Deep advances claimed by Iraq

By The Associated Press

Iraq claimed its ground forces made "substantial thrusts" today into western Iran along a 300-mile invasion front, pushing 10 miles beyond a northern city on a key road to Tehran. As the air, sea and land war between the Persian Gulf oil giants intensified, the United States advised Americans to leave bomb-stricken areas of Iraq.

An Iraqi military communique broadcast by Baghdad radio said ground troops, who on Tuesday captured Qasr-e-Shirin — a border town in the north 350 miles west of the Iranian capital — today encircled Sar-e-Pol-Zahab, 10 miles inland, and added, "The fall of Sar-e-Pol-Zahab is imminent."

In the central sector of the invasion front, the Iraqi command said Iraqi forces captured the Iranian border town of Mehran, 100 miles south of Qasr-e-Shirin, and then advanced eastward.

The 300-mile front extends from Qasr-e-Shirin to the beleaguered oil city of Abadan in the south. Iraq claimed Tuesday to have penetrated nine miles into Iran at some points and captured all Iranian border posts. It said Iraqis killed 21 Iranian soldiers and captured 121.

Iran's Abadan oil refinery, one of the world's biggest, was reported in flames and Iran admitted it was not operating. Radio Abadan appealed for trucks to carry sandbags to burning oil lines, for blood donations and for private cars to help deliver wounded to hospitals.

Iraq also claimed it shot down 21 take control of the Strait of Hormuz, the Persian Gulf outlet, and would guarantee safe passage for foreign tankers. He made the comment during a meeting in Tokyo with an official of Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic Party but did not elaborate, a party spokesman said.

The Japanese government expressed "deep concern" over the Iraqi-Iranian war. Japan gets more than 70 percent of its crude oil from the Persian Gulf area.

The Iraq National Oil Co. suspended loading oil from Iraq to foreign tankers effective Tuesday, officials of Japan's Ministry of International Trade and Industry officials said. They said they had no word on how long the suspension would last.

Tehran Radio quoted the Iranian joint staff as saying at least 34 Soviet-made Iraqi jets had been downed and four Iraqi ships sunk. It did not make clear what time period was involved. Another Tehran Radio broadcast quoted the Iranian joint staff as saying Iraqi MIGs attacked Dezful, Tabriz, Kermanshah, as well as oil installations in Abadan and the piers of Khurrumshahr.

An Iraqi communique broadcast by Baghdad Radio said U.S.-made Iranian jets bombed oil installations and industrial targets in the southern port city of Basra and the northern oil cities of Kirkuk and Mosul at day-break and midday.

The communique said 10 planes were brought down in Kirkuk, six in Mosul and five in Basra were four Americans and four British petrochemical experts were killed in a similar raid Tuesday. It also said Iranian jets raided the Kurdish-populated city of Irbil.

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr vowed to defend Iran to the "last drop of blood" and told a news conference in Tehran that the United States and the Soviet Union had assured him they would stay neutral in the conflict, Tehran Radio reported in a broadcast monitored in Beirut, Lebanon.

War flared after months of sparring along the border. Iraq last week scrapped the 1975 border treaty with Iran. The two nations long have argued over the Shatt al-Arab waterway that separates them and an ethnic dispute between them dates back centuries.

Iraq's ambassador to Japan, Mohammed Amin al-Jaff, was quoted as saying his country was preparing to BIG SPRING — In a style reminiscent of the old-fashioned, deep-in-the-heart-of-the-Bible-Belt church revivals, about 1,000 area residents turned out on a gloomy, rainy Tuesday to hear tales of how this country could be saved.

Gov. Bill Clements warmed up the crowd and got the blood pumping with his jokes and outline of a program. Following that act was former governor John Connally who, in the manner of an evangelist with waving arms and booming voice, talked of a man "who has shown us the way" and pleaded with the people "to give something of yourself."

Completing the scene were a band,

a choir and the closing hymn, "God Bless America."

And, as often happens in many Bible Belt revivals, the people "caught the spirit" and responded warmly to their speakers. However, this was a political rally, not a church revival.

Clements, his wife Rita, Connally, his wife Nellie, and other state Republican leaders in the Reagan-Bush presidential campaign flew into Big Spring for the second of four stops as part of the Roundup for Reagan plan. This tactic is being followed throughout the state to gain support from the normally heavy Democratic rural areas.

THE RALLY DREW onlookers from about 10 counties, including

Howard, Martin, Dawson, Midland and Glasscock, to the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum where they paid $4 a head for a buffet luncheon consisting of thinly-sliced ham, green beans, fruit salad, roll and iced tea.

To help fill the coliseum, high school government and civics students were bussed in from Big Spring, Garden City, Stanton and Westbrook.

"The purpose of these rallies is to help you understand the issues and why we're (Reagan) going to win," Clements said, after explaining the state organization which includes former Midland mayor Ernest Angelo as deputy chairman.

One part of the campaign focuses on a telephone bank operation which should reach about three million voters by Nov. 4 through volunteers. "We want to get the voters registered, identify your votes and get the voters out on Election Day to vote for Reagan," he said.

COST FOR MUCH of the Texas campaign already is in the coffers. Clements explained that a fund-raising dinner in Houston channeled about $2.8 million into the campaign.

"Response of the dinner is symbolic of how this campaign is going. And we're going to send this peanut farmer (President Carter) back to Georgia," Clements said, getting the audience ready for his one-liner.

"Do you know why Carter carries a turkey under his arm all the time?" he asked. "For spare parts," Clements retorted to a laughing crowd. After citing three polls which show Reagan to be leading Carter in Texas by 9 or 10 percentage points, Clements pointed his finger at the strong need to pull in Democrats and Independents.

"In Texas only about 20 percent call themselves Republican," he explained. "As Republicans, we couldn't elect a dog catcher in this state" without the votes of Democrats and Independents.

"In my lifetime, I don't believe there has been a presidential election as important as this one. We are truly at a fork in the road and we must take the right road," he philosophized before turning the microphone over to Connally.

"MY MISSION," began the former governor who served his term as a Democrat. "is to get you to ask yourselves why Reagan should be elected president."

One by one, he picked out the issues of inflation, tight money, high interest, lack of an energy policy, rising taxes, high spending policies and lack of an adequate defense policy.

Starting with the country's economy, Connally laid that albatross around Carter's neck.

Charging that the country has a $60 billion deficit this year, he explained the federal government won't go bankrupt because it keeps the printing presses stamping out more money. "The more they print, the cheaper it is, the more inflation we have," he said.

The average American saves 1 1/2 percent of his disposable income while Germans save 15 percent and Japanese 25 percent. The lack of a saving discipline in the U.S. lies partly with the president and his fiscal policy and partly with the country's monetary policy.

Big spending and big deficits are the country's fiscal policy, which is Carter's fault, he contended. The monetary policy, partly determined by the Federal Reserve Board, now consists of high interest rates and tight money.

"These have to come together to form the right environment that is conducive to saving. There is a loss of confidence on the part of the people today to save," he said.

HE DWELLED ON the windfall profits tax, to the delight of the audience. It's not going to be the big oil companies paying for this tax, said

Zoning proposal concerns school

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

School trustees expressed concern following Tuesday's meeting about a recommendation by the city Planning and Zoning Commission to rezone property in the 1100 block of Illinois Avenue from residential to commercial use.

Dr. James Mailey, school superintendent, told the board that the zoning commission would be presenting the recommendation to the City Council's Oct. 14 meeting.

The proposed area for rezoning includes sections of property along Illinois Avenue between D and G streets, according to zoning and planning personnel at City Hall.

If approved by City Council, only 2 1/2-story office buildings could be constructed on the property, which is about a block west of the Midland High School campus and near the school's athletic practice field.

During the Sept. 15 zoning meeting, Mailey said he protested the zoning change because an office building would interfere with Midland High School's operations and future use of the land.

Speaking for the change at the meeting was Katherine Ingham, 1104

W. Illinois Ave. About 1 1/2 years ago, a group of Midlanders calling themselves PRIDE (People Resisting Inminent Domain Exploitation), several property owners, including Mrs. Ingham, opposed the school district condemning the Hill House property.

After the historic manor was moved to another location southwest of Midland, property owners told the public, via the media, that they were going to be forced from their homes by the school district.

And one particular owner lamented that the property would not be sold for fair market value.

This action, among other factors, caused Midland voters to send a $10.2 million school bond issue down in flames in October, 1979.

IN A MEETING where there was supposed to be very little action, school trustees learned that immediate action may be needed to relieve crowded conditions in several elementary schools.

Bowie Elementary, the site where most of the crowding is occurring, will be receiving a portable building from Fannin Elementary to house

Reagan's finger itches, says Carter

By the Associated Press

Ronald Reagan says it's political malpractice, but President Carter is giving no ground in his diagnosis of the Republican nominee as suffering from a chronic itch of the trigger finger.

The rhetoric of the Carter camp clearly threw Reagan on the defensive Tuesday, as he found himself parrying his opponent's peace-or-war thrusts. One Reagan strategist called the president a "mean, courthouse Georgia politician."

Carter said Reagan's habit of looking to the military for answers to international crises was a matter of record, and "what he would do in the Oval Office I hope will never be observed by the American people."

With one ear still cocked to the electorate and the other pressed to the White House telephone, the president seized upon the Iran-Iraq crisis Tuesday night as evidence that his own hands are steady as a surgeon's.

Wrapping up a West Coast swing, the president told a $500-per-head gathering of about 80 Democrats on a hillside patio in Portland, Ore., that "I have to deal with...potential crises for all of you. If I handle a question well, then perhaps you don't ever hear about it."

Then, to a narrow but tantalizing extent, the president let them hear about it. And it was a lesson that Reagan could only envy: the incumbent's use of White House power.

"Today I've been monitoring very closely and dealing to some degree with the combat between Iran and Iraq," said the chief executive. "It's a disturbing thing. I've just been on the phone, the secure telephone that has encoded voices, going back and forth, with Dr. (Zbigniew) Brzezinski, and earlier with Secretary (of Defense Harold) Brown..."

Carter said the administration is doing everything possible in concert with other nations for a peaceful settlement of the conflict. "We will not become involved in the combat and we are urging and insisting that the Soviet Union and other nations do not interfere in this very dangerous situation," he declared.

"Well," he added, "I don't want to bore you with further details. But I did want to point out to you the importance of the presidency."

Earlier, in Los Angeles, Carter tempered but then repeated his claim of a night before that Reagan might be quick to risk American forces in combat. The president said Monday night that the choice on election day came down to "whether we have peace or war."

Reagan fumed over that all day Tuesday as he campaigned from Florida to Louisiana to Missouri. "I think that to accuse that anyone would deliberately want a war is beneath decency," he snapped in Pensacola, Fla. He called the president's assertion "inconceivable" and "unforgivable."

Independent challenger John B. Anderson, campaigning in Pennsylvania Tuesday, agreed that the president was resorting to "scare tactics."

The president's press secretary said Carter had overstated the case. But he said Carter had no apology to make for raising the issue.

And the president himself declared Tuesday, again in Los Angeles, that Reagan has often suggested "the use of American military force to address problems that arise diplomatically between nations."

Reagan's own words cited on his view of military use

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's campaign headquarters produces a sheaf of old newspaper clippings when asked to prove Reagan's "repeated habit" of calling for the use of U.S. troops abroad.

The clips date back as much as 12 years, but they do show that, as the Democrats charge, Reagan has proposed at one time or another that American forces be sent to Ecuador, Rhodesia, Panama, Cyprus, Lebanon, Pakistan, North Korea and the Middle East.

The president himself noted that Reagan just this year proposed a military blockade of Cuba as retaliation for Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. That idea was scoffed at by then-Republican rival George Bush, not Reagan's running mate.

TESCO's rate hike tentatively OK'd

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Midland City Council approved a tentative settlement figure of $60 million Tuesday with Texas Electric Service Company for its upcoming rate increase.

Originally, TESCO asked the city and other service areas for an increase of some $123 million for the coming year, which would have meant a 17.7 percent systemwide increase.

The city-approved figure represents only an 8.6 percent increase.

The $60 million settlement will stand until the Public Utilities Commission concludes its review of the increases throughout the West Texas area.

However, council members Carroll Thomas and Gordon Marcum II objected to any increase. Both said they felt TESCO asked for an increase each year for twice as much as it needs, figuring local boards will shoot down that amount. Therefore, the councilmen said, TESCO always gets the increase it wants.

Council members also approved a recommendation to start a city park fund by including an optional $1-a-month charge to city water bills. The $1 line item on the bills will be a voluntary donation to the fund.

Wayne Kohout, director of the parks and recreation department, told council members the new system would "secure a capital improvements fund through private citizens."

Kohout said the voluntary system was already in effect in at least two other Texas communities: North Richland Hills and Bedford, outside Fort Worth.

The $1 optional charge will be added to city water bills as an insert supplement in January 1981. The council opted to review the system in March, after it had been in effect for three months.

Councilman Tom Sloan said he was concerned about the fund becoming part of a budget. "I want to see this done," he said, "but I don't want to see funds to be used for specific park projects to be counted on as part of a budget."

The funds, Kohout suggested, will be used only for park improvement projects.

Mayor Thane Akins agreed with Sloan, but said he felt there would be no problem with the new system. "I don't see any problem doing that," Akins said about keeping it a separate item from the budgeted park expenses. "We do the same thing with revenue sharing."

In other council business, members approved the sale of a remaining $4 million worth of water and sewer improvement and street drainage bonds. In addition, Akins said, "We are looking into the expansion of the airport." However, decisions about the sale of airport revenue bonds was

Security Council calls for peace

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council sent an appeal to warring Iran and Iraq today to stop fighting immediately and settle their differences peacefully.

The governments of the United States and most other countries were fearful of what the war at the head of the Persian Gulf would do to the world's oil supplies. But most of them were depending on U.N. action rather than their own independent action to halt the conflict.

One exception was Cuba's President Fidel Castro, the current president of the Non-Aligned Movement, which includes both the warring nations. Havana Radio announced that Foreign Minister Isidoro Malmierca left Cuba Tuesday night for Tehran and Baghdad on a mission "aimed at putting an end to the military conflict."

Yasser Arafat, the chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, also is planning to fly to Iran and Iraq to try to mediate a cease-fire, a PLO spokesman in Beirut said.

President Carter said the U.S. position was one of "strict neutrality, and we're doing all we can through the United Nations and through other means to bring a peaceful conclusion to this combat." And Iran's ambassador to Moscow, after meeting with two senior Kremlin officials, said the Soviet government was also adopting a "neutral policy" despite the fact that it is Iraq's chief supplier of arms.

The 15-nation Security Council made its appeal for peace in a statement agreed to Tuesday night by consensus after two hours of consultations among the members. There was no formal council meeting and no vote.

"We hope that this will be a sufficient first step," Ambassador Donald McHenry, the chief U.S. delegate, told ABC News, "but ... the council made it clear that it was a first step and that other steps are possible and contemplated."

Secretary of State Edmund Muskie acknowledged earlier Tuesday that Iran and Iraq might ignore a council call for a cease-fire.

The council statement said the members were "deeply concerned that this conflict can prove increasingly serious, and could pose a grave threat to international peace and security." It asked Iran and Iraq "to desist from all armed activity, and all acts that may worsen the present dangerous situation and to settle their dispute by peaceful means."

The council also expressed its support for an offer by U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to use his "good offices to resolve the present conflict." But there was no indication yet what action he might take.

The council's action was delayed for more than an hour when the Soviet Union and East Germany challenged the propriety of issuing a statement without a formal meeting. McHenry said they also raised "substantive problems." But after consulting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, who is attending the U.N. General Assembly, they agreed to go along with the other members.

President Carter, in a statement issued while campaigning in California, called on "all other countries, including the Soviet Union, not to interfere with this conflict" and said, "The United States is itself following such a policy."

"We hope the current conflict will be solved peacefully and promptly with the aid of international institutions," said Carter.

U.S. officials said they did not consider Soviet intervention likely. "They have enough on their hands," one said.

Muskie interrupted his stay at the General Assembly and returned to Washington for a White House meeting today on the crisis. A reporter asked him whether his government would consider unilateral action if the war interrupted the flow of oil through the Persian Gulf, but he said it was a hypothetical question that could not be answered usefully.

Iran, Iraq soon may cut off oil deliveries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid expectations that Iran and Iraq will soon cut off oil deliveries, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie was summoned to a hastily arranged White House meeting today on the implications of the spreading warfare between the two Middle East countries.

Muskie postponed a scheduled breakfast meeting in New York with Poland's foreign minister, Josef Czyrek, to attend the Washington session with national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and other officials.

The meeting was expected to cover the impact of the conflict on global oil supplies and the 52 Americans spending their 326th day in captivity in Iran today.

A senior State Department official, who asked not to be identified, said Tuesday night he expected both Iran and Iraq to cut off oil deliveries today.

The United States imports no oil from Iran and only minimal amounts from Iraq, but several pro-Western countries, including France, Spain, Brazil, Japan and Italy, are dependent on imports from these two countries.

"We have a special stake in this one," Muskie said Tuesday in New York, where he was attending the U.N. General Assembly session. "All the nations in this area have a special stake in this one, so there is a high level of concern."

Muskie was expected to return to New York in time for a luncheon with French Foreign Minister Jean Francois Poncelet.

The Iran-Iraq conflict appears to have sidetracked what appeared to have been promising signs of Iranian interest in ending the hostage crisis.

Muskie, echoing a statement Tuesday on Tehran Radio, said he believes that Iranian consideration of the hostage question will be suspended for the duration of Iran's war with Iraq.

Nonetheless, State Department spokesman Jack Cannon issued an appeal to Iranian authorities not to link the two issues and said it is in Iran's interest to release the hostages.

"The hostage issue must be addressed on its own merits," Cannon said. "We would of course be concerned over any delay in consideration of the hostage question."

Meanwhile, Tehran Radio announced that Iranian militants holding the American hostages have transferred the captives from six Iranian cities to new locations.

The broadcast said an unspecified number of hostages were transferred from the cities of Qum, Mashad, Tabriz, Jahrom, Yazd and Kerman to unidentified sites.

Strait of Hormuz still open for oil transport

By The Associated Press "Scores of vessels" have been stranded in Iraqi and Iranian seaports as fighting between the Mideast neighbors rages, sources say, while prohibitive insurance rates threaten to bring oil tanker traffic through the critical Strait of Hormuz to a standstill.

The strait is a critical 20-mile-wide sea link between Persian Gulf oil exporting nations and the shipping lanes to oil importing nations.

Tuesday's report from State Department spokesman George Haven that the strait was still open was confirmed by U.S. oil company sources and by Lloyds of London, the British insurance exchange.

But an oil industry source in New York said two Iranian warships were patrolling the strait to stop ships bound for Iraq.

In Washington on Tuesday, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., called on the United Nations to send a task force into the gulf to keep the strait open.

A State Department source, who asked not to be identified, said some shipowners may decide to keep their vessels outside the Persian Gulf, in the Arabian Sea, because insurers have started asking "prohibitive rates" for coverage in the area.

A shipping industry source in Bahrain said an average of 75 tankers and other vessels travel the strait daily.

At the northern end of the gulf, meanwhile, "scores of vessels" reportedly were "stranded in Iraqi and Iranian ports with no pilots willing to take them out and with shippers tending to shun the risk of steaming through menaced waters," another Bahrain shipping official said.

Iraq is determined to reclaim small parcels of border land along with the Shatt al-Arab, the 120-mile-long estuary that divides the two countries at the head of the gulf.

About 10 percent of the non-communist world's oil passes through the strait. Western Europe gets 63 percent of its oil from Persian Gulf countries, the United States 20 percent and Japan 73 percent.

Industry sources said all Iraqi and Iranian oil terminals apparently have been closed by the fighting. But they noted that about two-thirds of Iraq's oil is shipped westward out of the country via land pipelines and, therefore, is unaffected.

Tuesday's trading on the spot crude oil market was virtually unaffected by the war news, U.S. sources said.

"There was very little business being concluded — but we would think twice before selling any oil" from Persian Gulf sources on the spot market, one senior trader for a large oil company said. He asked not to be identified.

Traders said gasoline and home heating-oil prices jumped sharply in busy trading then retreated in U.S. Gulf Coast dealings.

The price of a cargo of regular gasoline jumped from 77.85 cents a gallon in the morning to 81.6 cents at midday before falling back to 80 cents late in the day, the Oil Buyers' Guide said.

Home heating oil moved up a nickel to 91 cents a gallon, then retreated to 90 cents later, said the publication.

Sources said the movements are not expected to have much of an effect on retail prices because oil inventories are unusually high.

Shah's men reportedly plan coup

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — About a dozen of the late Iranian shah's army officers are allegedly planning a coup and some 45,000 former Iranian soldiers are currently training for the attempt in 20 camps along the Iraqi-Iranian border, a West German magazine said today.

Four-star Gen. Gholam Ali Oveissi, working out of his Paris headquarters, was coordinating preparations for the coup to topple the Iranian government, allegedly with American help, the Hamburg-based magazine Stern reported.

It said the late Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's twin sister Ashraf was to finance the coup with the aid of "some bankers and politicians close to former U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger." Ashraf lives in Paris.

Chaos followed Iranian bombing

LONDON (AP) — A British oilworker who fled Iraq to Kuwait told today of "absolute chaos" as hundreds ran for their lives after an Iranian air attack on a petrochemical plant near Basra.

Eddie Giloney, 40, reached by telephone at his hotel in Kuwait, said of Tuesday's air raid at Zubair in which the victims included four Americans and four Britons killed:

"All hell broke loose. People ran for their lives. They jumped in anything they could — buses, trucks and cars, anything that was going — and fled."

"We all thought we were goners," Giloney, a mechanic, said. "It happened just after 6 a.m. Iranian jets flew over the site and dropped four bombs."

"One was a direct hit on a garage. It killed nine — mostly Iraqis, I think. Another struck the motel area. It devastated the living quarters. A couple of the British lads were caught."

"The whole scene was one of absolute chaos. Anyone was lucky to escape with his life."

Richard Francis, a millwright employed at the Zubair complex said upon arriving today at London's Heathrow Airport:

"I was just about to go into the main gate to start work when suddenly there was a massive explosion and everything was flames and black smoke."

"The planes came in really low and then just rocketed the living cabins and garage. The four Britons died in the garage. They were just working normally — it was hell."

After the attack, people grabbed what they could and headed for the border in anything that moved in a 19-hour dash to safety in Kuwait, Francis said.

"It was like a film," Another evacuee, electronics engineer Alan Billington, accused the Iranian Phantom jets of "aiming for people" in the attack.

War has Japanese worried

TOKYO (AP) — Japan, which depends on the Persian Gulf area for more than 70 percent of its crude oil, expressed "deep concern" today over the fighting between Iran and Iraq.

The government of Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki made clear its "strong desire" that the warring oil producers settle their dispute peacefully.

The Ministry of International Trade and Industry said the nation had reserves for 110 days and could ride out any short-term losses of oil from Iraq. Iraq provides 8.5 percent of Japan's daily imports, but Tokyo has received virtually no oil from Iran for months, since it balked at an Iranian price hike.

Of paramount concern in Tokyo were the fates of nearly 800 Japanese citizens working in Iran, and that of a $3.2 billion Japanese-Iranian petrochemical project in Bandar Khomeini on the Persian Gulf about 60 miles from the Iraq border.

A spokesman for Mitsui, a partner in the plant, said the firm had not been able to establish contact with the 780 Japanese engineers at Bandar Khomeini since Monday. The Japanese engineers are thought to be the largest single contingent of foreigners in Iran.

'Arab' suspected in theft of ring

An "Arab," who has already struck at Zales jewelry stores in Austin, New Braunfels and Amarillo, is suspected of stealing a $19,500 diamond ring from a Midland Zales store.

The 1.66 carat ladies' diamond ring was last seen Saturday, although it was not noticed missing until a day, during the store's monthly inventory, it was discovered that the ring was missing. According to a district manager of Zales, who was notified of the theft, a man matching the suspect's description has attempted previous thefts in Austin and New Braunfels and allegedly stole a large amount of merchandise from a store in Amarillo.

In other police news, a 22-year-old Midland man was in custody this morning following an accident late Tuesday night. According to police the man was westbound in the 200 block of East Front Street at 11:14 p.m. when he ran off the roadway, travelled 117 feet and struck a Texas Electric Service Co. utility pole. The vehicle then traveled seven feet and struck a street sign. Thirty-two feet later the vehicle struck a fire hydrant, continued another 126 feet and hit a street sign and then hit another TESCO pole 45 feet from the street sign.

The fire hydrant, after being struck, flew 16 feet through the air, struck the back windshield of a parked car belonging to Booker T. Green of 202 E. Dormard Ave., bounced off that car and struck another parked car belonging to Walter Lewalen of 718 Boyd Ave.

All of the poles, except the last utility pole, and the hydrant were severed when hit. Total cost of the damage, not including damage to the cars, was estimated at $3,250. Amount of damage to the two parked cars was unknown.

The driver was taken into custody for operating a motor vehicle while drunk and eluding. He and his 19-year-old passenger were arrested for misdemeanor possession of marijuana after officers observed the passenger drop a plastic baggie of what appeared to be marijuana down beside the car seat.

Ernest Harvey White Jr., 4618 W. Storey Ave., was treated at Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room and released Tuesday afternoon following an accident in the 3300 block of West Front Street.

The accident occurred at 12:54 p.m. Driver of the second vehicle was Mamie Ara Butler Miller of 3002 Lockheed Ave.

The Midland Fire Department was kept busy Tuesday with two house fires reported within minutes of each other.

The first, at 4505 Cardinal Lane, was reported at 2:11 p.m. Firemen found an attached garage blazing on their arrival. The fire apparently was caused by an electrical short. The blaze caused heavy damage to the garage and damage to the electrical system.

Fireman Capt. Rudy Dudley injured his back during the fire but was not taken to Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room for treatment.

The second house fire, at 1207 Country Club Drive, was reported at 2:21 p.m. but proved to be a false alarm.

Two people were transported by CFD ambulance since 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Walter Wright, Lee High School chorale director, holds tickets for a quilt to be given away during the chorale's Oct. 14 concert. The quilt was donated by Bill Cormack, a former fine arts director of the Midland schools. Donations received through the sale of tickets will help send the chorale group to Vienna, Austria, in 1981 for the International Youth and Music Festival. Tickets may be purchased from any LHS chorale member. (Staff photo) monthly inventory was taken Monday. The store's manager told police he was the last one to show the ring to a customer. He said a man, who had a thick "Arab" accent, entered the store at 215 W. Wall Ave. Saturday and asked to see some ladies' watches. The manager said Zales did not carry those brands. The man then asked to see their gold watches.

The man chose a $2,400 gold watch and then asked

Jogging course approved

Efforts on the part of private individuals have resulted in a one-mile jogging course being constructed for the public in the city's new undeveloped community park. Midland City Council on Tuesday approved the concept for the $144,000 project developed by Midland Petro Parcoursse Committee. Tevis Herd, chairman of the committee, explained the committee of local citizens has gathered or received pledges for two-thirds of the project. "I feel we can get the rest of the amount, and possibly more if we need to," he told the council.

The money will go to contour and landscape the land in Windlands Community Playfield Park located at the corner of A Street and Wadley Avenue. Also included will be lighting, a parking area and sprinkler system.

Wayne Kohout, director of the parks and recreation department, said the piece of land lies within Midland Air Park's clear zone. But the Federal Aviation Administration has approved the jogging course concept because it will have a low concentration of people. The only other project the FAA would have approved for this tract is a golf course, he said.

The course will consist of a jagged circle with 18 exercise stations at various points. Kohout, who worked with the private group in developing the idea. Each station will be a 10-foot square asphalt pad that will include directions for exercises and some apparatus, such as bars for push-ups.

Herd said that a company or individual who donates $8,000 to the project will get his name placed on that station.

The course will be an 8-foot wide asphalt pavement with grass on both sides to give runners a choice of surfaces. The interior of the course will be left "in its natural state."

The council unanimously accepted the idea, and money from the individuals, and will advertise for bids on the work. Kohout said he hopes construction can begin in January and be completed in three months.

The council also approved extending Dengar Avenue into the parking lot.

The city panel heard about 22 appeals from property owners who weren't satisfied with the adjustment given them by the Tax Board of Appeals.

After lodging complaints about their overly high valuations, the council reviewed the information on each piece of property. In some cases, the valuations were left standing. In others, the council re-adjusted the amounts downward after looking at similar property in the same area.

Ordinance amended on freight-loading zones

The City Council has amended a parking ordinance for freight-loading zones. As of Oct. 1, certain vehicles with a permit from the city may park in the white freight-loading zones for 30 minutes — if delivering an item that weighs 25 pounds or more, said Police Lt. H.M. Wicker.

The permit is available for $50 from the traffic division of the Midland Police Department.

Vehicles parking in the zones must have the company's name, address and telephone number on both doors in letters of a contrasting color and at least two inches high. The permit from the city must be on the sun visor, on the dashboard or in a place clearly visible to the parking control attendants, Wicker said.

"These are tow-away zones," he added, "and they will be enforced."

Defense attorneys to launch their case in KKK, Nazi trial

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — After seven weeks of listening to prosecution evidence, defense attorneys for six Ku Klux Klansmen and American Nazis were going to court today to present their side of the case stemming from the deaths of five communist sympathizers.

The first defense witness, reportedly an FBI agent, was lined up to be called at the conclusion of the defense's opening statements.

The Klansmen and Nazis are charged with murder and felonious rioting in the shooting deaths of five demonstrators at a November "Death to the Klan" rally sponsored by the Communist Workers Party.

Superior Court Judge James M. Long on Tuesday denied a defense motion calling for the dismissal or reduction of all charges against the Klansmen and Nazis — the first of 22 people to be tried on charges stemming from the confrontation at a Greensboro intersection. Long also denied a prosecution request to take jurors to the scene of the bloody violence.

The state, which had tentatively ended its presentation last week, rested its case shortly before the lunch recess Tuesday. Jurors were sent home as court officials spent the afternoon making motions and giving arguments.

Defense attorneys objected to the prosecution's effort to take the jury to the scene of the gunfire, contending it could lead to a mistrial.

"I don't want to see the hundreds and hundreds of hours we've spent on these cases go down the drain," attorney Percy Wall said. "The risk we run would far outweigh any benefit to the jurors."

District attorney Mike Schlosser said he wanted the jurors to visit the scene so they could see the small area where the killings took place.

You need your own Survival Kit™ in this changing financial world.

Inflation and taxes go hand in hand to damage many people's plans for financial independence and a comfortable retirement. Inflation puts you in a higher tax bracket without increasing your buying power. And those higher taxes eat into the growth of your savings. One answer is the Survival Kit. It defers federal and state income taxes on the interest your savings earn. The dollars that otherwise would go for tax stay in place to earn interest on themselves. Depending on your tax bracket, your savings can grow twice as fast.

The Survival Kit can offer you this lifesaving advantage in growth because it is a group annuity plan underwritten by American Life and Casualty Insurance Company. But it is nothing like the traditional annuity which holds funds at a low, fixed rate of return.

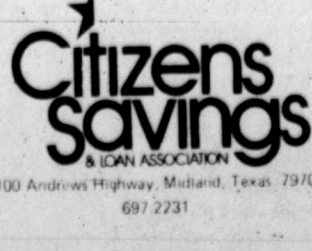

Instead, it combines the advantages of modern, high-return certificate savings, with the advantages made possible by this annuity plan. In addition to the crucial deferral of taxes, you gain surprising withdrawal privileges, a variety of valuable estate planning benefits, and the option of choosing between lifetime retirement income payments or any other form of withdrawal that meets your needs. Call us today for full information on all the ways the Survival Kit can help you plan your future in this changing financial world.

Your Survival Kit outperforms ordinary savings after retirement

Table comparing spendable income and balance remaining after 10 years for $100,000 withdrawals. Survival Kit shows higher spendable income and lower balance remaining compared to ordinary savings.

Generally, withdrawals from a Survival Kit are not subject to taxes until the full amount of the original deposit has been withdrawn. Meanwhile, the earnings continue to accumulate on a tax-deferred basis. In ordinary savings plans, interest is taxed as it is earned, whether withdrawn or not. Come in now for the Survival Kit you need to meet the changing financial realities of today.

Library again collecting items

Book-browsers' bargain session slated

By ED TODD Staff Writer

The time of year which holds glee for browsing book collectors and work for Friends of the Library is drawing nigh.

It's the 13th annual Book and Record (and whatnot) Sale for benefit of the Midland County Public Library on Oct. 17, 18, and 19 at the Midland County Exhibit Building.

Meanwhile, the sale's sponsor, the Friends of the Library, is collecting books, records, high-quality periodicals, rare journals, technical material and related and sorted items which book browsers might be interested in.

Those wishing to donate books and other material befitting a home library may bring them by the public library's "Book Barn" — the old American Legion Hall — behind the library at 303 W. Missouri Ave. between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. today through Saturday.

This week marks the thrust of the Friends' collection of books for the sale. However, books for inclusion in the sale may be brought by the public library at any time during regular library hours.

We do need many contributions in September for a successful sale in October. Gerald W. Hickman, the Friends' president and book-sale chairman, said in a recent memo to the Friends membership...

In addition to books, records and related literary material, the Friends in the past have taken in garage sale-type items to be included in the annual sale.

Traditionally, Hickman said, "people have donated toys and puzzles — puzzles that are all there, preferably. Paperback and hard-bound books may be donated to the Friends for the sale."

Paperback and hard-bound books may be donated to the Friends for the sale. Also solicited by the Friends are technical and special-interest magazines, as well as high-quality periodicals...

Proceeds from the sale will be used for the benefit of the library, Hickman said. Funds are used for capital improvement of the library.

Last year, the Friends netted about $5,500 from the sale, which drew between 1,500 and 2,000 browsers who snatched up, perused or swooped up the 25,000 volumes offered in the sale.

Books and "objects" in the sale will be moved from storage at the "Book Barn" to the Exhibit Building beginning on Oct. 12.

Run-of-the-mill books in the main collection will be sold for 25 cents each and will make up the bulk of the sale. Books deemed of greater value will be assigned various prices and will be set aside in a special area in the Exhibit Building.

As a rule, books still on display in the waning hours of the sale's last day are sold for a dollar a yard.

Browsers in the Friends' Early Birds Sale from 6 to 9 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 17, will be admitted to the sale for $2 each. Admission will be $1 when the sale continues from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 18 and from 1 to 6 p.m. on Oct. 19.

If the world sometimes appears upside down, don't be alarmed or astonished such as this trio. Your perspective may be out of kilter. The threesome put on a momentary act to point to the need for donated books for the Friends of the Library's 13th annual booksale Oct. 17, 18, and 19.

Folsom narrowly wins runoff

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Jim Folsom Jr., a youthful candidate with one of Alabama's most celebrated political names, worked to unite the state's Democrats today after upsetting U.S. Sen. Donald Stewart in a close primary runoff.

Folsom, 31, claimed a narrow victory — so narrow that Stewart withheld any concession speech Tuesday night — and prepared to face the Republican Senate nominee, Jeremiah Denton, on Nov. 4.

Folsom's father, former two-term Gov. James E. Folsom, fashioned a legend in the 1940s and 1950s with his barnstorming campaigns and his colorful rural populism. At 6-foot-8, he was known in his heyday as "Big Jim" and "Kissin' Jim."

While acknowledging the help his father's name gave him, young Folsom said his campaign is no replica of those his father waged more than two decades ago.

"Different times and different periods dictate different stands on the issues," he said.

Folsom, who was born in the governor's mansion and is a first cousin to former Alabama first lady Corelia Wallace, carried 44 of the state's 67 counties.

Virtually complete returns showed Folsom ousted Stewart by some 6,000 votes out of more than 400,000. The unofficial count showed Folsom with 203,829 votes, or 51 percent. Stewart had 197,778 votes, or 49 percent.

Stewart, 40, a moderate who won a 1978 special election to serve out the remaining two years of the term of the late Sen. James B. Allen, retired for the night saying "hopefully in the morning" the outcome would be different.

Folsom, a Public Service Commission member with little government experience, didn't enter the race until July and had little cash. A full head shorter than his father and with little of his passionate campaign style,

Connally, Clements stump for Reagan

Taking figures compiled by Clements, Connally added, "Of $250 billion expected from this tax, Clements has made a detailed study of what it will cost Texas. It will be $13 billion each year over the next 10 years for a total of $130 billion. Texas will be paying half of that."

Capitalizing on those figures, Connally showed that by comparison the Texas state government only spends $11 billion a year.

"It will penalize us for generations to come," said a prescient Connally.

He contended there isn't a shortage of energy resources in this country, just a lack of leadership in getting and using those resources.

Questioned later about his preference for nuclear power plants, he described that type of energy as safer than all the others combined. Citing statistics of people killed in the oil and gas industry and in automobiles, he claimed "there is an inordinate fear of nuclear power."

After chastising Carter's policies, Connally preached that "Gov. Reagan has shown us the way," and rattled off that candidate's proposed policies. "Our objective is to turn this country around, get some leadership in Washington."

"WE NEED TO rebuild this country...our hopes and aspirations that this is the greatest nation on the face of this earth and we are the most productive people. All these problems, they're your problems. We can turn this country around. We ask you to give something of yourself," he boomed.

Almost as if to complete the revival scenario, he continued, "We're not holding a conversion here today. No one asked you to come down front." He paused for a long, quiet minute before adding, "Although it wouldn't be a bad idea."

The first time the former Democrat voted Republican, he said he was sure to hear thunder rolling down from the heavens. But Connally went into the voting booth, pulled the GOP levers, opened the curtains "and I felt cleansed and purified. When you feel the moving spirit," he added to the audience's laughter, "don't worry about it."

The Republican group flew on to San Angelo for an afternoon rally and to Brownfield for a barbecue supper.

young Folsom pegged Stewart as too liberal for Alabama.

Depicting himself as the conservative candidate, he forced a runoff in the Sept. 2 primary. Then he passed Stewart in the runoff Tuesday, winning many rural counties and some large ones, such as Madison and Tuscaloosa, in which he had trailed three weeks earlier.

In his victory speech, Folsom said Denton would be a "formidable opponent." The GOP nominee is a conservative who was venerated for his unswerving patriotism during 7 1/2 years as a prisoner of war in North Vietnam.

Folsom said he would launch a general election campaign "that will represent all of Alabama." And to do that, he said he hopes to mend the political wounds that developed during his bitter runoff campaign against Stewart, whom Folsom once called "the worst senator in Alabama history."

tabled for further study. The council authorized an operating contract between the MidTran bus system and Gerald D. Hines Interests, which represents Midland National Bank. When the bank begins its expansion with construction of a matching tower, virtually all existing parking at the bank will be eliminated.

An additional parking area some distance from the bank will be used until construction is completed. Hines Interests will be buying a bus and MidTran will supply the drivers and maintenance. The bus will be used as a 12-hour-a-day, five days a week shuttle for bank employees and customers from the parking area to the bank.

The council voted an overall increase of 10 percent in all categories of garbage service. The increased garbage collection rates will go into effect Oct. 15, which will be the next billing date.

