave off!" Al-

Artesia Pharmacy Forced To Increase Ice Cream Prices

In 1942 We Were Selling Vanilla Machine Packed Ice Cream for 35 Cents a Quart. At That Time We Were Paying 85 Cents a Gallon for Ice Cream Mix. In 1942 Ice Cream Mix advanced from 85 Cents a Gallon to $1.15 a Gallon, but Our Price on Vanilla Ice Cream Remained at 35 Cents a Quart—Ready Pak.

During the Last Three or Four Years the Government Has Been Paying the Creameries—Not the Retailer—Subsidy on Their Materials and Butterfat.

This Subsidy Was Discontinued July 1, 1946, and Subsequently the Dairies and Creameries Could Not Manufacture Their Products and Sell Them at the Same Price. They Have Advanced 20 Cents a Gallon the Past Week—20 Cents Plus the 30 Cents We as Retailers Have Been Absorbing on Every Gallon of Ice Cream Mix Before the Increase of the Past Week, Making a Total of 50 Cents a Gallon Increase in the Price of Ice Cream Mix from 1942 to 1946.

This Forces Us to Have to Raise the Price of Ready Pak Ice Cream

Indian Traders Set Standards Stamps for Silver

The United States Indian Traders Association, with a membership extending over seven Southwestern states, has announced its code of standards for genuine handmade Navajo and Pueblo Indian jewelry and prepared to license use of its stamp and mark on silver so that quality handwork can readily be identified by purchasers. The mark which will be used to designate genuine handmade Navajo or Pueblo jewelry, consists of the initials of the association, UITA, with an arrowhead breaking the letters in the center and followed by a number designating the member who applied the stamp.

stamp. In announcing the standards for genuine Navajo and Pueblo handmade jewelry, the executive committee of the United Indian Traders Association rules out the use of power machinery in the fashioning, grinding and polishing of stones and for the final finishing of the article. Power equipment which tends to shape, design, slit, stamp, blank, or cut out an object is prohibited along with prefabricated forms. Manufactured findings such as ear screws, safety catches, and clasps are admitted. Licenses for the use of the stamp to be applied on genuine handmade Navajo or Indian jewelry will be issued to members of the association who have control over the production of the jewelry articles they market, and to others who apply for membership in the association and use of the stamp on the same basis. The executive committee announced that it "will conscientiously enforce and promote these standards, stamps and marks, and association funds will be used to advertise them."

IT'S A NATURAL!

Every hour of every day and night, men are working to bring your Natural Gas. Sure, it's a natural... formed by Mother Nature through centuries. The Natural Bridge in Virginia is just one example of nature's handiwork. You can look around you and see hundreds of other examples on the surface of the earth in everyday life... pots and pans, tires, bookcases, mirrors... all originally come from nature. The secret is in making them useful to men! That's the way it is with Natural Gas. Somewhere along the line Mother Nature created her perfect fuel for mankind. Undiscovered for centuries, its kind benefits to mankind lay undisturbed far beneath the surface of the earth. Suddenly, through surface breaks, this wonderful resource was discovered by man and utilized. That was long ago. Today, the search and service of Natural Gas goes ever onward. Where once it was a matter of chance in discovering usable natural gas, today it is a science. Geological and engineering research, construction of research and operation facilities, constant vigilance by trained operation and maintenance men must be on the job each hour to bring you an unceasing flow of Nature's Most Perfect Fuel. Like so many other of Mother Nature's resources, the resources of man must be alert at all times to bring the full benefits to the homes of America.

Improvements-

even before the council can spend them.

He presented to the group J. D. Smith, member of the special committee named to study the improvement of the lighting system in Artesia. Smith, in a brief talk, declared that the city council has now authorized not only installing of a new white way system but an extension of this system. He explained the city had desired to take this step for some time but was unable to do so.

Plans call for the installing of new and modern fixtures and the placing of these on certain blocks on Quay and Texas Avenues as well as an addition block on West Main. It is also planned to place them on part of the cross streets from Fourth Street to the highway.

City Manager Morris, in a brief talk, declared that the city council is now calling for a paving program, which will include between 80 and 90 blocks of paving. It will be necessary, he stated, to secure an engineer and obtain costs on these projects and then advertise them before they can be carried out. This work is to be done at the cost of the property owners.

