Reminders of tritium turmoil still exist in Tucson

By MICHAEL A. CHIRAK

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The Baptist church still holds Sunday services. Traffic still hums along South Plumer Avenue. Children still walk through the midtown Tucson neighborhood on their way to parochial school.

But underlying the calm are reminders of the turmoil created last year when a local plant was accused of leaking radioactive tritium, enough so it showed up in a cake baked in a nearby school kitchen.

Today the red brick and adobe buildings of the American Atomics Corp. plant on South Plumer Avenue stand virtually empty, a "For Lease" sign in front of one.

Last spring, the Arizona Atomic Energy Commission accused American Atomics of allowing excessive emissions of tritium. Company officials denied the accusations.

But on June 1, 1979, tests performed in the school kitchen showed that cake, which had been served to 40,000 school children in the Tucson Unified School District, contained excessive amounts of tritium.

THE PUBLIC, already concerned by the earlier allegations, became alarmed. American Atomics said low levels of tritium were not harmful to people, but two weeks later, after furious efforts to rid the area of radiation, the plant was ordered closed.

Questions and unresolved issues remain a year later as an offspring of that company is trying to start business manufacturing exit signs for buildings near Midland, Texas. Possibly the most significant is just how harmful a substance is tritium, a low-level radioactive hydrogen isotope. Even experts cannot agree what it will do.

Also undecided is what to do with the American Atomics' valuable tritium. Most of the tritium that was removed from the plant under Gov. Bruce Babbitt's orders four months after the closure remains at the Navajo Army Ordnance Depot outside Flagstaff. Plans to sell it or otherwise move it out of Arizona have been stalled.

"We're still waiting for a letter from the Department of Energy because proposals from the private sector have not worked out," said governor's aide Dale Pontius.

ALSO PENDING IS decontamination of the American Atomics plant. The company went broke and the facility is under control of the U.S. Bankruptcy Court and the state.

It is being decontaminated now — slowly. Darrel Warren, the supervising state health physicist, said American Atomics is strapped for funds and is using only two or three cleaners.

The state Atomic Energy Commission is inspecting the cleanup, testing each piece of equipment to make sure all traces of radiation are removed. When all the equipment is cleaned, the buildings themselves will be scrubbed inside and out.

"All it takes is someone getting down with a scrub brush and a mop and using elbow grease to clean it up," said Warren.

The bankruptcy action, filed by American Atomics after its main asset — tritium — was removed by the state, is nowhere near resolution. Last week, the court gave the company permission to auction more than 300 pieces of equipment and furniture that had been decontaminated.

SCHOOL LUNCHEAS HAVE been prepared in individual school kitchens since the district's central kitchen was closed. School district officials say they hope to reopen the central kitchen in time for the start of summer school on June 9.

It was closure of that central kitchen which triggered a whirlwind of action.

The state Atomic Energy Commission issued an emergency order closing the American Atomics plant pending hearings on the alleged emis-

Santana could get its permit soon

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Santana Industries could get its permit in a couple of weeks to operate in Midland County if a few questions are cleared up by that time, said a licensing supervisor with the Radiation Control Division of the Texas Department of Health.

Joe Gorrell said Monday the question over the company's lease on a building has never been straightened out to their (Radiation Control Division) satisfaction. And if the residents here request and get a public hearing, it will delay the application.

Santana Industries is trying to set up shop in a structure half a mile from the KOA campsite and south of Midland Regional Airport to manufacture exit signs for buildings. The controversial aspect of the business is its use of tritium, a radioactive gas, and the parent company's apparently bad track record in Arizona.

Under the name of American Atomics Corp., the company used tritium at its Tucson, Ariz., plant for lighted dials in watches. A certain amount of the tritium was lost and traces of the substance were found in the surrounding neighborhood, including food.

The plant was forced to shut down and American Atomics filed for bankruptcy. Directors of that company, however, have regrouped under the name Santana Industries.

"The application is nearing completion, but there are a few items that need to be cleared up first," said Gorrell.

"We've heard they lost the lease on their building, and then we hear it isn't true."

The building's owner, Dale Leverett of Odessa, said today the lease ran out and Santana hasn't renewed it. "I talked to them two weeks ago, but I haven't heard anything from them since then. As far as I'm concerned, they don't have the building."

Leverett went on to say that in talking to Santana, he told them the firm would have to change the public opinion against it "so my neighbors don't mind having them" before getting the building. "They (Santana) could take that any way they want. But frankly, I'm about as lost as anyone on this deal."

The Texas Air Control Board has little to do with Santana's application, according to Ken Haagensen with the TACB Odessa office. His office checked on Santana's proposed location and requested an application for a

Carter will go over the top today

By the Associated Press

President Carter was guaranteed the delegates he needs for a Democratic majority today in an eight-state presidential primary finale — but even as the numbers were sealed, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy insisted the nomination was not.

Carter expected to easily surpass majority strength, and he predicted he would have an ample supply of delegates to spare when all the Democratic choices are made.

His aim in the final set of primary elections was to roll up a margin so convincing as to force Kennedy from the race, something the challenger said will not happen.

There were nine Republican primaries, too, but those are only exhibition contests, for Ronald Reagan is assured of uncontested nomination.

The Democrats were apportioning 696 nominating votes in Tuesday's primaries, 580 of them in California, New Jersey and Ohio.

Kennedy counted on winning the first two, but Carter expected to capture Ohio. Last week he thanked Ohio voters "in advance" for the delegates he said would clinch his nominating majority.

The early voter turnout was sparse in both Ohio and New Jersey in generally overcast or stormy weather.

"It's a light turnout so far, but a lot of people come here after they get off work," said Tyrone Harvey, a board of election inspector in Trenton, N.J.

The Kennedy camp acknowledged that in every delegate count, including their own, Carter will end the primary season with more than the 1,666 votes it takes to win the nomination.

Now, they say, his problem will be to keep them for the 10 weeks until the Democratic National Convention.

Kennedy's last, frail hope is that he can win so convincingly in California and New Jersey as to buttress his argument that Carter is weak in the populous states where a Democratic ticket must be strong to win. The case will be more difficult given Carter's ranking as the favorite in Ohio.

Beyond that, the Kennedy game plan assumes the Carter will go to the convention as a candidate who appears vulnerable to Reagan in the three-way contest now looming, with

Rep. John B. Anderson as the added, independent starter. Anderson's supporters said Monday, meanwhile, that they've turned in enough signatures to get the Illinois congressman on the ballot as an independent this fall in West Virginia and Massachusetts.

James Flug, Kennedy's spokesman, said the delegate count is not necessarily binding, and won't be until and unless the Democratic convention adopts rules that would hold delegates to their commitments.

