Fight may be brewing over nuclear industry in the Permian Basin

By KAY CRITES
Staff Writer

A fight appears to be brewing over an attempt by a new nuclear industry with a bad safety record to locate in Midland County.

Although the project seems to be halted at least temporarily by the loss of the original site, a company spokesman said that if the reports were true, the firm would continue to try and locate in the Midland area.

Grant Billingsley with the Midland Chamber of Commerce has vowed action if the company does pursue its search for a site near Midland.

According to The Associated Press, state officials today announced that Midland-Odessa residents should know next week whether the permit for operation had been issued to Santana Industries, which uses radioactive tritium to make safety exit signs for buildings.

The firm applied in January to the Radiation Control Division of the state health department for a license to set up shop midway between Midland and Odessa.

Santana Industries is a new corporation run by the same directors as American Atomics Corp., whose Tucson plant was seized last September by the Arizona National Guard after it was shut down by the Arizona Atomic Energy Commission for repeated violations.

Tritium was found in swimming pools, school cafeteria food, and the city sewage system.

The application to the state health department was in its final stages of review, but this morning, Joe Gorrell, licensing supervisor for the Radiation Control Division of the state health department, said they had received information from the Midland Chamber of Commerce that the company had lost its site.

"If that is true, if they don't have the lease, then we certainly cannot authorize a license," Gorrell said.

He added the company had to have a lease on the present building specified in its application or they would have to move and re-submit the portion of their application regarding the site.

Re-submitting part of the application would "delay the application for quite a while," said Gorrell.

A spokesman for American Atomics Corp., in Tucson, Ariz., said he had not been in contact with the owners of the present site and did not know if the lease had expired, but that if it had, the firm would continue to search for a site in the Midland area.

However, Billingsley, with the Midland Chamber of Commerce, said the project has effectively been halted because the company's lease contract has expired.

"There can be no permit issued to begin operations until the health department is satisfied they have a site," Billingsley said. The site application is a large part of their permit application. And at this time their lease has expired; we have been told they do not have a facility under their control."

According to Billingsley, no protests have been made to the state agencies because the project had been stopped as far as Midland is concerned.

"We are in touch with the owner of the building that they had under lease and are constantly in touch with the Health Department, and if they (Santana) continue to pursue a site in Midland County the company will be told there will be a public hearing.

"We don't want to get people all worked up over it because we have some companies here who work with radioactive materials quite safely. It's just that these people have a little bit of a reputation for questionable business practices in Arizona.

"We feel very comfortable, as far as the regulatory aspect. We're just not real comfortable about this project."

Billingsley said Midland did not recruit this firm. Rather, city officials were notified about it after the company had located a site and leased the building just south of Midland Regional Airport. The building was leased with an option to extend the lease after the operational permit was granted.

He added the Texas Air Control Board found the emissions so minimal as to almost be exempt, but the health department had some questions.

"At the end of April we were brought in (notified of the company's intentions to locate in Midland County) and that's when we became aware it was an offshoot of American Atomics Corp.," Billingsley said.

"What we are hoping, is that it will slowly fade away by itself."

The state of Nevada has rejected a similar Santana application.

Quakes may mean more eruptions, experts say

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens was hiding under clouds and discreetly blowing steam after a rowdy weekend, but scientists warned that new earthquakes may mean new eruptions.

Helicopter pilots hoped for better weather today in the effort to find the 76 people still missing since the volcano erupted violently on May 18. The death toll stood at 21, according to the U.S. Forest Service.

Five more persons missing since Saturday — when they were last seen 10 miles from the peak — were found Monday near Tradedollar Lake, said a spokesman for the Skamania County sheriff's office. Despite their proximity to the Sunday ash eruption that blackened skies in western Oregon and Washington, the hikers were unhurt, the spokesman said.

The group included photographer otto Sieber of Seattle, who had hiked to the summit of the mountain in early April to film the crater.

Except for an ash and steam eruption to a height of 12,500 feet, the mountain was quiet Monday. But scientists warned that small earthquakes under the volcano Monday suggest molten rock may be rising again.

Before the Sunday eruption, the earthquakes were registering as deep as 20 kilometers (12.4 miles) within the volcano, said Don Finley of the U.S. Geological Survey. "Now they register seven kilometers (4.3 miles). That possibly could be an indication that magma could be moving up."

The May 18 explosion flattened thousands of acres of timber, clogged three rivers with mud, blasted at least 1,300 feet from the top of the volcano, sent a disabling cloud of ash east across the nation and forced the evacuation of thousands of persons.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency said it would reopen today a Kelso, Wash., disaster relief center closed during Sunday's ash fall.

In the northern Idaho and eastern Washington areas hit hardest by the ashfall, five school districts have closed for the school year, rather than risk the health of more than 7,000 students.

Mary Adams, superintendent of the Othello, Wash., school district said, "We don't think it's worth the risk," to hold the 14 remaining days of classes.

At a press briefing Monday, geologists said the danger of a flood from an earthen dam holding back what is left of Spirit Lake appears to be almost negligible.

"The debris avalanche now looks very stable. There doesn't seem to be any danger of its slumping down the Toutle River or being shaken away," said geologist Tim Hait.

Of the bodies removed from near the stricken mountain, autopsies have shown at least six died from suffocation, not burns. Dr. John Eisele, the King County medical examiner, said the autopsies performed Sunday indicated the victims might have either inhaled choking dust from the eruption or been smothered under it.

While most of the victims were in areas known to be dangerous, salmon were apparently smart enough to avoid some hazards of the mountain, including the mud-choked Cowlitz and Toutle rivers.

"Nature is going to adjust better than we think," said state fishery manager Paul Peterson. "When our fish swim up the Columbia River and get to the mouth of the Cowlitz — where they are supposed to go upstream — they aren't."

"The fish apparently sense something. The fish continue swimming up the Columbia until they reach the Kalama and then go upstream."

Residents of the densely populated Puget Sound region, which includes Seattle, were making a run on ash-related equipment, even though only a trace of ash hit the region.

Face masks were popular and air filters for cars were selling out.

"All nine of our stores are running short" of filters, said Bob Olson of an A1's Auto Supply store in Seattle. "Some people are buying them four at a time to stock up."

Blacks assisted police in Miami beating case

MIAMI (AP) — Cooperation from outraged blacks who saw three young whites dragged from their car and mauled during last week's race riots led to the arrests of three black men on charges of first-degree murder, police say.

Meanwhile, Miami's riot emergency was declared officially over by Dade County Sheriff Bobby L. Jones.

Nathaniel Lane, 18, and brothers Leonard Joseph Capers, 20, and Lawrence Clifford Capers, 24, were charged Monday with three counts each of first-degree murder, homicide Lt. Lane Bradford said.

The counts were the first murder charges returned in the three-day riots, which left 16 dead.

The three men are accused of beating to death Benny Higdon, 21, a father of three, his brother-in-law, Robert Owens, 15, and a friend, Charles Baracca, 15.

The victims were returning from a day of fishing when their battered Dodge came under attack in a riot-wracked section of Northwest Miami on May 17. They were battered with rocks, boards, sticks, cement blocks, milk crates and a newspaper rack, officers said.

Police released little information about the suspects, but said Lane had been on probation at the time of his arrest. Officers said "a few" additional suspects are being sought and cited the cooperation of witnesses.

"Although they were outraged by the violence and even though they were anxious for the truth to come out, it is difficult (for the witnesses)," a detective said.

The slayings took place about seven hours after an all white jury in Tampa acquitted four white former Dade County police officers in the beating death of black Miami businessman Arthur McDuffie. The verdicts sparked the race riots here that caused an estimated $100 million in damages.

A squad of white, black and Latin homicide investigators worked around the clock on the case, police said.

"We did lots of talking to lots of people," said homicide detective Jose Fleites.

"I'm proud" of the community and the officers, Bradford said. "My guys are hard working. They did a heck of a job."

Austrian warns against more Iranian sanctions

By The Associated Press

Chancellor Bruno Kreisky of Austria said on returning from Tehran today that new sanctions against Iran would further delay the release of the 53 American hostages, now in their 206th day of captivity. A fresh attempt to get U.N. sanctions is being considered by the Carter administration.

"If there are new pressures, this could create new problems," Kreisky told an Austrian radio interviewer who spoke to him at the airport in Athens, Greece, where he arrived on a state visit prior to returning home.

Kreisky said the hostage crisis was "just one of many, many questions we discussed" with Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, and that a solution to the problem must be found in a "calm atmosphere."

Kreisky said he had the impression that the Iranian government was interested in an end to the hostage dilemma but "I cannot give you a date."

Kreisky, former Prime Minister Olof Palme of Sweden and Spain's Socialist Party chief, Felipe Gonzalez — representing the Socialist International — spent Sunday and Monday in Tehran meeting with Bani-Sadr, Foreign Minister Sadeq Ghotbzadeh and Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council.

Members of the new Iranian Parliament also met Monday with the Revolutionary Council. Iran's revolutionary leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has said the Parliament will decide the fate of the hostages. The Parliament convenes Wednesday, but the hostage debate is not expected for weeks.

The United States, buoyed by a unanimous ruling by the World Court, says it might try again to get U.N. Security Council action against Iran if the revolutionary regime continues to reject the court's order to release the hostages.

Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher noted that the Soviet and Polish judges on the International Court of Justice voted with the other 13 members to order Iran to free the captives, and he told reporters Monday in Geneva, Switzerland, that this "dramatically changed" the hostage situation.

Israeli officials break out into bitter public controversy

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Ezer Weizman's resignation as defense minister has sparked a bitter public clash between him and Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Weizman's letter of resignation to Begin, made public Monday night, said: "The people believed in peace. They have not stopped believing. You had a great opportunity. You missed it."

The prime minister, obviously angered by Weizman's accusations, responded with a stinging letter accusing Weizman of "trying to depose me" because of his "maddening ambition."

In Jerusalem, political sources said

The Soviet Union vetoed a U.S.-sponsored resolution in the Security Council last January to impose economic sanctions against Iran. But Christopher suggested Saturday's unanimous vote by the court might indicate a shift in Soviet thinking which would enable the United States to try "previously unavailable remedies" to gain the release of the hostages, held by Moslem militants in Iran since Nov. 4.

Two possible "remedies" Christopher said, would be an order by the Security Council that the hostages be freed or the imposition of sanctions against Iran under the U.N. Charter.

President Carter on Monday told 7,000 sailors returning home from the Persian Gulf that they were "the major factor in protecting the lives of the hostages."

Younger Bush wasn't surprised

He wants his father to be veep candidate

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

George W. Bush wasn't surprised when his father announced Monday his bid for the Republican nomination for president had come to a halt. But if it were up to the younger Bush, he would like to see his father become the vice presidential candidate.

George H.W. Bush, after more than a year of active campaigning, decided to curtail his push for president and sent opponent Ronald Reagan a "strongly worded telegram" congratulating him on his campaign.

The junior Bush, a Midland oilman, said he had been expecting the announcement. But withdrawal from the campaign isn't quite what the candidate is doing.

"He is curtailing his campaign activities," said the younger Bush. "He isn't withdrawing per se because he doesn't want to lose federal matching funds."

Lack of money is the primary reason for the former Midlander's announcement, his son explained. "He ran out of money. He just couldn't wait any more. Reagan built up too big a lead and Dad just couldn't catch it."

"It was apparent the Michigan victory was not going to generate new funds, and the national media were already saying he had lost the race."

But it's not just the need for federal funds that is keeping Bush from withdrawing completely from the race. It's his supporters that are keeping Bush's one toe in the door.

"He feels duty bound to his supporters that they stuck their necks out," said the younger Bush. "These people should be able to go to the convention as Bush's delegates preceding the balloting."

"At the convention Dad will urge his delegates to vote for Reagan on the first balloting. But there is still some pride there; people want to go to the convention as Bush's delegates."

Personally, his son has mixed emotions over his father's decision.

"On one hand, I'm sorry he's not still in the race because I think he would make an excellent president and have a good chance of beating President Carter."

Right now, there are two things one doesn't mention to

Tom Craddick addresses Memorial Day audience

By BILL MODISSETT Staff Writer

The cars whined past. Pedestrians walked slowly by. The wind rustled the leaves in the trees on the front lawn of Midland County Courthouse.

For a moment, it seemed, everything stopped; reality ceased to be and the Memorial Day ceremony became the totality of existence.

Ed Pharris, John T. Williams and Margaret Pharris presented the flag. Jim Silvers, Del Truman and Delbert Chambliss raised the American flag.

A black-clad figure with a white wisp of a clerical collar approached the podium. The Rev. Charles J. Hasenauer, pastor of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church, gave the opening prayer.

Emcee for the event, Phil Bustamante, introduced the speaker, State Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland.

Craddick was relaxed. He told the spectators how his son had asked that morning what the holiday signified and how he had replied. The flag had been raised to the top of their flagpole following that explanation.

The state legislator spoke of war. He spoke of men and women who died. He spoke of activities that would consume the day's hours.

Not forgetting, Pop Reid and Eileen Grimes placed wreaths on the monument erected there.

There was an eerie stillness, interrupted only by the breeze, as "Taps" was played by Bob Scott of Lee High School.

Bustamante dismissed the crowd. The 11 a.m. Monday Memorial Day observance of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7208 was over.

But this Memorial Day ceremony had come to an end.

The city sounds returned. Cars proceeded past the courthouse. Pedestrians walked by.

Reality had returned.

Aftershocks, quake forecasts jolt California resort region

MAMMOTH LAKES, Calif. (AP) — Dozens of aftershocks jolted this mountain resort area with reminders of the weekend's two major earthquakes as a scientist speculated there was a 50 percent chance an even stronger quake would soon rock the region.

Professor Alan Ryall, a geophysicist at the University of Nevada-Reno, said Monday the seismic activity near Mammoth Lakes is similar to other quake sequences in California and Nevada that climaxed with shocks hitting 7.0 or higher on the Richter scale.

A 7.0 quake on the scale of ground movement would be ten times stronger than the two 6.0 tremors that hit Sunday, seriously injuring two hikers in Yosemite National Park and forcing officials to close 150 square miles of the Inyo National Forest to guard against rockslide injuries.

Ryall said a pattern of seismic calm — followed by several moderate to strong tremors and finally capped by a large and destructive shock — occurred in quakes in 1952, 1954 and 1971. But in 1928 and 1941, a pair of large quakes rattled the Mammoth Lakes area and were not followed by a larger shock.

"I wouldn't be surprised if a bigger event happens," Ryall said, "and I wouldn't be if it didn't happen. I'd say there's a 50-50 chance."

The epicenter of Sunday's quakes was the Hilton Creek Fault about 300 miles north of Los Angeles. Bruce Schechter of the U.S. Seismographic Station at Berkeley said small aftershocks registering less than 3.0 on the Richter scale and several 4.0-plus tremors rattled the area "more or less continuously," and a larger aftershock measuring 5.4 on the scale hit just before noon.

