Lubbock Meat Show

Now is the time to prepare those hame and bacons for the Lubbock Quality Meat show which comes off late in March or early in April. If you have some quality hogs to kill please get in touch with the County Agent and lets prepare some show products for the Lubbock Show.

The beginning of the year 1936 is not just the beginning of a new year for Texas-its the beginning of a new century also. This year we are planning to show to the world 100 years of progress. Texas centennial is being talked all over the United States and in many foreign countries. It is up to us as Texans to put on a show that will justify a fellows coming from Seattle, Washington; Portland Maine or even Halifax Nova Scocia to see it. Briscoe County, as a part of the State of Texas, has a part to play in this great undertaking. We are placing a good many calves on feed now to show at Dallas the 2nd week in November. Its up to the adult leaders to give the boys who are feeding all the encouragement and help possible. There is no good reason why Briscoe County shouldn't be among the leaders at the Dallas show.

Farm Leaders Insist on Crop Control Legislation

FARM leaders summoned to Washington to help in devising a new farm program decided to remain there and "picket" the halls of congress until legislation is passed to take the place of the AAA destroyed by the Supreme court ruling. The proposal that was the first plank in the policy platform they drew up and that is pushed by administration men centers or production contro subsidized through conservation. Farmers would get cash grants, provided they had permitted the transfer of certain acreage from commercial production to soil conserving crops, or had "adjusted" the commodities on certain land. Administration leaders were considering a plan to raise the half million dollars a year necessary for this scheme by enacting most of the old processing taxes as excise levies. The farm leaders favored this, and also recommended:

"Retention and strengthening of all positions of the AAA act not declared unconstitutional.

"Creation of farm commodity cooperatives, authorized under the Capper-Volstead act, for marketing or distributing farm products."

Foremost among the agricultural experts who took part in the conferences was Howard R. Tolley, director of the Giannini foundation in California. He has been described by administration officials as the leading agricultural economist in the United States, and was hurriedly called from the West coast to Washington.

Lawyers acting for a Philadelphia real estate dealer filed a suit in the Federal District court there to restrain government executives from interfering with the operation of the AAA until its constitutional status has been determined by referendum.

Process Tax Refund Ordered by Supreme Court

PROCESSING taxes amounting to $200,000,000, impounded by the courts, must be refunded to the tax payers, according to a unanimous ruling of the Supreme court of the United States. The decision did not go into the question of whether processors must prove they had absorbed the tax before they could recover, though this was one of the main points at issue. Presumably this will first be passed upon by a district court. The case was brought by Louisiana rice millers. The nine justices all agreed that the review of the Bankhead cotton case, which had been allowed on a 6 to 3 vote, had been "improvidently granted" and so they refused to pass on the validity of the act at this time. Another case involving this law, filed | Bruno's favor, Defense counsel were by Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia. a Roosevelt administration foe will give the court another opportunity to rule on it. The expected ruling on the validity of the Tennessee Valley Authority act was not forthcoming.

Protects WPA Workers From

"Chiseling" Employers HARRY L. HOPKINS, WPA administrator, has sent to state administrators a set of regulations intended to protect WPA workers from "Chiseling" employers and to keep up wage standards. In his letter to the state officials Mr.

Hopkins said: "I want to make perfectly clear the policy of the works progress administration relative to private employment or employment on contract jobs under the direction of other federal departments which may be offered the WPA workers. "It is expected that WPA workers will accept available jobs in private employment, whether of a permanent or temporary nature, provided: "(1) That the temporary or permanent work shall be a full-time job.

"(2) That such work shall be at a standard or going rate of wages. "(3) That such work shall not be in conflict with established union re-

"(4) That workers shall be offered an opportunity to return to the WPA upon completion of temporary jobs."

Raskob Is Angered by Government Tax Suits JOHN J. RASKOB is angry, and so probably is Pierre S. duPont, for the government has filed with the board of tax appeals a brief charging that these two gentlemen agreed to create fictitious losses through security sales to each other in 1929 and thus improperly reduced their net taxable incomes. "Tyranny and cheap politics" was the way Raskob characterized the action, and he intimated that the brief was timed to appear

E. Smith will be chief speaker. Both Raskob, a conservative Democrat, and duPont are liberal backers of the Liberty league, which has been saying many severe things about the New Deal.

In its latest output the Liberty league attacks President Roosevelt's interpretations of the fiscal situation as "misleading and deceitful," and urges that congress investigate "the entire governmental structure."

Puerto Rican Sugar Estates Will Be Broken Up

SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR ICKES, making a brief visit to our Caribbean possessions, told representatives of the sugar interests in Puerto Rico that the great sugar estates of that island would be broken up, because they are in violation of a law forbidding the corporate ownership of more than 500 acres of land. He explained the lands will be homesteaded to get thousands of landless persons back to the soil. It is not known whether Mr. Ickes did anything about the general dissatisfaction in Puerto Rico with the policies of certain of the government's representatives there.

