

Kermit and Wink residents now have new focus for their heated feud

WINKLER COUNTY, Texas (AP) — The folks in Kermit and Wink have been feuding over football teams and population size for more than 50 years.

But the object of their most heated rivalry is a giant hole that nibbles at surrounding earth and gurgles with murky green water.

The central issue seems to be a nickname for the yawning expanse: the Kermit Krater or the Wink Sink.

"It's raised a lot of static between these two towns," said Kermit pilot Lonnie Collins. "It should have been called the Winkler County Whatever."

Since the hole first opened in the arid desert between the two towns, it has gobbled up oil field pipelines, telephone poles and untold tons of earth and become a something of a tourist attraction.

"It's just a hole," said a disgusted Vera Johnson, who drove 50 miles from Andrews to gaze disappointedly at the cavern.

It's not exactly "just a hole", since the giant cavity measures 400 yards by 360 yards and is more than 70 feet deep.

Curious tourists, journalists, television crews and geology students descend daily upon the area to get a peek at the geological puzzle.

"Flies never swarmed on manure like people have on this place," said Mike Davidson, a leather-faced cowboy. The crater was just a small sink in the ground when it appeared June 3 on an old, West Texas oil field.

Juan Garcia discovered the 20-by-20-foot bubbling cavity while scouting for pipeline leaks. Garcia said he left the site to get a supervisor, and when the pair returned 20 minutes later, "that hole was nearly 150 yards long."

Local residents frequently joke about the abyss, but many businessmen are not as amused.

The pit's insatiable appetite has seriously threatened a Shell Oil Co. tank farm, spooked travelers driving along Texas Highway 115, and cost Atlantic Richfield almost $20,000 in fencing and round-the-clock security. Dubbed the "guacamole hole-y" because of its avocado-green water, the hole continues to grow sporadically and devour mesquite trees, pipelines and telephone poles that stand in its path.

The feud between the two communities dates back to the 1920s when Wink — then a bawdy, brawling boom town of 25,000 — forced a county referendum to move the courthouse from Kermit.

But when oil and gas field sprang up, Kermit's population steadily grew while Wink's shrank dramatically. Football and baseball games have intensified those feelings, but nothing to the extent of the hole-naming dispute.

Kermit Mayor Jack McGuire said the situation has resulted in priceless "cheap publicity," while Wink residents feel they've been left to sink in their own hole of anonymity.

Wink, with a population of about 1,025, actually is two miles closer to the sinkhole than is Kermit, a community of 7,900.

"That's the way it is around this county — Kermit takes credit for everything," said James Wicker, a Wink welder.

Wicker's 12-year-old daughter, Tabatha, added: "Somebody said if Wink did fall in, Kermit would be so jealous they would jump in too."

Residents from both communities speculate the crater was caused by collapsing caverns in New Mexico, tremors from the Mt. St. Helens volcano, and "just plain ol' devil's work."

Geologists blame the hole on eroding salt domes, possibly because of oil drilling techniques, and have warned a sinkhole "two miles wide and eight miles long" could eventually open up.

"It got everybody thinking," said Winkler County Civil Defense coordinator Jim Williamson. "In the daylight, we'd joke about it. But there'd be a sudden thump in my house at night and I'd wake up thinking, 'The Hole.'"

An influential member of Iran's new Parliament today urged that the American hostages face a court similar to the one that tried Nazi war criminals in Nuremberg. Meanwhile, Iran's female civil servants were threatened with immediate dismissal unless they report to work in Islamic veils.

"Repeatedly I have said that the Iranian nation has not taken hostages, but a bunch of spies, thieves who have been operating for 25 years in Iran, hoping, with trust of God, they will be tried in a court like the one in Nuremberg," said Fakharedin Hejazi.

Hejazi received the most votes of any parliamentary candidate who ran in Tehran, the Iranian capital. He is a staunch supporter of the Islamic Republican Party, which favors spy

Shah reported 'improving'

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The temperature of the deposed shah, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, is almost normal now and he is "very alert" and "improving nicely," his spokesman said today.

Robert Armao, the spokesman, during a telephone interview also criticized a report published Sunday by the semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al-Ahram that said the ex-monarch was in very critical condition, in and out of a coma.

"I don't know where they get their information, but it's all wrong."

trials for some of the hostages and dominates the Parliament, which is to decide their fate.

Hejazi spoke in the town of Estahbanat in the southern province of Fars. His remarks were carried by Iran's official news media.

Nuremberg was the German city where the United States and its allies tried Nazi criminals after World War II.

The militants holding the U.S. hostages in Iran said Sunday that some of their captives had been moved again from three cities because the U.S. government was plotting to kill them, and more would be transferred.

"In view of military aggression by the world-devouring U.S.A. against Iran and its satanic plots against the life of the hostage-spies, we have decided to transfer them to different parts of the country so as to have them under the control of the nation, until such time as their final fate is decided by the Islamic Majlis," the militants said in a statement broadcast by Tehran Radio.

"We announce that we shall continue our policy of transfers. Consequently, we have transferred hostages from the three towns of Arak, Mahallat and Najaf Abad to other sites."

Arak, Mahallat and Najaf Abad are in west-central Iran. The statement did not say how many of the 53 hostages were involved in the transfer or where they were taken.

Fifty of the Americans and the U.S. Embassy in Tehran were seized Nov. 4 while ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was undergoing cancer treatment in New York. Three of the embassy's top officials are prisoners at the Iranian Foreign Ministry in Tehran.

Little hope exists for more survivors of desert ordeal

AJO, Ariz. (AP) — Searchers scoured searing desert sands again today but said they had little hope of adding to the 13 surviving Salvadorans who say they drank after-shave lotion and fought over drops of urine to stay alive after they were robbed and abandoned by smugglers.

"It's too late. We don't expect to find any more," said Franklin Wallace, superintendent of the 516-square-mile Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument where 13 other Salvadorans were found dead from dehydration.

The "low profile" search effort, considerably more limited than that of Sunday which produced most of the bodies and most of the survivors, was being concentrated in the area in which those bodies and survivors were found — a five-mile stretch of desert 10 or 12 miles north of the border.

"We know where to look," Wallace said. "They didn't just spread out all over the area." Most of the searchers were on foot, he said.

Perhaps a dozen of the aliens people may have trekked back to Mexico, he said.

The survivors were among some 35 to 40 middle-class Salvadorans who, officials said, paid up to $1,200 each to be smuggled into the United States and were abandoned in the park at least four days ago.

Wallace said the survivors were so incoherent and told such conflicting stories that no one was sure just how many there had been originally.

E.J. Scott, senior border Patrol Agent at Why, Ariz., said 12 women and children from the original group had been located in the Mexican city of San Luis, Sonora, about 160 miles west of Ajo. Scott said that group had never entered the park and included two children, aged 2½ and 6, who had been believed among the missing.

Officials said the smugglers are believed to have driven the Salvadorans into the park just over the border by truck, then set them out in the desert and pointed which way to go.

Temperatures in the sun-baked desert reached 100 degrees and the soil reached 150.

To stay alive, according to survivor Yolanda Estela Hernandez, 20, the Salvadorans used and fought over every liquid they could find, including their own urine.

"We put it in rags and we wiped our faces with it," she said. "It was so hot and we were so thirsty."

A search by horseback and helicopter began Friday after a motorist reported seeing a man lying by the roadside. Two bodies and 10 survivors were found Saturday, and 11 more dead and three survivors were found Sunday.

"After being tormented by the extreme desert heat," they had stripped off much of their clothing and were found covered with cactus thorns, said Dr. Joseph Rustick, who treated the survivors.

"There were thorns in their feet, thorns in their back, legs, thighs, buttocks and face — everywhere that you can imagine."

He said they drank aftershave, deodorant and their own urine. "Some of them managed to drink the moisture from cactus, and they were the smart ones."

Near a cluster of bodies found Sunday were mirrors and traces of a fire the Salvadorans had set to alert aircraft to their plight.

"It's a dirty, dirty business," said Border Patrol Agent Earl Scott, who helped search for the aliens in the well-traveled smugglers' territory.

The group included some husbands and wives, some strangers, some children and a young mother who said the smugglers took her 13-month-old child, according to The Arizona Republic.

Mrs. Hernandez said the group fought over drops of urine, deodorant and cologne, and some aliens threatened to kill others if they did not share their urine.

She also said, "I had my baby when we started and the 'coyotes' (alien smugglers) took him away. I don't know where my baby is. I want my baby."

Scott promised the smugglers would be caught, adding "This is going to be an international deal."

He said he believed the abandonment was "deliberate because all they had to do was say, 'See those mountains? Go three miles in that direction and you'll be on the highway.'"

The identities of the Salvadorans were not immediately available, although Scott said some came from the Santana region of El Salvador.

"We've had a lot of El Salvadorans through here, but never the middle class like you're seeing right now," he said. "It's probably because of the civil strife in their country."

Midland man dies after Hogan Park stabbing

Julian Ortiz Marroquin, a 19-year-old Midlander, died after a stabbing at Hogan Park Sunday night and police have a 23-year-old suspect in custody in connection with the murder. The suspect turned himself in to police Sunday night.

About 9:24 p.m., police were notified of a stab victim at 300 Fiesta Ave. While en route to Fiesta, the officers were notified that the man had turned himself in. When the officers arrived at 300 Fiesta, they found Marroquin, 19, lying on his back on the kitchen floor. Ambulance attendants said the man was dead when they arrived.

Marroquin's brother told officers the stabbing occurred after an argument at Hogan Park, in front of the Woman's Club. Danny Marroquin drove his brother, Julian, back to the house where family members lifted him from the car and carried him into the house and laid him on the kitchen floor.

Julian had a single stab wound to the chest, just above the heart. He was pronounced dead by Peace Justice John Biggs.

Carter announces visit with Chinese leader

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President Carter will confer with Chinese Premier Hua Guofeng when he visits Tokyo this week to attend a memorial service for the late Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira.

The traveling White House announced the meeting between the two leaders Sunday when it released the president's schedule for the 21-hour visit to Tokyo.

In Peking today, Hua told U.S. Senate majority leader Robert Byrd he was looking forward to his talks with Carter, the first between the two leaders. Last year, Carter met with Senior Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping when Deng was in Washington.

Hua told Byrd he had been invited to visit the United States, but for various reasons had not been able to go yet.

After Carter attended church Sunday evening for the third time in the day, he told reporters he hadn't yet set an agenda for his meeting with the Chinese leader, set for 7 p. m. EDT, Wednesday. "But we will decide before we get there," he added.

The meeting is of symbolic importance since Carter passed up an opportunity to meet with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev by not attending the May 8 funeral of Yugoslavia's Josef Broz Tito.

The Japanese are known to be delighted that Carter is attending the memorial service for Ohira, who died of a heart attack June 12, just a month after he had visited the United States. The Japanese also are happy about the presidential meeting with Hua, since they believe it will strengthen the U.S.-Japan-China relationship.

Although Hua recently paid a state visit to Japan, he decided to return for the memorial service after it was announced that Carter was going.

Carter was winding up his long holiday weekend in his hometown today with a second softball game. Sunday, Carter pitched his team to a 13-3 victory over a team headed by his brother, Billy Carter. After the game, Carter jogged for 10 minutes in a nearby field, despite temperatures near 100 degrees.

Carter arrived here late Friday.

Texas delegates don't want Bush

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — If Ronald Reagan chooses George Bush as his running mate he will have a selling job to do with his own delegates from Texas.

Telephone interviews by the Associated Press with Reagan's 61 delegates showed at least 19 of them favor New York Congressman Jack Kemp, who made a hit as a keynote at the Houston state convention.

Only seven Reagan delegates picked Bush for vice president.

Another 10 said they would respect Reagan's decision, no matter who it was, and 10 said they were uncommitted. Three favored Rep. Phillip Crane, R-Illinois. There were two votes for Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Indiana, and single votes for others.

Fifteen of Bush's 19 Texas delegates wanted him as a vice presidential candidate while one chose Reagan and another picked Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tennessee.

During his campaign, Bush said over and over he was not interested in the vice presidency. However, recently in party gatherings at San Antonio and Dallas, not open to the press, he reportedly said he would take the job if offered.

A Gallup Poll published last Friday said a survey of Republicans and independent voters indicated 29 percent favored Bush for vice president, while Baker got 15 percent and former Texas Gov. John Connally 12 percent.

Still earlier, a CBS-TV poll of most of the 2,000 GOP delegates to the national convention July 14-17 in Detroit showed Bush favored by almost 30 percent to Kemp with 20 percent and Baker with 10 percent.

In the Texas AP interviews, not a single Reagan or Bush delegate suggested Connally for vice president. Neither was there a vote for Texas Gov. Bill Clements or former Ambassador Anne Armstrong, both mentioned as vice presidential possibilities.

One Texas pollster has predicted Reagan would gain 5 to 7 percentage points among Texas voters if he picks Bush as the second man of the GOP team.

Although Bush has withdrawn from the GOP presidential campaign, the 19 Texas delegates he won in the May 3 primary will go to Detroit pledged to him. Bush says he will meet with the delegates there and ask them to vote for Reagan on the first ballot.

Under party rules, delegates are bound to support the candidate they represented in the May 3 presidential primary unless he releases them from that bond.

Jim Baker, Bush's national campaign manager, told the AP Bush would make his request for Reagan support at a meeting of all 300 Bush delegates in Detroit. No time has been set for the meeting.

Bush said he wanted the people "who stuck their necks out for me" to be rewarded with the distinction of being a delegate to the national convention. "I won't just leave them hanging."

However, Bush stressed in his withdrawal statement that he would only "ask" his delegates to vote for Reagan when he released them.

The strength of his request may depend on the shaping of the party platform now being drafted.

Most Reagan and Bush campaigners think there will be no problem with Bush delegates casting at least one for Reagan. There is no other serious candidate.

GOP writing platform attuned to candidate

DETROIT (AP) — Republicans, told that 1980 will be their "banner year," are putting the final touches on a party platform that GOP leaders say will be closely attuned to Ronald Reagan's conservative political philosophy.

But as the 106-member platform committee was meeting today to take final public testimony from GOP officials, a battle was looming over whether the document should include a plank urging ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Sen. John Tower of Texas, the platform committee chairman, said he has no intention of letting the dispute become a "street brawl" and next week's Republican National Convention at which Reagan's nomination is a foregone conclusion.

But Republican National Chairman Bill Brock told reporters on Sunday that arriving at an equal rights plank that would head off a floor fight "will be very tough, although possible."

Reagan personally opposes a plank urging ratification of the ERA, but his aides said Sunday he probably would accept a pro-ERA statement if that is what the platform committee decides.

Tower said that while Reagan won't be bound to support everything in the platform, "I don't expect anything major in the platform to be inconsistent with Governor Reagan's views." And that includes the ERA plank, he said.

The platform committee held its first session late Sunday, a closed-door organizational meeting. Today, it was to hear from Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken, former Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld and former Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns. Tower said former Secretary of State Henry M. Kissinger, who had been scheduled to appear, canceled at the last minute so he wouldn't upstage his own convention speech next week.

As the pre-convention activities began, Reagan, who is vacationing in Mexico and isn't due to arrive in Detroit until next Sunday, expanded his search for a running mate. Sources in the Reagan camp said Rep. Thomas Evans, R-Del., a former co-chairman of the Republican National Committee, has been added to the list of potential vice presidential candidates on whom extensive background information is being requested.

Other often-mentioned prospects include Sen. Richard G. Lugar of Indiana, Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, former U.N. Ambassador George Bush, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, Rep. Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan and Rumsfeld.

"It's going to be a banner year for Republicans at all levels," Vander Jagt, chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee, said in remarks prepared for today's session. "On virtually every issue, the voters see the Republican party as the best equipped to handle the problems that are worrying them."

He referred to a recently completed survey by GOP pollster Bob Teeter in which a majority of those surveyed not only favored Reagan over President Carter but felt that Republicans could do a better job than Democrats in handling all major issues except unemployment.

And Vander Jagt, who will give the keynote address at next week's Republican National Convention, said the two parties are separated by only three percentage points on the unemployment issue.

The GOP platform has contained a plank urging ratification of the ERA since 1940.

A draft of the 1980 platform, obtained by The Associated Press, attempts to strike a compromise by stating:

"We reaffirm our party's historic commitment to equal rights and equal opportunity for women, a commitment which made us the first national party to endorse the Equal Rights Amendment. We are proud of our pioneering role and do not renounce our stand."

But the draft adds: "We are deeply dismayed, however, that the basic question of justice, equal rights and fair treatment for women in our society has been sidetracked."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., an outspoken ERA opponent, said the draft language was unacceptable to him. "I think it would be better to leave the ERA out entirely," he said.

