U.S. pleads for 'meaningful' U.N. action

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States called on other U.N. members to join it in "meaningful" action against Iran after the second Soviet veto in a week killed a Security Council resolution authorizing sanctions until the American hostages are released.

But Iran's foreign minister said the hostages would be kept until the shah is returned, even if this took "forever," and warned other governments "not to get involved in the U.S. political games and avoid any measure which may blur our relations with the respective governments." Iran's oil minister has threatened to cut off oil sales to nations supporting U.S. sanc-

... We urge all other members of the United Nations to join with us in the application of meaningful measures against the continued holding of the hostages in defiance of international law," U.S. Ambassador Donald McHenry told the council after the veto Sunday night nullified a 10-2 vote in favor of collective punitive action. "Only thus will we demonstrate to Iran that their lawless actions are viewed with disfavor by all nations."

"The United States will, of course, welcome and cooperate with the continued good offices of the Secretary General and all members of the world community in seeking a solution to the present crisis. We sincerely hope that despite the Soviet veto, our efforts will lead to the return of the hostages and the return to the rule of law in international affairs."

The council in a resolution Dec. 31 called on Iran to free the hostages and said if they were not released by Jan. 7, it would "adopt effective measures." McHenry said this was a "binding obligation" to adopt sanctions which the Soviet veto thwarted, and "the membership of the United Nations at large remains obliged to take effective measures consistent with the U.N. Charter to carry out that resolution."

The Soviet Union abstained on the earlier resolution, which was adopted by a vote of 11-0. McHenry said the Soviet veto on the sanctions resolution was "an act of political expediency designed to buy Iranian silence on Afghanistan and Soviet advantage in the area."

On Jan. 7, the Soviet Union cast its first veto of the new year against a council resolution protesting the Russian military intervention in Afghanistan.

Among the steps against Iran being considered by the United States is a naval blockade to enforce economic sanctions and a reduction of Western diplomats in Tehran. U.S. officials in Washington reported Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher will discuss this with America's allies in Europe this week as he tries to line up allied action on Afghanistan.

But Iranian Foreign Minister Saadeh Ghotbzadeh said if the United States continues to "play politics" with the embassy impasse, the hostages will remain in captivity. He told a Tehran news conference that his government was prepared to wait "more or less forever" for the extradition of the ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, as demanded by the students who seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and the approximately 50 hostages Nov. 4.

Ghotbzadeh said unless the U.N. approves Secretary General Kurt Waldheim's proposal for a commission to investigate the shah's alleged crimes, "I see no solution to the problem." But he said the commission's recommendations would not be binding on Iran, and the release of the hostages would have to be "simultaneous" with the return of the shah.

On Friday and Saturday the Iranians got the Security Council to delay action on the U.S. request for sanctions by indicating their government was prepared to negotiate on the hostages. But after Waldheim talked with Ghotbzadeh by telephone for about 30 minutes Sunday seeking clarification, he said "a gap still exists between the Iranian and U.S. positions."

'Stiff resistance' seen in eastern Afghanistan

By The Associated Press

Moslem rebels were reported putting up stiff resistance to Soviet troops in the highlands of eastern Afghanistan as thousands of Afghans packed mosques in the capital city of Kabul to mourn political prisoners killed by the previous communist government.

Diplomats in Islamabad, Pakistan, said the Afghan rebels had stepped up fighting near the eastern border with Pakistan. Pakistani newspapers reported heavy fighting across the rugged countryside of the Central Asian nation, including the northern region bordering the Soviet Union.

The reports could not be confirmed.

In Kabul, thousands crowded mosques Sunday to mourn political prisoners slain during President Hafizullah Amin's regime. Unconfirmed reports have estimated 12,000 Afghans were killed by Amin and his predecessor, Nur Mohammed Taraki, who installed the first communist government in Kabul in an April 1978 coup.

The fiercely anti-communist rebels launched their guerrilla war after Taraki came to power. Amin, Taraki's prime minister, overthrew his chief in September 1979 and Taraki was killed. Amin in turn was ousted and executed in a Soviet-backed coup Dec. 27, two days after the Soviets began pouring an estimated 100,000 troops into Afghanistan to prop up the new president they picked, Babrak Karmal, and fight the Moslem insurgents.

A senior U.S. official claimed Friday that the Russians were conducting a brutal campaign to "exterminate those who oppose them." The official, who declined to be identified, said Washington believes several hundred Afghans have been executed since the Soviets stepped in. However, one unconfirmed report from a Pakistani newspaper, the Morning News of Karachi, said the Soviets have killed 4,000 civilians and guerrillas.

The Kremlin says it intervened in Afghanistan at Amin's request because the United States, China, Pakistan and Egypt were arming and training the Afghan guerrillas.

President Carter, seeking to increase Western pressure on the Soviet Union, sent Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher to Europe Sunday. He will consult with British, French, West German and Italian officials about the possibility of a boycott of the summer Olympics in Moscow and about military and economic aid to Pakistan, which feels itself threatened by the Soviet advance.

Christopher will go to Brussels late in the week for a session of the North Atlantic Council at which the allies will consider retaliatory moves against the Soviets. Carter has already shut off technological sales to the Soviet Union and imposed a partial embargo on grain exports.

Pakistan's president, Gen. Muhammad Zia ul-Haq, told reporters Sunday that Carter had advised him in a telephone conversation that he was "ordering the immediate release of military equipment" to Pakistan. He did not elaborate.

In Washington, administration sources said Carter has tentatively approved $400 million in military and economic aid to Pakistan if Congress concurs. The United States halted military aid to Pakistan last year because it suspected the Pakistanis were developing nuclear weapons.

China's Foreign Minister Huang Hua begins a four-day visit to Pakistan on Friday to discuss aid for the country which shares a 1,200-mile border with Afghanistan. Defense Secretary Harold Brown, who ended a nine-day visit to China on Saturday, said China "certainly will be assisting Pakistan in various ways."

After their weighing-in Sunday, these sheep didn't have much to do at the Midland County Livestock Show at the Midland County Exhibit Building — except to discuss whose chances are best for the blue ribbon, as seems to be the case here. The show runs through Tuesday night. Related photos, story on Pages 2A and 3A. (Staff Photo by Mike Kardos)

Carter defends Soviet reprisals

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is warning that normal trade with the Soviet Union will not resume soon "under even the best of circumstances," as his administration steps up a campaign of reprisals that could lead to a boycott of the Moscow Olympics.

Strongly defending his handling of the crises in Afghanistan and Iran, Carter declared Sunday night that "political considerations and economic profit" must be set aside in responding to the threats they pose.

Earlier, a White House official said Carter "cannot support U.S. participation in the Moscow Olympics if Soviet troops are still in Afghanistan."

The president dispatched Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher to Europe Sunday to consult with U.S. allies about a possible Olympic boycott and joint military and economic aid to Pakistan, which borders Afghanistan.

Carter tentatively has approved $400 million in U.S. military and economic aid to Pakistan beginning immediately, if Congress consents, the administration disclosed.

All the weapons would be "defensive" and warplanes would be excluded in deference to India's concern about strengthening Pakistan, its neighbor and long-time antagonist.

The administration's thrust Sunday also included a renewed threat to Iran. Defense Secretary Harold Brown indicated a naval blockade of that country still is being considered to counter its holding of 50 U.S. hostages.

"Specifically, we cannot rule out the option of cutting off Iranian imports by one means or another," he said when asked about a possible blockade.

Such a blockade, however, is considered a long-range contingency. Brown, who just completed talks with Chinese leaders in Peking, said he expects continued cooperation with the Chinese in response to the Soviets. "I'm sure the Chinese will be assisting Pakistan in various ways," he said on the ABC News program "Issues and Answers."

Carter, addressing the White House conference on small business, denounced the Soviet Union's "massive invasion of the small, nonaligned country of Afghanistan" and asked all Americans to "stand with me."

"Normal trade and commerce has been interrupted to demonstrate vividly our abhorrence and condemnation of terrorism and military aggression against innocent people," he told the 2,100 small business delegates.

"In reaching my decision to act, I had to face some tough choices," he said. "There are many risks. There are economic costs. We are sharing those costs, so the burden will not fall only on you or on American farmers or any other particular group."

His remarks were greeted with scattered applause. Several of Carter's rivals for the presidency have sharply criticized his decision to embargo 17 million tons of grain to the Soviet Union, saying American farmers will suffer more than the Russians.

However, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland predicted meat shortages in the Soviet Union as a result of the U.S. embargo. Interviewed on the CBS News program "Face the Nation," Bergland said he expects the Soviets to have a deficit of 14 million metric tons of grain, forcing them to cut livestock production 5 percent to 8 percent below last year's levels.

Nkomo makes triumphant return

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Defying death threats from white Rhodesians and South Africans, guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo returned home to a hero's welcome from 120,000 cheering blacks.

"It's unfortunate we had to fight a war to bring about universal suffrage elections. Let's get together and say that it's over," said the burly, 62-year-old leader of the Zimbabwe African People's Union as he arrived in Salisbury on Sunday after three years of self-imposed exile with his guerrillas in Zambia.

The other leader of the Popular Front guerrilla alliance, Robert Mugabe of the Zimbabwe African National Union, is to return next Sunday from Mozambique, where his guerrillas were based during the seven-year war against white rule. Nkomo, Mugabe and Bishop Abel Muzorewa, Rhodesia's first black prime minister, will be the leading candidates in the elections to be held Feb. 27-29.

A secret group of South African businessmen has offered $125,000 to anyone who assassinates Nkomo, and a number of white Rhodesians have also threatened to kill him. The airport was heavily guarded for his arrival, and a helicopter took him from there to the black township of Highfield, on the outskirts of Salisbury, where the huge crowd waited to greet him.

"We have won our country," he shouted hoarsely as the throng pressed toward the two-story-high wooden platform and hundreds fainted in the crush and heat.

But Nkomo also urged that Rhodesia's 9 million blacks show moderation in their postwar dealings with the 250,000 whites who tried so hard to block black rule.

"We are not racists," he declared. "This was a war we did not want." The war was the result of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's unilateral declaration of independence from Britain in 1965 to block black rule. Nkomo and Mugabe formed the Popular Front in 1974, but the alliance was an uneasy one, and they never unified their forces in the field.

Nkomo, considered more moderate than the socialist Mugabe, returned on the 16th day of a cease-fire agreed to by the guerrilla leaders and Muzorewa at a conference in London at which they also agreed on a new constitution reducing the rights of the whites.

Muzorewa, who became the country's first black prime minister after elections in April, agreed to step aside, and Britain resumed control of the breakaway colony until after the elections. Meanwhile, some 22,000 guerrillas have turned themselves in and are gathered in assembly areas supervised by 1,300 British and Commonwealth troops.

Picketing begun at Love Field by striking Southwest machinists

DALLAS (AP) — Pickets surfaced at Dallas' Love Field Airport as Southwest Airlines management personnel worked feverishly to re-route flights affected by an International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers strike.

Southwest spokeswoman Camille Keith said Sunday that 745 of the airline's weekly flights would be cut from the schedule but management personnel would keep 901 flights in the air.

Ms. Keith said Southwest would operate a revised schedule six days a week to all 12 cities served by the Dallas-based carrier. New Orleans is the only city outside Texas served by Southwest.

All Saturday flights have been canceled. A federal mediator called company and union officials back to the bargaining table Saturday in a last-minute effort to avoid a walkout by 106 machinists, cleaners and stock clerks.

However, pickets went up at Love Field and at two maintenance buildings after the session failed to produce a settlement to replace a three-year contract that expired in August.

Shortly after negotiations broke down, Southwest president Howard Putnam said, "We will not make a new offer."

"The IAM has continued their unreasonable demands which the company has told them repeatedly it cannot meet. We are still a long way apart," Putnam said.

A union spokesman said Sunday that union members were picketing the Southwest terminal at Love Field and two maintenance buildings. "Everything's going smoothly so far," he said.

He said some airline employees were honoring the pickets, but "those who are not organized (in a union) are not."

No further negotiations were scheduled, he said.

Putnam added the airline is a short-haul commuter and must operate with a higher productivity and a lower cost structure to offer fares 40 to 50 percent lower than many other carriers.

"The contract was rejected by 90 percent of the members, and a strike vote was approved by the same amount," said IAM spokesman Joe Medley.

The 106 union members voted on the airlines' "complete and final" offer Saturday in three separate meetings. As soon as the votes were counted, federal mediators sought another negotiating session in order to avoid a walkout.

Man arrested in hostage incident

FREEPORT, Texas (AP) — A Brownsville man, accused of turning a gun on his shipmates and holding them on a shrimp boat over the weekend, was in a Houston jail today awaiting arraignment.

The man, identified as Robin Alexander Stansbury, 21, was arrested Sunday morning by FBI agents, who boarded the boat in the Gulf of Mexico about 20 miles out from Freeport on the upper Texas coast.

A spokesman for the FBI in Houston said charges of crime on the high seas-kidnapping were being prepared. A $100,000 bond was recommended in the case, the spokesman said.

Crewmen aboard the 68-foot Easy Rider told authorities the drama began Saturday morning, while they were shrimp fishing off the coast of Intercoastal City, La., about 240 miles up the coast from Freeport.

"He (the suspect) told me he wanted to go home, that it was an emergency. We didn't have any indication that he was upset. He was real quiet," said Jack Waller Jr., captain of the boat and son of owner Jack Waller Sr. of Brownsville.

Waller said the suspect had been quiet and created no problems since he hired on. The three men had been fishing together off Morgan City, La., since Jan. 2, Waller said. The man forced Waller and crewman Ronald Bush, 24, into the ice hold, where the shrimp are kept, the captain said.

