Looking Ahead for Artesia — I

Planned Growth Of City Being Studied

Editor's Note—This month Artesia celebrated the 50th anniversary of its incorporation as a city. This half century milestone makes an ideal observation post from which to view the years ahead.

By RAY BLACK
Artesia has come of age. Out of a lusty infancy and a helter-skelter, somewhat gawky adolescence, there has emerged a proud city — proud of its bustle, proud of its aura of prosperity and well being, proud of its reputation for open-handed hospitality.

BRAND NEW TEACHERS for the Artesia school system smile their pleasure at the reception they are being accorded. Here some of them are shown leaving Hermosa school to board a school bus for a sightseeing tour of the city.

Flood - Ravaged East Draws New Hope From Ike's Vow

The worst confusion was clearing up today in flood-ravaged sections of the Northeastern states. Even in the most severely wrecked communities, where life was still badly disrupted, there was new hope from President Eisenhower's promise of massive federal aid for rehabilitation.

French Call Up Reservists To Meet Moroccan Rebellion

PARIS (AP)—Call-up notices went out today to French reservists, summoning them from vacations on beaches and in the mountains to help bolster the battle with nationalist rebels in France's strife-torn North African territories.

Osorio in Good Condition After Barroom Shooting

CARLSBAD (AP)—Condition of Pedro Osorio, Carlsbad first baseman shot in a bar room fight Monday night, was described as good today at Carlsbad Memorial Hospital.

Joint City, Hill Committee Drafts Important Project

New Mexico's entire congressional delegation and high officials of three federal agencies are included in invitations being drafted today to a conference in Artesia next month on this area's flood control-water conservation dilemma.

The bold step of calling a conference on a national level was decided upon last night at a meeting in the Artesia Chamber of Commerce committee room.

Cafe Hostess Denies Belief Mehta Negro

HOUSTON (AP)—Mrs. Mary Alley today denied she segregated India's Ambassador to the United States to the airport cafe because she thought he was a Negro.

The restaurant supervisor has claimed she recognized G. L. Mehta as an important person and moved him with his secretary to a private dining room.

Mehta yesterday received a flurry of apologies from the State Department and Houston's mayor over the incident, which occurred Monday.

Here Sept. 15 The intention is for them to meet here, probably on Sept. 15, with the Hope delegation headed by Mayor Mrs. Ethel Altman.

British Airmen Make Round Trip In 13 1/2 Hours

LONDON (AP)—Two British aviators had dinner at home with their wives last night just as they planned—after flying to New York for lunch.

Pilot John Hackett and navigator Peter Money penny made the double transatlantic flight of 6,914 miles in 13 hours 46 minutes 56.2 seconds.

USAF Seeking Speed Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force has been trying to establish the world's first official speed record for an airplane flying faster than sound and may already have done so.

The new mark, if achieved, will be announced at the National Aircraft Show in Philadelphia Sept. 5, as the Thompson Trophy award.

The plane in which the record may already have been set — an F-100C—will be flown at low altitude above the Philadelphia air show.

Osorio in Good Condition After Barroom Shooting

CARLSBAD (AP)—Condition of Pedro Osorio, Carlsbad first baseman shot in a bar room fight Monday night, was described as good today at Carlsbad Memorial Hospital.

Hospital attendants said Osorio probably would not remain too long.

The Potasher first baseman, a citizen of Panama, was shot in the upper chest, the bullet lodging in the shoulder at the Saloon Bar.

William Jones, part owner of the bar, pleaded innocent to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon in the shooting.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Charles Feezer said the shooting "involved allegations as to Osorio's race," but Jones denied this.

Osorio threw a full beer glass at him as the climax of a quarrel and that he reached under the bar, grabbed a .38 automatic and struck the baseball player across the face with the barrel. Jones said the weapon hit the bar and accidentally discharged.

Whether that criticism is well-founded or not will be one of the judgments for which this series of articles will seek a basis of facts.

There seem to be two schools of thought on the whole question. The slogan of one group is "We're doing fine, the best we can. Why not let well enough alone?"

Other group protests, "We're getting to be a sizable city. It's time to take stock and see where we are headed. We need some kind of a plan."

Children Gain Confidence With Reading

PAW PAW, Mich.—Children once called dumbbells come alive at Dorothy G. Anderson's Reading Center, a clinic for retarded readers.

The former public school teacher helps children to gain the interest and self-confidence they need in acquiring reading skill.

She started her clinic last January as part of her project for a master's degree from Western Michigan College. She has won the degree and plans now to expand her reading classes.

Mrs. Anderson works with retarded children—not with mentally retarded children. Discussing the inability of some youngsters to make progress in reading, Mrs. Anderson said:

"There's nearly always a frustration angle that arises when, for one reason or another, a child fails to get the proper start."

Most striking, she said, is the personality change that occurs when children find they aren't dumbbells and can learn to read after all.

They may be inhibited and withdrawn at the start, but as their interest and confidence grow, they become responsive and relaxed. As Mrs. Anderson describes them:

"They come alive."