Another project, however, for which the city has the money, is the coating or sealing of the paving, which was laid many, many months ago. This work needs to be done badly, he stated. It is now to be carried out as soon as the necessary preliminaries can be completed.

In his talk, City Manager Morris pointed out the city is now laying some 38,00 feet of water mains so that practically every part of the city within the city limits can be served. The extending of the sewer lines, he stated, can not be carried out until 1947 because materials for this extension will not be available until next year.

Hugh Kiddy discussed for those present the work and plans of the Artesia Gardens, Inc., which is expected to provide the golf course and country club for Artesia. This organization, he explained, will provide the Artesia playground. He urged all interested to buy their stock in the organization and to aid and assist those who have worked so hard on the project. There at this time, he said, some 125 members and the charter provides for 200 members, or just 75 more.

All interested, he stated, can buy their membership from any of the committee members.

tinued until after Paul's reappearance Saturday afternoon at the home of his sister and he had been taken to his home on the bank of the Pecos.

Tracks found by searchers indicated that Paul had run frantically, as though frightened, and that they crossed the Pecos several times, showing where he had entered the river and swum across. Tracks also led through closely-grown tamarac.

When Artesia police were called about 2 o'clock Saturday morning, Officers John Miller and Joe Bolin went to the scene and worked through until after noon. Many farmers and Lake Arthur townspeople joined in the search, and a number of Boy Scouts from Artesia were dispersed through the brush adjacent to the river Saturday morning. Chaves County sheriff's deputies and State Police Officer Gene Smith were on the job, while planes from Artesia piloted by "Sug" Hazel and Gene Sherwood scanned the river, tamarac, and adjacent fields and hills from the air.

In the afternoon a posse of horsemen was scouring the countryside, when Paul put in his appearance.

Safford, GOP Candidate for Governor, Here

Ed L. Safford, Republican candidate for governor, termed the people of Eddy County and Southeast New Mexico the "forgotten people", when in Artesia Wednesday, meeting voters and conferring with leaders.

He made no political speeches, but met informally with a group of businessmen and then was guest of honor at a luncheon at the Club Cafe at noon.

In casual conversation Safford said he does not believe in making campaign promises which cannot be fulfilled. He mentioned specifically the highway program in New Mexico, which needs and must have considerable improvement and extension. But, he added, there is and will be only so much money to spend on highways, so it would be folly to make big promises to groups in all parts of the state, some of which it will be financially impossible to see through.

By way of highway improvements, Safford said, he believed in building well, rather than spreading funds too thin and getting improvements which will not last. Rather, he said, he believes in building well and building where the most can be served.

Safford said he believes in choosing the best men for commissions and the like, regardless of party, and that when a man is given a job to do he should be of the best and be given authority to see the job through. And, he added, he believes that a state employe should earn his salary.

The candidate, who served in World War I with a number of Artesia and North Eddy County men, and in World War II as a lieutenant colonel, left here for Carlsbad. He said he will return to Artesia in a few days and hopes to meet a number of electors at that time.

Most advances in prices here have been on food stuffs. In some instances, meat prices have advanced. One case of an increase of 100 per cent was reported. In other cases, there has been no advance or increase. In some the increase has been slight. For instance, a local grocer explained there would be, according to his information from salesmen, plenty of bacon and hams within the first six weeks after OPA went out of existence. When questioned about the advance in price, he stated that his information was that the increase would be only 7 cents per pound on bacon and ham. He explained he had been getting 42 cents on bacon and the new price would be 49. This amounts to a 16 per cent increase.

There has also been a tendency on the part of some to raise rent of rooms, apartments, and on rent houses. Others have declared they will not advance their prices any.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed as Administratrix of the Estate of A. M. Archer, deceased, by Honorable Xury White, Probate Judge of Eddy County, New Mexico, and has qualified as such.

pressed most now is that rent control should remain or be put into effect, but that other prices should be left alone and all controls be left off. Citizens are voicing the opinion if these controls are left off that the prices will soon level off and that supply and demand will control the situation.

One tire dealer declared that truck tires, because of the supply, are being sold for less than ceiling prices and have been, even before the ceiling price was removed.

Local citizens are hopeful that the present situation will not only see a return of scarce food articles, but many clothing items, which have been scarce and hard to get. And local merchants are predicting that many of the clothing items, which have been scarce, will be back on the shelves once again soon if price controls are left off, and they seem inclined to believe the prices will not be too high.
