BOND FACTS—Approval Means Only $1.10 Boost

Passage of Tuesday's $250,000 school bond election would increase taxes in North Eddy county only $1.10 per $1,000 assessed valuation, the board of education said in a statement Saturday.

Here are other facts about Tuesday's bond election:
—Polls will be open from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.
—Balloting will be done at Loco Hills school (precinct 11, Loco Hills and Illinois camp), Artesia Veterans Memorial building (for residents of the city), Hope city hall, Atoka—old classroom building, Cottonwood school, Lake-wood Baptist church.

—Qualified voters in a bond issue are those who are property owners, paid a 1954 property tax, reside in the area where they intend to vote, and who previously voted at that voting place. In the case of Artesia, voters who cast ballots at any of the other five buildings used in a general election will all cast their votes at Veterans Memorial building.
—The election is for a $250,000 bond issue to build and equip a junior high school cafeteria, a vocational agriculture building, and renovate Central school.

Longhandles Key To Governor's Solid Comfort

SANTA FE (AP)—Gov. John Simms and Speaker of the House Donald Hallam of Hobbs crouched in the cold Nevada dawn waiting for the recent atomic test.
Simms rested easy. Hallam shivered. When Simms had to leave early a swap was negotiated: The foresighted governor left Hallam his long-handled underwear.

Scott Is Elected State Chamber Managers Officer

Paul Scott, manager of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce, Saturday was elected secretary-treasurer of the New Mexico State Chamber of Commerce Managers Assn.
Word of the election reached Artesia through an Associated Press dispatch from Tucumcari where the association held its 3-day convention which ended Saturday.
Scott has been manager of the Artesia chamber nearly three years. He came here from Clovis where he had been assistant chamber manager.
Frank Kaufman of Roswell was elected president of the association and Berl Huffman of Albuquerque was named vice president. Chet Cook of Tucumcari, George McBride of Santa Rosa, T. G. Peters of Clovis and Martha Atkinson of Belen were named to the board of directors.
Elected to the student affairs committee of the southwest institute was Louis Whilock of Carlsbad.
Scott was expected to be back in Artesia Monday. He is married and has a son. The family lives at 913 S. Eleventh.

Failure Would Hold Up Building Program

A failure in May 17's $250,000 school bond election or any other bond election in the next 10 years will throw city schools three years behind their master building plan, Board of Education Pres. Howard Stroup said Saturday.
Pointing out long-range building plans covering the next 10 years have been made by the board with the assistance of a large citizen's advisory committee, Stroup said total cost of the program is $2 million.
The Artesia district is able to vote about $250,000 a year said. That totals to $2½ million in 10 years.
However, when a bond issue fails, the law will not allow an issue to be called within the next two years. "This means the district would be thrown three years behind in its building program," Stroup said.
Earmarked for construction if the May 17 bond issue passes are completion of Junior high school by building a cafeteria, $77,000; renovation of Central elementary school, $50,000, and construction of a new vocational agriculture building, $75,000.
The remainder of the issue—$48,000—will be used for furnishing the new buildings—Junior high cafeteria and the vocational agriculture building—and for architects' and legal fees.
If the current bond issue is passed Tuesday, Stroup and C. C. Nelson, chairman of the board's building committee, list these needs for the next 10 years:
—Three elementary buildings, by 1965, $810,000.
—A second junior high school by 1962, $465,000.
—Completion of administration building, $30,000.
—Loco Hills school addition $25,000.
—Football stadium, $75,000.
—Senior high school gymnasium, $350,000.
—Senior high schools classrooms $350,000.

Two Artesia Teachers Retiring After Lengthy Service

Children Always Come First With Mrs. Ruth Joss
With Mrs. Ruth Joss, children have always come first.
She first realized this in 1909 when, at 16, she began teaching school at McCaulley, Texas.
"It is a wonderful privilege and grave responsibility of every teacher to teach boys and girls to love each other, our country, and God. "The teacher must always be the example."
With this philosophy Mrs. Joss has been teaching school 46 years. It would take a lot of counting to add up the youngsters she has helped and loved.

