Despite big losses, Moslem rebels still fight Soviet troops

By The Associated Press

Moslem rebels in Afghanistan admitted Soviet troops inflicted heavy losses on them, but diplomats in neighboring Pakistan reported the rebels and anti-Soviet troops of the Afghan army were continuing to battle the Russians in at least four areas of the country.

On the diplomatic front, five non-aligned members of the U.N. Security Council circulated a draft resolution calling for the immediate withdrawal of all foreign troops from Afghanistan, and the United States urged the council to denounce the Soviet military intervention. The council's debate on the Soviet action was continuing today for the third day.

A rebel radio broadcast Sunday said the guerrillas battling communist rule for nearly 20 months suffered heavy casualties in fighting near the eastern town of Jalalabad, which Soviet troops occupied last week. Jalalabad is 75 miles east of Kabul, the Afghan capital, and 50 miles northwest of the Pakistani border and the Khyber Pass.

The rebel broadcast vowed a "fight to the finish" to drive the Russians out of Afghanistan and bring down the communist government in Kabul. It claimed the insurgents had been reinforced by "considerable" numbers of Afghan army troops who deserted during fighting elsewhere in the country following the coup in Kabul Dec. 27.

DIPLOMATIC SOURCES in Islamabad, the Pakistani capital, reported fighting was continuing in the northeastern province of Badakhshan, in Paktia and Jalalabad, between Kabul and the Pakistani border, and in Parwan, 50 miles northwest of the capital, in Kandahar, 270 miles southwest of Kabul, and in Herat, the chief city in western Afghanistan 75 miles from the Iranian border.

Refugees from Herat who fled to Iran reported a general uprising in their city last Friday. They said men and women fought Soviet tanks with sticks and stones in the streets, and many Afghans were killed.

"Hundreds of my own people were attacking them even though there was much shooting and the tanks were just rolling over those who fell in front of them," said one of the refugees, a farmer named Abdullah Jan.

Meanwhile, Radio Kabul, the Afghan government station, charged that President Hafizullah Amin had 2,600 political prisoners executed en masse before he was overthrown in the coup 11 days ago. Amin was prime minister in the first communist regime that took over in April 1978 and then became president in a coup last September. He was executed after his replacement by Babrak Karmal, an exile the Russians brought back from Czechoslovakia.

AT U.N. HEADQUARTERS in New York, 18 more nations spoke Sunday on the second day of the Security Council's debate on the crisis caused by the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. Only three — all communists — defended the Russians.

Speaking for the United States, Ambassador Donald F. McHenry charged that the Soviet Union engineered the coup Dec. 27 and derided the Soviet government's claim that its troops are in Afghanistan because the Afghan government asked for them.

"Are we to believe that President Amin invited Soviet troops to come into Afghanistan in order to oversee his own downfall and his own execution?" McHenry asked.

The American delegate urged the Soviet Union to withdraw its troops and asked the council to denounce the Russian intervention. Bangladesh, Jamaica, Niger, the Philippines and Zambia were circulating a resolution that, without mentioning the Soviet Union by name, "deeply deplored" armed intervention in Afghanistan and called for the immediate withdrawal of all foreign troops there.

SOVIET AMBASSADOR Oleg Troyanovsky told reporters he would veto the resolution if it came to a vote. The Soviets had been expected to veto any resolution critical of their action, and the purpose of the debate was to mobilize and publicize international criticism of the Russian intervention in the hope that it would deter the Kremlin from moving against neighboring Pakistan or Iran.

U.S. Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher told interviewers on the CBS program "Face the Nation" that the Carter administration will maintain the economic sanctions it took against the Soviet Union for a "considerable duration."

Asserting that the Johnson administration made a mistake in not taking long term punitive action when the Soviets invaded Czechoslovakia in 1968, Christopher said:

"We don't intend to set any time for withdrawing the sanctions. One of the lessons coming out of the Czechoslovak crisis is that the response needs to be determined and of considerable duration."

Khomeini representative joins Kurdistan protest

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's chief representative in Iseh Kurdistan Province has quit and joined Kurdish rebels demanding the central government pull its forces out of Sanandaj, the provincial capital, the Tehran Times reported today.

Hossein Shahvesti, Kurdistan's governor-general resigned after the Khomeini regime refused to honor his pledge to the rebels that the government's Revolutionary Guard would be withdrawn from the city, the English-language newspaper said.

It said Shahvesti joined Kurdish rebels taking part in a six-day old sit in to protest the government's refusal to withdraw the militiamen. Residents of a half-dozen other Kurdish towns demonstrated Sunday in support of the Sanandaj sit in, the paper said.

The Times quoted informed sources as saying Hashem Sabaghian, a member of a government negotiating team sent to Kurdistan, opposed any guard withdrawal before armed members of the Kurdish Democratic Party leave the city.

KURDISH REBELS, backed by the party, fought a series of bloody battles with guardsmen last summer and fall in a bid for greater autonomy in Kurdistan.

The growing tension in Kurdistan highlighted only one of several areas of minority unrest in Iran.

Tehran radio said 43 persons were killed and 110 injured Sunday in the second day of clashes between Sunni and Shiite Moslems in the Persian Gulf port of Bandar Lengeh about 600 miles south of Tehran. A government official said the fighting started when the city's Shites became enraged by a comment made by a Sunni clergyman. He did not elaborate.

The daily newspaper Bamdad said "the person responsible for the provocation in the town is Esmailzadeh Qeshmi, who was an agent of Savak (the deposed shah's secret police). Khomeini's Shites are the dominant Moslem sect in Iran.

IN BALUCHISTAN SISTAN PROVINCE in the southeast, insurgents staged two attacks on government troops Monday, killing two guards and two army officers, the official Pars news agency said. Clashes in the same area between rival Baluchis and Sistani tribesmen last month left several dead.

Another minority, the Azerbaijanis who support Iran's second-ranked religious leader Ayatollah Mohammed Kazem Shariat-Madari, planned a new demonstration today in Tabriz, capital of East Azerbaijan Province, just north of Kurdistan in northwestern Iran.

One person was killed and more than 150 others injured in weekend clashes there between rival supporters of the ayatollahs. And three persons were killed overnight in renewed fighting, according to Western reports.

Western reporters were expelled today from Tabriz — escorted from their hotel to the airport by Revolutionary Guardsmen. A Guard spokesman there said half a dozen foreign reporters had been put under house arrest in their hotel to prevent them from reporting on the expected demonstration.

"They report events in such a way as to incite trouble," a guard spokesman said of the foreign correspondents, who were not identified.

THE ACTION WAS TAKEN one day after the foreign press chief in the Ministry of National Guidance said the government was considering expelling all American, British and West German reporters.

The official Pars news agency quoted Abdolghasem Sadegh as saying the foreigners might be ordered out "as long as Iran-U.S. relations had not been clarified and especially as long as the U.S. espionage center was occupied."

Papal initiative begun

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II reportedly has launched a three-pronged diplomatic initiative to try to prevent any further deterioration of U.S.-Soviet relations following Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

The Italian daily newspaper Occhio said the papal envoy in Paris, Archbishop Angelo Felici, conferred with the Soviet and American ambassadors there about the possibility of a summit meeting between President Carter and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The newspaper also said the Vatican has contacted the Soviet embassy in Rome to try to arrange for the pope's roving ambassador to meet in Moscow with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, and that the Vatican's permanent observer at the United Nations has been in touch with the Soviet and American delegations there.

The report did not say if the diplomatic initiative had succeeded in any way, and a Vatican spokesman refused comment on it.

But a Vatican source, who asked not to be identified, said "The pope is not sitting idle when peace is at stake."

Since the start of the new year, the Polish-born pontiff has repeatedly warned of the risk of nuclear conflict and deplored the missile buildup in both East and West. The pontiff is due to address the diplomatic corps to the Vatican in a special audience Jan. 14.

