With politics and picnics, fireworks and flag-waving, horseshoes and hotair balloons, America celebrates its 204th birthday Friday. Amid the hoop-la, 53 citizens held captive in a foreign nation will be remembered. The Fourth of July, always a time for unabashed patriotism, this year prompted an outpouring of sympathy for the hostages in Iran. Prayer services, flag-raisings, parades and other ceremonies honoring the hostages were planned across the country.

At a cemetery in Hermitage, Pa., near a natural gas "eternal" flame, local residents have raised a flag to mark each day of captivity in Iran for the Americans. The 244th flag is being raised Friday.

The annual bonfire in the tiny town of Clarksburg, Mass., was a 50-foot high stack of material topped with a 4-foot-square poster of Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, drawn by an eighth-grade girl. But there were plans for traditional Fourth of July activities, too.

In Washington, D.C., more than 30,000 people were expected for a 30-minute fireworks spectacular and music by the Beach Boys, the National Symphony and the Marine Corps Band. Honored guests were George and Martha Washington, the Gilbert Stuart portraits on display at the Na-

Vice President Walter F. Mondale was giving a speech at Independence Hall in Philadelphia. The nation's birthplace also will have a hot-air balloon race from Franklin Parkway and will establish a temporary postal station to issue a special cancellation featuring the Liberty Bell.

Despite the Southwest's searing heat of the past several days, 60,000 country music fans were expected for the Willie Nelson Fourth of July Picnic at the singer's country club 27 miles from Austin, Texas. Security for the usual frenzy that attends the picnic began two weeks ago. State troopers set up a command post and medics were equipped with snake bite kits, disposable scalpels and oxygen.

By The Associated Press

Federal disaster funds may be the only help in sight for crops and livestock dying from record-breaking temperatures in the western half of the nation. But those in the business of providing relief from the heat are reporting brisk sales of such items as beer and air conditioners

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Thursday the weather over the Fourth of July weekend might determine whether Texas has a catastrophe because of heat, drought and insects.

"It's not a catastrophe yet," Brown said, "except in South Texas where we lost a hay crop, but another three or four days without rain and it could be a real disaster.

The temperature in Dallas-Fort Worth was 107 at 5 p.m. Thursday, down one degree from the record 3 p.m. reading. Other Texas temperatures at 5 p.m. were Witchita Falls' 113, Abilene's 105 and Waco's 103. In Missouri and Kansas, the drought has pushed corn crops to the brink of disaster, state agriculture officials said. Alan King, director of the Missouri Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, predicted officials from some south-central Missouri counties will be allowed to begin taking federal drought assistance applications from farmers next week. Livestock farmers will be eligible to apply for drought aid under a federal emergency feeding program, and crop producers will be able to seek relief in the form of disaster payments.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements said Thursday he was surpised the state had not been asked to help communities hard hit by drought and heat. "If this continues very much longer we will be suffering badly in regard to crops, and I am surprised there have been no requests so far for help. But I am sure there will be some if it continues," he said.

South Dakota Gov. Bill Janklow has asked President Carter to declare the whole state a major disaster area. Eight western counties already have been declared eligible for the state's Emergency Feed Assistance program. And 10 counties last week were declared eligible for Small Business Admininstration low-interest loans. Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said 29 counties soon will be approved for low-interest Farmers Home Administration loans

While 100-degree-plus temperatures have devastated crops in many areas, they have proved a boon to air conditioner repairmen, who are earning overtime dollars as they work extra hours daily to repair overtaxed compressors and refrigerant leaks.

Department and appliance stores have reported increased sales of air conditioners and fans.

And Richard Ruggiero, a spokesman for a Coors beer distributorship in Dallas, said sales are up "drastically. "We don't stop during the day," said Becky Horton, an employee of an

Arlington, Texas, snowcone stand. The blistering temperatures that may have contributed to more than 90 deaths in the Southwest also have killed an estimated 1 million chickens, 25,000 turkey poults and some calves, Brown said. In Louisiana, "somewhere around 150,000 to 200,000 birds are likely to have been lost," said Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation spokesman Reginald Wallace. Brown said he received word Thursday from South Texas that cattle were being moved to market because of the lack of water.

And the Agriculture Department's market news service reported Thursday that "range conditions are rapidly deteriorating." Milk production is down because "dairy cattle are standing in the shade of a tree instead of grazing," Brown said. "We have reports of some losses of small and newborn calves of beef cattle," he added.

With no rain foreseen, cattlemen are deciding against building up their herds, said Dr. Ernie Davis, livestock marketing specialist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service.

Missouri Agriculture Director Jack Runyan said pastures are turning brown, ponds are drying up and fish are dying.

600 deaths forecast over holiday weekend

CHICAGO (AP) - Millions of Americans began a long July 4th holiday weekend Thursday afternoon, and the National Safety Council estimated that as many as 600 persons may die during the 78-hour holiday in traffic

The safety council said that between 6 p.m. Thursday and midnight Sunday, between 500 and 600 people might be killed on the nation's streets and highways.

Last year, during a one-day observance, there were 164 highway fatalities.

During a similar three-day non-holiday period at this time of year, there might be 500 traffic deaths, statisticians for the council said.

The highest number of traffic fatalities on a Fourth of July three-day weekend was 638 in 1971. The most people killed over a Fourth of July weekend was in 1972, when 758 people perished over a four-day period.

The American Automobile Association said gasoline supplies are ample nationwide and that two-thirds of the service stations were expected to be open during the holiday period.

Protesters await Carter in Miami

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Two civil rights groups planned peaceful demonstrations before President Carter's speech at the convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People on Friday. The Dade-Miami Movement for Racial Justice is calling on Carter to 'eliminate the causes of the plight of black and poor people all over this nation and especially in Liberty City," said organizer Golden Frinks.

Liberty City is the black section of the city where race riots broke out May

The other group, a coalition headed by the Congress for Racial Equality, is criticizing the NAACP - the nation's oldest civil rights organization - for holding its convention amid plush surroundings only a few miles from Liberty City, where 18 people were killed and more than $100 million in damages

The groups planned their demonstrations an hour apart outside the Fontainebleu Hilton, headquarters for the convention, and about three hours before Carter is to speak.

"This demonstration is really a community response to problems in the community," said Roy Innes, who heads CORE. "The community is not happy with the fact that the NAACP was insensitive to their crisis by not canceling "If for any reason the NAACP could not cancel the convention, they still could have put certain parts of it in the (black) community.

Frinks, who said he was fired as a national field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference for activities including organizing the demonstration, said he had hoped the NAACP members would join the march.

"We will ask the NAACP to become a part of this march because Miami is a dangerous situation for racial conflict, and they better deal with the problem,"

Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the NAACP, said his group had no plans to join the demonstrations.

Innes declined to estimate how many people might participate in the march sponsored by CORE and the Black Leadership Council, the Martin Luther Brotherhood, the Black Business Cooperative, the Concerned Citizens for Racial Justice and the Coalition against Racial Injustice.

Frinks said his group hoped to bus 1,000 people from Liberty City and other black areas of Miami to Miami Beach for the demonstration.

Miami Beach officials canceled all leave for the 250-member police force during the July 4 weekend. Earlier, Dade County Sheriff's Capt. Doug Hughes, whose district includes Liberty City, said all leave had been canceled for officers in that district. "Looters took more then beer, liquor and television sets during the riots.

They took more than 1,000 guns - rifles, handguns and semi-automatic weapons," Hughes said earlier this week. "Our intelligence tells us the hoodlum element is preparing for another war. All the signs are there."

Soviets block July 4th message

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet officials Thursday refused to telecast the American ambassador's annual July 4 message to the Soviet people, apparently because it contained a blunt attack on the Soviet incursion in Afghanistan, the U.S.

Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev sent a terse Independence Day telegram to President Carter asking him to "please convey to the American people congratulations and best wishes of the Soviet people," but pointedly excluding Carter from the greeting. Last year's telegram also congratulated Carter personally.

The Soviets did not specify which passage of the message from Ambassador Thomas J. Watson Jr. they found contentious, but told the embassy "further arrangements could not be made for the telecast" unless the wording were changed, an embassy official said. "We declined to modify the wording," he added.

The ambassador's statement said in part: "I regret that this opportunity to talk to you come to me at a time when relations between our two great countries are strained. I frequently hear in Moscow the Soviet view that the blame for this belongs to the United States. That is not the way we see it. On the contrary, in our view the recent serious downturn in our relations is a direct result of actions taken by the Soviet side, particularly in Afghanistan.'

Diplomatic sources said the wording of Watson's television message had made a Soviet veto almost inevitable, suggesting that the United States deliberately provoked the rejection. Ambassadors stationed in Moscow are traditionally given air time on their national holidays to deliver a greeting. But American ambassadors have used the appearance in the past for comments on current events. In 1977, then-Ambassador Malcolm Toon was prohibited from reading a July 4th message about human rights. It was believed to be the only previous instance in which the Soviets blocked such a broadcast by a U.S. ambassa-

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) -State health authorities said Thursday that three of Georgetown's seven water wells show indications of being polluted by sewage.

All residents of the Central Texas city, plagued for almost a month by the "miseries" of nausea and diarrhea, were urged to continue boiling all drinking water.

City authorities worked with the state in obtaining additional chlorination equipment for the water wells. Charles F. Foster, director of the water hygiene division of the Texas

Department of Health, said later Thursday that samples from the three wells showed the water to contain

"The presence of fecal coliform indicates sewage pollution," he said.

However, Foster said, observation of sewer lines in the approximate area of the wells failed to reveal the source of contamination.

City officials have estimated a majority of the residents of this city of 10,000 had been stricken at one time or another by the malady.

Midwest drenched, Southwest parched

By The Associated Press

Rain lingered over parts of the Midwest on Thursday, a reminder of deadly thunderstorms that killed seven people in three states, while the Southwest suffered through another day of a killer heat wave now in its 12th day.

Damage from the tornadoes and thunderstorms topped $20 million, and power was out in many communities. In Indiana, road crews used snowplows to clear mud from highways, and the University of Evansville called off classes for Friday when water lapped at the top of doors in some low-lying classrooms. The heat-related death toll reached

101, with 61 in Texas, 19 in Arkansas, 14 in Oklahoma, five in Kansas and one each in Mississippi and Missouri. The Mississippi victim died of heatstroke — the first heat-related death in the state during the spate of tripledigit temperatures. Dallas temperatures reached 108 degrees at 3 p.m. CDT on Thursday, breaking the record for the 11th straight day, but had dropped to 107 by 5 p.m. Other Texas temperatures reported at 5 p.m. were 113 degrees in Wichita Falls, 105 in Abilene and 103 in Waco.

A line of thunderstorms extended from the Atlantic Coast to the Plains on Thursday, stretching as far as central Oklahoma. The temperature in Oklahoma City reached 105 degrees, tying the daily record set in 1894. The low in Tulsa was 80, with the high climbing to A National Weather Service forecaster in Oklahoma said scattered showers could be "an indication of some improvement" in the heat wave there. "I still think it will be hot, but maybe only in the upper 90s to 102," said the forecaster, who asked not to be identified North of the thunderstorms, temperatures were sharply lower, and Chicago set a low temperature record for the date with a reading of 51 - one degree off the mark set in 1968.

Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky were hard hit Wednesday night by raging winds and rain, hail and tornadoes, and the storms also rumbled through Missouri and Louisiana.

Storm-related deaths numbered four in Kentucky, two in Illinois, and one in Indiana. Three of the dead were children swept away by flash floods.

Damage in Illinois was estimated at more than $20 million, and six counties were declared disaster areas by Gov. James R. Thompson. Fifty people were treated at hospitals for injuries, and officials estimated up to 60,000 people lost power for a time.

Among the hard hit communities in Illinois, where storms swept an area bounded by the Mississippi and Ohio rivers, was West Frankfort, a city of 8,900. The local National Guard unit patrolled the streets Thursday, watching stores where windows were blown out. Much of the city lost power, and an overnight curfew was in effect there and in several nearby communities.

In Evansville, Ind., the mayor declared an emergency, keeping city workers on the job to help clear storm sewers and move toppled trees. Thunderstorms dropped more than five inches of rain, hail up to 11/4 inches in diameter and brought winds up to 55 mph. Much of the city lost power, and there were several minor fires.

The weather service said there were 14 possible tornadoes Wednesday night in Kentucky, and state officials reported storm damage in at least 35 counties. One tornado demolished about 20 mobile homes and injured at least seven people in West Louisville

In Louisiana, the thunderstorms spawned a tornado Wednesday night hat knocked out power lines and blocked roads with fallen trees.

Thousands of Missouri residents also lost power from the storms, and five inches of rain fell west of Mexico, Mo. Officials estimated damage at $5 million after a tornado took part of the roof off a school and destroyed an airport Wednesday afternoon in

Kennedy says he regrets nothing

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — Nearing the helpless and the hungry." the end of an apparently unsuccessful run for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy came home to Massachusetts with a simple message: No regrets.

"Let me declare again here tonight that I continue to be what I have been all my public life," he said Wednesday night at a state party dinner in Boston. "I am a liberal. And I am proud of it."

