Santee's lawyer Charles P. Grimes will ask the court to strengthen the temporary injunction he obtained last week against the ban.

Grimes has promised to take the case to the highest courts. The AAU also has announced that it intends to fight to the finish.

Competition For Regular Third Base Berth Involves Robinson, Jackson

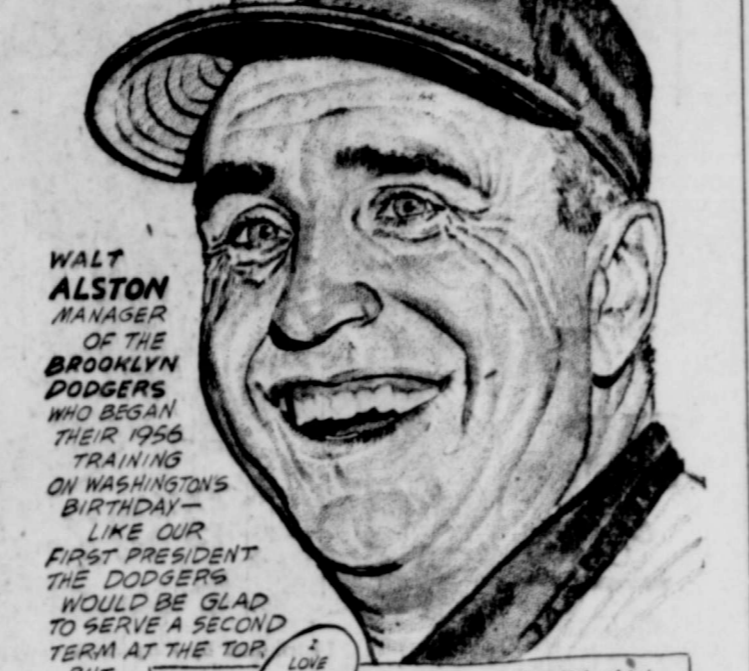

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The competition for the regular third base job on the Brooklyn Dodgers is on in earnest.

Jackie Robinson said today, "Ransom Jackson will have to be a whale of a player this year to beat me out."

"I'll say this much," he added. "If Jackson does beat me out, then fine. It'll mean that we have that much stronger a team, and make us a cinch to win the pennant. I'll wish him good luck and be his substitute."

Tennis Promoter Kramer Hopes Lawn Assn. To Attract Talent

DALAS (AP)—Jack Kramer, promoter of professional tennis tours, said today amateur tennis wasn't attracting the really good athletes...

He took a dark view of the United States' prospects in Davis Cup play in the next few years.

"We don't have any great players in the 18 to 22 age category," he observed. "Fortunately, we do have a few fine 15-year-old prospects who may help us in time."

Kramer said there were three factors which might bring about an upswing in tennis quality in the next few years.

The actions, taken yesterday at the first of a two-day session for the council, returned the meets to the sites which hosted the tourneys last year.

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—The Executive Council of the New Mexico High School Activities Assn. has awarded the state track golf and tennis meets to Albuquerque and the state baseball tourney to Las Cruces.

Another possible item on today's agenda was the study of establishing a central office to assign game officials, instead of letting the home team select the officials as is now done.

Could Save Taxpayers Money

A CONGRESSMAN recently declared that if the people of the nation knew how much money congress wastes and throws away each year, the taxpayers would throw all of the members of congress out.
A good many people have believed that for a long time. They have known the federal government wastes too much money and that many savings could be brought about if those in a position to do this would just do it.
But too many times the members of congress do a great deal of talking about the people and about their money but those members are only figuring ways and means to stay in congress or to be re-elected.
Since that is a far more important objective to them than the saving of money, they forget that the taxpayers provide all the money they spend.
It is also true that it is a little difficult to get some of the things done when we have a nation of people clamoring for many things—perfectly willing for the federal government to provide anything they happen to want.
We have large sums appropriated for pet projects; we have large sums sent merely to satisfy some politician or political party; we have large sums voted so this money can be spent with some firms to keep their friendship.
We have those perfectly willing for Uncle Sam to provide them a living. We have others on the payroll in the many duplicated services we have in the nation and yet to reduce these services or to eliminate one of these services means taking people off the payroll.
But there certainly is no question but what if we could transact our federal government business on a business basis rather than on a political basis—patronage for party members and for friends and providing something for nothing—we could reduce the national spending.
And when we reduce the national spending, of course, we automatically can reduce the tax bill.
The day and time is coming when that tax bill is going to have to be reduced and when the people of this nation are going to have to demand they get a dollar's worth of service or merchandise for every dollar they spend instead of only getting about half what they are buying now.

