

Smokey 'still on trail' of drugs, handler says

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

Like any good narcotics agent, Smokey has been keeping a low profile lately. But like the true professional he is, he can be seen most days "doggedly" stalking the halls and campuses of Midland's schools, testing the wind for marijuana and other drugs.

Literally, Smokey, a 3-year-old weimaraner drug dog, is alive and sniffing, according to his handler Narcotics Sgt. Joe Carr of the Midland Police Department.

On the job one year this month, Smokey has overcome a case of heartworms that plagued him when the city first spent the $5,000 on the dog, Carr said.

Now he walks the halls of Midland junior and senior high schools "about three days a week, depending on what I'm doing," Carr said, looking for marijuana, pills, cocaine and heroine.

Carr and Smokey patrol a different school every day, showing up without warning. Once in the school, they work closely with the principal since, technically, a police officer cannot search for drugs the dog sniffs out without a warrant.

School officials, however, "can search anything that belongs to the schools," so the principal opens lockers that catch Smokey's attention.

Students found with drugs are suspended from school but generally not prosecuted, Carr said.

While they seldom find large stashes, Carr feels the canine cop is a deterrent of sorts.

"I don't mean they're not using it; they're just not keeping it at school," he noted.

The dog generally smokes out the largest numbers of students with grass in the freshman schools, Carr said, "because they are just dumb enough to let it be found."

Carr and Smokey sometimes just walk the halls of the schools, "to let the kids see him," the handler said, but true to their undercover background, they "stay away from show-boat deals" like school assemblies, Carr said.

CESAR CHAVEZ

Talks continue

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP) — United Farm Workers leader Cesar Chavez and the nation's largest lettuce grower huddled for a second day Friday in secret negotiations aimed at settling a four-week strike that has crippled harvesting of much of the nation's winter lettuce crop and more than doubled supermarket prices for the vegetable.

Employee arrested

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A city employee who received a bad job evaluation was arrested after two co-workers were killed and a third was wounded in a series of shootings at a water pumping station Friday, officials said.

Police said 44-year-old Roland B. Luchini was arrested 40 minutes after the shooting.

Support pledged

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown told Egyptian military leaders Friday the United States "can and will prevent outside interference" in the Mideast — a proposition questioned since the fall of the shah's government in Iran.

Foundry on fire

CHICAGO (AP) — An explosion in a steel foundry Friday showered workers with hot metal, killing one and injuring 18, seven of them seriously, authorities said.

The dead man, identified as Steve Mahalik of Palos Hills, died in the burn unit of Loyola University Hospital.

Fire officials said the explosion at the Burns Steel Foundry on the South Side was caused when a container of molten steel overturned at a newly fired furnace and came in contact with water.

Housing, income reports may point to recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — New home construction plunged to its lowest level in two years in January, the government reported Friday, and the combined income of all Americans rose by the smallest amount in a year last month.

Both reports reflected a slowing in the economy that many experts predict will lead to a recession. The housing report was particularly worrisome because the home building industry usually gets hit first when a recession is coming.

The Commerce Department said housing starts in January dropped to an annual rate of 1,656,000 units, the lowest figure in two years and a 20 percent drop from the 2,062,000 unit figure of December.

Single family housing starts dropped to 1,136,000 units, down 26 percent from the December level. Building permits also were off in January, to an annual rate of 1,363,000, down 18 percent for the 1,664,000 units in December.

"As we anticipated, the high interest rates and inflation are driving potential home buyers away from the market," said Vondal Gravlee, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

Housing construction has averaged about 2 million units in each of the past two years even though mortgage interest rates have risen above 10 percent. However, most economists expected a housing slowdown this year as credit money becomes increasingly scarce.

In a separate report, the department said personal income grew by a meager 0.4 percent in January, about one-third of the 1.2 percent rate of increase the month before.

An increase in the minimum wage pushed up wages of many workers, the report said. However, that was more than offset by rising Social Security taxes, which cut substantially into many workers' income.

Accumulation of snow, travel advisory forecast for Basin

The weather's precipitous change from sub-tropical to sub-freezing is expected to be complete today with the addition of a travelers' advisory and accumulations of one to three inches of snow, the weatherman said.

Today's high should reach only the mid-30s, with the overnight low dropping to the mid-20s.

A 50 percent chance of precipitation — freezing rain and sleet mixed with snow — is the forecast from the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport.

Sunday, however, should be a little warmer, with the day's high reaching into the 40s.

Friday was the first full day of the "blue norther" that swept down on the Permian Basin Thursday afternoon.

High for the day was 35 degrees, nowhere near the record for the day of 80 degrees set in 1971. At least the overnight low of 27 did not approach the record low of 11 degrees set in 1936.

The National Weather Service office recorded a trace of moisture Friday, but not enough to change the .18 inch monthly or .34 inch annual accumulation on record.

Area cities and towns were sharing the cold front. All were reporting cold temperatures, but no moisture yet, late Friday.

Mexican summit ends on upbeat

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Carter's troubled Mexican summit ended on an upbeat note Friday with a U.S.-Mexican agreement to seek a fair price for anticipated U.S. purchases of Mexican natural gas.

Carter told members of both houses of the Mexican congress that his 48-hour visit helped settle differences between the United States and Mexico, although the key issues dividing the two neighbors will take years to settle.

In an indication of some progress, Carter and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo announced in a joint communique that they agreed to quickly launch talks aimed at setting a framework for determining natural gas prices. This framework would then be used by private firms working out specific deals.

The two presidents agreed, at Carter's suggestion, to meet again in three months, and also reached three agreements on scientific exchanges, desert management and housing.

Shortly after Carter's speech, and a 21-gun salute at Benito Juarez International Airport, the president and Mrs. Carter boarded Air Force One and departed for Washington.

Carter returned to the White House for a meeting with Vice President Walter F. Mondale and foreign policy advisers on developments in Iran before flying to Camp David, Md., for the weekend.

At a news conference after the Carters' departure, Lopez Portillo said no agreements were reached on petroleum sales to the U.S., but that his talks with the U.S. president "will provide the foundation for future agreements."

"I am deeply satisfied with the result of this meeting," said Lopez Portillo.

The Mexican president beat Carter to an announcement that former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew has been asked to head a congressionally-mandated commission to report by 1980 on immigration and refugee problems, a key issue that went unresolved during the summit.

In the joint communique, Mexico for the first time agreed that it shares the migration problem with the United States.

The document used imprecise language to deal with natural gas sales, stating that "the two presidents agreed to have their governmental representatives meet as soon as possible and begin discussing the best means to facilitate decisions on these matters."

Carter, speaking in Spanish to the joint permanent commission of the Mexican congress, cited his discussions with Lopez Portillo on trade, energy and immigration, the three key issues dividing the United States and Mexico, and said:

"Now and for years to come, each will require our best efforts to narrow our differences and to find common ground."

The president said he and his Mexican host "have begun to define a common vision of a better future," even though their conversations did not produce permanent resolutions.

Anti-American sentiment felt

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Shielded by young Moslem gunmen, a planeload of American evacuees fled Iran Friday on the first flight of a massive air shuttle that will carry thousands of Westerners to safety in the next few days.

They left behind an increasingly ominous anti-Americanism among Iranian revolutionaries. Someone cut in on a radio frequency of the U.S. Embassy and warned darkly: "We know where you are, Americans, and we will kill you."

The five-day-old government of Moslem leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini executed four Iranian generals late Thursday, only hours after a revolutionary Islamic court found them guilty of "torture, massacre of people, treason...and earthly corruption."

A Khomeini spokesman said about 20 other high-ranking military officers and officials of the old regime were on trial and also faced death sentences.

He said two former prime ministers — Amir Abbas Hoveida, government chief in 1963-77, and Shahpour Bakhtiar, deposed last weekend — were in custody but were not on trial.

The four generals who were shot included the hated chief of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's SAVAK secret police, Nematollah Nassiri. They were taken blindfolded, hands tied behind their backs, to a rooftop at Khomeini's headquarters. A 10-man firing squad riddled each with automatic weapons fire from head to toe. Witnesses said Nassiri wept as he faced death.

The loudspeaker at Khomeini's headquarters blared: "The sentence has been carried out! The prisoners and traitors against Islam and the creators of evil on Earth have been exterminated!" The crowds outside cheered.

The provisional government claimed it had crushed resistance in the northwest city of Tabriz after three days of fighting, but new clashes erupted in the streets of eastern Tehran between Khomeini's "freedom fighters" and anti-Khomeini forces.

Unconfirmed reports said there were up to 700 dead in the Tabriz fighting. Casualties in the Tehran fighting were unknown.

Conflicting accounts attribute the "counter-revolutionary" resistance to SAVAK and army holdouts, Azerbaijani separatists in Tabriz and radical leftists who think the Khomeini-named government of Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan is not sufficiently leftist.

As the massive American evacuation effort got under way, the U.S. government announced it was granting full diplomatic recognition to the new regime here.

The U.S. State Department sharply criticized the Soviet Union Friday for what it said were "tendentious" broadcasts into Iran that stir up anti-Americanism.

Some U.S. officials in Washington expressed deep concern about the security of highly sophisticated weaponry and other equipment now in the hands of the Iranian armed forces — particularly technical manuals dealing with the workings of the U.S.-built F-14 fighter plane and Phoenix missile system and how to counter them.

Friday's flight was a Pan American World Airways Boeing 707, which picked up 167 passengers, mostly Americans and many of them Pan Am employees. They flew first to Frankfurt, West Germany, where some disembarked, and then on to New York.

On Saturday, two Pan Am Jumbo jets will land at Tehran's Mehrabad International Airport and pick up as many as 405 Americans each. Then for the next three days three Jumbo jets a day will pick up evacuees.

U.S. officials hope to evacuate 5,000 of the 7,000 Americans still in Iran. Those remaining will be journalists, skeletal staffs of the embassy and some U.S. firms and Americans married to Iranians.

Khomeini's guerrillas guarded groups of Americans as they headed by bus and auto to Mehrabad airport. Some guerrillas sat atop the vehicles with their submachine guns.

The religiously oriented government faces a key test of its power Saturday, the day on which the 78-year-old Khomeini has ordered Iranians to end the anti-government strikes that helped topple the shah-appointed government.

In Rabat, Morocco, sources close to the shah said Friday he was considering abdicating the throne in hopes of ending some of the bloodshed.

Soviet Union criticized for propaganda in Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration announced Friday that it will conduct normal diplomatic relations with the new government in Iran and angrily criticized the Soviet Union for spreading anti-American propaganda there.

A strong administration statement, reflecting intense anger at the highest levels of the U.S. government, accused the Soviets of damaging relations with Washington and destabilizing Iran.

Specifically, the administration was responding to Soviet broadcasts and published accounts that have accused the U.S. of plotting military intervention in Iran. U.S. officials labeled these accounts as false propaganda.

Malcolm Toon, the U.S. ambassador to Moscow, called on Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at the Kremlin to indicate "our dismay and surprise" that the official Soviet media would act "in a way that could increase the danger to Americans in Iran," said State Department spokesman Hodding Carter.

The decision to conduct normal diplomatic relations with the provisional government of Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan has the practical effect of withdrawing U.S. support from Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi as Iran's head of state.

U.S. Ambassador William H. Sullivan "relayed to the government in Iran our intention to maintain diplomatic relations with that government," Carter said. "This is the formal declaration that our relations do continue."

Technically, U.S. relations were never broken as control in Iran changed hands. The government passed from the control of the shah to now-ousted Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar when the shah left the country amid widespread violence by opponents of his regime.

The Bakhtiar government fell to forces led by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who designated Bazargan prime minister.

But the administration held back on declaring its intention to continue full relations with the Khomeini regime until officials concluded the new government was in control of the country.

Meanwhile, with Tehran's Mehrabad airport reopening, evacuation of Americans began. A jetliner chartered from Pan American World Airways picked up 154 people and flew them to West Germany. Two jetliners, capable of transporting about 400 people each, will continue the evacuation on Saturday, spokesman Carter said.