Another office building for the downtown area looks likely as council members heard no complaints during a public hearing on zone changes for the area north of Louisiana Avenue between Colorado and Baird Streets. The zone change will be made official at a second reading on Oct. 14.

The zone changes include zones from MF-2 (multiple family district), IF-2 (one family district) and PD (planned district for housing development) to MF-2, O-1 and O-2 (office districts).

C.W. Craig, who said he represented Lief and Ellis contractors who have planned the new building, said the construction contracts were already signed and the zone changes were the only thing needed to get started on the buildings.

"The availability of office buildings in the downtown area is almost critical," Craig told the council members, adding that parking was also "very critical." The proposed building, he said would "expand the office area" of downtown and have self-contained parking available.

ART BUCHWALD

'Invisible bomber' story a way to keep costs down

WASHINGTON — I am one of those reporters who will buy any conspiracy theory, provided that it's leaked to me. The latest one was planted by a friend, Art Kranish, concerning the "Stealth" bomber, known as the invisible plane because the Soviets cannot spot it with their radar.

There has been a tremendous political flap over the fact that the Pentagon had confirmed we were building it. Many brave retired generals and admirals have said that the leak will give the Soviets a 10-year start to come up with a system for making the invisible bomber visible. It has been called by the Republicans, "one of the greatest security blunders in American history."

Maybe. But Kranish has another theory.

Here is how he presented it to me. "The only way we can win the arms race with the Soviets is if they go broke first. Since it is too expensive to build everything to fight an all-out war, the Pentagon chiefs have come up with a new plan. They are going to purposely leak stories about weapons they have no intention of building, so that the Soviets will spend billions of rubles, and thousands of man hours devising ways of combating them. The Russians will be so busy trying to come up with an answer to the "Stealth" bomber that they won't have time to develop one of their own.

"But that's dirty pool," I said.

"We have no choice," I said. "We have to play hardball in order to catch up with them. You saw the shock in the U.S. when we announced we were working on the 'Stealth' bomber. You can imagine how it must have hit the Kremlin. They've probably rounded up every scientist in Minsk, Pinsk and Smolensk to come up with an answer to it."

"What happens when the Soviets discover we have no intention of building an invisible bomber?"

"Then the Pentagon will leak a story that they are going to build an invisible submarine instead. The Soviets will have to scrap all their electronic defenses for the bomber, and start all over again trying to figure out how to spot an invisible submarine."

"It makes a lot of sense, particularly since it won't cost any money. But won't the Soviets wise up eventually and be suspicious of the Pentagon leaks?" I asked.

"Exactly. At some point, the Russian military intelligence, which was burned by so many U.S. defense leaks, will start to ignore them. That's when our military boys make their move. They will leak that they have decided to build an invisible aircraft carrier. The Soviets will think this is more 'disinformation' being put out by our side, and will do nothing about it. But this time we'll go ahead with the plans, and the commies will wake up one morning and see hundreds of invisible aircraft carriers off their shores."

"If they're invisible how will they see them?"

"Because we'll deny they are there. The fact that they can't see them will put the fear of God into the Russkies, and will bring them to their senses."

"Why can't the Soviets do the same thing to us?"

"Do what?"

"Leak a story that they're going to build an invisible bomber, and have us spend billions of dollars to build a system to stop it."

"They have done it. That's where the Pentagon got the idea in the first place."

"One last question," I said. "How do I know that you're not leaking this story to me because we really intend to go ahead with the 'Stealth' bomber, and we want the Soviets to believe we're not?"

He replied, smiling, "That's for me to know, and for you and the Soviets to find out."

A delayed judgment

The opportunity presented itself to both Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan and independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson Sunday night. But they didn't take it, for the most part.

Both presidential candidates had more than enough opportunity during the fall's first presidential debate to scold President Jimmy Carter for not showing up. Carter, as you surely recall, turned down an invitation to participate in the debate because Anderson was included.

The president had said he would welcome the opportunity to meet Reagan in a one-on-one debate, but that he believed Anderson's participation in the debate would detract from the participation of he and Reagan.

But both men refused to stoop to that political "low," preferring instead to actually debate one another. And that's what they did, more or less.

Of course, that's not to say that the two men ignored the fact that the president was absent. They didn't. Each made somewhat pointed comments about "the man who is not here."

But they did not dwell on Carter's absence; the point was made and made well. It wasn't overemphasized; mercy was shown.

Each man handled himself extremely well. Each afforded this nation a degree of his political philosophy as he discussed energy, tax cuts, abortion, the MX missile and the draft.

Following the debate, Anderson was ruled the winner by a seven-member panel of forensic experts. But that's the judgment of the panel members on how the men "performed." That does not translate into political savvy or the ability to lead the nation.

Few would argue that the debate was stellar in quality. It wasn't. The two men stated, as much as anything, their campaign platforms. In fact, from a standpoint of pure debate, the performance was sorely lacking.

But when all is said and done, Sunday night's debate — whether it is the only one held this year or not — accomplished the purpose for which it was staged: It provided information to the voting public. With the information already in hand and with the information that will be acquired between now and Nov. 4, voters will have the opportunity to make their decisions on the candidate to support.

As John Anderson noted following Sunday's debate, the real judges for the debate were "the great viewing audience" and they're not talking until Nov. 4.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter changes nuclear option in Mideast

WASHINGTON — In an ominous development, President Carter has issued secret directives to the Pentagon to prepare the option of using nuclear weapons in the volatile Middle East.

There have been hints of such a possibility in the past. Carter's state of the union address last January, for example, declared that "an attempt by any outside force to gain control of the Persian Gulf will be regarded as an assault on the vital interests of the United States (and) will be repelled by use of any means necessary."

And Robert Komer, undersecretary of defense for policy, publicly stated that if conventional deterrents in the Middle East failed, the use of nuclear weapons would be considered. But in secret directives, the president has spelled out the nuclear option clearly and explicitly.

In Presidential Decision Memorandum No. 51, Carter outlined a new U.S. nuclear policy for the Middle East. But this memo was ignored in the furor over Presidential Directive 59, which changed U.S. missile targets in the Soviet Union.

The contents of PDM No. 51 and related documents, including a directive to the Strategic Air Command from Defense Secretary Harold Brown, are designed to "significantly degrade Soviet capabilities to project military power in the Middle East-Persian Gulf region for a period of at least 30 days."

To accomplish this, the president ordered the formulation of various military options, my associate Dale Van Atta has learned. The most significant of these was the "limited strategic option" for use by the commander of the Rapid Deployment Force, Gen. P.X. Kelley.

Subject to the usual presidential authorization for use of any nuclear weapons, this option involves 15 nuclear bombs carried by B-52 bombers. The aim is to keep Soviet forces from invading Iran, and the weapons include both B-57 bombs, with an explosive power about equal to the Hiroshima bomb, and the more powerful B-61 variable yield thermonuclear bombs.

Sources said Carter ordered his planners to formulate several additional limited strategic options, as well as a more far-reaching "selective attack option" that would target Russian facilities near Iran, including military bases and airfields inside the Soviet Union.

Military experts noted that with a B-52 force — the SAC's 57th Air Division at Minot Air Force Base, N.D. — already earmarked for Middle East deployment, the bombers would be the most likely vehicle for nuclear weapons, rather than long-range missiles in silos in the United States. The bombers are far more flexible, one source pointed out, adding, "If we screw around with our ICBMs, you don't know what the response would be."

"Flexible" does not mean "reasonable," however, in the view of some insiders. They contend that the concept of limited nuclear warfare confined to the Middle East is a child's dream that could become a nightmare for the whole world.

"If we initiate tactical nuclear warfare in that area, we are opening a Pandora's box," said one Pentagon source who is alarmed at the idea of preparing strategic options for the Middle East. "The Soviets could respond with tactical nuclear weapons against our warships in the Persian Gulf area, and who knows where it would go from there?"

Footnote: A White House spokesman refused to confirm or deny the contents of PDM No. 51, or to discuss U.S. nuclear policy with respect to the Middle East.

JIMMY'S LATEST: Our political odds man is out with his latest pick — and it's Ronald Reagan.

Unimpressed by the latest polls, Jimmy the Greek still makes Reagan a 2-and-one-half-to-1 favorite over Jimmy Carter to win in November. Jimmy has zeroed in on the states with many electoral votes, and here's how he sees Reagan winning.

New York (41) — Carter carried in 1976, but the unhappy Jewish voters — given John Anderson as a Liberal Party alternative — will tip the scales for Reagan.

New Jersey (17) — Ford carried last time. It's close, but Reagan has the edge.

Pennsylvania (27) — Carter and Reagan are even right now, but if Reagan can nail enough of the ethnic vote, he's got it.

Florida (17) — Carter won here four years ago, but resentment over his handling of the Cuban and Haitian refugee problem in heavily populated Dade and Broward Counties may give the state to Reagan.

Michigan (21) — Gerald Ford took the state with 54 percent of the vote. Reagan's not as strong as the native son was, but the depression in the auto industry should work to Reagan's advantage.

Ohio (25) — Carter won by an eyelash — 15,000 votes — in 1976. But unemployment in the steel, glass and rubber industries helps Reagan, and the state's Conservative Party, which sat it out last time, is working enthusiastically for Reagan.

Illinois (26) — Reagan's native-son status and discontent among blue-collar workers put this in the Republican column.

WATCH ON WASTE: The Pentagon's philosophy on expenditure of public funds was made stunningly clear the other day. One of my reporters called to inquire about a contract for 300,000 laminated-plastic recipe cards to be used by bartenders at the Army's officers' clubs and enlisted men's saloons around the world.

The bids aren't in yet, but the cost is expected to run somewhere between $5,000 and $10,000. When my reporter suggested that perhaps the military pubs could get along — as they have for decades — without official guidelines, the Pentagon spokeswoman observed brightly that "even if it is wasting money," printing the recipe cards will "still be providing jobs to someone."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 24, the 268th day of 1980. There are 98 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 24, 1963, the U.S. Senate ratified a treaty with Britain and the Soviet Union limiting nuclear tests.

In 1780, Benedict Arnold escaped to a British ship after trying to betray West Point fortifications during the American Revolution.

In 1789, John Jay was named the nation's first chief justice by President George Washington.

In 1869, thousands of businessmen were ruined in a Wall Street crash known as "Black Friday."

In 1934, Babe Ruth made his farewell appearance as a regular player with the New York Yankees.

Ten years ago, Palestinian guerrillas agreed to peace terms to end fighting with Jordanian forces.

Five years ago, the Senate Intelligence Committee disclosed it had opened foreign letters to and from prominent American political leaders between 1953 and 1973.

Last year, the Justice Department disclosed that President Carter's brother, Billy, had taken the preliminary steps toward declaring himself an agent of the government of Libya.

Today's birthdays: Astronaut John Young is 50 years old. British actor Anthony Newley is 49.

NICK THIMMESCH

'Preponderant leader' held onto his power with bullets

WASHINGTON — Anastasio Somoza glowered at the world like an annoyed bullfrog. He was so easy to dislike. As a dictator, he was in a calling repugnant to the American uplift notion of public service. He oppressed more than he led his backward country. He owned so much that he greedily claimed a piece of the action when a local volcano, Momotombo, was to be tapped as an energy source.

Somoza's rule finished last year when he quit his dogged fight against Sandinista guerrillas, and fled to Paraguay, a sanctuary for right-wingers. His life ended there last week when machine gun bullets pierced his white Mercedes and chopped his body to pieces.

In an era when human rights Pecksniff smile fondly on terrorists who displace patriots like Somoza, this dictator took on cardboard dimensions. But a more interesting man lurked behind the cardboard. Somoza was cynical about his strong-man rule, and yet there was a streak of idealism which caused him to feel supremely loyal to the U.S., to fight Communism, and to risk his life while knowing that his own father died from assassins' bullets.

"I don't aspire to be in this job all my life," he told me when I saw him in December 1977 at Montelimar, then his seaside estate some 50 miles from Managua. "I will be happy to leave in 1980. I have been a professional public servant since I was 20."

Somoza "left" in 1980 as an assassinated exile, not as a public servant. He left as a fat corpse of a man who tried to relieve his malaise with food, drink and women.

When I saw him at Montelimar, he was testy about the way the Carter administration and the press were nism and the Social Security system.

His strongest, most vocal opponent was his childhood chum, Pedro Joaquin Chomorro, editor of La Prensa, Nicaragua's biggest newspaper, which poured daily vitriol on Somoza. I had difficulty getting an interview with Chomorro, and when Somoza heard this, he arranged it just to show how "open" his country was.

Chomorro told me his hate for Somoza compounded after Somoza once personally supervised his torture (beatings, lights shined in eyes, sleep denial). "It would be undignified for me to talk to him now," Chomorro said when Somoza affected to seek public reconciliation.

Chomorro was killed a few weeks after I saw him. I am convinced that Somoza had nothing to do with it because he needed a straw-man opponent like Chomorro to show off to Americans. But Chomorro's murder sparked a national strike, and from then on, it was all downhill for Somoza.

There was a swelling of violence. The Sandinistas, equipped by Cuba and other Communist sources, were brutal and so were Somoza's guardsmen, using American and Israeli weapons. Nicaragua always had a plenitude of guns. When I was driven to Montelimar over a desolate, hilly road, ideal for ambush, a machine gun kept falling to the floor from the driver's seat. I once opened the door in Managua and faced a guard pointing a rifle at my head.

Somoza argued that "everybody hears about terrorism, but you don't feel this disease until it hits you. The U.S. is so large that the only way terrorism affects you is through hijacking." But Somoza's own brand of terrorism was so disgusting, and his ability to keep Nicaragua stable so questioned, that businessmen and Catholic clergy joined his enemies to hope for his downfall.

He lost American military aid and the services of his Washington lawyer, Clark Clifford. He became a favorite target of the American press. He flailed around desperately, forgiving enemies, and trying to act democratic, but it didn't work. Only his mistress and his most loyal and sycophantic aides stuck with him. He must have sensed that he didn't have too many more years when he told me just before Christmas 1977:

"It's easier in today's world to become a leader, but since the population is more lax, it's more difficult to become a preponderant leader. In the next generation, Latin American leaders will be better educated, and more open-minded. There won't be room for Somozas."

So the "preponderant leader" — a dictator who held power with bullets — died from a rain of bullets at age 54, just one year short of the life expectancy of any Nicaraguan. There were no U.S. Marines to save him.

Refugee plan sparks furor

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The Carter Administration's decision to send Cuban and Haitian refugees to a Navy base in Puerto Rico has stirred up a political furor on this Caribbean island 200 miles from Haiti and 400 miles from Cuba.

Dozens of residents of the south coast, where the base is located, called radio stations to say the refugees would not be welcome, and the political enemies of Gov. Carlos Romero Barceló lambasted the choice. One said it would make Puerto Rico "the garbage dump" of the Caribbean.

Many of the objections centered on Puerto Rico's already high unemployment, officially 17 percent, and on fears that criminals or mentally ill Cubans would cause trouble near the base.

In Ponce, a city about six miles southwest of the planned refugee center at Fort Allen, radio stations received calls denouncing the idea.

"We have almost 20 percent unemployment already in Juana Diaz," said an aide to the mayor of that town, which includes the fort.

Fort Allen has been used as a Navy communications base and houses 300 military personnel but was scheduled to close Sept. 30, according to Navy spokesman Lt. Steve Chesser.

Miguel Hernandez Agosto, president of the Popular Democratic Party, Romero's major opposition, said the governor's approval of the plan was "totally unacceptable." He said the island now has too high a rate of unemployment to afford its traditional open-arms policy toward refugees from totalitarian regimes.

A candidate for non-voting delegate to Congress, Jose Arsenio Torres, added, "humanitarian questions about the Cubans and Haitians aren't at issue here, but humanitarian questions for Puerto Ricans."

Baltasar Corrada del Rio, Puerto Rico's non-voting delegate to Washington and a member of Romero's pro-statehood New Progressive Party, said the White House had assured him that criminals and the mentally ill would not be among those sent here.

The number of people to be housed at Fort Allen was unclear. The White House said the camp was equipped for 1,000 to 2,500 refugees immediately, and within 60 days could house between 4,500 and 5,000. Romero, who said he had agreed to the proposal on the condition that no more than 800 refugees would be at the fort at a time, could not immediately be reached for comment.

Advocates of independence for the U.S. Commonwealth were among the first to oppose the plan.

Strike leader applying for labor charter

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Strike hero Lech Walesa applies today to register an independent, nationwide labor federation, but a Warsaw court has already objected to one of the 13 applications it has received from other labor groups.

Several dozen local union organizers showered the leader of last month's strikes on the Baltic coast with flowers as he led them on a 30-minute march through deserted streets Tuesday night following his arrival from Gdansk. They carried the Polish flag and a banner reading "Independent, Self-Governing Trade Unions."

The right to form unions free of Communist Party control, unprecedented in the Soviet Bloc, was the chief concession made by the party to end the strike wave that began along the Baltic coast, spread across the nation and forced party chief Edward Gierek to retire.

But the nascent independent unions are encountering obstacles. The Warsaw district court, which must process union registrations, objected Tuesday to the application for a charter submitted by a committee claiming to represent 14,000 workers in the Silesian city of Katowice.

Labor sources said the court objected to the committee's plans to set up a nationwide organization, to enroll members from other industries and to get financing from sources other than membership dues.

There was speculation that the court would raise the same objections to Walesa's application. One source speculated that the government intends to discourage formation of large regional or nationwide organizations to fragment the independent labor movement. And if their funds were limited to membership dues, the source said, small independent unions would find it almost impossible to maintain a headquarters, pay a staff and challenge the official labor structure dominated by the Communist Party.

Walesa heads a federation of unions called Solidarity, with headquarters in Gdansk, that plans to set up 17 regional, autonomous divisions with members drawn from all the trades and professions and separate chapters in each factory.

Meanwhile, the government on Tuesday named a special committee to draft amendments to the labor laws incorporating the reforms promised in the Gdansk strike agreement. Walesa was one of those named.

Kremlin's hold may be slipping

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Concessions to labor and religion by the communist government of Poland and native opposition to the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan are indications the Kremlin's political grip may be slipping, says Alf M. Landon.

"The Polish workers' strike, and even the token American union contribution to it, may be the beginning of the end of the monolithic communism practiced by the Russian politburo," the 1936 Republican presidential nominee said in a statement made public today.

"But we shouldn't be too optimistic," he added. "The wounded tiger is far more dangerous than the well-fed one."

Landon, who observed his 93rd birthday on Sept. 9, said he issued the statement because he doesn't think sufficient significance has been attached to developments in Poland and communist bloc countries.

"Religion is, in the Marxist view, the opiate of the people," he said. "Now, after 30-odd years, communist Russia is finding that is not true, and the Roman Catholic Church in Poland is impossible to ignore. The state radio of Poland broadcast Mass Sunday for the first time in more than 30 years, a remarkable development."

"It is significant that American trade unions have made a small contribution to the new Polish unions. It is possible the spread of independent unions may bring the downfall of Russian communism. Yugoslav socialism can be cited as another deviant example from Communism."

Landon also said the Soviet Union may have learned the lesson taught other empire nations: "A hegemony of colonies eventually is more trouble than they are worth, despite the riches of initial exploitation."

Sheriff in Ecuador called 'Ayatollah of Guayaquil'

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — You can't buy a beer on Sunday in this sweltering equatorial seaport. The sheriff won't allow it.

Guayaquil, with a population of more than 1 million, is Ecuador's largest city, located two degrees south of the equator on the wide and muddy Guayas River.

And until Sheriff Abdallah Bucaram was appointed by the Ministry of Government last year, it was a typical tropical port with all-night dance halls, exotic women and a sensuous climate reputed to induce a measure of laxity in public morals and attitudes.

But when Bucaram instituted strict adherence to a set of 16 rules he himself calls "Abdallah's Commandments," disgruntled citizens quickly nicknamed him the "Ayatollah of Guayaquil."

Bucaram, whose grandparents were Lebanese immigrants, is a Roman Catholic, as are most of the thousands of people with Lebanese backgrounds in Guayaquil.

His 16 commandments, tacked to the wall behind his desk, implore the citizenry to love their country and to respect motherhood.

They tell those with modern plumbing in their homes to share the facilities with less fortunate citizens. Merchants are ordered to stick to official food prices and doctors are warned to maintain reasonable fees.

The commandments prohibit the sale of fireworks, playing soccer in the streets, selling alcoholic beverages all day Sunday and after midnight other days, throwing water-filled balloons during carnival, bribery, extortion and all other crimes.

"You will take your paycheck home. Don't leave it in the canteen," says the 16th commandment.

Bucaram strictly enforces his personal interpretation of the law.

He has sent 3,000 men to jail for urinating in the streets. He routinely closes bars which serve drinks after hours and confiscates overpriced groceries, distributing them free to shantytowns.

He once shut down the city's top three hotels, ordering their guests out of their rooms in the middle of the night, because the owners allegedly treated his inspectors rudely.

He has collected the equivalent of $1.3 million in fines in one year, more than previous sheriffs accomplished in 50 years.

Dressed in an open-necked, tropical shirt, a cross dangling on a chain around his neck, Bucaram claimed in an interview that he was the first honest sheriff in Guayaquil's history.

He is at least well-connected politically. President Jaime Roldos is his brother-in-law. His uncle is Asaad Bucaram, a powerful member of Congress who is locked in a perpetual power struggle with Roldos.

The sheriff sides with Roldos, calling him "the greatest man of all Latin America for being the youngest president of all time." Roldos is 39. Bu-caram is 28.

Bucaram denied his attitude toward law and order and public morals was the "act of an intransigent ayatollah." He said the dry laws had reduced traffic accidents and crimes on Sunday and saved some wages for wives and children.

Still, the sheriff's style draws mixed reactions.

Guayaquil theater owners went on strike after he closed a theater for showing "Luna," a film by Italian director Bernardo Bertolucci which deals with incest between a mother and son.

The Association of Bars, Restaurants and Taverns protested his dry laws by filing a complaint with the national Tribunal of Constitutional Guarantees, demanding Bucaram's political rights be suspended.

The Tribunal agreed the dry laws had no legal basis and recommended the Ministry of Government apply administrative sanctions against him. The case is pending.

In the meantime, Bucaram — who says the Tribunal's ruling would only guarantee "the right of the Ecuadorean people to make brutes of themselves with alcohol" — continues to enforce his commandment against late-hour and Sunday liquor sales.

And in the capital of Quito, the newspaper "El Tiempo" editorialized about "our home-grown Khomeini" and reported how he reacted to a woman who entered his office wearing a dress with side slits.

Cable TV industry hiring more minorities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cable television industry recorded gains last year in its employment of both women and minorities, but the percentage of minority workers still lags behind the performance of radio and TV broadcasters.

According to figures released by the Federal Communications Commission, the cable industry's employment of women rose from 29.5 percent in 1978 to 31.9 percent in 1979, or 7,968 of the total 24,875 workers counted last year. In 1978, 6,480 of 21,924 workers were women.

In addition, the number of minority workers in the industry rose from 11.6 percent to 12.1 percent last year, or from 2,558 in 1978 to 3,059.

The cable employment report is compiled annually using information provided by all cable companies with five or more full-time employees. The information is broken into two sections, one providing the figures for the industry nationwide and a second providing figures on employees at the headquarters of companies which own more than one cable system.

DPS seeks trooper applicants

The Department of Public Safety's 49-county West Texas Region is accepting applications for troopers. Applicants selected will be assigned to the next training school which begins Jan. 13, 1981.

"Applicants," said Major Ira W. Dees, regional commander of the West Texas-Region, "must be between the ages of 20 to 35 having weight within 2 to 3 pounds per inch of height for males, or 1 1/4 to 2 1/2 per inch of height for females, have no less than 20/200 vision and have at least 60 semester hours of college credit. In addition applicants must be in excellent physical condition, be of good moral character and a citizen of the United States."

Those selected as recruits will be assigned to Austin for an 18-week training school beginning Jan. 13, 1981, at the Homer Garrison Jr. Law Enforcement Academy. Successful graduates will be assigned to either the Highway Patrol Service, License and Weight Service, Motor Vehicle Inspection Service or the Driver License Service, according to the needs of the DPS and consideration of personal preference.

The salary is $1,034 per month during the 18-week training period and goes to $1,178 per month upon completion of the school," Dees said. Uniforms, uniform cleaning, vehicle, weapons, ammunition and necessary equipment are furnished. Group life and hospitalization insurance are provided and travel expenses are paid when the trooper is away from home station.

Vacation, holidays and sick leave are provided and troopers become members of the Texas Employee Retirement System. Dees said the Department of Public Safety now has a trooper in each region assigned to recruiting activities, such as contacting colleges, radio stations, TV stations and individuals concerning employment. The trooper assigned in this region is Michael Espinoza. Persons interested in contacting Trooper Espinoza may call 915-697-2211 or write P.O. Box 4367, Midland, Texas 79704.

Applications may be obtained at any DPS office. Applications will be turned in to offices in Midland, Abilene, San Angelo and El Paso for screening. If all is in order the applicant can be tested in El Paso at 8 a.m. Monday through Friday; in Abilene at 8 a.m. each Tuesday; in San Angelo at 9 a.m. each Wednesday and in Midland at 9 a.m. each Thursday.

Applicants will be given written tests, physical capacity and physical agility tests. Those who pass these tests will undergo a background and character investigation as well as a physical examination.

Dees said, "The Department is an equal opportunity employer and we need both men and women from all races. Those interested should contact the Department as soon as possible to be considered for the January 13th school."

A lesson in incumbent candidacy

Carter waging 'Rose Garden' battle

By WALTER R. MEARS

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — In the warm sunshine of a hillside patio, Jimmy Carter was talking about a crisis half a world away. He'd just been on the scrambler telephone, the campaigning president said, in coded conversation with top advisers about the conflict between Iran and Iraq. It was a lesson in the incumbent's use of the White House, as Carter waged his peace-or-war campaign against Republican Ronald Reagan. "I have to deal with... potential crises for all of you," Carter told about 80 Democrats at a $500-per-ticket fundraising reception outside a rambling house in Portland, Ore. "If I handle a question well, then perhaps you don't ever know about it." Carter said that if he doesn't do it well, the consequences could be catastrophic. He spent a good part of his Los Angeles-to-Tacoma, campaign day suggesting that Reagan couldn't handle crises well. He accused the Republican nominee of habitually advocating the use of American military forces abroad. There has been none of that in his White House years, Carter said. Then he turned to the crisis at hand: "Today I've been monitoring very closely and dealing to some degree with the combat between Iran and Iraq. It's a disturbing thing. I've just been on the phone, the secure telephone that has encoded voices, going back and forth, with Dr. (Zbigniew) Brzezinski, and earlier with Secretary (of Defense Harold) Brown."

Anderson funding not problem

NEW YORK (AP) — John B. Anderson's independent presidential campaign may falter, but not for lack of funds, according to senior campaign officials. Campaign aides say even before Anderson appeared in Sunday's debate with Republican Ronald Reagan, private contributions to the campaign had sharply increased. Last week, contributors gave $620,000, mainly in responses to direct mail appeals. That compares to $450,000 the previous week and $100,000 the week following the Democratic National Convention.

Anderson's television exposure during the debate with Reagan in Baltimore gave a new boost to campaign finances, according to fundraisers. Perhaps more importantly, aides say they are confident Anderson will be able to borrow about $7 million from banks in New York and Chicago. Anderson supporters were asked to hold fundraising parties at home with their neighbors while watching the Anderson-Reagan debate. Anderson's aides said that within a few weeks they expect to have a pool of about 220,000 persons whom they will tap for direct mail contributions between now and election day. That money is to go for a two-week television advertising blitz in the latter half of October. The loans, which will probably not be completely negotiated for another week, are based on a favorable Federal Election Commission ruling which will give Anderson public campaign financing if he receives at least five percent of the vote in the Nov. 4 election. At a news conference in Harrisburg, Pa., Tuesday, Anderson said there are "reports" aides to President Carter circulated a memo among New York bankers seeking to dissuade them from loaning Anderson any money. Sources said Mitchell Regovin, a campaign lawyer, was told of the memo by New York banking officials. The memo questioned whether Anderson could be legally loaned money with only the possible likelihood of a favorable percentage of the vote in November as collateral. Assessing the campaign's financial status, one Anderson campaign source said, "Anderson may never become president but it won't be for lack of money."

Ronald Reagan takes swing at Texas electoral votes today

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan planned to stump for votes in Texas today in an effort to swing the state's 26 crucial electoral votes into the GOP column in November. Reagan scheduled a speech before 4,500 clothing workers at the Farah Manufacturing Co. plant in El Paso after campaigning for votes in this East Texas city.

and Textile Workers Union. Campaign official Dave Novelle said Reagan decided to address Farah because it is "a union house with legal U.S. citizens" making up the workforce. Willie Farah, the company's chairman and chief executive officer, said he had "a responsibility" to present Reagan.

In campaigning in Chicago, and then across Pennsylvania Tuesday, Anderson for the first time traveled in a chartered Boeing 727 jet, another sign of relative prosperity. In the past, the campaign traveled by commercial airliner, leaving schedulers at the mercy of airline timetables. Another sign of Anderson's buoyancy following Sunday's debate is sharply increased numbers of reporters, once down to two, but now pushing 60. In Harrisburg, Anderson accused Carter of using the heavy fighting between Iraq and Iran to enhance his own re-election chances.

Reagan planned to arrive in El Paso at 2:15 p.m. MDT to address workers at the Farah plant — mostly Mexican-American women represented by the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union. Campaign official Dave Novelle said Reagan decided to address Farah because it is "a union house with legal U.S. citizens" making up the workforce. Willie Farah, the company's chairman and chief executive officer, said he had "a responsibility" to present Reagan. "We don't tour politicians because we have not felt from a management point of view that it was our prerogative to try to influence our people while they're in our keeping," he said. "But when you get down to presidential candidates, I think that becomes a responsibility."

Noting Carter suggested Reagan would be more likely to get the United States into war, Anderson said Carter is using "scare tactics to suggest the election in November is a choice between peace and war." Anderson also said he found the possible election of both Carter and Reagan equally distasteful and said, "I don't want the reelection of Jimmy Carter to be on my conscience."

The former California governor's itinerary called for a midday speech at Harvey Hall on the East Texas Fair Grounds, his first campaign visit here since his unsuccessful bid for the Republican presidential nomination in 1976.

Following the speech, Reagan was scheduled to depart for Grand Junction, Colo. at 4:15 p.m.

Bush campaign's inner circle hums with Carter's war or peace choice

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — By noon on Tuesday, the inner circle of the George Bush campaign was humming with the word that President Carter had portrayed the voters' choice on Nov. 4 as one of war or peace. By about 2 p.m., the Republican vice presidential nominee, speaking off-the-cuff in Joliet, Ill., was warming up to the task of responding to the president. But he kept those jabs brief. By 4 p.m., his staff was applying the finishing touches to a speech which laid out in tough language the claim that Carter had chosen "a low road, a low road of misrepresentation and sly innuendo concerning Ronald Reagan's position on the major issues facing our country." And by 9 p.m., Bush was delivering that broadside before a group of several hundred Republicans who paid at least $100 each to hear it. After some consultation with the Reagan campaign headquarters in Arlington, Va., the Bush team nearly mimicked their standard-bearer's attack on Carter. In his speech, Bush said Carter's charge was "yet another case of this president engaging in a demagogic, irresponsible attack on his opponent, on our nominee."

21-year-old man dies following auto mishap

BIG SPRING — A 21-year-old employee of Big Spring's Cosden Oil & Chemical Co. was killed Tuesday night when his car was involved in a collision with a vehicle driven by a Lubbock woman.

Joe Donald Riberd was fatally injured about 10:41 p.m. while attempting to pass a vehicle driven by Rosemary Johnson Garza, 29, of Lubbock. Both cars were eastbound on Fourth Street at the time of the collision and Ms. Garza was executing a turn north onto Birdwell Lane, according to Big Spring police reports. Riberd received emergency medical treatment and was being transported to an Odessa medical facility for further treatment when he died, a Big Spring police spokesperson said.

1,500 evacuated as plant burns HAMILTON TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — More than 1,500 people evacuated as deadly cyanide gas was released from a burning factory returned home after firefighters doused the flames that caused damage in excess of $1 million, officials say. David Henderson of the state Hazard Waste Management Program said the fumes belching from the vacant Acme-Hamilton Rubber Co. were similar to gas used in capital punishment but "not that strong." The state Department of Environmental Protection declared the air around the plant free of toxic fumes at about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday, said township administrator Arthur Ju. an. Small amounts of cyanide gas and polychlorinated biphenyls, PCBs, were released when the fire broke out at around noon, destroying most of the three-story building, Julian said. Seven people were treated and released from area hospitals after inhaling the fumes, he said.

Father can't afford Moonie appeal

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — A month ago, Don Kieffer won a $30,000 judgment against the Unification Church for allegedly recruiting his daughter, a minor. Today — after a judge overruled the jury's verdict — he says "justice in this country belongs to the rich."

The Bedford resident said after Tuesday's ruling that he is "financially exhausted" and may not have enough money to appeal. U.S. District Judge Shane Devine ruled that the jury relied more on emotional testimony than on facts in making its decision, and said his instructions to the jury were either unclear or "willfully disregarded."

Devine said Kieffer did not prove he suffered damages when his adopted stepdaughter, Jana, joined the church as a minor at age 16, nor did he prove "evil motive" on the church's part.

"Judge Devine has proved to be true to his name," said an elated David Hager, legal director for the church, founded by Korean industrialist and evangelist the Rev. Sun Myung Moon.

Kieffer saw Jana for the first time in five years when she testified against him during the 15-day trial that ended Aug. 27, an experience he later called "devastating." He said he took the church to court in order to see his daughter again, hoping he could persuade her to return home.

His $1 million suit charged the church "deprived him of his natural parental right" by recruiting Jana, and then "continued to exercise mind control techniques" over her.

Miss Kieffer testified, "I don't think brainwashing goes on. You can't control somebody's mind. That's ridiculous."

Church lawyers argued that the Moonies, as they are known, did not know Miss Kieffer was a minor in her father's custody when she joined her mother at the church's Barrytown, N.Y., center in 1975. The Kieffers are divorced.

Kieffer's lawyer, James Winston, said he was "shocked" by Devine's ruling. He said an appeal or retrial is possible, but "when you win a victory that is taken away from you, it is hard to meet the costs of an appeal."

"I really feel that I had only one shot at this," said Kieffer, who works for a Nashua shoe manufacturer. "I don't know why we bothered to have a jury if the judge was going to throw out its decision."

Periodic competency tests for Texas teachers advised

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas should stop issuing lifetime teaching permits and consider periodic competency tests for the state's teachers, says the chairman of a House subcommittee that looked into teacher education.

Rep. Lanny Hall, D-Fort Worth, said Tuesday his subcommittee was told "we are not getting the job done on teacher education" and teachers may not always know what their material.

Another subcommittee of the House Committee on Education Tuesday recommended changes in the tenure system so that teaching will not be "a guarantee of lifetime employment."

Texas is only one of four states that issue permanent teaching permits. The subcommittee reports were collected by the committee, which will make recommendations to the 1981 Legislature.

Hall said he favored a system in which a teacher would be tested first on basics and later on proficiency in specific subjects. Under the current system, Texas teachers are certified for life upon graduation from an accredited program.

Hall said competency exams would not be "for the purpose of witch hunts...but (for) a higher education function."

Hall also said the committee should support pay hikes for teachers. Rep. Gary Thompson, D-Abilene, said his subcommittee was told the tenure system encourages "disinclination toward hard work and keeping up in one's field."

"We certainly don't want a situation developing where tenure is a guarantee of lifetime employment," said Thompson, a professor at Abilene Christian University. "No one is entitled to that."

Thompson's report said witnesses complained, "Tenure diminishes accountability, fosters mediocrity and deadwood, and makes it excessively difficult for an institution to rid itself of an incompetent or irresponsible professor."

Advocates of tenure said it is needed to attract top-notch professors. "But for this protection there is a cost," the report said. "First, mistakes will be made and tenure will be granted in some instances to underserving individuals."

Thompson recommended periodic tenure review at three-year intervals. He also encouraged consideration of alternatives to tenure. He said the University of Texas at Permian Basin now uses "term tenure" — akin to a renewable seven-year contract.

Other recommendations from Thompson included: — Economic incentives for early retirement of professors.

— A moratorium on granting of tenure at institutions where over 65 percent of the faculty is now tenured.

McKinney of Midland; seven grandchildren, a great-grandson, three nieces and a nephew.

Brewing of another riot under probe at prison

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department has been asked to investigate allegations that another bloody uprising is brewing behind the walls of the New Mexico State Penitentiary where 33 inmates died in rioting in February.

Steven Farber, a private Santa Fe attorney who has been in contact with inmates, said Tuesday letters he has received from prisoners indicate tensions and anger are building once again in the prison.

One inmate said in a letter to Farber: "Everyone knows that it's coming down if no one does anything to stop it. The administration that is in control of this prison at the present time is not qualified for the job, and nothing is being done to fix the matter."

The Albuquerque Journal also received a letter from an inmate, which said: "Right now there is very good reason to believe that there will be another riot. There is tension, anger, resentments. We are constantly being harassed, lied to, the inmates fighting against each other..."

Farber also said he received a letter signed by 35 inmate asking for an investigation.

Farber on Tuesday requested the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division in Washington to investigate.

Lynn Walker, director of special litigation for the Civil Rights Division, confirmed the agency had received Farber's request and said it was under consideration. Ms. Walker said similar requests had been received from the office of U.S. Attorney R.E. Thompson in Albuquerque.

A spokesman for the state Corrections Department said Farber had not contacted that state agency.

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Court of Criminal Appeals today affirmed the revocation of probation of Gary Walker, convicted in Midland County of theft by check of over $200, and sentenced to two years in prison.

The appeals court noted in its opinion that Walker's lawyer had filed a brief saying the appeal was "wholly frivolous and without merit," and that Walker had admitted to violating terms of his probation.

The court upheld the dismissal, saying "we find nothing in the record that might arguably support the appeal."

Carter cites achievements, but concedes more needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has told Congress that his administration is trying to turn the tide of federal policy that drains and enervates the nation's older cities.

In his 1980 urban policy report to Congress, Carter conceded Tuesday that many federal policies work against distressed urban centers. The president pledged a series of actions to change this pattern, but said current budget limitations "preclude substantial new programs at this time to help needy communities respond to major infrastructure needs."

Carter said his administration will study possible methods to adjust federal aid for cities in high-cost areas, and to discriminate against older urban areas. He also promised to assess ways to expand tax credits that encourage businesses to locate in cities and create jobs, and to define options that would help localities maintain roads, sewer and water facilities.

The report, a followup to Carter's 1978 urban policy study, detailed current trends in cities, suburbs and non-metropolitan areas.

It shows that poverty is on the rise in the nation's urban centers, with manufacturing employment declining and housing costs increasing. And it warns that "many barriers impeding economic development in needy cities will be difficult to overcome."