That signaled anew the likelihood of a Kennedy effort to win back in a convention rules fight the delegates Carter has been capturing in primaries and party caucuses. That is more than a long shot, since Kennedy would have to win a convention majority in a rules fight — and the majority clearly is with Carter on the nomination.

Even Flug acknowledged that it is far more likely Carter will command a majority of the delegates all the way to the nomination.

Today's contests matched Carter and Kennedy for 306 delegates in California, 161 in Ohio, 113 in New Jersey, 35 in West Virginia, 23 in Rhode Island, 20 in New Mexico, and 19 apiece in Montana and South Dakota.

There also was a Republican primary in Mississippi.

The Democratic delegates were awarded under a system of proportional representation, so that even the loser wins his share. Carter needs only 12 percent of the delegates chosen today to pass the 1,666 nominating majority.

The Associated Press count of Democratic delegates put Carter just 82 short of a majority entering today's primaries. He has 1,584 delegates, Kennedy has 845.

There are 85 uncommitted delegates, and 123 yet to be chosen.

Kennedy campaigned in the Big Three primary states on election eve, with stops in New Jersey, Ohio and California.

Carter did his open politicking in Ohio last Thursday, and in television interviews broadcast on Sunday. He said in an interview with the Cable News Network that the primaries have produced "a very strong showing of support among Democrats for my candidacy."

Democratic presidential hopeful Edward Kennedy continues to campaign even though President Carter was guaranteed the delegates he needs for a Democratic majority today in the eight states holding presidential primaries. Kennedy insists the nomination is not yet Carter's. (AP Laserphoto)

Midland National Bank to build new office tower

Midland National Bank and the investment building-development firm of Gerald D. Hines have announced plans for construction of a new 14-story, 220,000 square foot office tower. The new tower will be adjacent to the present Midland National Bank Tower on the block bounded by Illinois, Marienfeld, Texas and North Carrizo streets.

The addition will resemble the existing structure in design, and is planned for the expansion needs of the bank as well as other tenants of the present tower. Both the new and existing towers were designed by the Houston architectural firm of Morris-Aubrey.

The project will also include a multi-level parking facility available to tenants in both buildings. Midland National Bank will occupy at least two floors in the new tower in addition to the space it presently holds in the existing building.

Information regarding space may be obtained from the Gerald D. Hines office in the Midland National Bank Tower, Suite 1170. Occupancy of the new tower is projected for December 1981.

Administrator resigns at Midland's hospital

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Midland Memorial Hospital Administrator Wayne E. Ulrich presented his resignation this morning to the hospital's Board of Trustees.

Ulrich, who was unavailable for comment, told the board he will resign as of July 2, but will continue as administrator through his vacation time ending Aug. 1.

In a prepared statement, Ulrich said, "I am stepping down as administrator to pursue other interests."

Ulrich, who has been MMH's administrator for 12 years and nine months, first announced his plans to staff members Monday afternoon at a departmental head meeting.

Tevis Herd, president of MMH's board of trustees, said the board met this morning to accept Ulrich's resignation.

"We accept it with regret in recognition of his good record as an administrator," Herd said after the meeting. "We'll miss him and his accomplishments as an administrator have been an asset to the Midland community."

Herd denied there had been any tension between the board and Ulrich, but said Ulrich had been "talking about it for several weeks."

Bikinis on today, off tomorrow in the continuing billboard saga

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — An outdoor advertising company that painted bikinis on its billboard depiction of naked women sunbathers is going to have to go au naturel after all, company officials say.

Complaints from residents unhappy with all the bare skin on the billboards had prompted Peterson Outdoor Advertising Corp. to paint bikinis on the two women shown lying on their bellies on the beach.

But the Miami-based client, Sun

Staff members said they had heard rumors Ulrich was going to resign, but said they felt it was only a rumor.

Board member Mickey Cappadonna said he, too, "had heard that that (Ulrich's resignation) might happen," but he was unaware of Ulrich's

Ramsey Clark offers himself

He says he'd exchange places with hostages

By The Associated Press

Former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark today told delegates to the "Crimes of America" conference in Tehran that he would be willing to exchange places with any of the 53 American hostages if it would help resolve the 213-day standoff.

He also called for the trial of the deposed shah, saying the former American-supported regime had "brutalized millions" and asked: "How many greater crimes does history reflect than the crimes of the Shah of Iran against the people of Iran?"

But Clark told the delegates that the hostages "are the wrong people" to

Three Midland Republicans picked as delegates to national convention

BROWNFIELD — Three Midlanders were selected to attend the Republican National Convention when the Reagan For President selection committee met Saturday in Brownfield to decide on delegates and alternate delegates.

Robert L. Monaghan of Midland will be a Reagan delegate to the Detroit gathering, along with John Ryan and Mrs. J. Everts Haley of Lubbock.

Robert Paxton and Mrs. George

Weis of Midland and Jannell Evans of Brownfield were picked as alternate delegates for presidential candidate Ronald Reagan.

This will be Monaghan's third consecutive convention to attend as a delegate. He served as Midland County Republican chairman for six years and now is the Republican District committeeman for the 25th senatorial district and regional chairman of punish for past American actions, which he said were "terribly painful" for him, and added:

"I am so sure it is imperative that the hostages be released now, so important to the fulfillment of the Iranian Revolution which it is damaging in a hundred ways, so important to the individual rights of the hostages and so important to peace on earth, that I offer today to take the place of any hostage if that will help resolve this tragic crisis."

"Taking hostages uninvolved in the specific offenses for which you are concerned can't be justified in a country which wants to live in peace. The seizure of the hostages here is understandable in human terms. God knows it is understandable. But it is not right."

Clark, who was attorney general in 1967-69, told reporters that the decision by him and nine other Americans to attend the conference was "essential to dialogue between the Iranian people and the American people" and predicted it "will help the American hostages."

