NEW YORK (AP) — The on-again, off-again plan by Standard Oil Co. of Ohio to build a California-to-Texas pipeline appears to be on again, but the project is unlikely to have any impact on what Americans pay for gasoline or heating oil.

Sohio is looking for the most economical way of transporting its Alaskan oil to the eastern half of the United States. Cutting transportation costs will reflect in the firm's profits, not in consumer prices. But the company says higher profits will increase incentives to further develop the Alaskan oil reserves.

Sohio — and other companies involved in Alaskan production — want to get the pipeline completed as soon as possible, so it can be operational when Alaskan production is at its peak in the next few years.

Sohio canceled the $1 billion pipeline project March 13, claiming problems with getting the necessary environmental clearances from state and federal governments to build it.

That provoked criticism from California officials, who said regulatory approval was not far away. Some analysts theorized that the company made the announcement to try to pressure the government into letting it sell some of its Alaskan oil abroad.

Doing that would be even cheaper — and hence more profitable — than building the pipeline, which in turn would be cheaper than the present means of transporting Alaskan oil to the East: shipping it through the Panama Canal.

Under fire from state and federal officials, Sohio suddenly reversed itself Wednesday, resubmitting applications for California air-quality permits, but it said it would again drop the plans if approval dragged on for several more months.

"The Secretary of Energy and various members of Congress made it very clear in our meeting in Washington (Tuesday) that they wanted the PACTEX pipeline project to go forward promptly in the national interest and that they will do all they can to encourage the issuance of the necessary permits and approvals," Sohio Chairman Alton Whitehouse said in a statement.

"If we received the green light within 90 days there is a strong possibility we would proceed. If we received the green light within six months there is a probability we might proceed," he added. "The project is losing strength and character with the passage of time."

Meeting likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is expected to meet with Pope John Paul II during a visit to Italy in late May, the State Department said Friday.

Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Vance will visit Rome May 28-29 at the invitation of the Italian government. Vance also will attend the NATO ministerial meeting in The Hague, Netherlands, and will visit Spain.

Fees discussed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White has said the fees a justice of the peace receives for copies of birth and death records should go to the county that bears the expenses of his office.

The written opinion referred to a Dallas County justice of the peace serving as a registrar for the entire city of Grand Prairie, which extends into Tarrant County.

White said the money should be deposited in the Dallas County Treasury.

Pleas entered

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Raymond Hillum, former Burnet County sheriff, and two former deputies have pleaded innocent to federal charges they conspired to buy the telephone of a suspected drug dealer.

The pleadings for Hillum, 53, of Burnet; Charles Johnston, 44, of Lampasas; and William Lentz, 45, of Bertram were entered Thursday in U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts' court.

None of the defendants was present.

Bills signed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements signed bills Friday that would enable counties to receive state airport grants and treat males and females equally under the probate code.

He signed HB272 by Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, which enables the Texas Aeronautics Commission to make airport grants to counties. Only cities now can receive the grants.

Clements signed HB648, by Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, rewording the probate code to eliminate language applying it to widows and unmarried daughters only. It now refers to spouses and unmarried children.

Regret expressed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department expressed deep regret Friday over the assassination of Manuel Colon Argueta, a prominent Guatemalan leftist politician and a former mayor of Guatemala City.

Speaker battles 'false' notion of oil shortage

The United States is in its sixth decade of running out of oil, according to Dr. T. Don Stacy, treasurer and executive committee member of the Society of Petroleum Engineers.

Speaking at the membership luncheon of the Permian Basin Oil and Gas Recovery Conference Friday in the Midland Hilton, Stacy said the threat of an oil shortage has been around a long time, and somewhere along the line the idea developed that there is nothing we can do about it.

That idea is false, said Stacy. The reserves of the U.S. are extensive both on and offshore, he contended.

Stacy's talk, titled "Promises and Problems — the U.S. Onshore," reviewed the various "hotspots" in U.S. onshore activities and some of the problems faced by the energy-producing industry.

Through advances in technology, many of the areas previously closed to production are now capable of being produced, Stacy said.

For example, he said, exploration of the Overthrust Belt, an area encompassing parts of Utah, Wyoming, Montana and Idaho, has indicated the area has more potential than any discovery since Prudhoe Bay, Alaska.

Exploration of the Michigan Basin has opened a new zone in an area where the oil industry began, Stacy said.

One of the greatest problems in exploration and production of new oil fields, said Stacy, is the federal government.

At one time the government regulated what the oil and gas industry couldn't do, said Stacy.

T. Don Stacy

"Now they regulate what you can do and how you can do it," he added.

The U.S. probably won't be self-sufficient in energy during our lifetime, and probably never will be in fossil fuels, said Stacy.

However, if the oil industry were deregulated, said Stacy, a great deal more activity would be seen in the energy producing areas.

Begin looks ahead to signing of treaty

By The Associated Press

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, "praying from the bottom of my heart" that the treaty with Egypt will foster a wider Mideast peace, left for the United States Friday for the signing ceremony. Within hours a terrorist bombing in Jerusalem killed one person and wounded 14.

In a brief statement on arrival at Kennedy International Airport in New York, the Israeli prime minister said, "We have some problems, but I have come to sign the peace treaty." He said he wanted "to congratulate President (Anwar) Sadat and express our gratitude to the president of the United States for his great efforts."

Begin said he would stay in New York until Sunday, when he leaves for Washington. Most of the other members of Israel's 40-member delegation for Monday's signing ceremony at the White House will leave Israel later.

President Sadat of Egypt is to arrive in the United States on Sunday. A planned stopover by Sadat in Spain has been canceled, and the Madrid press speculated it was because the Spanish government feared adverse reaction by the Arab nations that supply most of Spain's oil.

Israeli authorities said the Jerusalem bomb was hidden in a garbage can 30 feet from a line of persons waiting for taxis. The blast occurred near Zion Square, frequent scene of terrorist bombings.

The military command of the Palestine Liberation Organization in Beirut, Lebanon, claimed responsibility for the bombing, saying it was intended to counter the treaty signing.

Arab nations, furious over the treaty, continued plans to derail it and to punish Sadat for coming to a bilateral agreement with Israel.

In London, Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Haleem Khaddam said Friday that Syria and other Arab countries would foster efforts to overthrow Sadat.

"We shall help the Egyptian people to restore the legitimate situation in Egypt," he told reporters at the end of an official visit.

Iraq has called for a meeting of Arab League foreign ministers in Damascus, Syria, next Tuesday.

Mennonites now fighting to stay in 'land of free'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

SEMINOLE — The land the Mennonites claimed two years ago with hope for a prosperous community for members of the fundamentalist religious sect has all but slipped from their grasp.

The land — 10 sections near here — will be put up for auction sometime between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Tuesday at the Gaines County Courthouse.

The Mennonites are losing the land, after forfeiting on a $230,000 payment to Lamesa rancher Dennis Nix more than a month ago.

All but a handful of the 125 Mennonite families from Mexico and Canada have left the land, formerly known as the 70 Ranch.

But though the Mennonites certainly have lost the land, they still are waging another fight to stay on United States soil.

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas this week introduced a private bill to grant U.S. resident status to the "peaceable, hard working" people who face deportation unless they are granted visas.

The Bentsen bill was born after townspeople in Seminole requested legislation to keep the Mennonites in this West Texas town.

"As long as it (the bill) is pending, there will be no move made by Immigration (the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service) to deport them," a spokesman for the senator said today.

The bill, introduced Wednesday, currently is before the Senate Judiciary Committee for review, and

"there's no way to predict" how long the bill will be there before it comes up for a vote, the spokesman said.

If eventually passed by the Senate and House, the bill would insure the permanent residence of the 653 Mennonites named in the bill.

They moved here in the spring of 1977 on the promise by real estate brokers that their buying land would guarantee them "green cards," a term referring to the permanent U.S. residence permits. That promise proved wrong.

"These good and decent people had been led to believe that by purchasing land in our country they would be allowed to remain as citizens," Bentsen noted.

"They were given bad advice," the senator's spokesman said.

The Mennonites paid $575,000 on a $18 million note to Nix, but were unable to satisfy subsequent payments after their crop yield was less productive than they had visualized.

The dream of a community turning into a Mennonite town of, say, 30,000 people, faded.

Members of the Old Colony Mennonite Church lost faith in the land. And their bishop Henry Reimer, resigned in disappointment.

"The cause of their problems is murky and uncertain," Bentsen said. "I do not introduce this legislation to lay the blame for their problems on anyone. Rather, I simply propose to provide the necessary relief."

Bentsen said the Mennonites are a law-abiding, industrious people.

Peter Bergen, the 29-year-old leader of the Old Colony Mennonite Church's corporate board, paid Nix $70,000 toward purchase of 640 acres — but stands to lose that, as well as the improvements he made on the land in a year's time.

"I think the value has increased," Bergen said, "but the high interest is what is hurting us." The Mennonites now owe $1.3 million on the land, he said.

Several weeks ago, Bergen had hopes that investors from Midland would loan the church the money to pay off the note. That prospect came to naught, Bergen said, and perhaps died, largely due to the high interest rates.

"All we can hope for is that someone (at the auction) will pay a higher price than we owe against (the land)," Bergen said. Then, any money above the amount due would go to the Mennonites, he said.

Peter Bergen said Nix has contended that most of $575,000 paid him for the land has gone to taxes, brokers and elsewhere.

Currently living on that land are Bergen's brother, Ben Bergen Jr.; their father, Ben Bergen Sr.; and Jake Redekop and their families.

Peter Bergen is farming a section of land he leased north Seminole.

Lamesa attorney Ed Fulbright today said that Nix likely will buy the land back, though it will be sold to the highest bidder to pay off the obligation both to Nix and the bank.

Fulbright was Dennis is "an outstanding man and is as honest as the day is long."

Leftists push for shah's expulsion

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Leftist students and labor unions in Morocco are stepping up their campaign for the expulsion of Iran's exiled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who lives in gilded oblivion in the Dar es Salaam (House of Peace) guest palace near Rabat.

As strikes and labor unrest sweep Morocco in the wake of a serious economic recession, the shah's presence has become an embarrassing problem for his host, Morocco's King Hassan II.

Moroccan officials are indignant over a new slogan scrawled on walls near Rabat and Casablanca universities: "One shah in Morocco is enough" — a reference to the parallel drawn by many Moroccan leftists between the discredited Iranian monarchy and the less autocratic regime of King Hassan.

Student demonstrators demanding improved study facilities and living conditions have added the shah's departure from Morocco to their list of demands. Striking industrial workers have raised banners demanding his extradition to face trial in Iran.

One such banner put up by striking teachers outside a school in Casablanca led to a police baton charge in which several persons were injured.

Officially, the shah has become virtually a non-person in Morocco. He is never referred to in the official newspapers and broadcasts and never appears at public functions.

Informed Moroccan sources said the shah was so horrified by the execution of dozens of his top generals and officials in Iran that he lapsed into a deep depression.

The sources said Morocco has received no official Iranian request for his extradition — and would reject such a request if it was made. The revolutionary regime in Iran has said it would try the shah "in absentia" for alleged crimes against the people — a show trial certain to end with a death sentence.

The sources said the shah regards the trial as part of an attempt to block his massive assets in Swiss banks.

Iranian Ambassador Farhad Sepahbod, one of the few Iranian diplomats to remain loyal to the shah, has been disowned by his embassy staff but still occupies the embassy residence here with his American-born wife.

The shah appears to have no plans to leave Morocco, although sources close to Hassan have hinted that the shah has stretched Arab hospitality to the limit.

Only the United States and Egypt have expressed a willingness to welcome the deposed monarch. The governments of Switzerland, Spain, France, Britain and Italy have told him they cannot accept responsibility for his security at this time.

Shuttle finally in Florida

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — Columbia, the shuttle destined to help Americans commute between Earth and space, arrived in Florida's Panhandle Friday on the next-to-last leg of a troubled cross-country odyssey. Shacked ungraciously to the back of a Boeing 747 jumbo jet, the shuttle arrived to cheers of hundreds of spectators at this Air Force facility a few miles from Fort Walton Beach, Fla. National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials planned to spend the night at Eglin, then complete Columbia's journey Saturday with a hop to Cape Canaveral, Fla., home base for the reusable shuttle. Final touchdown at Cape Canaveral is tentatively scheduled for 11 a.m. EST Saturday.

The shuttle and mother ship combination dropped smoothly to a landing here after a trip from San Antonio, Texas. The sky was cloudless but a 23 mph breeze whipped the runway as the ship rolled to a stop. Reaching its destination — Cape Canaveral, Fla. — will end weeks of frustration.

The original schedule called for Columbia to complete its trip to Cape Canaveral on March 10. But mechanical problems and bad weather in California delayed departure until Tuesday. The piggy-back creature was hung up in El Paso for two days because of severe thunderstorms and high winds whipping through West and Central Texas.

The craft can't be exposed to rain because about a fourth of the 75-ton shuttle's heat-resistant outside tiles still must be installed. The shuttle is half-rocket, half-plane and is designed to make 100 roundtrips into space, being launched into space from Cape Canaveral by a rocket and then gliding back to earth like an airplane.

Welcome mat to be aired

ELK CITY, Okla. (AP) — Unless some opponents surface at the last minute, President Carter may get the impression when he visits Elk City Saturday and Sunday that everyone in this booming western Oklahoma area voted for him. He did carry Beckham County in 1976, but President Ford also had strong support throughout western Oklahoma while carrying the states eight electoral votes by a slim 13,000-vote margin.

Carter will be presiding over a nationally televised "town meeting" and attending church services here to fulfill an old campaign promise, and city officials say if he thought he was popular here when he was just a candidate, wait until he sees the welcome mat this time.

Red, white and blue placards and signs proclaiming "Elk City Loves Jimmy Carter" adorn this city of about 10,000 persons, and crews of volunteers were going to work right up to the President's arrival to make sure everything was spotless for his visit.