Van pooling eases traffic problem

HOUSTON (AP) — The fastest-growing mass transit system in Texas provides door-to-door service, accepts no federal subsidies and is hailed by many as a short-term solution to Houston's traffic congestion.

At last count it consisted of more than 1,000 vans operated by employers fed up with crowded highways, sky-high gasoline prices and an inadequate city bus service.

The vans already transport as many as one-fifth the number of passengers using Metropolitan Transit Authority buses and more of the 12- to 15-passenger vehicles are being put on the streets every day.

"We have a transportation success story," said Donald L. Williams, president of Rice Center, a non-profit urban research institute. "It's probably one of the most successful programs in the country."

In 1975 there were 10 vans operating as commuter service in Houston. That figure reached 242 in 1978, 861 in 1979 and may top the 1,300 mark by the end of 1980.

About 3,000 vans operate in commuter pools nationwide. Almost half of those are in Texas, while more than one-third operate in Houston.

Van pooling began in Houston as a small-scale operation by a handful of large corporations and has expanded to 52 operators including Houston Independent School District, one hospital and two department stores. The backbone for most of the large-scale operators is a computer capable of matching riders by location and work schedule.

Texas Medical Center, the sprawling medical complex which employs as many as 40,000 persons, is serviced by a third-party operator with a fleet of 21 vans.

A spokesperson for the service said several thousand Medical Center employees are on waiting lists for van seats. As soon as funding is approved more vans will be added to the service. Hermann Hospital, one of the medical centers in the complex operates its own 20-van fleet.

HISD is planning a 100-van fleet for this fall. All of the district's 1,500 employees have been entered in a computer memory, making them instantly available for car pool or van pool matching.

The two largest van pool operators are Gulf Oil Corp. and Brown & Root, Inc., which each run more than 100 vans in Houston.

Cost of a 50-mile round trip on any of the dozens of van pools ranges from $15 to $50 a month, with most services breaking even at approximately $35.

Employers say they have been forced to provide their own transportation solutions due to MTA's inadequate bus service.

Midland man drowns at Moss Creek Lake

BIG SPRING — A 22-year-old Midland man who was out on a Fourth of July family outing here Friday afternoon drowned in Moss Creek Lake, as he was swimming from a fishing dock to an incoming boat.

The man, Thomas Pina of 407 N. Baird St. in Midland, suddenly went under during the swim, surfaced once, yelled "Help!" and disappeared about 5:30 p.m., according to witnesses. His body was recovered by divers almost a hour later in about 15 feet of water.

Pina's wife, Elizabeth, who witnessed the drowning, said her husband was a good swimmer and that he had been in the water only a short time when he yelled for help. Big Spring police Sgt. Jimmy Wallace investigated the incident.

percent sales tax two years ago to overhaul the MTA, but most of the money is being saved for long-range plans.

MTA has upgraded many of its existing bus routes, but, according to an MTA spokesperson, it has not significantly increased the number of buses in the last year.

Rice Center estimates only 8 percent of the city's commuters will depend on MTA by 1990. The other 92 percent will be driving alone, car pooling and van pooling.

According to Williams, commuters cannot expect much relief in the next five years from either an increase in highway lanes or MTA transport systems.

"The short-term solutions are in car pooling and van pooling — anything that takes the existing system and allows it to handle more people," he said.

MTA has encouraged these short-term solutions by developing a computerized car pool matching service and by helping develop a contraflow lane for use by buses and vans with more than eight passenger.

Approximately 20,000 potential car poolers register with the car pool program every month.

Williams said congestion will get worse before it gets better, but he added the problem has already been alleviated by a higher average of occupants per vehicle. "Look at it this way," he said. "If we raise the average number of occupants from 1.2 to 2.4 we'll have half as many cars on the road."

Inmates end hunger strike

JACKSON, Ga. (AP) — An 11-day hunger strike by 13 prisoners on Death Row here ended without any change in prison conditions, a prison spokeswoman says.

The prisoners in cellblock H-3 at the Georgia Diagnostic and Classification Center near Jackson had refused to eat, asking for better medical care, outdoor exercise, window screens and weekly religious services.

"All came off of it (the strike) for the evening meal on Saturday night," prison spokeswoman Sara Engle said. "I imagine they did it because of hunger."

Mrs. Engle said all the striking inmates became ill after eating Saturday night and were treated in the prison medical ward. All were in good condition by Sunday.

No changes were made at the prison as a result of the strike, she said. "Their complaints are being investigated, but there have not been any changes in procedure as a result of the hunger strike," she said.

However, Patsy Morris, who monitors death penalty cases for the Georgia chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said the strike may have been valuable for the prisoners.

"It has brought the men on H-3 together, and I think they all understand the need to work together to change the intolerable conditions under which they live," Ms. Morris said Sunday.

Ship keels over

LA SPEZIA, Italy (AP) — Firemen today extinguished the blaze aboard the Leonardo da Vinci hours after the former pride of the Italian shipping line keeled over on its side in La Spezia harbor.

The fire, believed caused by a short circuit, broke out last Thursday on the 32,000-ton liner which was taken out of service three years ago and was awaiting dismantling.

Heat wave into fifteenth day

By The Associated Press

After a sizzling holiday weekend, the South and Southwest faced more blistering temperatures as the heat wave that has claimed at least 142 lives entered its 15th day.

The death toll today stood at 86 in Texas, 28 in Arkansas, 17 in Oklahoma, 5 in Kansas, 3 in Louisiana and one each in Missouri, Mississippi and Alabama.

In Arkansas, the National Weather Service said the outlook for the rest of the summer was for continued sizzling temperatures.

"The type weather pattern we're seeing usually comes later in the summer," said forecaster Mike Thompson at Little Rock. "But because it has been established earlier than normal we have a chance of seeing above normal temperatures later this summer."

Three Arkansas residents succumbed to the heat Sunday. One person collapsed after digging in the yard and two others were found inside their homes in Lawrence County, where temperatures reached 104 degrees Sunday.

In Oklahoma, railroad tracks expanded after two weeks of sweltering temperatures and caused a 15-car freight train to derail near Fort Gibson late Saturday, said Missouri Pacific Railroad officials.

No injuries were reported. Temperatures were at or above 100 degrees in many parts of Kansas on the last day of the holiday weekend and forecasts predicted no letup in the heat. Wichita sizzled under a record 107 — the eighth time since June 24 that Kansas's largest city has tied or broken a maximum temperature record.

The 107-degree reading broke Wichita's 105-degree record set in 1954. Hutchinson reported 107 degrees, with Belleville, Hill City, and Beloit baking at 105. A high of 103 degrees was reported in Chanute, Dodge City, Emporia, Goodland and Lawrence, while the mercury in Topeka and Coffeyville was at 100.

UTPB awards go to ex-MC students

Four former Midland College students are the recipients of The University of Texas of the Permian Basin Merit Award for the 1980-81 academic year at UTPB.

Reba Parsley, Dennis Lee Turner, Marita A. Mercurio and Stephanie S. Banta will receive the $250 per semester award which is available to students ranking in the top 20 percent of their class at a participating community college. The student must be recommended by the president of that college.

Only 11 students have received the award this year.

Cultists upset because Pope is ignoring them

SALVADOR, Brazil (AP) — Followers of candomble, northeast Brazil's popular spiritist cult, are upset because Pope John Paul II is ignoring them during his visit to this center of their form of Christianity.

"The Catholic Church benefited from candomble," said Eduardo Mangabeira Jr., whose father runs one of the cult's many temples in Brazil's first colonial capital and still speaks the Yoruba tongue of his Nigerian slave forebears. "Now it turns its back on us, although we consider ourselves Christians."

The candomblists are upset because the pope is not making the climb up the steps of Our Lord of Bonfim, Salvador's most popular Catholic church, which thousands of Brazilians make in repayment for prayers answered or for elimination of the "evil eye."

Instead "the mountain is coming to Mohammed," said Mangabeira. The statue of Bonfim was to be presented to the pope during an open-air Mass today and a woman in folk costume was to carry fruit to the altar during the offertory to the sound of drums used during candomble ceremonies.

Candomble was brought to Brazil by West African slaves and practiced in tandem with Christianity when the Portuguese colonialists forced the Africans to convert to Roman Catholicism.

While the Vatican considers Brazil the largest Catholic country in the world and counts 104 million of the 123 million Brazilians as Catholics, the national bishops' conference admits that as many as 80 percent of the total population revere "private saints" not recognized by the church.

Near the lush tropical beach or in the wretched swamp slums of Salvador, hundreds of drums thump out the candomble beat every night, calling down the "orixas" or spirits identified with Roman Catholic saints.

When they were forced to convert to Catholicism, the slaves coupled each of the spirits they had looked to with a Roman Catholic saint. Ogum, god of iron and of war, became St. Anthony. Oxossi, god of the hunters, became St. George, the dragon slayer. Oba, goddess of the rivers, became St. Joan of Arc.

Some practitioners say the pope is a son of Ogum because the god of iron is responsible for guiding people's destinies.

Tourists flock to volcano

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Tourists by the thousands flocked to a new visitor center near Mount St. Helens over the Fourth of July weekend, while the volcano itself spent a quiet holiday.

More than 10,000 visitors jammed the double-wide mobile trailer which features photographs of the mountain, books, video tapes and live seismographs of the volcano.

Lectures and explanations of exhibits were provided by personnel from the U.S. Forest Service, which set up the center north of Vancouver on Interstate 5, about 30 miles southwest of Mount St. Helens.

Meanwhile, the volcano was quiet, although a series of small earthquakes rattled an area nine miles south of the peak Sunday evening, according to a spokesman for the University of Washington geophysics laboratory.

But spokesman Bob Norris said the tremors were not directly related to the volcano.

The quakes, which ranged in level from 2 to 3.2 on the Richter scale, could have resulted from a readjustment of stresses in the region or from fault activity independent of the mountain, Norris said. A quake of magnitude 2 is the smallest normally felt by humans.

The quakes did not seem to have an effect on the volcano, said Rick Schuster of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. He said an ash-free steam plume rose to 10,000 feet above the mountain, a typical height for recent weeks.

And steam filled the crater of the southwestern Washington volcano Sunday, blocking the view of a glowing dome of crusted lava that formed in recent weeks.

Mount St. Helens started rumbling in late March and has erupted three times, but has been relatively quiet for about three weeks. Figuring out what the period of quiet means is challenging scientists, said Tim Hait of the U.S. Geological Survey.

"One possibility is that we're heading into a period of apparent dormancy," Hait said. "Another possibility is that we're somewhere between major eruptive periods."

"At this point, we can't tell which of these possibilities is more likely."

Forty persons still are missing and presumed dead from the cataclysmic May 18 eruption. Authorities have recovered 25 bodies from the disaster area.

The blast spewed ash east across three states into central Montana. Two other eruptions, May 25 and June 12, sent ash south over Portland, Ore., and west to the Pacific Coast.

Erasers restore church

LEE, Mass. (AP) — What are Linda Tucker and six assistants doing with $250 worth of green rubber erasers? They're erasing the inside of the 123-year-old First Congregational Church in an effort to save its unique wall paintings.

Ms. Tucker, a historical conservationist from Cambridge, has been working at the church for the past five weeks, trying to remove the accumulated dirt and grime on the 12,000 square feet of the church's sanctuary.

As an expert in art restoration who studied in Florence, Italy, she was faced with a problem: How to remove the dirt without also taking off the water-soluble trompe l'oeil on the church's walls and ceilings.

The design, created by two German artists over a century ago, uses different shades of gray to create the illusion of large three-dimensional panels on the bare walls and columns behind the altar.

Ms. Tucker said solvents could be used to clean the dirt, but the use of the chemicals was potentially dangerous. She had done some experimenting with erasers while trying to figure out how to clean the town hall in Claremont, N.H.

"I worked for over three hours with everything in my test kit," she said. "Then it occurred to me to try an eraser. It went through my mind that this was crazy but it was just perfect."

Ash Robinson seeks peace, quiet in Florida

HOUSTON (AP) — In the 11 years following the death of Joan Robinson Hill, Ash Robinson often stood in the center of controversy. Now, he just wants to be left alone.

"We wanted to get away from all those damn calls and sightseers coming by the house," Robinson, 82, said in explaining why he and his wife, Rhea, moved to Pensacola, Fla., 18 months ago.

Robinson, in an interview with the Houston Post, said he moved shortly after he was given a pacemaker for his heart. He said the death of his daughter has left him with a reputation he doesn't particularly care for.

"I'm notorious, that's a good way to put it," he said in an interview with the Houston Post. "Like Al Capone or some of those characters."

In part, the notoriety was self-imposed. He blamed Dr. John Hill for the death of his only child in March, 1969. Hill was indicted for murder, had one mistrial and was gunned down in 1972 before a second trial took place.

Bobby Wayne Vandiver, Hill's alleged murderer, was gunned down by police in Longview before he went to trial. Marcia McKittrick, who drove the getaway car, testified that Robinson gave Lilla Paulus $25,000 to have Hill killed.

"I didn't want him (Hill) dead," Robinson said. "I wanted him convicted. If I wanted him killed, why in the hell did I wait all that time after Joan was dead?"

The latest round in the Hill-Robinson controversy ended in June when a civil suit, filed by grandson Robert Ashton "Boo" Hill accusing Robinson of causing the death of John Hill, was dismissed.

The suit, plus Robert Hill's refusal to deed his mother's grave plot to Robinson, destroyed the relationship between the two, says Robinson.

Teachers flex their political muscles with endorsement, varied resolutions

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The nation's second-largest employee organization, the 1.8-million-member National Education Association, made it clear at its convention here that it is a new political force to be reckoned with.

Delegates to the annual gathering, after making only their second presidential endorsement, adopted a wide variety of resolutions having little to do with education.

And at their final session Sunday, delegates voted to lobby Congress to affirm the "responsibility" of women to register for the draft and heard Florida Gov. Bob Graham salute them for flexing their political muscle.

"Well, he wanted some great big amount of money (for the plot) to pay off what they owed in court," Robinson said. "I told him I wouldn't do that."

"So that's when I came to the conclusion he just wasn't worth fooling with. I'm fairly convinced Boo is not worthy of my sympathy."

Mrs. Robinson feels differently. "I love him," she says simply. "He's still Joan's son and that's the way she would have wanted it."

While they differ over their feelings for their only grandchild, there is no question Ash and Rhea Robinson still love — perhaps worship — their daughter.

"We had a swimming pool there," Robinson says of the River Oaks home where they once lived, "and when Joan was living, she had a helluva lot of company."

"I mean, we had this piano in the rumpus room and we kept the icebox full of food and they'd all come over and swim and eat all day and dance and sing," he said.

Then, after she died, we'd go into the rumpus room or out around the swimming pool and we could see her sitting there with her friends around.

"It was just like a tomb," he said. Mrs. Robinson, 80, fills her time with soap operas, shopping and eating out with friends. But she remembers her daughter.

"I can never forget," she said. "You try to escape those memories, but you never can. I'll carry it to the grave."

As in their Houston home, the memories of Joan are everywhere, memories that reveal a single-minded devotion to an only child.

Above Robinson's bed hangs a yellow picture of a pretty young girl, sitting on the floor. More pictures of Joan, from infancy to her horse show triumphs of adulthood, giving the Robinson house the appearance of a giant scrapbook.

The years since his daughter's death have not been kind to Ash Robinson. He has contracted Parkinson's disease and is able to walk only short distances.

He eats sparingly, often having only a glass of milk and a slice of dry toast for lunch.

But the frail appearance of a once-robust independent oilman is deceiving. He does not seek pity, nor does he allow it.

"If someone tells me something I don't like, I just tell them to go to hell. If they repeat it, I tell them, 'You son of a bitch, you better shut up.' So I make people mad. But whatever I think is right, I'll do."

"I know most of my faults. I don't know of any virtue, but I know I've got one helluva lotta faults," he said. "I know I'm abrasive in a lot of things and I know I'm unreasonable in a lot of things," he said. "I make up my mind and I go ahead with it until the end. That's not any virtue at all."

Despite his illness, he often spends his days in the office of a Pensacola brokerage firm, watching the stock market. Ernestine Connell, a friend of Joan's, drives him to and from the office. She also helps the Robinsons run their home.

"The way I feel for Ernestine is just like I would of Joan," Robinson said. "Joan would do anything on earth for me and Ernestine does the same thing."

Even though he expresses a desire for a quiet, gentle life that has eluded him for so long, Robinson's activities often contradict his wishes.

He has filed a $20 million libel suit against Thomas Thompson, author of "Blood and Money" and Doubleday & Co., the publisher of the book that chronicled his daughter's death and the events that followed.

