Bystander slain in shooting

ODESSA — An Odessa man, who apparently was not involved in a bar-room argument, was killed late Saturday night with a .30-30 caliber rifle shot in the chest in the Valencia Club just west of Odessa. Killed was Roman Galindo, in his 20s. He was pronounced dead by Peace Justice Manuel Valles. Ector County sheriff's deputies arrested two men, ages 41 and 35, in connection with the shooting death of Galindo. The justice of the peace said Galindo apparently was a victim of circumstances. "Probably, he wasn't involved in the fight. Supposedly, he wasn't in the argument."

Sheriff deputies said one of the men to be charged with murder was asked to leave the bar due to the argument, and "did leave." But he returned to the bar with a rifle, apparently taken from his car, and fired off one round.

"But Galindo had not been in the argument," a deputy said.

Reagan defends Viet involvement

CHICAGO (AP) — Defending America's role in the Vietnam War as "a noble cause," Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan today called for a massive rebuilding of U.S. military forces and denounced President Carter for "betrayal" of the nation's veterans.

foreign policy as "one of weakness, inconsistency, vacillation and bluff." It was one of Reagan's strongest pro-military speeches, and it marked the first time in the 1980 campaign that Reagan gave his unqualified endorsement to the United States' involvement in the Vietnam War. American's mistake in Vietnam was not entering the war, but failing to win it, Reagan said. "For too long, we have lived with the Vietnam syndrome," Reagan said. "As the years dragged on, we were told that peace would come if we would simply stop interfering and go home. "It is time we recognized that ours was, in truth, a noble cause. A small country, newly free from colonial rule, sought our help in establishing self-rule and the means of self-defense against a totalitarian neighbor bent on conquest," he said. "There is a lesson for all of us in Vietnam. If we are forced to fight, we must have the means and determination to prevail," Reagan said, adding that "We dishonor the memory of 50,000 young Americans who died in that cause if we give way to feelings of guilt as if we were doing something shameful." Reagan also recited a string of alleged Carter injustices to veterans, describing the president's treatment of veterans as "unconscionable," "regrettable and insensitive," "hypocrisy" and a "betrayal." "This present anti-veteran administration has stacked the deck against you through the vast power of the White House," Reagan told the VFW convention.

Midland man wounded in shooting stood up from his chair and the man allegedly fired a shot which struck Wyatt in the finger and then entered his thigh. Wyatt did not require hospitalization. No arrests had been made and no charges filed by early today. John Keltos of New York told police $160 in assorted bills was taken from his hotel room at the Midland Hilton, Wall Street and Loraine Street, between 2 and 3 p.m. Sunday. There were no signs of forced entry, according to Keltos's report.

Mary Flounder, 109 W. Dengar Ave., reported the theft of two children's coin banks containing $106 in cash. According to Ms. Flounder, someone entered her residence between 10:50 a.m. and 1 p.m. Sunday by kicking in the rear washroom door. The banks were then taken from the children's bedroom. Several drawers throughout the residence also were ransacked. Medical calls kept emergency medical personnel busy Sunday, but fire calls were sparse. Firemen were called to the Chaparral Apartments, 4201 N. Garfield St., shortly after 9 p.m. Sunday. They found a fire confined to one room of apartment 138, occupied by H.D. Williams. A bottle warmer and curtains were burning, according to fire reports, and the blaze was extinguished by firemen. Cause of the fire was thought to be the bottle warmer, fire reports indicated. Ambulances answered 12 other calls Sunday and early today.

Police were called to the hospital's emergency room at 9:47 p.m. Sunday in reference to a gunshot victim and contacted Bennie Wyatt, 1704 Butter-nut Lane. Wyatt had suffered a gunshot wound to the right index finger and the right thigh. According to reports, Wyatt told police he was at his home earlier that evening when a man came to Wyatt's house looking for his common-law wife, who also is Wyatt's daughter. When Wyatt told the man he didn't know where the woman was an argument apparently erupted. Wyatt ATLANTA (AP) — Ronald Reagan's strategists are plotting an assault on President Carter's political heartland — the southern states Carter swept in 1976. National and regional Republican directors were joining Reagan campaign chairmen from 14 states today for a two-day summit meeting to plan the assault on the South. "It's Carter's base," said Lee Atwater, southeastern regional political director of the Reagan campaign. "He swept the South in 1976, but all the data in the last few months indicates that he's in deep trouble." Sensing the possibility of victory, the Republicans are placing a "new emphasis" on the South this year, by Atwater's account. "If he (Carter) can't sweep the South, he doesn't have a political base," Atwater said in an interview last week. "And you can't win in American politics without a political base. The meeting will be geared with that in mind." Atwater said today's session, with Rep. Carroll A. Campbell Jr., R-S.C., serving as chairman, would examine polling information, inspect state campaign finances, schedule campaign appearances and deal with other logistics. Bill Timmons, national director of the Reagan campaign, and Dick Wirthland, Reagan's national campaign strategist, were scheduled to address the group. Southern Republican leaders are hopeful about their chances, even in Georgia, Carter's home state. "I can only say that if the present trend continues, Reagan would carry the state," Georgia GOP Chairman Matt Patton said.

Midland and Odessa are among Texas cities that will each receive a substantial one-time tax rebate this month and quicker tax reimbursements, thanks to continued improvements in the tax processing system at the state comptroller's office in Austin. This month's "extra" check will include a large amount of money from second quarter returns filed in the comptroller's office on the July 31 deadline and normally would have been included in the September payment. Under this revised accounting system, Texas cities will share $39.8 million for the normal end-of-July allocation formula and an additional $61.1 million for the one-time bonus payment. "That's well over $100 million that will be returned to cities as a result of improvements in our accounting system," Bullock said. Under the new system, city sales tax rebates will now be allowed to accrue through the first week of each month and be paid about the 15th of the month. The previous allocation period ran from the end of one month to the first of the following month, and cities were reimbursed sometime after the middle of the month. Odessa has paid $753,741.59 in city sales taxes during the last pay period ending Aug. 8. Payments for the entire year as of that date totalled some $4 million. City sales taxes collected from Midland during the last pay period totalled $690,521.20. Total taxes paid for the year to date total almost $4 million.

Dr. Roger Farr of the University of Indiana will be speaking at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the San Jacinto auditorium. Farr will be speaking on "Challenges in Today's Education" and "Issues in Teaching Reading." Farr who is past-president of the International Reading Association and current director of the Smith Education Research Center at Indiana University, says that trends in education have changed to include 75 percent of the student population among those who go on for higher education as opposed to the 25 percent sought to take college exams in 1950. He is a nationally recognized author whose most recent publication is a book, co-authored with Dr. Nancy Roser of The University of Texas at Austin, titled Teaching a Child to Read. He is also co-author of the widely used Laidlaw Reading Program and the Metropolitan Achievement Test in Reading. A workshop for administrators by Farr on "How to Administer a Good Reading Program" is scheduled for Tuesday. He will also speak to all teachers in the district in the Lee High School auditorium at 10 a.m. Aug. 20.

Incomes rising, but so are taxes

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer Americans are getting richer, but the federal government is taking a bigger and bigger bite of the wealth. The Tax Foundation Inc., a non-profit research group with headquarters in Washington, D.C., compared population, income and taxes in 1973 and 1978. Here's what it found: —Population — up 4 percent. —Adjusted gross income — up 58 percent. —Federal income tax collections — up 74 percent. The amount of adjusted gross income which went to federal income taxes rose by more than 1 1/2 percentage points during the five-year period — from 13.1 percent in 1973 to 14.5 percent in 1978. According to the foundation's calculations, you were in the top 10 percent of all taxpayers in 1973 if you had an adjusted gross income of about $20,100. In 1978, you needed an income of about $29,400 to qualify for the top 10 percent. One thing hasn't changed. The more you earn, the more you pay. The federal income tax is designed that way. The Tax Foundation said that in 1978, taxpayers who had adjusted gross incomes of $29,414 or more — the top 10 percent — paid 49.7 percent of the federal income taxes. Taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes between $19,860 and $29,414 — about 15 percent of the total — paid 24 percent of federal income taxes and the 25 percent who had adjusted gross incomes between $10,960 and $19,860 paid 19.7 percent of the taxes.

Reagan strategists plan assault on Carter's base

Midland due two August rebate checks

Midlanders can expect more partly cloudy conditions through Tuesday with a chance for nighttime thunderstorms. The National Weather Service is predicting a 30 percent chance for thunderstorms tonight. Temperatures tonight should be near the 70 degree mark with Tuesday's high expected to be in the mid-90's. The weatherman recorded .39 inch of rainfall Sunday night which brings the monthly total to .90 inch. The total for the year is registered at 5.90 inches. Rainfall reports from towns outlining the Midland area show varying amounts. McCamey reported receiving nearly three inches Sunday night while Andrews and Stanton noted an inch of rain Sunday. Big Lake reported 1 1/2 inches fell from last night's thunderstorm. Lamasa and Big Spring reported receiving nearly half an inch. However, Saturday night proved to be Big Spring's night for precipitation with more than three inches of rain. During Saturday night's thunder and lightning display, some parts of Midland County reported three inches of rain fell with a mixture of hail and high winds. Sunday's high of 91 degrees was far off the record high of 106 degrees set in 1969. This morning's low of 65 degrees was nine degrees shy of the record low set in 1967. Winds tonight should be southerly at 10-15 mph.