Western diplomatic sources in Pakistan say there may be as many as 100,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan, where Moslem Afghan rebels have been fighting a succession of pro-Soviet Marxist governments for the past 20 months. The Soviets moved into Afghanistan on Dec. 27, the same day they reportedly helped overthrow one government and replace it with another.

The United States has criticized the Soviet intervention and has retaliated by imposing a partial grain embargo on the Soviets and by halting the sale of advanced technology to them.

Carter seeking Security Council action against Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Iran officially in defiance of a United Nations deadline for freeing the 50 American hostages in Tehran, President Carter is seeking immediate Security Council action to punish Iran through adoption of economic sanctions.

Carter, brushing aside suggestions by U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim that sanctions won't be effective, said through a spokesman Sunday night that the council must take action against Iran "without delay."

Waldheim was due to report today to the Security Council on his three-day visit to Tehran last week. However, White House spokesman Jody Powell and diplomatic sources in New York said the timing of a public meeting on Iran was in doubt because the United Nations has been occupied with the question of Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Powell expressed concern today that his earlier remarks led to some interpretations that Carter was rejecting proposals by Waldheim. Rather, he said, the Sunday discussions produced "some ideas for continuing the search for a peaceful resolution of this crisis."

The spokesman refused to characterize the ideas or to give any details but said they are "in the very early stages of exploration at this point." They are consistent with the U.S. position that the hostages must be released before any international forum explores Iranian grievances.

U.N. observers indicated the council would do no more than adopt an agenda today concerning Iran, with work on the sanctions resolution beginning later in the week.

But with the hostage crisis now in its 10th week, and with the administration facing increasingly heavy pressure from Republican presidential candidates for decisive action, Carter apparently feels he can wait no longer.

"The United Nations should go forward and do what it said...it would do," Powell told reporters Sunday night.

Carter and his top advisers received a report Sunday from Waldheim on his Iran trip. Waldheim also told reporters that Iranian authorities believe they can count on outside support to overcome the effects of any U.N. move to apply sanctions.

On Dec. 31, the Security Council gave Iran until today to free the hostages. In the event of non-compliance, the council decided it should "adopt effective measures" under articles in the U.N. charter authorizing economic sanctions against nations found to be a threat to peace.

The resolution containing today's deadline was approved 11-0 with four countries abstaining, including the Soviet Union.

It was not clear, however, whether the United States would be able to muster similar support for the formal adoption of sanctions. A two-thirds vote of the 14-member Security Council is required.

China and Zambia, for example, have said they were reserving judgment on the sanctions issue even though they supported the United States in the New Year's Eve vote.

In addition, the Security Council's rotation system has placed four new members on the council and removed four others. And U.S. officials have acknowledged privately that the American campaign to denounce the Soviet Union for its intervention in Afghanistan could induce a Soviet veto on the Iran issue.

Also uncertain is the impact of Waldheim's view that sanctions would not be effective in inducing Iran to free the hostages.

Despite these uncertainties, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Donald McHenry, has predicted that sanctions will be approved.

The United States is understood to be pressing for a boycott of all credit and exports to Iran.

Chrysler's future now up to workers, bankers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although President Carter is signing into law legislation giving $1.5 billion in loan guarantees to Chrysler Corp., the future of the financially strapped automaker still hinges on crucial decisions by its workers and bankers.

The legislation, which the president was signing at an afternoon ceremony today, makes the federal guarantees contingent on $462.5 million in wage concessions from Chrysler's hourly workers and other private help including $500 million in bank loans.

The latest concession, amounting to $243 million in lost wages, is yet to be approved by members of the United Auto Workers union, which represents all but about 4,000 of Chrysler's 105,000 unionized employees.

Representatives of 184 UAW locals meet tomorrow on whether to endorse that concession, which union bargainers and the company agreed to Saturday. A rank-and-file ratification vote should be complete by the end of the month, officials said.

Saturday's agreement "stinks," said Joe Zappa, chairman of the union bargaining committee and head of a Detroit local. But he predicted UAW members would approve the pact anyway "to save their jobs."

About 90 percent of the new UAW concessions would come through eliminating 17 paid personal holidays scheduled in 1981 and 1982. In addition, a pair of 3 percent annual wage increases were delayed several months and a day's bonus pay in December was eliminated.

The UAW members had earlier agreed to $203 million in wage concessions.

The bill also requires white-collar workers to give up $125 million in expected wage increases. Chrysler in turn is required to turn over $162.5 million in stock to its workers.

Chrysler must still raise a total of $1.43 billion from selling its assets and from its banks, suppliers and the states and cities where it has plants.

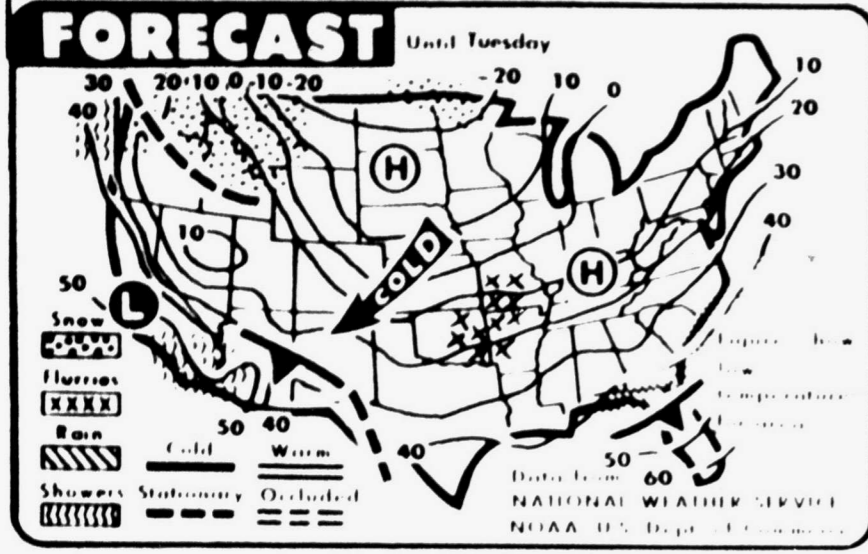

Chrysler representative Richard

Muller said talks were continuing with bankers, who refused during congressional hearings to say whether they would come up with the money necessary to trigger the loan guarantees.

Muller said meetings also were being held with state and local officials, who are down for $250 million under the financing plan. Some of this aid, Muller said, would require action by state legislatures that are not yet in session or would have to await legal opinions by state attorneys general.

Chrysler, which lost $1 billion in 1979, hopes that by the end of the month it can have the financing package assembled.

'Agribusiness' reels under cutback

WASHINGTON (AP) — American "agribusiness" is reeling under President Carter's decision to cut back grain sales to the Soviet Union, but the domestic market has two days to brace for the impact of 17 million unexpected tons of grain.

ample, trading in corn would have been halted after the price-per-bushel dropped 20 cents, he said. Wilmouth said the government also could take other action to calm the domestic market, such as increasing grain exports to China and underdeveloped countries, and changing price supports.

Non-aligned nations seek Soviet troop withdrawal

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Five non-aligned Security Council members circulated a draft resolution calling for the immediate withdrawal of all foreign troops from Afghanistan as the United States called the Soviet intervention a "dangerous breach of peace and security" and a "terrible miscalculation."

Kabul continued normal transmissions for at least one and a half hours after these announcements were first heard. Nothing in these broadcasts from Kabul confirmed the content of the Soviet broadcast disseminated in Afghanistan's name.

Increased security cooperation tops agenda for Brown's talks with China

PEKING (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown discussed increased security cooperation with his Chinese hosts today after warning the Soviet Union that threats against mutual Chinese and American interests could be met by "actions in the field of defense as well as diplomacy."

