Carter renews party themes

NEW YORK (AP) — With obvious relish, Jimmy Carter and Walter F. Mondale are plunging into their campaign against Ronald Reagan by portraying the Republican presidential nominee as "radical and irresponsible" and by raising the specter of "the final madness of a nuclear holocaust."

This rhetoric of attack brought cheers loud and long on the final night of the Democratic National Convention, but ironically not as deafening as those for Carter's defeated rival, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Carter renewed the theme today in remarks at a post-convention meeting of the Democratic National Committee. Carter said the 1980 election would present voters with "sharp, maybe unprecedented, differences."

He said the convention ended with "a climax of unity and achievement and purpose that guarantees that we have turned the corner...that Democrats will be in the White House for the next four years."

The climax of unity Carter referred to was Kennedy's appearance on the podium after Carter and Mondale had delivered their acceptance speeches at Madison Square Garden on Thursday night as the party's 1980 ticket. Kennedy was subdued.

He was there for less than five minutes. He spoke not a word to the delegates who loudly cheered each time he waved with the understated clenched-fist gesture he used so often during his ill-starred presidential campaign.

Carter held his hand out. Kennedy grasped it. There was no embrace. No suggestion that this was a meeting between old friends. They looked rather like two generals who had fought a long war and were trying to bring about peace among their followers as well as between themselves.

It was an extraordinary end to a political convention at which the loudest cheers were for the defeated Democratic candidate.

The president began his campaign today by having breakfast with black convention delegates who seemingly overlooked their differences with Carter and greeted him warmly with chants of "We Want Jimmy! We Want Jimmy!"

A smiling Carter told them in response: "I have always been underestimated as a candidate. I have a secret weapon and that is the black people of this great country who know they have a friend in Jimmy Carter."

The president then took an hour-long tour of an exhibition of Pablo Picasso's works at the Museum of Modern Art before delivering a campaign pep talk at a post-convention meeting of the Democratic National Committee.

Former U.N. ambassador Andrew Young, a longtime Carter ally, told reporters he was not surprised by Kennedy's restraint at the convention podium Thursday night. "If it had been any more than that, it would have been phony," Young said. "You have to expect some strain for a while."

Early today, Carter said he and Kennedy would meet in Washington at some point. Carter planned to spend this weekend at his Camp David, Md., retreat.

There was no word yet when or where he would formally open his fall campaign. Four years ago, Carter and Mondale launched their campaign with a rally in Warm Springs, Ga., the resort where Franklin Delano Roosevelt often vacationed and where he died.

Carter campaign aides already have said the president will concentrate on the industrial states of the Northeast and upper Midwest, areas where Reagan also intends to make his principal effort.

Reagan believes his conservative programs are becoming increasingly attractive to blue-collar workers who traditionally have voted Democratic. In addition, the Republican nominee also expects independent presidential candidate John Anderson to be far more damaging to Carter in states like New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Michigan and Illinois.

That Reagan strategy made it all the more crucial to Carter to gain the Massachusetts senator's active support in the states where he has a strong following.

With their internal party squabbles quieted by a truce, if not necessarily a lasting peace, Carter and Mondale lost no time jumping to the attack. Their acceptance speeches reflected a strategy that follows the 1964 Democratic campaign against Barry Goldwater, in which the conservative senator from Arizona was successfully portrayed as trigger-happy and as a radical who would try to repeal progressive programs dating back to the New Deal. Those themes were clear in Thursday night's speeches.

Body won't be exhumed

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The brother of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald has successfully stymied an attempt to exhume his brother's body — an exhumation approved by Oswald's widow.

A state district judge granted a temporary restraining order against the exhumation Thursday afternoon after Robert Oswald of Wichita Falls, filed a lawsuit saying he would suffer "severe mental pain and anguish" if the body is unearthed.

Marina Oswald Porter said she signed a release to exhume the body, although she personally is convinced the body in Rose Hill Cemetery here is that of her dead husband.

"I don't need the proof," she told The Associated Press from her Rockwall home Thursday. "I don't need it for myself. As far as that is concerned, I just signed the release. It's up to the court to decide."

In a statement released earlier Thursday, Mrs. Porter said she felt an exhumation and autopsy would put an end to speculation that the body in the grave is not that of Oswald.

British author Michael Eddowes has tried unsuccessfully to force Dallas and Tarrant county authorities to dig up the grave to prove his claims that the body in Oswald's grave is that of a Russian imposter.

Wright denied Eddowes' request for an exhumation order last year. That decision recently was upheld by a civil appeals court here and now is before the Texas Supreme Court.

Eddowes' attorney, Charles Pittman, announced Thursday afternoon they had received "legal authority" to exhume the body, although he would not disclose the source of the authority.

Less than an hour later, State District Judge James Wright granted a temporary restraining order against an exhumation and ordered a hearing on the matter for Aug. 22.

Pittman said the restraining order did not surprise him, and he felt "we still have a good shot" at getting the body exhumed.

"I'm not worried about this," Eddowes said of Thursday's action. "This is something for the American people to decide upon. I have given all the information I have and there is nothing else I can do."

Robert Oswald, who owns the Oswald plot at Rose Hill Cemetery here, asked for the restraining order in a lawsuit that names, among others, Mrs. Porter and Eddowes.

Mrs. Porter said her brother-in-law called her about the lawsuit, but she stood by her approval of the exhumation.

"I think he has a right to do what he thinks," she said. "He's just as much a member of the family as I am. I respect my brother-in-law very much and he's entitled to his feelings just as I am."

"At least, there's no hard feelings on my side."

Four men arrested in gambling probe

Four Midland men indicted for gambling promotion in a continuing investigation by the Midland County Grand Jury were arrested by sheriff's deputies Thursday afternoon and then made bail at $5,000 each.

They and two others, who were not arrested by early today, were indicted Wednesday for gambling promotion in the investigation, which may involve a county official.

Indicted for gambling promotion were:

—Charlie Snodgrass, 33, of 504 E. Dakota Ave. Snodgrass is a mechanic for Ronny Smith Music Co.

—Raymond Click, 44, of 703 S. Dallas St. Click is a self-employed contractor.

—Ronny D. Smith, 38, of 2608 Frontier Drive. Smith operates Ronny Smith Music Co.

—Dick Leonard, 47, of 1403 Princeton Ave. Leonard is connected with the Executive Lounge and Jokers Lounge on Midland's westside.

Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith and the Department of Public Safety have been working with the grand jury in a joint investigation apparently related to gambling.

"The investigation is continuing. It's not over," Smith said Thursday.

"I simply can't acknowledge or deny who may or may not be involved" in the alleged gambling promotion. The sheriff also said he expects the investigation, which began about a month ago, to be completed by next week.

State statutes provide for defenses against gambling but none against gambling promotion, Smith said.

Gambling, he said, may not be outside the law (1) if all participants have equal chances of winning or losing, (2) if the gambling takes place in a private place and (3) if there is no gain outside of the winning in fair play.

"In gambling promotion, there's just no defense," he said.

Among other indictments returned by the grand jurors were those against:

—Howard G. Peters III, indicted for criminal mischief. Released under a $5,000 bond.

—Louis Edward Wright, indicted for burglary of a building. Released under a $5,000 bond.

—Carroll Stephen Crouch, indicted for unlawfully carrying a weapon on a premises licensed for the sale of alcoholic beverages. Released under a $5,000 bond.

—Luis Villa Trevizo, indicted for burglary of a building. Released under a $5,000 bond.

—Donna Ann Jones, indicted for burglary of a building. Released under a $5,000 bond.

—Johnny Dean Payton, indicted for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Jailed in lieu of posting a $7,500 bond.

—William Jeffrey McClellan, indicted for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Jailed in lieu of posting a $7,500 bond.

—James Thomas Stephens, indicted for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Jailed in lieu of posting a $7,500 bond.

—Donley Eugene Robinson, indicted for aggravated assault on a peace officer. Released under a $5,000 bond.

Food leads producer price jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation at the wholesale level raced ahead 1.7 percent in July — the biggest jump in nearly six years — mainly as a result of a sharp, drought-influenced spurt in food prices, the government said today.

The huge increase dramatically halted months of an easing inflation trend. In June, wholesale, or producer, prices rose 0.8 percent.

Not since November 1974 have producer prices risen so fast, the Labor Department said. July's boost outpaced even the dizzying levels set earlier this year when inflation was so severe that credit controls were imposed.

If July's seasonally adjusted rate continues for an entire year, inflation at the wholesale level would exceed 22 percent annually, far more than the 10 percent yearly pace set in June.

However, this spurt was called "temporary" by Allen Sinai, vice president of Data Resources Inc., the Lexington, Mass., economic forecasting firm. "It should not set off a long-term increase in inflation."

"This is a shock due primarily to food. The overall backdrop for inflation, because consumer demand is down so, due to the recession, is favorable," he said.

The Labor Department reported that food was the major culprit at all three levels of the Producer Price Index: finished goods, intermediate items and raw products.

In sharp contrast, gasoline prices fell 1.2 percent in July, while home heating fuel remained the same.

"Up even through June, food was a very strong moderating influence on prices, while energy had been the major thrust for pumping up inflation," said John Early, a Labor Department economist. "Now, it's getting to a place where they are reversing roles."

The price of finished food products — ready for sale to consumers — rose 3.8 percent last month, far more than the 0.7 percent increase in June, the department said.

Processed poultry prices shot up 23.5 percent, as millions of chickens were killed by the scorching heat that has hit the nation's farm belt.

Prices for beef, meanwhile, jumped 7.4 percent, compared with 3.9 percent the month before, while pork prices increased 13.7 percent, far more than the 0.8 percent boost in June, the department said.

Compared with food, all other finished goods at the wholesale level rose 1.1 percent in July.

The sharp acceleration in food was particularly evident at the intermediate and crude stages — a signal that the worst may yet to come as these jumps are passed on through processing and sale to consumers in coming months, say private economists.

At the crude, or unprocessed stage, food prices shot up 9 percent in July, pushing the prices for all raw products at the wholesale level up 6.3 percent, the department said.

Grain prices shot up 13.7 percent in July, after falling in four of the first six months of 1980. Sharply higher crop prices resulting from the drought were primarily responsible for this turnaround.

Prices for live poultry and hogs increased more than 25 percent.

But, July's inflation pace was far from exclusively food-related, Labor Department figures show.

Big Spring man dies in accident

BIG SPRING — A 37-year-old Big Spring man died Thursday night in a one-vehicle accident nine-tenths of a mile east of the Big Spring city limits.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Odis Bradshaw of Big Spring was westbound on Driver Road about 10:35 p.m. The car failed to negotiate a turn, ran off the left side of the road and into a bar ditch, striking a concrete embankment.

Bradshaw was pronounced dead at the scene by Howard County Peace Justice Lewis Heflen. The body was taken to Sheppard Funeral Home.

The accident was investigated by Texas Highway Patrol Trooper Glen Redmond of Big Spring.

Carter's mixed victory

Some would say President Jimmy Carter won the rules fight Monday evening at the Democratic National Convention in New York City. Others would contend that Sen. Edward Kennedy, Carter's main opponent for the Democratic Party's presidential nomination, lost.

But from here it appears that if President Carter really won, he did so badly crippled.

The rules change, if approved, would have freed the 3,327 delegates at the convention to vote for any candidate they wanted to support rather than to vote for the candidate the voters back home sent them to support. In most instances that candidate was President Carter.

The purpose here is not to address the "open convention" issue. That's water under the bridge now. Rather, the point is to make some observations on what the rules fight vote indicates.

It is true that President Carter "won" the fight. Of the 3,327 delegates to the convention, 1,936.4 or about 58 percent of the delegates voted "no" on the proposal to throw the convention open. That can be loosely construed as support for the president.

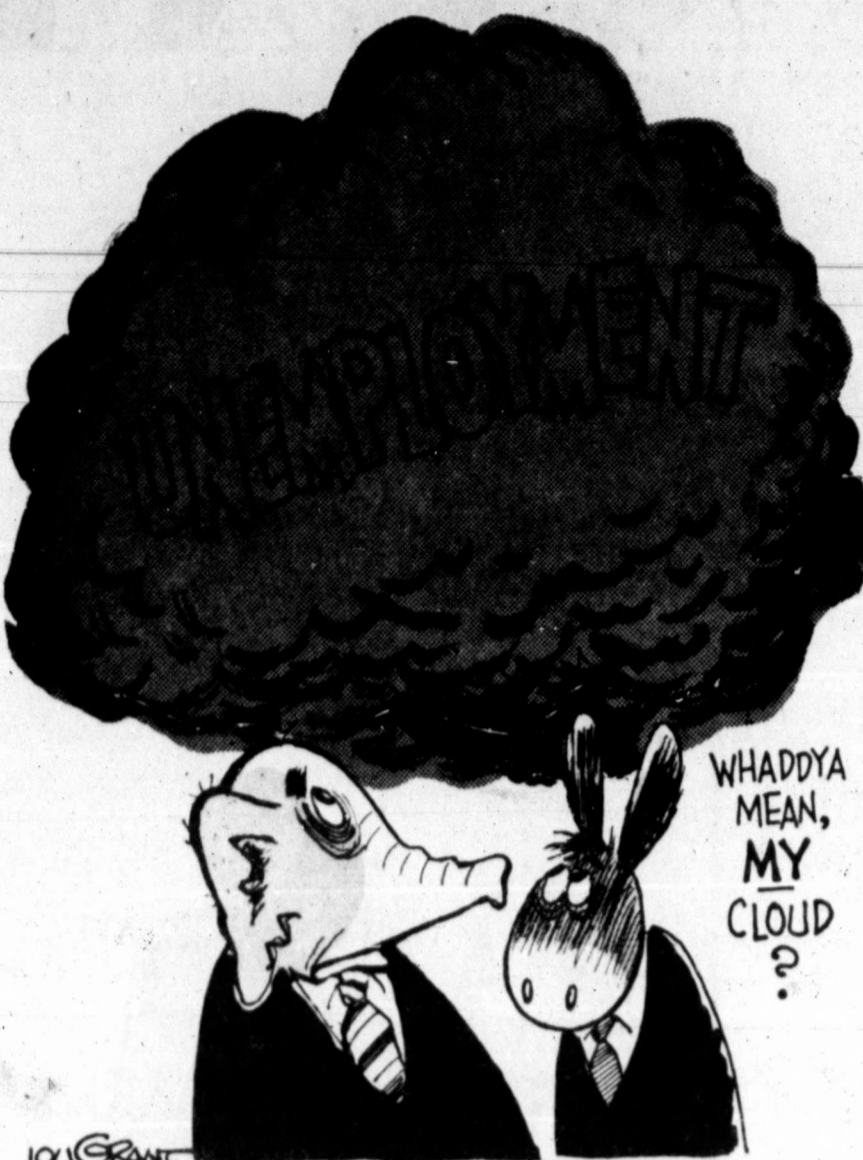

But there's another way to look at the vote, one we believe is apparent to many voters in this country. A total of 1,390.6 of the delegates — or about 42 percent — voted in favor of the open convention proposal. Now, it's relatively safe to assume that while delegates to the convention do not reflect a true mirror image of the electorate in general, they likely can serve as a fair sampling of voter sentiment — a 3,327 — person poll, if you will.

Viewed in that context, it probably would be safe to say that a large percentage of Democrats have abandoned the president for whatever reason — his foreign policy stance, domestic policies and so forth.

Certainly it would be stretching the imagination a bit to say that the open convention vote means that 42 percent of all Democrats in the nation will not support the president this time around. But it isn't hard to imagine that a fair number of Democrats may elect to cross over this fall and vote for Republican nominee Ronald Reagan, independent candidate John Anderson or just stay home.

The vote did indicate a lack of unity in the Democratic Party, in sharp contrast to the unified front shown the nation by the Republican Party last month in Detroit. It could hold some harsh realities for the president in November. Of course, anything can happen between now and election day. But between now and then Jimmy Carter will be hard at work on his campaign strategy if he "read" the same thing into open convention vote that we did.

CHARLEY REESE Political parties died as politicians evolved

Charley Reese

The pundit game this week is analyzing the Democratic Party. Well, the first step is to remember that the Democrats, like the Republicans, have never stood for anything except electing their candidates.

Political parties are political machines and what has happened to the Democrats is the same thing that has happened to the Republicans: Their organization has disintegrated.

In the old days, political parties worked like the famous Daley machine in Chicago. Areas were organized block by block right up to the top. These organizations existed independently of any particular candidate and really of any particular issues.

Those were the days when candidates needed the parties to win. Those were the days, but they are no more. Except for perhaps a few pockets here and there, neither party has a strong organization which can elect or defeat. Today, the parties are mere appendages of the candidates and each candidate for all practical purposes forms his own "party" for a particular campaign.

Thus the fall contest will really be the Carter Party versus the Reagan Party with the Anderson Party in the background. The Carter Party will have most black Americans who distrust Republicans. This is a reversal of traditional roles. In the early part of this century, Republicans were good guys in black eyes and Democrats were the bad guys. On the other hand, Reagan's group will contain many blue collar workers and this, too, is a reversal of traditional roles from the days when it was commonly said, "Democrats are for the working man while Republicans are for big business." Actually, both parties were for big business, but it was once a common belief.

President Carter will base his entire campaign on attacking Reagan and who can blame him considering he has such an abysmal record to defend. Furthermore this fits Carter's present delusion that he is the reincarnation of Harry Truman. What an irony. Jimmy Carter is to Harry Truman as Rex Reed is to John Wayne.

There are a lot of ironies in any election. Carter will try to paint Reagan as a war-monger when in fact every war in this century has been entered by a Democratic president who campaigned on a peace plank, starting with Woodrow Wilson. Democrats always cry foul when you mention this, but it is a historical fact nevertheless as well as logically understandable since weakness or the appearance of weakness invites aggression.

It will be interesting, too, to hear the Democrats propose solutions to problems. It will be interesting because the Democrats have held a sizeable majority in the U.S. Congress since the early 1950s and so presumably could have effected any solution to any problem which occurred to them.

My point is not to make Republicans look good, but to remind you that most of our problems are the result of government actions, not inaction. The politicians have done too much already. God knows if they help us anymore, we'll go under.

When you get right down to it there is no point in analyzing the Democratic Party because it no longer really exists — except in name just as the Republican Party no longer really exists.

Detroit was Reagan's media event; New York is Carter's media event. There is no significance to either event beyond its value as a publicity gimmick for the presidential campaign. Conventions were part of the party structure and when the parties died, the conventions died.

We simply haven't gotten around to burying them yet.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

If the Democrats were smart, the keynote address would have been delivered by Blackstone the magician.

The thing to remember about the recent gathering of Democrats is that the main concern was jobs — their own.

One of the most frustrated people at the convention was the politician who made a dutiful pilgrimage to the South Bronx — and nobody took his picture.

I can't understand why the police arrested so many prostitutes when the Democrats were in New York. They were the only ones at the convention to deliver on their promises.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Letter leaves Carter dealings unexplained

WASHINGTON — For months, I have been investigating the strange financial links between the Carter crowd and the Arabs. All the while, the guardians of President Carter's assets, Charles Kirbo and Robert Lipshutz, have been sitting like stuffed owls on the Carter ledgers.

Jack Anderson

Kirbo has simply refused to take repeated telephone calls from my reporter Peter Peckarsky. Lipshutz answered the telephone at first but gave evasive answers. Once he slammed down the phone.

Now out of Atlanta has come a lawyerly letter from the pair, professing indignation over my reports and offering a page of obfuscation in response. The letter has the whiff of whitewash common to political documents that are intended more to conceal than to clarify.