She makes use of such technical training devices as a reading accelerator, to increase reading speed, and a tachistoscope, which flashes a picture and corresponding word on a screen to increase eye span.

But her big contribution is rapport, or getting in close contact with her pupils.

"It's a matter of finding something the child is interested in, and which he can read with success," she explains. "I just get them started and then it's up to them."

Mrs. Anderson keeps the atmosphere informal and sometimes wears blue jeans to avoid any similarity to formal classroom surroundings.

She believes her reading center is unique in being limited to a small community, although it offers the same facilities on a small scale as the psycho-educational reading center at Western Michigan College.

Mrs. Anderson has achieved her best results with children below the sixth grade age group. Now she plans to offer reading classes for high school and adult students too who could use her special help.

Two GIs Wanted Revenge, Both Wrote Best Sellers

NEW YORK, July 23.—"Some day I'm going to write a book."

That was the angry vow of a pair of fellows who got pushed around more than they liked by the Army in Luzon in late 1944 and early 1945.

"Could a man get even any better way?" one of them asked me when they were having one of their frequent reunions in this city.

Well, he could shake his fist, kick a door, curse, or take to drink, but they both believed the pen was mightier than the sword or the swear word.

And so they both wrote books. You have read them or heard of them, for they're among the top-ranking World War II novels. One author is Norman Mailer, whose "The Naked and the Dead" was published in 1948; the other is Francis Irbly Gwaltney, whose "The Day the Century Ended" appeared only some weeks ago.

They served together more than a year in a Regimental Combat Team, in the same troop but different platoons. During the fighting they were in the same perimeter, or circle of foxholes. Mailer was there a month before Gwaltney. When Gwaltney arrived, he recalled:

"I spent the first day griping as hard and loud as I could. Norman heard about it and looked me up. So he and I spent almost the entire night talking. About how we hated the Army books."

Mailer is a Brooklynite, at least by adoption, though right now he lives in Manhattan. He's black-haired, ready with a smile, an easy and accomplished talker. He calls Gwaltney Fig, from the initials. Fig is an Arkansas man with an equally amiable but slower smile, with lighter hair, and with a southern drawl.

"I hated the Army," said Mailer. "I liked military life when it was run properly," said Gwaltney. Mailer didn't think much of Texans, either: "It was a tough outfit, originally Texas National Guard. I was with them two months before they'd even nod to me."

Gwaltney had a slightly better opinion of them: "Some of them were actually cowboys. They walked around with six-guns on their hips. And they were bow-legged guys"—he formed an O-shape with a sweep of his hands.

What about rank? Mailer answered quickly: "Fig was a mean sergeant."

Gwaltney said: "Norman was a mean private."

"But I never got the edge of his tongue, he wasn't over me."

Both of these writers have had two books published by Rinehart. Gwaltney has a third in the works; Mailer has a new novel, "The Deer Park," due in the fall from Putnam's. Gwaltney used to teach; now he's salesman for still another publisher, Lippincott, in and around his home state.

They get together in Arkansas as well as New York. "But it's hot there," says Mailer. "Only 104 or 105," says Gwaltney, "warm maybe but not hot. And Norman just melts away."

"That's an outrageous lie," says Mailer promptly and laughingly. "I go out there and walk and down maybe the sun wears me down so I leave a trail of water behind me, but I walk, while everybody else in the state just lies down and does nothing."

They knew the same officers and privates in the Army, and the same scenes of action. But neither one recognizes any of the other's characters, and the two books are totally unlike. "Naked and Dead" was set on an imaginary island of Anophele; Gwaltney says "The Day the Century Ended" was set on Luzon. Other differences are due not to what the Army into the Army; opposite kinds of gave them but to what they took attitudes and outlooks.

"I was city," said Mailer, "and he was country."

Summer Time Is Delight to Real Eager Shutterbug

AP Newsfeatures

Summer beaches are an unfailing annual magnet for photographers and can prove to be a source of great photo pleasure and/or a distinct menace. There you'll find bathing beauties and glamor; human interest in action and relaxation; scenic simplicity in sky, sand and water.

There you'll also find that the sand and salt water can damage your camera and that excessive sunshine can be a triple threat; it can burn up the camera, the pictures and the camera fan.

As long as you know what's in store, you can take steps to improve the quality of your beach photos and short circuit the dangers.

One thing is for sure: the average camera fan's bathing beauty pin-up photos lack the oomph and appeal that is possible with the subject matter. We take into consideration, and even concede, that our wives, sisters and girl friends may not possess the professional models and actresses who enhance the pin-ups usually seen in our newspapers and magazines.

However, more attention should be placed on better posing, use of appropriate grounds, side and back lighting and the right camera angle.

In posing, beware of distortion caused by arms or feet jutting out toward the camera. The female figure looks more alluring when composed of curves, so avoid any action which presents the limbs in any harsh angles.

The hands shouldn't disappear in sand or a blanket so as to look as though it were amputated at the wrist.