Vets, widows in Nagasaki want benefits

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Thirty-five years ago today, Cpl. Lyman Quigley arrived in Nagasaki, Japan, with about 1,000 other Marines to clean up the devastation wrought by an American atomic bomb.

He left the ruined city with running sores on his head, says his widow, Bernice, and after a long history of health problems died this year of his fifth heart attack at the age of 58.

"His whole body was like a man in his 70s," Mrs. Quigley says. "It was everything — his heart, his lungs. He was an old man."

Mrs. Quigley believes her husband's misery can be attributed to the way he lived and worked in Nagasaki — he drank water from the city reservoir and without so much as a mask drove a bulldozer close to where the bomb exploded.

Quigley began a private campaign in 1974 to determine whether others in Japan had suffered the same ailments. His cause has been taken up by a Portland-based group called U.S. Veterans of Nagasaki and Hiroshima, after the two towns devastated by atomic bombs during World War II.

The group is fighting the refusal of the Veterans Administration to grant compensation to Mrs. Quigley and more than 130 veterans or their relatives who have filed claims.

In a report issued last month, the Defense Nuclear Agency said there was little chance any of the veterans — about 20,000 during a six-month period — could have suffered from the radiation.

"DNA's extensive research over the past 10 months has disclosed no basis for concern by veterans of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki occupation force over an increased risk of adverse health effects," the agency said.

The report said research by both U.S. and Japanese scientists shows that the highest possible dose an individual could have been exposed to in Hiroshima and Nagasaki was less than one rem.

DNA spokesman William McGhee said the internationally accepted safety standard for maximum radiation exposure for workers is five rems a year. A rem is the standard measurement of radiation exposure for humans.

The U.S. Veterans of Nagasaki and Hiroshima is intent on finding all troops stationed in and around the two cities between September 1945 and February 1946. Just over 100 vets or their survivors have been found.

Among the 100 men, five cases of myeloma bone cancer were diagnosed, the group says. The rate in the general population is five cases in 10,000 men, says Norman Solomon, a researcher for the group.

Solomon says the DNA study fails to point out the hazards of breathing or ingesting radiation — with effects, he says, that may show up 20 or 30 years later.

"What happens is the Pentagon and White House are back to the attitude that sent them in there in the first place: 'We won't ask questions because we're afraid of the answers,'" says Solomon.

Only recently, the VA included the Nagasaki and Hiroshima vets in studies of about 250,000 American servicemen exposed to radiation during nuclear tests from 1946 on.

Mrs. Quigley said that when her husband first began questioning other veterans, they would not admit to problems. But she says they finally admitted to stomach ailments, open sores, and other difficulties.

"But the constant thing was the pain, the horrible pain," she says.

Tipster aids arrest of kidnap suspect

DALLAS (AP) — A tipster enticed by a $5,000 reward helped nab an Arkansas man wanted in the kidnapping of a 7-year-old boy who escaped while his parents were negotiating a $20,000 ransom, police say.

David Lee Summerville, 23, was arrested at a Little Rock residence Tuesday evening after police here received a call from a man asking about the reward.

Investigators said Summerville was wanted for questioning in the Sept. 5 abduction of Matthew Mueller, who was kidnapped while riding his bicycle. The boy managed to untie his bonds and flee to safety the next day.

Dallas Youth Division Lt. E.R. Walt said a man called Tuesday afternoon and asked what reward was being offered for information leading to an arrest.

"OK, we'll bring this man to justice," Walt quoted the man as saying after he was told about a $5,000 reward.

The man called back about two hours later and said he had Summerville, according to Walt. He said the arrest later was confirmed by a Little Rock officer.

Little Rock Police Lt. Bob Moore said Summerville was taken into custody by patrol officers and later waived extradition to Dallas.

Summerville has been charged in the rape and kidnapping of a 27-year-old Dallas nurse. He also is wanted by Norman, Okla., authorities for questioning in the knife-point theft of an auto from a high school student.

CLUB NEWS

Clubs plan fall activities

PYRACANTHA GARDEN CLUB

The Pyracantha Garden Club began their new year with a coffee in the home of Mrs. E. V. Michell, 2611 Lockheed. Members answered roll call with their favorite fall plant or shrub. Mrs. James Mann gave the program, which was a review of the plans for the coming year.

Mrs. J. C. Watkins was named Arbor Day chairman.

Yearbooks were distributed to member and calendars are to be available for sale to them.

Beverly Holmberg and Helen Shaw were welcomed as new members. Hostesses were Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Mann.

October meeting will be at Mrs. Tom Wilmeth's home, 5100 Sinclair. Mrs. Clark Storm will be hostess.

NEWCOMERS GARDEN CLUB

The Newcomers Garden Club met in the home of Susie Luker.

Program about the care and feeding of houseplants was given by Tedi McClain and Judy Martain from Deja Vu.

New member is Betty Alderman. Hostesses were Gloria Hinson and Joyce Love.

MIDLAND SOCIETY OF PARLIAMENTARIANS

Midland Society of Parliamentarians met for its first fall meeting in the home of Mrs. Albert M. Horne, 911 Princeton.

Guests were Edith Everett of the Davis Mountains, Elsie Stephenson and Lois Newbold of Midland.

Mrs. Walter F. Shepherd was elected to fill the vacancy in the office of treasurer. The president appointed

Mrs. John P. McKinley as chairman of the Library Committee.

Mrs. Ben Johnson Jr. gave a report on the method of handling resignations and election or appointment of successors.

Mrs. J. Harvey Herd, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Robert A. Hobbs, Mrs. Joe V. Birdwell and Mrs. Paul Smyres, who presented a program on the electoral college. It was explained that the electoral college is the method used to elect the U.S. President.

MIDLAND MUSIC TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

Mrs. Wayne Matthews was the hostess to the meeting of the Midland Music Teachers Association. Co-hostess was Laura Ellis.

Mrs. Benton Howell conducted the business session in which plans were discussed concerning a musicianship skills workshop Oct. 18 at the Allison Fine Arts Auditorium at Midland College. Janet McGaughey, professor of theory at The University of Texas at Austin is the clinician for the workshop.

Mrs. C. J. George announced an All Boys recital to be held Oct. 9 at 7:45 p.m. in the Midland College choir room. The recital is sponsored by the student affiliate.

Following the meeting, a program on new music was presented by Mrs. Donald Thompson and Mrs. Jim Crawford. Members received lists of new music available. Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Crawford gave brief commentaries on some of the new publications. Music was on display following the meeting.

New members are Mrs. Loren Roberts, Karen Follingstad and Virginia Huchton.

SANTA RITA CLUB

The Santa Rita Club of the Petroleum Museum held its third annual Santa Margarita party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Olsen, 3312 Cardinal Lane.

Seventy members and their spouses attended and were served a Mexican buffet at poolside. The tables were decorated with serapes, candles and flowers.

Members of the board served as hosts and hostesses.

SAND AND SEED GARDEN CLUB

Sand and Seed Garden Club met in the home of Mrs. Marvin Ginzel who has recently returned to Midland after living in Europe for two years.

She presented a slide program of many gardens she visited while there. Guests were Mrs. Joe Barbee and Julie Harvey. New members are Mrs. Don Dow and Mrs. Jimmie Parker.

Plans were made for the October pottery sale featuring items made by Florence and Charles Henderson. The sale will be in the home of Mrs. Jerry Dunnam.

LION TAMERS CLUB

A talk and demonstration on silk flower arrangements highlighted the program at the meeting of the Lion Tamers Club held at the Woman's Club.

Program was presented by Karla Richmond, who was introduced by Mrs. George Loudamy, program chairman. Mrs. Richmond also discussed the use of silk flowers in a wide variety of social functions. A number of her unique silk flower arrangements were on display at the luncheon.

Mrs. Windell Thomason presided at the business session. It was announced that the club's annual garage sale will be Oct. 17-18 at the home of Mrs. Harry W. Hugly, 2813 Durant St.

Mrs. Lester Van Pelt Jr. will be the hostess for a membership brunch in her home, 1602 Gulf St., on Oct. 15.

A couple's Halloween party is scheduled Oct. 30 at the Woman's Club. Mrs. Stanley Sartain was introduced as a new member. Clara Hawkins of Sweetwater was a guest.

THE PRICE OF EATING...

Washington has officially confirmed what most of us already knew — food costs for a week went up again in July. Predictions indicate food cost increases will be confirmed for August, September and October as well. This means a family of four on a "thrifty" food plan with two elementary school children is now paying $53.80 per week in September. The same family on a "liberal" food plan is now paying an estimated $103.20 for the month of September.

The "thrifty" plan — least costly of the four plans — cost $52.50 for a week for a family of four with two elementary school children. The "liberal" plan — highest among the four — cost $101.10 for a week in July. Those figures compare with $51.20 and $99, respectively, in May.

The thrifty plan — used in setting the coupon allotment in the USDA food stamp program — is for families with little money for food. The other plans are for families with larger food budgets.

These plans may be used as guides for estimating food needs and costs for families of different sizes. They are used by teachers, home economists and others who help families plan nutritious and satisfying meals for the money they can spend. Details on how the plans are calculated may be obtained by writing to the Consumer Nutrition Center, USDA, Hyattsville, Md. 20782.

Cost of food at home for any family can be calculated by totaling costs shown below for individuals of sex and age of various members of a family as follows:

— For those eating all meals at home (or carrying some meals from home), use amounts shown.

— For those eating some meals out, deduct five percent from amount in table for each meal not eaten at home. Thus, for a person eating lunch out five days a week, subtract 25 percent or one-fourth the cost shown.

— For guests, include, for each meal eaten, five percent of amount shown in table for the proper age group.

Next, adjust the total figure if more or fewer than four people generally eat at the family table. Costs shown are for individuals in four-person families. Adjustment is necessary because larger families tend to buy and use foods more economically than smaller ones. Thus, for a one-person family, add 20 percent; for two persons, add ten percent; for three, add five percent, four, use as is; five or six, subtract five percent, seven or more, subtract ten percent.

With the data given above and economists' predictions that food costs will continue to increase throughout the remainder of the year, we as consumers, can effectively calculate our individual family food cost for October through December. Extra costs will need to be added to cover the costs of holiday foods.

How can we "beat the market"? A few items to consider include: menu planning around the market specials; make a grocery list to meet your plans and stick to it in the supermarket; purchase generic and house brands instead of major brands; accurate food preparation to eliminate waste and leftovers; limit your convenience food purchase; set aside some extra time to prepare foods from scratch that you would ordinarily purchase in a convenience form; and check prices closely — larger volumes do not always mean a cheaper price. Finally, begin now to plan for your holiday foods.

Freddie Schofield

Schofield's art in club exhibit

Midland Woman's Club is currently featuring the paintings of Freddie Schofield.

She is a native of West Texas and a feeling for the Southwest pervades many of her paintings. She also incorporates into her art experiences from her travels around the western United States. Old buildings, trees and weathered rocks are all sources of inspiration, she says.

Mrs. Schofield has studied under a number of Southwestern artists, including Bud Biggs, Jon Birdsong and Judy Morrison in watercolor; and with Harold Roney and David Slade in oils. Wanda Hurley was a teacher in acrylics.

She says that her background in literature helps her with interpretation and response to nature, and provides her with interesting picture titles. Freddie has shown her work at Midland Theatre, Lancaster Garden Center and Midland Palette Club. Her painting "Gone Away" was purchased by the Friends of the Library for their collection for loan. She has also collected ribbons from competi-

CLUB NEWS

Fall plans made by clubs

WESTSIDE EXTENSION HOMEMAKERS CLUB

The Westside Extension Club met Wednesday in the home of Opal Reaves, 2413 Cuthbert, with Eunice Davis presiding.

Plans were discussed for the Annual Day luncheon. A workshop was conducted by Mrs. Gaines Webb.

Mrs. Reaves gave a report on the council meeting with Jackie Forsyth as chairman, Janet Watson as vice president and Rea Dunn as treasurer.

Mrs. C. D. Bradley was chosen as a delegate to the state home extension convention in San Antonio October 14-17.

Next meeting is Oct. 1, again in Mrs. Reaves' home.

AAUW INTERNATIONAL GROUP

The American Association of University Women International Group met Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Gilbert Naert, 2804 Durant.

The International Group, which has an equal membership of foreign born and American women, strives to promote cultural exchanges for better understanding.

Chairman Mrs. Joseph Oei, formerly of Indonesia, introduced four guests, including Loretta Reid of England.

Other officers are Mrs. Naert, co-chairman; Colleen Scurry, secretary; Frieda Duggan, treasurer; and Violet Smyres, historian-reporter.

The group will meet next Oct. 15 at 9:30 p.m. at the Midland Planetarium.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE MIDLAND CHAPTER 1447

Women of the Moose, Chapter 1447, held a salad luncheon honoring Past Grand Council member Margaret Howard of Amarillo.

Among those attending were Sue Robinson, senior regent; Hattie Griffin, chaplain; Francis Ezell, guide; Dolores Ezell, assistant guide; Berdean Gray, graduate regent; Valera Bippin, recorder; Mary Francis Smith, junior regent; and Nan Vaughn, treasurer.

Business meeting followed the luncheon. Next meeting is Oct. 2 at the Moose Lodge Home, 2423 W. Indiana, at 8 p.m.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF RETIRED PERSONS

The AARP met at Crestview Baptist Church for a program and covered dish dinner.

A short business meeting was conducted by Coy Knight, vice president. Mrs. Knight was elected secretary to replace a vacancy. Money was designated for fan outlets for the new Senior Citizen Center on Circle Drive.

Alta Williams announced a "Fun Fashion Show" Oct. 6 at 6:30 p.m.

Mrs. Williams, program chairman, also introduced Roy Minear, local oilman, who gave two skits, "A Bum's Life" and "My Experience on a Cruise."

On Oct. 20, a White Elephant gift program and cake walk will be the program.

Mrs. Billie Long reported on visits made to the Main Street Hospital Nursing Home.

PRAIRIE LEE EXTENSION HOMEMAKERS CLUB

Mrs. Rae Dunn, County Road 1110 South, was hostess to the Prairie Lee Extension club.

Tootie Thompson gave a program on photography, explaining ways to use different kinds of cameras, lighting, etc.

Annual Day was discussed during the business session by chairperson Mary Evelyn Bryant. Tickets were distributed to members for a quilt made by the club and a floor pillow made by a member.

Annual Day is set for Oct. 10 at the County Exhibit Building.

State meeting at San Antonio will be Oct. 14-17. Several members from the club plan to attend.

Mrs. Pat Coker, County Road 1110 South, will be hostess to the club Oct. 22.

OLDTIMERS BRIDGE CLUB

Winners of the Oldtimers Bridge club game were Maxine Good, first; Phyllis Maxwell, second; and Lu Fisher, third.

Naomi Boswell won the special prize. Other winners were Mrs. Good and Kathy Chandler, grand slam. Hostesses were Chris Kaufman and Anne Collard.

They met at the Allison Bridge Building.

ALTRUSA CLUB OF MIDLAND INC.

The Midland Altrusa Club met at the Midland Hilton for its first luncheon meeting of the new club year.

Beverly Dyer, chairman of the community service committee, reported that the club's project of supervising Monday night bingo games for the residents of Midland Care Center nursing home was underway for the year.

The club is sponsoring an Astra Club as one of its projects this year. The Astra Club is a service organization for girls ages 13-14. A hot dog and swim party for interested young women was held Sept. 13 at the home of Altrusan Myrna Hansler. The club has been organized and has six members.

Its next function will be a kidnap breakfast and swim party on Oct. 20 at the home of Myrna Hansler. Anyone interested in the Astra Club should call Mrs. Dyer at 694-9836 or 682-7641.

The Altrusa Club initiated a crime check program several years ago and will re-establish the program this year as one of its major projects. The program is designed for neighborhood block parties and is conducted in cooperation with the Midland Police Department. Anyone interested in this program should call Lois Carter at 694-6783. Loleta Guffey, vocational services committee chairman, reported that plans for the Linen Basket project for the year are underway. Proceeds from this project go to the Founders Fund Vocational Aid program.

Glady Penn, chairman of the international relations committee, reported that the club will have two speakers at the Oct. 9 meeting. Freda Dugan will talk about her native country, Germany, and Mya Grimes will report on her native land of Japan. Mrs. Grimes visited Japan this past summer and magazines from both countries will be displayed at the meeting.

Announcement was made that the district conference will be in San Angelo Oct. 17-18 at the San Angelo Holiday. Mary Alice Tidwell, past president of the Midland Club, is a nominee for first vice governor. The Midland Altrusa Club will host the 1983 conference.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I chuckled when I read your delightful definition: "Old age is when you need your glasses to find your glasses; walk into another room and forgot what you went there for; people tell you you're looking good, but no one tells you you're good-looking; you pass up a romantic encounter because you're worried about your heart; and you think today's policemen look like kids."

I happen to be an octogenarian myself. Comes now another ancient, Claude Pepper, chairman of a Committee on Aging yet, rising up in majestic ruffled dignity to declaim that your whimsical comments are "unworthy of your usual thoughtful insights, etc."

Oh, come off it, Brother Pepper. Relax from the somber responsibilities of shepherding us decrepit aged and enjoy a sprightly lady columnist's light-hearted characterizations of the weight of our years without bridling.—RALPH W. SNYDER, INDIANAPOLIS

DEAR RALPH: Thanks, I needed that. Read on for an opposing view from Wareham, Mass.

Old age is when...

DEAR ABBY: I agree with Rep. Claude Pepper. Your characterization of older people are sightless, absent-minded, ugly and sexless is unworthy of you.

Abby, I can't see anything without my glasses, I can never remember what I went into the other room for unless I keep repeating it to myself on the way there, and the only people who ever tell me I'm good-looking are my parents. My father has a heart condition that may very well be hereditary, and today's policemen look like kids because today people can reach their goal at a younger age if they want to. (I plan to have a master's degree in engineering by the time I'm 21.)

I am a 13-year-old girl, and I've never heard of anyone being ready for a rocking chair at my age.—MICHELE STUCK

DEAR ABBY: Apropos "old age": At a recent Smith College class reunion, each class held up a banner displaying a humorous poem or statement. There is competition for the best one. The members of the class of 1918 easily won the prize with this banner: MY BIFOCALS FIT MY DENTURES ARE FINE

MY HEARING AID WORKS BUT I DO MISS MY MIND! —RALEIGH S. HALES, PASADENA, CALIF.

DEAR RALEIGH: Thanks for the day brightener, which I hope will not elicit another comment from a hot Pepper.

DEAR ABBY: One of the dumbest things I've observed lately is the number of people who buy articles with the designer's name all over them. It seems the more expensive the item, the more prominently the designer's logo is emblazoned on it. I mean shoes, purses, pants, scarves, neckties—you name it, and they sell like crazy!

Why do people spend good money to advertise the manufacturer?—AGHAST IN LONG BEACH

DEAR AGHAST: Beats me. Snob appeal, maybe.

(Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too young or too old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

Organize to get the most from coupons

COLLEGE STATION — Organize to get the most from food coupons, says Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist.

Develop a simple, concise storage system in order to locate coupons quickly, she suggests.

For example, arrange an expandable accordion file alphabetically by product categories — bakery goods, breakfast foods, frozen foods — or use a series of envelopes kept in a shoe box or drawer.

Mrs. McCormack is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Once a week, sort coupons, circling expiration date with red ink, and arrange coupons in each compartment so the ones due to expire earlier in the month are in front.

Transfer this week's coupons to a coupon holder or put them with the shopping list, the specialist recommends.

REFUND FORMS

Keep refund forms and qualifiers in an organized system, also, she continues.

File UPC codes, proof-of-purchase seals, inner seals and cash register tapes in separate envelopes, alphabetically by brand name.

BOXES, LABELS

To save space, collapse all boxes so they lie flat. Remove some outer labels from boxes by cutting and peeling them off the cardboard backings, the specialist says.

REFUNDING

Some manufacturers offer a refund to all customers who have bought a particular product.

The shopper can take one of the refund forms, fill it out and mail it to the address given, accompanied by whatever proof-of-purchase is required.

It often takes four to six weeks to receive the refund, so keep a log listing the companies, Mrs. McCormack advises.

REFUND-FORM SOURCES

If refunds require "forms" or "required blanks," the request will not be honored without them.

The principal sources of these forms are grocery stores, newspapers and magazines or the companies themselves, she points out.

Grocery stores offer two types of forms. One called "the store form" is found attached to shelves in tear-off pads.

Another type appears on the products themselves or in the form of a hang-tag.

If the forms are not available, write to the address supplied on the cardboard backing of the form display, or ask at the courtesy booths.

Newspapers and magazines often contain forms not only for cash refunds, but for free samples of the product, or for coupons worth free samples.

Also, write to companies directly — to the customer service department.

OTHER SHOPPERS' SECRETS

Smart shoppers can save grocery dollars in other ways, Mrs. McCormack says.

Make a list and stick to it. Check the sales. Use midweek and Sunday papers to prepare a shopping list, and clip any coupons.

Remember, a bargain is not always a bargain, even if an item is featured in a splashy end-of-aisle display. Check the prices and signs.

Shop with open eyes. Compare prices, scan the shelves up and down, as well as across, the specialist adds.

Synthetic drug kills penicillin-resistant gonorrhea

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Scientists have developed a synthetic drug capable of killing a penicillin-resistant strain of gonorrhea without the side effects of other antibiotics, medical researchers say.

The synthetic penicillin "covers more organisms of any given type at achievable blood levels, and it covers certain bugs that the currently available broad-spectrum penicillins don't cover," said Dr. Bernard Clark, a researcher for Lederle Laboratories.

Lederle was presenting 18 studies of the new drug, piperacillin, today to the American Society for Microbiology's national convention here.

Among the bacteria piperacillin kills are Klebsiella — which can cause a particularly virulent form of pneumonia — and gonorrhea that is resistant to ordinary penicillin or can produce an enzyme which destroys ordinary penicillin, Clark said.

"Piperacillin penetrates the bacteria much more rapidly and binds to the site of action before the enzyme can destroy it," he said.

Two studies comparing piperacillin and carbenicillin — previously the broadest-spectrum penicillin — were considered especially significant, said Lederle spokesman Paul Stessel.

In a prepared statement, Stessel said studies at the Louisiana State University Medical School in New Orleans and at UCLA Medical Center in Los Angeles piperacillin had fewer side effects but was as effective as carbenicillin.

Piperacillin's effectiveness against gonorrhea was tested on 200 patients in the Philippines. An abstract of that study said 200 women were given one shot, and all but two — one of whom admitted to later sexual intercourse with an infected man — were cured.

Piperacillin was among a handful of anti-gonorrhea drugs discussed at the convention.

Three which can be taken by mouth were among those discussed at a session Tuesday, said Dr. Brobston Lutz, who presented a paper about rosoxacin, one of those drugs.

"Current treatments for penicillin-resistant gonorrhea involve injections, one or two painful injections. So this is a relatively painless treatment for the love-bug," said Lutz, of Tulane University. It also can be given to people who are allergic to penicillin, he noted.

Lutz said the New Orleans area has had at least six cases of the penicillin-resistant strain of gonorrhea over the last three months. They apparently were unrelated to nearly 100 cases over the same period in Shreveport, he said.

Three women file suit against Rely tampons' manufacturer

By The Associated Press

Three women who say they became ill from using Rely tampons filed suit against Procter & Gamble Co. one day after the manufacturer announced it was pulling the product off the market.

One suit, filed in Tucson, Ariz., on Tuesday, seeks $2.5 million in damages. The other, a class action filed in San Francisco, does not specify damages but asks for all the money P&G has made from Rely.

The national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta has said that a relatively large proportion of victims of toxic shock syndrome, a sometimes-fatal disease associated with tampon use, were found in a recent study to have used Rely tampons.

P&G announced Monday it was taking Rely off the market to remove the product from "controversy" even though, it said, there was nothing wrong with the tampons.

Robert Norrish, a P&G spokesman, said Tuesday the company was unaware of the suits and declined comment.

Toxic shock syndrome, a bacteria-spawned illness that causes a drop in blood pressure leading to shock, fever, nausea and rashes, has resulted in the deaths of 29 women since 1975, according to Dr. Arthur Reingold of the CDC. About three of every 100,000 women who use tampons can expect to come down with the syndrome sometime during their lives, he said.

The San Francisco suit was brought on behalf of all women who have used Rely by Carol A. Thompson of Union City and Barbara Lee of Woodland. Both said they had to be hospitalized because of fever, nausea and delirium caused by using Rely.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court, claims all women who use Rely face "lacerations and toxic reactions."

The Tucson suit was filed in Pima County Superior Court by Bernum and Lynn Pearson, who said a case of toxic shock syndrome sent Mrs. Pearson to the hospital in December 1979. Attorney Robert Miller said Mrs. Pearson, 34, suffered kidney damage as a result. He said she had been using Rely tampons for a year before she came down with the illness.

Vitamin C increases iron absorption

Copley News Service

Q. My wife takes a 50.5 milligram tablet of ferrous sulfate daily. The label on the bottle says that this represents 15 milligrams of iron. Because this is not chelated, I would like to know if this would be a normal dose for a 150 pound, healthy woman?

Also, how much time should she wait between taking her iron tablet and a vitamin C and E tablet? — A.K., Garden Grove, Calif.

A. Ferrous sulfate is an iron salt containing 20 percent elemental iron. For example, a 320 mg tablet of ferrous sulfate would contain about 60 mg of iron. Your wife's 50.5 mg of ferrous sulfate should only contain around 10 mg of iron. This is in conflict with the 15 mg that is labeled on the bottle.

The recommended daily allowance of elemental iron for men and postmenopausal women is 5-10 mg per day. If a woman is menstruating, her requirement will increase to 15-18 mg per day, and if she is pregnant, she will need 25 mg per day. The average U.S. diet contains about 12 mg of iron per 2000 calories. This should be added to the amount she receives in her iron tablet and will probably place her above the normal requirement for postmenopausal menstruating and pregnant women.

Vitamin C has been shown to increase absorption of iron. Some iron preparations now contain ascorbic acid (vitamin C). However, these preparations are generally more expensive, and it is questionable whether the benefit is great enough to offset the additional cost. In fact, if your wife takes her vitamin C with her iron tablet she will achieve the same effect that the combination products provide.

If iron and vitamin E are taken together, there may be reduced vitamin E levels attained compared to taking vitamin E by itself. Therefore, it is recommended that these tablets be taken separately, at least four hours apart. If Vitamin E and C are combined in a tablet, again, it would be best to take it at a different time than the iron. — Cynthia Lebsack, Pharmacy Resident, Drug Information, at the University of California, San Diego School of Medicine's Medical Center.

Q. I am a 69-year-old woman, and for several months I have had a pain in the back of my neck. The pain is centered on my right side where my head and neck meets. It feels like a toothache in my neck and pain often travels down my neck to my shoulder.

What might be causing this, and are there any new ways of dealing with this type of pain? — C.D., New Market, Ind.

A. There could be a number of causes for the condition you describe. However, I feel that the most likely cause at your age would be degenerative changes in the cervical spine with a probable degenerative disc. An x-ray of the neck could definitely confirm this.

Treatment of the condition consists of injections of a local anesthetic and cortisone to the affected area with the use of anti-inflammatory medications. A cervical collar for short periods will help and a physiotherapy program consisting of cervical traction, heat and massage, frequently will relieve the symptoms.

I suggest that you make an appointment with an orthopedic physician in your area for a clear diagnosis, and that x-rays be obtained of the area prior to the institution of any treatment. — Dr. Philip H. Dickinson.

Some exercises good for quick stress relief

By CATE TUTTLE
Copley News Service

No one is entirely free from stress. In fact, stress is necessary to prepare you to handle the unfamiliar. However, too much saps your body of energy and lowers your resistance. Heart diseases, ulcers, back pain, migraine headaches, asthma, and high blood pressure are now recognized to be primarily stress related.

Yet just as you can lift your arm to put food in your mouth, you can also relax your body and alleviate stress. For example, here are some simple techniques that you can begin to use today:

Visual Imagery. This exercise is especially good if you are having trouble falling asleep. Lie down with your eyes closed and take a few deep breaths. Now imagine yourself to be at your favorite vacation spot. If it's at the beach, imagine the sound of the ocean, feel the warm beige sand and the breeze blowing against your skin, look up at the clear blue sky, smell the salty sea water, hear the gulls and see the palm fronds sway

If your favorite spot is the mountains, see the deep blue lake, smell the pines, listen to the stream, feel the crisp air, hear the birds chirping overhead. In visual imagery, it's important to include all your senses. If you do, you'll feel remarkably refreshed and relaxed. This exercise gets easier each time you try it!

Neck Rolls. Sitting or standing with your spine erect, let your chin come down to your chest as far as it will go without causing pain. Then slowly move your head back as far as it will go. Now starting with your head back in the normal position, look straight ahead while you move your ear toward your shoulder. Then do a complete head roll, first clockwise, then counter clockwise. In addition, exhale as you roll your head and inhale while in the upright position.

Muscle Tightening. Let your arms hang loosely at your sides. Now raise both hands at the wrist and hold them there. Concentrate on the sensations on the top part of your forearms. That's tension. Now relax your hands. Then consecutively tighten and relax every muscle group in your body, starting with the feet and moving up. This is an excellent way to unwind. After you do it you will know what it feels like to have relaxed muscles.

Here's some additional quick stress relievers:

— Place your palms gently over your closed eyes. Try to visualize black velvet. The more you're able to see the color black, the more relaxed you become. If helpful, look at some black object before doing the exercise.

— Do some physical activity such as running, brisk walking, or gardening.

— If a particular worry keeps nagging you, ask yourself "What's the worst thing that can happen?" Then repeatedly imagine yourself handling that "worst" situation effectively and successfully.

— Set priorities for yourself. Make a list with your most important items of business at the top, and cross-off items as you complete them for a great feeling of accomplishment.

— Pay attention to your uplifts, the small, ordinary things that make you feel good.

Diet and exercise work at ranch

Copley News Service

Hot Southwestern sun shadows the Santa Catalina Mountains five miles north of Tucson, Ariz. The sleek cream Chevrolet with the circular orange and brown Canyon Ranch logo glides up the rise of dusty brown earth laced with saguaro cactus, feathery green mesquite trees and occasional expensive-looking ranch-style houses.

The car slows and turns right, now facing the Tucson mountains, past low adobe markers with the CR insignia, toward one of the country's newest fitness resorts.

The ranch, or "the resort" as employees call it, is a new combination package — a vacation spot that costs lots of money to eat less and exercise more.

It's a luxurious $6.5 million, 28-acre health spa with three swimming pools, four racquetball courts, six tennis and two sports courts, main lodge with dining and game rooms, complete men's and women's spas, beauty salon and 70 individual casitas where guests can stay alone or share space.

The number of guests range from 20 to more than 100.

It's a place for early-morning hikes into the hills, exercise and dance classes, an outdoor exercise course modeled on a European parcours, noisy weight lifting or quiet yoga rooms, curving walkways with glorious mountain vistas, the hum of air conditioners in 98-degree dry heat, a pot of coffee always ready, Perrier, lime and lemon cocktails only, and the option to do all or none of it.

And if the ranch's gourmet 800-calorie-a-day diet especially created by author Jeanne Jones isn't enough, guests can get extra portions of a "Sabino shake" (named for the surrounding valley) of fruit, protein powder, skim milk and fructose.

What they can't get is sugar or salt. The crystal and chrome shakers on the tables in the dining room are filled with pepper and paprika. But when lunch is marinated mushroom salad, crepes Florentine and fresh peach slices decorated with blueberries, there are few complaints.

"Those 12 blueberries didn't quite do it for me," said Fran Smith of Green Valley, Ariz., as she sipped a 4-ounce mid-afternoon glass of fresh orange juice, "but I love it here. You can't train yourself to go without sugar or salt overnight."

Terry Zimmerman, also of Green Valley, pointed out that during an earlier visit, she had stayed 10 days without being hungry and losing just a little over five pounds.

The concept of the plush spa and its transformation from the former Double U dude ranch — two huge stone fireplaces in the lounge, dark beamed ceilings and several casitas were saved, the rest newly built — is the work of Tucson builder Mel Zuckerman and his wife, Enid.

Mel became interested in fitness two years ago at age 50, when he was "overweight and overworked," says ranch marketing director Marsha Hodson. Enid checked him into a spa which he disliked and left, then the couple visited Rancho la Puerta in Tecate, Mexico, owned and operated by Deborah Szely of the Golden Door near Escondido, Calif.

Mel stayed 29 days, lost 27 pounds and gained a new interest in fitness. He and Enid then visited other spas in the United States, making notes and "taking all the positive aspects," Hodson says, to create Canyon Ranch. Mel is still creating; just beyond the spa building, land has been aside for home sites, starting at $150,000, with membership in the spa extra.

The average length of stay at the Canyon Ranch is about seven days and February has been the busiest month.

The spa opened last December and has drawn visitors from all over the United States. Rates start at about $75 for triple occupancy during the season, Sept. 15-May 31, and go up to $250 per day for a suite. This includes three meals a day, but not a 15 percent service charge and 4 percent Arizona state sales tax. So, a week there during the season at the lowest rate would cost approximately $535.

The goal of the ranch is to "create a vacation experience that combines the best of climate and surrounding recreational facilities, fitness programs and diet," Mel says.

"At other spas, guests unfortunately have to make the decision to invest time and money in their health at the expense of foregoing a vacation. Canyon Ranch provides both, even to offering healthful gourmet cuisine."

The difference between his spa and any others, he says, is that "Canyon Ranch is more laid-back, a fitness spa resort first, not a resort first with spa secondary. We're not an impersonal resort spa, and we're not a beauty spa where women go to be pampered. We're not in competition with the beauty spas like Rancho la Puerta, the Oaks at Ojai, the Bermuda Inn, Elizabeth Arden's Maine Chance," (Maine Chance is the closest spa at 100 miles away in Phoenix.)

"We have friendly people working here who have a feeling for fitness and a belief in it."

"Our young chef, for example, exercises some 30 hours a week."

"What we have is a complete modern facility with a total laid-back, comfortable ambience where friendliness and love are the prevailing things that come through."

Insurance exec told to be less arrogant

AUSTIN (AP) — Insurance company executives need to dispel an "aura of arrogance" when deciding who to accept or reject as policyholders, a State Insurance Board member warns.

The observations came from board member Lyndon Olson Jr. at a Tuesday hearing on alleged insurance company discrimination against the elderly and handicapped.

A preliminary report indicates both the elderly and the handicapped believe they are unfairly and arbitrarily denied coverage, particularly automobile policies. The report was based on a mail survey and on hearings last winter.

Harold Haun, an Employers Casualty executive who heads the state's assigned risk pool, said companies and agents evaluate each applicant separately and base decisions on their "informed judgment."

"In the vast majority of cases, there is no discrimination given to the fact situation. It is not an arbitrary punch of thutton," he said.

Haun also said, "The insurance business extremely complex and does not lend itself to being analyzed by questionnaire or by what happens within an individual company."

Olson agreed with Haun that the problem cannot be solved by regulation and that persons must be evaluated individually, but "somehow we have got to get this thing out so it people know there is an interest coming from your side as well as state."

"That's a 'Catch 22' situation," he said of the coverage selection process. "It is that very process that has aura of arrogance to the people of this state. It is a communication problem."

The 1979 Legislature ordered the board study in response to complaints from the elderly and the handicapped.

Some handicapped and over-65 drivers end up in the assigned risk pool because companies will not cover them voluntarily, but the pool provides only minimal liability coverage.

Olson expressed concern that the 1979 Legislature failed to pass a bill allowing the pool to offer higher limits of liability as well as collision and comprehensive coverage.

Richard Geiger of Dallas, attorney for number of insurance trade associations, said the major auto insurers supported the bill, which died in the House Insurance Committee.

"I think you know where the opposition is from. It was the county mutuals," Geiger said.

County mutuals offer collision insurance and expanded liability coverage at unregulated prices to drivers who do not obtain it from regulated companies.

Another food price hike expected

But things may ease in 1980's last quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) — American consumers, who had to swallow the biggest rise in grocery prices in five years in August, can expect another "significant increase" this month, the government says. But things may ease a bit in the year's last three months.

Grocery prices jumped 2.3 percent in August — the largest jump since July 1975 — and, overall, food prices rose 1.7 percent. Those were the biggest elements of a consumer price rise of 0.7 percent, meaning an annual inflation rate of 8.6 percent, the Labor Department said.

Howard W. Hjort, chief economist for the Agriculture Department, called the August figures "very much in line with our previous expectations."

He said the year's biggest jump in food prices is occurring in the third quarter and the rise may slow in the last three months of the year.

Overall, food prices will jump 9 percent for 1980, Hjort said. That prediction compares with the 1979 increase of 10.9 percent. And for 1981, Hjort is sticking by his earlier predictions of a 10 percent to 15 percent hike, depending partially on the weather.

Hjort said the third-quarter increase was due in part to the fact that farm prices were depressed in the spring and have since risen.

William Cox, deputy chief economist for the Commerce Department, laid part of the blame for the August jump on the midwestern heat and drought, which killed many chickens and ruined much of the soybean crop, a main component of animal feed.

In other economic developments Tuesday:

—Robert Russell, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, said the current recession has had little, if any, long-term impact on inflation. But he cautioned that the inflation rate could skyrocket if the economy is not carefully handled.

—Manufacturers' orders for durable goods fell 2.3 percent last month, the Labor Department said, further clouding the debate about whether the recession is past. The decline ended a string of favorable government reports which led some analysts to conclude that the recession had ended last month.

The food price increase was led by poultry, which jumped 7.5 percent from July, and eggs, which rose 6.6 percent.

The rise in food prices accounted for about half the 0.7 percent rise in the Consumer Price Index. The index last month stood 12.8 percent above the figure of one year earlier.

The index hadn't increased at all in July, chiefly because of a distortion caused by a decline in home mortgage interest rates. Home financing costs fell again in August, but at only half of July's 5.6 percent drop.

Russell, speaking to the congressional Joint Economic Committee, said he thinks the recession has bottomed out and things are picking up. But, he cautioned, inflation could zoom.

The Carter administration is considering methods to restrain wages and prices, but no mandatory wage-price controls are expected. President Carter has consistently opposed the imposition of such controls.

The decline in durable goods orders followed an 11.3 percent jump in July, the largest one-month increase in 16 years. The Commerce Department said 75 percent of the August drop came because aircraft industry orders fell 18 percent.

Before Tuesday, a number of government reports had shown increases in housing starts, retail sales and industrial production.

While there's some disagreement among economists on what the indicators portend, all the analysts agree it's dangerous to read too much into a single month's figures.

Alamo City to sell power to Houston

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — City Public Service has contracted to sell surplus electricity from natural gas-fired plants to Houston Lighting & Power Co.

CPS officials said the agreement would increase revenues by at least $39.4 million over the six-year contract.

"This contract represents a significant benefit to CPS ratepayers and the city of San Antonio," said Jesse B. Poston, assistant general manager for operations. "CPS ratepayers will benefit because the contract payments will help offset fixed investment or capital costs which otherwise are included in the regular CPS customer rates."