The American Agriculture Movement got a city permit to park farm vehicles at a cotton gin and tractor dealership on the edge of the business district, but scheduled their main rally outside the city limits.

AAM applied for a demonstration permit after the Carter visit was announced, but the first application, by Glyn Keen of Lone Wolf, was rejected because it did not specify the number of vehicles to be involved and what their activities would be.

His application was approved on Thursday, but only to allow the parking of farm vehicles at the gin and the tractor dealership near the business district on the street the presidential motorcade will use.

Carter was a little known Democratic presidential candidate in November of 1975 when he made his first visit to Elk City, but he received a royal welcome and was so impressed he promised to come back after he was elected.

Some campaign promises are forgotten, but that one was not. Democratic Gov. George Nigh remarked several weeks ago that Carter was trying to work out the details of a visit to Oklahoma.

Asked if it would include Oklahoma City and Tulsa, the two big cities which generally attract politicians of national stature, Nigh said, "All I know is he definitely is going to Elk City. He told me he wasn't treated any better anywhere during his campaign than he was in Elk City."

Nigh said Carter "told me he had made a commitment to the people of Elk City and he was going to keep it the first chance he got, the first time he visited Oklahoma again."

This will be Carter's first trip back to Oklahoma since his election, and if the residents of Oklahoma City and Tulsa want to see him in person, they'll have to go to Elk City. He is scheduled to arrive at the Clinton-Sherman Air Park at nearby Burns Flat at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, then go by motorcade to the Elk City High School gymnasium where he will preside over a town meeting beginning at 7:30 p.m. The 1,100 persons attending the town meeting were chosen by a lottery. Some, whose names were entered by relatives in the Elk City area, may come from as far away as California and Virginia. A select few questioners will be chosen to represent the group, and the President will answer as many questions as the hour-long meeting permits.

White House workmen making preparations for expensive meal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Workmen dug trenches Friday outside the $6,700 rented circus tent on the White House South Lawn. Inside the tent, others painted the poles green, built a stage and installed wiring for electric chandeliers.

These were a few of the preparations for a banquet to be given by President Carter for 1,300 guests Monday night after the signing of the peace treaty between Egypt and Israel.

Chief Usher Rex Scouten said it probably will be the most expensive state dinner in the history of the White House, but no one was willing to estimate the cost. A dinner of similar size was given in 1973 by President Richard M. Nixon, but costs have since escalated with inflation.

"It's a huge undertaking," said Scouten, who has spent most of the past three days inside the tent supervising about 30 workmen.

The red and yellow tent, measuring 100 by 180 feet, was rented from a company in suburban Rockville, Md. The tent was one of many special items obtained from outside the White House for the banquet, which will be 10 times the size of a normal state dinner.

"It's the largest tent that fits between the trees," Scouten said. Four smaller yellow and white serving tents were set up nearby. Because the White House is not stocked for such a mammoth dinner, china, crystal and silverware for 1,300 guests also will be rented, Scouten said. So will the round dining tables that seat 10 guests each.

The White House has its own staff of butlers, and 26 are required to serve guests at the normal-size state banquet. This time 260 butlers are needed, and they are being recruited from caterers and hotels in the Washington area, Scouten said.

In addition, three extra cooks will be brought in to help the three White House chefs prepare the Monday night meal of salmon, cheese straws, roast beef, vegetables, mousse, petit fours, demitasse and three California wines.

Scouten said the meat probably will be prepared at a local hotel. The temperature forecast for the dinner is about 50 degrees — a bit chilly for evening wear. So special heating ducts are being installed in the tent to keep the guests warm. The last time a dinner of this magnitude was held at the White House was in May 1973, when Nixon entertained 1,300 former prisoners of war and their guests under a huge tent on the South Lawn.

Document won't repeat refusal of PLO relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Israeli document to accompany the Mideast peace treaty will omit any specific reaffirmation of the American refusal to negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organization, State Department officials said Friday.

Officials denied, however, that the Carter administration has any plan to change the longstanding American policy that bars negotiations with the PLO unless the organization recognizes Israel's right to exist.

The assertions came as State Department officials, requesting anonymity, discussed the "memorandum of understanding" that will outline some of the bases for dealings between the United States and Israel after the signing of the treaty between Egypt and Israel.

Diplomatic sources said Israel was trying to persuade the United States to reiterate its 1975 guarantee that it would not recognize or talk to the PLO unless it accepted United Nations Resolution 242 and Israel's right to exist, which it has not done.

Israeli officials have said they would be satisfied if the commitment were restated indirectly, perhaps by affirming that all of the previous American agreements with Israel would remain in effect after the treaty is signed.

Negotiations on the memorandum continued here Friday. Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan met twice with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and his staff.

After the second meeting, Dayan told reporters that there were still problems in agreeing on the wording of the memo. But he said he hoped that it could be completed at a meeting Saturday morning.

U.S. officials said they were not seeking flexibility that would permit U.S. dealings with the PLO. They said they simply wanted to restrict the memorandum to the subject of assurances of American political support for Israel if the treaty with Egypt is violated.

But, the officials said, there has been no effort to ask the Western Europeans to help in a program of economic aid for Egypt, primarily because the administration is not yet sure how large that program will be or how it will be financed.

Spring weather to arrive soon

Balmy spring weather should be returning to the Permian Basin today after record-breaking cold weather Friday.

Friday morning's low of 39 degrees broke the previous record of 41 degrees set in 1934.

The spring temperatures expected today should round out an all-too-typical week of West Texas weather which included sunny days, fog, cool temperatures, wind, blowing sand and rain.

The weatherman is predicting fair skies and warmer temperatures to continue through Sunday.

High today should be in the low 70s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. The mercury reached a high of 65 degrees Friday, quite a bit cooler from the record 85 degrees set in 1972.

Low tonight should be in the mid-40s. Sunday should be a day for getting outdoors, as the predicted high is in the middle 70s, according to the weatherman.

Area weather was warm and sunny, with Lamesa and Big Lake reporting some wind gusts Friday.

Carter repeats overture to deal directly with PLO

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Carter, unable thus far to win broader Arab backing for the Egyptian-Israeli settlement, has made a new overture to the Palestine Liberation Organization, repeating his offer to deal with the PLO if it will recognize Israel's right to exist.

The PLO has spurned similar proposals in the past. Carter's offer to "immediately start working directly" with the PLO came in an interview with Egyptian television broadcast here Friday, as Egyptian and Israeli leaders prepared for Monday's signing of the historic treaty between their two countries at a Washington ceremony.

Carter said his offer depends on PLO acceptance of U.N. Security Council Resolution 242.

The resolution, accepted by most Arab states as a basis for a Middle East peace, calls for Israel to return war-won Arab lands in exchange for Arab guarantees of Israel's right to exist within secure and recognized boundaries.

The interviewer, Adib Andrawes, Washington correspondent of Egypt's official Middle East News Agency, asked Carter whether the United States soon might start talks with the Palestinians over their grievances.

"Yes, we would like to have direct

"We have a problem with the PLO," Carter went on. "The PLO has totally rejected U.N. Security Council

"...the PLO has not recognized at all Israel's right to exist. As soon as the PLO expresses its acceptance of (this)...we will then immediately start working directly with this organization, on this basis."

relations with the Palestinians," Carter said. "We will do this as part of the negotiating process in the future.

Resolution 242 and it is the basis for the Camp David agreements.

"Also, the PLO has not recognized at all Israel's right to exist. As soon as the PLO expresses its acceptance of these principles, we will then immediately start working directly with this organization, on this basis."

The interview was conducted Thursday.

The treaty to be signed Monday has been loudly condemned by PLO leader Yasser Arafat and by radical Arab states, and criticized as insufficient by such "moderates" as Jordan and Saudi Arabia.

Arafat and other Arab leaders have called a conference of Arab League foreign ministers for next Tuesday to endorse sanctions against Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to punish him for the treaty, which they consider a separate peace with Israel and a sell-out of the Palestinian cause.

Under the treaty provisions, Palestinians in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip are to get autonomy. But no Palestinian leader has offered to join the talks to set up autonomy because the Palestinians want an independent state. Most Palestinians consider the PLO to be their representative.

Although qualified by conditions the PLO has rejected, Carter's offer is different from Israel's position.

Mali aiming at democracy

BAMAOKO, Mali (AP) — This dirt poor nation, plagued by the Saharan climate and plundered by corrupt officers, is taking small steps toward democracy after 10 years of military rule.

Gen. Moussa Traore is expected to remain as president, with some fellow officers in high positions, but Western diplomats say he is committed to restoring significant power to civilians.

He has called a congress for the last days of March to organize the single authorized party, the Democratic Party of Malian People. National Assembly elections are set for June.

MALI NOW receives $150 million a year in Western aid, equal to its national budget. A telegram from Bamako to Timbuktu, about 400 miles up the Niger River, still takes three days, and some families walk 12 miles a day for water.

Mali's 6.5 million inhabitants, including desert Tuaregs who have never heard a radio, have a per capita average of $100 a year — the cost of two nights in Bamako's Hotel de l'Amitie.

It is one of the world's poorest nations, with a foreign debt estimated by the World Bank at about $330 million, half its annual gross national product, the sum of all the nation's goods and services.

TRAORE, AS a young lieutenant, overthrew Modibo Keita in 1968 as head of the 14-man Military Committee for National Liberation. In 1974, he imposed a constitution calling for civilian rule in five years.

He has stayed on schedule but not without opposition from colleagues reluctant to give up their power. Since 1968, eight of the 14 committee members have been sacked for plotting or theft.

In a sweeping purge last year, two top officers were sentenced to death and others to labor camps.

This month, in a new round of trials, former Defense Minister Kissina Doukara was condemned to death a second time and ordered to repay $9.2 million in allegedly embezzled funds. Others were convicted of stealing millions of dollars in public money.

THE TRIALS were to be open to the public in the capital, but they were transferred to isolated barracks in Timbuktu. Students struck for two days protesting the move. Some charged that the military committee was afraid the defendants, already under death sentences, might implicate other officers.

Traore, apparently in firm control despite some continued grumbling, told an African interviewer: "I could dissolve the military committee right now. But to replace it with what? I am awaiting the proper moment."

Foreign experts say only a major change could make a dent in the country's problems.

Mali is landlocked, dependent on a rail link to Dakar, Senegal — 30 hours away from Bamako. It is five times the size of Britain and much of the country is inaccessible. Roads are often tracks in the dunes. The Niger can be navigated only a few months a year. Blowing sand can close airstrips for days. Even in Bamako, transport is so scarce that the driver of a collective taxi was beaten to death recently when he insisted on going home, refusing waiting passengers.

UNDER KEITA, Mali was virtually a Soviet satellite, but aid was limited mainly to military hardware, along with a sports complex and a teachers college which was left to deteriorate.

Western aid has helped considerably, but it is needed for basic food supplies, drought protection and pressing daily operating costs. Soviet military aid and training programs are still dispensed from a huge new embassy, but there is no economic assistance.

Now, although 28 percent of the budget goes for education, few schools have books, and many teachers must accept bribes for good grades to live on their salaries.

GOVERNMENT wages are low, and corruption pervades the system. "If someone steals in the market, he is beaten by the vendors," remarked one veteran here. "But if he embezles a huge sum from the government, he is almost a hero."

Apart from corruption, ponderous bureaucracy slows government machinery and security measures make life difficult.

"It is all relative, I suppose," remarked one Malian intellectual who has traveled widely. "Under the last regime, you couldn't even find basic necessities in the market. You couldn't even talk to your child for fear of being reported. Now you can criticize the president, something which was unheard of before."

NOT EVERYONE despairs of the situation. Historically, Mali was the capital of vast West African realms, and, as a French colony, it was productive and relatively efficient.

One veteran aid official observed, "There is corruption, but you can get things done here. Malians live up to their word. When a project is approved, often the paperwork goes through immediately. There are some good people in the government, and they try hard."

Study prepared for Senate panel pictures horror 'after the bomb'

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Survivors of a major nuclear attack on the United States would face a devastated world where political leaders are not trusted and tensions among social and racial groups would increase, a new study says.

Among those who lived, it said, "A high rate of abnormal behavior, ranging from the non-functional to the antisocial, can be anticipated."

Long after the attack, survivors would suffer doubt, fear, demoralization, guilt, disorientation, apathy and antipathy toward authorities, it added.

With the psychological stresses and severe shortages of resources, "even the simplest requirements of survival will become major tasks," the study said.

It was prepared for the Senate Banking Committee by Dr. Arthur Katz, a chemist, and was based partially on research at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The panel is studying federal emergency and disaster preparedness programs.

Katz argued that policymakers underestimate the full impact of a nuclear attack on the United States because they focus on isolated factors, such as casualty figures from the blast and radiation. The destruction of urban centers would have a ripple effect throughout the country, with a crippling impact on food and fuel supplies, medical services, and labor and productive capacity, he said.

In fuel supplies alone, he said, 98 percent of the petroleum refining capacity would be destroyed in an all-out attack. The remaining refining capacity would not even be enough to meet the fuel needs of farmers, Katz said.

The nation's food supply also would be hard-hit because of a concentration of food processing facilities in areas expected to be heavily damaged — the Northeast, Great Lakes and Southwestern regions, Katz said.

Because of disruptions in transportation and the food distribution system, survivors in the Northeast "may be denied large-scale resupply of food stocks for extended periods, possibly several months," the study said.

Katz said the ability of political authorities and institutions to respond to a nuclear crisis will be hampered by the loss of managerial talent, trained specialists and resources.

"To this will be added problems of credibility if political authorities at the local, state, regional or national level are perceived as having invited the disaster, as being ill-prepared for it, or as being incompetent in efforts to cope with its effects," the study said.