Cold forecast through Tuesday

The balmy, summer-like weather Midland has been experiencing may be on its way out.

The forecast calls for partly cloudy and colder weather through Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service.

The high today should be in the mid-50s, dropping to the upper 40s by Tuesday. The overnight low should be in the lower 20s. Winds are expected to be northeasterly at 15 to 20 mph, decreasing to 10 to 15 mph tonight.

Sunday's high temperature was a warm 68, and the overnight low was 26 degrees. The record high for today is 75 degrees set in 1935. The record low is 11 degrees set in 1970.

Sunset will be at 6 p.m. today with sunrise Tuesday at 7:50 a.m.

An arctic cold front knifed deep into Texas today, dropping temperatures to as low as 11 degrees.

The front blew into the Panhandle Sunday afternoon, and by 4 a.m. it had reached a line from Longview to College Station, San Antonio and Del Rio. Along the front, northerly winds were gusting to 30 miles an hour, but well behind the frontal line, winds died down to 10 to 15 mph.

The front brought no precipitation, but forecasters said it could touch off light and scattered showers in South and Southeast Texas later in the day.

Predawn temperatures ranged from 11 at Dalhart to the 60s along the southern coast. At 4 a.m. it was 40 in Tyler, 33 in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, 29 at Abilene, and 27 in Wichita Falls.

Jacksboro chief may face action from district attorney

JACKSBORO, Texas (AP) — Jacksboro city commissioners are willing to keep Guy Sullivan as police chief, but the district attorney says he may take action against Sullivan because of a Dec. 15 shooting that wounded the lawman.

"All the evidence I've seen disputes the man's (Sullivan) version of the shooting," District Attorney Brock Smith said. "If he wasn't shot as he has claimed, it's a very bad situation having the man chief of a law enforcement agency."

Smith said he may open his own investigation into the incident. Sullivan was wounded in the left shoulder by a shot from his own revolver the night of Dec. 15, at his apartment.

The chief says an unknown assailant fired the shot, but Smith said he has seen evidence indicating Sullivan shot himself.

The city commission conducted its own investigation into the shooting, and decided to keep Sullivan as chief after a marathon closed session Friday.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

As Carter prays, the Soviets prey

By JACK ANDERSON

Released from the discipline of gold, U.S. general prices rose to 183 by 1950 and soared to 410 by 1976.

What we are seeing in the phenomenal increase in gold prices is something of a financial revolution. Various nations and their central banks are suddenly clinging to gold, using it instead of dollars as their currency reserve and the backing for their national credit.

The consequences of this development during the next decade cannot be foreseen, except there are widespread predictions that the dollar's purchasing power will continue to decline, which is to say the price of oil and gold will continue to rise from current levels, elevated as they may already seem.

Thus it would appear that an enormously shrunken and interdependent world is belatedly imposing a fiscal discipline upon the United States that Washington has heretofore been unwilling to attempt.

The result of this will undoubtedly be painful because the laws of economics, being as inexorable as the laws of gravity, exact unavoidable penalties for infractions.

It would appear the mortgage which we have permitted to become delinquent through excessive borrowing and spending is now due and payable.

ASIA MEMO

Kim Jong Pil heads cast likely to dominate Korea politics

By EDWARD NEILAN
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — There are no new faces in the east of characters likely to dominate the political stage in South Korea in the aftermath of the assassination of President Park Chung Hee.

Choi Kyu Hah, the current acting president, may be elected to the presidency under the so-called Yushin electoral system which calls for a vote during January.

Choi is a career bureaucrat with scant political constituency. His main currency is a reputation of impeccable honesty. He seems to have the confidence of all factions to play an interim leadership role much like that played by onetime Seoul Mayor Huh Chung in the period between the demise of President Syngman Rhee in 1960 and the election of the new Prime Minister Chang Myun.

It was Chang Myun who was overthrown by Park Chung Hee in the bloodless coup of 1961.

Kim Jong Pil, 53, one of Park's key advisers or accomplices in that coup, has now re-emerged on the political stage as head of the late president's ruling Democratic Republican Party.

Ironically, it was Kim Jong Pil — related to Park Chung Hee by marriage — who conceived and organized the Korean Central Intelligence Agency as a powerful political control force.

Kim gradually lost control of the KCIA and it was the KCIA chief, Kim Jae Kyu, who shot and killed Park on Oct. 26.

Kim Jong Pil remained the late president's trusted aide for years and was often mentioned as his successor.

Edward Neilan

Kim resigned as prime minister in 1975 when Choi Kyu Hah took the post.

Kim and Choi are fairly close personally. They are probably closer and could figure more prominently in the emerging picture than any other politicians who were among Park's inner circle.

Speaker of the House of Representatives Paik Toon Jin is another senior statesman who could be a compromise candidate on the ruling party side.

Former Prime Minister and military figure Chung Il Kwan has long aspired to be president and is a main contender within the ruling party. Still another figure to be reckoned with — Korean politics are very complex and the comments here are necessarily generalizations — is Lee Hu Rak. Lee was once a top lieutenant of Park's and a virtual equal of Kim Jong Pil's among Park's advisers.

Lee's name was mentioned in some questionable financial dealings and "took a rest" at Park's urging.

Watch for a political comeback by Lee Hu Rak! Like all the others mentioned here — except Choi and Paik — Lee was a military officer and trained extensively in the United States.

On the opposite side, Yun Po Sun, 82, has made a career of opposing Park. He was president when the coup toppled Prime Minister Chang Myun in 1961.

Yun's ally, Kim Dae Jung, was a big vote-getter running against Park and is a likely candidate for president on behalf of the National Coalition for Democracy and Unification.

The current leader of the opposition New Democratic Party Kim Yong Sam, is outspoken to the extreme.

The continued suffering of the Cambodian people is a shame on the big powers.

There have been few instances in recent history where a people or a nation has been treated with so much calculated cruelty against a backdrop of international indifference.

Because of all of Cambodia's troubles, even a faint ray of hope looks good. The glimmer of promise comes in the form of Prince Norodom Sihanouk — remember him? — who is back on the scene trying to organize an international conference to neutralize Cambodia.

It was Sihanouk's brand of neutrality in the 1960s which led to large-scale use of his nation as a sanctuary for the North Vietnamese-backed Viet Cong.

Cambodia's political and social fabric was fragile at best under Sihanouk.

Considering what has happened to Cambodia since Sihanouk's demise, however, it is little wonder that there is a craving for a return to his less-than-perfect administration.

Sihanouk's exit was allegedly engineered by the United States in favor of a general, Lon Nol. But the Communists overran his forces and a regime led by Pol Pot took over. Pol Pot's China-backed regime earned a reputation for cruelty and suppression. Then the Vietnam-backed Heng Samrin forces took over. The latter outfit shows no eagerness to allow food supplies donated by other nations to reach Cambodian victims.

Pol Pot's guerrilla forces apparently are making use of Thailand as a staging area for the guerrilla warfare it is pursuing.

China, backing Pol Pot, seems prepared to launch another of its "teach Vietnam a lesson" offensives against Hanoi's forces.

The Soviet Union, giving full support to its Vietnam surrogate, seems delighted at the proceedings.

The Chinese seem to believe that all of this confusion may drive the parties to the negotiating table, at which Sihanouk would preside.

It is not a very satisfactory alternative but just about the only one in view that might ease the plight of the Cambodian people.

CHARLEY REESE

Defenders of barbarism are not new phenomenon

Charley Reese

ORLANDO, Fla. — I hate a stinking terrorist, but I hate an apologist for terrorists even more. It's interesting, isn't it, how easily some people can rationalize barbarism and brutality.

We all know about the World Council of Churches pumping money into the hands of African terrorists while they bayonet babies, cut off noses, shoot nuns, and blow up children.