Demos Seem To Face Dilemma About Eisenhower In Politics

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—This will be a pretty mild presidential campaign if the Democrats follow the line taken by Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.), whom they picked to replace President Eisenhower.
It would go like this:
Clobber Eisenhower's aides but mix any criticism of Eisenhower himself with nice words; even praise him; make attacks on him more oblique than frontal; and blame him for sins of omission rather than those of commission.
The Democrats are in a dilemma with Eisenhower. And it seemed to peep through Sparkman's talk this week. He took to the airwaves in reply to Eisenhower's Feb. 29 broadcast dealing with his health and his running again.
This is the dilemma:
How to handle a president who is so popular and has the widest sympathy and good will after his heart attack. Roughing up a national hero not in perfect health could lose votes.
By this time any other president, in office as long as Eisenhower, would be full of welts from opposition clubbing. There'd be no surprise in giving him more of the same when the campaign began.
But the Democrats haven't treated Eisenhower like that for most of his time in the White House. They have handled him as if he were marked: "Fragile: Use No Hooks."
Eisenhower, no professional politician himself, could give the lessons if you accept this definition of a successful politician: one who gets much done he wants done while retaining maximum popularity to carry into the next election.
From the beginning of his presidency Eisenhower, deliberately or by nature, put himself above the rough-and-tumble of politics. Making no personal attacks, he has given others a minimum excuse for attacking him personally.
During these past three years angry Democrats may have wanted to hit Eisenhower directly but most of the time they aimed their fire at the men around him: if there were casualties, they didn't include Eisenhower.
Here are some phrases from Sparkman's talk.
"Our political differences will never lessen . . . personal regard (for him) . . . We respect Mr. Eisenhower for the candor he has shown (about his health) in his report to the people . . . We thank him for his frank explanation."
Sparkman put his emphasis on Eisenhower's health, as was to be expected, since Eisenhower a week before had devoted his own broadcast to it. Sparkman indicated the Democrats will make the President's health major issue.

Sparkman argued that Eisenhower, because of his health, couldn't be a full-time president in a job that needs full time. Eisenhower, he said, has had to dump some of his most critical duties on his aides and must continue to do so.
He slammed the aides and opened up on the administration, not so much for what it did but what he said it failed to do. For instance: letting the Middle East problem drift and failing to produce a policy to meet the Soviet's new shifts.

thing inherently or basically wrong it will promptly be corrected. The board also went on record as expressing confidence in Gen. Willey as commandant of the cadets.
Gay repeated to the board his contention that, "I see nothing in this incident about which to get excited." He said that was his expressed view at the time of the incident and he had not changed his mind.
The unnamed cadet officer, an unofficial spokesman for the cadet corp, said earlier yesterday that, "When Gen. Willey became commandant of cadets, the honor system went out the window. His attitude is that a cadet's word is no good."
The youngest said, "Everyone of us eventually hopes to receive a commission in the United States Army. If the word of a cadet isn't any bond, how can they assume that we'll make honest officers."
He said senior class cadet privileges had been almost halved in the past few weeks, including a part of the honor system under which an upperclassman returns to barracks at specified times.
"Now we have to sign in like prisoners," he said. "The upperclassmen, particularly the cadet officers, told Gen. Gay and Gen. Willey that if there are any abuses of the honor system the cadet corps would clean its own laundry. But that didn't make any difference."
"It used to be an honor to be a cadet officer or non-commissioned officer, and it had certain privileges that went with the rank. Not any more. Today is just means you're a target for abuse from the commandant's office."

But nobody ever praises the common bore, and no one will publicly admit he is one. This is unfair. We give even the devil his due. Why deny the common bore the credit he deserves?
The truth is that if the common man is the backbone of civilization of civilization. He forces us to stick together to escape him.
I asked a famous hostess once what was the secret of a successful party.
"One secret," she replied, "is to be sure to invite at least one resounding bore."
"Why?" she said, "a bore fills that critical gap between the arrival of the guests and the time the second martini takes hold. He may not have a single thing worth saying—but he always has something to say."
"No matter how strange the other guests may have felt at first, by the end of the second martini they know at least they aren't as boring as the one who has done all the talking up until then. He has knit them together—as a common annoyance always does."
"They have a fine time for the rest of the party enjoying each other, and ducking him."
While this may seem like cruelty toward the bore, the saving feature is that if he is a real, true-born bore, he goes home from the party more satisfied than anybody. He is flattered to have held so many ears for so long.
Naturally, there are different types of bores, and their virtues vary. Here are the two general classes:
The galloping, or strident bore. He is usually an agile, loud-mouthed spokesman for an obscure cause. "Why," he demands, "do firemen only collect Christmas toys for poor children in their own neighborhood? Why don't they ship them to the Mary Tau kiddies as a goodwill gesture?" He expects you to contribute funds. Very little can be said of this kind of bore. He is a public nuisance.
The sedentary, or slow-moving bore. This is merely a simple-hearted fellow on a verbal rocker whose mind is in his vocal cords, and whose nature endlessly craves an audience. He is actually the salt of the earth. But you know how it is with salt. Enough's enough.