The hands and fingers should present a graceful line and should never appear to clutch or grip a prop tightly. If the weight is on a leg or arm, there should be no strain visible.

Figures will have a trimmer line if hands do not bisect the body at the waist or cover the bust. Overhead action with the hands and a three-quarter or side view also tend to make the figure look slimmer.

Good props can help a pose and a picture. A colorful beach ball or umbrella, a fishing net, surf and rocks or even that old standby, driftwood, gives the hands and body something natural to do and each lends appropriate atmosphere.

Busy beach backgrounds can be avoided by high and low angles so as to get plain sand and water or a summer sky. In the latter case use a medium yellow K-2 filter to emphasize the clouds in black-and-white pictures.

Sand and water act as giant natural reflectors of the sky light and therefore require a little less exposure. However, you can take advantage of this factor and shoot with the sun as a side-light at normal speed. With the sun as a back-light, for even more dramatic effect, you would need more exposure; at least one more stop or double the time.

A strong sun usually means deep, dark shadows. These can be lightened somewhat by strategic placement of white towels or a light wall unless you've made prior plans and brought along a handmade reflector of aluminum or silver foil.

Daylight flash is often used to lighten these black shadows, but its intensity must be diminished so that the sunlight effect isn't lost entirely. Shoot at normal daylight exposures but move the

Eddy County Women Enthusiastic Over 'Make It With Wool' Contest

CARLSBAD, N.M.—The do-it-yourself trend has swelled the ranks of the nation's home sewing enthusiasts. Over 38 million women and girls now make part or all of their own clothes, a recent survey shows.

"Sewing heads the list of current leisure time activities with 88% of all women listing sewing as their number one hobby, the survey determined.

Added stimulation to this growing market of sewers comes from such activities as the national 'Make It Yourself with Wool' contest, which is open to girls between the ages of 14 and 22. In this state the number of young women who participate in the contest is growing each year.

Girls still have time to enter the contest and make their wool garments for district judgments which will be held the first week in September. Four winners in each district will receive all-expense-paid trips to the state finals to be held in Albuquerque September 27. The contest is sponsored in the state by the Women's Committee of the New Mexico Wool Growers Association, headed by Mrs. T. D. Burns of Chama; the State Fair Commission; the National Wool Growers Auxiliary and the Wool Bureau.

Mrs. C. F. McWilliams of Carlsbad, New Mexico state contest director, urged that all girls who wish to enter the event should

NuMexers Edge Eagles, 7-6, On Two Odessa Errors In Eighth

SPORTS

Jordan Racks Up Five More RBIs, Homer

The Artesia NuMexers edged the Odessa Eagles here last night, 7-6 in a game that saw eight of the 13 runs driven in by home runs.

League-leading Longhorn batter and Artesia player manager Tom Jordan accounted for one of the round-trippers with two men on in the bottom of the third inning and finished the evening with five RBIs to this already top-heavy credit.

Three unearned runs in the bottom of the eighth inning on two errors by the Eagles gave the NuMexers the game.

Winning Pitcher Jim Kenaga gave up ten hits and two walks while his opponent, Hal Swearingen, was tagged for 11 hits and passed four batters.

A doubleheader is scheduled between the two clubs here tonight.

The top three clubs in the West Texas-New Mexico League took a beating Tuesday night. Amarillo and Albuquerque, tied for first, lost to Abilene and Plainview respectively, and Pampa, in second, bowed to El Paso, the bottom runner.

Abilene whitewashed Amarillo 2-0; Plainview tripped Albuquerque 9-7, and El Paso downed Pampa 10-6. In the other game, Lubbock beat Clovis 4-1.

Richardson Might Replace Seixas for Davis Singles

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP)—Bill Talbert, U. S. Davis Cup captain, admitted today that he was toying with the idea of sending Hamilton Richardson into the Challenge Round against Australia in place of the slumping Vic Seixas.

Talbert will have to make his decision within the next 24 hours. The draw is scheduled for tomorrow and the first two singles matches will be played Friday.

Drake Favorite Over Giovanelli In Bout Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—Ray Drake is a 7-5 favorite to make good in his Madison Square Garden debut as a headliner tonight.

The solidly built, 25-year-old Brooklyn middleweight faces Danny Giovanelli, another Brooklyn leatherpusher, in a 10-rounder.

As an amateur, Drake beat Floyd Patterson, now the No. 1 light heavyweight contender, three times. While Patterson has had a meteoric rise in the pros, Drake has been climbing slowly but steadily.

Seattle Splits Bill With Seals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seattle split a Pacific Coast League doubleheader with San Francisco last night to improve by a half game its lead over second place Hollywood.

The Rainiers won the opener, 5-4, then took a 3-2 defeat. Hollywood was shut out by Portland 2-0. In other games Oakland defeated San Diego, 5-3, and Los Angeles took Sacramento 4-3.

Dodgers Snap Slump, Whip Cubs 6-4, Newcombe Yanked

By JOHN CHANDLER

The Associated Press

Don Newcombe may still be the ace of the Brooklyn Dodgers pitching staff, but he was wondering today whether he would connect for his 19th victory of the season.