He says there are "loose ends" that need to be tied up, but adds he doesn't really have much else to do. "I'm not really interested in anything else now. I don't have any interests in life any more."

"I'm not happy about being crippled," he said, "but I know I'm 82 years old and my life is just about over. Whenever I can take what is left, I take it the best I can."

"And when it's over, it's over."

Siamese survives long trip in crate

TUKWILA, Wash. (AP) — The ride was free, but the Siamese cat may have used up eight of her nine lives during a 22-day trip in a packing crate.

The crate, in a metal trailer that had traveled mostly by barge from Fairbanks, Alaska, was unloaded Saturday by six movers here.

In the midst of the job, the Lincoln Moving & Storage Co. Inc. employees spied a grey lump of fur in one of the boxes.

"At first we thought it was a big rat. Nobody wanted to touch it," one employee remembered. It was Tony Jackson who had the courage to reach in and pull out the creature — a female Siamese cat.

"She was blind and she wasn't making a sound," Jackson said. After her liberation, she started meowing weakly, then with growing strength.

The other workers stared in disbelief. "She was in a cardboard carton that had been closed 22 days ago," said Bill Scott.

The cat had chewed through the carton. But confronted by other boxes and the meat walls of the trailer, she couldn't escape and so took refuge in a pile of clothes in the original box.

The cat refused to eat until Scott moistened his fingers with milk. She began to lick. The next offering, spareribs from a lunchpail, disappeared in minutes.

Terry Austin, meanwhile, sped to a store for cat litter and food.

"I got Nine Lives," Austin said. "I thought it was appropriate." The cat soon recovered from its temporary sun blindness and was growing stronger with each meow.

According to company records, the household goods belonged to Spec. 5 George Estes, who was being transferred from Fort Wainwright, Alaska, to Fort Belvoir, Va.

One Fort Belvoir duty officer said Estes had arrived but could not be reached. On Sunday, however, another officer said Estes had not yet arrived and could locate no one who knew when he would. Many officers take long leaves before reporting after a transfer.

"It's possible it's not the guy's cat, but then it was his clothes," Jackson said.

He said it was lucky for the cat that the crew worked Saturday.

"If we hadn't worked that day, the cat might have been dead by the time we came in the next day," he said.

Despite lack of information on her possible owner, the cat remained in special "storage" at the moving company.

Mutual help needed

Texas and Mexico share several hundred miles of border and, not unexpectedly, several common problems.
 But Texas isn't the only state in the United States that shares this special relationship with our neighbor to the south. So do New Mexico, Arizona and California. And these other states — all of them, in some instances — are impacted by Mexico's proximity to the United States.

Residents in this area of Texas probably would think first of the illegal alien problem when considering the relationship between the two nations. But that's far from the only mutual concern of the two countries.
 Others that come to mind immediately include pollution, tourism, agriculture, industrial development, energy and commerce.
 Each country does have an influence on the other's customs, heritage and lifestyle. And it's because of that impact that 10 governors from Southwestern states — California Gov. Edmund Brown was notably absent — met to discuss topics of mutual concern.
 This wasn't the first such international meeting between the two nations and a plea was extended during this session to make the governors' group a permanent commission to carry out proposals made at the meeting, held this time in Juarez, Mexico.
 That suggestion certainly has merit.
 Good relations need to be maintained between the border states and Mexico, and that can best be accomplished by both nations working together to solve mutual problems.
 Working together, the two nations should be able to exploit the most favorable possibilities while minimizing the impact of any unfavorable situations on either nation.
 By relying on each other, we should be able to curtail our dependence on other nations further removed and build this portion of the Western Hemisphere into an international powerhouse of trade and industrial development.
 With the world political and economic climate the way it is today, it would be foolish not to pursue regular meetings between Southwestern states and Mexico.

Supporting a theory

The "Domino theory" was first advanced by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1954 and cited by succeeding presidents as justification for American involvement in the war in Vietnam.
 The assumption was that if any one nation of Southeast Asia were to fall to communism, the others would follow in the manner of a line of dominoes. As the conflict between North and South Vietnam dragged on, the domino theory became the target of scorn of anti-war groups.
 After the United States withdrew from South Vietnam and Saigon fell to the communists from the north in 1975, the North Vietnamese lost little time in taking over disorganized Cambodia.
 Now communist troops are massed on the borders of Thailand, well-equipped and financed by the Soviet Union. Chinese communists, too, are determined to protect their stake in the area and have deployed their own troops along the border with Vietnam.
 The United States, which saw its economy and its image damaged with its long support of South Vietnam and the subsequent collapse of the effort, has pledged to come to Thailand's aid in the event of a major attack.

 An airlift of weapons was prepared to expedite shipment of artillery, mortars, machine guns, ammunition and radar equipment to help the Thais withstand attacks.
 But there will be no introduction of American troops, such as that in Vietnam, without the approval of Congress — an unlikely eventuality.
 The maneuvering of the several communist factions in Indochina is indicative of the continued interest in changing the political character of the entire peninsula. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon would take little pleasure in finding their worst fears confirmed.
 To the extent that it is able, the United States must give Thailand the help that it needs and deserves as a long-time friend.

INSIDE REPORT:

Reagan's call for tax cut supported by his determination

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan's preemptive strike on tax reduction, which sent Democratic politicians reeling in confusion, was not, as commonly perceived, a masterpiece of astute strategists but the end product of confused backroom machinations that accidentally wound up happily.
 Reagan's call for an immediate tax cut was not even contemplated a week before it happened. It began as an end run around his senior staff by one outside adviser, partly to undercut Reagan's tenacious adherence to Rep. Jack Kemp's tax reduction theories. Instead, it wound up supporting Kemp while still placating his enemies, and put President Carter and the Democrats on the defensive.
 "This shows the virtues of disorganization," one Reagan insider told us. "If we ever get organized we may be in trouble." Reagan's accidental masterpiece never could have happened in a tightly controlled campaign, such as Richard Nixon's. But it also showed that Reagan will not be deflected from his course of sustained tax reduction.
 The central figure in what happened was Dr. Charis E. Walker, a former deputy secretary of the treasury and now a Washington super-lobbyist. He had been economic adviser of fellow Texan John B. Connally's ill-fated presidential campaign, but turned up as chairman of Reagan's tax policy committee immediately after Connally's collapse.
 Walker's first step in his new role was to criticize the economic speech delivered by Reagan April 8 to the American Society of Newspaper Editors. That speech, written mainly by Kemp, was one prolonged cheer for the Kemp-Roth bill to reduce individual income taxes 10 percent a year for three years. Like his corporate clients, Walker tends to traditionalist Republican hostility against such populist tax reduction.

 Walker tried all spring to get Reagan on record in cutting down or stretching out Kemp-Roth — without success. He also wanted to get Reagan out front for a bill panted after by corporate business, traditionalist Republicans and Charley Walker: faster tax depreciation for new business equipment. This collided with growing determination in Reagan's inner circle not to say anything, to sit on his lead in true Nixonian fashion.
 Walker solved that with characteristic audacity. On June 20 in Chicago, Reagan met with big business supporters. Walker turned ritual into policy-making by warning that Carter might well preempt Reagan on tax cuts. So, why not propose a one-year 10 percent tax cut, with business depreciation attached? Great idea, said Reagan. Reagan's principal policy-making staffers were outflanked, taken by surprise.

 Dr. Martin Anderson, Reagan's top domestic adviser, was left high, dry and visibly angry back in California. ("That will teach him not to attend meetings," cracked Walker.) Also marooned was Kemp, his long tax-cut courtship of Reagan seemingly wiped away by one afternoon in Chicago.
 Kemp was not even aware of what had happened until four days later, when he and his ally, Rep. David Stockman of Michigan, were summoned across the Capitol to Sen. Robert Dole's office. There they found Charley Walker sprawled across the sofa, holding a statement proposed for Reagan's release in Los Angeles the next day.
 The Walker-written statement had removed the Kemp-Roth label plus two years of the tax cut, while designating Walker's corporate tax break as "the widely supported Capital Cost Recovery Act." Kemp and Stockman protested. Rather than fight, Walker asked Stockman to try rewriting it.
 Stockman did, making clear this was "only the first installment of a permanent program" to cut taxes. In Los Angeles, Reagan immediately agreed. The final version contained Stockman's language, removed the puffy describing Walker's depreciation bill and pledged a three-year tax cut with counter-inflationary tax indexing in the fourth year. "Charley Walker will have a baby over this," one Senate aide predicted.
 Actually, Walker was content to "decouple" the first from the second two years of Kemp-Roth; he will fight about the future if and when Reagan is president. Everybody was happy. Kemp had the three-year concept restored; traditional Republicans such as Rep. Barber Conable of New York were happy to support a one-year tax cut purged of Jack Kemp's label. What about Reagan's pledge for two more years of tax cutting? "I didn't read the statement," Conable said blandly, emphasizing the immediate legislation is for only one year.

 So, the front page of the June 26 Washington Post showed all manner of Republican senators and House members posing together on the Capitol Plaza to endorse Reagan's tax reduction. They had come together on a popular issue, glossed over their differences, overcome the front-running campaign staff's inclination to play it safe and stolen a long march on the Democrats. It was made possible by the looser of campaign structures and Ronald Reagan's own determination to stick by an idea whose time he thinks has come.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Tiny Togo's Eyadema claims he's divine

WASHINGTON — Almost a decade ago, I introduced Idi Amin, the mad ruler of Uganda, to a world that had taken little notice of him. He strutted for a while on the world stage until his ignominious fall from power last year.
 Now his place as the world's most asinine despot has been taken by a flamboyant man with the unpronounceable name of Etienne Gnassingbe Eyadema. He rules the 2.4 million people of the small West African nation of Togo with a flair which, if set to music, would make comic opera.
 He is square-shouldered and close-cropped, his massive bulk too big for his stature, with a deep, resonant voice such as one expects to hear call sinners to the Last Judgment. His talk is rambling and his temper short, suggesting an exasperation over the inability of others to see those simple truths that are so clear to him.
 Although he is less bloodyhanded than Idi Amin, Eyadema's attempt to portray himself as a living god indicates that he is cut from the same cloth. Here are some examples of his reach for divinity:
 — Portraits of the 44-year-old president-for-life, wearing the wings of an angel, are displayed in government and private offices throughout Togo.
 — Eyadema buttons showing the dictator's smiling face are worn like boutonnieres on lapels throughout the country.
 — Eyadema not only makes most of the news in Togo; he also reports it. He is the Walter Cronkite of Togolese television, reading the evening news himself.
 — A shrine has been erected at the site of a plane crash from which Eyadema escaped unharmed while four others perished. The wreckage of the plane has been enshrined, and the date of the crash has been declared a national holiday.
 — A $250,000 vanity-press comic book, recounting Eyadema's miraculous survival of the plane crash, starts out in fairy-tale fashion: "Once upon a time there was Eyadema ..."
 — The erstwhile army sergeant uses such titles as "guide of the nation," "the helmsman," "leader of the new march" and "source of knowledge."
 The reality of Eyadema's rule is less saintly, however, than his propaganda would suggest. With a handful of other non-commissioned officers in the French-trained Togolese army, he seized power from President Sylvanus Olympio in 1963.
 In the past, Eyadema has boasted that he personally killed Olympio, but he denied this in a recent interview. The murdered president's son, Gilchrist Olympio, now a businessman living in Paris, has been trying to oust Eyadema from power.
 Gilchrist Olympio told my reporters Bob Sherman and Katherine Koch: "Eyadema has rounded up entire families, even entire tribes, and held them incommunicado from the outside world. One tribe was picked up and held in the desert last year and about 200 people died."
 When my reporters telephoned the palace for comment, the tyrant of

Jack Anderson

Togo handled the call himself. He responded in resonant French, gracious to begin, then increasingly bellicose. He denied all charges, finally cutting off the conversation with an abrupt: "I have no time to talk about this nonsense."
 DO AS I SAY: Richard Daschbach, the flamboyant chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission, has ordered a crackdown on the staff's official travel. "Only essential" trips could be taken, he warned. So stringent were the travel restrictions that the commission's hearing lawyers had to cancel a trip to San Francisco to take depositions.
 Meanwhile, however, Daschbach himself was flying off at public expense on "essential" trips to Palm Springs (that well-known maritime center), Rio de Janeiro, Honolulu, London, Madrid, Buenos Aires and San Juan. The total tab came to $9,500.
 And the agency's general counsel, Brien Kehoe, who often travels with Daschbach, spent more than $6,000 of the commission's travel kitty.
 When asked about his globe-trotting, the peripatetic chairman said it was necessary to represent the commission at official functions. "If I didn't think it was necessary, I wouldn't do it," he assured my staff.
 POLITICAL POTPOURRI: Independent presidential candidate John Anderson will ask each House member to put aside party loyalty and pledge to follow his state's popular vote in case the presidential election is thrown into the House ... Anderson would like to entice one of the following Democrats to join him on the independent ticket: New York's Gov. Hugh Carey or Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, Illinois' retiring Sen. Adlai Stevenson III or Colorado's Sen. Gary Hart ... Contrary to published reports, Ronald Reagan hasn't narrowed down his vice presidential choices but is still considering several possibilities, a close confidant told me ... President Carter's political managers will try to portray rival Reagan, in contrast, as a hardliner who would be reckless with military power.
 THANKS, BUT NO: Margaret Truman Daniel enjoyed her recent visit to the National Press Club, but firmly declined her hosts' request that she perch atop the club's old upright piano for a picture. It was the same piano that was the setting for a famous World War II photo of her father, the late president, at the keyboard, grinning up at a sultry starlet named Lauren Bacall.
 BOMBING ALREADY? Employees of the new Department of Health and Human Services refer to it frequently by the code name "H2S" — which happens to be the chemical symbol for hydrogen sulfide, the stuff that gives stinkbombs that sickening rotten-egg smell.

CHARLEY REESE

Carter and Muskie are not honorable men

Charley Reese

President Carter's summit meeting and Secretary of State Edmund Muskie's rhetoric over the incursion by Vietnamese troops into Thailand illustrate the Alice in Wonderland madness of the Carter Administration.
 The president used the summit trip as a media event for his campaign. Nothing he said publicly in Europe has any relevance. Then he came home and pronounced his trip a success. He said the allies are unified.
 Horsefeathers. The Europeans support neither our call for sanctions against Iran or the boycott of the Moscow Olympics. The French and Germans are meeting separately with the Kremlin. The Europeans have begun their own Middle East initiative which promises to sabotage the Camp David efforts. Unity? Carter lied as is his habit.
 We must halt this business of allowing our leaders to lie routinely before we are declared insane by the rest of the world's nations.
 The distance between Carter and reality is nowhere better illustrated than in his proposal for a neutral government in Afghanistan which would — get this — insure that there would be no reprisals against Soviet sympathizers after the Soviet army leaves.
 Point one: The Soviet army has no intention of leaving nor do the Soviets have any intention of accepting a neutral government. Why does Carter think they invaded Afghanistan in the first place? To install a pro-Soviet government. They have succeeded. They suffer nothing nor will they. Both Carter and the Europeans are powerless to force them out.
 Point two: Why is the president concerned about the fate of Soviet sympathizers who have murdered and tortured innocents?
 Point three: There won't be any anti-Soviets left alive to take reprisals after the Soviets have finished "pacifying" the country.
 And now for Muskie who rushed off to Southeast Asia to proclaim the Vietnamese border incursion a threat to peace. What peace? Where is there any peace? Every non-communist nation on this planet is fighting this moment communist subversion, communist terrorists, communist guerrillas or communist troops.
 Muskie furthermore is one of those men who is responsible for the present bloodshed in Southeast Asia. Muskie proclaimed the domino theory poppycock. He has never admitted his mistake even though Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam fell like dominoes.
 Muskie is one of those who voted to cut off U.S. aid to South Vietnam and Cambodia, an act which condemned them both. He has never publicly admitted this error which has already cost millions of human lives.
 Now, when it is politically convenient, Muskie plays the tough guy. That is deception. Muskie's record in the Senate is one of consistent appeasement and disarmament. Not only does he share responsibility for the slaughter in Cambodia and now Thailand, he shares personal responsibility for our criminally weak defense posture.
 In the old days of honorable men, Muskie and others like him would borrow a sword and fall on it, for they have truly committed unforgivable errors which have already cost millions of human lives and may yet cost millions more.
 But men like Muskie and Carter have no honor. They are mental and moral midgets. They don't understand what they are doing and feel no responsibility for their acts. They are a threat to peace, freedom, and human life.