Democratic Convention

Goes to Philadelphia

A UCTIONED off to the highest bidder, the Democratic national convention of 1936 was sold to Philadelphia by the party's national committee. The price was $200,000, plus some prizes and concessions. Chicago and San Francisco also bid for the convention. The former offered a certified check for $150,000. The California city made the same bid and later raised it to $202,500

During a brief recess Chairman Farley telephoned, presumably to the White House, and Vice President Garner moved among the members of the committee urging the selection of Philadelphia. Therefore the City of Brotherly Love won the prize. The opening of the convention was set for June 23, plea he displayed no emotion. "Your only chance now is to directly involve some one else in the kidnaping," Fisher told Hauptmann, "I can't change my story." Hauptmann replied, according to the prison warden. "I have told the truth all along. There's nothing more to tell than I have told. I haven't the least

Bonus Measure Is Pushed

Through the House

NO TIME was lost in putting through the house the bonus measure that had been agreed upon by veterans' organizations and approved by the ways and means committee. It carries the name of the Vinson-Patman-McCormack bill and is a compromise that authorizes immediate payment of the bonus but offers no definite plan for raising the money, It would provide 3 per cent interest until 1945 for veterans refraining from cashing their adjusted service certificates at once, and cancel all interest still due on loans on the certificates.

In the senate Pat Harrison intro duced a compromise bonus bill providing for payment in $50 bonds that may be cashed upon demand.

Miguel Gomez Elected

President of Cuba N AN astonishingly tranquil election, Miguel Mariano Gomez, coal ition candidate, was chosen president of Cuba, defeating Gen. Mario G. Men ocal, former president, by a rather slen der margin. Gomez, who is forty-five years old, was formerly mayor of Havana. He was supported by the army. The lack of disorder at the polls was that the brief was timed to appear due in part to the fact that the women before the American Liberty league of the island republic for the first dinner January 25 at which Alfred time took part in an election.

Rains in Ethiopia Stop the Italian Operations

E THIOPIA'S "little" rainy season has come, and the advances of the invading Italians are therefore stopped effectually for several weeks at least. The downpours are heavy and continuous, roads are being destroyed, especially in the northern part of the country, and landslides in the mountains are frequent. Foreign observers were of the opinion that all fighting must cease, even in the south where the rains are not so heavy. The "big" rainy season is due to begin in May.

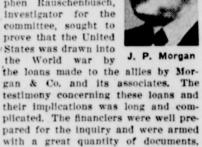

Mussolini continued the dispatch of fresh troops to Ethiopia, despite unfavorable conditions. He postponed the meeting of the Fascist grand council from January 18 to February 1, by which time the League of Nations council, it is presumed, will have decided whether to impose an oil embargo on Italy. The league council would very much like to have the United States congress pass its neutrality legislation before the oil embargo question is settled.

Dr. Maccel Juned, International Red Cross delegate, announced at Addis Ababa that he would recommend withdrawal of all Red Cross units from Ethiopia unless Italy definitely promised not to bomb them.

Nye's Committee Prods

Morgan and Lamont WITH the obvious intention of building up public sentiment in favor of the special brand of neutrality legislation he desires, Senator Nye had before his senate munitions committee for several days J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont and other members of the great Morgan banking company. Nye and Stephen Rauschenbusch, investigator for the committee, sought to prove that the United States was drawn into

NEUTRALITY legislation desired by the administration does not meet with the approval of Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois who, though a loyal Democrat, is sometimes opposed to measures fostered by the President. He says the law under consideration in senate and house committees would close the markets of the Middle West to world commerce, and has asked the Illinois Manufacturers' association and the Chicago Association of Commerce to support his opposition to it. As a substitute for the general neutrality law proposed by the President. Senator Lewis advocates enactments granting the Chief Executive authority to issue regulations placing embargoes would threaten American neutrality. but stipulating that these regulations should be submitted to the senate for acceptance or amendments. Before an executive session of the senate foreign relations committee the Illinois senator declared he would continue to oppose measures "whereby oil, coal, copper, cotton and grain and the manufactured products of the West could be cut off on the theory that some country not at war might resell our products to some country that is

of Dissolution

WHEN the delegates to the naval conference in London resumed their deliberations Admiral Osami Nagano, chief representative of Japan, firmly repeated his demand that Great Britain and the United States concede the parity claims of Japan as preliminary to any agreement. This attitude stopped all discussion of the British, French and Italian proposal for exchange of information about naval building plans and threatened the conference with early collapse. The crisis was so serious that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden himself took a part in the affair.

Japanese spokesmen declared they were interested first and last in the total tonnage question-under which they demand equality-and were not at all interested in other aspects of naval limitations to which the conference sought to turn.

New Farm Plan Now Necessary

High Court Action Makes Long-Time Policy Imperative; President Lauded

By EARL GODWIN

ASHINGTON .- It is difficult to imagine that the high respect Americans feel toward the Supreme court will continue in all sections if there should be an actual cessation of the benefits of AAA which the court has declared unconstitutional. There has been no such criticism of that court since the days of the Dred Scott decision, which led to the Civil war, and those who have unleashed their invectives against the majority of the court justify their remarks on the sharp words of Justice Stone, one of the three justices who sharply dissented from the majority

The acreage reduction policy and the payment of benefits to farmers, made up out of the processing taxes on manufacturers, were frankly artificial and temporary, and would have been abandoned after a long-time scientific agricultural program had been worked out and accepted. A long-time policy may now be a fact all the sooner be cause of the sudden bump the court gave to these temporary processes. But meantime the peculiar attitude of the six majority members of the court demands attention, because of their basic opinion that agriculture is "a purely local activity."

Of course, Mother Nature knows nothing about the Supreme court, and spreads agriculture quite widely without regard to those sacred state lines which have caused the wrangling that makes millionaires of lawyers. To regard the economics of agriculture with respect to state lines would be about as effective as regarding a conflagration the same way. Fire departments would not be allowed to squirt the hose across the line. The world might burn up, but the majesty of the court must be sustained.