His power hitting partner, Furillo and Duke Snider, snapped out of it last night to defeat the Chicago Cubs at Newcombe wasn't around to finish the game.

Don Bessent relieved Newcombe last night and posted his sixth victory without defeat when Furillo hit his 21st homer with one on in the seventh. He also had a single and a double. Duke Snider, also in a slump as the Dodgers had lost nine of their previous 13 outings, chipped in with two doubles, driving home two runs.

Stan Lopata singled with the bases full in the ninth as the Phillies scored three times to defeat Milwaukee. Jack Meyer, ace reliever, got the decision after taking over from Murry Dickson in the ninth.

Baltimore Errors

Four Baltimore errors aided Chicago in winning the opener, while Virgil Trucks gained his 13th victory. Bob Kennedy homered for the Sox.

Dark's Advice Backfires in Cardinal Win

NEW YORK (AP)—Manager Harry Walker said today the St. Louis Cardinals owed a vote of thanks to Alvin Dark, the Giants' brilliant captain, for their 2-1 victory over New York last night.

Before the game, Walker revealed, he had requested Dark to give a private batting lesson to Ken Boyer, the Redbirds' promising rookie third baseman. Boyer must have heeded Dark's instruction, for his three ringing hits snapped the Redbirds' five-game losing streak.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)—Top-notch pitching performances and some timely hitting have put Morrisville, Pa., and Winchester, Mass., into the semi-finals of the ninth annual Little League World Series.

Morrisville, behind Tommy Kaczor's two hit pitching, edged Glen Falls, N. Y., 4-3, last night. Winchester gained its semi-final berth on the four-hit pitching of southpaw Vandy French, who also chipped in three hits in an 8-5 win over Hamtramck, Mich., yesterday afternoon.

We'll Get Action Then

A check of the things that congress did not do before adjourning and left to do next year indicates that it will not only be a busy year—election—year but plenty of things will be done.

The sessions of congress will be a battle of votes with the members of the house coming up for re-election; part of the senators; and a new president.

Any arguments that congress might want to advance as to whether what they do it done on a political basis or not can now be tossed out the window. It is clearly indicated they left a good many things undone this year in order to be able to point out to the voters next year just how well they serve them.

We wouldn't consider putting off, postponing and delaying action on needed legislation until an election year is exactly serving the public, the taxpayers, the voters or the citizens.

In other words, the welfare of the country doesn't matter but the welfare of the political party does matter.

Among those things they postponed action on was aid for schools. We are not so sure we want it unless we want more meddling on the part of the federal government in our schools. They postponed any action on the proposed highway bill. It appeared this fell by the side of the road strictly on party line basis.

The Republicans want one thing and the Democrats another, so we just put it off until next year.

Any increase in the coverage under the social security program was postponed—good talking point in election year. Postponed action on the Colorado River bill; delayed any action on balancing the budget or reducing of taxes—all political fodder when they get around to it next year.

But they did get around to voting $2.7 billion dollars for the foreign aid program but they did not provide funds for the needed flood control in our country—some funds, but not enough.

But the American people are used to having politics taken care of first and their welfare considered second and this practice is going to be continued just as long as they tolerate and permit it to be done.

And don't think that one party isn't just as bad as the other—both parties as represented in congress have indicated they are more interested in politics than they are the welfare of the nation.

sweeps away as waste and engulfs the city of Artesia as a flood.

The attitude of Artesia was put into words by Manager Scott as follows:

"It's a case of too much water coming down on us at once. We don't want a repetition of the Oct. 7 flood last year when sandbag barricades were all that saved us from far worse damage than we suffered."

All-Year Needs
The view of the Hope delegation was aptly expressed by Bryant Williams, owner of a large turkey farm and resident of the Hope community for many years. He said:

"We need water the year around, not just during a brief rainy season after July 1. It's a shame to waste all the good water that runs off down the Eagle and the Pecos. And it is wasted because other tributaries of the Pecos are overloaded at the same time and the high water doesn't benefit anyone farther down the river. It just rolls on to the Gulf. If we could have held back the wasted flood waters of recent years, we would have had enough water despite the drought."

Consensus was that best solution to the dual problem of alternate drought and flood would be a series of retarding dams along Eagle Creek. Hope delegates contended that such dams would not deprive the Pecos of its due of water, since the Eagle rarely flows into the Pecos except during flood times.

PATHS OF PROGRESS

Federal O. K. Sought

Authorization for aid and construction of such dams, it was agreed, are the province of either the Army engineers or the Soil Conservation Service, or perhaps of both. It was that belief that prompted decision to call officials of the two agencies, as well as of the Bureau of Reclamation, into consultation.

Advice and assistance of the state's congressmen would be imperative also, those at the meeting believed.

Calling of the conference was heartily endorsed by William M. Siegenthaler, Artesia attorney and chairman of the Chamber flood control committee.