Bonnie weakens

MIAMI (AP) — With its highest sustained winds reaching 75 mph, Hurricane Bonnie moved northward at about 15 mph today and was expected to turn toward north-northeast, forecasters said. They predicted no major changes in Bonnie's strength for the next 24 hours as the hurricane churns through the open Atlantic. Forecasters said it appeared the storm would pass to the west of the Azores and no other land masses lay in its predicted course.

Begin puts finishing touches on his reply to Sadat's letter

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli press reports said today that Prime Minister Menachem Begin will tell Egyptian President Anwar Sadat that a summit on the stalled Palestinian talks cannot replace the Camp David peace accords, and that Begin will insist Egypt immediately resume the negotiations.

Begin met with Israel's negotiating team today to put finishing touches on a reply to Sadat's letter, the second in which he blamed Israel for the failure of the 15-month-old talks to achieve significant progress toward establishing a self-governing authority in the occupied West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Sadat suspended the negotiations earlier this month to protest Israel's adoption of legislation affirming undivided Jerusalem as its eternal capital.

Sadat called for a three-way summit with President Carter on Friday, saying that the meeting should be held after November's presidential election. American officials have not said whether they would welcome such a meeting, but a State Department spokesman said the negotiations should resume as soon as possible.

Begin was expected to include in his letter a point-by-point rebuttal of Sadat's charges that Israel has not abided by the Camp David accords in its settlement activities in the occupied territories and its actions in the eastern sector of Jerusalem.

The Maariv newspaper reported that Begin also would ask for an explanation of Sadat's remark that "the tale of the people of Israel started in Egypt, and it appears that it is God's will that it end there."

In an editorial, the Jerusalem Post castigated Egypt's Al Gomhouriya newspaper for publishing a cartoon portraying Israel's annexation of Jerusalem as similar to Hitler's annexations in Eastern Europe.

The cartoon showed Begin under a blazing sun labeled "world anger" and carrying a swastika-shaped umbrella symbolizing the Jerusalem decision. The caption read: "The Nazi decision."

"This type of warfare is uncondonable today even where there is no formal peace, let alone where peace has been formally concluded," the paper wrote. "For Egyptians to use the Nazi hatchet on Israel, with Mr. Sadat's license, is an unspeakable outrage."

Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir last week protested another Al Gomhouriya cartoon which showed Begin receiving a swastika-shaped medal from Hitler. A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Shamir had not yet received a reply to his protest.

In the United Arab Emirates, the president of Abu Dhabi was quoted today as calling for Arab states to create a united military command to wage war against Israel. "There is no other option for the Arabs except war to deter Israel and its supporters," the newspaper Alwihdah quoted Sheik Zayid ibn

Sultan Al Nuhayan as saying in an interview. Alwihdah quoted the ruler as saying each Arab country should "put its army and weapons in this command to counter Israeli aggression against the Arabs and to liberate occupied Arab lands, including Jerusalem."

Tampons may be cause of teen-ager's death

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) — A teen-aged girl who died of a heart attack may have been the victim of toxic shock syndrome, a disease associated with the use of tampons, a county coroner said.

Diane Silva, 15, of Livermore died Aug. 10 at Valley Memorial Hospital, a few hours after being admitted with complaints of a fever, cramps and diarrhea, according to Roland Prael, Alameda County coroner. Prael said Saturday he would send material on the case to the U.S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Rebels say Soviet air raids killed 1,200

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Afghan rebels claim Soviet air attacks on 22 villages killed more than 1,200 men, women and children celebrating the end of Moslem holy month of Ramadan. Other sources report a new post-Ramadan rebel offensive, and say a team of Soviet generals is in Kabul planning a counter-strike.

The Afghan rebel group Hizbe Islami, the Islamic Front, said in a statement issued in Islamabad that nearly 30 Soviet bombers and helicopters destroyed 22 villages in Wardak Province, south of the Afghan capital of Kabul.

It said the raids occurred last Tuesday during "the Moslem festival of Eid," a joyous celebration marking the end of the 30-day Ramadan period of dawn-to-dusk fasting.

Like most rebel reports, this one could not be independently confirmed. Such reports often contain exaggerated claims.

Nor was there any confirmation of a report reaching the Indian capital of New Delhi on Sunday that rebel Moslem guerrillas launched a string of post-Ramadan raids against Afghan government troops and their Soviet allies around Kabul.

The report, from a source in Kabul who has proved accurate in the past, said the rebels killed 13 Soviets and captured four others in a raid near the sprawling Bagram military air base north of Kabul.

The source said rebels also took a busload of 22 Afghan air force pilots and mechanics hostage last week about 40 miles north of Kabul. He said the guerrillas offered to trade them for guerrillas captured during Ramadan, but the government replied with stepped-up helicopter gunship attacks on rebel strongholds.

The source did not report what became of the hostages.

The Kremlin has maintained 85,000 or more Soviet troops in Afghanistan since last December to bolster the pro-Moscow Kabul government in its war against the anti-communist guerrillas. Diplomats say Soviet troops are in firm control of Afghan cities but face stiff resistance from the guerrillas in the rugged countryside.

Weekend reports from Afghanistan said a team of top Soviet generals was meeting in Kabul to plan a major new offensive against the rebels. The reports from reliable sources gave no details.

Battle troops land in Espiritu Santo

LUGANVILLE, Espiritu Santo (AP) — Two hundred Papua New Guinea troops with full battle gear landed on this rebellious South Pacific island Monday to take over peacekeeping duties from a force of 200 British commandos and French paratroopers.

As the force landed, a rebel radio broadcast threatened civil war and said the streets would run with blood if foreign troops did not leave the island, the largest of the 72 New Hebrides.

The British and French troops left two hours after the arrival of the Papua New Guineans.

French military planes evacuated 56 French residents, most of them women and children, to New Caledonia Sunday in anticipation of clashes between the rebels and the New Guinean soldiers. A French navy landing craft completed the loading of personal belongings of French residents of the island Monday.

France and Britain governed the New Hebrides jointly for 74 years. In May, two months before the archipelago was to get independence under a government dominated by English-speaking residents, a Melanesian tribal chief and former bulldozer driver named Jimmy Stevens led a bow-and-arrow rebellion on Espiritu Santo by French and part-French settlers and native bushmen. The rebellion was backed by French landowners and a group of right-wing Americans who hoped to establish a tax-free haven for unrestricted capitalism on the island.

The joint force of French and British troops was not sent to the island until just before the New Hebrides became the independent nation of Vanuatu on July 30. Since then, the central government has failed to establish its authority over the rebels, and the British-French force has made no attempt to arrest rebel leaders or close down their radio station despite demands for action from the Vanuatu government.

Group alleges attacks on juvenile refugees

FORT MCCOY, Wis. (AP) — Teen-age Cubans whose resettlement status is uncertain are living in fear at the Fort McCoy refugee center, some driven to suicide attempts to avoid attacks by other refugees, a Cuban-American organization has charged.

The Cuban American Legal Defense and Education Fund of Fort Wayne, Ind., said it filed suit in U.S. District Court at Madison seeking safe quarters for an estimated 375 juveniles at the western Wisconsin center.

The juveniles, who arrived in the U.S. in the "Freedom Flotilla" boat-lift, were not accompanied by parents and thus have been considered ineligible for resettlement under federal guidelines.

Graciela Beecher, board president of the fund, said she visited the camp for two days at the request of refugees who want to help the teen-agers. She said in a telephone interview from Fort Wayne that the youngsters "live in fear."

"They have been raped... They told me they were drinking shampoo to kill themselves," she said.

The group's suit, filed Friday on behalf of all the camp's juveniles, said rights of due process and of freedom from cruel and unusual punishment are being violated.

Officials at the camp said Saturday they were unaware of the court action.

The youths, classified by the government as "unattached minors" are among 5,600 remaining refugees at McCoy.

"Many of the juveniles are desperate," said Nic Gutierrez, an interpreter for the U.S. Catholic Conference. "They are just jumping fences and going through barbed wire to try to get out of there."

Gutierrez said conditions have been worsening, and the juveniles should be removed from the camp.

A series of fights erupted last week during which about two dozen refugees were injured. The La Crosse Tribune, in a copyright story in Sunday's editions, said tension that sparked the fighting is being blamed on the Aguilas or Eagles, an organization of about 700 refugees created by center officials to maintain order in the camp's barracks.

Gov. Lee S. Dreyfus, meanwhile, criticized center officials during the weekend for the recent disappearance of a 26-year-old refugee, Jose Alfredo Sanchez.