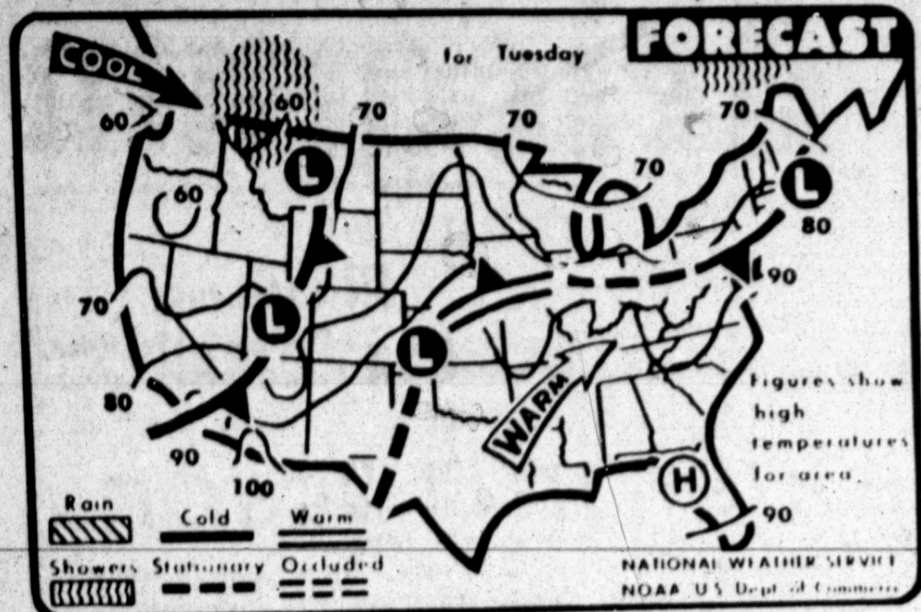

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said he would meet with Clark, characterizing him as a staunch supporter of the Iranian revolution and an opponent of "the crimes of the shah and the U.S. government in Iran."

Ghotbzadeh said he would be having private talks with a number of delegates to the conference and that "Ramsey Clark would not be excluded. Of course, I will not enter into negotiations with him as a representative of the U.S. government."

—A Tehran newspaper, Kayhan, reported without explanation the resignation of Iran's air force commander, Maj. Gen. Amir Bahman Bagheri. Bagheri was strongly criticized for ordering the destruction of helicopters used in the aborted American hostage rescue mission April 25.

—Tehran Radio said Iranian forces killed 122 Iraqi troops and wounded many others in border clashes during the past two days. The report could not be confirmed.

Rep. Diggs resigns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles C. Diggs resigned today from the House of Representatives, a day after the Supreme Court refused to hear his appeal on payroll kickback charges.

The Michigan Democrat told Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill in a letter read to the House that he was resigning "effective immediately."

Diggs gave no reason for the decision in his two-sentence letter. He had earlier announced he would not run for re-election but would serve out his present, 13th term, which ends next January.

Diggs faces up to three years in prison on his conviction of increasing the pay of some of his House employees so they could give him the money to pay personal and office expenses. Prosecutors said Diggs received about $66,000 in kickbacks from 1973 to 1977 from the staff members.

The prosecutors said Diggs also put a bookkeeper and an accountant on his congressional payroll when they worked only for his House of Diggs funeral home in Detroit.

After the Supreme Court refused to hear his appeal Monday, Diggs announced he will petition for reduction of sentence and probation.

He said he will ask the trial judge for compassion on grounds that he has been censured by the House and has agreed to repay it $40,000, has reduced additional indebtedness and is leaving the House.

Diggs had been a member of the House since 1955 and resigned as chairman of the House District of Columbia Committee when he was indicted on the payroll charges.

Security beefed-up at Fort Chaffee

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — A beefed-up security team with the authority to use force against unruly Cuban refugees is assembling at the Fort Chaffee relocation center as some Cubans work from the inside to do more than a dozen people with injuries.

The sprawling Army Reserve base was calm Monday as President Carter ordered the military to increase the number of security personnel from 600 to 2,000. The order came one day after 200 to 300 refugees spilled out of the compound and pelted officers with rocks before retreating when state troopers opened fire.

Some new soldiers from Fort Sill, Okla., were reported on the base by late Monday.

Five refugees were wounded, three of them seriously, and more than a dozen officers received minor injuries. The Cubans set fires that destroyed three buildings and damaged a fourth.

Military police, who made up about half of the federal officers handling security at the fort during Sunday's disturbance, did not attempt to deter the Cubans.

"It's a miracle something worse didn't happen," said Gov. Bill Clinton. He said he had been assured by the White House last week that military personnel had the authority to use reasonable force to deter agitators — but the order granting that authority did not arrive until Monday.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said the White House was "contemptuous of the pleas some of us have been making."

No end seen to island revolt

PORT VILA, New Hebrides (AP) — The New Hebrides' chief minister stalked out of a meeting today with British and French officials to protest what he said was their lack of support in putting down a rebellion on Espiritu Santo, the largest island in New Hebrides chain.

Walter Lini said he would not meet again with the British and French representatives. The two nations have jointly ruled the South Pacific island group for the past 74 years.

Lini, whose government is scheduled to gain independence on July 30, said he would consult his Cabinet to see what, if any, action might be taken against the rebels.

The chief minister has no military force, but his ruling Vanuatu Party has threatened to recruit one and fight to regain control of the rebel-held island in a move that could mean civil war among the 100,000 inhabitants of the 74 islands 850 miles east of Australia.

Britain and France have their own police forces on the islands, but at a meeting Monday in Paris the two nations failed to agree on a joint course of action against the rebels.

The uprising, supported by American and French businessmen seeking a tax haven, began last Wednesday when about 600 natives armed with bows and arrows and led by some 50 French-speaking islanders with shotguns seized control of Espiritu Santo.

PLO calls strike on West Bank

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Callers told Tel Aviv newspapers today that two underground Israeli terrorist groups were responsible for the bloody attacks against Palestinian nationalist leaders on the occupied West Bank. Arab merchants in the occupied zone began a general strike to protest the attacks but soldiers broke into some West Bank shops and forced storekeepers to open.

The callers claimed to represent the "Sons of Zion" and the "Anti-Terror Unit," two hitherto unknown groups. In both cases, the callers said the bombings were in reprisal for a Palestinian guerrilla ambush last month that killed six Israelis in the West Bank city of Hebron.

One caller told the Haaretz newspaper that the "Sons of Zion" set off the explosions Monday that maimed two Palestinian nationalist mayors and injured seven other Arabs. The Maariv newspaper said its caller identified the bombers as members of the "Anti-Terror Unit."

It was not immediately known if authorities considered either claim to be genuine.

There were no reports of violence on the West Bank as the three-day protest strike got under way. But the action by Israeli army troops forcing some shopkeepers to open made the strike only partially effective there.

The Palestine Liberation Organization had called for the strike in reply to the attempted assassinations of its prominent West Bank supporters.

Accusing Israel of trying to "muzzle the free voice of the Palestinian people under occupation," the PLO vowed revenge for the attacks in four West Bank cities and said it was seeking a U.N. Security Council session to take up "the explosive situation." PLO chief Yasser Arafat blamed Israel and the United States for a campaign of "official terrorism against the Palestinians." However, Israel and the United States, as well as the United Nations, Egypt and Russia condemned the attacks on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

Meanwhile, Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir left today for meetings with foreign ministers of Holland, Belgium, Denmark and Luxembourg in an effort to dissuade European leaders from pushing ahead with a new peace initiative for the Middle East. Israel opposes any such European effort to supplant the Camp David accords.