M. A. SAMS

M. A. Sams Is 61-Year Veteran In Education
When Milton A. Sams was three, his family moved from an Iowa homestead to a farm in southeastern Nebraska.
During the winter he attended school. The rest of the time he worked on the farm. By the time he was 17, he had obtained a teacher's certificate from Pawnee City Academy and started teaching in his home community.
That was in 1888.
After teaching three years, he enrolled in Nebraska Teachers' college where he graduated in 1897. He and his younger brother shared bachelor's quarters in order to stretch limited finances.
In 1898 he began a period of service as superintendent of schools which lasted until 1945. This period included service of more than 30 years in Nebraska, four years at Pawhuska, Okla.; several years at Peyton, Colo.; and four years in extension work with the Nebraska Agricultural college at Lincoln.
Mr. Sams has served as visiting teacher in the Artesia schools during the past 10 years. During this time, he has played a vital part in increasing average daily attendance by counseling boys, girls and parents.
Through his counseling many parents and children have been

Ag Teachers Point to Need For Building

Artesia's two agriculture instructors are anxious to see voters approve the $250,000 issue which, if passed, would give the school plant a new agriculture building.
Truman Short and Elmo Uxer lay down these arguments:
1—The building can't be heated. In wintertime the boys can hardly work except right by the stove.
2—Too small. This year 56 boys were enrolled, next year over 70 are expected. The building has actual facilities for about 30. "The classroom will handle 10 comfortably. Total square footage is about 2,400.
3—The shop is so small that when a boy has a project such as building a trailer or a hog-house — only he can work in the shop. The others have to work outside.
4—The place is a firetrap. It's a World War II Army barracks that whistles when the wind blows. The windows and eaves are so loose that last year class was turned out when the dust got bad. You could hardly see in the shop and classroom. The tar paper covering on the outside doesn't keep the dust out and there's no insulation to keep out summer's heat.
5—The arc welding area is exposed and there's a resulting danger of burning the boys' eyes.
On the lighter side, Uxer says the mice have eaten his lesson plans several times and that once the little creatures ate up all the seed samples. "Now we keep them in jars, fairly well protected," he said.
Plans for the new building indicate that most of these factors would be corrected. And Uxer emphasized that a new structure would provide "training facilities for agriculture in the community — which is one of the main industries here."

Patsy Cobble Is Named Best of ENMU Actresses

Patsy Cobble of Artesia has been named best actress of the year at Eastern New Mexico university, the Associated Press said Saturday.
She won the award for her performance in "The Late Christopher Bean." She appeared in four college productions this year.
Bill Bingham, freshman from Portales, was named best actor of the year. He appeared in the same productions as Miss Cobble.
Best supporting actor and actress were Donovan Marley, Portales freshman and Mapiorie Parker, junior from Ima, N. M.
The presentation was made Saturday as a part of the drama festival by Prof. William Moore of West Texas State College.

CHICAGO (AP)—Restaurateur Anton Kerscher now is convinced that politics is a rough road.

In 1946, this place was torn down to make way for a new expressway. He blamed the Illinois Democratic administration and became a Republican.

Now he has quit the Republicans because a new toll road connection between the expressway and the proposed Tri-State Turnpike will cut right through the new restaurant he built in 1951.

Students' Dream May Shadow Satellite for Outer Space

By DON FAIRCHILD

AUSTIN — A gimmick that looks like a partially inflated inner tube and may hold some answers to man's long dreamed-of conquest of outer space went on exhibit here today.

It is an eight foot model of a "space station" for satellite to the earth, shown for the first time at the University of Texas Power Show.

It was dreamed up by a couple of aeronautical engineering students.

Dr. M. J. Thompson, professor of aeronautical engineering and an associate director of the Defense Research Laboratory, is not selling the idea short.

The students, Don Gregory of Fort Worth and Clinton Ferrell of Sweetwater, think the doughnut-shaped model could evolve into a practical artificial satellite to the earth, provided somebody wants to spend four billion dollars.