...IF YOU'RE TRYING TO MAKE your old car last a few more years, you probably know that one thing that will hasten its demise is rust.
But, rust can be prevented by simple, regular maintenance. And to give you some specific tips on what to do with your car, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has a free factsheet. For your copy of Automotive Rust, write to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 501H, Pueblo, Colo. 81069.
To help prevent corrosion, follow these simple measures:

- Keep your car clean—wash it frequently and wax it at least twice a year.
- Thoroughly hose down the underside of the car at least twice a year if you live in an area where sand and salt are used on the roads. Do it midway through winter and at winter's end.
- Make sure the drain holes in the bottom of the car are kept open. After washing your car, inspect it periodically and, if you notice extreme weakness or deterioration of any structural members, have a welding shop strengthen the weakened area.
- And if you're buying a new car, consider having it professionally rustproofed before you actually get the car...

Magazine names achievers

These days it's not hard to find women who excel in their careers. Yet, there is a small select group of outstanding achievers, reports Harper's Bazaar in the August issue, who seem to have cornered the market in accolades. One of the choices of the magazine's panel of editors has already won a prize that makes us all feel we're part of the winner's circle. Seven in all, here are Bazaar's 1980 top achievers:

CAROL BELLAMY: As president of the New York City Council, Carol Bellamy keeps her eye on the spending policies and budgets of the city, and she finds facing the "double challenge of saving money and advancing the social system" in the 1980s "immensely exciting." Dedicated and ambitious, she's had to make personal sacrifices in pursuing her public career, but she says "nobody forced me to — no one is twisting my arm. What I am is the choice I have made."

SARAH CALDWELL: She began her remarkable career as a math and music prodigy — now she's the premier woman conductor in America. Sarah Caldwell always believed she'd have a concert violin career until she discovered opera, which for her combines "a remarkable variety of things I love best: music, theatre and singing." Based in Boston, she has received much critical acclaim for her work and "believes new and great works will be composed, and is eager to make operatic films...done her way."

SHIRLEY HUFSTEDLER: Shirley Hufstедler's impeccable legal credentials and 12 years' experience on the bench for the Ninth Circuit of the U.S. Court of Appeals, make her a prime speculative candidate to be the first woman justice on the Supreme Court. Meantime she has her hands full as Secretary of the newly formed Department of Education where she'll put her efficiency, effectiveness and compassion to good use. She has succeeded where few women so far have because, as she notes, "I was never afraid of ideas and independent action."

JANE BRYANT QUINN: Her columns appear in Newsweek, Woman's Day, and are syndicated by the Washington Post, and Jane Bryant Quinn's output is prodigious. She started to write about money because she likes to do it and had a knack for it, but she claims she's not an economist — it's all logic and common sense. She is primarily interested in "teaching people that managing incomes and understanding monetary forces in our society are not beyond their grasp."

SUE SIMMONS: Anchoring the news broadcasts on Channel 4, NBC's flagship station in New York City is Sue Simmons, who spent ten years as a secretary and then decided to get into broadcasting which led to television jobs in several cities. Now back in her native New York, she attributes her on-the-air professionalism and TV journalistic success to "a combination of common sense and the right training" — training received in a neighborhood where "you had to look over your shoulder," and where "when people talk, you have to listen because your survival may depend on it."

TWYLA THARP: Twyla Tharp's choreography, whether set to the music of Cole Porter, Jelly Roll Morton, the Beach Boys, or Scott Joplin, has been original, exuberant, and totally American. Heading up (and dancing with) her own 16-member company, she is intensely disciplined and dedicated enough to survive several years without much encouragement or financial help. She has since been amply rewarded with grants and prizes, but she is proudest of her "ability to simply keep going — to produce works I am pleased with at the time and then begin on others which I hope will be a little richer and more mature than what went before."

GENUINE RISK: The first of her sex to win the Kentucky Derby since 1915, the great filly, Genuine Risk, has a name that reminds us of what often is required of the best — a willingness to take a chance when the odds are not in your favor. Take her example: Triumph at 13-to-1!

DEAR ABBY Deadwood lively

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You asked women to send you an unsigned postcard indicating whether they agreed or disagreed with TIED IN LINCOLN, who said she was tired of sex, could live without it, and if most women her age (50) were honest, they'd admit they were also tired.
Well, I vote with TIED, but how's this for a coincidence? On the same page of your column in The Call (Lead, S.D.), a news item appeared announcing that the court had ordered the closing of four brothels that had been in business in Deadwood, S.D., since 1876! This caused an uproar in the little Black Hills tourist town of 2,500. Some citizens wrote letters to the editor, saying, "There's nothing wrong with prostitution—it keeps the nuts off the streets, and keeps our women and children safe."
Well, I think legalized prostitution would sure do a lot for some of us tired wives (me included).
I've often thought how nice it would be for both of us if, on his way home from work, my husband could stop at a place that was given a four-star rating by the health department.
After all, I believe his need is physical, not emotional.
But I know my husband wouldn't take advantage of it because he'd consider it immoral—darn it.
Incidentally, how are you coming with your survey? I can hardly wait to read the results.—DEAD TIED

DEAR DEAD: I'm glad you asked. The response has been overwhelming! My mail has been coming in trucks instead of bags, and my staff is hardly speaking to me.
Unfortunately (or fortunately), Marion Tetley, my beautiful, blue-eyed secretary, who's about to get her 20-year stripes, sprained her ankle and is on crutches. So I told her to stay home and I'd send her the survey mail to sort. So far she's counted over 100,000 and the TIREDS are winning.

DEAR ABBY: Well, it's pain-in-the-neck time for all of us city folks who are lucky enough to have a nice little place at the beach for the summer. We love company—but only those we invite. Here's a never-fail formula for discouraging free-loaders who drop in for the weekend uninvited:
Toward the end of the week, let your groceries run low, and when the free-loaders arrive, greet them warmly but apologetically with, "We're sorry, we weren't prepared for guests, but if you don't mind driving to town to pick up a few things, you're welcome to stay!" Then hand them a shopping list.
Don't stop at groceries. Include beer, liquor, cigarettes and soft drinks, too. If the free-loaders actually get the list filled, when they return with the stuff, don't offer to reimburse them. After all, it's your cottage, fuel, beach, boat, towels, etc., and you didn't invite them.
And don't wait on anybody. If they act like guests, tell them that everyone pitches in with the cooking and cleaning.
When the free-loaders leave, I'll bet they don't come back again—unless they're invited!—SUCKERS NO MORE

DEAR SUCKERS: With that brand of hospitality, I'm betting against a return engagement. In fact, most free-loaders would probably head for the highway out of town as soon as they saw the shopping list.
"Fight chutzpah with chutzpah," I say.
DEAR ABBY: What does a girl need besides beauty, brains, personality and charm to be popular?—ME
DEAR ME: Humility.
(Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope, to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

There's no need to call the plumber

Copley News Service
Have you noticed that any time your neighbors seem to have the slightest problem with a water faucet or a clogged sink they immediately panic and call the plumber? Neither step is necessary in most cases.

For most minor tragedies a plumber is not needed. With a few tips that we're about to give you, you'll be able to fix it yourself and save enough money to buy a good gourmet dinner for two.
First, let's look at a clogged sink drain. The source of your troubles is usually close to the fixture and, thus, you or any able-bodied member of your family should be able to solve the problem without paying the plumber.

Forget those chemical cleaners. They won't solve the problems if something solid is clogging your drain, plus, they are quite caustic and injurious to skin. Instead get a rubber suction cup plunger, also known as a "plumber's friend." One of your neighbors probably has one, if you don't have one laying around the place.

Now, leave just enough water in the sink to cover the bottom of the suction cup. This provides an airtight seal over the drain. Hold the handle of the plunger absolutely vertical. Push it down quickly and pull it up quickly. This alternate compression and suction will dislodge anything that's clogging the drain. This is a very effective method, just be patient. It may take 30 or more "plungings" before victory is achieved.

If for some reason the plunging method fails, you probably have something stuck in the U joint of the pipe under the sink. At the bottom of most U sections there is a clean-out plug. Simply take it off by turning it with a wrench.

Kennedy leaves door open for '84

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, his long and unsuccessful 1980 presidential campaign behind him, isn't saying he'll run again in 1984. But he isn't exactly saying he won't, either.

"I clearly have made no judgment about political activity in the near future," Kennedy told a group of reporters when asked about 1984. "I haven't had to and I haven't."

But asked whether he still wants to be president, Kennedy replied, "I think that is the position that has the greatest opportunity for influence probably in the world."

Some of Kennedy's closest aides say they expect the senator will seek the presidency the next time around.

His wife Joan said she hasn't discussed the possibility with her husband.

But in a lengthy discussion with reporters on the day after the end of the Democratic National Convention, Kennedy observed that in the course of the 1980 campaign, public attention shifted gradually from questions about his own character to the issues he was raising. "I would expect if you ever run again, that is hopefully where you'd start in," he said.