The bombings came at the end of the 30-day mourning period for six Israeli settlers killed by PLO terrorists in the West Bank city of Hebron, and were applauded by Yossi Dayan of the rightist Kach movement and the Jewish Defense League.

Changing our history

Whether officials determine last week's shooting of Urban League President Vernon E. Jordan Jr. to have been an assassination attempt, a conspiracy or just an isolated incident, the fact remains that the shooting was a senseless one that nearly culminated in tragedy.
Jordan has been one of this nation's leading civil rights activists, but officials initially said they did not think the shooting was tied to those activities.
The shooting is, however, a sad commentary on the state to which our society has degenerated. We all must take action to reverse that trend before the situation gets totally out of hand.
Why are there those in our society who believe the only way to effect a change is to kill the leader of the opposing viewpoint? Must we be written in history books as a society so afflicted with illness that we kill our leaders?
It is coming to that. Political assassinations during the past couple of decades have almost doomed us to that end irreversibly.
The shooting of another human being is nothing more than an admission of failure by the assassin. The shooting of Jordan was as senseless as the racial rioting and murder in Miami, Fla., a week and a half before.

Neither of the incidents accomplished anything. The only result of the two was useless death, senseless destruction.
It's time for a change. That change can only be brought about by individuals who become involved in the lives of their fellow man, regardless of race, color or creed.
Decent, impartial enforcement of laws and vigorous prosecution of lawbreakers will help to complete the cycle, of course. But first individual citizens have to get involved.
A grassroots movement back to decency, high moral standards and respect for one's fellow man would be much more effective than anything legislated by today's government. But we are the only ones who can initiate such a change. It's up to us to make the start.
Otherwise our grandchildren will read unpleasant stories about their ancestors in tomorrow's history books.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, June 3, the 155th day of 1980. There are 211 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history: In 1621, the Dutch West India Company received a charter for New Fetherland, now New York.
On this date:
In 1808, Confederate President Jefferson Davis was born in what is now Todd County, Ky.
In 1937, after giving up the English crown for her, Edward, Duke of Windsor, married Wallis Warfield Simpson of Baltimore, Md., in France.
In 1940, the Allies completed an evacuation of 337,000 British, French and Belgian troops from France to England during World War II.
In 1966, the "Surveyor One" spacecraft was sending back pictures of the lunar surface after making America's first soft landing on the Moon.
Ten years ago: President Richard Nixon proclaimed the American drive into Cambodia "the most successful operation of a long and difficult war," enabling him to resume the withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Vietnam.
Five years ago: 800,000 persons in Ethiopia and Somalia suffered from a drought-caused famine.
Last year: a U.N. Conference on Trade and Development ended in the Philippines, with major disagreements between poorer countries and industrialized nations concerning the world's birthdays.

Today's birthdays: Actor Tony Curtis is 53. Former federal budget director Bert Lance 49. Poet Allen Ginsberg is 54.
Thought for today: Two things are bad for the heart: running up stairs and running down people — Bernard Baruch (1870-1965).

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Political disenchantment mirrored by Soviets

WASHINGTON — According to the latest public opinion polls, many Americans are so disenchanted with the likely Democratic and Republican candidates for president that they'd welcome a chance to vote for "None of the Above" this November. Indeed, this disenchantment among the electorate is the main thing Rep. John Anderson has going for him.
Oddly enough, the same problem exists in the Soviet Union, where the so-called electoral process leaves the voters no choice when they file into the polling booths to "elect" the only candidates on the ballot.
And yet, according to America's Kremlin-watchers, disenchanted Russians still manage to "vote with their feet" by staying home on Election Day. This has also been confirmed by a Soviet defector who was once a high official of the Politburo.
The defector, who used to be a Communist Party supervisor for several election districts, told my associates Vicki Warren and Dale Van Atta how widespread the practice was. "In all the districts that I supervised, as well as in districts where the real results were known to me," he said, "between 15 and 20 percent of the voters declared their unwillingness to vote."
How many actually persist in their intention to boycott the spurious election process is not known. First of all, it's against the law for Soviet citizens to abstain from voting. Communist Party activists are saddled with the job of getting people to the polls for the formal endorsement of party candidates.
The Soviet party hacks have lists of all voters in their districts, and check off each one as the vote is cast. Those who don't show up are visited during the day.

Despite this heavyhanded charade, our Soviet sources estimate that more than 60 million voters — about a third of the adult population — refused to vote for the official Communist Party candidate in elections of the mid-1970s. This was, the sources said, a way of expressing opposition to the government.
There could be other reasons, though. Soviet elections are held on Sundays, and a lot of Russians use their day off to get drunk, according to a State Department source.
The true number of Soviet citizens who vote — or, more importantly, the number who don't vote — never reaches the bigshots in the Kremlin. Party bureaucrats, fearful of losing their jobs, "systematically falsify" the figures on voter turnout, according to our sources.
Not long ago, one Kremlin official had the temerity to suggest that more than one candidate be offered to the "voters." Later, a non-Communist social organization quietly fielded a candidate for the Soviet Parliament.

CHARLEY REESE

'Hope' was real issue behind Miami rioting

The race riot in Miami, Fla., had only a superficial relation with Miami or with the acquittal of policemen charged with the beating death of a black insurance executive.
Whatever particular problems there are in Miami were only the sparks that set the kindling on the fire — kindling which I believe is ready to be set off in other cities by other sparks.
This race business is a tough question. It is easy to dance around the surface of the problem. If you are a white liberal, you can blame race riots on white bigotry and if you are a white bigot, you can blame them on genetics.
I don't believe either approach offers any solution or gets close to the truth.
The times are rough on just about everybody except the very rich. Inflation has for all practical purposes wiped out every paycheck every working man has received in the last ten years. Now, the inevitable recession is putting people out of work.
Such times put a sharp edge on social relationships. It is easier for everybody to be generous and understanding when the times are good. When the times are bad, we tend to be less forgiving.
Since the Miami riot, I've heard several people say, "Well, whites have hard times but they don't go out and burn down stores." At first, it sounds reasonable. The implication, of course, is that there is something peculiar about a black which causes him to react differently than a white to the same stress.