I reported that the president had accepted favorable loan treatment from a bank controlled by a Saudi Arabian businessman, Ghaith Pharaon, whose father advises the Saudi king how to deal with Washington.

Kirbo and Lipshutz now respond by asserting what no one disputes, least of all myself. Their letter professes, as if I had reported something different, what I had been careful to point out: That Carter became indebted to the National Bank of Georgia before he became president and before the Saudi Arabian acquired his stock in the bank.

I agree completely with Messrs. Kirbo and Lipshutz that the Saudis had no interest in this obscure bank until Carter had become president. But here are some other points the Atlanta lawyers omitted from their letter:

- (1) That the Saudis had learned the Carter peanut business was one of the bank's biggest borrowers;
- (2) that the Saudis were also aware President Carter wanted to save his buddy, Bert Lance, from financial ruin;
- (3) that Pharaon then purchased Lance's stock in the bank for about double its worth; (4) that Pharaon consulted his father in the Saudi palace before making the purchase; (5) that it was a questionable investment in a bank which was losing money and paying no dividends; (6) that the bank renegotiated the Carter loan shortly after coming under Saudi control; and (7) that the new repayment terms were favorable to the president.

Of all the banks in America, why would the Saudis want to acquire the National Bank of Georgia? Kirbo and Lipshutz ignore the question, but I have a possible explanation.

The Saudis have made no secret of their belief that the real source of Jewish influence in Washington is a financial hold on the politicians who wield the power. It follows that the Saudis, old hands at the politics of bribery and manipulation, would seek to use their petrodollars to gain a similar hold on the purse strings of the powerful.

The Kirbo-Lipshutz letter also disputes my claim that the Carter family in 1978 got a $60,000 break on their loan from the now Saudi-controlled bank. Declares the letter: "The Carter business got no 'break' for $60,000 or even $1."

In fact, the family peanut works lost about $500,000 in 1977 and wound up the year insolvent, with $93,058.49 more liabilities than assets. This caused a strain on the president's finances, since he was the only member of the family with the resources to make the payments on a construction loan.

These were the circumstances when the Saudi-controlled bank reduced the principal repayment in 1978 from $168,000 to $80,000. After taking into account the extra interest, this amounts to a break of $88,000. To be as fair as possible, I used an even lower figure in my earlier report.

Finally, the president's trustees wind up their letter with a paragraph of nitpicking. They write: "The public records of Sumter County, Ga., have shown — for anyone who really wants facts — that the loan of NBG to Carter's Warehouse was paid in full and satisfied in early March, 1980. The same public records show that the collateral previously given to NBG now is held by Trust Company Bank of Atlanta."

My first report on the Carter-Saudi financial ties, it's true, noted that the county records showed the loan still outstanding but quoted the bank president as saying it had been paid off.

Both Kirbo and Lipshutz, meanwhile, had refused to provide the information that they now volunteer on the status of the loan. I subsequently learned, and immediately reported, that the loan had been transferred to the Trust Company Bank of Atlanta.

But this raises more questions than it answers. The document transferring the loan was originally dated Feb. 29, although this date is lined out and the signature is dated March 3. So apparently, the transfer had been originally set for Feb. 29.

This was the day before the United States voted in the United Nations to condemn Israeli settlements on the West Bank. The vote raised such a storm in the Jewish community that Carter repudiated it.

But the timing suggests that the president's trustees were trying to move the loan out of the bank before the vote was cast. Why the hasty transfer? Perhaps it was precipitated by questions in January from my reporter, Peter Peckarsky, who inquired about the president's indebtedness to a Saudi-owned bank at the same time he was taking foreign policy cues from the Saudis. You see, the Saudis had pressed the United States to join in condemning the Israeli settlements.

The president repudiated the vote, and at about the same time, Charles Kirbo took off for Saudi Arabia on a mysterious mission that hasn't been explained.

Democrats divided on how to deal with Russian threat

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

NEW YORK — As Sen. Edward M. Kennedy withdrew from the presidential race and party leaders proclaimed a new "unity," the party was continuing its 12-year-old struggle over national security policy in skirmishes all the way from Madison Square Garden to Kennebunk, Maine.

While trying to ignore the presence of the Russian Bear, the 3,300 delegates in New York were preparing to act as a deliberative body to decide whether the most important new weapons system of President Carter's administration, the MX mobile missile, should be condemned. Meanwhile, two high administration officials were arriving in Maine to soothe Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie's fury, worked up by McGovernites in the State Department, over Carter's new nuclear strategy.

The delegates will leave New York with the post-Vietnam split papered over at best, or possibly ruptured further. That split dwarfs the philosophical division on display last month at the Republican convention over equal rights for women. On the transcendent issues of foreign policy, the Republican Party has united behind Ronald Reagan; on those same issues at Madison Square Garden, the Democrats were no less divided than they have been ever since their tormented 1968 convention in Chicago.

Amidst perfunctory assaults on Reagan and pro-ERA demonstrations, an intimation that the U.S. is in a world struggle with the Soviet Union was delivered to unlistening delegates by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan. He chose an expedient rhetorical device, coined by the late Sen. George Aiken, who said of Vietnam, claim victory and get out. Moynihan's Monday night speech claimed Jimmy Carter has seen the truth of the Soviet threat and is organizing the U.S. to contain it.

It was not merely that the delegates who stuck around after the suspenseful rules fight Monday night had no interest in Moynihan's warnings about the world struggle. A majority probably did not approve of Carter's new world posture, as described by Moynihan. The substantial opposition to MX reflects that.

But the dispatch of two aircraft from the Defense and State Departments to Muskie's summer home in Maine suggests Moynihan was over-optimistic. With the nuclear-strategy directive signed by the president himself last month, the backfire started at the State Department. Former foreign policy advisers to Sen. George McGovern, hired for top posts in Carter's fledgling administration, fueled it. They never have accepted the reality of Moscow's expansionism and have goaded Muskie into outrage over the new policy.

But even Carter's own political advisers are ambivalent about defense and reluctant to accept Moynihan's formulation. Besides seeking to conciliate the Kennedy delegates, they still feel the best way to cut Reagan down to size is to brand him as a warmonger.

The political problem was well put by one of Carter's senior aides here: While a majority of Americans accept the "military superiority" promise of the Republican platform, this aide believes that that ground can be won in the election by accusing Reagan of resuming an arms race.

All this shows the elements of farce behind the claims of "unity" filling Madison Square Garden. What really exists here is a listlessness, pessimism and lack of passion. "We aren't addressing ourselves to what America is really worried about," a Carter administration official confided to us on the Garden floor Monday night.

The most important of these worries, whether rank-and-file Democrats fully realize it, is the nation's deteriorating position in the world. It is on this issue that Democrats cannot come to terms.

As compared with this tragic inability of the world's oldest political party to unite on America's place in the world, the withdrawal of Teddy Kennedy was merely a confirmation of Carter's renomination. How to play the Russian threat remains as obscured by the Democrats as it has been since Vietnam.

TOKYO (AP) — The 79-year-old Emperor of Japan marked with today the 35th anniversary of the war.

"Even today, I grieve when I think of the battlefields of the last war, the families that gathered on the day of the war, the Tokyo's Budo.

It was at the age of 15, 1945 that I was taken to the States and I lived in a war situation. I was in a camp for four years of my life. I was in a camp for four years of my life. I was in a camp for four years of my life.

Two weeks ago, I was in a camp for four years of my life. I was in a camp for four years of my life. I was in a camp for four years of my life.

As clocks today, the noisier of state, led to a silent prayer. Japanese Emperor Hirohito, who

Third hijacked plane safe in San Juan

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The third jetliner hijacked from Florida to Cuba this week landed in San Juan early today after it was commandeered by two young men who made it back to their communist homeland by threatening to torch the plane with a little plastic bottle of gasoline, passengers said.

The 12 crew members of the National Airlines DC-10 refused to talk to reporters, but some of the 209 passengers who disembarked — many carrying shopping bags full of Cuban rum and cigars — said the hijackers identified themselves as Cubans who wanted to return to their families.

They said one of the hijackers had light skin and was tall and skinny, and the other was slightly shorter, a little bit heavier and darker, and had a black moustache. They said one carried what looked like a "pint mouthwash bottle" of gasoline and kept threatening to set it afire with a lighter.

Lt. Dirk Rodriguez of the U.S. Air Force, a native of Ponce, Puerto Rico, who was a passenger, said the hijackers were in the 12th row of the first tourist cabin of National Flight 872 bound from Miami to San Juan and made their move about 7:40 p.m. EDT Friday, roughly one hour after takeoff.

He said they pulled out the bottle and started making threats, then splashed gasoline around four seats, sending two passengers to the lavatory to wash up as the odor of the gasoline spread through the plane.

Rodriguez said one hijacker sat on the edge of one of the seats holding a lighter in one hand and the bottle in the other, and that when anyone approached him he would bring the lighter toward the mouth of the bottle and make threatening gestures.

Fatima Planco of San Juan, another passenger, said, "One of the hijackers said if they don't bring this plane to Cuba they would burn it up."

Leonidas Toledo, mayor of Cayey, Puerto Rico, who was returning from the Democratic National Convention in New York City, said he and his wife felt threatened.

He said the hijackers, although generally polite, were "very menacing." "The last 15 to 20 minutes before landing in Cuba, we felt very much in danger."

Mort Cohen of Washington, D.C., a vacationer aboard the flight, said the plane landed in Cuba about 9 p.m. EDT "at a completely darkened airport and stayed way out on runway until searchlights went on from a semicircle of vehicles that pulled up to the plane on one side."

Cohen's wife, Janet, said two uniformed Cubans came aboard and called for those who wanted to get off to come forward, that the hijackers did and were handcuffed by the Cubans and put in a waiting car that sped off with two other vehicles.

She said the hijackers had made their threat with "what looked like a pint mouthwash bottle filled with something yellow. It had no cap on it." She said when the Cuban authorities came aboard they took out the four seats doused with gasoline and removed them from plane, then ordered everybody off.

She and the others were then put on buses, taken to the main airline terminal at Jose Marti airport, given free food and beverages, allowed to shop for three to four hours, then bused back to the plane, which refueled and took off for San Juan, where it arrived at 3:30 a.m. EDT.

On Wednesday an Air Florida jet was hijacked to Cuba, and on Sunday another Air Florida jet was commandeered to the island. All the hijackers thus far were Spanish-speaking, and U.S. officials said it appeared they were disenfranchised Cuban refugees who arrived in Florida on the "Freedom Flotilla."

The National Airlines plane was commandeered only hours after federal officials and airline chiefs met to discuss how to cut down on hijackings.

"I don't know if it's a new wave," Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Jack Barker said in Atlanta. "But certainly, three in a week is way too many."

Three guerrillas killed in attack

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Seaborne Israeli troops, under a cover of helicopter gunships, attacked Palestinian targets along the southern Lebanese coast during the night, and the Israeli command reported at least three guerrillas killed in strikes as close as 20 miles from Beirut.

Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, Israel's military chief of staff, said the raiders went after guerrilla traffic on the Lebanese coastal highway. In addition to the guerrillas killed, one vehicle was blown up, Eytan told Israel Radio today. He did not elaborate.

A terse statement issued by the Tel Aviv command gave few specifics of the raid, the first reported Israeli strike into southern Lebanon in two months.

The army said troops attacked Palestinian bases "in a number of places" north of the coastal cities of Tyre and Sidon, 15 and 35 miles north of the Israeli border respectively.

All the raiders returned safely, said a spokesman, who described the action as a move "to prevent terrorist attacks in Israel."

There was speculation the attack might be linked to an Israeli report Thursday that one of its gunboats came under fire Wednesday night while patrolling along the Lebanese coast. Israel said the gunboat returned fire. No casualties were reported.

Sources in Lebanon said the raiders, protected by an umbrella of helicopter gunships, came ashore from gunboats at three points in and around Sidon, about 20 miles south of Beirut, the Lebanese capital.

One Israeli squad ambushed a Palestinian civilian truck at Jasser Awali, a Palestinian-controlled hamlet just north of Sidon, said a statement issued by the joint Palestinian guerrilla command. It said one guerrilla was killed and six wounded in a shootout with the Israelis.

Other sources said guerrilla forces intercepted the raiders, engaged them and forced them to retreat. The sources reported an unspecified number of casualties on both sides.

The guerrillas claimed they had no bases in the area, but local residents said there were a number of guerrilla tent camps in the region.

Emperor Hirohito marks WWII's anniversary

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito, the 79-year-old sole survivor of Japan's World War II leadership, marked with "profound emotion" today the 35th anniversary of the end of the war.

"Even today I feel a sense of anguish when I think of all those lost on the battlefields or felled by the ravages of the last great war, and of their families that survived," Hirohito told a gathering of 6,390 relatives of Japanese war dead in a ceremony at Tokyo's Budokan martial arts hall.

It was at the stroke of noon on Aug. 15, 1945 that Hirohito ended almost four years of war with the United States and its allies when he announced in a radio broadcast, "The war situation has developed not necessarily to Japan's advantage. The voice of their 'living God, Japanese people had heard the voice of their 'living God.'"

Two weeks later, on Sept. 2, the documents of surrender were signed on the deck of the U.S. battleship Missouri in Tokyo Bay.

As clocks struck noon in Tokyo today, the now-powerless emperor, a stoop-shouldered figurehead symbol of state, led the nation in a minute of silent prayer for the 2.5 to 3 million Japanese who died in the war.

Hirohito, who renounced his divine status on New Year's Day, 1946, now lives a reclusive life in the Imperial Palace, a tranquil, green oasis in the bustling streets of the thriving Japanese capital.

Throughout the country, sirens wailed and bells tolled to mark the moment of remembrance. Flags were flown at half staff in memorial.

In Osaka, play was halted for one minute at the national high school baseball championships, the most popular sports event of the year in Japan, to observe the anniversary.

Also attending the annual memorial services at the massive martial arts hall were Empress Nagako, Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and about 1,000 government officials.

Suzuki urged that the nation "grasp deeply the lessons we have learned from the war, so that the sacrifices of our comrades who never returned will not be in vain."

The now elderly spouses, brothers and sisters of the war dead dominated the audience. Most were dressed in mourning black or conservative gray. Many waved paper fans against the heat.

Representing the survivors was Kimiko Yumoto, 46, who lost her father in fighting at Luzon, in the Philippines, in June 1945.

New pig rioting reported in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Fresh violence was reported today in the northern Indian city of Moradabad, where more than 100 persons have been killed in rioting triggered by reports that pigs strayed into a mosque desecrating a Moslem prayer service.

Officials in Moradabad, 100 miles east of New Delhi, said armed mobs were defying curfew orders and roaming through Moslem areas, kidnapping policemen and passersby, the United News of India, the domestic news agency, reported.

The officials were quoted as saying police were reluctant to patrol the streets because they were being fired on from rooftops.

A curfew, imposed on the city after the first wave of rioting on Wednesday, was extended until Saturday, UNI reported.

A senior district official at Moradabad told the news agency that "many more bodies" were being recovered from various parts of the city following the initial disturbances.

The first riots were spurred by Moslem claims that pigs strayed into a mosque compound during prayers. Pork is taboo for Moslems and the presence of pigs at Islamic prayers amounts to desecration.

Libyan says Arabs can't be Christians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafy says the estimated 10 million Christians in the Arab world should convert to Islam because "an Arab can't be Christian."

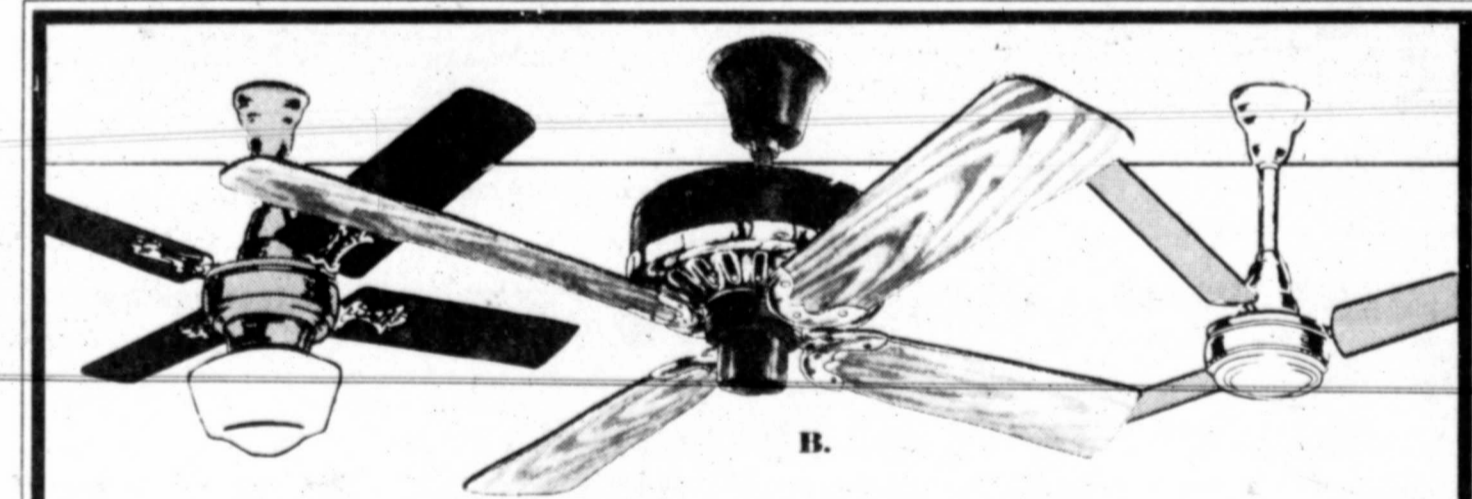

Christ was sent to the Israelis," Khadafy was quoted as saying in an interview published today in the pro-Libyan Lebanese newspaper As Safir. "The Israelis rejected him. So how can we Arabs accept him?"

Told by a Christian Arab interviewer that Christian Arabs were unquestionably loyal to their nationality, Khadafy replied: "This is wrong. They should become Moslems. Otherwise they will be Israelis in spirit, because Christ was sent as a prophet to the sons of Israel whereas Islam is an Arab religion."

The mercurial Khadafy, a staunch Moslem fundamentalist himself, is one of the Arab world's most radical leaders. He has repeatedly demanded the Arab nations go to war to eradicate the Jewish state.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Immunization a military concern

Dear Dr. Solomon: My son has written home about a measles outbreak at the army base where he is stationed. Why doesn't the army simply immunize all military personnel? It seems like such an easy thing to do in a military setting. — Mrs. G.J.

Dear Mrs. J.: The Center for Disease Control is recommending just such a policy; however, as your son can tell you, military matters such as this have to proceed through channels. The CDC recommendation for mandatory immunization is made to the Armed Forces Epidemiological Board which, in turn, makes recommendations to the Pentagon.