We all know how many Americans continue to praise the Vietnamese government which is in the process of deliberately destroying two generations of Cambodians. No doubt there are those who could find a kind word for Pol Pot, the infamous Cambodian butcher who showed the world how to return a nation to the Stone Age overnight.

The living room defenders of barbarism are not a new phenomenon. Every tyrant in this century has had his gaggle of apologists. Lenin, Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini, Mao Tse-tung, Fidel Castro have all enjoyed a public defense by alleged intellectuals.

These people worry me like a cut lip. I can understand a genuine pacifist or a genuine religious person or a genuine liberal who abhors all forms of brutality from whatever source in the name of whatever cause, but these selective consciences puzzle me.

Oh, I know some of them are just traitors, people in secret partnership with the tyrant they profess to admire, but most of them, I believe, are not. They are moved by different forces.

Some, I suppose, are ideologists who believe in some ism so firmly in theory that they simply cannot face its reality when it is put into practice. Stalin held on to a lot of American supporters for that reason.

Others, I think, are just stupid. They all, however, share one common characteristic and that is the urgent desire to keep as much distance between them and the object of their admiration as possible.

I never knew very many American communists who emigrated to the Soviet Union or to Red China or any Hitler-lovers who had the burning desire to become a part of the Third Reich.

It is very easy to sit in a public television studio, suck a pompous pipe, and mumble trash about the leadership qualities of Mao when it is some Tibetan priest whose eyelids are being cut off or some anonymous Chinese family who are being murdered, and none of it is happening to you or to your family.

I don't see self-righteous liberals who are willing to move to South Africa and then advocate one-man, one-vote rule and live with the system they think is so desirable.

For that matter, I haven't seen any American blacks who defended Idi Amin or shouted, "Right on," to Robert Mugabe, Pol Pot, Castro, the PLO, Uncle Ho and Qadafi — those guys are right for those people over there.

It's funny how all the world's apologists for barbarism seem to be concentrated in the West.

But the key is "...those people over there." The western apologist simply doesn't give a damn about the human beings. He's interested in theory and in his own prejudices and so, safely ensconced in the most humane and protective of environments, he feels free to mount his soapbox and tell the rest of the world exactly how they should order their affairs.

Ah, yes, communism is good for the Russians and Chinese and probably the Africans and Latin Americans, too, for after all what are they but an ignorant bunch of peasants anyway. As for the Israelis, well they are just a bunch of troublesome Jews who are interfering in the flow of cheap gasoline.

So, the apologist for the barbarians thinks. What I think is that they should be held accountable as accessories to barbarism and murder, I think if you are going to presume to interfere in someone else's affairs, then you should be responsible for the consequences. I think the man who speaks in the terrorist's behalf and the man who buys the gun are just as guilty of murder as the man who pulls the trigger.

Mark Russell says

Why all the fuss about Russians in Afghanistan? If they were in Cuba I could understand the excitement.

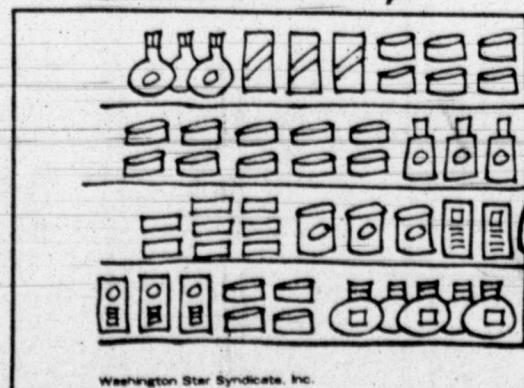

This entire situation can result in the reduction of traffic accidents in this country. How can anyone go to sleep at the wheel — or any place — knowing that we may have to fight the Russians with our all-volunteer Army?

Here's another plus — our latest ally, Iran, shares our anger with the Russians. Just look at how cooperative they've been shielding our embassy from outside harm.

We can also take comfort in knowing that the carriers Midway and Kitty Hawk are probably steaming toward Iran with a fresh load of clergymen.

As we enter the '80s everyone is asking the question: "Do you think the ayatollah will wear a tuxedo to accept Time magazine's Man of the Year award?"

Jury selection to begin today in Indiana trial of automaker

WINAMAC, Ind. (AP) — Jury selection begins today in a case that will decide whether Ford Motor Co. was guilty of reckless homicide in the deaths of three young women who burned to death in the crash of a Pinto model automobile.

Rooms at the local hotel have been jammed for weeks, and business is brisk in stores and cafes in this town of 2,400, site of a criminal trial that could have a major impact on the nation's business.

Ford is being defended by James F. Neal, a former Watergate prosecutor. Elkhart County Prosecutor Michael A. Cosentino, who will present the apparently unprecedented case, concedes he lacks Neal's reputation and flair, and has voiced concern over the financial burden the trial has placed on his county.

But he argues the three women are dead because Ford decided to "sacrifice human life for private profit."

The indictment returned last fall by an Elkhart Superior Court grand jury charges Ford with three counts of reckless homicide, a felony that carries a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine on each count.

The charges, based on a 1977 Indiana law making corporations as well as individuals subject to criminal prosecution, were sought after the August 1978 deaths. Autopsies showed the women burned to death when their 1973 Pinto sedan exploded in flames after it was rammed from behind.

In May 1978, Ford recalled 1.5 million 1971-76 Pintos and 30,000 1975-76 Mercury Bobcats after the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration issued a preliminary finding that low-to-moderate speed rear-end collisions involving the models could lead to fuel leaks. The government contended the leaks posed the risk of explosive fires.

Ford officials said at the time they disagreed with the government's determination that the cars presented an unreasonable risk to safety, saying they offered fuel tank modifications "so as to end public concern."

Also that year, in California, the survivor of an accident involving a Pinto was awarded $127.8 million in a civil case. A jury later reduced that award to $6.3 million and Ford has appealed.

The Indiana indictment charged Ford knew Pinto fuel tanks were unsafe but decided to not make the repairs to save money. Ford, which denied the allegation, has argued that the 1977 law cannot be used to prosecute defects in a 1973 automobile.

Defense and prosecution attorneys agree the trial could lead to other criminal prosecutions or aid plaintiffs in civil cases.

"I think this would open a new era in regards to business and product safety," said William Conour, Cosentino's leading adviser. "If Ford is convicted, businesses will know they are going to run the risk of a stigma of criminal prosecution if they are unreasonably dangerous."

Judge Harold R. Staffeldt has said the current case will be "a trial by documents" and will make rulings on the admissibility of several when the trial gets underway.

Cosentino has been unsuccessful in efforts to obtain and authenticate documents that reportedly show how the automaker tested many of its cars for safety and indicated that no report of the test was issued if a car selected at random failed to pass safety standards.

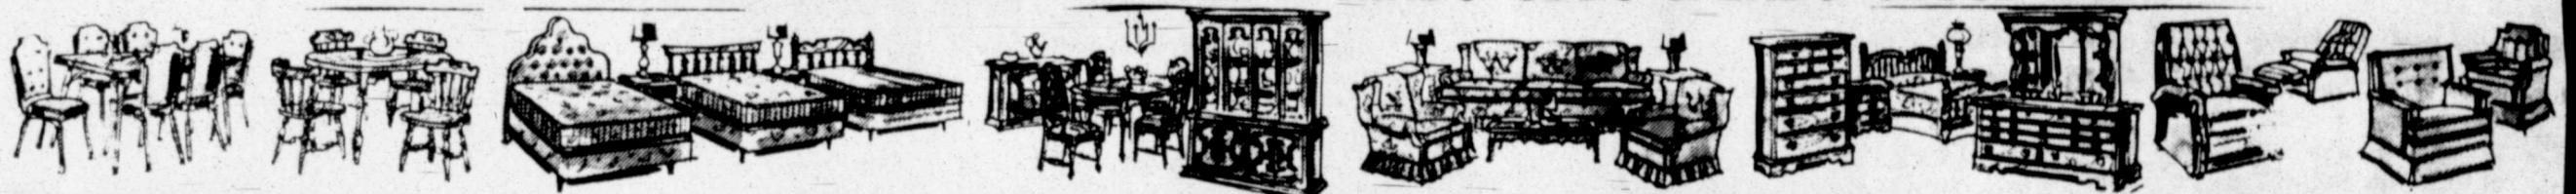

The quiet Pulaski County courthouse in Winamac, Indiana, will 'come alive' today as jury selection begins in the trial of Ford Motor Co. on charges of reckless homicide. The unprecedented case grew out of a Pinto auto crash in which three young women died. (AP Laserphoto)

Gandhi back in power

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and her branch of the Congress Party headed for a smashing national election triumph today, less than 34 months after Indian voters dumped her from office to protest her abandonment of democracy for 19 months.