Charley Reese

But the more you kick that proposition around, the more you realize, it's not true. In the first place, in any riot, only a relatively small percentage of the area population is involved. In Miami, blacks killed whites, but blacks also saved white lives at the risk of their own.
More importantly, though, the proposition is not true because a white man having a hard time is not in an identical situation with a black man having a hard time. The essential difference is the matter of hope.
I come from a relatively poor background and I've known what some people would consider tough times, but I have never in my life not expected things to get better. I think this is true of most white Americans. No matter how bad things get, we expect them to improve. We have this hope because it's been our experience. It's been the experience of our fathers and grandfathers. Hope for a better future is what the American dream is all about.
But it would take a remarkably strong-willed black American to feel the same way. For most black Americans, their experience has been that things don't get better. That was their parents' experience and their grandparents' experience.
A person without hope is dangerous. A person with no hope is either going to be crushed by his hopelessness and destroy himself or he's going to direct that hostility outward.
Oh, I know that from a white perspective, it looks like things have gotten much better for black Americans, but it is not our perspective which counts. It's theirs.
If we want to avoid further riots like the one in Miami, then we'd better zero in on the real problem and find ways to eliminate the perception of hopelessness which is present in the black consciousness. What is needed more than a dole or phony government job is convincing proof that they can reasonably expect a future which is better than their present.
I realize some whites don't like blacks. Well, that's no big deal. Some blacks don't like whites. But what we had better all understand is that neither group is going to go away and neither group is going to dominate the other.
That pretty much leaves us with two choices: either we learn to live together or we spend our allotted time on earth fighting each other. As for me, I can think of better ways to spend my time than either fighting or hating.

INSIDE REPORT:

Reagan nixed Kennedy's plan for empty chair debate

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — As part of his non-stop debate challenge to President Carter, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy made a serious effort to amass all remaining presidential candidates confronting an empty chair representing the absent Carter. The idea died when Ronald Reagan rejected it.
Top Kennedy aides approached Reagan's political high command just before the June 3 primaries with a proposed debate between Carter, Reagan, Kennedy, Rep. John Anderson and, if he were still running, George Bush. When the president inevitably refused to appear, he would be represented by an empty chair.
Reagan's men said no, contending they would wait until after the nominating conventions. Actually, they were surprised that Kennedy would risk unfavorable comparisons with the more articulate Anderson, who is wooing Kennedy's liberal constituency. But Kennedy would agree to any format in order to dramatize Carter's refusal to debate.

director of the Disarmament Agency during the Ford administration; Dr. John Lehman, who was Inkle's deputy director and retired Lt. Gen. Edward Rowny, a former arms control negotiator. All pleaded with Kemp not to join anti-defense liberal Democrats in an unholy alliance sure to defeat the budget resolution.
Kemp, who will be chairman of the defense policy panel on the Republican national platform committee, wants high defense spending. But he contends that the high taxation levels in the budget resolution undercut basic Republican economic arguments for the fall campaign. Before taking that position, he conferred with Reagan's national chairman, Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, and won his support. Reagan himself has stayed neutral.

RR LOVES HENRY
Ronald Reagan stunned a closed-door breakfast session here recently when he praised Henry A. Kissinger as "a great American" who had served "honorably" as secretary of state for Presidents Nixon and Ford.

What surprised the television-radio correspondents at the off-the-record session was the difference between that appraisal of Kissinger and Reagan's dismissal of Kissinger at a Boca Raton, Fla., press conference during the Florida Republican primary campaign last winter. On that occasion, he said that Kissinger would never be secretary of state in his administration.
When one reporter at the breakfast here recalled the earlier remark, Reagan looked startled, then said: "I don't remember saying that." Still, there is no chance Reagan as president would reinstate Kissinger at the State Department.

RECRUITING IN NICARAGUA
Latest intelligence out of revolutionary Nicaragua points to this ominous development: a decision by the Marxist Sandinista government to train young Nicaraguans to fly Soviet MIG fighter aircraft in an Eastern European flight school.
The report, circulated at highest Pentagon levels by the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA), places the flight-training school in a surprising location: Bulgaria.
Military analysts believe the Nicaraguans will be trained to fly MIGs, not in Central America but as part of Moscow's Cuban surrogate forces in Africa. That prospect adds substance to earlier speculation that Nicaraguan army troops have been recruited to fight in the civil war in Angola and other African hot spots alongside Cuban mercenaries.

GOV. TOM BRADLEY?
Fully two years before the 1982 Democratic primary, the highly-popular Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles is favored to be nominated for governor of California and go on to be elected as the nation's first black governor.
Bradley is the winter book choice for the Democratic nomination over state Controller Ken Cory, state Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy and, in the unlikely event he seeks a third term, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. That's why the old California pro, state Treasurer Jesse Unruh, tells friends he won't try for governor in 1982.
If nominated, Bradley could face a divided Republican Party. Lt. Gov. Mike Curb, the early Republican front-runner, is a controversial figure with enemies galore within the party's moderate wing.

UNDER THE DOME: Upon hearing that his colleague, Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., was a member of the Japan-U.S. Friendship Commission, Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., observed: "I don't see how he ever gets to the Senate floor. Every commission in the international field has his presence on it." Javits' staff checked, and Weicker may be right. The New Yorker is or has been a member of more than a dozen international organizations... Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Calif., won a floor vote on an omnibus parks bill against the opposition of 100 colleagues, Democrats and Republicans. "Did you get the names of the hundred?" a fellow congressman asked. "No," said Burton, "but I got the names of the 23 Democrats." Campaign aides of six liberal senators targeted for oblivion by the National Conservative Political Action Committee are drawing comfort from Rep. John Anderson's independent bid for the White House. Explanation: Anderson is likely to bring out voters who might otherwise stay away from a Carter-Reagan choice. While they're at the polls, they may vote for liberal Senate candidates.

hand to cash the ace of hearts. The only chance was that diamonds would break evenly. Declarer cashed the ace and king, but when East showed out on the second diamond, the contract could not be made.

Here's our first principle: When you are missing an even number of cards in a suit, the odds are that they will not break evenly. Thus, with four cards missing, it is more likely that they will break 3-1 than 2-2.

Therefore, the line that South adopted had less than an even chance of the diamonds providing an entry to the closed hand. The better play was to overtake the king of hearts with the ace and try the club finesse. A finesse is exactly a 50-50 proposition. It is true that this line of play risks going down two tricks instead of one, but 50 points is a small price to pay for the increased chance to make the contract.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" # Ruidoso dreaming of cultural grandeur

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — This town of 8,000 has cool summer temperatures, money-making winter snows, the world's richest horse race and lots of Texas tourists. Now it's getting culture.

In fact, town leaders hope to turn a week-long visit by the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra into an annual arts festival that will draw top-name stars who will volunteer to play just because it's the — with a capital T — Ruidoso Summer Festival.

"We're not looking for a one-night stand," says Mayor Lloyd Davis Jr. It all began when John Giordano, conductor of the Fort Worth Symphony, contacted Davis about the possibility of a concert series that would give the symphony a summer place to keep the musicians working.

Davis realized Ruidoso had no arts council to organize such a festival, so he called the closest thing — the administration board of the town library.