In a relaxed session at his suburban Virginia home, Kennedy also confirmed his intention to campaign this fall for President Carter. But he said he would continue to press in Congress for an anti-recession jobs program that the president opposes.

On other points, Kennedy:

— Said Carter's election is important to stop Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan from capturing the White House. But he sounded less than enthusiastic about the president when asked whether Carter or independent candidate John Anderon would make a better chief executive. "I would say that the Democratic ticket offers the best hope for the future," he said, adding that a Democratic Congress would work best with a Democratic president.

— Said he intends to resume his Senate duties full time immediately and intends to seek re-election when his current term expires in 1982.

— Said Carter will be "hard pressed" to win in the fall and predicted the president would not be successful if he simply runs an anti-Reagan campaign. The president's best hope to get the support of Kennedy backers "is to give them a sense of hope with regards to the future," he said.

— Conceded that he realized several months ago, perhaps as far back as the Iowa caucuses on January 21 that his chances for winning the 1980 nomination from Carter were slim. But he said he stayed in the race because it wasn't "beyond possibility" that the situation could change, perhaps if he had an opportunity to debate the president, and because he wanted to continue raising alternatives to Carter's policies.

"I'd like to believe that the country is more aware of those issues that my campaign is about and the direction I was committed to by the end of the campaign," he said.

Hollywood stars in little theaters

NEW YORK (AP) — The big names of Hollywood have taken to little theaters across the nation this summer for performances in repertory companies and traveling shows.

The Theater Festival in Williamstown, Mass., boasts a slate of plays featuring FRANK LANGELLA as Cyrano de Bergerac, RICHARD DREYFUSS in "Whose Life Is It Anyway?" and CHRISTOPHER REEVE in "The Front Page."

Meanwhile, JOE NAMATH, the pro quarterback turned actor, has been cast as Li'l Abner in a traveling show of the same name. According to the current issue of People magazine, Namath, who does not have a steady girlfriend, wishes he had a Daisy Mae — Li'l Abner's sweetheart — in his real life.

"It would be great to find a lady who feels the way Daisy Mae does about Abner, but knowing me, it'll be difficult," Namath said.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Even three years after his death, ELVIS PRESLEY is still a big draw.

More than 20,000 people marking the third anniversary of the rock'n'roll singer's death have filed past his grave, according to a spokesman at Graceland Mansion, Presley's home.

The winding driveway leading to the colonial-style mansion was flanked with wreaths sent by fans from all over the world. Some of the flowers were in arrangements shaped like hearts, guitars or crosses.

The grave, which is on the Graceland estate, was visited by 9,000 people Friday, 7,000 Saturday and 5,000 Sunday, the mansion spokesman said. Presley died Aug. 16, 1977.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Former U.S. House Speaker CARL ALBERT had minor surgery on his sinuses and has been recovering at Mercy Health Center, according to his son.

In a phone interview Sunday, David Albert said his father checked into the hospital Wednesday for minor surgery on infected sinuses. The younger Albert is a fourth-year medical student at Duke University.

"He's fine. This has just been a chronic, nagging problem," David Albert said.

Albert, who lives in McAlester, served in Congress from 1947 to 1977. He was to be released from the hospital today.

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress MARIETTE HARTLEY says she was offered a chance to take JANE PAULEY'S job as co-host of NBC's "Today" show, but turned it down because the network's news department wouldn't take her seriously.

Miss Hartley filled in for the vacationing Miss Pauley in June and there were reports that she would become the permanent co-host with Tom Brokaw to prop up the show's falling ratings. However, Miss Pauley returned to work after her vacation.

In an interview published in Parade magazine Sunday, Miss Hartley said she almost quit before her three-week vacation relief stint was up.

"The toughest part was dealing with the news department and being taken seriously. I felt like I was in the enemy camp," she said.

Steve Friedman, the show's executive producer, said, "Jane has many friends and fans, and there was some resentment."

Flood damage in Pennsylvania high

BRADY'S BEND, Pa. (AP) — A flash flood that ripped through three counties in western Pennsylvania, killing seven people, caused about $42 million in damage, state officials say.

"These figures are still being refined, but they're in the ballpark," a spokesman for the state Emergency Management Agency said Sunday in Harrisburg.

Gov. Dick Thornburgh was to ask the federal government today to declare the three counties a disaster area, according to Joseph Ketchum of the state Department of Community Affairs. The declaration would make residents eligible for low-interest loans to rebuild homes and businesses.

Damage to private property was estimated at $25 million, while damage to public property was set at $17 million, according to Craig Williamson, deputy director of the emergency management agency.

Heavy rainfall, including four inches in 30 minutes recorded in Brady's Bend, swelled creeks and streams late Thursday and early Friday.

The torrents poured into more than half a dozen communities in Armstrong, Butler and Clarion counties, washing away houses, trailers, cars and bridges.

The hardest hit town was Brady's Bend, the hom of all seven drowning victims.

A woman and a 2-year-old boy were still missing.

Scores of area residents and volunteers shoveled away mud, picked through debris and took stock of their belongings Sunday.

Marc Hillwig, civil defense director for Armstrong County, said about 360 people had been made homeless. All of them were staying with friends, relatives or volunteers, he said.

"The cleanup is going to take a long, long time," said Loretta Posey, a volunteer worker at a command post in Brady's Bend.

"Trees and shrubs are flattened. People have been hauling mud out from everywhere. It's unbelievable," she said.

Newell to discuss cancer care in '80s

Cancer prevention in the 1980s will be the area discussed by Dr. Guy R. Newell, M.D., director of the cancer prevention division of M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston, in a speech to the medical staff of Midland Memorial Hospital at noon Wednesday.

According to the MMH public relations department, Dr. Newell is a professor of epidemiology for The University of Texas System Cancer Center, and is well known for his research in the etiology and prevention of cancer.

He is a graduate of Tulane University and did postgraduate work at Johns Hopkins University in Maryland, Peter Ben Brigham Hospital and the Harvard School of Public Health. He has been affiliated with the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., where he served as deputy director for six years.

Newell is chairman of the Subcommittee of Cancer Prevention for the Association of American Cancer Institutes, and is on the board of directors of the Texas division of the American Cancer Society.

He has published articles on the possible relationship between diet and cancer in Nutrition and Cancer, The Cancer Bulletin and The New England Medical Journal.

The American Cancer Society is sponsoring his visit to Midland as part of its professional education program, in conjunction with the Midland Memorial Hospital cancer and continuing education programs.

ERA bribe trial begins

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — As lobbyists scurried around the statehouse May 14 buttholing lawmakers before a vote on the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, an ERA supporter approached a representative and offered him $1,000 for his vote, "the legislator alleged.

That allegation is the basis for the trial of Wanda Brandstetter, 55, a Chicago businesswoman who lobbied for passage of the ERA on behalf of the National Organization for Women. She is charged with bribing Republican Rep. Nord L. Swanstrom and soliciting official misconduct.

The trial was to begin today in circuit court here. Defense lawyers have contended the charges amount to "selective prosecution," and have subpoenaed leaders of a group called Stop ERA, including founder Phyllis Schlafly.

The defense says Stop ERA pours thousands of dollars into Illinois legislative races as campaign contributions. They say that was not much different from what Mrs. Brandstetter allegedly tried to do.

State Elections Board records show that Swanstrom has received $1,800 in contributions from Stop ERA. He voted against the ERA.

The May 14 vote in Illinois on the proposed constitutional amendment was postponed when supporters found they were two votes short of the 107 needed to pass the measure. When the vote was taken June 18, the ERA fell five votes short.

NOW has mounted a major ratification campaign in Illinois, where the ERA repeatedly has failed to pass the Legislature since 1972.

Illinois is the only major northern industrial state that has not ratified the ERA. Thirty-eight states must ratify it by June 1982 for it to become a part of the U.S. Constitution.

The proposed amendment, which would outlaw sex discrimination, has been ratified by 35 states, although five have rescinded their approval. The legality of such actions is in question.

Ash may be harmless

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — People who breathed ash from the eruption of Mount St. Helens probably won't suffer any short-term lung damage, but it may be two years before long-term effects are known, according to a researcher.

Scientists collected ash after the volcano's first major eruption on May 18 and conducted biological and chemical tests on the samples, said Jagdish C. Lul of the Pacific Northwest Laboratory in Richland, Wash.

Officers trapped in mansion

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A pair of city police officers, responding to a silent burglar alarm at the Cullen Davis mansion, got trapped inside for more than an hour when they accidentally locked the doors behind them.

Patrol officers Phil Perry and J.F. Campbell went to the spacious, $7 million home about 1:30 Saturday afternoon and found one door open. An employee who lives on the grounds said she had heard cars leaving a short time earlier.

Perry and Campbell entered the home and closed the door. A sophisticated electronic security system took over and immediately locked the door.

The officers used their walkie-talkie to tell the police dispatcher what had happened.

"Are you saying you're locked in?" the dispatcher asked.

"10-4," the officers replied.

For an hour, police tried to contact security engineers, the company that installed the security system and the man who designed it, trying to find some way to get the officers out of their plush prison.