Better French bread sweeping success

By RICHARD LARSEN and DEBORAH WARD
Special to The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — What began as a modest effort by Turkish-born Semin Ustun to bake "some good French bread" in Washington, D.C., is now Vie de France, a profitable international enterprise whose wholesale bakeries have spread from Maryland to Germany, Belgium and the Netherlands.

Ustun and three friends founded the company whose red-white-and-blue-wrapped breads and other products adorn the shelves of supermarkets nationally.

They took a lot of care and planning to create a product that was just right and just French. American flour was sent to Paris to be blended to match French flour. French technicians came to the United States to build stainless steel and brick ovens with, yes, bricks imported from France. French bakers — many of whom were trained at Grands Moulins de Paris baking schools — arrived from Paris and Marseilles.

Most importantly, the recipes are French, and no preservatives or artificial ingredients are used. Company officials hasten to add that Vie de France is a "fresh daily" company. All baking is done on the premises even if the shop is located in congested areas or busy shopping centers.

The company began baking bread in 1972 in a small Bethesda, Md., bakery. At that time, a typical month's production included 350 loaves marketed to local shops and restaurants. Within a short time, 15 trucks were delivering bread to about 1,500 Washington outlets.

In 1973, the company opened a wholesale bakery in Boston for its first expansion effort. The Boston branch soon met with considerable success, prompting the company to expand to Philadelphia, Atlanta and Westport, Conn., and Philadelphia. A cafe offering limited food service also was opened in Houston, where sandwich sales — initially forecast to reach 15 to 20 percent of total business — soared to 40 percent.

Company statistics reveal that the Houston bakery began making a profit in nine weeks and the Westport bakery broke even in two weeks. Similar success occurred in Philadelphia where wholesale and retail bakeries and a cafe all broke even within a few weeks.

Chicago is the most recent site of Vie de France bakeries and cafes. The company has settled in a suburban shopping center and near a downtown Chicago monument in Water Tower Place. Grand Moulins de Paris re-evaluated the company's progress last year and acquired control by purchasing 65 percent of its stock. "We saw the company was doing well, and we knew it could compete with other profitable bakeries," explained Jean Louis Vilgrain, director general of Grands Moulins.

"That investment made our dream possible," Paul remarked. "We could continue bringing our products to many locations." Plans are underway for the opening of nine more retail and limited-food-service operations in the United States.

Grand Moulins' investment also made possible the company's latest venture — which brings it back to its headquarters — a restaurant located in the heart of downtown Washington, known as Vie de France Cafe, it offers authentic French bread and pastries and gourmet products imported from France.

Company officials shrug off the competition from the area's many posh French restaurants. Vie de France prices are reasonable and many area restaurants serve Vie de France products.

Moreover, because the French Embassy enjoys Vie de France products and a former ambassador vraped its bread as "the best ever tasted outside of France," the company needs no further assurances. If a native Frenchman chooses its baguettes and croissants, then surely Americans will, company officials reason.

Other countries soon will receive Vie de France products.

Carter relents on Mexican food

DALLAS (AP) — Presumably, Mexican food prepared Texas-style inspires no presidential fears of "Montezuma's revenge."

A remark by Jimmy Carter about the dysentery-like affliction prompted a chilly diplomatic reaction during a recent visit to Mexico.

But Carter has requested a sample of "Tex-Mex" cooking during his weekend trip to Dallas to address the annual convention of the National Association of Broadcasters.

White House advance men told a local restaurateur that Carter would like a no-frills meal put aboard Air Force One Sunday night for the return to Washington.

"Of course we were excited," said restaurant owner Gene Street. "At first we weren't going with our regular menu. We started talking about something really special. The regular old Mexican combination plate just isn't what you serve a man like that."

As it turned out, the regular old Mexican combination plate is just what the man wants. That's why 80 $4 plates will be brought to the aircraft Sunday. They'll include tamales, enchiladas, chili, rice, beans and nachos.

Nachos are corn chips, usually served with melted cheese and a slice of jalapeno pepper on top.

Street recalled a trip to San Antonio by then-President Gerald Ford. He was served a tamale in its husk (wrapping).

Spring Magic

Spring is a season of warm sunshine, fields of flowers, lingering twilight and gentle breezes. Spring is tender and romantic. It is a wonderful time to be alive.

This delightful season draws us like a magnet to the magic world of the great outdoors. Flowers begin to bloom in all their radiance, and birds sing once more. There's an assurance in the air itself of fresh, new hope.

Spring is also a time when we're more receptive to thoughts of the eternal mystery of life. It's a special time to marvel at God's supreme plan for each of us and for all of His creation.

This week discover a new sense of wonder of the divine power that sends us a bright, new spring year after year . . . in church.

Back in Midland in his second pastoral assignment in the city is Dr. O A McBrayer, a United Methodist minister.

It's not unusual for a Methodist pastor to be transferred from city to city, from one church to another, every three to five years or so, but it is a bit unusual for such a transfer to bring him back again to a community where he had served in the past.

McBrayer first came to Midland in 1962 as pastor of St. Mark's Methodist Church. He remained in that post until 1965, when he was given a pastorate in Lubbock; in more recent years, he has filled Methodist district superintendent posts in Big Spring and Lubbock.

In 1977, he came back to Midland to fill the pulpit of another United Methodist church in the city, St. Luke's UMC.

McBrayer, a native of West Texas, is a longtime minister in the Northwest Texas Conference, a geographical division of the United Methodist denomination encompassing all the Panhandle and South Plains region of Northwest Texas and extending as far south and west as Midland and Big Spring, as far east as Abilene and Seymour.

McBrayer attended McMurry College, a Methodist college in Abilene, as an undergraduate, and then enrolled in Perkins School of Theology of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, where he received his divinity degree.

He later attended Garrett Theological School in Evanston, Ill.

He was given an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from McMurry in 1974.

McBrayer's first pastorate was in the Abilene area while he was a student at McMurry.

After completing seminary studies, he was pastor to the congregation of the Wolforth Methodist Church, near Lubbock. In later years, he has held pastorates at Wheeler, Paducah, Borger, Amarillo and Lubbock, in addition to Midland.

He became Big Spring District superintendent for his denomination in 1973, after serving as pastor of Lubbock's Forrest Heights Church for eight years.

From there he went to superintendency of the Lubbock District, remaining in that post until his assignment to Midland's St. Luke's Church in 1977.

McBrayer recalls that one of the highpoints of his first ministry in Midland, at St. Mark's Church, was the establishment of Casa de Amigos, the city's ecumenical "House of Friends."

The Christian service center in northeast Midland came into being largely through the efforts of members of St. Mark's Church and their pastor, McBrayer.

At the time he came to St. Mark's in 1962, the church's membership was dropping and the north-northeast Midland area was undergoing rapid change.

Urban blight seemed inevitable as the population of the area began to move to neighborhoods in the west and northwestern parts of the city.

"It (Casa de Amigos) was a ministry that the congregation and I felt very strongly, we must initiate," he recalled.

"Proof that there was a need for such an organization then, and that the need has continued through the years, is the fact Casa de Amigos is such a successful enterprise now. It's a most exciting thing to see something continuing so successfully, even after you yourself are no longer a part of it."

(The center now occupies its own modern new structure on North Lamesa Road and is supported by churches of numerous denominations, in addition to contributions from business enterprises and interested individuals; the center also an agency of the United Way.)

Changing population patterns continue to challenge McBrayer in his present post as pastor of St. Luke's Church, at 3011 W. Kansas Ave.

"It presents new kinds of concerns, to be involved in shifting population patterns and changing neighborhoods," the minister says.

"What this says to the church is that you must look at the immediate neighborhood as well as the overall area to see where you must make changes and how you must make adjustments."

St. Luke's, organized in 1953, has long been the fastest-growing United Methodist unit in the city, situated as it has been in the "center" of the city, from standpoint of population.

McBrayer says St. Luke's has an extremely active congregation, a young and vigorous laity, and he believes that the church will rise to the challenges which confront it in the closing years of the 1970s and others that will confront it in the early years of the '80s.

He envisions new United Methodist units being

Dr. O A McBrayer returned to Midland for a second stay when he came here in 1977 as pastor of St. Luke's United Methodist Church. established here in north and northwest Midland as the city continues to grow in those directions, but believes that St. Luke's Church and other Methodist units in the city, such as Asbury, St. Paul, First and St. Mark's churches, will continue to serve the community effectively and well.

Farewell lunch set for rector

The Rev. and Mrs. James L. Considine will be honor guests at a Sunday luncheon in the parish hall of St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church.

Considine has been rector of St. Nicholas' parish since 1964. He and his wife, Ann, will depart next week for Sweetwater where he is to become vicar of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, a move that is preparatory to his planned retirement from the active ministry a few years hence.

The Considines came to Midland from Houston where he had served as curate of St. Christopher's Episcopal Church. Before that, he was rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church at Brenham for 4 1/2 years and also served as Episcopal chaplain at Blinn College.

The Considines are both graduates of the University of Missouri at Kansas City. He was associated with Cessna Aircraft in Wichita, Kan., and as a traveling representative of a grease and oil company, before beginning theological studies.

Considine entered Philadelphia Divinity School in 1954 and was graduated in 1956. He was ordained a deacon in mid-1956 and ordained to the priesthood later that same year.

During his years in Midland, Considine has served on numerous commissions in the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas and has been a member of the standing and executive committees of the diocese.

He was a clergy deputy from the diocese to the general conventions of the Episcopal Church in 1970, 1973 and 1976.

For the last several years, Mrs. Considine has been a member of the professional staff of the Midland Tape Lending Library.

The couple has five children: Lynn, Corby, Jan, Laird and Charles.

The Sunday luncheon in the parish hall will follow the 10:30 a.m. worship service at St. Nicholas' Church. The covered dish meal will be open to all members of the parish as well as to all friends of the Considines and friends of the parish.

The ensemble, currently on a spring tour, will present psalms, hymns and spirituals in the concert, which is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. The program will be open to all residents of the community.

Henry to preach

Dr. Luther W. Henry Sr., a former Midlander and now director of the Council on Ministries of the Central Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church, will be a Midland visitor Sunday.

He will preach Sunday morning at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave. His sermon title is "The Most Precious Gift." The public is invited to hear his message.

Born in Paris, Texas, Henry was graduated from Midland's Carver High School in 1958. He received a bachelor's degree from Huston-Tillotson College in 1962, and then enrolled in Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta, Ga., receiving the bachelor of divinity degree in 1965. He was awarded an honorary doctoral degree from Huston-Tillotson College in 1977.

Henry has held pastorates in Temple, Waco and Dallas. He has served on numerous committees and held several chairmanships for the United Methodist denomination's Central Texas Conference. He has been a delegate to the general and jurisdictional conferences of the United Methodist Church.

Crestview Baptist to begin spring revival

An annual spring revival will begin Sunday at Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas St.

The evangelistic thrust will continue through Friday, said the Rev. Kenneth James, host pastor. Services on Sunday will begin at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., while weeknight services are scheduled for 7:30. In addition, a luncheon meeting will be held at noon each weekday in the church fellowship hall.

Guest preacher for the revival will be Harvey Hoffman of Louisiana. A native Texan and a graduate of Baylor University, Waco, and Southwestern Baptist Seminary, Fort Worth, Hoffman currently lives in Alexandria, La.

Hoffman is widely known as a preacher and lecturer. He participated in an African missions tour in 1977, and in 1978 took part in a preaching crusade to the Philippines. In the past, he has pastored churches at Gonzales, San Antonio, Granger, DeLeon and Hockley, as well as one in Farmerville, La.

Music leader for the revival will be Jim Faulk, who serves as minister of music at the First Baptist Church of Odessa.

The public has an invitation to attend the revival events next week at Crestview Baptist Church, located at the intersection of Thomas street and North Midkiff.

Lent events set

Special events are planned at First United Methodist Church during the final weeks of Lent, in preparation for Holy Week and Easter.

Dr. Charles Lutrick, senior minister of the church, said a series of Lenten Bible studies will continue each Wednesday noon through April 4.

Then, beginning this weekend, First UMC will inaugurate a "Sunday Night Preaching Mission," a series of three special services featuring outstanding speakers.

The first speaker in the series will be Dr. Alsie H. Carleton of Albuquerque, N.M., presiding bishop of the Northwest Texas and New Mexico conferences (geographical divisions) of the United Methodist Church.

All Methodists in the city and surrounding area, and all other residents of the community, are invited to hear Bishop Carleton's sermon in the special service which begins at 7 p.m. in the First UMC sanctuary, North Main street and Ohio avenue.

Dr. Carleton who was elected bishop in 1968, has served as pastor of Methodist churches at Baird, Lubbock, Big Spring and Dallas and for a time was Dallas District superintendent of the Methodist Church. He has been a member of the faculty of Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University.

Dr. Carleton has been a Midland visitor on numerous past occasions, one of most recent being his visit to preside at the Northwest Texas Conference annual meeting held last May in Midland's First UMC.

Mrs. Carleton will accompany the bishop to Midland and they will be honored with a reception in the church parlor following the Sunday evening service.

The second speaker in the Sunday Evening Preaching Mission, on April 1, will be Dr. Claus H. Rohlf of Dallas. He is a member of the faculty of Perkins School of Theology at SMU. He has been a Midland visitor several times in the past, and has served on the faculty of the School of Christian Living here.

Third and final speaker in the series, on the evening of April 8, will be Dr. Ira E. Williams, pastor of St. Paul United Methodist Church in Abilene.

Previously, Dr. Williams served as pastor of churches in Albuquerque and Santa Rosa, N.M., and in Clinton, Okla., and El Paso.

The Lenten Bible studies being held each Wednesday in First UMC are preceded by a light lunch served between 11:50 a.m. and 12:15 p.m. for the convenience of persons attending.

Theme of the Bible studies is "Following the Way," Dr. Lutrick said. The study sessions are open to all interested persons, he added.