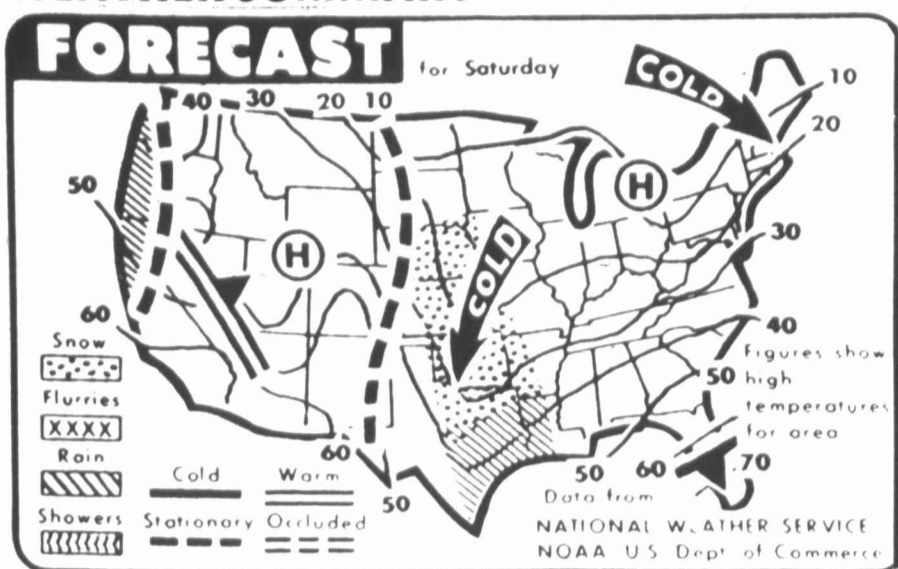

The U.S. goal is to reduce the number of Americans remaining in the stricken country from approximately 7,000 to about 2,000.

The Khomeini government has assured Washington it will protect the departing Americans. It provided guards for the first group Friday.

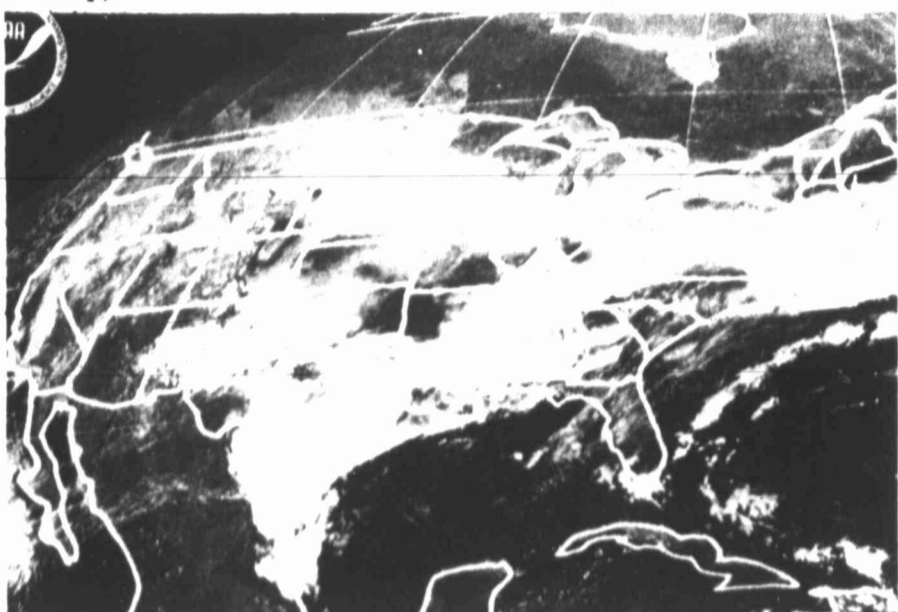

Even so, officials here are concerned about a lack of discipline among the various forces operating in and near Tehran. Also, they said they are troubled because "loose arms" are in circulation among the Iranian population.

Waste creators should pay for clean-ups, says council

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Clean-up of abandoned hazardous waste facilities in Texas should be funded by people in the waste dumping business, the Texas Coastal and Marine Council agreed Friday.

"Fees ought to justifiably be collected from people in the same kind of business," said Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, D-Galveston.

Schwartz, council chairman, has introduced a bill in the Legislature to establish a $5 million clean-up fund from fees imposed on the hazardous waste processing industry.

"We have our share of these sites in Texas," the senator said. "We have the classic condition where the operator gets a permit, goes into business and makes all the money he could or got busted, and went off and left it."

Galveston County has several such sites, he added.

The Department of Water Resources would assess fees on each operator, depending on the potential danger of wastes disposed by his plant.

Fees would not be assessed after $5 million had been collected, said Dick Whittington of the water resources department.

"We have some areas of critical concern now," said council member Steve Frishman, "It would take all of the $5 million to take care of current problems we know of now."

Whittington said fee collection might never end, depending on future

Full military honors Sunday for ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) - Full military honors will be rendered Sunday when a special White House plane lands at nearby Andrews Air Force Base with the remains of slain U.S. Ambassador Adolph "Spike" Dubs.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Friday the ceremonies will include the playing of Ruffles and Flourishes and a 19-gun salute. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and other high officials plan to attend.

Dubs, the U.S. ambassador to Afghanistan, was killed Wednesday after being kidnapped by terrorists. He will be buried Tuesday at Arlington National Cemetery.

Bloodhounds track escaped killers

By CHARLES ROBERTS

MARION, Ill. (AP) - Bloodhounds picked up but then lost the scent of two escaped convicted murderers Friday night, the FBI said, as searchers fanned out in hilly, thickly-wooded terrain at the southern end of a remote state park about 20 miles south of here.

Earlier in the day, evidence was found indicating the escapees, Al Garza and Howard Zumberge, had been in a forestry cabin inside the park, where it was believed they spent Thursday night, stolen some food and clothes and doctored their appearances. Authorities believe the men were armed, said FBI Agent Joseph Giglio.

The dogs picked up the trail about 6 p.m. and some 40 FBI agents and state troopers, joined by sheriff's officers from Johnson and Union counties, took up the chase again. They were assisted by a helicopter equipped with high-powered searchlights from the Illinois Department of Transportation.

The scent was lost an hour or so later, however, though officers tried to get the dogs back on the track, said Kenneth Walton, special agent in charge of FBI operations in central and southern Illinois.

Searchers did not have to contend with a dense fog that had impaired the search the night before, but there were light snow flurries and temperatures were expected to drop to between zero and 10 degrees overnight.

Walton said the search had been resumed "based on information that a ranger cabin" had been broken into. "Evidence in the cabin was that both were present," he said.

Authorities said the two may have made some wearing apparel from blankets inside the cabin that were cut up, and that a .22-caliber pistol appeared to be missing as well.

The 1,000-acre park was closed to the public until the search is ended, authorities said.

The cabin had not been occupied since Wednesday and the break-in was reported Friday morning, the authorities said, but searchers did not reach the cabin until about 3 p.m. because the search was centered about 25 or 30 miles away in Jackson County.

The dogs were not brought to the scene until about 6 p.m., authorities said.

Giglio said searchers "did find prison paraphernalia there that would link them to the prison. We think they possibly shaved their mustaches. There's evidence there that looks like they had."

List of fired TDCA employees grows by 55

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Fifty-five employees of the Texas Department of Community Affairs, including several executives, were fired Friday by the agency's new executive director, Omar Harvey.

That brings to 66 the number of employees dismissed by Harvey since he took over on Jan. 29.

Among those receiving letters of dismissal late Friday afternoon were Ernie Nieto, executive assistant to the director.

The Manpower Services Division, which processes and evaluates grants under the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA), was especially hard hit.

Among the 12 employees of the division dismissed by Harvey were Camille Dvorsky, its assistant director; Fred Buchanan, its director of state services; and J. Willard Parks, manager of administrative and financial services.

Other executives fired by Harvey included Bruce Esterline, assistant director of the Early Childhood Development Division; Richard Ratliff, assistant chief of special programs of the Youth Services Division; and Bruce Belvin, director of program planning for the Housing Division.

Don Curry, the agency's personnel director, said all the dismissals resulted from elimination of positions.

"There is no reflection on any of their performances," Curry said.

He said there will be further evaluation of the necessity of various jobs and additional reorganization. Harvey had told the department's staff Jan. 30 that he would be reviewing the agency's entire organization between then and March 15 and could guarantee nobody's job.

The TDCA serves primarily as a funnel for federal funds for a variety of programs, including manpower training, drug abuse prevention, economic opportunity and community planning.

Its director is one of the few top state officials who serves at the pleasure of the governor.

Kissinger must take blame for Iranian upheaval

LONDON (AP) - Henry Kissinger bears "heavy responsibility" for the upheaval in Iran, says former Undersecretary of State George W. Ball.

Ball said he was responding to Kissinger's assertion that the United States did not support deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi strongly enough. Ball's remarks were contained in a letter to the weekly Economist.

Ball, appointed a consultant on Iran by the Carter administration last December, says former President Richard M. Nixon and Kissinger encouraged Iran to make massive purchases of expensive weaponry.

"This costly burden resulted not only in precipitating a financial squeeze that compelled cutbacks on construction, with resulting unemployment and disaffection; it also led the shah to a megalomania that cut him off from all contact with reality and the Iranian people," Ball said.

Friday's tax conviction makes third this week

A federal jury in Midland Friday returned guilty verdicts on three income tax charges against Billy D. Cawthon.

Cawthon was the third defendant convicted on criminal tax violations this week. Two more persons are to be tried next week on similar charges.

After deliberating approximately a half-hour, the jury convicted Cawthon of one count of failing to supply required tax information to the IRS, a charge of filing a false Form W-4-E and a charge of filing a false Form W-4.

The trial began Thursday afternoon.

In another case, Thomas O. Flournoy of Midland was found guilty late Thursday of two counts of willfully and knowingly failing to provide the IRS with required information following his trial in U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.'s court.

Flournoy's case will be appealed to the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, La., he said Friday.

The required information Flournoy was charged with failing to provide the IRS involved tax returns, said authorities.

Flournoy took over questioning of witnesses from his attorney, William Mann of Amarillo, earlier this week during testimony in his case.

Thomas O. Flournoy mistakenly was identified as Frank O. Flournoy in a story in Thursday's Reporter-Telegram.

Airlifted Americans arrive in New York

NEW YORK (AP) - The first Americans airlifted from Tehran since the attack on the U.S. Embassy reached New York Friday night on a flight that began under heavy security.

A crewman of the Pan Am evacuation airliner said during a stopover in Frankfurt, West Germany, that Islamic militiamen carrying machine guns carefully searched the aircraft after it had landed in Tehran to pick up the evacuees and later seized film from the cameras of departing passengers. Each evacuee was thoroughly checked before being allowed to depart, he added.

Dennis Mullin of U.S. News & World Report said the flight "gave everyone who looked vaguely Iranian a tough time." He added that apparently they were looking for fleeing members of the shah's secret police.

"It's quite important that this evacuation continues," said Gary Holland, manager of the Tehran International Hotel. "The Iranians are going to destroy themselves over the next few months."

But Peter Bogart, a Pan Am airline employee, said Tehran was "very peaceful this (Friday) morning. We had good cooperation from everybody, even from the Iranians."

"Everybody has guns but they were on our side," Bogart added. "They were protecting us. Those who are anti-American are small factions. Even the attack on the embassy, I believe, was a mistake. It was not anything designed by Khomeini."

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini is the Moslem religious leader who led the revolution against the shah and set up an Islamic government.

The Pan Am Boeing 707 jetliner picked up 156 evacuees, mostly Americans but some West Germans, Britons and other Europeans, at Tehran airport on Friday. It flew to Frankfurt for a refueling stop and then continued on to New York with the 96 Americans, an airlines spokesman said.

Sixty evacuees got off at Frankfurt for connecting flights to other European cities, the airlines said. Most of the evacuees were Pan Am employees or persons who worked for affiliated companies in Iran.

Murderer to get second trial

HOUSTON (AP) - District Attorney Carol Vance says John Charles Zimmerman, convicted of murder, will be tried again and he will investigate charges against his staff that led to a court order for a second trial.

State District Judge Frank Price ordered the new trial Thursday after a hearing in which defense attorneys said Zimmerman was slapped and beaten by Jacinto City policemen.

The defense also said Vic Driscoll, the chief prosecutor in the case, used a confession as evidence against Zimmerman even though he had reason to believe the suspect had been coerced.

Friday's tax conviction makes third this week

A federal jury in Midland Friday returned guilty verdicts on three income tax charges against Billy D. Cawthon.

Cawthon was the third defendant convicted on criminal tax violations this week. Two more persons are to be tried next week on similar charges.

After deliberating approximately a half-hour, the jury convicted Cawthon of one count of failing to supply required tax information to the IRS, a charge of filing a false Form W-4-E and a charge of filing a false Form W-4.

The trial began Thursday afternoon.

In another case, Thomas O. Flournoy of Midland was found guilty late Thursday of two counts of willfully and knowingly failing to provide the IRS with required information following his trial in U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.'s court.

Flournoy's case will be appealed to the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, La., he said Friday.

The required information Flournoy was charged with failing to provide the IRS involved tax returns, said authorities.

Flournoy took over questioning of witnesses from his attorney, William Mann of Amarillo, earlier this week during testimony in his case.

Thomas O. Flournoy mistakenly was identified as Frank O. Flournoy in a story in Thursday's Reporter-Telegram.