This country was in a state of collapse; and agriculture was flat on its back when the farm leaders-or a great many of them-produced the AAA as a remedy. In the succeeding 32 months farm income went to a point where it meant almost equal purchasing power with industry, and was certainly feeding billions of dollars back to industry in goods purchased. That, in my humble view, was a contribution to the general wel fare, and certainly seems to the lay mind to be included in the welfare clause of the Constitution.

But not so, say six out of nine members of the Supreme court. Those voluntary contracts are not necessary; and if they were, the whole scheme would still be outside the power of the federal government. "Contracts for the reduction of acreage and the control of production" the court opines. "are outside the range of that power. congress cannot diction to compel individual action; no more than it can purchase such action."

And so the entire agricultural problem goes back temporarily to where it was ten years ago, but meantime it is worth while to realize that the three dissenting members of the court, Stone, Cardozo and Brandels, joined in an opinion which will some day be accepted as the law of the land.

BUT COURTS CHANGE

Once, before he became Chief Justice of the United States. Charles Evans Hughes said that "The Constitution is what the judges say it is." He was brutally right. The judges now state that AAA has no more right to live. However, courts change. The Supreme court over the years swings from reaction to progress. Because of this advance of liberal opinion, even with its slow, glacier-like progress, minority opinions are important because they are used to guide the thought of succeeding legal generations. The majority wins today: but tomorrow Justice Stone's views will be accepted as a matter of course in unanimous decisions of some future chief tribunal. Justice Stone's tart opinion was that the majority had killed AAA because they believed it to be an unwise law; and that in so doing the court usurped the powers of congress. In other words, Justice Stone took his colleagues to task for trying to run the government; and he rightly predicts trouble if it continues.

There is something to be said for Justice Stone's views. A tremendous majority of elected lawmakers enacted the AAA laws; and six men appointed for life turned it down.

It is all a part of the old question Roosevelt asked when the court knocked out NRA and its benefits to working men and merchants and manufacturers. Are we to be crowded back to the days of small things simply because we have that sort of judges?

HAMPERS GOVERNMENT

We must, in this country, comprehend the fact that we have big problems and we must therefore have blg government. At the present rate, the court's decisions are likely to cut down the government's power to a size where it cannot cope with the increasingly large problems presented by great concentrations of wealth and vast national industrial and financial combinations.

The present trend makes it increasingly difficult for the government to protect the public from the marauding type of business man now on the rampage against the New Deal. This again boils down to the inability of states to cope with national problems. The Supreme court has handed to each state of the Union, matters they cannot handle any more than the state police can handle the new style of crook who robs a bank in New York and by nightfall has flown across a dozen states.

IMPORTANT MESSAGE

Washington buzzed with excitement over criticism against President Roosevelt for making use of the radio at an evening hour to deliver his annual message to congress. That address, by the way, was one of the most important state documents of modern times. It dealt strongly with the impending European crisis, and pointed out that the autocratic methods of certain European dictators could not be sustained had the people of those countries access to the processes of Democratic government . . . the free and unhampered use of the ballot, in other words. It was not this portion of the speech to which the President'c critics objected, for there is a general opinion here that Hitler in Germany and Mussolini in Italy are stretching the public tolerance to the breaking point. Rather was the President criticized by his political opponents for his clear and vigorous language in which he called on the narrow and reactionary groups of the opposition to stop their sharp-shooting and bring forth some constructive substitute for the New Deal's policies. That is, if they have a substitute.

Roosevelt decided to talk to the country by radio at an evening hour because he knew the country had been completely suffused with adverse propaganda. In the present state of mind of the general metropolitan press Roosevelt has not been getting a fair break.

The well-spring of this bitter and reactionary propaganda is the power trust, as I have said many times, bu: the ordinary Republican party propaganda is doing its share of destruction; while the American Liberty League, which freely admits huge contributions from the wealthlest among the President's detractors, crowds the mails with almost daily bulletins.

In his capacity as President, Roose velt followed the instructions of the Constitution and gave an account of the progress of the country under the enactments of the New Deal. These included the feeding of the huge relief army; the building of homes; the recognition of the rights of labor; the start of old age pensions and social security, and a score of other achievements. Would the opposition tear down these improvements "and lead us back around the same old corner into the same old dreary street?"

One of the hardest things Roosevelt has to meet is the propaganda of fear spread by industrial leaders who do not like federal regulation. This same weapon of fear has been used many times previously when some leader arose to warn the citizens that the money interests were massed against the common good. Andrew Jackson's life was embittered by the open attacks as well as the whispering campaigns of "The Bank" and its followers. Theodore Roosevelt was called crazy by the same interests now spreading malicious falsehoods about Franklin Roosevelt.

AROUSES CLASS HATRED

This is the sort of talk which arouses class hatreds and bitterness in a land where we should be working for and enjoying a spiritual comfort paralleling the physical blessings bestowed upon America. Nevertheless it is true, and the class feeling was not engendered by Roosevelt. He was doing a humane job for his fellow-Americans until he started his strong attack upon the over-watered and crooked holding companies, and introduced his tax bill. Then the scorpions were loosed and the poisoning proc-

The chief reason for the criticism of the President's address is that he was able to tell more people the truth at one time than ever heard it simultaneously on any prior occasion. One reason for this vast audience was the fact that Henry Fletcher, chairman of the Republican National committee. made such a wild outery about it that he advertised the President's appearance in advance better than anyone else could have done it.

