High School Seniors Are Guests at WMS Banquet

Members of the senior class of Cisco high school were guests Friday night at the annual banquet given at the First Baptist church by the Baptist Women's Missionary society.

Corsages of lilacs and spirea, tied with the class colors of lavender and white, marked the places of sixty-one guests at a huge table centered with the words "Seniors '34," each letter of which was formed with lilacs, outlined with spirea.

Dr. Tom Havins, Howard Payne college, Brownwood, was principal speaker for the occasion and chose for his theme, "Christian Education." The address of welcome was made by Mrs. P. L. Ullom, and the response by Forbes Lee Wallace, class president. E. S. James acted as toastmaster.

The class prophecy was read by Melvin Lawson, and musical selections by Three Leaf Clover trio of Howard Payne college. Miss Cannady and Miss Tate, furnished entertainment during the evening.

Honor guests were Misses Elizabeth Daniels and Elizabeth Dial, class sponsors; Superintendent and Mrs. R. N. Cluck, Principal and Mrs. Hiram Brandon, Rev. and Mrs. E. S. James, Dr. Tom Havins, of Brownwood, and Mrs. P. L. Ullom.

The banquet, an annual entertainment, was in the charge of Mrs. W. D. Echeen, general educational chairman. Chairman of the menu committee was Mrs. L. A. White; of the kitchen committee, Mrs. H. J. McArdie; serving committee, Mrs. Allan Cronover; decorations, Mrs. J. D. Franklin; tables, Mrs. Ed Bates; and program, Mrs. A. L. Foster. Junior girls of the church assisted in serving.

Mrs. Miller Has Entre Nous Club

Mrs. Raby Miller was hostess Friday afternoon to the Entre Nous bridge club at her home on West Eighteenth street.

Spring flowers, arranged in numerous vases, were emphasized in the tallies and bridge appointments with the refreshment plates featuring the same pastel shades.

Mrs. L. A. Warren was presented prize for high score, a porch pillow and Mrs. D. Ball, the low, an ice bucket and tongs.

Assisted by Mrs. Kate Hunter and Mrs. Rex Moore, Mrs. Miller served to Mesdames George Atkins, D. Ball, K. N. Greer, R. C. McCarter, Lee Smith, L. A. Warren, and F. J. Borman.

Mrs. J. B. Pratt was in charge of the program, subject of which was "Pacific States." A paper, "Glimpses of Three Coasts" was read by Mrs. T. D. Shaffer. Mrs. E. J. Poe spoke on "Ever-Changing California; the Land of Starling Contrasts." "Oregon Trails" was the subject of a paper given by Mrs. E. L. Smith.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served by the hostesses to Mesdames H. G. Bailey, N. A. Brown, Johnnie Cox, Allan Crowder, H. H. Davis, H. L. Dyer, R. E. Grantham, L. J. Leach, Rex Moore, S. H. Nance, E. J. Poe, J. B. Pratt, Hubert Seale, I. D. Shaffer, and E. L. Smith.

Humble Club Meets With Mrs. McDaniel

Members of the Humble bridge club were guests Wednesday of Mrs. W. C. McDaniel, at her home in Humboldt.

The lovely white blooms of spirea were dominant among the various spring flowers used in decorating the rooms. Award for high score went to Mrs. Tut Tabor, and for second high to Miss Wilma Thomas.

Salad refreshments were passed to Mesdames W. J. Armstrong, F. D. McMahon, H. E. McGowan, Edgar Muller, Tut Taylor, Jack Phippen, Reggie Henderson, Pete Booth, Jack Jones, W. R. Foreman; T. P. Petty, Hubert Seale, and Miss Wilma Thomas.

Luncheon Honors Members of J.O.Y.

Mrs. Jack Phippen and Mrs. Jack Jones were hostesses at a covered dish luncheon Thursday at the home of Mrs. Phippen in Humboldt to which members of the J. O. Y. class of the First Baptist church were invited.

Guests were served buffet style and seated at small tables centered with vases of snapdragons, where their places were marked by attractive cards decorated in the class colors of purple and gold.

The program, in charge of Mrs. J. L. Thornton, included the welcome address by Mrs. Jack Jones, response by Mrs. Ray Judia, and two accordion selections by Mrs. Ben Krauskopf.

Covers were laid for Mesdames J. E. Burnett, Ray Judia, J. L. Thornton, M. M. Tabor, Lee Smith, J. H. Huddleston, Barton Philpott, Myrtle Anderson, H. H. Qualls, Joe Black, J. E. McClelland, Rex Page, and Preston Briggs of Borger.