State, federal offices closing

Some of Midland's offices will be closed Monday, when much of the nation takes a three-day weekend to commemorate George Washington's birthday - Feb. 22, 1732 - three days early.

The city's banks and savings associations will be closed Monday in deference to the nation's first president.

City and county offices will be open Monday, but the George H. Mahon Federal Building will be closed to commemorate this national holiday, which began in 1796, three years prior to Washington's death.

State offices will be closed Monday.

The Midland Chamber of Commerce, and some downtown offices will shut down then.

The post office, which beholds Washington's birthday as a "minor" holiday, will box first class and preferential mail, such as newspapers. In the three post offices here but will not offer any routine carrier service in the city or rural areas. Post office windows will be closed.

Most retail stores, however, will be open for business Monday.

Public and private schools will hold classes as usual.

Since 1971, the federal and state governments started commemorating Washington's birthday on the third Monday of each February to afford a three-day weekend for employees.

Police strike leads to canceling of Mardi Gras events

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police went on strike again Friday, and Mayor Ernest Morial cancelled the first parades of the Mardi Gras season which were to roll Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

"I will gladly lift the suspension on parades as soon as the striking policemen go back to work,"

Morial said at a news conference late Friday. "Mardi Gras this year might be killed by the action of outside (union negotiators) who have come into our city without any real understanding," he said.

Morial also said he has revoked the commissions of any police officer who was on unauthorized absence. He refused to say the police strikers were fired.

The mayor's statement came only hours after strikers carrying picket signs burst out of a union meeting after approving the strike by a vote that was reported to be unanimous. Some wore T-shirts emblazoned, "Take this job and shove it." The strike, second by police within a week, came after the breakdown of contract talks between the Police Association of Louisiana and the city. Officials said earlier they would cancel Mardi Gras parades in the event of a police strike.

Some 200 National Guardsmen had already been sent to municipal buildings, armed with rifles and wearing helmets, to take over the officers' jobs. Other guardsmen were on stand-by, along with about half the troopers in the Louisiana state police force.

Mardi Gras, a hard-drinking celebration grown into a $50 million industry, is Feb. 27. But the carnival that precedes it would normally hit full stride Saturday. In more than 100 years, Mardi Gras has been cancelled only seven times — twice for epidemics and five times for war.

"This strike is illegal," said Donald Hoffman, a city attorney, who brandished a copy of a court order issued late Friday by Civil Judge Richard Garvey.

When reporters noted a similar back-to-work order by Garvey was ignored last week in the first walkout by police, Hoffman said: "It would be regrettable for the people of this state if police do not obey the law."

Officials are worried about a strike during the Mardi Gras season, when about one million revelers come to New Orleans.

The season's first street parades were planned for Saturday, with seven krewe — the clubs which stage most Mardi Gras pageantry — on city streets over the weekend. The festivities were scheduled to build to Mardi Gras — Fat Tuesday, the day before Lent starts.

Both sides in the bargaining adopted hard lines Friday. The city's Civil Service Commission threw an additional variable into the equation by getting a state judge to order the city and the union to stop negotiating wages, pay plans, hours and some benefits.

Clements to submit bench nomination

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday he will put before the Senate next week his nomination of John Keith Nelson to sit on the troubled 78th district court bench in Wichita Falls.

Judge Stanley C. Kirk stepped down last week after the Texas Judicial Conduct Commission started a review that could have led to his removal. Retired Judge Arthur Tipps was placed in charge temporarily.

Nelson, 47, is a partner in a Wichita Falls law firm. He attended Washington and Lee University and The University of Texas School of Law.

Holly Hanks, a 78th district court reporter, was arrested Thursday morning and sent to jail with her typewriter until she completed the overdue transcript of a case under appeal.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, saying Ms. Hanks had been granted three extensions since Oct. 15, issued the order sending her to jail.

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — Randy Greenawalt, who fled the Arizona State Prison last summer and went on a crime-spree that ranged through two states, was convicted Friday in the deaths of a young serviceman, his wife, young son and a niece.

A jury of six men and six women deliberated two hours and 15 minutes before returning the verdict on charges of murder, kidnapping, armed robbery and grand theft.

Yuma County Superior Court Judge Douglas Keddie scheduled sentencing for March 26.

Homeowners could enjoy reduced insurance rates with new proposal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Homeowners over most of Texas — except the area containing five of the six largest cities — would enjoy insurance rate reductions under a State Insurance Board staff proposal.

Staff actuaries will recommend Wednesday that the board reduce the cost of all property insurance by 4.1 percent — or $38 million in the 12 months starting July 1.

A policyholder's actual premium will depend on kind of coverage and type and location of the insured building.

Homeowners coverage accounts for more than half the property premiums paid by Texans, and the staff recommendation calls for a 2.3 percent statewide average reduction.

But homeowners rate recommendations for the three rating territories — Seacoast, Central and North-Northwest — vary widely.

The staff said rates should drop 7.5 percent in the Seacoast territory — the two tiers of counties along the Gulf Coast — and 5.7 percent in the North-Northwest but rise 3.3 percent in the Central territory.

The Central territory includes Dallas, Fort Worth, Austin, San Antonio and El Paso — five of the state's top six cities in population.

If the board adopts the staff recommendations, the annual cost of insuring a $40,000 brick veneer home would drop $26.70 in Houston, $30.67 in Corpus Christi and $29.07 in Lubbock, Wichita Falls, Amarillo and San Angelo. It would rise $9.44 in Dallas and Fort Worth.

Central territory rates, however, are the state's lowest.

The staff also recommended these rate changes for other forms of property insurance:

Tenant homeowners — Seacoast down .3 percent, Central up 5.2 percent and North-Northwest down 3.7 percent.

Farm and ranch owners — Seacoast down 13.5 percent, Central down

7.8 percent and North-Northwest down 10.5 percent.

Fire (statewide) — dwellings down 1.9 percent, farms up 3.1 percent and "all other" up 3.8 percent.

Extended coverage — Seacoast down 23.4 percent, Central down 8.5 percent and North-Northwest down 6.6 percent.

An insurance industry spokesman said he had not seen what the Texas Insurance Advisory Association will recommend but assumed "it won't be as great a decrease as the board staff is recommending."

Record cold temperatures call for precautions around the home

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Brrrr! Record low temperatures have sent shivers through much of the nation this winter, and you may find you need to take special precautions to cope with the extreme cold.

Start by making sure your house or apartment is ready for emergencies. Get a small heater or wood-burning stove so you can keep at least one room warm if the furnace goes out.

Make sure you have proper ventilation for all heating equipment. Do not use a gas range or oven for heat; you could wind up with potentially deadly levels of carbon monoxide.

Check your heating system when you start feeling chilly. The problem may be easy to fix. If you have an oil-burning furnace, make sure the fuel tank is not empty. Look at the electric switch that controls the blower to see if it has been turned off accidentally. Inspect the fuse or circuit breaker that controls the furnace.

If your unit is gas-fired, check other gas appliances to see if the main supply has been cut off. Make sure the pilot light is on.

To keep warm in case of trouble, shut off all rooms that are not absolutely needed. Wear a hat — even in bed. The body loses between half and three-fourths of its heat through the head. When you go outside, wear something water repellent. Wet clothing loses all of its insulating value and transmits heat rapidly.

Two of the most common cold-weather problems are frostbite and hypothermia.

Frostbite strikes only in subfreezing cold — but cold counts wind as well as temperature. You may be suffering from frostbite if your fingers, toes or other extremities feel numb and look unusually pale or white.

Hypothermia — or below-normal body temperature — most often occurs at temperatures between 30 and 50 degrees and can strike when it is as warm as 60. It is caused by a combination of cold and water and poses a particularly severe threat to the elderly and to people with diseases of the veins or arteries. Hypothermia victims often do not shiver. They seem unaware of the cold, insisting they are comfortable. They may get dizzy, feel drowsy and slur their words.

Insurance rating territories listed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Here are the major population centers within each of the three rating territories used by the State Insurance Board in setting premium levels for property insurance:

Seacoast: Orange, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Houston, Galveston, Victoria, Freeport, Corpus Christi, Alice, Edinburg, Brownsville.

Central: Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Austin, El Paso, Texarkana, Tyler, Longview, Waco, Brownwood, Sherman, Denison, Greenville, Gainesville, Paris, Denton, Marshall.

North-Northwest: Amarillo, Lubbock, Wichita Falls, San Angelo, Abilene, Midland, Odessa.

The six-member Marshall Tucker Band is coming to Chaparral Center at 7:30 p.m. today. The group's last album "Carolina Dreams" recently was certified platinum.

Sale of rent houses delayed pending response to motion

ODESSA — Sale of three Odessa rent houses owned by Mr. and Mrs. Buster Hahn of Gardendale has been delayed.

The sale was scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday outside the Odessa IRS office in the First National Bank building here.

The delay is pending a U.S. Internal Revenue Service response to the couple's motion filed this week requesting an injunction against the auctioning of their property, said authorities for the government and Hahn.

"The sale is being postponed temporarily and it will be re-scheduled at a later date. The IRS is in the process of responding to the Hahns' motion requesting an injunction to stop the sale," said an IRS spokesman early Friday in Odessa.

Earlier this year, the Hahns were notified their three rent houses would be seized for auction to pay for what IRS officials called back income taxes.

However, the Hahns, claiming they owe no such taxes, termed the proposed seizure and sale of their property illegal and in violation of their rights.

Government officials Friday said they cannot comment on the case at this time.

Literary journal began 'ruckus'

By NIKKI FINKE

MOSCOW (AP) — It began — this Russian ruckus — with eight copies of a literary journal, typewritten and homemade in appearance. Then came the restaurant closing, the cancelled party, the public denunciation — and who knows what's next.

Yet it is typical of the impact Soviet writers can have when they spark scandal and controversy with what elsewhere would be a trifle.

Why all the fuss? Metropol, the journal of underground poems and stories, had no official sanction in this censored society and, moreover, it contained the work of 23 major writers.

Thousands of Soviets have for years been penning works destined for the drawer. But it is almost unheard of for so many writers, and especially big names, to join together in a challenge.

Even the Metropol's debut was officially put down when two alleged health inspectors closed a restaurant where a reception for it had been planned Jan. 23, ordering a "sanitary day."

Then Felix Kuznetsov, chief of the Moscow branch of the official Writers' Union, publicly accused the authors who contributed to the literary almanac of playing "a dirty game" to the benefit of western propagandists and to the detriment of Soviet literature.

paper. The almanac itself, he added, was needed by no one but "western demagogues."

Writers who were at Kuznetsov's meeting with the five Metropol editors said he complained the journal's writers were playing into the hands of anti-Soviet reactionaries in the West and even jeopardizing strategic arms talks with Washington.

Thousands of Soviets have for years been penning works destined for the drawer. But it is almost unheard of for so many writers, and especially big names, to join together in a challenge.

His charges were made in this week's edition of "Moskovsky Literator," a four-page tabloid read by Writers' Union members.

It was the first public censure of the 700-page Metropol. Previously, official anger at its appearance was expressed only in private meetings and by word-of-mouth here.

The journal was seen by its contributors as a challenge to the censorship here. The 23 writers complained that the works in Metropol could not be published officially in the Soviet Union, so they had to find an "alternative" that wasn't subject to censors' scrutiny.

The writers maintain that their protest is purely literary and not connected in any way with dissident writings or politics.

It appears certain now that Kuznetsov, reportedly acting on orders "from the top" to cool down the scandal, will not carry out the threat and will limit himself to public denunciations.

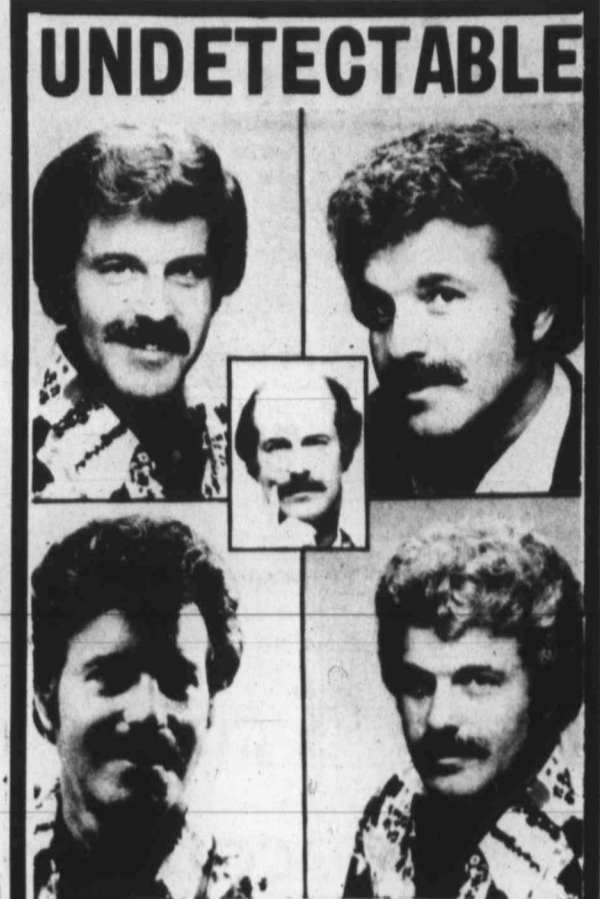

But the affair is all the talk among Moscow's intelligentsia and has been dubbed a "major scandal" by writers.

