McDONALD FOR NEW TERM

McDonald, state commissioner of agriculture, announced recently that he is a candidate for re-election to the office. He gives a summary of his record in office, as evidence that he is qualified for a second term.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORS HERE SUNDAY

There was a red letter day for the Christian Endeavorers, they had their guests a number of the city, who brought an excellent program. The introductions and group talks were made by the vice-president, Vivian Burleson, the new chairman, Robert Mc then the meeting was turned to the Tulsa young people who had the devotionals and gave splendid talks and musical numbers. There was a short period of acquainted and promoting fellowship among the thirty young people chaperones: Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Crocker, and Mrs. Hurde buffet supper at the home of Mrs. Clyde Wright. It was a very successful meeting. The Silverton branch of the Christian Endeavor Society is invited to a visit in the near future.

Gets the Crowd

Frank N. Watson, as director of promotion, has the task of informing the public the Texas Centennial Exposition will be in Dallas June 6 to Nov. 29. Apparently it is a task already well done for travel agencies set attendance at 12 million.

PLAINVIEW DAIRY SHOW

With a varied program of rodeo, horse show, and races for the entertainment, the Panhandle-Plains Dairy Show to be held at Plainview, April 6 to 9th, promises to be a success. Monday afternoon a real Western Rodeo will be staged on the show grounds with about thirty-five events listed. Broncho riding, steer roping and all the other lively phases of a rodeo will be shown. Tuesday and Thursday afternoons there will be greyhound and rabbit racing and a horse show. A list of the entered horses show that it will be one of the best for several years. Races, both square and round, will be held during the Dairy Show. C. R. Buchanan, of Silverton, is one of the directors of the Panhandle-Plains Dairy Show.

SILVERTON H. D. CLUB MEETING

The Silverton branch of the Briscoe County Home Demonstration Club met at the Court House Saturday afternoon and held a short business meeting with Mrs. Joe H. Smith presiding. Reports from different parts of the county indicate an intense interest and warm enthusiasm for the work. The Club decided that if we could arrange for a County Home Agent for only six months, we should try to have her begin in June instead of in July, and let her term end a month earlier in the winter, because we might be able, by such a plan, to send some of our girls and women to "Short Course", which would be of great value to the county's work, also June is the important time to have assistance in canning. Plans for the meeting with Miss Lida Cooper, the District Home Demonstrator, were discussed. The ladies of the entire county who are interested in this work are asked to be present Friday at 2 o'clock in the First Methodist church at Silverton, on April 3, for Miss Cooper's demonstration of rug making and knitting.

MARCH OF TIME JUNIOR STUDY CLUB

The March of Time Junior Study Club met Thursday afternoon at the High School building. A very interesting program was presented to a large crowd. For next years topic the Club decided to study "Culture in the U. S. as Seen from our Highways." Mrs. Tony Burson was elected delegate to the District Federation meeting at Lubbock March 30, 31, and April 1st.

Judge W. W. Martin, P. D. Jasper, and L. E. Graham of Quitaque left Thursday afternoon for Wichita Falls to attend the West Texas County Judge's and Commissioners' Convention. Several noted speakers were on program, among them were: Ernest O. Thompson, Chairman of the Railroad Commission, Harry Hines, Chairman of Texas Highway Commission, and Tom Hunter, former candidate for Governor.

After the Convention they motored on to Ft. Worth to attend the Fat Stock Show.

Texas Tomatoes

The extensive tomato growing industry of Texas will be recognized in two Centennial year celebrations which are the National Tomato show to be held at Jacksonville on May 31 and the Tom Tom to be held at Yoakum on June 5 and 6.

Emergency Crop Loans

Application for emergency crop loans for 1936 are now being received at the office of Mr. Anderson at the court house by C. C. Gibson, field supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration.

The emergency crop loans will be made only to farmers who cannot obtain credit from any other source, as provided by regulations issued by the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration. The money loaned will be limited to the farmer's immediate and actual cash needs for growing his 1936 crops and in no instance may exceed $200 to one farmer.

Farmers are not eligible for emergency crop loans if they can borrow from an individual, production credit association, bank, or other concern. Farmers will also be considered ineligible if they have an application pending with Resettlement Administration, have received assistance from that organization this year or are indebted to the Resettlement Administration for an unpaid loan.

As in the past, the security for an emergency crop loan will consist of a first lien on the crop financed. Landlord or others having an interest in the crop to be financed will be required to waive their claims in favor of a lien to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration until the emergency crop loan is repaid.

Checks in payment of approved loans will be issued by the Regional Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office at Dallas, Texas.

PUBLIC NOTICE

I am in charge of the Phillips Station south of the hotel. I will appreciate your business. Car washing and greasing. J. E. McCAIN.

NOTICE

A mass meeting was held at the Court House on March 16, at which I was requested to have printed on the ballots the names of the following men for County Trustees: F. M. Autry for Precinct No. 1; H. R. Brown for Precinct No. 3; and E. D. McMurry for Precinct No. 4. It was too late to have these names printed on the ballots because the election supplies had already been sent out to the various school boards. W. W. Martin

Texas Remembers Tragic Massacre at Goliad

Goliad, Texas, March 24.—The aged, stone walls of Mission La Bahia near here, from which 390 Texans, prisoners of war, were marched on Palm Sunday, March 27, 1836, to be massacred on the South Texas Coastal plain, will be the background for one of the most impressive of the state's Centennial year observances. Solemn ceremonies at the Mission Friday, March 27, will commemorate the tragic event which decreed the independence Texas won less than a month later on the fields of San Jacinto.

The Goliad massacre came as Texas was waging its revolt against the tyranny of Santa Anna, the Mexican dictator. Colonel James Walker Fannin of Georgia was in command of the Texan force at Goliad when the order was received to evacuate the frontier post as Houston retreated from Gonzales to the east. The retreat from Goliad was started on March 19 but Fannin's force was engaged by the enemy at Colito. The battle lasted into the next day and ended with the surrender of the Fannin men as prisoners of war. They were returned to Goliad and imprisoned in the walls of the mission.

A few days later Colonel William Ward and a Georgia battalion, captured near Victoria, were added to the prisoner band.

At daylight on Palm Sunday, March 27, the Texans were roused from sleep and marched from the fort in three different companies, each guarded by a file of soldiers.

Boy Scouts Enthusiastic

An enthusiastic organization meeting of Silverton Troop Number One, of the Boy Scouts of America, was held at the Methodist Church here Friday, March 20. Thirty two boys enrolled as charter members. The City has given the troop the use of the building just south of the Willson Lumber Co., as a club house. The boys will have it ready for occupation soon.

Four Patrols have been organized, the Lions, Night Hawks, Wolves, and Flying Eagles. The charter members are:

- Albert White, Taylor Williamson, Billy Joe Womack, Bernard Havron, W. L. Perry, Fred Havron, John Henry Crow, John Ed Bain, John White, Roy Thomas, Wade McGavock, Kelton Newman, Billie Gregg, Wesley Freeman, Elmodean Beard, James Davis, Roy Bechtol, Bruce Burleson, Jack Burlison, Jack O'Neal, Gwinn Williamson, Grady Martin, Buster Harris, Rex Douglas, James L. Allred, Perry Thomas, Arlis White, Charles Dunn, Lloyd Sherman, Charles Quillen, John Earl Simpson, Len Lee, W. W. Wilson, who is in charge of the boys as Scoutmaster, says that the boys are to have a public installation service soon, as soon as the boys have all passed the Tenderfoot Requirements. The boys are asked to save ten cents a week and the money will be used in the purchase of scout equipment.