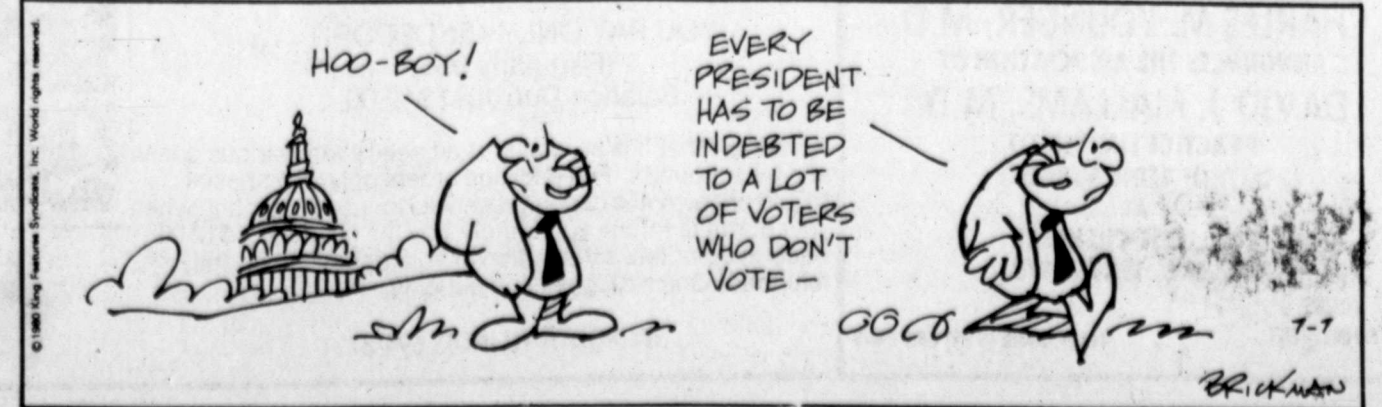

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, July 7, the 189th day of 1980. There are 177 days left in the year.
 Today's highlight in history: in 1846, the United States annexed California, as the American flag was raised at Monterey after the surrender of the Mexican garrison.
 On this date:
 In 1801, the black general, Toussaint L'Ouverture, proclaimed Haiti's independence from France.
 In 1865, four people were hanged after being named as accomplices of John Wilkes Booth in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln.
 In 1898, the United States annexed Hawaii.
 In 1958, President Dwight Eisenhower signed a bill making Alaska the 49th state.
 Ten years ago, Romania and the Soviet Union signed a 20-year friendship treaty.
 Last year, the United States and China signed a new trade agreement granting Peking most-favored-nation status.
 Today's birthdays: Singer Ringo Starr is 40, French fashion designer Pierre Cardin is 57.
 Thought for today: Nothing in life is to be feared. It is only to be understood. — Marie Curie (1867-1934)

Miami riot widow bitter

MIAMI (AP) — Tina Higdon is 20 years old, a widow with three small children and a fourth on the way. Grieving and bitter over her husband Benny's death in the Miami race rioting, she's short of money and uncertain about her future.

"Now there's a big hole in my life," she says. "I'm just figuring it day to day. That's the only way you can take it."

Unable to pay her rent, she moved in with her parents, Roy and Frances Owens, who also were mourning their 15-year-old son Robert, killed along with Higdon and a friend.

While money and attention are focused on rebuilding the riot-scarred black sections of Miami, not a penny of special aid — nor a word of consolation — has come from officials to Mrs. Higdon or the Owenses, the family says. Her only income now is widow's benefits from Social Security.

"To us, it makes us feel like our kids were thrown on the garbage heap, that nobody cares," says Owens. "President Carter comes down here and looks at all the damage, but nobody says a word to us."

"We're poor folks, and we went $6,000 in debt to pay for the funerals."

Benny Higdon, Robert Owens and Charles Barreca were heading home from a fishing trip May 17 when a mob dragged them from their car at an intersection in Liberty City and beat them to death with boards and chunks of concrete. The three were the first victims of the rioting that claimed 15 other lives and caused more than $100 million in damages.

"I can see them beating them in the head, that's what tears me up," Owens says. "I don't know how to explain it to you. You want to reach out for them, and they're not there. It's like having your guts torn out."

No agreement near in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — As a strike by 9,000 municipal workers entered its seventh day today, a union spokesman conceded that bargainers for the city and its striking employees still were far from agreement eight days from the start of the Republican National Convention.

Talks between the city and Council 25 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees recessed early today to allow union representatives to review a new counter-proposal.

Meanwhile, Republican Party platform committee members began arriving for hearings that were to open today.

The strike, which began last week, idled city buses and left garbage to pile up in neighborhoods. Department of Public Works supervisors escorted by Detroit police cleared downtown areas Saturday.

The walkout was "having no effect whatsoever" on early convention activities, said convention manager Robert Carter.

With some 20,000 conventioners and 8,000 journalists from around the world expected to converge on the nation's sixth-largest city July 14, Mayor Coleman Young is pleading for labor peace.

Chief negotiators for both sides held a 3½-hour meeting with Young on Sunday night. But after the session, Lloyd Simpson, chief negotiator for AFSCME Council 25, said, "we are no closer" to an agreement.

"We got the mayor's clear understanding on some of the major economic issues which was an important point," said chief city negotiator Merk Ulicny said.

However, he said, "there has not been enough of a change in the wide range of issues to mean a settlement anytime (soon)."

A city bargainer who asked not to be identified said 13 of 46 supplemental contracts — in addition to a master contract — were unsettled.

AFSCME members began their strike June 30 when three-year contracts covering clerks, bus mechanics, and sanitation and recreation workers expired. About 1,300 bus drivers represented by the Amalgamated Transit Union were laid off because buses could not be maintained.

A total of 57 union locals represent Detroit's 23,000 employees, but AFSCME settlements were expected to set precedents for others who stayed on the job.

Mandatory overtime, working conditions, and disciplinary and grievance procedures were said to be major stumbling blocks, in addition to union demands for cost-of-living allowances and base pay increases.

"In 1977 we reached an agreement that was more beneficial to the mayor than to the people," Simpson added. "It was the members' fault. They wanted the money up front. Now with inflation at 18 percent, we realize the importance of COLA (cost of living allowances)."

Prior to a Saturday counter-proposal, the union reportedly was seeking generous COLA and base pay increases that would total about 12 percent over three years. The city reportedly had declined to increase base pay but would provide 3 percent wage increases each year through COLA.

Simpson called Saturday's counter-offer "our final proposal" and said economic points had not changed.

The starting salary for a clerk under the former contract was $10,380 with a $488 raise after one year, according to Personnel Department figures. Bus mechanics averaged $19,644 annually and sanitation workers, $15,854.

Young said Thursday that each 1 percent raise could cost 150 city jobs as officials struggle with a $70 million deficit in the $1.49 billion fiscal 1980 budget.

Cures for bad buys

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

The following are what I consider bad buys in fabrics.

Bad buy: One-way designs for which you did not allow enough extra yardage.

Cure: Select a different pattern. Not your favorite solution? I know. But turning a pattern piece the wrong way on a one-way design shouts "homemade dress," and we don't want that.

Extra yardage is necessary—for one-way designs, plaids, horizontal, uneven stripes and napped fabrics. If your pattern does not indicate "with nap" yardage, add one-fourth-yard for each one yard you buy. Any you have left over after cutting out your pattern is not considered a waste since you must have extra fabric to work out your pieces.

Bad buy: Remnants that are not large enough for anything.

Cure: Look before you buy. One yard to one-and-one-fourth-yard of 60-inch doubleknit is enough for a skirt. But the same yardage in 45-inch fabric may not be. For a simple top from 60-inch fabric you will need only the necessary length. All remnants should be marked with yardage and width. If not, ask the clerk to measure it for you.

Impulse buying of remnants has furnished many a shelf in many a sewing room. Be sure the remnant you buy will be usable.

Bad buy: Wrong fabric for the pattern you have selected.

Cure: Read the pattern envelope under "Fabric Suggestions." These guidelines will tell you what type fabric will work best for that particular pattern. A pattern intended for a soft, drapable fabric such as interlock knit will not look too great done in firm doubleknit.

Bad buy: Wrong fabric for you.

Cure: It takes practice, but you can learn which fabrics are for you and which aren't.

Light colors look feminine

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q. I live alone and am redecorating my dreadfully dull bedroom which I'd like to be frankly feminine. I have a bed, end tables, desk and chair. I have closets that are fitted with shelves and drawers so I do not have any need for chests of drawers. Please would you kindly suggest a plan? — W.Y.

A. Color, design and pattern are all important considerations in creating the atmosphere of a room.

If you desire a soft, feminine look, consider light colors, a rich, plushy carpeting and elegant touches such as crystal chandeliers and porcelain lamps.

Interior designer Virginia Frankel created a lovely room starting with a powdery blue dense saxony carpet with a crushed velvet hand for a bedroom design. She chose Wamsuta's printed sheets with a soft geometric design also in blue for extensive use throughout the room.

In addition to using the sheeting for the bed and a dust ruffle, she covered bedside tables, walls, laminated the window shades and created tie-back draperies. Repeating the blue of the room once again, she covered the seats of two chairs in a soft velvet.

Q. We have removed a large window on the west side of our living room and have a problem of how to cover the wall. Our feature wall around the fireplace is paneled and the others are rough plaster. We wonder about wallpaper but feel it might not be proper.

A. Too many different wall treatments in one room can be confusing. I wonder if three different kinds — paneling, plaster and wallpaper — might be too much, especially if your room is small to medium-sized.

Why don't you try to find some handy person who could come in and plaster your remodeled wall the same as the others. That would probably be the easiest way to go.

Q. We have a wall decorating problem. Our living room is 5 by 12 feet. We purchased a seven-piece sectional that takes up almost all of the room. The color is chocolate brown. In one corner we have an "earth stove" with natural rock behind it. We also have bookshelves on one wall.

There are various green plants in natural baskets scattered about the room. Our carpet is blue with shades of dark brown. The drapes are off-white with touches of brown and the walls are off-white.

Our problem is our 16-foot wall over the main part of the sectional. It's bare and we're not sure just what to decorate it with — wallpaper, baskets, pictures of some type? — M.G.

A. I like to think of a bare wall as a painter's canvas and it is pretty hard to tell a painter what to paint. Likewise, it is difficult to suggest just what you should do. It should reflect you, your family, your interests and your tastes — whatever speaks to you.

Your interests sound like you prefer natural, informal kinds of things. So here's what I'd do. Measure out on the floor in front of your sofa the space of your wall. On the floor first place the most important decorative item you plan to use. This could be a

DEAR ABBY A healthy cure for kissing cause

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last year our hospital auxiliary had a fund-raiser that proved hugely successful. We put on an "Evening in Monte Carlo," and the biggest money-raiser of all was our "kissing booth." It was staffed by three attractive college girls (daughters of members) who volunteered their services.

Kisses lasting three seconds were sold for $10 each; kisses lasting seven seconds went for $25; kisses lasting 15 seconds went for $50; and all kisses over 15 seconds went for $100. One man bought three $100 kisses and said it was the best tax-deductible donation he ever made!

Although we're planning to have a dinner dance this year, some of the women want to have the kissing booth again, but some objections have been raised on the grounds that it's unhygienic and, therefore, risky. What is your opinion? — FOR A GOOD CAUSE

DEAR FOR: For an antiseptic solution to tongue-in-cheek problem, provide the kissees and the kissers with germicidal cocktails. You'll make a fortune and minimize the risk.

DEAR ABBY: We are employed as librarians in Iowa City, Iowa. The enclosed item from your column was recently found in our suggestion box:

"Dear Abby: I am a girl, 12, very inexperienced, and I need to know the correct way to kiss a boy. My mother says it will come naturally, but in case it doesn't, can you give me a few pointers?"

"Should the girl quit breathing? I heard she isn't supposed to make a 'smack' sound when kissing a boy, but

Abby, we thought you might enjoy the following reply offered by our resident problem-solver:

"Dear Dedicated: We answer all questions found in the suggestion box. Up to this point we haven't received any of the type illustrated here. We have a feeling, though, that you really are concerned about this particular problem and are a bit hesitant to admit your own lack of experience in this area. Rest assured we will do our best to help you. File this under 'Youth Wants to Know.'

"1) The girl should definitely not quit breathing. Cessation of breathing will inevitably end in death unless CPR measures are employed. Contrary to what you may think, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is NOT the same as kissing.

"2) Don't make a 'smack' sound unless your partner starts to do more than kiss, in which case a firm smack applied to his face would be both appropriate and effective.

"3) Once your lips are engaged, moving your head can be kind of messy unless your partner moves with you. Work this out beforehand.

"4) Leave your nose in the middle of your face. Most noses look fine there."

Watch the Miss Universe pageant tonight on CBS, 9 p.m. (EDT). It's live from South Korea, and Abby is there as one of the judges.

How healthy is your back?

Copley News Service

Even if your back looks good in a bathing suit, you won't feel healthy or beautiful if it's in pain. There's nothing more aggravating than back pain and when it becomes chronic, you feel downright exhausted and discouraged.

Back pain is a common malady. Yet many people who seek relief from professionals find the list of possible treatments endless and many times ineffective. Often, sufferers are left to numbing drugs and restricted lifestyles.

Perhaps that's why Dr. Lowell Ward is attracting so much attention. His new science, Spinal Column Stressology, apparently has fulfilled the hopes of thousands — back work that's not guesswork! While treating over 13,000 patients during a 20-year period, Ward discovered that if the spine is "stressed" (a chronically off-balance and abnormal position) the body suffers energy loss, exhaustion, pain and finally, disease. His success comes from the fact that he's discovered a precise method of returning a stressed spine to normal thus freeing trapped energy for the healing process.

Ward is not only a chiropractor. He also holds a Ph.D. in health science and a master's degree in psychology. His method departs from traditional chiropractic primarily in the fact that he treats the spine as a whole unit rather than working only with the injured or painful part. Ward likes the term "synchronicity" to describe his approach — a word meaning that all parts are affected by the whole while the whole affects all parts.

Patients come to his Long Beach, Calif., clinic from all over the world. Although he makes no claim for cures, his record of disease reversals is colossal. He frequently halts migraines immediately and permanently, has tremendous success with disc diseases, spinal curvatures, equilibrium and exhaustion problems, and has quite a few cases of "impossible" multiple sclerosis reversals.

Ward has already trained some 300 health professionals as Spinal Column Stressologists. On the basis of intermittent full spine x-rays, the Spinal Stressologist gives standard treatment that has been proven effective and repeatable in case after case. Patients feel and see improvement as their "stress habits" are broken. It seems that Spinal Column Stressology has fulfilled the lifelong wish of famed stress expert Hans Selye, who said, "If only stress could be seen, isolated and measured, we could enormously lengthen the average life span."

The three books on the spine, Ward claims that personality traits correlate with certain spinal conditions. For example, if your spine chronically leans to the right, you tend to be a perfectionist, emotional and sensitive, while left-leaning are hard workers, efficient and pragmatic.

Wonder if your spine is "stressed?" Ward says you can perform this simple test at home. Of course, it's not as accurate as an X-ray, but it may give you an idea. Tie a weight (such as a heavy ring) to the end of a long string. Attach the other end of the string over head in the middle of the doorway. Assume a normal standing position, with your back to the string and the weight centered on your tailbone. Let someone stand behind you to check whether your spine leans to the right or left as it goes up the string.

If your spine is leaning, Ward recommends this simple exercise. His treatments are much more complicated and effective, but he says that this may help balance the spine: Three or four times a day (but no more) wear a shoe with a oneand one-half inch or two inch heel on the same side you lean toward. In other words, if your spine leans to the right, wear a shoe on the right foot only. Spend up to, but no more than, five minutes with just one shoe on. This will help break down the behavioural holding pattern of the spine.

In addition, when you carry anything heavy, such as your purse or groceries, carry it on the SAME side you lean toward. You will compensate by leaning the opposite way.

Ward is a holistic healer in the truest sense of the word. His simple hope is that Spinal Column Stressology will relieve the world of a great deal of pain and disease. He seems to be well on his way.

Pop says he 'can't wait' to be reunited with sons

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A 24-year-old steelworker says he "can't wait" to be reunited with his two young sons, who were left in a Topeka, Kan., church nearly two weeks ago with a note saying their mother could no longer support them.

Dennis W. Best, of Edwardsville, Ill., said Sunday he would drive to Topeka for the reunion today.

"Oh, man, I can't wait to get there," Best said.

Best identified the boys after seeing an Associated Press photograph and story about them and the fruitless search for their mother.

"All we have is two boys who can't talk much, two shopping bags, a note their mother left and that's it," Detective Don Crenshaw had said.