Stopgap spending bill threatened by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate fight over how to divide energy assistance for the poor is threatening to delay a stopgap spending bill needed to keep the government running after Congress recesses next week for the November election.

The energy assistance fight is shaping up as a regional confrontation over whether summer-time air conditioning aid for the South is as important as heating aid for the North during winter.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., on Tuesday angrily attacked northern senators who want to use a House-approved formula that benefits the Snow Belt over the Sun Belt.

Chiles noted that last summer's hot spell killed an estimated 2,000 people across the South.

"You can have just as many problems for the elderly from hot weather as you can from cold," he said during the Senate Appropriations Committee's consideration of the stopgap spending bill.

Chiles also said that if the bill is tilted toward the North when it emerges from thommittee, he would "bably discuss it on floor for a long time."

The debate over energy assistance led down committee on the bill Tuesday and a vote was delayed until tonight on the so-called "fuel stamps" program.

The energy assistance fight surfaced last week when the House passed stopgap spending bill that contained an energy assistance distribution formula giving the bulk of the program's $1.8 billion to the North.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, Vt., urged the Appropriations Committee to boost the program to $1 billion, using the House formula for the first $1 billion and a different approach that would lean toward the South for the last $200 million.

"I'm concerned about people freezing to death or roasting to death," said Leahy. But he argued that while last summer's hot spell was unusual, northern states can expect to be hit by extreme cold annually.

The stopgap spending bill would keep the government running from the start of the fiscal year Oct. 1 until Dec. 15. The bill would allow Congress to recess next week for the November election and then return for a "lame-duck" session.

Without the stopgap measure, most federal agencies would run out of money Oct. 1 because Congress has yet to enact any of the regular appropriations bills.

While considering the spending bill, the committee also voted, 17-6, to block the Carter administration from issuing rules before the November election to require schools to provide bilingual education for students who don't speak English.

The amendment, sponsored by Chiles, would bar the Education Department from issuing such regulations until June 1, 1981, at the earliest.

Study says average new home has $1,000 worth of defects

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average new house has defects that would cost almost $1,000 to repair, but most homeowners are satisfied with the overall quality of their property, according to a federally funded study.

The national survey, described as the first statistical look at new home defects and their costs, was immediately assailed by the National Association of Home Builders as exaggerated.

The $200,000 study was financed by the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"Our impression is that there are some housing industry members who continue to do unsatisfactory work," said Jeffrey Harris, an official of the FTC Bureau of Consumer Protection.

The commission is expected to continue its practice of bringing cases against builders believed to treat consumers unfairly, but the FTC is not working on a regulation applying to the entire industry.

The study by Mathematical Policy Research Inc. consisted of a telephone survey of 1,812 homeowners who purchased homes in 1977 and 1978, between 12 and 30 months before the survey. Inspectors then went to 299 of the homes to check the validity of the problems and estimate repair costs.

One out of five homeowners surveyed reported a "serious disagreement" with a builder, the study said. The average cost for repairs in houses with problems was $1,411, while the overall average was $908, it said.

The builders' group said the survey method led to "inconclusive and misleading" results. "Inspecting 299 homes can hardly be called a representative sample in an industry that, at that time, was building more than 2 million units a year," the industry group countered.

The home builders' group also stressed a survey finding that 79 percent of the homeowners were satisfied with the overall quality of their homes. Fifteen percent said they were dissatisfied and the rest had no opinion.

"The vast majority of new homes built in this nation are well built," the trade association said.

The 140-page report said 38 percent of the households reported no problems that were not solved by the builder. Long problems that builders would not repair, those concerning basements and floors, were most numerous, it said.

Researchers found houses priced under $100 and over $80,000 had more construction problems.

Ralph Nader now working in television, movies

Hopes to attract wider audiences for social issues

By MARTHA M. HAMILTON
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Ralph Nader has gone Hollywood. The former star of tract and testimony is moving to the stage and screen.

With a pilot for a television series completed and several movie projects along the lines of Norma Rae and The China Syndrome under development, Nader and his associates are hoping to attract a wider audience for the type of social issues he has sought to raise in reports.

New Citizen Productions in Studio City, Calif., is at work on several "docu-drama" projects it hopes to sell eventually as major feature films or network television movies, raising the possibility that a Ralph Nader production may some day appear on television flanked by advertising for such corporations as General Motors or Allied Chemical.

"Controversy sells," said Mark Litwak, a long-time Nader associate who is president of New Citizen Productions. Litwak noted that independent producers such as New Citizen generally have no control over which advertisers buy time to sponsor their productions. Nader has cultivated carefully an image as "Mr. Clean" in the years he has been in the public eye.

"IT'S UNLIKELY that a large corporation will want to advertise on the type of program we want to make, but I don't think that would preclude us from doing the type of programs we want," he said. He noted that such controversial television shows as "The Women's Room" have attracted sponsors.

Actually the relation between the Nader productions and advertisers will be somewhat arms-length. Television productions will be done for Marble Arch Productions, a television production company, not by the Nader company itself. "We are the raw material producers," said Nader.

Litwak said that Nader and his associates had discussed producing films or television shows for several years but that the success of "The China Syndrome" — a film that dramatized concerns about nuclear power safety — finally moved them to action.

"WE'RE WORKING on a variety of projects about consumer, environmental and other social issues, trying to produce stories that would inspire people to get involved, trying to be enlightening about social issues," he said.

New Citizen, which is set up specifically to produce shows under Nader's auspices, has been in operation for about a year. The company is working with Marble Arch Productions, a television production company which has produced such shows as "Friendly Fire" and is supplying New Citizen with an office and other support. Marble Arch is a part of ITC Entertainment-Lord Lew Grade which has produced such movies as "The Muppet Movie" and "Raise the Titanic."

"All our projects are based on true stories," said Litwak, who will produce the movies. Financing will depend on individual projects, he said. "Most of it will probably come from traditional sources, such as various studios and networks. We may also use some investor money," he said. The profits will go to various non-profit organizations associated with Nader or will be plowed back into more movie productions, Litwak said.

ly may carry Nader's name as producer or they may say "Ralph Nader Presents."

"There's a lot happening in this country that is not finding its way into film, whether it's for cinema or television," said Nader. What he plans to deliver to viewers is "really very interesting, down-to-earth, highly empathetic material about conflicts between corporations and communities, environmental issues" and other subjects, he said. "There are some pretty heroic performances."

Litwak said that movie studios have shown a great deal of interest in the projects under development. "Right now all the signs are very encouraging," he said. But he added that the company is a long way off yet from producing its first work, since movies take several years to develop and television

Features can take as long as a year to produce.

New Citizen has an option on "The Power Broker," a Pulitzer Prize-winning book about Robert Moses, he said. Still another project called "A Matter of Courage" is the saga of a doctor in a company town who wins an electoral victory against the establishment, which then tries to destroy him.

ON THE TELEVISION front, Nader is appearing as a commentator on Ted Turner's Cable News Network. He also has made two pilot talk shows for Showtime, a cable television service available in 47 states over 735 systems with approximately 1.2 million viewers. The first pilot, in which Nader interviewed the chief executive of Firestone, premiered in August. The second pilot was shown last week.

Showtime decided to go forward with the pilot produced by Don Davis Productions, after watching a tape of Nader debating Howard Jarvis, the father of Proposition 13, on the Merv Griffin Show, said spokeswoman Sybil Sever.

So far, the cable network has received 15 letters about the show — all negative, she said. "But you have to remember that Showtime is in the suburbs of the suburbs," she said. "They think Ralph Nader is a communist and this show is spreading socialist poison."

"Win or lose, we'll learn something," Nader said.

The 'four Cs' of buying diamonds: Cut, color, carat weight and clarity

You've heard the fundamentals of a good education discussed in terms of the "three Rs." Or Bach, Brahms and Beethoven referred to in musical circles as the "three Bs." But have you ever looked at a diamond and marvelled at it for the qualities of the "four Cs?"

Diamonds are as individual as fingerprints. And although two stones may appear identical to the naked eye, each one is a unique combination of four factors, or the "four Cs." The cut, or shape, of the stone; its color; its carat weight; and its clarity.

Selecting the diamond that's right for you or another involves an understanding of these four characteristics.

While each of the four characteristics are dependent on the other to give a finished diamond its beauty and value, it is the cut of the diamond that first illuminates and then emphasizes the other three qualities.

Because before a diamond is cut, it is little more than a rough stone. It is the skill of the diamond cutter that releases all the hidden beauty of the diamond while, at the same time, conserves the most weight of the stone that will determine its value. Additionally, a diamond must be cut to exact mathematical proportions so that the light entering the diamond will be refracted correctly.

The six most popular diamond cuts are the round, pear, marquise, oval, emerald and heart shape stones, all of which are available at O.G. Wilson.

Most favored of all is the round cut stone, although other shapes boast advantages of their own, allowing the cutter to use irregular pieces with little loss of stone weight and also appearing larger than round-cut diamonds of the same weight.

Once the diamond has been cut, it is important to consider the color of the stone. Diamonds are found in almost every color of the spectrum, but most stones fall into the "colorless" or "white" range. The truly rare stones are those which are, in fact, icy white. Other diamonds commonly display various tints of pale yellow.

COMBINE THESE TWO qualities with the stone's carat weight, the third of the "four Cs."

Historically, the carat was the weight of one carob seed, used by ancient jewelers to balance their scales. Today, the carat has a metric value of 200 milligrams, or one-fifth of a gram.

Since the value of a diamond is determined by its weight and not its size, these seemingly microscopic measurements play a big role in appraising a stone's worth. Especially when you consider that most of the world's rough diamonds weigh less than one carat. Rarity, then, increases with size.

For example, a two carat diamond is likely to cost more than twice as much as a one-carat stone of the same cut, color and clarity.

Clarity, the fourth and final "C," refers to the degree of perfection in a diamond crystal.

Because diamonds are formed by nature, they may contain small, almost invisible flaws known as "inclusions." A truly flawless diamond is one that shows no inclusions to a trained eye using a 10-power magnification. However, flawless diamonds are extremely rare, for nearly all stones have some natural inclusions.

All of O.G. Wilson's diamonds are classified using the four criteria described above. Following these guidelines, the O.G. Wilson gemologists grade individual diamonds on three levels of quality: "premium," "select," and "royal." Of these three "premium" is the ranking accorded to the most brilliant, while "select" quality diamonds refer to finished stones whose clarity is somewhat diminished and "royal" quality has only slightly less clarity than the other categories and is balanced by good color.

AND JUSE AS ALL of O.G. Wilson's diamonds are graded, each of these stones is accompanied by a Registration Bond assuring the customer the diamond he has purchased is the finest of its kind in its price range based on, of course, the "four Cs."

Ideally, there is a fifth "C"—but his quality is the responsibility of the customer alone. It's diamond care.

Once you've chosen your diamond, keep it sparkling with one of these simple cleaning methods:

Detergent soak diamonds in a warm, mild solution. Loosen soil with a soft brush and then rinse in warm water and pat dry.

Ammonia soak diamonds for 30 minutes in a solution of equal parts household ammonia and cold water. Brush gently, swish in the solution and then drain on tissue paper.

Commercially clean diamonds with a prepared cleaner, following instructions carefully.

Ultrasonic cleaners are also available. These clean by high-frequency turbulence, using a water/detergent mixture.

Traditionally, diamonds have been a girl's best friend. "Not so in 1980," says Doug Schuble, jewelry manager for O.G. Wilson.

Men, too, are finding diamonds spell success and affluence, and more than ever men are wearing tasteful pieces of diamond and karat-gold jewelry.

IN FACT, HISTORY tells us men have always held an inexplicable fascination for this rare mixture of raw material and finished art.

For centuries men have cherished the brilliant fire only a diamond can lend. Ancients believed they were splinters from the stars, crystallized lightning or hardened dewdrops. Famous diamonds have even been given names: The Hope, the Light of Peace, the Jubilee, the Black Star of Africa. And throughout history diamonds have been cloaked in myth, mystery and romance.

Adventures with the Peppermint triplets and friends are a well-whittled delight

CONSENTING ADULTS, OR THE DUCHESS WILL BE FURIOUS, Peter DeVries Little, Brown, $10.95

(Kenneth John Atchity is professor of literature at Occidental College)

Reviewed by KENNETH JOHN ATCHITY
Special to The Los Angeles Times

By the time the adolescent narrator of Peter DeVries' 19th novel tells us he's in love with triplets — "and they with me" — we are ready and eager for anything. The Peppermint Sisters, as Ted "Puck" Peachum's lovers are known in their trade, are a fitting Gotterdammerung to adventure among the boudoirs and back alleys of growing up that would make Till Eulenspiegel green with envy. Puck is the perfect creation of the literary artist, a word-mongering prankster who is to puns and witticisms as Johnny Appleseed was to apples. His one-liners are a fair sampler:

"From the bathroom came the sound of my grandmother brushing her tooth."

"Her voice was low, a voluptuously soft, thick contralto, and made me think of ripe figs being hurled at high speed into a pan of gruel."

"The next morning I awoke looking like a police sketch of myself put together from conflicting sources."

More than a touch of P.G. Wodehouse lurks among the syntactical by ways of DeVries' irresistible tour de force. The hilarious parodic style is justified by its own energies and the convincing character DeVries creates to display it: "Do you know what part of the human body cannibals consider the greatest delicacy? No, it's not, as you no doubt think, yo filthy beggar, the labia major or the underside of a breast, but the fat part of the hand just above the thumb. So you guessed wrong, you lubricious person, you sofa-creevice fondler, you secretary-tre-asure. Forgive me. I get carried away, and it's all in fun, or at least partly."

Puck counts the reader as his disciple after the opening paragraph of the novel: "For as long as I can remember, my father hibernated. Come late November or early December, the familiar signs would be evident, the familiar preparations begun. Already some days unshaven, the hair seeming to mat his chest a bit more thickly than usual ... he would stuff himself on lots of greasy food, like potato pancakes and pork butts, give us all a bear hug, and shuffle off to bed for the winter. Of course he didn't sleep straight through till spring, any more than any hibernating creature does ... He would stir every few days, eat a meal or two, perhaps a stack of pancakes soaked with honey ... drowsily read the paper ... for an hour, yawn, scratch himself, and climb back under the covers. Christmas morning would find him rooting under the wee with the rest of us. But he would not emerge permanently until he could hear the ice breaking 7p on the river ... in February or March."

DeVries has collected, and woven together into a high-spirited and zesty plot, the finest purple discards of an authorial career (including years on the staff of the New Yorker). This is a writer's book, a classic in its genre. French structuralists would call the book writerly or readerly or one of the made up words Puck would love to mince with them.

But first he would want to describe his date with young Columbine — whom he suspects he has made pregnant. She is the Lolita to his cerebral version of Holden Caulfield: "We stretched out on the grass listening to the Franck D minor. The first movement is marked Lento, calling for the slow, suitably solemn elucidation of thoughts on the part of a Pooock, Illinois, youth contemplating suicide because he has a girl in trouble; then Allegro non troppo for a quickening tempo as wedding arrangements are hastily launched by the girl's family — invitations, catering, and the like; and finally Allegro without modifying non troppo, to depict a further acceleration, this time on the part of the hero as he trots around town looking for a job. The second movement is marked Allegretto, for the fantasies he weaves about his forfeited smart life while he discharges his boring duties as teller in a bank, where, in the third and final movement, again marked Allegro non troppo, he drafts a scheme for an electronic check swindle enabling him to take it on the lam to Tristan da Cunha, a remote island in the South Atlantic supplying the title of his favorite Roy Campbell poem, which begins: 'Snore in the foam: the night is vast and blind.' What a line! What a mess!"

Puck's self-articulated adventures are what everyone wanted to say about college but did not have time for. Though all the characters — from the seductive sculptress and brewery heiress Snooky von Sickle to Kathy the cop — have the telltale shape of the author's own pen, that pen is so well-whittled we are delighted wit so much ado about nonsense. Puck remarks to one of his girlfriends: "I was thinking that anybody who sticks a feather in his cap and calls it macaroni has problems." By the end of his comic adventures of Don Juan, the Duchess is furious and Puck's problems — the products of "all in all, a rich, full life" not counting his nervous breakdown — are ours. We are grateful for the decadent diversion.

Collection is madness of confused poet

(THE RIGHT MADNESS ON SKYE by Richard Hugo; Norton; $12.95 hard cover; $4.95 paperback)

(Clayton Eshelman's most recent collection of poems is "Nights We Put the Rock Together.")

Reviewed by CLAYTON ESHELMAN
Special to The Los Angeles Times

Richard Hugo's new collection contains 33 poems written on the Isle of Skye, off the coast of Scotland, in 1977, during several months while the poet was with his family there, on a Guggenheim Fellowship.

Hugo writes as a massively depressed man whose idea of fun is to pretend that he is dead — such would be "the right madness," he explains in the title poem that ends the collection. The "wrong madness," we have been informed in the opening poem, is to be genuinely raving. My problem with such distinctions — and they occur everywhere — is that they do not hold up imaginatively if I stop and think about them. If I forget that a text is before me, I can read them as the sensations of a man searching for notions to make himself feel better.

The facts of the text are: There seems to be no reason for the speaker to be on the Isle of Skye other than as a tourist, without anything to do there, consumed by the general bleakness and fantasized size of the past, looking for something to write about. Again, I think of the man (whom I do not know) and feel sad that he is so confused. But the poems themselves make me furious.

The speaker presumes he can take up my time talking about anything:

I knew a family back home so ugly
I still think of them. I was young and cruel and made fun of the daughter's bad looks and her three dumb looking brothers, mouths open in effort to understand the nothing and bad something that were both bound to happen.

I don't remember their name. I remember it sounded shabby and poor like them.

The point is that by presenting himself as humble, confused and occasionally openly apologetic for what he is saying, the speaker attempts to cover up the fact that he is boring the reader to death. The following are some of the subjects that occupy him: He counts grave stones (there are "sixty-eight") and how many minutes a hawk hovers in the air ("twelve"); he wishes that he were a peasant at the same time he wants to wring my heart with the awfulness of a peasant's lot; he urges me to "believe in" picknick couples, is disappointed that a local monster will not rise from the water and that knights and dragons are passe'; he lists "the old songs" that he hums when he fishes alone (they are: "My Heart Is Taking Lessons," "I Had the Words and You in My Heart," "Makes No Difference Now" and "White Christams," "though I never liked it.")

I have been saying "He" here, with the speaker in mind, but the dominant pronoun is "we":

Nothing seems right, not the monument too close to the road nor the road that seems misplaced.
We'd have everyone fallen named, not one stone per clan, hidden in fern or behind a cedar, even the clan name faint, and trails that wander the woods better for lovers than for tribute.
We can't imagine trumpets, the steel clash of men, the bonnie prince riding away. If anything we think of picnics, cold salmon and wine.

Really, would we have "everyone fallen named"? I wouldn't. Who is this "we" that floats about in peasants, the Hugo family and Americans at large? Hugo himself, of course, but projecting self as collective sensibility so that, as reader, I am to be caught up and to feel guilty that I too (regarding the last three lines above) seem to prefer to think of pleasure rather than to imagine war.

A varied, skillful collection of stories

(WORLD'S END AND OTHER STORIES, Paul Theroux; Houghton, Mifflin, $9.95)

Reviewed by DON G. CAMPBELL
The Los Angeles Times

Greed, jealousy, venality, innocence, ambition, love. Mix those and most of the other ingredients of the human condition together, stamp out a cast of characters trying to cope with circumstances just a tiny bit out of their reach, and you have Paul Theroux's "World's End and Other Stories."

Written by a skilled storyteller who uses six words where lesser writers would use 18, Theroux's collection of 15 short stories follows, for the most part, a common thematic pattern: plopping his characters down in a setting unfamiliar to them and then watching them react to forces that, we feel, would tax their capabilities even on familiar ground. The reactions range from tragic to romantic to macabre and — in two or three stories — to delightfully tongue-in-cheek.

Theroux, perhaps best known for his recent non-fiction work, "The Old Patagonian Express" and "The Great Railway Bazaar," is as much at home creating a mood of horror (as in the chilling, African-based, "White Lies") as he is in his exploration of puppy love gone awry (as in the novella-length "The Greenest Island," where his postpubescent lovers flee to Puerto Rico to await the birth of their child simply because "it was cheap that year and it was as far away as they could get from people who knew they were not married.")

We have tragic ineptitude in the title story, where London-based American businessman Richard Roberge clumsily tries to use his 6-year-old son as a tool in salvaging his crumbling marriage, botching the job and alienating the son at the same time. And in "World Are Deeds," we have a summer-junketing professor from Connecticut, abandoned in Marseilles by his bored wife, finding himself obsessed with the idea of running off with a waitress in a Corsican restaurant. And, to his horror, succeeding.

But it is with the human parasites among us — both those operating with, and without, guile — that Theroux seems to have the most fun: with sales clerk Michael Insole in "algebra," who finds himself the darling of London's literary world simply because he has discovered that literary greats are lonely, too, and love nothing more than to freeload an occasional dinner.

Far more barbed, however, is Theroux's treatment, in "The Odd-Job Man," of parasitic Lowell Bloodworth, a Massachusetts professor who is not above a bit of misrepresentation and plagiarism in his attempts to solidify his niche in academe. And his clumsy attempts to latch onto the coattails of a noted but minor English poet with a vile temper — who sees through Bloodworth like a glass of water — is a delight of understated humor.

Roughly the same theme runs through the final offering, which, unfortunately, is entitled, "Acknowledgments." It is unfortunate because there is a temptation to take the title literally and to skip those pages, which would be to miss perhaps the most offbeat, and whimsical, story in this varied and skillful collection.

A book that fosters understanding, compassion

(LESBIAN CROSSROADS by Ruth Baetz; Morrow; $10.95)

(Richard J. Morris is a philosopher who coordinates an interdisciplinary course in human sexuality at Loyola Marymount University.)

Reviewed by RICHARD J. MORRIS
Special to The Los Angeles Times

I read Ruth Baetz's book four times. Once as she wrote it: an admirably balanced collection of interviews with women recounting and reflecting on their passage into lesbianism; a series of quite different voices talking about personal identity, family, children, church, work, school, politics, ethnicity and lesbian society. These are not arid case histories but women laughing at themselves, worrying about their kids and explaining what it's like to be black, brown, copper or white — and lesbian. To know these women better, I reread the book as a collected series of biographies. It was a revelation. Where before there had been isolated voices talking in church or at a gay bar, now there emerged 28 women, among them 19-year-old Carol, for whom it was a fabulous head trip; Maria, who was butch but definitely not macho; Esther, the rancher and retired oil-company executive; and Jacqueline, who, at 72, quite pragmatically played the field in a word, where — at her age — there were clearly more companionable women than men.

Baetz offers her work as a handbook, a traveler's guide to the shifting frontiers of familiar and strange, the bridges, the minefields, the sanctuaries and the ghettos. In this light I read the book a third time. Twenty-eight paths converge in these pages, but not on some well-defined concept like "coming out," or even "lesbianism."

This book will foster that understanding and, perhaps, prepare us for compassion. It is funny, irritating, understanding, instructive, and sad. It deserves to be read at least once.

Patti Kownaler-Rivers, Midland caterer, admires a selection of O.C. Wilson tabletop accessories including crystal by Fostoria, flatware by Oneida and China by Mikasa.

Nicely dressed table excites the eye

The key is a beautiful combination of accessories

Whether you are planning a cozy meal for two, a holiday dinner for 20 or just a quick snack for after the game, it pays to remember that a nicely dressed table excites the eye just as fine cuisine excites the palate.

The key to an inviting table is, of course, a beautiful combination of dinnerware, stemware, crystal, flatware, table linens and serving pieces. And at O.G. Wilson you needn't go far for any of them.

But before you go shopping for yours, Sherrie Tweedie-Finch, merchandise buyer for O.G. Wilson suggests you take inventory of what you already own. "A well-dressed and accessorized table begins with good planning," says Finch. "Several carefully chosen pieces and a little imagination can go a long way to create tempting and versatile table settings."

Once you are at the showroom, make sure you try the may different combinations of china, stoneware and silver right there on the counter. If it is your first time to pick a china or stoneware pattern, Finch suggests you pick the dinnerware pattern you like and work from there.

Many hostesses are combining the elegant pattern of their china with less expensive sets of solid-colored dinnerware. "The rule to follow is to pair the elegant with the simple," offers Patti Kownaler-

Rivers, a prominent Midland caterer. O.G. Wilson features may patterns of fine china brands like Mikasa and Sango as well as Oneida silverplate and stainless steel flatware.

"Remember, color is an instant mood setter," says Rivers, "and there is no end to the variety of materials than can be adapted as table cloths, place mats and napkins." Short on napkin rings? Try a satin or brightly colored ribbon to tie around your napkins. Tuck a daisy into the fold and you have added an inexpensive and memorable touch to your table and to your dinner.

Two sets of dishes can immediately turn into one large set for parties. Another mix and match bonus? Young homemakers can enjoy a complete set of crystal, china or sterling right away by simply filling the "blanks" with the complementing set.

When it comes to glassware, no hostess can ever have enough. And thanks to the inexpensive 24-piece sets by Libbey and Anchor Hocking, entertaining is a breeze. For special birthdays or company dinners, use your perfectly plain glassware alongside your heirloom crystal and again your options are doubled.

"Opposite patterns really do attract on the table," says Finch. Tiffin and Fostoria crystal are just two of the brand names O.G. Wilson offers at prices well below retail.

And last but not least, you'll be using your serving pieces and holloware all the time. And the good news is that you really can use your copper chafing dish, wooden bowls and crystal decanter all at one time. "Extra serving pieces were meant to go together," says River. In addition, your serving pieces can do double duty. Use that gravy boat to serve hot fudge on sundaes. Or that seldom-used quiche dish can hold rolls.

"The idea is to put your imagination as well as your china and other special pieces to work," says Finch. "Fine things are to be used and enjoyed."

'Rawhide' most wanted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If we must have reruns, then let's have them from television's Golden Age, said 1,300 viewers who picked "Rawhide" as their most-wanted TV rerun in a Top 20 newspaper survey Tuesday.

"The Honeymooners" and "Amos 'n' Andy" came in second and third.

The poll by the Los Angeles Herald Examiner was prompted by the 64-day-old actors strike that has virtually wiped out the new fall TV season and brought down an avalanche of reruns on an audience already wearied by a summer of repeat episodes.

"Rawhide," was the 1960's CBS show that gave Clint Eastwood his start.

Records now a habit

COLUMBIA, Ill. (AP) — The world's champion Sunday school-goer says breaking his old record has become habit-forming.

Every Sunday that Roland Daab, 66, enters St. Paul United Church of Christ here, he breaks the record which he set in 1977 and was listed in the Guinness Book of World Records. He had attended 3,000 consecutive Sundays at that time, and his mark is now 3,226.

He attributes his 62 years of perfect attendance to "good health." Perfect attendance runs in his family. His brother Wilbert had 25 years perfect attendance before he was killed in an industrial accident in 1945, and his sister, Esther Volkert, had a perfect record for 29 years until the early 1950s.

O.G. Wilson catalog concept began with sales of one-penny watch parts

When Oddis Glen Wilson began selling watch parts for a penny apiece, he had no idea his company would grow to the 14 catalog showrooms the O.G. Wilson encompasses today.

For more than 50 years, O.G. Wilson has been providing a wide range of quality products priced well below the manufacturer's suggested retail.

Beginning in Louisville, Ky., in 1926, O.G. Wilson provided a service to area jewelers through his mimeographed pages of watch finding or parts. Prices for the parts were as low as one to five cents. Until the early 1950s, "Old Gold," as he was known to his friends for his hobby of collecting and selling various gold pieces, enjoyed a prospering jewelry business.

In the early 1950s, an enterprising salesman from Chicago stopped in Mr. Wilson's shop offering a four-piece set of luggage. When the salesman found out about the large list of customers O.G. had developed through his watch parts company, he convinced Wilson to feature a set of the luggage to sell on the front cover of his "catalog."

The prospect of a $20 sale, compared to the nickel sales he already had, was a tempting offer and Wilson agreed.

The new partnership was quite successful, and eventually the watch finding company expanded to include a wide variety of consumer merchandise as well as jewelry.

"I remember, as a little girl in a small Western Kentucky town, getting the O.G. Wilson catalog at our grocery store," recalls Valeta Gart, vice president for marketing and operations support for O.G. Wilson and one of the original O.G. Wilson employees. "In those days, the grocer bought the catalog merchandise at wholesale and sold it to the customers at retail. Many catalog showrooms were started in this way."

In 1968, the Zale Corporation acquired existing showrooms in Louisville and by 1970 O.G. Wilson had prospered enough to become a separate division of the corporation with solid plans for expansion and growth.

Today there are 14 catalog showrooms in 6 states. With the addition of the Midland showroom, the success story of O.G. Wilson continues to grow.

O.G. Wilson Jewelers and Distributors is housed in the corporate headquarters of the Zale Corporation in Dallas. Each catalog showroom features elegant displays of brand name merchandise featured at a price below the manufacturer's retail.

The concept of "home town service," plus a full line of quality merchandise such as precision cameras, sporting goods, luggage and a wide range of jewelry merchandise have made O.G. Wilson a prominent name among catalog showrooms.

Wilson's Midland showroom arrives in time for fall needs

Fall is in the air. And the O.G. Wilson's catalogue showroom is now in Midland just in time to help you with your seasonal needs.

O.G. Wilson, highly regarded for more than half a century as a dependable source for fine jewelry products, also brings you a consistently fine line of merchandise including sporting goods, precision cameras and electronics, luggage, appliances, household and leisure accessories.

O.G. Wilson now brings these quality items to Midland at exceptionally low prices — and offers them to discerning shoppers just in time for traditional fall activities.

Hunters, in the market this fall for a new shotgun or deer rifle, can set their sights on firearms by Smith & Wesson, Remington, Winchester and other trusted manufacturers.

For the outdoorsman who does his shooting through a lens instead of a barrel, O.G. Wilson can supply the kind of equipment that lets you bring 'em back on film. Canon, Pentax, Mamiya, Yashica, Konica and Minolta — all brand name cameras at bargain prices.

With the coming of fall comes those seasonal holidays that wouldn't be complete without special meals and desserts for special friends and relatives. O.G. Wilson offers a wide variety of kitchen accessories, fine china, and glassware, and silverware, all designed to help your food taste and look its best.

Smart shoppers at the O.G. Wilson showroom will be taking advantage of the jewelry lawaway plan. Start your payments now and enjoy giving the finest of gifts by Christmas.

These are but a few of the seasonal items O.G. Wilson will be offering to Midland shoppers this fall. And along with these fall accessories are the year 'round buys O.G. Wilson offers through its complete line of quality merchandise, including jewelry, leather goods, office supplies and personal care accessories.

So whether you're stocking up for fall, shopping early for Christmas, or just making some sensible additions to your home or hobby, O.G. Wilson's new Midland catalogue showroom could be just what you're looking for.

Council of Europe passes treaty protecting privacy from computers

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — The first international treaty designed to protect people from abusive use of computer-compiled personal data was unanimously adopted Tuesday by the Committee of Ministers of the 21-nation Council of Europe.

"The aim of the Council of Europe is to reconcile technological progress with human values and to assure the respect of the European agreement on human rights in this particularly sensitive and complex sector," a statement by the committee said.

The treaty is to be signed by the 21-member nations at the Council of Europe's October session. It then must be ratified by the respective parliaments.

Under the agreement, it would be forbidden to compile information on a person's racial origins, political opinions or religious convictions.

It also would give a person the right to look at data concerning him and to make rectifications in the case of errors.

The Council, founded in 1949, has no legislative powers, but its resolutions as the widest interparliamentary body in Europe often influence many national legislative trends.

San Diego plays spoiler

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Trailing by 18½ games, with only 10 remaining, San Diego has long been out of the 1980 baseball season. But instead of playing dead, the Padres are playing the spoiler role as the tight National League West race winds down.

A week ago the lowly Padres swept a two-game series from first-place Houston, then took three straight from red-hot Atlanta, stalling the Braves' late pennant charge.

"We're acting like spoilers," said Broderick Perkins, who drove in three runs with two singles in a 9-4 victory over the Astros Tuesday night.

The defeat shaved Houston's lead to one game over the Los Angeles Dodgers, who defeated the Braves 4-2 Tuesday night.

The Padres, with 13 victories in their 18 games, have a chance to shape the outcome of the pennant race in the next week. They face third-place Cincinnati four times and the Dodgers three times.

"Things have been a lot more interesting since we started playing some of the kids," said Padres' Manager Jerry Coleman.

With Perkins, a late-season addition, providing the power and John Curtis the pitching, San Diego rallied from a 3-0 deficit to overwhelm the Astros.

"You feel good when you can help a club," said Perkins, who is batting .447 since being called up from San Diego's Class AAA farm club at Hawaii.

Curtis, a second-half sensation, scattered 11 hits to register his sixth victory in his last seven decisions. Since July 24, he has tossed five complete games in nine starts and his earned run average is under 2.30 during the stretch.

The loss went to rookie Randy Niemann, who was making his first start of the season. He was replacing Ken Forsch, who flew home because of his mother's death Monday night.

Veteran second baseman Joe Morgan said the loss means the Astros must overcome yet another setback this season.

"We have to come back," he said. "When we overcame the loss of J.R. Richard, that established that we can bounce back."

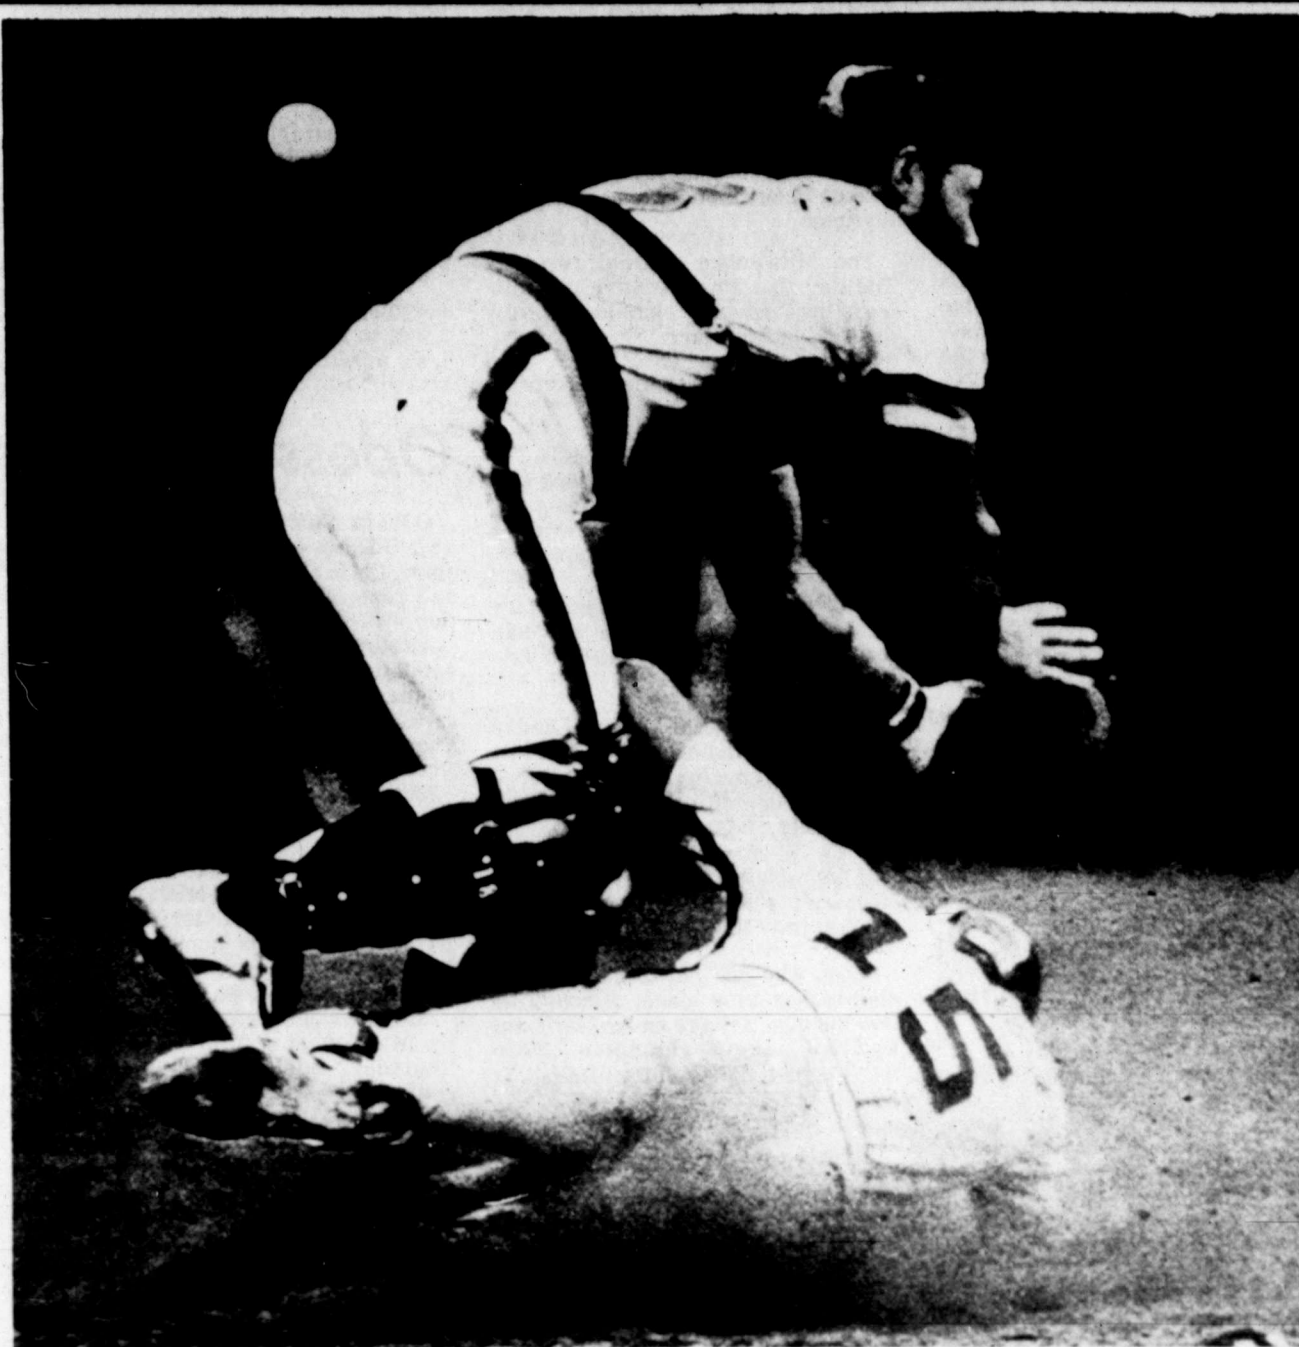

"We've come too far. Our game (tonight) in Atlanta is a key one for us. If we can't respond at this time of the year, we don't deserve to win."

Forsch, 12-12 this year with a 3.20 ERA, was in Sacramento Monday night when his mother, Freada, died while awaiting open-heart surgery. Forsch is 2-0 against San Diego in 1980 and 9-4 lifetime with a 2.43 ERA against the Padres.