Meanwhile, the CDC is encouraging all susceptible military personnel, including those who were vaccinated at too young an age to receive permanent immunity, to get the vaccine.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My aunt is scheduled to start a course of chemotherapy for cancer; however, I've been told the treatment itself can cause cancer. What's the point of trying to cure one disease with a form of treatment that may cause another? — Janice

Dear Janice: While it is true that some of the drugs used in chemotherapy have the potential for causing cancer, this risk must be balanced against the danger of doing nothing. For example, in patients with breast cancer in which there is axillary (pertaining to the armpit) node involvement, as many as five percent of patients may develop a second tumor as a result of chemotherapy within 10 years. Without chemotherapy, however, over 80 percent of these patients would have died from the disease. On balance, obviously, the use of chemotherapy in the situation is advisable.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband has been jogging for several years and has completed all three marathons he entered. Since our marriage two years ago, I have started running, and an up to eight miles, four times a week. Now I would like to start training seriously for a marathon. Although my husband has encouraged my participation and enjoys jogging with me, he is opposed to my entering a marathon on the basis that it is too strenuous for a woman. He acknowledges, however, that many other women have run that distance, and we have agreed to check with you to see if you believe there is any reason I should not make the effort. — Kay

Dear Kay: According to the American College of Sports Medicine, there is no reason why women cannot compete in the same running events as men. More specifically, the ACSM says there is no evidence that long-distance running is contraindicated for a healthy, trained woman. Men and women adapt to exercise in a similar fashion.

As you may know, women athletes often experience a disruption of the menstrual cycle. Should this occur, it should be brought to the attention of your physician so that its cause may be determined. However, there is nothing to indicate that the condition results in harm to a woman's reproductive system.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Scientists, citizens challenge NRC's latest license policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Union of Concerned Scientists and five other citizen groups said Thursday they were filing a lawsuit against the Nuclear Regulatory Commission challenging its latest policy on the licensing of new nuclear powerplants.

The groups charged that the policy was adopted illegally, without prior public notice or opportunity for public comment and that it gave the nuclear industry more power to influence the rules than it gave other interested parties.

During more than a year following the severe accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant near Harrisburg, Pa., the NRC developed a bulky set of "action plans" aimed at improving plant design and safety.

Last June 16, drawing on its "action plan" findings, the commission adopted a "Statement of Policy" spelling out the requirements which new nuclear plants already near completion must meet to obtain permission to begin operating.

The vote was 3-2, with a strongly worded dissenting opinion from Commissioner Peter Bradford.

Bradford's anger was aroused not by the licensing requirements, but by the policy statement's attempt to keep citizen groups from challenging the adequacy of the requirements.

In a petition addressed to the U.S. Court of Appeals here, the citizen groups charged that the policy prohibits them from claiming that additional safety requirements are necessary. But it allows the utility companies which own nuclear plants to claim that the new requirements are not necessary.

The suit charged the policy statement thus "unreasonably and unlawfully discriminates" between the utilities and the citizen groups interested in powerplant licenses.

The Union of Concerned Scientists has frequently sought stronger nuclear safety regulation by the NRC.

Joining in the court petition were the Shoreham Opponents Coalition, Long Island, N.Y.; the Carolina Environmental Study Group, Charlotte, N.C.; the Louisiana Consumers League Inc., New Orleans and Baton Rouge, La.; the New England Coalition on Nuclear Pollution, Brattleboro, Vt.; and the Texas Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now, Dallas-Fort Worth.

Like cat, Linnen has 'nine lives'

Man seems to avoid those trips to Great Beyond

By SCOTT KRAFT

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — If the Titanic set sail today, there seems little doubt that Ray Linnen would be watching from the pier, having arrived too late to make the trip.

At least a dozen times in his 68 years, Linnen has narrowly missed quick trips to the Great Beyond. He has sidestepped a killer tornado. Oil rigs have blown sky high when he's left to answer the phone. And planes he should have been on have crashed.

"There's a time and a place for everybody's death," mused Linnen, relaxed and apparently safe in his Wichita home. "When it's your time, you'll go. It just hasn't been my time yet."

His first close encounters with death came when Linnen was 8. He was standing on a street corner in Arkansas City, Kan., getting ready to cross the street. But he decided to wait.

A moment later, a car sped in front of him and slammed into a telephone pole, killing three people.

While in his early 20s, Linnen was working the graveyard shift at the Golden Rule Refinery in Wichita. The relief man came in early one morning and urged Linnen to go home.

While making the rounds, the man was killed in a boiler explosion.

Linnen was working late on an oil rig in southern Kansas 25 years ago when he decided to head home. He planned to make his usual stop on the way at an ice cream parlor in the tiny town of Udall.

When he got there, "for some reason I decided not to stop for ice cream," Linnen said. "I don't know why. I always had before."

Five minutes later, while Linnen was safely on his way home, the deadliest tornado in Kansas history slammed into Udall, leveling the ice cream parlor and killing seven people inside. Seventy-three others were killed and 200 were injured in the town of 450.

At first, Linnen figured his close calls were just coincidental. Luck, perhaps. Now he sees them as Divine Providence.

"It's just the Lord watching over me," says the retired tax planning specialist and oilman who has taught Sunday School at his Baptist church most of his adult life. "The Lord has a hand in it some way."

At age 25, Linnen was on his honeymoon in Colorado. He crossed a bridge during a ferocious storm and pulled to the roadside. Minutes later, floodwaters swept the biding roads of the Rocis young bride left the treacherous, winding roads of the Rockies a few days later. They were traveling on their first flat road in miles when "darned if my brakes didn't go out," Linnen recalls. Their car rolled safely to a stop.

In 1970, Linnen was making arrangements to start a charter plane service for a group of investors. He was allotted five free seats on the maiden flight in exchange for his tax planning work.

But he backed out at the last minute. The deal went ahead and the plane crashed, killing 31 people, including 14 Wichita State University football players.

Another plane he missed in California also crashed in the Rockies.

"In every one of those situations, I should have been dead," Linnen says. "When I die, somebody may say, 'He wasn't so lucky after all.' But I have no fear of death. When the Lord calls you, you'll go."

"He's just not through with me yet."

Ban on scientific meetings continued

WASHINGTON (AP) — A ban on meetings between the prestigious American and Soviet academies of science will continue at least through early next year in protest of Soviet treatment of academic dissidents.

The governing council of the National Academy of Sciences announced Wednesday it would extend for six months the self-imposed ban on bilateral group meetings, symposia and workshops, while allowing individual scientists from the two nations to meet.

The American group primarily is angered about the internal exile of Soviet physicist and critic Andrei D. Sakharov, who was stripped of his state honors and banned, along with his wife, from Moscow last January Sakharov, who won the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize, is confined to the city of Gorki, about 50 miles from Moscow. That city is off-limits to foreigners.

"We remain deeply concerned by this continuing exile," the academy's council said. "Our suspension of those interacademy exchanges involving groups of scientists was a direct expression of this concern."

The only group meetings exempted from the American action are those concerned with arms control and disarmament. Academy spokeswoman Barbara Jorgenson said those meetings are so significant that discussion of their technical aspects should be unimpeded.

Lawyer trying to block Garvey republication

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A lawyer for baseball player Steve Garvey and his wife claims that allowing a newspaper to reprint an unflattering magazine article about the couple would be "inviting disaster."

The Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, which wants to republish the article, says barring it from doing so violates the First Amendment.

But attorney Alan Rothenberg told a three-judge panel Wednesday that the 31-year-old Los Angeles Dodger first baseman and his wife, Cyndy, were harassed after the story was published by "Inside Sports" magazine.

"No one had (ever) attempted to rape Mrs. Garvey as a public figure; no one has stuffed obscene material in her mail box and no one has followed her for 15 miles on the freeway making obscene gestures.... If you allow re-publication you are inviting disaster," Rothenberg said. He later declined to elaborate about attacks on Mrs. Garvey, 30.

The article, "Trouble in Paradise," was written by free-lancer Pat Jordan on the basis of interviews he had with the Garveys.

Their ultimatum was simple

But results not so clear cut

By OWEN ULLMANN

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy and the labor community had given Jimmy Carter a simple ultimatum: if he wanted them to support his re-election campaign, he would have to support their $12 billion jobs program.

Each side got some satisfaction, but not all that it wanted. Kennedy and labor got a presidential pledge for their program in principle, but not the $12 billion price tag. Carter got the unity he had sought at the Democratic National

An analysis

Convention, but not the full or enthusiastic backing he may need to defeat Ronald Reagan in the fall.

"It looks like we're going to stick with him (Carter) for now," sighed one union official, who did not want to be named. "But nobody's jumping up and down about it."

Carter arrived here Wednesday certain of renomination but in danger of losing much of his party over an economic platform plank calling for a Kennedy-proposed jobs program to combat the recession and a 7.8 percent unemployment rate.

The night before, labor delegates supporting Carter had united behind the plank to secure its adoption despite frantic efforts by the administration to defeat it.

Administration officials said after the vote that Carter would disavow the plank under a new convention rule requiring the party's nominee to state all his objections to the platform in writing.

But Kennedy let it be known to Carter's campaign managers that acceptance of the plank, intact, was the price for his much-sought endorsement. And labor leaders passed the word Wednesday that they might not work for the president's re-election if he rejected the jobs program.

Soon after arriving at his hotel, the president and his people were consulting, negotiating, looking for a way to keep the party together behind Jimmy Carter.

The jobs plank symbolized the chasm that separates Carter from Kennedy and labor on economic issues. Those issues prompted Kennedy's presidential campaign and kept him at his stubborn challenge, so both sides knew there was little room for negotiation.

Carter had challenged traditional Democratic doctrine by restraining federal spending to fight inflation, even if it meant tolerating a rise in unemployment. Kennedy had carried on party tradition by advocating increased government spending in pursuit of a full-employment economy.

But if there was nothing to negotiate, the Carter camp at least wanted to sound out Kennedy's and labor's reactions to the statement being drafted for the president.

Carter placed calls to AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland and United Auto Workers President Douglas Fraser. Later, top Carter aides Stuart Eizenstat and Hamilton Jordan conferred with top Kennedy operatives Paul Kirk and Carey Parker. Carter followed up that discussion with a personal phone call to Kennedy.

A little more than three hours before the convention renominated him, Carter issued an artfully worded statement accepting the "intent" of the jobs plank but omitting reference to the specific spending requirement that administration officials say is both inflationary and ill-designed for current employment conditions.

The president pledged "to pursue policies that will implement its (the plank's) spirit and aims" but with his own economic recovery program, which he said "will create hundreds of thousands of jobs in the next year."

If that was intended to satisfy Kennedy, the Massachusetts senator was in no hurry to pass the word. Only after Carter secured the 1,666 votes needed for renomination did Kennedy issue his response to the convention:

"I endorse the platform of the Democratic Party. I will support and work for the re-election of President Carter," Kennedy said in a restrained, curt message read to the delegates.

The 13.6 million-member AFL-CIO, in another restrained response, said it was "glad the president's statement accepts the principles and objectives" of the jobs program. "We will continue to work for specific job-creation programs" with the administration, the statement said.

"This is a giant step toward harmony and unity," said Fred Kroll, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks and a Kennedy delegate from Pennsylvania.

But other labor leaders felt differently, raising the possibility that labor will be less than united behind Carter this fall.

"I'm not at all satisfied," complained United Rubber Workers President Peter Bommarito, a Kennedy delegate from Ohio.

"The voice of the delegates spoke and he (Carter) won't accept it."

Court says son must carry father's name

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A Gainesville couple would like to call their son Austin John Rice or Austin John Rice-Stitt, but the state says he must be listed on birth records as Austin John Stitt, using his father's last name.

Judge Anne Cawthon Booth of the 1st District Court of Appeal says the state's ban on using a mother's last name or a hyphenated version of both parents' surnames may be a first step toward substituting numbers for names as forecast by George Orwell in his novel "1984."

She was in the minority, however, when the district court last week voted 2-1 to send the case back to the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services for an administrative hearing.

In a scathing dissent, Ms. Booth castigated her two male colleagues for tossing Stephen Stitt and June Rice, the parents, back into an "administrative morass" in which they have been stuck since their son was born almost two years ago.

The department offered to issue a birth certificate listing the last name as Stitt, but the parents refused to sign it.

Hispanic school to stay open

By MARK PETERSON

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Don Pecina decided it was time to fight when the school board announced it was closing his Hispanic community's high school. So he and 30 others barricaded themselves inside the school for six days to demand that it stay open — and it will.

"This is one of the greatest moments of my life. People have got to do something themselves, and we have done it," said Pecina after school officials recommended the school reopen as an experimental school to be controlled largely by the community.

The settlement, reached Thursday, came after protesters chained shut the doors of West Business-Management Center last Friday, contending the decision to close the school as a cost-cutting move would be a severe blow to their blue-collar neighborhood.

Protesters converted the principal's office into a command post, swam in the school pool and bathed in its restrooms and slept for six nights on the carpeted library floor. Supporters brought in food and supplies, and sympathizers briefly occupied the lobby of the Board of Education building.

"You put somebody in a corner and they're gonna fight," said Pecina, leader of the group of Mexican-Americans that took over the school, located in a neighborhood overlooking freeways.

"The freeways are pushing us back, but now the people are standing — they say, 'We've been here 60 to 70 years, and we're gonna stay,'" said Hector Barreto, president of the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce of Greater Kansas City.

School officials had said it would be difficult, if not impossible, for any resolution to be reached so long as the school was occupied. But Thursday night they changed their tune.

At a special meeting, School Superintendent Charles R. Wheeler recommended the board approve a plan drafted by the protesters to reopen as an "experimental school."

"In my three years as superintendent, I have presented hundreds of resolutions for your approval," Wheeler told the board. "In my carefully considered view, this is the single most important and far-reaching request." Wheeler said the plan was not perfect, partly because of the circumstances, but said the proposal deserved approval because it was based on strong community participation. He also said it held the promise of redressing the past educational neglect of west side children. The board gave its unanimous approval, and won a standing ovation from Pecina and the others, who had left the building moments earlier confident of victory.

Ministers killed in car, truck collision

WASHBURN, Texas (AP) — Three ministers returning from a church conference in Amarillo died when their luxury car veered off the road and rammed the back of a parked flatbed truck near here, state troopers said.

Investigators for the Texas Department of Public Safety said they were not sure why the car swerved off the roadway Thursday afternoon.

The victims were identified as The Rev. Albert Smith Jones, 62, pastor of the Shilo A.M.E. Church in Galveston; The Rev. Daniel Edwards, 41, pastor of the Tyree Chapel Church

A.M.E. in Bay City, and The Rev. Robert Louis Brown, 71, pastor of the St. Paul A.M.E. Church in Houston.

Jones and Edwards were pronounced dead on the scene by Armstrong County Peace Justice Jackie Cartwright. Brown was dead on arrival at an Amarillo hospital, the DPS said.

Troopers said the unidentified truck driver had pulled off U.S. 287 to check his load and was returning to the cab when the accident occurred. The driver was knocked to the ground by the impact, but was uninjured, the DPS said.

Members of the Outlaws motorcycle club of Oklahoma City carry the casket of their fallen comrade, Jay Mangham, 37. About 500 motorcycle club members from across the U.S. attended Mangham's funeral in Oklahoma City. Mangham died after being run over following an argument in a nightspot. The man he allegedly argued with has been charged with first-degree murder in connection with Mangham's death. (AP Laserphoto)

Outlaws bid last farewell to 'brother'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The scent of marijuana mingled with the fragrance of flowers as 300 motorcycle club members paid final tribute to a slain "brother" who was laid to rest with a can of beer and a T-shirt.

Members of the Outlaws and six other clubs gathered here Thursday under the watchful eyes of police to say goodbye to Jay Mangham, 37, who died after a tavern fight.

"Stairway" Harry Henderson, national Outlaws president, said the ceremony was symbolic of the bikers' brotherhood. "We ride together, live together, fight together. When one brother suffers, the other brothers suffer," he said.

"Charley," the club's symbol of a skull in front of two crossed pistons, was predominant in the crowd's dress. "God forgives, Outlaws don't," read one patch on a biker's leather vest. Other mourners sported swastikas and Harley-Davidson insignias.

Mangham, a carpenter and motorcycle mechanic, was secretary-treasurer of the Oklahoma City Outlaws. He died of burns suffered three weeks ago when his motorcycle was rammed by a car after a tavern fight, police said.

His funeral procession was made up of 176 motorcycles and 28 cars watched by police.

Club members had kept his body at the Outlaw's house Wednesday night for a wake.

At the cemetery, the scent of beer and marijuana mingled with the smell of flower wreaths. The milling throng of bearded bikers was joined by about a half-dozen members of the American Legion.

Dressed in white shirts, black pants and caps, the Legionnaires gave a farewell salute to Army veteran Mangham, honoring him with rounds fired from pistols gathered from the crowd.

As the bikers filed past the casket for the final viewing, they gave Mangham a can of beer and a T-shirt. The American Legion gave him a flag.

Henderson read the funeral litany, saying mascot Charley would carry Mangham "all the way to that Harley highway in the sky."

Politics basis of protests

FORT McCOY, Wis. (AP) — A federal marshal says arguments over political matters such as "who hates communists the most" probably are to blame for disturbances among Cuban refugees at a resettlement center here.

U.S. Marshal Robert Thompson, who suffered bruises and scrapes while helping quell a Wednesday night disturbance that left about two dozen people injured, blamed the problem on "a group of dissidents trying to impose their order" on the refugee compound.

Thompson said Thursday that dissidents apparently tried to take advantage of "a weak spot" in the leadership that develops at the center as Cubans leave for resettlement in this country and the refugee population changes.

"They're no different than the Democrats and Republicans — they love to argue politics," Thompson said. "I would bet that half the nose-knocking that goes on is over political arguments over who hates communists the most."

Kidney recipient progressing

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Weslaco, Texas, man who received a new kidney in a seven and one-half hour transplant operation was reported progressing at Bexar County Hospital.

Roberto Rodriguez, 54, received the kidney from his sister, Nieves Guajardo, 45, who was flown from Michigan.

Rodriguez was still attached to a respirator and doctors were observing the functions of his new kidney Thursday.

Although the federal government paid costs for the surgery, Telethon Navideno funded transportation and lodging for Rodriguez, his wife and sister. The man came to San Antonio earlier than anticipated last Friday because at the time Hurricane Allen was bearing down on the Lower Rio Grande Valley, officials said.

Telethon Navideno is an annual fund raising event put on by the San Antonio Catholic Archdiocese and KWEX-TV.

Air Force

cruel hoax

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Air Force's Office of Special Investigations today was looking into a cruel hoax in which a Pennsylvania airman's family was falsely notified in the middle of the night that he was dead.

Joe McAnally, official spokesman at Lackland Air Force Base, said it was the third or fourth time the past two years that families of airmen were put through nightmares by phony reports that their sons were dead.

"We're doing what we can to identify who and how it's being done. As you can imagine, it's pretty difficult to track an anonymous phone caller."

McAnally said at this point only OSI agents were looking into the latest hoax, but that civilian law enforcement officers would be contacted if they were needed.

In the latest incident, John L. Amirult, 18, of Susquehanna, Pa., was discovered alive at Lowry Air Force Base in Denver, Colo., after his family arranged for his funeral and ran an obituary in his hometown newspaper.

Peter Amirult said he and his wife received a phone call from a man who said he was a Lt. Johnson from Lackland about 11:15 p.m. Wednesday night.

Mrs. Rehders died this morning in an Odessa hospital following a brief illness.

She was born Nov. 24, 1930, in Atlanta, Del. She was married to H.R. Rehders Nov. 30, 1951, in Douglas, Ariz. She moved to Odessa in 1956 from Phoenix, Ariz. She was a member of Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include her husband; a son, Clay Rehders of Odessa; a sister, Jeanette Allen of Seaford, Del.; and three brothers, Claudelle Sammons, Robert Sammons and Roland Sammons, all of Seaford, Del.