COUNTY WELFARE ASSN. OPEN

The Briscoe County Welfare Association is now open. Mrs. Kate McKenny, County Case Worker, is head of it. Her office is located in the old Relief Office at the Court House. She will have her office open in Silverton Mondays and in Quitaque on Tuesdays. Mrs. McKenny states that it is now possible for W. P. A. Workers to get clothing through this means in case of need only.

Don't forget to vote at the school election April 4th.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Deavenport went to Canyon Sunday to see their daughter Corine Deavenport.

Gun Girl

The gun which Helen Stamps, Texas Exposition Rangerette, holds, is from the collection of A. W. Discher, of Dallas. Eighteen notches on its stock attest to its efficiency in frontier Indian fighting. This, an 1827 Spencer Indian and Buffalo gun, and others from the Discher collection will be displayed during the Exposition which opens in Dallas June 6.

INVITATION AMATEUR PROGRAM

There will be an invitation amateur program in which no one will be barred at the Lakeview School house on April 10th beginning at 8 p. m. Prizes will be awarded the winners. First prize will be $5.00, second $3.00 and third $2.00. An effort will be made to make arrangements to have winner of first prize to have an opportunity to appear before the Mike at either Lubbock or Amarillo.

Several different communities will be invited to have representatives here and anyone that wishes to compete in this program should let same be known at once to Mrs. W. W. Douglas, Silverton, Texas.

State Health Notes

"High up on every health officer's list of 'Disease Prevention Duties' at this time of the year, is the remainder, 'Typhoid Fever Immunization,' stated Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer.

"Through the protection of public water supplies from contamination, the pasteurization of milk supplies, vaccination against the disease, improved sanitation of homes not served by protected water supplies, sanitary supervision of sources of food supplies and other protective measures, typhoid fever can be controlled.

"Here are the facts: As somebody has aptly said 'Nobody catches typhoid—he swallows it.' Typhoid is a fifth-borne disease. It causes great suffering and many deaths. That is not all. It is like an endless chain. A certain number of the people who have the disease and recover from it, become 'carriers.' They continue to pass the typhoid-producing germs in the discharge from the bowels and kidneys. If the discharges are not disinfected before they are disposed of the germs may spread into the soil and pollute it, or they may be carried into an unprotected water supply and contaminate it. A carrier may also spread typhoid when he handles or prepares food and is not careful to wash his hands.

"In vaccination against typhoid we have an effective means of protection which lasts for a certain period and then must be renewed. If you have not been protected against typhoid within the last two or three years, go to your doctor and have it done now. The disease is both preventable and unnecessary."

GARDEN CLUB TO GIVE QUILT

Folks, here is good news. The quilt will be given Saturday at the Trade Day Meeting. However, you do not have to attend the meeting to get the quilt.

Enough dimes have been given to mark all the graves and the Garden Club appreciates your help very much. Each dime marked a grave. Each marker is made of cement so your little donation will last for ages. If any persons know the names of those buried in the unmarked graves, please write the name and birth date on a slip and hand it to Mrs. George Blair, who, with the other members of the club, will see that the graves are properly marked.

Finley White's Agricultural Briefs

With shovels and brooms in hand and a prayer in our hearts we're "coming out" of that 3 day session of West Texas rain. The prayer referred to above is "Oh Lord don't let us have one any worse than Monday was for that's all we can stand in one day." But after these "West Texas rains" are over we all feel better and say to ourselves, "She'll have to have lots of bad features before they'll ever balance the good ones." And besides being a shade dry at times and kinda subject to sandstorms in the spring, West Texas has no bad features.

With Erosion Work

At a meeting of the Briscoe County Agricultural Association in the District Court room last Saturday a wind erosion committee was set up to handle his county's wind troubles. The county committee consists of H. J. A. Biley, W. V. Chandler and Henry Edens. The community committeemen are J. E. Cooper, Kent; P. C. Hamilton, Quitaque; Joe Bedwell, Gasoline; Dan Dean, Antelope; S. R. Turner, Silverton; T. M. Baxter, San Jacinto; D. R. Blackerby, Rock Creek; Alvin Redin, Francis; Louis Francis, Lakeview; Roy Watley, Wallace and Emnis Autry, Haylake.

There has been an appropriation made to pay for deep listing or chizeling (on the contour) the land that is being damaged by wind. The rate or pay is 20c per acre. Sixty per cent of the amount payable to each individual is payable before plowing and the other 40% is payable after the committeeman reports the work done in a satisfactory manner. This is not a loan, it's a grant.

C. A. P. Forms

The C. A. P. forms cover the difference on cotton between the 10 spot markets and 12c per pound—not to exceed 2c per pound. This payment is called by most folks the Subsidy payment. We have worked and reworked our papers here in the county and have turned them over to the state office at College Station for payment. We do not expect the payment before June tho. It won't be necessary for you to begin asking questions on this deal before June.

We're still looking both ways for those tag checks. The news on them is the same as it is on the new farm program—NONE!

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

Something to Think About National Recovery. Is not a mere matter of Economics America has lost other things of greater value than money or trade.

- A. Moral Standards.
- B. Business integrity.
- C. Personal Honor.

Current Events in Review

By Edward W. Pickard

Situation in Europe Is Still Threatening

SIXTY thousand German troops in the Rhineland that was supposed to be demilitarized. Practically the entire French army in and behind the vast system of fortifications along France's eastern frontier. The French government, backed by the other signers of the violated Locarno treaty and by the little entente, Poland and Russia, demanding that Germany withdraw her troops from the Rhineland or that sanctions, economic and possibly military, be imposed by the League of Nations. Great Britain trying hard to keep the peace, reproving Germany, supporting the French demands in great measure, but urging that Hitler's proposal of new non-aggression pacts be given consideration. Reichsfuehrer Hitler reviewing his forces in the re-occupied territory and receiving the loud plaudits of the inhabitants for restoring their military sovereignty.

That in a nutshell was the perilous situation in Europe as the representatives of the League of Nations and the council of the league assembled in London to consider what to do next. Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin of France was there with the full support of Premier Sarraut for his demands that immediate action be taken to bring Hitler to heel.

The Franco-Russian treaty came up in the French senate and was ratified by a huge majority. It is this pact that Hitler gave as his excuse for remilitarizing the Rhineland, asserting that it was a violation of the Locarno treaty, being aimed at Germany. It is the final link in the "iron ring" around the Reich.

Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy, signers of the Locarno treaty, agreed that Germany had violated that pact and the Versailles treaty and referred the matter to the council of the league. But Britain, still striving to find the peaceful way out of the row, was averse to the immediate imposition of sanctions, and naturally Italy, herself suffering from that form of punishment, felt the same way. Foreign Secretary Eden of England continued his efforts to persuade Hitler to withdraw the troops from the Rhineland pending discussions, and urged upon Flandin the advisability of considering the German chancellor's proposals for a 25-year peace pact.

Co-operating with the British for peace, the league council invited Hitler to send a representative to its meeting. His reply was considered "unsatisfactory" by the British and enraged the French. He said, in effect, that he would send a representative to the council's deliberations only on condition that the other powers meet it there on a basis of full equality and promptly consider new treaty negotiations to replace the Locarno pact.

French Premier Sarraut and his cabinet, according to officials in Paris, at once instructed Flandin to fight to the bitter end for the punishment of Germany, deciding that it would be better to take such a stand, even if it "wrecks the league," rather than bargain away "the nation's just right" by accepting Hitler's proposals for a new Locarno. Sarraut was reported to be ready even to quit the league, taking France's allies with him, if the council did not accede to his demands.