Boyle Praises Common Bore As Unsung Hero Of Civilization

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Curbstone reflections of a Pavement Plato: The unsung hero of civilization is not the common man but the common bore.
The common man has had so much praise in this generation that everybody wants to be one. How often do you hear someone remark, "Well, looking at it from the viewpoint of the common man, I'd say—"
But nobody ever praises the common bore, and no one will publicly admit he is one. This is unfair. We give even the devil his due. Why deny the common bore the credit he deserves?
The truth is that if the common man is the backbone of civilization of civilization. He forces us to stick together to escape him.

What is the very worst bore of all? Historians of the bore say there is really very little difference between male and female bores of the common, or sedentary variety. But they likewise agree that nothing is more impossible than a galloping lady bore under a full head of steam and with her throttle open.

No sensible hostess will invite a strident, petticoat bore to two shindigs in a row. She'll shrill any party to death.
But, generally speaking, haven't some of the most unforgettable characters you've known been bores? They live on in memory long after those of greater charm and sense fade away.
The ordinary bore is a social catalyst who restores our sense of humor and helps keep our own problems in perspective.
We have to like him a bit secretly, because who, in his own heart, can dodge the knowledge that sometimes he is a bit of a bore himself?

ALLEY OOP!—An Army Piasecki transport helicopter lifts a quarter-ton jeep high above Davison Army Airfield, Fort Belvoir, Va., during a training maneuver. Cargo-lifts of this sort are expected to increase the mobility and efficiency of the Army in event of war. Should troops, rather than supplies, be the commander's combat requirement, this helicopter seats 20 soldiers.

SMU Is Highest National Scorer In Basketball

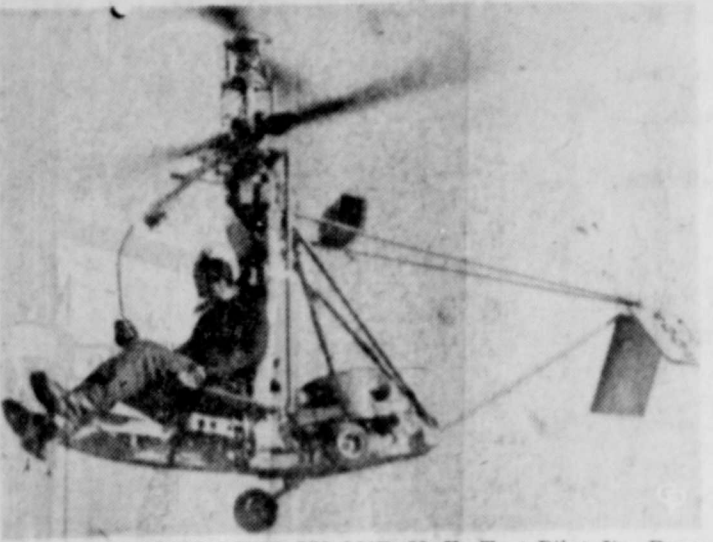

DALLAS (AP)—SMU averaged .431 per cent on field goals and .769 on free throws and that's why the Mustangs compiled one of the nation's top basketball records.

Final statistics of the Southwest Conference showed today that SMU, the conference champ with a 22-2 record, led all the other conference schools in accuracy both in field goals and free throws and that's what wins games.

The Methodists averaged 78.6 per game on offense while Rice did 78.9, and averaged 65.6 on defense compared to 64.5 for Arkansas.

Raymond Downs of Texas had the best all-around offensive record. Downs averaged 26 points per game.

Reaping Right Finally Learns To Run Saturday

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—After driving Trainer Tennessee Wright nearly frantic, Reaping Right looks like he's finally learned where to run and the big son of Reaping Reward probably will go to the post as the favorite in the $40,000-added Louisiana Derby tomorrow.

The Fair Grounds "run for the orchids" drew 13 probable starters, including two colts who have spent most of the winter at Florida tracks. Should all go post-ward, this 31st running will gross $51,850 with the winner collecting around $39,000.

Reaping Right, owned by Detroit automobile dealer T. A. Grissom, prepared for his 3-year-old campaign with all the marks of a world-beater with four straight victories at the Fair Grounds.

Jesus said, "Because you are lukewarm, and neither cold or hot, I will spew you out of my mouth," Rev. 3:16. If that's your bracket you better start getting up some temperature about life's values ... home, children, school, church, God, right and wrong.

If Jesus died to save you, can't you do some living for Him? Do you believe, "Life is real, life is earnest and the grave is not its goal; dust thou art, to dust returnest, was not spoken of the soul"? Are you lukewarm? Why not get hot for God? Put righteousness first.