Frank Garcia

Frank Flores Garcia, 74, of 1313 E. Cuthbert Ave., died Wednesday night in a Dallas hospital after a lengthy illness.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Emmanuel Baptist Church in Midland with the Rev. Jose Maria Garcia, pastor of Primera Iglesia Bautista in Odessa, officiating. Assisting will be the Rev. Leonard Gallegos, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Garcia was born Aug. 10, 1906, in Smithville. He was reared there and moved to Colorado City in 1950 and then to Midland in 1964. He has been associated with Resthaven Memorial Park since that time. He was a member of Emmanuel Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Senona

Garcia of Midland; two sons, Ben Garcia of Midland and Joe Garcia of Dallas; three daughters, Frances Alvarez of Possum Kingdom and Sandy Rodriguez and Mary Hernandez, both of Midland; a brother, Matilde Garcia of Sweetwater; a sister, Antona Lopez of Colorado City; 18 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Johnny Alvarez, Frankie Garcia, Billy Rodriguez Jr., Frank Garcia, Billy Hernandez and Ben Garcia.

Don Hart, program chairman. Not pictured is David Shearod, treasurer. For more information, contact these officers or other members of the organization. The choice of gasoline or cash is the second and third prize.

DEAR ABBY

Let buyer beware even if it's family

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I bought a car from my brother-in-law for $400. I gave him $250 down, then 30 days later the brakes went out and I had to lay out $350 to get them fixed.

I think in view of the fact that the repairs were so major, he should write off the $150 I owe him. We're all family, and he's a nice guy, so don't you think he should let me off the hook for the balance?—CULVER CITY CAR TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: A deal is a deal. If he's a "nice guy," don't spoil a friendly family relationship by expecting more of a relative than you would from a stranger.

DEAR ABBY: I am an adult woman with a family of my own. My problem is my mother. Last year Dad died. He and Mother were very close. Mother, being a strong and intelligent woman, adjusted to her loss very well, but her adjustment has taken an abnormal turn.

Soon after Dad's death, Mother developed a very close friendship with a woman I'll call "Mary." Mary is uneducated, comes from a much lower socioeconomic group and has very little in common with Mother. Nevertheless they have become inseparable, eating together, sleeping together and spending every minute together when Mary is not working. The obvious affection they have for each other (touching, and words of endearment) has become an embarrassment.

I think Mother has transferred the feelings she had for Father to Mary. I want Mother to be happy, but I think her relationship with Mary is abnormal, and I don't want my mother to become a lesbian. She's given up all her old friends, and the whole thing looks sick to me. I'm afraid people will start talking.

This is something I can't discuss with Mother, but I think she needs help. How can I help her?—CONCERNED DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: If you really want your mother to be happy, don't sit in judgment of her friend or the relationship between them. Your mother has the right to spend her time with whomever she chooses, for whatever reasons. And by the way, lesbians are BORN, not MADE.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has always been turned off by fat women, so I have kept myself fairly slender and attractive for him. However, he has not returned the favor. Over the last three years he has become grossly overweight. He looks terrible in his clothes, and worse in nothing!

I have tried to tell him in a kind way that he needs to diet and exercise for his health as well as for his appearance, but he couldn't care less.

I love him very much and hate to see what he's doing to himself. He eats constantly—like a pig! He has also lost all his desire for sex, which is just as well, as I'm not exactly yearning for a 250-pound lover.

How do I let this otherwise wonderful man know how I feel without being a nag or hurting our marriage?—WIFE OF FLUBBER

DEAR WIFE: It appears that your husband has already hurt your marriage by neglecting his appearance and losing all desire for sex. You can help by urging him to get professional help. He needs to find out what's eating HIM before he can stop eating like a pig.

(To those who have ordered Abby's new teen booklet, please be patient. The demand again has been overwhelming.)

How to avoid heartburn

Some people are subject to frequent bouts of heartburn but they can learn how to help avoid them, according to Gordon McHardy, MD. In an article in Modern Medicine, Dr. McHardy suggests sitting or standing erect after meals, sleeping with buttocks and head elevated, avoiding tight panty girdles and elastic binders. Dietary fats may contribute to heartburn and so may peppermint, chocolate, caffeine-containing beverages, and smoking. "The ingestion of cola drinks, or other highly acid liquids such as fruit juices, can accentuate symptoms in an already irritated esophageal lining," writes Dr. McHardy.

He suggests that if the patient can predict when his heartburn is likely to develop, medication can be taken shortly ahead of time.

Treatment of simple heartburn with antacids remains "the number one choice of therapy" Dr. McHardy states. Liquids are often preferred but chewable tablets can also be beneficial, he writes. Riopan, one of three antacids he lists as "antacids of choice," is available in both forms, and has a low sodium content.

Dr. McHardy is clinical professor of medicine at Louisiana State University Medical Center in New Orleans.

Alternate energy forms provide careers with a future

Copley News Service

Looking for a career with a bright future? Consider solar energy, or any of the other alternate energy forms.

The next 10 years will witness important developments in energy production and distribution. There will be more coal production, but the environmental problems associated with coal will remain.

Nuclear plants will increase in number, too, though they will most likely contribute a decreasing proportion of the nation's energy supply. Power from fusion, the great hope of the next century, will move closer to reality.

For those facing the choice of a first career or career change — one which possesses unlimited growth potential — few appear to offer the opportunities projected for the field of energy production from the sun, wind and related sources.

Labor requirements for the overall energy industry are expected to increase at an average growth rate of 3.3 percent through the year 2000, according to a Department of Commerce forecast. Employment in energy related jobs, for the same period, will more than double.

Harnessing the sun as an energy source has been estimated at over four times more labor intensive than that of other power sources by the president's Domestic Policy Review. Though this makes use of "sun power" costly, the increasing scarcity of oil and gas and the predicted doubling of U.S. energy needs by the turn of the century will make the use of alternative sources more economical in the years ahead.

All appearances indicate that if the solar energy industry maintains its present growth rate as many as 2 million jobs could open up over the next 20 years. In demand will be semi-skilled laborers, trained craft-people and technicians, as well as university graduates with degrees in solar and related energy fields.

Though wind and other alternate energy sources will create several thousand jobs annually, solar offers truly unparalleled opportunities. New industries which produce and maintain solar-powered devices will be created.

About two-thirds of the job openings in this area will call for manual laborers, with the largest increases for assemblers, carpenters and general construction workers with solar experience.

The largest increases for technical and professional personnel will occur in the architectural, engineering and supporting service fields. Department of Labor statistics point to over 10,000 annual openings over the next five years for electrical and industrial engineers as a result of growth and replacement needs. Architects are projected to have some 3,000 openings each year.

Local girl wins national and world twirling titles

Starla Adams, age 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Adams of Midland and first grader at Emerson Elementary School, recently competed in National World Competition held at Notre Dame University in South Bend, Indiana, July 28 through Aug. 2.

The five day event brought Starla a National World Title for solo twirling as well as a World Championship Title in flag baton twirling. She has many other honors added to her credit for competitions held throughout the state and obtained the title of "Miss Majorette of Texas" at state competition held in Dallas last June. Starla has been studying baton for a year and a half now but has found it to be nothing new since her older sister, Gina, age 10, has been twirling for the past three years and competing in competitions throughout Texas.

Starla was one of thousands of young people attending American Youth on Parade (AYOP), a national twirling competition sponsored by the American Baton Twirling Association. The event, held at Notre Dame University, began about 14 years ago as a way of bringing contestants from all over the country into one place. There are between 700,000 and 800,000 twirlers in the United States today. The event which has been held at Notre Dame for the past 11 years, is the largest gathering of twirlers.

Redecorating dormitory rooms fun, inexpensive

Copley News Service

College dormitory rooms, those cubicles of linoleum and cinder block, may be a refuge from the 250-seat lecture hall and sulfur-scented chemistry lab, but they can be dreary places to live. With the season of exams and papers approaching, most students will be spending a lot of time inside those four walls.

Individualizing a dorm room and making it habitable by two people is not the miracle some students believe it to be. But it does require a little ingenuity, time and style.

A sense of style and a touch of ingenuity are all it takes to turn your dull room into a place you can enjoy.

A simple way to make a personal statement in your room is with plants — lined up on a windowsill or hanging from the ceiling. Select hardy strains that can withstand neglect. Starting new plants from friends' or parents' clippings is an economical way to gather a variety of samples.

Plants add life and color to your surroundings.

They make an anonymous room, your room. Is it a surprise that plants are being used successfully as a form of therapy in mental care programs?

Who needs four white walls or institutional green walls? A lot can be done inexpensively to dress them up. If the walls are white, paint one in a favorite color to offset the "box effect." Paint a stripe horizontally, vertically, or on the diagonal for a more dramatic effect.

Cinder block walls are especially good for stenciling because the spacing is already worked out. Every third block could be stenciled, creating a budget-conscious — and far more original — answer to wallpaper.

Another way to personalize your room is to paint a mural on one wall — maybe you'd get credit for an art assignment. Of course, before you take brush in hand be sure your college's policy allows that kind of student creativity.

There is always the old standby of mounting favorite photos or posters.

However, try using a yard or more of hand-dyed or designer material on canvas stretchers and hang it.

You've moved from posters to wall art.

The more adventuresome may want to stalk the cheap antique in flea markets or prowl through Grandma's attic for the not-quite-living-room-quality wicker end table or rocking chair. Give it a second life in a new color, like magenta.

Designing a coordinated room works best when the people who will live in it agree on every aspect of the decor.

CHECKING OUT THE LIBRARY

Political writings

By JOHN W. DEATS
Midland County Librarian

In an election year, political biographies and reassessments of administrations are very popular. Libraries are usually hard pressed to fill this demand, and this election year is no exception. The following books are only a few of those available to the voter who wishes to make a more informed decision.

Unfortunately, there does not as yet seem to be as much information published about Republicans Ronald Reagan and George Bush, as there is on the incumbents. However, we can read a sampling of Reagan's philosophy as it was in 1968, in "The Creative Society," which covers basic issues such as crime, conservation, unions and academic freedom. It is interesting to note the consistency of viewpoint which tends to link these addresses of more than 10 years ago with present day rhetoric.

Bill Boyarsky covered Reagan's gubernatorial campaign in 1966, and witnesses much of the behind-the-scenes action, which he successfully covers in "The Rise of Ronald Reagan." It is most interesting to read of young Reagan's initial career in radio, television, the movies, and how this training helped to hone his skills as a speaker and public figure. Boyarsky traces Reagan's change from a relatively liberal view to more conservative under the influence of his wife, Nancy. While Boyarsky offers a more objective, general biography, Nancy Reagan's recent book, entitled "Nancy," is recommended for insights into the Reagans' private lives.

Jack Kemp came very close to being selected as Reagan's running mate, and this former star football player and Congressman from New York suggests some radical solutions to some of the nation's most awesome programs in his new book, "An American Renaissance." In case you missed Bernard Asbell's work, "The Senate Nobody Knows," it provides an insider's viewpoint of the machinations of a Congressional re-election campaign. Asbell, a veteran political journalist, trailed Senator Edmund Muskie during the year leading up to the 1976 election. He makes an observation that "among senators courtesies are excessive, genuine intimacies rare, lest it mitigate the freedom to fight."

Clark R. Mollenhoff is a Washington correspondent who took seriously the 1976 campaign promises, and who juxtaposes them with the results in his appraisal, "The President Who Failed: Carter Out of Control." The author cites what he considers as Carter's failures in trimming the defense budget, decreasing waste in federal agencies and inability in achieving a comprehensive energy program. In a much less hostile vein, "Jimmy Carter: An Interpretive Biography," is a fine psychological study and political analysis of the President. The authors are Bruce Mazlish, professor of history, and Edwin Diamond, senior lecturer of political science, both from M.I.T. Arthur Schelesinger Jr. has stated that Carter "seems more mysterious than most" of U.S. presidents. Mazlish and Diamond attempt a strictly non-partisan approach which concentrates on the man behind the image.

"A Government As Good As Its People" collects key comments and campaign addresses by Carter from the time of his inauguration as Governor of Georgia in 1971, to his inaugural address on Jan. 20, 1977, as well as the Carter-Ford debates. A similar collection of the words of Edward Kennedy is "Our Day and Generation," as selected by the noted historian, Henry Steele Commager.

Lewis Finlay has written an interesting account of the incumbent vice president, "Mondale," which follow the meteoric career of the man who was appointed Attorney General of Minnesota at age 32, by Governor Orville Freeman. After distinguishing himself at the Democratic Convention of 1964, he was appointed to Hubert Humphrey's seat in the Senate. Finlay follows Mondale's ascendancy through his years of championing open housing and migrant and child aid, while he had an ambivalent attitude toward Viet Nam. The author reminds us that since the last administration of F.D.R., the United States has had only seven presidents, four of who having served previously as vice presidents, proving the importance of the number two position.

Of special interest to many is Ruth Stapleton Carter's book, "Brother Billy." While Billy is portrayed in very sympathetic terms, the book does provide an anecdotal and personal appraisal of the relationships which bind the Carter clan.

We welcome any recommendations from library patrons for political biographies which might serve to round out the collection.

Fathers may cause their daughters depression

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — A husband's relationship with his wife can determine whether their daughter becomes susceptible to depression when she matures, a University of Connecticut psychologist believes.

Dr. J. Conrad Schwarz reached that conclusion in a recent study based on a survey of 98 UConn female students concerning parental conflict and father-daughter relationships.

A good marital relationship, coupled with a "consistent" showing of love by the father for his daughter, may enhance a woman's ability to deal with depression, Schwarz said Thursday.

Schwarz and a colleague, Dr. David C. Zuroff of the State University of New York at Binghamton, reported their findings in a recent issue of the Journal of Abnormal Psychology.

They reported, "The traditional emphasis on the mother's role in the development of psychology has obscured the role of the father which, at least with regard to daughters' vulnerability to depression, may be of greater importance."

Schwarz said 18-, 19- and 20-year-old women were questioned. One of the statements they were asked to respond to was: "My father was often warm and affectionate, but sometimes said cold, cutting things to me." The women were asked if that statement were "very true; tends to be true; tends to be untrue; or very untrue."

The answers, the UConn professor said, helped him develop a measure for "love inconsistency," which along with parental conflict was the main focus of the study.

The study found that depression was to be more expected in women whose family background included a high level of conflict between parents, in which the father tended to predominate.

Lyndon's spirit permeates convention

NEW YORK (AP) — Carter his nominating Just hours after their majority at the Democratic National Convention, Texas delegates met for breakfast to talk about their president: the late Lyndon Baines Johnson.

Luminaries from the Lone Star State who turned up for a breakfast party included President Carter's campaign manager, Robert S. Strauss. But the center of attention was a slight, bespectacled New York writer, Merle Miller.

Miller has just published an oral biography, "Lyndon." Miller likes to say that there are 6,782 stories about Johnson in the book. The Texans wanted to hear some of them, so Miller obliged.

He told the story about Henry Kissinger, who decided after a visit at the Johnson Ranch that the former president had gone crazy. Kissinger reached that conclusion, said Miller, because LBJ kept calling him by the wrong name. "Schlesinger," "Keesinger," "Kissinger." "Johnson was crazy like a fox," Miller said. "He was fond of putting people on. He was never crazy for a moment."

During the 1964 campaign, "LBJ didn't even have to leave the ranch to win against a Republican candidate who was very like the Republican candidate today," Miller said in references to Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee whom Johnson defeated in a landslide, and the 1980 nominee, Ronald Reagan.

Nevertheless, on a campaign swing through Arizona, he said, "the Johnson motorcade passed a Dairy Queen and there were six people gathered outside. So LBJ had to stop and have an ice cream and make a speech to six people."

The Texans had some stories of their own. Billy Goldberg, the delegation's leader, said he felt "LBJ's spirit permeating this convention." Goldberg recalled that in a 1948 Senate race Johnson at first appeared to be a loser, "but they fixed that up and the winner became the loser."

Goldberg noted that New York Gov. Hugh Carey had urged the Texans to vote to "open" the convention, freeing delegates committed to President Carter — an unsuccessful effort that was led by supporters of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

"I felt the spirit of LBJ when Governor Carey said we not only ought to have a convention rule where the winner would be the loser, but that it would be the righteous thing to do."

Sailor charged in Kenyan's murder

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenyan authorities Thursday charged a 19-year-old U.S. Navy sailor with murdering a young woman while on shore leave in the Indian Ocean port of Mombasa. He could face the death penalty.

He was identified as Frank J. Sundstrom of Coventry, R.I., a crew-member on the communications and command vessel USS La Salle, one of the warships in the Navy task force in the Indian Ocean.

Sundstrom appeared before Mombasa's senior magistrate and was charged with murder in the slaying of Monicah Njeri, described as in her late 20s, at Ganjoni village on the night of Aug. 3-4.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, August 16, 1980
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actor Robert Culp shares this birthday and in the year ahead his career continues to roll toward new successes. You should do the same if you will guard against being taken in or led astray by unsavory characters. Many people are attracted to you, so screen them carefully! Positive changes mark domestic affairs. Romance will prove more exciting than ever.
ARIES (March 21-April 19): You get unique opportunity to contract influential individual. Cultivate valuable contacts at a social event this evening. Romance blooms.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Listen to loved ones when they offer advice, and everyone profits. If travel is part of day's plan, allow plenty of time to reach destination. Catch up on your rest, and relax as much as possible.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A good day to become engaged or make wedding plans. Keep business concerns in the background so that family members get your undivided attention. Harmony is restored between you and older relative.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take care of personal chores early in day and put business matters on back burner until Monday morning. Love relationships require special attention. Spend more time with small fry and be a kid again!
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Enjoy a carefree day in the company of close friends, neighbors and family members. Write important letters. Timely correspondence could mean the difference between gain and loss.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A day trip will prove a welcome change from weekday routine. Get an early start to avoid traffic jams, and drive carefully. Great tact is necessary when handling delicate financial or personal matter.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The pieces of a puzzle fall into place, relieving tension or worry. Self-confidence soars. Opportunities for financial gain exist if only you will look around you. Now is the time to speak up—and ask important questions.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Give personal affairs top priority. Mate, family members deserve the same careful attention that you give business matters. Keep quiet regarding another's appearance or attitude if you wish to avoid an unnecessary confrontation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You and your mate should be back on the right track today. Attend to those household chores that have been postponed. Be sure entertaining costs remain within budgetary limits. Physical and mental health benefit from your getting outdoors.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some useful information may be relayed to you by a friend or family member. It may be in your best interests to decline a social engagement.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do whatever you can to build up cash reserves. Spending is the key. Romance may hold some surprises. Avoid politics; a friendly discussion could turn sour.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): This is apt to be a quiet day, and you should welcome a peaceful period after a busy workweek. Problems connected with family affairs will prove easier to solve than you imagined.

my. Declarer tried a club to the ten. East won the jack and exited with a diamond. Declarer ruffed and led the queen of clubs. East held up, won the club continuation with the ace and again exited with a diamond. Marooned in his hand, declarer had to concede a trick to the king of spades for down one.

Declarer has no problem if, after drawing trumps, he leads the nine of clubs. This loses to the jack, but declarer has a second string to his bow. He trumps the diamond return and continues with a club to the ten. No matter what the defenders do, declarer will always have a club entry to dummy—to take the spade finesse, and when that succeeds, the contract is home.

Some people are lucky and always guess right. Then there are those poor unfortunate souls who claim that everything they do turns out wrong. For our money, we will pick those who find a way of avoiding a guess!

South's opening bid of four hearts is not recommended practice in either first or second position. In third or fourth, however, there is little likelihood of missing a slam. And in third seat you cannot even be sure that it is your hand, so there is an advantage to preemption.

West led the king of diamonds and East followed with the queen. That play guaranteed possession of the jack for a singleton queen—unlikely here, so West underled the ace of diamonds to trick two. Declarer ruffed East's ten, then cashed the ace and king of hearts. When the lady appeared on the second round, South was delighted to discover that he had no trump loser.