It took that much money to push the Manhattan Project which eventually produced the A-bomb, Thompson said. This might take more.

The real thing would be hauled

1,000 miles out in space by sections, then put together like an assembly-line automobile.

The sections would be carted up by rocket ship.

Thompson said such a satellite could have considerable military importance. It would contribute to knowledge of weather and astronomy.

The satellite would be made of some nylon-type material, impregnated with plastic to be gas-tight.

The students said the actual thing would be about 300 feet across. That seemed sort of small but they said it would be "big enough."

Since there would be no gravity that high in the sky, the ship would have to "create" some.

This could be done by attaching pilot rockets to the thing to make it spin like a top.

Centrifugal force would then allow the inhabitants to "keep their feet on the ground." They would walk on the walls, like spiders. People at opposite points on the ship would be walking with their heads pointing together, their feet out.

Electricity and air-conditioning would be run by use of a solar reflector. You would harness the energy of the sun's rays and convert it into usable energy.

You would have your own gardens and animal farm, but you would be dependent on the earth for water supplies.

The satellite would rotate in an orbit around the earth, once every two hours. That's about 15,840 miles an hour.

OKAY PORT OF ENTRY

A-Sub-Maker Wants Atom For Needy

LOS ANGELES — John Jay Hopkins, president of the company that made the world's first atomic-powered submarine, has urged that the United States make atomic industrial power available first to underdeveloped areas of the world.

Hopkins, president of General Dynamics Corp. of New York, told a founder's day gathering at Occidental College that oil, coal and hydroelectric power are still cheaper in this country than atomic power.

But, he said, costs for conventional power run much higher in many parts of the world than they do in the United States. Hopkins whose company built the atomic-powered USS Nautilus, added:

"I think now that those who have studied this evolving atomic situation are pretty well agreed that the time has come when it is practical for private enterprise to develop atomic power for peaceful purposes. The present question is, what is the best way to get started?"

"It seems to me that the answer to that question lies in what I call the 'paradox of world markets.' By this I mean, that the quickest way to make atomic power generally available in our own country, in my opinion, is to make it available first abroad, and particularly in the so-called 'underdeveloped areas.'"

"Though atomic power in the United States," said Hopkins, "is not yet competitive price-wise with mineral fuels or water power, it is definitely competitive in many other countries."

"Industrialization by atom will sharply raise the income of these countries, and will make them major markets for American crops and goods through mutually beneficial trade," he said.

"The experience gained by installing atomic reactors abroad, with the cost reductions and technological improvements that are bound to result, will speed the day when it is feasible to make general use of atomic power here at home."

He said that he considered the atomic submarine built by General Dynamics to be on the "bright side" of the atomic situation. The Nautilus is far more than a weapon, he said.

"If the Nautilus were to tie up tomorrow at the dock at Groton, Conn., and connect her atomic engines to that city's power system, she could keep its lights burning with its electric engines running possibly for weeks on end—without refueling."

Grandad's Multi-Plying Reel Best

For the average fisherman, the reel and rod are the most important pieces of his equipment. The multi-plying reel with the movable spool was invented in granddad's time but it's the ticket for those who want to fish sitting down in their own special areas—casting, casting off shore into water and fishing deep sea in inland lakes—it's still tops.

The multi-plying reel usually turns four times to the turn of the handle. The line is pulled out by the weight of the lure or lure or both.

It enables the fisherman to cast a great variety of artificial lures and casting reels are made as carefully as watches. Yet they are models sell for under 10.

These engineers have done their best to take the human element out of reel troubles. Many reels have adjustable tensions and built-in devices that virtually eliminate the traditional backlash. The adjustment is simple with regular turns and an occasional new pawl is necessary. The pawl is the device that guides the level of tension something young fishermen won't fully appreciate.

The casting reel usually is between four and six feet in length. The best are built something like a fly rod, and of similar materials—bamboo or glass. They're made and taper faster. Economy reels can be had for under $10.