"We have a three-story wooden frame building, but it cracks and moves a lot, so it's been very loud," reported Emilie Martin at the Mammoth Ranger District. "We're getting a lot of aftershocks. There are a lot of geology classes here that are just in seventh heaven."

The two hikers, both 26 and of Crestline, injured in the Yosemite rockslide were listed in serious condition. They were identified as Larry Samuels, who had broken legs and severe head injuries, and his wife Belinda, suffering from internal injuries and a crushed leg, according to a nursing supervisor at Valley Medical Center in Fresno.

No damage or injuries were reported from Monday's aftershocks, but Robert Rice, supervisor of Inyo County National Forest, ordered 150 square miles of the Mammoth wilderness area closed to the public until June 1 because of rockslide danger.

Meanwhile, the Mono County Sheriff's Department said Monday that deputies used helicopters to evacuate 30 persons from the Convict Lake area.

Slight chance for rain continues

A chance of rain was included in the forecast when it was issued by the National Weather Service this morning.

But the 60 percent probability for rain that existed today in Midland was to decrease to 30 percent tonight, the weather service said.

The rain prospect will be accompanied by partly cloudy skies and hot temperatures through Wednesday.

Tonight's low temperature should drop to the upper 60s. Wednesday's high mark should reach the lower 90s.

Winds tonight should blow out of the south or southeast at 15-20 mph.

Monday's high temperature was 94 degrees, six degrees shy of the record 100-degree reading established in 1945. Low this morning was 64, much warmer than the record low 48-degree reading set on this date in 1947.

Around the Permian Basin area this morning, communities were reporting scattered clouds and humid conditions, but no moisture.

Carter looking for wider lead

By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent

The Republican battle belongs to Ronald Reagan, and President Carter sought today to foretell the end of the Democratic contest, looking to primary elections in Kentucky, Arkansas and Nevada to widen his runaway lead over Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

The GOP side of the 1980 presidential ballot was settled on the name of Ronald Reagan, when George Bush, the last, persistent challenger to the former California governor, bowed to the realities of money and delegate counts, and quit the competition Monday.

"We have a Republican nominee," GOP national chairman Bill Brock said when he learned of Bush's withdrawal. "I think we have the prospect of a very substantial win this November."

Texasans surrender to 'GOP star'

HOUSTON (AP) — There were two Texans with impressive political credentials who wanted to be the 1980 Republican presidential nominee.

They have now bowed out to an established GOP star who learned the script in two previous tryouts — former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

George Bush has joined John Connally in quitting the race for the Republican nomination, and both insist they have no desire nor interest in being vice presidential candidates.

The two traveled hundreds of thousands of miles and spent an estimated $26.2 million — Bush $16.2 million and Connally $10 million.

Connally, considered to be one of the major challengers early this year, gave it up on March 9 with only one delegate in the bank.

Bush, an acknowledged unknown underdog, left with about 300 delegates and the possibility of picking up a few more in the final primaries.

In a Monday news conference, Bush said he would ask all of his delegates to vote for Reagan on the first ballot.

Bush's announcement was made in the same ballroom in the same Houston hotel where Connally conceded.

Bush's decision was announced on the Memorial Day holiday and Connally's on a Sunday afternoon.

It was almost like an instant replay with only the names changed.

Connally said Reagan "is still the champion" and withdrew.

Bush said Reagan "is an effective campaigner, is well-known and conducted a superb campaign. I will work my heart out for Ronald Reagan in the fall."

When Connally stepped down there were about 300 persons in the ballroom and they cheered him time and time again.

When Bush stepped down there were about 300 persons in the ballroom and they cheered him time and time again.

Connally was expected to have been a far stronger challenger than Bush, but he was to fall far sooner. The former Texas governor, secretary of the Navy, secretary of the Treasury, won a single convention delegate, from Arkansas.

Bush, a former congressman, head of the CIA, national Republican chairman, an ambassador, won a good deal more delegates.

Brock said he believes Reagan "can beat Jimmy Carter like a drum."

Carter must beat Kennedy before Reagan will get his chance.

The president is 258 votes short of a Democratic nominating majority. He has 1,408 delegates of the 1,666 he needs. Kennedy has 796.

Today's elections were in promising territory for Carter. There were 95 Democratic delegates at stake in the three states, and the president was virtually guaranteed a comfortable majority.

Kennedy maintains that the real test is a week away, in the eight Democratic primary elections that will apportion 696 nominating votes on June 3. After a Memorial Day off at Hyannisport, he returned to the campaign today, hunting votes in New Jersey and Ohio. Those states, along with California, dominate next Tuesday's finale.

Since all the remaining contests award delegates in proportion to the popular vote, it's all but inevitable that Carter will emerge with more than the majority he needs for nomination.

Today's contests are for 50 Democratic delegates in Kentucky, 33 in Arkansas, and 12 in Nevada.

Idaho is holding a presidential preference vote, too, but its Democratic delegates already have been apportioned in party caucuses. Carter won 8 and Kennedy 5. Four went uncommitted.

While Kennedy continued his duel with Carter, Bush said he was bowing to reality in dropping his challenge to Reagan.

In debt and buried under Reagan's delegate landslide, Bush told reporters in Houston, "The No. 1 priority for Republicans in the fall of 1980 is to unite to save our country from four more years of Jimmy Carter's weak, directionless, incompetent leadership."

Midland police investigating three aggravated assaults

Police were kept hopping Monday as they investigated three separate aggravated assaults.

All three people injured were treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room.

At 2:26 a.m. Monday, Jesus Longoria Cuellar, 36, of 210 E. Wolcott Ave. called police from Red's Drive In, 1807 E. Front St. Cuellar told officers he parked his car and was walking to the drive-in when a black male wearing a hat hit him in the face with a small handgun.

A man was later taken into custody at RJ Real Pit Bar-B-Q, 2301 E. Kentucky Ave., in connection with the incident.

At 10:50 p.m. Monday, police were sent to Blaylocks Garage, 1104 E. Illinois Ave., to check on a reported stabbing.

When officers arrived, a man told police he had stabbed another man because the man had pointed a gun at him in front of the Texas Street Bar, 805 E. Texas Ave. At the time, police were unable to find the victim.

At 10:55 p.m., an officer on Front Street saw a black male standing on the northeast corner of Front and Terrell streets. The man was holding his left arm and the officer noticed he had blood on his shirt.

He identified himself as Charles McClendon, 35, of 1305 E. Pennsylvania Ave., and he told the officer he had been cut at the Texas Street Bar.

McClendon reported that he had walked out of the bar and started to walk east. When he reached the southeast corner of the bar, a black male came out of the dark and began stabbing him, according to reports.

McClendon said the man had been "after him" for about 10 days and accused McClendon of calling his wife a name.

McClendon denied having a gun, police said.

He was treated for a cut to the left wrist, two to the left side and two to the left shoulder.

Before police had a chance to relax, they had another stab victim reported at the emergency room. Alethea Sauls, 27, 100 N. Madison Ave., reported that she had accompanied another couple to Midland Memorial Hospital to pick up another woman.

After leaving the hospital, they went to 1005 S. Terrell St. and the man and one of the women went into the house. Shortly thereafter, the woman ran out with a small handgun.

Witnesses told police, the woman opened the car door and stabbed Ms. Sauls in her right leg just above her knee.

Summer session openings remain

Several city summer recreation programs still have openings, according to a spokesman in the city Parks and Recreation Department.

Openings remain in tennis, swimming, advanced lifesaving, basic water safety and rescue and preschool fund time. All sessions begin June 2.

Those wishing to attend playground programs should go to the following locations on June 2: Alamo Junior High, Cerebral Palsy Center, Rusk Elementary, Crockett Elementary and Fannin Elementary.

Registration will continue from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Parks and Recreation office, 300 Baldwin St. Additional information can be obtained by telephoning 683-4281, extension 290.

The city department also announced that Dennis the Menace Park will be closed to the public from 8 to 11 a.m. Wednesday for mowing.

The park occasionally will be closed for emergency maintenance and repairs, said a city spokesman.

Anderson, campaigning in Texas, feels 'benefit' of Bush withdrawal

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Rep. John B. Anderson, the independent presidential candidate, believes there is a direct benefit for him in George Bush's withdrawal from the Republican race.

Anderson, campaigning in Bush's home state, said the former U.N. ambassador was benefiting from pro-test votes against Ronald Reagan in recent primary victories and narrow losses in Michigan and Texas.

"I really believe many of the people who voted for Mr. Bush... it was a vote against Mr. Reagan," Anderson, himself a Republican, said.

"Certainly, among those people were many who were simply opposed to Mr. Reagan being the nominee," the Illinois congressman said.

At a news conference, Anderson said his campaign workers would begin assessing the best ways to attract former Bush supporters to his independent quest for the presidency outside the two major political parties.

In Dallas on Monday, Anderson kicked off a two-day campaign to obtain 41,000 signatures by June 14 to get his name on the November general election ballot in Texas.

Driver escapes serious injury

A Midland woman escaped serious injury Monday evening when her car slid 40 feet and overturned after being involved in a traffic accident at Shell and Godfrey.

At 6:18 p.m., Margaret G. Munn, 21, of 1904 N. Midland Dr., No. 42, was eastbound on Shell. Glenn Thomas Hamm Jr., 49, 3812 Fannin St., was northbound on Godfrey. The two cars collided at the intersection, knocking Ms. Munn's vehicle about 40 feet before it turned on its side. The Hamm vehicle left 37 feet of skid marks before the collision, according to reports.

Ms. Munn was treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room.

the senior Bush — the vice presidential nomination and 1984, said his son, but the junior Bush added, "I would hope he would take the vice presidential bid from Reagan. I think he would be a strong addition to the ticket. He would be a whale of a leader for this country."

Bush talked over his feelings and his ideas with the family, said his son, but the decision to get out was entirely his own. "He doesn't ask us what he should do. He makes up his own mind."

"disappointed" in the outcome of his race because of his attitude that he's always in the game to win. "But he's a realist. It's not the first time he's run and lost. He's overcome it before."

"Today, I am sure, it's still there on his mind and wishes he could have had a little more oomph in the end," said the younger Bush.

Even so, his son isn't disappointed. "I'm proud of the guy," Bush said of his father. "He brought dignity to the arena; he's a class guy and a class candidate. I hope one day the Republican party is wise enough to have him as their leader. 1980 just wasn't the time."

DEATHS

Robert Langley

Services for Robert C. Langley, 20, of 3329 W. Wadley Ave., were to be at 2 p.m. today in the First Baptist Church Chapel, with the Rev. Roy A. Carley, assistant minister, and the Rev. David Pearcey, pastor of Oaklawn Park Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial was to be in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of the Newbie W. Ellis Funeral Home. Langley died Monday in a Midland hospital.

Pallbearers were to be Jim Dobbins, Mike Madison, Craig Randolph, Randy Dodson and Gary Langley, all of Midland, and Bruce Dorie of Andrews.

Victor E. Bullen

ABILENE — Graveside services for Victor Eugene Bullen, 96, of Abilene, father of Dan Bullen of Midland, were to be at 1 p.m. today at Elmwood Memorial Park here, directed by Elliott-Hamil Funeral Home, with the Rev. R.D. Murray, minister of Seventh Day Adventist Church, officiating.

Bullen died Monday in an Abilene hospital after a lengthy illness.

Born Oct. 28, 1883, in Hamilton County, he was a self-employed painter. He attended school in Hamilton and was married to Myrtle Hartman in Evans in 1913. They moved to Abilene from Post in 1918.

Other survivors include his wife, two daughters, seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Bertha Russell

McCAMEY — Services for Bertha May Russell, 81, of McCamey will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in First Baptist Church here with burial in Resthaven Cemetery.

She died Saturday in a Crane hospital after an illness.

Mrs. Russell was born Dec. 19, 1888, in Stephens County, Okla. She was married to Jessie Edwin Russell Jan. 28, 1900. She was a member of First Baptist Church of McCamey and the Rebekah Lodge.

Survivors include two grandsons, David Russell and Rustin Lee Russell, both of Austin.

Mrs. C.E. Parks

LAMESA — Memorial services for Mrs. C.E. (Bernice) Parks, 70, of Lamesa will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in North 14th Street Church of Christ with Eugene Cardinal, minister, officiating.

Burial will be in Lamesa Memorial Park directed by Branon Funeral Home.

She died Monday in a Midland hospital following an illness.

A New Mexico native, she was married to Clarence E. Parks July 23, 1935, in Big Spring. She was a lifetime member of the Church of Christ and was a former operator of a Lamesa drug store.

Survivors include her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Glenn Rogers of Midland; a son, Robert Parks of Poughkeepsie, N.Y.; two brothers, J.H. Ragan of San Angelo and Robert G. Ragan of Woodliff, Va.; two sisters, Mrs. L.I. Serface of San Angelo and Mrs. J.C. Bayless of Georgetown; and two grandchildren.

Mrs. W.L. Oden

BROWNWOOD — Services for Mrs. Walter L. Oden, 72, of Bangs, sister of Bernice Harris of Midland, were Monday at the Davis-Morris Funeral Home chapel here with John Shero, minister of Austin Avenue Church of Christ, officiating. Burial was in Greenleaf Cemetery in Brownwood.

Mrs. Oden died Sunday in a Brownwood hospital after a brief illness.

Born July 24, 1907, in Fluvanna, she was married to Walter L. Oden Dec. 9, 1925, in Coleman. She lived all her life in Brown County and was a homemaker. She was a member of the Church of Christ.

Other survivors include her husband, a daughter, three sisters, three brothers and eight grandchildren.

Jury selection begun

A jury was being selected in 238th State District Court this morning in the burglary trial of Johnny Royce Franks of Midland.

Franks was indicted in March for allegedly burglarizing Berry's Nice & Clean Center, a coin-operated laundry facility, on March 11.

North won't invade South Korea: Hua

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese Premier Hua Guofeng, beginning a historic visit to Japan, reassured Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira today that North Korea would not invade South Korea.

The Japanese had asked the Chinese to use their influence over North Korea's communist regime to prevent any moves southward while the South Korean government cracks down on opponents of martial law.

Hua also said the Soviet-backed occupation of Cambodia by Vietnam could be a first step in the Soviet march toward the vital Malacca Strait linking the Indian and Pacific Oceans.

Hua warned Ohira that Soviet-Vietnamese success in subduing Cambodia would clear a path for Soviet aggression toward Thailand and other Southeast Asian nations in its drive for the straits between Singapore and Indonesia.

His remarks were relayed to reporters by Japan's chief cabinet secretary, Masayoshi Ito.

Before the meeting Hua had a 30-minute audience with Emperor Hirohito at the Imperial Palace. He later rejoined the emperor and Ohira for a welcoming banquet at the palace.

Hua, who also is chairman of China's Communist Party, stepped off a Chinese jetliner at Tokyo's Haneda Airport just after noon today, becoming the first Chinese premier to set foot on Japanese soil since the two countries established contacts nearly 2,000 years ago.