"The only part I hated was going into the hold, but if somebody's holding a gun on you and the safety is off, you do it," he said.

Bush said the man had a rifle and a pistol, and Waller said he didn't think he knew much about guns.

"He told us he wouldn't hurt us if we'd just take him home," Bush said. "He said there was an emergency. But yes, we were still worried. When someone's holding a gun on you, you're going to be worried."

"I was very scared."

Indira Gandhi takes oath of office

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Indira Gandhi took the oath as India's prime minister today, capping a phoenix-like rise from the ashes of political defeat in the 1977 national election. In a ceremony at Rashtrapati Bhavan, the presidential palace, President Neelam Sanjiva Reddy swore in the daughter of India's first prime minister, the late Jawaharlal Nehru, for her fourth term as leader of this nation of 684 million people, the world's most populous democracy. Five hundred supporters packed the ornate Ashoka Hall for the ceremony. Mrs. Gandhi, beaming in a maroon and gold silk sari with a shawl, greeted many of her personally.

She told The Associated Press her new government would "make India stable, strong and fully independent." One of her posters in the election campaign that returned her to office charged that the governments in power since her defeat were "under the thumb" of President Carter.

Carter settles dispute over HEW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, in a move to bolster civil rights enforcement in the areas of health and welfare, has settled a Cabinet-level dispute over how to split up the HEW division that pursues cases of illegal discrimination. The accord — part of the effort to carve a new Department of Education out of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare — fueled some fears that civil rights enforcement in all areas might suffer. The dispute involved deployment of the 1,700-person Office of Civil Rights at HEW. Administration sources say two-thirds of HEW's civil rights enforcement staff will move to the Education Department when it is created later this year. That will leave one-third to pursue health and welfare violations, more people than now work in these two areas.

The sources say the decision by the Office of Management and Budget was made last week, resolving a disagreement between HEW Secretary Patricia Harris and Education Secretary Shirley Hufstедler. The secretaries disagreed on the distribution of civil rights enforcement staff members: Mrs. Harris sought to keep half in what will become the Department of Health and Human Services, sources said, while Mrs. Hufstедler asked that 80 per cent be assigned to education. Mrs. Hufstедler's request was based on the proportion of civil rights work that had been devoted to education. Last year, that was more than 86 per cent of the 3,700 complaints. But Mrs. Harris argued that the figure left too little staff for health and welfare cases. By keeping one-third of the staff, she won enough employees to increase enforcement in these areas. The split left both sides reasonably satisfied, said officials who requested anonymity. But civil rights organizations are taking a wait-and-see approach. The private groups argued for an overall staff increase to satisfy what they see as a need for greater enforcement efforts in all three areas. But sources said there will be little, if any, increase in the office staff and its $67.5-million annual budget because of administration efforts to hold down costs.

"This split is making it clear how inadequate the total resources are," said Sanford Newman, an attorney with the Center for Law and Social Policy, a public interest organization seeking tougher civil rights enforcement against hospitals and other health institutions. "Until now, HEW has done practically nothing on health and social services but we had understood that would change," he continued. "We see this split as a significant test of how committed President Carter is to civil rights enforcement in health and social services." But several women's rights groups support Hufstедler's position because the law specifically bans sex discrimination in education. The civil rights laws covering health and welfare contain no specific prohibition against such bias. "We think they should be doing more to enforce civil rights in health, but not at the expense of enforcement in education," said Holly Knox, director of the Project on Equal Education Rights. At the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, which handles civil rights cases in all three areas, attorney Beth Lief said, "It is outrageous for civil rights advocates to be placed in the position of sparring against each other." An element that complicated the decision was the fact HEW must comply with a court order requiring specific civil rights enforcement actions in education. That order stemmed from a lawsuit by private groups frustrated at what they consider past lax enforcement. Sources inside and outside of government say other civil rights groups may consider suits to force more vigorous action in the health and welfare fields if Mrs. Harris can't do the job with the roughly 550 staff members left in her civil rights office.

Never have so many Americans voted before with so little effect

By W. DALE NELSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Montgomery County, Md., Republican Harvest Moon Ball were the GOP National Convention, George Bush would be the party's candidate for president. If Florida's Democratic National Convention delegates had been picked at the party's state convention, three-fourths would have been pledged to President Carter. But the GOP will hold its convention July 14-18 in Detroit, not in the foyer of a Maryland dance hall, and Florida's delegates will be picked in the state's March 11 presidential primary. The Florida poll got much more publicity than the Maryland balloting. But they have two things in common, both were straw votes and neither has anything to do with the selection of delegates. The first delegates to be chosen for the national conventions will be picked in Republican and Democratic caucuses in Iowa next Monday. Already, however, straw votes have been held in Maine, Florida, Iowa, Michigan and Vermont, not to mention Jefferson County, Ala., and Suffolk, Windsor and East Granby, Conn. Minnesota Republicans will take a vote Feb. 26 and Oregon Democrats March 28. Perhaps never before in American politics have so many voted with so little effect. In some states, straw polls are nothing new. In Florida, for instance, Carter's victory in an informal ballot at the 1975 state convention is counted by some observers as an early signal of the strength that swept him to the nomination. In other states, such as Oregon and Michigan, the polls are being held for the first time. Spokesmen for the major political parties and presidential candidates agree that the straw votes are growing in number but expressed doubts about their value. "It seems to be a newly found device to get attention for a state and its political party leadership," said Bob Neuman, deputy chairman and director of communications for the Democrats. "It is certainly not a device that has been encouraged by the Democratic National Committee. It tends to drag out and confuse the delegate selection process. To the contrary, our efforts have been to try to condense it and make it more simple." Republican National Committee spokesman Mike Baroody said the straw polls "give you lists of names with numbers after them, but of course they don't mean anything in terms of delegate strength." Representatives of candidates agreed that winning a straw poll can be an important boost to a relatively little known candidate, citing Carter's Florida victory in 1975 and Bush's surprise defeat of Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker at a mock Republican convention in Maine in November. Most, however, said the candidates spend little time trying to win votes of straw. "The validity of them ranges all the way from the sublime to the ridiculous," said Susan Morrison, deputy press secretary for Bush. Tom Griscom, Baker's campaign spokesman, said straw polls taken before any delegates are selected have the effect of "adding credibility or taking it away from various candidates before the show starts." In at least one case, a key supporter of a winner and an aide to a loser in a straw poll agreed that the balloting got more attention than it deserved. Florida Democratic Chairman Alfredo Duran, who backed Carter, said the mock vote at the state convention, originally designed to entice people to take part in party affairs, had been blown out of proportion. And Tom Southwick, press secretary to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who lost to Carter in the Florida vote, said, "The name of the game is how many delegates you get, not how many straws you get." Whatever their importance, the straw polls continue to draw attention.

Firemen were called to the Midland Hilton, Wall Avenue at Loraine Street, shortly before 9 p.m. Sunday to extinguish a grease fire, but the fire was already out when they arrived. According to fire department reports, the fire was in a filter in an exhaust vent. There was no damage, the reports indicated. The fire department was out 20 minutes on the call.

Green now guides third generation

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Charlie Green was just a young fella when he ambled into town and over the Midland County country-side to preach agriculture and guide youngsters more than 30 years ago.

He moved in as Midland County's agricultural agent in 1949 and has been planted firmly since.

"I was just a kid, no kidding," said Green, "not much older than the senior 4-H kids."

He was 23.

And with the opening of the 1980 Midland County Livestock Show, Green is beginning the teaching and honing of his third generation of youngsters in the 4-H Clubs, which have grown from one club of 50 boys and girls in 1949 to 10 clubs of more than 300 kids in 1980.

REPRESENTING the latest generation is 9-year-old Stacey Bryant, whose father, mother and grandfather all were under Green in the 4-H Club programs.

"Yeah, but he don't seem to be any older now than he was back then," said Stacey's father, Terry Bryant, who started in 4-H at age 9 in 1959.

His wife, the former

Beverly Howard, got into the program at age 10 in 1964. And Stacey's grandfather, cotton farmer Bobby Howard, already was a teen-ager in 4-H and was grooming and showing calves when Green took over as county agent back in '49.

"I SHOWED CALVES primarily," said Grandpa Howard, who won his share of ribbons in livestock shows. "I guess the first thing I showed when I became of age was pigs."

And pigs — barrows — are exactly what his grandson, Stacey, is showing in the livestock show, which opened Sunday and continues through Tuesday night at the Midland County Exhibit Building.

"It's fun," said Stacey, who was decked out in his Western duds — jeans, cowboy shirt and boots, and wide-brimmed hat adorned with feathers. "You get to stay out of school a day."

TODAY, STACEY was to show two barrows, a Duroc and a crossbred, and is following the trail his grandfather, mother and father hoed-out in past years under the guidance of Green. He's but one of approximately 200 youngsters who are showing 362 animals, in-

Midland County Agent Charlie Green, right, this year begins his third generation of working with 4-H Club youngsters since he came here in 1949. And 9-year-old Stacey Bryant, perched on his father's knee, is the first of that third generation. cluding 158 lambs, 143 swine, 56 steers and five heifers.

"I was 9, just barely old enough to show," recalled Stacey's father, who first showed livestock in the 1959 livestock. "It was a pig, and I won reserve champion. I done pretty good from there on up," said Bryant, who showed swine, lambs, steers — "the whole works" — in the 10 years in which he was in 4-H, which is for both rural and urban youngsters from ages 9 through 19.

His wife, Beverly, started showing at age 10 in 1964. Her first project was lambs, which, as Bryant says in picking up an old phrase, were "born just to look for a place to die."

Well, her docile lambs never made it to the livestock show. "Both of them died," recalled her father. "The dogs ate one of them, and the other one died of over-eating disease. They were good lambs, excellent..." Howard noted.

AND BRYANT, LIKE his son, wife and father-in-law, thinks "the world" of Charlie Green.

"I couldn't say nothing bad about Charlie if I tried," said Bryant. "He's been a lot of help not only to the kids but (to farmers) with experiments in cotton, particularly."

"He's one heck of a nice guy, and he's not selfish."

Green also works with ranchers, gardeners and backyard horticulturists, pecan growers, and flower fanciers. "If their flower dies," said Green, "he get hold of Green to find out why."

"AS FAR AS I'M concerned," Bryant said, "when you think about agriculture in Midland County, you think about Charlie Green; he's been here so damn long."

Well, Green owns up to that.

"It seems like a long time," said Green, "but it sure goes by fast."

The county agent figures that 3,000 to 4,000 kids have gone through the 4-H programs in the three decades in which he has been here.

"Down through the years, I've seen a lot of kids go through the program ... (and they) turned out to be fine adults," said Green. "That's the main objective."

"It (4-H) is a family program," as the Howard and Bryant clans will testify.

"It teaches them good work habits, discipline, responsibility," Green noted.

"...And taking care of what you've got," tacked on Grandpa Howard.

Police investigate two burglaries, theft

Midland police on Sunday investigated two burglary reports and one theft report, including one in which $720 in merchandise was taken.

Abdullah Theyabi, 2400 Whitmire Blvd., Apt. 26, reported a burglary to police Sunday. Taken from the apartment, Theyabi said, were two suits, a dark blue trench coat and $300 cash.

He valued all the items at $720.

Roy Blair, 2406 Terrace-Ave., reported a theft of two tires from 3103 W. Front Ave.

Blair valued the tires at $800.

Christi Hampton, 1702 Garden City Highway, reported a burglary at that address Sunday in which $75 in cash was taken.

According to police reports, entry to the residence was gained through the back door.

Brown asks Japan to join Pakistan alliance

TOKYO (AP) — Expressing concern over Soviet military moves, Defense Secretary Harold Brown today asked Japan to boost its defense spending and join a U.S.-sponsored alliance to aid Pakistan. Brown was assured of Japanese concern about the Soviets but got no specific commitments, official sources said.

Brown stopped in Japan en route home from a nine-day visit to China in which he was assured of Chinese support for Pakistan, which feels itself threatened by the massive Soviet military intervention in neighboring Afghanistan.

He met today with Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira and senior Foreign Ministry and defense officials.

A U.S. official said Brown urged the Japanese to "take into account the current international circumstances" in considering their future defense spending. He specifically referred to the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan last month and the Russian naval buildup in the Pacific, said the official who declined to be identified.

It's stock show time

The annual Midland County Livestock Show is in full swing in the Midland County Exhibit Building on U.S. Highway 80 East, and the public is invited and urged to attend.
 Approximately 200 Midland County youths in 4-H Clubs and Future Farmers of America chapters are exhibiting some 400 head of cattle, lambs, sheep and swine.
 These are top quality animals, selected, fed, raised, and prepared for showing by the 4-H and FFA members as club and chapter projects. It appeared this morning that new records would be established in the number of exhibitors and the number of animals. But the really significant factor is that the show represents top quality in everything, along with plenty of work and effort on the part of the exhibitors over a period of months.
 The exhibitors are showing their choice animals with tremendous pride, and it is hoped that Midland and area residents will visit the show in a larger than usual numbers in order to show the youths that they are interested in them and their achievements and to encourage them in their future efforts.

 The calves, including steers and heifers, the sheep and the swine were judged this morning and afternoon. They will be on public display this evening and on Tuesday. Judging of mares and geldings at halter and horse show performance classes was held Sunday afternoon. A grass-judging contest is scheduled Tuesday morning, sponsored by the Midland Soil & Water Conservation District. Stock show awards will be presented at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, followed by the auctioning of 127 top show animals.
 The show is sponsored jointly by the Midland County Livestock Association, in cooperation with county agricultural extension agents and vocational agriculture instructors in the school system. Congratulations and all best wishes are beamed to the exhibitors and to all others involved in the big annual event.