The library board hit a gold mine of enthusiasm — and money. It created Ruidoso Summer Festival Inc., set up a $90,000 budget and raked in enough donations to set aside ticket sales as seed money for next year's festival.

"It adds a dimension that was terribly missing here," said Sally Black, who moved here a few months ago. "It's the missing link."

Renowned as a land of horse races and skiing, the southern New Mexico village at the foot of Sierra Blanca is dotted with stables, tennis courts and impeccably groomed golf courses.

The All American Futurity, a quarterhorse race run every Labor Day, has a purse of $1.28 million this year, and it will be $2.5 million by 1982.

Two-thirds of the houses are second homes to residents of the Lone Star state, and one developer says there are "many multi-millionaires" in the area.

Youth critical following accident

A 7-year-old youth injured Sunday in an accident with a truck-tractor semi-trailer is now in critical condition, according to a hospital spokesman.

Joseph F. Clark, 7, and his stepfather, Leonard George Porter, were listed in serious condition Monday in Midland Memorial Hospital. Porter remained in serious condition this morning.

According to reports, the accident occurred at 8 p.m. at the intersection of County Road 60 East and County Road 1150 North. Porter, 44, of Midland was eastbound in a pickup on County Road 60. The truck-tractor semi-trailer driven by Robert Lee Cowan, 19, of Midland was southbound on County Road 1150.

Clark was a passenger in the pickup.

Porter was admitted to the hospital with a skull fracture and facial and scalp lacerations. Clark had a concussion and facial and scalp lacerations.

The two were taken to Midland Memorial Hospital in a backup ambulance, after the first ambulance dispatched also crashed. The emergency vehicle apparently went out of control on rain-slicked streets, crashed through a hedge, toppled a brick wall and struck a parked car sitting in a driveway.

The driver, 32-year-old Roy Haberman, and attendant Robert Chaney, 22, were treated and released from Midland Memorial emergency room.

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

She became a mother at 90!

So God's blessings are given to us by faith, as a free gift; we are certain to get them whether or not we follow Jewish customs if we have faith like Abraham's, for Abraham is the father of us all when it comes to these matters of faith.

That is what the Scriptures mean when they say that God made Abraham the father of many nations. God will accept all people in every nation who trust God as Abraham did. And this promise is from God Himself, who makes the dead live again and speaks of future events with as much certainty as though they were already past!

So, when God told Abraham that He would give him a son who would have many descendants and become a great nation, Abraham believed God even though such a promise just couldn't come to pass!

And because his faith was strong, he didn't worry about the fact that he was too old to be a father, at the age of one hundred, and that Sarah his wife, at ninety, was also much too old to have a baby.

But Abraham never doubted. He believed God, for his faith and trust grew ever stronger, and he praised God for this blessing even before it happened.

He was completely sure that God was well able to do anything He promised.

And because of Abraham's faith God forgave his sins and declared him "not guilty."

Now this wonderful statement—that he was accepted and approved through his faith—wasn't just for Abraham's benefit.

It was for us, too, assuring us that God will accept us in the same way He accepted Abraham—when we believe the promises of God who brought back Jesus our Lord from the dead.

He died for our sins and rose again to make us right with God, filling us with God's goodness.

Study of rescue mission begun

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five senior retired and active officers, "free to call the shots as they see them," have begun a special investigation of the failed U.S. commando effort to free 53 U.S. hostages from Iran.

"Since no plan is perfect, the major reason for conducting this review is neither a whitewash nor a witchhunt, but an effort to identify areas where improvements can be made in any such future operations," the Pentagon said Monday.

The "broad examination" of the Iran hostage rescue mission, as the Pentagon described it, actually began a week ago. Pentagon officials said the announcement was held up because a sixth member had to withdraw.

Controversy has swirled around the mission since it was canceled April 24 at a desert refueling stop in Iran.

Three of eight helicopters had dropped out with mechanical problems and Army Col. Charles Beckwith, who led the 90 U.S. commandos, recommended cancellation because he felt the remaining five helicopters were too few to carry out a successful hostage rescue from Tehran.

Eight airmen and marines died in a fiery collision of a helicopter and a C-130 transport plane after the mission was aborted.

President Carter has praised the planning, training and logistic preparations for the mission and has said "every one believed (it) had a good chance for success."

investigation is separate from an "after-action" inquiry being conducted by staff officers for the military chiefs, it may not satisfy some critics who have called for an "impartial review" outside the military.

The Pentagon said members of the special panel had no connection with the rescue mission and were picked by the Joint Chiefs of Staff for their "broad military experience, including expertise in clandestine special operations."

Heading the panel is retired Adm. James L. Holloway, former chief of naval operations.

The panel has "been cleared for access to all necessary information to appraise the adequacy of concept, planning, preparation and conduct of the mission," the Pentagon said.

Summer school registration is high this year

Friday may have been the last day of school for hundreds of students, but many of them are turning right around and going back to school for the summer.

By late Monday, registration for summer courses in Midland public schools and area colleges and university had increased significantly over past years, according to registration officials.

About 309 high school and 70 elementary students were enrolled Monday, said Jimmie R. Kelly, secondary summer school principal. In the past, summer school registration usually averaged 250 students, Kelly estimated.

One of the reasons for the sudden increase in summer school enrollment is the change from the quarter system to the semester system starting this fall, he noted.

"Students want to get as many courses out of the way under the quarter system so that they will not spend half a year on one course," Kelly explained.

The required free enterprise course has drawn the most applicants, the secondary summer school principal said. Although elementary summer school is only one eight-week session, a noticeable increase in enrollment has also been observed, according to Royce Austin, elementary summer school principal.

Retention of skills learned in school during the regular year was cited by Austin for the unexpected increase in summer school elementary courses.

"Parents are concerned their children might lose what they have already learned," Austin said. "So parents want to keep their children drilling on what they have learned the past year."

Although summer school classes started this morning at Lee High School, interested parents and students will have until Friday to register late in the Lee High School math office.

The second summer quarter will begin June 23 and end July 11. The final quarter of the summer courses should begin July 14 and continue to July 31, Austin said.

About 770 students were registered in Midland College's Physical Education Building Monday, according to H.A. Tuck, MC public relations director. College officials are predicting a record-breaking enrollment this summer, Tuck said, noting the last summer school's record of 944 students.

Late registration for summer courses will continue through Monday in the MC business office at the college's administration building, he said.

"Some people want to accelerate their college education and other students want to get some of the required courses out of their way before coming back in the fall," Tuck said.

Also, there are a number of high school students wanting to get a quick start in their college education, he added. Odessa College reported 96 students completed registration Monday to bring summer school enrollment to 1,112 students, according to OC registrar personnel.

Pre-registration for Odessa College started April 21 and continued through May 2, registrar personnel noted. The official registration session for the college started last Thursday, they said, adding that late registration will continue through Wednesday.