Germany's "army day" celebration was much quieter in the Rhineland than had been planned, owing to the tense situation. Troops at Frankfurt were inspected by War Minister Werner von Blomberg and there was a speech by Hitler; but the military parades and other features were canceled. Elsewhere in the Reich the day was duly observed, but the feeling of anxiety was general and unceasing.

The Frankfurter Zeitung, which like all German newspapers is under close government supervision, published a warning that Germany may repudiate her foreign debts if she is penalized for the rearmament of the Rhineland.

New York's Building Service Strike Ends

COMPROMISE brought to an end the two weeks' strike of building service workers in New York and thousands of elevator operators and other employees returned to their jobs in some 2,400 apartment houses and business structures. The settlement provided for immediate re-employment of all strikers and arbitration of wages and hours, and it was hailed as a "great victory" by James J. Bambrick, head of the local union and leader in the strike.

Arbitration of minimum wages and maximum hours under supervision of Ferdinand A. Silcox, chief of the United States forestry service. Wages and hours are to be fixed at the end of each of the next three years on the basis of prevailing economic conditions.

In signing a three year contract with the realty advisory board, representing the employers, union leaders abandoned their demand for a closed or preferential shop. Building operators, in their turn, agreed to reinstate all strikers instead of insisting on the retention of 15 per cent of the replacement workers hired during the strike.

Prince Serge Mdivani Killed by Polo Pony

PRINCE SERGE MDIVANI, one of the more or less famous brothers from the Russian province of Georgia who have married so many American heiresses and movie actresses, was killed by the kick of a polo pony at Delray Beach, Fla., during a game with Cecil Smith's Texan team. Only five weeks before the prince became the husband of Louise Astor Van Alen, and she and her mother witnessed the fatal accident. Serge was divorced by Pola Negri and Mary McCormick, and then married Miss Van Alen, who had divorced his brother Alexis. The latter was killed some months ago in a motor accident in Spain shortly after his marriage to Barbara Hutton had ended in divorce. The third of the brothers is Prince David, former husband of Mae Murray.

Leftist Riots in Spain Arouse the Army

SINCE the recent elections in Spain the riots staged by the leftists have been growing more vicious daily, and after disorders at Logrono in which a number of persons were killed the Spanish army was aroused to vigorous protest.

Premier Manuel Azana was told by the officers that unless his new left government adopted measures to stop the widespread violence the army would take the maintenance of order into its own hands. Gen. Carlos Masquelet, minister of war, was said to be in sympathy with the army's demand.

Azana held a heated conference with Francisco Largo Caballero, president of the Socialist party and is said to have told him that he believed revolutionary Socialists were responsible for most of the disorders, demanding that the violence cease immediately. Largo insisted that the Socialists be permitted to demonstrate, but finally gave in to the premier and issued orders to all Socialists to behave themselves.

Despite strict censorship imposed by the governor of Logrono it was learned that incendiaries there set fire to six convents and churches, four rightist centers and a rightist newspaper, and then attacked the army barracks, attempting to seize artillery.

Destruction by Floods in Eastern States

SPRING thaws and heavy rains created a serious condition throughout the northeastern states and as far southward as Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and in the Maritime provinces of Canada. The number of reported deaths was not great but many cities and towns were threatened by great ice packs that were swept down the swollen rivers, and vast areas of the countryside were under water. Textile mills and other industrial plants were forced to close down and railway traffic was handicapped.

Britain Names Inskip to Co-Ordinate Defense

PROCEEDING with its great rearmament program, the British government has named Sir Thomas Inskip, attorney general since 1932, to be the co-ordinator of the entire scheme, giving him a newly created cabinet post. This selection by Prime Minister Baldwin was a surprise. It had been thought the place might go to Winston Churchill, Neville Chamberlain, Alfred Duff Cooper or Sir Samuel Hoare.

Sir Thomas is known as an "anti-Ingoloid," is sixty years old and always is calm and unflinching in the house of commons or at the bar. It will be his duty as defense co-ordinating minister to synchronize activities of the army, navy, and air services.

Cummings Is Winner in Dispute With Ickes

IN UPHOLDING the conviction of Leonard Walter McIntosh, chief clerk of the department of public works of the Virgin Islands, on a minor theft charge the federal circuit court of appeals at Philadelphia ruled that the federal department of justice has complete control over the district court and the government attorney of the islands. This was a victory for Attorney General Cummings over Secretary of the Interior Ickes, for the latter's department, using the suit as a test case to determine control of the civil affairs of the Virgin Islands, had asked that the conviction of McIntosh be set aside as unjustified.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

If Russia Joined Japan Not Heroic Action Lloyd George Hopeful England Still Safe

Editors talk about Asia, led by Japan, conquering the world. They might speculate on a union between Japan and Russia.

Impossible, you will say, truly, but if Russian-Japanese hostility could be changed into Russian-Japanese agreement a new world chapter might open.

You hear of Russia's "red army," 1,300,000 men, thoroughly armed, and 7,000,000 reserves. You see photographs of Russia's amphibian tanks, mounted with machine guns, rolling over the land and swimming rivers; you read about intensive training of tens of thousands of Russian air pilots, parachute jumpers, etc., and see even the broad-shouldered young Russian women drilling with rifles. Western Europe may have a problem closer at hand than Japan.

Our British cousins in the Revolution cheerfully let loose howling, scapling Indians on their cousins in the American colonies, and bolshevism might cheerfully turn Asiatic killing efficiency against western "capitalism."

You remember how cheerfully the great historian Gibbon predicted that, in the American war, "with firmness all may go well," because "Scotch Highlanders, Irish, Hanoverians, Canadians, Indians, etc., will all in various shapes be employed."

There is no reason why Russia of 1936 should be more squeamish now than England at the end of the Eighteenth century.

Lloyd George, who ought to know about Europe and war since he and old Clemenceau won the big war, tells Universal Service this present war is "off." France having learned that "even her most ardent friends in Europe shrink from war."

Lloyd George declares that peace "without derogating from the dignity of any of the powers" will be preserved, if France does not make it impossible.

Lloyd George says not 1 per cent of Englishmen would vote for war, and not 10 per cent for employing sanctions against Germany.

If enough rich Americans go to England to "escape kidnapers" the kidnapers may move over after them, as professional gamblers followed on big ships. London police arrested Alfred Molyneux, thirty-one, trying to extort $1,000 from the Countess Barbara Hutton Hauptwitz-Reventlow, offering to reveal a plot to kidnap her baby. Police knew by the moderate price it could not be an American "snatcher" or confederate. Easily caught, the young man confessed he had invented the plot.

With "visibility cut to zero," street lights burning by day, not visible across the street, dust storms are blowing over parts of Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico.

By such displays of nature's power, for which man's foolishness is responsible, fertile areas of the world have been changed to deserts.

A bill that would have limited work to five working days of six hours each, or thirty hours a week, is dead in congress for the time being. It would have given workers twenty-four hours off on Saturday and Sunday, eighteen hours for sleep, "ten hours for what we will." All that will come some day, but by discouraging improved machinery.

An intelligent young man who fought well in the big war speaks of "the 2-to-1" advantage which modern methods give the defense over the attack. To let the other man or nation come at you, if you are prepared, has been wise in the past.

It might be different in future wars, if the attacker, with a couple of thousand airplanes, dropping explosive bombs and poison gas, should surprise the enemy. "Defense" would have no 2-to-1 advantage over that sort of attack.

Lloyds, the great English insurance concern, at first refused to insure against war at any price. Now Lloyds will insure, otherwise "bet," nine and a half to one against war within six months. Wall Street wanted that news and of course cheered up.