"I think our entire congressional delegation should know the facts about our problem," Siegenthaler said. "Asking them here to discuss it seems our best plan."

Attorney Siegenthaler said the last congress appropriated $25,000 for an Army engineers' survey of the watershed intended to determine the best remedial program.

One solution under study is a water diversion levee that would extend from near the point where Eagle Creek divides into its north and south draws in a southeasterly direction to near Atoka. Purpose of the levee would be to divert flood waters around Artesia and send them riverward by way of Tumbleweed Draw.

Opinions Oppose

Opinions at the meeting seemed mostly adverse to this plan. Said Charley Barley, of the Hope delegation:

"A reservoir on the Eagle would be better. Tumbleweed draw couldn't handle any sizable flood."

Manager Scott pointed out that use of such a levee would require obtaining easements for right-of-way for the overflow and that there is no money in sight to pay for such easements.

Members of the Hope group cited the Hope Community Ditch case of the early '20s in which a federal court adjudicated 135 second feet of water to the community.

Because there are no dams to save flood waters the community doesn't get this allotment, they said, and as a result the one-time garden spot community suffers for lack of water.

Also present from Hope were Mrs. Williams and Richard Carson, farm owner. Other members of the Chamber flood control committee present were L. W. Brummett, executive vice president of the People's State Bank, and Cecil Waldrep, insurance man.

would be withheld until their next of kin in the United States were notified.

British police identified the gunman as Napoleon Green, but did not have his rank, age, or hometown.

British police said two of the dead—the sergeant and the British serviceman—were killed in the camp and the third victim, another American, died later in a hospital. The British identified the latter as Nelson Gresham, 20, of Philadelphia, but there was no confirmation from U. S. sources.

The gunman grabbed a revolver and a carbine from the supply room where he was working and dashed through the camp, shooting indiscriminately at anyone he encountered.

He fled the camp in a car, heading for the beach area with both American and British police in pursuit.

On the boardwalks of Broadstairs and Margate, neighboring resort towns, vacationers pointed out the path the gunman had taken when he abandoned the car. Armed Americans clambored over barriers and jetties in his wake.

Terrified mothers pulled their children from the water and dashed with them to safety while police shouted warnings that the man was armed and dangerous.

When the pursuers caught up with the gunman, he resisted capture and was shot dead.

John Marshall, fourth chief justice of the United States.

Eisenhower extolled Marshall as a "foremost leader in developing and maintaining the liberties of the people" of the United States, as a man whose decisions "made of the Constitution a vital, dynamic, deathless charter for free and orderly living."

He said he will appoint nobody to the federal judiciary who will not serve in the tradition of Marshall.

In general, the presidential speech took a somewhat unfruffled, philosophical approach to global rather than domestic problems, drawing lessons from the career of Marshall.

The famed chief justice, he said was patient, tireless, understanding, logical, persistent and a crusader in the cause of interpreting the Constitution "to achieve ordered liberty and justice under law."

68 Polio Cases

SANTA FE (AP)—New Mexico's polio toll, now in peak season, rose to 68 today with addition of a 26-year-old Roswell woman. State Health Department officials said the woman was diagnosed as having a non-paralytic form of polio. She had no contact with Salk vaccine.

Gene Schuck To Head 1955 Chest Drive

Gene Schuck, Artesia automobile dealer, today accepted his selection as chairman of the 1955 Community Chest fund drive in the city.

He was chosen at the Council of Social Agencies meeting at the Hotel Artesia Monday but announcement of the appointment was withheld pending his acceptance.

"I am honored by the appointment," Schuck said today, "but I realize it will be a big task for me and that I'll have a lot to learn. I have worked on similar drives before but have never directed one."

Schuck came to Artesia a year ago from Dallas, where he had been in the automobile business. He operates the Schuck Pontiac-Cadillac Agency at 114 S. Second st. He lives with his wife and two children at 906 Kunyan ave.

A meeting of drive personnel will be held some time next week, Schuck said, to get preliminary arrangements under way.

Jimmie Demaret To Play in Meet

EL PASO (AP)—Jimmie Demaret, one of Texas' all-time greats of golf, has indicated that he will play in the Texas PGA Tournament here Sept. 29-Oct. 2. Demaret is a former champion.

Some 75 professionals are expected to compete in the tournament which carries a prize list totaling $5,000.

Collection of Wild Plants Make Garden

AMHERST, Mass. (AP)—Mrs. Ceville Pray's garden is made up of wild plants from seeds she gathered during 22 years within a radius of 20 miles of her home. As a true nature lover, she didn't dig up wild flowers.

She has 34 varieties of native plants from seeds collected from meadows, woods and bogs including trillium, bellwort, squarrel corn, foam flower, bishop's cap, columbine, and Jack-in-the-pulpit among many others.

Voluntary contribution of clothing, food and money came to the aid of flood victims. The Red Cross launched a special flood relief drive with the strong backing of President Eisenhower, who handed his own personal check to national Red Cross Chairman E. Roland Harriman.