As to the line the bait caster has choice of fancy stuff like the leader or even the spinner. The best is a substantial level of braided of linen or nylon, ranging somewhere between 12 and 20 pounds for inland fishing, more for trolling.

As to the lures themselves, a good guide for beginners is: you need a surface plug, a shallow-running lure, a diving plug that goes deep when reeled fast, and a wobbling spoon. There are famous old names in each of these classifications, and after you have one of each you're about ready as you'll ever be. A box full of varying sizes and hues will be a pleasure to behold but it won't catch you many more fish than a skilled retrieve, varying the speed, changes any lure.

In action, the bait casting rod is more difficult to handle at first than either fly rod or spinning rod, and practice pays off. The beginner should adjust his reel tension to a 3/4 or 1/2 ounce weight plug, try pointing his rod in the general direction he wishes to cast, at about the 2 o'clock position.

Then lift the rod slowly, holding

Matching Fish Lures Make Good Earrings

CHICAGO—Clip the barb off two matching fishing lures. Push large pearls over hooks. Glue rhinestones and sequins here and there. Attach to drop earrings and glue sequins and rhinestones to cup of earwire.

What is it? An eye-catching pair of earrings with an outdoor touch. It's the newest how-to-do-it chore. Robert Deutsch has created for thousands of housewives who seem to thrive on such projects.

Women with an eye for something glittery to wear, use, or just have around the house to look at, plus a yen to make it themselves, a thumb on the reel spool to prevent slippage, to 12 o'clock — or possibly back to 11 o'clock at first, before practiced wrist action provides the snap—and bring the rod tip forward again to 2 o'clock. Right smartly does it, with the thumb lifted so the spool can let the lure cast. Not hard, just smartly, and let the wrist do the work.

When you can hit the water 30 feet away, you may start to catch fish. When you can hit a bubble 30 feet away, you may catch fish with the best of them.

keep him scratching for original ideas to keep them busy.

For all concerned, it's a case of all that glitters is gold. As the world's largest purveyor of loose beads (some 100 tons a year), rhinestones, fake pearls, sequins and cork, his five-and-dime items are distributed through some 15,000 variety stores.

His staff of 30 women instructors travels fulltime to give on-the-spot demonstrations.

His small factory on Chicago's northwest side fills a million packages a week with fake pearls from Japan, beads from Germany and Italy and rhinestones from Austria. The sequins are made in the United States from motion picture film.

He now operates five companies. Their combined sales last year totalled five million dollars.

Women often suggest unusual materials to use.

Deutsch heard Texas women were covering fishing corks with sequins to make sparkle bobbers to be hung from a belt or wherever the wearer considered them attractive. He ordered four million of them and 20,000 pounds of half-inch straight pins for attaching the sequins to the corks.

Women jewel everything from scrub buckets to plastic handset telephone covers. Tissue dispensers, piggy banks, hammers, hats, necklaces, sweaters, corks, furniture—all are like putty in a woman's hands when a tube of cement and an envelope of glittery jewels are handy.

Artesia Hosts Angelo This Afternoon

Roswell won a tight ballgame by 4-3 last night to throw Artesia back 2 1/2 games behind the league leading Rockets.

This afternoon the NuMexers will host San Angelo in a game scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. High school seniors are invited to be guests of the ball club.

Losing pitcher Al Chester turned in the most remarkable performance of last night's game. In the fourth inning with two on base he struck out three successive Roswell batters. But in the sixth with two out he loaded the bases on walks. Third baseman Rod Arco fled out to end the threat.

For Roswell last night's game was the second night straight of errorless ball. The NuMexers were charged with three miscues.

Artesia outthrew the Rockets 12-3, but couldn't cluster them in the right spots.

The NuMexers took the lead in the second inning with a pair of runs on four hits—all singles by Dan Howard, Charlie Watts, Jim Bacon, and Joe Coscia, with Howard and Watts scoring.

Roswell evened it up in the third after two outs. Mario Coscia was walked and Walt Knapp tripled him home, then scored on a passed ball.

Artesia went ahead 3-2 in the top of the seventh when Bacon singled and after two outs Bobby Boyd singled him home.