Niemann, 0-1, was chased in the fourth inning when San Diego sent nine men to the plate and scored four runs.

Curtis, 9-8, and the Padres trailed 3-0 in the fourth but earned the victory when San Diego rallied with four in the fourth and five in the fifth.

Houston sends Joaquin Andujar, 3-6, against Atlanta's Doyle Alexander, 13-9, in the opener of a two-game series tonight.

Houston's Gary Woods literally bounces across home plate as he disrupts San Diego catcher Gene Tenace from catching the ball. The run counted.

but the Padres went on to defeat the Astros, 9-4, as Houston's NL West lead was cut to one game over Los Angeles. (AP Laserphoto)

'Fam-A-Lee' bites dust again

By The Associated Press

Is the family about to bite the dust?

The Pittsburgh Pirates won the National League and World Series championships last year with the theme song "We Are Fam-A-Lee" illustrating their team unity and spirit.

But with only two weeks left in the 1980 season, the Pirates are 3½ games behind Philadelphia and four behind the NL East-leading Montreal Expos, who celebrate each victory with taped renditions of "Another One Bites the Dust" by the English rock group Queen.

The Pirates' family bit the dust Tuesday night as Steve Rogers pitched a three-hitter and the Expos scored six runs in the sixth inning on the way to a 7-1 victory.

"It's nice to hear that music again," said Montreal Manager Dick Williams.

The Expos theme song was selected by outfielder Ellis Valentine, who currently is back in Montreal with an ailing wrist.

"Ellis started playing it. He's not here, so I play it every time we win — and somebody bites the dust," said Rowland Office.

Pittsburgh tasted defeat on Tuesday, but can they come back in the last 11 games?

"It's not going to be easy, but we've been in tougher spots than this and come back," said Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner.

"We've got to keep winning and hope we get some help," said Pittsburgh infielder Phil Garner. "We're not out of it by any means, but we've got our backs to the wall."

The Pirates, who despite the loss won 12 of 18 games against Montreal this season, have no games left with the Expos or Philadelphia, which fell out of first place with a 6-3 loss to St. Louis and one-half game behind.

Rogers had a no-hitter until there were two outs in the fifth and lost his shutout in the sixth inning.

Cards 6, Phillies 3

Al Olmsted won his first major league decision and knocked Philadelphia out of first place by holding the Phillies to three hits through eight innings.

"I said all along it's going to be a dogfight until the very end," said Phillies Manager Dallas Green. "The race will probably go down to the last three-game series in Montreal."

Olmsted gave up three hits in the ninth, including Mike Schmidt's 43rd homer, and needed relief help from John Littlefield.

Ken Oberkfell had two RBI-singles to lead the St. Louis offense.

Dodgers 4, Braves 2

Los Angeles broke a seven-game losing streak against Atlanta as Derrel Thomas had three hits, knocked in a run and scored two.

Bob Welch, Bobby Castillo and Don Stanhouse combined to scatter nine hits as Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 4-2 Tuesday night to snap a four-game losing streak and move to within one game of Houston in the National League West.

Bob Welch, 14-9, shut out the Braves on five hits before leaving in the seventh because of a pulled groin muscle. Bob Castillo, who gave up Dale Murphy's 30th homer of the season for Atlanta's runs, and Don Stanhouse finished for the Dodgers.

Reds 2, Giants 1

Frank Pastore retired the last 19 San Francisco batters and Dan Driessen knocked in the winning run with an eighth-inning single as Cincinnati stayed in the West race.

Pastore, 12-7, struck out six and walked three while allowing no hits after the third inning.

Vic Correll, playing for the injured Johnny Bench, singled home the Reds' first run in the fifth.

Cubs 6, Mets 5

New York scored five runs in the ninth inning, but Bruce Sutter came in to get the final out for his 28th save.

Mike Krukow, 9-15, had a three-hit shutout going into the ninth, but the Mets broke loose with RBI-singles by Lee Mazzilli and Elliott Maddox, a run-scoring double by Steve Henderson and Joel Youngblood's two-run double.

Ivan DeJesus drove in two runs for Chicago and three of the Cubs' runs resulted from two errors by New York pitchers.

AP honors Michael Feldt

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

When Midland tailback Jerry Zachery broke his leg and dislocated his ankle prior to last week's game against Lubbock Monterey, the burden of the offense fell to quarterback Michael Feldt.

He didn't drop it.

On the opening kickoff, Feldt made a touchdown-saving tackle and then proceeded to lead Midland to a 33-21 victory by completing seven of 12 passes for 140 yards and two touchdowns, rushing 16 times for 178 yards and two more touchdowns and making seven tackles as a defensive safety.

The performance earned Feldt, 6-2, 185, mention in this week's Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll.

"He started the game by saving it for us, and ended it by winning it," said first year head coach Pat Culpepper. "He's a tremendous competitor. We weren't playing well at the half and he told me to chew everyone out."

Culpepper, coaching in high school after being involved in college athletics 17 years, said "If I were at a college, he'd be my quarterback. I've never seen any better than him. He's the kind that can win a national championship for you."

"And he's a worker. He's no prima donna. His heroes are guys like James Street (former Texas quarterback), who would get in there and fight, not a guy standing back there with his shoes shined waiting for a block."

Feldt's touchdown passes went seven and 39 yards to David Bledsoe and his touchdown runs went one and 65 yards.

While Feldt was leading Midland to victory, Port Neches-Groves quarterback Donnie Schexnider was dazzling Nederland with a passing display that helped his team to a 35-0 victory.

Schexnider completed 11 of 12 passes for 172 yards, including two touchdown passes and one scoring run.

In other outstanding individual performances:

— Senior fullback Mike Jonas of Runge turned in an all-around performance in a 35-6 victory over Ben Bolt. Jonas, 6-2, 210, rushed 12 times for 180 yards, scoring on runs of 92 and two yards and threw a halfback pass for a 40-yard touchdown. Jonas also made 12 tackles and intercepted a pass as a linebacker.

— Klein tailback Mike Klein rushed for a career high 230 yards and had scoring runs of four, 74, and 60 yards in a 28-24 victory over Aldine MacArthur.

— Wharton tailback Antonio Brinkley rushed 215 yards and scored on runs of two and 51 yards en route to a 33-13 victory over Columbia.

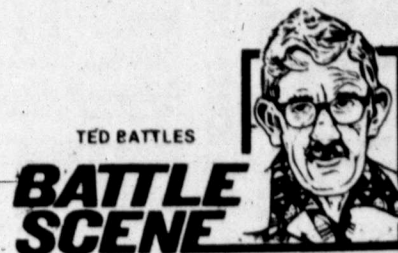

— George West quarterback Pat James contributed to 21 of his team's points in a 23-13 victory over Kenedy. James returned the opening kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown, completed five of 11 passes for 113 yards, including touchdowns of 17 and 20 yards and kicked three extra points.

Enrollment drop to hurt athletics

(Second of two parts)

Midland high schools face a dramatic drop in student enrollment in two years and the drought will last until 1991-92, according to Athletic Director Gil Bartosh, before Midland High and Midland Lee will approach this year's attendance figures.

Bartosh anticipates a consequent drop off in consistency and quality in Tall City athletics, a problem Midland has experienced before.

Midland first encountered the "numbers" game back in 1959, before it had the opportunity to cash in on any of the spoils of an overflowing student body.

Midland High was the only school in town. It had lost the District 2-4A championship to Odessa High in the final game of the season on a last minute goal line play still disputed by those who were there some 20 years later. The next year, Midland would have dominated the district in not only football, but basketball, track and probably tennis, too.

Of course, Midland never got that chance. MHS already was straining at the seams, enrollmentwise, and Lee wasn't built any too soon. Each school was in the 1,500 vicinity and it took a decade to recover.

DURING ALL the intervening years, Midland had never reached the 1,800 enrollment figure until this year.

"When Lee was winning its two district football titles in the mid-1970s and dominating in other sports, it had 2,300 to 2,400 students," Bartosh pointed out.

About the same period, during Coach John Reddell's coaching regime, Midland High had 1,700 to 1,750 students. The Bulldogs were competitive, but the numbers eventually chased Reddell to Trinity-Eules. "The best we can do is a 7-3 or 6-4 season," he explained in leaving. "That's fine, but I'd like to have an opportunity to compete for the district title every now and then and with the numbers we have, that isn't possible."

Since then, the boundaries have been changed in an effort to equalize the student bodies and Lee now is the smaller school (although it will balance out in another two years) and the decrease in enrollment has shown up most obviously in athletics, although Bartosh points out "it effects the quality of all of your extracurricular programs."

Under Bartosh as coach at Lee, the change wasn't too noticeable. Lee, after all, contended for the district title up until the very end, but Gil still wonders what might have been if the Rebels had been blessed with a little more depth and relieved of the necessity of so many players going both ways.

The drop in numbers has been most apparent in Midland Lee's basketball program, which began hurting two years ago.

Back in the mid 1970s when Lee had its top good teams, Coach Paul Stueckler recalls, "We had 100 new players out each fall. Last year we had just 30 new ones, but the number is up to 45 this year."

Six years ago, Stueckler observes, "We had 2,300 students the year we won everything and I had 120 new kids out for basketball that fall. It has been dropping every year since until it bottomed out last year."

Bartosh declares that 1,750 seems to be the magic number. "Once you go below that, the bottom seems to drop out."

Bartosh feels the No. 1 priority, therefore, is the junior high schools as a feeder system. "It's great for the coaches morale, too. If a coach does a good job, it means a promotion when there is a vacancy."

This year, Midland's seventh grades at Alamo, Goddard and San Jacinto will have teams in American and National Conferences. In the eighth grade, there is an inter-city conference with the Odessa schools and an intra-city conference. At the Freshman school level, Midland teams compete with Odessa schools. The idea is to keep 'em playing.

This year both Midland and Midland Lee are represented by sophomores as well as junior varsity and varsity teams.

"I'm not saying we can't compete," says Bartosh. "But we're looking at consistency and quality which goes with more people. We can compete, but we're going to have to work harder at it."

IF ANYONE knows how to compete, it's Bartosh. He was a perennial district winner during his Houston coaching days and he brought a state championship to Odessa Permian. In comparing the Midland and Odessa programs, Gil points out that "Permian's success was in one sport. It had a true junior high feeder system and its entire coaching staff, junior high to high school, was football oriented."

He goes on, "In Midland, you have a different situation. It has always had a balanced athletic program and as a result has enjoyed great success in basketball, golf, tennis, swimming and baseball. We want competitive football, but not at the expense of the overall program."

One thing, Bartosh said, that makes the football program so strong is that the football coach is also athletic director and hires coaches at the high school and junior high levels.

Bartosh credits the consistent success Midland has enjoyed in basketball in a large measure to the fact that each school has a fulltime basketball coach and an assistant who is freed of any football duties with the start of basketball. "Midland has 80 out for basketball this fall. I doubt if any other school in the district has a fourth as many."

"We're not over-emphasizing any sport. All of them are important to us. In fact, I feel youngsters will have to play more sports in the future and the coaches should encourage them to participate in more than one sport if they have the ability."

MHS attendance is projected at 1,714 in 1981-82 and Lee will be 1,590, but by 1983-84 Lee will be down to 1,460 and Midland 1,558. Neither will be above 1,600 until 1986-87 when Midland will be 1,683 and Lee 1,619 and there will be no noticeable upswing until 1991-92.

A survey conducted at Plano by the UIL's Dan Farney revealed the average of district 5A football champions was 2,200 students and only one district winner dipped below 1,800, which Bartosh reads for Midland schools as a long battle with a short stick.

Consequently, he is marshalling his forces in an effort to keep the Bulldogs and Rebels competitive by developing the junior high schools as a true feeder system for all sports.

When Thurman "Tugboat" Jones was athletic director he instituted a program designed to give as many junior high level youngsters an opportunity to play and develop in both football and basketball. The program, handicapped by the fact that no junior highs fed any one high school, stressed fundamentals. Bartosh's program will go beyond that. Each junior high will run the same offense and defense that their respective high schools will use. Clinics will be conducted and junior high coaches will work more closely with the high school head coaches.

It will take an efficiently run program for Midland and Lee to remain competitive in the future. Bartosh is taking steps to ensure that now, not two years from now when the "numbers" wolf is at the door.

'The Franchise' only needs a cape to complete image

When Midland High tailback Jerry Zachery went down with a broken leg against Andrews a couple of weeks back, there were those ready to write a season ending obituary for the 1980 edition of the Bulldogs. Few remembered that "The Franchise" had yet to show his real stuff.

Well, "The Franchise" came out of the Memorial Stadium phone booth Friday against Lubbock Monterey to take his place among the long list of comic book heroes.

There was no "S" on the front or cape on the back. There was no mask or super car to accompany him. But even without the standard comic book equipment, quarterback Michael Feldt perhaps took his first step toward joining the mythical legends of high school football.

Feldt's emergence from the phone booth was a clear message — evil forces will not be permitted in the Tall City. Monterey got the message, and there are probably a few eyes elsewhere that were opened.

"The Franchise" demanded attention Friday. No one could escape his presence. He ran for 178 yards on 16 carries. He scored two touchdowns, one on an electrifying 65-yard run. He had other big gainers of 34, 31 and 29 yards. He completed seven of 12 passes for 140 yards, five of them going to neighborhood friend David Bledsoe for 105 yards and two touchdowns. He played safety on defense and made at least four jaw crunching tackles. He punted. And he even gave the ball to fullback Scott Yoeham enough on the belly series for an additional 76 yards and a touchdown.

On the negative side, he didn't give the pre-game prayer, sell popcorn at halftime or march with the band. He didn't sell tickets or give the play-by-play as had been suggested by coach Pat Culpepper.

After all, "The Franchise" is a hero of this world, and he has his limitations. A Monterey defenseman even sacked him for a 17-yard loss on one play. But make no mistake, it was Feldt who brought the Bulldogs from a 14-7 deficit for a 33-21 victory. Even after the big 17-yard loss, it was Feldt who gained 31 yards on the next play and then threw a 39-yard TD to Bledsoe two plays later for another MHS score.

And that performance couldn't have come at a better time. One had the feeling that the Bulldogs were on a sinking ship after losing to Andrews. The team, and probably coaches too, had to have second thoughts about where they were headed. The loss of Zachery was an emotional let down for the "Dogs, not to mention the loss to AAAA Andrews.

Now the Bulldogs have to have renewed hopes, and with district play and Odessa Permian just around the corner, Feldt's phone booth transformation was none to soon.

It's not that Feldt is a newcomer to the easily used "Super Star" status. This is the third year that Feldt has started at quarterback for MHS. Every year, the term "Super Star" has been pinned on his lapel. In 1978, Feldt suffered a break of a non-weight bearing leg bone in the first game of the season. In 1979, he tore up a knee midway through the district schedule. Every coach, however, who has faced MHS in the past three years always mentioned Feldt as the man to stop.

His talent is known in football circles, but he never had a game like he did against Monterey last Friday. Few ever do. There are many Midlanders who felt Feldt had never lived up to his advance billing. And there are many who still whisper that another injury might creep into the picture.

But make no mistake, Michael Feldt is the straw that stirs the drink at Midland High. Even Reggie would give him that. As Feldt goes for the rest of 1980, so will go the Bulldogs.

But someone still needs to buy the kid a cape. How can any self-respecting super hero maintain this level of crime busting without a cape?

Girl cagers ready to go

The junior high girls basketball season opens here Thursday with tournaments in the 7th, 8th and 9th grades.

The three tournaments run through Saturday, according to assistant Athletic Director Edwin Nixon.

In the 7th grade tourney at San Jacinto, San Jacinto Green plays Alamo White at 4 p.m. while at the same time, Goddard Black takes on Alamo Red. At 5:15 p.m., Alamo Blue battles San Jacinto White. On Friday, the winners play at 4 p.m. while the teams in the consolation bracket play at 5:15 p.m. Finals Saturday will be at 10:30 a.m. with the consolation championship game at 9 a.m.

In the 8th grade tourney at Alamo, San Jacinto White squares off with Alamo Blue at 4 p.m. while in the other 4 p.m. outing, Goddard White faces San Jacinto Green. In the 5:15 p.m. contest, Goddard Black challenges Alamo Red.

The winners meet at 4 p.m. Friday and the teams in the consolation bracket play at 5:15 p.m.

The consolation finals are at 9 a.m. Saturday with the championship battle set for 10:30 a.m.

In the Freshman or 9th grade tourney at Midland High School, Midland Gold plays Lee Maroon at 4 p.m. and Lee Red faces Midland Purple at the same time. In the 5:15 p.m. game, Lee White faces Midland Blue.

In Friday's action, the winners play at 4 p.m. and the losers in the consolation bracket, square off at 5:15 p.m.

Consolation finals Saturday are at 3 p.m. with the big championship tilt at 4:15 p.m.

Landry remembers suffering

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Landry can remember the hard times...that expansion year in 1960 when the Dallas Cowboys didn't win a game.

Which is why he called Green Bay Packer Coach Bart Starr two weeks ago to tell him to hang in there.

Starr disclosed that fact to the Dallas media Tuesday in a telephone hookup before Landry's weekly press luncheon.

The Milwaukee Journal reported Tuesday that the executive committee of the Packers is close to making a decision to fire Starr.

The Cowboys meet the Packers in Milwaukee Sunday.

The Journal quoted a member of the committee as saying "I think that a lot of the board members are going to be waiting to see what happens in the Dallas game next Sunday."

Landry admitted he called Starr because he "was a friend who has been suffering" in the win-loss column.

"I think the world of Tom Landry and he called me after they had lost the Denver game because he had read some things about my situation here," said Starr.

"I appreciated that. He told me that everybody goes through a down period from time to time."

Starr, who has yet to have a winning season as a coach, although he was the quarterback on two National Football League champion Green Bay teams that victimized Dallas, 1-2 this season.

The Cowboys have whipped Washington and Tampa Bay, with a 41-20 loss to Denver sandwiched in the middle.

"It shows you something about Landry that he called me after the Denver loss," said Starr. "It was really encouraging."

Landry said, "I talk to coaches from time to time. I like to talk to Bart every once in a while."

Landry was asked if he got any calls in Dallas' dismal years.

"I didn't get many calls," he said, laughing. "I guess everybody figured I was on my way out."

He added, "Bart didn't call, but he was almost responsible for me on my way out by the way he beat us every time we played the Packers."

Landry said he feared a fired up Packer team Sunday.

"It's been a very unusual season in the NFL," said Landry. "You see games where a team has been wiped out, like Green Bay at Los Angeles Sunday, then you see them come bouncing back like we did against Tampa Bay."

"It would be a mistake for us to underestimate Green Bay. They just might rise up. Sometimes it's hard to convince players that other professionals are as good as they are. Green Bay is capable of playing much better."

In 8th grade action, Midland Alamo heads the pack with a 2-0 reading after a 12-0 victory over Odessa Hood. Midland San Jacinto is next with a 1-0-1 mark while Nimitz is 1-0, after being open last week. Midland Goddard, Odessa Hood and Odessa Blackshear are next with 1-1 readings.

Besides Alamo's 12-0 win last week, Goddard took an impressive 40-0 win over Crockett; Odessa Blackshear blanked Odessa Bowie, 6-0 and San Jacinto battled Bonham to a 0-0 deadlock.

Starr reign shows glaring weakness

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A glaring crack is evident in the rock that has been the Green Bay Packers' executive committee, long a bastion of solidarity in support of Bart Starr.

None of the committee's seven members would admit to having said that Starr should be fired as the National Football League team's head coach and general manager.

But the identity of the source wasn't seen as important amid the furor generated by the report by Dave Begel in Tuesday's Milwaukee Journal.

Rather, the significance was seen in the departure of at least one committee member from the panel's traditionally unbending stance in support of Starr, a hero in Green Bay almost since the day he became the team's first string quarterback eight games into the 1959 season.

Starr, whose exploits as a quarterback earned him a spot in pro football's Hall of Fame, was named coach and general manager Dec. 24, 1974, a nearly acclamation choice among fans for the job.

MHS defeats Abilene High

ABILENE — The Midland High volleyball team broke open a defensive struggle in the third game here Tuesday night to take a 12-10, 12-14, 15-5 District 5-5A victory over Abilene High.

The win gives MHS a 2-1 loop record and an 11-7 season mark. "I thought everyone played very well on defense and our serving game really picked up in the third game," coach Linda Jolly said.

The MHS junior varsity ran its league record to 3-0 with a 16-14, 13-15, 9-4 win over AHS. Midland High travels to San Angelo to face the 2-1 Bobcats Thursday. San Angelo recently lost to Abilene Cooper.

to open the regular season, but have swirled again after defeats of 29-7 by Detroit and 51-21 by Los Angeles the last two weekends.

"If he (Starr) had anything on the ball, any class, he'd resign right now," the committee member, who asked not to be identified, was quoted as saying. "We want to get rid of him with class and without hurting the franchise. The best way to do it would be for him to resign. Right now."

"What I'm thinking now is that he should be fired right now," he said.

Dominic Olejniczak, committee president, said The Journal story has "no foundation."

Tony Canadeo, a committee member and widely rumored to have been the source of the leak, denied it. Jerry Atkinson, another committee member, said he never has met or spoken with Begel, and said the story was "just a shame."

The four other committee members — John Torinus, Fred Trowbridge, John B. Stiles and Judge Robert Parins — all indicated nothing is in the works to dump Starr.

But that doesn't mean they're content. "I'm not happy. You'd have to be sick to be happy the way things are going up here," a committee member who requested anonymity told The Associated Press.

"I couldn't be a true Packer backer if I was happy, and I'm on the executive committee," he said. "Maybe things will straighten out. Maybe this team has something hidden. But I haven't seen it."

"I think Bart has been patient with (quarterback) Lynn Dickey to the point where it's hurt Bart's career," he said. "A quarterback is the most important cog in the operation. We haven't got one."

Olejniczak, interviewed by telephone from Green Bay, was asked by The AP if he thinks a majority of the committee wants Starr to be dismissed.

"Positively not," Olejniczak said. "There is no foundation to that story at all. I'm not even sure if it's reflective of how even one member feels, when it's anonymous," he said. "Knowing my board the way I do, I think they would have expressed their feelings to me."

He said a discussion of whether or not Starr should be retained is not on the agenda of the executive committee's next scheduled meeting Oct. 2.

Diamonds sign 'Lady Magic'

DALLAS (AP) — "Lady Magic" Nancy Lieberman has signed a three-year contract for an estimated $50,000 per year with the Dallas Diamonds but she doesn't have a hoop to shoot at.

The Women's Basketball League team has yet to find a place to play but it doesn't worry the two-time collegiate Player of the Year from Old Dominion.

"We'll play in the street if we have to...that's the least of our problems," said Lieberman, a member of the women's United States 1976 silver medal Olympic basketball team, who was the No. 1 player picked in the WBL draft in June.

"The Diamonds can be the model team of the WBL," said Lieberman, who was a point guard her last year at Old Dominion.

The Diamonds are dickering to play in Moody Coliseum on the Southern Methodist campus. They could also play at the Dallas Convention Center.

Also, their schedule is not firm. The home opener Dec. 12 against the New Jersey Gems is listed as "tentative" in the Diamonds' own press release.

The Diamonds refused to disclose the details of No. 1 draft pick Lieberman's contract except to note it was for three years.

Lieberman had been asking $60,000 a year in early talks. It was believed she settled for about $10,000 a year less than that.

The Diamonds said a confidentiality clause prevented either party from talking money.

Lieberman played this summer in a New York City men's league and said the experience has made her an even better player.

Henderson wants to become Oiler

HOUSTON (AP) — Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson says he taught San Francisco linebackers all of his line-backing secrets before being waived and now he'll do the same for the Houston Oilers.

Henderson, 27, who was waived by the 49ers last Friday and after he became a free agent on Monday, he said he wanted to play for the Houston Oilers and would even play free the first two weeks.

"If they like me, they can make my contract retroactive," Henderson said. "I want to play for Houston. I have friends there and Texas is my home. It would be like a dream come true. I want to play for the Oilers when I left Dallas."

Henderson was waived by Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry last November after a series of incidents when Henderson missed practices or was late for meetings.

The 49ers later signed Henderson but he reportedly missed 25 practice sessions and was waived by Coach Bill Walsh.

"After I taught all the 49er linebackers my secrets, they got rid of me," Henderson said. "I think Walsh wanted to go with a young player. I was a little too smart for my own good. I'd try to tell a guy something and I'd get in the way of the coaches."

Henderson's salary with the 49ers was reportedly $125,000 annually plus incentive bonuses.

"I worked a lot of years to get the contract I've got," Henderson said. "I like it. I don't want to take a step backwards. I don't have a million-dollar contract, but it is in six figures. I don't want to feel I'm going from riches to rags."

Henderson's contract with the 49ers could be a problem if he tries to sign with the Oilers. The Oilers say Henderson's contract is not in line with their salary structure.

Oiler all-pro linebacker Robert Brazile, who makes a reported $90,000 annually, walked out of training camp in a salary dispute.

Running back Earl Campbell, Texas David Carter and linebacker Ted Thompson all were expected to play in Sunday's game against the Cincinnati Bengals.

Campbell re-injured a groin pull last week against Baltimore and Carter re-injured his arm but both are expected to play. Thompson had missed two games with a hyper-extended knee.

The qualifying round will be held at RHCC on Friday, Oct. 10. Entry deadline is Sept. 29. Entry fee is $50 per person and entry forms can be obtained at RHCC or from your home professional.

All persons who have been a resident of Texas six months prior to the Texas State Open are eligible for the tournament. College residence is accepted. No handicap restrictions are involved. The TSO tourney is a 72-hole stroke play event.

Oct. 27 will be a Pro-Am event at Marble Falls. Persons wishing to play in that event will have to pay an entry fee of $300 per person.

The Rebel coach noted, "Lori Breeding played an outstanding game for us, spiking and setting up."

Although Lee is 0-3 in district, Weikel warned, "The team is beginning to come together and it's the kind of team that opponents will have to worry about in the second half."

The young Rebels face another unbeaten power Thursday at Lee when Big Spring's 3-0 Steers invade the Tall City.

In Tuesday's JV game, Lee bowed to Cooper 15-5 and 15-7.

Cooper downs Lee in 5-5A

Midland Lee's girls volleyball team was still looking for its first victory after suffering a 15-3, 15-8 loss to Abilene Cooper in District 5-5A play at Lee Tuesday night, but Coach Linda Weikel sees better days ahead for her Rebels.

"The score was not indicative of the game we played. We were better than that," she said. "It was the first time we had run a 6-0 set up. Cooper runs a tandem system and they have an excellent center."

Yeoman may take to air

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston Coach Bill Yeoman, whose teams once were noted for gaudy offensive statistics, admits the Southwest Conference has made him more conservative.

"We've averaged over 300 yards per game on the ground over the past three or four years," Yeoman said. "I'm more conservative than I used to be. I guess the conference made me that way. If we could get five yards on the ground I'd take it."

In years past, if the Cougars could get five yards on the ground they'd go for 50 through the airways, and Saturday's 14-7 loss to Miami has convinced Yeoman to attempt a return to the good old days.

"Their forcing us to throw the ball will help us down the line," Yeoman said Tuesday. "We had gotten away from throwing the ball, but now we've got some kids that can catch the ball. We'd like to get back to throwing 20 to 25 times per game."

Miami inched its defense near the line of scrimmage intent on stopping the run and during the Cougars to pass.

"A defense can stop anything it wants to stop," Yeoman said. "But when they do, that is going to give you something else and in this case we couldn't take advantage of it."

Yeoman said Miami's defense should have opened up split end Lonell Phea on several routes.

"He was overthrown once and underthrown another time," Yeoman said. "And another time he didn't adjust to the defense properly, but he's going to be a fine receiver."

Yeoman said there would be no personnel changes made in an effort to shake the Cougars out of their 0-2 start. Quarterback Terry Elston will retain his starting role against North Texas State.

"I was very pleased with Terry's progress," Yeoman said. "He didn't have his full mobility because of his ankle, but he's going to be okay."

Maceo Fifer and Bobby Grimes, the newcomers this season to the right side of the offensive line, are also making progress, Yeoman said.

"Maceo didn't adjust to an assignment once, but why should he? He's never seen it in a game before," Yeoman said. "I'll bet he never makes that mistake again."

"He could recognize it on a test or on the blackboard. It's just different when you're out there in a game with everyone screaming and you're behind and time is running out on you."

Abercrombie has eyes on NFL

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

The professional success of such Baylor players as Greg Hawthorne, Frank Pollard, and Ricky Thompson, to name a few, hasn't been lost on Walter Abercrombie.

And if Abercrombie keeps having nights like he did Saturday against West Texas State the hard-running junior from Waco will be joining the Baylor alumni in the National Football League in two more years.

The 6-foot, 203-pound Abercrombie gained 112 yards on 19 carries and scored two touchdowns in the Bears' 43-15 victory and broke Larry Hickman's career rushing record in the process to earn The Associated Press Southwest Conference Offensive Player of the Week award.

"Playing in the pros is something to look forward to but I've still got to improve in certain areas," said Abercrombie. "Like Pollard, for example. He kept improving but I've got to admit I was surprised when he made it with a team like the Pittsburgh Steelers."

Abercrombie, who has turned into an excellent pass receiver, said his blocking needs work.

"I'm getting better...but I've got to get much better," said Abercrombie.

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said of Abercrombie, "I've held my praise back on Walter but I don't mind saying now that he has a chance to be great."

"He's a much more complete player now. He's working on his blocking. He has mental toughness. He can catch the ball, and, of course he has explosive speed. We have a passing threat now and that has to have a bearing on the thinking of another team when they gang up on us to stop Walter."

Texas Tech Coach Rex Dockery said of Abercrombie: "He was probably Texas' most underrated player coming out of high school ball. We tried extremely hard to sign him."

Abercrombie said "I decided to stay home to go to college because I like Coach Teaff. He is a straightforward, truthful man."

'Asleep at the Wheel' to play return date at Odessa tonight

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

At 6-feet, 6-inches, Ray Bensen is impressive off stage as well as on.

After spending six months in college 11 years ago when he was living in West Virginia, Bensen decided to "forget it and start a band. I did it because I just wanted to."

Although the band's name, Asleep at the Wheel, has never changed since its inception, it has, through the years, had approximately 40 different musicians and a variety of home bases.

Bensen, its founder and only original member left, fondly referred to his group as "my little western rolling circus," during a backstage interview after the group's recent Midland performance.

Asleep at the Wheel, whose home base has been Austin since 1973, is quite popular in central Texas honky tonks. Bensen explained that his move to Texas was predicated on his living in Oakland, Calif.

"Two and one-half years in Oakland convinced me that I should move to Texas," Bensen explained, laughing. "I've been in Austin ever since, although we're on the road most of the time."

What brought Asleep at the Wheel to Midland was Emmylou Harris and her recent Chaparral Center concert. They will be back for another area performance tonight when they appear in Odessa at the Country Carousel.

The band's music crosses all music lines, Bensen said.

"Everything from boogie-woogie, country, swing, jazz to rock-n-roll — we do it all."

"If you feel asleep in the middle of a set and then woke up later you might think it was another band. You can never tell what this group is going to do."

The last comment could easily be used to describe Bensen.

Tall and lanky, he lopez along in an easy country-boy fashion. But when he gets wound up, his words fall over themselves in their hurry to find expression. And he loves to talk in a joking manner.

In referring to his current life, he said, somewhat intently, "I have no domestic problem anymore — I have no domestic. This has been the most beautiful six months of my life."

And Bensen said he feels his feet, which are size 16, are "kinda like my life — large. And they keep me up, which is saying a lot."

Laughter followed this comment, as it had throughout the entire interview. None of the group was feeling any pain after its performance. And most of what was said was unprintable.

But they weren't rude; they were just feeling good.

Bensen had spent the time putting his hat on and taking it off. This time he studied it carefully and said, "This is a terrible hat band, but I like it even though it looks like a dead crow."

Rising to go hear the end of Emmylou's performance, he turned and said, "I've done everything and I'm ready to do it again." And then he moseyed on out.

Midlanders chosen for intern program

ODESSA — Three Midland students attending The University of Texas of the Permian Basin are among 39 prospective teachers selected to begin an intern program in the Midland-Odessa public schools this fall semester.

During the 16-week practicum, Gary O. Baty will teach classes at Permian High School in Odessa and Ruth Mendenhall and Pam Wood will conduct classes at Bowie Elementary School in Midland.

To benefit beginning teachers, UTPB offers a unique teaching center approach in teaching strategy courses. The practical experience results in closer relationships between prospective teachers and the students they will work with.

Dr. Peter Jenatsch, pedagogical studies, explained that most universities are not operated this way. "Usually courses are taught in the universities, and then students go to the schools to do their student teaching. Very often they are spread out over many schools."

UTPB's unusual approach of locating teaching centers within the schools, however, has definite advantages in preparing student teachers for their profession.

Dr. Robert Gerry, pedagogical studies, said one of the main benefits is "student teachers, through the center, begin to see other aspects of how the school operates other than in one's own classroom."

"Thus, they receive a more accurate picture of how a school operates."

Prospective teachers are taught to function well under a variety of conditions since they study various methods of instruction in strategies classes. This allows student teachers to experiment and discover the methods that work well for a particular classroom.

However, Gerry noted, learning is tailored for each individual child in bilingual or special education classes. Therefore, individual lesson plans must be made for each child in the class.

During the 1980 fall semester, approximately 40 UTPB students will be student teaching in the elementary and secondary schools. They will complete their internship at one of the following schools: Odessa's Goliad Elementary, Ireland Elementary, Blackshear Junior High, Ector High, Permian High or Midland's Bowie Elementary.

A vote for bile over bland

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

CHICAGO (AP) — The deserved 100th birthday salute to the searingly sulfurous H.L. Mencken points up the shocking shortage of curmudgeons in our midsts.

Vituperation is a dying dark art.

Some recent insufficiency of flint in the native soil keeps our public figures from striking sparks after the manner of the Sage of Baltimore, who would have dismissed them anyhow as "the Gaseous Vertebrata who own, operate and afflict the universe."

SINCE the image makers took over, all candidates and commentators have been painted bland, and smile the same innocuous, homespun smile that is a credit to modern tooth capping technology. On the stump this key election year no politician would characterize his opponent as "an 18-karat, 23-jeweled, 33rd degree, bred-in-the-bone and dyed-in-the-wool moron." No talk show pundit, regardless of his reputation for snide banter would offer the sensible suggestion that losing candidates at political party conventions (like the recent bore-athons in Detroit and New York) should be "quietly hanged as a matter of public sanitation and decorum."

Henry Louis Mencken, who courted controversy the way today's media poobahs, politros, patriots and preachers beg to be loved by the boobies (his word for the uncouth, uncultured general public), could, with devilish delight, dismiss William Jennings Bryan as "the national tear duct," Herbert Hoover as "a fat Coolidge," the New Deal as "a milch cow with 125 million teats" and Harry Truman's 1948 upset over Thomas Dewey as "a mathematical impossibility demanding a corner's inquiry."

IS THERE an iconoclast abroad in the land today to evoke a Menckenesque howl from the howling hyenas who prowl the election grass roots unpricked by the venomous wit of a bona fide free-wheeling public scourge? Since Gore Vidal elected to view the current presidential marathon from the aloof, high ground of literature, the elegant insult has vanished from the tube. All we have left are the synthetic asides of the one-liner comedians or the shock assaults of a Don Rickles-type insult artist laying satire on with a curmudgeonry on a stone of his volcanic repartee. "GENTLEMEN," he once told the New York City Board of Aldermen, "I did not come here with an alabaster pox of precious ointment to soothe your tender skins. Any results I may have obtained were not by diplomacy, sleight of hand, eloquence or charity."

Charity, no; but eloquence, yes. Witness this mosaic thunder from on high (the offices of the Triborough Bridge Authority): "I question the assumption of the little grubbing insects of bureaucracy that their daily labors, endlessly multiplied, will produce giant coral reefs to which nameless birds will bring verdure and civilization."

Rarely have the bureaucrats been tongue-lashed by so civilized a tongue. Haughtiness, scathing grandeur, remorseless disdain of puffed up civil servants — such was the oratorical style of this irascible statesman who could coo: "Nothing I have ever done has been tinged with legality."

THEY JUST don't flay them alive like that anymore in places where public speech is inflicted on the citizenry. Our watchdogs of democracy could do with a touch of distemper or at least work themselves into a passably ferocious lather now and then.

Even in the most biting bits of acrimony that their speech writers can devise, can you imagine Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan or John Anderson saying of one another what Benjamin Disraeli said of Prime Minister William Gladstone? Disraeli, the novelist-politician, defined for his audience the difference between a misfortune and a calamity:

"If Gladstone fell into the Thames, it would be a misfortune. But if someone dragged him out again, it would be a calamity."

Said Disraeli of Lord John Russell, another arch foe: "If a traveler were informed that such a man was leader of the House of Commons, he may well begin to believe how the Egyptians worshipped an insect."

BILE COMES naturally to the well-spoken British politician. Harken to Winston Churchill on Sir Stafford Cripps: "There but for the grace of God, goes God." Or on Clement Attlee: "A sheep in sheep's clothing." Or on Stanley Baldwin: "Baldwin occasionally stumbles over the truth, but he always hastily picks himself up and hurries on as if nothing had happened."

In the centennial spirit of the Great Curmudgeon, who growled that "conscience is the small voice which tells us someone is watching," we beg the candidates and commentators at large now in the land to make amends to the memory of Mencken by putting more bromine and less bromide into their prepared texts and prime time scripts. What the political stump needs in this age of packaged blah is a few articulate hatchmen willing to grind axes and let the chips fall where they may.

With only a few weeks to go, gentlemen, it is time to take off the velvet gloves and give the back of your hands to this nice guy stuff, so that gruff curmudgeonry may not vanish from the campaign trail. If we can't have truth in politics, let's at least have some teeth in politics.

Two of the recently reunited triplets, who only discovered each others' existence last week, drink a toast to brotherhood as they party at Xenon disc in New York Tuesday night. David Kellman, left, thought he saw his own face in the newspaper when he saw a photo of Eddy Gelland, right, who had just been reunited with a third brother, Robert Shafran. (AP Laserphoto)

19-year-old brothers get multiple surprise

NEW YORK (AP) — Adoptee Robert Shafran went to college and learned he had an identical twin, Eddy Gelland. That was a surprise. The shocker came when they learned a third man was using their face.

David Kellman walked into the lives of his long-lost brothers last week after he looked in a mirror and saw a face identical to those in a newspaper photograph of the two just-united 19-year-olds.

The triplets, adopted at birth by three different families, have spent the days since the discovery getting to know each other and getting used to the idea that they have mirror images.

"It is a new beginning for us," they said in a statement. "We love each other and are very happy."

"They talk the same, they laugh the same, they hold their cigarettes the same — it's uncanny," said Claire Kellman, David's mother. "I couldn't put up with one of them and now I've got three."