ADDRESS APPLAUDED

An unusually large number of telegrams of congratulation came to Roosevelt after his address to congress, and after his sparkling Jackson day speech. A striking feature was the number coming from "average sized" business men. These men realize that the Roosevelt warfare on Big Business is in protection for the smaller men. The gist of their message was that they appreciated and are grateful for his statement that it is only the minority in business or in finance that would "gang up" against the people's liberties.

Roosevelt's view is that the greater part of business men, industrialists and other employers seek no special advantage. They seek merely an equal share in the benefits and obligations of government. To these people Roosevelt promised that he would continue to wage a war in their behalf, so that they would not be plowed under by "a small minority of businessmen and financiers."

Against this element, represented by the Liberty league and the reactionary element of the G. O. P. leadership, Roosevelt promised: "I shall continue to wage war"; and he ended his speech with the statement: "We will not retreat."

For radio companies to say to the party in power, "Because we fear you we shall take you to every home in the country and let you say what you please, and shall refuse to give the same publicity to your opponents," might not suit the American idea.

It is good news that Henry Ford has gone back to airplane building. His last trimotor plane was produced in 1931.

His new two-passenger plane, with V-8 engine turning the propeller 4,000 times a minute, carries 30 gallons of gasoline, with a flying range above 500 miles. Five hundred miles of air travel for $6 worth of gasoline for two passengers would be cheap transportation.

Henry Ford will begin manufacturing planes seriously, "if and when conditions demand volume production worth while."

Jess Jones, chairman of Reconstruction Finance corporation, tells the banks that he will go on lending government money until they make credit and loans easier.

Mr. Jones says: "The big fellow, with unquestionable credit, borrows on his own terms, at low rates. Credit for the average business is too sparingly given, at much higher rates."

There is rioting in Porto Rico, numbers killed and wounded in various places. It is said a Porto Rico "Young Men's party" has decided to separate Porto Rico from the United States, in spired perhaps by the departure of the Philippines. It is supposed that this government will tell the "Young Porto Rico" gentlemen that they will not be allowed to separate, and might as well forget

This country, in the way of protection, resources, education and civilization, is necessary to Porto Rico, and strategically Porto Rico is useful to the United States. What would England say if Jamaica should announce "We wish to leave the British Empire?"

The beginning of the new year in Germany sees the death of 1,000 newspapers, "suspended" by official order because they opposed Nazi rule. Chancellor Hitler perhaps remembers Na-poleon's statement: "If I granted liberty of the press, my government could not last three weeks."

He might also remember that some governments that refused liberty of the press have also failed to last. The government of the czars was of that kind. Sitting on the safety valve is one way, but not the safest.

Mr. S. L. Rothafel, known to theatergoers as "Roxy," is dead at fifty-three. While he slept his heart stopped, like a watch not wound. Men die too young in America, and weakened hearts kill many. Life spent without exercise or an adequate supply of oxygen explains the deaths. Man is physically a machine; his heart is the engine, and heart disease kills more useful men than any other disease in modern

Signs of recovery, most important, are increased sales of automobiles, increased use of telephones. Mr. Gifford of the big telephone company shows that in December, 1935, the number of telephones increased 47,848, against a 21,146 increase in December, 1934.

"Little rains," which we should call hard rains in this country, interfere with Mussolini's operations in Ethiopia. Soon will come the "big rains," torrential downpours, making roads impass able, except concrete roads. The Ital ians have built some highways. There are, however, other roads, unknown to ancient Ethlopia-the roads of the air. Mussolini's men may continue on those roads, with disastrous results for Ethiopia, in spite of rains, "little" and "big."

Saladine, watching Bart, saw that under this accusing fusillade, the man's face congested with a rising fury. This old woman with the tongue of a termagant lashed him raw. What she said might or might not be true; yet true or false, he could not retort with the buffet and the blow her words deserved. He must stand helpless while she flayed him; yet his dark cheek was purple now!

"You fetched me some dry groceries from Liberty village last night," the old woman continued bitterly, "and listened outside the door and heard me telling Jenny to go get me a lily root from the brook today. That's why you went down brook, Bart. You never went to fish at all. I don't believe you ever even took your rod. You went to

"And on the way back, I 'low you climbed up through the woods to see If you could get a sight of Huldy! Like as not you'd peeked at her before that times when the hussy'd be sunning herself like a snake there on the ledge. I wouldn't won Jer if that was why Zeke worked you over, that time. Like as pot he caught you there. Anyway, my guess is you found her there today. and she termented you the way she always did, till you couldn't stand it. and you grabbed her! And she fit you. tad set her finger nails in your cheek : you hit her so hard yo broke your own hand on her face! That's what bappened! I'm as certain of it as if been there and see!"

The scratches on Bart's cheek were tivid, but his lips twisted in a derisive

Then she turned to Sohler, "There it is, Sheriff," she exclaimed, in a tone of finality. "There it is, if you've got enough brains to see!"

But the big man after a moment wagged his head. "Why, I don't see ss there's anything only your guess.

And he said, calmly: "It couldn't be the way she says." He appealed to Huldy's husband. "Will, you know mighty well that Zeke was always omewhere around Huldy. If this had happened the way Granny says, Zeke he'd have been on my tail in no time at all. You know that, Will, as well as me! Will, thus interrogated, nodded slow-"That's so, Bart," he admitted. But Marm Pierce turned to Bart in-

"Bart," she said, "I dunno as I can prove what you did to Huldy, but I'll at your house, on your way to get in that pocket then."