But Joe Bauman's homer in the eighth and a run for Knapp in the ninth after he singled and Wayne White doubled put Roswell ahead.

Chester allowed six walks altogether last night, but struck out eight, while winner Dean Franks walked none, struck out only three. Chester allowed eight hits, Franks 12.

Attendance last night was estimated at 600.

Three Summer Baseball Loops Busy 220 Boys

At least 220 kids in Artesia will be kept busy this summer. That's how many will be engaged in playing baseball in the city's three leagues for youngsters.

Altogether, there'll be 17 teams using players ranging in age from seven to 18.

Boys League, headed up by Pres. Chuck Brown, will have the largest number of players. The league has eight teams of 15 boys each and four "minor league" teams with 40 players total. This brings the grand total up to 160.

The American Legion team in Artesia, headed up by Red Goodwin, official Longhorn league, scorer, will get started right after school. About 50 boys are shooting for spots on the team, but only 15 will be used.

They'll play teams in Roswell, Carlsbad, Hobbs and maybe Loving. Each team, according to Goodwin, will have two home games and two road games. "At least that's the schedule we hope to set up," he said.

Only boys born after Sept. 1, 1937, are eligible to play.

NEWEST of the outfits is the Babe Ruth League which uses boys

Texas A&M College Orders Probation For Two Years on Recruiting Violations

HOUSTON, Texas (AP)—Southwest conference faculty representatives today slapped a two-year probation on Texas A&M for recruiting policy violations. It was the stiffest penalty in conference history.

Letters of intent signed for A&M by prospective athletes since April 15 also were canceled, releasing an unknown number of high school seniors to enroll at other conference schools if they so desire.

It also banned post-season contests by Aggie athletic teams.

No details of the rules violations were released.

In a prepared statement, the conference governing body said A&M coaches and alumni have violated recruiting rules despite previous warnings.

"After careful deliberation, the conference concluded that to improve recruiting practices more drastic action than further warnings was necessary," the statement said.

"I'm shocked," said Bear Bryant, A&M athletic director and head football coach.

Bryant said the cancellation of letters of intent will hurt the Aggie recruiting program "to a certain extent."

"But we have a fine freshman squad which will carry us through 1955," he said. "It simply means we'll have to revisit prospects, still hoping they will choose to come to A&M. These boys will be bounded by everyone to go somewhere else. That's just another obstacle we'll have to overcome."

Under conference rules, an athlete can sign letters of intent to attend a school and thereafter another conference school cannot contact him. This is intended to relieve pressure on the athletes and stop offering of inducements.

Interest in the Aggie athletic program has zoomed since Bryant moved there last year from Kentucky. The Aggies last fall had their largest freshman football squad in history and another bumper crop had been expected this year.

The probation, while effective today, prohibits A&M from participating in any post-season athletic contest after Sept. 15. That leaves the way open for Aggie teams to take part in annual NCAA meet this year.

As Women Protest, Lanky Officer Asks Only Orders

By BOB STONE

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—He has been called a moralist, a publicity seeker and a power-mad Army officer. But Col. John H. Dilly says of himself:

"I'm just trying to carry out orders."

The tall, sandy-haired West Point graduate stirred up a fuss last summer by cracking down on sloppily dressed American Army wives here. He repeated his campaign this spring.

Both times the reaction was violent.

"Who does he think he is, telling us what to wear?" fumed a sergeant's wife. But she, like the others, soon cooled off and complied. Letters of praise and criticism poured into Dilly's office from all over the world.

"I don't get it," Dilly said in an interview. "I'm just trying to carry out orders. Army regulations mention the subject and I only spelled it out."

Dilly commands the Frankfurt Army detachment. He banned peekaboo sunsuits, bare midriffs, strapless, low-cut dresses, shorts, pin curlers and dungarees as the public wear of Army wives.

High officers at the Army's European headquarters in Heidelberg seem pleased with the 44-year-old colonel. There's a rumor Dilly will be assigned to a regiment in July.