Cisco Librarian Adept At Finding The Right Book

The writer of stories of the two-gun bad man and the quick-on-the-draw hero from God's great open spaces, or of the mysterious death of Mr. X at the 12th hour, might actually be left to starve in a can-di-hit garret were it not for the men patrons of literature, while the feminine preference among books and writers is as varied as the tints of their finger nails. This is one of the observations of Mrs. J. W. Wilson, librarian of the Cisco Public library.

Mrs. Wilson has become so adept at recognizing one's reading preference by one's personality that rarely goes she err in suggesting a suitable book for a patron who requests "just something to read."

Men as a rule, exceptions granted, of course, she says, adhere to the mystery stories and western novels, particularly the former. They are not insistent that their reading material be "the latest book that everyone is discussing," but generally prefer something by Edgar Wallace or Oppenheim, George Barr McCutcheon, Zane Grey, or William McLeod Raine. A few venture to the level of Hugh Walpole but usually they leave the novels of Lewis Galsworthy, Douglas, and other modernists to the feminine readers.

Preferred by Women

The book of the moment is the preference of women—Hervey Allen's "Anthony Adverse"—at the present. Books of Bess Streeter Aldrich are always in demand, and the library is able to supply most of her best-sellers, "Miss Bishop," "Lantern in Her Hand," "White Bird Flying," "Rim of the Prairie," and "Mother Mason."

"Vanessa," the last book written by Hugh Walpole, and his "Rogue Herries," "Judith Paris," and "The Fortresses" are rarely left for long on the shelves. "One More River" by Galsworthy and other of his best books are consistently popular, and anything written by Sinclair Lewis is clamored for, regardless of opinions expressed on their content. Willa Cather, particularly her "Death Comes for the Archbishop," and Faith Baldwin are other popular authors read by women.

Mrs. House Hostess To Alathean Class

Mrs. T. E. House entertained members of the Alathean class of the First Baptist church with a party Thursday evening at her home on West Seventh street.

Games were enjoyed during the evening, and at a late hour, refreshments of sandwiches, cake, and coffee were served.

Present were: Mesdames Kate Richardson, teacher of the class, H. J. McArdie, P. E. Shepard, C. S. Surles, J. W. Karkalits, C. E. Eisenhower, W. B. Webb, and the hostess.

"Yankee Doodle," a packet of navy blue woolen, has a bodice of white crepe and a white scarf that is lined with red and blue.

Calls for these two books, said Mrs. Wilson, are continuous, even now.

Interest in the novels of the French author, Dumas, has been heightened in recent months, and these books are receiving a rapid circulation.

The library, made possible for Ciscoans through the efforts of the Cisco Twentieth Century club, devotes special attention and care to the securing of books for children between the ages of 10 and 16 years. At present, it offers every book listed for an accredited reading course by the University of Texas.

The library is a member of the Junior Literary Guild which, entitled it to receive the book chosen as the best of the month. New books are secured frequently so that up-to-date reading material is assured patrons. Mrs. Wilson urges that readers submit suggestions for new books to be added to the library, and they will be earnestly considered in the selection of new material to be purchased.

A. D. Anderson, W. J. Leach, E. L. Smith, and Nick Miller attended the races at Arlington Downs Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Husky and Mrs. Frank Raymond of Moran were shopping in Cisco yesterday.

Early Episodes Of Texas History Are Vividly Told

Describing in vivid detail the colorful episodes of Texas' early history under French, Spanish, and Mexican dominion, painting word pictures of wogan trains that first trailed across Texas plains; of the hardships endured by these early pioneers; the heroic characters whose names are remembered today; the foreign and internal struggles endured by Texas before her final admittance to the Union. Dr. Rebecca Smith, of Texas Christian university, Fort Worth, addressed members and guests of the Cisco Twentieth Century club Thursday evening at the annual Texas Day program.

The women's clubhouse, scene of the entertainment, was charmingly decorated with Texas flags, yellow roses, and spirea combined to feature the state colors of gold and white and huge baskets of bluebonnets.

In the receiving line were the club president, Mrs. E. P. Crawford; Dr. Rebecca Smith; district president, Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins of Eastland; first vice president, Mrs. J. T. Anderson; second vice president, Mrs. C. C. Jones; corresponding secretary, Mrs. P. P. Shepard; recording secretary, Mrs. Homer Slicker; treasurer, Mrs. S. E. Hiltson; parliamentarian, Mrs. Phillip Pettit; Mrs. Chas. F. Mrs. C. Q. Smith; Mrs. William Reagan and Mrs. G. B. Kelly.