Bart chuckled patiently. "Ma'am, I can't help yo're thinking anything you've got a mind, but yo're wrong as

She cried triumphantly: "Your rod's outside, with a worm on the hook, all dried up and shriveled! You didn't fish with a dead worm, did you?" Her tone was bot with scorn.

"Why sho," he protested, "a worm will dry up mighty fast."

Her eyes narrowed. "You told me you dug bait yest'day?" she challenged. He nodded. "Certain," he said. "Got your bait can on, ain't you?"

she demanded. He touched his belt, in an assenting gesture. And she took one step toward him.

"Hand it here!" she demanded in a rising triumph. "Let me have a look at it! If there's any fresh-dug worms in your bait can, Bart, I'll take back every word I've had to say!" Saladine, turning to look at Bart.

found his eye caught and held by an object on the table between them. That heavy gun which Bart had laid beside the lamp, a while ago.

It was still there, black and deadly: The lamp was between it and Saladine: between it and Marm Pierce. But where Bart stood, the butt of the gun was not ten inches from his hand.

CHAPTER XII

There was something ludicrously incongruous, and by the same token the more horrifying, in the terms of question of whether a man were guilty of murder should hinge on whether there were any fresh-dug worms in his bait box had something hideous about it; and yet what Marm Pierce said was ingeniously true. If Bart had indeed gone down Carey's brook this day to fish, as he asserted, then he must have been supplied with bait. If he had no worms, then his statement that he intended to fish was a lie; and his other words were doubtless lies as well. If Bart had no worms in his bait box, then he lied; and if he lied. then he had killed Huldy! Thus simply the issue phrased itself in Sala-

en. The silence in this small room wight explode into a storm of violence.

Bart stood under their doubting eyes, his fingers within easy reach of the butt of that heavy revolver on the table just before him. His back was to the wall; he could if he chose hold them at his mercy. Thirty seconds' span must answer all.

Bart did not move till old Marm Pierce repeated, in triumphant insist-"Let's see, Bart! Let's see if you've got any worms in that can at all!"

Then he was suddenly at his ease; he smiled and shook his head. "Nary a worm, Granny!" he said cheerfully, She nodded in crisp satisfaction, swung to Sohler. "There, Sheriff!"

she cried. Sohier looked uncomfortable. It was in fact an uncomfortable position in which he found himself. Bart was practically confessing to a murder; but Bart had a gun under his hand! The sheriff stirred uneasily, and he gathered the tails of his coat over his knees as though to rise. But Bart said, chuckling: don't prove anything, though! I told you a while ago, when I came to pick Huldy up I took off my belt-with the bait can and my gon-and left it there on the ground. Time I got back to fetch it, the bait can, the cover on it had come open, and the worms had all crawled away."

Marm Pierce whirled on him in and at that, you went crazy mad, and baffled fury. "You'd talk yourself out of your own grave. Bart!" she cried. "But you won't talk yourself out of There's a dead worm dried on your hook on the rod outside the door! guess you wa'n't fishing with that! And it didn't shrivel up the way it is just sence you got through fishing. either. It's wet from rain, and slimy; but it's been dead on that hook for days."

Bart nodded. "Sure it has," he assented. "I forgot, when you asked me about that a while ago. But just before Huldy screeched, I snagged my hook on a log and had to break it off. Didn't have any spare hooks with me, but I found this one in my overails pocket. I must have stuck it there some time and forgot it. It had this dead worm on it; but I tied it on my line, and I was just setting out to scrape the dead worm off with my knife when I heard Huldy yell!"

"That's a likely tale!" the old woman exclaimed in a deep scorn. "You mean to tell me you'd put a hook with a worm on it in your pocket?" she demanded. "I guess you'd have to be drunk to do that, Bart."

Bart grinned. "Well," he said, "matter of fact, I did have quite an edge on, the last time I went fishing. It was along toward dark, here last Tuesday night. Ike Putney come by my place make you admit yo're a liar! You've after supper, and we had a few drinks, made up this whole tale, since you and we lowed to try the trout, and killed Huldy. You never went down did. But half the time, I didn't know brook to fish. You never even had whether I was fishing in the brook or your rod with you. You picked it up in the pasture. Likely I put the hook

And he added persuasively: "Ike, he'll tell you the same."

The old woman uttered a sound like a sniff of scorn. "Ike! I'd believe anything of him. If you told me he carried his worms in his mouth, I'd believe it!"

Bart's eyes widened. "By cracky!" he exclaimed. "I mind, now, Ike had his store clothes on, and I lent him my overalls to wear when we went fishing! He put that hook in the pocket of 'em, I'll bet a nickel!"

Marm Pierce looked at the sheriff almost apologetically, in a curious "That might be the truth, Sheriff," she admitted ruefully. "Ike was in here Tuesday afternoon to get me to give him something for an earache. I wrapped up a pinch of black pepper in some cotton, and dipped it in sweet oil and put it in his ear; and I told him to go on home and put a bandage 'round his head to keep it warm. But he 'lowed he wished he had a drink, and he set out to go over to Bart's. I mind he did have on his store clothes, just like Bart says!" There was a reluctant honesty in her tones; she faced Bart again.

"But just the same," she insisted, 'I don't swallow the whole of your tell!" She stood frowning with the intensity of her thoughts, searching for some crevice in his armor. "You said a while ago you had stopped fishyou heard Huldy yell," she reminded him, seizing on a new point. "But now you claim you'd just broke a hook off Marm Pierce's challenge. That the and tied a new one on. How could you break a hook if you wa'n't fish-

He answered, almost mirthfully: "I stopped to try the deep hole there at the foot of the ledge!"