Hundreds of persons waving Japanese and Chinese flags were at the airport to welcome Hua, Vice Premier Gu Mu, Foreign Minister Huang Hua and 10 other Chinese officials.

China's official Xinhua news agency said the visit was aimed at deepening "understanding, promoting friendship and expanding cooperation."

Both Japan and the United States fear the South Korean crisis may tempt North Korea to try to overrun the South and reunify the peninsula by force, as it failed to do in the 1950s despite the help of 300,000 troops.

However, Chinese pressure on North Korean President Kim Il Sung might be limited by fear that Kim would seek support from the Soviet Union, China's arch foe. In recent years, Kim has been playing off the two communist giants against each other but now he is believed tilting toward China, which has increased its aid to his government.

Hua and Ohira were also expected to discuss an increase in Chinese oil shipments to Japanese industry and Japanese aid in developing China's natural resources.

Trade between the two nations jumped 39 percent last year, and Ohira pleased his visitors with an offer of a $227-million, long-term low-interest loan to help complete six major construction projects.

The government called out 44,000 uniformed and plainclothes police to protect the Chinese delegation against ultra-rightist demonstrators. The massive security screen, including a chain of 12,900 officers along the 10-mile route Hua's motorcade took from the airport to a government guest house, rivaled the precautions taken last June when leaders of the world's chief industrial nations met in Tokyo.

Hua will deliver a televised lecture and hold a news conference before winding up his stay in Tokyo on Thursday. He will visit four other cities before returning home Sunday.

Holiday death toll over 400

By The Associated Press

Millions of Americans went back to work and school today after a Memorial Day weekend that was safer than expected on the highways.

By midnight local time Monday, 404 people had been reported killed in traffic accidents nationwide since 6 p.m. Friday.

The National Safety Council said before the three-day holiday began that between 450 and 550 highway deaths could be expected during the period.

The normal highway death toll for a three-day, non-holiday weekend at this time of the year is 493, council statisticians said.

Last year, 508 people were killed during the three-day Memorial Day weekend. The worst three-day Memorial Day observance was in 1969, when 597 people were killed in traffic.

The worst year on record was 1968, when 629 persons were killed during a four-day Memorial Day observance.

U.S., China open Washington talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice Premier Geng Biao, the highest ranking Chinese defense official ever to visit the United States, is opening talks that could lead to his country buying U.S. military support equipment.

Geng was to meet today with Secretary of Defense Harold Brown.

U.S. officials, who asked not to be identified, said Geng's visit underscored the strained relations that China and the United States both have with the Soviet Union.

Although the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan probably has accelerated the development of U.S.-Chinese relations, the officials said, the sale of U.S. weapons to China is not contemplated.

It is not clear whether any major agreements will be reached during Geng's visit, but China is believed to be interested in buying such equipment as radar, trucks and communications gear.

Also of possible interest to the Chinese is technology that could have civilian as well as military applications, such as computers.

Discussing the political implications of Geng's visit, Pentagon officials said the United States is mindful that U.S. relations with China must not be used to provoke the Soviets nor to make them worry about their own security.

But, one official said, the Soviets must be aware that "when they do something that we think is provocative, that will expand the U.S.-Chinese relationship in ways which they don't like."

The Sino-American connection has flourished since the two countries agreed to establish full diplomatic relations in December 1978.

At the time, the Carter administration stressed its intention to pursue an evenhanded policy between China and the Soviet Union. No such claim is made nowadays.

Uganda bitterly divided on Obote's homecoming

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Former President Milton Obote flew home to Uganda today after nine years in exile in neighboring Tanzania, aviation authorities reported.

Obote is bidding for a return to political power, but the country is bitterly divided over his homecoming.

The 55-year-old former president was to be welcomed at a gigantic rally of his Uganda People's Congress in the southern border town of Bushenyi, a UPC political stronghold 30 miles from Mbarara. Thousands of chanting Obote supporters and barefoot tribal dancers converged on Bushenyi.

Scores of buses and trucks plastered with Obote posters carried shouting men and women through Kampala to Bushenyi. Hundreds of cars lined up at gas-line stations to fill up for the 200-mile trip, causing a heavy drain on the capital's scanty reserves.

Many motorists paid more than $16 a gallon, four times the official price, to keep from waiting in line for more than three hours. Several foreign reporters paid $1,430 to rent a taxi for two days; the taxi company demanded $3,570 of the next party of travelers.

Tanzanian and rebel Ugandan forces in April 1979.

Air controllers at Mwanza, Tanzania's Lake Victoria port, said a plane carrying Obote landed at Mbarara in southwestern Uganda today.

Obote went into exile in Tanzania after his government was overthrown in 1971 by Idi Amin, whose dictatorial rule was ended by combined

CHARLEY REESE

Strength of the military essential for security

Charley Reese

One of the aspects of our society which drives me batty is that we seem so often to be totally disconnected to the realities of the world. There is no better illustration of this than the attitude many Americans display toward the military.

You see people who obviously view the military as a nuisance or a necessary evil at best. Others display open hostility. The movies and television and even journalists often portray the military as an institution of buffoons and maniacs.

This is not only plain wrong, but stupid.

The profession of arms is the foundation on which this nation and every other great nation rests. You can analyze the causes of the rise and fall of nations but always and in every instance the immediate cause of both the rise and fall is the military strength or lack of military strength.

Intellectuals are fond of saying that ideas or words are more powerful than guns and bayonets. That is false. The only power ideas and words have is the power to motivate men to take up arms. Whatever is accomplished, however, is accomplished by the military.

The free press, the arts, education, industry — everything we value in a society is dependent upon its survival on the military. We live blissfully inside a ring of iron. It has always been so and it will always be so. The destiny of the United States will not be determined by politicians or writers or educators but by the men and women in the army, navy, marines, air force and coast guard.

Switzerland's famous neutrality is maintained by one of the most highly-trained, well-equipped armies in Europe. Neutral Switzerland has a draft and an extensive reserve system. Swiss reservists keep their weapons and ammunition in their homes so they will be ready for swift mobilization. The Swiss are neither stupid nor unrealistic.

A rational citizen who understands how dependent he is on the military appreciates the profession. He will not turn his back on them. He will not let the military be abused or insulted without defending them. He will pressure the politicians to provide the military with the manpower and equipment it needs. He will teach his children that it is an honor and a duty to serve in the armed forces. He will insist that the public school system do its part to teach children the value of the military by making them aware of its accomplishments and its heroes.

The great evil which emerged from the Vietnam War was allowing our enemies to wage a propaganda campaign inside our own country while our military forces were engaged in combat.

People who do not understand what Jane Fonda was about and is still about are so dumb they deserve the fate she has in mind for them. The woman should be in prison. I wouldn't throw a bucket of slop on her if she were on fire much less allow her image on my television screen or pay to see one of her propaganda films.

We stupidly allowed the communists to use the Vietnam War as a vehicle with which to discredit the American military. The argument, if you had one, was with the civilians in Washington, not with the military which performed its duty in Vietnam with honor and courage in the face of insane restrictions placed on it.

When Jane's friends took Danang, they lined up over 300 children ten and under who were in an orphanage run by our Marines. They set up machine guns and they killed them.

I suggest you look at your own children or grandchildren and understand that the only thing that can keep them from a similar fate is the Armed Forces of the United States. Appreciate the American military? We'd better love it as we love our own lives.

A glimmer of hope

The dream of the Mennonites may be nearing reality, altered somewhat by the federal bureaucracy and twists of fate.

Last week the House subcommittee on immigration, refugees and international law finally approved a bill introduced by U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas. The bill, which is now expected to pass the House later this year, would allow 653 Mennonites to remain in the United States as permanent residents.

Hopefully that will occur. The Mennonites already have suffered enough misfortune.

They came to the United States from Mexico and Canada in 1977 and bought a 6,400-acre farm near Seminole. The peaceful, law-abiding, land-loving religious group planned to support its members by the sweat of their own brows.

But that was not to be — at least not immediately. Things began to go wrong. They lost their land after a series of unfortunate events and they were faced with the prospect of deportation.

That's when their plight was brought to the attention of Sen. Bentsen, who sponsored the bill to permit them to stay in the United States legally from now on. Under existing law they would have been deported as illegal aliens.

And now it looks as though they'll be allowed to remain in this country to which they migrated in hopes of forging new lives full of opportunity. Of course they've lost virtually everything they possessed.

Most of the Mennonites, however, still have jobs they found in Gaines County. They've earned the respect and admiration of their neighbors because they are hard-working and fiercely independent. They don't want a hand-out; they want to pay their own way.

That is the type of people we want to see more of in this country. There are far too few of them present today.

Allowing the Mennonites to remain is a necessity. Already our bureaucracy has contributed to their problems. We must provide them what help we can.

If that help can come in the form of allowing them the opportunity to once again rebuild their lives and start over, then so be it.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Refugees of Watergate era surfacing again

WASHINGTON — Three refugees from the Watergate era — G. Gordon Liddy, John Ehrlichman and Spiro Agnew — have been promoting their latest books on TV talk shows at my discomfort.

The incomprehensible Liddy has cordially confessed that he had plotted my liquidation. He called this "justifiable homicide" because my reporting supposedly had resulted in the Soviet detection and torture of a CIA undercover man.

Ehrlichman allowed that he would not have been a party to anything so base as putting out my lights forever. But he confirmed gravely that my reporting had exposed not a CIA agent in Russia but a CIA informant in India.

Agnew merely implied that my elimination would have been a desideratum that would add to the sum of human happiness. But when he was asked why he had allowed the Food Fair supermarket chain to stock his pantry with free food while he was vice president, he explained it on the grounds that I, too, had received free groceries from Food Fair.

May I be permitted a brief response? Ehrlichman alluded to my India-Pakistan stories, detailing the administration's tilt toward Pakistan, which were published before the Christmas of 1971. Yet Nixon waited until the following February to unleash his watchdogs on me. This coincided with my investigation of the ITT scandal, which badly embarrassed Nixon. I published an incriminating memo written by ITT lobbyist Dita Beard. I also reported that Nixon had received two secret cash contributions of $50,000 each from industrialist Howard Hughes.

It was embarrassments such as these, not the exposing of some unnamed CIA informant, that infuriated

Jack Anderson

Nixon. Ex-White House aide Charles Colson has testified that he was asked "many times" by President Nixon to take action "to discredit Jack Anderson."

To this end, the CIA assigned 18 radio cars to keep my operation under surveillance. The Pentagon, according to its former security chief W. Donald Stewart, conducted at least 11 separate investigations of me, sparing no expense. The FBI secretly grabbed my telephone records, and the Internal Revenue Service conducted a penetrating, year-long audit of my finances.

This should have been intimation enough that someone in the White House didn't like me, but I never dreamed my popularity had fallen so low that Liddy would seek to do me in. He got his motivation, whether by osmosis or otherwise, from Richard Nixon, who was concerned about his own fate, not some CIA informant's.

As for Spiro Agnew, I have a sporting proposition. If he can prove that I received free food deliveries from Food Fair as he did, I'll keep him supplied with food for a year. But if he can't prove it, then he should pay my grocery bills for a year. Fair enough, Spiro?

MEMO TO THE PENTAGON — Most Americans are willing to spend whatever it takes to keep the United States strong enough to safeguard the national security. They don't begrudge the Pentagon its growing share of the tax dollar — as long as the money is spent efficiently.

But there are too many generals and admirals who act like small boys let loose in a toy store with a rich uncle's credit card. These profligate brass hats lavish the taxpayers' money on fancy gadgets that actually subtract from a weapon's efficiency as they add to its cost.

A typical example is the Army's XM-1 tank. This super-sophisticated, super-expensive battle wagon is equipped with every gimmick the designers could dream up. Unfortunately, such forgotten basics as the turbine engine, hydraulic system and fuel lines keep breaking down.

Recent tests at Fort Knox, for example, showed that the tanks could go only 140 to 160 miles on a tank of gas, instead of the 275 to 375 miles required. Air filters, necessary to keep dust from clogging the finicky turbine engines, had to be changed every 75 to 100 miles.

The Pentagon has pooh-poohed these problems and has authorized the Chrysler Corp. to increase its production this year from 110 to 352 tanks, at about $1 million per copy. And there are no rebates for the taxpayers.

PERSIAN DRUG — Central Intelligence Agency analysts estimate that Iran now produces 60 times as much heroin as Mexico. According to intelligence briefings, the "Silver Crescent" of Iran, Pakistan and Afghanistan now exports at least 10 times as much heroin as the notorious "Golden Triangle" of Vietnam, Thailand and Burma.

SENIOR PARTNER — For the past few years, the United States and Japan have been cooperating on energy projects of mutual benefit. But Uncle Sam seems to be doing most of the cooperating. Recently, for example, U.S. and Japanese scientists embarked on a joint venture in high-energy physics. The Japanese government will contribute about $5.7 million for 1980. The American share is $326 million.

AMBASSADOR'S RESPONSE — I reported in a recent column that United Nations Ambassador Donald McHenry, while visiting Israel, had refused the traditional diplomatic gesture of laying a wreath at the Yad Vashem memorial. He has now informed me that, while he did not lay the wreath, he did participate in a private religious ceremony in the chapel at Yad Vashem.

WATCH ON WASTE — It costs the public a handsome sum to keep members of Congress looking handsome. The House maintains two barber shops for the use of members, their staffs and the few outsiders who know about them. A haircut costs only $3.50, which is a bargain, but the taxpayers get trimmed $150,000 a year to subsidize the operation.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, May 27th, the 148th day of 1980. There are 218 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: in 1941, after a 1,700-mile chase, the British navy sank the German battleship "Bismarck," with a loss of 2,000 lives. The Bismarck had sunk the British warship "Hood" three days earlier.

On this date: In 1918, Germany launched a major offensive in World War I.

In 1936, the British luxury liner "Queen Mary" began its maiden trans-Atlantic voyage.

In 1937, the Golden Gate bridge, spanning San Francisco bay, was opened.

In 1971, the Soviet Union signed a 15-year pact with Egypt, pledging to help recover all Arab territories occupied by Israel.

Ten years ago, scientists dated a highly-radioactive rock from the Moon's "Ocean of Storms" back to the formation of the solar system, some 4.6 billion years ago.

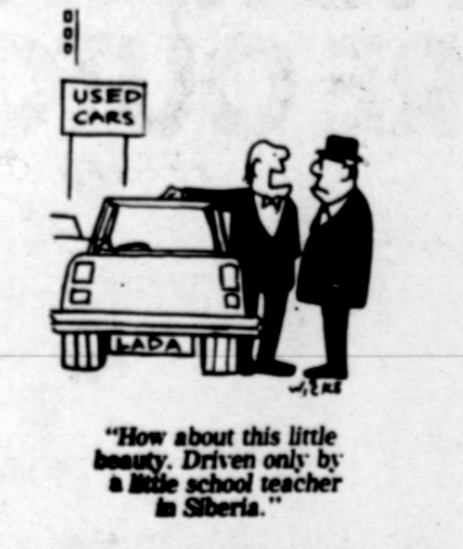

Five years ago, the United States agreed to end its aid program in Laos.