A mother of Fort Worth, Texas, offered her body to Chicago's Cook County hospital for dissection after natural death, if the hospital would provide a free operation for her son. The hospital declined the body, performed the free operation. Now twenty, all women but one, offer to sell their bodies, "delivered after death."

The governor of Campeche in Mexico, after keeping all churches in his state closed for more than a year and a half, now permits all to reopen.

A fight against religion often starts violently, to wind up feebly.

Roosevelt Has Kept Pledges

Lobby Criticism Refuted; Black's Committee Stirs Up Lobbyists

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON.—I wonder by what peculiar perversion of intellect there comes this criticism of Roosevelt that "he has violated every campaign pledge he ever made"? It comes persistently from the ranks of the power trust lobbyists, who at the same time now also complain because Roosevelt's crowd is paying strict attention to carrying out one of the strongest pre-election pledges. This was the pledge to give control of the natural power resources of the country to the people.

Roosevelt, within the last few days, once again pledged all his strength for the development of the St. Lawrence waterway, which is a plan to bring ocean-going vessels straight into mid-continent, making the Great Lakes and the whole Mississippi system a continuous seaport; also to utilize power resources along the way for the public weal. This St. Lawrence water way is one item of the four great power plans pledged by Roosevelt in the summer of his 1932 campaign. One is the vast Tennessee valley development, now going ahead full steam; another is the Columbia river development, planned and on its way; the third was the completion of the Boulder dam; and the fourth was the St. Lawrence waterway. This latter plan is complicated by the necessity of co-operation with Canada, and being a treaty matter, our senate must concur. So far, eastern seaboard cities and the power lobby have prevented the senate from ratifying that treaty.

BLACK STINGS LOBBYISTS

The power lobby and the Liberty league are in the limelight again because of the prodding of Senator Black's lobby investigation committee of the senate. Black comes from Alabama. He is a natural born prosecutor, as are the crooks of his county found him to be when he held that job. That is why the Liberty leaguers, the munitions trust attorneys, and officials of various power holding companies jeer at him as a "small town lawyer" whenever he manages to get the red hot end of the poker too close for comfort.

Just now lobbyists of these interests are having a war dance over the fact that Senator Black managed to read practically all of the telegrams that many corporations and their lawyers dispatched hither and yon throughout the country during the time when the power trust was fighting the death sentence (the legislation putting an end to watered utility holding companies). Senator Black accomplished this by getting the federal communications commission to examine the telegrams and report to him. The communications commission claims to have the right to do this, but the corporations set up a wall claiming that the senate lobby committee has no right to bring these telegrams into the open. These telegrams were largely the directions of the lobby for thwarting the administration's effort to take the crookedness out of the utility business.

By the time the lawyers have thoroughly argued that question we may be in midsummer. At the moment let me observe that, as powerful as the United States senate is, it has its match in the power lobby. You would scarcely believe it, but the electric power organization of this country is so influential in Washington that it can cramp the operations of nearly any senatorial committee. It is reported that it can and has been able to limit the operations and the funds of the investigating committee.

It was the power lobby, through its nation-wide organization, which once blocked a senatorial inquiry into power propaganda by having the matter referred to the conservative and apparently half asleep Federal Trade Commission. However, through one of those blessings which occur to a nation in other words dire need, the federal trade commission awoke to the full responsibility of the inquiry, and the result was the exposure of the greatest propaganda machine ever known in this country. There came to light the tale of how the power trust propaganda against government control and against cheap, publicly owned electricity had been spread through colleges, through text-books, through lecture courses, through churches, and even among public school pupils. The wholesale poisoning operation by the power lobby as exposed in that investigation will not soon be forgotten in Washington.

GOOD COMES OF THEM

The admittedly fine Federal Reserve act and all its amendments are the result of an investigation into the Wall Street of the Morgan days by a committee of the house of representatives which was lampooned bitterly. Right now, as a late example, this country has overwhelmingly declared itself neutral as the result of an investigation into the munitions business by a senate investigation committee headed by Senator Gerald Nye. The Johnson act, prohibiting this country from lending war money to foreign countries which have defaulted in their war debt payments to us, is the result of a senate investigation into wartime financial racketeering. The Teapot Dome scandals investigation by congress saved great areas of oil land for the government. Tremendous amounts of defaulted income taxes and corporation taxes have been recovered from questionable corporations and Wall Street operators through these same inquiries by congress. And always, during the work of the committee, there have been tremendous attacks from the conservative city press, in which two things always appear; one is the ridicule of the members of the committee, especially those elected from a rural constituency, second, the claim that the constitutional rights of the people are threatened by these probing activities of congress.

Actually, these investigations are the only powerful thing congress has to restrain those tremendous groups which in themselves constitute superpower above the government. And, as I have said previously, the most powerful and most dangerous to popular government at the moment is the power trust.

Roosevelt pledged his administration to put a muzzle on that giant, so it is odd to hear the giant's lawyers and politicians claim that the New Deal has forgotten pledges.

CASE OF BRECKENRIDGE

I think I see some connection between these corporations and the activities of a man who ought to know better. Col. Henry Breckenridge, who was assistant secretary of war in the Wilson cabinet when Franklin Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy, is now attempting to run as a candidate for re-nomination for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket. Breckenridge was a promising youth in Kentucky when he stumped that state for Woodrow Wilson and helped to carry it. Breckenridge was a great progressive Democrat at that time, but after he had tasted Washington life and went over to New York to become a Wall Street lawyer, he fell off his progressive horse with a complete fracture of his entire political system. He is now a complete munitions trust fixture.

The thing that may have started Breckenridge running for the nomination against Roosevelt is the fact that Colonel Lindbergh employed Colonel Breckenridge as an attorney. Some of the Democrats here recall that he was in the newspaper headlines for weeks at a time, and they think that he was bitten by the publicity bug. I am sorry Henry Breckenridge is doing this thing.

RETURN TO FOLD

Breckenridge is a symbol of the sort of thing that former Gov. Alfred E. Smith hoped for when he threatened to "take a walk" should the Democratic convention endorse the Roosevelt administration. Incidentally, New Dealers here are saying it is natural for Al to promise to walk after the disastrous experience he had when he tried running. Seriously, though, there is no rush of leaders to get out of the Roosevelt column. In fact, it is all the other way. Here in the East, where there was reasonable expectancy of some Democratic defections, there is a marked effort to come back into the party. The strongest and most consistent anti-Roosevelt Democrat in the senate is probably Millard Tydings, of Maryland. Senator Tydings has hammered the New Deal on practically every issue; and yet, when it came to make a choice he stood up at a great meeting in Baltimore and declared himself in the Roosevelt column. He would not go to the Democratic nominating convention in Philadelphia and vote against Roosevelt. His outward and spoken excuse was that while he criticized the New Deal, he feels sure that any Republican would be much worse. But the real reason was that the political leaders of the New Deal took the fight right to him, as it will be taken to everyone else. If there is going to be any walking away from Roosevelt, let it be done now. When confronted with the alternatives, the anti-Roosevelt Democratic leaders refuse to capitulate in favor of the Liberty league. The same attitude that Senator Tydings had could be observed in a somewhat slighter degree in Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia.

RAILROADS IN BAD FIX

Few people realize the bad financial fix of the railroads. Some of the best ones are making money, but the entire railroad business has suffered six bad years. Six years ago the railroad income was around seven billion dollars. Last year it was around four billions. The roads have cut expenses, but as a whole the railroad industry lacks a billion dollars of making a profit.

This administration is trying to carry out a plan through which many competing lines would be merged and many economies effected. Some progress has been made, but the plan stops dead still when it comes to saving money by discharging too many railroad employees. Neither the President nor the railroad labor unions will stand for that.