In his article, Kuznetsov claimed that most works in Metropol were anti-Soviet, showing life here as "extremely cruel, primitive and almost animal, deprived of all inspiration and of any moral basis whatsoever."

But what most angered the union chief, and apparently high Soviet officials as well, was that two of the eight typewritten copies of Metropol found their way to western publishers. A publisher in Ann Arbor, Mich., and one in Paris have said they intend to publish the almanac, though the writers claim they never gave permission.

Though denouncing the almanac as "a dirty game having nothing in common with literature," Kuznetsov left open the possibility that some of the Metropol works might eventually see their way into print.

"But naturally this would be in conformity with established editorial practice," he wrote in the union

Heating oil available, but at premium price

NEW YORK (AP) — Heating-oil prices are soaring — up 8 cents a gallon from last year for many Americans — as extreme cold and the shutdown of Iran's oil fields pinch supplies. But experts said Friday there is enough of the fuel to make it through the winter.

"The price keeps going up every two weeks, a penny, a half penny, and in one week it went up twice," said Lou Adelson, co-owner of Bee Oil Co. in Philadelphia. "Hey, the customers aren't happy, nobody's happy. They call up and ask me the price and hang up, what can they do?"

Adelson's firm is selling No. 2 heating oil — the most common grade — at 57.9 cents a gallon. That's 6 cents higher than last year.

That situation is not unique. In Detroit, D&W Oil Co.'s prices have risen 14 cents this year, from 47.9 cents a gallon to 55.9 cents a gallon.

And Alaimo Fuel Corp. in Boston lists a gallon of heating oil at 59.9 cents, up a dime from last year. Bill Fabata, the firm's sales manager, says prices have risen "so many times it would make your head spin."

The industry blames the spiraling prices on a supply pinch stemming from unusually cold weather in most of the nation and the loss of oil from strife-torn Iran.

The result, industry sources say, is that the usual increase of about 5 cents a year throughout the industry has gotten bigger — and is coming faster.

"It's been abnormally higher than in past years, and our suppliers say it's because they've had to pay more for the crude," said Ed Morgan, a spokesman for the National Oil Jobbers Council, an industry organization. "In some places probably in the next week or two we'll probably see 60-cent-a-gallon oil."

Although Iran supplied only 10 percent of the non-communist world's crude oil — and just 5 percent of that used by the United States — the loss of that supply over the past few months because of the political turmoil has created a "ripple effect" on world oil markets.

Much of the oil Iran would usually supply is being made up by other nations, but they're asking premium prices for it.

And suppliers are now feeling the effects of the new 5 percent increase on oil from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Symposium set at UT in March

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A national symposium on government and business — hailed as a "landmark" by the dean of business at the University of Texas — is scheduled here March 1-2.

Dean George Kozmetsky said Vice President Walter Mondale is expected to come here in April to discuss the results of the symposium.

"I don't think business executives are being paranoid when they express anxiety over the tax structure and over the regulatory structure," said Kozmetsky.

He also said he had told Mondale the business sector was shocked at the "lack of response from the government sector" over the symposium.

Prominent speakers include Robert Strauss, the national administration's special representative for trade negotiations; Administrator Douglas Costle of the Environmental Protection Agency; Executive Vice President Roger Smith of General Motors; President Donald Rice of Rand Corp. and Robert Anderson, board chairman of Atlantic Richfield.

Kozmetsky described the symposium as a landmark in that it will be the first time for business and government "to get together in a new communicative partnership."

Elspeth Rostow, dean of the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, acknowledged that more business representatives than governmental spokesmen will participate in the symposium, but she added, "Robert Strauss is quite capable of articulating the public's position."

Kozmetsky told a news conference he would like to have Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps in attendance.

"We understand that the president has higher priorities than this symposium," said Kozmetsky.

Parker Humes declares his candidacy for school post

Parker M. Humes, vice president and general manager of Midland Radio Station KCRS, Friday declared his candidacy for the Place 5 seat on the Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees in the April 7 election.

Humes, 44, is an 18-year resident of Midland. In a statement issued Friday, he said he was opposed to a proposal to consolidate Midland High School and Lee High School.

"I believe it would be a serious mistake to deprive our community, under present circumstances, of the overwhelming advantages our students now enjoy in maintaining both Midland and Lee as two fine, equal high schools," he said.

Humes serves as an officer and director of MidTran and Midland Junior Achievement, as a member of the advisory committee and curriculum chairman of Leadership Midland and as a director of the Permian Basin Girl Scout Council and Midland Industrial Foundation.

The Baylor University graduate also is president of the Texas Broadcasters Education Foundation and a member of the Baylor University Development Council.

He is a past president of the Midland Downtown Rotary Club and the Tall City Optimist Club, served as vice-president and director of the Midland Chamber of Commerce and was named "Boss of the Year" by the Midland Jaycees in 1978.

Humes is the recipient of Midland City Council PTA's Life Membership for efforts in behalf of the schools.

He also is a former member of the board of directors of the Better Business Bureau and the Permian Basin Arthritis Society.

Humes, his wife and their three daughters reside at 1503 Seaboard Ave.

McCoy in Met debut at 58

BY MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretly — so secretly that for years, he didn't even admit it to himself — Seth McCoy wanted to be a singer. He got a late start, but he made it. And now, at 50, McCoy makes another late start, with his debut tonight with the Metropolitan Opera. McCoy says singing with Met was not always a driving ambition. He recalls his reaction to word that the Met conductor, James Levine, had chosen him to sing "The Magic Flute" at the Met this season. "I thought, 'Here it is. This is something I've been dreaming.' "I had thought before, if they would invite me, I would have to say yes. How can you say no to something like that?"

Despite the Met debut, McCoy doesn't look toward a new career. Like an opera singer who occasionally gives concerts, McCoy says he expects to continue as an oratorical singer who occasionally sings opera. He has signed for next season at the Met, as the tenor in "Der Rosenkavalier." "I'm at the Met with people who have paid their dues," he says. "Their crowning point is the Met. Here comes a vocalist who never walked on any opera stage and he is given this wonderful opportunity to sing at the Met, for millions of people over the radio. "This is an awesome thing. I'm not playing it down one bit. Every once in a while my feet get cold. "But, even now, if you ask me what was my crowning point, I would say being invited to sing with the Bach Aria

McCoy was born in Sanford, N.C., and attended the state Agricultural and Technical University. When Roland Hayes sang there, the school's president arranged for McCoy to sing for him, possibly hoping Hayes would take him as a pupil. Hayes did recommend McCoy for an opening in the Jubilee Singers, a male group specializing in gospel music. The Korean conflict cut that short, and when McCoy returned after two years, he moved to Cleveland, where his mother was living. He began work at the post office and started barber college, a pursuit he soon abandoned. The Jubilee Singers arranged a leave of absence for McCoy from the post office for a State Department tour. When it was over, he put music firmly aside and returned to his job. But music summoned McCoy once more. A fellow mail handler remarked that he had studied voice with Pauline Thesmacher, and introduced McCoy to her. From the first time she heard him sing and took him as a pupil, Mrs. Thesmacher had a music career as her goal for Seth McCoy. When Robert Shaw, then the associate conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra, needed a tenor for his 32-voice Robert Shaw Choral in 1964, he called the head of the Chicago Symphony Chorus for recommendations. She suggested a tenor she had heard in a vocal contest in Chicago named Seth McCoy — who lived in Cleveland. Shaw engaged McCoy, in Honegger's "King David" with the Cleveland Orchestra. When Mrs. Thesmacher heard McCoy with the Robert Shaw Choral, she decided it was time to push him out of the nest. So the teacher, seconded by McCoy's mother, told him it was time to quit voice studies and his job and to support himself singing. He left for New York. Levine heard McCoy and signed him for a concert version of "The Magic Flute" in 1972. Obviously, Levine remembered that performance when he was casting the Met's current "Flute." Fifty is late for a Met debut and 49 is late for a marriage. McCoy did that, too, in 1978, marrying Jane Gunter, a soprano he met in the Robert Shaw Choral.

Author says he writes only on matters 'urgent' to him

BOSTON (AP) — It's urgency that determines what novelist and short-story writer John Cheever writes. "What you are urged to say" lies behind the form of the work, the native of the Boston area said in a recent interview. "Urgency, I think, is very important. Is the matter urgent to me?" Cheever has had four novels and seven collections of short stories published. The latest is "The Stories of John Cheever," recently named by the National Book Critics Circle as the best work of fiction to appear in 1978, which contains stories from all but the first collection and four that had not appeared in book form. Cheever has both sold and refused to sell to Hollywood, and once, although "stone broke," turned down a lucrative offer to write for films. "It isn't my craft, my task," he said. Cheever, a native of nearby Quincy, says his next project is a novel, and he finds it possible to write short stories while working on a novel. "When you're hot, you can do anything," he said. "You just have so much, you can't get rid of it." He does not prefer one form to the other. "It seems to me it's determined by the experience, by what you want to say. "The short story is basically an intense and episodic or interrupted experience," he said. "I didn't write a novel until I was nearly 40."

Cheever, 66, was 17 when he was first published, and he never graduated from high school. "I was expelled from Thayer Academy (in Braintree) for smoking," he said. But, last June, Harvard awarded him an honorary doctor's degree. "To be expelled from Harvard and get an honorary degree from Harvard, I don't think anyone made that before," he said. Cheever has gone on lecture tours — Canada and Russia — for the State Department and has tried his hand at teaching at Boston University and the University of Iowa. "It appeals to me very much, too much," he said of teaching. His fear is he would give all his time to his students. Of the newly published collection of his stories, time."

set in the 1940s, 1950s and 1960s, Cheever says, "They're not nostalgic stories, or they don't strike me as nostalgia." He said, "It is the quality of endurance (that) is actually what I'm seeking. I do hope the people do have lasting qualities, something more than temporal." Asked what he would like to be remembered for in his writing, Cheever said, "I'm not inclined to think of myself as being remembered for anything. "It seems to me that a writer is obviously mortal, and looking at the history of literature, a great deal that is splendid is only a very brief period of time."

and led a spade, but West refused the trick. The dummy was now dead, and South had to lose another spade, a diamond and a club. Down one. Of course you've seen the right play. West surely had at least five spades for his overcall and might well hold all of the six missing spades. East's ruff at the first trick was unpleasant, but it should not have been a surprise. SHOULD PLAY LOW South should play low from dummy at the first rick. If West continues with a spade, East ruffs dummy's ten. South can then win the diamond return and draw trumps. He leads his last spade to win with dummy's ace and jack, assuring the contract. South must keep the ace of spades in dummy until he really needs it. ANSWER: With most partners you should bid two diamonds since it would be misleading and perhaps dangerous to bid so weak a heart suit. With many expert partners you are expected to bid any major suit of four or more cards, no matter how weak the suit may be.

University develops musical synthesizer

By VICTOR MERINA
The Los Angeles Times

CARSON, Calif. — The sounds coming out of a ground floor studio in the Humanities and Fine Arts Building at California State University Dominguez Hills conveyed an eerie mix of bird calls, ocean waves crashing, the whistling of bombs falling and the galactic sound effects popularized by movies such as "Star Wars."

At times, there were also the more melodious sounds of oboes, saxophones and string sections, music from instruments that were not there.

The sounds were all created by students sitting at synthesizers, playing a keyboard and connecting modules in their electronic instruments by inserting patchcords like so many telephone operators.

FOR SOME, the musical product may seem like a cacophony. But it is sweet music to the ears of many. Electronic music. And it is considered the sound wave of the future. "Electronic music, as we know it, didn't really exist 15 years ago," said Richard Bunger, a pianist and music professor who directs the college's electronic music and recording program. "But it is one direction that music is taking. It is not going to replace standard acoustical instruments. But it is a new direction."

It is also a road that the music department here has embarked upon, creating the first electronic music major in the California state university system.

ABOUT 65 students, some from as far as Oklahoma, are enrolled this quarter in classes on electronic music, sound recording techniques and laboratory sessions. The students, Bunger said, come not only from various places but with diverse backgrounds.

"We find we attract students who have some musical background," he said, "and who want to know a little more about the recording end of it. We attract people who have hi-fi machines who do not play musical instruments but who want to record their friends at home in a garage."