Last year, transportation officials learned that a broken bolt contributed to the nation's worst air crash, and recommended that all DC-10s be inspected for the problem.

Today's birthdays: Golfer Sam Snead is 68. Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is 57. Actor Christopher Lee is 58.

Thought for today: The time to stop a revolution is at the beginning, not the end. — Adlai Stevenson (1900-1965)

INSIDE REPORT:

Efforts of anti-Brzezinski cabal falling short of mark

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

WASHINGTON — Efforts by the formidable anti-Brzezinski cabal to cut down President Carter's national security adviser in the wake of Cyrus Vance's resignation are falling short of the mark, partly because of misrepresentation, partly because Carter won't play.

The misrepresentation took a particularly malignant form when State Department officials hostile to Brzezinski persuaded the New York Times' respected columnist, Anthony Lewis, that blame for two grievous errors by the Carter administration belonged to Brzezinski.

One of these was the boomerang following Carter's March 1977 decision to pressure Moscow for radical reduction of nuclear arms; the other was the administration's inept handling of the Soviet combat brigade in Cuba last fall.

In more normal times, this kind of bureaucratic warfare, although incidentally close to the Oval Office, would be tolerable. But today, with the Western alliance fractured and the Soviet Union on the move worldwide, it damages both the president and the nation. It derives from dubious concern, widely shared by bright lights in the media, that Brzezinski is the anti-Soviet warmonger that Moscow claims him to be.

In his May 15 column datelined Boston, Lewis fixed blame on Brzezinski for persuading Carter to bypass Gerald Ford's Vladivostok agreement on a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II). Vance, Lewis wrote, "had wanted to follow the lines of the draft nearly agreed to by President Ford and Leonid Brezhnev."

Anti-Brzezinski activists in the arms control lobby misled Lewis. On March 18, 1977, just before the ill-fated Vance mission to Moscow in company with Paul Warnke, then chief SALT negotiator, Vance and Warnke signed a confidential memorandum for Carter, described by one State Department source as "very private." The memorandum proposed that the U.S. reopen the negotiations and press for what the Vance-Warnke memorandum called "a more comprehensive agreement."

That is what Carter did, calling for "significant reductions" in long-range missile launchers among other changes. Carter's choice was unsurprising. He had personally always favored this approach.

The anti-Brzezinski cabal concealed this telltale memorandum and Lewis wrote that Carter took "Brzezinski's advice (and) dispatched Mr. Vance with a new comprehensive plan for massive reductions in weapons." The new plan infuriated Moscow and set back SALT II many months, but Brzezinski was not to blame.

As for the Soviet combat brigade in Cuba, the disinformation cadre seeking to undermine Brzezinski told Lewis it was "Mr. Brzezinski's urging" that persuaded Carter to label the brigade "unacceptable."

In fact, it was Vance himself, in a Sept. 5 press conference, who first declared that "the maintenance of the status quo" was unacceptable, presumably meaning that the brigade would have to go. Vance's edict followed alarms from other unlikely hawks, including Sen. Frank Church who exploited the brigade to harden his image back home in hawkish Idaho where he faces a tough re-election campaign.

But Brzezinski had counseled caution in public utterances about the brigade. One official told us Brzezinski said that while the brigade was intolerable, the U.S. had only limited leverage and should avoid attacking Fidel Castro. "Zbig said the brigade might turn out to be unacceptable, like the Berlin Wall."

Brzezinski was on vacation during most of the anti-Soviet posturing. He said little about the brigade publicly, not because he was less disturbed but because he was uncertain what the U.S. was prepared to do about it.

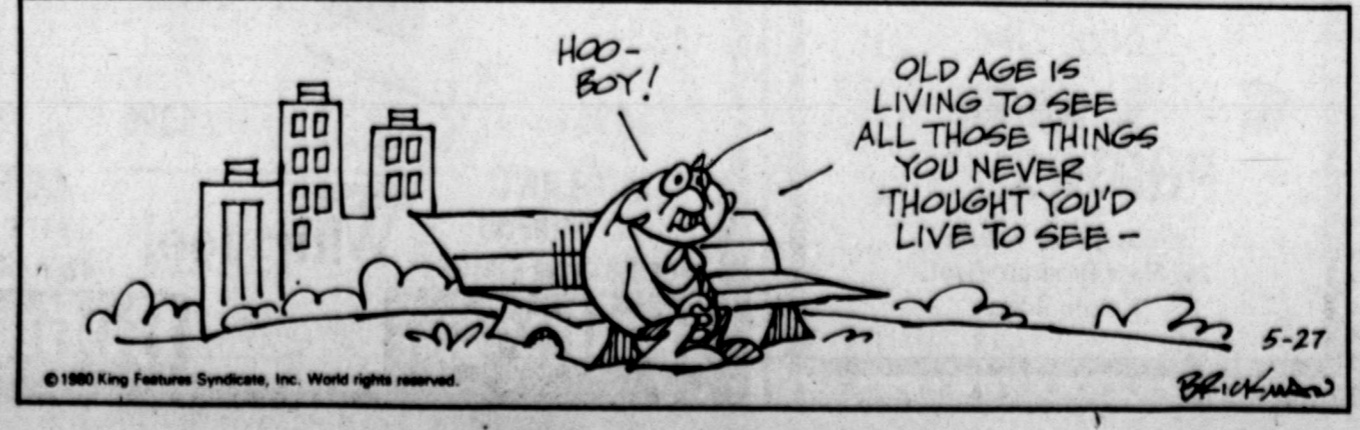

The anti-Brzezinski lobby probably get louder before it quiets down. The harm it does is not to Brzezinski, whose only client is the president, but to the perception in the rest of the world of Uncle Sam's dignity, sanity and dependability.

the speech. When it arrived in the Oval Office, Carter rejected it. He asked Brzezinski to prepare a new one, and accepted most of what he got.

Likewise, widely published reports that Muskie intentionally excluded Brzezinski's NSC staffers from his meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in Vienna appear to be false. Muskie has told intimates that he wanted to talk directly to Gromyko without his words being filtered or commented on by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, who had been quietly summoned to Vienna by Gromyko. Excluding the skilled and wily Dobrynin required similar treatment for NSC staffers.

The anti-Brzezinski lobby will probably get louder before it quiets down. The harm it does is not to Brzezinski, whose only client is the president, but to the perception in the rest of the world of Uncle Sam's dignity, sanity and dependability.

Clergymen released for July 1 hearing

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Two Anglican bishops, one white, the other black, and 51 other clergymen appeared in court today after spending the night in segregated jail cells. They were released and told to reappear July 1.

At that time they are to enter a plea to the charge of violating the Riotous Assemblies Act, passed by the white separatist government after nationwide black rioting in 1976.

The clergymen were arrested Monday as they marched toward police headquarters to protest the jailing of a minister who spoke out on behalf of a nationwide boycott of colored, or mixed race, schools.

Duvalier weds tonight

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Haitian President Jean-Claude Duvalier weds the divorced daughter of a wealthy businessman tonight in a lavish ceremony staged amid the grinding poverty of the poorest nation in the Western Hemisphere.

Huge bouquets of flowers have been placed on the mall in front of the gleaming white presidential palace and workmen have been sprucing up the ancient Roman Catholic Cathedral where the 27-year-old president-for-life will wed Michele Bennett, also 27 and the mother of two children. It is Duvalier's first marriage.

The wedding reception will be held on the president's ranch 20 miles outside of Port-au-Prince where the couple will spend their honeymoon.

There is speculation that the marriage signals the eventual liberalization of Duvalier's autocratic rule which he has carried on in the tradition of his father, Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier, who before he died in 1971 amended the constitution so that his son, then 19, would inherit the presidency-for-life.

Expectations of liberalization stem from a belief that the marriage means a lessening of the great influence which the president's mother, Simone Duvalier, has wielded since her husband died.

Duvalier denied reports that his mother opposed his marriage, and she will be matron of honor at the wedding. She also will keep her title of First Lady of the Republic, but a new title has been created for her daughter-in-law, Madame President.

The president has made a number Cabinet changes in recent months, shuffling power between young officials known to support him and veterans of his father's regime known to be loyal to his mother.

The most recent Cabinet change came days before the wedding and Duvalier's younger associates emerged on the top. Significantly, one key appointment went to a man who has angered Mrs. Duvalier in the past.

One Western source, who declined to be identified, saw the timing of the shakeup as significant and said the wedding "finally asserts (Duvalier) as a man."

The marriage "could change things," said Gerard Gourge, head of Haiti's Human Rights League, adding that it "might stabilize and reinforce the government" by bolstering Duvalier's ties with the middle class. His father's power was founded on the support of the peasant masses, and they have remained the son's power base also. But Miss Bennett's father has interests in several businesses, and her first husband was the son of a man who once tried to overthrow Duvalier's father.

Some of the Haitian refugees who have been flooding into the United States to escape the poverty at home demonstrated in Miami Monday to protest the money being spent on the wedding.

Labor militants battle police

LONDON (AP) — More than 300 labor union militants hurling bricks and golf balls battled police protecting busloads of employees entering a giant power station today.

Police said 38 pickets were arrested and two officers injured in the fighting at the Isle of Grain power station east of London.

The brawling erupted when the pickets tried to stop workers in a convoy of buses and panel trucks entering the $1.31 billion complex, still under construction and four years' behind schedule.

LEE YOUTH CENTER CHATTER Congratulations 1980 Seniors

By JANET LANDENBERGER, MARTHA WENTWORTH and DEBBIE FOSTER

We would like to dedicate this last chatter of the year to the Great Rebel Graduates of "1980." We hope this has been a year full of memories, because your class will always be remembered at Lee!

Seniors: The big night you have been waiting for is Friday night at Chapparral Center. "Graduation!" After the ceremony be sure to make your last group appearance to be with all your fellow graduates at the Senior All-Night party held at the National Guard Armory. If you haven't already bought your tickets you can still buy them at the door for $9.

To the graduating class of 1981, be sure and make your appointments early with Sam Hollis Studio (684-4343) for your fabulous senior pictures. He will start taking them on June 18 and your appointment must be made two weeks before the day you want to have your picture taken.

Speaking of fabulous pictures, your prom pictures should be ready this Thursday or Friday. You'll be notified on the exact day. Girls and guys both, don't delay picking these pictures up, they'll be something you can always look back on to remember the Prom of 1980.

This past week students were busy trying out for the famous Lee High ORIGIN. Those that succeeded above the rest were Laura, Ravonna, Stacy, Aretha, Lane, Rob, Lemar, Mark, Allison, Joe, and Melinda. Congratulations to all of you, we know you'll do a super job next year!

Friday night at Memorial Stadium our mighty Rebel football team split up into two equal teams — Maroon and the White. We all got a chance to see how men will represent Dixie in football next year. It looks like we are all going to be mighty proud of the guys because they left the game with a tied score of 8-8. Take it easy now guys, just wait for two-a-days!

We know this Chatter was short, but it was sweet. We wanted to say goodbye to the seniors of 1980 at Robert E. Lee. You'll all be missed and remembered.

A little reminder
 Don't get into too much trouble this summer, Janet, Martha, Debbie

P.S. TRACY REEVES: Are you out of breath and wet from your experience with that raft Sunday afternoon?
 MARLA WENTWORTH: Try to add a little more of your air to the blowing up of a raft next weekend.

If you don't have a Survival Kit™ you're paying too much tax.

Taxes do more than just hurt. They cripple the growth of your savings. They make it impossible to plan your financial future or your retirement with any degree of certainty.

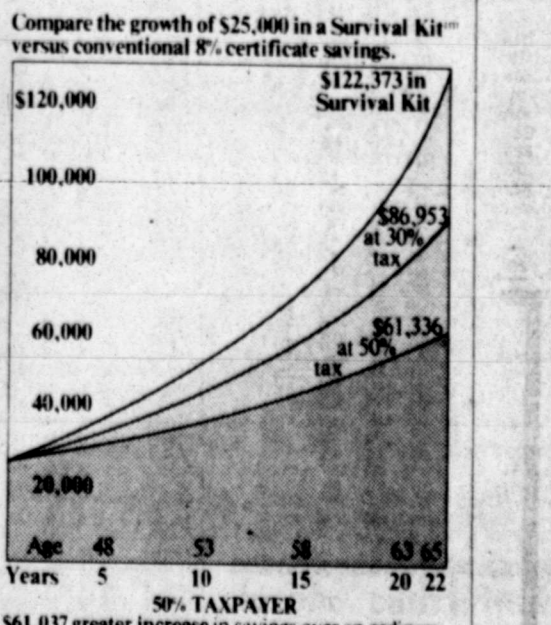

The Survival Kit defers state and federal income taxes on your savings interest. So your interest remains in place to earn more interest. Savings growth increases dramatically. Depending on your tax bracket, your savings can grow twice as fast. Or even faster.

With your own Survival Kit, you can defer taxes on the interest earned by all your long-term savings. Even if those savings are held in other institutions. Look at the chart to see how much more effectively you can plan your financial future, or your retirement years, with a Survival Kit.

The Survival Kit can offer you this lifesaving advantage in growth because it is a group annuity plan underwritten by American Life and Casualty Insurance Company. But it is nothing like the traditional annuity which holds funds at a low, fixed rate of return.

Instead, the Survival Kit combines the advantages of a modern, high-return certificate savings account with the advantages made possible by this group annuity plan. In addition to the all-important deferral of taxes, you gain surprising withdrawal privileges, a variety of estate-planning benefits, and the option of choosing between lifetime retirement income payments or any other form of withdrawal that meets your needs. You are the one who decides how to withdraw your funds, and when.

Call us today for full information on all the ways the Survival Kit can rescue your financial future.

Don't fight summer heat get a cooler from John's

John's Swap Shop has most anything for the home or rental unit that you could ask for.

The Midland Spring has been delightful, but we all know that summer's great heat will soon be reckoned with. If you are not prepared with a good air cooler, you may want to check the prices at John's, if you want the most for your money.

John handles the Champion evaporative units. The window units range in size from 2400 to 4000. The 2400 is $139.95, the 2800 is $189.95, and the 4000 is $299.95. He also had 4800 downdrafts, and a 2-speed portable fan. He has just a few used units.