The note, which gave the boys' names and birthdates, said: "Their father was killed in a car accident. I just can't seem to make enough money for all of us to survive. I am sorry it had to come to this."

The boys, Ben, nearly 3, and 20-month-old Charlie, were placed in a temporary foster home by the Kansas Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services.

"I was working on my car Saturday when a friend came over and asked when were the boys' birthdays," Best said. "He showed me the story in the Edwardsville Intelligencer."

Best said he didn't know why the boys' mother would have abandoned them, but he said money was not the reason.

The young steelworker, who was divorced a year ago, said the court had granted custody of the boys to their mother and he had believed she had taken them to Hawaii to join her mother. He said he didn't know the boys had been abandoned.

After seeing the story, Best — who has "Ben" and "Charlie" tattooed on one arm — contacted Crenshaw in Middleton, Pa. (AP) — The release of radioactive krypton gas from the crippled nuclear reactor at Three Mile Island is nearly half completed, according to a plant spokesman.

As of 8 p.m. EDT Sunday, 26,963 curies, or nearly 48 percent, of the estimated 57,000 curies inside in the reactor's containment building had been vented, said a spokesman for Metropolitan Edison Co., the plant operator.

Meanwhile, Environmental Protection Agency monitoring of the venting operation continued to indicate that radiation levels in the area surrounding the plant were well within safe limits.

The venting of the krypton is the first step in the cleanup of the reactor containment building. The building was contaminated in March 1979 in the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident.

Topeka and identified the boys by the color of their eyes, said Sgt. Reece Morgan of the Illinois State Police.

"He said the one boy was a little pudgy and had bow legs and the detective said that fit. He had a birth certificate of one of the boys with him and he also had photographs taken last Christmas," Morgan said.

"Once we clearly demonstrate to the Soviet leadership that we are determined to compete, arms control negotiations will again have a chance," Reagan said in a Chicago campaign speech in March that remains the definitive foreign policy statement of his campaign.

"If we put them on notice that we'll go up, then there's a chance that they'll come down," says Rowny, who represented the Joint Chiefs of Staff during the SALT II negotiations and who then retired rather than support the treaty approved by Carter.

"Going up" means building a variety of strategic weapons which the Carter administration says are unnecessary.

Van Cleave, a professor at the University of Southern California who worked briefly on SALT I before resigning from government, is an apostle of "quick fixes" for the U.S. missile and bomber force. He believes those forces are vulnerable to destruction in a Soviet sneak attack and

Nearly half of trapped gas already released at TMI

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — The release of radioactive krypton gas from the crippled nuclear reactor at Three Mile Island is nearly half completed, according to a plant spokesman.

As of 8 p.m. EDT Sunday, 26,963 curies, or nearly 48 percent, of the estimated 57,000 curies inside in the reactor's containment building had been vented, said a spokesman for Metropolitan Edison Co., the plant operator.

Meanwhile, Environmental Protection Agency monitoring of the venting operation continued to indicate that radiation levels in the area surrounding the plant were well within safe limits.

The venting of the krypton is the first step in the cleanup of the reactor containment building. The building was contaminated in March 1979 in the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident.

In readings obtained Saturday and released Sunday, the EPA reported a monitor at a tourist observation center near Three Mile Island continued to detect the highest level of krypton since venting began.

A skin-exposure reading of .34 millirems, or 2 percent of federal limits for annual exposure of krypton to the skin, was detected at the observation center during a 24-hour period ending at noon Saturday, according to a prepared statement.

Total skin dose measured here as of Saturday was 0.0051 millirem, less than 1 percent of the annual skin-dose limit. The whole-body dose measured 0.00043 millirems or a very tiny fraction of 1 percent, according to EPA.

More tests due at TVA nuke plant

ATHENS, Ala. (AP) — Engineers from the Tennessee Valley Authority and the General Electric Corp. planned additional tests at the Brown's Ferry nuclear plant near here today hoping to find out why a number of control rods failed to fully insert during a shutdown a week ago.

TVA spokesman Mike Butler said the engineers will be withdrawing the control rods from the reactor core to allow the fission process to heat the reactor to near normal temperatures and pressure.

Butler, speaking during a press briefing Sunday, said no electricity will be produced during the tests, which are expected to continue through Tuesday. GE built the 1.1 million kilowatt plant.

The engineers are trying to learn why 76 of the unit's 185 control rods failed to fully insert during a manual shutdown for maintenance June 28.

It took operators three times within a 15-minute period to get all the control rods inserted during the "scram" without having to resort to a safety backup system. The control rods are inserted in the reactor to stop the fission process during a shutdown.

Second New Mexico victim dies of plague

BERNALILLO, N.M. (AP) — A 4-year-old Bernalillo girl has become the second plague fatality in New Mexico this year, and state health officials say they suspect the child died from the highly contagious pneumonic form of the disease.

The girl, who was not identified, was admitted to an Albuquerque hospital late Saturday and died a short time later, according to Michael Burkhardt, director of the state Health Services Division.

Burkhardt said the state scientific laboratory division in Albuquerque confirmed Sunday the girl had died from the plague.

The bubonic form of the disease swept Europe in the Middle Ages.

Reagan advisors suggest accelerated arms race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key advisers to Ronald Reagan believe the United States must challenge the Soviet Union to an accelerated nuclear arms race before the two countries can achieve adequate arms control.

Only if the Soviets are convinced that the United States will modernize and expand its nuclear forces will they make significant concessions, the Reagan men said in recent interviews.

If Reagan, the Republican near-nominee, is elected in November, these advisers — all veterans of past strategic arms negotiations — said they would advise that he:

- Abandon SALT II, the controversial arms treaty signed in 1979 by President Carter and his Moscow counterparts. The treaty has not yet been ratified by the U.S. Senate.
- Embark immediately on a costly program to protect U.S. missiles and improve their capability to fight a limited nuclear war.
- Take a tough negotiating stance to force the Soviets to accept more favorable SALT terms, but be patient if they do not immediately make concessions.

Many of those proposals are reflected in a draft of the 1980 Republican platform, obtained by The Associated Press.

Reagan, who has no direct experience in strategic affairs, thus far has reflected the thinking of three strategic experts among his 10 top foreign policy advisers: retired Gen. Edward Rowny; Fred Ikle and William Van Cleave.

must be upgraded well before weapons like the new MX missile can be deployed in the late 1980s.

He advocates immediately starting to dig new underground silos for the Minuteman III missiles, then shutting them secretly from hole to hole to confuse Soviet targeters. The administration rejected that idea because of fears that it would violate SALT provisions designed to insure that each side can check the number of launchers deployed by the other.

Van Cleave also supports a crash program to outfit the aging B-52 bomber with cruise missiles, in greater numbers than the administration proposes.

The Reagan advisers also believe the United States will have to build a new strategic bomber, probably a derivative of the B-1, which was scrapped by the Carter administration in 1977.

The Reagan team attaches no cost estimates to these programs, nor does it say how they would dovetail with Reagan's avowed intention to both cut taxes and balance the federal budget.

At the bargaining table, the Reagan advisers say they would be less anxious than the Carter administration to reach an arms control agreement.

Ikle, who was director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency under Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford, says his favorite model of a U.S.-Soviet negotiation is the treaty that ended the post-World War II occupation of Austria.

"We held firmly to our position that Austria should be fully independent, without any vestiges of Soviet occupation forces left," he said.

Anderson leaves today for meetings with allies

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the Republican Party is preparing to nominate Ronald Reagan for president, independent candidate John B. Anderson will be winging around the Middle East and Europe meeting with leaders of five major American allies.

Anderson is scheduled to leave today for an 11-day trip through Israel, Egypt, West Germany, France and England and the Republican congressman concedes he is trying to keep his candidacy on the minds of American voters.

"I don't think it is any secret when you get into the summer doldrums where focus shifts to the conventions," Anderson says, "we have to get out and make our profile visible."

"There is also something traditional about a candidate making a trip to Europe," he said in an interview. "I think it will be valuable to make contact in advance of the election with European leaders so they have confidence in me."

In addition to whatever public interest is generated by the trip itself, Anderson will also ap-

During the interview, Anderson was asked if an overseas trip time to partially coincide with the Republican National Convention might not appear to be a political gimmick.

"Anything can be gimmicky depending on how I conduct myself," Anderson said.

I'm bowled over by the weight I lost at Pat Walker's: 32 pounds!

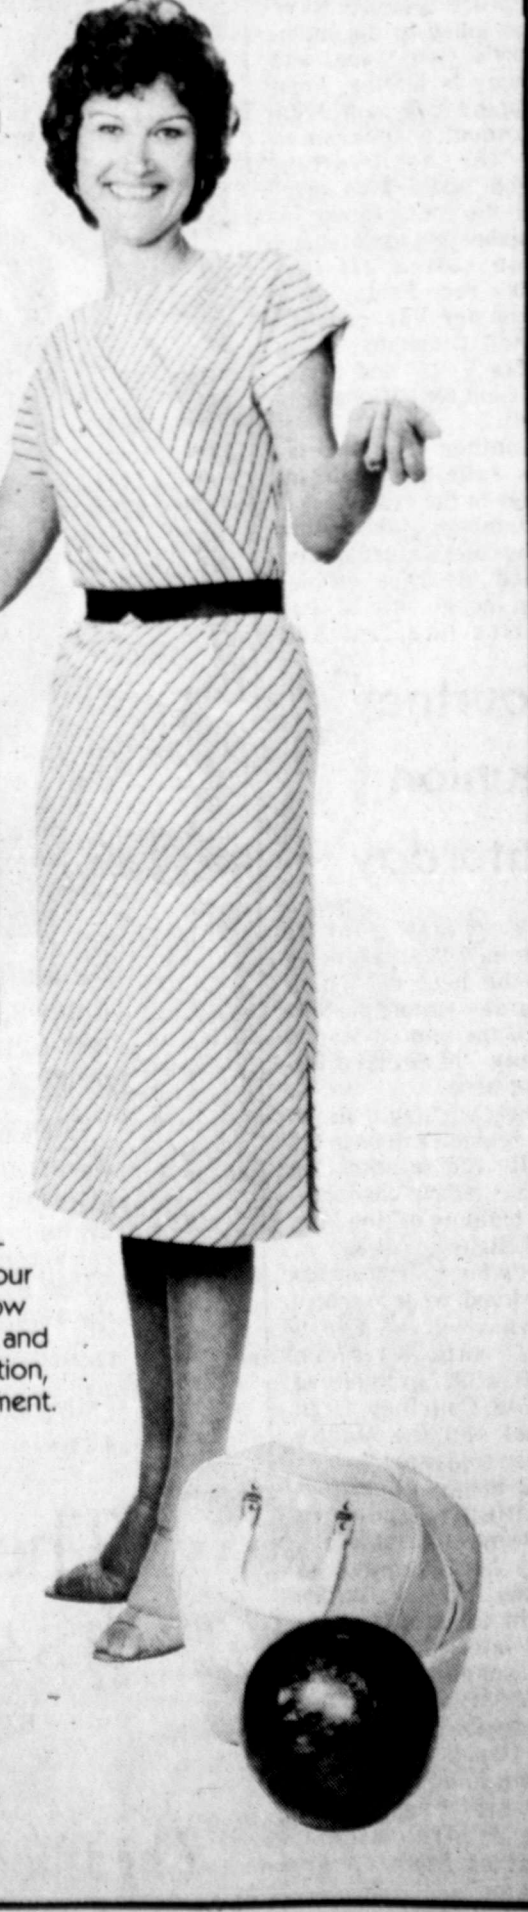

Shirley Brenk's True Story:

I don't know where my weight came from, but I guess my snacking had a lot to do with it. At 161 pounds, I really had big hips and thighs, and about three rolls around my middle. Skipping breakfast didn't seem to help. Even my bowling wasn't improving my figure.

One day, at the trucking company where I work, I was talking to a trucker's wife. She used to be very fat, and I couldn't believe how much weight she had lost. When she told me she'd been going to Pat Walker's, I went right on over and started my own weight loss program.

Now, with Pat Walker's passive exercise treatments, I'm down to 129 and, for my 5'9 1/2", that's almost perfect. (One of the truck drivers told me that I'm as slim as a model!) Pat Walker's taught me the right way to eat, too—I eat a good, big breakfast now, and feel much better for it.

I really recommend Pat Walker's. Look what they did for me!

Reactor checked after run

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee Valley Authority operators will be spending this week testing effects of their first creation of fission at the $1.46 billion Sequoyah nuclear plant.

Fission at the plant 15 miles north of Chattanooga was created for the first time Saturday. Operators now must monitor such things as steam pressure and heat levels to see how the Unit 1 reactor is working.

When the low-level tests are successfully completed and safety measures are in place, the TVA Board of Directors will decide whether to apply to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for a full power license. Sequoyah has received only a low-level testing license.

On Saturday, the reactor was brought to "critical" level when control rods in the reactor were slowly pulled, freeing neutrons to smash into other atoms and create heat.

The girl, who was not identified, was admitted to an Albuquerque hospital late Saturday and died a short time later, according to Michael Burkhardt, director of the

10,000 acres destroyed in California brush fires

By The Associated Press

A fiery Fourth of July weekend in Southern California claimed nearly 10,000 acres of brush and timber and kept firefighters battling several blazes today, including a 3,300-acre fire raging out of control in the Sequoia National Forest.

No containment time was predicted Sunday for the blaze in the Clover area of the forest, 200 miles north of Los Angeles, said U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Meg Hansen.

She said the fire was sparked by humans Saturday, but its specific origin was unknown. About 750 U.S. Forest Service firefighters were battling the blaze, which was pushed by 28 mph winds.

Only a few minor injuries were reported among the firefighters, Ms. Hansen said.

A blaze in the Anza Borrego desert in northwestern San Diego County was contained late Sunday and was expected to burn itself out by Tuesday evening, said California Department of Forestry spokesman Doug Allen.

All but 100 of the 600 people battling the blaze, which consumed 2,800 acres of brush, were to be withdrawn today. Eight firefighters were injured while battling the blaze. One suffered an apparent heart attack while another sustained a chain saw cut in the leg. Several collapsed from heat exhaustion and one man went into convulsions, possibly due to insect bites, Allen said.

The fire, which began Friday, apparently was ignited by a hiker who tried to dispose of some toilet paper by burning it.

Meanwhile, there were also no predictions of containment for a blaze that threatened a mobile home park in the Quail Valley, 20 miles southeast of Riverside. The fire began shortly after noon Sunday and had burned more than 500 acres of dry brush by evening.

CDF spokeswoman Donna Taylor said a team was protecting the homes. She said the fire, being battled by 150 firefighters, was 20 percent contained late Sunday.

U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Stella Bryant said containment was tentatively expected early Tuesday for a fire in the Kings River area of Sierra National Forest, about 40 miles east of Fresno. More than 400 firefighters were at the scene of that blaze, which began Saturday night and had claimed about 1,000 acres by Sunday.

Officials said the blaze was apparently caused by humans and an investigation was in progress.

Also Sunday, Los Angeles County firefighters conquered a stubborn brush fire east of Little Rock Dam in the Antelope Valley. The blaze, which began late Friday, burned 900 acres before it was controlled, said dispatcher Ron Coffin.

Another blaze in the Sequoia National Forest was contained by midnight Saturday after charring 709 acres in lower Kern Canyon, 12 miles northeast of Bakersfield. It reportedly was caused by fireworks.

Woman killed

KINGS MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP) — A woman was killed and a policeman was wounded early today as they were caught in a crossfire during a gunfight between 15 blacks and an equal number of whites in an apartment complex, a police dispatcher said.

PEOPLE

'Who shot J.R.?'

NEW YORK (AP) — And now for some more shot-in-the-dark answers to the question heard round the world: "Who shot J.R.?"

Some Texas celebrities hazarded some guesses to People magazine on who plugged the star villain of the CBS-TV series "Dallas":

—DAN RATHER, CBS newsman who hails from Wharton and sets aside 60 minutes on Friday nights to watch Larry Hagman and company: "One thing I'm sure of: It was not a woman. Texas women invented stand-by-your-man loyalty. But if a Texas woman ever shot her man, she'd hit him between the eyes and no Texas jury would convict her."

—GEORGE BUSH, transplanted Houston oilman and former Republican presidential hopeful: "Don't look at me. On the day J.R. was shot I was getting killed in New Hampshire."

—STANLEY MARCUS, of the expensive Neiman-Marcus store: "I know. But I'm not telling. Goodbye."

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — It was JIMMY over BILLY, 13-3, in a softball game between President Carter's softball team and his brother Billy's.

"It's the first thing he's won in so damn long it's about time he won something," quipped brother Billy on Sunday.