There was still the matter of limiting three potential black-suit losers to two—with no sure entry to dum-

Key West has fiscal woes

the Long Beach, Calif., Naval Station Thursday. Underwood was recommended for retention in the Navy at hearings on allegations of homosexuality aboard the USS Norton Sound. (AP Laserphoto)

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — With less than $1,600 in the city's bank account, Key West officials asked the governor to take over their finances and warned city workers there may be more layoffs on this troubled resort island.

The city's $5 million budget probably will run $600,000 into the red before its fiscal year ends Sept. 30, said city manager Ron Stack. He laid off 12 city employees on Thursday and said more layoffs would likely be necessary.

After declaring a "financial emergency" on Wednesday, the Key West City Commission asked Gov. Bob Graham to take over the city's finances and said "Key West may not be able to meet its Aug. 22 payroll."

"Legally and practically it's in the best interest for the governor to step in," said Dick Schoditsch, Graham's assistant general counsel. "We can't sit here and let the city go broke."

Stack blamed the city's financial problems on negotiated raises for firefighters and police, excessive overtime and inflation.

Mayor Charles McCoy said the boatlift that brought some 118,000 Cuban refugees here severely affected the island city's economy, which is dependent on tourism and commercial fishing.

"We've experienced a very bad year with the boatlift," McCoy said. "The tourist industry was pretty well destroyed by the media and their coverage (of the boatlift). It gave the misconception that Cubans were being landed all over this island and that was never the case."

Meanwhile, a federal grand jury two weeks ago subpoenaed all the city's financial and contract records for the last five years. It is not known what the panel is investigating.

The plea for state assistance was the first such request from a local government under a new financial emergency act passed by the 1979 Legislature to keep cities, counties and special districts from going broke.

The law was intended to keep Florida cities from experiencing the financial problems that plagued New York, Cleveland and other Northern cities.

The law requires annual audits of local governments' finances and authorizes the governor to make emergency loans if a community can't pay wages, meet short-term loans or Social Security and pension benefits.

The annual audit is credited with revealing budget problems in Key West.

Graham was in New York City at the Democratic National Convention and unavailable for comment. Under the new law he could set up a financial emergency board to oversee Key West's operations and limit the use of its state revenue-sharing funds to pay overdue bills.

Second accused sailor cleared

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Navy prosecutors, contending homosexuality is the wrong lifestyle for cramped ships quarters, were opening dismissal hearings today for two more women accused of lesbian acts aboard the USS Norton Sound.

Earlier, a dismissal board said there were no grounds to dismiss two other women who faced the same charges.

After a four-day hearing, the discharge board Thursday voted 2-1 to recommend retention for Seaman Barbara Lee Underwood of Orlando, Fla. Unlike the innocent verdict given last week in the case of Petty Officer Tangel Gaskins, the decision is subject to review and reversal by the Secretary of the Navy, Ms. Underwood's lawyers said.

Lesbian wins fight to be deputy sheriff

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — A lesbian dispatcher for the Contra Costa County Sheriff's Department has won a court ruling in her fight to become a deputy sheriff.

Superior Court Judge Richard Calhoun on Wednesday upheld an earlier Civil Service Commission ruling that Denise Kreps' avowed sexual preference should be disregarded in evaluating her fitness for the job.

Calhoun ordered Sheriff Richard Rainey to complete final steps in processing Ms. Kreps' application. She finished 16th out of 181 applicants in written and physical tests for deputy's positions last year.

Rainey had rejected her application, saying her lesbianism would create difficulties for her on the job. After the Civil Service Commission sided with Ms. Kreps, the sheriff brought suit to prevent her appointment to his staff.

Assistant Sheriff Warren Rufp said Rainey would meet with the county counsel to discuss whether to appeal the court's decision.

They said the hearing board did not specify whether they found Ms. Underwood innocent of the charges of misconduct. Because the decision was split, the review by the Secretary of the Navy is automatic.

Meanwhile, dismissal hearings were to begin today for Wendi Williams, 25, of The Bronx, N.Y., and Alicia Harris, 18, of Chicago. An additional six woman sailors also face hearings.

Ms. Underwood said after the verdict in her case that, "I guess the Navy saw that I was an asset to the Navy and a good sailor. They wouldn't retain me otherwise."

The verdict "takes a lot of pressure off me now," she said, adding that she would still like to have a lifetime career in the Navy.

"The Navy is my life and my love," she said. "If they take that away from me, they may as well take my heart away."

American Civil Liberties Union attorney Barry Copelow said Ms. Underwood had offered to resign "rather than go through all this."

During her hearing, Ms. Underwood never addressed the question of whether she is a homosexual, but said specific instances of homosexual behavior alleged by witnesses never happened.

The defense team called a dozen witnesses in an attempt to prove that Ms. Underwood is both a competent sailor and a heterosexual.

One of those witnesses, Petty Officer 1st Class Thomas Boer, was asked by defense attorneys if he had ever known Ms. Underwood to engage in sex with men. "Yes," he replied, "with me."

In closing arguments, the prosecutor, Lt. Andrew Hiblar said, "The Navy is not attacking homosexuality. It's saying it's not a viable lifestyle aboard a cramped ship."

In addition to Ms. Harris and Ms. Williams, those whose cases remain to be heard are Fireman Louise Fitzmorris, 37, of Rumford, Maine; Norma Hohl, 20, of Belle, Mo.; Carol Brock, 23, of San Jose, Calif., and Petty Officer 2nd Class Sharris Heusser, 25, of Pelican Rapids, Minn.

Feds probe shooting

BOSTON (AP) — The federal government began an investigation today of the fatal shooting of a black teen-ager by a white police officer after a Suffolk County grand jury's decision not to return an indictment in the case.

The investigation announced by U.S. Attorney Edward F. Harrington comes amid criticism from black community leaders over the grand jury's finding Thursday that there was insufficient evidence to indict anyone in the July 15 shooting of 14-year-old Levi Hart.

"The facts surrounding the Hart matter give rise to possible violations of both state and federal law," said Harrington. "Both governments have an obligation to ensure that their laws have not been violated."

Henry Owens, lawyer for the boy's family, attacked the district attorney's handling of the case.

"I feel that the district attorney's office used the grand jury as a charade," Owens said.

"The district attorney never had any intention of bringing back an indictment of a white police officer for shooting a black youth," Owens said.

Explosions shatter fuel storage tanks

MORGAN CITY, La. (AP) — A series of fires and explosions at an oil company fueling dock on the Atchafalaya River apparently caused $1 million in damage as it shattered three gasoline storage tanks and injured seven people, police said.

Residents of a seven-block area of Morgan City were evacuated after the blast Thursday, which police said may have been sparked by a truck engine.

Witnesses said the blaze started when a gasoline storage tank overflowed as it was being filled by a tank truck at the Texaco Oil Co. dock owned by Jesse Fontenot.

"The tanker truck was fueling up. All of a sudden, it started overflowing. As it was overflowing, everybody started running out," said James Bergeron, 23, whose company just finished $100,000 in renovations at the nearby offices of Domar Ocean Transportation.

When the tanks blew, only parts of walls, twisted steel girders and a pile of bricks remained at Domar.

"All that work for nothing," said Bergeron.

The tank truck, two office buildings, a metal outbuilding and a service truck also were destroyed as the fire spread 100 feet along the dock to an oil outfitter's warehouse.

"When we got here, all those big tanks were burning," said Morgan City Fire Chief Gerald Price, who was treated for minor burns on the back and neck.

The injured were treated mostly for heat or smoke inhalation — although one person had an eye injury.

Fire officials said 30 trucks and six fireboats from 23 fire departments had the blaze under control within four hours and those evacuated returned home.

Assistant Fire Chief D.C. Clement said a nearby storage tank, containing 160,000 gallons of diesel fuel, escaped unscathed.

"Everybody did a real good job and we've got half the town left to prove it," said Clement.

One of Fontenot's employees, Kenny Arceneaux, estimated the half-filled storage tanks contained a total of about 20,000 gallons of gasoline.

Morgan City, a jumping off spot for the Gulf of Mexico oil and gas industry, is a town of about 20,000 some 100 miles southwest of New Orleans.

Terry, Yoakum counties gain four wildcat projects

Operators have staked locations for four wildcats in Terry and Yoakum counties.

Threshold-Blocker Venture, operating from Fort Worth, will drill three wildcats in Yoakum County.

No. 1 E.H. Seiber spots on the Yoakum-Cochran county line in the depleted Blowing Sand field which formerly produced at 5,072 feet.

Location is 666 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 13, block P, Public School Land survey, 14 miles north of Plains.

Contract depth is 5,000 feet.

No. 1 L.C. Heath Jr., a 5,000-foot test, is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 314, block D, J.H. Gibson survey, 5.5 miles northeast of Plains.

The project is 1 3/5 miles north of production in the Spivey (San gallons of acid.

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 16, block A-34, psi survey.

Sun Oil Co. No. 1 Argo, a re-entry project in Andrews County, has been completed from the Tubbs as a new well in the Martin (Tubb) field.

It finalized for a daily pumping potential of 150 barrels of oil and 102 barrels of water, through perforations from 6,416 to 6,268 feet after a 2,000-gallon acid treatment. The gas-oil ratio is 2,430-1 and gravity of the oil is 39.5 degrees.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 14, block A-41, psi survey and 14 miles southwest of Andrews.

The project had been a producer from the Tubbs, but through another set of perforations.

COKE OILER

Guy A. Swartz of San Angelo has recompleted his No. 1 Harris Estate as a south extension to the Lygaj field of Coke County, six miles south of Silver.

A former well in the ACR (Odom) field, it finalized from the Lygaj pay for a 24-hour pumping potential of 35 barrels of 40-gravity oil, no water, with gas-oil ratio of 4,285-1.

The oil came from pay behind perforations at 6,028-6,042 feet and 6,050-6,056 feet after 1,000 gallons of acid and 20,500 gallons of fracture solution.

Total depth is 6,900 feet and plugged back depth is 6,530 feet.

Wellsite is 1,450 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of Winfield Scott survey No. 10.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

Andres) field which produces at 5,340 feet, 1/4 mile north of a 4,548-foot dry hole, and 2/5 mile west of a 5,405-foot dry hole.

Threshold-Blocker Venture's No. 1 A. J. Mabry is a 5,000-foot wildcat located 1,980 feet from north and from west lines of section 283, block D, J.H. Gibson survey, 10.5 miles northwest of Plains.

It is 7/8 mile northwest of a 4,525-foot dry hole and 1 1/4 miles south of a 5,355-foot dry hole.

TERRY WILDCAT

V-F Petroleum Inc., operating from Midland, has staked a rank wildcat in Terry County 2 1/2 miles northeast of Brownfield.

No. 1 Cicero is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 59, block T, D&WRR survey, and four miles north of the depleted Brownfield, Southeast (Fusselman) pool which produced at 11,988 feet.

Contract depth is 12,200 feet.

WTGS slates noon meeting

Stephen G. Franks, principal research geologist and acting director of structural and stratigraphic research for ARCO Oil & Gas, will be the speaker for the Tuesday meeting of the West Texas Geological Society.

The meeting will be held at 11:30 a.m. in the Midland Hilton instead of the Midland Hilton as reported earlier.

The title of Franks' talk is "Exploration for Hydrocarbons Off Eastern North America."

The paper, in 1977, received the American Association of Petroleum Geologists' Matson Award at the annual convention in Washington, D.C.

Franks earned a B.S. degree in Geology at Millsaps College in Jackson, Miss., and an M.S. degree in Geology from the University of Mississippi. He received a Ph.D. degree at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio.

SUTTON PROJECT

Robert D. McIntyre of Midland announced location for a project in the Interstate (Harkey gas field of Sutton County, 21 miles east of Sonora.

Scheduled on a 3,240-foot contract, it is No. 1 Baker, 5/8 mile northeast of Harkey gas production and 1,775 feet northwest of Canyon gas production.

Drill site is 500 feet from south and 800 feet from west lines of section 3, block DC, S.C. Alexander Original Grantee survey, abstract 4. Ground elevation is 2,149 feet. The project will test boty the Canyon and Harkey zones.

Operators announce new wildcats, discoveries, field work in WT area

Wildcats have been staked in Mitchell, Tom Green, Sutton and Crockett counties, and operators announced discoveries in Concho and McCulloch counties.

MITCHELL WILDCAT

Sun Oil Co. of Midland has announced location for a wildcat in Mitchell County.

No. 1 W.L. Ellwood Trust is 660 feet from north and from east lines of section 13, block 12, H&TC survey, eight miles north of Silver. It is 2 1/2 miles northwest of production in the three-well Dixon (Ellenburger) field which produces at 7,129 feet.

Contract depth is 7,600 feet.

MIDLAND TEST

Texaco Inc. of Midland will drill an 11,460-foot test in the Bradford Ranch (Atoka) field of Midland County.

No. 1 First United Methodist Church "B" is located 1,718 feet from south and 1,730 feet from east lines of section 12, block 39, T-3-S, T&P survey, 11 miles south of Midland.

The field currently has five wells on production.

TEXACO, MESA REPORT DEAL

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc., the nation's third-largest oil company, and Mesa Petroleum Co. said Wednesday they have formed a $600 million partnership to explore for oil and gas on 1.5 million acres in 15 Western and Southern states.

Texaco also announced it would buy $150 million in preferred stock to be issued by Mesa, based at Amarillo, Texas, and said its new partnership probably would "acquire additional acreage" as part of its exploration program.

TERRELL COUNTY

Texas Pacific Oil & Gas No. 1 Ellen; id 12,751 feet; pb 12,751 feet; waiting on completion.

A. Word "D" McKay Creek (Caballos); drilling 1,786 feet.

CONCHO COUNTY

M.C. Vinson, Midland, will drill the No. 1-28-29 University as an 1,800-foot wildcat in Crockett County. It is 1 1/2 miles north of the opener and current lone producer of the Backel Hill (Grayburg) field.

Location is 625 feet from south and 2,020 feet from east lines of section 28, block 29, University Lands survey, 22 miles west of Ozona.

Ground elevation is 2,418 feet.

CROCKETT EXTENDER

Canyon gas production was extended 1/2 mile west in the Ozona multipay field of Crockett County with completion of Anderson Petroleum Inc. No. 1-18 Laura Hoover Estate "H."

The field finalized for a calculated absolute open flow of 560,000 cubic feet of gas per day through perforations from 1,040 to 7,228 feet. The pay was acidized with 1,000 gallons and fractured with 40,000 gallons and 52,000 pounds.

The gas-liquid ratio was 47,566-1.

Location is 660 feet from north and from east lines of section 18, block MM, T&SU survey, 25 miles southwest of Ozona.

RUNNELS WILDCAT

Hanco Exploration & Development, operating from Dallas, will drill the No. 2 Tom Poe Estate as a 4,850-foot wildcat.

Location is 467 feet from north and west lines of section 14, John L. Lynch survey No. 442.

Ground elevation is 1,935 feet.

The project spots 1/2 mile southwest of the two-well Gardner lime area of the Wilmet, Southeast multipay field of Runnels County, 4.5 miles west of Winters.

The nearest Gardner lime well produces at 4,700 feet.

REEVES PROJECTS

Wiser Oil Co.-Zinn Petroleum Co., operating from Midland, announced location for a test in the three-well Reeves, North (3200) field of Reeves County, eight miles south of Orla.

Located 660 feet from north and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 22, block 56, T-3, T&P survey, No. 1 First National Bank-State is a southeast stepout to the field.

Contract depth is 3,400 feet.

Another Midland operator, R.C. Slack, will drill No. 11 K.M. Regan "A" as a south offset to the Screwbear (Delaware) field of Reeves County.

Location is 996 feet from south and 2,142 feet from east lines of section 26, block 58, T-2, T&P survey, seven miles west of Orla.

The test will drill to 2,600 feet.

SUTTON WILDCATS

HNG Oil Co. of Midland will drill two 7,500-foot tests as wildcats and as Canyon gas tests in the Sutton County portion of the Sawyer multipay field, 10 miles southwest of Sonora.

No. 2-102 Kelly is 933 feet from south

Tanker stuck on shoal

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Another oil tanker stumbled onto a hidden shoal 25 miles north of Port Mansfield shortly after midnight Thursday.

"This is just another case of shoaling, caused by the hurricane," said Coast Guard spokesman Dan Dewell.

The Chemlink 404, a 150-foot oil barge owned by Chemlink Inc., of New Orleans, ran aground in the middle of the Texas intracoastal waterway between the long strip of islands and the mainland coast, Dewell said.

"There is no tug in attendance at this time, but the ship is in semi-protected waters so we don't expect any real damage to the ship or oil spillage," Dewell said.

Coast Guard officials said the barge would probably have to be "lightened" by taking off oil before it could be floated.

"We know she (the ship) is loaded with heavy crude oil in excess of 500 barrels, but we don't know the exact amount she's carrying," Dewell said.

The Athenian, a 735-foot Liberian tanker loaded with 350,000 barrels of crude oil, was floated around midnight Thursday after barges under Coast Guard supervision transferred 25,000 to 30,000 barrels of oil from the ship.

"It took only a few thousand barrels to refloat her, and the operation went smoothly with no spillage," Dewell said.

The tanker ran aground Monday night on an undetected sandbar in Arkansas Pass created by the swirling sands churned up by Hurricane Allen.

Barges and tugboats rigged the grounded Liberian tanker Mary Ellen with beach gear and other equipment Wednesday, and the Coast Guard said pumping of 510,000 barrels of oil was scheduled to begin Thursday on the ship, located off the north end of Padre Island.

Coast Guard ships and oil containers will circle the ship, in case of spillage.

SCURRY STEPUP

No. 1 Whately will be drilled as a southwest stepout to the four-well, Fluvanna, South (Strawn) field of Scurry County.

Operated by D.A. Metts of Midland, the project will drill to a depth of 8,300 feet, on ground elevation of 2,643 feet.

Location is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 405, block 97, H&TC survey, three miles south of Fluvanna.

Contract depth is 8,300.

MCCULLOCH REOPENER

No. 1 Billy Cooper has reopened Marble Falls gas production in the Heart of Texas (Marble Falls and Pennsylvanian) field of McCulloch County.

Operated by Estoril Producing Corp. of Abilene, the well finalized for a calculated absolute open flow of 67,000 cubic feet of gas per day through perforations from 346 to 593 feet. The pay was acidized with 1,750 gallons.

Originally No. 2 R.E. Cooper, location is 2,500 feet from south and 100 feet from east lines of A. Grashdor survey No. 838.

CONCHO DISCOVERY

Last night of convention is anything but quiet

By OWEN ULLMANN

NEW YORK (AP) — Feminists threatened to walk out over abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment. Blacks vowed to bolt the convention over jobs. Some Kennedy delegates eagerly awaited a signal to leave the floor.

But when the shouting at the Democratic National Convention subsided Thursday night, only 40 to 50 unionists — convention delegates and alternates — had been angry enough to walk out of Madison Square Garden in a group protest.

Those who announced a walkout in advance and then went through with it were officers of the International Association of Machinists. They left the floor in protest Thursday night when President Carter arrived to accept his renomination.

Machinists president William W. Winpisinger, a Maryland delegate pledged to Sen. Edward Kennedy, led the walkout to demonstrate his disaffection with Carter's economic and energy policies.

But walking out of the convention was no easy task for the machinists. When Winpisinger gave the signal, the arena lights had just been dimmed for a film that introduced the president, making it difficult to see. Moreover, every aisle was jammed with people and television equipment, making it very difficult to squeeze by. It took 20 minutes for the machinists to make it out.