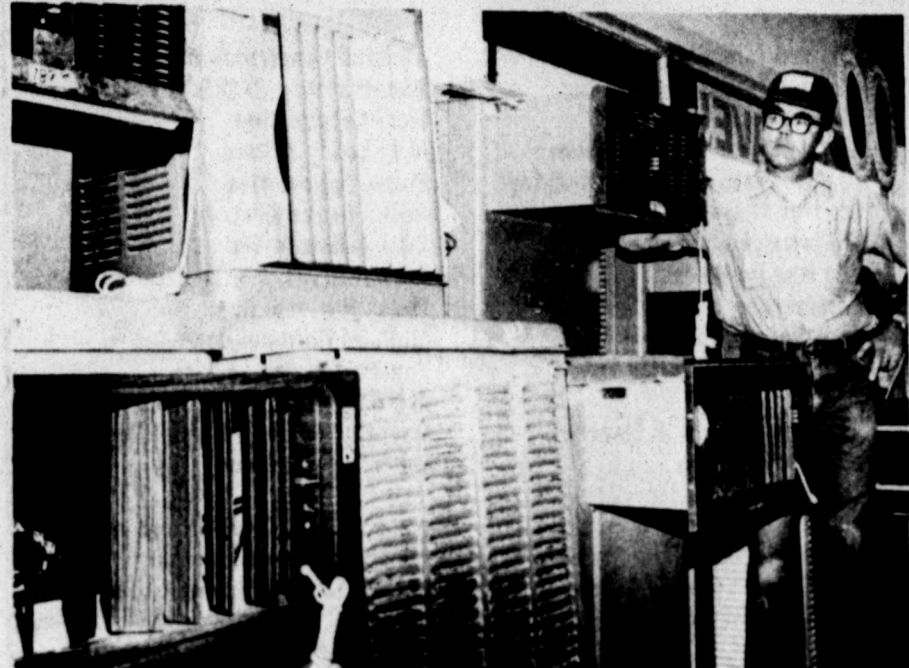

Come by soon for the full selection.

The beautiful Nod-A-Way baby beds advertised last time proved so popular, the stock was sold out almost immediately. Kramer says he has new shipments, so if you are in the market for a crib, do see these fine ones.

John's Swap Shop has enlarged their stock of lamps. See the attractive styles he has now.

Two other good summer items, besides the coolers, are the ever-popular porch swings, and garden hose — 25', 1/2" rubber with nylon cord for $3.99.

Get your share of the bargains to be found at John's Swap Shop, 600 East Florida.

John Kramer, owner of John's Swap Shop, located at 600 East Florida, wants his customers to know he has a good selection of evaporative coolers for sale. He has more sizes than before, and even has a few used units for sale.

'Katy' needs $3 million in order to stay on track

DALLAS (AP) — Shippers already hurt by the Rock Island Railroad bankruptcy now must ante up $3 million for an interest-free loan if they want the Katy Railroad to provide direct service between Topeka, Kan., and Fort Worth, company officials said.

Katy officials set a May 13 deadline for the loan, which was one of four conditions listed in its bid to operate the 600 miles of track now serviced terminal-to-terminal by three different railroad companies.

The loan would be used to pay start-up costs and operating expenses should the railroad purchase the line, Katy officials said.

Katy general attorney Arthur M. Albin said he believes the less-than-eager shippers will try to raise the money for the loan.

"The financial loss they'd face without us is a factor I think they're going to have to consider," Albin said.

Albin, who outlined the proposal at a meeting in Dallas Tuesday with shippers and government officials, warned that time and federal funds are running out.

Under the current federally-supervised arrangement, shippers must make expensive overland hauls to terminals in Topeka and Wichita, Kan., and Oklahoma City, Okla., and Dallas-Fort Worth. And Albin said many on-line shippers have no direct service.

"All the shippers here are assessing their interests. They're hopeful some public funding is available. And it's not," said Federal Railroad Administration spokesman William Loftis.

"By May 29, we have to do something. We have to have a new operator by then," Loftis told the group. "The federal government doesn't have the funds for operating expenses."

The $85 million in federal funds allocated for the current arrangement has dried up, said Interstate Commerce Commission spokesman Richard Schiefelbein.

Journalists protest prison sentence

ROME (AP) — Warning that freedom of the press was endangered, Italian journalists began a 24-hour strike today to protest an 18-month prison sentence given a newspaper reporter for stories based on the secret confession of a former Red Brigades terrorist.

The strike will prevent publication of newspapers Tuesday, while news programs on the state-run television network will be reduced.

Fabio Isman, reporter for the left-leaning Rome daily Il Messaggero, was convicted and sentenced Saturday on charges of complicity in revealing state secrets. The newspaper's chief editor, Vittorio Emiliano, was convicted of publishing improper information about a criminal proceeding and was fined $480.

Isman wrote three stories this month detailing the confession of Patrizio Peci, chief of the Turin cell of Italy's most feared terrorist group.

The reporter obtained a transcript of Peci's statements from Silvano Russomano, assistant chief of Italy's domestic intelligence service. Russomano also was convicted and sentenced to two years and eight months in prison.

Il Messaggero devoted its front page today to editorials protesting the court decision, calling it the latest in a series of actions in Italy threatening press freedom.

Polish trade talks convene

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Commerce Phillip M. Klutznick and his aides met Monday with their counterparts on the Polish-American trade commission, which sets guidelines for trade between both nations, the Polish news agency PAP reported.

PAP said Polish imports from the United States rose tenfold between 1970 and 1979, while exports only four times. The import increase was due largely to grain purchases, it said.

Polish officials said the talks were aimed at an balancing the exchanges and finding increased means for repayment of the rising Polish debt.

PAP said Poland desired a "setting aside of barriers keeping Polish goods away from the American market."

Klutznick also met with Communist Party leader Edward Gierek and gave Gierek letter from President Carter. The contents of the letter were not disclosed.

PAP said during a review of the international situation, the two men stressed that a dialogue must take place between states of different systems "to reduce tension, build confidence and continue detente."

Fuel prices stable during holiday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An oil industry analyst says this year's Memorial Day motorists were spared a major gasoline price increase because of abundant supplies and competitive dealers.

That wasn't the case last year at this time, when short supplies combined with crude oil price increases to send pump prices skyward and motorists to long service station lines.

But this month, retail fuel prices, covering all four grades, rose one-tenth of a cent a gallon over April, analyst Dan Lundberg reported Sunday. Average wholesale prices rose three-tenths of a cent, he said.

Dealers shaved their markups to make up the difference, he said.

KKK, blacks observe anniversary of clash

DECATUR, Ala. (AP) — About 50 blacks and 12 robed Ku Klux Klansmen observed the first anniversary of an armed clash between the two groups which left four persons wounded in this north Alabama town last year.

"We have come to this spot to let Decatur know we are not afraid and to tell those who fired the shots that they cannot put out the freedom fire," the Rev. Abraham Woods, president of the Birmingham chapter of the SCLC told his marchers during a brief prayer service.

City Hall. They watched the SCLC rally in silence. "We just want to let them know we're here, and what we do depends on what they do," said Jimmy McDougle, a leader of the Klan chapter from Decatur.

There were no incidents as the marchers walked past the Klan to city hall where a brief rally was held.

Inmate, 31, killed in stabbing

TRINITY, Texas (AP) — An apparent fight over a sweatshirt ended when a 31-year-old inmate was stabbed to death with a makeshift knife at the Eastham United of the Texas Department of Corrections, prison officials said.

"It appears the person who did it got a piece of scrap steel and had made a very crude homemade knife. The victim was stabbed in the chest and throat," TDC spokesman Rick Hartley said Monday.

David Polley, imprisoned since last June, was identified as the victim. He was serving three years on a forgery conviction from Shelby County.

Hartley said murder charges were being prepared against a 27-year-old inmate who was serving 25 years for burglary from Hale County. Hartley said the murder suspect had been in the prison since 1976.

He said the two men had fought over a sweatshirt before the attack occurred Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in this maximum security prison 13 miles west of Trinity.

Polley's body was taken to Harris County for an autopsy.

Watery rescues reported

AVALON, Calif. (AP) — A 41-year-old Anaheim man was resting in stable condition today after spending three days in a rubber raft on high seas without food or water.

"It was determination alone that kept him alive, and his good health," said Los Angeles County lifeguard Lt. Paul McIlroy.

Meanwhile, in Los Angeles, rescuers used a helicopter to lower firefighters to a young man whose car had plunged 500 feet off a roadway.

McIlroy, one of three paramedics who aided in the rescue of Joseph Rutkowski, said the man was rowing a small rubber dingy from his boat, "Ta-Ta For Now," to a friend's cabin cruiser off Santa Catalina Island when gale-force winds and strong currents swept him out to sea Friday night.

Rutkowski was not seen again until the crew of the "Shangri-la," a 90-foot yacht out of San Diego, sighted him about noon Monday approximately 12 miles south-east of Avalon, McIlroy said.

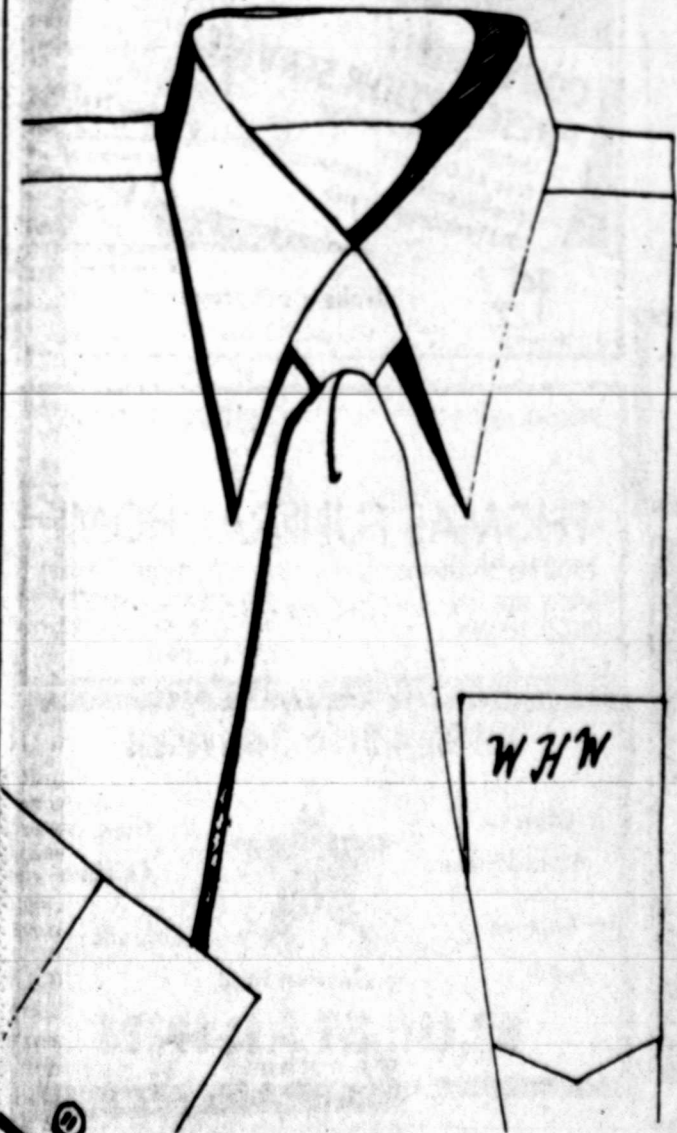

Searchers had employed boats and aircraft in their efforts to turn up the missing man.

By the time he was found, Rutkowski was unconscious and "very weak."

Evaluation shows parent involvement program making progress

By PATSY GORDON
Lifestyle Writer

The 1980 spring evaluation of the Midland Independent School District Volunteer Program indicates the program of parent involvement has made a great deal of progress in better understanding and cooperation between the home and the school.

Helping to achieve this were school volunteers like Mrs. Mary Alice Bonnar, who has no children at Sam Houston Elementary School, but serves as a reading tutor at the school. "I think reading is so important and a child who has fallen behind needs individual help the teacher and school cannot provide."

"I believe the children respond to individual attention given them," said Barbara Caton, who performs volunteer work at Anson Jones Elementary School as a fourth grade math and English tutor.

Still other parents serve the schools because they "like working with the children and teachers." These include Brenda Gillum at West Elementary School; Rosemary Cox, Ben Milam Elementary School; Mary Ann Sanchez, De Zavala Elementary School; Peggy Palmer, Rusk Elementary School; Kathryn Nichols, Emerson Elementary School; Vashti Hines, Crockett Elementary School; Barb Christensen, Fannin Elementary School, and LaNette Baker, Bowie Elementary School.

AND JUDY REIGLE, Head Start Program at Bunche Elementary; Jeanie Lampkin, South Elementary School; Della Webster, Milam; Ina Friday, Lamar Elementary School; Joan Brooks, Lamar; Carol Ann Hunt, Fannin; Mrs. Ethel Johnson, De Zavala; Florence Mailey, Pease Elementary School; Linda Isom, Emerson; Fran Polston, Fannin; Shirley Brooks, Crockett; Donna Mauzynski, Emerson; Sandy Haskell, Henderson Elementary School; Sherry Stanley, Bonham Elementary School; Jim Waterman, Sam Houston; Lyn Brown, Henderson-Emerson; Freda Kinsey, Henderson; Elisa Garibay, Crockett; Adela Marmolejo, De Zavala; Mary Driscoll, Anson Jones; Estella Coffield, Washington Elementary; Charlotte Young, Bowie, and Harriet Horton, Fannin.

Another volunteer who has no children in school is Mrs. Roy Murphy, South Elementary Partners in Reading helper. "I love children and would love to see them develop a love for books and reading."

Mrs. Darla Taylor "likes being involved in what goes on in my daughter's school," Anson Jones Elementary. Mrs. Taylor has helped with the school Halloween carnival, class parties, and is at Carver Center every other week for one day.

"I don't want to work in an outside job," said Jackie Hamilton, "because kids are my work, fun, inspiration and love. What more can I say." She is a Burnet Elementary volunteer.

Carol Roberts, Emerson, enjoys helping "so that my child's teacher is able to spend more time with the children." Linda Robert, Rusk, echoes this. "I feel like it is the least I can do to help out the dedicated teachers to whom we have entrusted our children's minds."

ARLENA JOHNSON, Travis Elementary volunteer, has grandchildren in school and "wanted to be involved."

A Fannin Elementary School and Midland Freshman School volunteer, Ann Page, wants "our schools to be the best possible."

Other volunteers who should be mentioned are Violetta Smith, Pease; Diana Collazo, Crockett; Manorama Pondyal, Crockett; Kay Sowders, Emerson; Cheri Countryman, Emerson; Barbara Perfile, Pease; Beth Dye and Leta Hillger, Jane Long; Wanda Anderson, Bonham and Elsie Largent, Crockett. School volunteers include PTA board members, library workers, story tellers, room mothers, Halloween carnival workers, Field Day workers, classroom helpers, office help, chaperones for field trips, and those who helped with school programs, Head Start, Carver Center, Safety Patrol and Partners in Reading.

All of these people and more were honored recently at a Volunteer Day Reception, sponsored by Head Start and MISD Volunteer Program.

The special day included songs by Head Start children and the presenting of awards to outstanding school volunteers.

HEAD START AWARDS were presented by Joy Bates, Head Start chairman. Receiving these awards were: Sally Barraza, Crockett, 80 volunteer hours; Estella Coffield, Washington, 58; Vashti Hines, Crockett, 33; Alice King, home base, 30; Jeanie Lampkin, Bunche (South), 156; Joe Lopez, Crockett, 32; Judy Reigle, Bunche (South), 48; Alethea Sauls, Crockett, 36; Hattie Starmler, Pease; 32; Proferia Trevino, Travis-Home Base, 124; Debra Webster, Milam, 132, and Linda Williams, Travis-Washington, 32.