Revival planned

The Rev. Rudy Hernandez will preach at special revival services next week at Emmanuel Baptist Church, 1800 Cherry Lane.

The revival will begin Sunday evening and continue with nightly services through the following Sunday. Each service will begin at 7 o'clock.

Hernandez, a native of San Antonio, now lives in Grand Prairie where he is the director and head of Rudy Hernandez Evangelism Inc., an organization specializing in bilingual crusades throughout the U.S. and abroad.

Hernandez has conducted revivals and crusades in churches, coliseums, football stadiums, civic centers and other public gathering places in more than 40 nations of the world in addition to the U.S.

Midland residents and those from surrounding area are invited to hear the revival messages next week. The church nursery will be available to care for young children.

Youth emphasis weekend set at Cotton Flat church

Cotton Flat Baptist Church, located south of Midland, is planning a special youth emphasis this weekend.

The Sunday youth emphasis will include Sunday school at 10 a.m., worship service at 11 a.m., Training Union at 6 p.m. and evening worship beginning at 7. Kevin Shelburne, a

Anxiety scored

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — A professor at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary says anxiety is one of the major problems faced by ministers these days, and that they must first deal with their own anxiety so as to help others deal with theirs.

The Rev. F. Dan Poling told a seminary audience that anxiety, "a generalized state of apprehension, accompanied by restlessness and tension," hinders the ability to trust God, as well as obstructing a minister's relationship with his congregation and God.

Poling said it is "clear why Jesus said in the Gospel of Mark, 'Stop being anxious.'"

Chorus to sing

The acappella chorus of Southwestern Christian College in Terrell will present a special concert Sunday evening in Midland's Golf Course Road Church of Christ, 3500 W. Golf Course Road.

The ensemble, currently on a spring tour, will present psalms, hymns and spirituals in the concert, which is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. The program will be open to all residents of the community.

Workshop set

A Christian education workshop is scheduled March 31 at Hope Lutheran Church and registrations for the event are now being accepted.

The workshop will be held between 10:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. and will offer sessions for persons working with children and youth as well as with adults.

Additional information is available from Pam Culbert, 682-3806, or from the Rev. David C. Baker, pastor of Hope Lutheran Church, at 683-1936.

Hold-up play often helps at trump bid

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
As an experienced player you usually refuse the first trick in your weak

South dealer
Both sides vulnerable

Bridge hand diagram showing North, South, West, and East cards.

If you take the first diamond, East will eventually win a diamond and will return a spade. You will lose two spades, a diamond and a club.

You must surely lose one diamond, but you can improve your chances by losing it to the opponent who can do no damage. Therefore you should let West win the first trick.

END PLAY

West continues diamonds, and dummy's king wins. You draw trumps, win a finesse with the jack of clubs, cash dummy's two aces and give up a club trick to West's king.

If West returns a spade, your king wins a trick. If West returns anything but a spade, dummy ruffs while you discard a spade.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer you hold: S-652; H-Q982; D-AK4; C-J4. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club. The hand is too strong to pass, but your hearts are too weak for a bid. Start the ball rolling as cheaply as possible with a bid of one club.

Admirer devotes career to Twain

By JULES LOH

PERRY, Mo. (AP) — The climb to Chester Davis' office is up a narrow staircase between dingy walls lit by a single yellow bulb, each step sculpted deep and smooth.

He works at a roll-top desk. Its every pigeonhole is in active service. The room is drafty, with a bare wood floor. The view from the window is of the village print shop, across the street. The room itself is located over the village post office.

Mark Twain would have approved.

GOING ON 30 years now, Davis has toiled at what he calls his labor of love, which, he confesses, has consumed his life to the exclusion of nearly all other interests.

"You can lose touch with reality if you really get absorbed in this subject," he said. "It grips you."

His subject is the life and work of a fellow Missourian whose touch with reality was never in jeopardy, Mark Twain. Davis edits, for the benefit of a handful of acolytes and scholars similarly caught in Twain's irresistible grip, a pithy little publication called The Twainian.

"MANY PEOPLE believe that everything Mark Twain wrote that was worthwhile has been published," Davis said. "Far from it. His laughter gave our group an enormous amount of material to be published after her death, mostly letters and other personal writings.

"I try to include something new in every issue of The Twainian. It mails every two months. I print 500 copies, 400 for our members and the rest to keep on file. I get a lot of requests for back issues from researchers and the like."

The Twainian goes to members of the Mark Twain Research Foundation, a group that began as a luncheon club for Twain buffs back in the 1930s. At that time Davis was working as a patent lawyer in Washington.

"AT COCKTAIL parties, people would ask me where my home was and I would say, 'Perry, Mo., a little town about 40 miles from Hannibal.' They would say, 'Oh, where Mark Twain was born.'"

"I would say, 'No, he was born in Florida, Mo., an even smaller town, about six miles from Perry.'"

"That was all I really knew about Mark Twain, though, and being from Perry I felt it was expected of me to know more. So I read everything I could get my hands on. As it turned out, while I was getting Mark Twain, Mark Twain was getting me."

Davis returned to Perry in 1947 and, at age 44, devoted his life to studying Twain and preserving his memory.

Largely through Davis' efforts Twain's birthplace, a weathered cabin miraculously intact after 125 years, was brought indoors, in 1960, to a new Mark Twain Memorial building.

THE MEMORIAL, with its Twain artifacts, is fascinating — but no more so than Davis' dusty old room over the post office where all those back issues of The Twainian reside.

No telling what little-known pearl you will find in The Twainian. Here, for instance, from last December's issue, is Mark Twain's 1890 Christmas prayer:

"It is my heart-warm and world-embracing Christmas hope and aspiration that all of us — the high, the low, the rich, the poor, the admired, the despised, the loved, the hated, the civilized, the savage — may eventually be gathered together in a heaven of everlasting rest and peace and bliss — except the inventor of the telephone."

No wonder Davis got hooked.

Anti-Amin forces push into Uganda

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — An invasion force of Tanzanian troops and Ugandan exiles opposed to President Idi Amin are reported to have driven to within 35 miles of the Ugandan capital of Kampala, diplomats and exile spokesmen here said Friday.

No fighting was reported, however.

The sources said the anti-Amin forces began advancing a few days ago from Lukaya, 50 miles southwest of Kampala, and by today had reached the Roman Catholic mission village of Mitala Maria on the shore of Lake Victoria. If true, this was their deepest penetration to date in the war.

There was no confirmation from official Tanzanian and Ugandan sources, and residents of Kampala reportedly showed no concern.

The diplomats, who asked not to be named, said that despite the advance there was no fighting and "no real war front." They said Ugandan units fell back to Mpigi, about 25 miles southwest of the capital. Residents of Kampala said by telephone that the city was calm and that daily life was normal.

Revolution ushers in era of puritanism in new Iran

EDITOR'S NOTE — If vodka is available, it is probably of the bathtub variety and costs $21 a bottle. Kiddle cartoons and religious programs have replaced "Kojak" on TV. These are some of the aspects of life in the capital of the new Iran.

illicit brew. Another major cause of grumbling is the removal from radio and television programs of the most popular products of Western culture, whose influence is a major target of the revolution.

shattered by the nationwide strikes to undermine Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. With at least 4 million people believed out of work, resumption of normal production in factories is badly needed. Many have been hampered by the departure of Western managers who fled the country during the revolution and won't be back.

By BRIAN JEFFRIES TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The tensions of the Islamic revolution are easing in Iran's capital city. Outwardly, at least, life is slowly returning to normal.

INSTEAD OF "Kojak" and "Barnaby Jones," television viewers face endless hours of religious programs and children's cartoons.

Except for oil, foreign trade is almost at a standstill. A few foreign businessmen are returning, but their number is insignificant compared to those who packed hotels before.

Armed Islamic guerrillas still direct traffic and guard key buildings, but the sound of gunfire is rarer now. Traffic once again clogs downtown streets, fouling the air as badly as it did before the revolution and the end of the monarchy.

Gone, too, is Western pop music, a large part of the local radio diet that was cherished by many youths. As a result, the new director of radio and television, Saadeh Ghotbzadeh, is one of the more unpopular leaders of the revolution. But he shows no signs of backing down.

THE HILTON Hotel, with a capacity of 400 guests, has only 50 at present.

Yet the capital, overshadowed by the brooding Alborz Mountains, is still far from totally relaxed, and some aspects of life will probably never be the same again.

Fun in life for some has been reduced by the closing of night clubs and a new movie morality code that has drawn a veil over suggestive sex scenes. Many movies and night clubs were burned down during the revolution.

"We are just hanging on in the hope that in two or three months business will start picking up again," said a spokesman.

THE REVOLUTION has ushered in an era of puritanistic Islamic orthodoxy that is not always to the liking of all Tehran's 4 million residents.

The revolution has shown more pragmatism over restrictions on meat and women's clothing.

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Three Republican state lawmakers asked the Washington Supreme Court on Friday to declare that the congressional extension of the deadline for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment is unconstitutional.

Many of the middle and upper classes, whose tastes have been shaped by visits to Paris, London or New York, object to the widespread ban on the sale of alcoholic beverages.

AYATOLLAH Ruhollah Khomeini, the Islamic patriarch of the revolution, put a ban on the import of frozen meat because it was not killed in accordance with Islamic custom. When meat prices soared, he reversed his decision.

"Far from it. His laughter gave our group

"I don't want the mullahs (Moslem priests) to tell me whether or not I can have a drink any more than I want them to tell me I can only have an Islamic republic," grumbled a university teacher sipping a beer in a hotel.

Attempts to make women wear the chador, the head-to-toe black cloak, were abandoned following protest marches in Tehran by women who prefer Western dress. It is still unclear if attempts will be made to restrict women in other directions rather than granting them equality with men.

"We are just hanging on in the hope that in two or three months business will start picking up again," said a spokesman.

Only a handful of hotels catering to foreign customers still have a dispensation to serve drinks. And prohibition is producing predictable results. Alcohol has been driven underground, joining opium and hashish in a thriving black market.

But to many people, the irritants of the revolution are outweighed by the gains. Among these is the disappearance of SAVAK, the shah's secret police.

Political dissent is open and free, with everyone from pro-Western democrats to Communists speaking out and having their views reported in the press.

A BOTTLE OF local beer that used to cost 60 cents now fetches $2.40. Vodka has jumped from $2.70 to $21. Imported gin and Scotch is higher.

Students, Midland businessmen all learning from Project Business

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

A project designed to get the message of free enterprise to ninth graders is giving a group of Midland executives a better grasp of public school education at the same time.

Project Business — a joint project of Junior Achievement, the Midland public schools and several area businesses — is teaching the executives-turned-instructors almost as much as it's teaching the students.

After seven weeks of the 10-week course on the American economic system, the executive consultants got together Friday to compare notes with members of the school administration and JA board members.

Evaluations of student participation in the program, a 10-week course on free enterprise, careers and other aspects of the economic system, ranged from "excellent" to "varied."

Most visiting executives fell heir to many of the same problems other classroom teachers encounter, they noted, with some students distracted by rain, others just distracted and still others simply fascinated by the subject matter.

Field trips and other activities held student interest most, the executives agreed.

For many students, the exercises have been real eye-openers.

One successful group project, several executives said, was dividing the purchase price of a product into its various categories, including materials, labor, advertising, store overhead, taxes and profit.

The bite taken out by taxes and the portion left over for net profit both were surprises to the students, they said. Most felt $15 was a fair profit on a $100 item, but before the exercise they thought the companies made more than that.

The final findings of a $3 profit for a $100 item seemed to make an impression, the consultants said.

Each executive teaches one class per week, with his time volunteered by his company.

The program varies with each consultant, but all include at least one field trip, discussions of free enterprise and possible careers, plus one other topic to be chosen by the class and consultant.

One common complaint was a lack of time. "There's so much to put into just 10 weeks," most agreed.

One project common to several classes was paper investment of $10,000 in the stock market. Following the financial pages to see how the investment is doing is now a weekly project.

Another successful project had students buying and selling cars — a topic that kept class interest high, the consulting executive noted. "The only thing that made me feel bad was, the student who got the best deal on his car was the one who negotiated with me."

Inflation makes worst monthly rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by sharply higher food, fuel and housing costs, consumer prices increased 1.2 percent in February, the worst one-month rise in inflation in 4½ years, the government said Friday.

The increase dealt the Carter administration's anti-inflation program another blow. The February figures showed inflation increasing at an annual rate of 15.4 percent, more than double the administration's goal of 7.4 percent.

Food prices increased 1.6 percent, led by a 4.9 percent rise in meat costs, while housing was up 1.3 percent, due partly to a 3.1 percent rise in mortgage interest costs.

"There is obviously nothing good that can be said about figures at this level," said White House press secretary Jody Powell. But he added that the economic conditions that created them built up over several years, "and it will take awhile to do something about them."

Two of the nation's top labor leaders said the administration's voluntary wage and price guidelines are not working and said workers cannot be blamed for seeking wages that keep up with prices. The February increase came on the heels of an 0.9 percent rise in prices in January.

"The only answer is full and complete controls on the price of everything and the income of everybody," said President George Meany of the AFL-CIO, who again demanded that Congress approve mandatory wage and price controls.

Frank Fitzsimmons, president of the Teamsters union, which is negotiating a key contract with truckers, issued a reminder that the union's willingness to comply with the 7 percent wage guideline depended on the administration's success in slowing rapid price increases.

"It puts me in my original position," he said of the February price report.

An Associated Press-NBC News poll, meanwhile, showed that an overwhelming 72 percent of Americans expect inflation to get worse over the next year. The poll of 1,600 persons was conducted prior to the release of the February price report.

Alfred Kahn, the president's chief inflation adviser, said it is too early to judge the president's program a failure, although he acknowledged, "I surely did not expect" that inflation would be as bad as it has become.

"I am still confident the rate will slow as the year goes on," he said.