OC registration officials noted most of the students taking summer courses were those who attended other colleges and universities during the regular school year. There also was a large contingent of adults applying for summer instruction.

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin reported 811 students signed up Monday, which barely beats the old record of 809 set last year, according to Bob Warmann, UTPB registrar.

FBI in the dark about Jordan

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — The FBI learned nothing new when agents questioned the woman who was with Vernon E. Jordan Jr. on the night the National Urban League president was shot in the back in a motel parking lot, a U.S. attorney said today.

David T. Ready, the federal prosecutor, said the interview with Martha C. Coleman failed to turn up any new information, "but she did not fail to answer any question and she did not fail to answer any question openly and candidly."

"We're in a stage where we've got to knuckle down, do our homework and hope for a break," Ready said. Ready and FBI agents Wayne G. Davis and Ken Ivan questioned the woman.

Meanwhile, Mayor Winfield Moses said today a reward fund made up of public donations "hopefully will entice people to come forward with vital information." He did not say how much money was in the fund.

Mrs. Coleman, 36, earlier had told a newspaper columnist, "I don't have anything to hide. I didn't see a thing out there."

Jordan, who was shot in the lower back with a bullet from a .30-06 rifle, was in serious but stable condition Monday. Hospital officials said he continued to show steady progress and walked with the aid of two other people, his first steps since the hotel parking lot shooting early Thursday.

The attack came as the civil rights leader got out of a car driven by Mrs. Coleman. He had joined the Fort Wayne Urban League member for coffee at her home.

Mrs. Coleman, who had been in seclusion since the shooting, met with FBI agents Monday, according to agent Roy Mitchell, who declined to disclose details immediately.

Her lawyer, Charles Leonard, blamed the delay on "an incident that greatly troubled my client and greatly troubled me."

Ten killed in Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Ten people, including two teachers and a soldier, were killed in terrorist attacks mounted across Turkey by political extremists, police sources reported today.

All Incekara, a schools inspector and primary schoolteacher, was gunned down after two suspected extremists summoned him from his office in Istanbul late Monday, police said.

The principal of a primary school in eastern Turkey, Mehmet Dogan Ozkasilg, was shot and killed by gunmen in a similar attack, they said.

AT WIT'S END

Son supporting 'classic' car

By ERMA BOMBECK

A friend of ours called the other night and with as much diplomacy as he could muster asked, "What's the matter with your son? I saw him at the garage and he looked like a budget deficiency."

He was not the first to notice our son's shabby clothes, hollowed eyes, and concave billfold hanging out of the hole in his back pocket.

The explanation is quite simple. Our son is the sole support of a "classic" car.

For the uninitiated, a classic car is an automobile that has died, but has been given so many reasons to live, no one has the guts to bury it.

It's hard to pinpoint the exact day when the car went from a "rundown heap" to "classic" status. One day it was propped up on cement blocks in the driveway, the object of a lot of kicking and cursing, and the next day my son was trying to restore it to what it never was. It seems the transition occurred about the time when all the cars that make manufactured during that year were recalled and his was the only one that could be towed without catching fire. To him, this was a sign from God that it had been divinely conceived in Detroit and was destined for a happy death.

One thing is sure... when it goes, it gallon and needs a special weight oil distributed only from Iran.

Anything that doesn't work on it is referred to as "quaint." The heater is quaint. The door that only opens from the outside is quaint. The window that doesn't go up is quaint.

As a mother, I worry about my son's physical, monetary and emotional ties to the car. It has consumed him. It's the Melissa Manchester concert he couldn't afford... the tennis racket that is on hold... the clothes that he passes by. Heaven help me, that heap is my first grandchild.

He has lost all sense of perspective. The other night I was cheered when he said he met a girl who is like no one I have ever seen. He had known her for years but passed her by and never noticed. For the first time he found someone he would like to invest time and money in. He said she was a "classic."

If she's "quaint," we can't afford her.

DEAR ABBY Examining roots of hairy problem

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My wife cannot stand any body hair on herself—or on me!

Elaine took her electric shaver along on our honeymoon, and before she would let me get into bed with her she saved off all my body hair! Since it was our honeymoon and she was only 19 and I was 20, I didn't protest too much. I thought eventually she would get over her negative feelings about body hair, but I was wrong. We've been married for 20 years, and thanks to her electric shaver, neither of us has a hair from the neck down!

Otherwise, our marriage has been a good one, so I have put off calling a halt to this ridiculous shaving ritual.

My doctor knows why I am hairless, but I would like to be able to wear sleeveless shirts and go swimming in public, and in this hairless condition I can do neither without feeling embarrassed.

I think it's time to stop this shaving bit, but every time I mention it, Elaine says she will not get into bed with me if I am covered with hair.

Please help me.—HAIRLESS IN HURON

DEAR HAIRLESS: Don't expect a fanatic obsession that has been indulged for 20 years to disappear quickly and easily. Tell your wife that body hair is natural, and her negative feelings about it have placed an unfair burden on you. Elaine needs professional help to get to the root of her hairy problem.

DEAR ABBY: A friend sold us a puppy that he claims is a thoroughbred German Police, but the older this dog gets, the more he looks like a mutt. What do you think?—GYPPED

IN GARDEN CITY
DEAR GYPPED: Maybe he's in the Secret Service.

DEAR ABBY: A reader wrote to say that her mother was suicidal because she had lost her sight. I was sorry to hear that, because I know a blind woman who handles her affliction like a saint. I met her at a supermarket where I am a box boy, and credible as it sounds, this woman always shops alone and does as well or better than most sighted people. She feels the packages and shakes them, and rarely does she make a mistake.

We remodeled the store last year and the layout was changed, but this remarkable blind woman quickly caught on while sighted people had trouble locating the products. One man behind her in the checkout line asked me where an item was, and before I had a chance to respond, SHE told him.

Her courage and independence have inspired me (and many of our customers) to view disabilities not as a curse but a challenge.—INSPIRED IN L.A.

DEAR INSPIRED: Thank you for an inspirational observation.

DEAR ABBY: As an appreciative regular reader, may I suggest some additional advice to the older woman whose voice grows huskier as she grows older. (She complained because she was frequently called "sir" on the telephone.) She should see a throat specialist without delay. It could be a growth in her larynx.—F.A.S., M.D.

CONFIDENTIAL to those who have sent for Abby's booklets: Please, please be patient. I am literally deluged with orders and am getting them out as quickly as possible.

Ash-covered city will pay workers

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Despite the resignation of the city finance director, Missoula's City Council has voted to pay employees who didn't show up for work during a bombardment of volcanic ash.