Finally, Davis and his wife returned home and freed the embarrassed police.

In 1976, the mansion was the scene of a shooting incident which left two people dead and two wounded. Davis' former wife, Priscilla, was living there at the time and she accused Davis of the shootings.

He was acquitted of that charge, and of a murder-solicitation charge filed two years later that was not directly related to the mansion killings.

Five guards injured in prison disturbance

STILLWATER, Minn. (AP) — Officials of Minnesota State Prison were searching a cellblock for weapons today after a brief uprising by inmates that left five guards injured.

About 20 inmates, armed with screwdrivers and pieces of pipe, took over a cell hall for eight minutes Sunday before guards broke up the disturbance by firing shots into a ceiling, said Warden Robert Erickson.

He said the cellblock was locked up and was being searched for weapons.

One guard was in stable condition at St. Paul Ramsey Medical Center early today. Hospital officials said he received stitches for unspecified injuries.

"He was beaten up by the inmates," Erickson said.

Four other guards were treated and released. The disturbance began about 7 p.m. CDT during a recreation period, Erickson said. He said most of the inmates involved were Indians.

He said the uprising may have been motivated by an incident earlier Sunday in which an Indian inmate threw his tray of food at a guard. The inmate was transferred, Erickson said, and during the move both the inmate and the guard were injured. Further details were not available immediately.

Erickson said charges would be filed against inmates identified as participating in the disturbance.

Dallas man, Saudi bride home safe

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — After four days of hiding in Spain and 20 hours of international flight, a young Saudi Arabian woman and her husband are safe with his family here.

"Thank God we made it," said Huda Kreiner, 21, when she and husband Tim arrived at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport here late Sunday.

Mrs. Kreiner told reporters she had gone into seclusion Wednesday near Barcelona after Saudi Arabian officials had made her fearful for her life because of her unapproved marriage to a foreigner.

She and Kreiner met in Texas and married June 29 in both a civil and a Moslem religious ceremony. They left soon afterward for Kreiner's job in Spain. Asked if she had tried to secure permission from her father in Saudi Arabia for the marriage, she said, "I tried — no reply."

Last week, Mrs. Kreiner said, she went to the Saudi Arabian embassy in Madrid to have her 90-day visa upgraded to permanent resident status. Embassy officials asked for her passport and marriage certificate, she said.

When she produced the civil marriage certificate, she said, the Saudis rejected it and demanded the Moslem document, asking if it had been stamped by the Saudi Arabian embassy in Washington, D.C.

"When I said no, they told me I had violated the law of the Ministry of Interior (of Saudi Arabia) because I married a foreigner without permission from them," Mrs. Kreiner said.

The Saudi Embassy in Washington could not be reached for comment Sunday night.

Kreiner said friends urged the couple to leave Madrid, telling them that Saudi Arabian law does not permit Saudi women to marry foreigners without government approval and, in the eyes of the Saudi government, Mrs. Kreiner was an adulteress.

The penalty for adultery in Saudi Arabia, they were told, is death.

Kreiner's mother, Bernice, said she contacted officials in Washington and related her story, but she did not know whether the U.S. government intervened in the case. Last week, U.S. officials said they were aware of the story but declined comment.

The U.S. has no extradition treaty with Saudi Arabia.

For four anxious days, the couple's friends and family in Texas waited to hear that Mrs. Kreiner was safe.

Kreiner said he expected difficulty in leaving the country, but encountered none. The Kreiners would not reveal their plans, except to say they would stay with friends or family members in the Dallas area.

Miners' families, mine settle suit

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — An attorney for the families of 15 miners killed in a 1976 underground explosion says he's "well pleased" with a $5 million out-of-court settlement with Blue Diamond Coal Co.

The settlement came just days before Tuesday's federal court trial of a $60 million damage suit accusing Blue Diamond of failing to enforce safety regulations.

"It was a fair offer and the money certainly can be used by the widows and their children," said Eugene Goss. Goss was one of the attorneys handling the case for relatives of the 15 men, who died when a methane gas blast ripped through a Scotia Coal Co. mine in Letcher County on March 9, 1976.

Eleven members of a recovery team were killed two days later in a second blast inside the mine.

Claims arising from the second blast haven't been settled and Goss said Sunday "we're going to get the machinery cranked up to get that case rolling."

Blue Diamond, the Knoxville, Tenn., parent firm of Scotia, agreed to pay $1.75 million to the miners' relatives within four days after the judge's order is entered and an additional $860,347 within 60 days.

The settlement order, signed Saturday by U.S. District Judge William O. Bertlesman, also calls for the plaintiffs to receive a monthly tax-free payment from the company.

Although the order didn't contain a total dollar amount, former Kentucky Gov. Bert Combs, who represented Blue Diamond, estimated its value at "a little more than $5 million."

Washington lawyer Gerald Stern, who represented the plaintiffs, estimated the award at close to $6 million.

Stern said the settlement was the first paid Kentucky miners in at least 60 years. He said that under Kentucky law, an employer could not be sued in a miner's death, leaving the family only workmen's compensation. A federal court ruled after the suit was filed that Blue Diamond had immunity, but that decision was overruled by a federal appeals court.

Stern said that the size of the settlement indicated that the company was at fault in the explosions: "They don't pay $6 million if they aren't liable."

Combs denied that the settlement was acknowledgment of guilt and Bertlesman's order said the award was not "an express or implied admission of liability in this or any other proceeding."

Bertlesman said the issue of liability was "strongly disputed" and said public policy encourages such out-of-court settlements.

Combs cited the loss of money through a continued court fight and, he said, "the company has always felt an obligation to these children" of the victims.

"Some of us felt emotionally that we couldn't stand to go to trial and chance losing and knowing they (Blue Diamond) could get away with what happened," said Reda Turner Lawson of Benton, whose husband died in the March 9 blast. "We wanted enough money so they would be safety conscious in the future."

Abscam tapes may be shown on network news

NEW YORK (AP) — Jurors in the Abscam trial already have seen a videotape showing U.S. Rep. Michael O. Myers receiving $50,000 from an FBI undercover agent, and this week the rest of the country may get a chance to watch it as well.

The trial of Myers and three co-defendants was to enter its second week today with the prosecution planning to show more tapes and the judge to decide if he will allow the FBI tapes to be shown on network television news.

On Friday, U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt granted a request from the three major commercial networks to be allowed to broadcast the tapes entered into evidence, one of which shows Myers, a Pennsylvania Democrat, receiving $50,000 in a motel room.

But Pratt said the ruling wouldn't go into effect until 5 p.m. today and said he might allow the defense, which objected to the decision, a further delay.

Lawyers say such a broadcast would be unprecedented. The bank robbery tapes of kidnapped heiress Patricia Hearst had been released before her trial, and though a judge in the Watergate case granted approval for release of some of Richard Nixon's White House tapes, the Supreme Court blocked the proposed method of distribution. The Watergate tapes were released earlier this year.

Abscam is the code word for an FBI operation in which undercover agents posed as representatives of a fictitious Arab company and sought to secure favors from officials. Six congressmen, including Myers, have been indicted.

Facing bribery-conspiracy charges with Myers in the current trial are Angelo Errichetti, mayor of Camden, N.J.; Philadelphia City Councilman Louis Johanson; and lawyer Howard Criden. The indictment alleged the four took a bribe to help arrange for the immigration of a rich Arab sheik.

Flooding forces evacuations

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Heavy rains sent scores of small streams in northern West Virginia over their banks early today, flooding communities and forcing hundreds of families from their homes, officials said.

The National Weather Service said this morning that the rain was letting up in most areas but said additional thunderstorms could develop in the afternoon.

There were no immediate reports of injuries, but police said a number of families were trapped in their houses in Marshall, Ohio and Hancock counties. They said rescue teams in boats were working to evacuate buildings surrounded by the rapidly rising waters.

No damage estimates were immediately available.

The National Weather Service said at least 2 inches of rain fell in northern counties overnight. The service issued flash flood watches for all of northern West Virginia except the Eastern Panhandle.

Andy Kondik of Hancock County emergency services said "several hundred" families had been forced from their houses. Many of those houses were filled with 4 to 5 feet of water, said rescue worker Carl Sutton.

Power outages were reported in some areas. In Ohio County, Wheeling Creek rose to 11.2 feet — more than 4 feet above flood stage — at the Junior Avenue marker in Wheeling.

Nancy joins men in Hall of Fame

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

The roster of the All-American Collegiate Golf Foundation's Hall of Fame reads like a Who's Who of the sport. Among the players honored here were Arnold Palmer, Hale Irwin, Johnny Miller, Billy Casper, Deane Beaman, Tom Watson, Andy North, Ken Venturi, Lanny Watson and John Mahaffey.

All that was missing was a woman, but now you can add a lady to the list. Nancy Lopez-Melton was inducted last week, the first female named to the college golf shrine which annually honors the nation's top collegiate players, current and past.