Now comes the Interstate Commerce commission with an edict reducing passenger fares from an average of 3.6 cents per mile to an average of 2 cents per mile, effective June 1. This is done on the theory that the reduced fares will cut into bus and auto traffic to restore enough passengers to railroad coaches to make up some of that needed billion. Some railroads welcome the idea. Others will protest it. Admittedly, the Interstate Commerce commission order is an experiment.

JESUS EXPLAINS THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Luke 13:18-30. GOLDEN TEXT—And they shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God.—Luke 13:29.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Good News to Men. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Talks About His Kingdom. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—My Part in Extending Christ's Kingdom. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Requirements for Citizenship in the Kingdom.

1. Jesus Teaching in the Synagogue (vv. 16-21).

The presence of a sorely afflicted woman called forth Jesus' sympathy and he, therefore, healed her. This action on the Sabbath day provoked severe criticism on the part of the ruler of the synagogue. Jesus quickly silenced his objections by showing that this good deed was entirely in keeping with the purpose of the Sabbath day.

1. The parable of the mustard seed (v. 18, 19).

a. Its unimportant beginnings (v. 19).

It begins as the least of all seeds and grows to be the greatest among herbs. The parable and humble circumstances of Jesus the King greatly perplexed the people. That twelve unlettered fishermen should be selected as his advisers was still more amazing.

b. Its vigorous growth (v. 19).

Though small in its inception, the work inaugurated by Jesus Christ has become mighty in power.

c. Its lodging capacity. The birds which find lodgment in a tree do not represent the children of men who find safety and salvation in the church, but they are predatory beings waiting to pluck the tender buds or to prey upon the ripened fruit. The effects of such lodging are evil, blighting even to the spoiling of the tree.

2. The parable of the leavened meal (v. 21). When the scriptural significance of the meal, the woman, and the leaven is known, the interpretation is easy.

a. The meal. Meal in Scripture means something wholesome and nutritious. It was used in one of the sweet savor offerings which typify Christ (Lev. 2:13) and was the food for the priests (Lev. 6:15-17).

b. The leaven (v. 21). In the Scriptures leaven is invariably a type of evil, as the following examples show (Exod. 12:5, Lev. 2:11; Matt. 16:6, 12; 1 Cor. 5:6-8).

c. The woman. In normal life the woman is the administrator of the home, not its head. Her responsibility is to take the bread provided by the head, prepare and distribute it to the household. In Scripture we find false doctrine being taught by a woman. Dealing with doctrine is forbidden to women (1 Tim. 2:12). In 1 Timothy 4:1-3 that apostasy will be brought in through false teaching in the ranks of God's people. The meaning of the parable, therefore, is that the true doctrine of the meal given for the nourishment of the soul will be officially corrupted by false doctrine. The children's food is thus corrupted by their mother.

3. Jesus Teaching in the Villages and Cities (vv. 22-30).

Jesus knew that he was on the way to Jerusalem to be crucified. He was, therefore, making an effort to reach every person possible with the gospel.

1. A question asked (v. 23). We do not know just why this question was asked. It may have been out of curiosity or by some Jew who prided himself on being of the elect.

2. The Lord's answer (v. 24-30). He did not answer directly, but by likening the blessing of the kingdom to a banquet hall in a palace.

a. The gate of the kingdom is strait and the way narrow. It is easy to see from his teaching, as well as from observation, that the saved are few. The fewness is not due to either Christ's unwillingness or inability to save, but the unwillingness of the sinner to come to him.

b. The immediate duty to set forth (v. 24). Regardless of what others are doing, the personal obligation is upon everyone to strive to enter.

c. The door to be shut (v. 25). God's patience will not last forever. His mercy is to end and his judgment will follow. Love and grace spurred will eventuate in the manifestation of divine wrath.

d. Pleading for entrance on the ground of knowing Christ (v. 25, 30). This plea is met by the awful command to depart, and even calling them "workers of iniquity."

e. A day of weeping and gnashing of teeth (v. 28). The very sight of the faithful ones enjoying the bliss of the kingdom, while they themselves are shut out, will be extremely awful.

Laughter and Tears

God made both tears and laughter and both for kind purposes; for as laughter enables mirth and surprise to breathe freely, so tears enable sorrow to vent itself patiently. Tears hinder sorrow from becoming despair and madness.—Leigh Hunt.

Truth

Truth and reason are common to everyone, and are no more his who spoke them first than his who speak them after.—Montaigne.

SYNOPSIS

Kerry Young, a lad of seven, is prepared to flee the burning lumber camp of his benefactor, Jack Snow, who took the youngster to live with him at the death of Kerry's mother.

Another pause. Then, "Yes!"—in a whisper. Something unusual here. "And you figure I am in danger now; and you figure the same way this morning. Then the change is all in you, Jim? In your . . . your attitude, I might say?"

"Oh, I see. . . . Yes, I see how it is. . . . So it was necessary for you to make that play this morning. That it, Jim?"

"Almost reluctantly, the man said: 'Yes; that's it.' 'I'd say that was a queer fix for a man to get himself into.' 'I told you I wasn't any good.' 'But you were wrong. You are some good; a lot of good, I'd say. If you weren't, you wouldn't be waiting for me here tonight to try to fix up what you've broke!'"

"Well . . . it ain't nothin'. It's all I can do." Young shook his head. "No, you can do quite a little more. You can tell me, for instance, why you thought it necessary to believe what West said instead of what your eyes told you."

"He amounts to a lot around here, Tod West does."

"And you don't dare cross him?" "Not much. . . . God, Young, if you only knew!"

"I'm here; I'm ready to listen." "But I can't tell you! It's nothin' that concerns you. It's nothin' you know about."

He had started to back away, Kerry, mind clicking smartly, realized that here was perhaps an outside chance to learn more of Tod West than he could learn from any other source. He pressed his advantage.

"It's something that concerns you, though, Jim. It's something that makes you . . . well, that keeps you under West's thumb? That it?"

"Or his heel!" The man's voice shook.

"You've had a lot to think about today. You've made an about-face and have come clean with me on one detail. Now wouldn't it be the smart thing to carry right on? To put yourself in a position where you could look any man in the eye and say what you think and feel?"

Jim laughed harshly. "As if I could! And what if I tried?"—desperately. "What if I tried? You think I want to find myself locked up and—"

His intentness had overridden his best judgment. "Go on, Jim. Locked up. For what?"

The man was adamant, refused to talk, so gently, firmly, Kerry began arguing, urging for confidence, playing on the fundamental decency in Jim Hinkle's heart.

"I can't! I can't!" he burst out. "You don't know Tod West! Why, to get what he wants he'd as soon charge an innocent man with murder as not! There! I've said it!"

"Murder?" "Yes, murder! If I'd try to get out of doin' what he wants me to do, they'd have me in jail like that,—snapping his thumb,—and charged with killin' Miss Nan's father!"

"But you were suspected, weren't you? I've heard the story."

"Yes, I was. And if it hadn't been for Tod West, Nat Bridger, the sheriff, I'd've took me sure as hell!"

"But when Tod told them he played cards with you—"

"That settled it."

"And if you had been playing cards with him all that evening . . . Then why has he got anything on you?"

A long moment of silence followed. "Because all I know about what happened that night is what Tod told me," said Hinkle at last.

Young gave a long-drawn, "Oh-h-h!" After a moment he added: "So that's it."

"Yes, that's it!"—desperately. "That's it, and he's bearin' down on me 'nd holdin' it over me like a club!"

"That sounds goofy, Jim. He's all-bled you out of suspicion. He's on record with his story, isn't he?"