Kahn also declared the administration will not resort to wage and price controls, but he disclosed that it will announce soon intensified monitoring of price increases by business. He also said the president will become more active in the program.

Kahn also said the administration would deny plans to impose wage and price controls even if it planned to impose them. "But I would not administer such a program — period," he said.

Kahn said he is convinced there is "widespread non-compliance" by business with the president's voluntary program, especially by small businesses.

But Republican National Chairman Bill Brock said the administration is to blame for much of the inflation and declared that Carter's anti-inflation program has "failed miserably."

Statewide seminar will draw about 150 Jaycees to Midland

A statewide seminar to familiarize Jaycees with planning and organizing projects is expected to draw about 150 state members to Midland today.

The seminar starts at 10 a.m. in the Texas National Guard Armory on North Lamesa Road and will conclude about 2:30 p.m.

Known as ROC-TAP, the seminar will refer to Jaycee projects conducted throughout the year in connection with the Texas Awards Program.

"This project has two specific goals in that we want to educate our membership in the art of compiling the books for competition so that Texas will be represented well at our national convention to be held in June in Nashville, Tenn.," said project chairman John Walker.

"It will let Jaycees in Texas know that Midland is both willing and able to host meetings and conventions on the state level," he added.

Texas Jaycee President Elvis Wilson of Grand Prairie will address those in attendance on the progress of the current year, which ends May 1.

Several area and regional Jaycee officials also have indicated they will be in attendance.

"We are expecting a good turnout," Walker said. "We feel the seminar will be especially beneficial to newer Jaycees."

"We anticipate the results of this seminar will be evident at the state convention in El Paso in the ROC-TAP competition," Walker said.

Legislation taxing interstate gas, endowing colleges gets approval

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday he endorses "in principle" a bill taxing interstate gas to endow a special fund for state college construction.

"It has a lot of appeal," Clements told his weekly news conference.

The bill would change the way Texas taxes natural gas, from 7 1/2 percent of market value to a flat rate of 12 1/2 cents per 1,000 cubic feet (mcf).

Sponsors say this would increase taxes on gas sold out-of-state while not affecting those paid by Texans. The added revenue would endow a $360 million State Higher Education Assistance Fund (SHEAF) for construction and repairs at state colleges outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems.

After two years, the natural gas tax would revert to 7 1/2 percent of market value unless the Legislature decided to continue the flat rate.

Clements said he told one sponsor, Rep. Wayne Peveeto, D-Orange, "I would support it as he would develop the details." Clements said Peveeto had asked Attorney General Mark White for an opinion on the bill's constitutionality.

Clements' news was not so good for sponsors of a House-passed bill authorizing state payments of up to $15,000 a year toward salaries of medical residents in teaching hospitals. The bill would subsidize eight hospitals by a total of $30 million annually.

He said he would look carefully at the bill, if it passes the Senate, before deciding whether to sign it. He said cities and counties agreed to operate the hospitals as a condition for getting medical schools built in their communities.

"The cities that undertook those obligations did it with careful forethought. I don't think we should change the rules in the middle of the game," he said.

On another legislative matter, Clements said emphatically, "I will!" when asked if he would call a special session should legislators fail to submit a constitutional amendment on initiative and referendum.

The amendment would enable voters to repeal legislative enactments and to vote directly on new state laws without going through the Legislature.

Clements announced that Dr. George Race, associate dean for continuing medical education at the University of Texas medical school in Dallas, would be his special adviser on human and animal disease control programs.

Specifically, he said, Race would look into the "failure" of the brucellosis control program and "see if we can't turn that program around."

Clements said the best alternative appeared to be mandatory vaccination of all calves against the disease, which causes cows to give birth to stillborn offspring.

Clements said he had talked with Comptroller Bob Bullock about the failure of the sales tax and natural gas tax to live up to Bullock's revenue forecasts for the past six months.

He said, however, that what looked at first like a potential $500 million to $600 million shortfall in revenue "may not be that after all."

Sales tax collections increased 5.8 percent, short of the anticipated growth of 13.2 percent, he said, and natural gas tax revenues are "flattening" because of a leveling in prices.

But, Clements added, "there are some others that are up, so there should be a net balance."

Walter Lillie, the comptroller's chief of research, said he was "still basically optimistic about the Texas economy."

Clements acknowledged that he has the Department of Public Safety make a "security check" of employees of his office and his nominees to posts on state boards and commissions.

The Texas Civil Liberties Union issued a statement saying the practice "smacks of a Nixonian paranoia and all of the abuses that followed."

But Clements said it was simply a records check to determine whether a job applicant, employee or appointee had ever been convicted of a crime. He said he would not rule out hiring an ex-convict but this would "depend on the sensitivity of the job."

He denied having bankers pressure senators to vote this week for confirmation of W.B. "Monk" Edwards to a Houston district judgeship. Edwards was rejected by two votes. Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said his banker had pressured him to vote for Edwards.

"If Mr. Brooks' banker applied pressure on him, I suggest he get another banker," Clements said. He added that he called five or six senators himself, "and I have no apologies to make for that. That is in the normal course of events, and I expect to do that in the future."

Clements again said he was "still thinking about" what position he should take toward bills creating a presidential primary and raising the interest ceiling on mortgage loans from 10 percent to 12 percent.

Garwood could get death sentence

OKINAWA, Japan (AP) — Pfc. Robert R. Garwood, a Marine accused of collaborating with the enemy during the war in Vietnam, could be sentenced to death if convicted on preliminary charges pending against him, a Pentagon spokesman said Friday.

"Charges were brought on the basis of allegations by other returning prisoners of war," said the spokesman, Capt. Bob Bowen. "There will be formal investigations to see whether we can go ahead with court martial proceedings."

Garwood, 33, of Greensburg, Ind.,

flew to Bangkok Thursday on a regularly scheduled Air France flight from Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon. He was transferred to a U.S. military aircraft and arrived at a U.S. Navy base on Okinawa Friday.

He had stayed voluntarily in Vietnam after being captured by the Viet Cong in 1965.

"Right now he is undergoing a complete physical examination," Bowen said. "As soon as clearance is given, he will be flown back to the United States." He declined to speculate on when that might happen.

Garwood, who has asked not to meet with reporters, issued a statement Friday saying, "After 14 years in Vietnam I am very excited and happy to be able to return to my country, my family and my friends."

"I can't possibly put into words just how good it feels to be among my fellow Americans again. I'm very, very happy to be going home."

Bowen said Garwood telephoned his family shortly after his arrival here and "spoke with his dad for about 15 minutes."

Bowen said five preliminary charges have been filed against Garwood: Desertion; communication, corresponding or holding intercourse with the enemy; misconduct as a prisoner; attempting to cause insubordination, disloyalty and refusal of duty, and solicitation.

Conviction on all charges could bring the death sentence, Bowen said. There has been no U.S. military execution for desertion since Army Pvt. Eddie Slovik was shot by a firing squad shortly after the World War II Battle of the Bulge in northern Belgium in December 1944. No Marine has been executed for desertion in this century.

Opposition reiterated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alfred Kahn, the president's chief inflation adviser, said Friday the administration would deny plans to impose wage and price controls even if it were planning to impose them.

Kahn restated his opposition to controls as a way of combatting the nation's worsening inflation rate. Consumer prices increased 1.2 percent in February, an annual rate of 15.4 percent.

Bill banning throwaway containers outlined Friday

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Chase Undermeyer said Friday the state would take in $6 million to $8 million a year in beverage container taxes if his bill to ban throwaways gains the approval of the Legislature.

Undermeyer, R-Houston, said three-fourths of the revenue would be used to pick up highway litter and the remainder would help set up redemption centers throughout Texas.

A coalition of environmental groups announced support of the "bottle bill" at his news conference.

The measure would make it illegal to sell a beverage in a container unless a minimum 5-cent refund would be paid for returning the can or bottle.

Natural fruit juices would be exempt.

"I'm a serious recycler," Undermeyer said.

The manufacturer would pay the state one-tenth of a cent for each container sold.

The bill also would ban detachable metal tab openers and the plastic holders used on 6-packs.

In addition to adding to mounds of litter, Undermeyer said the ring tabs pose a hazard to people and animals.

He said the bill is based on an incentive principle, for the consumer to get his nickel back.

The money offered to buy back aluminum cans has helped ease the highway litter problem, Undermeyer said.

The time bottles and cans take to deteriorate when left out in the open is "simply enormous," he said.

Edwin Lee, Sierra Club lobbyist, said banning non-returnables does not cost jobs as opponents of the bill have claimed.

"It will decrease some jobs in some industries," he said, while adding jobs in others.

The new redemption centers in groceries and elsewhere would add two jobs for each one lost, Lee said.

"In the state of Texas last year, the highway department spent $7 million picking up litter," he said. "This (throwaways) is also a tremendous waste of natural resources."

Representatives of Ecology Action and the Texas Committee on Natural Resources were also present to endorse Undermeyer's proposal.

Sharecropper background aided study on mental health of blacks

By BART BARNES
The Washington Post

Lawrence Gary, director of the Howard University Institute for Urban Affairs in Washington, D.C., stands outside church with wife Robenia, son Jason on father's arm, son Andre and daughter, Lisa Che. Washington Post photo by Craig Herndon.

WASHINGTON — Raised by his grandparents on a sharecropper's farm in rural Alabama, Lawrence E. Gary grew up in a community where poverty was widespread. But that experience provided the basis for much of the scholarly research Gary directs today.

"We did not think of ourselves as poor or disadvantaged," said Gary. "As a people we had developed a kind of social support system to assist us in time of need. My parents were not in a position to raise me, so I was raised by my grandparents and there were always uncles, aunts and cousins to spend time with me."

Now an associate professor and director of the Howard University Institute for Urban Affairs, Gary is editor-in-chief of and contributing author to a major study on mental health in the black community.

The book, "Mental Health, A Challenge to Black Community," argues that few mental health professionals understand the kind of unofficial support network that exist in the black community, such as the extended family network that helped sustain Gary as a child in Alabama.

SINCE THOSE informal networks are vital to the mental health of many black people, yet are often ignored in research, mental health studies of black people are replete with misconceptions and inaccuracies, believes Gary.

"How many mental health professionals really understand the role of the black church?" he asked.

"Informal groups and voluntary associations such as bars, barber-shops, peer groups, gangs and storefront churches make up the social network of the black community," he writes in one chapter.

Yet "little research has been done to determine the significance of social networks in the black community and most mental health workers do not integrate the social support systems with treatment plans when working with black clients."

Gary, who holds a B.S. degree from Tuskegee Institute in Alabama and a Ph.D. from the University of Michigan, assembled 16 black mental health professionals for his study of mental health in the black community.

"I WAS INTERESTED in writers who would focus not only on the negatives but also on the strength of black people and the positive aspects of their mental health," Gary wrote in the preface to the book.

A native of Union Springs, Ala., Gary is very much the product of the informal black community support network that now figures so prominently in his research. It was an aunt, he said, who demonstrated to him the importance of an education and who supported him in his initial years in school.

Later, at Tuskegee, a network of professors supported him when he left for Ann Arbor to pursue his doctoral studies. In addition, Gary said, there were many night telephone calls to Alabama to discuss a graduate school problem with a former Tuskegee professor.

At Michigan, one of his first acts was to seek out a black church "that I could relate to," Gary said.

One major thrust of his research now is to understand how support systems are functioning for black people. "The therapist is not the answer to everyone's problems. We have to talk up the importance of having friends," he believes.

NOT ONLY HAS most research to date ignored the important informal support networks, says Gary, but it has also concentrated unduly on low-income blacks, one-parent families, "captive subjects such as prisoners, mental health patients and school children," and "tended to assume a uniformity of the black experience."

Gary and Dionne J. Jones, a research associate at Howard University Mental Health and Development center, report in the first of the book's 14 chapters that "black social and behavioral scientists, and a number of their white colleagues, are recognizing the need to develop definitions of mental health for black people. These scientists agree that white behavior as a normative standard for all black people should be rejected."

The book also addresses such issues as the problems of black adolescents, families, old people, children, the ecology of the black community and the black adult in the work force.

The migration from the rural South to the urban North and the accompanying decline in influence of both the extended family and the black church are discussed in the book.

"The extended family system aside, no other black community setting comes close to matching the black religious ones for bringing together connection, gratification and purposeful action for community gain," write Thomas A. Gordon, director of an early childhood program at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital in Philadelphia, and Norman L. Jones, a psychologist at the same program, in a chapter on the social network in the black community.

"THE CHURCH LIFTED the spirit, it encouraged participation and release; it provided identity with powers larger than oneself; it directed the energies and talents of believers into constructive work. Healthy people need to feel a part of some power larger than themselves; the

At 39, Lawrence Gary is light years away from his childhood in Union Springs, in one sense, but in another it is still very much with him.

He and his wife and three children live in a racially integrated, middle-class neighborhood in Silver Spring, Md. where, he says, he enjoys reading, writing, cooking, swimming and amateur carpentry.

Gary makes a point of "busing my children to a black church." St.

Paul's A.M.E. Church in Washington, on Sundays. "I want my kids to have the experience of a black church, and they love it," he said. "They love the people and the singing."

Although his children attend integrated schools in the predominantly white Montgomery County school system, Gary said he and his wife have brought them up to be conscious of their black heritage. Every summer Gary returns with his family to Alabama to visit his grandparents in Birmingham.

NCAA semifinals today feature Johnson, Bird

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Is Michigan State's Earvin Johnson a slicker passer than Indiana State's celebrated Larry Bird?

This was one of the questions making the rounds Friday on the eve of the NCAA semifinals, and 65-year-old Ray Meyer, coach of DePaul's Cinderella challengers, stepped boldly into the middle of the debate.

"I can see where some people give the edge to Johnson, he is more flamboyant," the venerable courtside tactician said. "But I would have to go with Bird. Both are very quick and excellent passers, but Johnson looks to pass all the time. Bird's first thought is to shoot, then pass."