Melton played the game at Tulsa University and golf's gain was engineering's loss. "I was spending so much time playing golf that I realized I couldn't do that and keep up with my studies, too," she said. "So, I decided to go to the tour."

Many fans view the pro golf tour — both men's and women's — as a glamorous way of life but Melton knew better. Nancy had finished tied for second as an amateur in the 1975 U.S. Open and second again in the 1977 Open, her first pro tournament. That gave her a taste of tour life and she was not so sure it was for her.

"I grew up seeing it in the Open," she said. "It's a lot of travel and hard work. I didn't know if I wanted that type of responsibility."

When she decided to try the tour, Melton burst on the scene like no rookie ever has in her sport, or perhaps in any other sport for that matter. She won nine major tournaments in 1978, her first year, and five of them came in a row, a dazzling debut that earned her rookie of the year and player of the year honors — the first time a golfer has swept those two awards.

She was Nicklaus, Palmer, Trevino and Watson all rolled into one lovely package. Women's golf had never seen anything like her. And, at age 21, it was the best of times and it was the worst of times for Melton.

"It was difficult," she said. "I had to grow up quickly to cope with it. All I did for those five weeks was play, practice and do interviews. I never had time to say, 'Hey, look what I've done!'"

Two weeks after the streak ended, Melton decided she owed herself a vacation. "I hadn't stopped before because, well, you want to see if you can keep on winning," she said. "But I was so tired, my game had gone downhill, I couldn't concentrate mentally and physically. I just took off."

The break refreshed her and Nancy came back for four more tour victories before the season ended and eight more in 1979. There have been two victories this season, giving her 19 for her career.

"As an amateur, you don't think about playing the pro tour," she said. "You want to win the amateur, to be ranked No. 1. That's the goal."

Melton's impact on the women's tour: won widespread attention for the sport.

McEnroe enters tourney ATLANTA (AP) — The $75,000 Atlanta tennis tournament got a boost Sunday when Wimbledon runner-up John McEnroe decided to enter to tune up for next week's U.S. Open.

The tournament gets under way today with first-round play. McEnroe's first-round match is scheduled for Wednesday.

McEnroe, who pulled out of last week's Canadian Open with a sprained right ankle, had planned to rest the week of the Atlanta event in preparation for the U.S. Open. But McEnroe's father, John McEnroe Sr., called tournament director Owen Williams on Sunday afternoon to say his son would accept a wild card bid into the 32-man event.

"If things had gone normally at Toronto, he would not have played Atlanta," McEnroe Sr. said. "But we had spoken with Owen and had kept the option open. We decided if he was well enough, he would want to use the tournament as a tuneup for the Open."

McEnroe, who sprained his ankle in a first-round match and retired in the second round at Toronto after leading Erik van Dillen 4-3 in the first set, was checked by a doctor Friday. X-rayed and given permission to play. The 21-year-old from Douglaston, N.Y., will give a clinic in Toronto today and possibly arrive in Atlanta Tuesday.

Liang triumphs

HONOLULU (AP) — China's Weifen Liang placed first Sunday in the Women's 100-meter breaststroke on the final day of the Hawaii International Swimming Invitational.

Liang, 18, thus became the first swimmer from China to win an event in international swimming competition. It was the first time China had pitted its swimmers against an international field.

The four-day meet came to a close Sunday with the U.S. winning 28 of the 34 events. Canadian swimmers won three races, while Japan, New Zealand and China each took first place honors in one event.

Joe Bottom was the only swimmer to set a new world record at the Invitational, which featured swimmers from 14 countries that did not participate in the Moscow Olympics.

Bottom swam the 50-meter freestyle in a time of 22.71 seconds to crack the old mark set by Bruce Stahl earlier this year.

Liang's time of 1:12.84 set a new Chinese record for the 100-meter breaststroke.

"I think I went fast because there were so many other speedy swimmers in my race," she said through an interpreter.

On Aug. 9, Liang beat America's breaststroke record-holder, Tracy Caulkins, when U.S. swimmers were in Pekin, China. Caulkins did not participate at the Hawaii Invitational.

Canada's 16-year-old Alex Baumann waged a solo battle to keep the U.S. men's team from totally dominating the first place finishes in the 200- and 400-meter individual medleys.

Baumann was the individual high point winner for the men's events, while the women's high point honor went to Linda Thompson of the U.S.

Book's cover termed surest way to appeal to readers

NEW YORK (AP) — You can sell a book by its cover.

So says Lester del Rey, who, with his wife Judy-Lynn, brings out six science-fiction and fantasy paperback books each month. "A book's cover," says the 65-year-old del Rey, "does a lot more selling than the author's name. With the exception of a handful of well-known writers whose names sell, the cover alone has to be depended on to catch a reader's attention and to get him to buy the book."

Recession still on, businessmen say

NEW YORK (AP) — A business-sponsored research group warns that while some key national economic indicators have taken an upward turn, it's still too soon to say America is out of a recession.

According to the Conference Board, the nation's leading economic indexes rose to 134 in June, up from May's 132. But the index, which has fallen 8 percent since it reached a peak in September 1979, remains more depressed than the leading indexes in West Germany, France, Italy and Japan, the board said on Sunday. The agency said with the data available through June, it has not yet seen "the first signal of recovery" in the American economy.

With hand 1, you double—that's the way to tell partner that you have at least the strength for an opening bid. Hand 2 is worth a balancing bid of one spade—it looks as if partner could not act because of length or strength in diamonds. Hand 3 is a double—for the same reason as stated in 1. So is hand 4—a balancing bid of 1 NT shows a maximum of 15 points. With hand 5, you must pass—partner must be short in diamonds yet he could not act over one diamond. It looks as though West has a very strong hand.

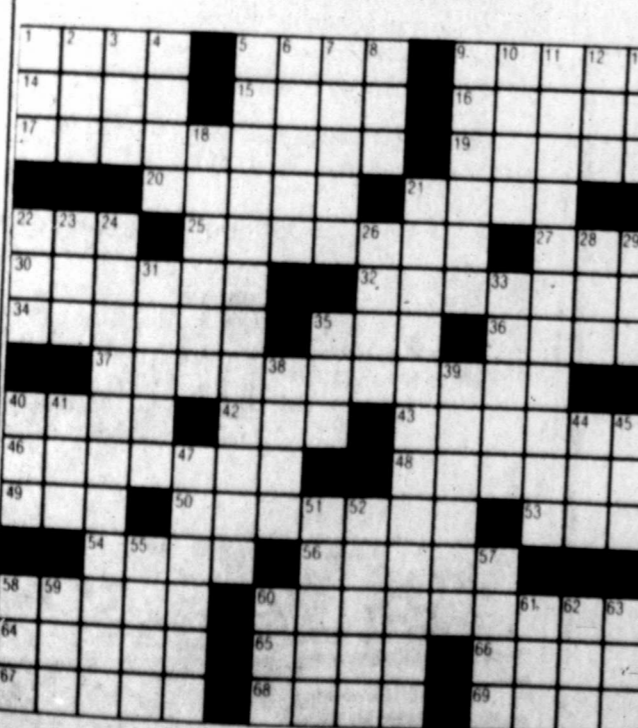

The purpose of reopening the bidding is to keep the auction alive. Never let the opponents bid the hand too cheaply! But a word of caution: With length or strength in the opponents' suit, retire from the arena gracefully—your best prospects are on defense.

What is your opening bid?
A.—Your hand is not quite strong enough for a demand bid, for if partner has little or nothing, you certainly don't want to be above the two-level. However, you do want to make a strong bid, and we suggest two no trump. The fact that you have a five-card spade suit should not deter you from making the most descriptive bid.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

A.—This is another case where the "pusillanimous" pass is your strongest action! You have a wealth of prime values exactly where partner needs them and nothing in clubs. By passing, this message is conveyed to partner, so if he fancies his prospects on offense, he is free to bid on. A double, though, would alert partner to some wasted values, and he would surely pass when your side might be able to easily close out the rubber.

Common Market book real gold mine of trivia

By HENRY GOTTLIEB

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — There's a new book out this summer, full of sex, fabulous wealth, violence, social upheaval and untimely death. But it's not likely to be a best seller and it won't be a movie.

It is entitled "Social Indicators for the European Community," a 234-page gold mine for trivia prospectors and armchair students of the Western European scene. All by the numbers.

Those willing to plough through its tables, asterisks, small type and symbols are apt to make some startling discoveries or reinforce their stereotypical beliefs about the nine Common Market countries.

For example, according to the book, published by the Common Market's statistical service, Irish workers strike more often than Danes; Belgium has more doctors per capita than Britain; people in Italy like to walk to work, and the average Luxembourg resident works 58 minutes to buy a leg of lamb.

Cirrhosis of the liver, an ailment linked to heavy drinking, kills more people in France — 47.6 per 100,000 — than in any of the other eight Common Market countries, Italy, Denmark, Britain, The Netherlands, West Germany, Belgium, Ireland and Luxembourg.