"John's okay," said a fellow officer. "He's just one of those go-getters. When he thinks he's right, nothing will stop him."

Voluminous Polio Vaccine Report Ready Monday

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House announced today it will release a voluminous report Monday on the Salk polio vaccine program.

The mass inoculation of first and second-grade school children began picking up momentum again, after a week-long suspension for "new safety checks, government scientific inspectors moved into the second office laboratories making the serum."

Enough vaccine for more than a million shots was released by the U. S. public health service late yesterday as a result of their inspection of the first plant on the list, Parke, Davis & Co. of Detroit.

The check and doublecheck team is now at the Eli Lilly & Co. laboratories in Indianapolis. Other plants to be visited, though not necessarily by the same team, are Pitman-Moore Co., Indianapolis; and Sharp & Dohme, Inc. and Wyeth Inc., both of Philadelphia.

The product of a sixth manufacturer, Cutter Laboratories of Berkeley, Calif., has been withdrawn for a special check.

Now look over the propeller and the drive pin, if your motor has one. Some have friction clutches instead. If there is a pin and it appears worn, replace it. Also, put a spare in a piece of tape on the motor where you can find it come that lowering day when you're two miles from camp and it starts to rain and you shear the pin by running over a log or a rock.

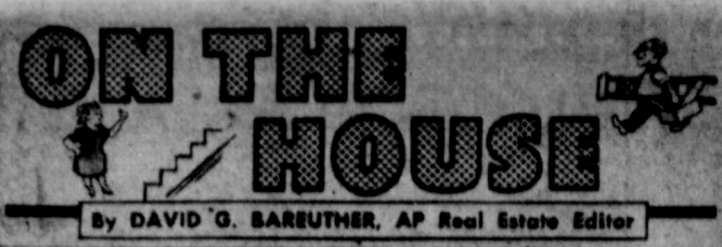

If you run over a log last year, take a file to that propeller, too. Smooth out any nicks and dips. This will smooth the action and cut down the vibration that's an enemy to the motor and the boat.

DRILLER'S CAFE

AMERICAN CAFE

By DAVID G. BARUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

"LET THERE be light!" seems to have been the first command given in the building of our universe, but apparently few home builders and interior decorators ever read the account of that project.

The result is that most of our homes are so poorly lighted there may be some justification for the man who prefers to spend his evenings with his cronies among the bright lights.

"The total cost of all fixtures built into the average new homes today amounts to the absurdly low figure of $25," says the American Home Lighting Institute.

The ladies, bless them, and their love for table lamps may be partly to blame for that. This writer, for example, is about reconciled to going through life with a slightly tilted neck from trying to read under a decorative lamp.

"Before you buy a home," advises the lighting institute, "check the absence or presence of lighting fixtures and you'll probably save both money and headaches."

One reason many new homes have no fixtures in living, dining and bedrooms is that builders often take orders for their houses in a handsomely furnished model home. The decorator, displaying the wares of the furniture stores, places a number of attractive table and floor lamps around—beside lamps and boudoir lamps—and the buyer doesn't realize that the light is not going to be thrown in with the house deal.

Because of the way families live nowadays, with youngsters doing their school work while the television set is going full blast, with lights left on in the playroom, breezeway and garage, and floodlights in the yard, a modern home needs more current for lighting alone than was needed for all purposes a few years ago.

An old rule-of-thumb standard for room lighting called for three watts per square foot of floor area. Experts now figure that homes should have six or seven per square foot, while stores and offices can run as high as 20. Statisticians for Kennecott Copper figure that house wiring has become obsolete in more than 34 million homes in this country.

Of course, portable lamps are essential to most decorative schemes, but they are primarily designed to provide pools of light. A combination of portable lamps and down-light from fixtures is needed for good vision.

Cove lights and other forms of periphery illumination can be used to diffuse light throughout a room without causing direct glare. Some

At Seeding Time, Spread Seeds Out—Very Thinly

AP Newsfeatures
Spread is a word with many meanings.