"But a man with his standin' can admit that he told a certain kind of lie 'nd get away with it, can't he? He could go to 'em 'nd say that he didn't think, at the time, I had anything to do with th' killin', so he went to the front for me; but that it's worried him since and that things 've happened to make him believe that, mebbe, I might not be as straight as he thought I was last November. He could do that, couldn't he?"

"Yes, he could; of course he could. But how would that put you in wrong with the sheriff?"

"All he'd have to tell 'em," Jim said, "was what he swears to me 's the truth 'nd they'd put it on me just as sure as hell!"

"You mean that you weren't at West's house that night? That you didn't play cards with him that evening?"

"I stayed there, sure enough. Leastwise, I woke up there. But when I come in, I dunno; what I'd done before that, I dunno; 'nd if I played cards, I dunno that, either!"

"Good Lord, Jim, that doesn't sound so good, does it? What was it that really happened?"

The man drew a tremulous sigh. "Darned if I know; that is, what happened between 'bout sundown that night and the next mornin'. . . . I don't know any more about that 'n you do, Young."

"You see, I'd had a run-in with Cash the day before. He wasn't an easy man to work for; we'd had a run-in and he fired me 'nd got pretty rough about it, which was his way. A job was a job and I figured I'd had a raw deal 'nd didn't know what I was goin' to do last winter . . . and I lost my head. I told him I'd get back at him some way, and a lot of others heard me."

"I was broke. It was the time when deer-hunters was comin' in to make their camps just before the season open-oned. A lot of 'em allus stop at the Landin' to buy their grub. I hired out to four of 'em to pick out a good campin' spot and to work up firewood for 'em. I took my rifle along 'cause I thought mebbe I might knock a buck over."

"That's What Makes Me Feel Like a Skunk!"

He paused and looked about and listened, and then went on rapidly. "Well, I got 'em set all right, up on Big Beaver. They was good lads and paid me well; they had a lot of booze and give me a bottle, and I started back on foot 'bout sundown for the Landin', and that's the last I know until mornin', when I woke up in Tod's."

"He woke me up, see? He told me, then, that Cash'd been killed. He just said that: 'Cash was murdered last night.' And then he asked:

"Where was you, Jim? He was pleased enough but he had a look in his eyes he'd never had before and I want to tell you his grin went through me like a knife!"

"I didn't know where I'd been, Young. I knew I'd been wanderin' round somewhere with a rifle. I knew I'd been awful dam' mad at Cash. I . . . I just didn't know anything more than that!"

Hinkle strained to swallow, his breath quick and audible. "I lost that little head I had, I guess. I went down on my knees to him; I begged him to tell me where I'd been, how I come there. I was scared, I tell you!"

"He told me to brace up. He didn't know where I'd been, he said. He'd found me wanderin' along the siding late in th' evenin'."

"Nobody knows just when Cash was killed but, as West tells it, that was probably some little time afterward. He set there and figured it all out. The ground was froze hard as iron; there wasn't any snow except in the timber. Whoever did the job left no sign, and if it wasn't told around that I'd been out alone, drunk, and with a loaded rifle, nobody'd suspect me. So he said he was always ready to go to the front for a friend, and framed up a story 'bout my playin' cribbage with him . . . in his room, upstairs, where he had a stove."

Kerry's mouth was a bit dry. The significance, the possible implications of this confession, put him in a fever. "I ain't no killer, Young! I never wanted to hurt a man, serious. I've figured and figured over this thing. It's most drove me crazy sometimes! I was pret' sore at Cash but . . . God, Young, I wouldn't 've killed him, sober; I wouldn't 've done it!"

He ran an unsteady hand over his face. "And no one knows that you did."

Young, with a host of ideas and theories and suspicions crowding his mind, wanted to be alone, now. "It's fine of you to act this way, Jim," he said. "I'm not going to forget it. And don't you worry. I'm going to be here for . . . for quite a while, perhaps. Who knows what'll develop? About the best thing that you could have done for your own good was to tell someone just what you've told me tonight."

"You won't whisper it?" "Not to a soul!"

Hinkle drew a breath of relief. "Well, I'll be gone, then. I . . . I'll see you again. And about Elsie . . . God, Young, you'll never know!"

CHAPTER VIII

Now as Kerry Young walked on alone through the fine rain, that mental snarl which Jim Hinkle's confession had occasioned straightened out into this simple fact:

If Jim had not a lawyer-proof alibi to absolve him from suspicion in the Downer matter, then the whereabouts of Tod West on that fateful night were also open to speculation.

Hinkle was no killer. Despite the man's misgivings of self, Kerry was convinced that, drunk or sober, he would will no serious harm to even his worst enemy.

And last night, Ezra had said, the first piece of money from the Downer lot had made its appearance; had made its appearance in a poker game in which Tod West sat cheating.

He stood still, digesting these simple but perhaps astounding implications.

If West had not played cribbage with Hinkle, he might have been anywhere that November evening. If West were in possession of the money for which Cash Downer had been murdered, that would be a fact to arouse the official interest of a coroner's clerk, for certain.

And, added to these, was this item; that Tod West had been going armed for no one knew how long.

He walked on after that motionless, recalling things that Ezra had said last night. The old physician had the bullet which had slain Nan's father. A thirty-eight, he had said . . . a thirty-eight. And last night he had held West's automatic in his own hand, had ejected the loads from it. He had given no heed to the size but, thinking back, the cartridges seemed to be no larger, at least, than thirty-eights.

Slow, yes. West's suspicions of Ezra's activity must not be aroused. And another thing; it was as important to locate that money, were it still in the country, as it was to pin the guilt of murder on the individual who had taken Cash Downer's life.

If he could determine the caliber of that pistol, for instance; if he could get possession of it and send it and the bullet to a crime-detection laboratory where ballistic experts could determine whether or not it was the weapon which had done murder. . . . That, he knew, would not be conclusive evidence. But it would perhaps tell him whether or not his hatred for West had been an unwarranted influence in rousing all these suspicions.

An idea occurred to him. Leaving Tip to guard camp—he set off retracing the way he had just come.

But even before he was crossing the trestle his cage began to ebb. More was at stake than his personal feelings, he told himself. This man West was no child. Perhaps he was a murderer and a thief; if so, to recover what he had stolen, to bring him to answer for the greatest of crimes, would necessitate slow and careful movements.

Boats and canoes were beached on a shelf of gravel below the Landing. Kerry made his way there and stood listening. The buildings of the little town were dark, now.

across the way from it was West's house. West might be there now, but no lights showed in the windows. . . . He would wait.

It was not long before his ears detected the sound of a cautiously wielded paddle, and he stooped behind some bushes for complete concealment. A prow grated; a foot splashed in water; a man grunted as he lifted a canoe. Young could see, but remain unseen.

He saw that large bulk of a man deposit the canoe carefully, bottom up, then turn abruptly and make his way up the bank.

Kerry did not follow at once. And when he did slip noiselessly to the depot and around the corner he was rewarded by a glow of lights in windows across the way.

He crossed the street, melting into the shadows about the house, taking up a position at one corner where he could peer through a window.

Tod West was standing there, putting light wood into the fireplace. That done, he crossed the room to a cupboard, took from it a whisky-bottle and drank deeply.

He stood for a moment close to the fire and then began undressing. His shirt came off first. As he turned, Kerry could see the pistol holster strapped to his side. Off came the paces and then the breeches and the man stood in his underclothes, drinking again from the bottle. He drank deeply . . . too deeply, Kerry remarked to himself, for a man with a past to keep hidden.