THE TWO talented All-American

cans, both eyed covetously by the pros, loom as key figures in the weekend showdown for the biggest prize in the college game. Johnson is a 6-foot-8 sophomore who has been the catalyst in the Spartans' surge to the Final Four. Bird, a 6-9 senior, was college basketball's Player of the Year and is rated the most complete player in the game.

Meyer's underestimated Blue Demons must face Bird and unbeaten, No. 1 Indiana State in one half of today's semifinals. Johnson and his fellow Spartans oppose Ivy League champion Penn in the other.

Michigan State Coach Jud Heathcote insists his man is the best player in basketball. Boston Celtics President Red Auerbach, whose club owns the draft rights to Bird, feels that honor should go to Bird.

UNBIASED ANALYSTS are split on the issue. The popular, down-to-earth Meyer, whose 37 years at DePaul make him the dean of America's college coaches, is on Bird's side.

"Bird rates with the greatest I've ever seen," said the DePaul mentor, who had the great George Mikan as a pupil three decades ago. "He has great vision, great hands and instincts like a caged animal."

"His advantage over Johnson is that he is both a shooter and a passer while Johnson is primarily a playmaker. Johnson is more spectacular. He passes behind his back and does a lot of fancy maneuvers."

"Bird has a softer pass. He seems to get the ball off at the exact right time. A player on Bird's team had better have his hands up or he will get his head knocked off."

The man Meyer has designated to dull Bird's effectiveness is Curtis Watkins, a 6-6, 190-pound senior who injured his left knee in a collision with a teammate in the fading minutes of the UCLA game, won by DePaul 95-91.

Watkins is one of DePaul's original "Iron Men," a unit of exceptional speed and quickness that has played the season with a minimum of relief.

Meyer, who has a 596-332 record and is the winningest active coach in major college ranks, was asked if he thought it wise to put his regulars under such constant stress.

"I like to have my best five men on the floor at all times," he said. "I intend to, wherever possible."

HE INDICATED Bird would be Watkins' main responsibility, adding: "We're not going to gang up on the man, there's no way to stop him. We will let Bird get his points and try to stop everybody else."

Supporting Watkins in the "Iron Man" lineup will be Mark Aguirre, averaging 24 points a game, Gary Garland, Clyde Bradshaw and 6-9 center James Michem.

DePaul's substitutes have scored only 163 points. Bill Madey is the only player to come off the bench in the more than half the team's games.

"We played seven men in 1977," Meyer said. "This past season we intended to go with six but Madey's ankles got bad so we have gone mostly with five."

Meyer, who is twice as old as most of his contemporaries, has won the hearts of the unaffiliated public and turned his team into the sentimental — if not the betting — favorite of the tournament.

"FOR YEARS I've been coming to these things," he said upon his arrival here. "At all the coaches' meetings the four coaches of the semifinal teams sit at the head of the table and I've sat away in the back. This time I get to sit at the head of the table — and I'm thrilled as the dickens."

Wadkins overcomes winds for big lead

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins, boldly attacking the pins despite whipping winds that raked the course, cut out a 4-under-par 68 and established a 3-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $440,000 Tournament Players Championship.

Wadkins, bubbling with confidence, put together a 36-hole total of 135, 9 strokes under par on tough Sawgrass. The course, toughened by the prevailing winds, regained its unforgiving nature and sent such standout performers as Tom Weiskopf, Gary Player, Lon Hinkle and Seve Ballesteros down the road to the next event.

Wadkins played when the gusty winds were at their toughest. He didn't make a bogey in his remarkable effort that gave him firm command of the event that is billed as the annual championship of golf's touring pros.

George Burns had to score eight birdies and match the Sawgrass record of 66 to keep Wadkins in sight at 138.

Lanny Wadkins lets out yell with birdie putt Friday.

Under the conditions, Wadkins said, "this is maybe the finest round of golf I've ever played. I think getting around without a bogey is an even greater accomplishment than the score."

It didn't come easily, however. The little man who is seeking to become the first double winner of the year had to one-putt to save par five times.

"It's funny, but the harder the wind blew, the better I seemed to putt," he said.

Wadkins holed a 20-foot birdie putt on the second hole, chipped to 12 inches for birdie-4 on the fourth, holed a six-footer on the 11th and stretched it out with a long one, perhaps 35-40 feet, on the 14th.

"The rest of the way in, it was dead into the wind and I was just trying the hardest I could to avoid a bogey," he said.

"I thought, with this wind, anything around par would be a good score today," said Nicklaus. "I missed it by one so I'm not at all disappointed. I'm just a little surprised someone is that far in front."

Lee Trevino, who has returned to an old set of irons with which he won the 1971 U.S. Open and the 1974 PGA, maneuvered his way to a 69 and a tie at 139 with Canadian Dan Halldorson and Bill Kratzert. Halldorson and Kratzert each shot 70.

DEFENDING CHAMPION Jack Nicklaus slipped to a 73 that left him at 140. Also at that figure were Ed Flori and Mark McCumber, the rookie who scored an upset victory last week in the Doral Open. McCumber had another 70 and Flori shot 71.

Tom Watson, Player of the Year for the last two seasons, had a 72 and was at 142. Arnold Palmer shot 75-147.

But the links-type course, which yielded some surprisingly low scores in the calm conditions that prevailed Thursday, snapped back at the game's greats. The winds had the flags standing straight out as errant shots flew into the marshes, sands and piney woods.

Kermit Zarley, who held the first-round lead, made triple bogey 7 on his first hole and eventually finished with a 79-145. He later was assessed a $200 fine for slow play during Thursday's play, when he shot 66.

Bucky Dent, shortstop for the New York Yankees, is tagged out at home plate by Boston Red Sox catcher Gary Allenson as he tried to score from third on a grounder during exhibition baseball game in Winter Haven, Fla. Related stories on Page 2-B. (AP Laserphoto).

Michigan State shows confidence over Penn

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Smiling and confident, the favored Michigan State Spartans pranced through their final tuneup for today's NCAA semifinal against Penn, considered by far the least likely to succeed.

Michigan State, the odds-on favorite to take home the 1978-79 collegiate basketball championship, meets the Penn Quakers, the surprising winners of the East Regionals, at 2:45 p.m. EST. Thirty minutes after they finish, top-ranked Indiana State puts its 32-0 record on the line against a quick but depth-thin DePaul team that may be without premier forward Curtis Watkins, hobbled with a knee injury.

Coach Ray Meyer of DePaul said Watkins would start and they will stay with him as long as he's effective.

"I think we have an excellent club, and we are playing well at the present time," said Spartan Coach Jud Heathcote, who says he's surprised at being the favorite.

"I have a lot of respect for the other three teams in the finals. There's four left, out of 40, and they didn't get here with mirrors or luck."

The Spartans will not be at full strength. Center Jay Vincent, who averaged almost 14 points a game this year, is nursing a foot injury.

"He's moving around better and he can play," Heathcote said. "His will be a limited capacity. He definitely will not start."

Heathcote insisted he feels less pressure being in the Final Four than everybody seems to think he should feel.

"I don't see how the No. 1 team, who is 32-0, isn't favored, but if the media wants to make us the favorite, we will accept whatever extra pressure that might put on us."

"The pressure is there," agreed Earvin "Magic" Johnson, Michigan State's All-American point guard. "But I grew up with pressure and I thrive on it."

The Quakers have been thriving on being overlooked. They never were listed in the Top 20 during the season and seem to be getting used to the tag "Cinderella" and underdog.

"We went into the NCAA playoffs with great incentive," said Coach Bob Weinbauer. "We were aware of our abilities, even if the rest of the country wasn't. I feel we don't have to prove anything to anybody or apologize to anyone for being here."

Weinbauer has assigned Tim Smith the dubious honor of guarding Johnson.

"Johnson is a great player and I plan to force him to give up the ball," said Smith, at 6-foot-5 three inches shorter than Johnson. "Once he gives up the ball, I'll try to keep him from getting it back."

Tony Price, Penn's leading scorer, will guard Spartan forward Greg Kelsner, who slam-dunked nine baskets over frustrated Notre Dame defenders in the Mideast Regional.

"I'm going to try to keep Kelsner in front of me," said Price. "I want to make him take more jump shots than he wants, and make him a perimeter player. I'm going to try not to give him a lot of dunks on national television."

Rebels, Pack see action

By BOB DILLON Sports Writer

Midland Lee and Midland hope to keep up with Abilene and Abilene Cooper today in the District 5-4A baseball race.

Both the Rebels and Bulldogs stand 1-0 in loop play while the two Key City teams stand 2-0 after victories Thursday and Friday over Odessa Permian and Odessa.

Coach Ernie Johnson's Rebels entertain the San Angelo Central Bobcats at 2 p.m. today at the Lee diamond while Larry Peel's Midland Bulldogs hit the road to take on the Big Spring Steers at the same time.

On Thursday, Abilene pounded out a 22-13 victory over Permian in Abilene while on Friday, Cooper came from a 5-0 deficit to post an easy 14-5 win over the Bronchos at Fly Field in Odessa.

Johnson plans to pitch sophomore righthander Alan Koonce (3-1) today against the Concho Cats who stand 0-1 in loop play. The rest of the Lee lineup will include Terry Willis at first base;

Gary Wood at second; Steve Pitts at shortstop and Wade Cartwright at third base. In the outfitted it will be Tyler Alcorn in left; John White in center and either Larry Latch or Robert Perez will patrol right. The catcher will be Clay Calhoun. The designated hitter will be Tom Morrison if he is over an ear infection or Lee Johnson.

MIDLAND WILL call upon Jimmy Zachry to face the Steers in Big Spring. Zachry stands 1-1 on the year on the mound. Joining him will be Archie Booth at first base; Coyet Copeland at second; Michael Feldt at shortstop and Robert Young at third. In the outfield it will be Mike Mowles in left; Tracy Gann in center and David Brigham in right. Handling the catcher chores will be Tommy Munoz with Sam Driskill the designated hitter.

Both the Rebels and Bulldogs have been pounding the ball well. The Bulldogs have three players hitting above .400. Munoz is hitting at a .471 clip while Zachry has a .447 average and Booth is hitting .412. Brigham owns a .375 mark while Driskill is hitting .364 for the Purple Pack which takes a 7-3 season record against the Steers' 6-4 reading.

Lee's attack is paced by Calhoun who is hitting at a .400 clip followed by White and Alcorn with .375 and .357 averages, respectively. Next comes Pitts with a .333 average and Willis is just under .300 with a .297 mark. Willis has knocked in 13 runs to lead the Rebs in that department while White has 11 RBIs and three home runs.

ZACHRY HAS already knocked in 23 runs on the year and had four hits in five trips to the plate Wednesday when the Pack pounded out a 13-2 victory over Permian in Odessa. He had a pair of doubles and a home run and has ripped four round-trippers on the year. Munoz also had four hits against Mojo.

The Abilene and Odessa teams decided to play before Saturday since all four schools are out for spring break.

Cooper pounds Bronchos, 14-5

ODESSA — The Abilene Cooper Cougars continued to roll along in the District 5-4A baseball race here Friday as expected with a 14-5 pounding of the Odessa High Bronchos.

Odessa jumped to a 5-0 lead with a five run outburst in the second inning, but Cooper came back with one in the third, eight in the fifth and five in the seventh to win going away.

Mark Hutt went the distance to pick up the win for Cooper while Devin Register picked up the loss for the Bronchos. Cooper is now 9-1 on the year and 2-0 in district play while Odessa fell to 5-11 and 0-2.

Abilene High defeated Odessa Permian, 22-13, Thursday in another 5-4A outing. AHS is now 2-0 in loop play and 5-6 on the season while Permian is 0-2 and 9-5.

Kermit girls capture Midland golfing crown

Kermit's girls golf team did just about everything but water the greens Friday afternoon at the Hogan Park Golf Course.

The Yellowjackets' A squad, bolstered by the one-two punch of Dawn Edwards and Donna Parker, captured the team title in the Midland Invitational Golf Tournament for high school girls with a 370 total.

The only thing in sight that Kermit didn't win was the individual medal, which went to Midland Lee's Michele Marburger. Marburger toured the 5,775 yard, par 77 course in 86, three shots better than Edwards and five pops less than Parker.

Lee's A crew was second in the team race with 376 followed by the Midland High A team with 385, Big Spring A with 389 and Rankin with 393. Next, in order, were Lee B, Midland High B, Big Spring B, Kermit B and Forsan.

Behind Marburger for the Lee A team were Brenda Heath with 95, Christi Orwig with 96, Penny Sutcliffe with 99 and Roxi Barrett with 100. Martha Wilson paced the Rebel B squad with 105 while Katy Fischer

Rangers blank Atlanta by 7-0

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Texas Rangers scored six runs off former teammate Tommy Boggs in the fourth inning Friday and defeated the Atlanta Braves 7-0 in an exhibition baseball game. Ferguso, Jenkins and Ed Farmer combined to pitch a four-hit shutout against a team consisting mostly of Atlanta's second-line players. Other Braves were playing an exhibition against the Houston Astros. The Rangers scored once in the first inning when Billy Sample led off with the first of his two doubles against Atlanta starter Mickey Mahler. Sample went to third on an infield out and scored on Al Oliver's sacrifice fly to shallow right field. That run was enough to tag Mahler with the loss, but it was Boggs who allowed seven hits and six runs in three innings. A former Ranger property, Boggs was part of the four-team, 11-player deal two winters ago that netted Jon Matlack, Nelson Norman and Oliver for Texas. Buddy Bell, Larvell Blanks and Oliver each had two hits for the Rangers, now 7-7-1. Oliver lifted his spring average to .466, and Bell now is batting .438.