"His gift was a generous one—an example to others who have not yet acted," Harriman commented later.

In Washington the CIO opened a flood relief fund with an initial allotment of $100,000 to help an estimated 50,000 members made homeless and jobless.

Tentative damage estimates by the various states totalled around three billion dollars. Connecticut figured its losses at more than one billion; Massachusetts one billion; Pennsylvania half a billion to a billion; Rhode Island and New Jersey 100 million or more each; New York 15 million.

The first evacuees from three Pennsylvania summer camps brought news of worse damage than had previously been reported. Officials had said that none of the children's camps had been hit by the surging floods.

A counselor from one camp, however, reported that the children had been moved to safety on higher ground in time to escape floods that wiped out all but four of 28 bungalows.

The return of their children brought tears of relief to many a worried parent's eye.

One 8-year-old girl, clutching the belongings she had saved, ran to her mother in Allentown, Pa., calling out excitedly, "Mommy, we had a flood."

them tough Foreign Legion veterans, Senegalese troops from West Africa, Marines and parachute commandos—pushed an offensive in the Atlas Mountains against the 4,000 Smaala tribesmen who massacred 80 Frenchmen at Oued em Saturday.

Fresh rebel attacks and continued French cleanup operations in Algeria brought new deaths yesterday also. Nineteen rebels were killed when they tried to enter Gastonville, a town of 8,000 between Constantine and Philippeville. Another dozen deaths were reported in isolated clashes in the countryside.

Estimates of the weekend death toll in Morocco and Algeria rose to 2,000. Official reports early today from Algiers put the number of rebels killed in Algeria at 1,000 and said another 1,500 were taken prisoner.

Jubilee edition. To say that it brings back fond memories to an old boy who spent the first dozen years of his life in Artesia when the dust was deep on Main street is an understatement.

"I'm still wondering from which of our old friends you got that picture of our buggy and the tandem team in the Alfalfa Day parade. One of the horses, Prince, was among the leading trotters of the county in those days, when meets were held on a track a few miles east of town. Between races my mother used him as a carriage horse to make her regular calls on other ladies of the town, and at a certain point in the afternoon Prince would know it was time to go home. I can still see him, my mother and the carriage coming by at about a 2:00 minute clip and going around the corner on two wheels headed for the barn, my mother holding onto the reins for dear life.

"I doubt that a modern boy would think that Artesia was much of a town in those early years of the century, but to me and my companion roughnecks it had just about everything a kid could possibly desire, even to the hot dust that squished between our toes. The waterwagon tried to discourage the dust, incidentally, but it was a losing battle.

"On most Saturdays we would sneak into the loft at the livery stable and watch the badger fights. In case you never were formally educated in this barbarous form of entertainment, get Dr. Clarke or Mr. Ragsdale or any of the other oldtimers to tell you about it. Years later, down in Texas, I got to know a former drummer who once 'pulled' a badger in Artesia. Fact is, he admitted he had pulled 'em in 20 or 30 different towns. Helped his business.

"Another valued form of entertainment was to go pelting across the river on our horses and spend hours trying to run down jackrabbits through the sage brush and across the gullies. We never cornered a rabbit and none of us was ever killed, though I don't know why. Fritz Ward, whose father owned the Flying II, always had the best horse in the crowd. Charley Erb, who lived across the street from us about a block from Main street, rode a little beauty named Bonaparte which could fly. Charley later became a famous quarterback on California's 'wonder' football team and remained a noted sports figure on the west coast until his death a few years ago.

"There were an awful lot of rattlesnakes in and around Artesia in those days, and I still instinctively walk around a patch of weeds. I recall seeing a wagon with sideboards filled to the top with snakes sitting on Main street. They had been dynamited out of dens across the Pecos. I've often wondered what the snake hunters ever did with them. We frequently would see a cow puncher who had been bitten pounding past the house headed for a doctor in town. Several times we kids crowded Dr. Baker's office to watch him slice up and treat such a puncher.

"Memory of Dr. Baker, whose son and my longtime friend, Craig, died here only within the past year, prompts me to chide the oldtimers somewhat for not having supplied your Jubilee edition with an account of Artesia's baseball teams back around 1908-12, when they were the terror of the territory. Fred Brainard, later with the Giants and a minor league star for many years, was the big gun, and I don't expect ever to see the player to match him. I've seen some fair ones, including Bill Ruth, but never another Brainard.

"The uniforms were of course bright red. Mr. Linell was the guiding spirit of the club, and Mr. Linell wouldn't have dreamed attending a game in the park east of the tracks without cowbells. Dr. Baker was the wire invariably, whether his clubs liked it or not. He was with an iron hand from behind, pitcher's box and was believed at least by us kids—to bear a firm arm behind the tails of his pants. Albert I recall for sure that wasn't given many arguments.

"My father had among the cars in town, a Buick two-cycle whose steering wheel could be pushed forward when not in use. It probably came as an extra those days. Also we had a coupe named Jack Upchurch, cause not just anybody could be one of the things running. As myself, I was not permitted to drive around town by myself. I reached my ninth year. I remember the city marshal trying to be out alone, but he didn't anywhere with it—not if you know my father.