Results from 108 of the 524 election districts represented in the lower house of Parliament gave 84 seats to Mrs. Gandhi's Indira Congress Party and its allies. These first results were from a cross-section of districts across the country and suggested a landslide for the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's 62-year-old daughter, who headed the government from 1966 until her defeat in the last election in March 1977.

Others elected included seven candidates from the Janata Party headed by Jagjivan Ram, unofficial leader of the Untouchables; two each from the old Congress Party, caretaker Prime Minister Charan Singh's Lok Dal and the two Communist parties, and nine candidates from other minor parties and independents.

More than half of the 362 eligible voters stamped paper ballots in the voting Thursday and Sunday, and final results were expected later today.

Mrs. Gandhi was rebuked by the voters in the last parliamentary election after she turned the world's biggest democracy into a dictatorship for 19 months of emergency rule in which she suspended civil liberties, jailed thousands of her opponents and allowed her son Sanjay to carry out a birth control program of forced sterilization.

The voters turned to the Janata Party headed by Morarji Desai, a coalition united largely by opposition to Mrs. Gandhi without a program for coping with India's huge economic and social problems. With the octogenarian Desai at the helm, the government was ineffective and the alliance broke down into squabbling factions, with the leader of each maneuvering for power.

Desai was forced out in July, and Mrs. Gandhi threw her support to Finance Minister Charan Singh to keep Ram from becoming prime minister. Then she withdrew her support from Singh, forcing the calling of the election and leaving Singh as caretaker prime minister.

In a vigorous comeback campaign that sometimes included appearances at 20 rallies a day, Mrs. Gandhi defended the emergency as a period of economic progress and stability which she said the Janata government squandered. Her comeback was fueled by public dissatisfaction with inflation, now nearly 20 percent, and the soaring crime rate.

Twelve deaths were blamed on political violence during the two-month campaign, and press reports said 20 persons were killed in election-day violence. There were also charges of voter harassment.

Three men arrested in Houston kiddieporn case

HOUSTON (AP) — The parents of half a dozen young boys were surprised to discover the three men who gave their children candy and took them to ballgames also paid them to pose for nude photographs, according to police.

"There could be another 100 kids involved as far as we know," said juvenile officer John Freeman, after officers questioned six boys aged 9 to 14.

Charges of indecency with a child were filed Saturday against Golden Preston Hatcher, 54; Frederick Keller, 34; and Jon J. Johansen, 64.

Bond for Hatcher and Keller was set at $35,000 apiece. Johansen, whose bond was set at $30,000, was still being sought late Sunday.

Officers said they arrested Hatcher early Saturday in his apartment, where they found photographic equipment and pictures of nude children, plus jars filled with candy, cookies and "anything a kid would like to have," according to Sgt. R.R. Benestante.

Keller was arrested about 30 minutes later as he drove into Hatcher's driveway with three boys he had taken to a wrestling match.

Benestante said the men would approach disadvantaged children, offering them entertainment their parents often could not afford, such as trips to the movies and to sporting events.

The men often received parents' permission to keep the boys overnight after taking them out, police said.

The investigation began, officers said, after a woman called police when she became worried after talking to her son.

Benestante said the parents of the children were "very surprised" that a man they had known for three years had been accused of abusing children.

Sniper dies at Dallas roadblock

DALLAS (AP) — A man who fired random shots in a busy city park and later died in a hail of gunfire as he drove toward a police roadblock may have killed himself, officers said.

An autopsy was ordered to determine the cause of death for Jose Angel Vargas, 29, of Dallas, described as an illegal alien by authorities.

Police spokesman Bob Shaw said Vargas on Sunday began firing at random a .22-caliber rifle while inside the park just south of downtown Dallas.

"He was shooting in all directions," said witness Joe Christopher, who lives across the street from the park and called police with the shooting report. "It's just by the grace of God that he didn't hit somebody. There were a lot of people over there."

When police dispatchers received word of the shooting, a squad of tactical and patrol officers sped to the park and set up a command post about 100 yards from Vargas, said Shaw.

"I think the sniper fired somewhere in the neighborhood of a dozen shots after police went to the scene," he said. "I don't know how many he fired before that."

Vargas turned his rifle on the officers, Shaw said. Vargas then got in his car and drove toward the police roadblock, and officer Ronnie Woods fired at him three times, the spokesman said.

One bullet hit the car window, another struck Vargas in the abdomen, said Shaw. There was a third bullet in Vargas' head, but Shaw said it was not immediately known who fired it.

"He suffered a head wound, but there were powder burns on the forehead and he was holding a .38-caliber pistol in his hand," Shaw said. He said authorities had ordered an autopsy to determine whether Vargas died from a police bullet or one of his own.

Vargas' sister told investigators her brother, a machinist in the city's garment district, had been in the country illegally for about three years and had four children at home in Guatemala, Shaw said.

Blanca Piniagua, 27, told police she had seen her brother earlier in the day and that he appeared to be drunk or under the influence of drugs, Shaw said.

She also told officers that Vargas had made an attempt on his life once before, Shaw said.

Chinese saying, 'We told you so'

By JOHN RODERICK

PEKING (AP) — The presence of a large Soviet army in Afghanistan arouses the concern of China's leaders chiefly because of the threat those troops pose to Pakistan, an old friend and ally.

The Soviet intervention also is a golden opportunity for the Chinese to remind the United States and pro-Soviet countries of the Third World: "We told you so."

Though China shares 25 miles of its remote western border with Afghanistan, Chinese interests in its primitive, landlocked Moslem neighbor are minimal. Like the United States, it has peddled its wares and sought to implant its influence there but with little success compared to the Soviet Union.

More than anything else, China sees the Soviet move as a threat to Pakistan on one side and the Persian Gulf trade routes on the other.

"By occupying Afghanistan the Russians can take advantage of the situation in Iran at any time to direct the momentum of their push toward the gulf area, while posing an immediate threat to Pakistan," said the Peking People's Daily, the organ of the Communist Party.

Even if the U.S.-Iranian crisis subsides and a temporary calm descends on the Indian subcontinent, it continued, "the large Soviet military presence in Afghanistan can still serve as a powerful mainspring of subversive activities in these areas and a tormenting threat to the sea lane which brings oil to the West."

It added that the Soviet charge that China, Egypt, Pakistan and the United States were conspiring with the Moslem rebels in Afghanistan was shameless and not worth denying.

Both the United States and China have a stake in Pakistan. They have long been its allies and supported it in the December 1971 Bangladesh war with India, which they considered pro-Soviet. Following the ouster of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in 1977, China made cautious overtures to her successors, but Pakistan remains a highly regarded ally.

Perhaps more important to the Chinese in the long run than the fate of the Afghans is the credibility that the Soviet action gives to China's past warnings.