The freight was not so brilliant now. The birch wood evidently was dozy. A great bank of dense white smoke sucked into the throat of the chimney.

But the master of the house was either satisfied with the fire or else considered that he had more important things to do. He took the bottle from the mantel, and shaking his head as though muttering to himself, made his way slowly up the stairs.

Kerry slipped along the end of the house and reached the rear just as a shaft of light shot out into the spruce thicket there. The light came from a dormer window set in the gently pitched roof. Stepping away from the wall, Kerry could see West's head and shoulders behind the panes.

The man raised the bottle to his lips for a fourth time and then, evidently placing it on a table, unbuckled the strap of his shoulder holster and put it down.

Alone in the darkness, Kerry let one eyelid droop and cocked his head. That pistol might be a most important item in his own official life. But how to get possession without having West know where it had gone?

A clump of small birches grew close to the rear wall of the house, their trunks almost touching the low eaves. Hand over hand, he went up the saplings and hitched himself to the wet shingles, stretching out on his belly.

Now he could see West plainly. The man was sitting in a chair, the whisky bottle in his hands, and as Kerry gazed at him he began shaking his head from side to side as though it were sore and solitary debate. The pistol Kerry saw, was hung in its holster over the back of a chair.

The wind sent heavy smoke from the chimney rolling down across the man prone on the roof.

West drank once more, and whisky trickled over his chin. His movements, replacing the bottle on the small table, were uncertain. He rose and groped for the hanging light-bulb, hit it, set it swinging, captured it and then fumbled for the button.

Night shut down suddenly and bed-springs creaked as a heavy body fell upon them. . . .

Kerry was within feet of that weapon. And he had a plan to get hold of it.

He rose from his position on the shingles and began making his way along the roof, cautiously. After he had passed the window he went more rapidly and as he gained the ridge he stood erect.

The chimney belched great volumes of smoke. Off came Young's jacket, now; over the flue opening it went, and he crouched against the masonry, waiting.

Down in the maw of the fireplace, feeble flames died from orange to blue and then expired in the rolling smoke which, cut off from escape above, flowed out and filled the living-rooms. It drifted up the stairway and into the upper hall, growing thick and thicker as the punky birch smoldered. Along the hallway it rolled, and into the room where a man lay, breathing heavily, still muttering to himself

When you are feeling extra blue in the midst of one of our little dusts, you might glance thru one of the dailies. Front pages fairly scream of the damage and suffering in the flood districts of the East. "200,000 Homeless in Flooded Districts." "Parents Separated From Family of Six." "Disease Rampant in Flood Section"—and plenty of others too. While the dust is hard to take, there is very little actual danger to lives. And while it damages the wheat prospects, there's no danger of losing a lifetime's savings over night. It's inconvenient and dirty and disgusting—but compared to some other evils—give me the dust.

Orin Bomar arched his brows very slightly when I said Monday that I had seen worse dust than we have here. Say I've seen dust that was dust. I've seen and recognized farm after farm of my old community go sailing by on the wings of a sixty mile gale. Why I've seen real estate agents make a killing from the dust. And how? By selling farms in layers. They would get a price for the bottom farm, and a price for the one above it, and still another for the one above that. And sometimes the top layer farm would be packed as hard as cement, getting thicker as one dropped to the farm beneath. That's what I call dust. That's the way it blows where I was raised.

A young lawyer from the North sought to locate in the South. He wrote to a friend in Alabama, asking him what the prospect seemed to be in the city for "an honest young lawyer and Republican."
In reply the friend wrote: "If you are an honest lawyer, you will have absolutely no competition. If you are a Republican, the game laws will protect you."—Wall Street Journal.

Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Whiteside were in Lubbock on business Thursday.

Should any one want to write a story of the dust, here's a suggested lead: "The entire section was up in the air . . ."

There's a girl in town who says she is going to have a party. It's going to be held in Fort Worth or Amarillo, and the guests are going to be 'somebodies'. The idea is that when her friends wonder who was there they won't feel like asking any guest, because they will be too "high up".

SUNSHINE IS BEST TONIC FOR LAYERS

Hens Exposed to Light Rays Produce Vitamin D.

By H. L. Kampeter, Professor of Poultry Husbandry, University of Missouri, WNU Service.

Few people realize the importance of direct sunshine in the successful winter management of the laying flock but recent discoveries indicate that sunshine plays an important part in the productivity of the laying flock. The reason for this is due to the beneficial effects of certain light rays. When the hen is exposed to them she is able to manufacture vitamin D which is associated with mineral metabolism. In other words when a hen is exposed to direct sunshine she can utilize the minerals in her food to advantage. Hens exposed to direct sunshine not only lay more eggs but the eggs are apt to have stronger shells, and if used for incubation will produce better hatches. It is thus seen that some measures should be taken to expose the hens to sunshine on all possible occasions especially in winter.

Due to the fact that most of the glass used in poultry house construction filters out these beneficial light rays a certain amount of the window space in the house should consist of an open space which may be covered with cloth frames which may be closed in inclement weather or at night but which should remain open on sunny days. The usual rule is to provide a square foot of cloth frames for each 15 square feet of floor space in houses of average size—14 to 16 feet from front to back. The amount should be reduced somewhat in narrow houses and increased in houses which are deeper.

Another advantage of the open space is that it provides excellent ventilation. Even at night when the curtains are closed fresh air will enter the house and ordinarily when open the air will remove much of the moisture so as to encourage a dry house.

Train Pullets to Lay in Floor Nests; Clean Eggs

Many of the badly soiled eggs picked up during the winter came from the habit of some pullets of dropping their eggs from the roosts or on the floors, under the roosts seeming a favored place, where there are no dropping boards. The best way to train these pullets, says the Nebraska Farmer, is to place clean nest boxes on the floors where the eggs are most frequently dropped. The pullets soon take to the floor nests, which can be raised by degrees, or may even be left there, if the hens seem to prefer them.

Another source of soiled eggs is the habit of some hens roosting in nests in preference to roosts. If taking these hens from the nests lightly for a week or so and placing them on the roosts does not break them of nest-roosting, better sell or eat them and get rid of that annoyance. Hanging burlap curtains one-half or two-thirds of the way across the front of nests tends to discourage nest-roosting without deterring hens from entering to lay. There will be few offensively dirty eggs if these precautions are observed.

Poultry House Floor

Concrete floors may be used in poultry houses and when properly constructed are warm, dry, permanent and sanitary. If the house is on high ground where the drainage is good, the floor may be laid directly on the ground. In other cases, it is safest to place the concrete on a 4-inch fill of cinders or gravel. Some poultry men advocate laying a thickness of tar paper over the fill before concreting.—Indiana Farmer's Guide.

Layers Need Sunshine

Sunshine or cod-liver oil, or both, are very important, warns the Indiana Farmer's Guide. Numerous experiments have proved that at least 1 per cent cod-liver oil in the ration will cause the birds to have better health, lay more eggs, lay eggs that have greater hatchability, and prevent soft shelled eggs. In this climate there are not enough sunny days to enable a hen to get "by" without using cod-liver oil in the ration.

Six Breeds of Geese

The American standard of Perfection lists six breeds of geese, one of these—the Chinese—having two varieties, the Brown and White. The other five breeds are of but one variety and are known respectively, as Toulouse, Embden, African, Canadian or Wild and Egyptian. The Toulouse, Embden and African varieties are the heavyweights of the domestic goose family, the Toulouse being the heaviest of all, adult males being standard weight at 28 pounds.