The president's younger brother also joked, "I thought it was fixed to bring in ballplayers from all over the country to play one game," referring to the Secret Service agents and White House staff who made up the president's team.

"I understand on good sources it cost him $2½ million to bring those players in from all over the world. I understand he got three of the Iranian hostages out to play the game. He's sending them back tomorrow morning."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three members of the FOUR SEASONS singing group were injured during an open-air concert on Independence Mall when a sudden gust of rain and wind blew down two light standards.

The accident Saturday night also injured three other people and demolished $125,000 worth of the group's equipment. The injured were treated and released.

"It just seemed to have been an act of God," said FRANKIE VALLI, the group's lead singer. "I had just left my microphone when everything seemed to explode."

Confusion ensued among the 30,000 spectators at the free concert, as some struggled to get out of the way while others moved closer to see if any of the group had been seriously injured.

Pianist Jerry Corbetta, 32; female vocalist Toby Tyler, 24; and drummer Gerry Polci, 27, were treated at local hospitals.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Political activist ANGELA DAVIS, 36, was married here in a private ceremony to an Oakland, Calif., photographer and chef, Hilton L. Braithwaite, 36.

About 30 relatives and friends attended the ceremony Sunday at the home of the bride's parents, Ms. Davis, a Birmingham native, is running for vice president of the United States on the Communist Party ticket.

A controversial figure in the 1970s, Ms. Davis is now a professor at San Francisco State University. She has been active with the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression organization.

BOSTON (AP) — J.D. SALINGER, a recluse since the phenomenal success of his novel of adolescent turmoil, "The Catcher in the Rye," is still writing, but for himself alone.

"I love to write and I assure you I write regularly," Salinger says in an interview that may be the first published since he spoke to a high school newspaper reporter in 1953.

"But I write for myself, for my own pleasure. And I want to be left alone to do it."

The interview by Betty Eppes of Capital City Press was published in the Boston Sunday Globe. Salinger lives in a ranch-style chalet on a cliff in Cornish, N.H.

"The Catcher in the Rye," the story of 15-year-old Holden Caulfield published in 1951, sells some 400,000 copies annually. Salinger hasn't published since 1965.

"I could not have foreseen all that's happened since I began this writing business," said Salinger, 61, "and sometimes I wish I'd never published. I have absolutely no plans to publish at this time. All I want now is to write and to be left absolutely alone."

"There's no more to Holden Caulfield. Read the book again. It's all there. Holden Caulfield is only a frozen moment in time."

Group wants races to go on despite fatal crash

BISBEE, Ariz. (AP) — Despite an accident that killed two coaster race spectators, the Energy Free Racing Association hopes to convince the Bisbee City Council that the annual July 4th race should continue.

"More people have been killed in the Indianapolis (500) race, and nobody is talking about stopping it," said Mike Shannon, a spokesman for the Association, which planned to meet with the council today.

Bisbee Mayor Michael Lynn called off this year's race Friday after a coaster car crushed Nancy Didonato, 33, of Sierra Vista, and her 5-year-old son, Michael, to death.

Another five spectators suffered minor injuries in the crash.

Members of the racing group met Saturday and called the race official even though only 14 of 54 entries had finished.

Courtney reunion Saturday

STANTON — The Courtney Homecoming will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday amidst the bustle of the annual Martin County Old Settlers' Reunion here.

The Courtney community reunion will be in the auditorium of the Cap Rock Electric Co-operative building off the Midland Highway here.

"It's for everyone that ever lived, went to school or whatever at Courtney," said Kathleen Lewis, a 1937 graduate of the old Courtney High School and the Martin County treasurer.

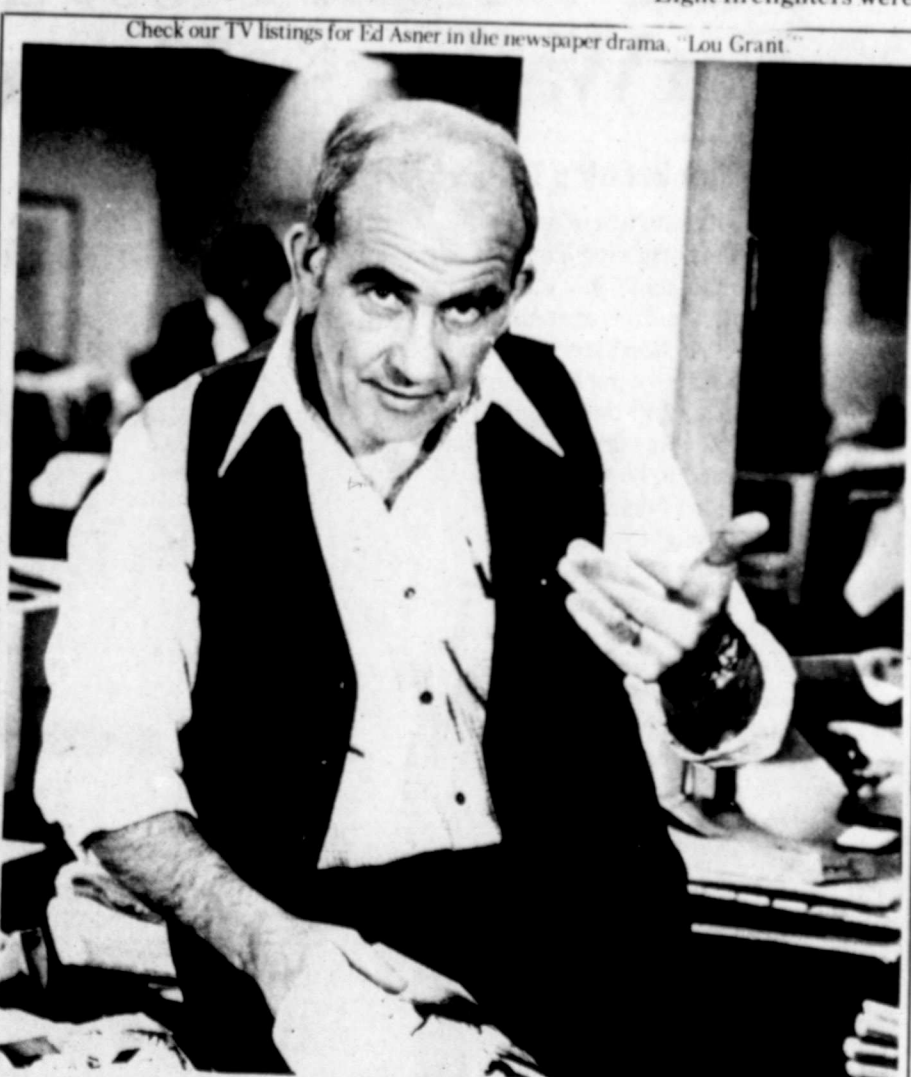

Courtney is a farming-ranching community northwest of Stanton.

The high school at Courtney was discontinued in the 1950s and, years later, the elementary school was shut down.

Exxon USA's 3-million-pound Submerged Production System (SPS) template is lifted from floor of Gulf of Mexico off Grand Isle, La., onto derrick barge for subsequent move to new home 35 miles offshore Apalachicola, Fla. After the successful completion of tests, Exxon donated the prototype facility to Florida for use in the state's artificial reef program designed to enhance fishing in its coastal waters. The SPS is designed to produce oil and gas remotely from the sea floor in waters too deep for conventional platforms.

Lea wildcat projects staked; Basin field work announced

A pair of wildcat projects have been announced for Lea County, N.M. Amoco Production Co., operating from Hobbs, N.M., spotted location for a 15,700-foot wildcat 20 miles southwest of Oil Center. It is No. 1 Federal "BG," 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 35-22s-33e.

Dome Oil, Inc., of Dallas, will drill its No. 1-5 Dome-Wickson-Federal as a 5,300-foot wildcat 15 miles northeast of Gladiola. The test will be spudded 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 5-10s-38e.

LEA FIELD WORK Belco Petroleum Corp. of Midland no. 1-13 Federal is to be dug as a 14,600-foot project in the Hat Mesa field of Lea County, 28 miles southeast of Maljamar. Location is 990 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 13-21s-32e.

Coquina Oil Corp. of Midland No. 1 Shelly-Federal has been spotted as a 13,100-foot operation in the Lusk, North (Morrow) field of Lea County, 12 miles south of Maljamar. Drillsite is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 5-19s-32e.

A 12,400-foot project has been spotted in an undesignated Devonian area of Lea County, four miles southwest of Bronco. It is MGF Oil Corp. of Midland No. 1-7 Love. The location is 330 feet from south and 990 feet from east lines of section 7-13s-38e.

CONCHO REOPENER The Desana Corp. of Midland announced potential test on a Goen pay reopener in Concho County, 8.5 miles southwest of Eden. The well, No. 1 Henderson, completed for a daily pumping potential of 12.1 barrels of 40.2-gravity oil and five barrels of water, through perforations from 3,827 to 3,830 feet after a 1,250-gallon acid treatment. It reopens the Eden, West (Goen oil) pool.

The Goen was topped at 3,827 feet on ground elevation of 2,155 feet. Other tops include the Swastika, 2,478 feet; Home Creek, 2,626 feet; Palo Pinto, 3,189 feet, and Strawn, 3,710 feet. Total depth is 3,900 feet, 4.5-inch casing is cemented at 3,899 feet and hole is plugged back to 3,853 feet. The wellsite is 1,780 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 69, block 8, H&TC survey.

FISHER STRIKE R. L. Adkins Corp. of Sweetwater No. 1-A Wickham has been completed as a Palo Pinto oil discovery in the Wickham (Palo Pinto gas) field of Fisher County, four miles west of Noodle. The strike completed for a daily pumping potential of 35 barrels of 45-gravity oil and 64 barrels of water, through perforations from 4,794 to 4,804 feet. The pay was washed with 750 gallons of mud acid. The total depth is 5,066 feet and 4.5-inch casing is cemented at 5,003 feet. The operator called the following tops on ground elevation of 1,830 feet: Noodle Creek, 2,595 feet; Flippen, 3,240 feet; Canyon sand, 4,050 feet; Canyon reef, 4,785 feet, and Strawn reef, 4,855 feet. Wellsite is 4,360 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of George Creath survey No. 221. It is one location north of Palo Pinto gas production.

HOWARD WELL Turner Properties of Big Spring No. 1 Turner Properties-McGettes is a new well in the Coahoma, North (Fusselman) field of Howard County, four miles northeast of Coahoma. The operator reported a daily flowing potential of 70 barrels of oil and 39 barrels of water, through a 45/64-inch choke and perforations from 8,732 to 8,842 feet. Gravity of the oil was not reported. The gas-oil ratio is 1,443-1. The pay was acidized with 20,000 gallons and fractured with 20,000 gallons. Hole is bottomed at 8,995 feet, 4.5-inch casing is set at 8,992 feet and plugged back depth is 8,950 feet. Wellsite is 467 feet from south and east lines of section 31, block 30, T-1-N, T&P survey and 5/8 mile northwest of other Fusselman production.

GLASSCOCK PRODUCER Champlin Petroleum Co., operating from Midland, announced potential test on its No. 5 I. W. Terry, new well in the Conger, Southwest (Pennsylvanian) field of Glasscock County, 17 miles southeast of Garden City. It completed for a daily flow of 47 barrels of oil, through a 3/4-inch choke and perforations from 8,121 to 8,398 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 7,425-1, and the gravity of the oil is 42.6 degrees. Operator drilled to 8,627 feet, set 4.5-inch pipe on bottom and plugged back to 8,538 feet. The pay was acidized with 4,500 gallons and fractured with 101,540 gallons.

The pay was topped at 8,121 feet on ground elevation of 2,663 feet. Location is 1,000 feet from south and west lines of section 2, T. B. Wilson survey.

STERLING PROJECTS Champlin Petroleum Co., operating from Midland, announced location for two projects in the Conger, Southwest (Pennsylvanian) area of Sterling County. No. 3 R. L. Cope will be drilled one mile south of production and 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 44, block 2, T&P survey and 18 miles southwest of Sterling City. Contract depth is 8,800 feet.

Champlin no. 4 R. L. Cope, also 18 miles southwest of Sterling City and scheduled to 8,800 feet, is 660 feet from north and 2,000 feet from west lines of section 44, block 2, T&P survey. It is 3,500 feet southeast of the closest Pennsylvanian well.

TERRY TESTS Tomlinson Oil Co., operating from Midland, spotted locations for two projects in the recently opened TLOC (San Andres) pool of Terry County, 13 miles southeast of Brownfield. Each of the projects will be drilled to 5,000 feet. No. 3 I. D. French is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 20, block C-38, psi survey.

Tomlinson no. 4 I. D. French was staked 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 20, block C-38, psi survey.

SCHLEICHER AREA H. L. Huffman Ltd. of Midland No. 2-X R. L. Henderson will be drilled 5/8 mile southeast of production in the Velre (Canyon sand gas) pool of Schleicher County, 13 miles northwest of Eldorado. Scheduled on a 7,000-foot contract, it is 1,650 feet from south and 2,650 feet from west lines of section 1214, TCRR survey.

CRANE PROJECT Southland Royalty Co. of Midland will drill No. 1-28 Moss as a 1/2-mile northeast stepout to production in the Troporo (Devonian) pool of Crane County, 25 miles southwest of Crane. Location for the 5,700-foot project is 100 feet from northwest and 655 feet from southwest lines of section 28, block 1, H&TC survey. The location also is 5/8 mile south of the Troporo, North (Devonian) pool.

FISHER TEST Adkins Corp. announced location for a 5,000-foot project one location south of one of the wells in the Wickham (Palo Pinto gas) pool of Fisher County, 10 miles east of Longworth. The project is 7,030 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of George Creath survey No. 221.

STONEWALL WELL Luke Grace Oil Co. of Wichita Falls No. 1-B Brown has been completed in a 2 1/2-mile northeast extension area of the bissett, East (Strawn sand) field of Stonewall County, 22 miles northeast of Aspermont. The operator reported a 24-hour pumping potential of 21 barrels of 35.3-gravity oil, no water, through perforations from 5,326 to 5,338 feet after a 750-gallon mud acid wash and an unreported fracture treatment. Total depth is 5,480 feet and 4.5-inch casing is set at 5,412 feet. One location south of other production, it is 2,167 feet from south and 3,175 feet from east lines of section 37, block F, H&TC survey.

Alaskans to shop for gold bullion

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Officials of this oil-rich state are flying to New York today to shop for $35 million in gold bullion. Gov. Jay Hammond signed a new law last week, making Alaska the first state to permit the investment of state pension funds in gold. The law allows up to 10 percent of the funds — or nearly $70 million — to be invested in bullion. "We're planning a careful and deliberate purchase program," said Deputy Commissioner of Treasury Peter Bushre. He and Revenue Commissioner Tom Williams were to meet with several gold dealers this week although the state probably will not purchase any gold until fall, he said.

"We're going to start slow and careful and gradually reach 5 percent the first year," Bushre said. The 10 percent maximum investment probably won't be reached for at least two years. Alaskan officials want the gold as "a hedge against depreciation in other investments we have," Bushre said. Because of Alaska's oil treasure on its North Slope, royalties and taxes paid on oil leaving the state translated into a $1 billion windfall last year. Since the Legislature voted in June to allow gold investments with state employee and teacher pension funds, "Our phones haven't stopped ringing since with calls from dealers — big ones and small ones," Bushre said. Opponents of the legislation argued that pension fund investments in gold are improper. They also feared state officials in the future would seek authority to invest in diamonds and art. Besides allowing gold purchases, the new law permits a portion of pension funds and general fund money to be invested in foreign securities and "Eurodollars." The legislation first was introduced by the governor in early 1979 — when gold was about $235 an ounce. If the state had invested $35 million in gold last summer or early fall, Alaska could have made more than $12 million in profit. "I guess I could say I told you so," Bushre said.

HOUSTON (AP) — Ten persons have been charged with organized criminal activity and another seven with theft as lawmen wind down a six-month investigation into a oil theft ring that netted $1 million a month in hijacked petroleum property, officials said. Those arrested included the owner of a tugboat and barge cleaning service, and oil company owner and one of his employees, authorities said. Bond for those charged with theft was set at $1,000 and ranged from $1,000 to $30,000 for those charged with organized criminal activity. "I imagine there are several (similar) operations from Brownsville to Florida," said Detective J.C. Moseley after Coast Guard officers, police and

Texas Department of Public Safety personnel made the weekend arrests. Moseley said the investigation began six months ago when authorities became suspicious of an oil company's reported losses. Lawmen confiscated a tugboat, two barges loaded with stolen petrochemicals and six tractor-trailer trucks used to steal the products from barges in the Saturday morning raid, Moseley said. A 32-foot Coast Guard patrol boat pursued the tugboat for about a mile on the San Jacinto River before it ran aground and the crew fled on foot, he said. The crew members, including the captain of the tugboat, were arrested. Moseley said two other tugboat captains, their crews and two truck drivers were arrested, along with an oil company owner and a former oil company engineer now employed at the barge cleaning firm. Police said the operation centered around a barge cleaning company on the San Jacinto River and probably involved captains of tugboats pulling barges transporting gasoline, diesel and other petrochemical products. Moseley said a tugboat would pull two empty barges alongside vessels containing petrochemical products and pump portions of the cargo into the empty barges. He said the smallest petroleum barges hold about 420,000 gallons. The cargo then would be taken ashore and sold to gasoline stations and other petroleum dealers.