The 9-1 vote Monday means pay for all full-time city employees who didn't show up for work for 3-4 days after Missoula was coated with ash from the eruption of Washington's Mount St. Helens.

Earlier in the day, Larry Heggen, who had been finance director for six years, announced he was resigning Aug. 15 because of the dispute.

Heggen, Mayor Bill Cregg and Councilman Leon Stalcup had contended the city workers should not be paid unless they wanted to claim the time as sick leave. Missoula had severe dust problems after the volcano blew its top May 18 and residents were advised by health authorities to stay inside or wear surgical masks if they ventured outside.

The council instructed its finance committee to give more thought about whether part-time and seasonal employees who stayed away from work should be paid.

Hot ash, rock 'more deadly'

By KEVIN MCKEAN

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Scientists debating whether lava will spew from Mount St. Helens say any flow of molten rock probably would be far less deadly than the blast of hot ash and rock that took 1,300 feet off the volcano's peak last month.

That was a pyroclastic flow, and such flows have accounted for most of the major losses of life associated with volcanoes.

"To have a lava flow at Mount St. Helens would mean very little danger because generally you can outwalk them. But pyroclastic flows are the worst possible case from a hazard standpoint," said C. Dan Miller of the U.S. Geological Survey's volcanic hazards project.

The word "pyroclastic" refers to any fractured material ejected by volcanoes, from microscopic ash to house-sized chunks of rock. When Mount St. Helens blew on May 18, it sent a burning wind of hot ash, rocks and boulders down the mountain at speeds of 100 miles per hour or more.

Pyroclastic flows were first recognized in the 1802 eruption of Mount Pelee in the West Indies, where they destroyed the town of St. Pierre and killed 30,000 people.

Pyroclastic flows are common in volcanoes like Mount St. Helens where magma, the molten rock below the surface, is rich in silica. Low-silica magmas, like those in Hawaiian volcanoes, can flow as a liquid lava.

But thicker magmas do not flow well. When they come to the surface while still rich in dissolved gas, the gas can come explosively out of solution, forming ash or the frothy rock pumice.

The initial eruption may blast this debris skyward. But when it falls it is still hot and exuding gas. The combination leads to a rush of hot air that keeps the debris partially suspended and allows it to flow like a liquid.

The effect is something like a hurricane filled with red-hot rocks.

"Everything in the path is destroyed," Miller said.

NRC still wants TMI gas vented

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff is standing by its initial recommendation that radioactive krypton gas trapped in the disabled Three Mile Island nuclear plant be vented into the air.

The commission, which will discuss the issue Thursday, must decide whether to approve the staff proposal to release the gas over a 60-day period.

The preferred method for removing the krypton-85 from the reactor building is by a kind of flushing process by which the gases would be pushed out of the building and fresh air pulled in, the staff said Monday in its 106-page Final Environmental Assessment.

The staff report concluded that venting offers the quickest and safest way to free the gas sealed inside the plant's reactor containment structure while also minimizing psychological pressures on the surrounding community.

The gas has been trapped since the plant was disabled in a nuclear accident March 28, 1979. The removal would be the first physical step to decontaminating the disabled nuclear facility.

The NRC staff issued a similar recommendation in a preliminary document in March. Since then, the commission has received comment on its environmental assessment from about 800 people.

Although several citizens groups have told the NRC they are strongly opposed to any release of the radioactive gas, numerous scientists and public officials — including Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh — have endorsed the cleanup method.

Guerrillas strike against industry in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Guerrillas of the African National Congress have launched their first strike against South African industry, and the raid poses the biggest threat yet to the last ruling white minority government on the African continent.

It also is expected to increase support for the tens of thousands of non-white pupils who have boycotted schools for six weeks to protest the government's policy of inferior education for non-whites under laws of apartheid, or racial segregation.

The explosions late Sunday at three South African oil refineries set ablaze millions of dollars worth of petroleum products. The attack was the most sophisticated act of sabotage undertaken since the African National Congress was banned two decades ago.

A police spokesman said "limpet mines" were used to blow up the fuel tanks. Three actual blasts caused four or five subsequent "sympathetic" explosions, the South African Press Association reported.

In claiming responsibility for the raid, ANC spokesman Francis Melli said Monday in London "these attacks are part and parcel of our general offensive against the enemy (South Africa's white rulers)." He said the strategy would continue.

The African National Congress was banned in 1960 after leading a protest against carrying identity cards which sparked a riot in which police killed 69 blacks. After nationwide riots in 1976, in which more than 600 blacks were killed, the group began to make some headway in its guerrilla struggle.

Man gets $46,900 in suit

A jury's decision to award Herschel T. Hochman, who headed up now-defunct The Chauffeur shuttle service in Midland-Odessa, $46,900 in damages is to be appealed by Gihls Properties, Inc., defendant in the suit and parent company of the limousine transportation service.

Hochman, who claimed he was wooed to Midland from Florida to manage the limousine service because of his management expertise, maintained that his two-year salary contract was not fulfilled although the service was dissolved six months after it was started. Gihls Properties contended it had the right "to terminate" Hochman "in the event The Chauffeur transportation business became insolvent and unable to pay its debts when due."

The service failed due to a "lack of proper management expertise and follow-up," Henry Blanton, president of Gihls Properties and a former co-defendant in the suit, said in a deposition.

Hochman held that his two-year contract provided for a first (1978) year salary of $30,000 plus a $20,000 equivalent in property and second year salary of $50,000.

Hochman managed the limousine service from January 1978 until the following July, when service was discontinued. He was seeking more than $100,000 in damages due to his dismissal.

Hochman held that he carried out his duties "with diligence." Blanton, however, claimed that Hochman "had other interests...and...was doing other things and was simply putting in time and drawing his fat check every two weeks." He termed Hochman's "other interests," including land deals, as "wheeling and dealing."

The limousine service was started by Gihls after a park-and-drive transportation service in Midland had collapsed due to "poor management" late in 1977, Blanton maintained.

He hired Hochman, who had impressed Blanton with "how brilliant and smart he was and how much expertise he possessed" in management to make another transportation service, The Chauffeur, a success.

The Chauffeur's route included Midland and Odessa, and one of its mainstays was to transport persons to and from Midland Regional Airport. Blanton, in his deposition, noted that he "already had a great deal of publicity on" the park-and-ride service.

Manuel Salazar Luna, 65, of 4520 Wilshire Boulevard, was treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room after being involved in a car-pedestrian accident Monday morning.

According to reports, Luna was working in the street on Racquet Club Drive behind a parked vehicle when he was struck by a vehicle driven by Robert Lee Slater, 48, of 1600 S. Fort Worth St. Slater apparently was southbound on Hanover Street, turning right onto Racquet Club Drive. The accident occurred at 9:05 a.m. Monday.