"And we find we have people who are physics majors who know a lot about electronics but want to learn about the music end of the business."

ALTHOUGH an electronic music class has been offered since 1973, the electronic music major won final approval from the chancellor's office less than a year ago, and the current crop of students will include the first to graduate with that degree.

The approval of the major culminated five years of work by Bunger, a recording artist and composer of avant garde music, who started using a synthesizer — an electronic device that uses filters, oscillators and voltage control amplifiers to produce sounds that cannot be made by ordinary instruments — as a teaching aid in his music theory class.

"When we first offered the course," Bunger said, "we had 14 students in a closet-sized room with a little synthesizer, my old tape recorder and a borrowed tape recorder from one of my students."

Oklahoma anti-dancing law winds up in courts

HENRYETTA, Okla. (AP) — There will be no dancing in Henryetta unless the courts rule differently.

The City Council has voted 3-2 against rescinding this northeastern Oklahoma's ban on public dancing despite legal advice that it probably won't withstand coming court tests.

A proposal drawn up by City Attorney Ernest Smith would have scrapped the 1957 ordinance and replaced it with another that would have established strict licensing provisions regulating the establishment of public dance halls.

The dance ban drew strong public endorsement in an advisory referendum last fall and the council voted not to repeal it.

The showdown on the ordinance is expected later this month when trial is scheduled for Gary Moores and James Whitman, who sponsored separate dances last fall in violation of the ordinance.

Smith also told the council his research indicated the current ordinance "will be ruled unconstitutional or invalid and overturned when it comes up for consideration in City Court later this month."

THE APPLICATIONS, Sidon said, are limited only by one's imagination and pocketbook. For Bunger, who describes himself as "a piano player with an interest in electronics," the program he began in the infant days of electronic music has grown more than he had ever imagined. But he already dreams about the future in a field which is considered futuristic to begin with.

"THE STATE of the art in electronic music changes almost monthly," he said. "They are now talking about 24 and 32 track recorders, and the next big breakthrough is digital recording, a computer that plays music. Such a thing already exists, a mini-computer designed for music."

"Someday," Bunger added with a smile, "it would be nice to have one."

"I was being torn apart, and finally I got fed up. I was sick of listening to everyone, and I just decided that I was going to go out and find out once and for all what America was. Well, I did find out. A lot of my friends dropped out and they came back in worse shape than when they left. But I came back in much better shape."

Jenkins continues, "My plan was to check out America and if it wasn't good, then I was going to check out other countries. I'm glad I did this country first because I found it full of fantastic people. That's why I took so long."

"I started staying with people — a mountain man, and Philadelphia. But it still handles less than 3 percent of the commuters each day. And it already is operating at 90 percent of capacity at peak hours."

Tom Harrigan of Los Angeles normally drives the 29 miles to work in about an hour, leaving home just before 6:30 a.m. Gasoline, parking, wear and tear on the car and insurance bring the cost of the commute to $4 a day.

To test public transit, Harrigan rose before dawn, dressing in the dark to avoid waking the family — forgetting his belt in the process — and left at 5:55 a.m. for the short walk to the bus stop. The bus arrived on schedule at 6:05 a.m. After two miles, Harrigan transferred to an express bus and, at 7:06 a.m., arrived 35 paces from the office door. Harrigan's total one-way cost was $1.55 or $3.10 a day; as a regular commuter, he could buy a monthly $50 ticket cutting the daily cost to $2.50.

Harrigan's work schedule dovetailed with the bus company's. Other people may be less fortunate. In Des Moines, Iowa, for example, weekday service runs from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. An AP employee who rode the bus to and from work on an experimental basis had to return to the office — via car — to complete a job. If he had waited to leave until he finished his task, he would have missed the last bus.

Pat Montemurri of Detroit usually drives the 13 miles to work in 25 minutes at a cost of about $2 a day. To get to the office on time via public transportation, she got up half an hour earlier than usual. Her bus trip — 65 cents one way — should have taken 45 minutes. But the bus broke down and she spent more than an hour and a quarter on the journey, arriving at the office 25 minutes late.

Many cities have organized "park-and-ride" programs to help commuters. Drive your car to a public parking lot, then board a bus. The system was tested by a Seattle commuter who normally drives the whole way, spending $1.35 a day.

The cost of public transit was less — $1.20 a day. But the trip by car takes 35 to 45 minutes, while the bus trip alone on park-and-ride is 45 minutes. In addition, the system already operates at capacity during rush hour, and weekend and evening service is limited.

Dallas bus service, which includes a park-and-ride program, operates at 95 percent of capacity during rush hours. Overall, however, it is only half full. "We

Leaving the driving to public transport not always practical

Americans who leave their cars home and take public transit instead to save fuel — as President Carter suggested — may find that even if the switch is possible, it isn't always practical.

An Associated Press spot-check showed that buses, subways and trains in many major cities already operate at or near capacity. The AP also found that while mass transit is usually cheaper than driving, it is almost always slower and more inconvenient, and is generally geared to those who work a standard nine-to-five day.

Earlier this week, Carter urged people to use public transit, along with carpools, to conserve energy. And the prospect of higher gasoline prices makes the idea of saving fuel even more attractive to many drivers.

But will it work? To find out, the AP asked staff members in about a dozen of its news bureaus who normally drive to work to take the bus or train instead. All except one managed to make it to the office without unusual delays; all reported some trouble.

Department of Transportation figures show that almost 72.7 million people a day commuted to and from work by vehicle — public and private — in 1978. Of those, less than 5 million, or just under 7 percent, used public transit. A little more than 20 percent rode in carpools. The majority — over 70 percent — drove to work alone.

"There's a tremendous capacity there," said department spokesman Ed O'Hara, referring to the empty seats in private cars.

Mass transit, however, presents a trickier problem. "Overall, there is a limited capacity for public transit to handle additional passengers, with some exceptions," said O'Hara.

The exceptions, he said, include cities which already have extensive transit systems — Chicago, New York and Boston, for example. During the 1978 February blizzard, transit ridership in Boston was 39 percent higher than normal, O'Hara said, proving that capacity can be increased in a pinch. "Of course the cars were packed," he added.

Cross-country trek brings walker new life, new wife

By PHIL THOMAS

NEW YORK (AP) — When Peter Jenkins decided to see America first, he did it the hard way. He walked.

Jenkins hiked out of Alfred, N.Y., on Oct. 15, 1973, figuring he'd roam the country for about eight months. Instead, he was gone for more than five years on a rambling walk across America that eventually led through 17 states and the District of Columbia and totaled nearly 5,000 miles before it ended Jan. 18, 1979, at Florence, Ore.

"I was 22 when I started," the powerfully built, red-bearded man says. "I'm 27 now, and I don't think I'll be doing much walking again — at least, not for a while."

Jenkins made his trip in two segments. The first led from Alfred to New Orleans, and he tells about his experiences on this hike in his book "A Walk Across America." After spending about a year in New Orleans — where he met and married Barbara Pennell — he and his new wife set out on the second leg, New Orleans to Florence. Jenkins says he will tell of this long hike in another book.

An amiable, soft-spoken man, Jenkins says he set out on the first leg of his hike — accompanied by his dog, Cooper, who was later to die along the way — because:

"I had all these swirling feelings and emotions. A lot of it was disillusionment. I was married at 19 and that didn't work out. Then there was disillusionment with the country. A lot of my generation just stopped listening to our elders, all we wanted to listen to was rock stars and people like that. Their songs became our anthems."

"I was being torn apart, and finally I got fed up. I was sick of listening to everyone, and I just decided that I was going to go out and find out once and for all what America was. Well, I did find out. A lot of my friends dropped out and they came back in worse shape than when they left. But I came back in much better shape."

Jenkins continues, "My plan was to check out America and if it wasn't good, then I was going to check out other countries. I'm glad I did this country first because I found it full of fantastic people. That's why I took so long."

a rancher, a black family — that became teachers to me. They taught me more than any textbook on relations between people. When I started I had a lot of hopeless feelings about this country, now I just love it so much."

Jenkins, who thinks he wore out about 15 pairs of boots on the first leg of his hike and another 15 on the second, says he carried everything he needed — food, tent, clothing, bedding — on his back.

"The pack weighed anywhere from 50 to 70 pounds," he recalls with a smile. "In the summer it's heavier because you've got to carry a great deal of water."

He held a variety of jobs to earn the money to get to New Orleans — "I worked in a sawmill, as a farm hand harvesting potatoes, on a ranch, as a tree surgeon."

In New Orleans, he says he worked on an off-shore oil rig to earn money to continue on the second leg. "I was on a week and off a week, so on my off weeks Barbara and I trained. We walked and jogged, farther and farther each time, until we were ready."

He says they tried to walk an hour and then rest 15 minutes, "but it depends on the time of the year. In summer you have to rest more, in winter you've got to keep going because of the cold."

He again held a variety of jobs on the second part of the hike, one of them as a waiter in a Mexican restaurant in Dallas.

Jenkins, a native of Greenwich, Conn., says he and his wife plan to settle on the Gulf Coast near New Orleans.

"In addition to writing a book about the second part of the hike," he says, "I want to keep on writing. I want to tell stories — fiction and nonfiction. I met a lot of incredible people in America and I heard a lot of wonderful stories. I hope to tell them."

Swimmers splash after 5-4A honors today

By BOB DILLON
Sports Writer

Preliminaries went off as expected Friday afternoon as the 1st annual District 5-4A swimming and diving meet got underway on Odessa and Midland.

Girls diving competition was held at the Odessa Permian Pool while in Midland, all swimming competition in both boys and girls competition was held at the Mabee Memorial Pool.

Colleen Kebler of Odessa Permian won the diving competition with only three other divers competing Friday morning. In second place behind Miss Kebler was Alissa Jenkins of Permian followed by Midland Lee's Karen Fidler and Mary Smiley of OHS fourth.

THE TOP eight qualifiers will compete today at Mabee Pool with points being scored for the first six places for the Regional Meet which will also be in Midland, March 3-4.

Permian is the favorite to walk off with the girls title while Midland and Midland Lee were both picked to give the Panthers plenty of competition. In the boys division, Lee is the favorite with Midland High rated to give the Rebels the closest competition.

Coach David Whytlaw's Rebels were led by team captain Carrey Carrens along with John Franke, Robin Franke, Paul Friemel, Mike Imber, John Kimberly, Mark Solari and Scott Beatty in Friday's prelims.

All eight 5-4A teams are competing in the two-day meet with Midland and Lee entering the most athletes. Midland has nine girls and 17 boys entered under coach Jesse Marsh while Whytlaw has 13 girls and 20 boys competing for slots in the regional swimming competition.

Ablene has the fewest athletes entered with one girl and five boys competing in the strong field.

All winning times today in the finals will be 5-4A records since this is the first district meet in history. The finals start today at 2 p.m.

SAN ANGELO'S girls whipped to the best qualifying time in the 200-yard medley relay with a clocking of 2:06.33 with Midland Lee and Midland High next with times of 2:18.43 and 2:18.86 during Friday's prelims.

Lee clocked 1:48.24 in the boys 200-yard medley relay with MHS second with 1:50.82.

Robin Franke showed his way to a first place time in the boys 200-yard freestyle race with a time of 1:50.9 while in the girls 200 individual medley, Loryanne Coon splashed to a top time of 2:27.04.

Carrens also showed why he is rated so highly in the boys 200 IM with a clocking of 2:05.7 while Patti Burton of Midland Lee, clocked a 1:08.1 timing in the girls 100-butterfly race.

In the boys 100-fly competition, Clay Spears of MHS clocked a top time of 58.02 and Robin Franke came up with his second good performance in the boys 100-free with a time of 1:03.

Lorayne Coon of MHS also had the top time in the girls 500-free with a clocking of 5:50.57 and Mark Solari of Lee a 5:17.70 on the boys 500-free. Midland and Lee swimmers also kept faring well in other races as Carrens had a time of 1:04.28 in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Midland Lee's boys splashed to a timing of 3:30.01 in the 400-yard freestyle relay to cap off the first day of competition

The win gave Snyder an 8-1 district record and left Lamesa at 7-2.

Evans captures NASCAR 200

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two-time national champion Richie Evans ran away from Neil Bonnett in the second half of the race and took a 32.8-second victory Friday in the $85,000 NASCAR 200 for modified stock cars at Daytona International Speedway.

Defending champion Darrell Waltrip was third, a lap down. Geoff Bodine edged Joe Henry Thurman for fourth, more than three laps in arrears.

Evans, who narrowly missed serious injury when a chunk of debris smashed into his windshield early in the race, averaged a record 172.303 mph for the 80 laps. There only was one short caution period early in the race to clean up debris.