For years Peking has told the United States it should quit seeking detente with the Soviet Union because the Russians would never honor their pledges. It said the attempt to reach a new arms reduction agreement with the Soviet Union was laudatory but futile, that the thing Moscow respects is superior military power.

Premier Hua Guofeng made this point repeatedly during his tour of West Germany, France, Italy and Britain last fall. Unity and resolve were better than Soviet intentions, he said in effect.

By WALTER R. MEARS

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Sometimes, debater Bob Dole observed, politicians say things in the heat of battle and live to regret their words.

The senator from Kansas learned that from experience. His rivals for the Republican presidential nomination got the message.

It is a message of caution, and that is why their six-way debate was relatively restrained, with more agreement than argument.

Nobody wanted to play the heavy, and nobody wanted to make a damaging mistake.

As a result, the statements of the debating candidates sometimes were more tempered than those they have made as solo campaigners.

Ronald Reagan, the pollsters' favorite in Iowa's Republican precinct caucuses two weeks from today, skipped the debate on grounds it would be divisive.

It wasn't. Because Reagan is the leader, his strategists figured he had nothing to gain by sharing a platform with the rest of the field. The other candidates said, predictably, that he would suffer politically for staying away.

He may, but the Iowa competition, in which Republicans will assemble to vote their preferences in neighborhood meetings, is primarily a test of organizational strength and old loyalties, and so is not likely to be markedly altered by Reagan's no-show at the debate.

The organizing efforts of the others, particularly former U.N. Ambassador George Bush, probably represent a more serious threat to Reagan than does any voter resentment at his limited personal campaign in Iowa. He is appearing in Davenport tonight, in Waterloo on Thursday, and in Des Moines on Jan. 19, and that apparently will be it.

The protests of the six candidates who debated Saturday night in a forum sponsored by the Des Moines Register and Tribune reflect the frustration of the men who are trying to overtake Reagan and can't get at him.

With the exception of Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, the most liberal Republican of the lot, they don't have much to debate with each other — or, for that matter, with Reagan.

On most major issues, they agree. So when former Texas Gov. John B. Connally was asked to spell out his differences with Reagan, he said he couldn't answer because he had no inkling of Reagan's stand on the issues.

He does, of course. Reagan has been campaigning for years. But Reagan's views do not differ sharply from his own, so Connally chose to make an issue of the absence of the former California governor.

Anderson was the only candidate to condemn Reagan's positions, saying the front-runner hasn't said anything new in 15 years. The rest of the field joined Connally and concentrated on complaints about Reagan's refusal to debate.

Anderson also was the only candidate to risk sharp, direct criticism of his fellow debaters. He said his rivals list in terms of military solutions to world problems, while he thinks the answers lie in economic revival and tough energy conservation measures.

Anderson said the other candidates are playing "the same old politics." That's about as heated as it got, because of a shortage of real policy differences and because of risks that hark back to Dole's observation.

Dole said candidates sometimes regret what they say when "we do things in the heat of battle, the heat of debate — maybe not this debate...."

Dole hasn't forgotten the debate lessons the Republican ticket learned four years ago. As the vice presidential nominee, he lumped all American wars of this century together as "Democrat wars," and spent days explaining that away. Former President Gerald R. Ford said in debate that there is no Soviet domination of eastern Europe, and had to do the same thing.

The first debaters of 1980 didn't want to walk into traps like those. So they played it cautiously, and agreed afterward that all of them had done all right and that Reagan was the only loser.

Reagan's people don't think so.

Adamson's death may be murder

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The Kenyan police announced today they believe Joy Adamson, the conservationist author of "Born Free," was murdered and are questioning three persons about her death last week. Commissioner of Police Ben Gethi said in a statement that the death of Mrs. Adamson is being treated as a murder case following new information on the circumstances surrounding the death. He gave no details. The 69-year-old Austrian naturalist, a long-time resident of Kenya, was killed Thursday night in the Shaba Game Reserve about 175 miles north of Nairobi. First reports from police and her co-workers indicated she was mauled and killed by a lion. But the Sunday Standard newspaper reported the police reopened their investigation after receiving reports that there was little blood at the site where Mrs. Adamson was reported killed, that there were no claw marks on her body and that her car had been stolen. President Daniel Arap Moi ordered a full investigation into the death, and police officials returned to the isolated camp Saturday. The body was brought to Nairobi, and a post-mortem examination was made on Saturday. The results were to be made public later today. Mrs. Adamson and her husband George, a retired game warden, were best known for their work in the rehabilitation of wild animals by taking a tame female, gradually returning it to the wild, breeding it to produce a litter and observing the animal's relations with them and with wild animals.

Oilers weep over missed call on Renfro 'Touchdown'

By LEONARD SHAPIRO
The Washington Post
'It's one of those things you swallow and go on...

RENFRU WAS closely covered by Steeler cornerback Ron Johnson. Both men went up in the air, and Renfro came down with the football.

call," Pastorini said. "They wouldn't give me any explanation of it. I asked and there was no answer. Mike had possession, his feet were in bounds and they just flat out took it away from us."

PITTSBURGH — Most of the Houston Oilers were crying out loud Sunday, howling that there was no question Mike Renfro had caught a touchdown pass late in the third quarter ruled incomplete in the Great Hem-Haw Controversy of the AFC championship game.

Orr was three yards from the play, but he hesitated making a call for several seconds. Then he looked over toward the goal posts at field judge Bill O'Brien, who offered no help.

The Oilers had other hurts Sunday, mostly inflicted by a Pittsburgh defense that often stacked eight men up at the line to hold Earl Campbell to 15 yards rushing in 17 carries and hit hard enough downfield to force two critical fumbles that led to Steeler scores.

The one thing they do better than anybody is pursue the ball. They're always around the football. Did he agree with Pastorini's analysis that he stayed with the run too long.

"What Pastorini calls, I run," Campbell said. "I don't question that." "No, most of the Oilers spent their time questioning Don Orr, and cursing him, too."