Corn Cobs for Litter

Good litter for the floor of the hen house is found right on the farm in corn cobs. When ground up they are highly absorbent and the lightness of the ground material causes all droppings to be covered. An occasional stirring will keep the floor dry and clean for a considerable length of time, dependent upon the conditions in the house. The floor should be cleaned, however, and fresh litter spread as soon as the old begins to appear damp.

Getting It Right

A grubby urchin walked into the men's outfitting department of a large store.

Addressing an assistant, he said: "A soft man's collar, please!"

The other assistants tittered and the one addressed said stiffly: "You mean a man's soft collar, my boy!"

Pointing to his own collar, he asked: "Do you mean one like this?"

The boy eyed it momentarily. Then he replied: "No! A clean one."

Do You Ever Wonder

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Ask Your Doctor and Find Out

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this—and see that you get what you want.

Cross Children May Need Simple Laxative

When children are cross and touchy give them Feen-a-mint, the delightful chewing gum laxative. Feen-a-mint begins its pleasant effect as soon as you start chewing it. For its stomach-settling mint brings a clean, fresh taste to the mouth. As you chew out the laxative ingredient which is absolutely tasteless, the flow of digestive juices is increased. The laxative is mixed with these juices and carried into the system evenly and gently. Feen-a-mint doesn't grip, nauseate or cause upset and is non-habit-forming. It passes through the stomach and into the bowels so scientifically that the action is wonderfully easy and thorough. Try the pleasant, refreshing Feen-a-mint way. Doctors prescribe its laxative ingredient for both children and adults. Sold on a money back guarantee. Generous family size package 15c and 25c.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB Hello, Everybody!

"Death Rides the Waves"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

DID you ever notice, boys and girls, that in all the stories you read about shipwrecks and storms at sea you never seem to hear anything about the fellows who get the worst of it?

Harry Helgesen of Brooklyn, N. Y., tells us about what the "black gang" is up against in a storm at sea.

Harry's big thrill came when he was assistant engineer on the auxiliary steam yacht Ulvira on a hard luck cruise in the Atlantic.

When the Sea Kicks Up There Really Is a Mess.

The next start was made in a snow flurry and everything went fine until they got to the open sea. Once there the sails were run up and the engines cut off.

And a "bit of a blow" was putting it mildly. Wham! a storm from the north slapped the Ulvira with a broadside that nearly turned her over.

Death Signs on the Ulvira's Cruise.

Harry ran up on deck to get the smoke stack hoisted. The stack had been let down when the sails were run up and they needed more draft.

Hubert Kuechenmeister, a young Northwestern university student and amateur sailor, had been swept overboard.

Harry got his stack up and hurried down the ladder to his station. What he had seen on deck wasn't very encouraging, but his job was below decks, and he went to it.

The engine room by now was a mess. The boat was pitching heavily, Harry says, and the huge seas shipped at each pitch started coming down through the bunker plates, hatches and deck houses and filling the bilges with water.

"We started the pumps," Harry writes, "but the ashes stirred up by the water kept clogging the strainers and the water kept rising. The engines were going full blast but we didn't know how long that would keep up. The boiler plates started leaking from the forcing they were getting and the water in the hold was up to the engine cranks.

And the water kept rising. It was swishing across the floor like it does in a ship's pool on a rough day. Anything that floated became a menace as it sailed back and forth at breakneck speed with the action of the ship.

How Would You Like to Dive Into Slimy Water?

Just imagine diving in that slimy water wondering if you are going to be swept up against the boilers and scalded to death!

Up on deck another fight was going on against the elements as the ship reeled under the shock of the gigantic waves, but our story is below decks and below decks we stay.

The four men in the black gang fought the advancing water for 24 long hours without relief. Once the captain came down and asked if they wanted more men, but the chief engineer knew that a greenhorn would only be in the way and asked for a bottle of rum instead.

The rum came down and Harry says it saved the lives of everybody on that ship. The rum gave the exhausted men new life and for the next two hours they worked like madmen.

But that extra inch never came. Instead, the four men watching the water in the ash pits suddenly let up a weak cheer. The water had stopped! The pumps were at last holding their own!

After Death's Vigil the Black Gang Got Hungry.

Well, sir, the gang realized then that they were hungry. Harry climbed perilously up the ladder to the deck to search for food. The galley was a waterlogged mixture of food-stuffs and kitchen utensils that slid back and forth across the floor with every movement of the ship.

But that black gang had to eat so Harry fished up a side of bacon and finding some eggs unbroken in the ice box he managed to snare a frying pan and carried his prizes down the ladder again.

The U. S. Coast Guard to the Rescue!

Two men braced him then as he held the frying pan over a shovel full of live coals. Harry admits it was the best meal he ever tasted in his life. He admits, though, that he has had better service.

Then came the coast guard and towed the disabled yacht into Norfolk, Va., and the mid-winter, hard-luck cruise of the Ulvira was history.

TO AVOID THE VICIOUS CIRCLE

Governor Allred has taken a long step forward in the field of humanitarianism in the establishment of parole boards throughout the state.

The meeting Saturday at Austin when 200 members of these board met to plan their work, was an inspiring occasion.

As the governor pointed out, too often the history of our handling of convicts has followed this vicious circle: Crime to detection to punishment to parole to discouragement and back to crime again.

Now, when the convict is paroled, he is to find helping hands when he comes out of the prison walls, hands that will be extended to make a new life possible, without the brand of "ex-convict" closing every door to him and leading him straight back to evil associates.

The new parole boards, which already have been organized in more than 140 counties, including a fine group for Harris County, have been chosen on the nomination of the service clubs of their communities, and do not represent "political" appointments. The members are serving with out pay, giving freely of valuable time, for in each case the members are substantial citizens with work of their own to do.

They will undertake to be a brother's keeper, indeed, to the paroled men as they come out. They will familiarize themselves with the cases and histories of the men released, will try to find jobs for them, will exert every effort to see that they are received back into society and give a chance to make good.

Naturally, the system will not be perfect. There are many who believe that really effective results will have to wait on the time when we have trained, salaried probation officers to undertake this work. In other cases, even the best intentioned men will make mistakes, and, of course, there is the possibility that some boards will tire of their work when the novelty wears off.

But the state has not provided the means for expert probation supervision, and this voluntary effort puts Texas well forward on a new step in its dealing with the problem of criminal rehabilitation.

It is a tribute to the character of Texas citizenry that so many men are willing to undertake this task and a hopeful sign for the future.

That reformation is more important than punishment, in the handling of the criminal class, is generally admitted. Reformation, however, is unlikely unless the soil is prepared for an opportunity for the paroled man to resume his part in the world around him.

Many problems are involved, not the least of which is to find work in world in which there are more humans than there are jobs, but the governor, in making these appointments and inaugurating this work, has assured Texas of an honest effort to tackle the problem in manly fashion.

UNFILLED POSITIONS

Almost every week our Employment Department has good positions that it is unable to fill—especially for young men and young women with a thorough knowledge of both bookkeeping and shorthand. These positions pay good salaries to begin with, the work and surroundings are pleasant, the opportunities for promotions attractive. Details of Courses and Rates, and a proven method of assisting graduates into good starting positions, is fully explained in a Special Bulletin. Mail the Coupon for your copy today.

Here Is the Famous FARMALL Family

Qualified to Provide Any Farm with Economical Power

MANY good things come in threes and among the very best from the farm point of view is FARMALL power—in THREE sizes. Here they all are—F-30, F-20, and F-12—each of them ready not only to plow but to plant, cultivate, run belt machines, and handle all row-crop and general-purpose needs.

All of them have these exclusive patented Farmall features—quick-dodging ability, forward location of gangs, and braking either rear wheel through the steering gear for square turns.

Call us and we will come out and demonstrate any or all of the Farmalls.