The old record was 35 mph slower, and set a year ago when the modified cars resumed running on the 2.5-mile oval after a number of years on the 3.84-mile road course here.

The Rome, N.Y., driver also collected $16,300.

Evans started second behind pole position winner Johnny Anderson

Massillon, Ohio. In the early going, Anderson, Evans, Waltrip and Bonnett were locked up in a tight draft that exceeded 195 mph at times. Bonnett only qualified ninth at 184.664 mph, but seemed to be able to run easily with the leaders.

The draft broke up midway through the race when the leaders all made the first of two regular pit stops. Evans got the best stop. Bonnett's crew was slow changing tires, while a jack malfunctioned on Waltrip's stop. Anderson missed his pit area and had to come around again.

Anderson's car fell out with a broken engine just short of 50 laps.

Bonnett, Hueytown, Ala., tried in vain to catch Evans, but backed off the final few laps to save his car.

In other action here Friday in the final weekend of Speed Weeks, a three week collection of races, Mike Watts, Chuckey, Tenn., won a 100-mile NASCAR Baby Grand race.

Today, the only event is the $100,000 Daytona Sportsman 300. Waltrip, the defending champion, starts third. Donnie Allison has the pole.

TEE TIME Weather change brings back golf

BY REX WORRELL
Hogan Park Golf Pro

It was fun being at the golf course this past week as the weatherman eased up and gave us a little bit of good weather for a change. Golfers were waiting for about one hour on a first come, first serve basis last Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

We encourage those players who have foursomes to come out or call on Friday to secure tee times for the weekend. In fact, this may be a good time to review the starting time procedures in effect at Hogan Park Golf Course. Starting times will be accepted for Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays for three-four-and-fivesomes only on the Friday preceding the weekend or holiday prior to 6 a.m. in person. Beginning at 6 a.m., times may be reserved either by telephone or in person.

Only one time will be permitted for each call or person. Starting times for weekdays and after reservations are completed on weekends, play will be on a first come, first serve basis, and will be assigned by the golf shop staff at the time of registration.

All players will be paged to the tee by the staff or directed to use the golf ball rack.

Players with starting times need to check in with the golf shop staff 10 minutes prior to their assigned time and be ready to play. Foursomes are expected to turn in order of finish, and it is important that a minimum of time be spent at the turn in securing drinks and food. Abuse of this minimum time will require allowing the following group to play through, and the group in violation of minimum time will be called to the tee when an opening exists.

STARTING TIMES are for 18 holes only. Players desiring to play more than 18-holes must wait until all players who are ready to play and who have not played on the course. Check with the golf shop staff for estimated time to wait if you desire to play more than 18 holes.

Starting times are for the convenience of the players, and orderly play on the golf course. Repeated infractions of being late, or not honoring your time will be subject to review by the golf shop staff in accepting future starting times.

Your support and cooperation are necessary to make this program work and, in this manner, the course can be used by the greatest number of players. Rules of play are listed on the scorecard. You are requested to study these rules and abide by them so that all players can use the course in an orderly manner.

Righetti joins Yankees' camp

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Dave Righetti, a rookie left-handed pitcher who last summer struck out 21 Midland Cubs in a game, rejoined the New York Yankees' camp Friday after visiting Dr. Frank Jobe in Los Angeles for diagnosis of his pitching arm.

Dr. Jobe said Righetti, who was obtained from Texas in the 10-player Sparky Lyle deal this winter, is suffering from bicep tendinitis. Dr. Jobe prescribed a few days rest and exercise for Righetti, who first injured the arm in while pitching for Amarillo in the Texas League last season.

SPORTS WITH A LIVING ROOM VIEW

NBA All-Star game takes viewing tumble

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The National Basketball Association continues to have its problems as a television attraction. Going into last week's All-Star Game, ratings for NBA games on CBS were down more than 25 percent over last season. And last season was far from a banner year.

The All-Star Game itself, the league's showcase event, managed to pull a higher audience than a lackluster college game on NBC but was thoroughly beaten by a combination of "The Superstars" and the International Championship Boxing series on ABC.

ABC's boxing got an 11.1 rating, meaning 11.1 percent of TV homes were tuned in, and "The Superstars" had a 9.2. The NBA All-Stars had a 7.8 rating, down from 10.1 for last season's game. The college game — Michigan State's lopsided victory over Kansas — settled for a 4.7.

But throughout most of the season, NBC's college basketball has been beating the NBA. The NBA has dropped from an average of 7.8 at a comparable time last season to 5.9 this time around. College basketball is also down — fewer people are watching TV these days — from 7.5 to 6.5 but is still doing better than the NBA.

ALMOST EVERYONE seems to have an opinion on why the NBA is slumping in the ratings. Among the more popular explanations are: (a) the regular season doesn't mean anything since almost everyone makes the playoffs anyway, (b) the season is too long, (c) pro basketball is boring because the players don't hustle, (d) there are too many blacks in the league which cuts down on the white audience, (e) teams in big markets like New York and Chicago are having poor years, (f) fans can't relate to players making an average $147,000 per year, (g) there is too much regionalization, (h) there is not enough regionalization, (i) no new stars have emerged.

Whatever the reason, it is clear the NBA is not a threat to "Mork and Mindy" as a TV attraction. The league is in the first year of a 4-year, $74 million deal with CBS so it has three years to spruce up the act. Two years ago the merger brought new cities and new stars into the league and sparked some interest. But the bloom is now off the rose and the situation will doubtless get worse before it gets better.

CBS SPORTS will be covering the Daytona 500 auto race from start to finish Sunday with a 3-hour, 45-minute show. And, barring a technical snafu, viewers will be getting a remarkable view of the race through the windshield of Benny Parsons' car.

CBS, for the first time ever, has installed a camera in the car and will be showing live pictures from over Parsons' right shoulder. The camera will be feeding pictures to the Goodyear blimp and from the blimp to the control studio where a director will be able to call up live shots at any time during the race.

FROM THE rumor mill comes word that NBC has decided not to renew Maury Wills' contract as analyst on its backup baseball "Game of the Week" telecasts.

If so, NBC would be following a time-honored network tradition. You hire an ex-player as analyst shortly after he retires and keep him around while his name is still a drawing card. Then, when a younger generation of TV audience comes along, you dump him and hire another recent retiree whose name is more current. Pee Wee Reese, Kyle Rote, Sandy Koufax and Oscar Robertson come to mind as examples.

Some analysts, of course, establish themselves successfully as TV figures and go on to greater glory long after their playing days. Pat Summerall, Frank Gifford, Don Meredith and Tony Kubek for example.

Wills has never been a threat to follow in their footsteps.

Italian captures skiing

ZAKOPANE, Poland (AP) — Italy's Giulio Capitanio won the 15-kilometer cross country ski race Friday and advanced from 11th to the fourth in the overall World Cup cross country standings.

Sweden's Lars Erik Eriksen took over the overall lead.

Capitanio was clocked in 43 minutes 44.08 seconds, ahead of three Russians — Alexander Zavilov, 43:44.08; Vladimir Lukianov, 43:47.65; and Rosalin Bakiyev, 44:00.28.

Eriksen now 76 has points and leads Oddvar Braa of Norway, who has 69 points. Braa did not run Friday.

Cinder ghost from out of past

Los Angeles Times Syndicate
In an issue of June 25, 1956, page 46 Sports Illustrated ran a revealing photo of the end of a great career, a portrait of disappointment no brush could capture.
It could have been called "Heart-break On Lane Eight." It showed an Olympic runner in the throes of a terminal groin-pull pain in the 200-meter race at an NCAA track meet at Berkeley, Calif. It meant the end of a life's dream for David W. Sime, a sprinter from New Jersey by way of Duke University.
Dave Sime was our fastest sprinter that year and had the world and national records to prove it. Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian was our stubbornest. Bobby Morrow just would not let you by him, but Dave Sime had got by him and beat him handily in the Drake Relays, and it seemed that the coveted gold medal at Melbourne's Olympics that year would be Dave's in one or both sprints.
"The groin pull ended all that."

THE NEXT scene should have shown Dave Sime back in a bar in New Jersey 20 years later, buying drinks for guys so he could tell them how he should have won the three gold medals Bobby Morrow got in the 1956 Olympics and showing them the clippings to prove it.
But the athletic fates had not even begun to kick Dave Sime (pronounced "Sim," the "e" is silent, and so was Dave) around that year.

He entered medical school after playing a lonesome end in football (he was a blond giant, 6-3, 210) and no one expected more than a sentimental gesture when Dave entered the 1960 Olympics tryouts four years later.

Ray Norton was the American sprint emperor that year, followed by Frank Budd and Stone Johnson. Dave Sime was just a guy who came running over from the chem lab in the dark every night to try to remember how he did it in 1956.

He made the team as an alternate. They thought he might possibly aid the team in the relays, which we never lost anyway.

We hadn't lost a sprint since 1928 and had won something like 21 out of 26 Olympics sprints.
The first thing that happened, once free of lab classes and anatomy lectures, was that Dave Sime began to shave seconds off his times in the pre-Olympic practices at Rome. He not only made the team, he was the American to beat by the time the gun went off for the 100.

GERMANY, AT the time, had a sprinter who specialized in rolling starts. The average runner reacts to the sound of the starter's pistol in 0.12 seconds. Germany's Armin Hary reacted in 0.04.
He reacted even faster than that on the first start. He reacted in minus .04 seconds — for a false start. One more and he was out.

When the gun did go off, Hary was flying down the track as usual. It was quickly seen that Emperor Norton was well beaten. The retired medical student, Dave Sime, was our last chance. He set out after Hary. He caught him at the tape.

It took 10 minutes for the judges to study the photos and decide that Hary was the victor. He and Dave Sime had had the same time, 10.2. Hary was the first non-American to win a sprint in 32 years, and the first non-English-speaking runner ever to win it.

Dave Sime got his silver medal. The anchor leg in the relay would be his last chance for a gold. The record shows that Dave Sime caught, passed, and beat by more than a foot the German runner, Martin Lauer, in the 400-meter relay at the Rome Olympics to win the gold for the United States. It was so announced to the waiting track world on the loudspeaker and on the scoreboard and teletype but back in the film room the officials detected a luckless Ray Norton taking the baton from Frank Budd in leg two of the relay outside the 20-yard passing zone. The U.S. was disqualified. The Germans were declared the winner by the Jury of Appeals. That was the first time since 1912 (when Great Britain won) that we had lost the 400 relays. And we have not lost them since. Dave Sime's last chance for a gold went glimmering.

I HAD all but forgotten about Dave Sime since those 1956 tryouts for the Olympics, which I covered for S.I. I wondered if his rotten luck had scarred him in life in anyway.

On Saturday, Jan. 20, I was sitting in semidarkness even though it was midday in Dr. John Perry's hotel room, listening to Dr. Perry dialing around the city to find the finest eye surgeon he could when I heard him say "What's that name? 'Simms'? 'Simmons'?"

My mind flashed back to a picture in Sports Illustrated in 1956, and to an Olympic finish in Rome. "That's Dave Sime, I remember now!" I shouted over to John's wife, Joyce. "He's the one who worked on Bob Griesse's eyes!"

An appointment was made. The next day I looked into the searing lights of Dr. Dave Sime, M.D., P.A., in his south Miami office.
"I saw you pull a groin at Berkeley in 1956," I told him. Dr. Sime didn't answer. His mind was on a retina at the time, not history.

Later, when his race was won with my eye, Dr. Sime relaxed. "You know," he said, "that afternoon in Berkeley when I missed the Olympics, well, that was my first visit to California. And I wanted to ride a horse. So Mike Agostini, another sprinter, got two horses, and I pulled on the reins on mine too hard, and the horse fell back on top of me two days before the NCAA qualifiers. I knew I had no chance running around that curve. It felt as if someone had put a hot poker in there."

AND WHAT about Hary and the 1960 Olympics debacle? Sime shrugged. "Hary claimed he could sense a gun getting ready to go off."

Apparently, all the Germans who could not perish on the Western Front.
Sime's gold medals are all over the place. There are people reading menus, watching movies, writing columns because the man became an Olympian for the rest of his life, and not just in the 100-yard dash.

"I was going to become a brain surgeon, because my brother died as a result of a missed diagnosis.
"But I realized that was a poor reason, no, the wrong reason to become anything. I became fascinated with the eye, and I decided to devote my life to it."

I don't know what Armin Hary is doing today, but I am certainly glad Dave Sime — and John Perry — are doing what they are doing.
And, any time you want to see his gold medal, I'll be glad to take the patch off and show it to you.

Chris finds life after tennis

By ELIZABETH WHEELER

LOS ANGELES — "For the first time in my life," said Chris Evert, "I'm really happy."
And the reason, Chrissie is the first to admit, has nothing to do with tennis — the game she has played for so many years and with so much success.