Bulwark for the 1980s

When the United States negotiated a naval base on the British island of Diego Garcia in the Indian Ocean in 1971, military concern was still centered on Vietnam.
 Coaxing funds from Congress for development was a painful process. So far, about $173 million has been spent, including the salaries of construction battalion personnel and the 1,500 Navy people currently stationed there.
 But recent events have accomplished a sudden change in the congressional outlook. The seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran by Iranian militants and the detention of American hostages, the takeover of the mosque in Mecca as part of a reported plot to overthrow the king of Saudi Arabia and the military buildup in South Yemen and Afghanistan by the Soviet Union have brought the Persian Gulf into focus as the site of potential confrontation or conflict with the Russians.
 And the Navy's show of carrier force in the gulf must be supported today from the base at Subic Bay in the Philippines, 6,000 miles away. The Pentagon is likely to win approval of a request for another $173 million to build up air and naval support facilities on Diego Garcia over the next four years.

 The sudden Soviet airlift of troops to Afghanistan and the coup that replaced one Soviet Communist regime with another in Kabul give urgency to the issue. It is apparent that Moscow is prepared to protect its uncertain interests by force despite a flow of reprimands from the Carter White House.
 The interests of the United States — of the Western world, in fact — are certain. The oil life-line originates in the Persian Gulf nations and remains unsnarled primarily through the efforts of the present government in Saudi Arabia. It is not far-fetched to suspect Communist string-pulling behind the persistent agitation for an Iranian-style "religious" revolt that could result in strangulation of the oil-dependent American economy.
 Expansion of the Diego Garcia base is part of the essential U.S. response to the Soviet show of muscle. The expenditure should be approved promptly and the timetable shortened.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Afghanistan: USSR's first morsel

By JACK ANDERSON
 WASHINGTON — The grand Soviet strategy in lower Asia calls for the dismemberment of Afghanistan, Pakistan and Iran into separate ethnic states. Then the Soviets will pick up the pieces and absorb them, one by one, into the U.S.S.R.
 This is the sobering, secret assessment of intelligence analysts who have watched the Soviet sweep into Afghanistan with deepening alarm. The Central Intelligence Agency saw the strategy developing long before Soviet troops roared into Afghanistan.
 It would give the Russians frontage on both the Persian Gulf and the Indian Ocean — warm water ports that the czars merely dreamed about in past ages. But far more is at stake than mere seaports; the Russian bear would like to get its paws on Iran's fabulous oil fields.
 The Persian Gulf not only is the main source of Western oil, it is also the jugular vein which carries this lifeblood to the industrial world. The Russians have already moved into Afghan air bases, which are less than 500 miles from Hormuz Strait as the jet flies.
 This narrow exit from the Persian Gulf is the choke point where the Soviets could block the Western jugular. Thus, they already have a powerful bargaining position in any future negotiations over Persian Gulf oil.
 The Soviets, meanwhile, are expected to maneuver dangerously closer to the edge of world war, taking precautions all the while to avoid it. A secret CIA strategic review, analyzing the prospect of a future Soviet move against Iran, suggests:

 "It is entirely possible that the Soviets would use the Afghans and the Pathians and Baluchis as proxy forces to form a surrogate army, thus avoiding the use of Soviet troops and a major confrontation with the United States.
 "As such events escalated," the CIA scenario continues, "the United States as well as other (allies) would be called on to support both Pakistan and Iran... which would cause a further spread of the war."
 "The United States, catering to Muslim interests in order to regain access to Mideast oil, to preclude Russian expansionism and to attempt to return stability to South Asia, would be required to commit military resources of some nature..."
 Already, the Soviets have risked destroying detente and antagonizing the Moslem world. They have driven their two most powerful adversaries, the United States and China, closer together. The sparks from a Russian-American confrontation over the Persian Gulf could also set off a nuclear powder keg.
 In the opinion of the analysts, the Soviets would never have taken such enormous risks for the sake of Afghanistan — a bleak, arid, landlocked country abused by man and nature. It is a land of steep, jagged, snow-swirling mountains, of barren, brown, blazing desert, of primitive, mud-walled villages.

 With perverse pride, the Afghans call their country "the land of the fur and the fan" because it is bedeviled by extreme temperature variations. It is harsh country, poor in resources, and hardy people live there.
 Their fighting men have scattered into the caves and crevices of mountains so rugged that they are called the Hindu Kush, meaning the "Killer of Hindus." One day, they may be renamed the "Killer of Russians," because a lot of Russians will surely die in those mountains before Afghanistan is tamed.
 No, the Russian Bear did not bite off this indigestible piece of earth, with any idea that it would be a juicy plum. The plum lies beyond the towering mountains, beyond the dry deserts, beyond the dusty steppes of Afghanistan.
 Intelligence specialists believe the Kremlin has already started to implement its grand strategy. As early as 1978, the Soviets sought to split off an independent Pushtunistan from Afghanistan and Pakistan. Presumably, Soviet troops will now expedite the process that their puppet, Nur Mohammad Taraki, the late Afghan president, tried to initiate.
 This will be followed, it is anticipated, by attempts to carve up Afghanistan into other ethnic states, including an autonomous Baluchistan and Uzbekistan. The ethnic populations, of course, are spread across the borders into Iran, Pakistan and Russia itself.
 Thus, the pressure will build up to include the ethnic minorities of Iran and Pakistan in the new autonomous states. Already, the Soviets are stirring up the ethnic minorities in Iran with clandestine radio broadcasts across the border.
 The minorities, eager for autonomy, can be expected to play the Soviet game. But the Soviets have a different scenario than the minorities probably have in mind. Soviet cadres are waiting to guide and ultimately to control the ethnic movements. In the end, the Russians hope to absorb the autonomous states into the Soviet system.
 INNER CIRCLE: GOP strategists are so eager to gain a Republican majority in the 1980 Senate elections that they've started an "Inner Circle" fund raiser which promises "to develop personal relationships with our Republican Senators" to those willing to ante up the $1,000 minimum contribution.
 The Inner Circle, headed by Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., pledges to target campaign gifts against whichever Democratic senator the donor wants defeated. It also promises special attention to requests from Inner Circle backers.

INSIDE REPORT:

Teddy Kennedy fails to generate excitement in rural Iowa

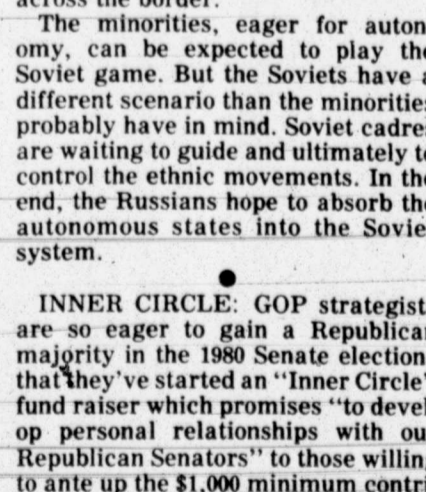

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
 OSKALOOSA, Iowa — A strangely bland Sen. Edward M. Kennedy failed to generate the excitement that his supporters here prayed for on his five-day swing through rural Iowa — a failure that menaces him in the Jan. 21 Iowa Democratic caucuses but also clouds his entire challenge to President Carter.
 Kennedy's late-starting, smoothly-functioning Iowa organization has nullified Carter's head start in the state's metropolitan areas. But to counter Carter's advantage planted in rural counties by his 1976 saturation campaign, Kennedy needed a galvanic effect from his swing — to convince county Democrats suspicious of the Eastern seaboard liberal to devote a night in the dead of winter to opposing their party's incumbent president.
 Kennedy did not approach that goal. In toning down his delivery to small-town Iowa standards, he became bland. By steering clear of long-held liberal positions, he lost conviction. Amid central Iowa's snows occurred the spectacle of a boring Kennedy campaign for president.
 Even so, Kennedy's metropolitan strength, plus lack of enthusiasm for the president, may prevent a Carter runaway; bad country roads might even sneak Kennedy ahead. But whatever happens here Jan. 21, Teddy among the Hawkeyes showed he still presents no politically effective rationale for challenging the president.
 When Kennedy arrived in Iowa Jan. 7, there were signs that the absent at least 200 would sign Kennedy pledge cards. The total was 175 — pretty good, but possibly not good enough.

 However, the real question is whether Kennedy energized those 175 signers to attend caucuses for him. He certainly did not follow Tom Whitney's advice on Iran and Afghanistan. The senator and his strategists remain paralyzed on how to criticize the president in time of crisis. While telling audiences "we have been lurching from crisis to crisis," Kennedy quickly changed the subject.
 Nor did he frontally attack the grain embargo as Carter backers had expected. Kennedy might have been thrown off by public criticism of his stand from an important Iowa supporter, Farmers Union leader Lowell Gose. On the next morning with prices dropping in reopened commodity exchanges, Kennedy ignored the embargo in his first stop and addressed it but sluggishly the rest of the day.
 What he did say was subdued and conversational, not faintly reminiscent of Kennedy's characteristic stentorian, dramatic style. Criticized for shrillness in early visits to Iowa, he was cautiously restraining himself. When he briefly raised his voice in assailing lack of "respect" for the U.S. today, he stopped abruptly, with this sheepish apology: "I'm getting all exercised here."
 Kennedy surely did not represent himself as the liberal alternative to Carter (and did not even mention his famous health care program). But, while forsaking the left, he could not embrace positions to Carter's right. When questioned in Oskaloosa about defense spending, he replied: "Less (spending) is not better. More is not better. Better is better."

 Such fence-straddling soured a home builder, a Democratic voter for 30 years looking for a more forceful alternative to Jimmy Carter. He attended Kennedy's Indianapolis stop uncertain whether to support Kennedy or a Republican. After hearing Kennedy, he is now undecided between George Bush and Howard Baker.
 The more frequently heard criticism, against both Carter and Kennedy, in non-militaristic Iowa is inflation. Pam Heiskov, a 37-year-old farm wife from Knoxville who sells real estate on the side, was concerned that "Kennedy likes too much government" but had not ruled him out. After hearing Kennedy, she complained that he had not squarely addressed inflation. Mrs. Heiskov probably will not attend her Jan. 21 precinct caucus, one of the voters Kennedy failed to win traveling through Iowa.

The Song of the Shirt fast changing to dirge

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Sleeve-wise, I have some off the cuff remarks I would like to address to the shirt cutters, chemists and haberdashers in the Garment District or wherever they ply their trade.

I intend to get very shirty about the new "average sleeve length" that the industry is inflicting on the white collar workers of America.

The Oxford English Dictionary defines "shirty" as ill-tempered, which exactly (not on the average) fits my reaction to the way they are cutting the cloth these days in the shirt factories.

The next time I go to Macy's or Bloomingdale's to select the button down white Oxford dress shirts that are by journalism's unwritten law every columnist's trade mark, I shall become very ill-tempered if they do not have my exact sleeve length.

IN FACT, I shall probably blow my stack, vent my spleen and snap my cuffs if the clerk attempts to foist off on me the "average sleeve length" that the New York Times said in a recent fashion report was the unavoidable coming thing at the shirt counter.

Dress shirts as we have come to know them in our comfortably structured society always were cut, sewn and sold according to exact neck size and sleeve length.

Not anymore, apparently. According to the Times, 50 per cent of the shirts made today still come in exact neck sizes right down to the half inch but are available in only two sleeve lengths: regular (32-33) and long (34-35).

Not only that, but the percentage of "average sleeve length" shirts rolling off the assembly line or the cutting table is increasing. At Macy's, for instance, nine out of every 10 shirts in stock come in average sleeve length, which probably makes New York the naked wrist capital of the world or the sleeve-popping city this side of Baton Rouge, La.

HE ALSO INSTALLED his own computer to better help him match manpower and equipment to need. Rural-Metro's calls vary from area to area. For example, in Sun City, a retirement community west of Phoenix, 65 per cent of Rural-Metro's calls are for first aid.

THE TIMES ARTICLE quotes a vice president in charge of men's sleeves at Saks Fifth Avenue as saying that "retailers love the idea. It cuts down considerably on the amount of inventory a store must have on hand."

Well, I happen to be from the old celluloid collar school that thinks shirts should be made to fit the customer and not the shelves.

The Brooks Bros. vice president in charge of cuffs said, no doubt in a slightly superior tone of voice, that his establishment would continue to offer exact sleeve lengths along with exact neck sizes no matter what the competition did.

I couldn't help thinking that some of this bravado might have been cut from the whole cloth, as such things frequently are on Madison Avenue. The last time I was in Brooks Bros., bobbing about with the swells, the shirts with French cuffs came without pockets and the Oxford cloth button downs were not available with sleeves suitable for cufflinks.

I TRIED TO TELL the minion behind the counter that we are a ballpoint pen society. We live by the pen, not the sword, and a reporter without a shirt pocket to display his arsenal of ballpoints was unarmed before his enemies and interviewees. Besides which, what could I do with the cufflinks my nephew brought me from Disneyland?

The clerk was as insensitive to my fashion needs as the vice president in charge of sleeve lengths at the Hathaway Company, America's oldest shirt manufacturer. He defended the new average sleeve length that now accounts for 60 per cent of the company's production with the put-down remark in the Times that "most men don't know their proper sleeve length anyway."

It just so happens that I know my own sleeve length, even if I never could get Honorable Minh, my old Saigon shirt maker, to believe it.

Minh would duly come out from behind his counter on Tu Do Street, with his porcine smile fashioned from pins sticking out of his mouth, and duly measure me from wrist to shoulder and arm pit to palm with the long tape measure hanging around his neck. He'd holler out the statistics to his wife, who copied them in Chinese in a long banker's-sized journal.