Actually, the three should have been four, but another brother died in childbirth at Long Island Jewish Hospital. The boys grew up aware they were adopted but unaware of surviving siblings.

Then Gelland's best friend, a student at Sullivan County Community College, noticed a startling resemblance between a new student, Robert Shafran of Scarsdale, and Gelland, who had returned to his home in New Hyde Park.

A telephone conversation prompted a much-publicized reunion that caught Kellman's eye Thursday. He called Gelland's mother.

"You're not going to believe this," he told her, "but my name is David Kellman and I'm looking in the mirror. I believe I'm the third."

When Gelland heard the news, "I couldn't believe it. I could not comprehend it. I sat there with my jaw hanging down for about 10 minutes. I was in total awe."

A check with the adoption agency confirmed that David was the third survivor, and Kellman, a Queens College student, went to Long Island to meet Gelland, a Nassau Community College student, on Friday.

"I opened the door and looked at him and then I closed the door," Gelland said in describing the comic first meeting. "And then I opened it again and looked, and then did it again."

"I think the whole thing is beautiful," he said. "But it's also a little bit spooky to know there is somebody exactly like you."

"All my life I felt special and individual and now I meet someone just like me — my own flesh and blood," marveled Shafran, who is spending weekends helping crippled children under a probation order.

Last January, Shafran pleaded guilty to manslaughter in a robbery incident in which an elderly woman was beaten to death. A judge said Shafran did not play a major role in the incident.

Gelland's sister, Barbara, 21, who is also adopted, said the discovery of two look-alikes "was a real head trip" but manageable for the families.

"We just were in shock for a couple of days. And then when the third one came along... oh boy!" she said. "Now I have three brothers — three Eddies."

But she isn't fooled by their identical appearance — all 5-foot-9, dark complexioned, with curly brown hair.

"I can tell my brother Eddy. After all, I've lived with him for 19 years."

Hermit sought for questioning in two hobo camp shootings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Authorities investigating the shootings of two men at a hobo camp say they want to question a hermit known only as "Steve" who has lived for years on the estate of the late actor Errol Flynn.

The Hollywood Hills estate, set in a canyon, is covered with dense brush and police searched for Steve for two days without success. However, Lt. James Troutman says he is fairly certain the man is still in the area.

"It would take an army to get him out," said Troutman. "A few years ago, a fellow was in there setting fires. We went through there with a major task force and couldn't find a soul."

According to Sgt. Gary Fennell, the search began late Monday when a man stormed down to the hobo encampment shouting, "I'm tired of you coming up in my hills."

Three shots were fired. Two of the four men by the campfire were hit, and the other two ran to a nearby residence and called an ambulance and police.

A transient identified as Michael Hughes, 30, was shot in the chest and the right side. He was in stable condition at a hospital. Also injured was David Silva, 25, of Los Angeles, who was shot in the buttocks. He left a hospital Tuesday against medical advice, authorities said.

"Apparently Steve has lived up there for some time," said Troutman. "He is a kind of self-proclaimed king of the mountain. He was afraid of the fire because he didn't want his area burned down."

Errol Flynn's mansion was torn down years ago to make way for a luxury housing development in Runyon Canyon, but the plans were stalled by opposition from neighborhood residents.

The late actor's tennis court, overrun with ivy, and his crumbling swimming pool remain on the hillside parcel, which overlooks West Hollywood.

Tapes say 'feedback' expected

Clayton's Brilab trial continues

HOUSTON (AP) — Labor leader L.G. Moore once told an FBI informant he should "wait for some feedback" from Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton on reopening a lucrative state insurance contract before deciding how much money to pay Clayton, according to tape recordings.

In the tapes, recorded by informant Joseph Hauser in the federal government's Brilab investigation, Moore is quoted as suggesting first that Clayton be given $20,000, but then saying, "Let's wait for some feedback and then decide if it will be five grand, or 10 grand, or zero."

Moore then said to Hauser, "I don't like to gamble it (money), and you say there's a gamble. I understand that. There's gonna be a gamble when we give him (the speaker) anything. But I like to have a pretty good feel from him."

Hauser: "We got to get at least a commitment if he's gonna try to help us."

Moore: "And if he does that, if he tells us over there... he'll help us with Johnson (Bob Johnson, a member of the State Retirement Board), and some of them other guys. Then we gotta go... Cause then we have got to do our deal, and then we, then he owes us."

Attorney says Jenrette feared FBI agents were 'mobsters'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John W. Jenrette was so afraid that FBI undercover Abscam agents were mobsters out to kill him that he took steps last December to make sure his wife would be financially secure if he died, the congressman's attorney says.

Lawyer Kenneth M. Robinson told reporters Tuesday that Jenrette made a large premium payment on his life insurance shortly after he met the agents. Jenrette mistakenly believed that his two policies were about to expire, Robinson said.

Jenrette's insurance agent, Robert M. Floyd Jr., testifying at the congressman's bribery trial, confirmed that the lawmaker made a $4,449 payment into his life insurance escrow account last December, even though his normal monthly payment was $222.

Robinson has told the jury that Jenrette, a three-term South Carolina Democrat, kept in contact with the Abscam agents because he thought they were mobsters.

The lawyer said in his opening statement that after Jenrette discussed bribery with the FBI men Dec. 4, the lawmaker began to get his affairs in order. Floyd said the life insurance payment was made 10 days after the Dec. 4 meeting.

A federal grand jury charged that on Dec. 6 Jenrette's co-defendant, Richmond, Va., businessman John Stowe, picked up a $50,000 payoff that he split with the congressman. The government says the money was a payment for Jenrette's promise to introduce special immigration legislation for two wealthy Arabs who actually were creations of the Abscam agents.

Jenrette is charged with bribery and conspiracy and Stowe with conspiracy and aiding and abetting bribery.

Floyd said Jenrette had two life insurance policies, including one for $100,000 that named his wife, Rita, as a beneficiary. The beneficiary of the second policy, worth $200,000, was a condominium development corporation in which Jenrette was a partner and would have paid off the business debt rather than transferring the liability of Mrs. Jenrette.

The insurance agent said Jenrette's policies would not have expired for a year, even if he had missed his premium payments.

Robinson told reporters the congressman's decision to make the large insurance payment was not rational and reflected his deteriorating mental state due to severe alcoholism.

Leading politician indicted for extortion

BOSTON (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted one of the state's most powerful politicians in the 1970s, charging he extorted $34,500 from a defunct Worcester architectural company.

Ex-Sen. James A. Kelly Jr., the former Oxford Democrat and activist chairman of the state Senate Ways and Means Committee from 1971 to 1978, was charged Tuesday with using his position "to induce money from persons seeking to influence the official performance of his public function."

Kelly is the first person indicted on charges stemming from abuses in state and county construction that were exposed in public hearings in the spring by the state corruption commission.

The investigation was a spinoff from the successful federal prosecution in 1978 of two other former state senators — Joseph J.C. DiCarlo, D-Revere, and Ronald C. MacKenzie, R-Burlington. They were imprisoned for extorting $40,000 from McKee-Berger-Mansueto, the company that supervised construction of the Boston campus of the state university. Kelly was an unindicted co-conspirator.

The new extortion charge involves Masiello & Associates, whose two former principals — Frank R. Masiello and William Masiello — were key witnesses for the state.

Testifying under grants of immunity from prosecution, the brothers told of making regular payments to Kelly.

Kelly, 54, fought for months against having to appear before the commission. When he finally testified, took the Fifth Amendment against self-incrimination.

U.S. Attorney Edward Harrington said Kelly received $500 a month from the Masiellos for steering the award of public contracts to them by inserting items favorable to their company in state budgets and interceding with state and local officials.

Kelly was not immediately available for comment.

Myers now must face House ethics committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa., convicted by a federal jury of bribery in one of the Abscam cases, now faces the judgment of his congressional peers in the House ethics committee.

The 12-man committee scheduled a disciplinary hearing today for Myers, who was convicted last month in Brooklyn of taking a $50,000 bribe from FBI agents posing as representatives of wealthy Arabs.

The panel's special counsel to the case, E. Barrett Prettyman Jr., said he "almost certainly" will recommend a penalty, which can range from a reprimand to expulsion.

The panel already has found Myers guilty of House misconduct.

Myers, 37, is appealing his bribery conviction, maintaining that he took the money as a gift without promise of legislative help. The congressman planned to attend today's hearing along with his attorney, Plato Cacheris.

Clayton, Moore and Austin attorneys Donald Ray and Randall Wood were indicted June 12 by a federal grand jury on charges of extortion, bribery, conspiracy and racketeering. The charges arose from the undercover Brilab probe that reached into several states.

Clayton, Ray and Wood now are in the second week of their trial before a federal court jury of seven women and five men.

Moore will be tried later.

Prosecutors are building their case against Ray, Wood and Clayton through a tedious, step-by-step process depending almost entirely on tapes secretly recorded by Hauser. Government attorneys contend the tapes prove the three men took bribes to reopen the state employee health insurance contract.

Hauser, twice convicted in kickback and bribery insurance schemes, posed as a representative of Prudential Insurance Co. and approached political and labor figures in Texas.

The government's case culminates at a Nov. 8 meeting among Hauser, Moore and Clayton when the speaker accepted $5,000 from Moore, regional director of the International Operating Engineers Union.

The U.S. Attorney's office said the money was a bribe, but Clayton said it was only a campaign contribution and that he planned to return it later.

The tapes also gave an insight into Texas politics. During a meeting with Hauser and Moore, Wood said payoffs were a thing of past in state politics, and have been replaced by campaign contributions, according to the tapes.

The Brilab defendant said, "What's happened now is, money is sunk in campaigns now. It's well reported, and it's pretty clean, but, that's where you sink your money now days."

"While there are some people with greasy fingers and sticky palms," Wood said on the tape, "most of the bureaucrats are as honest as the day is long."

During that Oct. 2, 1979, gathering, Wood told Hauser he would be surprised if the House speaker "gives a darn about the insurance offer to tell you the honest truth," the tapes said.

"I have never seen Billy Clayton really try to push an agency around. If the speaker could be put in a position where he could save the state or the employees some money he might be interested," Wood said on the tape.

For best 'Cruise to Paradise' you better shop around

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The shipping companies are starting to advertise this season's fall and winter cruises, and potential passengers have to shop carefully for smooth sailing.

The majority of cruises are problem-free, but trouble can strike even the most luxurious trip. What was billed as a "Journey to Paradise" aboard the SS Norway — the world's biggest cruise ship — made headlines in August when a day-long power failure left 1,600 passengers adrift in the southern Bahamas, without electricity or running water.

There is no way you can guarantee you'll avoid disaster. But you can protect yourself by finding out as much as possible, in advance, about the ship you are going to sail on and the company which operates it.

Vacations at sea are big business. Cruise Lines International Association, a trade group whose members account for 90 percent of the market, expects 1.2 million people to take cruises in 1980, up from 1.1 million last year.

William Armstrong, a spokesman for the association, said the average price will be about $140 a day, an increase of 12 percent or $15 a day from 1979. That includes meals, entertainment, etc., but does not cover tips.

Don't bank on paying the minimum price listed in the advertisements. There are usually very few cabins available at the minimum and you probably will end up paying more.

Winter is the peak season for cruises and Armstrong said the week-long sail is still the most popular. "Fly-sail" packages, including a plane trip to and from the port of departure, continue to grow, Armstrong said.

If you're considering a cruise, you should start by keeping your ears open. Listen to people who have sailed before. "Word of mouth is still the best endorsement," Armstrong said. If you're using a travel agent, make sure the agent has sailed on the ship and is not relying on the brochure.

The U.S. Public Health Service inspects cruise ships, but many of them fail the inspections and continue to sail. The Norway, for example, got only 8 points out of a possible 100 when it was inspected in June. The health service said, however, that the violations posed no immediate danger to the passengers and that the ship's operators were working to correct the problems.

Armstrong said a failing grade from the health service "is not emblematic of an unsafe or unsanitary ship." He said the standards are "rightfully and correctly extremely high."

Almost all cruise ships today offer one-class service. Everyone has the run of the ship and all its facilities. The price you pay depends on the location and size of your cabin, but the most expensive accommodations may not necessarily be the most comfortable. The highest priced cabins are the ones on the top deck. Those cabins also are the ones where you will notice the ship's motion the most. You may be just as happy with a stateroom on the second or third deck.

If you live near a port, try to arrange a visit to any ship you are considering. If you can't make a personal check, look at a deck plan. Check dimensions of the cabins and subtract the area occupied by the bed or beds to find out how much space you will have to move around in. Don't forget the little things: the size of the closets, the number of drawers. Does the bathroom include both a shower and a tub?

Before you decide on a particular cabin, look at its location in relation to public areas and recreation facilities. Will you have a long walk to the dining room or the swimming pool? Are you too close to a possibly-noisy main corridor?

Ask to see sample menus. Once you are on board ship, you can't decide to go to another restaurant if you don't like the food.

When figuring out your total costs, find out whether port taxes are included in the price. They can run $10 a person or more and if you have several stops, the total can be substantial.

Heating oil firms losing customers

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Homemaker Josephine L'Europa says people who rely on fuel oil are at the mercy of the Arabs. She converted from fuel oil to gas heat last year and her fuel bill dropped by a third.

But Brown University professor Peter Richardson compares people who switch fuels to rush-hour drivers who roar from one lane to another to gain only seconds.

"You might see a slight savings in converting from oil to gas," said Richardson, a biomechanics professor. "But in the long run, after you've spent hundreds of dollars in new equipment, it doesn't make much difference. That's why I'm sticking with oil heat."

Richardson's logic warms the hearts of the nation's worried fuel oil dealers, many of whom have been hurt or thrown out of business by people switching to gas as the price of fuel oil edges past the $1-a-gallon mark.

Gas, temporarily subject to federal price controls, is 25 percent to 50 percent cheaper, energy officials say, but they add that the advantage is certain to disappear eventually.

Department of Energy figures show that about 15 million Americans, roughly 20 percent, heat with oil. The American Gas Association estimates 225,000 homeowners switched to gas in 1979, and 143,000 the year before.

Thousands of oil dealers — like Joe Gladstone of Pawtucket — are having to fight to keep their customers, by such means as newsletters to "educate" them and advertisements touting the benefits of oil-fired heat.

"Fuel oil dealers have been hurt badly in Washington, D.C. They've been hit hard in Illinois by gas conversions. Here in New England it hasn't been bad yet. But we've still got to watch all the leaks in the dike," said Charles Burkhardt, executive vice president of the New England Fuel Institute.

Fuel oil dealers note that federal Energy Regulatory Commission controls on natural gas prices are being lifted gradually.

Publicity orientation for theatre

Persons interested in working on publicity for the Midland Community Theatre may attend a publicity orientation today or Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Moody Room at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

Mary Francis Beverley, who is in charge of publicity for the theater, will conduct the orientations.

Archaeologists examine site near Lewisville

LEWISVILLE, Texas (AP) — Artifacts found beneath Lake Lewisville could provide crucial evidence in a long-running controversy about whether the area is the oldest known site of human habitation in the Western Hemisphere, archaeologists say.

Twenty-three round, pit-like hearths were discovered at the lake in the 1950s while a dam was being constructed. Initial dating seemed to indicate the site was 40,000 years old, but subsequent tests showed samples used for testing actually were pieces of lignite.

"Lignite coal, an organic carbon which could be millions of years old before it was put there, gave us the date in excess of 40,000 years," said Dennis Stanford of the Smithsonian Institute.

The controversy grew when a Clovis spear point, dating back only about 12,000 years, also was found at the lake.

The site was covered by the reservoir until the 1978 drought uncovered part of it for a few months. An even larger piece of land was uncovered by the 1980 drought.

Stanford says he strongly believes man has lived on this continent longer than evidence indicates.

"If we can find the Clovis artifacts or evidence of occupation, we can settle the controversy," he said.

"We believe the hearths were man-made because we can't think of any other way to get coal in nice, round hearths," said Stanford, who has participated in digs from Alaska to Argentina.

Settlement of Indian land claim approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — An $81.5 million Indian land claim settlement of an eight-year dispute over ownership of almost two-thirds of Maine now needs only President Carter's promised signature to become effective.

The Senate passed the measure Tuesday by voice vote with no discussion. The House approved it earlier.

The Passamaquoddy, Penobscot and Maliseet Indians of Maine claimed almost 12 million acres of land was taken from them illegally in the late 18th and early 19th centuries.

The settlement would wipe out all Indian claims to the land. The federal government would give the three tribes $54.5 million to buy land — some 150,000 acres each for the Penobscot and Passamaquoddy tribes and 5,000 acres for the smaller Maliseet band.

The bill also would establish a $27 million trust fund to be invested and administered by the Interior Department for the benefit of the Indians.

Black goo volcano by-product

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens has been quiet, but activity of a different sort has been sighted on the volcano — fingers of black goo creeping into ponds in the Toutle River Valley.

The organic, tar-like substance is produced when logs buried in the May 18 explosion of the volcano are cooked by hot mud, said John Klein, chief of environmental quality for the U.S. Geological Survey office in Tacoma.

"It forms a very black secretion that mixes with water and accounts for the black appearance of some of those lakes" and ponds, he said.

Meanwhile, the volcano continued more than a month of quiet with no activity recorded early today by the University of Washington geophysics department.

The last ash eruption was Aug. 7. The massive May 18 blast killed 31 people and left 32 others missing and presumed dead.

The Geological Survey was attempting to determine whether the black goo presented a health hazard to people downstream on the Toutle and Cowlitz rivers. Most communities on the Cowlitz get their drinking water from the river.

Nutrients, organisms and bacteria trapped in logs also are producing gases, causing Spirit Lake, about five miles from the volcano, to bubble in many places.

Coldwater Canyon Lake, also in the devastated area around the mountain, is producing gases, too, but officials are more concerned that the lake is growing and could become a flood danger if it spills.

The National Weather Service is planning to install a radio gauge in the lake to help scientists decide when or if the lake must be drained, said Mike Holzinger of the weather service.

Richard Stovall, instructor for the upcoming scuba diving course at Central YMCA, finds relaxation floating in scuba gear at the Y. Program fee for a scuba certification course to be offered Oct. 7-Nov. 13 is $100 for Central Y members and $200 for non-members. In addition, students must furnish their own mask, snorkel and flippers, while the Y will provide all other equipment. Classroom instruction is on Tuesdays, 6:30-9 p.m., with pool instruction on Thursdays, 6:30-9 p.m. Pre-registration is a must for this program. For further information call the Central YMCA at 682-2551. (Staff Photo by Brian Hendershot)

NRC official optimistic about Texas nuke plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Nuclear Regulatory Commission official says he is "cautiously optimistic" about the South Texas Nuclear Project's prospects for completion, despite previous quality control problems at the plant.

Victor Stello Jr., director of the agency's enforcement and inspection office, said Tuesday there have been improvements in the quality control program at the construction site since the NRC proposed a $100,000 fine for the utility supervising it.

"With the licensee and contractor performance record that led to the cessation of safety-related work at South Texas, we intend to demand that all commitments be met," Stello testified at a congressional hearing.

"However, with the revised approach and attitude being demonstrated by those responsible for the South Texas plant, I am cautiously optimistic that they can complete the project in conformance with the construction permit," he said.

Stello and NRC Director John Ahearn appeared before the House commerce oversight subcommittee investigating the agency's regulation of nuclear power plant construction with the South Texas project as its prime example.

A $100,000 fine for the licensee, Houston Lighting and Power Co., was proposed in May after a three-month NRC investigation cited quality control deficiencies, including intimidation and harassment of quality control staff.

The utility also was told to show cause why its construction permit should not be suspended, and safety-related construction was halted until a decision is reached.

Brown and Root Inc., contractor for the $2.7 billion plant under construction near Bay City, also manages the quality control program.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, the subcommittee's chairman, said he wanted to know why the NRC waited to take action when it had received allegations much earlier about problems at the construction site.

"As important as was the debate over the accident at Three Mile Island, no less significant, I believe, is the scrutiny over the construction process by which safety should be built into a nuclear plant," the Houston congressman said.

The plant is being built for use by utilities in Houston, San Antonio, Austin and Corpus Christi.

Stello said allegations have been investigated repeatedly since 1977 and the agency's increasing concern about the quality control program prompted a "midterm" inspection in August 1979, earlier than usual.

A new series of allegations made to a newly appointed resident inspector in November 1979 led to a three-month investigation that culminated with the proposed fine and show-cause order, he said.

Stello said quality control improvements at the South Texas plant since May included adding personnel to the program, changing its organization to put management more closely in touch and asserting the quality control staff's independence from cost and schedule considerations.

He said the optimistic evaluation was based on the utility's response to NRC actions, a public hearing held last month in Bay City and comments from management and workers.

Stello said problems seen in the quality control program were not present in the actual components of the plant.

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., claimed the South Texas project was evidence that the NRC had abdicated its responsibility for supervising nuclear power plant construction.

"Why don't we just pull the construction permit?" he asked. "What does it take for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to pull a construction permit?"

Ahearn, the commission's chairman, declined to answer specific questions about South Texas because the case is pending. He said, however, that generally the NRC would revoke a construction permit if it concluded that public safety could not be guaranteed or if the licensee refused to make adjustments to guarantee public safety.

The NRC never has revoked a construction permit for a nuclear plant.

CIA considers Jesse Jackson, Billy Carter Libyan oil agents

ATLANTA (AP) — Civil rights leader Jesse Jackson and Billy Carter were identified as Libyan oil agents in a secret CIA memo to the White House in March, the Atlanta Constitution reported today.

Jackson denied being a Libyan agent, the Constitution said in a copy-right story, but acknowledged he had written the Libyan embassy in Washington on behalf of the Wallace Co. in Tuskegee, Ala., a black-owned oil concern.

Jackson, head of Operation PUSH, for People United To Save Humanity, a civil rights group based in Chicago, said he also "sent several letters" to the Libyan government in support of "opening trade routes between that country and black America."

The memo was sent on March 31 from CIA Director Stansfield Turner to Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, the newspaper said, quoting unidentified sources close to the Senate investigation of Billy Carter's dealings with the Libyans.

A Senate subcommittee has received a copy of the memo, the newspaper said.

The newspaper report carried no elaboration on what was in the memo or what made the CIA believe that Jackson was a Libyan agent.

Under protest, Billy Carter registered with the Justice Department as a Libyan agent on July 14. He has acknowledged receiving a $20,000 payment from the Libyan government.

Last October, Jackson took a controversial tour of the Middle East in which he met with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Syrian leader Hafez Assad and Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat.

Jackson expressed support for the PLO, and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin refused to meet with him. Jackson later called Begin a "racist."

Jackson did not go to Libya, but the Constitution quoted Jackson as saying, "I have been invited there several times."

On Oct. 13, Jackson received a $10,000 pledge for Operation PUSH, from Chicago's Arab-American community and Jackson outlined a joint Arab-black program to combat racism.

The trip and the contribution drew criticism from Jewish groups. In the Constitution story, Jackson said he "would accept no financial deal from Libya and none has been offered."

Black American Muslims "started dealing with the Libyans about five years ago, before becoming interested in relationships with most other Arab countries," Jackson said.

"Our relations with those countries have been a matter of peace. We have been challenging them to open up trade routes with black America," he said.

Jackson said he had never met or talked with Billy Carter or Carter's business associate in his Libyan negotiations, Henry R. Coleman of Plains.

Court asked to force Strake to put candidates on ballot

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Socialist Workers Party officials have asked a federal court to force Secretary of State George Strake to put the party's candidates on the Nov. 4 ballot.

Strake ruled recently that the party failed to qualify for the Texas ballot because they presented petitions with an insufficient number of legal signatures.

"We don't think Mr. Strake is concerned about the technicalities of our petition, which far surpassed the requirements of Texas election law," said Steve Marshall, party chairman in San Antonio.

"He's trying to keep us off the ballot because of our ideas — there's no other party on the ballot that's against nuclear power and right-to-work laws, that's for free education of children of undocumented workers," he said. "And I'm sure our call for nationalization of the oil companies is not too attractive to Mr. Strake, who is an oil man himself."

Marshall said the suit alleges that Strake violated constitutional rights by testing only 389 of the 38,000 signatures. The suit also claims Strake applied different standards to the Socialist Workers' petitions than to those submitted by independent John Anderson and the Libertarian Party.

Move to stop PLO role successful

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has succeeded in blocking an invitation to the Palestine Liberation Organization to attend next week's meetings of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, but the issue threatens to cause turmoil nevertheless.

Sources said the U.S.-supported decision to prevent PLO observers at the meetings may result in the withdrawal of invitations for all observers, including those from Switzerland, which is not a member of the two international institutions.

The decision did not specifically mention the PLO, but limits observers to those who attended last year's meeting in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, from which the PLO was barred.

The chairman of the meetings, Tanzanian Finance Minister Amir H. Jamal, has said he may try to have the issue brought to the floor of the meeting, where the United States could suffer a defeat if it is outvoted by nations favoring the PLO's attending the meeting.

The issue is important to the United States and to the two institutions because a great deal of their finances are at stake.

Congress has indicated it will look unfavorably on the latest U.S. contribution to the IMF, totaling perhaps $5.5 billion, if the PLO is invited, while oil-rich nations such as Saudi Arabia and Kuwait have temporarily withheld consideration of financial contributions to put pressure on the IMF and the bank to seat the PLO.

The PLO is not seeking membership in the 141-nation IMF, which supervises operations of the international monetary system.

But it does want status as an observer, similar to that granted Switzerland and organizations such as the Organization of American States and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

Jamal has said that if the PLO is not invited, he will withdraw invitations for all observers, numbering in the dozens.

The week-long annual joint meeting of the IMF and World Bank will take place here beginning Tuesday. President Carter has been invited to address the opening session.

The decision against inviting the PLO was reported by the IMF's executive board Tuesday after a marathon six-hour session. The board tallied ballots on the issue from a mail poll of the 141 IMF members, and then affirmed the members' support for exclusion of observers who did not attend last year's session.

A knowledgeable source said, "Clearly the Arab governments are not going to be content with this, but what they will do next, we don't know."

A spokesman for the Treasury Department said Tuesday night, "We are pleased with the outcome."

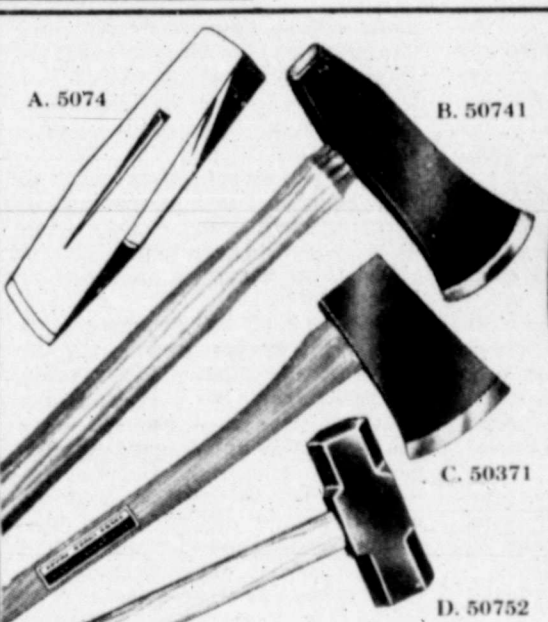

"Looking for something good to read?"
"Want to read about the world? Your own neighborhood? Sports? Movies? How about music, travel, economics—even the weather?"
"Well, you don't need a shelf full of books to find all those good things."
"They're all right here in these pages, fresh every day in your local newspaper."

RINGING THE BELL

Expatriate Pheko writes of African experiences

With BOB TIEUEL

Dear Bob: Greetings from Azania (South Africa). Be glad for your freedom in America. Though you have not yet achieved your full rights as citizens, be thankful for the freedom of movement, freedom of shopping in any store, freedom of speech, freedom to express yourselves in music. You have freedom. Give thanks for your beautiful homes, churches, the very food you eat; thank God for all He has blessed you with.

There may be racial problems in the United States, but God is slowly changing race relations here too. The spirit of God is at work. Apartheid, meaning apartness, is a continuing campaign to repress my people from sharing the economy of the country, bad housing, bad schools, no freedom of speech or freedom of the press.

We have some townships in the Cape Province where the two primary schools that are here have registered less than 1,000 students, in spite of the multitudes of young children roaming the streets. Most parents can not afford to maintain a child in a learning institution. Many find it difficult to afford a regular meal. Their houses (squatter) during the rainy season become mud pools.

MANY BUSINESSES in South Africa are exploiting us. For years we have been suffering. Now there is pressure from inside and outside and these companies are telling about our plight. These companies say that if they move out, we will suffer more. Yet the whites will suffer more because they have the highest wages, benefits and privileges. A white will get paid $100 a week for the same job that I do, and I get $5 a week. More and more of our people are getting disillusioned with the Christian faith, the Western world, the capitalism. We believe the Christian faith has been misused, exploited.

If the United States wants to help us in South Africa, deal with the oppressors. They have power, they are the source of all the terror. Look at the record of the United States in the United Nations. The U.S. condemns South Africa, says its policies are wrong, but when it comes to action, the U.S. goes only three ways: It absents itself, it opposes, or it vetoes. The U.S. makes it impossible for any action to be implemented on South Africa.

Who makes decisions for you? It is your business houses. They have employed lobbyists who influence your decisions, and it is those decisions that prevail, not those of the majority of Americans, who are very loving, caring, trusting people and really don't care for violence. Business made the Iranian situation.

MY HEART AND MIND and roots are in South Africa, and I want to go back. But I don't know whether it is helpful to go back and face a gun, because when you are a corpse you are newsworthy for a week and then you are now longer helpful. I also often wonder how effective I would be if I were in jail.

Christ is alive in areas of conflict, but where people are materially comfortable, they find it difficult to carry the cross of Christ. They have their house first to insure, their car, family and, after all this, they have the cross. How can they hold it with all that too?

We have nothing. We carry the cross close to us. That is why we find that there are more Christians and that they are growing in numbers in areas of strife and conflict: Latin America, Africa and Asia.

God made no mistake by spreading around the gifts that we need so we can learn to share. Enjoy "Ringing the Bell" when I have opportunity to read it in The Christian Recorder and sometimes elsewhere. I am yours truly, Ms. Pheko (South Africa).

Parents appeal court order

FOREST HILL, La. (AP) — The legal battle over a closed elementary school steamed on Tuesday as 180 children prepared to start full-day classes in three Baptist churches using donated textbooks and volunteer teachers.

"Everything is all set," Cathie Holloway, one of a group of parents organizing the makeshift schooling, said of the classes, which were scheduled to begin today.

Chris Roy, a lawyer for the parents in this village of 500, on Tuesday prepared a plea asking the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans to revoke an injunction forbidding adults to set foot in the old Forest Hill Elementary School.

Forest Hill Elementary stood empty Tuesday — shut down by a new school desegregation order issued by U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott.

For a week, until Scott cracked down with an injunction threatening heavy fines, parents conducted "squatters' classes" at Forest Hill, trying to try to keep the school open rather than have youngsters bused to another area.

Forest Hill was one of three schools ordered closed in a desegregation rearrangement using mainly white rural students to keep Alexandria city schools from becoming more than 50 per cent black.

The plan itself was appealed to the 5th Circuit by the Rapides Parish School Board, which also was awaiting word from the U.S. Supreme Court on its second request for a year's delay in implementing Scott's plan.

Clyde Holloway, spokesman for the parents, said 15 or 16 teachers volunteered to teach, and that parents had rounded up textbooks from closed private schools and other sources.

MENTAL HEALTH UPDATE

Mental health counseling costs may be variable

By KENNETH A. WOLF, MSSW, SP

QUESTION: How much do mental health services like counseling cost? What if someone cannot afford the cost, but still needs the help?

ANSWER: Most of the agencies in Midland which provide mental health care, including MHMR, have a maximum charge of between $40 and $50 per hour. However, these agencies also provide for fee reduction based on income and family size. Some clients may receive totally free services and others may be required to pay full charges.

Mental Health professionals in private practice have fees ranging from $50 to $80 per hour. Fee reductions are usually not provided.

QUESTION: How does someone know whom to go to for help with mental problems? There are usually a lot of people who advertise as counselors, so it's hard to know whom to pick.

ANSWER: There are a variety of factors to consider in making a choice of whom to seek for professional help.

A person usually must decide if he wants to see a psychiatrist, a psychologist, a clinical social worker, a pastoral counselor or someone who is a "counselor" or "therapist." There are differences in professional training and kinds of treatment offered by each of these disciplines. The person must also choose between a private practitioner and an agency.

Someone who is making the choice of whom to see has a difficult task because of the individualized and personal nature of the counseling relationship. As a first step, the recommendation of a trusted friend or adviser may be sought. A referral may be obtained from a minister, family doctor, or local mental health association.

When a person has narrowed his choice to one or two possibilities, he should inquire into the qualifications, training and experience of the professionals. This information can usually be obtained by a telephone call to the professional's office, but sometimes a preliminary visit with the professional may be required.

If there is any doubt in the person's mind about the professional or his methods of treatment, the person should ask questions. As a general rule of thumb, most people ask too few questions of this nature rather than too many. Most of us are trained to trust authority figures and not to ask questions out of respect for his authority or position. In choosing a mental health professional, not to ask questions can lead to some costly errors.

Ultimately, the choice of whom to seek should be made by the person, not by his friends or any other individual. The person should use every bit of information at his disposal as a guide to an intelligent, informed decision. If the person is not comfortable with a certain professional, it does not matter what that professional's background or qualifications are. The person would be better off seeking help from a professional with whom he is comfortable.

Comments or questions from our readers are encouraged. Although the Update cannot give personal replies or specific advice, we will use as many questions and comments as possible in our future columns. Please address them to: Mental Health Update, 3701 N. Big Spring St., Midland 79701.

Scientists report great progress in developing wild food, oil plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists say they have taken a major step in domesticating a wild plant that thrives in arid lands and which could be a new source of vegetable oil and food.

Researchers at the University of Arizona said they have developed a buffalo gourd seed that produces a plant of consistent size and quality.

Dr. William P. Bemis said these so-called homogeneous seeds are essential to commercial development of the buffalo gourd because they assure a consistent plant without the wide variations found in the wilds.

Bemis said his work, sponsored by the National Science Foundation, is part of an effort to find crops that will do well in areas short of water.

These plants would be particularly useful in the semi-arid Southwest and in many Third World nations that do not have enough water for conventional agriculture, Bemis said in a telephone interview.

"A big factor for wanting to domesticate the buffalo gourd is because it will produce a vegetable oil, protein and starch," Bemis said. "You seldom find a plant that will produce all of these in commercial amounts." Wild buffalo gourds grow primarily in the Southwest, but their range extends from central Mexico to near the southern border of South Dakota.

The buffalo gourd, which grows on a 10- to 15-foot-long vine similar to that of a watermelon or cucumber, is a perennial plant that produces a round, baseball-size fruit.

Bemis and his colleagues, Drs. James Berry and Charles Weber, have planted their newly developed seeds in a 10-acre field and will study the gourds and their seed characteristics when they ripen.

The scientists said it takes tons of seeds, which have not been available up to now, to study the plant's commercial possibilities.

Bemis said a commercial variety probably would require some irrigation, but not as much as similar crops.

Initial studies indicate seeds of the improved buffalo gourd contain as much as 35 percent protein and 40 percent edible vegetable oil, while the parent contains about 18 percent starch, Bemis said.

The protein part of the seed can be processed into a meal similar to soybean and cottonseed varieties, and may be more useful at first as an animal feed, he said.

However, if the meal is processed further, Bemis said, it should produce a seed flour that is about 75 percent protein, which may be a useful human food supplement.

High P/B ratio desirable in oils

Dear Dr. Solomon: What is the significance of the P/B ratio noted on the labels of some oils? — Ms. G.L.

Dear Ms. L.: The P/B ratio refers to the proportion of polyunsaturates to saturates. Polyunsaturated oils have a beneficial effect on cholesterol balance, so a high P/B ratio is desirable. Safflower oil has the highest P/B ratio. An entire chapter in my book, "Dr. Solomon's High Health Diet & Exercise Plan," published by J.P. Purnam's Sons, is devoted to a discussion of oils and margarines, and the part they should play in a well-balanced diet.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Since being told to cut down on my use of sugar, I have stopped adding it to my coffee and have practically given up cakes, pies and similar desserts. But how can I tell how much sugar I'm getting when the labels on packaged foods don't list this information? — Iris.

Dear Iris: As you indicate, laws governing the labeling of food products do not require the amount of sugar they contain to be listed. The only clue as to quantity is the order in which the ingredients are noted — that is, in descending order according to amount.

Three federal agencies — the Food and Drug Administration, the Department of Agriculture and the Federal Trade Commission — are now trying to get authority to require food manufacturers to include on the label information about the amount of sugar in their products. Even if the agencies' recommendations are adopted, however, they probably would not become mandatory until some time in 1981.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine has been extolling the virtues of vitamin B15. He says it gives him energy and helps him perform better on his job. I don't recall seeing anything in your column about this vitamin, and I would like to know if you recommend it. — Ken.

Dear Ken: The so-called vitamin B15, also known as calcium pantothenate or pantoic acid, is one substance you would do well to avoid. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) reports it has been alleged to help such diverse conditions as heart disease, aging, diabetes, gangrene, hypertension, glaucoma, alcoholism, hepatitis, jaundice, allergies, dermatitis, neuralgia and neuritis. Rather than promoting health, however, the so-called vitamin B15 actually may cause cancer.

According to Dr. Neville Coleman, of the Bronx Veterans Administration Medical Center in New York, one of the components of vitamin B15 induces genetic mutations, and there is a 90 percent probability that it can cause cancer. Moreover, different brands of the product have completely different chemical compositions, so that the term "vitamin B15" really has no specific meaning.

The FDA considers the substance an unsafe food additive. You would do best to save both your money and your health by avoiding the so-called vitamin B15.

Jailed Sara Jane shows no remorse

By BRYNA BRENNAN

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Imprisonment has done nothing to shake Sara Jane Moore's belief that her attempt to assassinate Gerald Ford five years ago was the right thing to do. But now, 50 years old and serving a life term, Ms. Moore says her days as a would-be presidential assassin are over.

"I'm not at this time a potential assassin of anyone," she said in a telephone interview from the Federal Correctional Institution at Alderson. "The fact that I'm well-known, I've been in prison and my age, well it's not a role for me. I can be more effective in other ways, like writing or speaking, rather than as an assassin."

It was Sept. 22, 1975, outside a San Francisco hotel, when she pulled a .38-caliber revolver from her purse and fired a single shot at the president. Her aim was deflected by an alert former Marine in a crowd of onlookers and Ford was whisked away unhurt.

It was the second attempt that month on Ford's life. Seventeen days earlier, Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, a member of the Charles Manson family, aimed a .45-caliber pistol at him in Sacramento. The gun failed to go off, and Miss Fromme is serving her sentence in a California prison.

"Given the politics of this country and my own situation, I have no problem with what I did," Ms. Moore said, calling assassination a "valid political tool."

The United States has encouraged the assassination of foreign leaders, such as Chilean President Salvador Allende, so it should expect the same in return, she added.