"I wouldn't recall the year, I was a member of the first edition of three or four early of leading citizens which cut first 'direct' auto route through from Artesia to El Paso by way of Hope, Weed and Hueco Tanks. Sure that the only known route was by way of Roswell, then through Ruidoso and past White Sands.

"It took us most of two days hard going to cover the 186 through the mountains and following wagon trails across the plain and everybody was pretty hot to check into the old Hotel Stanton in El Paso. Fact is, he admitted he had pulled 'em in 20 or 30 different towns. Helped his business.

"Sowing seed on winter snow, she would get adult plants two years later. She has 14 kinds of ferns including one which produces fuzz used by humming birds in their nests and another which produces delicious, edible 'fern bread.'

Crockett Sells St. Louis Furs

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The man of the year among St. Louis dealers in raw fur is Davy Crockett, who died at the Alamo 120 years ago.

The demand for Davy Crockett hats and other frontier garb created by the current craze over the King of the Wild Frontier has enabled fur dealers to sell skins that had been taking up warehouse space for years.

"We have sold a lot of lemons that had been around for a long time—anything that had a tail on it," said one dealer. "And racoon tails, which until recently had been almost worthless, went for $4 to $5 a pound.

GARRET WITHDRAWS

NORBECK, Md. (AP)—The Western Junior Golf Championship was a wide open affair today following withdrawal of the pre-tournament favorite, John Garrett of Houston, Tex. Garrett, who took second recently in national intercollegiate competition, pulled out of the junior tournament yesterday as 32 youths qualified for match play beginning today at the Manor Country Club.

PAST MATRONS MEET

The Past Matrons read the history of Martha and Electra for the fourth and fifth star points at their meeting Monday at 2:30 in the home of Mrs. L. P. Glascock.

Mrs. Earl Darst, president, was in charge of the business meeting. Mrs. Glascock did the reading for star points.

Ice cream and punch were served to the members. Others present were Mrs. Tonnie Cole, Mrs. Calvin Dunn, Mrs. John Rowland and Mrs. Rufus Stinnett.

University of New Mexico Professor Lauds Lawmakers

ALBUQUERQUE Aug. 20 (AP)—A University of New Mexico government professor says the 22nd New Mexico Legislature, in terms of traditional standards, "did a superior job."

He adds that the New Mexico public has branded the session as a "special interest" Legislature.

Frederick C. Irion, associate professor of government and director of the division of government research at UNM, summarizes his findings on the 1955 Legislature in a booklet issued today by the university.

"No private corporation or enterprise in New Mexico or in the United States, which handles a volume of business such as that of the state of New Mexico, could operate with its policy-makers so handicapped as are the legislators of New Mexico," Irion says.

"In a way, it is surprising that any laws are passed at all."

No Surprise
"In specific relation to the twenty-second regular session of the New Mexico Legislature, it is not surprising that a few bad or controversial laws were enacted. What is surprising is the volume of substantial laws which were passed."

Irion added:
"The general public cannot remember, or be expected to remember, a great deal about the 292 laws which were signed by the governor. What is most remembered is the following combination: aid to truckers together with rough highways, increased prices of groceries (the 'loss leader' bill), and inaction on public welfare."

He says the legislation enacted into law is, in general, impressive. Nearly all the legislators, Irion says, could be characterized by the words "honest, competent, conscientious." Irion poses the question: "Is the state Legislature obsolete?"

"There seem to be two worlds operating at the same time in New Mexico," he says. "One is the traditional, rural oriented life, and civil liberties—this is the world of the New Mexico Legislature. The other is the new world of impatience, collective activity, urban oriented life, and machine organization—this is the world of the scientist, the administrator, the machine operator. These two worlds do not seem to have much to do with each other."

Alternatives
"In addition to the problems of the relationship of the state and federal governments, the New Mexico Legislature seems to be faced with a number of alternatives: (1) The New Mexico Legislature can continue as it has in the past, trusting that public apathy will disappear or that the Legislature can operate successfully even though there is public apathy; (2) The New Mexico Legislature can revitalize itself, by seeking out the causes of public apathy and finding cures; (3) The New Mexico Legislature can create supplementary bodies, such as an advisory social legislature, to aid it in its work; or (4) State Legislatures as such may disappear, to be replaced by regional legislative organizations."

"Perhaps the greatest danger to the state legislature is this: It will fail to understand the public dissatisfaction with its performance and will fail to take the steps necessary to unite the best of the traditional world with the best of the new world."

India has about 350,000 motor vehicles—about one for every 1,000 people.