THEN HE'D MEASURE again, just to be sure he had it right. But when the boys in the backroom or down in the basement or out in Cholon, the Chinese ghetto in Saigon, got around to cutting the cloth, they never could bring themselves to believe that the Big Feet, the Americans, had such long arms. Unilaterally, they would deduct a few inches, figuring the fitter had got it wrong. Minh's shirts were fine for displaying your new PX watch, but with the French cuff models, the cufflinks always wound up somewhere near your elbow. Even now, you can tell an old Indochina hand at a cocktail party the minute he reaches out a hairy arm from an impeccably tailored suit for a drink.

Minh has since gone into the grocery business out in California, otherwise his adoption of the average length sleeve might result in a vest.

I think the whole thing is a plot to bring back sleeve garters, so the white collar class can go around looking like Las Vegas croupiers or so many barbershop quartets in search of an audience.

TODAY'S YOUNGER, designer-conscious customer, says the chap in Saks' vice-presidential suite, is "more interested in trends than in a perfect fit and probably hasn't heard of the old dress rule that a well-dressed man always has one half inch of shirt cuff exposed beneath his jacket sleeve."

There it is. The rules don't count anymore. Did you ever hear such guff about a cuff? I think I'll roll up my sleeves and write him a shirty letter.

Private fire department now serves 20 percent of Arizona's population

By JOAN SWEENEY The Los Angeles Times

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Fire Chief Louis A. Witzeman doesn't just run the fire department, he owns it.

His private Rural-Metro Fire Department Inc. provides fire protection for 2,700 square miles of suburban and rural Arizona, including this affluent Phoenix suburb, and for 20 percent of this fast-growing state's population.

And Rural-Metro does the job for less money, yet makes a profit despite paying taxes and other fees that public fire departments do not.

How does private enterprise work in an area traditionally the province of local government?

IN THE CASE of Rural-Metro, quite well, according to a study by the Institute for Local Self-Government in Berkeley, Calif., which compared the performance of Rural-Metro in Scottsdale to that of traditional public fire departments in three other Phoenix suburbs — Tempe, Glendale and Mesa — similar in size and income levels.

The study concluded: "All four cities offer similar quality and productivity in fire services, but Scottsdale provides those services at a much lower cost...about half the cost of the other cities...This is true for both the total operating budget and the per-capita fire department expenditures."

"We save about $1 million a year," acting Scottsdale City Manager Tim Bray said.

And that's not exactly small change to a city of 90,000.

NO WONDER, THEN, that Witzeman has been much sought out by beleaguered local officials caught between taxpayers in revolt and fire-service costs on the increase.

While Witzeman's cost-cutting system would not work everywhere, it could be attractive for smaller cities with good building codes and without high rise structures or major fire-hazardous industry.

But Witzeman is the first to tell you that his system wouldn't work in downtown Los Angeles. However, it works well enough in the Arizona areas it serves, making Rural-Metro the largest private fire department in the United States.

Founded by Witzeman nearly 32 years ago, it contracts, in some areas, with a city or fire district to provide fire and rescue services. In Scottsdale it's a combined effort. The city pays the corporation a monthly retainer, provides more than half the equipment and all four fire stations as well as a pool of trained employees who serve as part-time firefighters. The company manages firefighting and provides fulltime firemen, as well as fire inspection and prevention programs.

IN OTHER AREAS, Rural-Metro provides service on a subscription basis, the individual homeowner pays an annual fee for protection.

Witzeman, 55, a blunt no-nonsense man who has been a controversial figure in firefighting, sums up the reason for Rural-Metro's success as "cost effectiveness with the emphasis equally on both halves of the phrase." "Anybody can be cheap," he said. "We've got to do the job better and for less or we won't be here tomorrow."

He is not bound by tradition and that includes the red fire truck and its thousands of dollars' worth of gleaming chrome. He was one of the first to paint his equipment a color variously described as lime yellow, lime green or chartreuse, which makes fire equipment more visible and cuts down on collisions.

"Red is just plain unsafe at night," Witzeman said, "but this was like coming out against motherhood and apple pie. I caught more hell for that."

NOW, HOWEVER, many cities paint their trucks the same color Witzeman uses.

Unfazed by tradition, Witzeman has tried to match response — both manpower and equipment — to the fire problem.

His biggest cost savings stem from his use of fewer full-time firemen, supplementing them with trained reserves or, in the case of Scottsdale, with 45 "wranglers," full-time city employees who are part-time firefighters.

In Arizona, Rural-Metro employs 400 full-time and 200 part-time persons, excluding the wranglers in Scottsdale who serve the same function as reserves do elsewhere.

THIS SYSTEM of reserves — Witzeman calls them the GIs of firefighting — is an upgrading of the old volunteer firefighter concept, he said. But his part-timers are better trained and are paid for the time spent both in training and in firefighting. (The wranglers undergo a 94-hour training program, a condensed version of the 220-hour course given to full-time Rural-Metro firefighters.)

The reserves carry pocket pagers when they are on call so that they are only a beep away. Witzeman calls the pager "probably the greatest single improvement made in firefighting in the last 50 years."

Witzeman also saves money by adapting equipment to his specific needs. "That $120,000 investment (in a huge fire rig) is very likely justified in downtown Los Angeles," he said, "but it borders on the hilarious" in some smaller places.

Witzeman builds much of his own equipment, including a smaller, faster and more maneuverable "attack truck" with a pump and 300 gallons of water that rolls with a standard engine. The truck is basically an oversized pickup.

THE WAY TO PUT out a fire quickly, Witzeman said, is a fast attack that delivers a lot of water.

"We don't build all of our equipment because we don't have the shop space," Witzeman said. "I can build a truck for half of what anyone can buy it for because there's a hell of a markup in building fire trucks and because I build them to more realistic specifications."

Another Witzeman creation was the Snail, a robot fireman that crawls into a burning building with a hose at a speed of four miles an hour. Primarily a safety device, the expendable fireman is used in such dangerous situations as overturned butane tanks, chemical fires and chlorine leaks.

"Why in this day and age should a fireman stand 30 feet from a butane tanker?" Witzeman asked. "Stuff like this is going to come."

HE DEVELOPED the Snail after reading about a gasoline-powered wheelbarrow for construction workers.

"The first one looked suspiciously like a wheelbarrow with a nozzle," Witzeman said. The newest version looks something like a miniature tank or, as Witzeman describes it, "a Sherman tank bred to a Volkswagen."

Other Witzeman innovations include:

— Pioneering the use of 4-inch hose in the United States, instead of the 2½-inch hose that had been standard.

— Developing a remote-controlled hydrant opener that is now produced commercially by two companies.

— EQUIPPING an engine with a portable second pump that can be unloaded at one hydrant, permitting the vehicle to move on to a second.

— Mounting a pump on the front of an engine where, his mechanic said wryly, "You don't have to be a midget to repair it."

Witzeman says he is not an innovator but a synthesizer. "Very few of the things we have done have been done first by us. But we have been among the first," he said.

HE ALSO INSTALLED his own computer to better help him match manpower and equipment to need.

Rural-Metro's calls vary from area to area. For example, in Sun City, a retirement community west of Phoenix, 65 per cent of Rural-Metro's calls are for first aid. (All full-time Rural-Metro firemen have Emergency Medical Technician 2 ratings, which is one class below paramedic.)

In the areas that Rural-Metro serves by subscription rather than contract, the average homeowner pays $39 annually (the cost rises with the square footage) and saves, according to Witzeman, more than that on his fire insurance premiums.

RURAL-METRO answers all calls in its territory without attempting to ascertain whether the caller is a subscriber. If it is later discovered he was not a subscriber and Rural-Metro has saved his house, he will get a bill for 14 times the amount of the annual premium. If the structure was lost, Witzeman does not add insult to injury by sending a bill.

The company does not bill nonsubscribers for rescue calls.

Witzeman generally says exactly what he thinks about firefighting.

"It's not curbside brain surgery, it's not the towering inferno, it's not even a profession. It's a damn good trade and a fascinating way of making a fair living, and a field that needs change."

"I think if there's a villain in the fire service, it's tradition. Basically we've been able to sell ourselves because of our hero image. It's gotten us anything we wanted, including $120,000 trucks. But it (the image) goes to hell about the time firemen go on strike."

Fire Chief Lou Witzeman doesn't just run the fire department, he owns it. Witzeman owns the only big private fire department in America, the Rural-Metro Fire Department in Scottsdale, Ariz., providing fire protector for a 2,700-square-mile area.

Karen Puente is a fire dispatcher in one of the Rural-Metro fire department's dispatch centers. The department believes women are very good for the fire service and that the work does not typically require big, heroic musclemen.

IRS establishes ombudsman office to help resolve taxpayer problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're having a dispute with the Internal Revenue Service, or fear one this tax season, some new help may be at hand.

The IRS has set up an ombudsman office to help resolve problems that are not being worked out through normal channels.

The ombudsman will be an assistant to the commissioner of Internal revenue, and will oversee the agency's Problem Resolution Program which was set up in 1977.

The problems resolution departments have been set up in 58 offices across the country, and last year they handled more than 72,000 problems.

While these district-level offices will continue to handle individual taxpayer problems, the job of the new ombudsman will be to serve as the taxpayer's advocate in anticipating problems.

The ombudsman will review agency policies and procedures for possible adverse effects on the public and recommending changes in areas that have caused problems.

Meanwhile, people with billing, procedural or computer problems that they don't seem able to work out can contact the problem resolution section at their local IRS office to help cut the red tape.

'Ambitious' shuttle test begun

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A make-believe blastoff early today started the space shuttle Columbia on the final and most ambitious of a current series of tests, officials said.

The operation — also the longest in the series of five tests — is scheduled to last more than 50 hours as astronauts and technicians go through many of the same procedures to be used when the orbiter is launched for real.

Backup crewmen Joe Engle and Navy Cmdr. Richard Truly were in the cockpit for the simulated launch at 2 a.m. EST. The Columbia reached "a good orbit" 44 minutes and 36 seconds later, said Kennedy Space Center spokesman Dick Young.

Seconds after the launch, Young said technicians simulated the failure of one of three fuel cells that will power the Columbia. At 4 a.m., astronauts were to practice bringing the fuel cell back on line.

The shuttle is the first U.S. spacecraft designed to take off like a rocket and glide back to Earth on wings for reuse in later missions. Its first trip into orbit is tentatively scheduled for later this year.

Shuttle test director Norman Carlson said the test procedure will simulate a launch, flight into orbit, various orbital maneuvers, a descent to Earth and landing.

Mission Commander John Young, veteran of several previous space flights, and Navy Cmdr. Robert Crippen also are to be at the controls during parts of the two-day test.

The astronauts won't stay in the spacecraft the whole time because many of the tests can be conducted without them.

On Sunday, the Columbia successfully "blasted off" in a fourth simulated orbital flight designed to test systems aboard the ship.

Kennedy Space Center officials said the Columbia, piloted by Engle and Truly, made its pretend liftoff on schedule at 10 a.m. EST and achieved "orbit" 44 minutes and 36 seconds later.

Sunday's test was postponed twice. It first was supposed to go off at 5 a.m. and was then pushed back to 7 a.m. But engineers said they needed more time to reprogram flight computers aboard the Columbia.

Though the space ship actually was running on ground power Sunday, astronauts Engle and Truly pretended one of their three fuel cells had malfunctioned to check how well the Columbia worked on only two cells.

WTCC officials to meet in Midland

West Texas Chamber of Commerce officials and members from throughout District VI will meet here Thursday and Friday for a district-wide membership dinner and a meeting of WTCC's executive committee.

Joe Kloesel of Midland, WTCC's district vice president, said Saturday the membership session will be on tap first, beginning with a reception at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:15 p.m., both in the new Midland Center. This will be the first meeting held in the new facility in downtown Midland. Members and their guests, including prospective members, from Midland and other area cities will attend.

A slide presentation, "The West Texas Chamber of Commerce," and "Action Update" briefing by President Bob Corkins of Alpine, and a membership sales presentation by Burvin Hines of Arlington, formerly of Midland, will highlight the evening's program. Kloesel will preside.

Other cities in the district include Andrews, Odessa, Stanton, Big Spring, Lamesa, Gail, Kermit, Seminole, Sea-

DEAR ABBY

She was belted out by chastity

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: May I comment on your CONFIDENTIAL TO "SHOULD I GIVE IN?" You responded with this sad refrain:

"When I met him, I liked him.
When I liked him, I loved him.
When I loved him, I let him.
When I let him, I lost him."

(Author Unknown)

That might have been true once, Abby, but not today.

I know many girls (now women) who "held out," and were left out. I am a living example—and a very bitter one. I believed that holding out was the way to get a man, but I lost a number of good men to other women who met their needs for a "total relationship." (Sex.) Now these women are happily married and are righteous pillars of our community, while I spend nights and weekends alone. Now I'm too scared to try a sexual relationship; all I can do is fantasize about one. (I only wish I had some real memories.)

I know this has no chance of being printed since you need to protect your point of view. Why do you perpetrate such nonsense?—HELD OUT AND LEFT OUT

DEAR HELD OUT: "Letting" a man is vastly different from being a party to a mature love relationship—one in which each gives equally. To "let" someone is to allow yourself to be used.

Have no regrets for not "letting" yourself be used. Regret only having passed up a MATURE LOVE RELATIONSHIP playing instead that childish game of holding out, thinking that was the way to get a man.

I don't know your age, but you are NEVER too old for a sexual relationship if you want one.

DEAR ABBY: I am part of a triangle. All three of us are in our 60s.