"Texas, Our Texas," led by Mrs. Chas. Brown opened the program. Following Dr. Smith's address, the choral club, director, Mrs. W. B. Statnam, and accompanist, Mrs. S. H. Hiltson, sang "The Swallows". Vocal selections by Miss Madeline Ely and Mrs. H. V. House with Mrs. C. R. West at the piano concluded the musical program.

Refreshments which emphasized the gold and white theme were served to more than sixty guests.

Mrs. P. J. Connally left recently on a visit to the valley.

Wesley Harrell, student at Texas university, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Harrell.

CONGRATULATIONS, RANDOLPH

Randolph college yesterday celebrated its annual institution of Randolph Home-coming day with appropriate ceremonies and a response in the form of visiting ex-students and friends that prompts a cheerful outlook for the future of the school. Any attempt to argue a reason for the existence of Randolph, or any other school, is purely gratuitous, and perhaps should be taken for an apology. The "raison d'etre" for Randolph is a fact or it is not a fact. Between these two possibilities there is no compromise. We can hopefully see in the attendance upon the celebration yesterday and in the interest which the program created in Cisco a demonstration that the former is true. We can read, also, in the persistence with which the school has endured against obstacles the certainty of a needful mission. But, of more significance, we can see in the sacrifices of the men and women who direct and support it a sublime faith which is the greatest resource of all. We extend Randolph congratulations this morning. Every step that it takes, it becomes stronger, and another year has been added to the stamina of those traditions of love and service which are rooting it firmly in the soil of this country.

TAMMANY STARTS OVER.

Those who predict that Tammany Hall has ceased to be a dominant factor in New York city politics may well look to the incident that occurred Friday night in the removal of John F. Curry, leader of the hall. The removal of Mr. Curry shook Tammany tradition to its very inception. Not once in its 135 years before had a leader been deposed. During the Tweed regime such a thing would probably have occurred but for a ruse employed by the "Boss," but, it did not, and Curry leaves leadership of the society with the negative distinction of having broken that tradition. A significant fact is that no charges were lodged against him. He was simply voted out of his position by organized dissatisfaction with his policies and the results of those policies—principally the results, which meant loss of New York City patronage. His friendship for ex-Mayor James Walker and a reported coolness of Alfred E. Smith toward him were probably the two principal reasons for his defeat. The Walker episode was climaxed by a smashing defeat of the Tammany city ticket by the fusion organization headed by the dynamic LaGuardia as mayoralty candidate. Such a demonstration of the impotency of machine power against an aroused public opinion was bound to cause trouble for a complacent leadership, which further handicapped itself by affronting a vigorous element in its own ranks in ignoring a popular and logical candidate and turning to one as colorless and as patently subservient as O'Brien. With the Walker episode so recently in mind, the Tammany leadership committed a tactical blunder in making so positive a display of its motive of domination as to refuse McKee the place on its ticket to which he appeared entitled, both by the fact of his able handling of the vacated mayorship and his popularity. That McKee, as an independent, polled a greater vote than did Tammany's candidate proves the blunder.

The removal of Curry is the beginning of a reorganization and revitalization that will be Tammany's challenge to the future of New York city politics. Although defeated in the last election, the machine by no means has been stripped of its power. It still controls sufficient patronage to build back its lost prestige, or the greater part of that prestige, and the probability is certain that the next campaign will find an alert, energetic and efficient machine functioning from the meanest worker to the highest councils of the group. It will have an appealing and able political personality to fight in the LaGuardia ticket and a powerful foe in the organization that is being consolidated from the fusionist victory, no doubt, but the fiercer competition should mean a better government for New York city.

THE McLEOD BILL

President Roosevelt does not take kindly to the McLeod bill to pay off depositors in closed banks. The measure would repay all depositors who lost money in closed banks up to $2,500 each, and make provision for lending losers of more than that amount 85 per cent of such loss. The average bank balance is said to be about $183. To pay off all depositors in closed banks in the United States under terms of the bill would require the government to assume an additional debt of $2,500,000,000, it is estimated.

If the government is going to extend the streaming hand to financial generosity toward the losers in the bank crashes of the 1929 fiasco, what about those who lost money in 1907 and 1893 and so on back? Will the liberality extend to the man who put his money in land and lost it? Will it extend to the man or woman who bought stocks and bonds that had a high market value and the prospect of a sound future at the time of the purchase but which later toppled into the cellar of economic disaster? Thousands, millions of Americans suffered losses during the depression days. Practically every person experienced financial loss. These were not closed bank losses. But they were as real as such losses. If closed bank losses are to be paid off under legislation, why not go on down the line and pay off all the individual losses sustained since the crash of 1929?