Worry Over Present Credit Levels Is Based Upon Pre-War Standards of Living and Family Income

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Much of today's worry about living off the cuff comes from judging present customs by pre-war standards. There's a new generation to whom the monthly payment is a fixed feature. When one series of payments is finished, a new one is begun. The family budget is drawn up as scrupulously on a credit basis as the cash one was worked out by their parents. So consumer credit and of home mortgages are at all time highs. Most bankers feel they are going to stay that way—and without necessarily hurting the economy at all. For one thing, times have changed. The standard of living now above its present income. Shift In Uses Also, many monthly payments now merely replace other items in the old-fashioned budget. For example, where their parents paid out a weekly sum to the servants, today's young folk pay on household appliances that do the work. Finally, there has been the remarkable upgrading of incomes in recent years, especially in the lower and middle income brackets.

where so much of today's installment credit is concentrated. Most bankers contend that more persons than ever have incomes large enough to back the debt they have taken on, so that only a small minority are in financial hot water. Between 7 and 10 million families in this country are reported to be strictly cash buyers who refuse on principle to buy on credit. And more than half of the nation's families are free of installment debt, although some may still owe on their homes. 20 Per Cent Level Of the 43 per cent of families repaying installment loans, almost three-fourths report payments are less than one fifth of their incomes after taxes. The great majority of those who have embraced the time payment way of life are repaying regularly. "People are paying off their debts as fast as new debt is being contracted," says Arthur O. Dietz, president of C.I.T. Financial Corp. "Mass production without mass sales would be impossible, and mass sales without mass credit would be a similar improbability," says Theodore H. Silbert, president of Standard Factors Corp. Delinquencies now are lower than a year ago, according to 47 of the 57 credit executives attending a recent Consumer credit management meeting sponsored by Columbia University. Then, with Americans doing such a fine job of handling their debts, what is all the worry in Washington about? The administration says things are all right now it just doesn't want credit terms made so easy that people will be tempted to get too far in debt. So far the American consumer has shown great aptitude in handling his time-payment way of life—and the American economy has boomed as a result. TOY CAR KILLS BOY SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 20. (AP)—An eight-pound model racing car traveling at more than 100 miles an hour killed a 3-year-old boy in suburban Ashfield. One of the tiny machines left its wire guide cable and struck the safety fence. A fragment of the foot-long car struck the child on the side of the head.

Friendly Service, Modern Methods at Guy's Cleaners

A happy combination of big city efficiency and small city friendliness and personal attention characterizes Guy's Cleaners at 208 S. Fourth st. The convenient drive-in window, accessible to cars by a twist of the steering wheel into the approach lane, is a modern metropolitan service feature. It was the first and thus far is the only drive-in setup of its kind in Artesia. Also in pace with the most modern establishments anywhere is the use of the famous U-San-O mothproofing method on garments, hailed as a safe, sanitary and sure method of controlling destructive clothing moths. Typically home town, however, are the smiling welcome and undivided attention of the proprietors—Guy A. and Mabel I. Smith. Guy is an Artesia native and has been in business in the city for seven years. However it was only last May 15 that his plant was moved to the larger and more convenient quarters at the present address of Guy's Cleaners. In addition to the drive-in window, there is counter service in the attractively decorated adjoining office, and there is plenty of parking space for those who wish to avail themselves of the counter service. Free pickup and delivery service to homes also is provided. Promptness in turning out cleaning and pressing work is a watchword at Guy's Cleaners and there is a special extra fast service for those needing it. An alteration department is maintained to perform all kinds of garment repairs and readjustments. A consistent level of reasonable prices is adhered to at Guy's Cleaners. The Smiths make their home at 907 W. Grand ave.

Hamburgers Real Taste Treat at Jim's Drive-In

Firmly established as part of the American way of life is the hamburger. More people eat more hamburgers at restaurants and drive-ins than probably any snack. And the hamburger, as turned out in quantities to satisfy the steady demand at Jim's Drive-In 1012 S. First st., is worthy of its popularity. No more taste-tempting morsel is obtainable than a bite from one of Jim's hamburgers, with good ground beef cooked to just the turn the customer likes best. Jim's hamburgers come in different varieties, at different prices. They are all satisfying, whether the 15-cent bunny burger or the deluxe burger at 50 cents. And Jim has the right fountain or soft bottled drink to give the perfect accompaniment to the hamburgers. As proprietor of Artesia's drive-in, Jim Wallace has been in business four and a half years and more. His establishment gives employment to eight local people. Going to Jim's has become a custom in Artesia.

Shaffer Shop Equipped for Finer Repairs

Efficiently established in its new location on the Hope Highway, opposite the Hitchin' Post, Shaffer's Garage is busy turning out the superior kind of repair work of all kinds for which the proprietor, Allen Shaffer is noted. The garage is equipped, both as to machinery and tools and mechanical skill, to do motor tune-ups, valve grinding and brake service on cars. An outstanding advantage of going to Shaffer's is that the trouble is spotted quickly and accurately and a ready estimate is given as to what is needed in the way of parts and repair work. Recommendation by satisfied motorists who have had work done at Shaffer's is the firm's best advertisement, is the belief of Allen Shaffer. In addition to the specialties mentioned, Shaffer's Garage also does all types of shop and oilfield welding. The welding equipment is efficient and the shop stands behind the work it does.