Kennedy's liberal politics have left him hundreds of delegates behind President Carter but he insisted "Those who tempt us to withdraw now are at odds with the entire course of the American character.' To the applause of more than 1,000 guests, he said "In the face of things that are wrong, we must try to do right as we see it, even against the odds. Speaking only a short distance from Faneuil Hall, where he launched his candidacy eight months ago, Kennedy attracked the "nostrums and nostalgia of Reaganism, which moves on a musty, backward wind from the bygone era of McKinley, Harding and Hoover.' In an apparent reference to President Carter's policies, he added, "Let us insist that compassion is not outdated, that commitment is not outmoded, and that the convictions of the Democratic Party are not outworn."

The speech capped a hectic day for Kennedy, who earlier visited the riottorn Liberty City section of Miami. then pledged in a speech to the NAACP to fight at the party convention for "the jobless, the homeless,

Mayor's husband gets $52,000 as wife's adviser CHICAGO (AP) - Mayor Jane

Byrne's husband, who draws an annual salary of $1 from the city for his job as press secretary, reportedly picks up another $52,000 a year as his wife's political adviser. The Chicago Sun-Times said

Wednesday the money comes from a campaign war chest of $1.5 million dollars. Jay McMullen draws $1 a year from the city as his wife's press secretary, even though the budget calls for a yearly salary of $40,056 for the position. He had joked about his city pay ever since he took the job in January but has refused to divulge the amount of his consulting salary.

McMullen told friends that he earns about the same as a city cabinet officer. He said he pays $4,000 in Social Security since the Internal Revenue Service considers him "selfemployed" as a private consultant. He also pays another $2,000 to a pension fund at the Sun-Times, from which he is on leave as a reporter.

Byrne's total political expenditures, including McMullen's salary, will be revealed for the public record when her campaign files a financial disclosure statement with the state, due on July 15.

Byrne earns $60,000 a year as mayor.

Boston for a long holiday weekend at his home in Hyannis. Throughout the day he insisted he is in the race because he still hopes to be the nominee. "But I also hope to do something more - to give the values I have learned and lived here in Massachusetts - to help give the Democratic Party back its timeless truth, and to help unite the Democratic Party on the basis of its own best ideals.' Kennedy, under attack from the president's advisers for allegedly dividing the party, insisted "It was right for our party" when Hubert Humphrey waged a floor fight over civil rights at the 1948 convention and when Robert F. Kennedy ran as a peace candidate 20 years later.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) - A fifth juror was approved by the defense and seated Thursday for the murder trial of six Ku Klux Klansmen and Nazis charged with the slayings of five Communist Worker Party supporters last November. The fifth juror, a white woman, was one of 18 people questioned by the defense Thursday. The 18 had been approved earlier this week by the prosecution. No court session was scheduled Friday because of the July 4 holiday. Under the procedure being used by Superior Court Judge James Long, prosecutors examine potential jurors and those approved are later questioned by the defense. Long has ordered a total of 2,250 people to appear as potential jurors.

How fared our Founding Fathers

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — How fared the Founding Fathers after that frantic first Fourth of July in Philadelphia, 1776, when nobody set off firecrackers but everyone swatted at the flies coming in the Statehouse window from the livery stable next door?

Many lived to an astonishingly productive old

Benjamin Franklin, then 70, went on to help write the Constitution and died at 84, his last act being an appeal to Congress for a speedy end to slavery.

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson both became presidents of the United States and both died on the Fourth of July, 1826 — fifty years to the day after the second Continental Congress finally approved the Declaration of Independence they had largely brought about.

Adams died at 91, Jefferson at 83. In the winter of their lives, at the instigation of Dr. Benjamin Rush, a Declaration signer who called them "the North and South poles of the American Revolution," these two old adversaries reconciled their differences in a correspondence that is one of the glories of American letters

"You and I ought not to die until we have explained ourselves to each other," Adams wrote in 1811.

And so they did explain themselves to each other, the New England Christian moralist and the Virginia secular democrat, comparing ideas on religion, philosophy, science, slavery, the excesses of the French Revolution, the growing pains of the new Republic, their still conflicting theories of popular government and the increasing infirmities of old age until the letters grew fewer and the end for them both came as cannons boomed and churchbells — some of them cast by Paul Revere — clanged out a birthday salute to the pation

"Jefferson still lives" were Adams last words. He was wrong. Jefferson had died a few hours before, although diehard Federalist detractors spread the rumor he had taken some laudanum, an opium based hallucinogen, to steal the final curtain on that 50th Fourth from Adams.

James Monroe died on the Fourth of July five years later, age 73.

Charles Carroll, who added "of Carrolton" so King George III would know that the richest man in America was signing the Declaration, outlived them all. He died in 1832 at age 95, still the richest man in America, having witnessed a few years before (on the Fourth of July, naturally) the laying of the first tie for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, of which he was a director.

John Hancock, who wrote his name large so the king could read it without his spectacles and double the price on his head, never did go into the insurance business, although the actuarial tables caught up with him. He only lived to 56, about the allotted span then, and was said to have been "heart and soul" against the Constitution. But Gov. Hancock, surprisingly, supported its ratification. His dramatic entrance into Brattle Street Church, where the Massachusetts convention met, carried to his chair with his gouty feet swathed in flannel bandages, turned the tide. For his support, it was said, the vain Hancock, who had resented Washington's appo mander in chief over him, was promised nomination for first president of the United States if Virginia failed to ratify the Constitution.

Paul Revere, who certainly ranks as a Founding Father although otherwise occupied with the affairs of his country when the Declaration and Constitution were being drafted, lived to 83. Besides turning out church bells and cannons and fine silverware, he busied himself in his old age making boilers for something Robert Fulton called a steamboat.

James Madison died at 85, after following Jefferson to the White House and as president of the University of Virginia.

Patrick Henry, the Commonwealth of Virginia's first governor and the first politician to address the voters as "my fellow citizens," became the most sought after criminal lawyer in the new land. In his last hurrah, he opposed ratification of the Constitution, which he objected to from line one: "We the People — What right had they to say we the people? Who authorized them to speak the language of we the people instead of we the states? The people gave them no power to use their name." But the fiery old orator's objections were largely responsible for the Bill of Rights.

Tom Paine died penniless, alone, forgotten at age 72 in New Rochelle, N.Y. His body was lost when a newspaper friend attempted to transfer it to a more dignified grave in England.

Richard Henry Lee, who offered the resolution that "these united colonies are and of right ought to be free," opposed the Constitution as did Declaration signers Elbridge Gerry (who later gave his name to outrageously redrawing election districts) and old firebrand Sam Adams, who came around in the Charles Pinckney, who owned seven plantations and was clearly ahead of his time in proposing that no one become president who was not worth $100,000, went on to become governor of South Carolina, U.S. senator and ambassador to Spain. Defending slavery to the death, he died at age 67 in morbid fear of a slave uprising like the one in Santo Domingo.

His cousin, Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, lived to be 79, and like John Jay, the first chief justice who died at 84, and Delaware's John Dickinson who infuriated Adams by dragging his feet on the Declaration but signed the Constitution and lived to 77, turned to religion and Bible work late in life.

Near 60, financier Gouverneur Morris whose prose electrifies the Constitution as Jefferson's does the Declaration, shocked the young nation by marrying a somewhat notorious woman half his age named Anne Cary. She had been charged with murder and successfully defended by Patrick Henry in the mysterious death of her infant son, allegedly by her brother-in-law, Richard Randolph of the Virginia Randolphs whom she later was also accused of murdering. John Randolph, the brother, said she would probably poison Morris, but the one-legged old gent lived to 64.

Broke but beloved everywhere in the land, the Marquis de Lafayette returned from France in 1824 at age 67 with a son named George Washington Lafayette and a handsome young Scottish mistress, Frances Wright, for a triumphant and garishly

Happy 204th, America!

The United States is 204 years old today and most probably there are a lot of people who believe there is a sickness in this country, that it can't last much longer.

To be frank, things don't always look rose-colored when you view this country realistically. There is divisiveness, hostility, inequality in some quarters. And, sometimes, it seems as though we are being overtaken by our shortcom-

But if you'll take the time to read some historical accounts, the problems the United States faces today are not unlike the problems it faced in the past.

Americans have been confronted by overwhelming odds before. Sometimes those odds have come in the form of an aggressor making good his attack. More often, however, we've faced threats from political turmoil, social changes and economic woes.

We've always met the challenges in the past. American ingenuity has provided the technology necessary to thrust us past roadblocks to our success.

Militarily Americans have always been willing to march off to war, to fight for what this nation believes in and to give their very

CHARLEY REESE

Carter betrayed MIAs, but Americans must not

One of the most dishonorable acts of the Carter Administration is its betrayal of the men missing in action in Southeast Asia and their families.

At the close of the Vietnam War, there were 1,376 U.S. fighting men classified as MIA. That means simply that the Defense Department had no definite confirmation that they had been killed and that they were not among the prisoners of war the communists released.

Candidate Jimmy Carter in all his pious glory solemnly promised the families that until there was a full accounting by the communists that he would never allow Vietnam into the United Nations nor would he even consider trade, aid or normalizing

President Carter has broken all the promises. After a few timid inquiries and after the communists returned a token number of bodies, Carter let them in the United Nations without protest. In fact, his leftists appointees welcomed them. When Congress tried to prevent U.S. tax dollars from going to Vietnam via the World Bank, Carter vigorously opposed the prohibition and defeated the attempt. Behind the scenes, his administration has sought to lift the trade embargo and to restore normal relations.

The MIAs and their families have been forgotten. To defuse the MIAs as a political issue, Carter ordered the Defense Department to change their status from missing to killed in action. There is a bureaucratic procedure for doing this. The family is summoned to a hearing. Do you have any evidence that your son is alive? No? Well, he's now officially dead. By this means, all but about 12 of 1,376 men have been eliminated as MIAs.

This is shameful, because at the same time these hearings have been underway, evidence unavailable to the families has been pouring in that at least some of these American men are alive and are still being held as prisoners.

What spoiled the Carter Administration's plans to sacrifice these young men quietly on the altar of expediency was the flood of refugees after the fall of Saigon.

As of May, 1980, there have been 370 reports by refugees of Americans still alive in Southeast Asia. Of these, 222 are firsthand reports - people who claim to have seen the Americans with their own eyes. The rest are secondhand reports - people who say their friends or relatives have told them of seeing living Americans. When the first two or three reports surfaced, the government quickly labeled them unreliable, but as more and more came in, they adopted a new tactic. All such reports are now classified in the name of national security. Of course to allow refugees already in the country to tell their story is not going to jeopardize national security. What it would do is embarrass the U.S. Government which has arbitrarily written the MIAs off and arouse public anger against Vietnam which has consistently insisted that it has no knowledge of any of the MIAs.

Of the 1,376 men, surely most of them are dead by now, but the families of those who are actually dead deserve to know for sure and the Carter Administration has not even pressed the Vietnamese on this

With 370 individual reports of live sightings, however, there is no doubt that there are some Americans still alive and still being held in Laos and Vietnam. The appearance a few months ago of the Marine deserter missing for 16 years put the lie to the insistence by our politicians that there are no Americans left alive in Vietnam.

The reason for the betrayal is easy enough to understand. A few Americans are expendable so far as the international bankers and geo-political strategists are concerned.

But, to us, the American people, they must never be forgotten. These men left our shores with faith in their countrymen. They kept their end of the bargain. We must keep ours. We must demand that the Congress hold full and public hearings and allow every one of these 370 refugees to testify publicly.

Only we can force our government to keep its word.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

U.S. still offers brightest hope for future

WASHINGTON - We have been rocked by one news shock after another until our confidence in America has been shaken. A rabid ayatollah has held 53 of our countrymen in humiliating bondage. Greedy oil sheikdoms have driven up petroleum prices, creating an energy crisis and reducing us to supplicant status.

The Russians have defied us in Cuba and Afghanistan. Their puppet, Fidel Castro, has sent expeditionary forces to install hostile governments in Angola, Ethiopia and South Yemen, threatening our oil routes. Our own allies have balked at U.S. leadership and have undercut the U.S. economy with their aggressive trade. There is a recession at home, precipitated by the White House in the hope of checkreining galloping inflation. The recent violence in Miami demonstrates that the running sores of racial strife in America have not healed. The Abscam disclosures provide dismaying evidence that political corruption didn't end with Water-

Our country is being vandalized by tidy specialists who scrupulously obey the codes of their narrow professions, but claim no responsibility to larger realms — chemists whose wonders foul the air and the seas; economists whose rules speed the materialistic change that is obliterating social mores with catastrophic effect; agri-scientists who would poison the land tomorrow so that it might yield a bigger crop today; lawyers who endlessly complicate their procedures while justice languishes; politicians who, in the name of getting the most for their districts, bankrupt the commonwealth. Yet I feel in my gut that this wracked land still offers the best and brightest hope for the future. In 1814, the British redcoats seized Washington and burned the White House and we survived. Before the Civil War, we lived half free and half slave and we Anderson survived. Time and again, depressions gripped the land and we survived. In the 1940s, the Hitler holocaust threatened the world, and we helped the world to survive.

Today, the United States still possesses the world's greatest resources and wealth. Our industrial and agricultural production surpass that of all other nations; our technology is the most advanced. No foreign despot would dare attack our shores.

For oppressed peoples everywhere, this is still the land of their dreams. In the beginning, it was the Pilgrims. Today, it's refugees fleeing from the horrors of Cambodia, the tyranny of Cuba, the economic repression of Haiti, the cruelties of Vietnam. People of all colors and creeds yearn to attain the largesse of liberty America offers. In contrast, the Soviet Union has no refugee problem.