She talks about politics, but says little of her personal background.

"Frankly, I found out the government does not know that much about me. And I'm not going to help them," she said.

Divorced, Ms. Moore said that "as far as I know I have no relative left except for a son in California."

According to police reports and news accounts, she was born Sara Jane Kahn in a log cabin in Charleston, W.Va., married twice and had four children. She worked as a bookkeeper, was a member of San Francisco's underground and acted as an informant for the FBI.

Now, she spends her days doing needlepoint, reading and writing. "Unfortunately I've spent a good portion of my time watching TV because I've been sick," she said.

She will be eligible for parole in 1985, but Ms. Moore said she thinks "the first chance I would have would be the 30-year mark, which is 2005 for me."

But "I don't plan to die in prison," she added.

She and another woman scaled the prison's 12-foot fence in February 1979 and got 30 miles from the minimum-security facility before being captured. She said she'd jump at another chance to escape.

"I'm a prisoner and I want to be free. Given half a chance, would I? You'd better believe it."

The escape landed her in the "control unit for solitary confinement" and she staged a 79-day hunger strike to protest her detention.

Now back at her normal weight of 130, Ms. Moore said the loss of 61 pounds during her fast brought her near death.

"There comes a time when you have to put your life on the line," she explained. "And I risked my freedom with the assassination attempt and that is harder than dying in glory on the barricades."

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

You be the judge

When I wrote to you before I said not to mix with evil people.

But when I said that I wasn't talking about unbelievers who live in sexual sin, or are greedy cheats and thieves and idol worshipers. For you can't live in this world without being with people like that.

What I meant was that you are not to keep company with anyone who claims to be a brother Christian but indulges in sexual sins, or is greedy, or is a swindler, or worships idols, or is a drunkard, or abusive. Don't even eat lunch with such a person.

It isn't our job to judge outsiders. But it certainly is our job to judge and deal strongly with those who are members of the church, and who are sinning in these ways.

God alone is the Judge of those on the outside. But you yourselves must deal with this man and put him out of your church.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, Sept. 25, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Talented young actor Michael Douglas shares this birthday with you. Keep your wits about you if intending to make business changes work to your advantage in the coming year. Luck helps, and an ability to get along well with others is a strong asset. Finances improve if you are on guard around those who act in a deceptive fashion. Choose new friends, partners with great care. Curb a tendency to be impulsive in affairs of the heart. A hasty romance could prove quite unhappy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If seemingly out of tune with associates, do not surrender just because yours is a minority view. Time could prove that you are the one who is right! Light-hearted romance brightens a quiet evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The opportunity may arise to discuss your business ideas with someone who can help market them. Money dealings require great patience. The news is good on the home front. Romance looks most rewarding!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Expect to be kept on the go all day long! Teamwork is the key to increased productivity and profits at place of employment. A skill with words both helps to impress the boss and encourages romance. Speak from the heart.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be extra patient with others. This is not a good time to provoke a showdown. Mate could feel neglected because of your heavy workload. Consult with loved ones prior to making plans for the weekend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A past experience helps you out of a new difficulty. Acquiring new objects for the home proves interesting. He on the lookout for a real bargain. Something that a friend no longer wants may be just what you need.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Imaginative thinking can help you to attain a long-time aim today. Higher-ups will be impressed. A movie or television program may disturb more than it entertains this evening. Discuss thoughts with mate, spouse.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Some housecleaning may be necessary at place of business. Settle financial differences out of court. Individual who has pledged full support may not live up to his or her promises. Rely on own efforts where career is concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Financial affairs will be affected in a positive way by action taken behind closed doors. Do not encourage a co-worker who likes to gossip. You could be caught in the middle of two opposing forces!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Mate, romantic partner may not be on the same wavelength right now. Be understanding. A special happiness is found in helping others today, and dining out with a friend could be most enjoyable. Issue invitation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Progress on an important project is very pleasing to higher-ups. Money situation is due to improve. A boastful person could get on your nerves at a social gathering. Seek more harmonious company!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Now is the time to talk things over with loved ones. Undiscussed doubts can grow larger and larger. Older relative may have excellent advice to offer where domestic adjustments are concerned. Listen carefully.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do a favor for a younger person. A financial problem can worry the whole family. Do not attempt to deceive a loved one about where things stand. Solutions will be found quicker if those who really care are asked their suggestions.

Had West made a passive lead, declarer would have chucked up his vulnerable slam in quick time. He would win any plain-suit opening lead and lay down a trump honor, felling the queen. It would be a simple matter to draw trumps and then take the heart finesse to see if he could make an overtrick.

Unfortunately for declarer, West chose this moment to make the diabolical lead of the nine of trumps. In light of the bidding, West thought it unlikely that his partner would be tempted into making some fatal-play because he misread the trump situation. But see what effect his lead had on declarer.

South was sure that West would not be leading from the queen of trumps against a slam. Therefore, East had to have that card. The lead also suggested that East had the ten of trumps. If East started with three trumps, declarer could now pick up the suit without loss. So he played the jack of spades from dummy. Suddenly, West had a trump trick as well as the king of hearts, and declarer ended up down one.

There are players who have a fetish about falsecarding—it seems beneath them to play the natural card to any trick. While at times they will succeed in fooling declarer, more often than not they only manage to bamboozle partner.

The ideal time to falsecard is when, even if partner is misled, it is unlikely to cost a trick. Here's a classic case.

North-South bid easily to their slam in spades. North's hand was worth 14 points in support of spades. When he offered a jump raise, South's hand revalued to 20 points (1 point for the fifth trump). With first or second-round control in every suit, South paid homage to Easley Blackwood and settled in the small slam when he discovered that his side was missing two kings.

Maine voters will keep nuclear plant

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Maine residents voted by a 3-2 margin to keep the state's only nuclear generating plant in operation, but industry officials are not taking the result of the unprecedented referendum as a ringing endorsement of nuclear power.

Tuesday's referendum, which would have shut the Maine Yankee plant in Wiscasset and banned all future nuclear development here, was a defeat for anti-nuclear activists who contended that alternative energy sources such as hydroelectric power would be a cheap, safe replacement for Central Maine Power Co.'s nuclear plant.

With 660 of 665 precincts reporting, there were 230,780 votes, or 59 percent, for keeping the plant open and 159,761 votes, or 41 percent, for closing it.

Maine Yankee supporters chalked up their biggest margins in the two counties farthest from the plant, while backers of the shutdown prevailed only in Lincoln, Sagadahoc and Waldo counties, located on the coast and among the closest to the plant.

The statewide voter turnout hovered around 56 percent, unprecedented for a single-issue referendum. The total vote exceeded that of Maine's 1978 general election and was higher than that of all but three of the presidential races in the state.

CMP President E.W. Thurlow said the result was worth the almost $1 million — much of it from out-of-state corporations and utilities — spent on advertising and other efforts to keep the plant running.

"We look upon this as a vote of confidence in the Maine Yankee plant but we do not look at it in any way as a mandate to build future plants," said Thurlow. CMP owns 38 percent of the 8-year-old plant.

Raymond Shadis, leader of the anti-nuclear forces who pushed for the referendum, refused to concede defeat. "We've got a lot of vim and vigor," he said. "We'll wait a while."

The referendum drive began 14 months ago with an anti-nuclear march from Augusta to Wiscasset that sparked the collection of more than 55,000 signatures on petitions for a referendum, many more than needed.

Nuclear opponents contended the plant posed the risk of a major disaster and endangered the health of area residents. They were also concerned about disposal of wastes from the plant.

The proposition would have banned construction of any other nuclear plants in the state, although CMP, Maine's largest power company, decided two years ago it would not build any more nuclear plants because of the expense.

The battle over the 840-megawatt Maine Yankee, which provides about one-third of the state's electricity, centered on the cost of power generation. The Save Maine Yankee Committee argued that closing the plant would cost customers an additional $140 million in the first year of shutdown. The referendum committee said it would cost far less.

Referendums in other states have dealt with nuclear-plant construction, but never with shutting an existing plant. If the proposition had passed, a court test of the state's right to ban nuclear power was almost certain.

Carl Walske, president of the Washington-based Atomic Industrial Forum, an international trade group, said that while his side was victorious, he was concerned that such a large proportion of residents opposed nuclear energy.

"Clearly we have not dispelled the notion that nuclear power presents an unusual risk for the public," he said. "We intend to analyze what the minority vote is trying to tell us and will redouble our efforts to get the facts out to the public."

Gov. Joseph E. Brennan, who argued that closing the plant would imperil Maine's economy, said he was pleased with the referendum outcome. But he said he would continue to work for alternative energy development.

"I'm not the head cheerleader for the power companies," he said.

House OK's waste bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring that "the common enemy now is time," the leading House backer of a $1.2 billion fund to clean up abandoned hazardous waste sites is urging the Senate to bury its own plan in hopes of finishing congressional action yet this year.

Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., who shepherded the bill to easy passage on the House floor Tuesday, said Senate acceptance of the House version appears the "only feasible course of action" if Congress is to enact a bill this year.

Congress is scheduled to recess late next week until after the November elections and then return to deal with appropriations bills.

The Senate has been considering its own bill to establish a $4 billion fund to deal with toxic wastes.

"We have come too far and fought too hard to have this legislation die," Florio said. "We must commit ourselves to eliminating these health hazards without delay. The common enemy now is time."

The Carter administration also called for quick Senate action.

"The callous and improper dumping of hazardous wastes has caused needless tragedy to people's lives and, in many cases, caused irreversible economic and environmental effects," said Barbara Blum, deputy administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

She said the House bill "will enable us to begin to take remedial action to prevent future dumpsite horrors," and added: "I hope and expect the Senate to complete action now so that government can meet its obligations to the American people."

The Chemical Manufacturers Association opposes the Senate bill, which would require the industry to pay hundreds of millions of dollars more in taxes than under the House version.

The legislation was prompted by environmental disasters such as Love Canal, the New York state neighborhood that discovered it was built atop an abandoned chemical dump site that was slowly poisoning its residents.

Breeder battle between Carter, Congress costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional auditors say the three-year battle between President Carter and Congress over breeder reactors is costly and self-defeating.

Instead of continuing the battle, the two branches of government should make peace and either decide on a mutually agreeable breeder or dump the program entirely, said the General Accounting Office in a study released Tuesday.

Because of the standoff, the U.S. breeder program "lacks a clear mission and focus resulting in considerable waste of money," said the GAO, an investigatory arm of Congress.

Breeder reactors can theoretically produce more nuclear fuel than they consume, holding out the potential for almost limitless future supplies of nuclear materials to run other types of reactors.

But Carter announced in 1977 he was cancelling the proposed Clinch River Liquid Metal Fast Breeder Reactor, to be built near Oak Ridge, Tenn. He voiced concern that the plutonium it produced could lead to international nuclear weapons proliferation.

Every year since, Congress has voted money to keep the project alive. The money has been used for various engineering studies, site preparation, and to keep the prime contractors on the payroll. But actual construction has not begun.

Administration officials have talked about building a safer, non-plutonium breeder if Congress agreed to scrap the Clinch River project.

However, the GAO noted, the administration's 1981 budget calls for termination of its work on a gas-cooled fast breeder reactor as one possible alternative.

"The issue boils down to whether the United States wishes to rely on nuclear power as a long- or short-term energy supply source," the GAO report said.

It said that if the nation decides at some future date that it wants to have a breeder after all, it may take years to reach that goal because of the absence of initial work on breeders.

Many other industrialized nations already have breeders in operations, sponsors of the Clinch River project noted.

The administration has generally contended that the United States will have enough uranium to fuel conventional reactors until the year 2025 before needing to replenish its stockpile with breeder-produced fuel.

If Congress is serious about its commitment to a breeder, it should pass a law requiring the Energy Department to build one to demonstrate the technology, the GAO said.

"In making this recommendation, GAO wants to emphasize that it is not necessarily advocating the completion of the Clinch River project as the only means of moving the program forward," the study said.

Otherwise, the hundreds of millions of dollars that Congress keeps approving for breeder research and development each year will have been wasted, the GAO said.

The Energy Department, in a written response contained in the GAO report, defended anew the president's hopes of killing the Clinch River project while agreeing that a common decision with Congress on an alternative breeder was desirable.

The response, written by acting Energy Department Controller P. Marshall Ryan, said the gas-cooled project was dumped because of "uncertain and distant incentives and the lack of a qualitative nonproliferation advantage."

Carter pushes India uranium sale approval

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, calling from Air Force One, personally lobbied senators in advance of today's vote on blocking the sale of uranium to India, which once used U.S. nuclear material for an atomic bomb.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, leader of the fight to stop the sale, said every senator he talked to Tuesday had received a telephone call from the president aboard Air Force One.

"They're pulling out all the stops on this one," he said.

Damaged warhead now at Texas assembly plant

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A damaged nuclear warhead is awaiting examination at an atomic weapons assembly plant here today following an air and overland journey from the site of an Arkansas missile silo explosion.

The warhead is believed to be in the nine megaton range, making it among the largest in the United States' nuclear arsenal.

Claud Gay, chief of the Department of Energy administrative branch at the plant, confirmed that a convoy accompanying the warhead on the five-mile trip from Amarillo International Airport to the Pantex plant arrived shortly before 2 p.m. Tuesday. A giant C-141 jet transport flew the warhead from Little Rock, Ark., to Amarillo.

Paul R. Wagner, ranking Department of Energy official at Pantex, said Monday that the "damaged warhead" would be sent here for disassembly or analysis.

The Air Force on Tuesday still was refusing to say whether a nuclear device was involved in the explosion at a Titan II intercontinental ballistic missile silo near Damascus, Ark., Friday.

The explosion was touched off by a fuel leak, the Air Force said. The blast killed one serviceman and injured 21 others. It occurred about 8½ hours after a wrench socket dropped in the silo by a workman hit the rocket and started the leak, the Air Force said.

Meanwhile, the head of the Strategic Air Command defended the Air Force's handling of the explosion.

Gen. Richard Ellis rejected allegations the Air Force ignored the safety of the Arkansas residents after discovering the fuel leak. He said the Air Force was trying to cope with "a very volatile situation with a lot of unknowns" and did the right thing by evacuating the area around the silo to prevent any civilian casualties.

New Mexico field work reported

Cities Service Co., operating from Midland, announced location for No. 1 State "CZ," an 11,450-foot test in the Turkey Track, North (Morrow) field of Eddy County, N.M.

The 1 1/4-mile southeast outpost is 2,180 feet from north and 960 feet from east lines of section 4-19s-29e, 10 miles southwest of Loco Hills.

Ground elevation is 3,214 feet.

Amoco Production Co., operating from Hobbs, N.M., will drill in the Empire, South (Morrow) field of Eddy County.

No. 21 Empire South Deep Unit is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 36-17s-28e, nine miles west of Loco Hills.

Contract depth is 11,200 feet, on ground elevation of 3,678 feet.

Amoco, operating from Hobbs, N.M., has spotted a 10,850-foot Morrow test in the Dark Canyon field of Eddy County.

No. 1 State Community "IW," one-half mile west of the opener and lone producer of the Dark Canyon field, is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 30-23s-25e, eight miles northwest of White City.

Elevation is 3,853 feet, ground elevation.

HNG Oil Co. of Midland plans to drill No. 1-26 Wiser-State in the eight-well Airstrip (Bone Spring) field of Lea County.

Drill site for the north offset is 1,910 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 26-18s-34e, six miles south of Buckeye.

The project is scheduled to 10,800 feet, on ground elevation of 3,979 feet.

Adobe Oil & Gas Corp., Midland, announced location for a 13,500-foot test in the Austin (Mississippian) field of Lea County.

No. 1 Head-State, originally an abandoned location in January 1980, is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 20-14s-36e.

Ground elevation is 13,500 feet.

The Knowles (Devonian) field of Lea County gained another producer with completion of No. 1 O. A. Woody to pump 127 barrels of 43-gravity oil and 6 barrels of water.

Production was from open hole from 12,408 to 12,428 feet, with no treatment reported. The gas-oil ratio is 628-1, and the pay was topped at 12,398 feet, on ground elevation of 3,696 feet.

The well drilled to 12,428 feet, and 5.5-inch casing was set at 12,408 feet.

Well site is 2,310 feet from north and 330 feet from west lines of section 35-16s-38e, 13 miles southeast of Lovington.

Morris R. Antwell, Hobbs, N.M., announced completion of the current second producer in the Caprock, North (Mississippian) field of Lea County.

No. 1 Lucky Larry flowed 120 barrels of oil, gravity not reported, on an 18/64-inch choke through perforations from 11,125 to 11,190.5 feet, after a 3,000-gallon acid job.

The gas-oil ratio is 9,166-1.

The north offset bottomed at 11,290 feet, where 5.5-inch casing was set, and was plugged back to 11,225 feet.

Production site is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 5-12s-32e, six miles south of Caprock.

The following tops were picked on ground elevation of 4,404 feet: Rustler anhydrite, 1,470 feet; Yates, 2,268 feet; San Andres, 3,565 feet; Glorieta, 4,980 feet; Tubb, 6,478 feet; Abo, 7,294 feet; Wolfcamp, 8,414 feet; Canyon, 9,417 feet; Strawn, 9,742 feet; Atoka, 10,036 feet; Morrow clastics, 10,811 feet, and Mississippian lime, 11,200 feet.

Sun Oil Co., Midland, has completed the current fifth producer in the Crossroads (Ellenburger) field of Lea County.

On 24-hour potential test, the well flowed 47 barrels of oil and 24 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 10,446-1, and gravity not reported.

Production was through perforations from 11,358 to 11,368 feet which had been acidized with 1,500 gallons. Originally completed from Devonian open hole from 12,049 to 12,066 feet in November 1972, Sun Oil re-entered and perforated the old 7-inch casing which was set at 12,049 feet.

The well cleaned out to 12,066 feet, the old total depth, and was plugged back to 12,035 feet.

Well site is 1,980 feet from north and 990 feet from east lines of section 27-9s-36e, 10 miles southeast of Milensand.

Amoco Production Co. No. 9-C State Tract 11 has been completed as the 10th Blinbery producer in the Hardy field of Lea County.

Operator reported the well pumped 20 barrels of oil and 120 barrels of water on 24-hour potential test, through perforations from 5,783 to 6,015 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 500-1, and gravity was not reported.

The pay was treated with 8,000 gallons of acid, and fractured with 30,000 gallons.

Total depth was reached at 6,900 feet in the Drinkard, with 7-inch casing set at 6,865 feet, and plugged back depth is 6,100 feet.

The well may be dually completed at a later date from Drinkard perforations from 6,589 to 6,808 feet, which were acidized with 5,000 gallons.

The location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 2-21s-36e, one mile east of Oil Center.

The following tops were picked on ground elevation of 3,529 feet: San Andres, 3,995 feet; Glorieta, 5,220 feet; Blinbery, 5,726 feet; Tubb, 6,350 feet; Drinkard, 6,495 feet.

Amoco, operating from Hobbs, N.M., announced potential on the current fourth producer in the Buffalo (Pennsylvanian) field of Lea County.

No. 1 Nellis-Federal Gas Community "C" flowed gas at the rate of 8,700,000 cubic feet per day, on a 48/64-inch choke, with gas-liquid ratio and gravity not reported.

Production was natural, through perforations from 13,522 to 13,620 feet. On ground elevation of 3,678 feet, the well bottomed at 13,701 feet, and was plugged back to 13,620 feet.

At 13,700 feet, 5.5-inch casing was set.

Production site is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 8-19s-33e, 14 miles southwest of Buckeye.

Conoco Inc., Hobbs, N.M., has completed No. 9 State F-1 as a dual oil producer in the Hardy and Blinbery fields of Lea County.

Operator reported the well flowed 40 barrels of 46.2-gravity oil and 6 barrels of water on a 13/64-inch choke, through Blinbery perforations from 5,685 to 5,951 feet, to become the current ninth producer from this pay.

The Blinbery pay was acidized with 1,890 gallons, and fractured with 58,128 gallons. The gas-oil ratio is 9,000-1.

Operator reported the well flowed 47 barrels of 46-gravity oil and 82 barrels of water on an 18/64-inch choke, through Drinkard perforations from 6,685 to 6,853 feet, with a gas-oil ratio of 10,830-1, to become the current fourth producer from this pay.

The Drinkard pay was acidized with 2,016 gallons, and fractured with 41,412 gallons.

Total depth was reached at 7,000, where 7-inch casing was set, and plugged back depth is 6,959 feet.

Well site is 330 feet from south and west lines of section 1-21s-36e, two miles east of Oil Center.

The following pays were topped on ground elevation of 3,520 feet: Rustler anhydrite, 1,260 feet; salt, 1,350 feet; base salt, 2,493 feet; Yates, 2,650 feet; Seven Rivers, 2,910 feet; Queen, 3,403 feet; Glorieta, 5,205 feet; Paddock, 5,318 feet; Blinbery, 5,776 feet; Tubb, 6,327 feet; Drinkard, 6,625 feet; and Abo, 6,924 feet.

The current tenth producer in the Airstrip (Bone Spring) field of Lea County has been completed by Bass Enterprises Production Co. of Midland. It is a south-west offset to production in the field.

No. 1 Airstrip pumped 121 barrels of 37.6-gravity oil and 23 barrels of water through perforations from 9,230 to 9,385 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 717-1.

The Bone Spring was treated with 13,200 gallons of acid, and a fracture job of 106,000 gallons.

The well bottomed at 10,820 feet, where 7-inch casing was set, and was plugged back to 9,467 feet.

Well site is 330 feet from north and west lines of section 31-18s-35e, six miles south of Buckeye.

Ground elevation is 3,951 feet.

Yates Petroleum Corp., operating from Artesia, N.M., has announced dual potential in the Kennitz, South multipay field of Lea County.

No. 1 Sombro State "MS" pumped 23 barrels of 35-gravity oil on 24-hour test, with a gas-oil ratio of 391-1.

This production was through Wolfcamp perforations from 10,772 to 10,794 feet, which had been acidized with 2,500 gallons.

Through Cisco perforations from 11,148 to 11,226 feet, the well pumped 24 barrels of 35-gravity oil and 49 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 1,708-1.

This pay was acidized with 3,500 gallons.

The well reached total depth at 11,800 feet, set 5.5-inch casing at 11,414 feet, and was plugged back to 11,408 feet.

On ground elevation of 4,195 feet, the following tops were picked: Rustler, 1,156 feet; salt, 1,550 feet; base salt, 2,152 feet; Yates, 2,780 feet; Queen, 3,667 feet; Grayburg, 3,996 feet; San Andres, 4,475 feet; Glorieta, 5,950 feet; Tubb, 7,170 feet; Abo, 7,890 feet; Wolfcamp, 9,760 feet; and Cisco, 11,140 feet.

Production site is 1,650 feet from south and east lines of section 22-16s-33e, 12 miles northwest of Buckeye.

Operators complete four discoveries in West Texas

ARCO Oil & Gas Co. of Midland has finished an undesignated discovery in Andrews County.

No. 86 Emma Cowden flowed 152 barrels of 36.3-gravity oil and 74 barrels of water, on a 23/64-inch choke, with gas-oil ratio measured at 1,755-1.

Production was through perforations from 4,168 to 4,202 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons and fractured with 19,000 gallons.

The well reached total depth at 4,600 feet, where 5.5-inch casing was set, and was plugged back to 4,355 feet. Ground elevation is 3,167 feet.

NOLAN STRIKE

Resource Technology of Dallas No. 1 Moore has been completed as a Jennings oil discovery in Nolan County, five miles north of Hylton.

On 24-hour potential test it flowed 206 barrels of 43.5-gravity oil, no water, with gas-oil ratio of 1,117-1.

Completion was natural through a 1/4-inch choke and perforations at 5,390-5,394 feet.

The Jennings was topped at 5,390 feet on kelly bushing elevation of 2,340 feet.

Other tops include the Flippen lime, 3,375 feet; Canyon reef, 4,332 feet; Fry sand, 5,150 feet; Goen, 5,250 feet, and Ellenburger at 5,875 feet.

Total depth is 6,100 feet, 4 1/2-inch pipe is set at 6,090 feet and hole is plugged back to 5,850 feet.

Location is 190 feet from north and west lines of section 216, block 64, H&TC survey.

TOM GREEN OPENER

John March of Dallas No. 1 Clifton Sikmek, Tom Green County Cisco oil discovery, has been completed for a daily pumping potential of 11.72 barrels of 42-gravity oil and a tract of water, with gas-oil ratio of 7,679-1.

The pay, from 3,852 to 3,959 feet, was acidized with 10,000 gallons and fractured with 16,000 gallons.

Total depth is 5,649 feet, where 4 1/2-inch casing is set, and plugged back depth is 5,265 feet.

The Cisco was topped at 3,952 feet on ground elevation of 1,925 feet. Other tops include the Palo Pinto, 4,400 feet; Harkey, 4,556 feet; Strawn, 4,836 feet and Ellenburger, 5,612 feet.

Well site is 467 feet from south and east lines of J. S. Grant survey No. 6, abstract 55.

The strike is one location southwest of the Strawn discovery well of the Lipan Creek field and five miles southwest of Wall.

FISHER REOPENER

Maguire Oil Co. of Dallas No. 1-B Bowden has been completed to reopen the Sylvester, South (Noodle Creek) field of Fisher County, two miles northeast of Sylvester.

On 24-hour potential test, the well pumped 15 barrels of 39-gravity oil and 65 barrels of water per day. Completion was natural, through perforations from 2,993 to 3,033 feet.

Scheduled as a Goen project in the Sylvester field, No. 1-B Bowden was drilled to 5,555 feet. Operator set 4 1/2-inch casing at 3,062 feet and plugged the hole back to 3,051 feet.

The Noodle Creek was topped at 2,993 feet, the Flippen at 3,230 feet, and the Goen lime at 5,404 feet. Ground elevation is 1,909 feet.

Well site is 597 feet from north and 152 feet from west lines of J. F. Newman survey No. 13.

ECTOR OILER

Amoco Production Co., operating from Odessa, has announced potential for No. 85 Elliott F. Cowden "B" in Ector County. Originally scheduled as a wildcat, the well was completed in the Cowden, South (Canyon 8790) field.

On 24-hour potential test, operator reported the well pumped 77 barrels of 35.7-gravity oil and 93 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 455-1.

Production was through perforations from 8,610 to 8,872 feet, which had been acidized with 6,000 gallons.

Total depth was reached at 10,643 feet, 5.5-inch casing was set at 10,630 feet, and plug back depth is 8,883 feet.

On ground elevation of 2,963 feet, the pay was topped at 8,330 feet.

GARZA WELL

Harry A. Miller Jr. of Midland No. 2-G-B Connell has been completed in the Rocker A, Northwest (San Andres) pool of Garza County, five miles south of Post.

Miller reported a daily pumping potential of 35 barrels of oil, gravity and gas-oil ratio reported.

Completion was through perforations from 2,566 to 2,788 feet. Total depth is 3,360 feet.

IRION PRODUCERS

Moran Exploration Inc. of Midland No. 1-6 A. A. Sugg is a new well in the Andrew A (Canyon) field of Irion County, 12 miles northwest of Mertzon.

Operator reported a daily flowing potential of 60 barrels of 45.2-gravity oil and 76 barrels of water, through a 20/64-inch choke. The gas-oil ratio is 3,750-1.

Completion was from pay behind casing perforations at 6,699-6,820 feet. The zone was acidized with 4,500 gallons and fractured with 60,000 gallons.

The wellsites 7/8 mile west of other Canyon oil production and 660 feet with 61,515 gallons. Location is 660 feet from north and 560 feet from east lines of section 29, GC&SP survey, abstract 127.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

from north and east lines of section 6, block 6, H&TC survey.

The Brooks, South (Cisco 5600 gas) field of Irion County has gained its fourth producer.

It is Indian Wells Oil No. 1-29 Winterbotham, 5.2 miles southeast of Mertzon.

It finalized for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 4,550,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 5,782-5,811 feet. The zone was acidized with 3,000 gallons and frac-

Doodlebug open slated

The Permian Basin Geophysical Society will hold its annual Doodlebug Open Golf Tournament Friday at Hogan Park Golf Course in Midland.

A barbecue diner will follow the tournament at 7:30 at the old pro shop next to Cubs Stadium.

The tournament is for members only, however the barbecue will include spouses.

Golfers are asked to make up their own foursomes, but the tournament committee will make up the foursomes in case anyone needs help.

Teecoff time will be from 7:52 a.m. to 3:42 p.m.

Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee A. Iacocca stands beside one of Chrysler's new 1981 "K-cars," a Plymouth Reliant station wagon, Tuesday in Washington as he unveils the new high-mileage models which he predicts will pull the company out of its financial doldrums. (AP Laserphoto)

'K-cars' will save Chrysler: Iacocca

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Lee A. Iacocca sat on the hood of one of his company's 1981 "K-cars" and predicted the new high-mileage model will help "restore Chrysler to profitability."

Iacocca spoke with newsmen in a huge hotel ballroom where the automaker displayed its 1981 line of cars and trucks Tuesday in its annual press preview. The models go on sale next week.

"Chrysler Corp., which one year ago was on the leading edge of everything that was going wrong in America, is now on the leading edge of a dramatic recovery that will put the American automobile industry back in a strong competitive position," he said.

The chairman said the nation's No. 3 automaker, propped up by $1.5 billion in government-guaranteed loans, expects to capture 12 percent of the American auto market next year, up from about 10.4 percent in 1980. He said an estimated 13 million cars and trucks will be sold in the United States in 1981 and that Chrysler hopes to claim about 1.56 million of those sales.

The goal for the "K-cars" — Dodge Aries and Plymouth Reliant — is sales of 600,000 next year as Chrysler seeks to counter a rising tide of Japanese imports.

Iacocca, who says he will draw a salary of $1 a year until Chrysler shows a profit, classed the Aries and Reliant as the "bread and butter family car for the next decade."

They have four-cylinder engines and front-wheel drive, carry six passengers, are about half a ton lighter than the Dodge Aspen and Plymouth Volare, which they will replace, and get as much as 25 miles per gallon in the city and 41 on the highway. The base price is $6,100.

But Iacocca said the "K-cars" alone will not rescue Chrysler from its financial problems. And he waved his arm at the other 1981 models in the room — the subcompact Omni-Horizon line, including a new "Miser" version that will get 30 mpg; the Dodge Diplomat-Chrysler LeBaron family; the Chrysler Cordoba-Dodge Mirada line, and the revived Imperial name in the company's return to the luxury market with a $20,000 car.

Iacocca noted the Environmental Protection Agency recently projected the 1981 Chrysler cars would have a fleet average of 25.5 miles per gallon — which he said would answer the growing public demand for fuel-efficient transportation.

"That is almost 2 1/2 miles per gallon better than General Motors and almost three miles per gallon better than Ford," the chairman said. "We also have more models over 25 mpg than any import."

Iacocca also projected a profit for Chrysler in the fourth quarter of 1980 and said the company may not have to draw any more money from the $1.5 billion government-guaranteed loan. It so far has drawn $800 million.

But he said a return of interest rates to the 15 to 20 percent range could destroy Chrysler's recovery plan.

Perot to request tougher drug laws

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Saying some rich dope dealers have been coddled for too long, the chairman of Texas War on Drugs says he will ask the next legislature to pass tougher anti-narcotics laws hoping to "drive dealers out of the state."

Dallas computer magnate H. Ross Perot, appointed to the special commission by Gov. Bill Clements, said statistics spell out a growing drug problem among the state's young people.

The noted political conservative told the Texas Association of Broadcasters that tough drug laws have chased "major" drug dealers into Texas.

"They (dealers) all are operating out of Texas. It's a bad situation for us. We need to drive them out of the state," he said in the Tuesday speech.

Perot also was critical of the Texas justice system, saying it concentrated too much on minor drug offenses and not "the big guys."

"We want to go after the bull elephants, not hunt for sparrows. I'm absolutely dedicated to trying to change the system of justice in this state where a Mexican kid steals a hubcap and gets 5 years, and if a rich guy makes $50 million dealing in dope, they put him in Seagoville (minimum security prison) and teach him to how to fly and let him go home on weekends," Perot said.

Perot called narcotics the nation's No. 1 criminal and social problem — a $50 billion to $60 billion illegal enterprise equal that pays no taxes.

One of the proposals he outlined that would allow officials to confiscate all property belonging to people convicted of narcotics trafficking.

"We're going into assets. If you make $50 million in drugs in Texas and we catch you, we're going to put $50 million in the state treasury. Now we almost apologize if you're prominent, don't put you away very long," said the founder of Electronic Data Systems.

Perot also assailed the use of narcotics by rock stars and athletes, saying children's idols were giving the impression that all successful people use drugs.

He advised parents to listen to rock songs, which he charged were replete with explicit references to sex and favorable comments on drugs.

"The odds that you can produce a rock star that doesn't use drugs are pretty slim," he said. "... and for every Roger Staubach there's a bunch of guys just as high as a kite going out to play football. You know it and I know it and, most importantly, your kids know it."

"Your children are out there in a minefield and it's up to us to protect them."

Attorney-husband sued for malpractice

DETROIT (AP) — A woman seeking a divorce has filed a $3 million malpractice suit against her husband, a prominent attorney.

Sybil Jaques, 48, of Grosse Pointe Shores filed for divorce from her husband, Leonard C. Jaques, 52, on Aug. 8. But the husband, who has an international marine and admiralty law practice, responded by claiming Mrs. Jaques was not legally free to marry him when they wed on Dec. 30, 1965, following her divorce from a previous marriage.

"The six-month waiting period prescribed by law had not elapsed prior to the marriage ceremony and therefore the marriage is a nullity," Jaques said in a formal response.

Mrs. Jaques, in an amended complaint filed Tuesday, accused her attorney-husband of negligence, legal malpractice, fraud and misrepresentation and said he misled her 15 years before.

According to her complaint filed in Wayne County Circuit Court, Mrs. Jaques said her husband met her and proposed marriage after she had separated from Ohman Akkerman, but was not yet divorced. Jaques told her he would take over her divorce proceedings, she said.

After that, she claimed, he was the only attorney she communicated with regarding the divorce. On the day of the wedding in Detroit, Jaques assured her the divorce from Akkerman was final, her complaint said.

The woman's suit said that if what Jaques claims about the six-month waiting period is true, he is guilty of legal malpractice and caused her to enter a "bigamous" relationship.

Mrs. Jaques asks a $2 million judgment plus $1 million in punitive damages, claiming she has suffered shame, humiliation, anxiety and extreme mental suffering — particularly since Jaques claims their 14-year-old daughter, Alisa, is illegitimate because of the marital circumstances.

Jaques could not be reached for comment.

Billy quizzed by panel again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators are bringing Billy Carter back for more questioning on his Libya ties, while trying to decide whether to quizz his brother, the president, as well.

Staff lawyers for a special Senate subcommittee planned to take a sworn deposition from Billy Carter today, primarily on conflicts between his testimony and that of a Justice Department official.

The panel, meanwhile, scheduled a meeting to decide whether — and if so, where and how — to question President Carter on administration handling of his brother's Libya activities.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., the subcommittee chairman, said Sunday the president probably will be questioned at the White House.

"We won't call him as a public witness," Bayh said. "We may go down to the White House, some of us, and ask him the questions."

The subcommittee decided two weeks ago to take a deposition from Billy Carter instead of calling him back for a further public hearing.

The president's brother registered as a Libyan agent July 14 after an 18-month Justice Department investigation that disclosed his receipt of $220,000 from the radical Arab government.

Billy Carter said the money was a loan and denied his activities made him a Libyan agent.

The subcommittee is trying to reconcile conflicting testimony on whether the president's brother falsely denied to Justice Department investigators that he had received any money from Libyan officials.

Joel Lisker, chief of the Justice Department's foreign agents registration unit, told the panel that Billy Carter denied receiving the money until Lisker told him there was evidence of the payments.

Billy Carter, however, testified that he didn't reveal the payments initially because Lisker didn't ask about them.

There was also a conflict on whether Billy Carter consistently described the money as a loan.

Police hunt bowling alley murderers

BOSTON (AP) — Police say they think four men who were bound and methodically executed during a bowling alley robbery knew their slayers. Gov. Edward J. King, meanwhile, offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the killers.

The victims were found early Monday in a back room of Sammy White's Brighton Bowl where thieves opened a safe and fled with between $6,000 and $9,000 in coins and bills.

Detective Lt. Samuel Abany said police believe the men were killed to prevent them from identifying the thieves.

"That's our theory," said Abany. "It could be faulty, but that's a possibility."

Police appealed to the public to phone in tips on a 24-hour-a-day hotline, while King on Tuesday reiterated his belief in capital punishment and offered a $100,000 reward from campaign and personal funds and donations.

Police Superintendent Anthony DiNatale said it was just 90 minutes between the time the first employee went to work at the bowling alley and the time the bodies were discovered. In less than 25 minutes, he said, the killers herded the four employees into a back room, bound their hands behind their backs with handcuffs and a belt, bludgeoned them, shot each one in the head once, opened the safe and stole the money.

"Executed. That's the only word to describe it," police Superintendent Edward Connolly said of the killings.

Help Wanted

$2000 PER MONTH PLUS
Manager Trainees need to fill $70,500 per year position. It normally takes only 2 to 3 years to become a manager. $24,000 is your guaranteed annual salary while you learn, however for those who survive the first year average compensation is $29,250 due to additional sales commissions. 90 to 95 percent of your time will be in sales during the 2 to 3 year training period.

QUALIFICATIONS ARE TOUGH:
Please don't apply unless you meet each and every qualification:
1. Impeccable integrity and references.
2. A year degree from accredited college or high school diploma coupled with 2 years of heavy retail manager experience.
3. Willing to work over 60 hours per week (No Sunday or our town work.)
4. Willing to take Polygraph test.
5. Willing and capable of taking instructions.
6. Not have any prior heavy sales experience such as real estate, automobile, mobile homes, vacuum cleaners, etc.

We have an extra ordinary benefit plan including a retirement profit sharing plan. We don't list with employment agencies and request they not refer candidates to us.

COULD YOU USE $8100 TO FURTHER YOUR EDUCATION?
With tuition costs at colleges and vocational/technical schools at an all-time high, many high school graduates are finding themselves unable to meet admission standards, but unable to afford the tuition.
The Navy wants all qualified candidates to achieve the goal of higher education. And we can help through a dramatic new program called the Veterans Educational Assistance Plan.
Under this plan, Navy men and women can save from $50 to $75 each month, and their savings will be matched 2 for 1! If you save $2700 over a three year period, the Government will match that with $5400—for a combined saving of $8100!
Get all the facts. Just call your nearest Navy recruiter. He can tell you how to get ahead in the Navy. And how easy it is to save $8100.

ACCOUNTING OPPORTUNITIES

Where career potential and a pleasant environment go hand-in-hand

We're Crystal Oil of Shreveport, Louisiana. And, like our home town, we are full of opportunity. A young, aggressive independent involved in the exploration, production and processing of oil and gas products in a city with a multitude of recreational possibilities. Right now, you have the chance to join our team and earn some of this opportunity for your self.