I have been in love with this man for nearly 30 years. He loves me, but his wife will not give him a divorce—or at least that is what I have been told all these years.

I have no social life, and very little family life because I've wanted to be available when my sweetheart found an hour for me.

Nobody talked me into anything. I made this choice a long time ago, and I wasn't a child then.

Perhaps I'm in a sentimental mood tonight (he's on his way to see me at this very moment), I am playing "our records" on the stereo, the wine is chilling, and the old excitement is still there.

Although legally I have no man of my own, I have no regrets. —HALF A LOAF IN PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR HALF: It's your life, and I'm glad you're happy. Not everyone can make a banquet out of somebody else's crumbs. CONFIDENTIAL TO

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actor Lloyd Bridges, who shares your birthday, is a perfect example of the Capricorn family man who works hard but also finds time for his family responsibilities. Do not undertake more than you can handle in the next few months. There will be some happy surprises for you mid-year. Children can play a more dominant role. Love relationships become even more satisfying.
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Determination helps you win at home, work. A good career situation and an unexpected phone call make this a terrific day. Your sense of well-being is at an all-time high.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Professionals help cut costs, boost profits. Lucrative job offer is hard to resist. Expect your mate to back you. Take efforts with your personal appearance.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Snags at office irk you only briefly. Profits are handsome provided you tap hidden talents. Others are impressed by your wit, poise during a social encounter.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Unexpected chance to demonstrate resourcefulness in business opportunity. Glamour as well as financial gain involved. Allow more give-and-take in romance.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get an early start to beat out competitors today! Your mate or partner has a "secret weapon"—use it discriminately. Creativity is the key to your success.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Unpredictable actions of others give you an unexpected advantage in business dealings. Use this opportunity wisely. Friends are helpful in handling delicate matters.

A stream of toluene diisocyanate flows between two Millfield, Ohio, homes after 17 cars of a Conrail train piled up early Sunday. About 750 people were evacuated and six were treated of exposure to fumes. Cleanup operations are expected to take three days. (AP Laserphoto)

Trains derailed over weekend

By The Associated Press

Hundreds of people were evacuated from their homes as officials worked to clean up after train derailments that spilled chemicals into a stream in Ohio and set fire to a tanker in Pennsylvania.

Some 500 to 700 people in Arizona ate Sunday dinner in Red Cross shelters after two propane tankers derailed. Officials said there were no leaks in that accident.

Ohio authorities said about 750 persons were evacuated Sunday after 17 cars of a 68-car Conrail freight train derailed and one of the cars spilled a highly toxic, flammable chemical identified as toluene diisocyanate.

The chemical, used in the manufacture of plastics and vinyls, spilled into a drainage ditch and seeped into a creek, and at least three people who came into contact with it were treated at a hospital.

By Sunday night, all but 80 of those evacuated returned to their homes in Millfield and East Millfield.

Ohio EPA spokesman Allan Franks said cleanup crews would have to neutralize the TDI with other chemicals and possibly mix it with soil so it could be collected and carried to a landfill.

Arizona police said vandals caused the derailment of two propane-filled railroad cars that forced the brief evacuation of some residents of the small community of Buckeye.

The derailment occurred Saturday

15-mile section of highway closed when truck carrying cobalt wrecked

DUBOIS, Pa. (AP) — State police closed a 15-mile section of Interstate 80 in northwestern Pennsylvania after radiation was detected coming from the wreckage of a truck carrying cobalt pellets.

Discounting the accuracy of Geiger counter readings that varied from 0.65 roentgen to 4 roentgens of gamma radiation per hour, state police said the danger was minimal.

No evacuation was ordered in the sparsely populated area around the crash site, which is in rural northwestern Pennsylvania about 100 miles north of Pittsburgh. The residents were evacuated Sunday for five hours when workmen using cranes began to lift the derailed cars back on the tracks.

Officials said vandalism was suspected because a switch lock was opened. Six cars of the 104-car train, four of them empty, derailed, said Southern Pacific railroad spokesman Al Bradshaw.

Radioactive material was not spilled. State police said radiation apparently was coming from a crack in the trailer compartment of the rig, which collided with another tractor-trailer during an ice storm. No injuries were reported.

"The carrier feels that whoever was making the readings was inexperienced," trooper Max Camp said from the Punxsutawney state police barracks after receiving word from Advanced Medical Systems Inc. of Cleveland.

Hundreds pay respects at 'House of Labor'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of visitors are passing through the "House of Labor" to pay last respects to its builder — George Meany.

Meany, who died Thursday of cardiac arrest at the age of 85, lay in state at AFL-CIO headquarters today and Sunday, drawing viewers from union halls, the halls of Congress and the White House.

Funeral services were scheduled Tuesday for Meany, who helped form the AFL-CIO in 1955 and headed it until his retirement last November.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale was among the 1,000 people paying respects Sunday to the gruff-talking, cigar-chomping former plumber from the Bronx.

"We've lost a great, great American," Mondale said.

"I had to come today if I had to crawl on my hands and knees," said plumber Henry Bosma, 77, of University Park, Md. "He always was a man for the poor fellow, for the working man, for the down and out." "As I walked by I saluted him," said Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., who teamed with Meany on many pro-labor fights in Congress over the last 40 years.

Meany, who gave up plumbing 57 years ago for a full-time labor career, had been a major power broker in Washington since his arrival in 1939 as secretary-treasurer of the old American Federation of Labor (AFL).

He became AFL president in 1952, and three years later reunited a feuding U.S. labor movement under one house. After orchestrating the merger of the AFL and Congress of Industrial Organizations, he held most of the movement together for the next quarter-century.

Over the years, Meany emerged as the embodiment of working Americans as well as chief spokesman for the AFL-CIO's 14 million members.

Kissinger denies any intervention for shah

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says he had no responsibility for the administration's decision to admit the deposed Shah of Iran to the United States for medical treatment.

Kissinger said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" that he joined Chase Manhattan Bank President David Rockefeller in seeing that the shah's medical records got to the State Department.

Then, he said, it was up to President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to make the decision.

The shah, now living in Panama, was admitted in October for cancer and gallbladder treatment. On Nov. 4, militants demanding his return seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, taking Americans hostage.

Kissinger said he felt Carter's decision was correct.

"We cannot have reached a point where the kidnapping or holding of 50 American hostages can make us give up the settled policy of this country, especially toward friends of 37 years," he said.

Kissinger said he was "not involved in any of the discussions in October which led to the admission of the shah."

"As I understand it, the medical records of the shah were submitted to the Department of State and the decision was made on the basis of the medical records and whatever other information the president and the secretary of state had," he said.

"I don't suppose that President Carter had any reason to believe that the admission of the shah would lead to the crisis of the length we are now facing," Kissinger said.

Questioned about the Afghanistan crisis and the concentration of Soviet troops there, Kissinger said he thought the Olympic Games scheduled to be held in Moscow should be moved to a "neutral site," such as Greece. He also said he advocated building air and naval bases in Pakistan to act as a deterrent to further Soviet expansion.

The field has extended into Irion and Sterling counties.

CROCKETT TEST STAKED
Dameron Petroleum Corp. of Midland filed application to drill the No. 1-92 B.E. Dunlap, two and five-eighths mile northwest of the American (Canyon gas) field of Crockett County, 35.2 miles southwest of Ozona.

Wellsite is 660 from north and 4,380 from east lines of section 92, block 1, I&GN survey. Scheduled depth is 8,000 feet, with ground elevation of 2,425 feet.

IRION OILER FINALED
Proffitt Drilling Co. of Mertzon has filed permit test on the No. 1 Mrs. L.D. Brooks and others, a re-entry operation, as the current ninth producer and 1/2-mile northeast extension to the Brooks (San Angelo) field of Irion County.

Operator reported a 24-hour pumping potential of two barrels of 38-gravity oil and three barrels of water, through perforations from 1,253 to 1,285 feet.

Originally drilled by D. Stephen Fuqua, it was abandoned in 1973 at 1,238 feet.

Deepened to 1,400 feet, operator set 4.5-inch casing on bottom.

Location is 2,023 from north and 467 from east lines of section 12, block 3, H&TC survey.

STONEWALL PROJECT
Edwin L. Cox of Dallas will drill the No. 3-A T.A. Upshaw as a 4,790-foot Canyon reef test, surrounded by that pay in the Upshaw multipay field of Stonewall County, 1.5 miles northeast of Aspermont.

Location is 1,980 from south and 1,604 from east lines of section 84, block D, H&TC survey.

The field has one Canyon sand producer, one Strawn and five Canyon producers.

NOLAN TESTS SCHEDULED
James P. Dunigan Inc. of Abilene will drill the No. 1-B K. Duncan as a location west stepout to the two-well Hale (Noodle Creek) field of Nolan County, 3.5 miles southwest of Trent.

Wellsite is 467 from south and 2,173 from west lines of section 37, block 20, T&P survey.

Scheduled depth is 3,000 feet.

The same operator will re-enter and clean out to 2,941 feet, the old total depth, for completion attempt in the Hale (Noodle Creek) field at the No. 1 F.E. Allyn, for oil producer in the McLeod field, operated by J.C. Hunter Jr.

Location is 535 from north and 2,310 from east lines of section 48, block 20, T&P survey.

GAINES TEST STAKED
Santa Fe Energy Co. of Amarillo will drill the No. 9-R Fold as a location north and the same distance east of production in the Hanford (San Andres) field of Gaines County, six miles northwest of Seminole.

Scheduled as a 5,600-foot test, location is 2,495 from north and 2,515 from east lines of section 201, block G, WTRR survey.

BORDEN PROJECT
Mitchell Energy Corp. of Midland will drill the No. 3-312 Miller as a location north extension to the Lucy, North (Pennsylvanian) field of Borden County, 11 miles east of Gail.

Drillsite is 1,980 from north and 1,050 from west lines of section 312, block 97, H&TC survey.

Contract depth is 8,000 feet.

Exxon study says Iranian oil cut-off would not cause major '80 shortages

NEW YORK (AP) — A new cessation of Iran's oil exports this year probably would not cause immediate major petroleum shortages because world oil stockpiles are at such high levels and consumption has been slowing, an Exxon Corp. study suggested today.

The quarterly study by the world's largest oil company also said U.S. oil consumption this year and in 1981 is not expected to reach the peak of 18.8 million 42-gallon barrels a day it hit in 1978.

Iranian oil production virtually stopped for nearly seven weeks in late 1978 and early 1979 during the revolution against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. Shortages caused by the loss of Iran's 5 million barrels-a-day output helped cause a doubling of world oil prices last year.

But Exxon and others in the industry contend the rising prices have spurred conservation efforts, while a slowing industrialized world economy is expected to further trim oil demand.

Because oil inventories currently are unusually high, "unforeseen supply disruptions" could have a "less serious" effect than in 1979, Exxon said.

Shortages caused by a disruption of three months or less in Iranian output could be met by dipping into consuming countries' stockpiles, Exxon suggested, while effects of a longer cessation could be eased if "other OPEC countries maintained output at current levels."

Saudi Arabia, in the wake of the last Iranian cutoff, boosted its average daily production by 1 million barrels to 9.5 million barrels. Iraq also has been steadily raising its oil production.

According to Exxon, major consuming countries had 660 million barrels of oil in commercial storage tanks last Oct. 1, a 16- or 17-day supply that was "about 11 percent above the historic average level."

The supply was up from the 550-million-barrel stockpile of a year earlier and far above the 210 million barrels on hand last April 1.

Some oil production cutbacks are expected for 1980. Kuwait has indicated it will reduce output from 2 million to 1 million barrels a day after April 1, and Exxon forecast Saudi Arabian production falling to an average of 8.8 million barrels in 1980.

Overall, Exxon forecasts a 1.5 million to 2 million-barrel drop in daily Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries output to 29 million barrels this year. Iran's production is expected to total 3 million barrels a day, about its current level.

But "demands on OPEC should fall in 1980 as non-OPEC production rises, consumers adept to higher prices and industrial activity slows," Exxon said.

The oil company forecast U.S. oil consumption of 17.8 million barrels a day this year and 18.3 million barrels daily in 1981, down from 18.8 million in 1972. The United States imports about half its oil.

Mexico issues warning

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The head of the state-run oil company has warned Mexico will "mercilessly" halt sales of crude oil to any customer that resells the oil on the higher-priced spot market.

"Mexico will exclude from its list of customers any country which fails to meet a ... basic rule and which uses the crude bought here for speculation in the international market, instead of using it for the solution of its energy needs," PEMEX director Jorge DwazhSerrano told reporters in Campeche.

DwazhSerrano indicated he was referring to nine customers, but he did not identify them. Recent PEMEX articles list the company's customers as including the United States, Israel, Spain, Canada, Brazil, the Netherlands, Italy, Japan, Ecuador, Switzerland, Costa Rica, Belgium, Finland, Turkey and Guatemala.

Diaz Serrano made his statement during a visit Saturday to Campeche when he was asked about published reports that claimed some U.S. firms were buying oil from Mexico at $32 a barrel and reselling it on the spot market for $41 a barrel.

"If we know and can prove that any customer has failed to (abide by) that basic rule, we will exclude it mercilessly. We won't permit it," Diaz Serrano said.

He added "it could be possible" for PEMEX to trace its oil, and if it finds some was resold on the spot market, "we will immediately open an investigation to know what happened."

"We don't want Mexican oil to be an object of speculation. That is part of the firm Mexican position ... stated by President (Jose) Lopez Portillo in the United Nations. Our country doesn't want to stain its hands in the spot market."

Mexico increased the price of its oil from $24.60 to $32 a barrel early this year. Its biggest customer is the United States, which buys an average of 440,000 barrels a day.