Our forefathers built on these shores the greatest nation in history. We need only pull together as they did, putting sacrifice ahead of selfishness as they did, to keep it great.

INSTANT AMNESIA - When Jimmy Carter made his absurd claim that the botched rescue mission had somehow made the situation of our hostages in Iran "more manageable," it was a signal to everyone in the administration to play down the American captives' plight. Bureaucrats at the State Department and other agencies eagerly took their cue from the White House, just as they did when the crisis was being played up for Carter's benefit in the primaries. Worse yet, the businessas-usual prescription was also swallowed obediently by members of Congress and their staffs. Capitol Hill sources tell me the hostages have now become "passe" in Congress. As just one example, a key staff member of one congressional committee said he now spends a token few hours a week on the hostage situation, where he used to devote every working day to it. TANNING HIS HYDE - Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, recently voted against a legislative amendment offered by Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-Ill., prohibiting federal payment for abortions. Not long afterward, Hance got a call from a gravel-voiced rancher back home. What in the blue-eyed world was "this here hide amendment" all about, the constituent Hance explained his views on abortion at some length. Finally the rancher broke in to ask, "What in the hell does rape and incest have to do with me selling my cattle hides to foreign markets?" Hance realized the constituent was referring to a different piece of legislation entirely, and laid the rancher's fears to rest. "I was sure worried about you there for a minute, son," said the rancher. "I thought Washington had caused you to lose your mind."

STRANGE TIMING - The Environmental Protection Agency recently organized a speakers bureau of agency personnel to "actively pursue speaking opportunities with environmental groups in order to point out the Administration's strong record of environmental accomplishments." Those of suspicious mind might think this was an illegal use of federal employees to promote Jimmy Carter's re-election campaign. But an EPA spokesman insisted with a straight face that the purpose of the new speakers bureau was to push EPA, not the president.

INSIDE REPORT:

Kennedy keeps running in hopes of undermining Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Suspicion that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is continuing his futile run for president only to insure President Carter's defeat against Ronald Reagan has been hardened into fact at the White House by pointed remarks attributed to a respected Kennedy lieutenant. The acknowledged desire to see Carter lose was linked to Washington lawyer-lobbyist James O'Hara, a senior tactician in Kennedy's upcoming floor fight at Madison Square Garden. An account of his remarks was conveyed to presidential aides within hours. O'Hara has unequivocally denied it all, but the source is unimpeachable and totally believed by the White House.

The conversation in question concerned the overriding political puzzle in Washington today: Since he cannot be nominated himself and has only the most remote chance of stopping Carter, what makes Teddy run? That question is asked not only by Carterites but by many Kennedy back-

In this instance, it was asked of O'Hara by a pro-Carter Democrat. O'Hara, a former Michigan congressman with close ties to the United Auto Workers, now practices law in Washington. Chairman of the party's rules semmission in 1972 and one of the ng authorities on national con-rules, he will lead the Ken-noor fight against proposed their books.

Rule 11 (h) binding pledged delegates to vote for Carter.

The Rule 11 (h) fight was raised by the Carter backer in questioning O'Hara. It was becoming the common perception, he said, that this persistent Kennedy effort was aimed at so weakening Carter that he would lose to Reagan in November. That would leave a clear field for Kennedy in 1984 when the political climate might be more in his favor.

According to the account given the White House, O'Hara replied that this perception was "on target." Kennedy considered Carter "unworthy" to be president, said O'Hara, adding that "I think I feel the same way about

When we asked O'Hara whether he had said this or anything like it, he replied: "Hell, no. That's an outrageous goddamn lie. I'm going to be supporting the nominee of the convention. That's an attempt to discredit me in the rules fight.' But presidential aides know whom they believe, and it is not O'Hara. In fact, some Carter advisers told us they are furious that O'Hara, whose law firm's clients include the Chrysler Corp., lobbied the Carter administration to bail out the auto company and now is trying to bankrupt the president.

Actually, hopes for Carter's demise go far beyond Jim O'Hara and their expression is not limited to reports of the O'Hara conversation. On the very night of his disputed conversation, two Kennedy staffers working on the platform were overheard saying much the same thing in the Mayflower Hotel cocktail lounge. One of Kennedy's most important New York backers has told us privately that he and his associates hope the senator will stay in the race to insure the president's defeat.

Another Kennedy backer, who has close connections to the senator's inner circle, told us he is convinced that Kennedy's advisers view 1984 as easier for Teddy if Reagan is elected in 1980. A Reagan victory would also help dispose of Vice President Walter F. Mondale, who is not beloved of Kennedy and his closest associates.

This tends to lift the veil of mystery covering Kennedy's political activities since the last round of primary elections June 3. He attended none of the last state conventions picking delegates, has divulged no workable strategy for winning the nomination and has failed adequately to explain his motives for staying in.

The few Democrats in Congress who endorsed Kennedy for president now look for an end of fighting and a start on reconciliation. In telephone calls to the senator seeking explanations of his present conduct and future intentions, they have been getting Kennedy doubletalk.

But those congressmen have had better luck than Carter's campaign chairman, Robert S. Strauss. Strauss has gone days on end trying unsuccessfully to reach Kennedy and Steve Smith, Kennedy's brother-in-law and campaign manager, on the telephone. That only confirms the Carter camp's belief in the account of O'Hara's indiscretion. The president's men are now in a mood to counterattack, heightening the prospect for a hot August in New York.

Garwood claims he was victim

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Lawyers for Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood argued Thursday that a strict code of conduct for prisoners in the hands of ruthless enemies such as the Vietnamese communists was useless, because "any man can be broken."

Garwood, 34, is awaiting court-martial on charges that he deserted and collaborated with the enemy in Vietnam. His lawyers contend he was merely one of many victims of cruel Vietnamese captors.

Garwood's lawyers, who have spent the week arguing pretrial motions, lost another motion for dismissal of the charges Thursday.

The defense contended that military prosecutors withheld material from lawyers who were representing Garwood earlier, but military judge Col. R.E. Switzer ruled that prosecutors had followed military law by eventually turning over evidence and documents to the defense. The issue of prisoner-of-war conduct came up in a separate motion seeking details from the government on any code-of-conduct training that Garwood or the Marines who will judge him might have had.

The strict code limiting POWs to revealing name and rank was loosened after the Vietnam war, defense lawyers said. Lawyer Vaughan Taylor said the code now tells POWs to resist divulging information for as long as possible, then to give as little information as necessary and try to "bounce back" to further resistance.

"It was learned through the experiences of our POWs (in Vietnam and Korea) that any man can be broken. Once a man is broken by illegal coercion or whatever, he becomes guiltridden and dejected," said Taylor, considered an authority on effects of duress on prisoners.

He added that "anyone, no matter how well motivated, can be forced to give statements of the type Pfc. Garwood is accused of giving." Capt. Werner Hellmer, chief prosecutor, countered by saying the code of conduct was merely a moral code, unbinding and with no specific penalties for violation.

"The issue," Hellmer said,"is the guilt or innocence of Pfc. Garwood on the charges he is facing.

Iranians take tougher stand on U.S. hostages

By The Associated Press

Iran's majority Islamic Republican Party will demand compensation for U.S. involvement in Iran over nearly 30 years, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Tehran on Tehran Radio reported two men and two women were stoned to death for crimes ranging from sodomy to prostitution in Kerman Province early Thursday. It was the first reported stoning execution since Islamic rule was established in Iran in February 1979.

There also have been reports of lashing convicts for such crimes as drunkeness. The only traditional Islamic punishment not known to have been carried out by the current regime is the cutting off of hands and other parts of the body.

The Yugoslav news agency's report did not elaborate on what form of compensation would be demanded by the Islamic Republican Party, which holds most of the seats in the newly elected Iranian parliament. But Tanjug quoted the party's official newspaper as saying the compensation was for "U.S. interventions and dominations" in Iran.

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, in an interview with the English-language daily newspaper Enghlab Eslami, was quoted as saying he had received reports United States through agents in Iran was trying to topple the revolutionary government by "sowing discord and splitting up personalities and groups against the president."

Bani-Sadr also mentions "reports about a conspiracy at airports" but

Cuban refugee pleads guilty to old hijacking

MACON, Ga. (AP) — A woman who fled Cuba on the Freedom Flotilla pleaded guilty Thursday to charges she hijacked a Delta Air Lines plane over Georgia 10 years ago and forced the pilot to fly her and her 10-year-old son to Cuba.

Speaking through an interpreter, Graciela Quesada Camora, 38, told U.S. District Judge Wilbur Owens she pulled a gun over Twiggs County and forced the plane to fly to Miami and on to Cuba because she was home-

She also said she confessed the hijacking to the FBI after she arrived in Fort Chaffee, Ark., late this spring because she thought she would be discovered anyway. A warrant charging her with air piracy and kidnapping issued in 1970 was still out-

Mrs. Camora said she left Cuba first in 1966 as part of the "Freedom Flight" and went to Chicago to stay with a sister. After she got homesick for her family in Cuba, Mrs. Camora said she tried to obtain a visa but failed. Finally she decided to hijack the Chicago-to-Miami plane.

Mrs. Camora said she married in Cuba and she, her husband and son joined in the boatlift of refugees from Cuba to Florida. Her husband and son are being held at Fort Chaffee. The U.S. attorney here dropped charges of kidnapping against her when she agreed to plead guilty to air piracy charges.

Owens ordered federal probation officers to interview the woman and give him a written report, after which he will pass sentence.

Continental cutting fares

Continental Airlines has announced it will increase its Super Saver discount fares up to 50 percent off regular coach flights throughout its entire mainland U.S. system effective Tuesday, according to Charles A. Bucks, executive vice president of marketing.

This is the most comprehensive and deepest fare discount program Continental has offered during the peak summer period, said Bucks. The new fare doubles the discount previously available in a number of markets. "We believe it is the largest discount program ever initiated by any U.S. airline," he

As an example, the Midland-Los Angeles route currently costs $350 round trip for coach. The largest existing Super Saver discount brings the fare down to $298. The new maximum discount will reduce the fare to $218 round trip.

The Midland-Washington roundtrip coach fare is $446. The largest Super Saver brings it down to $334. And the new maximum discount will reduce the fare to $280.

"We have especially tailored this fare to the traveler who might be hesitating to take a vacation involving air travel because of recent fare increases," Bucks said.

The new Super Saver discounts, which have a seven-day advance purchase requirement, are 50 percent on night flights Monday through Thursday and 40 percent on daytime flights. Friday through Sunday the discount will be 40 percent at night and 30 percent during the day.

The discount is available only on round trips and passengers can return as early as the first Saturday after departure or stay as long as 60

Sheriff among four charged in alleged interstate theft ring

SULPHUR, Okla. (AP) - The Murray County sheriff and a former assistant district attorney were among four men charged Thursday with conspiring in the alleged transportation of stolen property from Texas to Oklahoma. All four were arrested by federal agents and were to be taken before a federal magistrate in Oklahoma City.

District Attorney Ron Worthen and the FBI said the arrest warrants named Sheriff Perry D. Frantz, former Assistant District Attorney Jerry Wade, Sulphur City Councilman David Pittman, and one of Pittman's employees, Dwight Payne. Worthen said the aryear-long undercover op- man conspired to have a eration in Murray County by his office and the FBI. In addition to the arrrest warrants, the FBI said about 50 warrants were being served for appearances Monday before a federal grand jury in Muskogee.

Officials would not say to whom the warrants were issued or what information was sought. Worthen said he expected the grand jury to issue further indictments on various other charges including wire fraud, narcotics violations and misuse of office. He said some state charges also might be filed.

The FBI said the warrants were based on informations filed with U.S. District Court at Muskogee alleging that rests came at the end of a Frantz, Payne and Pitt-worth at least $10,000 that they knew had been stolen transported from Gainesville, Texas, to Murray County.

The warrant also alleged that Wade concealed his knowledge of a federal felony, failing to report it to authorities, and that he knew the FBI was investigating the case and concealed facts from the FBI.

Frantz proposed the theft of the tongs and later was informed the theft had taken place, the charge alleged. It further alleged that Frantz arranged for the transfer of the tongs to Pittman and Payne, who then allegedly transferred the tongs from Texas to Oklahoma on April 25.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The government shrugged off the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan India," the report said. The 1979-80 annual Foreign Ministry report also said U.S. refusal to supply India with nuclear fuel for its Tarapur generating plant "could affect bilateral relations.

The report said India "is deeply concerned and vitally interested in the security, independence, sovereignty ... of friendly Afghanistan. India is against the presence of foreign troops and bases in any country," it said, and added it hoped "that Soviet forces would withdraw from Afghanistan."

Moscow poured up to 100,000 troops into Afghanistan beginning in December. The troops presided over the ouster of one pro-Soviet regime and the installation of another, then fanned out across the rugged countryside to aid Afghan forces battling anti-Marxist rebels, some of whom set up bases across the border in Pakistan.

Reynolds Metals Co. to shut down four units

RICHMOND (AP) - Citing a decline in demand, Reynolds Metals Co. annouced Thursday it will suspend indefinitely production on four smeltering units at its Listerhill plant near Sheffield, Ala.

The shutdown will idle about 450 workers and cut the plant's output of primary aluminum by 35 percent or 70,000 tons annually, Reynolds said.

Dropping demand, particularly in the auto industry, was the reason for the move, the firm said. One major customer of the Listerhill plant was an adjacent auto parts foundry. In addition, the firm said, the plant's power costs have made it less competitive. On Tuesday, Reynolds shut down one smeltering unit at its facility near Corpus Christi, Texas, cutting back production by 57,000 tons annually and laying Another kind of calendar is the calendar that measures events, large and small. Events of two worlds. The world of Iran. And the world of everybody else.