He had parried all her thrusts so easily that there was a sort of madness in the little old woman now. She was like a caged animal, coursing to and fro in its search for some avenue hunting them feathers I sent you after, before Huldy died, and not finding any, when the hen pen was full of 'em?" she demanded. "Looks to me you was afraid if I had them I'd get you!

"I didn't put any stock in it, with Huldy as good as dead, or maybe dead a'ready; but long as you wanted 'em, I started out to get

"But when I was going through the shed, I happened to look out the window on the back side, and I see something move, over in the alders. It looked to me like a man. I stayed there watching, but I didn't see him again; so after a spell, I come back in the rowed with perplexity. house."

"You never said nothing about that before! Marm Pierce exclaimed.

"Soon as I come in, you jumped m right out into the barn again, went with me," he reminded her. "And when we come back with the feathers, Huldy was dead, and Jenny said there house, so I knowed it was probably Win that I had see."

The old woman considered this Maybe if Win was around here after Huldy died . ." she began thoughtfully, but then she remembered. "But it wa'n't Win that you see," she pro tested quickly. "He was in Liberty village by then!"

"Well, whoever it was," Bart said in a conciliating tone.

They were all silent then a while, considering this suggestion that there had been some man, who was not Win Haven, neat the house when Huldy died. But in the end Marm Pierce brushed this matter impatiently aside she decided, returning to the attack "Or maybe nothing at all. I think that's all a pack of lies, if you ask

"Look out, Granny! That thing will go off!"

"It's likely to," the old woman as sured him. She appealed to the sheriff. go ahead and put the handcuffs on him! I've got his gun."

But Sohier said in a baffled tone: 'Why ma'am, it looks to me like Carey here tells a pretty straight story, take it all the way through."

Bart chuckled. "Granny, yo're wonder," he said in an ironic mirth. Her hands had sagged under the weight of that revolver, until the weapon hung now forgotten by her side, "Never mind about me," she retorted, her tone abstracted. "I'm trying to see this straight. You come on her, up to the ledge, and maybe grabbed her, and she raked your cheek and that made you mad so you banged Sohier rose and turned to face Bart. "Bart," he said. "I don't mean to say you had anything to do with this But what if you and Will was both to come along to town and talk it over with the county attorney there?' His tone was as though he urged Bart to humor old Marm Pierce thus far, and Bart answered agreeably enough.

"Why, it's foolishness, Sheriff," he protested. "But if it'll favor you, I'll go. I'll have to stop by my place and pull down some hay and give the critters water. They ain't been fed tonight."

"Shore," the big man assented. "We Huldy to come to, and she'd tell on can do that." He looked at Saladine. "Jim, say you drive me and Bart

Saladine hesitantly agreed, since there seemed no better course. Huldy Ferrin was dead, and doubtless murdered; but if Bart were guilty, then he was an incredibly shrewd and crafty man; and if he lied, then he was incredibly apt at mendacity. Marm Pierce herself appeared to be unsatisfied, as though uneasily conscious that she had falled to prove her case. She stood with her hand at her mouth, her head bent; and her brow was fur

But she said no new word while the sheriff buttoned his overtout, and Bart put his slicker on. Only then she exclaimed: "Sheriff, there ain't a wite Schier scratched his head. "That's so," he agreed; and he said reluctantly: "Well, Will, maybe you'd best stay here tonight. I'll be out again up the

"Whatever you say, Sherift," Will assented.

Bart said in dry ill humor: "Looks like the pack of you was bound to lay this on me. Why sh'd I go, any more than Will? Huldy blamed it on him. Sheriff, you can't get around her ewn say-so, it looks to me."

The sheriff was uncomfortable, out after a moment Bart in a returning good humor yielded the point. "I can stand it, though," he said. "And Will had ought to stay here with them, at that. Zeke's around here somewhere. No telling what he might try to do; but Will can handle him,"

So it was decided. It did not occur to Saladine till somewhat later that a remembered fear of Zeke on his own account might have prompted Bart to this easy-and surprising-surrender. Yet Bart, as the event proved, might have been justified in welcoming for a while the protecting custody of the Bart and the sheriff stepped outside; and Saladine, after a word of farewell, followed them to his car. They had taken the rear seat. He cranked the engine, and climbed in and turned on the headlights. The kitchen door was open yonder, and Will and Jenny stood in silhouette against the light, their shoulders touching.

Saladine backed the car, preparing to turn; but in that last moment, old Marm Pierce came bursting through the door, brushing Will and Jenny out of her way, holding up both hands. calling something. Saladine waited. and she ran across the yard and drew close beside the car and shouted over the engine's roar:

"Sheriff! I've got a-hold of the answer to it now!"

Her tone was ringing; her countenance triumphant. "Listen here!" she cried, "If Bart had left his gun belt, with the bait the revolver and backed away, holding can and the gun, there on the ground in all that rain while he fetched Huldy over here, the belt'd be soaked through and wet as a string; and there'd be rust on that gun! But there ain't a speck of rust, and his belt is dry as a bone!"

Saladine had not notices whether "There he is, Sheriff!" she cried. "You Bart's gun were rusted or not; yet he perceived the justice of this argument. and turned to hear what the sheriff would say. But Bart laughed, and he

> "Maybe that belt looked dry to you, Granny, but it's wet enough! I can feel it right through my overalls. And the holster kep' the gun dry." He told Sohler: "I'll show you, when we get over to my place, Sheriff. You can see for yourself!"