Several machinists leaders charged that the Carter campaign intentionally packed the floor either to block the walkout or make it impossible for anyone else in the hall to notice.

"We think we have to manifest some discontent with what happened here in a civilized way," Winpisinger said before leaving. "We are walking out on him in the same way he walked out on us."

The head of the 900,000-member union said the protest was planned to be quiet and peaceful. "We're not trying to embarrass anyone," he said. "We'll say 'Cheerio,' and go get drunk."

Winpisinger announced more than a year ago that he would not support Carter for re-election, citing the president's switch from opposition to support for removing federal price controls from domestic oil and natural gas.

"Usually when you see me on television, I'm a newspaperman named Lou Grant. But I'd like to talk to you as Ed Asner, a citizen and a newspaper reader.

"You know, our free press is our watchdog on government. So you can know what public officials are doing—and so they know that you know.

"The First Amendment guarantees more than the freedom of the press. It guarantees your right to know.

"Maybe that's why the Founding Fathers put it first."

Texans take to New York life

But Lone Star love lingers on

By SOLL SUSSMAN

NEW YORK (AP) — "I Love New York," New York Gov. Hugh Carey sang in a rousing tone to the Texas delegation at its first Democratic National Convention caucus this week.

"And I learned to love it when I was in Texas," he added jokingly.

"Well, I love Texas," retorted Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, jarringly off-key, when the Texas senator's turn came to take the microphone. "And I learned to love it when I was in New York."

But putting regional pride and competition aside, Texas delegates, alternates and assorted friends and relatives have taken to the streets of New York with some real flair and good humor.

"I had a terrible time. Just awful," Joyce Peters of San Antonio, Bexar County's Democratic party chairman, said with the glee that travelers favor to describe their adventures.

She said her most difficult times have been getting cabs late at night to return from Madison Square Garden, the convention site, to the Texas delegation hotel.

"Last night, Calvin Guest (the former state party chairman from Bryan), Billy Goldberg (current state party chairman) and myself were flagging down cabs in the middle of the street. We were ready to buy a car," Ms. Peters said. But she was laughing.

A special bus runs between the convention hall and the New York Hilton, headquarters for the Texas, New York and Indiana delegations.

Those who don't catch the bus at the right times choose between catching a taxi, which can be difficult at peak times; riding the subway, dreaded by some, or walking the 20 blocks through midtown Manhattan.

At last, most do.

Lucy Eford, a Kennedy delegate from El Paso, said she and a friend missed the bus one night and, finding it hard to get a cab, decided to walk. They made some friends while they rested along the way.

"We found some Good Samaritans.

This couple was just leaving, they were at a Broadway show. We became friends and they gave us a ride to the hotel," she said.

Was she concerned about safety in New York late at night?

"Do you believe that never crossed my mind? They were very, very nice people," Ms. Eford said.

Billie Veach, a Carter delegate from Burnet, pulled off a shoe and pointed to the blisters when asked about how she was getting around New York.

"I'm a country girl," she said. "We walk on grass in Burnet. All they walk on here is this cement."

Many of the delegates know New York from the 1976 convention or from previous trips.

Time spent exploring the city has been limited for some.

As assistant director of the state Democratic party, June Middlebrooks has spent a lot of her time taking care of convention business and logistics.

She said her only views of New York this trip were the hotel, the convention hall and, on business, the Plaza — "a beautiful hotel."

Paul Looney, a Kennedy delegate from Lubbock, put in more variety by taking in a New York Yankees baseball game, walking through Harlem and riding out to Coney Island.

When some delegates do get out to see the city, they sometimes find reporters trailing behind them.

Linda Shoemaker, a Carter delegate from San Angelo, said a television crew trailed her only sight-seeing excursion, a trip to the Statue of Liberty.

"I don't really have any fears. I really like this city," she said. "We did take the subway last night, and four people got off at the wrong stop. They had to walk a few blocks to catch up."

W.D. O'Neill, a Carter delegate from Victoria, said the pace and the size of New York may make it different from Texas but he's figured it out anyway.

"Everyone seems to be going someplace in a hurry, and yet they're really not," he said. "It's not the same type of friendliness that we're accustomed to, but everyone has been very courteous."

Despite threats, few walk out

By TOM RAUM

NEW YORK (AP) — Firecrackers interrupted President Carter's acceptance speech. Police struggled with demonstrators outside Madison Square Garden. Dozens of delegates and guests couldn't enter the hall. All in all, it was not a quiet night at the Democratic National Convention.

Dozens of delegates, reporters and guests with credentials for Thursday's closing session of the convention were barred from admittance when police sealed the building at about 9:45 p.m. EDT — not long before Carter formally accepted the party's presidential nomination.

At roughly the same time, about 100 members of the Communist Workers Party, many wielding sticks and carrying mace, tried to storm the arena. Six police officers were injured and treated for head injuries at a local hospital and six of the demonstrators were arrested, police said.

Guards at the Garden closed the doors after the number of people inside reached about 25,000, well above the arena's 19,600 seating capacity.

The overflow stemmed from a decision by convention officials to allow those without credentials into the hall, giving them tickets for a Friday session no longer scheduled in an attempt to pack the hall for Carter's speech, one Democratic official said. Thus, some with valid Thursday tickets were trapped outside once the hall was filled.

Inside Madison Square Garden, two disturbances — also apparently involving Communist Workers Party members — disrupted early moments of the president's acceptance speech.

The first occurred when a woman standing about 75 feet from Carter to the left of the podium set off a long string of firecrackers, causing the president to pause briefly. She was seized by Secret Service agents and, after a brief struggle, was hustled from the hall.

A few minutes later, another woman, who identified herself as a member of the Communist Workers Party, stood up on a wooden divider in the press section and began shouting and gesturing. She was also forcibly removed.

The second woman, Dale Sampson, 31, is the widow of William Sampson, a Communist Workers Party member who was one of five party members slain during a "Death to the Klan" rally in Greensboro, N.C., last November.

Mrs. Sampson carried a poster bearing the picture of her late husband. She shouted that Carter was "responsible for the murder of my husband and four others."

Mrs. Sampson said Signe Waller, the widow of another party member slain in Greensboro on Nov. 3, was responsible for setting off the firecrackers.

Earlier Thursday, police clashed with about 35 members of the Communist Workers Party near a Manhattan hotel where Carter was about to speak. Three demonstrators were arrested and five policemen were sprayed with mace, police said.

Hotel workers return to jobs

By The Associated Press

Hotel employees in San Francisco were going back to work today, ending a threat of renewed picketing, while attorneys in Grand Rapids, Mich., were going to court to stop striking city workers from picketing a downtown construction site.

The return to work by hotel employees in San Francisco came after a "pretty unusual" interim agreement was reached in a four-week strike against 36 luxury hotels, union officials said.

Officials of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders Union had threatened to resume picketing today unless the Hotel Employers Association allowed workers back to their jobs while the union studied a proposed contract approved earlier this week.

The union sought pay increases retroactive to July 1, when the old contract expired. The hotel association wanted the agreement signed before the workers returned, contending wage increases did not take effect until the pact was inked.

Under the agreement, to be in force until the final contract is signed, the union will pay $200,000 in wage increases retroactive to July 1.

Union official Maya Luckmann declined to say why union leaders agreed to make the payments, but said "it's pretty unusual."

The settlement makes San Francisco's hotel workers the highest paid in the country, union leaders say. Wage increases will average 28.5 percent over three years, with highest raises going to the lowest paid workers.

Negotiators will settle 11 unresolved work rule issues before the contract is signed, Ms. Luckmann said. In addition, amnesty will be granted to all union members.

The dispute began July 17 and forced guests at the luxury hotels to carry their own bags and make their own beds. San Francisco lost an estimated $12 million in tourism and convention business during the strike, the city's Convention and Visitors Bureau reported.

In Grand Rapids, Mich., city attorneys sought a permanent injunction to keep striking city workers from picketing at a downtown convention center under construction. Police refused to make arrests Thursday as strikers defied a temporary order and picketed there.

Truckers, clerks and public works employees represented by Local 1061 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees struck Michigan's second-largest city Saturday, demanding a new contract with wage increases of 14 to 15 percent.

The city has offered a 10 percent raise. Average pay for the workers now is about $13,000 a year.

PRODUCTION SUPERVISORS

Announcing "start-up" opportunities at a major, new plastic molding facility

We're a new local packaging corporation now staffing a plant in the Big Spring area. These ground floor opportunities require professionals with strong hands-on skills--and the drive to start up a continuous operation with minimum delay. We'll provide fully commensurate salaries and outstanding benefits.

While we prefer a background in blow molded plastics, we will consider candidates with records of achievement in other industries. A degree is helpful, but not mandatory. Know-how and personal initiative are the key.

Ideal candidates will have supervisory experience in a manufacturing environment, and the special leadership qualities that characterize a top notch line supervisor. After initial equipment training conducted out of state, your responsibilities will include assisting in selection and instruction of plant personnel and equipment troubleshooting. Good mechanical aptitude would be a definite asset. Supervisors and crews will work 12 hours per day, 3 and 4 days per week.

To explore these immediate opportunities call the Personnel Department at:

Stone handcuffs Yankees

By The Associated Press
Steve Stone didn't have his curve ball Thursday night but the New York Yankees had even less.

"It's just a game off the lead," he said. "We'll come out tomorrow (Friday) and start all over. I look for it to be a wonderful race."

Red Sox 3, Tigers 1
Tony Perez slammed a three-run homer in the first inning and Steve Renko, Tom Burgmeier and Bob Stanley made it stand up with a combined five-hitter.

"That's why we got him," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "We wouldn't pay that kind of money for a guy that was going to knock in 50."

Moose Haas scattered nine hits — including a pair of homers by John Mayberry — for his fourth consecutive victory and 14th of the season. It was his 11th complete game.

"I guess I'm just picking the right days to pitch now. Next time maybe it will be somebody else's turn to get some runs," said Haas, who has allowed just five earned runs in his last 34 innings.

Cooper drove in the lead run with a third-inning double off Dave Sieb and scored on a single by Ben Ogilvie. Cooper also singled a run across in the seventh.

Thompson takes PGA Junior title

Cole Thompson fired a 74 Thursday to go with his 73 from Wednesday to easily capture the 14-15 division of the West Texas PGA Junior Tournament of Champions at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

The event brought together winners of all stops along the junior tour. Thompson took his division by ten shots over runner-up Andy Anderson. Bobby Bechtold, with a 78 Thursday, finished third at 158.

Sam Hansard took the 16-17 title with a fine 151 total including a 75 Thursday. Brad Sinnacher, who carded a slick 75 Thursday, was second at 152, and Randy Vernon, who had a share of the first round lead with a 76, was third with 154.

Michael Campbell led wire-to-wire in winning the 12-13 crown with a 155 total on rounds of 78 and 77. Carter Parks was a distant second at 166 followed by Jeff Foster at 170. Foster won on the second hole of sudden-death playoff with Todd Moore.

Federal appeals court rules in favor of Herald Examiner

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal appeals court has ruled in favor of the Los Angeles Herald Examiner in the newspaper's quest to reprint a controversial magazine article about baseball player Steve Garvey and his wife.

Attorneys for both Newsweek and the newspaper argued against the ban, saying the paper should be allowed to publish and "then, if defamatory, we can be sued."

Alan I. Rothenberg, attorney for the Garveys, issued the following statement following the appeals court ruling: "Today's decision by the United States Court of Appeals apparently means that the trashy, vicious, malicious article by author Pat Jordan will be published in the Herald Examiner."

The article is defamatory, invades the Garveys' privacy and places them in a false light. It is replete with falsehoods, half-truths and innuendoes. Fiction masquerades as fact. Some quotes are inaccurate; others are so out of context as to twist and distort the true meaning."

Had Thursday's federal court ruling been otherwise, it might have been viewed as a landmark decision. Allan Malamud, sports editor of the Herald Examiner, said Thursday that the newspaper's proposed five-part series, a reprint of an article that appeared in Newsweek's "Inside Sports," had been scheduled to run this week until barred by a U.S. District Court Judge Robert Kelleher in Los Angeles.

The judge's order prohibiting publication was thrown out by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco, which ruled that "prior restraint of this publication is prohibited by the First Amendment."

Garvey, Los Angeles Dodgers first baseman, and his wife had argued that the story could cause them public harassment if reprinted. They have already sued Newsweek and the author for $11.2 million in damages. Roberson appealed 11 of 17 pass in that direction last weekend when he completed 11 of 17 passes for 145 yards in the Broncos' 17-6 victory over Cincinnati. Houston. On Monday night it's Washington at Cleveland, Minnesota at Kansas City and Miami at Seattle.

Tonight's games are the New York Jets at Philadelphia and Pittsburgh at Atlanta.

"A lot of people have said 'You're a cross between Morton and Weese,' or they compare Richard and me," says Robinson, who managed to take away Todd's job at the start of the 1979 season, only to lose it when he failed to acknowledge a thumb injury that hurt his ability to throw. "I don't think you can compare people, especially at quarterback, because everybody has their own idiosyncracies.

Nobody knows what you say in the huddle or what kind of leader you are in that respect, and that's the most important part of it. A lot of people don't realize — a lot of quarterbacks don't realize — that when you're in a game, 10 guys are looking to you for answers."

Now Robinson is looking for an answer.

So is Vince Ferragamo, Los Angeles' No. 2 quarterback last year, who stepped in when Pat Haden was injured and guided the Rams into the playoffs, past Los Angeles and Tampa Bay and into the Super Bowl.

Tulsa downs Shreveport on homer

By The Associated Press
Nick Capra's two-run home run in the bottom of the ninth inning Thursday night powered the Tulsa Drillers to a 6-4 Texas League victory over the Shreveport Captains.

In other Texas League games, Jackson beat Arkansas, 7-1, and El Paso defeated Midland, 15-7. San Antonio's game at Amarillo was postponed because of rain until tonight when the two teams were to play a doubleheader.

Fla Strawn's three-run homer had given the Drillers a 4-1 lead over the Captains, but Shreveport came back to tie the game, 4-4, with a three-run rally in the seventh. The game remained tied until Capra's homer.

Jim Umberger, 2-1, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Gorman Heimuller, 5-7. Brian Giles had a triple and a double and Mike Howard had a double and a single as the Jackson Mets coasted to an easy 7-1 victory over the Arkansas Travelers. The Mets had 12 hits.

Cesar Ceden set up the winning run for the Astros when he led off the ninth inning with a single off Padres starter John Curtis, 4-8, stole second, took third on a grounder and came home on Jeff Leonard's sacrifice fly. Leonard also had an RBI single in the fourth.

The Padres got their run in the second on Barry Evans' sacrifice fly.

Phillies 8, Mets 1
Mike Schmidt homered and drove in four runs and Nino Espinosa pitched his first complete game of the season with a five-hitter to help Philadelphia beat New York.

Schmidt collected four hits and hit his 31st homer leading off the ninth inning off Ed Glynn, the third Mets pitcher. Earlier, he had a bases-loaded single and an RBI double.

Espinosa, 3-3, walked two and struck out three in his eighth start of the season. Pat Zachry, 6-6, was the loser.

Giants 5, Braves 1
Jack Clark's third-inning grand slam home run, the third of his career, led San Francisco over Atlanta.

With one out in the third, Larry McWilliams, 8-9, walked pitcher Al Hargreaves and Jim Wohlford and Darrell Evans singled to load the bases, then Clark hit a 1-2 pitch over the left field fence at Candlestick Park for his 22nd homer of the season.

Bob Horner hit his 24th homer for the Braves in the second to account for Atlanta's run. Hargreaves, 3-2, gained the victory and Greg Minton notched his 13th save as the Giants halted the Braves' four-game winning streak.

"When I hit it, I thought it would be good for a sacrifice fly," Clark said of his homer and major league-leading 18th game-winning RBI. "Then I thought it would hit the fence. There was no way I thought that ball was ever going to go out."

Cardinals 10, Cubs 9
George Hendrick drove in the winning run with a one-out single in the 10th inning to lead St. Louis over Chicago despite three Cub home runs.

Dave Kingman belted a three-run homer, his first since June 4 for Chicago. Also homering for the Cubs were Bill Buckner, who belted a two-run smash, and Mike Tyson.

St. Louis squandered leads of 5-2 and 9-5, with Chicago rallying for four runs in the eighth inning to tie the game at 9-9.

In the St. Louis 10th, Tony Scott singled off George Riley, 0-3, to ignite the Cards' winning rally. Scott moved over on a sacrifice by Keith Hernandez and Ted Simmons was intentionally walked behind Hendrick's drive off Bill Claudill, the Cubs' sixth hurler.

Jim Kaat, 5-5, worked 21-3 scoreless innings in relief for St. Louis to pick up the victory.

Texas League playoffs set to start Sept. 2
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Texas League baseball playoffs will begin Sept. 2 to avoid a conflict with the Arkansas-Texas football game on the night of Sept. 1.

The Eastern Division playoffs will be held in Little Rock on Sept. 2, 3 and 4 in a best of three competition. The Western Division playoffs will be held in San Antonio on the same dates.

The overall playoff will begin at the home of the Eastern Division champion. If Arkansas wins, the playoffs will be held Sept. 5 and 6 with Sept. 7 a travel day. The best of five series would resume at the home of the Western Division champion on Sept. 8.

If Jackson wins the Eastern Division, the overall playoff will begin Sept. 5 in Jackson but the teams will be idle on Sept. 6 because of a conflict with a University of Mississippi football game. The playoff would resume in Jackson on Sept. 7 and then continue at the home of the Western Division champion on Sept. 8.

Matt Robinson still sitting on bench

By The Associated Press
Matt Robinson is right back where he started, listed as a No. 2 quarterback and trying to move up to No. 1.

It was that way when he was with the New York Jets — in fact, he did manage to out Richard Todd ever so briefly — and it's that way now that he's with the Denver Broncos.

And on Saturday night, when the Broncos return to New York (well, actually New Jersey) to play the Giants in a National Football League exhibition, Robinson will be back on the bench, where he was for so much of his career with the Jets.

"Matt is not my No. 1 quarterback," Denver Coach Red Miller said most

Longshot upsets field at Ruidoso

RUIDOSO DOWNS (AP) — Longshot Lukenback upset a field of talented sprinters in Thursday's featured race at Ruidoso Downs horse track.

Lukenback moved up boldly in the stretch run of the mud-splattered race and overtook the tiring pace setter Flashy Dresser. The winner hit the wire of the six furlong race in a slow time of 1:21.45.

Lukenback paid $29.50, $9.00 and $5.50. Flashy Dresser returned $4.40 to place and show, while Net Star finished third and paid $4.60.

The results of all races:

First — 5 1/2 furlongs; Days Profit 5.20, 3.00; Tornado Hemp 3.00, 3.00; Loud Commotion 3.40, T — 1:15.

Baylor accused of playing easy football schedule

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

WACO, Texas (AP) — The best way to get Baylor Coach Grant Teaff to miss a three-foot putt is to tell him he has an easy schedule.

It's a trick members have been using all summer on the greens of Waco Ridgewood Country Club.

Baylor does have three non-conference teams, Lamar University, West Texas State and San Jose State, who are not to be confused with Alabama, Michigan and Ohio State, outfits the Bears have been playing recent out-side the Southwest Conference.

And the Bears do get league tough-ies Houston, Southern Methodist, Arkansas and Texas at home.