Ruhle throws well

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Houston's Vern Ruhle pitched five shutout innings and scored the game's only run Friday as the Astros blanked the Atlanta Braves 1-0 in exhibition baseball. Last season, Ruhle shut out the Braves three times in three games. Ruhle singled to open the fifth, advanced to second on a single by Jeff Leonard and scored on Cesar Cedeño's double down the left field line. The Braves had four hits, two each by Glenn Hubbard and Bob Beall. Craig Skok took the loss for Atlanta, 9-6. The Astros, 5-8, had 10 hits. Ruhle got the victory after yielding one hit to Hubbard, walking one and striking out two.

Padres roll

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — Bob Shirley and Mark Lee combined to pitch a four-hitter Friday as their San Diego Padres rolled to a 9-1 Cactus League victory over the Cleveland Indians. Shirley started and blanked the Tribe through six innings before tiring in the seventh. He then walked three batters, including Toby Harrah with the bases loaded, accounting for Cleveland's only run. Lee took over and shut out the Indians the rest of the way without a hit. Third baseman Kurt Bevacqua paced a 15-hit Padres attack against four Cleveland pitchers, driving in three runs with a pair of singles, while Mike Hargrove and Jerry Turner each collected three hits. Run-scoring singles by Hargrove, Turner and Bevacqua highlighted a five-run Padre burst in the first inning off Cleveland starter Rick Wise. The Padres then coasted to their eighth victory this spring against seven losses. Cleveland is 5-10.

Miller delivers

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Two-run singles by Rick Miller and Lance Mulliniks lifted the California Angels to a 6-3 victory over the Seattle Mariners Friday for their fourth straight exhibition baseball triumph. The Angels managed only seven hits off three Seattle pitchers, but were aided by a total of 10 walks given up by Greg Biercevic and Mike Parrott. California overcame an early 2-0 Mariner lead in the fourth when Dan Ford and Bobby Grich walked and later scored on Miller's single. Miller scored the go-ahead run moments later when Carney Lansford singled and Seattle left fielder Mike Potter committed a throwing error. Nolan Ryan worked the first six innings for California, limiting Seattle to five hits, while Mark Clear finished up for the Angels. Seattle's run off him in the ninth was the first run against Clear in 11 innings pitched this spring.

Blue Jays prevail

SARASTOA, Fla. (AP) — The Toronto Blue Jays scored an unearned run that stemmed from a two-out passed ball in the fourth inning and held on to beat the Chicago White Sox 2-1 Friday in an exhibition baseball game. Dave McKay reached first on the passed ball by Wayne Nordhagen, and infield singles by Alfredo Griffin and Rick Bosetti produced the tie-breaking tally. Steve Trout absorbed the defeat despite striking out seven batters in a five-inning stint. He surrendered six hits but the only earned run came in the third inning on Griffin's double and a single by Sheldon Doolory. Chicago's only run also was unearned, coming on a throwing error by Joe Cannon in the third off winning pitcher Mark Lemongello, who gave up five hits in six innings.

Milwaukee wins

SUN CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Paul Molitor had three hits and two runs batted in as the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Oakland A's 4-1 Friday in exhibition baseball. Molitor's infield hit off losing pitcher Mike Norris in the fifth inning scored outfielder Sixto Lezcano, who had singled, stole second and reached third on a throwing error. In the seventh inning, Robin Yount singled for the Brewers, stole second and was driven in by Gorman Thomas. Thomas went to second on a throw to the plate and came home on Molitor's double. The A's scored in their half of the fifth as Dwayne Murphy singled and Mike Edwards doubled to drive him in. Moose Haas collected the win for the Brewers.

Otis paces KC

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Amos Otis homered, singled and stole home to highlight Kansas City's six-hit attack as the Royals defeated the Baltimore Orioles 5-0 Friday in exhibition baseball. Five of the hits came off loser Steve Stone, who started for the Orioles. Three Kansas City pitchers combined for a two-hitter. Winner Rich Gale, the starter, permitted the hits, singles by Dave Skaggs, George Throop and Renie Martin then worked two innings apiece, retiring all the batters they faced.

Chicubs win

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Bob Knepper allowed the Chicago Cubs one run in seven innings Friday as the San Francisco Giants posted a 6-3 exhibition baseball victory. The Giants gave Knepper all the runs he needed in the fourth inning when they scored four times off Dennis Lamp. Terry Whitfield, Mike Ivie and Marc Hill all doubled in the inning. Bruce Sutter made his first appearance in 10 days for the Cubs and struck out two of the three Giants he faced.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — American Mike Krantz fired a 3-under-par 69 Friday for a 136 to increase his lead to 5 strokes at the end of the second round of the $40,000 Indian Open Golf Championship.

Krantz, of Long Beach, Calif., staved off a strong challenge from Australian Peter Thomson, who climbed into second place with a second-round score of 68 for 141.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Major Indoor Soccer League, which started and is about to end its inaugural campaign with six teams, will have at least seven for next season.

League officials and new principal owner Michael Geraci announced the awarding of a MISL franchise to Buffalo for the 1979-80 season.

It may not be the last added in the league before play begins in December, league Commissioner Earl Foreman said Thursday.

Geraci said a contest would be held to choose a name for the team, with the winner announced April 19.

Sal DeRosa, 47, who learned the game in Europe, was named as head coach. DeRosa guided teams into the playoffs in both the North American Soccer League and the American Soccer League.

Young cards 69 score to take a two-stroke lead in Sahara Golf

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Donna C. Young carded a 4-under-par 69 at the Las Vegas Country Club Friday, giving her a 36-hole score of 135 and a two-stroke lead at the midway point of the $100,000 Sahara National Pro-Am.

Second at 137 after a 73 Friday was first-round leader JoAnne Carner, shooting for her second straight Ladies Professional Golf Association victory. Carner had a course-record 64 on Thursday.

Penny Pulz carded her second straight 69 at the par-71 Sahara Country Club course, putting her alone in third place at 138. Tied at 139 were Nancy Lopez, Amy Alcott, Chako Higuchi and Judy Rankin. Next at 141 was Dot Germain.

Two courses are being used in the 72-hole tournament, which winds up Sunday. The winner will collect $15,000. During the first two rounds, all entries played 18 holes at each course.

The original field of 72 was cut to low 62 for the final two rounds, which will be played at Sahara. A score of 132 was necessary to make the cut.

Carner, who finished strong to capture the $150,000 LPGA event at Rancho Bernardo, Calif., last week, had two birdies and two bogeys Friday. She had seven birdies and no bogeys in her 7-under-par round of 64 Thursday.

TEE TIME

By REX WORRELL

Yours truly had an opportunity to go to Lubbock with Hogan Park Golf Course superintendent Paz Brito last Friday.

We attended a Preventive Maintenance and Service seminar on automatic irrigation systems. This seminar was designed to assist in the 27 holes at Hogan Park in the maintenance of the automatic irrigation system recently installed. The same seminar was conducted in the Fort Worth-Dallas area, and we found it to be very informative.

The installation of the irrigation system in the new nine holes is just about completed and will probably be pressured up and tested next week. All phases of construction are on schedule, and the seeding should begin on schedule around April 15.

Curtis Inman was able to attend the entire site inspection in February, and seemed impressed with the quality and professionalism of the construction to that date. Those of us who have watched the construction from the start are really getting excited by what the layout is beginning to look like. You can watch for some doors, windows and bricks showing up around the new clubhouse in the next few days.

Lubbock visit good

There weren't any hole-in-ones reported at Hogan this past week, however, Florence Mailey scored a terrific three on the 360-yard No. 5 hole during her round on Thursday while competing in a Penalty Play event with the Hogan Park Women's Golf Association.

The HPWGA event was won by Ella Heath in the 18-hole division while second place was taken by Margaret Mills. There was a tie for third between Dorothy Melzer and DeDe Plank.

The nine-hole winner was Jean Connor, and she was followed by Renee Beique and Betty Reimers.

The ladies will hold a Low Gross event Thursday with the following pairings:

9-Hole Division: Betty Williams, Jeanne Green and Patty Fritzel; Jerry Fesmire, Evelyn Gundry and Lois Guthrie; Peggy Barry, Mary Davis and Bernice Cox; Jennie Plette and Frances Stahl; Bobby Jean Kizer, Jean Connor and Margaret Rhea; Pat Kolb, Marjorie Cardwell and Leah Sutcliffe; Rita Boe, Barbara Larsen and Ruby Pennington; Peggy Mattina, Evelyn Ballard and Betty Reimers; Wilma Allenson, Betty Cope and Peggy Parkins; Jean Allen, Char Richter and Margaret Phelps; Margaret Moore, Renee Beique and Dot Pringle.

18-Hole Division: Fern Barnett, Bernice Webb and Margaret Mills; Betty Cobb, Shirley Mays and Gene Veiten; Muriel Inman, Dorothy Melzer and Pat Walker; Gloria Deffenback, Jane Long and Diane Rankin; Nell Kimball, Lucha Haskins and Margaret Stricker; Chata Mee, Maxine Buskirk and Marilyn Philpy; Pete Minnerly, Bernice Cox and Pat Busby; Jane Wagner, Jean Elkin and Wilma Cox; Marilyn Walker, Anell Mack and Ella Heath; Sue Campbell, Mary Plank and Merla Kretzer; Sandy Wilkerson, Golda Morgan and Florence Mailey; Johnnie Goyette and Dottie Turk.

Bobcats take golf lead over Pack by three

BIG SPRING — Midland High dropped from the top perch in District 5-4A boys golf after Friday's round here, but that doesn't bother Bulldog coach Robert Young.

San Angelo, with four players breaking 80 for a low team total of 308, passed the Bulldogs and took a three stroke lead in the cumulative scoring, 952-955, after three rounds.

Abilene Cooper is third with 964, followed by Odessa Permian with 965, Midland Lee with 979, Big Spring with 983, Odessa High with 990 and Abilene High with 993.

One reason Young isn't fretting is because his Bulldogs have opened a sizeable gap between themselves and the third and fourth place teams. Young said barring a catastrophe, Midland High has "still got a good chance of going to regional."

And Young is pleased that the next tour stop will be at Midland. "We're in good position with our course coming," he said.

After this coming Friday's meet at Midland, the tour concludes the next week in Odessa. Then, the top two squads in the district advance to regional competition.

The Bulldogs fired a team total of 318, led by Jeff Lutke's 77. Other Midland High golfers were Joe Sloan with 79, Robert Upham and Richard Minnix with 81s and Mike Young with 82.

Midland Lee shot 328 as Mike Moses shined the way with 78. Grant Spencer carded 79, Mark Leonard 85, Bill Davis 86 and Mike Smith 87, for the Rebels.

Junior John Slaughter of Cooper carved out a 72 for the individual medal and he leads the cumulative medal competition with 224. Abilene's Vic Villareal is second overall with 227. Next, in order, are Lutke with 233 and Spencer with 235. Upham is tied for fifth with 237 while Minnix is eighth with 238.

76ers take suspended game from New Jersey

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bobby Jones and Julius Erving combined for 17 points in the fourth quarter as the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the New Jersey Nets 123-117 Friday night in a National Basketball Association game that had been suspended from Nov. 8.

After a one-half hour break, the two teams met in their regularly scheduled game.

Erving led the 76ers in the first game of the unique doubleheader with 32 points, 12 of them coming in the 17-minute, 50-second portion that was played Friday night. Jones finished with 19 points for the Sixers.

New Jersey lost the original game to Philadelphia 137-133 in double overtime but filed a protest because Coach Kevin Loughery and forward Bernard King were assessed three technical fouls each by referee Richie Powers.

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien upheld the protest, since NBA rules make no provision for more than two technicals, and ordered the game replayed from the point when the first extra technical was issued — Philadelphia leading 84-81 with 5:50 remaining in the third quarter.

To complicate the situation, the clubs made a four-player trade Feb. 7, Harving Catchings and Ralph Simpson going to New Jersey and Eric Money and Al Skinner to Philadelphia. Under eligibility guidelines set by O'Brien, this led to a unique situation in which players actually competed for both teams in the same game — the first time this has ever happened in the NBA. Money, Catchings and Simpson thus appeared in both halves of the box score.

Money scored 23 points for the Nets and four for the Sixers, giving him a total of 27 for the game. Simpson scored eight for Philadelphia and none for New Jersey while Catchings had eight points, all for the Nets.

Skinner did not get into the game either while he was with New Jersey or Philadelphia.

New Jersey led 38-21 after the first period but was outscored 63-43 to trail by three at the point of protest. The lead then changed hands before Erving hit a pair of free throws with 6:25 remaining in the game to put the Sixers ahead to stay 108-107.

Basketball way of life in Indiana

By STEVE HERMAN
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The stereotype of a lanky Indiana farm boy with a straw hat on his head, a carburetor tucked under one arm and a basketball in the other hand just isn't true.

They don't all tinker with automobiles. And the hat would fall off in a game of one-on-one.

But basketball? Well, it's more than a sport in Indiana. It's a way of life that begins in early childhood and ends when ... well, it never really ends.

It's no coincidence that the Hoosier State has produced a nearly unbroken string of outstanding players and coaches at every level, from Johnny Wooden in the 1920s to Larry Bird a half-century later.

And it's no coincidence that the Hoosier faithful that Indiana and Purdue will play each other tonight for the championship of the National Invitation Tournament — already renamed by some newspapers as the "National Indiana Tournament."

Or that top-ranked and unbeaten Indiana State, led by the marvelous Bird, has reached the Final Four of the NCAA tournament. Or that Notre Dame, the fourth Indiana college in the national spotlight this spring, reached the finals of the NCAA Midwest regional tournament.

WHILE NOT every player from these college teams was weaned on Hoosier high school ball, the prominence of Indiana teams and players is undeniable. Frenzied crowds fill not only college arenas but also the high school gyms — some of them, such as Castle High School's 9,300-seat facility, larger than most colleges have.