Trial run announced

DENVER, Colo. — Chevron U.S.A. has announced that it will begin a trial market of Gasohol in the State of Washington to customers in selected service stations in the Bellevue area, near Seattle this month.

The product, known as Chevron Unleaded Gasohol, will be a blend of 90 percent Unleaded motor gasoline and 10 percent Ethyl-alcohol (Ethanol).

Academy believes nuclear, coal needed to meet needs

By THOMAS O'TOOLE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In the most exhaustive study it has done, the National Academy of Sciences has concluded that the only choice the United States has to meet electricity demands for the next 30 years is to burn coal and build nuclear power plants.

The academy also concluded that nuclear-generated electricity may be the nation's only choice for a 20-year period beginning in 1990. The academy said that burning coal to generate this century," the academy said.

"After 1990, coal will be increasingly required for the production of synthetic fuels so the requirements for nuclear capacity depend on the growth rate for electricity demand."

The academy conceded there were serious public risks in generating electricity from coal and uranium. It identified the worst risk from coal as the risk to the miner, and the worst risk from uranium as the threat of nuclear-weapons spread.

"The problem of nuclear weapons proliferation is real and is probably the most serious potentially catastrophic problem associated with nuclear power," the academy said.

"However, there is no technical fix — even the stopping of nuclear power (especially by a single nation) — that averts the nuclear proliferation problem."

ment of fossil resources by nuclear energy or the exacerbation of international competition for fossil fuels that could occur in the absence of an adequate worldwide nuclear-power program."

The academy said despite the risk of proliferation, nuclear-generated electricity represents the best option for the next 30 years. It said that nuclear electricity is still the cheapest form and is less sensitive to increases in fuel prices and to changes in environmental standards than coal.

"Nuclear fuel supplies are more readily stockpiled than coal," the academy went on, "and nuclear electricity is thus less subject to interruption by strikes, bad weather and transportation disruptions."

The academy made a final point favoring nuclear energy over coal. It said that if the effect of carbon dioxide accumulation on climate becomes a major environmental issue in the early years of the 21st century, "it will be aggravated by commitments to the use of coal, because power plants have lives of 30 to 40 years."

ENERGY OIL & GAS

electricity may have to be cut back in 1990, because coal will be a more valuable source of synthetic liquid and gas fuels, and because the increased burning of coal may put so much carbon dioxide in the atmosphere that it could trigger a change in the climate.

In a 783-page report that took four years and was two years late and $2 million over budget, the academy drew a fourth conclusion bound to generate as much controversy as its first three: unless the demand for electricity abates unexpectedly, the United States must continue to develop the fast-breeder nuclear reactor that President Carter stopped two years ago.

The academy said that use of a breeder would keep the price of electricity low and would extend the domestic supply of uranium for hundreds of thousands of years.

"At relatively high growth rates in demand for electricity, the attractiveness of a breeder is greatest, and at the highest growth rates the breeder can be considered a probable necessity," the academy said. "For this reason, this committee recommends continued development of the liquid metal fast breeder reactor, so that it can be deployed early in the next century if necessary."

The academy held out little hope that solar power and fusion power would make much of a contribution to the nation's energy in the next 30 years but said the country should continue to support their development.

"Because of the higher economic costs, solar technologies will probably not contribute much more than 5 percent to energy supply in this century unless there is massive government intervention to penalize the use of nonrenewable fuels," the academy said. "The danger of such intervention lies in the possibility that it may lock us into obsolete and expensive technologies with high materials and resource requirements."

On the outlook for fusion, a process that mimics the limitless energy of the sun, the academy was cautiously optimistic — but not for any time in the next 30 years.

"It is not an option that can be counted on within the time frame of the study," the academy said, referring to 1985 to 2010. "Nevertheless, fusion warrants sufficient technical effort to enable a realistic assessment by the early part of the next century of its long-term promise in competition with breeder reactors and solar energy technologies."

The academy identified as the nation's two most serious near-term needs the necessity to conserve energy and to develop synthetic fuels to replace the world's dwindling supply of liquid fossil fuels.

More lines, more waiting expected during decade

By JACK SMITH
The Los Angeles Times

One of the dubious diversions of the 1980s, according to a story I read recently, will be the lines in which more of us will have to wait, and longer, for the things we want or need.

"It's easy to take an ostrich approach to life when doomsters and futurists prophesy energy crises, inflation, more crime, less privacy, nuclear warfare and a deteriorating educational system," the story said. "But why has no one foreseen the true course of the next decade? More lines and more waiting."

I have no doubt that such a vision is right. But what amazes me about our lengthening lines is that we accept them with such patience and good will, except for an occasional murder in the gasoline line.

The most common and longest lines seen today are for movies and rock concerts, and one of the explanations for them, I suspect, is that the most of those standing in them are of a generation too young to have been in the armed forces in World War II.

I don't believe I ever met a man in the service who didn't swear that when the war was over and he got out he would never stand in line again. I was certainly one of those who took that pledge, and though I have had to break it many times, mostly in deference to the wishes of my loved ones, I am still deeply averse to lines. I can think of nothing I would willingly stand in line to see except possibly the opening performance of "HMS Pinafore" in London on May 26, 1978.

us. We were expected to catch these on the run, prodded by threats and epithets from our drill instructors. In this manner we each acquired two sets of overalls (known for good reason as fatigues), a heavy woolen dress uniform with belt and cap, three sets of underwear, three pairs of socks, three shirts, a mess kit, a poncho, an M-1 rifle, a bayonet, a seabag, and numerous accessories and toiletries that a benign memory no longer calls to mind.

The coup de grace was a pair of field boots. These the supply sergeants flung at us with sadistic pleasure, knowing we couldn't catch them without dropping something else and moving our drill sergeants to new heights of disappointment in us.

The next line was for haircuts. The line lasted two hours and the haircuts 2 1/2 minutes.

That was merely the indoctrination. Its purpose was to condition us for lines. It worked, too. After that, no line ever seemed so bad. On troopships we stood in line all day — first for breakfast, then for lunch, then for dinner. After each meal we would go to the head, sack out for a few minutes to rest our legs, and then get back in line for the next meal. I endured these lines in reading paperback books. These were the first pocketbooks — made exactly to fit fatigue pockets. They were published in hundreds of good titles. They introduced millions of GIs to good books, and were perhaps the best invention to come out of World War II.

We also stood in line every evening at the slop-chute for beer. We were allowed to buy two cans of beer at a time; but a man holding two cans of beer can't hold a book, so we simply got back in line with the two cans and by the time we reached the head of the line again we had drunk them both and could buy two more. This process continued until the beer was gone, or whatever, and it helped to win the war.

Ever since then I have been willing to accept various other kinds of inconvenience rather than stand in line. Once or twice I have let myself get drawn into a line for a first-run movie. I love movies. But I have discovered that if you can wait two or three months to see a movie you "have to see," you don't have to see it anymore. And if you still want to, you can see it without waiting in line. It surprises me how often a movie can deteriorate between the time critics hail it as a great work of art that must be seen by anyone who considers himself sensitive and intelligent, and the time you actually see it. (If you aren't sensitive and intelligent, though, movies sometimes get better as time goes by, like "Casablanca.") I also have a theory about restaurants. If you have to wait in line at a restaurant, it's already on its way downhill.

One of the problems in predicting bad things is our failure to foresee the good things that may come along to offset them. Perhaps, as we become more and more computerized in the 1980s, we will have to stand in line less and less. Perhaps soon we can all stay home all the time and simply tune in to the news, entertainment, sensation or work of our choice.

When that happens, you'll find me out on the sidewalk in a line somewhere, waiting to see "Casablanca."

This hostility comes from the first three lines I stood in at boot camp. The first one was to get shots in the arm. We got every shot known to medicine except the Pasteur series for rabies. (For all I know they gave that to us in our sleep.) The next morning, after our arms had had time to become excruciatingly sore, they lined us up for our new clothing and gear.

This ritual took place in a cold warehouse shortly after dawn. First we were told to strip naked and drop our civilian clothes in a barrel for the poor (though of course everyone by that time was working in a war plant and there were no poor). Then we lined up and trotted single file past a row of supply counters, whose proprietors measured us for size by eye as we approached and hurled the supposedly-right-size garments at "The most critical near-term problem in energy supply for this country is fluid fuel," the academy said. "Next to demand growth reduction, highest priority should be given to the development of a domestic synthetic fuels industry, for both liquids and gas."

Bearing down on what it said was an inevitable worldwide shortage of oil and natural gas in the next decade, the academy said the nation must begin to rely more on coal and nuclear power for its electricity.

"Coal and nuclear power are the only economic alternatives for large-scale application in the remainder of

Carter may drop tax plan

NEW YORK (AP) — The Carter administration, sensing that higher gasoline prices are already cutting energy consumption, is dropping plans to push a 50-cent-a-gallon tax increase on gasoline, Time magazine said Sunday.

The magazine said the administration, fearing increased taxes could hurt Carter politically, will instead prepare to move more quickly to energy rationing if a shortage develops.

Time also said it had learned from Carter administration sources that the government no longer plans to use all revenues from its proposed "windfall profits" tax for energy development, mass transit and help for poor people to pay energy bills.

Because of the 35 percent increase in gasoline prices last year, consumption has dropped 5 percent, Time said. The unusually mild winter has also cut heating oil consumption.

The magazine said Carter will ask Congress for authority to ration fuel if a 5 percent shortage develops. He now has authority to ration in the event of a 20 percent shortage.

Some damage occurred to the Hill house Sunday as house movers started on the second leg of its trip out of town. As the house was being pulled from a lot at Midkiff Street and Industrial Avenue, a large I-beam yoke supporting the house cracked in two, causing the house to drop forward. The room section on the far right caught the end of the tow-truck, pushing that section up as the main structure moved downward. Initial inspection indicated no damage to the main structure, and movers said the house could be back on its journey Tuesday. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

Dr. Criswell in hospital

DALLAS (AP) — Dr. W.A. Criswell, the outspoken, silver-haired pastor of the world's largest Southern Baptist church, remained in a Dallas hospital today, undergoing tests for "exhaustion," his physician said.
Criswell's doctor said the 70-year-old pastor was admitted to Baylor University Medical Center early Sunday after a restless night.
"He is under a very heavy schedule, including completing a book," said the doctor, who asked that his name not be used. "We have persuaded him to remain in the hospital for a few days."
The physician said Gary Holder, an associate pastor at First Baptist Church in Dallas, preached the Sunday morning sermon at the downtown church.
A Criswell associate, who also asked that he not be identified, said Criswell had "secluded himself in his study" the past two weeks, rushing to finish a book for young pastors. He also has been traveling extensively on a nationwide crusade.
Criswell has been pastor at First Baptist for 35 years. Widely known for his fundamentalist views within the denomination, he often has drawn criticism for his outspoken views on world affairs.

Uncommon Duplex Homes At Uncommon Duplex Prices

$64,500.00

Truly Unique Design

Wall-to-wall carpeting, new dishwasher, range/oven, garbage disposal, washers and dryers, plus a fireplace.

Extraordinary Value

With home prices spiraling, Idlewild Village is a great value, affordably priced, within the budget of most homebuyers. If your income was less than $30,000.00 in 1978 or 1979, you may be able to buy under a unique mortgaging program.

Featuring 95% financing Approximately 91/8% interest 30 year loan

Apartment dwellers paying as little as $225.00 per month may be surprised to learn that they may be wasting over $600.00 per month by renting, instead of buying.

Don't Delay

Stop by our office at 4501 W. Wadley for a free computerized personal budget analysis, or write P.O. Box 5185, Midland, Texas 79701.

Duplex ownership gives many people the opportunity to buy their first home, with the tenant helping pay the mortgage.

...But Hurry, these homes will not be available for long!

Lee, MHS girls in action tonight

The Midland Lee girls have taken control of the first half District 5-4A basketball race with only two games left in the first half chase, but Midland High is back knocking at the door and must guard against a let down today at 8 p.m. when the Bulldogs host San Angelo at the Chaparral Center.

LEE, LEADING the pack with a 4-1 loop record, is expected to easily maintain that slim one-game margin since the Rebels travel to 0-5 Big Spring tonight. That means that 3-2 Midland High needs a victory over 2-3 San Angelo tonight and a win over Odessa High Thursday in Odessa to hope for a share of the first half crown. Still, the Bulldogs need some help from either Big Spring tonight (unlikely) or from Odessa Permian Thursday. Permian faces Lee Thursday in the Chap Center at 8 p.m. Permian is also 3-2 as is Abilene High and Odessa High.

first half race for sure. Permian hosts 2-3 Abilene Cooper and the Panthers must win to stay in contention.

THE GIRLS league gets better and better with each passing year, and the league seems to have reached the parity stage. The second half race should be as wild as the first half and that means there could be a district playoff for the second year in a row. Under league rules, the first half winner plays the second half winner for the right to go to the playoffs.

Naturally, the first half winner has a big advantage over the other teams since it has to only win or tie for the second half title to win the playoff berth.

Thursday's Results: Midland 49, Abilene 45 (Overtime); Midland Lee 53, Abilene Cooper 50; Odessa Permian 52, Big Spring 43; Odessa 40, San Angelo 34.

Tonight's Games: San Angelo vs. Midland High, Chaparral Center; Midland Lee at Big Spring; Abilene Cooper at Odessa Permian; Odessa High at Abilene High. All varsity games 8 p.m. JV contests at 6 p.m.

MIDLAND HIGH lost a district playoff last year to Lee to just miss their first trip to the playoffs.

Stadler shares Hope lead

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Craig Stadler, who has yet to win on the PGA Tour, was poised and confident entering today's final round of the long, rain-delayed Bob Hope Desert Classic.