NOV. 4, 1979: A group of Iranians takes over the embassy, demanding the return of the deposed Shah, Mo-hammad Reza Pahlavi, who has come to the United States for medical treatment. Ninety-eight people inside the embassy become prisoners.

Nov. 4, 1979: Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California disclose plans to announce their candidacies for the Democratic presidential nomination.

60,000 due for Willie's final picnic

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The security began two weeks age, state troopers are at mobile command posts, and medics are on hand with snake bite kits, disposable scalpels and oxygen.
It all starts and ends with Willie Nelson, and up to 60,000 people are expected to jam the singer-movie star's country club for Friday's eighth and final Willie Nelson Fourth of July Picnic.

"We intend to make this the smoothest picnic ever," promoters said at the beginning of a long press package that includes defense information for residents in the subdivision around the Pedernales

Organizers say this is the last picnic.

Nelson opens the show at noon on the concert site at the seventh, eighth, and ninth fairways. A long list of other stars will keep the continuous show going until the host goes back to work at 10 p.m. for the final two hours. Earlier in the week picnic organizers fought off rumors that the Texas heat wave would interfere with the mass gathering. There is supposed to be plenty of water on hand, but Shelly Selover of Columbia Records said wise concert-goers will bring their own water. Temperatures have topped the 100-degree mark for the past two weeks.

Mayday Medical Services, an organization specializing in first aid for large outdoor gatherings, planned to have about 120 people on hand. Mayday had some advice for Willie fans who think a cool beer might be the best thing on a hot day.

"Beer dehydrates you, so drink a glass of water for every one of those cold beers," a Mayday staffer said.

In the event of trouble, Justice of the Peace Leslie Taylor will be on hand to set bonds. The judge had planned immediate trials at the the picnic site for minor offenses. Jurors were to be selected from the crowd.

However, she changed her plans this week after some lawyers said such trials might deny defendants their full rights. Her court was to be set up Thursday night. She said ths idea is not "to shake down people

"I'll be there to give them an option which won't be available if I'm not there," she said.

The mobs expected to head to the country club, which is 27 miles west of Austin, forced highway officials to make detailed traffic studies. A five-page report by Travis County Engineer David Preble details the best way to handle the traffic, but

"Traffic is going to be so heavy as to congest and completely stop" on two major roads.

"I think the availability of a helicopter duing the day of July 4 would be very helpful ... to spot the bottle necks and direct emergency wreckers or fire equipment on how to reach areas of need," he

Baltimore Zoo being revitalized

BALTIMORE (AP) — Steve Graham wants you to come nose-to-nose with the king of beasts, or strain your neck to look an Angolan giraffe in the face.

That will be possible when the Baltimore Zoo, the nation's third oldest, completes its African Plains section. The animals will roam free, but remain protected from spectators by plexiglass windows.

The zoogeographic concept, one in which animals from the same part of the world live together, is one element in a move to revitalize the zoo here, said Graham, the zoo's director.

Graham is dedicated to making the Baltimore Zoo one of the best inner-city facilities in the country. That is in stark contrast to his first 18 months as director when, he acknowledged, he didn't encourage visitors to the zoo. "I was ashamed of it." he said. Now that his crews have completed all the work that can be done without major additional funding.

he's ready to invite the public. "We only get 300,000 to this zoo a year. The attendance is abyssmal although it's up 10 percent," he said. "We should have a million in five years." Graham said that in the last century, the zoo has been allowed to decline. "When a zoo regresses, it's an administrative problem," he said. "The people will support the zoo if it's the worst in the country."

Money is a big problem. Right now, the zoo's feed bill is $30,000 a year and the water and sewer bill runs about $155,000 annually.

"Nothing is wasted here," Graham said as he talked about the daily truckload of manure given the city by the zoo.

Besides boosting the city's compost heap, the animals donate their bodies to the Johns Hopkins Medical School when they die and - probably most important - offer city kids entertainment as well as education.

The animals give children in the city "an appreciation for life" that they don't find in the streets, But money is needed to keep a zoo in condition. The past two years, Graham's workmen have done what they could to fix up exhibits and public facilities without a huge expenditure.

"The Baltimore Zoo will never go away. It will never be gone. But the quality of the zoo may be in jeopardy if the money is not coming in," Gra-ham said. "We did all the things that required very little money. Now we need city, state and private

As one of his first tasks in modernizing the zoo, Graham captured the free-roaming llamas and deer that were "creating a Baltimore zoological desert" of portions of the facility's 142 acres. He also reduced the number of animals at the zoo by 50 percent, thereby enlarging the living quarters of the remaining inhabitants. "Now we can provide better care and larger exhibit areas," he said. In many cases, Graham said, animals will share the workload. The African elephants eventually will be replaced by Indian elephants, he said. "We want Indian elephants because they are used for work. We want them out working in the zoo - it's good therapy for the animals. Leaving an animal on exhibit is tough on the animal." In addition, Graham said he hopes to get hold of some Clydesdale horses to pull a trash and feed truck around the zoo. No city money is used to buy new animals. "We trade or sell for them," he said.

Your horoscope By JEANE DIXON

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: In the months to come you will receive double value for many of your efforts. Unexpected bonuses and opportunities abound! Be sure you know what you really want before making irrevocable decisions. A new romance may be short-lived, but very exciting. An acquaintance who eagerly claims to be a friend may actually be something of an opportunist. Refuse to give a free ride to those who offer nothing more substantial than flattery. Highly organized, you can become very unhappy if talked into living or working with someone who is less met-

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Enthusiasm allows you to sell others on the importance of a pet project. Contact friends who have been out of touch recently. A buoyant mood attracts new admirers in social situations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not assume anything where personal relationships are concerned. Take gossip with a large grain of salt Maintain a low-profile around prominent new acquaintance. GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

Close ally's advice may be somewhat confusing. Ask for details. Spotlight is on the family now. Fight urge to splurge on luxury items. Quiet evening with friends gives you a chance to relax, unwind.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Family obligations take precedence over the pursuit of pleasure. Mate, spouse could make some interesting comments on home surroundings. A few hours alone can do much to restore your energies.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Distant affairs show signs of improvement. Letter or phone call can trigger new priorities. Romantic partner is sympathetic if you explain urgency of situation. Move forward with confidence!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A task shared will be a task halved. Seek increased cooperation from family members. A romantic relationship may reach a new stage. Be careful not to read too much into a

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Take your time when tackling difficult chores. Sidestep argument with fault-finding relative or friend. Word from abroad may brighten the day. Best to spend evening quietly SCORPIO (Oct. 22-Nov. 21): An early morning domestic dispute may arise but harmony is restored after a frank talk. Loved one may feel that you make too many requests, demands. Resolve to be more independent.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not let an urge to daydream interfere with social or family obligations. Loved ones depend on your efforts. Consult romantic partner before taking on any new responsibilities

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Use tact to avoid direct confrontations. If invited to meet people from different walks of life, welcome the opportunity to broaden your horizons. Curb tendency to be "all work and no play"

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Keep secret confided by prominent person. Health improves if more attention is paid to your diet. Any spare time should be spent in tackling those odd jobs around home.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Business and family demands could conflict. Have heart-to-heart talk with loved ones. Mate, spouse will show greater degree of understanding when all the facts are

Reagan fundraising challenges mount

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legal challenges are mounting against the "independent expenditure" committees planning to raise as much as $50 million to support Ronald Reagan's presiden-

The latest attack came on Wednesday in a complaint filed jointly by the Democratic National Committee and President Carter's reelection campaign committee. It follows a lawsuit filed against one of the committees on Wednesday by the citizens' group Common

The pro-Reagan committees contend they are doing nothing wrong and their opponents are trying to squelch their right to free speech.

The legal challenges claim the expenditure of vast sums on behalf a presidential candidate skirts the intent of recent election reform laws which provide money for the major party candidates to run on and limits the amount they can spend.

"It was never the intent of the Congress, or of the Supreme Court...to permit a presidential candidate, receiving public funds for his campaign, to evade the limit on campaign spending by receiving the benefits of a multi-million dollar parallel campaign operated by former associates and party professionals," Carter campaign Chairman Robert Strauss said.

The Democrats' complaint asks the FEC to determine whether there links between the independent committees and Reagan's official campaign and to deny him federal funds if it finds

The law allows unlimited independent expenditures by individuals and committees in support of a candidate as long as there is no contact or coordination between them and the candidate or his official campaign committee.

Critics of the pro-Reagan independent committees claim they are not really independent but are run by an overlapping network of longstanding Reagan and Republican Party sup-

The Common Cause filed suit asks that a committee called Americans for a Change be stopped from raising and spending up to $30 million to promote Reagan's candidacy.

Archibald Cox, Common Cause chairman and a former Watergate prosecutor, said the new election laws sought to "put behind us forever, the old pre-Watergate abuses of power of money

'The so-called independent expenditues challenged by this suit threaten to unravel that whole system of laws to eliminatee the influence of money in pmlitical campaigns and return us to the day characterized by the old Watergate abuses," Cox said.

U.S., China blasted by Soviets, Vietnam

MOSCOW (AP) - President Leonid I. Brezhnev gave a personal assurance Thursday to top Vietnamese leaders at a Kremlin meeting that the Soviet Union supports their position in Indochina, the Tass news agency said. The meeting accused China of creating mischief in the area with help from the United States.

In addition, Tass reported the signing of an agreement on prospecting and extraction of oil

In the talks with Communist Party Leader Le Duan and Premier Pham Van Dong, Breshnev agreed that "the Soviet Union displays understanding and approval of the actions and initiatives of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia," Tass said.

The agency said participants in the Kremlin talks "noted that with the support of the United States, Peking wants to destabilize the situation in the area of Indochina, is organizing for this purpose military demonstrations on the Sino-Vietnamese border, is encouraging provocations by the remnants of the Pol Pot bands against the People's Republic of Cambodia, and is exerting undisguised pressure on ASEAN member states."

ASEAN includes Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, the Philippines and Indonesia. The Pol Pot govern-ment in Cambodia was ousted in a 1978 invasion, but its supporters continue to wage guerrilla warfare.

The participants in the talks blamed "Peking's hegemonistic policy" as primarily responsible for recent clashes along the Thai-Cambodian border,

The Vietnam news agency Thursday described an accelerated U. S. arms delivery to Thailand as a "smokescreen" for Washington to encourage Thailand to give more help to the remnants of the Pol Pot regime. President Carter on Tuesday ordered an airlift of about $3.5 million in artillery and rifles to help Thailand's armed forces in the face of Vietnamese army attacks from Cambodia.

The Kremlin meeting also included Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and Party Central Committee Secretary Konstantin Rusakov, Tass said.

The talks, which Western analysts here believed focused on economic issues, were also attended by the economic planning ministers of the two nations,

Nikolai Baibakov and Nguyen Lam.
Vietnam has openly admitted its economic problems and since its 18-month occupation of Cambodia has become increasingly dependent on Soviet aid.

The session came amid pointed reminders in the official press here of Vietnam's dependence on aid from Moscow and its allies.

In a Kremlin ceremony, Le Duan awarded his country's highest decoration, the Gold Star, to Brezhnev, Kosygin and Politburo theorist Mikhail

In a speech quoted by Tass, Le Duan expressed the "boundless gratitude" of the Vietnamese people to the Russians, who have "lent our people new great strength for restoring the country and for reliable defense of our homeland."

Le Duan was making his first visit to Moscow since November 1978 when he signed the Vietnamese-Soviet treaty of friendship and cooperation. Pham Van Dong was here in September

Reader's Digest fined $1.75 million

A federal judge has fined Reader's Digest $1.75 million for violating an agreement with the government not to use simulated checks and other seemingly valuable items as promotion-

State studies sparring test

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State officials looking to stop the spread of "Tough Guys" boxing contests might adopt rules requiring inexperienced boxers to take a sparring test.

Director Bob Busse of the Boxing and Wrestling Division of the Texas Department of Labor and Standards said Thursday a "Baddest Man in Town" contest scheduled for Tuesday in Corpus Christi apparently will meet all state require-

But those rules might be tightened to prevent any similar contests in the future, he said.

The contest was postponed in June when At-torney General Mark White filed suit against the promoters. Busse said the contests, featuring inexperienced boxers, are dangerous. White's suit said promoter Jim Limotta did not have the required sate licenses.

Busse said Thursday that all the licenses, including licenses for 28 fighters, probably will be issued by Tuesday.

The fighters will compete for a $1,000 top

However, Busse said new rules under consideration would make it more difficult for inexperienced fighters to get boxing licenses. He said boxers with extensive amateur backgrounds would face no problem getting professional licenses, but boxers with no experience might be required to spar a few rounds in front of a Boxing and Wrestling Division official.

"Our concern is still for the health and safety of the boxers," he said.

Demand up for protection plans

Copley News Service

As prices of resale (previously owned) homes continue to increase, the market demand for home protection (warranty) plans also increases.

Such a plan usually covers all mechanical, functioning elements of the home for at least on year following the sale closing. These can be insurance or non-insurance plans.

The consumer demand for home protection plans is heating up. In fact, this increasing demand will probably result in up to 85 percent of all resale home transactions including coverage by such a plan by 1985.