However, it's the season-opener Sept. 13 in Beaumont against rapidly-improving Lamar which has Teaff worried. Despite what everybody tells him he knows the game is no gimmie.

"All I know is that it's the toughest opener I've had since I've been at Baylor from the psychological sense," said Teaff recently at his home. "It's not that Lamar is any stronger physically than we are. I think we can handle that."

"But they are going to be playing before 17,000 fans jammed into their stadium and I guess maybe we'll have 2,000 pulling for us. It's a big, big game for them and you just know they'll be going all out."

Baylor defeated Lamar 20-7 last season at Baylor Stadium.

The Bears will be starting the season without sensational schoolboy phenom Alfred Anderson of Waco Richfield at quarterback.

Anderson cracked the wrist on his throwing arm in the Oil Bowl last week and won't be able to take a snap for at least six weeks. Teaff will lineup Anderson at running back to backup the awesome Walter Abercrombie.

The quarterback spot was going to be a battle anyway, a pleasant one for Teaff.

He must now choose between talented Mike Brannan, the hero of Baylor's 24-18 Peach Bowl victory over Clemson, impressive redshirt David Mahgrum, Neal Jeffrey's brother, Jay, and freshman Allen Rice of Houston Klein.

"I feel very encouraged about the talent we have at that position," said Teaff.

Teaff isn't near as fretful about his offense as he is the defense which has big question marks at end and the secondary.

"We're OK at middle linebacker, though," Teaff said with tongue-in-cheek. Of course, All-American Mike Singletary returns at that position.

Baylor recruited well off its 8-4 campaign last year and one of the biggest (literally) steals was Pat Coryat of Baytown, Lee.

After eyeballing Coryat in the Oil Bowl, Teaff has decided to give the him a shot at fullback with the Bears, particularly in goal-line situations.

"He has much more explosiveness and quickness than I thought," said Teaff. "In fact, he gets to the line faster than (former Texas A&M full-back) George Woodard."

Teaff figures Houston should be favored for the SWC title because of veteran defensive tackles and a senior quarterback but he can't visualize an unbeaten champion.

"There's no way a team will go to the Cotton Bowl unbeaten," said Teaff. "You've got to play somebody every week who is going to be getting after you."

Texas Christian sets fall football workouts

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Twenty-one scholarship freshmen and 30 walk-ons were expected to begin fall football workouts at Texas Christian University Friday.

Coach F.A. Dry plans to put the young Horned Frogs through three practices a day at 9 a.m., 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

"We feel like repetition is very important for the young players," said Dry. "Actually, each workout won't run any longer than 90 minutes so we think we'll be able to get more out of the players with this format."

The Frogs' varsity reports Monday night for physicals and a conditioning run.

TCU opens the season Sept. 13 at home against tough Auburn University.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — To say it's been a strange season for the defending National League West champion Cincinnati Reds is an understatement.

They've gone from the penthouse to the outhouse and back again.

"It's very satisfying," were Manager John McNamara's words after the Reds moved into first place Wednesday night with a 4-3 victory over the San Diego Padres. "So many had written us off. It's a good feeling."

"Give these people (the Reds' players) credit. They kept battling back."

Those words would seem strange coming from the skipper of a team that won its first eight games of the season, and shortly later were 11-1, 12-2 and 20-11. But that's how the Reds began 1980. Then they went sour.

From 20-11, Cincinnati lost 33 of its ensuing 57 games to fall far out of first place at 44-44. But since then, the Reds have won 18 of 27 contests to vault back into the lead.

Now 62-53, the Reds open a crucial — at least for now — three-game series with Los Angeles tonight at Dodger Stadium. Entering the game, Cincinnati holds a half-game lead over both the Dodgers and Astros in the red-hot NL West race.

Both the Reds and the Dodgers were idle Thursday. Houston gained ground with a 2-1 victory over the San Diego Padres and the San Francisco

Giants, now only five games off the pace, moved up a notch, beating Atlanta 5-1.

Tom Seaver, the erstwhile ace of the Reds' pitching staff but currently only 4-6, will hurl for Cincinnati tonight against Jerry Reuss, 13-4.

Seaver only recently returned to action after being on the disabled list with a sore arm. The Dodgers knocked him out in the second inning last Saturday.

Calder Race Track scandal brings two arrests

MIRAMAR, Fla. (AP) — Two men have been arrested and four are being sought in a $500,000 race-fixing scandal at Calder Race Track, authorities said.

A Broward County grand jury Wednesday handed down six sealed indictments, made public Thursday, in the case. It alleges that 12 races between March and August 1975 were rigged in a scam that involved slipping drugs into the stable water pails of some horses. The drugs made the horses draggy, and the conspirators then allegedly bet on the rest of the field.

"The indictments resulted from a two-year investigation conducted by state and federal authorities," said Gary Rutledge, director of Florida Parimutuel Division.

find ourselves 3 1/2 games back," said Los Angeles second baseman Davey Lopes after the Dodgers' 2-0 loss to Atlanta Wednesday night.

"We better wake up, that's all there is to it."

"If any one of the three teams hits a hot streak, it could be all over, curtains for the other two," said Los Angeles pitcher Rube Hooton. "And San Francisco obviously is not that far back. They're knocking at the door."

Thomas A. Griffin, 46, of Miramar, was already being held at the federal prison at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., for his conviction for lying to a federal grand jury. He was described as an owner of horses and racing dogs who decided which horses to drug in the scheme.

Ellsworth "Duke" Ewart, a Fort Lauderdale horse trainer accused of allowing some of his horses to be drugged, was arrested Wednesday.

Rutledge noted that the scheme, which allegedly helped net $500,000 to the conspirators, circumvented post-race testing of winning horses, since the drugs involved helped insure that horses would lose.

No track officials were named in the indictments. Rutledge said the investigation is continuing.

Daniel successful in long driving

MAPLEWOOD, Minn. (AP) — Beth Daniel, who won two championships during last year's rain-shortened LPGA Patty Berg Golf Classic at Keller Golf Course, already has successfully defended one of those titles and hopes to retain the other as well.

Daniel, the 1979 Rookie of the Year on the LPGA tour, won the long driving contest last year with a blast of 221 yards and later in the week put together a three-day score of 208 for her first tour win, a four-stroke victory over Hollis Stacy.

On Wednesday, Daniel won the long drive contest again, this time with a shot of more than 259 yards.

"Last year it was raining and we were hitting into the wind," she recalled.

The eighth annual tournament, which began as the St. Paul Ladies Open in 1973, runs today through Sunday at Keller in suburban St. Paul.

Last year the $100,000 tournament was increased from 54 holes to 72 holes, but the final day was canceled due to rain, leaving Daniel with the $15,000 winner's check. This year it has been cut back to 54 holes.

"I'll go into the tournament thinking that I won here last year and there is no reason I can't do it again," said Daniel, who won more than $97,000 in her first year.

"In a 54-hole tournament, you have to go out and play well in the first round and establish yourself immediately, whereas in a 72-hole tournament, you more or less go out and get a feel of the golf course."

"At Keller (6,050 yard, par 73) I think I'll go out the first day and try to shoot low numbers."

Daniel said she set two goals for herself this year: to top the $100,000 mark in earnings and win at least two tournaments.

The 23-year old native of Charleston, S.C., passed her first goal two weeks ago and currently is sixth on the money list with $114,542 in earnings.

She also won her first event of the year by capturing the Golden Lights tournament in New York, so she could reach her second goal by winning this weekend at Keller.

"Last year I played the par fives very, very well and I think that is one of the reasons I won the tournament," said Daniel, who played on the men's golf team at Furman University.

"There are a lot of par fives that I know I reached in two last year."

"I don't think the longer hitters have an advantage at Keller, but you do have an advantage on the par fives, and I think you have to make use of that advantage."

Six of the top 10 leading money winners are scheduled to compete in the tournament. They are: Amy Alcott, No. 2 on the list behind Donna Caponi Young, No. 4 Pat Bradley, who won last week's LPGA event in Toronto, No. 7 Sally Little, No. 9 Jo Ann Washam, the winner of the 1975 Patty Berg, No. 10 Sandra Post, and Daniel.

In addition to Daniel, four other previous winners of the tournament are entered. They are Shelly Hamlin (1978), Bonnie Lauer (1977), Kathy Whitworth (1976) and Washam.

Matthews traded

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Both former San Diego fullback Bo Matthews and his new team, the New York Giants, are getting what they want need, said Chargers' Coach Don Coryell.

"He needs a new start, and he'll get one with the Giants. They have a real need," said Coryell of Thursday's exchange for a middle-round draft choice in 1981.

Matthews, the Chargers' No. 1 draft choice in 1974 out of the University of Colorado, gained only 112 yards on 30 carries last year.

Safety measures should be taken

BOSTON (AP) — Unless action is taken to limit violence, professional sports could follow other industries down the road to federal regulation, the attorney for paralyzed ex-football player Darryl Stingley says.

"It is not inconceivable to see the appointment of a regulatory body to insure that the leagues are putting in safety measures to prevent abusive violations of the rules," Jack Sands said Thursday in an interview.

Last month, Rep. Ronald Mottl, D-Ohio, introduced in Congress a bill proposing maximum penalties of one year in prison and a $5,000 fine for pro athletes who use excessive physical force that causes a risk of significant injury.

"If you look at history, American business had been immune to federal regulation, whether the steel industry or the coal industry or the railroad industry," Sands said. "You'll see that the government initially became involved with them over safety regulations for employees."

"I'm afraid that if the leagues themselves do not take preventive remedies against violence, whereas the leagues have remained immune from federal regulations, this may be the area where the federal government does intervene."

Sands was upset by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle's treatment of defensive back Jack Tatum. In a preseason game at Oakland Aug. 12, 1978, Tatum hit Stingley, who was trying to catch a pass, leaving the New England Patriots' wide receiver paralyzed.

Bradshaw hopes to save his marriage

PITTSBURGH (AP) — His wife, Jo Jo Starbuck, has filed for divorce, but quarterback Terry Bradshaw of the Pittsburgh Steelers says he hopes to save the marriage.

"I'm going to do everything I can to patch things up," Bradshaw told a Philadelphia Daily News columnist at the Steelers' training camp at St. Vincent College in Latrobe.

"I don't accept her claim that it's over," said Bradshaw, who was in training camp last Wednesday when his wife, a former ice skating star, petitioned a Pittsburgh court, claiming the four-year marriage was "irretrievably broken."

Bradshaw said he never saw the divorce action coming and declined to discuss the matter until his comments to the Daily News.

"I'm the type of person who believes that anything good is worth fighting for and this is definitely worth fighting for," he said. "I'm not going to say I'm not at fault in this, because I know I am. But that doesn't mean I'm ready to call it quits."

Pro football is a very big business now

By JIM MURRAY
The Los Angeles Times

Do you remember when football was a game played in the public park on a Sunday afternoon on a field that might or might not have chalk marks or goal posts on it, and they'd line up 22 of the best available ex-high school heroes or boiler-makers from the local round-house, and they would play not necessarily in matching uniforms unless they got the local Bon Ton Grille or a jewelry store to sponsor one or both of the teams?

THEY'D PASS the hat to pay for the footballs. There was no clubhouse or grandstand. The game was called "semi-pro," but that was a joke, because all that most of the guys got for their day's work was a nosebleed. USC and Notre Dame and Army or Navy were a lot more pro than these guys. Occasionally, a barnstorming troupe, like the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame, would come through and, for $500, play behind a pickup team in a one-day exhibition.

When the pro game did come along, teams were bankrolled by shirt-starching compounds, or, as in Marion, Ohio, by a dog kennel. These were the Decatur "Staleys" and the "Oorang Indians" (so named, because the Oorang dog kennels had signed Jim Thorpe).

In those days, pro football was just a floating crap game which parked the team bus wherever they thought they might get a hatful of quarters. There were no such things as concessions, souvenir stands, coaching staffs. The "coach" was probably just a local parish priest or the local jock hero who had once run 100 yards to beat a hated cross-town rival in high school or who had lettered at Juniata. There was no press box, no press, and the coach carried the results of the game into the local rag, which might or might not print them. There were no point spreads; you either thought the Holy Name Society could beat the Clay Hills Tigers, or you didn't.

Well, that pro football...

WE SWITCH reels now to 1980 and Anaheim, Calif., the other night. The community there has just spent $28 million expanding a sport stadium built in 1966 for $21 million. The city of Anaheim, which owns it, passed the hat for that to municipal bond holders.

It will cost you $5 just to park your car at the game. It will cost you up to $15 for a seat. However, if you prefer a little semi-privacy, you can rent a 12-seat box for a year. There, you can also watch the game live, or on TV, behind closed doors in an air-conditioned "suite" with over-stuffed furniture and, if you pay, an overstocked bar. This costs you $20,000 a year.

Here, you can dine in Lucullan delight on oysters and crab claws ($115 per platter, supposedly serving 12), or you can get the gourmet cheese tray for $55 (but with crackers, of course). Lox and smoked salmon go $115, stuffed devil crab $110, and a whole chicken is $108. You can wash this down with a magnum of Moet & Chandon ($22) or a six-pack of Michelob ($8) or Beck's ($12). Chateaufeuf du Pape is $12 a bottle, the guacamole is $15, and a plate of "weekly rotating selection of meats" is $95.

YOU HAVE to order this on Wednesday before a Sunday game, or 72 hours before any game. You cannot stock your own bar. You buy booze by the bottle from the concessionaire at prices ranging from $29 for vintage Scotch to $15 a liter for vodka. You can shave the price a bit by buying the concessionaire's own brand, but you can't brown-bag it to this ballpark.

There are 108 of these luxury suites. Ninety of them seat 12 and the others seat either 10 or 24. The beauty of their function is, you don't have to share the revenue with the visiting teams. The Rams and Anaheim split the take, 80-20. The lessee also has to buy six season tickets to the Angels games, upping the cost to some $23,000 per box, including the cleanup costs.

The Rams are locked into this, as it were, "suite" setup for 35 years -- and how suite it is. Their own rent for the stadium is 7.5 percent of the gross, and they get one half of the net concession profits. Add what ABC and CBS do to the pot, and you can see where the suites get sweeter.

YOU THINK the guys who busted noses in the old twilight leagues in Pope Park in jerseys that said "One Day Laundry" on them -- for nothing -- will believe all this? When you figure that the eight Ram-home games are costing the patrons $3,000 a game, not counting the finger food and the Cabernet Sauvignon, you have to tap yourself on the side of the head. The last time in history that this kind of Neronian behavior at games went on, the spectators wore grape-leaves in their hair -- and the lions ate the losers.

Three sharing lead with 65s in Westchester Golf

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Tommy Valentine, a career non-winner, is looking for golf's Holy Grail.

And that is, simply, winning. "I've been improving," said Valentine, 31, who once lost his playing rights for lack of performance and still is subject to the trauma of the Monday morning qualifying rounds to gain a place in PGA tournaments.

He showed that improvement Thursday with a strong performance, including a birdie-birdie finish for a 65 that gave him a share of the first-round lead with David Graham and George Burns in the $400,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

"I'm becoming more consistent, more steady," Valentine said. "Now I just have to learn to play four good rounds instead of three."

"I'm looking for a win. Look what it did for Jack Renner last year. You win and suddenly there is the Masters and the Tournament of Champions and the Holy Grail."

Burns, reeled off a string of seven consecutive birdies, one short of the all-time tour record, in his erratic 6-under-par effort that came as a

"total surprise," he said, and Graham had an extremely solid performance that could have been even better.

"I'm not dissatisfied with any part of my game," said Graham, a former PGA champion and a winner here what years ago.

"I'm playing well and there's a feeling of confidence when you're on a golf course you like, one on which you play well, where you have won before."

In addition to his 1976 victory, Graham also finished second last year on the hilly, 6,603-yard, par-71 Westchester Country Club course, a suburban New York layout that, as usual, provided some of the lowest scoring of the year.

In all, 77 players in the field of 156 shot par or better.

One stroke back of the leaders at 66 was Mike Reid, who birdied his last three holes.

The group at 67 included George Archer, Tom Kite, David Edwards, Phil Hancock, Bob Murphy, Bruce Lietzke and Rik Massengale.

U.S. National team clinches berth

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — The United States National Youth Team can clinch a berth in the 1981 World Youth Soccer Championship with a victory over Honduras Friday night in the semifinals of the 18-nation regional qualifying soccer tournament at RFK Stadium.

The United States team, which advanced to the semifinals by defeating Bermuda 2-1 here Tuesday night, has failed to qualify for the two previous world championships.

The American team, undefeated in five tournament encounters, will face its strongest challenge to date against the Honduras team.

"This is certainly one of the most important games in our soccer history," said U.S. National Coach Walt Chyzowych. "Everyone has heard about the growth and recent prowess of our national teams. With a victory in the semifinals we can finally prove to the world that we can play at the international level. If we play up to our capabilities, I am confident we will win. However, we are expecting Honduras to be a difficult opponent. It won't be easy."

Mondale now anything but shy

NEW YORK (AP) — Four years ago, as Jimmy Carter won his first presidential nomination and neared a decision on his running mate, Fritz Mondale holed up in a swank, out-of-the-way hotel as rumors arose that the Minnesota senator had made Carter's final list of potential candidates.

Today, Walter F. Mondale is much more in the picture as he prepares to again receive his party's nomination as vice president. He plays a major role on Carter's political team and, in the last year, has been the president's chief political spokesman around the country.

By all accounts Mondale has done something none of his 41 vice presidential predecessors could claim: He and Carter have established a uniquely close relationship that appears to have kept Mondale part of the policy-making White House inner circle.

Three months into the job, Mondale said "the relationship with Carter is perfect."

If anything has happened in the last three years to change that assessment, Mondale, 52, has given no sign of it. In rumor-hungry Washington, there has been hardly a hint of conflict between the president and his No. 2.

In fact, when stories circulated that Mondale was slipping from view, with the implication that he was also losing his White House clout, Carter took the extraordinary step of telephoning reporters to talk about the vice president's influence.

Last week, Richard Moe, Mondale's chief of staff, said there has been no change in the Carter-Mondale relationship.

Unlike his predecessors, Mondale spends most of his Washington days in the White House. He chose an office there — about 25 paces from Carter's Oval Office — because his formal vice presidential office in the adjacent Old Executive Office Building would have kept him too isolated.

But much of his time has been spent on the road.

Between Labor Day 1979, when he returned from a diplomatic mission to Canada or to Minnesota's northern woods for fishing expeditions aides say renew and relax him.

In a world of politics and government that often takes itself very seriously, Mondale, without slighting serious issues, tries to find humor when he can.

In July, he visited Africa, took a brief fishing vacation in New Jersey, catching nothing but flies, and returned to Washington to work on efforts to make sure Carter — and himself — were renominated.

Such travels, with the exception of the fishing trip, reflect the other side of the Mondale vice presidency, that of the faithful servant in addition to the senior adviser.

The fishing trip reflects a hobby. At least once a year, he retreats to Canada or to Minnesota's northern woods for fishing expeditions aides say renew and relax him.

In a world of politics and government that often takes itself very seriously, Mondale, without slighting serious issues, tries to find humor when he can.

On a wintry day in New York, where he was meeting with city officials, Mondale was asked by a reporter, "What are you bringing, money or good wishes?"

"I brought snow," the vice president replied.

Mondale, who spent 12 years in the Senate, caught Carter's attention after running — and abandoning — his own presidential campaign shortly after it began in 1974 because, he said jokingly, he didn't want to spend the next two years in Holiday Inns.

Like Carter he grew up in a small, rural town during the Great Depression.