The volunteer hours for Head Start during 1979-80 included 1,020 for parents and 344 for PTA and community, for a total of 1,364.

Midland City Council PTA awards, compliments of The First National Bank, were presented by Dr. Douglas Brown, assistant MISD superintendent, and Betty Edgar, chairman of the volunteer program.

Recipients included Billie Aaron, Anson Jones; LaNette Baker, Bowie;

Austella Berry, Bonham; Mary Alice Bonnar, Sam Houston; Joan Brooks, Lamar; Barbara Caton, Jones; Barbara Christensen, Fannin; Diana Collazo, Crockett; Rosemary Cox, Milam; Beth Dye, Long; Ina Friday, Lamar; Elisa Garibay, Crockett; Brenda Gillum, West; Wanda Hayes, Burnet; Leta Hillger, Long; Linda Isom, Emerson; Florence Mailey, Pease; Barbara Mattuci, Rusk.

MRS. EDGAR INTRODUCED the 1980-81 Volunteer Coordinating Team, Nell Furgeson, chairman, and Patti DeFrance and Fran Polston, co-chairmen.

Dr. James Mailey, MISD superintendent, expressed his appreciation and that of the school board to all volunteers for the many hours of service given to the city's schools, saying, "Parent and community involvement are essential to good education. Because volunteers in public schools are important, I encourage all to be a part of next year's volunteer program."

The MISD Volunteer Program was begun in the summer of 1977 when a group of citizens representing a wide cross-section of Midland formed an organization called the Midland Alliance. Its goals included a safe and orderly transition to the court-ordered integration plan and the creation of additional programs and services in the schools to insure educational excellence.

After the opening day of school in 1977, it was apparent the first goal had been achieved and emphasis was then placed on the second goal. With the encouragement, cooperation and support of the Midland Public Schools, the City Council PTA and Junior League, which committed $30,000 to a Partners in Reading program, and other interested citizens, a citywide volunteer program was established. As a result, more than 450 volunteers helped in the schools during the 1977-78 school year.

IN 1978, the volunteer program was sponsored by the City Council PTA with the cooperation of the MISD, Junior League and the Human Relations Council. The relationship of the volunteer program to the school and other organizations was clearly defined and a definite step-by-step procedure for implementing the program was established. The goals were: to establish active programs in every elementary school and to gather all volunteer activities under one umbrella for the sake of efficiency, to eliminate confusion and to encourage a more uniform approach to parent involvement. More than 1,900 volunteers were involved during the 1978-79 school year.

During 1979-80, the goals included giving more recognition to the differences in the needs of schools by providing a more individualized approach in the areas of recruitment and training and encouraging more parent involvement through better home-school communications and leadership training.

DEAR ABBY

Cleanliness still next to godliness

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is my fourth try at having you run something that I feel would hit home with many people in all kinds of relationships, but particularly regarding physical intimacy.

Volumes have been written on the how-to's of sex, but the biggest turn-on is cleanliness — good, old-fashioned soap and water clean! That means hair, fingernails, teeth, clothing — the works. Nothing is so discouraging to intimacy as slightly soiled clothing, or a hint of odor to suggest that the hair, mouth or body is less than clean. I am a woman, and the greatest turn-on to me is a scrubbed man — freshly shaven, with clean fingernails, polished shoes and clean clothing from the skin out!

Please print this, Abby. Some people need to be told — MRS. CLEAN
DEAR ABBY: This is for women who loudly insist that housewives are also working women. Turn it around and you have the true picture — working women are also housewives.

I have worked for 20 years; I work because we need my income. I do not have a maid, nor do most working women. We have JOBS, not CAREERS. The luxury of indulging in a hobby like needlework, painting or tennis is a dream to most of us. What housewives have all week to do, we do before 8 a.m. or after 5 p.m. I clean the house, do the shopping, cook meals and try to do all the other things necessary to keep a home going after I put in eight hours on my office job. Oh, yes, I do windows on weekends.

Tell it like it is, ladies. How come you are all up on the afternoon soaps, when you're so busy being working women? — SIMMERING IN ST. PETE

After losing 27 lbs., Mileah models her new size 7 which replaces her old size 10. She's glad for a 7 inch loss in her hips.

Maleah Harris is still happily surprised with the changes that have occurred due to her recent weight loss.

Numerous flattering remarks have kept her aware of the remarkable improvement in her appearance. Not only is she twenty-seven pounds lighter in less than one month, she also has a clearer complexion and wears clothes three sizes smaller.

According to Maleah, she has always had a weight problem. "I developed bad eating habits when I was a little girl," explains Maleah. Working with her husband in their barbecue restaurant has not helped that problem since she was always tempted by the excellence of the food and especially the desserts. These poor eating habits caused Maleah a great feeling of anxiety when she would make attempts to lose weight. She would lose five or ten pounds and gain it right back because she had not developed new eating patterns.

Now, after less than a month under Medical Weight Control's supervision Maleah has lost 27 pounds and has a dress size of 7.

She is particularly happy that her weight reduction did not require the use of drugs, pills, fasting, or strenuous exercise. The guidance of a professional medical staff was a vital assist during this period of time. Now Maleah is anticipating maintaining her weight loss with the free program offered at the center. She is welcome to participate indefinitely at no additional cost until she feels secure with her new eating habits.

Probably the most interesting single experience to occur as a result of her new and different appearance was a visit to her sister in Dallas. Her sister and both her nieces watched as all of the passengers deplaned at DFW airport and failed to recognize Maleah. Finally she walked around and stood by the two young nieces.

She commented that the plane was apparently late only to be corrected by one of the girls who informed her they had come to meet their Aunt Maleah. It took a second and third very deliberate look before the nieces recognized the lady at their side to be their aunt. Maleah was both amused and gratified.

While Maleah was losing weight quickly and safely at Medical Weight Control she was also receiving behavior training to help her maintain her new shape. Does Maleah have a final word concerning the Medical Weight Control system? "It was much easier than I thought it would be and I couldn't believe that I actually wasn't hungry."

NOTE: Medical Weight Control Center is available in the Midland area at 270 San Miguel Square. To arrange a no obligation consultation about your individual weight problem call the office at 684-9624. Adv.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, May 28, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY:

Actress Carroll Baker shares your birthday. You may not be particularly sentimental, but you are certainly loving and compassionate. Susceptible to praise and flattery, you need to develop a greater awareness of others' motives. In career matters, nervous energy now powers you forward. In late 1980, you find new pleasure both at home and at work. Finances, love life show big improvement.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Tackle complex tasks before turning to more routine chores. Others understand your total absorption in special project. Unusual pairings can bring new rewards.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Strive for excellence at work. Recognition is forthcoming. Be willing to contemplate your life with greater objectivity, neither regretting the past nor fearing the future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Domestic disagreements can be speedily reconciled if you will make some small concessions. Be tactful around someone who may feel envious. Celebrate with loved ones!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Now is right time to put artistic talents on display. Sense of humor helps keep domestic upsets in proper perspective. Love life is due to become more satisfying.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Try not to sign any legal documents today. Terms could improve in near future. You can mix business and pleasure quite profitably at lunch. This evening, a newcomer appears who shares many of your interests.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Personal relationships enter a period of greater harmony. Romantic partner is willing to help with tedious project. Show appreciation by being less critical.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may be feeling lethargic, but there is important work to do! Someone may make an amazing admission. Try not to judge this person too harshly. Call good friend who has been out of touch recently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Much can be accomplished today! Others look to you for leadership. Put shoulder to the wheel. Red tape can be cut by going straight to the top. Be persistent, but not belligerent.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be more receptive to new ideas. Chatty associate will waste your time if you allow it. Do not push too hard for special project. If plan is basically sound, others will recognize its value.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Opportunity could be knocking at your door. Some details must be settled before embarking on new course. Be alert to trends so you can get jump on competitors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Loved one's encouragement gives you a boost. Work atmosphere improves due to change in personnel. Dress to impress if going out tonight. Share limelight with those closest to your heart.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Personal affairs dominate morning hours. Close friend tries to persuade you to make changes in lifestyle. Guard all money, checks and valuables.

Feeding hair dye to rats can determine cancer risk

Dear Dr. Solomon: I read where hair dyes were fed to rats to determine if they could cause cancer. What does this prove? People don't eat hair dyes. — Peg.

Dear Peg: You are correct that hair dyes were fed to rats for these tests, but this does not invalidate the results. The method of exposure to a suspected cancer-causing agent does not have to be identical in both humans and animals; what is important is that the substance be distributed throughout the test animal's body. Since hair dyes can enter the circulatory system either through the scalp or the digestive tract, feeding them to the rats makes sense.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Will you please discuss the early signs of pregnancy? do not want to start with an obstetrician until I am fairly certain that I am pregnant. — Ms. F.L.

Dear Ms. L.: First, a general comment. Early prenatal care is important if a child is to have a healthy start in life. If you believe you may be pregnant, make an appointment to see your obstetrician. The investment in time and money will be worthwhile.

As for your question, the earliest sign of pregnancy may be a missed menstrual period; however, this is not a definite indication. On the one hand, menstruation may be delayed for reasons other than pregnancy; on the other hand, some women continue to have a small flow at the regular time during the first few months of their pregnancies.

Other signs of pregnancy may include a need for more frequent urination, an increased feeling of sleepiness, and larger and more tender breasts. Some women experience nausea in the mornings or at other times during the day when they are tired or hungry.

It is not always easy for a woman to tell if she is pregnant. Some of these signs may occur in women who are not pregnant; conversely, these signs may not appear in pregnant women until a few months have passed.

Dear Doctor Solomon: The following foods make the most significant sodium contribution to the American diet: foods packed in a brine, canned soups and vegetables, smoked or cured meats, processed cheeses, commercial frozen dinners, commercial salad dressings and condiments. Pamela J. Taylor, R.D., Baltimore, Md.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Salyut 6 linkup launched

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet cosmonaut and a Hungarian engineer were on their way today to link up with the orbiting Salyut 6 space station for a week of "medical-biological, geophysical and technological experiments."

Soviet mission commander Valery Kubasov and Hungarian Bertalan Farkas were sent aloft in a Soviet spacecraft Monday night and were expected to dock their Soyuz 36 spacecraft with Salyut 6 within 25 hours, Tass said.

Both Kubasov and Farkas "feel well" and all "onboard systems of the spaceship ... are functioning normally," the Soviet news agency reported from the Baikonur cosmodrome in Soviet Central Asia.

Once docked with the orbiting space station they are to join Soviet cosmonauts Leonid Popov and Valery Ryumin, who were launched into space April 9 and have been conducting experiments aboard the station-laboratory.

The launch was the first in a year under Moscow's Intercosmos program, which involves sending up joint teams of cosmonauts from the Soviet Union and Soviet-bloc countries. Four earlier flights involved cosmonauts from Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Poland and East Germany.

Tass quoted officials as saying the Kubasov-Flight, "is designed to take up a week." It said the new arrivals would join Popov and Ryumin in "a series of medical-biological, geophysical and technological experiments reflecting Hungary's specific contribution to the joint space research."

Kubasov, 45, a veteran of three space missions, was an engineer aboard the Soviet vehicle that hooked up with the U.S. Apollo spacecraft in July 1975. Farkas, 30, is an air force pilot and an engineer-researcher, Tass said.

The last Intercosmos launching, in April 1979, failed to link up with Salyut 6, and the Soyuz capsule carrying Bulgarian Georgy Ivanov and Soviet commander Nikolai Rukavishnikov returned to earth 47 hours later. Officials blamed the failure on a malfunction of the Soyuz capsule's maneuvering rockets.

Salyut 6 has been in orbit 2 1/2 years. In a stint aboard the space station last year, Ryumin and fellow cosmonaut Vladimir Lyakhov set a space endurance record of 175 days.

Shah regrets not using force to quell revolt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deposed Shah of Iran says in a published interview that he regrets having followed "a policy of surrender" and not using military force against Islamic militants who toppled his reign 16 months ago.

His own miscalculations and conflicting signals from the U.S. and British governments caused him to hold back from putting down the demonstrations, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi told The Washington Post.

The ailing former monarch commented in a two-hour interview Friday with Post Chairman Katharine Graham and correspondent Jim Hoagland at the Kubbeh Palace in Cairo, his home in exile since undergoing surgery to remove his cancerous spleen in March.

Pahlavi, 60, appeared gaunt from his continuing battle with cancer, but he told the Post that he had gained 10 pounds in the last 10 days as the effects of chemotherapy have begun to fade.

The Post said resentment, anger, nostalgia and loneliness mingled in his conversation as he contrasted the material progress he brought to Iran with what he called the destruction brought about "by the arsonists and terrorists" now ruling the nation. The former shah, as he has before, criticized the United States for sending Army Gen. Robert Huyser to Tehran in early 1979 to urge the Iranian military not to attempt a coup against the government of Mehdi Bazargan, who was the first prime minister under revolution's religious leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

And he said that in the weeks preceding his departure from Iran in January 1979, the U.S. and British ambassadors in Tehran stopped assuring him of their full support.

"I think they were keeping rather quiet, and for at least one or two months before I left, because all the policies in the last two months were to try and find a solution of bringing in my opposition to power," he told the Post.

"That was even my own policy. I can see that that was wrong. But in those days it was not so easy to make a decision because I ... decided not to spill blood."

He added:

"The mistake was not to establish law and order. It was not a question of spilling blood or not. Either you have law that any government must enforce or you don't."

WT wildcats, discoveries announced

American Trading & Production Corp. of Midland announced plans to re-enter its No. 1-41 Ellwood Estate, recently completed discovery well of the Lucky Strike (Ellenburger oil) pool of Mitchell County and test for completion as a wildcat above 7,580 feet.

The project is 1,000 feet from northeast and northwest lines of section 41, block 16, SPRR survey and 17 miles southwest of Westbrook.

Bottomed at 7,638 feet, the well finished from the Ellenburger for a 24-hour pumping potential of 32 barrels of oil and 85 barrels of water, through perforations from 7,615 to 7,624 feet.

The Ellenburger will be temporarily abandoned.

RANK PECOS TEST

HNG Oil Co. of Midland No. 1-20 Allison is to be drilled as a rank 11,000-foot wildcat in Pecos County, 35 miles southeast of Fort Stockton.

Location is 990 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 20, block 2, TCRR survey.

The location is five miles southeast of the Allison Ranch (Wolfcamp) field which produces oil at 2,544 feet; 1/2 mile northwest of a 6,400-foot failure and three miles south of a 15,170-foot dry hole.

WARD WILDCAT

Gulf Oil Corp. of Monahans No. 4 P. Walker and others has been staked as a 7,150-foot gas wildcat in Ward County, nine miles northeast of Barstow.

The prospector is 467 feet from north and 1,320 feet from the most easterly east line of section 40, A. J. Wilson survey.