That's the prediction of Art Leitch, a San Diego, Calif., realtor and past president of the National Association of Realtors (NAR).

It was Leitch who first recongized the emerging consumer demand for home protection plans several years ago. He was intrumental im forming NAR's Home Protection Committee, and served as its first chairman.

"In today's market, the need for strong home protection plans is more important than ever before," Leitch told this writer. "If private industry doesn't sastify this growing consumer demand the federal government will step in and put together their own bureacratic program.

"If that happens, any resale home that is financed by a federally chartered lending institution or a government-backed mortgage loan (FHA or VA loan) will probably be required to utilize the federal home protection

Hopefully, private industry will provide a choice of quality plans that will negate pressure for a federal program, he stressed.

For several years, the primary function of NAR's Home protection Committee was to study and evaluate home protection plans offered by a variety of firms. Its objective was to encourage development of strong, consumer-benefiting plans and inform realtors and consumers of their study results.

However, this NAR function and consumer service was recently abandoned. The process of approving certain plans and not approving others carried too much legal risk, NAR was advised by its legal counsel

Also, it was determined that NAR does not currently have the capability to adequately monitor "NAR approved" home protection plans, according to a NAR spokesman. "There are too many plans emerging for us to handle an effective monitroing system on a national scale.'

Another key factor in NAR's decision to abandon its home protection plan "approval" process is the widely varying state laws that control and restrict the implementation and marketing of such plans. In some states all these plans, whether backed by an insurance company or not, must be approved and controlled by the state department of insurance. Others impose rigid restrictions on how these plans are structured and marketed

In view of the substantial regional differences in laws and types of plans offered, NAR concluded it would be in the best interests of realtors and consumers for each state association of realtors and local boards of realtors to become actively involved in scrutinizing plans being marketed within their region — rather than NAR continuing a national monitoring pro-

Many state associations of realtors now have their own home protection committee to serve in this important area of responsibility. NAR is urging all state associations to establish such

Providing home protection plan coverage with the sale of a previously-owneed home is becoming a necessary ingredient in an effective marketing program. It benefits both buyer and seller.

Fascination with fat needs trimming

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old bachelor with a problem concerning my preference in women. I am not a weirdo or kook who goes in for kinky sex. I am a normal, fairly successful professional man.

To get to the point, normal-size women do nothing for me. It takes a fat woman to really turn me on. I don't mean one who is pleasingly plump. I mean a very obese woamn and the bigger the better.

The most satisfying sexual experience I've ever had was with a woman so fat that her belly practically hung down to her knees. (I never knew exactly how much she weighed, but she had to be at least 400 pounds.) Most men would probably have found her repulsive, but to me she was wonderfully exciting. Of course, I'd never be seen in public with such a

Inventor says someday he will soar like an eagle

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Jeremy Harris says someday he'll soar like an eagle - literally.

Harris, an engineer for Battelle Memorial Institute, has been awarded a patent for an ornithopter, a flying machine that takes off and moves through the air by flapping its wings like a bird.

The initial balsa wood model he made with the help of a professor of aerospace engineering from the University of Toronto has a 3-foot wing span, is powered by a rubber band and weighs little more than 3

After wind tunnel tests and a few 50-foot flights, Harris said he "retired" the tiny craft.

Now, Harris and colleague James DeLaurier are designing a radio-controlled model with a 7-foot wing span and model airplane engine that will weigh about 5 pounds. Eventually, they'd like to build an ornithopter with a 60-foot span capable of carrying a pilot.

Harris, 44, got interested in ornithopters about 12 years ago. He was honored by Battelle recently for his ornithopter research, which he called a "serious hobby. He spent more than $2,000 to obtain the patent, which is in his name, and "hundreds and hundreds" of hours developing the model, he said.

"Flapping wings are not considered effective thrusters, but you'll notice the birds do all right with them," he said. "The small model we made had a wing-flapping cycle of about eight per second. Birds flap their wings from two cycles per second for the large ones like condors to near 100 for Lift is provided by the flapping of the wings, with thrust maintained by angling the wings toward or away from the horizon.

"The trick is to flap the wings as slowly as possible and still stay in the air," Harris said. "Birds are exceedingly bright about doing that.

"To date, a good man-powered aircraft hasn't been designed because they're all too fragile," he said. "But if I had been born 50 years later, I doubt there would be much room left for research in slow-speed flight, because it's one of the few areas of aviation where there has been little exploration.

One problem with flapping, tilted wings is that they will make the aircraft easier to "stall," he said. That occurs when the air passing under the wings does not produce enough lift to keep the craft in the air.

Harris said flight by ornithopter "will certainly be the quietest form of aviation around, because it would use large, slow moving surfaces for

But it will be a while before just anyone can go flapping around, he added. He does not foresee an immediate commercial use for the air-

Barbeque and sangria good way to celebrate

By MARJORIE RICE Copley News Service

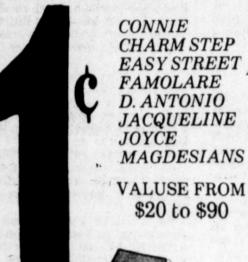

It's barbecue season. Time to break out the beer, fire up the charcoal, pull up a deck chair and sit back in the sun, enjoying that sizzling sound of chicken growing crusty and brown over the coals.

Pictured are pork ribs and chicken, both in a tangy citrus sauce. There's more citrus flavor in the icy pitcher of sangria served with the barbecue.
Citrus is a good choice for barbecue because it tends to make food seem less greasy. The oils in basting sauces and marinades are cut by the high-

Cooking food on the grill is an easy matter if you remember a few basics

First, don't overload the cooker with coals. A single layer of glowing coals will cook most foods. Have some extras to add as you need them, but start with no more coals than you'll need to create a flat layer under the food you plan to grill.

To prevent a conflagration in the barbecue when the food goes on the grill, remember to brush on the basting sauce after the meat or poultry has had time

This late seasoning will still give the food plenty of flavor, the sauce won't be charred black and there will be fewer spot fires to put out with a squirter bottle of water.

After a successful showing of Chicago's massive art project at the University of Houston's Clear Lake Campus, a new fund raising effort is underway to oring the work to a north-

The dinner plates rest on embroidered runners. The needlework, China painting and ceramic designs represent the traditional arts of women, and give significance to female arts which have traditionally been considered lesser arts.

When The Dinner Party was first seen at San Francisco's Museum of Modern Art from March to June 1979 the show drew record-breaking crowds.

Bookings were arranged for New York, Rochester and Seattle, but the show was canceled in those cities.

Various reasons were given for the change, but according to some sources, critics had dubbed the work more craft than art, and accused Chicago of being difficult to work with.

THE DINNER PARTY was rescued from permanent storage when Frances Phelps, now president of the Cultural Affairs Council of the Clear Lake Area Chamber of Commerce brought the work to the attention of director of special events on the

Truman novel set in White House

NEW YORK (AP) — Margaret Truman sometimes used to sit in a room with her parents, all of them reading mystery novels. If they liked the books, they passed them around to each other. She still reads them, sometimes three or four in a week.

Now she has written one and set it in a place she knew when Harry Truman was president of the United States. It's titled "Murder in the White House.

There haven't been any real murders in the White House, she says, adding, "Heaven forbid." And nobody else has written a mystery set there, as far as she knows. "You'd have to find another inmate of the White House before you'd get that.'

The book is set in the future, the author says. "Nothing from the past. And every character is fiction, completely. Some people in Washington maintain I had models for the characters but I did not. They're as different as I could make them from anybody I ever knew.

"I knew there were more Secret Service people than there were when I lived there. I asked the ones around Mother. They said there are a lot.

"My father used to go walking with two Secret Service men. I had one. Mother went shopping with nobody with her. She said the chauffeur could take care of her. He was about 80." Her mother, Bess Truman, is 95 and lives in Independence, Mo. "Her bursitis bothers her and she's deaf but her mind is clear as a bell," Miss Truman says. "She reads more slow-ly now. I left the book with her but she hasn't mentioned it.'

Miss Truman has been married for 24 years to Clifton Daniel, retired managing editor of The New York Times. She uses her maiden name for acting in summer stock, TV and lecture appearances and book writing.

There are four Daniel sons, Clifton Truman, 23, back in college after a stint of working; William Wallace, 21, in college; Harrison Gates, 17, away at school, and Thomas Washington, 14, who will go away to prep school next fall.

"Theoretically, I'll be back to where I was when I got married, with no children in the house. But one of the older ones will probably come and settle back in for a while and go off again. That's what the apartment is there for. We didn't know, when we got this big Manhattan apartment nearly a year after we were married, that we were going to use every room

"I'd done four non-fiction books before. I did an autobiography, one on White House pets, a book on Dad and one on women of courage. It's much easier to write history than to write fiction. All you have to do is research and get the facts straight and put it together," says Miss Truman, a graduate of George Washington University with a history major.

The idea for this book came up a couple of years ago, she says, when she was talking with publisher Don Fine. The title "Murder in the White House" popped out of her mouth.

"Then I put it down for about a year. I find writing very difficult, any kind of writing. And I'm a natural putter-offer. If I have things to do, most things, I do it. If it is writing a book, I'll think about that tomorrow.

"But I finally had to do it. I'd signed a contract. And I wanted to try this because I read them. I wanted to see if I could do it."

She made a plot outline first. Then she started dictating into a tape recorder and had the material typed. Then I started editing, thinking, 'How could I have said that?'. I'd slash out things and redo and have that cleaned up and retyped. It's a long, slow process for me. 'I'm very undisciplined when it comes to writing. And I have a household to run. I would suddenly get started sometimes and just go. I wrote in spurts."

The only research Miss Truman did for her mystery was the Secret Service query and a letter to White House curator Clem Conger asking for a floor plan of the second and third floors of the White House. She found that her memory would have sufficed. "But I just wanted to be sure I could physically get bodies - living bodies - from here to there and do it without them being seen."

Asked whether she'll write another mystery, Miss Truman says, "It's a question of whether I can stop being lazy long enough. I have some ideas kicking around in my head." If she does, she intends it not to be a se-

"Maybe I should write a history of the White House and Blair House, she says. The Trumans are the only First Family to live in both the original and rebuilt White House. They also lived in Blair House for three years after the president discovered the old White House "was gradually

IRA rejects new British proposal

LONDON (AP) - The Irish Republican Army, key combatant in Northern Ireland's bloodshed, rejected outright Thursday new British proposals for ending the strife there.

Leaders of the two main Protestant parties in the province dismissed the plan's central option for Roman Catholic power-sharing. Catholic politicians and the government of the Irish Republic gave the proposals a lukewarm welcome. The largely predictable reactions. along with generally pessimistic British press commentaries, indicated little hope that the latest and longawaited British initiative on Northern Ireland would fare any better than its predecessors.

The British province has been without home rule for six years, being governed directly from London because of the sectarian violence.

At the heart of the proposals, made public Wednesday in a discussion document of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government, are two options for restoring a local assembly with joint Catholic-Protestant admin-

Under one option, the Catholic minority would have a guaranteed number of seats in the executive body, or Cabinet, according to the number of seats they held in the assembly

The alternative would be to allow the inevitable Protestant majority in the 80-member assembly to take firm control of the executive, but to establish a joint Protestant-Catholic advisory council with power to block moves by the executive. Provisional Sinn Fein, legal political mouthpiece of the outlawed and mainly Catholic Provisional wing of the IRA, rejected the British proposals out of hand.

In a statement issued in Dublin, capital of the Irish republic, Provisional Sinn Fein said the proposals would not work and that political agreement will be possible only when the British withdraw from Northern

The IRA guerrillas have been fighting to end British control of the province and unite it with the predominantly Catholic republic.

As if to demonstrate IRA feelings about the new plan, a bomb blast blamed on the guerrillas destroyed a country police station early Thursday northwest of Belfast, the Northern Irish capital. A police officer and members of his family were reported

The two leading Protestant politicians, James Molyneaux, head of the Official Unionist Party, and the Rev. Ian Paisley, leader of the Democratic Unionists, ruled out any discussion of the first option, which Molyneaux called a "recipe for disaster. The Protestants contend rivalry within the executive would make running the country impossible.

Molyneaux and Paisley said the only hope of progress was the second option, and said they were ready to start talks on on it the London government's secretary for Northern Ireland, Humphrey Atkins.

John Hume, leader of Northern Ireland's moderate and mainly Catholic Social and Democratic Labor Party, said he preferred the guarantee of Catholic seats in an executive body answerable to the assembly of elected representatives.

Oliver Napier, leader of the province's middle-of-the-road, non-sectarian Alliance Party, agreed with Hume, saying the first option was "an acceptable way forward" while the second would cause "grave prob-

The foreign minister of the Irish republic, Brian Lenihan, said that although there was no specific mention of any "Irish dimension" in the proposals, the tone of the British document was a steppingstone to recog nition of one.

"Irish dimension" has become the euphemism for direct involvement of the Irish Republic in negotiations to find a solution to the problem of Northern Ireland. Most Northern Protestants reject such republican in-

The Dublin government issued a statement saying it welcomed further discussion on possible solutions but repeating the view put forward by Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey on several occasions that the problem could not be solved in a Northern Ireland context alone

The Irish Senate, reacting coolly to the British proposals, decided to reject calls for a debate on them Thursday night.

In editorials, The London Times said the British document "sounds like a rather desperate expedient for getting something going somehow." The liberal Guardian said the proposals were "democratically gro-

More than 2,000 persons have been killed in 11 years of sectarian violence in Northern Ireland.