"No, I'm not anxious," the bearded man said after gaining a tie for the top spot with Larry Nelson after the completion of 72 holes Sunday. "I'm pretty confident. What's gonna happen is gonna happen. I've been there before (in contention). I think I can handle it."

"I'm driving the ball well, and that's important on these golf courses."

NELSON, MEANWHILE, is having problems off the tee — the result of a problem that had his right hand and wrist in a cast for three weeks. "I'm hitting everything (to the right)," said Nelson, who won two 1979 titles and second spot on the season's money-winning list with $281,000.

It was that problem, a shot that got away to the right, that led to a triple-bogey 7 and Nelson's failure to hold the lead alone.

He and Stadler were tied at 276, 12 under par, after one round on each of four desert courses. Nelson rallied from the early triple bogey for a solid 71 as the first man off the tee at La Quinta, site of today's final round.

STADLER PLAYED in relative solitude at Indian Wells while the sponsor and his show-business, celebrity friends cavorted before the national television cameras. Stadler had a fourth-round 69, including a 17th-hole bogey-6 that knocked him out of the lead alone.

Seven other players were locked within three strokes of the top going into the last round of the kickoff event for the 1980 PGA Tour.

Tom Purtzer, with a 69 at La Quinta, and Mike Sullivan, 71 at Bermuda Dunes, were a single stroke back at 277. At 278 were George Cadle and Victor Regalado. Cadle shot 69 at Indian Wells. Regalado, who had shared the third round lead with Nelson, three-putted from two feet at Bermuda Dunes and had to settle for a 73.

LANNY WADKINS, a two-time winner last season, Mark Hayes and Bob Murphy were three off the pace at 279. Murphy and Hayes each had a 71 at La Quinta and Wadkins a 71 at Eldorado.

Arnold Palmer, three under par after 36 holes, played the fourth round with the premier amateur group — host Hope, Jackie Gleason and former President Gerald Ford — and paid the price before the huge galleries that followed them under a bright, warm desert sun. Palmer, who won this title five times including his last American victory in 1973, shot a 78 and failed to qualify for the final round at 294.

NELSON APPEARED to have all but knocked himself out of title contention early in the day. His drive sailed to the right on the second hole, then his second shot hit a tree limb and went out of bounds. He finished with a "7," then bogeyed the next hole. But he fought back, got a birdie before the turn and three more immediately after, then closed out with a gorgeous shot over a palm tree that set up a last-hole birdie.

Vitas Gerulaitis claps his hands after losing a point to Sweden's Bjorn Borg in the finals of the $400,000 Grand Prix of Tennis Sunday in New York City. Borg defeated Gerulaitis, 6-2, 6-2 to win the championship and $100,000. (AP Laserphoto).

Bjorn Borg pockets $100,000

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'm the happiest guy in town," said a beaming Bjorn Borg, and with good reason.

Borg, the spectacular, stoic Swede, extended his mastery over Vitas Gerulaitis with a lopsided 6-2, 6-2 victory Sunday in the final of the $400,000 Grand Prix Masters, breaking a New York jinx and reaffirming his status as the best tennis player in the world.

"I was very eager for this one," said Borg, who has beaten Gerulaitis, his friend and practice partner, in all 15 of their meetings. "I've never won a big title in New York. I've wanted to win here for a long time. I've been close so many times, it feels great to finally win."

Borg has never won the U.S. Open, and called that "my next goal — very, very important to me."

Meanwhile, he pocketed $100,000 for winning the eight-man event at Madison Square Garden that serves as the championship of the Grand Prix circuit. If there was ever any question about who is the best men's tennis player in the world, Borg answered it.

"The money is great, but I prefer the title," said Borg. "To win the Masters was very important. I have to put this title very high, because the best players in the world were here."

And Borg beat them all. One by one they challenged, and one by one they fell by the wayside — Roscoe Tanner, Jimmy Connors, John McEnroe and finally Gerulaitis.

"He's on a plateau by himself," said Gerulaitis. "You can't compare any of these guys to Borg. He's been the dominant force in tennis the last few years. He's obviously not unbeatable, since some guys came close this week. But he's definitely a little bit ahead of all the other guys."

Sunday's final was decided in the fifth game of the first set. With the score tied 2-2 and Gerulaitis serving, Borg's brilliant passing shots began to take their toll. Gerulaitis struggled to maintain control, sending the game to deuce nine times and saving nine break points. But finally, Gerulaitis hit a volley into the net, giving Borg all the opening he needed.

"I was a little tight in the beginning, so it was important to get that break," said Borg. "After that I was a little more relaxed."

Gerulaitis had Borg at 0-30 in the next game but failed to break back, and was never really in the match after that. "After I was broken in that long game, I had a couple of chances to break back in the next game but couldn't," said Gerulaitis. "That let the air out of my balloon. He got on top of me after that."

A crowd of 17,642 came to the Garden to cheer on Gerulaitis, who was raised in New York and still lives in nearby Kings Point. And the local boy wanted nothing more than to send them home happy. "It would have been great to win in New York," said Gerulaitis, who earned $64,000 in defeat. "But I'd be perfectly happy to beat this guy in Little Rock, Arkansas."

Duran scores TKO win

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Roberto Duran's fourth-round technical knockout of Josef Nsubuga has solidified his bid for a shot at World Boxing Council welterweight champion Sugar Ray Leonard and silenced critics who claim the Panamanian slugger has been slipping.

The fight Sunday, viewed by many as a tuneup for a possible multimillion-dollar fight between Duran and Leonard later this year, belonged to Duran from the first bell despite a second-round rally by Nsubuga.

Duran dominated Nsubuga in the third round, and a short right sent the Ugandan to the canvas with only seconds remaining in the fourth.

stopped Monroe Brooks in eight rounds at New York.

Since then, he has fought three times as a welterweight, winning 10-round decisions over Jimmy Hear, Carlos Palomino and Zeferino Gonzalez, but bringing comments from critics that he may have lost his devastating punching power.

Duran, who also may get a shot at World Boxing Association welterweight champ Pipino Cuevas, said he was ready for Leonard.

"I was in good shape today," he said after the bout in the Sports Pavilion at Caesars Palace. "But I'll be in much better shape for Leonard."

In the fourth round, Duran backed Nsubuga into the ropes, battering him with a series of lefts and rights. He moved him into the corner and hit him with at least 20 punches before the powerful right that sent the Ugandan down.

On Dec. 8, 1978, Duran — in his last appearance as a lightweight — end the round and stumbled back to his corner, obviously dazed. Referee Richard Green checked Nsubuga and stopped the fight, which went in the books as a fourth-round TKO.

Duran said Nsubuga's dancing, back-and-forth style "had me a little confused in the beginning. He was stronger than I thought and much faster than I thought."

Nsubuga, who had been scoring well with a fast jab, said he should have continued that tactic but got suckered in by Duran.

"I think I fought stupid," he said. "I fell for Duran's tricks. He wanted me to mix it up with him and I did. I should have moved and kept jabbing."

Duran, who received $65,000 for the fight, now has a 68-1 record with 54 knockouts. Nsubuga, who earned $10,000, now has a 15-2 record with eight knockouts.

Unless it's as fleeting an image as a desert mirage, the preseason favorite Texas Aggies and the defending champion Arkansas Razorbacks appear to be the cream of the 1979-1980 Southwest Conference basketball class.

Of course, it could all change in another round of family feudin' Tuesday night as the Aggies travel to Dallas in a "must" game for Southern Methodist.

Arkansas, which has a 3-0 ledger like the Aggies, will be a prohibitive favorite to whip Baylor in Fayetteville.

In other games, Texas Tech (3-1) entertains Rice while Texas Christian is at Texas.

Texas A&M's 6-foot-11 center Rudy Woods has suddenly taken charge of the Aggie offense while the Razorbacks combine balance, poise, and discipline with considerable talent.

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton said he figures the eventual conference regular season champion will have "three or four losses."

But only Texas Tech has shown the same consistency as the Aggies and Razorbacks.

"I still think Arkansas is going to be first in the conference," said Texas Coach Abe Lemons. "Arkansas is a good club, better than us, no doubt about it."

Arkansas and the Aggies don't meet until Jan. 22 when the Razorbacks travel to College Station. The Aggies could just see a new-found Arkansas zone defense. The Hogs used the defense to baffie the Longhorns 55-50 Saturday.

"It's the most zone we've played since I've been here," said senior Alan Zahn.

"I thought we played with as much poise as we have all year," said Sutton. "We played more zone than we have maybe in four years. But don't worry about Texas. They are one fine club. They can play."

Both Texas and Houston have two losses with as many victories. Texas Tech beat Texas Christian 84-65, Houston tripped Southern Methodist 96-81, and Baylor downed Rice 73-63 in other games Saturday.

Texas A&M was idle. In a Sunday game at San Antonio, Notre Dame routed TCU, 85-67.

The Aggie-SMU game in Dallas Tuesday night will be regionally televised.

SMU is on the tube for the third time in eight days Saturday when TCU comes calling in a day game. On Saturday night, Houston is at Arkansas, Baylor is at Tech, and A&M is at Rice.

Atlanta, Lakers post victories in NBA action

By The Associated Press

When the Atlanta Hawks are around, the San Antonio Spurs barely jingle, jangle, jingle.

After trouncing the Spurs 120-101 in Atlanta Saturday night, the Hawks began a grueling Western trip with a 107-104 triumph in San Antonio Sunday evening, giving them six victories in their last seven meetings with the Texans.

"It was just a great win for us, a sensational way to start the trip," said Coach Hubie Brown. "We just seem to play well in this building (HemisFair Arena) and against the Spurs."

Elsewhere in the National Basketball Association, the Los Angeles Lakers nipped the Boston Celtics 100-98, the Seattle SuperSonics beat the Golden State Warriors 109-101, the Houston Rockets shaded the Milwaukee Bucks 121-117, the Philadelphia 76ers trimmed the New York Knicks 126-112, the Kansas City Kings trounced the New Jersey Nets 120-101, the Phoenix Suns edged the Utah Jazz 106-103, the Washington Bullets crushed the Portland Trail Blazers 127-95 and the Detroit Pistons downed the Chicago Bulls 107-102.

Dan Roundfield had 31 points and Eddie Johnson added 27 in Atlanta's victory over San Antonio that gave the Hawks a five-game lead over the Spurs and Houston in the Central Division.

"It was a big game for us. It got us started toward the West," said Roundfield. The Hawks visit San Diego, Phoenix, Los Angeles and Kansas City in the next nine days.

"We're 11-12 on the road and we're going to San Diego, Phoenix and Los Angeles with great expectations," said Brown. "We play all those teams well. We're playing good basketball now."

The Hawks, who led the Spurs 78-68 with 10:41 remaining, fell behind 95-90. Roundfield cut the score to 95-92 before John Drew, held to only two points until then, scored the Hawks' next seven points.

The Spurs, the NBA's best offensive team, shot a paltry 38 percent. Larry Kenon hit only eight of 25 shots and Gerwin, the NBA's leading scorer, made only eight of 24.

Lakers 100, Celtics 98

Norm Nixon's two free throws with three seconds remaining capped a furious Los Angeles comeback. The Lakers, trailing by 14 points, scored 21 in a row as the Celtics went cold in the third period. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 33 points and Jamaal Wilkes added 21 as Los Angeles handed Boston only its second loss in 20 home games.

The Celtics, who hit on 26 of 41 shots in the first half, managed only five of 28 in the third period.

Beth Heiden dethroned by Petrusheva in skating

By The Associated Press

Although big brother Eric established two phenomenal speed skating records in Switzerland, the Madison, Wis., Heiden family suffered a pre-Olympic setback in Norway Sunday when little sister Beth was dethroned as all-round women's world champion by a Russian girl.

Beth Heiden won all four races in the world championships at The Hague last year, but 24-year-old Natalia Petrusheva of the Soviet Union won three out of the four all-round distances at Hamar, Norway, in the World All-Round Championships over the weekend. She thereby captured the Soviet Union's 23rd of 38 possible all-round world titles since women's championships were introduced in 1936.

Petrusheva, who established herself as a strong Olympic challenger, was runnerup to Heiden last year.

Meanwhile, Eric Heiden, the reigning world all-round and sprint champion, smashed his own world record in the 1,000-meter sprint with a 1:13.60 Sunday in a two-day pre-Olympic meet at Davos, Switzerland. His previous mark was 1:14.99.

"We had it locked up and then things collapsed," said Celtics' playmaker Tiny Archibald. "We just have to think of it as a single loss, not a catastrophe."

"We didn't do a doggone thing in the third period," added Coach Bill Fitch. "We looked about as bad as anyone could."

SuperSonics 109, Warriors 101

Dennis Johnson scored 15 of his 25 points in the third quarter to lead Seattle. Johnson, who sank nine of 11 shots in the second half, combined with John Johnson to help the Sonics reel off 11 points for a 76-65 lead with 6 1/2 minutes left in the third period. The Warriors could get no closer than three points as they dropped their 10th straight road game.

Rockets 121, Bucks 117

Moses Malone scored the last five of his 27 points in the final 25 seconds after the Rockets, who trailed by 19 late in the first half, overtook Milwaukee, rallied behind the shooting of Rick Barry, who scored five three-point goals, and Calvin Murphy, who poured in 14 of his 18 points in the second half. Marques Johnson led the Bucks with 30 points.

76ers 126, Knicks 112

Julius Erving scored 30 points and rookie Clint Richardson added a career-high 24 — 22 in the first three periods — as Philadelphia notched its fifth consecutive triumph. Michael Ray Richardson and Bill Cartwright had 25 apiece for the Knicks.