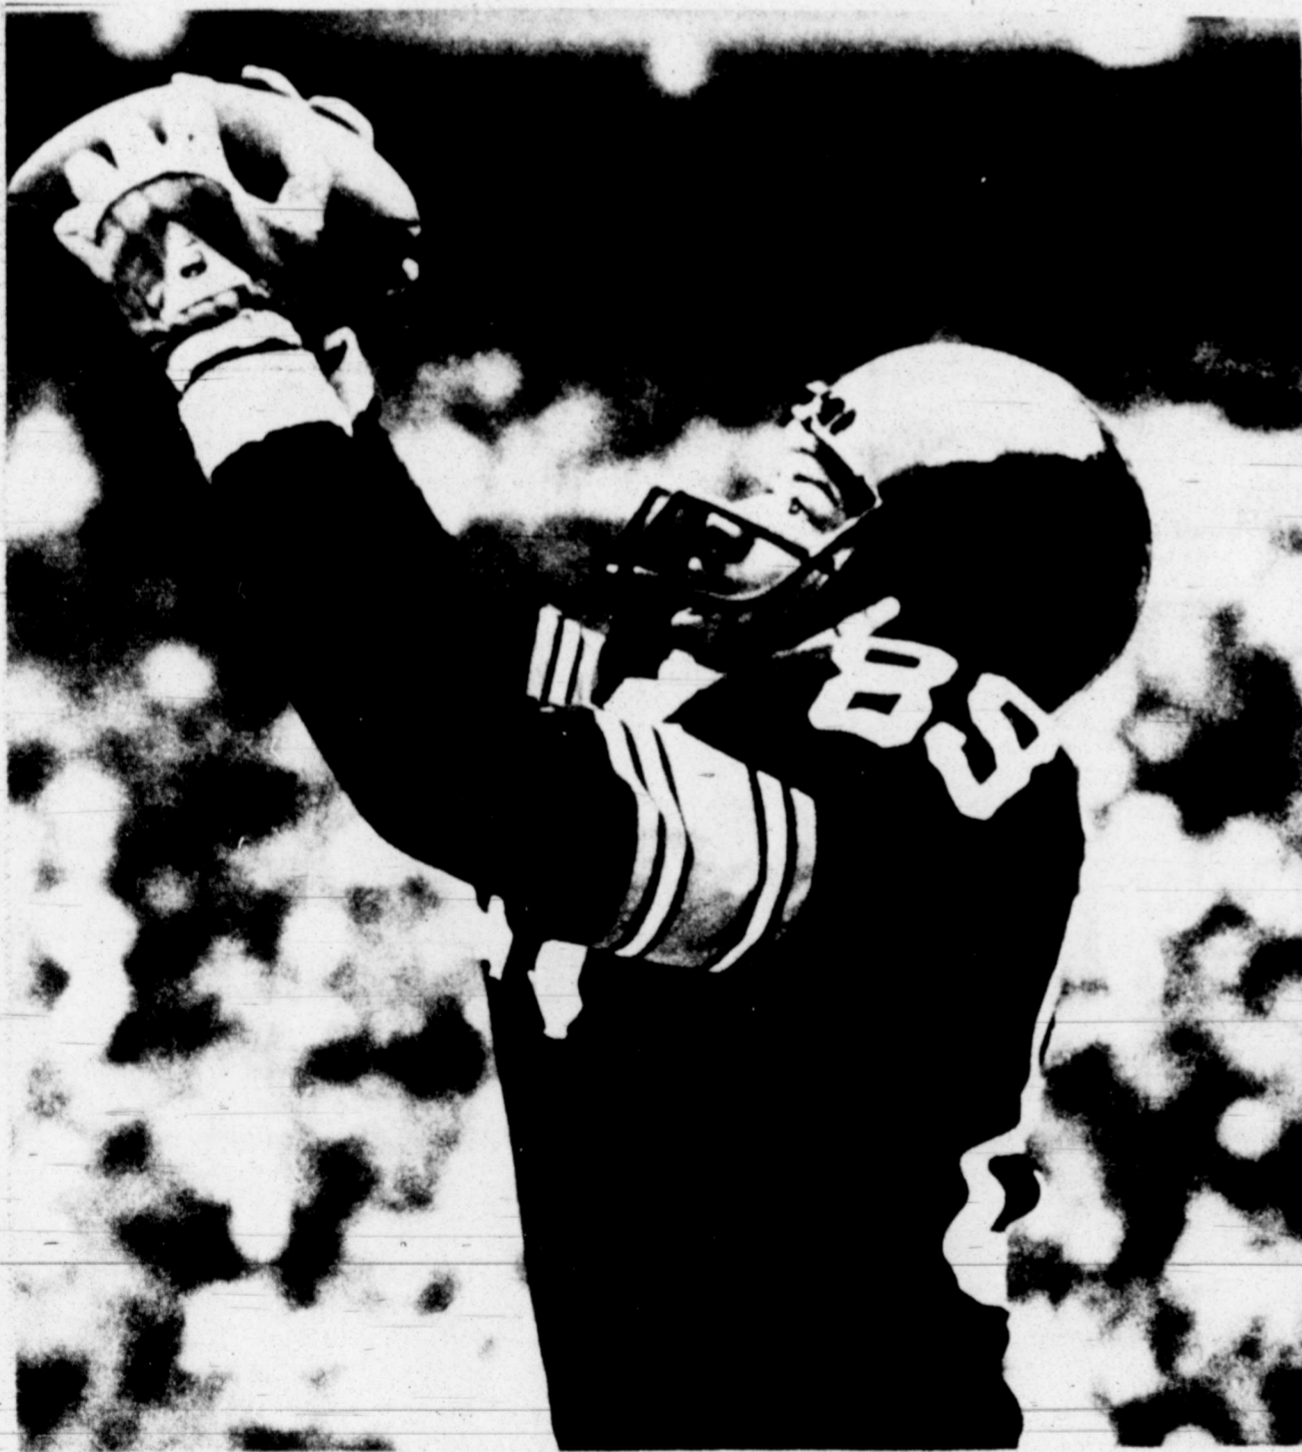

"It's funny," Renfro said, "but after the next play (after the nullified catch) I said to the referee, 'You really hurt us today, you shouldn't even be out here today.' The man was still starry-eyed."

TD... So What? Steelers figure they'd win anyway

By KEN DENLINGER
The Washington Post
PITTSBURGH — Like many of us, Terry Bradshaw thought Mike Renfro caught the ball in the end zone late in the third quarter.

what (during practice all week)," said halfback Rocky Bleier, "but we really weren't. There was a down undercurrent Thursday and Friday, especially Friday."

It was and it wasn't. The audible was a run, of course. But the Oilers ran the wrong way. Bleier was steaming downfield for the pass play Bradshaw, the sneak, had told the offense to run all along.

Steelers' Bennie Cunningham leaps for TD pass from Terry Bradshaw against Oilers.

"I was just watchin' it," the Steeler quarterback said, "and I thought it was a touchdown. But the guy (side judge Donald Orr) never raised his arms. He should be able to make the call, one way or the other."

Bradshaw also sensed an odd pre-game mood. "The Oilers were talking big," he said. "And that's just not their style."

The only problem was Bradshaw. He was supposed to loft the ball to Bleier 20 or so yards downfield — and Bleier was unbelievably open. But the pass was unbelievably short, like a Texas League pop-up, and wobbling.

Like many of us, Bradshaw thought the nullification important but not ultimately decisive.

"The Oilers were talking big," he said. "And that's just not their style. It was mostly hearsay, I didn't read much of the papers, but then a couple of them came up to me and said: 'We're gonna kick your butts.'"

Bleier made the pressure catch. "Terry made a great play, but I just wish he hadn't made it so difficult by underthrowing," Bleier said. "But I figured if the wide receivers can make sliding catches I could."

"So they score; we'll just score again." They had to stop us and they didn't. Not once, but twice. They were great, but my boys responded and got six at the end."

"I said to Joe Greene: 'They never did anything like this before. We better get our act together. But I couldn't get relaxed. I was a little cautious. I didn't want to make a mistake.'"

HE WAS referring to Lynn Swann, who made two sliding catches, one for a first down on third and 21 from the Steeler 25 during the drive immediately after the Renfro fuss.

That is the attitude here, the feeling that the Steelers were going to find a way to win the AFC title Sunday no matter what the circumstances, that they just might be subconsciously teasing us by allowing the Oilers to get ever so close to winning before saying: "No."

"They did." And then, with just under four minutes left and the Oilers still with a chance to send the game into overtime, with third and two from the Houston 37, Bradshaw became both bold and inventive.

Swann was cutting left near the goal line; Stallworth was cutting right near the back line. "That was the same play I threw the interception on," Bradshaw said. The interception (that Vernon Perry returned 75 yards for a touchdown) was intended for tight end Benny Cunningham, the touchdown pass for Stallworth, Bradshaw said, "because different coverage takes you to different folks."

IF OILER fans want to argue that the pressure of having to break a 17-17 tie instead of padding a four-point lead might have caused Matt Bahr to miss from 39 yards on the possession after the Renfro controversy, Pittsburgh fans could counter by saying Bahr might not have had to try that field goal.

In the huddle, he told the team he would audible at the line — but to pay it no mind. He had called a play that was a spinoff of the audible he would call a few seconds later.

Even Bradshaw was concerned that Swann would spoil the play, that his leap would be high enough to deflect the ball from Stallworth.

The added pressure of a tie might have inspired the Steelers to get a touchdown of their own. Hadn't they matched the Oilers point-for-point all afternoon, spotted then a touchdown early and come storming back, made every catch and play that was absolutely necessary?