Britain suspended the Protestantcontrolled provincial parliament in March 1972 in the hope of appeasing Catholic civil rights demands and ending support for the IRA.

Government officials had expressed concern that any comment the pope made on labor affairs could set off another confrontation in this industrial center of 12 million people.

Many clergymen in Brazil, the world's largest Catholic country, have joined labor in fighting the military-backed government's efforts to hold down wages - and the pope cautiously voiced support for the diocese's efforts

'The church proclaims and supports the various rights of the workers because man and his dignity are at stake," the pontiff said.

Brazil's most influential labor leader, a 34-year-old lathe operator commonly known as "Lula," has cooperated closely with Sao Paulo's liberal cardinalarchbishop, the Most Rev. Paulo Evaristo Arns, during three strikes against government wage de-

A member of the local Catholic lay movement was shot and killed after police tried to break one of the strikes last year, and more than 200 priests and six bishops walked through downtown Sao Paulo in the funeral procession. Cardinal Arns said the funeral Mass and was immediately accused by President

Joao Figueiredo of inciting workers. Two months ago, when auto workers launched a strike against foreign-owned assembly plants in the greater Sao Paulo region, the cardinal suggested food and money be provided to help the walkout and bishops allowed some of their churches to open for strikeers' rallies. The strike lasted 41 days.

'The church demands in all its right, an area of indispensable freedom," the pope declared.

John Paul, who started the fourth day of his 12-day tour of Brazil by flying here from Rio de Janeiro, was cheered by more than 1 million people who gathered on an empty airfield.

Psychological factors can cause heart attack

Dear Dr. Solomon: I know I can't change my heredity (my father and an uncle both died from heart attacks), but I would like to improve the odds. I don't smoke, rarely drink, exercise regularly and watch what I eat. What I would like to know is the extent to which psychological factors play a role in the development of coronary heart disease. - Tim.

Dear Tim: Quite a bit, according to Drs. Roseman and Friedman of the Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco. After studying the behavior patterns of persons prone to coronary heart disease, they suggested the existence of two distinct major personality types, A and B, with various gradations betweeen the two ex-

The type A personality, usually a man although it could be a woman, is described as ambitious, competitive, aggressive and impatient, with a strong sense of time urgency. This kind of individual has high serum cholesterol levels, and a much greater frequency of heart disease than the type B personality. The type B person, on the other hand, is very passive and lacking in drive.

In addition to these individual psychological factors, the emotional stability of the family also appears to be a factor in predisposing to heart attack. In one group of families in which the husband had an acute myocardial infarction, it was found that 90 percent of these families were chronically unhappy and filled with tension. Fifty percent of the group were in-volved in disturbed marriages with considerable lack of communication between the spouses, even in those families where the spouses believed they were communicating well.

Dear Dr. Solomon: How can a pregnant woman distinguish between false labor and the real thing? Also, how long does labor last? I am pregnant for the first time and not certain what to expect. — Sue.

Dear Sue: Both labor and false labor involve contractions of the muscles of the uterus. In false labor the contractions are irregular, and they may come and go over a period of several hours.

In real labor the contractions are stronger and very regular. At first they may come an hour apart or possibly only 10 or 15 minutes apart. As labor continues, the intervals between contractions get shorter and shorter. The strong, regular contractions are an indication that the baby is

The length of labor differs from one woman to another, and from one pregnancy to another for the same woman. Labor usually lasts longers for the first baby than for subsequent babies. Most women have their babies from 16 to 18 hours after labor begins, but later babies may take only eight to 10 hours or even less. A good diet and good prenatal care often results in shorter periods of labor.

'Don't flaunt your faith'

20 Don't undo the work of God for a chunk of meat. Remember, there is nothing wrong with the meat, but it is wrong to eat it if it makes another stumble.

21 The right thing to do is to quit eating meat or drinking wine or doing anything else that offends your brother or makes him sin.

22 You may know that there is nothing wrong with what you do, even from God's point of view, but keep it to yourself; don't flaunt your faith in front of others who might be hurt by it. In this situation, happy is the man who does not sin by doing what he knows is right.

23 But anyone who believes that something he wants to do is wrong shouldn't do it. He sins if he does, for he thinks it is wrong, and so for him it is wrong. Anything that is done apart from what he feels is right is sin.

CVEN if we believe that it makes no difference to the Lord whether we do these things, still we cannot just go ahead and do them to please ourselves; for we must bear the "burden" of being considerate of the doubts and fears of others-of those who feel these things are wrong. Let's please the other fellow, not ourselves, and do what is for his good and thus build him

3 Christ didn't please Himself. As the Psalmist said, "He came for the very purpose of suffering under the insults of those who were against the Lord."

4 These things that were written in the Scriptures so long ago are to teach us patience and to encourage us, so that we will look forward expectantly to the time when God will conquer sin and death.

Boston Pops continues tradition

BOSTON (AP) — For 50 Independence Days, through war and peace and good times and bad, Arthur Fiedler and his Boston Pops filled the banks of the Charles River with the music of patriotism.

The piccolo trills of "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and the bombast of the "1812 Overture" will ring out again on this Fourth of July. But Fiedler is gone, and this year the baton is in the hand of John Williams, a Hollywood music man, a composer and conductor who is subtly rearranging a Boston institution.

Williams, who wrote the music to "Star Wars" and about 60 other movies, is finishing his first season as successor to Fiedler, the grumpy but lovable showman who shaped the Pops for half a century.

Of all his achievements, Fiedler is probably remembered best for the night of July 4, 1976, America's 200th birthday. At the band shell built on his triumphs at the edge of the Charles, he led his orchestra through the familiar music, and 400,000 people clapped and cheered and waved Fiedler died last summer at age 84.

And the Boston Symphony began a search for a new leader for its springtime orchestra, the Pops.

The symphony settled on Williams. The day his selection was announced, he was in London recording the score for "The Empire Strikes Back." Even Williams thought the man behind the tunes of "Superman" and "Jaws" was an unlikely choice for this venerable piece of New England tradition.

Now two-thirds of the way through his first season, Williams has stood at the Symphony Hall podium for two months, conducted over 100 works and recorded two albums, eight Public Broadcasting System shows and a new ending for "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

"It's been kind of dizzying," says Williams. And it has also changed his mind about his suitability for the

"In retrospect," says the balding, bearded, 48-year-old conductor, "it was probably a very good idea in the sense that it was a complete depar-ture from what I had been doing. And therefore I have come to it without any habitual method of program making or any kind of prejudices."

Williams is quick to admit that the job has its difficulties.

"From the point of view of following Arthur Fiedler, it's quite impossible," he said. And Williams has been careful to avoid stifling the old maestro's tradition. For much of Fiedler's career, "The Stars and Stripes Forever" was his theme song. So on Williams' opening night at Symphony Hall, the newcomer guided the orchestra through the bracing melody, and a big American flag unfurled above the stage.

Afterward, Williams spoke to Fiedler's widow, Ellen. "I told her, 'I'm not a particularly religious man, but I feel like his energies are still with us."

Nevertheless, in a subtle way, Williams is making his own impression on the Pops.

The format is the same: a section of light classical music, a concerto and then popular music arranged for the orchestra. But Williams already has added 30 new numbers to the orchestra's repertoire.

He is also turning away from some of the disco tunes that Fiedler delighted in. Williams' tastes run more toward Cole Porter and Broadway show music.

And there will be other changes as "I want to broaden the use of 20th century music in the section of serious music for the Pops to include the work of the contemporary British school and American composers," Williams says. "I also want to commission new music to be presented at the Pops. How light these pieces should go will have to be a matter of testing the reaction of the audience.'

So far, Williams' approach seems to be working. This year, the Pops has filled the 2,300-seat hall to 98 percent of capacity, one percentage point more than during Fiedler's final sea-

Williams took the job at the height of his career as a movie composer. And he says he will continue to write for films during the nine months of the year when the orchestra plays under Seiji Ozawa as the Boston Sym-

The Pops job, he says, "came at a point in my life when it was a refreshing change.

Parnell may plead innocent

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - Kenneth Parnell, accused of kidnapping two young boys seven years apart, may plead innocent by reason of insanity to the more recent abduction, his attorney said Thursday.

Mendocino County Public Defender Scott LeStrange, who is representing Parnell, told Alameda County Superior Court Judge Raymond Marsh he was reserving the right to add that plea to the present plea of innocent in the Valentine's Day kidnap of 5-year-old Timmy

At LeStrange's request, the judge appointed Sacramento psychiatrist Peter Axelrod to make a thorough psychiatric evaluation of Parnell.

Parnell also is accused, with Ervin Murphy, of abducting Steven Stayner in Merced in 1972. Stayner, who lived with Parnell for seven years, is credited with young White's rescue.

LeStrange told reporters after a brief court hearing that he was exploring the possibility of an insanity plea, but he wanted a psychiatric evaluation first.

The White kidnapping case was moved from Ukiah to Alameda County because of publicity surrounding the case. Judge Marsh continued the case until Sept. 15, when he will hear pretrial Dental charges were used to confirm that the victim was Priscilla Beck, 28, a Scottsbluff, Neb., native who was living in San Antonio at the time of her death, Graham County Sheriffs Office said Thursday.

Her body was recovered June 24 about two miles from the crash site in the Graham Mountains. The plane had been reported missing on a Dec. 20 flight from Jackson, Miss. to Phoenix, Ariz. Another body, discovered June 26, is believed to be that of James P. Thompson, 47, of Jackson, Miss., the sheriff's office said. His dental charts were en route to Safford and positive identification was expected by Monday, deputies said. Representatives of the Fededal Aviation Authority and the National Transportation Safety Board were trying to determine the cause of the accident.

Country western music and barbeque combined to make the heat bearable at the Museum of the Southwest's outdoor reception Saturday. The occasion was the opening of the 14th annual Southwestern Area Art Show, which is on exhibit through Aug. 3 at the museum, 1705 W. Missouri St. Co-sponsored by The Midland Arts Association and the museum, 72 pieces were juried into the show from nearly 300 entries. All entries had to be not previously shown original works completed within the last two years by artists currently living in the Juror for the show was Elaine Horwitch, owner of Elaine Horwitch Galleries of Scottsdale, Ariz., and Santa Fe, N.M. The Elaine Horwitch Gallery in Scottsdale was opened 17 years ago and the Santa Fe location has been open for five years. Ms. Horwitch explained the difficulties and responsibilities that go along with being the only

"First of all the preliminary selections were made by slides, which makes it difficult because you can't always see the quality.

When judging alone, there is no other opinion to temper your selections against, Ms. Horwitch said. She chose her selections by determining which represented the "best quality in what they (the artists)

Once the initial judging was over, Ms. Horwitch came to Midland and personally evaluated the 72 selections she had made. She discovered that, although she still liked her initial choices, there were some she felt differently about. Her change in attitude she attributed to not being able to see the actual texture of the works on slides. However, she still felt she had made selections that, had she seen all the works in person, she would have chosen. On the whole, she said, the show contained "innovative and different" art pieces. Ms. Horwitch explained that Southwestern art work is often projected in a manner unique to this area. It has been her experience at her galleries that Southwestern art is receiving more attention from other areas of the country than it has in the past.

"As time goes on, more and more Southwest artists are going to be seen in Eastern galleries."

She did feel that her selections were objective because all she knew about the individual pieces of art was the title, media and size. The selection was really unbiased because I had

Presley's doctor argues to have charges dropped

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - An attorney for Dr. George Nichopoulos argued Thursday that it would constitute double jeopardy to force Elvis Presley's former physician to face a criminal trial after already being punished by a state board for overprescribing narcotics. John J. Thomason asked Judge Bernie Weinman of Criminal Court to dismiss the criminal charges against Nichopoulos because the doctor had already been punished by the Tennessee Board of Medical Examiners. Nichopoulos, wearing a light tan suit, sat in the Thomason cited several cases from the U.S. and Tennessee Supreme courts to support his argument that the suspension of the doctor's license last January amounted to a punishment handed down by the state. He said the state could not come back again and attempt to impose additional punishment in a criminal proceeding.

Nichopoulos, 52, a general practitioner, was indicted May 16 on charges he violated a law requiring physicians to prescribe drugs for purposes consistent with their medical license. He is free on $1,000 bond.

The medical examiners board found Nichopoulos guilty of overprescribing drugs to 11 persons, including himself, Presley and entertainer Jerry Lee Lewis. Nichopoulos's license was suspended for three months and he was placed on three years'

In the motion for dismissal of the criminal indictments, Thomason claimed that bringing his client to trial in Criminal Court amounted to double jeopardy in view of the medical board's hearing.

Bargainers for Detroit — the nation's sixth-largest city with 1.3 million residents - and 9,000 striking municipal employees reportedly "cleared the air" on some contract differences, but a settlement remained elusive.

Pitch, Hit and Run contest scheduled

Local youngsters between the ages of 8 and 13 might start picking up their baseball bats and practice swinging. The local Pitch, Hit and Run contest will be held at 9 a.m. July 12 at Alamo Junior High School baseball field, located at the corner of Cuthbert Avenue and Midland Drive.

Youths who are interested in the contest may obtain details and entry forms at the Parks and Recreation office, 300 Baldwin Street, and Burger King restaurants. Or they may show up at the competition site by 9 a.m.