To a woman it might immediately suggest wide hips or bedspread. A gambler (professional, that it) knows it as a betting term.

But the gardener knows it as something he must do at seeding time.

You've got to spread the seed. The seed packet tells you to sow thinly. This means to spread the seed in the rows.

The seeds you now are sowing or ready to sow vary from those so minute that a packet marked "750 seeds" (such as petunia) gives you just about enough for something to rub between two fingers.

Others, such as beans, give you a real fingerful in each seed to handle for the garden row.

No matter the size of the seed in the packet for the home gardener do your best to spread it thinly. The more you spread your sowing in the row, the less you have to thin your seedlings, the better they will grow, and the less crowding you'll have in the early growing process.

For tiny seeds, you don't have to take a hoe and dig a furrow to plant them. Take the sharp edge of a piece of 1 x 2 and press it into the ground. Then make believe you are sprinkling salt between your fingers, and slowly let the seed trickle as you move your hand fairly rapidly. Then barely cover the seed with fine soil. Press down with the flat of a board under your weight for firming.

No action was taken against the horse, which sat down on the hood of the car after the collision and kicked out both headlights.

PORTLAND, Ore.—Russell Graham, 43, appeared in Municipal Court on a speeding charge and presented an instrument survey taken on his auto's speedometer to Traffic Judge Philip Bagley. It showed that at 36 miles an hour his speedometer registered only 27.

BARRINGTON, Ill. — Steers fed a diet of corn and hay supplemented with female sex hormone on more pounds at less cost without apparent ill effects.

Ralph McCall, beef cattle research manager of The Quaker Oats Co., says one lot of 16 steer got the hormones in a controlled test. A second lot of steers, the controls was fed the same ration without hormones.

Each test steer was given if milligrams of the hormone a day as prescribed by the Food and Drug Administration, McCall said.

After the first month both lot were given all the feed they could eat.

The test group gained an average of 2.83 pounds a day, compare to 2.35 pounds a day gained by the controls. The feed cost for each hundredweight gain for the test lot was $22.34. Costs for the controls was $24.25 for each hundredweight.

Test steers weighed an average of 1,172½ pounds and the controls 1,093½ pounds.

The synthetic hormone used has been manufactured as a white powder for the last 20 years. The Food and Drug Administration has recently approved its use as an appetizer for beef cattle. It is used in the poultry industry to fatten cockrels.

Purdue University, Iowa State College and others have been experimenting with the female sex hormone as a stimulant to enable animals to gain weight faster and more economically.

The female sex hormone is found in dehydrated green feeds. Traces of it are evident in young grass. The synthetic product is a compound of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen.

First use of the female sex hormone was by pellet implanted under the hide of the steer. But the slow assimilation of the drug by this method resulted in high carryover in some areas of the animal.

McCall said the female hormone probably stimulates the pituitary gland and steps up the action of the millions of rumen bacteria that live in the first stomach of cattle.

The hormone is not fed to cows about to calve or to bulls used for breeding purposes, McCall said.

Tetanus Shots Are Must for Youngsters

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D. AP Newsfeatures.

Tetanus, or lockjaw, is a nasty disease. It's not very common these days but since almost everyone who gets it dies with it it's worth quite a bit of trouble to avoid it.

Tetanus is caused by the tetanospasmodium. This germ is present in street dirt and is especially abundant around barns where there are cows and horses. It is also abundant in manure used to fertilize gardens.

The tetanus germ is different from many other kinds of germs. It has the special ability to form spores. These spores are a form of the germ that can live under conditions that would kill a regular germ. They can withstand drying and sunlight and boiling.

Tetanus spores can only grow when they get into a "gap" — a place away from air.

If there happens to be a tetanus spore on some object that gives you a deep puncture wound there is danger you might get tetanus.

If you get a wound from which there is danger of tetanus and you have never had tetanus shots, you must have tetanus anti-toxin. It is the only thing that will act quickly enough to prevent tetanus after an injury. We cannot make tetanus anti-toxin in the laboratory. The only way we can get it is to inject horses with the germ and then take blood from the horse.