Sohier accepted this. "All right, ma'am," he shouted to the old woman, over the engine's roar. "I'll look at it, sure!"

Raising the Hat

Raising the hat in deference to a lady is still a mark of a gentleman. If she stops to speak with him, he will remove his hat for the conversation and carry it in his hand unless, be cause of his age or of inclement weather, she requests him to replace it. If so, he will again raise his hat when she leaves. The fact that some young men in college ignore the courtesy does not affect gentlemanly behavior. The origin of the courtesy is speculative. One version is that it arose in the days of chivalry when, in deference to his superiors and to ladies, a knight removed his headgear

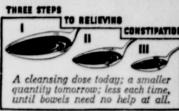

The name Reynard came from a Ger man book of animal stories published hundreds of years ago. In that book the fox was called Regin-hart, meaning "strong in counsel," because of the clever way in which he mastered the other animals. Ever since the book came to this country we have spoker of Reynard the fox-Reynard being our form of the German Regin-bart -- Pear

INITIATIVE

It is true that some people lack Initiative, leadership, and executive ability sufficient to enable them to go into business for themselves wherein they must employ others; but there are a great many things which even these people can do which will not require the employment of others, which would give them the ineffable boon of independence .- O. DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara - both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

Lesson for January 26 JESUS DECLARES HIS PURPOSE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:16-30.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind to set at liberty hem that to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord.—Luke 4:18, 19.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Preaches to His Home Fells.

His Home Folks.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' First Serme INTERMEDIATE AND SEI
TOPIC—Choosing a Life Purpose.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND AI
TOPIC—What Jesus Came to Do.

Jesus in the Synagogue (v. 16). On the Sabbath he went into the Synagogue according to his custom. He no doubt went that day with a new and definite purpose, but how refreshing to know that it was according to his habit. Many young people have been safeguarded from the pitfalls of the world because of the habit of reading the Bible, praying and going to church.

II. Jesus Reading the Scriptures (vv. 17-19).

1. The book handed to him (v. 17). It was not only his custom to attend the place of worship, but to take part in it. This privilege was not confined to the rabbis (Acts 13:15). Jesus, therefore, used the liberty accorded him. 2. The passage read (Isa. 61:1,2). It is not entirely clear as to whether this was, providentially, the Scripture reading for the day, or whether it was specifically chosen by him for that occasion.

3. The content of the passage (vv. 18, 19).

a. The mission of the Messiah (v. 18).

(1) To preach the gospel to the poor. The good tidings which Jesus proclaimed are peculiarly welcome to the common people. By "poor" in this case is primarily meant those who were poor in spirit (Matt. 5:3).

(2) To heal the broken-hearted. The gospel of Christ meets the needs of those whose hearts are crushed by the weight of their own sins or by a burden of sorrow and disappointment. (3) To preach deliverance to the captives. This meant deliverance from the bondage of the Devil (John 8:36). (4) Recovering of sight to the blind. Christ did actually make those who were physically blind to see (John 9:6, 7) and also opened the eyes of those who were spiritually blind (I John 5:20).

(5) To set at liberty them that are bruised. The power of Christ can free the most utterly hopeless ones. (6) To preach the acceptable year of the Lord. The primary allusion is to the year of jubilee (Lev. 25:8-10). b. The special enduement of the Messiah (v. 18). He was the anointed one predicted by Isaiah, the Messiah.

III. Jesus Expounding the Scriptures (vv. 20, 21). 1. He closed the book and sat down.

It seems to have been the custom of the Jewish teachers to sit while teach-

2. "This day is this scripture fulfilled." This statement is no doubt but the gist of what he said. He thus declared that he was the Messiah, IV. Jesus' Reception by the People

(vv. 22-30). The critical hour had come. The people were amazed. They admitted his gracious words but were unable to admit his claims. His reception was characterized by 1. Ignorant prejudice (v. 22). They said, "Is not this Joseph's son?" as if to say, "This is our fellow townsmen with whom we have been acquainted for years. Surely, he cannot be the Messiah."

2. Unbelief as to his supernatural power (v. 23). They challenged him to exhibit examples of divine power, 3. Personal jealousy (v. 24). Jealousy often prevents us from seeing the essential worth of men in our midst. Jesus adduced two outstanding examples of the willingness of foreigners to believe God. a. Elijah was sent to a widow at Serepta (vv. 25, 26). Many widows of Israel were passed by, doubtless because they would not have received the prophet. b. Naaman, the foreigner, of the many lepers, was the one cleansed. (v. 27).

4. Violent hatred (vv. 28-30). This comparison of the Jews with foreigners so offended their pride that they tried to kill him. He showed them that just as Elijah had brought blessing to one who lived in Sidon, and Elisha to one in Syria, while the people of Israel went on suffering, even so the Gentiles would receive the blessing of his saving power, while they, the chosen nation, would suffer in unbelief.

Pity

Pity and forbearance, and long-sufferance, and passing the gentlest sentence, are as certainly our duty, and owing to every person that does offend and can repent, as calling to account can be owing to the law; and he that does not so is an unjust person .-Jeremy Taylor.

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well - Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet dis-covered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neu-ritis and neuralgia. And the experi-ence of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest re-member this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this — and see that you get what you want.

Adventurers' Club

"When the Earthquake Struck" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

MOVE back your chairs, boys and girls, and make room for Emanuel Mitchell, who tells a strange story in this One-Thousand-and-One Nights of Adventure club of ours.