"I was No. 1 (in women's tennis) for five years," she said, "and that didn't make me happy. When I won Wimbledon, I was happy for about five minutes, but it didn't last. Now I have something that is more important. Now I have a good solid relationship."

She also has some new jewelry. Evert, who wears diamond studs in her ears and a diamond bracelet around one wrist, is also sporting a pendant with the letter "J" in diamonds and a good-size stone on the third finger of her left hand.

The "J" is for John, as in John Lloyd, the blond British tennis player who sits nervously watching every ball Evert hits in the $150,000 Avon Championships of Los Angeles this week at the Forum in nearby Inglewood. They plan an April wedding on a date announced to friends but not to the press.

HOWEVER, EVERT did take some time to discuss former fiance Jimmy Connors, future husband Lloyd, her new perspective on tennis and the fact, that, for the first time in her life, she says she feels head-over-heels, hearts-and-flowers, happily-ever-after in love.

"I guess this is the first time I've ever been in love like this: where something is more important to me...where, in the crunch, there's something I would put before my tennis."
And that wasn't the case, she said, in her much-publicized romance with No. 1 men's player Connors. It seemed like that at first, when they met over a soda at Wimbledon five years ago. The two young stars were America's tennis-playing sweethearts.

"When we met," she said, "we both needed each other very much. And we fulfilled each other's needs at that time. But those four or five years were growing years, and we both changed."

"I was pressing to be No. 1, and so was he. And when it came down to the crunch, we both chose tennis. That's why we didn't get married. I care about Jimmy's feelings and my own too much to say some things about that relationship." A reporter had heard that Evert was a little testy these days and that perhaps her game was being affected by her personal life. She had complained after one tournament about conditions, it was said, and she cried in Hollywood, Fla., when she was beaten in the first round by Greet Stevens — her first first-round loss since 1974.

"I don't know where you heard that," said Evert, "because, for the first time I'm really trying to be friendly and nice. If you'd heard that three years ago, I would have understood it better."

And as for the reported tears?
"Of course I cried. I cry every time I lose. I lose three times a year and every time I go somewhere private and I cry."

BUT AFTER that catharsis, Evert did what other first-round losers don't have to do and almost always elect not to do. She faced the press.
"When tennis was the only thing in my life, there was much more of a sense of urgency about winning. Winning was a big security for me. Now, I still try very hard, but I don't need it quite so much."

But, she does still need it, she said. "I'm trying to find a way to balance both needs — my need for John and my need for tennis. I want to get tennis entirely out of my system. I don't want to be playing six or seven years from now."

Playing into the 30s like Virginia Wade or Billie Jean King is not for her, Evert said.

"My lifestyle and beliefs are different from some of the other top women," she said. "Setting down, getting married, raising a family — that's very important to me."

Last summer, when her relationship with Lloyd was just beginning and Evert had just lost Wimbledon and the No. 1 ranking in women's tennis, she discussed whether she could be both happy and be No. 2 in women's tennis. Now, she said, she is both, but she is working at being happy and being No. 1.

"I've lost two matches in eight weeks," she said to Stevens and one to Martina Navratilova in Oakland, "and people think I don't care about my tennis because of John. But after Wimbledon people thought there was no way I'd be No. 1 again. John was the one who gave me the confidence. People don't see that."
"John makes me so happy. Being with him, I can be happy being No. 1 and I can be happy being No. 2."

"Or No. 3?" asked a reporter.
"Let's not get ridiculous here," Evert said.

Lietzke widens Tucson lead on 66

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Bruce Lietzke shot a 4-under-par 66 and expanded his lead to three strokes Friday in the second round of the $250,000 Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

"A pretty solid round," the tour's most successful cross-handed putter said after posting his 129 total, 11 strokes under par after two trips over the Randolph Municipal course.

"I gave away a couple of strokes but I may have gotten lucky on a couple of putts, so it averages out to a pretty solid 66," said Lietzke, who opened with a spectacular 63 Thursday.

"My ball hitting wasn't quite so good as yesterday, so it was a little bit harder. I didn't feel quite so comfortable with the putter and I seemed to be just a little bit off with the driver. It's nothing serious, just a little something I can work out," he said as he headed for the practice range.

ROOKIE MIKE Brannan, who got into the tournament as the second alternate from the Monday qualifying round, was the closest at 132 after a 68, two shots under par on the flat, 6,708-yard layout that has yielded some extremely low scores.

Defending champion Tom Watson rushed into contention. After struggling through the middle part of his round, he birdied the last three holes for a 66 and a 133 total, four strokes back with 36-holes to go in the chase for a $45,000 first prize.

"I started strong and I finished strong, but in the middle I played some pretty bad golf," he said. "I'm still not hitting the ball as solid as I should. It's just a couple of technical things."

He was tied with Marty Fleckman, who had a second-round 67.

The group at 134 included John Schroeder, Victor Regalado, Bill Sander, Jim Nelford, Mark Hayes and Barry Jaeckel. Sander shot a 64, the best round of the day on the desert course. Hayes closed up with a 65, Jaeckel shot 66, Regalado 68, Schroeder 69 and Nelford par 70.

Lee Trevino headed the group at 135 after a 68.

ARNOLD PALMER, trailed by one of the largest galleries of the day, gave his faithful one chance to cheer, with a birdie on the final hole. But it finished off a 75 — a high score on this course — and Palmer missed the cut for the fourth time in as many starts this season.

He was tied at 147 with Hubert Green, a winner last week in Hawaii. Green had a discouraging 73.

Frank Beard, who has been within sight of the $1-million mark for about three seasons, made a big step toward becoming the 19th man to reach that figure. He rallied with a 31 on the back nine for a par-70 that put him at 135. He's safely in the cut and needs to win only $756 to make it.

Bobick offers Tate toughest ring test

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Undeclared John Tate, in the biggest fight of his career, and Duane Bobick, who rose near the top only to fall, battle Saturday in a bout that could give the winner visions of the world heavyweight championship.
Tate, the 1976 bronze medalist in the Olympics, takes a 17-0 record against Bobick into the scheduled 10-rounder at Market Square Arena here. Bobick has lost twice in 50 fights, including a first-round knockout by Ken Norton in 1977 that stopped an earlier drive toward a title bout. He also was stopped in the third round by Kallie Knoetze of South Africa early last year.

Promotor Bob Arum said this week the fight is the first of an elimination tournament to choose a successor to World Boxing Association heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali if Ali decides to retire.
Tate, at 24, four years younger than Bobick, will have youth and size on his side. Tate weighed in Friday at 229 1/2 pounds, 2 1/2 pounds heavier than Bobick. Otherwise, the two fighters are about physically equal — Tate having a one-inch advantage in both height and reach.

TATE DISCOUNTED any concern that the death of his father two weeks ago had interfered with his preparations for the fight.
"He had had a heart attack," the Knoxville, Tenn., fighter said, "and then he had another one the next day. But I want you to know that has done nothing with my thinking about this fight. I have a very good attitude for this fight."

Tate, the No. 4 heavyweight contender in WBA rankings, has 14 knockouts in his 17 pro fights, but Bobick figures to be his toughest opponent.
Bobick, the Bowlin, Minn., fighter who often has been billed as the "Great White Hope" in the heavyweight division, takes the WBA's No. 6 ranking into the fight, which will be nationally televised (ABC, approximately 8:30 p.m.).

It will be Bobick's third Indianapolis fight in six months — a period when he won eight consecutive fights to project himself back into the title picture. "I know Bobick is good inside...I'll box outside but I'll adjust and go inside if I have to. It all depends on the fight," Tate said.
Arum said Thursday the winner will be included in a series of matches planned to provide a successor to Ali.

SATURDAY'S winner would meet Gerrie Coetzee of South Africa on a May program that also would include a heavyweight match between former champion Leon Spinks and Knoetze. Those fights will be held in either Las Vegas or Monte Carlo, Arum said.
Spinks will be here to see the battle between Tate and Bobick, who each lost to Cuban heavyweight Teofilo Stevenson in Olympic competition. Bobick lost to Stevenson in 1972 and Tate was knocked out in the first round at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

Pacers on top
PISCATAWAY, N.J. (AP) — Mike Bantom and James Edwards scored two crucial free throws apiece in the final minute Friday night to give the Indiana Pacers a 105-100 National Basketball Association victory over the New Jersey Nets.

Lee takes third in Odessa golf poay

El Paso Eastwood and El Paso Coronado stole the show here Friday afternoon as the two Border City teams finished one-two in the Odessa Invitational Golf Tournament which was played at Golden Acres on Thursday and Odessa Country Club Friday.
Eastwood shot a total of 616 to Coronado's 623 for the seven-stroke victory with Midland Lee finishing third with a 642 total.
Midland High finished 16th out of a possible 21 teams with entries from Midland, Odessa, El Paso, San Angelo, Lubbock, Amarillo, Big Spring, Borger, Sweetwater, Plainview, Abilene, Pampa and Snyder.

Steve Russell of Amarillo High, won medalist honors, carding a 145 while Vic Villareal of Abilene High was runner-up in medalist play with a 148 followed by Eastwood's Tony St. John, who turned in a 149.
Grant Spencer of Lee shot a 155 while teammate Mike Moses had a 162. Other Rebel scores included: Trail Kelly, 163 and Mark Leonard with a 166.

Tanner tops Connors
RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Giant killing in the $250,000 Tennis Games at Mission Hills Country Club caught up with top-seeded Jimmy Connors Friday and he fell to Roscoe Tanner 4-6, 6-3, 7-6.
In the battle of southpaws, Tanner served 11 aces but said, "I was primarily trying for placements and to keep the serves in close to Jimmy."
Tanner, the defending champion but only eighth-seeded, finally won the match on a tie-breaker that wound up 10-8 when a service sent Connors wide and he returned into the net.

Lakeside dwellings of Westlake Village typify an affluent Southern California suburbia life-style that accents recreation and sociability. It's a middle-class way of life that is thriving, a sort of comfortable adult Disneyland with constantly increasing property values. (Los Angeles Times Photo by George Rose)

Residential Disneyland popular

By JOHN DREYFUSS
The Los Angeles Times

WESTLAKE VILLAGE, Calif. — All houses are painted low intensity colors in Westlake Village because there's a rule that says all houses must be painted low intensity colors.

All lawns are neat in the planned residential-industrial-commercial community of 25,000 that straddles the Los Angeles-Ventura County line on the Ventura Freeway about 38 miles northeast of downtown Los Angeles. That's because a shaggy lawn brings a warning from a neighborhood association. If the warning doesn't work, a man appears with a lawnmower and, shortly thereafter, an envelope appears with a bill.

There is no great residential architecture in Westlake. There's not much horrible architecture there, either. It's mostly adequate, pleasant, safe, unostentatious architecture supported by very skillful planning and tasteful landscaping.

Westlake is a neat, tidy and highly successful community where developers make (and occasionally lose) lots of money and most residents seem to be happy as clams.

Their environment isn't quite so uniform as a clam bed, but the analogy has possibilities. Esthetically, Westlake sort of puts you to sleep. So everyone feels safe. No one is going to be threatened or offended by jarring design. No one has to keep up with the Joneses since rules prevent the Joneses from forging ahead with imaginative architecture in Westlake.

Nobody's going to mess up a neighbor's view by letting a tree grow too tall, painting a house bright blue, hanging underwear (or anything else) on clotheslines, building an addition that contrasts vividly with surrounding architecture, or even installing air-conditioning equipment, where it can be seen. There are rules about all those things, and more. Many more.

"Some people fight a little about the limits, but they conform," said Alice Robinson, whose 12-year residency in 12-year-old Westlake makes her something of a Pilgrim there.

Mrs. Robinson is a dignified, articulate woman who doesn't mind the environmental limits imposed by Westlake.

"I really think they've been very good in the long run," she said. "I think they have a lot to do with our community pride and creating a small-town, friendly atmosphere. You feel secure. I know that next door they're not going to hang their clothes out front."

Indeed they're not. Buying in Westlake is buying into predictability. What you see is what you get, and changes must be negotiated with neighborhood committees armed with considerable regulatory muscle.

The result, noted architect Neal Scribner, is "this defense mechanism of continuity resulting from the required use of similar building materials and earth colors."

"I like continuity," said Scribner, a partner in Arnold-Scribner Associates in Westlake, "but we're missing a basic in architecture, and that basic is good design."

Buildings, of course, are not cloned. There is some architectural variety available among Westlake's 25 residential developments called "neighborhoods."

Each neighborhood of tract houses ($78,000 to more than $450,000), condominiums ($60,000 to $185,000) or apartments ($235 to $405) adheres to a basic architectural style, with a modicum of diversity provided by different models. In the six neighborhoods of custom houses (about $300,000 to more than $750,000), there is more diversity.