Duncan predicts nuclear power expansion

NEW YORK (AP) — Energy Secretary Charles W. Duncan on Sunday predicted an expansion of U.S. nuclear power industry in the next few years, and said gasoline prices will rise to "follow the market." Duncan said the United States has begun to reverse its dangerous dependence on foreign oil. He tied the future of nuclear plants and oil and gas pricing to increased conservation and development of alternative energy sources. Speaking on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers," he said no commercially viable synthetic fuel plant exists or would exist for the two years. And while the administration has targeted 107 nuclear power plants to be converted from oil to coal, he said, "there's not that many that have converted now," he said. Duncan stressed what he said was an increased public awareness of energy problems. "The gasoline lines we experienced in May and June of 1979 might be called the Pearl Harbor of energy," he said. He said gasoline consumption was down 8.1 percent in the first five months of this year over 1979 and imported oil was projected to drop from 8.5 million barrels a day in 1977 to 7 million barrels a day by the end of 1980. The price of gasoline is far lower in this country than elsewhere and the "the thing we've got to do is to do everything we can to conserve gasoline," Duncan said when asked what relief Americans might expect from the government. Duncan said he foresees development of gasohol, coal conversion, solar-thermal advancements and coal-oil mixtures as alternatives to imported oil. He predicted a coal gasification plant could be in operation by 1983 and termed synthetic fuels legislation signed last week "an investment banker to allow the private sector to move forward with these ventures which until now have not been commercially viable."

Simpson wins Western

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Young Scott Simpson, thriving under pressure, won the Western Open golf tournament Sunday by five strokes, closing with a 72 for a course record 7-under-par 281.

Only in his second year on the PGA tour, Simpson, 24, kicked up his heels at his peers, who vainly waited for him to choke, to make the 77th Western Open his first tournament victory — the same as Tom Watson did in 1974 at age 24.

THE ONLY player really to make a chase at Simpson, the 1976 and 1977 NCAA champion from the University of Southern California, was Hale Irwin.

Irwin, playing in the same threesome with Simpson along with Joe Inman, cut the winner's lead to three strokes after he birdied two of the first three holes. But that was the closest he could come and Simpson was cruising with a 4-stroke lead after the first nine holes.

Simpson birdied the long seventh with a five-foot putt, but bogeyed the ninth.

Simpson really proved his mettle over the par-72 Butler National course that stretches a challenging 7,097 yards by taking an eagle on the 478-yard 12th, while Irwin birdied it. Simpson dropped a 15-foot putt to go 9-under-par and take a 5-stroke margin over Irwin.

More pressure came on the 14th when Simpson's second shot landed in the dirt at the side of a tree. He chipped short of the green, then rolled seven feet from the pin before sinking the putt to salvage a bogey. Irwin got his par and Simpson led by four strokes with three holes to go.

WHEN IRWIN three putted the 17th for a bogey, Simpson iced the victory with a par four.

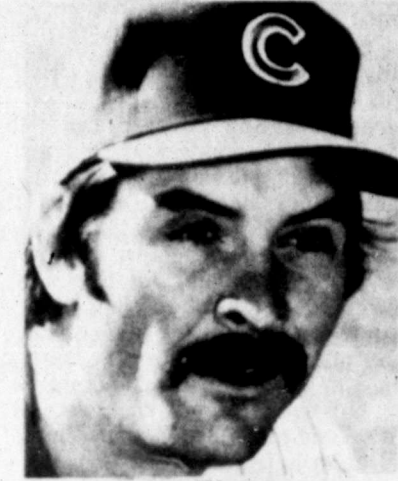

Irwin completely faded with a double bogey six on the last hole as he wandered into the sand and rough, while Simpson reached the green in three and two-putted a bogey.

Irwin finished with a 73 for 287 and lost second place to Andy Bean, the 1978 Western titlist. Bean shot a 71 for 286 in a round that included two bogeys and three birdies.

Simpson won $54,000, more than he made all last year as a rookie, and boosted his 1980 winnings to $102,213.

All-Star game set Tuesday in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The outcome isn't reflected in any standings. It's a contest annually accompanied by controversy over the player selection process, and the game itself lacks the lingering tension of the playoffs or the World Series.

But when the teams take the field at Dodger Stadium Tuesday night for the 1980 All-Star Game, it's still the "Midsummer Classic" for fans. And the game seems somehow to bring out the best in baseball's best players.

The contest, to be nationally televised by ABC, is scheduled for a 7:40 p.m. CDT start.

The game shapes up as a version of "hungry youngsters versus successful veterans," as the new-look American League squad tries to end the National League's long dominance — eight victories in a row and 16 wins in the last 17 meetings.

Half of Manager Earl Weaver's AL squad is comprised of players who'll be making their first All-Star appearances, giving Chuck Tanner's NL contingent a definite edge in experience.

Weaver, who hopes to guide the AL to its first victory since 1971, will have just two pitchers on his staff who've seen previous All-Star duty, the Yankees' Tommy John and Rich Gossage. Newcomers are Baltimore's Steve Stone, Kansas City's Larry Gura, Toronto's Dave Stieb, Seattle's Rick Honeycutt, Chicago's Ed Farmer and Boston's Tom Burgmeier.

Tanner's pitching staff will feature Philadelphia strikeout artist Steve Carlton; Los Angeles' Jerry Reuss, who recently threw a no-hitter; and Chicago's Bruce Sutter, the winning pitcher in the last two All-Star Games. Houston's J.R. Richard, Pittsburgh's Jim Bibby, Los Angeles' Bob Welch, Pittsburgh's Kent Tekulve and San Francisco's Ed Whitson round out the formidable NL mound corps.

The contest will be the first hosted by Los Angeles in 21 years, and the NL lineup will have a distinct Dodger flavor. First baseman Steve Garvey, second baseman Dwayne Lopes, shortstop Bill Russell and outfielder Reggie Smith of Los Angeles were all voted into the starting lineup.

Although hitting .240 this season, Lopes received 3,862,403 votes, most of any player, raising some accusations that Los Angeles fans over-stuffed the ballot box.

"I didn't feel I was having an All-Star type of year," Lopes admitted. "To get more votes than anyone, that's surprising. But it's nice to know you are that popular with the fans."

Smith, leading the NL in hitting, had threatened to pass up the game if Dodgers teammate Dusty Baker was overlooked for the contest. But when Baker, an outfielder who finished fourth in fan balloting, was not named to the squad by Tanner, Smith relented, saying, "Since I was voted in, and I consider that an honor, I'll play."

The rest of the NL lineup is Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, outfielders Dave Parker of Pittsburgh and Dave Kingman of Chicago, and third baseman Ray Knight of Cincinnati. Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt was voted the starting third baseman, but will miss the contest with a hamstring pull.

Three AL starters as voted by the fans — Boston outfielder Jim Rice, second baseman Paul Molitor of Milwaukee and third baseman George Brett of Kansas City — will not play because of injuries.

Milwaukee's Ben Oglivie is the probable starter in Rice's spot, while California's Bobby Grich or the Yankees' Willie Randolph will open at second. Graig Nettles of the Yankees or Texas' Buddy Bell is expected to start for Brett.

The other starters are California first baseman Rod Carew, New York shortstop Bucky Dent, Boston's Fred Lynn and New York's Reggie Jackson in the outfield, and Boston's Carlton Fisk behind the plate.

Campbell captures Clark title

Craig Campbell rocketed to a 76 Sunday but that didn't keep him from coasting to victory in Division III of the George Clark Golf Tournament, which ended Sunday at Midland Country Club.

Campbell won Division III, which is the MCC medal play championship, with a 218 total. Andy Shapira, who fired a 74 Sunday was second at 226.

Gene McDaniel's 204 54-hole total earned him the title in Division I, for players with handicaps of 15 or under. McDaniel had a final round 70 while runnerup John Gould, who had 71, finished at 205. Bill Gesell, with a 70 Sunday, finished at 207 while Tom Garber, who notched a 69 Sunday, was fourth at 208. Dan Leonard was fifth with 211 after a final-round 68.

Jim Crowder shot a 69 to win the low-round-Sunday-but-not-finishing-in-the-top-five award.

In Division II, for those with 16 or more handicap, Lloyd Uglund was the winner, his 66 Sunday giving him a 196 total, six shots better than runnerup Timber Floyd, who closed with a 65. Floyd won a playoff for second from Clem Barnes, who's net 61 Sunday was the low round of the tournament. Gene Wentworth and John Bullard each finished with 203 totals, but Wentworth won fourth place on a playoff.

Death claims prize fighter

MONTREAL (AP) — Boxer Cleveland Denny, in a coma since June 20, died at 3:30 a.m. Monday, according to a woman acting as a family spokesman.

The woman, who refused to identify herself, made the announcement by telephone early this morning. She said the family will issue a statement later today.

Officials at Maisonneuve Hospital, where Denny had been kept alive since his tragic bout against Canadian lightweight champion Gaetan Hart, would not immediately confirm the report.

The woman said Denny, 24, never regained consciousness. He was kept alive by a respirator even after being pronounced clinically dead last Wednesday after a brain scan revealed little or no mental activity.

His family, which kept a vigil at his bedside, had considered disconnecting the life-support system but decided against it when doctors said he would likely die in a few days in any case.

The boxer was knocked out in the waning seconds of the 10th and final round of his non-title fight, a preliminary to the World Boxing Council welterweight title fight between Robert Duran and Sugar Ray Leonard at Montreal's Olympic Stadium.

Tambay takes Can-Am race win

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — No one seemed more surprised than race driver Patrick Tambay.

There he was, this Frenchman from Paris, in the victory circle Sunday, still unbeaten this year after having won his fourth Can Am race of the season. It took a big break to get him there.

Tambay was sailing along in third place Sunday, trailing Geoff Brabham and John Morton. Brabham was in front and being hotly pursued by Morton.

That's when fate handed Tambay the victory. Morton and Brabham pitted for fuel, and their cars collided while leaving the pits, knocking both of them out of the race and giving Tambay his win.

"I really don't know if I deserve to win the race," Tambay said later. "It sounds funny, but I'm looking for an excuse why I won."

The spectacular spill left Brabham, an Australian now of Tustin, Calif., and Morton of El Segundo, Calif., unscathed. Both walked away from the wreckage of their cars.

Elliott Forbes-Robinson of La Crescenta, Calif., and his teammate, Stephen South of England, also escaped injury when they tangled on the third lap of the race.

Forbes-Robinson's car spun emerging from a chicane, or zigzag, and South, who was right on his tail, plowed into the car, knocking both cars out of the race.

Forbes-Robinson had been running fourth at the time and South was in fifth position.

Tambay had trouble at the very start of the race when he and Brabham bumped at the first turn. Tambay flew off course, but got the car under control and back on the asphalt.

And at the end of the race, Tambay was driving without two of the gears that he normally would use in negotiating the 11-turn, 3.37-mile Grand Prix course here.

Even after he finished a lap in front of Danny Sullivan, a Louisville, Ky., native now living in Beverly Hills, Calif., Tambay had to survive still another challenge.

The Garvin Brown racing team, for which Sullivan drives, filed a protest, contending that too many members of Tambay's crew gave him a push start after a pit stop.

Carlton wins 14th victory

By The Associated Press

Philadelphia's Steve Carlton, the major league's winningest pitcher this season, recorded his 14th victory and became baseball's all-time left-handed strikeout king Sunday in helping the Phillies to an 8-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The 35-year-old veteran, who got ninth-inning relief help from Ron Reed, fanned seven to boost his lifetime total to 2,836 — four more than the total compiled by Mickey Lolich in a 15-year career. Carlton is in his 15th season.

The all-time strikeout leader is right-hander Walter Johnson, who fanned 3,508 in 20 years with the Washington Senators.

Carlton, 14-4, gave up seven hits and walked one in improving his lifetime record to 26-8 against the Cardinals, who traded him to the Phillies eight years ago.

Garry Maddox helped the Philadelphia cause by scoring a run in the fourth on Bob Boone's sacrifice fly and hitting a three-run homer in the ninth.

Meanwhile, Omar Moreno's run-scoring single in the 20th inning ended a five-hour, 31-minute marathon and gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs in major league baseball's longest game this season.

In other National League action, error by Dave Collins and Junior Kennedy allowed two Houston runs in the fourth and the Astros went on to a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati. Gary Carter's two-run single keyed a five-run Montreal 10th inning and carried the Expos to a 9-4 victory over New York.

Milt May's bases-loaded single with two out in the top of the 10th inning broke a 4-4 tie and San Francisco went on to a 7-4 victory over Los Angeles.

In the American League, Gary Alexander smashed his second pinch home run in two days, a three-run shot in the sixth inning, to give Cleveland a 5-3 victory over the New York Yankees. Tony Perez and Carlton Fisk combined to drive in five runs, leading Boston to a 6-4 victory over Baltimore.

Chicago's Jim Morrison and Harold Baines both singled home first-inning runs to back left-hander Steve Trout's five-hitter as Chicago beat Oakland 2-0 in the first game of a double-header. The White Sox won the second game 5-4 on Greg Pryor's two-run homer in the ninth.

Ed Halicki pitched two-hit ball for 8 1/3 innings and Jason Thompson blasted a home run to carry California to a 2-0 decision over Milwaukee. Richie Hebner drove in three runs and scored the winning run to back the combined six-hit pitching of Jack Morris and Aurelio Lopez as Detroit defeated Toronto 7-5.

Bruce Bochte and Tom Paciorek hit home runs and collected four hits apiece to power Seattle past Kansas City 5-3. Fernando Arroyo and Jerry Koonsman combined on a four-hitter, pitching Minnesota to a 4-1 victory over Texas.

Diablos take 13-6 Texas League victory

By The Associated Press

Tom Brunansky's two-run homer helped the El Paso Diablos beat the Amarillo Gold Sox, 13-6, in a Texas League baseball game Sunday.

In other Texas League action, Midland beat San Antonio, 9-4, and Tulsa outlasted Jackson, 15-12. Shreveport and Arkansas were idle.

Brunansky's homer was his 15th of the season and helped Rick Steier, 5-6, pick up the victory.

El Paso scored seven runs in the first inning and never looked back.

Fran Hirschy, 5-4, was the losing pitcher.

Joe Hicks had a solo homer in the fifth inning as the Midland Cubs beat the San Antonio Dodgers, 9-4.

Cubs win fifth straight, 9-4

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Sports Writer

The Midland Cubs seem to be growing claws on those paws at Cubs Stadium and the San Antonio Dodgers, the first half Western Division champions of the Texas League, have the scars to prove it.

The Cubs combined good hitting with good pitching again Sunday night to down the Dodgers, 9-4, while reeling off their fifth straight victory and maintaining a hold on the second half lead. They also got their second complete game in a row from the pitching staff as ex-Baylor ace Jon Perlman won his eighth game of the year. Henry Mack went the distance Saturday for a 5-4 win over the Dodgers.

THE COMPLETE game statistic is a good one to see because the Cubs have had problems in that area during the first half. Perlman was tough Sunday with a lively fast ball that produced 16 ground balls.

"The fast ball was moving pretty good, and I get a lot of grounders if it is working right," Perlman said after the win. "Still, it would have been better if I had given up less runs. I don't think I was warmed up properly in the first inning and they jumped on me pretty good for three runs."

Actually, the only real trouble Perlman had Sunday was with San Antonio's Mike Zouras, who tripled in the first and homered in the ninth for most of the Dodger attack. Perlman said, "Well, Zouras is a very good hitter anyway, but I got a fast ball up in the first to him and he banded it off the boards for a triple and then I hung a slider bad in the ninth when he hit his homer. It was still a good game for me though."

PERLMAN'S SLOW start did put the Cubs in a hole as the Dodgers jumped to a 3-0 lead on Zouras' two-run triple to left and Mike Marshall's run scoring single. But the Cubs are currently a hot item at the plate, and the 3-0 deficit was only a thorn to overcome.