The competition is divided according to ages and skills. The three skills are pitching for accuracy, hitting for distance and running the base paths

Winners of the local contest will go on to the district competition scheduled to be in Cubs Stadium at 4 p.m. July 26. National finalists will compete in Cooperstown, N.Y., site of the Baseball Hall of Fame. They will receive trophies in a special on-field ceremony prior to the second game of the World Series.

The program is being sponsored by the city and Burger King restaurants in cooperation with the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

City sanitation officials told residents they could

Lloyd Simpson, chief union negotiator, said differences remained over working conditions and economic and non-economic issues. Mark Ulicny, the city's chief negotiator, said there were 38 unsettled

"We cleared the air on a lot of things that have been confusing," Ulicny said as bargainers dis-A breakthrough in the negotiations came at 1 a.m. persed Thursday morning. "We thought they understood, they thought we understood. We clarified some things and that may make it easier to keep going. It looks better than it did yesterday." More talks were scheduled for late Thursday night.

The Republican convention, which opens July 14, is expected to bring about 20,000 people to the Detroit area. Some of them will be arriving as early as this weekend for several days of platform committee hearings. Officials have said the strike should pose no threat to the convention, but would make the city less attractive and less convenient.

The walkout began at 11:59 p.m. Monday when Council 25 of the American Federation of State County and Municipal Employees voted to strike. The 23,000 city employees are represented by 57 bargaining units, but an AFSCME settlement would establish a precedent for others.

Council 25 represents 9,000 employees at the city's sewage treatment plant, parks and recreation department and sanitation department in addition to bus mechanics, museum and clerical workers.

About 1,300 bus drivers, represented by the Amalgamated Transit Union, were laid off Tuesday because the city decided it could not operate its bus fleet without the mechanics.

The Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority, which operates regional bus service, estimated its daily ridership of 40,000 increased by 1,000 passengers throughout Wayne County on Wednesday. Business was brisk for taxi companies and downtown parking lots.

"More customers are beginning to show up, and I can only thank the strikers," said John Aubrey of Aubrey Bros. Parking.

Freeway congestion increased, "but there are so many people laid off that people who have to drive instead of taking the bus are really just making it look like a return to normal," said state police trooper Terry O'Dell.

Parks and Recreation Director Daniel Krichbaum said 35 city recreation centers were "functioning but at a lower level of service," while 20 city pools and six golf courses were closed.

Some patrons of the downtown City County Building complained of minor harassment by pickets, but police said there were no major incidents.

One striking typist, Althea Scott, scoffed at Mayor Coleman Young's demands for labor peace on the eve of the GOP convention and his claims the city has no money for raises. "They can get money for everything else, but they can't give us any," she said. "We didn't get a raise in our last contract and that was even before gas reached 75 cents a gallon. We've got no COLA (cost-of-living allowance), no dental benefits - we need more.'

Starting salary for a clerk was $10,380 under the former contract with a $488 raise after one year, according to Personnel Department figures. Bus mechanics average $19,644 annually and sanitation workers, $15,854.

Young has said the city's $1.468 billion fiscal 1981 budget faces a $60 million deficit from previous arbitration increases granted police and firefighters, who remained on the job. Their contracts also expired June 30, but talks have moved into arbitra-

AFSCME orginally asked for a 7 percent wage increase in each of three years plus unlimited cost of living, but later trimmed the wage demand. Officials refused to disclose the city's latest offer.

In other strike developments around the nation Thursday:

- Negotiators for 39,000 striking copper workers said no new talks would be held until Monday in efforts to settle a walkout that has brought the nation's copper industry to a standstill. Unions representing the workers are seeking pay and benefit increases of about 90 cents an hour over the next three years, while company offers had approached 70 cents before talks broke down last Sunday. Workers were earning an average of $10.23 an hour.

- Maintenance workers at Baltimore's public housng projects ended a two-day strike when they approved a two-year contract providing a 14.5 percent wage increase over the two years. The workers had made $4.80 to $6.50 an hour under their old contract, which ran out Monday.

- Five Cleveland Orchestra concerts and four other events were canceled when the orchestra's 110 musicians went on strike after rejecting a contract that would have boosted their weekly salaries to $485 this year, retroactive to March 8, and to $655 by the end of the 31/2-year contract. The musicians now make a minimum of $450 a week, compared with $550 in New York and $480 in Pittsburgh and San Francis-

- A federal district judge in Texas upheld a temporary restraining order limiting participation in a strike by Texas onion growers. Meanwhile, the strike spread to another field as about 100 workers walked out on the T.J. Power & Co.

- Leaders of the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers local in Chalmette, La., said picketing will continue on the Mississippi River behind Tenneco Oil Co.'s refinery, despite the arrest on Sunday of two men for charged with interfering with

Inmate convicted in jailer's death

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Michael Clyde Jones, 28, of Borger, was convicted of capital murder Thursday night in the June 11, 1979, shooting death of a Stinnett jailer who was killed during an escape.

Jurors deliberated about five hours before returning the verdict in the Criminal Justice Center at Sam Houston State University here. Testimony in the punishment phase is scheduled to begin Monday. Jones could be sentenced to die by injection or to life in prison. Special prosecutor Linda Walden of the state

Attorney General's office argued that Jones was responsible for the death of Jack Thompson, even though testimony indicated another inmate pulled

Jones planned the escape and brought the victim's .357 magnum from the jail office to cellmate George Michael Hall, Ms. Walden told jurors in closing arguments Thursday. Hall, 24, also of Borger, also has been charged with capital murder and is scheduled for trial later this year. Ms. Walden said the state's eyewitness, inmate Danny Hayes, had "an atrocious background, to say

"There wasn't anyone in that jail that night for being a good citizen," she said. "But he (Hayes) had the opportunity to see what was happening.

Navratilova is dethroned

Chris Evert Lloyd moves back into Wimbledon finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) -Being Wimbledon champion doesn't make you popular with the tennis

The crowd at Center Court Thursday cheered madly for Chris Evert Lloyd as she dethroned Martina Navratilova, champion for the last two years.

They are more for me now that I am not winning all the time than when I was the champion," said Lloyd. She seemed surprised.

"Maybe it was because I married an Englishman," she said. "Or maybe just because I was the under-

LLOYD CAME from a losing position in the second set to win 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 in a fluctuating semifinal that aroused the crowd's emotions. Navratilova, whose serve and volley game made her the world's No.1 woman player on grass the last two years, slid to defeat after leading 3-1 in the second set and 40-15 on Lloyd's Navratilova said the final will depend on Goolagong, the elegant but unpredictable Australian.

'It's all up to Evonne," Navratilova said. "Chris is steady. Evonne is up and down. She has lapses and there's no telling how long they will last. The surface should favor

THE WOMEN'S semifinal began in a low key. Both players made plenty of errors but for the first hour there was no sign that Navratilova might lose her crown.

She won the first set, led 3-1 in the second and was 40-15 up on Lloyd's service in the next game. She lost it. And from then on the tide began flowing the other way.

"I really thought I was going to lose the match at 15-40 in that game," Lloyd said. "My plan was to be aggressive, go to the net and put the pressure on her, but she got off to a strong start and had me on the defenpoint, they played a long baseline-tobaseline rally and one forehand from Lloyd appeared to land over Navratilova's baseline.

"Out," shouted the champion. But she played on, and several strokes later hit a forehand out of court. It gave Lloyd the set.

The crowd agreed with Navratilova. They shouted "Out" and "Change the linesman." But the linesman stayed, so did his call, and the match

THE FIRST four games of the final set went against service. Both women were jittery as the drama built up to its climax. But eventually it was Lloyd who kept her cool and pulled

In the tensest atmosphere seen at Wimbledon this year, Navratilova served at 2-5 to defend her title and saved three match points in a drawnout game.

It was glory or elimination for Navratilova in that game. She went forward to attack on point after point. Lloyd lobbed her five times, and each lob dropped just inside the champion's baseline.

The last of the five lobs won the match. Navratilova's crown fell as she scrambled back in vain to try to retrieve the ball.

The champion's mother, Jana Navratilova, who has followed her daughter into exile from Czechoslovakia, sat chain-smoking as she watched the last act of the drama.

The two top women's seeds, Navratilova and Tracy Austin, failed to make the final.

LLOYD COMMENTED: "Martina and Tracy got all the publicity. Both thought they were going to win, but sometimes this backfires.

Form held true among the men, where No. 1 Borg already is in Saturday's final and the No. 2 and No. 3 seeds — McEnroe and Connors — will decide the other finalist Friday.

To the astonishment of the Center Court crowd, Borg lost the second set by playing probably his worst game in a major tournament for years. He

"He got better and better while I got worse," Gottfried said sadly. That is what a good player does. He waits for the opportunity and then

Payne proves pain for San Antonio

By TED BATTLES Sports Editor

It turned out to be quite a birthday for Jim Payne, the Midland Cubs all-purpose infielder, who turned just 23 Thursday and 2,928 fans who showed up at Cubs Stadium got more fireworks than they expected as the Midland Cubs hung on for dear life to stave off the San Antonio Dodgers,

The soaring screamers and bursting skyrockets were promised by the Downtown Kiwanis Club and Cubs management after the game...not during the game. But 23 runs, 29 hits and a couple of grand slams constitutes a pretty good attempt to get into the spirit of the July 4 holiday week-

Before the game, Payne informed teammates that he planned to hit a home run and collect some of that screen-green as a birthday present. What he didn't realize is that he would hit a grand slam and collect a record $201 from the fans in the stands. And at the time he powered his four-run wallop over the fence in left center, he didn't know it would be a game win-

It put Midland ahead 13-4 in the ninth and with Bob Blyth, Midland's ace fireman in the game already, it looked like nothing more than icing on that birthday cake.

But Blyth couldn't get anybody out in the ninth and before pinch Manager George Enright could get somebody warmed up, Mike Marshall had hit a grand slam homer, Dale Holman followed with a solo blast and Mike Zouras, the inning's sixth batter, had singled. So a nine-run lead was suddenly down to 13-9 and no one was

Moore came in and finally retired the side, but not before another run trickled across the plate. The key play, as it turned out, came when Dave Stockstill threw out Bill Swoope trying to go from first to third on a single by Jesse Baez for the second

Payne, 5-11, 180, who hails from Chicago and attended Lewis University, wound up with seven runs-battedin for the night, but he wasn't the only Cubs' batting star. Shortstop Chico Alfaro went 4-for-4 while Joe Hicks had only one hit, a double, but knocked in four runs.

the third that put Midland ahead for good 3-2 in the third. Marshall, in addition to his 10th homer, also had a run-scoring triple in the first for San Antonio. It may sound far-fetched, but the Cubs' spectacular defense was as much responsible for the win as the 14-hit attack. Starter Paul Semall, 3-1, was coasting along with a 6-1 lead in the sixth when he showed his first signs of fatigue in the 100-plus degree heat as left fielder Randy La Vigne went to the wall for one fly and raced to the wall in foul territory to grab Ducky LeJohn probably spent the night reliving the nightmare. In the sixth Midland scored three times when a hitbatsman, knocking La Vigne out of the game, and two walks by reliefer Jim Nobles forced in two runs. Then in the ninth, an Alfaro single and two walks off Nobles set up Payne's homer. But with pitchers Steve Shirley and Ubaldo Heredia on the shelf, Ducky probably went longer with Nobles than he normally would. And the desperation of his situation was emphasized when he brought in infielder John Shoemaker in the ninth to get the final two outs.

McCovey goes out swinging

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Willie McCovey, an intensely private man, spent a very public day at Candlestick Park Thursday, waving his arms, tipping his cap and swinging his bat for those who love him.

McCovey, at 42, is playing baseball when most of his contemporaries are selling insurance or something similar. Even McCovey's career must come to an end, however, but he won't play his final game in a San Francisco Giants uniform until Sunday in Los Angeles. The hometown fans won't see that, so 39,445 of their number turned out for a meaningless game on a weekday afternoon to scream a long goodbye to the first baseman they adopted more than a generation ago.

"I think I felt better about that than anything else - that that many people would come out," McCovey said afterward. "I know it means a lot to a lot of people to be able to say, 'I was there; I saw the last game' and I just really appreciate that.'

The cheers began when the big man came out for batting practice, more than two hours before the game with the Cincinnati Reds was to begin. They continued as he tried in vain to reach the fence when it didn't count. They started again when he came out of the dugout for infield practice. And they gave him a standing ovation when he came out for the game to When he almost homered in the first, only to see it curl foul down the right field line, the crowd "oohed." And they "ahhed" when he grounded

But in the third, with the Giants ahead 2-0, McCovey drilled a Joe Price pitch to right, scoring Jack Clark from third and sending the crowd into a frenzy.

"I was happy I was able to provide them with at least one thrill," McCovey said, a smile on his face. "I feel it was a good day all the way around, that I didn't disappoint them. Not that I felt that I would disappoint them. I don't think they would have been disappointed regardless."

That much was evident when he struck out in the fifth and they kept cheering. And when he grounded out meekly in his final at-bat in the eighth inning of a 4-3 victory, the cheering was from the standing position again.

When he came out to first in the ninth, shook hands with his infielders and embraced his replacement, Rich Murray, before coming off the field, they wouldn't let him leave without a

"It was perfect," said Manager Dave Bristol, who put McCovey in the lineup for the occasion. "I'm proud of

Later, McCovey met the press, who chronicled his every move this day with a horde of cameramen and a gaggle of writers.