Church Calendar

Promise

The Saxons had a word for Spring. It was Lenten, shortened, in time, to Lent.

So the name Lent was given to that springtime period of 40 fast days from Ash Wednesday until Easter.

Lent came to mean a time of penitence. And it is. But it is also a time of preparation, and of promise. For because Lent means Spring, it heralds good things to come. It heralds the glorious message of Easter. It is the dawn of the most beautiful season of the year.

The bare branches of these trees will burst into bud and leaf with the touch of Spring. Our thoughts during Lent, our personal preparations, also will reach fruition when the 40 days are through.

Lent is the time for prayer and self-examination. Make this Lenten season really mean something by seeking help and guidance at your church services.

Midland minister optimistic on peace

A Midland minister who has just returned from a visit to the Holy Land is optimistic that lasting peace is in store for Israel and its Arab neighbors.

Dr. Charles Lutrick, senior minister of Midland's First United Methodist Church, declared that "there is a great deal of hope and expectation for a peace settlement" for that embattled sector of the world, adding that "there seemed to be tremendous interest, and eagerness, for lasting peace, wherever we traveled in the Holy Land."

Lutrick made this, his first Holy Land trip, with a group led by the Rev. Frank Perry of Dumas. The trip was sponsored by Educational Opportunities of Lakeland, Fla., and included well over 300 U.S. citizens, among them almost two dozen residents of the Panhandle-Plains region of West Texas.

The tour's itinerary included visits to many scenes from the ministry of Jesus, such as Mount Carmel, Nazareth, the Sea of Galilee and the Jericho area, including the Jericho Road, locale of the Inn of the Good Samaritan.

The tour proceeded to the Qumran area of the Dead Sea where the famous and ancient Dead Sea Scrolls were discovered continuing to Massada, site of a dramatic and historic "last stand" by a group of Jewish patriots in antiquity; thence to Hebron, the burial place of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Leah and other Old Testament personages.

Four participants then had several days in Jerusalem to explore that historic city and its environs, with an optional side trip to the Sinai Peninsula. The Midland minister chose to remain in Jerusalem for additional sight-seeing.

Lutrick, who came to Midland as pastor of First United Methodist Church in mid-1975, said he was greatly impressed with the freedom afforded visitors in Jerusalem — and in Israel generally.

Israel, and especially Jerusalem, is a center, a focal point, for the world's three major monotheistic faiths — Christian, Jewish and Moslem — and the city is now open to people of any of these faiths. They have free access to almost any place or any shrine, although there may be a few Moslem shrines and hallowed places where Jewish pilgrims would be prohibited, he pointed out.

Nevertheless, in Jerusalem, there seemed to be very little restriction for visitors, and very little tension between people of these various faiths. Sponsored groups of tourists are especially free to travel about safely, he said.

Lutrick said his group did not encounter any violence by guerrilla or terrorist groups. These days, it's more often harassment than downright terrorism that visitors might be subjected to, he believes.

There is "a great deal of hope and expectation for a peace settlement between Israel and the Arab nations," Lutrick said. "One evening, during a special folksong program we attended, we were addressed by an official of the Israeli government, who I thought spoke rather optimistically, hopefully and positively of successful peace negotiations."

Lutrick described Israel as "booming," and Jerusalem is a city of concrete and steel, with a great deal of construction going on. "The giant cranes and all the buildings under construction reminded me of Midland," he said. The cities of Tel Aviv and Haifa also are growing rapidly, he observed.

The minister said he was greatly impressed with modern-day Israel's highly-structured plan of development which is allowing the country to grow and progress according to a master concept. He mentioned the nation's maximum utilization of all land suitable for cultivation and its careful use of its limited water resources.

Lutrick emphasized, however, that first and foremost his Israel visit served to bring him fresh appreciation of the Bible and the scriptures.

"Actually seeing these historic places has brought the scriptures into new, fresh and sharp focus for me," he declared. "When I read the scriptures now, they are so much more meaningful than they could ever have been before!"

'Search' at St. Ann's ends Sunday

"Search" at St. Ann's Catholic Church will end with a final session at 3:30 p.m. Sunday in the church's Parish Center.

Teen-agers and young adults will come from Ozona, Odessa, Big Spring, Abilene, San Angelo, Fort Stockton, Midland and other points to attend this three-day retreat.

The staff is composed youth who have experienced Search and who have been living Christian lives. The staff also includes priests, sisters and lay people dedicated to working with the youth. The adult staff gives guidance to the overall program, presents some of the talks, counsels with the youth, leads worship services and chaperones the weekend.

Search is not a cure-all for problems of the youth, but it hopes to give youth a deeper insight into what it means to live in Christ.

High spirit of pope's visit fades in Mexico

By GORDON D. MOTT

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The color photographs and posters of Pope John Paul II have already faded in the pitiless Mexican sun.

Also disappearing are the hopes of Mexican Catholics that their pontiff's historic visit would change the government's anticlerical policies.

Just two weeks ago, some observers claimed that the government's anticlerical attitudes, written into the Mexican constitution of 1917, had suffered a staggering blow when more than 20 million people lined streets and plazas to cheer the Polish pope who spoke to them in Spanish.

His trip sparked an almost unprecedented religious fervor among Mexico's 60 million Roman Catholics.

But now the cries of "Viva Catholic Mexico" are gone. So are the editorials warning against a change in church-state relations and the newspaper columns favoring change.

By law the government owns all church buildings. Religious ceremonies cannot be conducted outside a designated church; clerical garb cannot be worn on the street; priests cannot vote.

Mexican government and church leaders are still studying the impact of the pope's visit, but some say the relationship forged during the revolution 60 years ago is the best in Latin America and there is no reason to change it.

"The people were caught up in a mood of religious fervor," a ranking government official, who asked that his name not be used, said a few hours after the pope left. "But in a few weeks it will all be forgotten and things will return to normal."

President Jose Lopez Portillo, who risked political criticism to meet John Paul at the airport, said the outpouring of people significant enough to comment on the visit.

"Our constitution provides freedom of belief and association and liberty to meet," he said. "There cannot be any foreign influence which could compel us to change politically or socially."

Although the pope wore his pontifical robes everywhere he went, and thousand of priests and nuns appeared in public in their clerical garb, Lopez Portillo said the government would continue to enforce the constitutional provision against this.

But the president pointed out the fine for breaking that law is only 50 pesos, the equivalent of about $2.50. The size of the fine, he said, reflects the slight importance of the violation.

"The visit of the pope did not violate the constitution, the Mexican constitution satisfies the needs of the people," said Archbishop Carlos Quintanero Arce, one of Mexico's more radical church officials.

"We do not aspire to posts in the world that could influence the government. Our service is to the community not to the politicians," said Bishop Jose Melgo Osorio of Mexico City.

John Paul's appearance in his papal vestments "was a courtesy of the Mexican government," the government spokesman said. "It should not be confused with a political situation. Our laws will be respected."

A Mexican senator who also asked anonymity said: "The Catholic Church is not going to pressure the government. And the government will not change its position. The pope's visit was not a political event. It will be remembered for its emotional content."

There are some, however, who think the long-range effect of the visit will be more than spiritual or emotional.

The Spanish head of the Jesuit order, the Rev. Pedro Arupe, was in Mexico for the papal visit.

"There was a reserve here before the pope came," he said. "But his visit showed that Mexico has a spiritual capital they have to invest in the future. It is a missionary capital that is worth more than all the theology in the world."

'Electronic church' worries official

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A United Methodist official has expressed concern that a future "electronic church" is developing that "pulls people away from local churches and face-to-face encounter."

The Rev. Dr. Curtis A. Chambers, head of denominational communications, referred to the growing number of independent radio and television programs and stations in a letter to the Dayton Daily News.

He said he fears "the substitution of an undemanding kind of commitment to the church and its mission with no person-to-person involvement" which always has characterized historic Christianity.

Group suggests plan for burials

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The bodies of 570 Peoples Temple members should be trucked to the San Francisco Bay area for burial at a cost of about $302,800, a court-appointed inter-faith group recommended Friday.

The Emergency Relief Committee, appointed by a San Francisco Superior Court judge handling dissolution of temple assets, made the recommendation in an 11-page plan submitted to the court.

"This plan depends upon the use of Peoples Temple assets," said attorney John E. Wahl, representing the committee set up Jan. 23 by Judge Ira Brown.

The plan also recommends awarding $218,580 in assets of the disbanded religious cult to relatives of members who died at the cult settlement in Guyana but who have already made their own burial arrangements.

Killed in the mass murder-suicide Nov. 18 in the Guyana jungle were 913 temple members and cult leader Jim Jones.

The study group said that, as of Thursday, 570 bodies are stored in metal coffins in a hangar at Dover Air Force Base, Del., where they were flown from Guyana in December. The other bodies have been claimed by their families and buried.

Of the 570, 255 are unidentified, 236 have been identified but unclaimed, and the families of the remaining 79 have signed forms allowing the State Department to dispose of the bodies.

Brown will conduct a public hearing on the plan on Feb. 26.

Grandson discusses Rockefeller aide

NEW YORK (AP) — A grandson of the late Nelson A. Rockefeller said Friday he didn't know the exact job Megan Marshack performed for his grandfather, but declared, "I hope that she made Nelson happy."

"I mean to say that she did a good job with Nelson in what she was doing, right, that she helped him out with his work," Steven Rockefeller Jr., 18, told reporters.

A family spokesman has said Miss Marshack, who earned a reported $60,000 a year as a research aide, was with Rockefeller working on an art book when he suffered his fatal heart attack on the night of Jan. 26.

Conflicting statements about the circumstances of the death have raised questions about whether his life could have been saved if the emergency medical service had been summoned more promptly.

Miss Marshack and her friend, Pochitta Pierce, who has said that she was the one who finally called an ambulance, have been unavailable to reporters.

Steven Jr. was asked during an interview on the WABC-TV "AM-New York" program what he would say to Miss Marshack if she walked in.

He replied, "I would say to her, 'I hope you made grandfather happy.'"

Moments later, he added, "I don't know what Megan's role was exactly, but if she was involved with Granddaddy, I hope that she did the best she could and helped him out the best she could and that she was instrumental in some of his success."

Asked whether he thought media coverage of the death story was fair, he said, "I think it is fair, all right, to look for the truth, okay. I think it is not fair to probe into family matters. I think the two have conflicted."

AUSTIN — A decision should be reached within 60 days on the application of Colorado River Municipal Water District for a permit from the Texas Water Commission for construction of Stacy Reservoir.

The lengthy series of hearings began last Feb. 21.

Since that time, there have been 50 sessions before the TWC, with 260 exhibits introduced, 133 by the Lower Colorado River Authority, which is one of the chief opponents of the application, and 87 by the CRMWD.

LCRA attorney Fred Werhenthin attempted again Friday to have TWC member Barney Hardeman disqualified from voting on the application, citing Hardeman's service as a state senator from San Angelo and as an attorney for that city.

San Angelo is a potential customer for Stacy Reservoir water.

That motion was denied, and the application taken under advisement by the TWC.

TWC Chairman Felix McDonald asked that all parties submit proposed language for permit conditions, in the event the permit is approved.

CRMWD attorney Frank Book of Austin already has submitted a recommended permit draft, the TWC reports.

State purchase of land again before House

AUSTIN — Another attempt to authorize the state to buy some 212,000 acres of Big Bend ranchland has been introduced in the Texas House.

House Bill 1110, sponsored by Lynn Nabors of Brownwood, would allow the Texas Conservation Foundation to spend up to $7 million to acquire the Anderson Ranch in Brewster and Presidio counties.

Attempts to authorize state purchase of the property failed in 1975 and 1977.

The land is owned by Diamond A Cattle Co. of Roswell, N.M., and the D.S. Mooney Estate of Columbus, Ohio.

The legislation would place the property under control of the State Land Commissioner, and permit leasing for livestock grazing or mineral exploration, contracting with institutions of higher learning for research, contracting with the Parks and Wildlife Department for recreational game management and cooperating with the Antiquities Committee for protection and development of historical and archeological landmarks.

New extension agent to begin duties April 1

CRANE — Sharon Annette Harless will begin duties as an assistant Crane County extension agent April 1, according to Roberts Johnson of the Texas Agriculture Service.

Miss Harless is a graduate of Texas Tech University with a degree in home economics. Her major was clothing and textiles. She also attended San Jacinto College.

HONDA CARS USE REGULAR GAS SAVE 6¢ PER GALLON

A lot of cars are choosy when it comes to fuel. Hondas are different. All our cars operate without a catalytic converter, so you can take your pick of unleaded or regular gasoline. Now, how could we make it any simpler than that?

What can you expect for $3999?

You can expect an awful lot if you buy a Honda Civic 1200 Hatchback. We don't sell a Honda until it's finished.

HONDA
We make it simple.