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER

United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, April 21—State ranger headquarters lack a liaison officer.

Despite the rangers' reputation for fearlessness and effectiveness, seldom do they learn of a bank robbery or a hi-jacking until informed by the newspapers or press associations...

SHEARER, sheriffs notoriously neglect to call the rangers when they notify other officers of such things.

Chief L. G. Phares of the state highway patrol has installed mechanical equipment in his office which keeps him in direct contact with police reports in the patrol's search for the layers of patrolmen at Grapevine. Ranger headquarters lack such equipment.

For fingerprints, the rangers must rely on the state penitentiary or Austin police headquarters. Headquarters here deny knowledge of the reported equipment of a ranger automobile for pursuing bandits. It was reported to have been armored and to have bullet proof glass.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

BEGIN HERE TODAY PABLO, a handsome youth accused a murder he did not commit, escapes from Key West to Havana with two thieves, BEAU and LOTTIE. In Havana, under the name of "Juanito," he becomes an ornate as a boxer and he and Beau open a boxing gymnasium. Pablo loves ESTELLE FIELD, daughter of rich JIM FIELD, and she loves him. They meet and plan to marry, but Field breaks up the affair, taking Estelle away. Two years later, Estelle is engaged to ALEC DAVIDS. SHE ABBEY, titled Englishwoman and Pablo's father, has been searching for his son, employing BILLINGS, New York detective.

But even her love for him could not teach her patience. Soon Lottie was crying and he was obliged to comfort her and pretend some more. "You do love me, don't you?" she said, mopping her eyes and choking back the last of her sobs. "Of course I do, Lottie," he said dully. "I'm a lucky chap and I know it."

MARCELA left Pablo in a mood that was a mixture of relief and the utmost bitterness. All these years he had been suffering for a crime he had not committed. Suffering loneliness and helplessness and the loss of the one girl in the world he loved. All these years—Lottie came into the room. "What's the matter, honey boy?" she demanded caressingly. "Nothing." "You look ill! Beau's gone?" Pablo looked up quickly at that. "Decided he needed a change of air," Lottie added lightly. "Did you listen to what we were saying?" he demanded. She answered with a nonchalant, easy, "Sure."

ESTELLE wrote Pablo that evening. She had to send the letter by post because there was no chauffeur now to carry messages. She wrote: "Dear Pablo: It is good to write your real name without fear. Marce has told my father and me what she has told you, too. I am so glad for you. I have not for a long while been so glad about anything. "I want to see you and wonder whether you will want to come to see me. It has been a long time since we have met but, remembering our hours together as I have so keenly since being here, I feel that—oh, I don't know. I can't express it. "I hurt you horribly, I know. Perhaps if I had been stronger I would have seen some way to avoid doing that. But I want to tell you now that I love you as much as I can ever love anyone and I will marry you if you still want me to.—Estelle."

Houston, Texas. San Angelo Jack Reed, Junction, were arrested by Speaker Coke R. Ste. Recently Stevenson, removed day and named Col. Julius field, Amarillo, instead. Whether Stevenson had the er is being contested by Hollie he has it, Lieut.-Gov. With it as regards his appointees. Four of the nine members have had their eligibility questioned. The governor questioned right Christman and Adams to hold places. She was overruled. eke's right to be on the on and act for the PWA is questioned. A ruling was had not been given early th. The respective rights of R and Dorenfield await decision.

In this situation, relief of Marie Dresden for selection was an effective move. She was recommended by high officials of the national relief organization long as she is director. Wash cannot well object to cooperation with Texas on the ground of tion and uncertainty in its raise. The objection some have made to having "out" agent to manage their relief er question. Miss Dresden is the year's necessary voting in Texas in August.

Legality of the removal of tor Adams Johnson may be whether Commissioners C and Dorenfield were entitled to remove him. But Joe friends cannot well question eke's vote to remove him had no right to vote for i when he was elected 5 in February. Giesecke voted in then.

Judges, like others, are write too much. That is the the ointment of the supreme recent ruling that from a commission opinions, approval of opinions by the state, before the court approved or proved the decision; it did a tempt to endorse all the real. Two examples illustrate opinion written in a court of nal appeals case, mentioned to case was under an old statute under one passed by the 4th lary. Newspaper men resist passage of no such law. A committee. Inquiry showed it had not been passed. The was eliminated from the app was merely surplusage and affect the decision.