Market Square Arena, site of last week's NCAA Midwest tournament and next year's NCAA finals and the home of the Indiana Pacers of the National Basketball Association, will be filled with a sellout crowd approaching 17,000 on Saturday for the finals of the state high school tournament. The month-long tournament will draw an estimated 1 million fans.

It's known as Hoosier Hysteria and it's especially strong in the smaller communities, where all civic activity is centered on the high school. It brought the townspeople together, and it promoted natural rivalries with the surrounding communities.

"In the early days of basketball, starting with when Naismith put it all together and established some common rules, schools of all sizes participated in basketball," says Ward Brown, commissioner of the Indiana

High School Athletic Association.

BUT WHAT makes Indiana different? Surely other states had — and still have — similar situations.

"No. 1, we have a system that's unique," Brown said. "There are only two other states that have no class basketball (separate programs for schools of different sizes). This goes back to the early days of basketball, where you had 10 or 12 high schools in each county. Now (because of consolidations) several counties have only one school."

"But our system of one-class basketball makes them (the players) equally sought after by colleges because they've had to demonstrate themselves in a one-class tournament with all the other athletes. You know you can't force recruiters to come out."

Wooden, remembered more for his coaching achievements at UCLA, played on an Indiana high school championship team at Martinsville and was an All-America at Purdue. Perhaps best-known among the other Hoosier products are Oscar Robertson and George McGinnis, both of whom played on state championship teams in Indianapolis, then went on to national prominence in the college and professional ranks.

But there are many others, including Bobby Leonard, Clyde Lovellette, Tom and Dick Van Arsdale, Jimmy Rayl, Rick Mount, Dave Schellhase and Terry Duschinger. And current pros Louie Dampier, Kent Benson, Jim Price, Steve Green, Tom Abernethy, Bob Wilkerson, Larry Steele and McGinnis.

THE FOCUS for Hoosier Hysteria each year, naturally, is the state tournament.

Four years ago, when Indiana University was undefeated and ranked No. 1 in college basketball, an Indianapolis television station decided against live coverage of the Hoosiers' NCAA game against archrival Kentucky and showed a high school tournament game instead. Last year, basketball games were played although many schools were closed because of the energy crisis induced by a nationwide coal strike.

Even the blind drawing for first-round pairings is televised live statewide. This time there is extra interest because of small-town favorite Argos, a tiny school from northern Indiana with an enrollment of just 271.

Since little Milan wrote itself into Indiana folklore by winning the state championship 25 years ago, only a handful of small schools have reached the finals. None have won it.

NOW, EVERYONE in Argos is caught up in the basketball madness. Gov. Otis R. Bowen, from nearby Bremen, is in the stands last Saturday when Argos advanced to the finals with a victory over big-school power Marion, which has more students than Argos has citizens.

For Saturday's final round, Argos gets about 1,700 tickets — enough for every man, woman and child in town.

"We eat it, drink it and sleep it," says Rosie O'Dell, mother of two starting players for the Argos Dragons. "It's been that way since we were young. We're basketball crazy."

One of her brothers is the athletic director and soccer coach at the high school. Another brother is basketball coach at nearby Plymouth High School; another is basketball coach at Bremen High School.

Her nephew plays at the Bethel College team at Mishawaka, Ind. She was a cheerleader in high school herself, and her husband, Darrell, played on the Argos team in the 1950s. Their 20-month-old daughter Stephanie is the unofficial mascot for the current team.

Bailey sparks East over West in All-Star Classic by 114-109 margin

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — James Bailey of Rutgers scored 20 points and Duke's Jim Spanarkel completed a three-point play in the final seconds to boost the East over the West 114-109 in the East-West All-Star Basketball Classic Friday night.

The game was deadlocked 55-55 at halftime and neither team led by more than three points until the East, paced by Bailey and Al Green of Louisiana State, staged an 18-5 spurt to take an 88-78 lead with 9:46 remaining.

The West, led by Arkansas All-American Sidney Moncrief, fought back to within 90-88, then saw the East open a 104-97 lead on the scoring of Bailey, Spanarkel and Dudley Bradley of North Carolina.

A steal and a dunk by Ollie Matson of Pepperdine brought the West to within 106-103 with 1:40 remaining and 15 seconds later Moncrief hit a free throw to make it 107-105.

But Spanarkel, fouled by Utah's

Greg Deane, completed a three-point play to give the East a 111-107 lead. A basket by Moncrief made it 111-109, but Bradley hit another three-point play with two seconds left for the final margin.

Moncrief led the West with 20 points and hometown favorite Deane had 19. Vinnie Johnson of Baylor added 15 and Matson 14 for the West. Spanarkel had 15 for the East while Green and Larry Gibson of Maryland scored 14 each and Bradley had 12.

Muhammad Ali visits Mike Rossman in Italy

SAINT VINCENT, ITALY (AP) — World Boxing Association heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali came to this north Italian alpine resort Friday to see the man he beat for his first great success in the Rome Olympics, and said time for boxing had come to an end for him.

"I'll never say that I'm retiring, but this time I mean it," he said. "At that time I still had a lot left, but not now. Years go by and I am too old to fight."

"I'll keep on saying for a while that I might change my mind, because I want to take advantage of my title as long as I can. They'll exploit me because they'll think why should I refuse $12 dollars to fight Mike Rossman or someone else."

Ali said, however, that he would not fight Rossman nor Italian Alfio Rigetti nor anyone else.

"I am fighting nobody," he said. "It would tarnish my image to end my career by fighting someone like Rigetti. I'd be criticized by the many people who are waiting to bury me. This would give them a chance to bury me 10 feet deep."

Ali has come here to attend the premiere of a film on his life, "Muhammad Ali, An American Story," by Italian newsman Gianni Mina. He set as condition that the Italian Olympic Committee give him a copy of the gold medal he won in the 1960 Olympics and have him meet the man he beat, Zbigniew Pietrzykowski of Poland, in the final for the light heavyweight title.

The film on Ali will be shown in Saint Vincent's 35th international sports film festival.

"I threw the Olympic medal in the Ohio River after I was turned down in a white restaurant in Louisville," Ali said. "Now it is time to get it back, to put it away in my trophy case. I have all my medals, that was the only one missing."

"I am not doing this for no cause, for no country, but just for myself. I feel like Rome was the place where I first became a pro. Rome was my start, my boxing home."

Ali said he had come back to Italy now because his boxing career was over.

"I must admit it. I wanted only one thing — to beat (Leon) Spinks and become the first man to win the heavyweight crown three times," he said. "I have buried Spinks forever, and I won't let him come out of his grave to catch me like a Dracula."

Ali, who looked tired and tense after a 25-hour trip from New Zealand and Australia where he held several exhibitions, said he would like a rematch with Pietrzykowski, for charity.

"The Italians have asked me to do it because the public wants it, but my friend will have to train and get in condition," he said. "I am old, but he has white hair and needs to work out hard to fight me."

Ken Norton heads for the canvas Friday night as Earnie Shavers, at right, follows through. Shavers knocked Norton out in the first round of their scheduled 12-round title elimination bout. (AP Lapsphoto).

Shavers scores knockout over Norton in 1st round

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Earnie Shavers knocked down Ken Norton twice and stopped him in the first round of a scheduled 12-round heavyweight fight Friday night that was stunning in its fury.

Shavers blasted his way into line for a championship fight by stopping Norton at 1:02 of the first round as the crowd of about 5,400 at the Las Vegas Hilton Pavilion roared in disbelief.

THE SHOCKER came in a preliminary to World Boxing Council champion Larry Holmes' title defense against Ossie Ocasio, and the victory put Shavers into line for a WBC title shot in September.

With Norton on the floor for the second time, referee Miles Lane reached the count of seven and then signalled the fight was over. Norton's trainer, Bill Slaton, had signalled the referee to halt it just a moment before he did.

When Norton got to his feet, it was obvious that the referee had made the right decision.

Upon recovering his senses, Norton said to Shavers before leaving the ring: "Way to go, babe. Nice shot."

The 34-year-old Shavers had said before the fight that he was not going to worry about going the distance, but that he was going to come out bombing in an effort to end it fast. Norton had said he expected Shavers to come out gunning, but when Earnie did, there was nothing Norton could do about it.

AFTER A few seconds of feinting, the two men went at each other in Norton's corner and Norton had the best of it, landing three head shots while Shavers' punches bounced off Norton's shoulders.

But then Shavers bullied Norton to the ropes and the two went toe-to-toe. Suddenly, Shavers landed a left hook, followed by a right upper cut, and Norton was in serious trouble. Shavers pounded home a barrage of shots to the head as Norton careened along the ropes, then staggered into the center of the ring and went down.

Norton struggled up, but it was obvious that he was hurt. Once Lane waved Shavers back to the attack, he wasted little time. He slammed home another right uppercut that dropped Norton on his back and ended the fight.

The only thing that kept it from being an official knockout was the fact that Lane elected not to finish counting to 10.

THE LOSS has to be a bitter pill for the 33-year-old Norton to swallow. He was the 11-5 favorite and plans already were in the works for him to fight Scott Ledoux in June and then

Holmes whips Ocasio in heavyweight bout

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes smashed young Ossie Ocasio to the canvas four times in the seventh round and stopped the Puerto Rican challenger at 2:38 of the round to retain the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship Friday night.

It was simply a matter of too much size, too much power and, most importantly, too much experience. Ocasio, making only his 14th pro fight, tried with all he had but he was never really in the fight.

In a preliminary to Holmes' second title defense, Earnie Shavers shocked a crowd of about 5,400 at the Las Vegas Hilton Pavilion and a national television audience by knocking favored Ken Norton down twice and stopped him at 1:02 of the first round.

The victories by Holmes and Shavers set up a title match between the two in September, although Holmes is expected to defend against Mike Weaver of Los Angeles in June, possibly in New York's Madison Square Garden.

"My man, hell of a fight," the champion said to the outgunned Ocasio a few moments after the fight had been stopped.

Holmes, who weighed 214 pounds to 207 for Ocasio and who enjoyed a 3½-inch height advantage and a four-inch reach advantage, came out at the opening bell looking to land a big punch.

But Ocasio hung tough, crouching and bobbing and weaving, and keeping Holmes' timing off just enough to escape disaster. In the fifth and sixth rounds, however, the 6-foot-3, 29-year-old champion began finding the range to both the head and the body.

Then, in the seventh, Holmes wrote an end to the 23-year-old Ocasio's title dreams in the same arena in which Leon Spinks stunned the world on Feb. 15, 1978, when he outpointed Muhammad Ali.

Holmes scored his first knockdown with three straight left jabs. It was a jab that wasn't meant to be pretty; it was meant to do the job, which it did.

Ocasio struggled up and Holmes moved in for the kill. Two jabs and a right sent the Puerto Rican to the floor.

Once again Ocasio struggled to his feet. Referee Carlos Padilla looked into Ocasio's eyes and shouted: "Are you all right?" The challenger nodded yes and Padilla waved Holmes in again.

A series of punches flashed through Ocasio's almost nonexistent guard. The last one was a crushing right hand ... and down went Ocasio.

Once again, Ocasio came up, like a man climbing an invisible rope. Once again Padilla asked if he was all right, and again came the affirmative nod of the head.

Ocasio turned to greet Holmes, who greeted Ocasio with a left-right to the jaw. Ocasio dropped flat on his face, as if he had been clubbed. Padilla didn't even bother counting. The fight was over.

Sentences draw shouts of crowd

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge imposed life sentences Friday on two anti-Castro Cubans convicted of killing former Chilean Ambassador Orlando Letelier, drawing angry shouts from supporters of the defendants' political beliefs.

The commotion started moments after Judge Barrington D. Parker ordered life terms for Guillermo Novo Sampol and Alvin Ross Diaz and an eight-year sentence for Guillermo's brother, Ignacio, convicted of a lesser role in the 1976 car-bomb assassination.

"Viva Cuba Libre (Long Live Free Cuba)," shouted one spectator in the courtroom, which was filled with U.S. marshals. Another shouted, "Today we suffer, but maybe tomorrow you will suffer by the communists, too."

Guillermo Novo, 39, and Ross, 46, will be eligible for parole after 30 years. Ignacio Novo could get parole after serving just under three years. All three said they will appeal.

Judge Parker rejected the defendants' claims that they were scapegoats because of their anti-Castro activities, and called the assassinations of Letelier and a co-worker, Ronni Moffitt, a "monstrous and cold-blooded" crime.

"You have abused and offended the hospitality of this country," Parker told the defendants. "You smuggled in a brand of terrorism, fanaticism and hate that has no place in this country."

Letelier, Chile's ambassador to this country from 1971-73, and Mrs. Moffitt were killed Sept. 21, 1976, when a remote-control bomb exploded under Letelier's car as he drove along Washington's Embassy Row.

The U.S. government charged the three native-born Cubans were part of an assassination plot against Letelier that was initiated by Chile's secret police agency, DINA. The agency wanted Letelier killed, the government said, because he had become a vocal critic of Chile's military government while living in exile in the United States.

Fertility expert testifies in Hart's murder trial

PRYOR, Okla. (AP) — A fertility expert testified Friday that sperm found on Gene Leroy Hart's underwear was similar to sperm found in the bodies of the Girl Scouts he is accused of murdering.

Hart, 35, is charged with three counts of first-degree murder in the June 13, 1977, sex slayings at a northeastern Oklahoma summer camp.

John MacLeod, professor emeritus of biochemistry at Cornell, told the jury he made a microscopic comparison of the sperm samples at the request of prosecutors and found "very definite" similarities in the shape of the sperm heads.

"I would consider it rather remarkable to find that same pattern," MacLeod said. "I am not saying they are exactly the same. I have never said that."

The prosecution obtained the underwear from Hart while he was a prisoner at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary at McAlester.

Defense attorney Garvin Isaacs attacked MacLeod's findings in cross-examination.