In an effort to beat the heat, two teen-agers jump from a rock near Great Falls, Md., recently, into a pool of the Potomac River. Temperatures reached a high of 100 degrees in the Washington area early this week. The heat equalled a record established in 1872 for consecutive days with readings of 90 or above, at 18 days in a row. (AP Laserphoto)

Famous reveal pet peeves

By JIM BANNON
Anderson Daily Bulletin

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — You know how it is sometimes — it's the little things that bother you the most.

Most of the time it's nothing that's going to stop the world or spoil your party, but it's still something that rubs you the wrong way.

Pet peeves, that's what they are. We've all got them, from the president of the United States to the man on the street.

Not long ago, I asked a lot of folks I know what peeved them most.

They mentioned people who empty ashtrays on the street or parking lots. Also, hard-to-open lunch meat packages, and charcoal that won't burn.

Then I decided to ask famous people about their pet peeves.

I wrote to Jimmy Carter. And to Ronald Reagan, not playing favorites. I asked Gov. Otis Bowen and Sen. Birch E. Bayh.

And just to get out of the political area, I sent one to Johnny Carson.

Jim Purks, assistant press secretary for Carter, wrote to say Carter's pet peeve is people being late. The response came in the mail Aug. 8 — after presidential press aide Jody Powell said on July 3 that he would get back with a response. "I won't guarantee that there will be a very quick turn-around," Powell said.

Purks also said, "Staff members also know from experience that he (Carter) does not like to see misspellings in the memorandums and letters that reach his desk. But tardiness is obviously the No. 1 peeve."

Reagan, the GOP presidential nominee, replied, "Many thanks for your inquiry. I must say that you gave me pause for thought — your question wasn't the usual sort I receive. I think one of my biggest pet peeves is people who honk their horns in traffic jams when there is nothing the guy in front of them can do about the situation."

Bowen listed his pet peeves as "1. People who do not follow through on doing what they say they will do. The trait of dependability rates high with me. 2. Ice chewsers."

Bayh said, "After having spent most of my life trying to solve people's problems, I do have a pet peeve. My peeve is that citizen who complains about having a problem but refuses to devote any time to solving that problem. This system of ours is not perfect, but it is better than any other around. It does provide the opportunity for citizens to make a great deal of difference."

And now, heeere's Johnny:

"Mr. Carson is very flattered you selected him to participate in your project. As you can imagine, he receives numerous requests of a similar nature and unfortunately, his schedule does not permit him to answer each one individually."

It was signed Terry Halligan, correspondent for the "Tonight Show."

NOTICE TO PARENTS OF ELEMENTARY PUPILS

The majority to minority pupil transfer provision is an important part of the desegregation plan of Midland elementary schools. This transfer policy allows eligible young children to attend the same school as older brothers and sisters in grades 4, 5 and 6. The majority to minority transfer policy states:

A primary level pupil (grades 1, 2 or 3) may transfer from a school in which the pupil's race or ethnic background is the majority to another school in the assigned elementary school cluster, serving the residence, in which the pupil's race is the minority. Transportation is provided by regularly scheduled bus routes which transport intermediate level pupils (grades 4, 5 and 6) within the elementary cluster.

Pupils in grades 1, 2 and 3 may transfer to another school in the elementary cluster when their race or ethnic background is a majority in the home school. Also, the race or ethnic background must be in a minority in the receiving school. Transportation is provided by regularly scheduled bus routes within the elementary cluster.

You may receive more information by contacting the principal of any elementary school. Application forms are available from any elementary school. Application forms are available from any elementary school principal or may be obtained at the central administration office at 702 North "N" Street.

Mud wrestling new disco draw

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mud slinging isn't just a political campaign phenomenon anymore. Women wrestlers are doing it instead of disco dancing at Southern California bars — and notables such as Peter Falk and Andy Kaufman are getting into the act.

The women wrestlers wear bikinis, climb into a muddy pit that looks like a sandbox, and slip and slide to the cheers of hundreds of men. The bars hope the competitions will boost attendance, which has dwindled in the recession.

"If people are going to spend money, they want to do more than dance and drink. They want to be entertained. Otherwise they will go to the movies or play miniature golf," said Ray Grafius, manager of the Rustler's Inn in Riverside, where female mud wrestling has been a Wednesday night standard for a month.

At Chippendale's — one of the first Los Angeles discos to feature male exotic dancing (for female audiences only) — women mud wrestlers draw about 300 customers, mostly men, on Tuesday nights.

Customers pay $6 each to watch the wrestlers, who such names as Boom Boom the Cheerleader, Wicked Wanda and Nancy the Naughty Nurse, dance and strip to bikinis, then slide into a mud-filled ring.

Watching on a recent night were actor Falk and director Robert Altman, who are about to begin filming "All the Marbles," in which Falk plays a coach for lady wrestlers.

Asked if he might include mud wrestling in the movie, Falk said: "I'll wait 'til I get on the set to decide that."

On another night, comedian Kaufman, known for his portrayal of Latka on the television series "Taxi," and who once took on a female wrestler on "Saturday Night Live," got in the mud himself.

The night Falk was at Chippendale's, a wrestler known as Bronco Brandy shed her chaps and cowboy hat for a skimpy bathing suit to meet Magic Henderson, who came dressed as a Girl Scout.

It was the 19th match for the 105-pound Brandy, whose real name is Jean Alison. She said she is a professional stuntwoman and claimed to have lost only three mud bouts.

"Mud wrestling is bad for your hair because it dries it up and bad on your ears," Ms. Alison said. "I got a skin infection in my ear. The doctor said it is a common infection for children who play in the mud a lot."

The pay is good — $40 a match — and the tips during the dance routine can total $40. But a good mud wrestler is hard to find.

"Finding and keeping mud wrestlers has been difficult," said club employee Renate Steiner. "But this was true of finding male strippers at the beginning... The girls are unsure about it. About half the women we use are stuntwomen, aspiring actresses or dancers."

Boom Boom the Cheerleader, elsewhere known as actress-model Jeanette Lorentz, said she got the job through a modeling agency that supplies wrestlers who offer more beauty than brawn.

Ms. Lorentz, a strawberry blonde with thick long hair, spent the afternoon before her second match practicing with a club employee. She lost her first bout, and was determined to win her second.

"I thought it was fun, so I've decided to do it again," she said.

She said her boyfriend was surprised by the muddy turn of her career. "He went back and forth and then said, 'Go out and get 'em,'" she said. "My mother told me I was disgracing the family... She was still yelling when I went out the door."

That night, 300 yelling men surrounded the ring. To the blaring theme from "Rocky," the bout began. In seconds, the wrestlers were a gooey chocolate brown, barely resembling the women who danced minutes before.

Slipping and sliding, the women tried to flip or pin their opponent. But wrestling is not enough — there must also be mud slinging, water spitting and hair pulling. Even the bikinis get out of place.

After three 1½-minute rounds, the crowd applauds to pick the winner, and wrestling talent has little — or nothing — to do with victory.

Some men said they watched out of curiosity.

"I just heard about it and I had nothing better to do," said Michael Fahrenkurd, a 31-year-old lawyer in a three-piece suit. "I thought it was different and enjoyed it because it was unique. But I don't know if I would come back."

Nightclub owners following the trend of giving patrons more for their money than just a drink have added women mud-wrestlers to their nightly entertainment packages. (AP Laserphoto)

Author hid dirty dishes while writing

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

The call made her day. Her agent had sold her book. No matter that she had to double it in size, it had been accepted by World Publications, the first publisher who had looked at it. Everything in her life was OK. Everything, that is, except that she had to wait to share her good news. Watering the front yard, she was looking for one of her three kids, Bobby, Richard or Beckie, to come home from high school, or for her husband, Bob, to get home from the office.

ANY WOULD DO NICELY. After all, when she finished the book after a year of all day and late night-early morning work, she'd been in the same situation. She'd had to wait then, even though she

Mary Dutton, author of the novel "Thorpe," has had her book made into a segment, called "Joshua's World," of "The Waltons," which is scheduled to air Thursday at 7 p.m. on Channel 7. "Thorpe" was written 13 years ago in Mrs. Dutton's spare time which she stole during the day when her three kids were in high school and during the late night-early morning hours. (Staff Photo by Edward McCain) had wanted to go running through the house yelling, "I'm through, I'm through." But that's hardly a sane action at 3 a.m. when everyone's asleep. She could wait again.

AT LAST, HER HUSBAND returned. "Guess what. My agent called and they sold my book, they sold my book," she said, as she ran through the sprinkler getting thoroughly soaked. "Did Richard and Bobby get their car fixed today?" was the eloquent reply. Laughing, Mary Dutton of Borger recounts the high point of her life, explaining, "That was the real world to him. But after selling my novel, 'Thorpe,' he was much more tolerant of the time I spent writing."

THE BOOK'S SALE MADE many changes in her life. Before, in her haste to begin writing as soon as possible after the family was settled in each evening, she would hide the dirty dinner dishes because Bob liked a clean kitchen in the mornings when he cooked breakfast. When the dishes were discovered first in the bathtub and then in the washing machine, he was none too impressed.

"He tried to understand, but he didn't always. After the money started coming in, he didn't say much. He'd go in the kitchen and do the dishes himself."

That was 13 years ago. Today, Mrs. Dutton's novel is the basis for "Joshua's World," a special segment of "The Waltons," that will air Thursday at 7 p.m. on Channel 7. And her son Bobby, whose car needed repair, is Bob Dutton, partner in the Midland CPA firm of Elms, Farris and Co.

AFTER RECEIVING A CALL from Earl Hamner, who wrote "The Homecoming" which was the basis for the series "The Waltons," Mrs. Dutton is uncertain how she will react to the television version of her story.

When he called, her first reaction was "The real Earl Hamner? Let me go get a chair so I can sit down. It was such a surprise to be called."

"He said 'Mrs. Dutton we have slaughtered your lovely book and I thought somebody ought to warn you before you turned on your TV to watch.' I told him I was glad he called so I could take a basin to the den when I watched the program. And he said, 'I'm glad you're taking this like a professional.'"

HAMNER EXPLAINED THE extensive character changes to Mrs. Dutton.

The schoolteacher father is now a doctor and he is widowed rather than married. All the names have been changed and the story is told from an entirely different perspective, Mrs. Dutton said.

"I had told the story from a 6-year-old viewpoint, which gave way to a great deal of humor because the child didn't know what was going on and the reader did. Now that there is no conflict between the mother and the father, I don't know what the story is about," Mrs. Dutton said recently while visiting her son in Midland.

"They bought it with the original idea of replacing 'The Waltons.' Now I don't know why they didn't write their own story."

THE BOOK, WHICH HAS also been published by Literary Guild and Doubleday, is a part of the Queen's Library for the Blind in England. It was on the Nebraska Reading Program for many years, Mrs. Dutton said. In fact, never in the 13 years since its original publication has Mrs. Dutton not received money of some sort which relates directly back to "Thorpe."

And it doesn't seem that this will change anytime soon. As Hamner told her, "When this option is up, I would like to take it up and see what I can do with it."

Not bad for an artist who had to make time for her hobby by hiding her dirty dishes.

Fiddler's Contest to highlight Martin County Fair Saturday

STANTON — The annual Martin County Fair today through Saturday will be highlighted by the Fiddlers' Contest at 3 p.m. Saturday in the Martin County Community Center in the 300 block of East Broadway Street.

The first-place fiddlers in each of the contest's three age divisions will compete for the $200 grand prize, according to Robert Haggard, chairman of the fair's Fiddlers' Contest.

West Texas fiddlers are invited to compete in the contest.

Rules for the contest include no amplified instruments, only one accompanist per fiddler and the playing of a breakdown, waltz, and tune of choice by each fiddler.

The three age divisions in the contest are 30 and under, 31 to 60 and 61 and over.

The first-place winners in each division will receive $60 prize money. First runners-up will get $30 and second runners-up, $20.

THE BLUE LAGOON

A sensuous story of natural love.

Director Randall Kleiser, whose last film, "Grease," was an international hit, has now turned his cinematic talent towards a new and unusual subject.

Two children, a boy and a girl, are shipwrecked on a lost tropical island... they must survive, somehow alone. But nature is kind to them. The boy grows tall. The girl beautiful.

They swim naked over coral reefs. They run in a cathedral of trees. And when their love happens, it is as natural as the sea itself, and as powerful. Love as nature intended it to be.

Bank robber, 73, wants law, not mercy

HOUSTON (AP) — Justice is the law tempered with mercy, so the saying goes, but Santos Cezares Rios says he wants a little less mercy and a lot more law.

Rios, 73, was free Thursday, his plan to rob a bank so he could die in federal prison skewered by a Galveston County grand jury that refused to indict him.

Partially blind and able to walk only with the aid of a cane, Rios told police who found him sitting in the lobby of the U.S. National Bank in Galveston on Aug. 4 that he wanted to "go back to prison so I could die."

A teller said she was given a note demanding money, then told to call the police after she handed over $10,000 in a paper bag.

Now released from a Galveston jail, Rios is staying in Houston and says he hopes to sell his life story to a publisher.

He says he is an illegal alien from Mexico and has been deported several times, but always came back to the United States. He no longer fears deportation because "the immigration people don't want to have anything to do with me."

He has been arrested at least 49 times, according to records, for crimes ranging from theft to mail tampering in 1976, his last conviction.

Rios says he got out of prison in April with no money, no family and a few "good weather friends," then decided to hold up a bank because a federal prison is "like a hotel but better because it doesn't cost anything."

District Attorney James Hury argued before a county grand jury Wednesday that "I don't think he ever had the intent to take the money and consequently there was not a crime."

As he left the Galveston jail, people handed Rios cigarettes and money, and he spent the night in a Salvation Army shelter.

Now that his robbery plan has failed, he says he still doesn't know what the future holds.

Libyans had 'no ulterior motives': Billy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Carter says he told Senate investigators under oath that he does not believe Libyans had any ulterior motive in their dealings with him.

He said the investigators asked him during eight hours of questioning Thursday why he thought Libya established a relationship with him, suggesting it might have been because he is the president's brother.

"I told them I thought the Libyans' intentions were none," Carter said.

Investigators from a special Senate Judiciary subcommittee questioned the president's brother under oath in preparation for full-scale hearings next week, including Billy Carter's first public testimony on the affair.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the subcommittee, called a news conference today to announce next week's hearing schedule and witnesses.

Carter said the investigators asked for his personal financial records back to 1975. In reply to a reporter's question, he said the investigators also asked him about alleged anti-semitic remarks he made.

Reporters asked if the question bothered him and he replied, "Of course it bothers me when they go into my personal philosophy, personal finances, personal life, personal everything."

When he arrived for the day-long questioning, the president's brother said "I haven't done a damn thing wrong."

"I'm sure they don't share my view," he added. "If they shared my view, they wouldn't be investigating."

Carter said there were no surprises in the questioning. The subcommittee's new special counsel, Philip W. Tone, agreed that none of it was a surprise.

"To me it was a fairly typical deposition, very businesslike," Tone said. When asked if tempers rose during the questioning, Tone replied "I would say not."

He said Carter answered all questions responsibly.

The subcommittee is investigating Billy Carter's business and social dealings with Libya, his acceptance of $220,000 from that country, his yelated registration as a foreign agent for it and the Carter administration's handling of the affair.

Billy Carter has said the money was a loan, not an agent's fee. He said he was not a Libyan agent and registered as one only under pressure from the Justice Department.

In another development Thursday, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., a subcommittee member, said the investigation may have to be expanded to include other members of the Carter family.

"It now appears that dealings with foreign governments were a way of life for the Carter family," Dole said in a statement released in Kansas and Washington.

"The president's son, Jeff, was involved in business transactions with the Philippine government; Ruth Carter Stapleton, the president's sister, toured the Arab world courtesy of a pro-Arab U.S. businessman, and of course Billy had his well-publicized relationship with the Libyans," Dole said. "Instead of calling this Billy-gate, it might be more appropriately titled 'Family Affair.'"

The White House has said Mrs. Stapleton accepted expenses from Sam Bamieh, president of the Industrial Development Group of Palo Alto, Calif., for a trip to the Middle East.

But it said she did not discuss her political views on the Middle East with the president.

Jeff Carter traveled to Manila in March with a group sent to provide technical advice for World Bank-financed projects in the Philippines.

Carter is a computer engineer and helped conduct briefings on the use of computer graphics in the World Bank projects.

Abscam defendant claims 'Arab sheik' paid for meeting

NEW YORK (AP) — Abscam defendant Angelo Errichetti told a co-defendant he had introduced Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., to an "Arab sheik" who paid $100,000 for the meeting, a prosecution witness has testified.

Ellis Cook, a former law partner of defendants Howard Criden and Louis Johanson, said Thursday in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn that Errichetti's account was relayed to him by Criden.

Williams, who has denied any involvement in Abscam matters, could not immediately be reached for comment on Thursday's trial testimony.

Meanwhile, U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt was to rule today whether to allow into evidence details of other payoffs allegedly made by undercover agents to Errichetti and Kenneth MacDonald, former vice chairman of the New Jersey Casino Control Commission, for influence on casino matters in Atlantic City.

The FBI's Abscam investigation involved agents posing as Arabs who sought to buy influence with members of Congress. Six congressmen have been indicted in connection with the inquiry.

On trial on bribery-conspiracy charges are Errichetti, mayor of Camden, N.J., and a state senator; Johanson, a Philadelphia city councilman; Criden, a Philadelphia attorney, and Rep. Michael "Ozzie" Myers, D-Pa.

Hearst agrees to acquire technical publication group

NEW YORK — The Hearst Corporation has agreed in principle to acquire the United Technical Publications group of companies owned by the Cox Broadcasting Corporation for $26 million, it was announced today by Frank A. Bennack Jr., Hearst's president and chief executive officer, and Clifford M. Kirtland Jr., president of Cox.

The group comprises four companies: United Technical Publications Inc., National Auto Research Publications Inc., Industrial Machinery-News Corporation and Bart Publications Inc. The publications produced by these companies include catalogs, buyers guides, loose-leaf services, newsletters and direct mail services. Three are published weekly, five monthly and the others have miscellaneous frequency. The markets served are electronics, office equipment, metalworking, floor coverings, automotive, photography and retirement planning and preparation.

Commenting on the potential for Hearst, Bennack said:

"We are fortunate that it is possible to acquire not only a quality business information publishing company, but an excellent and seasoned management team headed by Robert J. Males, Jr."

Males will report to Gordon Jones, vice president of Hearst Books/Business Publishing Group which includes Avon Books, paperback publishers, Arbor House, hard cover book publishers, Hearst Books, Motor and American Druggist magazines.

Bennack pointed out that this pending acquisition is consistent with the plans announced last year when Jones joined Hearst to substantially expand through acquisition and new products its trade magazine publication businesses.

The proposed acquisition is subject to the approval of the Board of Directors of The Hearst Corporation and Cox Broadcasting Corporation.

Cox, a multi-faceted publicly held communications organization, is headquartered in Atlanta, Ga. The United Technical Publications group, with 262 employees in its four companies, operates from Garden City, N.Y.; New York, N.Y.; Gainesville, Ga.; and Southfield, Mich.

Hearst acquisitions during the last 19 months have included five newspapers, a hard cover book publishing firm and a magazine distribution company. Hearst has also announced in principle the acquisition of television station WDTN-Dayton, Ohio, and Reader Mail Inc., a mail order fashion pattern company.

Hearst now owns 10 broadcast stations, 13 newspapers, 21 magazines in the United States and United Kingdom, three book companies, a major feature syndicate and three circulation oriented companies. It also engages in various non-media activities including ranching, timber, real estate and papermaking.