It is a shallow pay wildcat in the Quito, East multipay area and 3/4 mile northwest of production in the west side of the poquito (Delaware) field which produces at 5,023 feet.

MIDLAND DISCOVERY

Wood & Locker, Inc., of Midland has completed its No. 5 T. A. Golladay as a San Andres discovery in the Azalea multipayfield of Midland County, 7.5 miles east of Midland.

The operator reported a 24-hour pumping potential of 400 barrels of 23-gravity oil, no water, through perforations from 4,159 to 4,163 feet. The pay was acidized with 10,500 gallons.

Total depth is 4,170 feet; 5.5-inch pipe is set at total depth and plugged back depth is 4,167 feet.

The top of the pay and the top of the San Andres is at 4,110 feet on ground elevation of 2,704 feet. The Grayburg was topped at 3,835 feet.

The operator originally filed No. 3 Golladay in the Azalea (Grayburg) field.

Wellsite is 1,613 feet from north and 2,750 feet from west lines of section 55, block 37, T-2-S, J. L. Veazey survey.

MARTIN WELL

RK Petroleum Corp. of Midland No. 3 Paisano-Wildcat, drilled as a wildcat in Martin County, has been completed as a well in the Spraberry Trend Area field.

Hole is bottomed at 12,050 feet and seven-inch casing is cemented at 12,036 feet.

On 24-hour potential test the well flowed 100 barrels of oil and no water, through a 14/64-inch choke and perforations opposite the dean from 9,261 to 9,267 feet.

The pay was acidized with 4,000 gallons and the gas-oil ratio is 1,000-1.

The Spraberry was topped at 7,898 feet, the Dean at 9,258 feet, the Woodford at 11,816 feet and the Devonian at 11,941 feet, the ground elevation is 2,888 feet.

Wellsite is 5,500 feet from north and 402 feet from east lines of league 251, Ward County School Land survey and eight miles north of Tarzan.

IRION OILER

Meado Properties of Midland No. 2-19 E. Sugg has been completed from the Canyon 7/8 mile northwest of the discovery well of the Ela Sugg (Canyon) pool of Irion County, 17 miles northeast of Barnhart.

The well finished on the pump for 22 barrels of oil, gravity not reported, and 40 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 182-1.

Completion was through perforations from 7,392 to 7,607 feet after a 63,000-gallon fracture treatment.

Total depth is 7,750 feet and 4.5-inch

Crude yield announced

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas crude oil production totaled 80.3 million barrels in March, up from February production of 74.9 million barrels, the Texas Railroad Commission reported Friday.

The March total, however, was down from the March 1979 production of 85.4 million barrels.

casing is cemented at plugged back depth if 7,730 feet.

Wellsite is 4,400 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 19, block 27, H&TC survey.

Pumps make headway

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — High-speed pumps made headway today in emptying water from an oil tanker that had been in danger of sinking off the North Carolina coast, the Coast Guard said.

The 644-foot Esso Portland, carrying 300,000 barrels of crude oil, began leaking Saturday.

Coast Guard Warrant Officer Joseph Mishkofski said the vessel would be taken in tow between noon and 2 p.m. Some oil was to be pumped into a barge alongside the tanker to make the vessel easier to tow.

Mishkofski said the commercial tug Cape Cod would take the Esso Portland to a Virginia shipyard for permanent repairs.

On Sunday, representatives of Exxon Corp., the owner of the Liberian-registered ship, and insurance representatives had inspected the vessel.

Until divers sealed the leak for good Sunday afternoon, the tanker's deck, normally 25 feet above water, had come within four feet of going under, Coast Guard Lt. Archie Smith said. Mishkofski said the deck had risen to between six and eight feet above the water line by this morning.

Divers had applied a seal over the intake of a faulty valve late Saturday night, but it continued to leak and the pumps, sucking 1,000 gallons of water a minute, failed to reduce the water level in the ship's

Senator warns 'windfall' money will not help states

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Billions of dollars from the windfall profits tax probably will not come back to the state's that provide most of the moneys, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen warned an audience of independent oil and gas producers.

Bentsen said the $227 billion in windfall profits taxes that is channeled into government coffers may be

Marketers report losses

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — President John Calhoun of the Texas Oil Marketers Association told congressmen today 76 percent of the association's members reported losses or profit decreases in 1974-78.

"We concur with the retailers that the regulations have been discriminatory in favor of refiners who can rubber stamp allocation assignments while denying increases to existing outlets or independent purchasers," Calhoun said.

He testified before the U.S. House Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations. His association represents more than 800 companies that own, supply or operate more than 12,000 service stations in Texas.

Chairman Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, scheduled the hearing here at the request of Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, another Texas Democrat.

Eckhardt said the subcommittee would review regulatory and enforcement activities of the federal Department of Energy on gasoline allocations, illegal hoarding and spot market sales.

Pickle asked Eckhardt's subcommittee to investigate reports that some Texas gasoline jobbers illegally hoarded gasoline during the 1979 gasoline shortage.

Eckhardt said according to DOE officials an estimated 100 million gallons of gasoline were withheld from Texas consumers and shipped to other regions of the country.

"Those jobbers who flaunt the rule ... give the majority of honest jobbers a black eye," said Pickle.

Calhoun said he had contacted the DOE regional office in Dallas and learned the 100 million gallons "was the amount that DOE maintains was directed out of state through a particular pipeline facility. However, DOE quickly pointed out that they did not know if that product might have historically been product which was to be sold out of state or whether or not the regulations had been violated in all cases."

Calhoun said "the only way jobbers have been and will be able to survive is through increased volume."

the most massive transfer of wealth in the history of the country.

"Will it come back to us (producing states) in the form of benefits? Don't count on it my friends," he said at a Monday meeting of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners association.

Bentsen said producing states should not be penalized by regionalism in government policy making.

He said consuming states contend producing states are reaping a windfall profit from decontrol of oil and gas and will use the money to lure industry and jobs from the Northeast and Midwest.

"They proposed that laws be rewritten so that they can get a greater share of money distributed by the government," he said. "This must be confronted."

The senator said prosperity in Texas is overdue and deserved.

"Where were these concerned individuals when oil producing states were an economic backwater and all the money, jobs, and power were concentrated in the Northeast and Midwest?"

"Are we to be punished for catching up with the rest of America? Is it a crime for 13 million Texans to enjoy their fair share of the American dream?"

Bentsen also received TIPRO's outstanding statesman award for his work to have independent producers exempted from the windfall profits tax.

"We didn't get all we wanted with the windfall profits tax, but we are beginning to win. People are beginning to realize the stupidity of regulation and the importance of incentive," he told the group.

Troops clamp martial law, retake Kwangju

KWANGJU, South Korea (AP) — Thousands of government troops clamped tight martial law on Kwangju today after retaking the provincial capital from rebellious students in a three-hour battle and putting down the most serious challenge in years to military rule in South Korea.

At least 16 persons were killed, raising the reported death toll to 277 in the 10 days since anti-government demonstrations in the southwest corner of the Korean peninsula turned into an uprising.

The number of wounded was not known. Nor was there any indication of the army's casualties.

Paratroopers used tanks, heavy machine-guns and small arms to recapture the provincial government building which the students had made their headquarters and army.

Soldiers led some 60 to 70 prisoners from the building and kicked some of them as they lay on the ground. When an army major saw reporters watching, he ordered the troops to stop.

The martial-law command in Seoul said about 200 persons were arrested. It issued orders to "sort out swiftly the extreme rebels from among those under arrest, and dispose of the others generously."

The military commanders who withdrew their forces from Kwangju last Wednesday night had moved them to within three miles of the city's center early Monday. They informed the rebels about 2 a.m. today that they had two hours to surrender and vacate the provincial headquarters or they would be attacked.

Scores of students streamed from another building in the central plaza and raced to the provincial building, where guns were handed out. Thirty to 40 high school students were sent home, "too young" to stay, the university students said.

Small observation planes flew low over the city, using loudspeakers to warn the 800,000 residents to stay indoors and calling on the rebels to give up.

About 4 a.m. the troops moved into the plaza. Tanks opened up with their heavy cannon and .50 caliber machine guns as the troops fired small arms. The students fired back with rifles and carbines.

Heavy firing continued for about two hours, then tapered off after daybreak. By 7 a.m., the army was clearly in control. Hundreds of soldiers ringed the plaza; others were stationed in doorways and alleys in the virtually deserted downtown streets.

Seoul and other cities that were the scene of big demonstrations for a return to democratic government two weeks ago have been quiet since the military leaders expanded martial law on May 18, banned demonstrations, closed the schools and universities and arrested 26 of the nation's leading politicians.

But among those arrested was Kim Dae-jung, one of the government's leading opponents and a native of Kwangju, and this touched off demonstrations here that became an open armed insurrection after paratroopers used truncheons, bayonets and bullets against the demonstrators.

The demonstrators — members of the Korean community and Korean Democratic Students in the U.S. — vowed to continue their protest until the International Red Cross assures them proper medical supplies are available in strife-torn South Korea.

The demonstration began Saturday after members of the Korean community donated blood and demanded it be sent to the injured in the anti-government riots in the South Korean city of Kwangju.

The Red Cross provided coats and blankets to the demonstrators who stayed over the weekend.

The American Red Cross sent a message to the South Korean Red Cross Saturday asking whether blood was needed. A return message Monday from the South Korean Red Cross said it had sufficient supplies to meet the demand in Kwangju.

However, Edward Chang, a spokesman for the Korean student group, said his group does not believe the reply. He charged Lt. Gen. Chon Doo Hwan, head of the Defense Security Command, with lying.

"Citizens of Kwangju are desperately seeking blood, medical supplies and other humanitarian help of any kind," the Korean student group said Monday.

Kear noted that foreign nationals and emigres living in the United States have reacted similarly to the Koreans protesters when their homelands were wracked by conflict.

"People come here, they want to give blood, they have a very emotional reaction of wanting to help," Kear said.

Borg begins quest at French Open

PARIS (AP) — For Bjorn Borg, the quest began in Paris today.

On the elegant clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium, where he began winning French Open tennis titles as a teen-ager in 1974, Borg this year is facing all the major pretenders to his throne in his quest for a fifth French title, the first hurdle of tennis' Grand Slam.

The 23-year-old Swede has won this tournament four of the last six years and is the heavy favorite to capture the $53,000 men's crown for the third straight year, a feat that has not been accomplished since Maxim Decugis did it in 1914. His first-round opponent was Alvaro Filol of Chile.

If he should win this year, Borg's five French crowns would put him in the tennis history books alongside Henri Co-chet, one of the famous Four Musketeers of French tennis and the winner here in 1928, the year Roland Garros was inaugurated.

But Borg must go through two weeks of battle to be waged among the lilacs and greenery, on slow, often unpredictable clay courts, in best-of-five-set matches.

Just to remind Borg of how far he has to go here, his main rivals — Americans John McEnroe, Jimmy Connors and Vitas Gerulaitis — all were victorious on opening day Monday.

McEnroe, the U.S. Open champion who is second here, thrashed Frenchman Patrice Dominguez 7-6, 6-0, 6-0. No. 3 seed Connors staved off Italy's Adriano Panatta 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 7-6. Gerulaitis, cut down in last week's Italian Open by 16-year-old Frenchman Thierry Tulasne, survived a first-round scare, wearing down West Germany's Peter Elter 1-6, 6-1, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2.

Tulasne was off to a good start, dumping Belgian Bernard Bolleau 7-6, 7-5, 4-3, after the Belgian retired with a muscle strain.

The big French hope here this year is young Yannick Noah, who was overpowered in the finals at Rome Sunday by Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, the champion here in 1977 and seeded No. 4 this year.

Should Borg manage to win the French crown, he'll need to win at Wimbledon, the U.S. Open, and then the Australian Open to complete the Grand Slam. He has never won the U.S. or Australian titles.

Borg has further trimmed down his tournament schedule this year in his bid to become the first player to win the Slam since Rod Laver in 1969. Laver also won it in 1962.

Islanders return Cup to happy city

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — It has been 40 years since the Stanley Cup last resided in New York and although Long Island is somewhat east of the city itself, only a purist would quibble over the geography.

The Islanders returned the National Hockey League championship trophy to New York for the first time since 1940 when they eliminated the Philadelphia Flyers in six games, winning the finale 5-4 in overtime.

Bobby Nystrom's overtime goal at 7:11 of the extra period clinched the Cup and ended the dry spell that was somewhat shorter for the Islanders than it was for the rest of New York. The team had waited eight years for its sip of Stanley Cup champagne and goalie Billy Smith, one of the playoff heroes, was there at the beginning in 1972, when the Islanders won just 12 games all season.

"Listen, I enjoyed that first year," Smith said, reflecting on the Islander origins. "Some people say it was a wasted year, but not for me. I could fight and scrap and I built a reputation. I enjoyed playing rough and the word got around."

In those early days, Smith's frequent combat around his net was the most memorable part of the Islander games. But slowly the team improved with General Manager Bill Torrey negotiating shrewd trades and making draft choices that molded the club into a genuine contender. Did Smith ever believe that one day it would all pay off with a Stanley Cup?

"In my whole life, I never thought of this day," he confessed. "It is the highlight of a lifetime."

The players who seemed to appreciate the Cup most were the ones who had suffered through playoff disappointments the last two years. In 1978, the Islanders were upset in the quarter-finals by Toronto and in 1979, they bowed in the semis in a bitter inter-city battle with the New York Rangers.

Those two losses pinned a "choke" label on the team, one they resented.

"It seems everytime we lose or the Rangers lose, we're chokers," said Coach Al Arbour. "Other teams just lose, but we choke, according to the media. Well, maybe this will stop that stuff."

Clark Gillies, who had served as captain of the team for awhile before turning that job over to Denis Potvin, took the Cup part of the way on its victory lap around the rink Saturday as Islander fans roared their approval.

"We've got to come to grips within the next few days to get through Phase one of it," Brooks said. "Then you would have to approach the Swiss club to get their approval" of a contract settlement with the Rockies.

Brooks said he wouldn't sign with the Rockies until his contract with Davos is settled because of ethics and possible litigation in the future.

"There was a lot of looking back to do. We wanted so dearly not to lose this year. It meant so much to us."

Bossy said he went into the overtime period thinking only of the one goal that would end the game.

"One goal and that's it," he said. "For two years, that one goal was as a loser. This time, it was as a winner and I'll tell you, it's much better that way."

Cosmos grab tournament

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Colorful Giorgio Chinaglia tallied the 499th goal of his career his to give his Cosmos the championship of the first Trans-Atlantic Challenge Cup championship, but it did not come without a dispute.

The goal at 76:23 gave the Cosmos a 1-1 tie Monday with the Vancouver Whitecaps that gave the crown to the Cosmos.

Chinaglia's goal, his sixth in in Trans-Atlantic Cup competition, was vehemently protested by Vancouver. The goal came in a scramble in front of the net and the Whitecaps claimed that Johan Neeskens, who along with Ricky Davis was credited with an assist, had touched the ball with his hand.