The average Belgian worker spends 59 minutes on the job to make money for a kilo (2.2 pounds) of frozen fish. The average Frenchman works 1.49 hours for it.

If you're a miner in Luxembourg your chances of getting killed on the job are better than in any other Common Market country. The safest mines are in The Netherlands, where one in a million miners died last year.

No country is slighted in the book. Readers who look long and hard enough will find some aspect of social life in which one nation excels. Here is a list of the countries and the things they have the most of or lead in:

LUXEMBOURG: Night workers, foreign students, people leaving the country each year and houses with more than seven rooms, 25 percent of all dwellings.

WEST GERMANY: Total population, paid holidays for workers covered by union contracts and maternal mortality, 36 per 100,000 births.

BRITAIN: Money spent on entertainment and lengthy hospital stays, a mean of 22 days.

BELGIUM: Female traffic fatalities, outhouses, part-time working women and doctors, one for every 490 residents.

NETHERLANDS: Population density, people who ride bicycles to work, and life expectancy, 71.5 years for men and 78 years for women.

IRELAND: Birth rate, hours lost in labor disputes and students, 23.2 percent of the population.

FRANCE: Rice and meat consumption, male traffic deaths and teen-age brides, 6.4 percent of all married women.

ITALY: Teen-age fertility, unemployment, pay for women coal miners and black and white television sets, found in 90.7 percent of all homes.

DENMARK: Divorce, employment, trade unionists, suicides and spending for education, the equivalent of $5,790 per student.

In addition to the raw numbers, the book contains a detailed glossary explaining how the data were formed, what the sources were and in some cases fuller explanations.

For example, in a short note on page 180, the reader learns that the kilo of frozen fish that cost more in France than in Belgium are not just any fish but "cod filets, not bread-crumbed, in carton."

Statistics show that the Netherlands consumed 1,186 pounds of newspaper per 100 inhabitants in 1967, but luckily the book does not leave its readers in the dark about what newspaper is. It is "bleached, unsized or slack-sized printing paper, without coating, of the type usually used for newspapers."

The purpose of the book, which is available to the public in the Common Market offices in the United States and 12 other countries, is designed to give Common Market planners recent information on conditions in the nine countries and identify problems. The information comes from national archives and Common Market questionnaires.

Murder suspect arrested

DALLAS (AP) — Police have arrested a 26-year-old man in connection with the bludgeoning death of a private security guard at an apartment complex last Thursday night.

Stanley C. Ward, 56, was killed while responding to a domestic disturbance call. Police said he persuaded the suspect to leave the apartment in which he and a woman were arguing.

The suspect apparently followed Ward and hit him with a blunt instrument, then stole his pistol and nightstick, police said.

"The key to the organ is the pipe," says Lawrence Schoenstein, grandson of the founder of Felix F. Schoenstein and Sons, as he uses old-fashioned tools to handcraft parts for one of the instruments. It takes a year for the company's 12 employees to construct an organ. (Los Angeles Times Photo by Charles Hillinger)

Third oldest American factory manufactures organs by hand

By CHARLES HILLINGER
The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — In the 102 years of the firm's existence it has manufactured only 86 individual items.

It is the oldest factory of its kind west of Ohio, the third oldest in America.

Felix F. Schoenstein & Sons is known as the Rolls-Royce of pipe organs.

"My grandfather Felix sailed from Germany in 1862 to install orchestras in San Francisco manufactured by his father's firm in Villigen in the Black Forest," explains Lawrence Schoenstein, 64, fourth generation organ builder.

In 1877 Felix F. Schoenstein with a capital investment of $500 opened his organ company in the city by the Golden Gate. The first Felix F. Schoenstein organ was custom made for St. Mary's Catholic Church in Stockton, Calif.

"EVERY organ since has been custom made," notes Lawrence Schoenstein, who as the firm's current organ builder signs each creation on the nameplate that goes with it. There is only one person in an organ company that holds the prestigious title of organ builder.

Lawrence Schoenstein designs all of the organs made by the San Francisco organ company. He draws all blueprints for each of the musical instruments and supervises construction from inception through installation.

Business is booming for the small organ company in its picturesque three-story, salmon-colored factory at 3101 20th St. Three new organs currently are under construction. It takes the company's 12 employees a year to complete one of the musical instruments.

The firm tunes and services many famous Bay Area organs including the $1 million organ in the San Francisco Civic Auditorium and the organ at the Palace of the Legion of Honor.

The company has been involved in 160 major building jobs in its history and has installed more than 500 organs on the West Coast and in Hawaii for East Coast and overseas organ builders.

TWO YEARS ago on its 100th anniversary the Schoenstein family sold the firm to Jack Bethards, now 38, who had been business manager of the San Francisco Opera and executive director of the Oakland Symphony Orchestra.

"I knew the family wanted out of the business end of the operation for years," explains Bethards, a lifelong and nationally acclaimed pipe organ authority. "I had my eye on the company for 15 years, hoping the Schos would sell and the buyer would be me."

"Our uncle Erwin was running the company in 1977. He was 83 then and decided to take life easy and retire. That's when we decided to let Jack Bethards buy the firm," notes Bertram Schoenstein, 62, Lawrence's brother, and shop superintendent.

"Lawrence and I got tired of the paper work and wanted to devote full time to organ building."

A FIFTH generation Schoenstein, Terrence, Lawrence's son, also is involved in the construction end of the business.

Lawrence and Bertram's father, Louis Schoenstein, 95, is the author of a recently published 702-page book "Memoirs of a San Francisco Organ Builder."

It is an easy-to-read, non-technical book filled with San Francisco stories of the last 102 years and containing a wealth of accounts of the life and times of the organ builder.

Four of Felix F. Schoenstein's sons — Otto, Erwin, Leo and Louis — were active members of the firm for many years. Louis and Erwin despite their age still maintain an active interest in the company.

ORGANS are fabricated from thousands of hand-crafted parts.

The company manufactures pipe organs in much the same manner as in the early days, employing tools such as knocking-up-cups, toe reamers, cut-up knives, scorers and proportional dividers to create pipes, wind chests, bellows, consoles and cases.

It is painstaking, precision work. Larger organs require as many as 4,000 to 5,000 individual pipes.

"The key to the organ is the pipe. We search for the right tone for each pipe," explains Lawrence Schoenstein.

"Each organ is like a fingerprint, no two are alike. It is the only musical instrument that depends on the building totally for its success."

"The first thing we do is analyze the church or building which will house the organ. Then we design the voicing and composition of the organ to the building."

Official suspended

DALLAS (AP) — A 30-year employee of the state Department of Human Resources has been suspended without pay after he was arrested on a charge of sexual abuse of a child.

Howard Ray Parker, a programs director for medical services, was arrested after Dallas police found "200 to 300" photographs of nude and partially nude boys, some engaged in sexual acts, in Parker's house.

Viet vets keep Legion convention as strong as ever

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — With a parade that attracted 200,000 to the streets of Boston, the American Legion has convened its 62nd annual meeting, nearly as strong as ever thanks to an influx of Vietnam veterans.

About 20,000 Legionnaires and their families are in Boston this week for the convention, where they will hear from independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson on Tuesday, Republican contender Ronald Reagan on Wednesday and President Carter on Thursday.

The Legion, which has grown by 10,000 this year after a decline for the past four years, takes its political role seriously. It has refused to endorse a presidential candidate since its inception in 1919 as an organization for World War I veterans.

Membership reached a high of 3.3 million in 1946, then fell to a low of 2.5 million in 1964. Figures have wavered over the past decade, but 700,000 Vietnam-era veterans have pushed membership back to 2.6 million — the largest veterans' organization in this country.

"We have experienced an increase in members and feel it is because of a new concern about this country and the community," says National Commander Frank I Hamilton, a 57-year-old Greensburg, Ind., attorney who served in the Army during World War II. "American Legion members are optimistic about the future, but they are upset about the way things have been."

The Legion, headquartered in Indianapolis, is divided into 58 "departments," including the 50 states, and several foreign countries. Membership is heavy in the Midwest and South. Pennsylvania has the most members with 249,054. Hawaii has the fewest with 2,190.

'Fundamentals of Petroleum' added to MC fall curriculum

James Bramlett, director of the Midland College Community Services Department, has announced the addition of a new short course to the fall curriculum.

"We have just added a 10-week course in the Fundamentals of Petroleum which is a basic guide to understanding the petroleum industry," Bramlett noted. "The course is being co-sponsored by the Education Committee of the Desk and Derrick Club of Midland."

Course study begins with an explanation of petroleum geology and reservoirs, then advances into the aspects of drilling, production, pipeline and refining. It concludes with a discussion of the current oil and gas situation at home and abroad and a general overview of the industry.

Eight professionals in the petroleum industry will teach individual classes. They include E.C. Woodruff,

Pair stumbles onto sunken treasure

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gulf shrimpers Curtis Blume and Steve Smith stumbled onto a dream — a sunken treasure ship loaded with gold and silver.