AS BRADSHAW stood over center Mike Webster, looked left and yelled "35 Trap" and then looked right and yelled "35 Trap." Bleier could see the Oilers becoming ever so confident, assuming the audible was a running play.

Late in the second quarter, Ferragamo hit four straight passes to move to first down at the Bucs' 13, but a gain settled for a Corral field goal.

Still, the Steelers had been uncharacteristically tense before the game — and Bradshaw surprisingly cautious much of the time after it began.

The Rams, shedding themselves of a hard-luck chokers' image that dogged them through playoff losses the last six seasons, were subdued after the game.

With 72,033 Buc fans chanting and roaring against them, the Rams put together offensive drive after drive, only to fall short.

Whalen to coach MHS baseball team

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

Tim Whalen, former Midland Lee junior varsity baseball coach, has been named head baseball coach at Midland High by Gil Bartosh, athletic director of the Midland Independent School District.

have had at Midland High, I thought it was best to stabilize the baseball program, and Tim has a great record. He is going to be a valuable asset to the Midland High program," Bartosh said today.

Whalen, who has been the JV baseball coach for the past five years at Lee, is excited about the opportunity of being a head baseball coach and he feels he is ready for the new challenge.

"I've been under one of the best coaches in West Texas (Lee's Ernie Johnson) for the last five years. Ernie has been a great teacher and if you work that long under someone as good as he is then you should be ready for a head position," Whalen stated.

Rams praise Lord, pass gauze

By DAN SEWELL

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The battered Los Angeles Rams praised the Lord, passed the gauze and didn't stop until they had ended six years of frustration, leaving the Tampa Bay Buccaneers tending to their wounds at the end of a Cinderella season.

The upstart Bucs, who made it to their first National Football Conference title game with the same starting lineup that opened the season, lost all-Pro defensive end Lee Roy Selmon and linebacker Cecil Johnson to ankle injuries, quarterback Doug Williams with a torn bicep and defensive end Wally Chambers with a knee injury during a 9-0 loss to the Rams Sunday.

Severe injuries weren't enough to stop the inspired Rams. "It's hard to conceive what we've accomplished here today," said end Jack Youngblood, who played despite a hairline fracture in his left leg.

"That's the most injuries we've had all year, but I would just say the Rams out-hit us," Bucs' Coach John Mackay said. "We tried to knock a couple of them out, but they'd limp out and limp back in."

booted second-quarter field goals of 19 and 21 yards and a fourth-quarter clincher of 23 yards — despite a hamstring pull suffered in his kicking leg last week. Halfback Wendell Tyler, who gained 86 yards rushing on 28 carries, played despite twisting a knee that underwent surgery last year.

"All year, everybody's been playing injured on this team. We've got a lot of guys who are going to need operations when this is over," said linebacker Rich Saul, who climbed out of a hospital bed with a raging fever the previous week to play in the Rams' 21-19 upset of Dallas.

The Rams, shedding themselves of a hard-luck chokers' image that dogged them through playoff losses the last six seasons, were subdued after the game.

With 72,033 Buc fans chanting and roaring against them, the Rams put together offensive drive after drive, only to fall short.

Third-year quarterback Vince Ferragamo, displaying veteran poise, hit Dennard for a 35-yard gain to the Tampa Bay 4 to set up a first-and-goal late in the first quarter, but the Rams settled for Corral's 19-yard field goal.

Late in the second quarter, Ferragamo hit four straight passes to move to first down at the Bucs' 13, but a gain settled for a Corral field goal.

But while their offense struggled the Rams defense bottled up the running of hard-charging Bucs' fullback Ricky Bell and kept up the pressure on Williams, who completed only two of 13 passes before leaving the game in the third quarter with his arm injury.

Early in the third quarter, an apparent 20-yard touchdown pass from Ferragamo to Dennard was wiped out by an official's ruling that Dennard was out of bounds, and Corral missed a 37-yard field goal attempt on the next play.

On the Bucs' next series, Williams was injured when tackle Mike Fanning hit him as he threw, and he joined Selmon, Chambers and Johnson on the Bucs' sideline.

Reserve quarterback Mike Rae completed just one of his first five passes and was sacked by Fanning of the next two series. Gains of 13 yards by Tyler and 12 by Cullen Bryant around a 15-yard Ferragamo completion to tight end Terry Nelson set up Corral's clinching 43-yard field goal with 8:09 left in the game.

'Exorcised' child dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Burned over 95 percent of his body, 20-month-old Leon Justin fought for life for five days as doctors warned his chance of survival was remote.

But the toddler, allegedly scalded with hot water and baked in an oven in what police said was his mother's attempt to exorcise a demon, died Sunday at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

A hospital spokesman said the cause of death appeared to be cardiac arrest. An autopsy was planned.

The baby's mother, Patricia Abraham, 25, has been undergoing psychiatric examination since she was seized early Tuesday in her apartment, officials say.

A spokesman for the Manhattan district attorney said a grand jury hearing the case against Miss Abraham would be told of the child's death. She currently is charged with first-degree assault.

The site for registration from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday in Pecos. Four courses are being offered from 6:30 to 9:15 p.m. Wednesday: Criminal Justice 400, Criminal Justice Organization Theory and Practice; PED 634, Curriculum Foundation of the Secondary School; PED 611, Early Childhood Education: Curricula, Procedure and Materials; and Marketing 600, The Marketing Process.

Some gold dealers discovering 'there's gold in them thar teeth'

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — "There's gold in them thar teeth" is what Boise gold dealers are finding out. With the price of the metal topping $600 an ounce, some people are trading their gold-inlay dental work for cash.

Soft pieces, such as crowns, can contain up to 90 percent gold, he said, while bridges and other hard pieces contain about 70 percent gold.

The rate area gold dealers pay for dental gold ranged this week from $5.15 to $9.76 per pennyweight. An average crown weighs about 2.5 pennyweights, which would bring anywhere from $12.88 to $24.40, depending on which company the seller selected.

Lowry said he charged about $230 for a gold-inlay crown. About $50 to $70 in gold is used in an average crown, he said, and a person trying to sell it for scrap could get only a fraction of the original cost.

she'd paid $150 to have put on. She said her dentist had "put it on wrong."

Area gold buyers agreed that people selling dental gold probably have already had the dental work removed and don't have extractions just to get at the precious metal.

Baby dolphin's death remains unexplained

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Niagara Falls aquarium officials say they have no idea what killed the dolphin-born Christmas Day to the cheers of people surrounding her mother's tank.

Christmas, as the baby mammal was named, died suddenly Sunday morning when she floated to the surface of her tank, unable to breathe.

"At 9:58 she was swimming around normally. At 10 she was dead," said Bela Babus, manager of the aquarium. "She had not been bumped or anything. She gave no warning."

Ms. Babus said the dolphin began gasping for breath as spectators looked on, but was dead before she could be pulled from the tank.

"From our standpoint it was a complete anatomical shutdown — there were no warning signs prior to it," Ms. Babus said.

Gold trade 'volatile'

LONDON (AP) — The gold boom again gripped world markets today as bullion hit a new high of $673.16 an ounce in Hong Kong. But it slipped back to close at $653.61 while in Europe the price dropped from $645 to $635.

Trading was volatile with prices swinging up and down. Some analysts predicted a major shake-out after the doubling of the price in the past four months.

The U.S. dollar was mostly lower. The record Hong Kong price came just before noon in the Asian trading center.

The opening price in London and Zurich, Europe's two biggest gold markets, was a median $645 an ounce, matching the previous European record set in Zurich on Jan. 3.

Profit-taking and rumors of a big U.S. Treasury gold sale halted the gold boom in Europe last Friday, and the metal closed then at $595.50 in London and $585 in Zurich.