Kings 120, Nets 101

Otis Birdsong's 33 points led Kansas City to its seventh victory in the last eight games. The Kings lead Milwaukee by 2 1/2 games in the Midwest Division. Birdsong had help from Scott Wedman with 24 points and Phil Ford with 21.

Suns 106, Jazz 103

Paul Westphal scored 28 points and Phoenix survived a late rally. The Suns had run off 12 straight points to take a 14-point lead early in the final period. But the Jazz, playing their third straight game without injured Adrian Dantley, rallied to take a 99-97 lead before the Suns came back and clinched the game on an 18-foot jumper by Westphal.

Bullets 127, Trail Blazers 95

Greg Ballard scored a career-high 32 points, sinking eight of nine shots in the decisive first half as the Bullets rolled up a 61-40 bulge. Larry Wright, making only his second start of the season, added 16 points in place of the slumping Kevin Grevey.

Pistons 107, Bulls 102

Eric Money scored nine of his 26 points in the final four minutes as the Pistons recorded only their second victory in the last 17 games. Detroit blew most of a 13-point lead before Money took over with three baskets and three free throws. Bob McAdoo also had 26 points for the winners.

Heiden also bettered the world mark for sprint points, posting 150.255 points in the weekend meet in two 500-meter and two 1,000-meter races. The previous record of 151.190 was held by Evgeny Kulikov of the Soviet Union.

"I was not in top form here. This championship came too early for me, as it did for several of the other skaters," said Beth Heiden, who had to settle for second place in the overall standings.

After beating Petrusheva by more than 2.5 time points last year, the American girl was only one time point behind Petrusheva.

Beth Heiden will have another chance to defend a world championship title before the Olympic Games. She will also be title defender at the World Sprint Championships at West Allis in her homestate Feb. 9-10, — only four days before the first Olympic race.

Petrusheva was champion already after the three first races at Hamar and just had to complete Sunday's final 3,000 meters, in which she settled for a sixth place.

Touchdown in snow is scored Sunday during Japan Bowl in Yokohama when Paul Jones (46), California running back for the West squad, runs over as teammate Mark Jones of Missouri applies block on East's Tom Schmemp of Wisconsin. The West won, 28-17. (AP Laserphoto).

West all-stars win Japan Bowl

YOKOHAMA, Japan (AP) — The West all-stars, led by the passing of Arkansas' Kevin Scanlon and the running of Nebraska's J.M. Hipp, slipped and slid to a 28-17 victory over the East all-stars in the fifth annual Japan Bowl Sunday.

Playing in the Tokyo region's first snowstorm of the winter, the teams fumbled a total of nine times — eight by the West — and the lead changed hands four times before the West pulled away in the last period.

Some 27,000 Japanese fans, about half the capacity of Yokohama Stadium, shivered through the game that gave the West a 3-2 edge in the series.

SCANLON THREW touchdown passes of 41 yards to Emanuel Tolbert of Southern Methodist and 14 yards to Junior Miller of Nebraska as his team overcame a 10-7 halftime deficit.

Hipp, closing out a distinguished career for the Cornhuskers, scored once on a 14-yard dash and piled up 82 yards in 13 carries to be named the game's outstanding offensive player.

Fumbles led to the first three scores, with the East team coached by Ohio State's Earle Bruce and Jackie Sherrill of Pittsburgh drawing first blood early in the second period.

A WEST fumble gave the East the ball on the west 29, from where Utah's Roch Hontas rifled a touchdown pass to Alabama wide receiver Keith Pugh. A few minutes later, the East fumbled on its 41 and Scanlon delivered the tying score on the pass to Tolbert.

BEFORE THE half, yet another fumble gave the East the ball deep in West territory and Iowa's David Holselaw kicked a 25-yard field goal for a 10-7 lead.

Midway through the third period, Brian Baggott of UCLA intercepted a Hontas pass on the East 23. Scanlon followed with his second scoring pass, putting the West back in front, 14-10, but the East rebounded with an eight-yard scoring drive that ended with Ohio State's Paul Campbell crashing through from the 4.

At 6:20 of the last quarter, the West took the lead for good as Hipp scored to climax a 74-yard drive in 11 plays. The last score came in the dying seconds on an 8-yard dash by California's Paul Jones.

DESPITE THE miserable conditions, Scanlon completed eight of 12 passing attempts for the West, which was coached by Tony Mason of Arizona and Scanlon's own coach, Lou Holtz of Arkansas.

Syracuse rally downs Purdue

By The Associated Press

The Purdue Boilermakers were hot, the Syracuse Orangemen were not.

"We knew we had to go after them all the way," said Syracuse Coach Jim Boehm. "We pressured them full-court and wanted to pressure their guards because we're a little quicker."

It was just what Syracuse needed to turn an 11-point deficit late in the game into a 66-61 college basketball victory Sunday.

The nationally televised game was one of two involving a ranked team Sunday. In the other, No. 7 Notre Dame routed Texas Christian 85-68.

Saturday's action was rife with upsets, as no less than seven Top Twenty teams went down to defeat.

Top-ranked Duke lost to No. 15 North Carolina 82-67; No. 4 Kentucky bowed to Alabama 78-64; No. 6 Louisiana State was beaten by Georgia 73-72 in double overtime; No. 8 Virginia dropped a 64-56 decision to North Carolina State; No. 16 UCLA was stopped 82-74 by Southern Cal; No. 18 Clemson was upset 86-83 by Wake Forest and No. 20 Georgetown took a 76-65 beating from Oral Roberts.

Elsewhere Saturday, No. 2 DePaul beat Marquette 92-85; No. 3 Ohio State topped Northwestern 75-63; No. 9 Oregon State edged Arizona State 63-59; Purdue whipped Michigan 68-61; No. 11 Louisville routed Memphis State 69-48; No. 12 Iowa edged Wisconsin 66-65; No. 13 Missouri trimmed Nebraska 84-63; No. 14 St. John's routed Seton Hall 97-64; No. 17 Brigham Young turned back Utah 89-72 and No. 19 Indiana trimmed Michigan State 72-64.

Dietzel in tribute to LSU grid coach

CARY, N.C. (AP) — Louisiana State Athletic Director Paul Dietzel only got to work with his new head football coach, Bo Rein, for 42 days. But Sunday, Dietzel said he felt he had known Rein since birth.

"I doubt if anyone made a finer impression in 42 days than Bo Rein," Dietzel said of Rein, who was honored at a Mass of Resurrection at the Catholic church he attended while he coached at North Carolina State.

Rein, 34, was killed Friday when, flying home from a recruiting trip, the plane he was a passenger in apparently flew into bad weather in Louisiana. Authorities believe Rein and the pilot passed out when the plane reached a height greater than it was capable of flying in order to avoid the thunderstorms.

The plane, by then almost 1,000 miles off course, crashed into the Atlantic Ocean off the Virginia coast. Coast Guard officials suspended a search for the plane Sunday afternoon.

"After the memorial services, Dietzel called Rein 'an unusually wonderful' man, someone the people down in Louisiana had taken a liking to. 'He was so excited to be our coach. We responded by being excited that he was our coach.'

"'He was a kind of fellow you talk to for 20 minutes, you felt like you've known him all your life,'" Dietzel added.

Players from Rein's Wolfpack teams, assistant coaches and members of the Rein family filed into St. Michael's Catholic Church to hear assistant pastor Albert J. Tittiger call Rein "one of these unique human beings who loved human beings."

"We grieve for Bo because his death was all too sudden ... We look at

SMU's Ford may miss spring drills

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist quarterback Mike Ford, already sidelined with a knee injury, may miss spring semester classes because of hepatitis.

"He's under doctor's orders to remain in bed for at least three weeks," SMU Coach Ron Meyer said. "Since he would be getting such a late start into the semester anyway, he might not enroll for the spring."

Ford, a junior, missed most of SMU's 1976 football season with a knee injury but had been given another year of eligibility by the Southwest Conference.

Meyer also announced four assistants are leaving his staff.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Mumps can be serious disease for adult males

Dear Dr. Solomon: At the age of 32, I find myself recovering from a case of mumps, which I caught from my son. I've been told mumps sometimes causes sterility in men. How likely is this? — Mr. L.A.

Dear Mr. A.: One of the possible complications of mumps is orchitis — an inflammation of the testicles. Although only about one percent of young boys with mumps develop the condition, from 20 to 30 percent of adult males do. The condition is painful and may be accompanied by severe swelling. While orchitis can result in permanent damage to the testicles, it only infrequently leads to sterility.

Dear Dr. Solomon: If you present a child with a variety of foods, will he naturally eat good foods? — Mrs. R.T.

Dear Mrs. R.T.: A child learns to eat those foods you provide and encourage. Your children's food habits are firmly established in childhood. If you serve sugary and high-fat foods often, you'll encourage a taste for those high-calorie foods. And your child will more likely become an overweight adult.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Does sugar in cereals add extra calories, and is there any relationship between these sugars and tooth decay? — Mrs. A.I.

Dear Mrs. A.I.: Sugar, whether you add it yourself or buy it in presweetened cereals, adds extra calories. And sugary foods promote tooth decay, especially when eaten as between-meals snacks. However, if you do want sugar, it will be cheaper to add it yourself. Don't forget that a few teaspoons added to regular cereal can often boost the sugar content to that of a presweetened cereal.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My pediatrician tells me my daughter had German measles but did not have measles. Could you explain the difference? — Mrs. H.M.

Dear Mrs. M.: The two are entirely separate diseases, caused by different viruses. Measles (or rubeola) is a serious childhood disease. It lasts for about a week, the patient generally becomes quite ill, and after-effects sometimes are severe.

German measles (or rubella) is a mild infection that lasts three days and seldom causes complications in children. The chief danger of German measles is that it can cause birth defects in babies born to mothers who are infected with the disease during their pregnancy.

Dear Dr. Solomon: After suffering for a time with what I thought was indigestion, I had X rays taken and an ulcer was discovered. What causes an ulcer to form? — Mr. K.G.

Dear Mr. G.: When proteins, such as meat, are ingested, hydrochloric acid and pepsin begin the digestive process as soon as the food reaches the stomach. Normally, the mucous membrane that lines the stomach and duodenal wall is not affected by the pepsin and acid; hence, no ulcers. In some people, however, the resistance breaks down and an ulcer develops.

Acid is an essential ingredient to the development of an ulcer. Most people with duodenal ulcers and some with gastric ulcers secrete more acid than the average person. A lessening of the acidity relieves symptoms and promotes healing of the ulcer.

(A recent Dr. Solomon column discussing a new medical treatment to stop smoking has brought a great many letters from readers seeking further information. All these inquiries are being followed up, but due to the extremely large volume of mail received, there may be a delay in responding to some reader requests.)

Gadget monitors electricity use

By LES SEAGO

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The gadget has all the earmarks of a million-dollar development program: blinking lights, digital readouts and a mind-boggling array of transistors and other electronic doodads.

Connect it to your electrical system and it will flash an up-to-the-minute accounting of how much you owe the utility, blink a warning about excessive consumption and at the end of the month read the meter and pass the information to the power company.

The Watts Dog was designed by a group of engineering students with a $16,000 National Science Foundation grant and a generous helping of motivation.

"I was skeptical that students were going to finish a project like this," Dr. Frederick Swift, the assistant dean of engineering at Memphis State University, said. "I get a lot of ideas across my desk, but not many of them turn into anything."

The project began 18 months ago when several electrical engineering students asked Swift about extracurricular research.

"They were interested in solving some social problems that engineers are often accused of causing," Swift said.

The students decided to develop a device that would spell out to homeowners in dollars and cents how much electricity they are consuming.

Project director Gary Johnson, 25, compared the Watts Dog with a gasoline pump meter.

"You can look at your electric meter, but it doesn't translate easily into money," he said. He said the students thought if consumers could see how much electricity was costing, they could budget their energy use and reduce consumption.

The students, including 22-year-olds Brad Holder and Roy Williams, got help from Memphis State business and sociology students on a market-research survey. The survey was encouraging, Swift said.

Meanwhile, Johnson and his colleagues, none of whom had any experience with computers before they began college, went to work.

"It was sort of like designing a car without ever seeing a car," Johnson said. They built three models before they were satisfied.

The finished preproduction Watts Dog consists of a printed circuit board, three computer "chips," a pair of digital readout panels similar to a hand-held calculator, and a system of light.

The device, which uses only a tiny amount of power, connects to the household electrical system between the electric meter and the main switch panel.

The Watts Dog is about as big as a breadbox, but Johnson said production models could be about the size of a clock radio.

Johnson said three similar devices were being developed by major electronics firms but none that would sell for about $100, the probable price of the Watts Dog.

Despite his students' success, Swift said they had received no grade for their project.

"We didn't want a grade," Johnson said. "We wanted to do something like this because it was something that was needed."

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE Postpone a Finesse

By Alfred Sheinwold

"Never put off until tomorrow," an old proverb begins. At bridge, however, don't take a finesse that you can safely postpone. If a king is at your right when the hand begins, you won't later find it at your left.

Today's declarer took two hearts and two trumps and then led a club from dummy. East stepped up with the ace of clubs and returned the jack of diamonds.

Declarer lost a finesse to the king, and back came a diamond to the ace. South therefore lost two clubs and two diamonds.

SHOULD PLAY ACE South should play the ace of diamonds instead of the queen. When South then leads another club, West can take the king but can get only one diamond. If West doesn't take his diamond, South discards a diamond on dummy's fourth club.

If East has both top clubs he wins the second club and leads another diamond. Then, but only then, South must play the queen, but if East started with the king of diamonds he will still have it. Also, if West started with K-x of diamonds, he will have no safe return after taking his king.