In an earlier game before 60,384 at Giants Stadium, 19-year-old Paul Sugroe's second half goal provided the margin of a 3-2 victory for Manchester City of England over A.S. Roma of Italy to give Manchester third place.

The Cosmos finished the competition with two victories and a tie, good for five points against the defending North American Soccer League champions from Vancouver. The Whitecaps finished second with a victory and two ties for four points.

The play began with a corner kick by Vladislav Bogicevic, who crossed the ball to Jeff Durgan. Durgan pushed the ball to Davis at the top of the box who kicked it in to Neeskens who then passed to Chinaglia.

Vancouver's only goal of the match came just four minutes earlier at 72:10 when Alan Ball took a pass from Gerry Gray and looped a pass into Ray Hankin.

Hankin turned quickly, avoided a tackle by Durgan, and fired the ball past Cosmos goal keeper Hubert Birkenmeir into the lower left corner of the net.

Both teams had opportunities to win in the final moments. But Birkenmeir dove to take the ball off Carl Valentine's foot in front of the Cosmos' goal, and Chinaglia's header off a cross by Bogicevic with just over five minutes remaining sailed just wide of Vancouver's goal.

Rennert toppled

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — A 6-3, 7-5 upset of No. 1 seed Peter Rennert of Stanford has given fifth-seeded Robert van't Hof of Southern California the singles title in the 96th annual NCAA tennis championships.

After the match Monday, both van't Hof and Rennert announced their plans to turn pro immediately, starting with Wimbledon where the two close friends will play doubles together.

In the doubles final, Tennessee won its first national tennis title as the top-seeded team of Mel Purcell and Rodney Harmon won two tiebreakers to edge Trinity's Tony Giammalva and John Benson 7-6, 7-6.

Stanford, led by Rennert, had captured the team title last week in the event held at the University of Georgia.

Should Borg manage to win the French crown, he'll need to win at Wimbledon, the U.S. Open, and then the Australian Open to complete the Grand Slam. He has never won the U.S. or Australian titles.

Borg has further trimmed down his tournament schedule this year in his bid to become the first player to win the Slam since Rod Laver in 1969. Laver also won it in 1962.

Brooks says he's still considering offer from Colorado team

DENVER (AP) — Herb Brooks, who coached the U.S. Olympic hockey team to a gold medal, hopes to decide within a couple of days whether he will accept an offer to coach the Colorado Rockies of the National Hockey League.

Brooks has indicated the Rockies, who fired Coach Don Cherry last week, will have to sweeten the pot before he will break his contract with a club in Switzerland.

In a telephone interview with the Rocky Mountain News from his Minneapolis home Monday night, the former University of Minnesota hockey coach said he hopes to change two or three points in the Rockies offer.

"I guess I'm not gonna move off that (Swiss contract) until I get a comparable offer here. There are 40 games over there and 100 here (in the NHL season). I don't want to have to pay to coach," Brooks said.

"We know we've got to put this thing together. They (Rockies) say this week and I say within a couple of days," Brooks said.

"They've (Rockies) made what I consider a very good offer. If it doesn't work, it's not because it's not a good offer. It's because the other offer is very, very good and very unique," he said of his signed contract with a Division One club in Davos, Switzerland.

"There are only 40 games over there. Look at the dollars ($75,000 tax free for each of two seasons), the quality of life there and everything, along with the terms of the contract."

Brooks' contract with the Davos team is for 20 months beginning Aug. 1. Time is of the essence for the Rockies because the NHL Entry Draft opens June 11.

"We've got to come to grips within the next few days to get through Phase one of it," Brooks said. "Then you would have to approach the Swiss club to get their approval" of a contract settlement with the Rockies.

Brooks said he wouldn't sign with the Rockies until his contract with Davos is settled because of ethics and possible litigation in the future.

Henry B. Greenberg satisfied with things like they were

By JIM MURRAY
Los Angeles Times

I hate to be the one who trifles with the dreams of glory of dirty-faced little kids, but you know the line in the record book which says that Henry B. Greenberg hit 58 home runs, third-best-all-time, in 1938?

Uh-uh. Forget it. Hank's 58th home run that year was an inside-the-park affair at St. Louis and Greenberg was out by five feet at the plate. The catcher knew it, the crowd (what few there were) knew it—and Greenberg knew it. Only the man who mattered, the umpire, didn't know it.

The affair so rankled the St. Louis Browns' catcher that, 42 years later he still couldn't sleep at night thinking about it, and he sent Greenberg a letter wondering if he still had that photo. You picture the luckless fellow buttonholing people all those years and telling quarrelously, "I had Greenberg out, you know. I swear it. He really only hit 57 home runs that year."

What Hank Greenberg remembers most about that year of 1938 was that he still had almost a week to catch Babe Ruth's season record of 60 homers. He still had one final game in Cleveland where, unfortunately, the fences were a sleeper jump from home plate, and Hank ripped two 400-foot outs and one 420-foot double that bounced twice on its way to the fence that day.

Hank Greenberg was probably the greatest right-handed slugger who ever lived, but he admits he would have been embarrassed to break Babe Ruth's record. "Babe Ruth was in a class by himself and remains so," he insists. "Ruth was genius, the rest of us were good."

Hank rues his experience of 1937 more. That was the year he had driven in 183 runs, one short of Lou Gehrig's league record, when he came up to the last game of the year reasoning that opposing Cleveland would be trying out some rookie pitcher. Instead, Cleveland's fire-balling right hander, Johnny Allen, who had reeled off 15 straight victories, one short of the league record, took the mound. Allen went after the record in a scorching 1-0 duel, which he lost, and Greenberg saw nothing but unhittable fast balls all day.

Hank was not only the all-time right-handed slugger, he was the all-

Rutherford laughs on way to bank

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Johnny Rutherford, pocketing his share of the largest purse in auto racing history, turned to the president of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and quipped, "It's been a pleasure doing business with you."

The glib Texan, the newest member of a select group of three-time winners of the Indianapolis 500, earned $318,000 for Sunday's 3 1/2-hour drive through heavy traffic. The total purse of more than $1.5 million was divided up among the 33 drivers at the annual victory banquet Monday night.

"It's hard to believe," Rutherford told more than 1,000 people at the Indianapolis Convention Center. "Three times ... It's fantastic."

Ten of the drivers did not attend the Victory Banquet, including former winners A.J. Foyt, Mario Andretti, Al and Bobby Unser and Gordon Johncock. Another driver, sixth-place finisher Pancho Carter, walked off the dais after the master of ceremonies made a cutting remark about his unsuccessful protest of a penalty.

Otherwise, the banquet was a harmonious affair, in contrast with the tense scene a year earlier amid the bitter feud between the U.S. Auto Club and the dissident Championship Auto Racing Teams.

The reconciliation, and the record purse, resulted in large part from the steady hand of new Speedway President John Cooper, who noted that money indeed had been a part of the unrest.

"We're making some rapid strides in that area," Cooper said. "This is the first $1.5 million purse in racing history. Last year was only $1.2 million, and both first and last place will receive record amounts."

The first prize has jumped $100,000 in five years. The payoff for 33rd, more than $25,000, has nearly doubled in that span.

Rutherford's total included $23,600 in lap prizes for leading Sunday's race. He also received the Pontiac TransAm pace car and the winner's ring. The former record payoff was $290,364 to Al Unser in 1978.

Tom Sneva, finishing second for the third time in the past four years, earned $128,945, and third-place Gary Bettenhausen, the slowest qualifier for the race, took home $86,945.

Another point of conflict besides money, and one that surfaced again Sunday, was the new USAC restriction on manifold pressure, which cut horsepower and speed. There were 10 different leaders during the race and all three last-row starters finished among the top eight—but some of the early dropouts claimed the restriction killed their chances.

"We've got some problems now," Rutherford acknowledged Monday night, "but we're going to get them sorted out. The end result is going to make for better racing."

Sneva, who started dead last after substituting another car for one he wrecked in practice, said, "I've talked to a lot of people since the race. Nobody's complained about the speed we ran. As long as we keep providing entertainment at whatever speed, the sport will grow and so will the money."

Bettenhausen, who started next to Sneva on the last row, thanked USAC for "providing us with a set of rules that gave me my most enjoyable day at the Speedway."

The joy wasn't as great for Carter, who led the race at one point but was penalized one lap for passing the pace car during one of 13 yellow flags. He wound up sixth and took home $39,000, nearly $90,000 less than he would have received for finishing where he thought he belonged.

Carter said he thought a signal from the pace car to slow down was a gesture for him to go ahead. The protest was turned down because "no really new facts were presented beyond those considered at the time the penalty was assessed," said chief steward Tom Binford.

Rutherford, starting from the pole position, was challenged throughout the race by a succession of drivers, but his yellow Cosworth-powered Chaparral wound up on top by 34 seconds.

Johnny Rutherford flashes three fingers, indicating his third Indy 500 championship, which the Texan won Sunday. He could also be indicating the more than $300,000 he takes home as the winner. (AP Laserphoto)

Unser's computer was helpless Sunday

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — When Al Unser put his Longhorn racer on the track at Sunday's 64th Indianapolis 500-mile race, a computer in his pit was a first for the race.

And if it weren't for a broken valve in the engine that put Unser out in the 126th lap, the computer standing alongside Unser's fuel tank might have helped him ride to Victory Lane for the fourth time. Unser finished 18th in the slow-starting race won by Johnny Rutherford.

"The computer worked fine. We didn't win because the car broke down. The computer didn't have anything to do with it," said a disappointed Jon Simms. Simms, a former Indianapolis resident who now lives in Tustin, Calif., wrote the computer program in 30 hours — non-stop.

In the computer's seemingly inexhaustible memory were records of Unser's performance and position along with that of nine of his competitors. The computer took the information — punched in by technicians in the pit — sorted it and then helped tell the crew the best time for pit stops.

The first computer in the pits with Indy mechanics tracked the 10 cars, counting their completed laps, pit stops, laps under a yellow flag and Unser's fuel consumption.

It was programmed to spit out the information automatically as Unser finished each series of 10 laps, Simms said.

Although businessmen have long been using sophisticated computers to help make decisions, Ken Ridge, an Indianapolis computer technician who worked with the computer in the pits, said the racing team discovered three weeks ago during the time trials that it helped improve performance.

Clark's four-hitter aids Cubs victory

TULSA, Okla. — Randy Clark set the Tulsa Drillers down on a four-hitter Monday night as the Midland GM Bill Rigney, Jr. Owen, drafted out of Texas-Arlington last June, was batting .260 for Midland when he left the team.

Wilson last year batted .361 at Sarasota and stole 21 bases in 38 games. Another ex-Midland Cub, catcher Mike O'Berry, was called up to Chicago Monday in time for the game with Montreal after starting catcher Barry Foote suffered an injury.

O'Berry only last week was sent from Midland to Wichita in exchange for catcher George Enright.

The Cubs erupted for four runs, however, to send Crutcher to the showers. A pair of errors along with a walk, fielder's choice, sacrifice fly and a two-run single by J.W. Mitchell gave Midland a 4-1 lead.

Midland added two runs in the eighth and one more in the ninth to ice away the game, which was the opener of a five-game Texas League series.

In the eighth, Dave Stockstill hit a single and the ball got away from the centerfielder with Randy LaVigne scoring. Stockstill later scored on a sacrifice fly by Mitchell for a 6-1 lead.

Tom Grant doubled in Jesus Alfaro who had walked to wind up the scoring for Randy Hundley's crew. Stat man feels 'D' is overrated

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — When it comes to winning baseball games, defense doesn't mean much. That's what Mike Ingram has found from his years-long analysis of major league baseball statistics. Ingram, a statistician by trade, has made sports statistics his hobby since he was a kid.

"Defense is worth 5 percent, or about two or three games" of a team's total victories, he said. "Defense is highly overrated."

Managers fare even worse than defense in Ingram's calculations. He credits a good manager with winning only 2 percent of a team's games.

If a team wants to be sure of winning a pennant, it should stock up on good hitters and good pitchers, Ingram said. But a team in the free-agent market shouldn't go by a player's press clippings, because "publicity in most cases is not accurate."

Hitting and pitching are equally responsible for winning the bulk of a team's games, he said.

Ingram compiles statistics on high school, college and professional sports, and produces year-end college basketball rankings based on his work.

His "statistically sound" formula is based on a player's on-base average and slugging percentages. "This is not trivia. It is intended for a sophisticated, mathematical audience," he said.

He says getting behind on the count is statistically good for a pitcher and bad for a hitter—something coaches have been saying for years.

"If a guy is 0-2 it is unlikely he will hit a home run," he said. "But on a 3-1 count, a guy becomes a .450 hitter."

Ingram would like to develop a formula for predicting the chances a minor league player has of making it to the major leagues. He's been studying that topic for five years, and will need another eight to 10 years to reach a conclusion, he said.

High jump record tied

REHLINGEN, West Germany (AP) — Dietmar Moegenburg of West Germany and Poland's Jacek Wszola, the 1976 Olympic champion, smashed the world high jump record within one day of each other.

Wszola became only the sixth man to hold both the Olympic and world records at the same time when he cleared 7 feet, 8 1/2 inches at a meet in Heilbronn, West Germany, on Sunday.

Then on Monday, the 19-year-old Moegenburg also cleared 7-8 1/2 at a meet in Rehlingen.

The previous record of 7-8 1/2 was set June 16, 1978, by Vladimir Yashchenko of the Soviet Union.

Moegenburg had the best jump in the world last year, clearing 7-7 1/2, and is the 18th man since 1912 to hold the world record.

He and Wszola are the first since 1912 when the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the world governing body of the sport, began keeping records that the record has been held by someone other than an American or Soviet athlete.

years in the service in the war. Greenberg batted .301, .339, .328, .348, .337, .315, .312, .340 and .311 in his full years in the big leagues. He came walking out of the Army in 1945, dropped his duffel bag, picked up a bat and led the Tig-3 to the World Series that year where he batted .304 with two home runs, seven runs-batted-in and seven runs scored.

For all this accomplishment, the most money Hank Greenberg ever made in a year in his prime was $5500. In 1935, he won the league MVP, batted .328, led the league in home runs and runs batted in with 170. But he broke his wrist in the World Series that year—and, the next year, the club gave him a $1 a year contract! They didn't want to tie up their cash in case he couldn't play.

Hank did become the game's first $100,000 player.

U.S. gymnasts set for action

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Marcia Frederick is favored to lock up a spot on the U.S. Olympic gymnastic team in tonight's nationally televised freestyle competition.

Frederick, a 17-year-old from Connecticut, tied for first in two events and finished strongly in two others Monday night to win the overall compulsory title.

She scored 38.25 in the overall competition and tied for first in the uneven parallel bars and the balance beam as the trials continued at the Jacksonville Coliseum.

Following tonight's competition, six women and six men will be chosen for the Olympic team.

The team won't compete in the Moscow Summer Games because of the United States boycott. Instead, the team will tour this country, West Germany and the Netherlands this summer.