We pick up Emanuel in a little lunch room. The date is April 18, 1935, and the hour is late. As Emanuel sails into his ham and eggs -sunny side up-a young priest takes the counter seat next to him. Emanuel's eyes wander to this young priest many times as he eats. In his memory he is back in San Francisco, 29 years before, on the night the earthquake-pardon me, the fire-destroyed the coast city. And, come to think of it, it happened on this same date-April 18 in 1906. Emanuel is in a retrospective mood. The priest's Roman collar recalls another priest to him. He wants to tell of this other man of God who saved his life that night so long ago in San Francisco. The young priest smiles and Emanuel tells his story.

Emanuel was a traveling salesman in those days and on that memorable April night was sleeping in a little hotel in San Francisco. He was tired from his day's work. Emanuel says, and the first shock of the quake did not awaken him, but he remembers feeling a strange disturbance about him as though in a dream. He slept on and only awakened when he felt a violent tugging on his Awakened From One Dream Into Another.

He opened his eyes. The room was pitch dark, but he was finally able to a young man in a nightshirt standing by his bed.

"Wake up." the man said, "there's been an earthquake." Emanuel looked around blankly and discovered the room in great disorder. Another shock hit the city at that moment and the awful feeling of terror that comes to a person who first feels an earthquake hit him with paralyzing force. He was unable to move, but lay there in bed rigid with horror.

The man in the nightgown, seeing his helplessness, never hesitated. He bulled Emanuel out of bed and, throwing him over his shoulder, carried the salesman bodily down the seven flights of stairs to the lobby.

Hotelful of Guests Are Petrified With Fright.

In the lobby a pitiful group of frightened guests in nightclothes were crying and gesticulating, beside themselves with fright. The manager alone was calm. He told his guests that fire had already broken out in the doomed city but that if they hurried they would have time to go to their rooms and

Up the stairs went the guests as fast as they could go-all except Emanuel. He was still too nervous to function and the elevator in the hotel was in the same condition. But that didn't stop the young stranger in the nightgown. He just tossed Emanuel over his shoulder like a sack of meal, carried him back up the way he had come and then went puffing off to his own room to dress.

When he came back after Emanuel, Emanuel says he couldn't believe his The young man of the nightgown was a priest. His collar was just like that of the man who now sat beside Emanuel in the lunch room,

Emanuel Rides Once More on Friendly Shoulders

Once more, Emanuel-still in a nervous condition-was carried down those long flights. This time out into the night. Emanuel does not remember the many scenes of horror they must have passed as the young priest picked his way through the debris-strewn streets. He does remember the glare of fire that lit up the city in back of them and he remembers stopping at a deserted lunchroom. The proprletor had left everything in his hurry to be gone. Coffee was still hot in the coffee urn and a cup of it served by the priest soon had Emanuel back on his feet. The priest left a coin on the counter. The rest of their journey through that night of horror Emanuel does not like to recall. Morning found them safe from the flames that had already swept the quarter where their little hotel had once stood. The years passed-as years do-but Emanuel says he never failed to call on the priest whenever business took him to the Pacific coast. The two became close friends and many years later when the brave priest died Emanuel traveled 500 miles to attend his funeral.

Proving Again That the World Is Not So Small.

And that, boys and girls, is the story Emanuel told the young priest in the funch room in New York. As he finished, the two drank a silent toast in coffee to the other priest. "To Father Harrison," Emanuel said, holding his cup to the other's.

The young priest's cup shook in his hand. He stared at Emanuel. "Father Harrison," he said softly, "was my uncle. He was my inspiration for entering the priesthood."

Locomotive Whistle Has Language All Its Own

Locomotives started learning to talk more than 100 years ago, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. At first they could only whistle a warning to the fellow on the track ahead. Then they begar to talk to each other, to the'r brakemen back in the caboose, to trainmen in sidings and yards.

Every railroad has whistles made to its individual specifications, their distinctive tones varying with the diameter and length of the tubes. Railroaders who know locomotive talk sometimes spend restless nights back in the sleepers, conscious of every signal blast. A succession of short, sharp toots tells them there's some obstacle on the track just ahead. A stagle short whistle precedes application of brakes, and two medium blasts mean brakes are being released. A medium and three short notes send the flagman back to protect the rear of a stalled train.

To call him back, the engineer sounds four medium whistles if the train is eastbound and five if it is westbound. One long whistle salutes a station ahead, and two medium and a short blast signal the approach to a railway crossing. One short and one medium whistle direct the crew to inspect a leaking train line, and three medium blasts should worry any wakeful rail-roaders aboard; it is the signal that a car has broken loose from the train.

coach days. The engineer blew his own horn. But in 1832 a farmer driting his egg cart across the Leicester-Swannington railroad tracks in England ignored the engineer's frantic toots and, although he escaped alive, his eggs were scrambled. So the railroad hitched the post horn to steam and created the steam trumpet. Then, in 1835, it adopted the steam whistle. Since then endless research has adapted whistles to the peculiar conditions of the Milroad

First Bathtub "Health Menace" America's first bathtub was built in Cincinnati in 1842. It was of mahogany, lined with sheet lead, and was exhibited at a party. Next day, 16cal papers denounced it as "luxurious and democratic vanity." Medical men took it up and pronounced the bath tub a "menace to health." In 1843, Philadelphia undertook by public ordinance to prohibit bathing between November 1 and March 15. Two years later Boston made bathing unlawful except when prescribed by physicians Bathtubs were taxed $30 yearly. And that was only a little more than 90 years ago.