The Cubs started the comeback in the first when Scott Fletcher tripled and scored on a grounder by Jesus Alfaro. In the third, J. W. Mitchell doubled, moved to third on a grounder by Mike Shepston and scored on Dave Stockstill's grounder. Joe Hicks then evened the game at 3-3 in the fifth when he powered a brutal solo homer to left off starter and eventual loser Ricky Wright.

"I was just trying to hit the ball," Hicks stated. "I wasn't trying to hit a homer — you never do when you are trying. But I did get good wood on a curve."

Then the Cubs gave Perlman a chance to relax in the sixth when they erupted with five runs to put the game on ice. Fletcher doubled and scored on a single by Tom Grant. Randy LaVigne singled and Wright intentionally walked Joe Hicks to face Jim Payne, who hit a grand slam last Thursday against the Dodgers. The tactic worked as Payne struckout, but J.W. Mitchell and Shepston both followed with two run singles to put the game away. Payne added an RBI single in the seventh for insurance.

Meanwhile, Perlman was going through the motions. He did give up nine hits, but only one runner got as far as second base until Zouras homered in the ninth.

THE CUBS end the short homestand today at 7:30 p.m. with another game with the Dodgers, hoping for

Rocket Jet Bug captures victory at Ruidoso Downs

RUIDOSO DOWNS (AP) — Lightly regarded Rocket Jet Bug took command right out of the starting gate and went on to post an impressive victory Sunday in the $560,180 Rainbow quarterhorse Derby at Ruidoso Downs.

The 3-year-old gelding went off as a 32-1 longshot in the 440 yard race that featured a tough field of speedsters vying for the first place purse of $194,313.

Ridden by jockey Larry Byers, Rocket Jet Bug broke on top, put daylight between himself and the rest of the field early, then held off the best closing Jaime Jay to win by a half length.

Rocket Jet Bug covered the 440 yards in 22.05 seconds and returned backers $67.00, $16.80 and $5.20.

The victory boosted Rocket Jet Bug's career earnings to $363,642. Owned by Betty Shebster, of Wynnewood, Okla., Rocket Jet Bug now has won two of four starts this year.

Jaime Jay, the betting favorite and winner of the $225,000 Kansas Derby at the same Ruidoso Downs track in May, put on a closing ruck to nail down second place by a neck over the filly Denim N Diamonds.

Jaime Jay, owned by W.E. Mueller of Colorado Springs, Colo., earned $88,828 for the runnerup finish, while Denim N Diamonds picked up $45,524 for owner R.D. Hubbard of Wichita, Kan.

Pie In The Sky, winner of the $1.2 million All American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs as a 2-year-old last fall, finished seventh, his third straight defeat since winning the world's richest horse race last September.

Byers, the veteran quarterhorse jockey, rode the winner despite nursing a broken collarbone suffered in a spill 10 days ago. Byers rode with a shoulder heavily taped.

Byers said the key to the win was the fact Rocket Jet Bug got away from the gate first, then opened up a commanding lead early in the dash.

"When he breaks that well and runs that hard, I don't have to worry about anyone else," said Byers.

Rocket Jet Bug earned $165,759 as a 2-year-old last summer, with most of that coming in victories at the West Texas and Sun Country futurities at Sunland Park. However, the Rainbow Derby was his first major stakes win since.

The order of finish after the top three included: Native Gambler, Chick's Charger Bar; Zipp Zorro; Pie In The Sky; Miss Dee Cee Ten and Brown Wind.

Klus Flame, who qualified for the race in trials two weeks ago, died last week in stall of an intestinal disorder. His owners, E.L. and Velma Weber of Anadarko, Okla., received the 10th place purse of $18,876.

In men's doubles, Midlanders Neil McClung and Derek Edmonds bested Midlanders John Berryhill and Don Sidone 7-6, 6-4.

Henry Temkin and Biffle of Dallas won boys' 18 doubles, 6-1, 7-5 over Smith-Brown.

Rodgers and Culp of Lubbock defeated Wright and Denham of Lubbock, 6-2, 6-4, for the boys' 16 doubles crown.

Lubbock's Jimmy Burkeholder won boys' 16 singles, 1-6, 6-3, 6-1 over David Wright of Lubbock while Wichita Falls' Steve Barley defeated Fort Stockton's Mike Hinson, 2-6, 7-6, 6-2, for the 12 singles title.

In boys' 14 doubles, Dopson-Dopson of Denton dumped Rutledge-Rodgers of Lubbock, 6-2, 6-2, while Zimmerer and Barley won boys' 12 doubles, 6-4, 7-5 over Patel and Bailey of Lubbock.

Lewis and Brice of Odessa won women's doubles, 6-4, 6-2 over Weaver and Clark of Midland while Burnam and Bray of Abilene stopped McCorkle and Mires of Lubbock, 7-5, 7-6, for the 18 doubles title.

New tires may have caused death

LIME ROCK, Conn. (AP) — The high-speed accident that killed Tom Stewart this weekend may have been caused by new tires on the rookie Formula Atlantic driver's car, Lime Rock Park officials say.

Stewart was taking his car through a practice run at about 100 mph when he crashed into a safety barrier on the back straight of the 1.53-mile race track at about 9 a.m. Saturday. He died about a half hour later of multiple injuries at nearby Sharon Hospital.

Officials concluded that mechanical failure was not the cause of the crash, but track spokesman James Lockwood said the tires on Stewart's car may not have been "scuffed up enough" to handle the high speeds.

The death of the 20-year-old Syosset, N.Y., driver was the first at the Lime Rock track in 14 years and only the fifth in the track's 24-year history.

Later in the day, actor Paul Newman and Canadian Jacques Villeneuve each claimed impressive victories.

Alcott outshoots Little, Carner for PGA triumph

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Amy Alcott says she's a prime example of one who likes to make it hard on herself.

But her opponents on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour are finding the 24-year-old Californian is making it increasingly difficult on them.

Alcott moved up to the No. 2 spot on the tour's 1980 money list with her three-stroke victory over Sally Little and JoAnne Carner in the $150,000 tournament which ended Sunday.

Alcott's 13-under-par 275 duplicated the lowest 72-hole score posted on the tour this year.

"It's real difficult out there, I'll make it even harder," said Alcott after receiving the $22,500 top prize that pushed her 1980 earnings over the $132,000 mark. "I enjoy winning that way."

Fuller, Cheyney win RHCC golf tournament

Larney Fuller and George Cheyney fired a 62 Sunday for a 179 total to win the three-day Ranchland Hills Country Club Firecracker High-Low partnership tournament.

Two shots behind the winning team was the tandem of Larry Freeman-Dopson, which shot 60.

Jamie Winkel and Bernie Scott had 61 Sunday and finished with a 182 total, winning third on a playoff. Cooper Daw and Graham Beebe teamed for fourth with a 63 Sunday and 182 total.

McCright, Tully win

Dan McCright and Tom Tully put together a 56 Sunday and it was enough to give the pair a 181 three-day total and the championship of the Greentree Country Club Fourth of July High-Low partnership tournament.

Frank McCabe and Mark Skeen were second with 187 while Ed Barnes and Dave Kemp were third.

Dale Spencer and Barry Halverson were fourth followed in order by Buddy Cole-Jimmy Wilson, Steve Daniels-Steve Brown, Frank Mullins-John Wood, Mark Stoltz-Bob Hodge, George Hamblin-Bill Chalfant and Jeff Hauptries-Ken Calloway.

New Sherlock Holmes exploits expected now

LONDON (AP) — The British copyrights on the adventures of Sherlock Holmes expired today, the 50th anniversary of the death of his creator, and new exploits of the world's most famous detective are expected.

Holmes and his faithful friend Dr. Watson, their arch foe Moriarty and the other inventions of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle can now be used in books, plays and films without paying royalties to Conan Doyle's heirs or his publisher.

Lady Bromet, Conan Doyle's 67-year-old daughter, says she will welcome new stories featuring her father's great investigator. She just hopes they will have style.

John Grey Murray, whose 200-year-old firm has published Conan Doyle for more than 60 years, says he expects increased competition but thinks he can meet it.

Murray has issued a collected edition, omnibus volumes and paperbacks of the Holmes stories. His chief worry is that Conan Doyle's texts will be emasculated since they are no longer protected from alteration or condensation.

The sorting out of Conan Doyle's literary remains provided a lawyers' feast. One biographer calculated that in the first 46 years after the writer's death, about a third of the income from his works was dissipated in legal costs.

Interest in Holmes around the world is still enormous.

Benny Green, a London critic, reports that the stories have been translated into 41 languages, including Eskimo and Esperanto, and in 1958 the Conan Doyle estate collected royalties in 72 different currencies.

There have been a concordance to Holmes, a glossary, two encyclopedias, a gazetteer, an atlas, a heraldry, 54 plays, 116 silent films, 81 talkies, a ballet and a Broadway musical.

The Abbey National Building Society, which occupies the site of Holmes' rooms at 221B Baker Street if there had been a No. 221B, has a department to answer the letters which arrive every day seeking the detective's help.

Michael Hardwick, a London writer who has already written books and plays based on the Sherlock Holmes stories, laments the eclipse of Conan Doyle by his creation.

"There are more than 500 Sherlock Holmes societies in the world," he said, "but if there is one devoted to Conan Doyle I have yet to hear of it."

Hardwick said he discovered one London library had a small exhibition commemorating the anniversary of the author's death. He said prodding from Murray, the publisher, stirred up interest among bookshops, broadcasters and the press.

Conan Doyle was born in Edinburgh in 1859 of an artistic family. He trained to be a doctor but preferred writing. His first Holmes story, "A Study in Scarlet," appeared in 1887.

In his later years he was a devotee and advocate of spiritualism. He died at the age of 71 in a house on a Sussex moor at Crowborough, 43 miles south of London.

Air show accident kills one, hurts 10

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (AP) — The U.S. Navy has begun two investigations into a Fourth of July accident that claimed the life of a young boy and injured 10 people during an air show at the Willow Grove Naval Air Station.

Philadelphia, died Sunday at Children's Hospital in Philadelphia, a hospital spokeswoman said. The boy was admitted with head injuries and critical brain Friday after he accidentally ejected himself through the canopy of a Navy jet on display, officials said.

The others were injured when the explosive charge in the ejection seat ignited. Authorities said all 10 were taken to local hospitals where they were treated and released.

John Pigford, 7, of Willow Grove, Pa., died Sunday at Children's Hospital in Philadelphia, a hospital spokeswoman said. The boy was admitted with head injuries and critical brain Friday after he accidentally ejected himself through the canopy of a Navy jet on display, officials said.

Shakespeare play confirmed?

Scholar claims computer proves Bard penned 'Booke'

LONDON (AP) — A computer program that analyzes writing styles has convinced one British scholar that a much-contested 16th century work is the work of William Shakespeare.

Thomas Merriam, a lecturer at Basingstoke Technical College, said Sunday he analyzed by computer "The Booke of Sir Thomas More," which has long been the subject of scholarly dispute. He believes Shakespeare was the author. Others attribute at least part of it to Shakespeare's 16th century rival, Anthony Munday.

In 1916 the British academic Sir Edward Maunde Thompson concluded that, based on handwriting evidence, Shakespeare had written at least a section of the play. But the claim has been hotly contested. Most of the play is said to be in Munday's handwriting.

"The only reason that scholars have given for Munday writing the play is that it is in Munday's handwriting," Merriam told The Associated Press. "Now we have a way of more or less demonstrating that the real author is not the person who actually wrote it." Merriam combined his interest in computers and Shakespeare and the disputed "Sir Thomas More" manuscript by using a sophisticated computer program of writing-style analysis developed in 1976 at Edinburgh University.

Merriam, 46, said the computer program can distinguish among the writing of different authors by looking at unconscious "word habits" which consistently appear in a writer's work but reportedly cannot successfully be copied by imitators or forgers. The result is a kind of literary fingerprint that can be analyzed by entering an entire text into a computer, Merriam says.

Merriam compared 41 word habits in other Shakespeare plays — including "Julius Caesar" and "Pericles" — with the text of "Sir Thomas More" and found only one difference he believed significant. "There can be no doubt that the words are Shakespeare's," he said. But he still expects skepticism from other academics.

The reason the play is in both men's handwriting, according to Merriam, is that Munday copied the words from Shakespeare during a brief period of collaboration between their two rival theater companies in 1593, the year the play is believed to have been written.

"They collaborated in that year and that year only," Merriam said. "I'm not suggesting that Munday plagiarized Shakespeare, just that he wrote down what was obviously Shakespeare's play."

"Here he's found a play of Shakespeare's, part of it written in his own hand — you can't ask for anything better than that. It's a marvelous piece of work," Andrew Morton of Edinburgh University's computer department was quoted as telling London's Sunday Observer newspaper.

The computer method, developed by Morton, has gained some acceptance in the literary world. Morton used it to establish "Titus Andronicus" as a play by Shakespeare and not by playwright John Peele as some scholars thought.

To make the mystery even deeper, "Sir Thomas More" is believed never to have been performed on stage in the 16th century.

The reason, according to scholars, is that Queen Elizabeth's chief censor, Edmund Tilney, rejected the work because of its rebellion scene, its anti-foreign flavor and a reference to More's refusal to agree to King Henry VIII's plans to divorce Catherine of Aragon and marry Anne Boleyn.

Sir Thomas, once Henry VIII's chancellor, was executed for treason in 1535, after he refused to recognize Henry as head of the Church of England.

Newport Jazz Festival successful again

NEW YORK (AP) — Impresario George Wein, reflecting on this year's 10-day Newport Jazz Festival, said the successful concerts are more like Broadway shows than concerts.

"Up till now, we could get away with just presenting artists doing their thing," Wein says. "Now the public and press is really more concerned with concept concerts."

The Newport Jazz Festival, which began 27 years ago outdoors in Newport, R.I., has been in New York since 1972. This year, there were simultaneous concerts in Carnegie and Avery Fisher halls on most nights.

The festival was dedicated this year to the architect of bebop, alto saxophonist Charlie Parker, who was born 60 years ago and died in 1955. It began with excellent tribute concerts to Parker in both halls. Parker was also frequently mentioned and his music played during a tribute concert to bebop vocalist and lyricist Eddie Jefferson.

The second night's tribute to jazz to Fred Astaire was sold out. Singer Angela Boffill sold out two concerts in one evening and Sarah Vaughan sold out hers. "We had an incredible number of sellouts or near sellouts, beyond expectations," Wein says. "For the Toshiko Akiyoshi Big Band concert, we had estimated 60 percent and it did 70 percent. The Gato Barbieri concert was within 100 tickets of selling out."

Still, Wein says, "what we have to work on in the future is the fact that people are looking for similar elements to a Broadway show, a concept, lighting, sound."

"Now it's driving us crazy when something isn't perfect. Artists come in the day before a concert and rehearse that afternoon — like the band for the tap dancing concert — and they weren't together. It necessarily takes more time and rehearsal to get perfection."

Highlight of the festival for Wein was the first half of the sold-out "Blues is a Woman" concert. Rosetta Reitz, who produced and conceived the idea, "tried to do a little too much in the second half. I've made the same mistake a lot of times," Wein says.

A young French violinist, Didier Lockwood, joined the Dave Brubeck Quartet and got a standing ovation. New music concerts did well. Wein says, "For the first time there is a growing public for this." "The New Music Remembers the Old Master, Duke Ellington," was an appropriate ending concert.

Disappoints for Wein were Herbie Hancock not selling out a second late-night concert and Chick Corea's charming Saturday afternoon concert for children which also was not full.

During the July Fourth holiday weekend there were noon to midnight concerts in Saratoga, N.Y. The weather was good and, unlike last year, there was no gasoline shortage. "That's where the bank is, where we have to make money," Wein says, and this year the festival did. Kool Cigarettes gave Wein a grant for U.S. jazz concerts he promotes during the year and Newport is included.

Music school marks 40th anniversary

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — The Berkshire Music Center, whose alumni include conductor Leonard Bernstein, soprano Leontyne Price and nearly a fifth of the professional musicians in American orchestras, celebrated its 40th birthday under the baton of Aaron Copland.

One of the nation's most famous composers, Copland led the Boston Symphony Orchestra through five of his works on Saturday.

The performance marked the anniversary of the school, which is set among the tall pines of Tanglewood, summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Copland, 79, joined the music school when it was founded in 1940 by conductor Serge Koussevitzky. He became chairman of its faculty and worked there for 25 years.

For eight weeks each summer, the music center is a kind of finishing school for the nation's most promising young conductors, instrumentalists and classical singers. About 450 musicians, selected through auditions, spend most of their waking hours playing music, listening to music, and talking about music on the green estate in the Berkshire hills.