With salvage far from complete, about $350,000 worth of gold, 30 pounds of silver, five tons of copper and many artifacts have been plucked from the wreck of what is believed to be an 18th century Spanish cargo ship.

BUT BLUME AND Smith aren't counting their money yet — they won't see it until lawyers, state bureaucrats and scientists finish work intended to protect the shrimpers and the state.

The wreck lies under 18 feet of muddy Gulf of Mexico water and a layer of silt about 1 1/2 miles off southwest Louisiana's Cameron Parish.

A round-the-clock guard is stationed at the site — an area of the seabottom 120 feet by 200 feet — and one diver often on duty is Smith, a shrimper whose sea adventures have always been business.

"I ALWAYS HAD to work for a living and I don't have much time to think about looking for treasure," said the 32-year-old father of two, who describes the find as a "once-in-a-life-time thing."

He added: "If it works out well, that's good, and if it doesn't, well that's it."

Objects recovered include cured turtle shells once used in Europe for hair combs, rouge sealed in casks for the cheeks of 18th century ladies, ceramic figures made by Aztec Indians, leather hides, olive jars, several nine-foot cannon and a 10-foot anchor.

"MAN, THEY HAVEN'T even touched it yet," said Steve Perry, assistant secretary of the state Department of Culture, Recreation and Tourism.

Scientists believe the wreck is Spanish and from the mid-1700s. Academic researchers are trying to figure out where the ship came from and where it was going.

With a bit of luck, Perry said, they may find a cargo manifest, which would detail the ship's contents and might list their origins and destinations.

THE STATE OWNS the seabottom where Blume's shrimp nets snagged the wreck in the winter of 1979, and the Department of Culture, Recreation and Tourism will dictate how the salvage is done.

"That was only the second time in my life that I'd been over there," said 45-year-old Blume of his find. "It was just pure accident that I found it because there were lots of boats that hung up on it. There were a lot of nets on it."

Blume, who is married and has three children, said he never spent much time thinking about finding treasure, adding: "I was always too busy trying to make a living." He is still shrimping.

GOV. DAVE TREEN has described the wreck as the most important archaeological find in Louisiana waters and perhaps one of the most significant in the Gulf Coast region.

He acknowledges many people would have looted the vessel, destroying its archaeological value and never reported the discovery.

But Smith and Blume decided they had no choice. They knew the state would complicate salvage efforts, but did not want to have to deal with black marketeers to dispose of the bounty.

"YOU COULD BE looking over your shoulder for the rest of your life," said Smith.

Free Enterprise Salvage Inc., the company Smith and Blume set up with Lake Charles businessman John D. Bailey and Berry Brothers Construction Co. of Berwick, a dredging and construction operation, will get 75 percent of the wreck's value.

"We can either give them artifacts or cash or a combination of both. We just have to give them, after appraisal, 75 percent of the fair market value," said Perry.

THE HUNT BEGAN when Blume called in Smith, who usually dives to repair shrimp boats, to determine what had snagged his nets. Blume had already pulled up several ballast rocks and some copper ingots.

Smith found the wreck in water where visibility is about six inches. "There's no looking at it," he said. "You dive down and feel it."

The two brought in others to help with the financing and the work.

"I was real happy," said Everett Berry, who runs the Berwick dredging company with his brother, Doyle. "I'm still happy over it. It's kind of like going to Vegas and picking up the bones."

NO ONE KNOWS how much the recovery will cost, and searchers have not kept a running account of expenses. All agree the job will be costly.

"It could be a very expensive proposition, maybe even a losing one," said Trean.

The state hopes to set a precedent with its contract with Free Enterprise Salvage that could head off problems on future finds.

THE STATE OF FLORIDA recently lost an involved court fight with treasure hunters over a $2.5 million discovery outside the state's waters. The state has sought a rehearing in the case.

"We want to eliminate the adversary relationship," said Perry. "What we want is to protect the cultural integrity of the wreck. It could provide incredible information about what life was like then along the Gulf Coast."

Kim won't answer questions in court

EDITOR'S NOTE: Reports of trial procedures and events were censored by martial-law authorities.

By TERRY A. ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Dissident leader Kim Dae-jung charged today that his court-martial on sedition charges was "political repression" and refused initially to answer questions as the court of four army generals ordered him tried separately from persons accused with him.

Kim later relented to explain his connection with what military prosecutors called an "anti-state" organization.

Meanwhile, a reliable military source reported that the leader of the South Korean military regime, Gen. Chun Doo-hwan, would retire from the army on Friday in preparation for his election to the presidency next week by the electoral college. More than 400 electors from the Seoul region met today and unanimously recommended his nomination.

Chun, a protégé of the late President Park Chung-hee, seized control of the regime last December. Acting President Choi Kyu-hah resigned on Saturday to make way for him, but the constitution prohibits officers on active duty from holding top government posts.

"I decline to answer questions because this trial amounts to political repression," Kim said in a statement to the military court trying him on six charges that could get him the death penalty if he is convicted, diplomatic observers attending the trial reported.

"I was rehabilitated and received an amnesty from conviction under emergency decrees, and I therefore refuse to be tried (on the same charges)."

Kim, 56, then sat silently, swaying slightly back and forth, as the prosecutors asked him a series of questions about alleged pro-communist activities when he was in his 20's and about his connection with an organization of Korean residents in Japan that has been called "anti-state," the observers said.

But after a brief recess to consult with defense attorneys, Kim denied the Japan-based group was anti-state, and noted that he returned to Seoul before the group was formed.

Martial-law authorities heavily censored reports by two foreign correspondents and four Korean reporters admitted to the courtroom. But foreign diplomatic observers attending on behalf of their governments also reported what went on.

Kim made his protest at the beginning of the second day of the trial, which began last Thursday. At that time, after a six-hour reading of a 154-page indictment against Kim and 23 other men, a separate trial was ordered for 11 of those accused of lesser charges.

Today the judges ordered that Kim be tried alone, and the 12 other defendants were led from the courtroom. Before they left, one of them, the Rev. Moon Ik-hwan, told the court the charges against them were "outrageous and unfounded. We feel that 10 years' effort for democratization went for nothing."

"I don't know about the others," he continued, "but I want to cite four reasons why we refuse this trial. One, this trial is simply a formality. It is nothing more nor less than a political trial. This is not a trial but part of our struggle."

At that point, an officer of the court stopped him from speaking.

Kim is charged with inciting the large student anti-government demonstrations in Seoul in early May and with organizing and financing the uprising May 18-26 in the southern city of Kwangju in which more than 260 persons are believed to have died.

The government also charges Kim with having had contact for a long time with the North Korean communists and with helping to set up a pro-communist organization in Tokyo while in self-imposed exile there in 1973.

Kim went to Japan after nearly defeating the late President Park Chung-hee in the 1971 presidential election. He was kidnapped from Tokyo in 1973, presumably by agents of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, and brought back to Seoul, where he was put under house arrest.

He was jailed in 1976 for his open opposition to Park, was released in 1978, and his political rights were restored after Park was assassinated last Oct. 26. He was one of three leading candidates for the presidency, but all three have now been eliminated from contention by Gen. Chun.

Enlisted women have higher fallout rate than men

WASHINGTON (AP) — In another blow to the all-volunteer military, women recruits are failing to finish their first enlistments at a much higher rate than male volunteers.

An Army study estimates the fallout rate for women will reach 46.7 percent this year — 13.5 percentage points higher than for young men.

"Current forecasts indicate that first-term female attrition rates will increase further," said the study which predicts that the trend for comparable male volunteers "will remain down."

Army officials appear at a loss to explain the high fallout rate among women in the first hitch. The Army

Research Institute is looking for the causes.

But M. Kathleen Carpenter, the Pentagon's equal opportunity chief, said she believes there are at least four main reasons.

"There is a significant lack of acceptance of women in non-traditional roles by their male peers," said Ms. Carpenter in an interview. "Men often find women performing better."

At last report, about 61 percent of the army's 59,000 enlisted women were in "non-traditional" skills, such as maintenance, transportation and engineering. The remaining 39 percent were assigned to "traditional" fields, as clerks, medical orderlies and similar occupations.

Ms. Carpenter said Army women who do manage to get traditionally male-type assignments all too often find themselves shuffled into handling paperwork. This, she said, stunts their career development opportunities.

Furthermore, Ms. Carpenter said, women find themselves under heavy psychological pressures, working in what she called a "fishbowl environment in which they are very closely scrutinized."

She also said sexual harassment is a factor in souring young women soldiers toward military life and causing them to look for ways to get out. She declined to go into specifics on the extent of sexual harassment, but indicated she regards it as a major problem.

At the same time, Ms. Carpenter acknowledged that some women soldiers "are using pregnancy as a vehicle to get out" when they are unable to gain job satisfaction in uniform.

Whatever the causes, the problem is of deep concern to the Army because planners long have counted on recruiting increasing numbers of women to fill out the ranks in years ahead, when the military age male population declines.

The current goal is to increase the number of enlisted women to 85,000 out of an army of about 765,000 over the next five years.