Pete Rose nails down another berth on NL All-Star team

NEW YORK (AP) - Pete Rose of the Philadelphia Phillies, making his 14th All-Star appearance, heads a dozen reserves named to the National League squad Thursday to complete the team which will face the American League at Los Angeles next Tuesday night.

Edwin Moses lowers own world mark year later.

Rose, who holds a record for playing at five different positions in All-Star games, is the veteran of the NL bench which will include three firsttime choices - outfielders Jose Cruz of Houston and Dale Murphy of Atlanta and third baseman Ken Reitz of St. Louis

Also named to the club were catchers Gary Carter of Montreal, and John Stearns of the New York Mets; infielders Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati, Phil Garner of Pittsburgh and Keith Hernandez of St. Louis; and outfielders Ken Griffey of Cincinnati, George Hendrick of St. Louis and Dave Winfield of San Diego.

Carter was the only player chosen from the Expos, leaders in the NL East Division. Cruz joins pitcher J.R. Richard as the lone representatives of the Astros, leading the NL West.

Hendrick will be making his first All Star appearance for the NL. He played for the American League in the 1974 and 1975 games.

Fan balloting elected the eight starters with Steve Garvey of Los Angeles at first base, Davey Lopes of Los Angeles at second, Bill Russell of Los Angeles at shortstop, Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia at third base, Pittsburgh's Dave Parker, Reggie Smith of Los Angeles and Dave Kingman of Chicago in the outfield and catcher Johnny Bench of Cincinnati.

Parker was the MVP of last year's game at Seattle, won by the NL 7-6. Besides Richard, Manager Chuck Tanner of Pittsburgh selected seven other pitchers headed by Steve Carlton, the winningest pitcher in the majors so far this season. The other NL pitchers are Jim Bibby nd Kent Tekulve of Pittsburgh, Bob Welch and Jerry Reuss of Los Angeles, and Bruce Sutter of Chicago, the winning pitcher in each of the last two games. Reuss pitched this season's only major league no-hitter last Still to be named is a replacement for San Francisco pitcher Vida Blue, who was chosen for the team but is injured and was placed on the disabled list. Blue had been his team's lone representative so his spot must go to a Giant since every team must have at least one player on the All Star squad.

The selection of reserves departed greatly from the fan balloting. Passed up were catchers Steve Yeager of Los Angeles and Ted Simmons of St. Louis, who ran 2-3 in the voting for catcher. Carter finished fourth in the fan vote and Stearns was eighth.

Also left off the team were Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell, runnerup in the voting at first base, Ron Cey of Los Angeles, who finished second in the balloting at third base, and outfielders Dusty Baker of Los Angeles, Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia and Ron LeFlore of Montreal, runnersup in the outfield voting. Winfield was eighth, Hendrick 11th and Griffey 14th

ATLANTA (AP) - Right-hander J.R. Richard and three relievers silenced Atlanta's booming bats by combining on a seven-hitter Thursday night, while Denny Walling and Terry Puhl hit solo home runs to lead the Houston Astros to a 5-3 victory over the

The Braves, who had a four-game winning streak snapped, had pounded out 45 hits and 32 runs in winning the first three games of the series.

Richard, 10-4, pitched the first six innings and allowed the first six Atlanta hits, striking out eight, including four of the first five batters he faced. The Braves got only one until Dale Murphy and Chris Chambliss hit consecutive home runs with two out in the sixth, increasing to 29 Atlanta's string of consecutive two-out runs.

Dave Smith, Joe Sambito and Frank LaCorte relieved for the Astros, with LaCorte recording his seventh save after giving up the other Atlanta hit.

McCovey's bomb nips Cincinnati

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Rennie Stennett hit a two-run single in the first inning and Willie McCovey drove in a run in the third in his final home game as the San Francisco Giants beat the Cincinnati Reds Stennett's hit, which drove in Joe Strain and Jack Clark, gave the Giants a 2-0 lead they never relinquished. However, the day belonged to McCovey, who will play the final three games of his career this weekend in Los Angeles.

The 42-year-old first baseman, drawing cheers every time he appeared on the field, laced a sharp single to right in the third inning off loser Joe Price, 1-1, who was 2 years old when McCovey broke into the big leagues in 1959. The single scored Clark for McCovey's 1,554th career RBI.

Mazzilli's homer ignites Mets

NEW YORK (AP) - Lee Mazzilli's three-run homer capped a five-run second inning, and Claudell Washington tripled in two seventh-inning runs Thursday night to lift the New York Mets to a 7-2 victory over the Montreal Expos. Tom Hausman, 4-2, the second of three New York pitchers, was the winner after replacing starter Ray Burris in the third inning. Burris injured his right thumb while fouling off a bunt in the second. Rookie Charlie Lea, 2-3, allowed the five Mets runs in the second. Four of the runs were unearned after a fielding error by shortstop Chris Speier.

Lea walked Mike Jorgensen with one out in the second, then Speier booted Steve Henderson's potential double-play grounder. Alex Trevino followed with an RBI single that scored Jorgenson and sent Henderson to third.

Doug Flynn's infield single scored Henderson, and with two out Mazzilli drove a 3-2 pitch over the right-field fence for his fifth home run and fourth in the last seventh games.

Garland, 3-1, yielded a pair of oneout walks in the first inning but retired Reggie Jackson and Bob Watson. The only New York hits were singles by Reggie Jackson with one out in the fourth inning and Joe Lefebvre with one out in the ninth after Garland set down 15 consecutive bat-

Rick Peters followed with a looping double to center off Toronto reliever and loser Joey McLaughlin, 3-5, and the speedy Whitaker streaked home with the go-ahead run when Bob Bailor's foot slipped as he planted it to throw. Hebner then singled Peters

The Angels took a 1-0 lead when Joe Rudi opened the second with a wicked liner that struck Wortham in the left ear and continued into center field.

Larry Ziegler fires course record 31

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) - Larry Ziegler fired a course record 31 on the back side with five straight birdies and shot a 3-under-par 69 Thursday to share the first-round lead of the Western Open with two other tournamenthardened pros.

Ziegler, a non-winner since 1976, posted 38-31 in the morning over the standard 36-36-72 Butler National course. He was tied in the afternoon by Hale Irwin, 1979 U.S. Open champion, with 35-34, and Tom Kite with

Some of the diseased greens on the 7,067-yard course look as if they have been torched, but the low scorers in an opening day of perfect weather found them not too troublesome. "It shows that even with the greens

the way they are, it is possible to make putts - although some of them are just lucky ones," said Irwin, who rolled in birdies of from 6 to 15 feet. "I found that 40 to 50 bumps to the hole sort of evened out - not like two or three bumps. You just can't dwell on the greens or you will be riding a dead horse. You can't change

Ziegler popped in birdie puts from 3 to 15 feet on the last nine. "Tomorrow I may go out and miss everything," said the 40-year-old veteran, who was using a set of new clubs for the first

"I made a lot more putts than I thought I would and was pleasantly suprised," said Kite, who dropped a 20-foot chip for an eagle-3 on No. 2. His birdie puts all were less than 12 feet, "but I was shaking on every one."

The field was well bunched after the first round in a chase for a first prize of $54,000. Carding 70s were Roger Calvin, Rex Caldwell, Rik Massengale, Curtis Strange, and young Scott Simpson, the 1976 and 1977 NCAA champion from Southern Cal who began tour play last year.

Among those at 71 were Andy Bean, the 1978 Western winner; Ben Crenshaw, who has finished second seven times in the last sixteen months, and Tom Watson, seeking his sixth tournament victory of the year.

Watson, who has been well ahead in the dollar derby for the last three years, said he only missed three greens and had two 3-putt greens in fashioning a 33-38.

His roller-coaster round included three bogeys, one double-bogey and six birdies. "I made everything from three feet in, luckily," said Watson. "Every lie I had on the fairway was perfect. There out there on the greens, and I still think that 295 (7-over-par) could win the tournament.

Jimmy Piersall's future is clouded turned-commentator Jimmy Piersall remained hospitalized Thursday, his on-the-air future uncertain, after he allegedly choked a sports writer and was involved in another ballpark

The former Boston Red Sox outfielder suffered an emotional breakdown during his rookie season, 1952. His recovery was the basis for the book and movie, "Fear Strikes Out." He retired in 1967. Chicago White Sox owner Bill Veeck said it was "premature" to determine whether Piersall will continue to share radio and television broadcast duties with principal announcer Harry Caray. Piersall, 50, was admitted Wednesday night to Illinois Masonic Hospital for observation, suffering from "exhaustion," officials said, after the two incidents. A hospital spokeswoman said he was in good condition, undergoing observation and tests.

The White Sox, WBBM Radio and WSNS-TV, the Chicago stations carrying the team's broadcasts, issued a joint statement saying a decision awaits Piersall's "complete recovery."

The first altercation occurred in the White Sox locker room before a night game with the California Angels. Piersall confronted sports writer Bob Gallas of the Arlington Heights Daily Herald, allegedly over a story that Gallas was preparing on Piersall's future as an unpaid coach.

Gallas did not press assault charges immediately, saying he would wait to see how the matter is resolved. He was taken for precautionary X-rays after the incident and released.

"I couldn't believe it; he was yelling at me and then he just started strangling me," said Gallas, 29. "I thought he would stop, and he didn't. The look in his eyes - it was White Sox trainer Herman Schneider confirmed Gallas' account. Gallas was talking to various members of the White Sox about why Piersall was asked last week to end his role as a volunteer coach when the incident occurred.

"He started yelling and screaming at me the length of the locker room," said Gallas. "He said: 'If you have anything to ask about me, ask me!"" Manager Tony LaRussa asked Piersall to stop coaching the team's outfielders because he believed the job was a conflict of interest with Piersall's role as a color announcer, in which he often has criticized team

Schneider, bullpen coach Art Kusnyer and pitcher Ross Baumgarten who hurled a one-hitter in Wednesday night's game - pulled Piersall off Gallas. Gallas was pulled away by security guard Vince Fresso.

About 30 minutes later, Veeck's son, Mike, confronted Piersall in the broadcasting booth, saying, "Here's someone your own size," the younger Veeck said. He allegedly put a head-lock on Piersall and shouted: "If you say another thing about my mother

Three newsmen separated the two. Afterward, Piersall was brought into Bill Veeck's office and told to lie quietly. "Jimmy broke down weeping in my office just before the game," said Veeck. "He was in no shape to do any announcing. He was right on the edge of a volcano all season and he finally blew up." Afterward, he was hospitalized.

Piersall and Veeck reportedly have been at odds, with the announcer often critical of the White Sox. Earlier this year, Piersall, in a television interview, termed Veeck's wife, Mary Frances, "a colossal bore."

Tom Seaver faces crisis

CINCINNATI (AP) - The Cincinnati Reds placed veteran pitcher Tom Seaver on the 21-day disabled list Thursday and called up rookie hurler Bruce Berenyi from their Class AAA team at Indianapolis.

Berenyi was scheduled to pitch one game of Saturday's twi-night doubleheader here with the Houston

Seaver's disabled period was de-clared effective July 1, because of his ailing shoulder.

Seaver said it is his first serious injury in 14 years. He said it was an emotional experience for him.

"Obviously I'm more optimistic now than I was two days ago," the 35-year-old Cincinnati Reds righthander told a news conference Thursday while his teammates were in San Francisco.

"I have avoided the needle for 14 years," Seaver said, recalling the cortisone shot he received Wednesday. "I wasn't a very big professional about that."

Seaver said that he had had minor injuries over the years and pitched with pain on many occasions. However, the present irritation to the rotator cuff of his right shoulder was enough to affect his pitching motion. "I also started losing strength in my arm,' he said. "Professionally, I knew it was time to have it corrected. How long it will take, whether it is a few days, a few weeks or a whole season, I don't know.

Seaver said he wanted to make it clear that he has no plans for retirement and denied reports from San Francisco that he was. "That was taken out of context," Seaver said. He said he had been talking with Cincinnati sports writers about when he thought the pain would go away.

"The end of my career is not imminent," said Seaver. He said that team physician Dr. George Ballou will make a determination Friday about whether the shoulder is responding to medication.

Penny Pulz' bad year could prove turnaround the birdies came on the 340-yard par-4

NOBLESVILLE (AP) - Penny Pulz, who hopes to turn around what she says has been a rotten year so far, shot a 4-under-par 68 and took a onestroke lead over four other golfers after the first round of this week's $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

Pulz, who has one victory to show for seven seasons on the tour, carded a 34-34 on the 6,044-yard, par-72 Harbor Trees Golf Club.

Kathy Young, Bonnie Bryant, Kathy Ahern and Amy Alcott were tied for second at 69.

The field of 92 pros and four amateurs will be cut to the low 70 scores and ties after Friday's second round of the Mayflower Classic. The winner of the 72-hole tournamment will receive $22,500 on Sunday.

"It's been a miserable year, I've had a rotten year," Pulz, 27, an Australian citizen who plays out of Cleveland, said. "My swing has been susceptible all year. I haven't been working with good thoughts. In the last few weeks, it's getting so much closer all the Pulz, who has finished in the top 10 only once this year, had four birdies and no bogeys. She made putts of 8 and 15 feet for birdies on the front nine, and then made birdie putts of 15 and 20 feet on the back nine. Young, still seeking her first victory after two seasons on the tour, equaled her best performance as a pro with a 32-37. She had four birdies on the front nine and recorded her first bogey of the day on the 380-yard par-4 10th hole. The 24-year-old former Oregon amateur star had four bogeys and three birdies on the back nine. One of