ACCOUNTING SUPERVISORS

Require Bachelor's Degree in Accounting, with a postgraduate Accounting Degree preferred. Must have 2-3 years' experience with an oil and gas company in a supervisory position. Of two openings, the first will be responsible for supervising 3 staff accountants in the preparation of depletion calculations, capitalization of interest and monthly and yearly property progression reports. The second will be responsible for preparing financial statements to include income statements and balance sheets for Crystal Oil Company and Crystal Exploration and Production Company; supervising accounts payable department in lease operating expenses; and preparing audit worksheets for annual audit.

EXPLORATION & PRODUCTION ACCOUNTANT

Requires a Bachelor's Degree in Accounting plus 1-2 years' experience with some exposure to exploration and production accounting. Will be responsible for preparing financial statements for the partnership, including 3 sets of income statements and balance sheets, as well as participating in the supervision of the Exploration and Production Department. This opening, recently created by a recent promotion, offers a superb opportunity to move up in the oil and gas industry.

All these positions offer excellent starting salaries, the pressure-free environment of a small city, good schools, excellent housing within minutes of the office, excellent water sports, a lake in the middle of town and a lower cost of living than almost anywhere else in the United States. We also offer a comprehensive benefits package including tuition reimbursement plan, exceptional career security and advancement opportunities.

Refugee plan sparks furor

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The Carter Administration's decision to send Cuban and Haitian refugees to a Navy base in Puerto Rico has stirred up a political furor on this Caribbean island 200 miles from Haiti and 400 miles from Cuba.

Dozens of residents of the south coast, where the base is located, called radio stations to say the refugees would not be welcome, and the political enemies of Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo lambasted the choice. One said it would make Puerto Rico "the garbage dump" of the Caribbean.

Many of the objections centered on Puerto Rico's already high unemployment, officially 17 percent, and on fears that criminals or mentally ill Cubans would cause trouble near the base.

In Ponce, a city about six miles southwest of the planned refugee center at Fort Allen, radio stations received calls denouncing the idea.

"We have almost 20 percent unemployment already in Juana Diaz," said an aide to the mayor of that town, which includes the fort.

Fort Allen has been used as a Navy communications base and houses 300 military personnel but was scheduled to close Sept. 30, according to Navy spokesman Lt. Steve Chesser.

Miguel Hernandez Agosto, president of the Popular Democratic Party, Romero's major opposition, said the governor's approval of the plan was "totally unacceptable." He said the island now has too high a rate of unemployment to afford its traditional open-arms policy toward refugees from totalitarian regimes.

A candidate for non-voting delegate to Congress, Jose Arsenio Torres, added, "humanitarian questions about the Cubans and Haitians aren't at issue here, but humanitarian questions for Puerto Ricans."

Baltasar Corrada del Rio, Puerto Rico's non-voting delegate to Washington and a member of Romero's pro-statehood New Progressive Party, said the White House had assured him that criminals and the mentally ill would not be among those sent here.

The number of people to be housed at Fort Allen was unclear. The White House said the camp was equipped for 1,000 to 2,500 refugees immediately, and within 60 days could house between 4,500 and 5,000. Romero, who said he had agreed to the proposal on the condition that no more than 800 refugees would be at the fort at a time, could not immediately be reached for comment.

Advocates of independence for the U.S. Commonwealth were among the first to oppose the plan.

Strike leader applying for labor charter

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Strike hero Lech Walesa applies today to register an independent, nationwide labor federation, but a Warsaw court has already objected to one of the 13 applications it has received from other labor groups.

Several dozen local union organizers showered the leader of last month's strikes on the Baltic coast with flowers as he led them on a 30-minute march through deserted streets Tuesday night following his arrival from Gdansk. They carried the Polish flag and a banner reading "Independent, Self-Governing Trade Unions."

The right to form unions free of Communist Party control, unprecedented in the Soviet Bloc, was the chief concession made by the party to end the strike wave that began along the Baltic coast, spread across the nation and forced party chief Edward Gierek to retire.

But the nascent independent unions are encountering obstacles. The Warsaw district court, which must process union registrations, objected Tuesday to the application for a charter submitted by a committee claiming to represent 14,000 workers in the Silesian city of Katowice.

Labor sources said the court objected to the committee's plans to set up a nationwide organization, to enroll members from other industries and to get financing from sources other than membership dues.

There was speculation that the court would raise the same objections to Walesa's application. One source speculated that the government intends to discourage formation of large regional or nationwide organizations to fragment the independent labor movement. And if their funds were limited to membership dues, the source said, small independent unions would find it almost impossible to maintain a headquarters, pay a staff and challenge the official labor structure dominated by the Communist Party.

Walesa heads a federation of unions called Solidarity, with headquarters in Gdansk, that plans to set up 17 regional, autonomous divisions with members drawn from all the trades and professions and separate chapters in each factory.

Meanwhile, the government on Tuesday named a special committee to draft amendments to the labor laws incorporating the reforms promised in the Gdansk strike agreement. Walesa was one of those named.

Kremlin's hold may be slipping

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Concessions to labor and religion by the communist government of Poland and native opposition to the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan are indications the Kremlin's political grip may be slipping, says Alf M. Landon.

"The Polish workers' strike, and even the token American union contribution to it, may be the beginning of the end of the monolithic communism practiced by the Russian politburo," the 1936 Republican presidential nominee said in a statement made public today.

"But we shouldn't be too optimistic," he added. "The wounded tiger is far more dangerous than the well-fed one."

Landon, who observed his 93rd birthday on Sept. 9, said he issued the statement because he doesn't think sufficient significance has been attached to developments in Poland and communist bloc countries.

"Religion is, in the Marxist view, the opiate of the people," he said. "Now, after 30-odd years, communist Russia is finding that is not true, and the Roman Catholic Church in Poland is impossible to ignore. The state radio of Poland broadcast Mass Sunday for the first time in more than 30 years, a remarkable development."

"It is significant that American trade unions have made a small contribution to the new Polish unions. It is possible the spread of independent unions may bring the downfall of Russian communism. Yugoslav socialism can be cited as another deviant example from Communism."

Landon also said the Soviet Union may have learned the lesson taught other empire nations: "A hegemony of colonies eventually is more trouble than they are worth, despite the riches of initial exploitation."

Sheriff in Ecuador called 'Ayatollah of Guayaquil'

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — You can't buy a beer on Sunday in this sweltering equatorial seaport. The sheriff won't allow it.

Guayaquil, with a population of more than 1 million, is Ecuador's largest city, located two degrees south of the equator on the wide and muddy Guayas River.

And until Sheriff Abdallah Bucaram was appointed by the Ministry of Government last year, it was a typical tropical port with all-night dance halls, exotic women and a sensuous climate reputed to induce a measure of laxity in public morals and attitudes.

But when Bucaram instituted strict adherence to a set of 16 rules he himself calls "Abdallah's Commandments," disgruntled citizens quickly nicknamed him the "Ayatollah of Guayaquil."

Bucaram, whose grandparents were Lebanese immigrants, is a Roman Catholic, as are most of the thousands of people with Lebanese backgrounds in Guayaquil.

His 16 commandments, tacked to the wall behind his desk, implore the citizenry to love their country and to respect motherhood.

They tell those with modern plumbing in their homes to share the facilities with less fortunate citizens. Merchants are ordered to stick to official food prices and doctors are warned to maintain reasonable fees.

The commandments prohibit the sale of fireworks, playing soccer in the streets, selling alcoholic beverages all day Sunday and after midnight other days, throwing water-filled balloons during carnival, bribery, extortion and all other crimes.

"You will take your paycheck home. Don't leave it in the canteen," says the 16th commandment.

Bucaram strictly enforces his personal interpretation of the law.

He has sent 3,000 men to jail for urinating in the streets. He routinely closes bars which serve drinks after hours and confiscates overpriced groceries, distributing them free to shantytowns.

He once shut down the city's top three hotels, ordering their guests out of their rooms in the middle of the night, because the owners allegedly treated his inspectors rudely.

He has collected the equivalent of $1.3 million in fines in one year, more than previous sheriffs accomplished in 50 years.

Dressed in an open-necked, tropical shirt, a cross dangling on a chain around his neck, Bucaram claimed in an interview that he was the first honest sheriff in Guayaquil's history.

He is at least well-connected politically. President Jaime Roldos is his brother-in-law. His uncle is Asaad Bucaram, a powerful member of Congress who is locked in a perpetual power struggle with Roldos.

The sheriff sides with Roldos, calling him "the greatest man of all Latin America for being the youngest president of all time." Roldos is 39. Bucaram is 28.

Bucaram denied his attitude toward law and order and public morals was the "act of an intransigent ayatollah." He said the dry laws had reduced traffic accidents and crimes on Sunday and saved some wages for wives and children.

Still, the sheriff's style draws mixed reactions.

Guayaquil theater owners went on strike after he closed a theater for showing "Luna," a film by Italian director Bernardo Bertolucci which deals with incest between a mother and son.

The Association of Bars, Restaurants and Taverns protested his dry laws by filing a complaint with the national Tribunal of Constitutional Guarantees, demanding Bucaram's political rights be suspended.

The Tribunal agreed the dry laws had no legal basis and recommended the Ministry of Government apply administrative sanctions against him. The case is pending.

In the meantime, Bucaram — who says the Tribunal's ruling would only guarantee "the right of the Ecuadorian people to make brutes of themselves with alcohol" — continues to enforce his commandment against late-hour and Sunday liquor sales.

And in the capital of Quito, the newspaper "El Tiempo" editorialized about "our home-grown Khomeini" and reported how he reacted to a woman who entered his office wearing a dress with side slits.

Carter cites achievements, but concedes more needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has told Congress that his administration is trying to turn the tide of federal policy that drains and enervates the nation's older cities.

Mrs. Owens died Sunday in an Odessa hospital following an illness. She was born Nov. 17, 1906, in Midland and was a life-long resident of the Midland-Odessa area.

Survivors include two sons, Samuel "Mike" Evitt of Odessa and Charles "Pat" Evitt of Austin; two daughters, Fredonia Evitt and Patricia Melson, both of Odessa; a sister, Mrs. George Elliott of Houston; a brother, S.R. McKinney of Midland; seven grandchildren, a great-grandson, three nieces and a nephew.

Vets, widows in Nagasaki want benefits

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Thirty-five years ago today, Cpl. Lynn Quigley arrived in Nagasaki, Japan, with about 1,000 other Marines to clean up the devastation wrought by an American atomic bomb.

He left the ruined city with running sores on his head, says his widow, Bernice, and after a long history of health problems died this year of his fifth heart attack at the age of 58.

"His whole body was like a man in his 70s," Mrs. Quigley says. "It was everything — his heart, his lungs. He was an old man."

Mrs. Quigley believes her husband's misery can be attributed to the way he lived and worked in Nagasaki — he drank water from the city reservoir and without so much as a mask drove a bulldozer close to where the bomb exploded.

Quigley began a private campaign in 1974 to determine whether others in Japan had suffered the same ailments. His cause has been taken up by a Portland-based group called U.S. Veterans of Nagasaki and Hiroshima, after the two towns devastated by atomic bombs during World War II.

The group is fighting the refusal of the Veterans Administration to grant compensation to Mrs. Quigley and more than 130 veterans or their relatives who have filed claims.

In a report issued last month, the Defense Nuclear Agency said there was little chance any of the veterans — about 20,000 during a six-month period — could have suffered from the radiation.

"DNA's extensive research over the past 10 months has disclosed no basis for concern by veterans of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki occupation force over an increased risk of adverse health effects," the agency said.

The report said research by both U.S. and Japanese scientists shows that the highest possible dose an individual could have been exposed to in Hiroshima and Nagasaki was less than one rem.

DNA spokesman William McGhee said the internationally accepted safety standard for maximum radiation exposure for workers is five mrem a year. A rem is the standard measurement of radiation exposure for humans.

The U.S. Veterans of Nagasaki and Hiroshima is intent on finding all troops stationed in and around the two cities between September 1945 and February 1946. Just over 100 vets or their survivors have been found.

Among the 100 men, five cases of myeloma bone cancer were diagnosed, the group says. The rate in the general population is five cases in 10,000 men, says Norman Solomon, a researcher for the group.

Solomon says the DNA study fails to point out the hazards of breathing or ingesting radiation — with effects, he says, that may show up 20 or 30 years later.

"What happens is the Pentagon and White House are back to the attitude that sent them in there in the first place: 'We won't ask questions because we're afraid of the answers,'" says Solomon.

Only recently, the VA included the Nagasaki and Hiroshima vets in studies of about 250,000 American servicemen exposed to radiation during nuclear tests from 1946 on.

Mrs. Quigley said that when her husband first began questioning other veterans, they would not admit to problems. But she says they finally admitted to stomach ailments, open sores, and other difficulties.

"But the constant thing was the pain, the horrible pain," she says.

Tipster aids arrest of kidnap suspect

DALLAS (AP) — A tipster enticed by a $5,000 reward helped nab an Arkansas man wanted in the kidnaping of a 7-year-old boy who escaped while his parents were negotiating a $20,000 ransom, police say.

David Lee Summerville, 23, was arrested at a Little Rock residence Tuesday evening after police here received a call from a man asking about the reward.

Investigators said Summerville was wanted for questioning in the Sept. 5 abduction of Matthew Mueller, who was kidnapped while riding his bicycle. The boy managed to untie his bonds and flee to safety the next day.

Dallas Youth Division Lt. E.R. Walt said a man called Tuesday afternoon and asked what reward was being offered for information leading to an arrest.

"OK, we'll bring this man to justice," Walt quoted the man as saying after he was told about a $5,000 reward.

The man called back about two hours later and said he had Summerville, according to Walt. He said the arrest later was confirmed by a Little Rock officer.

Little Rock Police Lt. Bob Moore said Summerville was taken into custody by patrol officers and later waived extradition to Dallas.

Summerville has been charged in the rape and kidnaping of a 27-year-old Dallas nurse. He also is wanted by Norman, Okla., authorities for questioning in the knifepoint theft of an auto from a high school student.

Clubs plan fall activities

PYRACANTHA GARDEN CLUB

The Pyracantha Garden Club began their new year with a coffee in the home of Mrs. E. V. Michell, 2611 Lockheed. Members answered roll call with their favorite fall plant or shrub. Mrs. James Mann gave the program, which was a review of the plans for the coming year.

Mrs. J. C. Watkins was named Arbor Day chairman. Yearbooks were distributed to member and calendars are to be available for sale to them.

Beverly Holmberg and Helen Shaw were welcomed as new members. Hostesses were Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Mann.

October meeting will be at Mrs. Tom Wilmeth's home, 5100 Sinclair. Mrs. Clark Storm will be hostess.

NEWCOMERS GARDEN CLUB

The Newcomers Garden Club met in the home of Susie Luker.

Program about the care and feeding of houseplants was given by Tedi McClain and Judy Martain from Deja Vu.

New member is Betty Alderman. Hostesses were Gloria Hinson and Joyce Love.

MIDLAND SOCIETY OF PARLIAMENTARIANS

Midland Society of Parliamentarians met for its first fall meeting in the home of Mrs. Albert M. Horne, 911 Princeton.

Guests were Edith Everett of the Davis Mountains, Elsie Stephenson and Lois Newbold of Midland.

Mrs. Walter F. Shepherd was elected to fill the vacancy in the office of treasurer. The president appointed

Mrs. John P. McKinley as chairman of the Library Committee.

Mrs. Ben Johnson Jr. gave a report on the method of handling resignations and election or appointment of successors.

Mrs. J. Harvey Herd, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Robert A. Hobbs, Mrs. Joe V. Birdwell and Mrs. Paul Smyres, who presented a program on the electoral college. It was explained that the electoral college is the method used to elect the U.S. President.

MIDLAND MUSIC TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

Mrs. Wayne Matthews was the hostess to the meeting of the Midland Music Teachers Association. Co-hostess was Laura Ellis.

Mrs. Benton Howell conducted the business session in which plans were discussed concerning a musicianship skills workshop Oct. 18 at the Allison Fine Arts Auditorium at Midland College. Janet McGaughey, professor of theory at The University of Texas at Austin is the clinician for the workshop.

Mrs. C. J. George announced an All Boys recital to be held Oct. 9 at 7:45 p.m. in the Midland College choir room. The recital is sponsored by the student affiliate.

Following the meeting, a program on new music was presented by Mrs. Donald Thompson and Mrs. Jim Crawford. Members received lists of new music available. Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Crawford gave brief commentaries on some of the new publications. Music was on display following the meeting.

New members are Mrs. Loren Roberts, Karen Follingstad and Virginia Huchton.

SANTA RITA CLUB

The Santa Rita Club of the Petroleum Museum held its third annual Santa Margarita party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Olsen, 3312 Cardinal Lane.

Seventy members and their spouses attended and were served a Mexican buffet at poolside. The tables were decorated with serapes, candles and flowers.

SAND AND SEED GARDEN CLUB

Sand and Seed Garden Club met in the home of Mrs. Marvin Ginzler who has recently returned to Midland after living in Europe for two years.

She presented a slide program of many gardens she visited while there.

Guests were Mrs. Joe Barbee and Julie Harvey. New members are Mrs. Don Dow and Mrs. Jimmie Parker.

LION TAMERS CLUB

A talk and demonstration on silk flower arrangements highlighted the program at the meeting of the Lion Tamers Club held at the Woman's Club.

Program was presented by Karla Richmond, who was introduced by Mrs. George Loudamy, program chairman. Mrs. Richmond also discussed the use of silk flowers in a wide variety of social functions. A number of her unique silk flower arrangements were on display at the luncheon.

Mrs. Windell Thomason presided at the business session. It was announced that the club's annual garage sale will be Oct. 17-18 at the home of Mrs. Harry W. Hugly, 2813 Durant St.

Mrs. Lester Van Pelt Jr. will be the hostess for a membership brunch in her home, 1602 Gulf St., on Oct. 15.

THE PRICE OF EATING...

Washington has officially confirmed what most of us already knew — food costs for a week went up again in July. Predictions indicate food cost increases will be confirmed for August, September and October as well. This means a family of four on a "thrifty" food plan with two elementary school children is now paying $53.80 per week in September. The same family on a "liberal" food plan is now paying an estimated $103.20 for the month of September.

The "thrifty" plan — least costly of the four plans — cost $52.50 for a week for a family of four with two elementary school children. The "liberal" plan — highest among the four — cost $101.10 for a week in July. Those figures compare with $51.20 and $99, respectively, in May.

The thrifty plan — used in setting the coupon allotment in the USDA food stamp program — is for families with little money for food. The other plans are for families with larger food budgets.

These plans may be used as guides for estimating food needs and costs for families of different sizes. They are used by teachers, home economists and others who help families plan nutritious and satisfying meals for the money they can spend. Details on how the plans are calculated may be obtained by writing to the Consumer Nutrition Center, USDA, Hyattsville, Md. 20782.

Cost of food at home for any family can be calculated by totaling costs shown below for individuals of sex and age of various members of a family as follows:

JULY DATA ON COST OF FOOD AT HOME FOR ONE WEEK

Freddie Schofield

Schofield's art in club exhibit

Midland Woman's Club is currently featuring the paintings of Freddie Schofield.

She is a native of West Texas and a feeling for the Southwest pervades many of her paintings. She also incorporates into her art experiences from her travels around the western United States. Old buildings, trees and weathered rocks are all sources of inspiration, she says.

Mrs. Schofield has studied under a number of Southwestern artists, including Bud Biggs, Jon Birdsong and Judy Morrison in watercolor, and with Harold Roney and David Slade in oils. Wanda Hurley was a teacher in acrylics.

She says that her background in literature helps her with interpretation and response to nature, and provides her with interesting picture titles.

Freddie has shown her work at Midland Theatre, Lancaster Garden Center and Midland Palette Club. Her painting "Gone Away" was purchased by the Friends of the Library for their collection for loan. She has also collected ribbons from competi-

Ralph Nader now working in television, movies

Hopes to attract wider audiences for social issues

By MARTHA M. HAMILTON
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Ralph Nader has gone Hollywood. The former star of tract and testimony is moving to the stage and screen.

With a pilot for a television series completed and several movie projects along the lines of Norma Rae and The China Syndrome under development, Nader and his associates are hoping to attract a wider audience for the type of social issues he has sought to raise in reports.

New Citizen Productions in Studio City, Calif., is at work on several "docu-drama" projects it hopes to sell eventually as major feature films or network television movies, raising the possibility that a Ralph Nader production may some day appear on television flanked by advertising for such corporations as General Motors or Allied Chemical.

"Controversy sells," said Mark Litwak, a long-time Nader associate who is president of New Citizen Productions. Litwak noted that independent producers such as New Citizen generally have no control over which advertisers buy time to sponsor their productions. Nader has cultivated carefully an image as "Mr. Clean" in the years he has been in the public eye.

"IT'S UNLIKELY that a large corporation will want to advertise on the type of program we want to make, but I don't think that would preclude us from doing the type of programs we want," he said. He noted that such controversial television shows as "The Women's Room" have attracted sponsors.

Actually the relation between the Nader productions and advertisers will be somewhat arms-length. Television productions will be done for Marble Arch Productions, a television production company, not by the Nader company itself. "We are the raw material producers," said Nader.

Litwak said that Nader and his associates had discussed producing films or television shows for several years but that the success of "The China Syndrome" — a film that dramatized concerns about nuclear power safety — finally moved them to action.

"WE'RE WORKING on a variety of projects about consumer, environmental and other social issues, trying to produce stories that would inspire people to get involved, trying to be enlightening about social issues," he said.

New Citizen, which is set up specifically to produce shows under Nader's auspices, has been in operation for about a year. The company is working with Marble Arch Productions, a television production company which has produced such shows as "Friendly Fire" and is supplying New Citizen with an office and other support. Marble Arch is a part of ITC Entertainment-Lord Lew Grade which has produced such movies as "The Muppet Movie" and "Raise the Titanic."

"All our projects are based on true stories," said Litwak, who will produce the movies. Financing will depend on individual projects, he said. "Most of it will probably come from traditional sources, such as various studios and networks. We may also use some investor money," he said. The profits will go to various non-profit organizations associated with Nader or will be plowed back into more movie productions, Litwak said.

NADER "IS SUPPLYING stories he's accumulated in his files and consulting regularly on the production of the stories," Litwak said. Nader is not involved in the day-to-day operations of the company. The movies ultimately may carry Nader's name as producer or they may say "Ralph Nader Presents."

"There's a lot happening in this country that is not finding its way into film, whether it's for cinema or television," said Nader. What he plans to deliver to viewers is "really very interesting, down-to-earth, highly empathetic material about conflicts between corporations and communities, environmental issues" and other subjects, he said. "There are some pretty heroic performances."

Litwak said that movie studios have shown a great deal of interest in the projects under development. "Right now all the signs are very encouraging," he said. But he added that the company is a long way off yet from producing its first work, since movies take several years to develop and television

Features can take as long as a year to produce.

New Citizen has an option on "The Power Broker," a Pulitzer Prize-winning book about Robert Moses, he said. Still another project called "A Matter of Courage" is the saga of a doctor in a company town who wins an electoral victory against the establishment, which then tries to destroy him.

ON THE TELEVISION front, Nader is appearing as a commentator on Ted Turner's Cable News Network. He also has made two pilot talk shows for Showtime, a cable television service available in 47 states over 735 systems with approximately 1.2 million viewers. The first pilot, in which Nader interviewed the chief executive of Firestone, premiered in August. The second pilot was shown last week.

Showtime decided to go forward with the pilot produced by Don Davis Productions, after watching a tape of Nader debating Howard Jarvis, the father of Proposition 13, on the Merv Griffin Show, said spokeswoman Sybil Sever.

So far, the cable network has received 15 letters about the show — all negative, she said. "But you have to remember that Showtime is in the suburbs of the suburbs," she said. "They think Ralph Nader is a communist and this show is spreading socialist poison."

"Win or lose, we'll learn something," Nader said.

Nicely dressed table excites the eye

The key is a beautiful combination of accessories

Whether you are planning a cozy meal for two, a holiday dinner for 20 or just a quick snack for after the game, it pays to remember that a nicely dressed table excites the eye just as fine cuisine excites the palate.

The key to an inviting table is, of course, a beautiful combination of dinnerware, stemware, crystal, flatware, table linens and serving pieces. And at O.G. Wilson you needn't go far for any of them.

But before you go shopping for yours, Sherrie Tweedie-Finch, merchandise buyer for O.G. Wilson suggests you take inventory of what you already own. "A well-dressed and accessorized table begins with good planning," says Finch. "Several carefully chosen pieces and a little imagination can go a long way to create tempting and versatile table settings."

Once you are at the showroom, make sure you try the many different combinations of china, stemware and silver right there on the counter. If it is your first time to pick a china or stoneware pattern, Finch suggests you pick the dinnerware pattern you like and work from there.

Patti Kownsaler-Rivers, Midland caterer, admires a selection of O.C. Wilson tabletop accessories including crystal by Fostoria, flatware by Oneida and China by Mikasa.

Rivers, a prominent Midland caterer. O.G. Wilson features may patterns of fine china brands like Mikasa and Sango as well as Oneida silverplate and stainless steel flatware.

"Remember, color is an instant mood setter," says Rivers, "and there is no end to the variety of materials than can be adapted as table cloths, place mats and napkins." Short on napkin rings? Try a satin or brightly colored ribbon to tie around your napkins. Tuck a daisy into the fold and you have added an inexpensive and memorable touch to your table and to your dinner.

Two sets of dishes can immediately turn into one large set for parties. Another mix and match bonus? Young homemakers can enjoy a complete set of crystal, china or sterling right away by simply filling the "blanks" with the complementing set.

When it comes to glassware, no hostess can ever have enough. And thanks to the inexpensive 24-piece sets by Libbey and Anchor Hocking, entertaining is a breeze. For special birthdays or company dinners, use your perfectly plain glassware alongside your heirloom crystal and again your options are doubled.

"Opposite patterns really do attract on the table," says Finch. Tiffin and Fostoria crystal are just two of the brand names O.G. Wilson offers at prices well below retail.

And last but not least, you'll be using your serving pieces and holloware all the time. And the good news is that you really can use your copper chafing dish, wooden bowls and crystal decanter all at one time. "Extra serving pieces were meant to go together," says River. In addition, your serving pieces can do double duty. Use that gravy boat to serve hot fudge on sundaes. Or that seldom-used quiche dish can hold rolls.

"The idea is to put your imagination as well as your china and other special pieces to work," says Finch. "Fine things are to be used and enjoyed."

'Rawhide' most wanted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If we must have reruns, then let's have them from television's Golden Age, said 1,300 viewers who picked "Rawhide" as their most-wanted TV rerun in a Top 20 newspaper survey Tuesday.

"The Honeymooners" and "Amos 'n' Andy" came in second and third.

The poll by the Los Angeles Herald Examiner was prompted by the 64-day-old actors strike that has virtually wiped out the new fall TV season and brought down an avalanche of reruns on an audience already wearied by a summer of repeat episodes.

"Rawhide," was the 1960's CBS show that gave Clint Eastwood his start.

Records now a habit

COLUMBIA, Ill. (AP) — The world's champion Sunday school-goer says breaking his old record has become habit-forming.

Every Sunday that Roland Daab, 66, enters St. Paul United Church of Christ here, he breaks the record which he set in 1977 and was listed in the Guinness Book of World Records. He had attended 3,000 consecutive Sundays at that time, and his mark is now 3,226.

He attributes his 62 years of perfect attendance to "good health." Perfect attendance runs in his family. His brother Wilbert had 25 years perfect attendance before he was killed in an industrial accident in 1945, and his sister, Esther Volker, had a perfect record for 29 years until the early 1950s.

O.G. Wilson catalog concept began with sales of one-penny watch parts

When Oddis Glen Wilson began selling watch parts for a penny apiece, he had no idea his company would grow to the 14 catalog showrooms the O.G. Wilson encompasses today.

For more than 50 years, O.G. Wilson has been providing a wide range of quality products priced well below the manufacturer's suggested retail.

Beginning in Louisville, Ky., in 1926, O.G. Wilson provided a service to area jewelers through his mimeographed pages of watch finding or parts. Prices for the parts were as low as one to five cents. Until the early 1950s, "Old Gold," as he was known to his friends for his hobby of collecting and selling various gold pieces, enjoyed a prosperous jewelry business.

In the early 1950s, an enterprising salesman from Chicago stopped in Mr. Wilson's shop offering a four-piece set of luggage. When the salesman found out about the large list of customers O.G. had developed through his watch parts company, he convinced Wilson to feature a set of the luggage to sell on the front cover of his "catalog."

The prospect of a $20 sale, compared to the nickel sales he already had, was a tempting offer and Wilson agreed.

The new partnership was quite successful, and eventually the watch finding company expanded to include a wide variety of consumer merchandise as well as jewelry.

"I remember, as a little girl in a small Western Kentucky town, getting the O.G. Wilson catalog at our grocery store," recalls Valeta Gart, vice president for marketing and operations support for O.G. Wilson and one of the original O.G. Wilson employees. "In those days, the grocer bought the catalog merchandise at wholesale and sold it to the customers at retail. Many catalog showrooms were started in this way."

In 1968, the Zale Corporation acquired existing showrooms in Louisville and by 1970 O.G. Wilson had prospered enough to become a separate division of the corporation with solid plans for expansion and growth.

Today there are 14 catalog showrooms in 6 states. With the addition of the Midland showroom, the success story of O.G. Wilson continues to grow.

O.G. Wilson Jewelers and Distributors is housed in the corporate headquarters of the Zale Corporation in Dallas. Each catalog showroom features elegant displays of brand name merchandise featured at a price below the manufacturer's retail.

The concept of "home town service," plus a full line of quality merchandise such as precision cameras, sporting goods, luggage and a wide range of jewelry merchandise have made O.G. Wilson a prominent name among catalog showrooms.

Wilson's Midland showroom arrives in time for fall needs

Fall is in the air. And the O.G. Wilson's catalogue showroom is now in Midland just in time to help you with your seasonal needs.

O.G. Wilson, highly-regarded for more than half a century as a dependable source for fine jewelry products, also brings you a consistently fine line of merchandise including sporting goods, precision cameras and electronics, luggage, appliances, household and leisure accessories.

O.G. Wilson now brings these quality items to Midland at exceptionally low prices — and offers them to discerning shoppers just in time for traditional fall activities.

Hunters, in the market this fall for a new shotgun or deer rifle, can set their sights on firearms by Smith & Wesson, Remington, Winchester and other trusted manufacturers.

For the outdoorsman who does his shooting through a lens instead of a barrel, O.G. Wilson can supply the kind of equipment that lets you bring 'em back on film. Canon, Pentax, Mamiya, Yashica, Konica and Minolta — all brand-name cameras at bargain prices.

With the coming of fall comes those seasonal holidays that wouldn't be complete without special meals and desserts for special friends and relatives. O.G. Wilson offers a wide variety of kitchen accessories, fine china, and glassware and silverware, all designed to help your food taste and look its best.

Smart shoppers at the O.G. Wilson showroom will be taking advantage of the jewelry lawaway plan. Start your payments now and enjoy giving the finest of gifts by Christmas.

These are but a few of the seasonal items O.G. Wilson will be offering to Midland shoppers this fall. And along with these fall accessories are the year 'round buys O.G. Wilson offers through its complete line of quality merchandise, including jewelry, leather goods, office supplies and personal care accessories.

So whether you're stocking up for fall, shopping early for Christmas, or just making some sensible additions to your home or hobby, O.G. Wilson's new Midland catalogue showroom could be just what you're looking for.

Council of Europe passes treaty protecting privacy from computers

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — The first international treaty designed to protect people from abusive use of computer-compiled personal data was unanimously adopted Tuesday by the Committee of Ministers of the 21-nation Council of Europe.

"The aim of the Council of Europe is to reconcile technological progress with human values and to assure the respect of the European agreement on human rights in this particularly sensitive and complex sector," a statement by the committee said.

The treaty is to be signed by the 21-member nations at the Council of Europe's October session. It then must be ratified by the respective parliaments.

Under the agreement, it would be forbidden to compile information on a person's racial origins, political opinions or religious convictions.

It also would give a person the right to look at data concerning him and to make rectifications in the case of errors.

The Council, founded in 1949, has no legislative powers, but its resolutions as the widest interparliamentary body in Europe often influence many national legislative trends.

Veerkamp to manage O.G. Wilson

Mark Veerkamp has been named manager for the new O.G. Wilson catalog showroom as announced by Chip Lacy, president. The catalog showroom is to open in Midland Thursday.

Previous to his appointment as manager, Veerkamp served as assistant manager in O.G. Wilson's Ft. Wayne, Ind., showroom. He and his wife, Patricia, now reside in Midland with their year-old son, Greg.

Originally from Indiana, Veerkamp received his bachelor of arts degree in marketing from Indiana University. He has also attended Purdue University, where he earned a degree in industrial management.

Veerkamp has been with O.G. Wilson for 6½ years. He started his career working in the Ft. Wayne showroom.

"I'm excited to be a part of the growth in the Midland area. I believe O.G. Wilson will be an asset to the community," Veerkamp said.

Veerkamp will manage the plush 20,000-square-foot showroom in Midland. As manager he will oversee a staff of 83 employees eager to serve the Midland community.

The Best Grand Opening Prizes at Midland Park Mall came from this catalog.

During our grand opening celebration, we'll be giving away hundreds of prizes, worth thousands of dollars. Like a 1-carat diamond solitaire ring. A Sony color TV. A Sunbeam microwave oven. A TEAC tape deck. A silverplated tea set. Seikowatches Tennis rackets. China. Crystal. And many, many more.

Six NM discoveries completed

Six discoveries and several wells in field areas have been completed in New Mexico counties. Amoco Production Co., operating from Odessa, completed two of the discoveries, and Sun Oil Co. finished the other.

EDDY STRIKES
Bass Enterprises of Midland No. 79-Y Big Eddy has been completed as a Morrow gas discovery nine miles northeast of Carlsbad in Eddy County.
Operator reported a calculated absolute open flow potential of 1,305,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 11,913 to 11,991 feet after a 500-gallon acid treatment.
Hole is bottomed at 12,370 feet and the casing point has not been reported.
Location is 1,980 feet from south and 1,930 feet from east lines of section 21-21s-28e.

Bass Enterprises No. 1 Merchant-State has reopened the Palmillo (Bone Spring) field of Eddy County, 12 miles southwest of Loco Hills.
The well finished for a daily flowing potential of 477 barrels of 42.5-gravity oil and 335 barrels of water, through perforations from 6,438 to 6,461 feet.
The flow was gauged through a 21.64-inch choke and the gas-oil ratio is 1,885-1.
A recompletion, the well originally finished in 1979 from the Morrow gas pay in the Turkey Track, North field.
The well is 3/4 mile southeast of the original Palmillo (Bone Spring) discovery well.
Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 1-19s-28e.

Amoco potential No. 1 State Communized "LL" as a Morrow gas discovery in Eddy County, 11 miles southwest of Dayton.
The strike finished for a daily potential of 1,400,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through a 24/64-inch choke and perforations from 8,617 to 8,636 feet. The flowing tubing pressure and gas-liquid ratio were not reported.
Total depth is 8,967 feet and 5 1/2-inch casing is cemented at 8,966 feet.
The well is two miles southeast of 8,570-foot Morrow gas production in the Antelope Sink field and 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 3-19s-24e.

Amoco No. 1 State Communized "HE" was completed as a Morrow gas discovery 19 miles southwest of Loco Hills in Eddy County.
The operator reported a daily potential of 520,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through a 48.64-inch choke and perforations from 8,617 to 8,636 feet. The flowing tubing pressure and gas-liquid ratio were not reported.
Completion was through perforations from 9,958 to 10,280 feet.
The wellsite is 2 1/2 miles southwest of 10,414-foot Morrow gas production in the Illinois Camp field and 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 11-19s-27e.

Delta Drilling Co., operating from Midland, completed No. 3 Amoco-Federal as a Bone Spring discovery in Eddy County, three miles northeast of Loving.
The operator reported a 14-hour pumping potential of 14 barrels of oil and 40 barrels of water, natural, from open hole at 6,270 feet and 9,692 feet, the total depth.
The gravity of the oil is 43.5-degrees and the gas-oil ratio is 1,655-1.
The discovery is 2 1/4 miles north of the Bone Spring opener in the Culebra Bluff field.
Location is 1,980 feet from north and 990 feet from east lines of section 11-23s-28e.
The Bone Spring lime was topped at 6,240 feet on ground elevation of 3,905 feet. Other tops include the Bell Canyon, 2,680 feet; Cherry Canyon, 3,654 feet; Brushy Canyon, 4,754 feet, and Bone Springs sand, 6,343 feet.

LEA DISCOVERY
Sun Oil Co. No. 1 Jennings-Federal "B" was completed as an unidentified new pay discovery in the Lusk, East multipay field of Lea County, 14 miles south of Maljamar.

On 24-hour potential test, it pumped 148 barrels of 29.5-gravity oil, no water, with a gas-oil ratio of 54-1. The completion was through perforations from 2,958 to 2,962 feet, probably Yates, which had been acidized with 1,000 gallons.
Total depth is 3,400 feet, 5 1/2-inch pipe is set on bottom and hole is plugged back to 3,300 feet.
Location is 2,440 feet from south and 2,290 feet from west lines of section 15-19s-32e.

CHAVES WELLS
Argee Oil Co. of Midland No. 1 Latham-State has been completed as the third well in the Brown (Queen) oil pool of Chaves County, 16 miles northeast of Dexter.

Operator reported a 24-hour pumping potential of one barrel of 32-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio too small to measure, through perforations from 791 to 896 feet.
The pay was fractured with 10,000 gallons.
Total depth is 1,107 feet, 4 1/2-inch pipe is set on bottom and hole is plugged back to 1,062 feet.
Wellsite is 330 feet from south and east lines of section 25-10s-26e.

Dalport Oil Corp. of Roswell, N.M., No. 2 Hollbrook-Federal "B" is a new well in the Vest Ranch (Queen) pool of Eddy County, 24 miles southeast of Hagerman.
It finished for a daily pumping potential of 12 barrels of oil, gravity and gas-oil ratio not reported, plus three barrels of water.
Completion was through perforations from 2,262 to 2,270.5 feet after 1,000 gallons of acid and 20,000 gallons of fracture solution.
Total depth is 2,236 feet, 4 1/2-inch casing is set on bottom and hole is plugged back to 2,316 feet.
Wellsite is 1,630 feet from south and 990 feet from west lines of section 9-15s-30e.

EDDY PRODUCER
Yates Petroleum Corp. of Artesia No. 1 Pubco-State Communized "NO" is a new dual gas producer in the Richard Knobb multipay field of Eddy County, eight miles southwest of Artesia.
It completed from the Morrow through perforations from 7,858 to 7,872 feet for a daily potential of 428,000 cubic feet of gas, through a 1/2-inch choke.
The pay was acidized with 1,500 gallons and fractured with 9,880 gallons.
From the upper Pennsylvanian, through perforations from 7,355 to 7,367 feet, the well potential for a daily flow of 195,000 cubic feet of gas, through a 1/4-inch choke.
The pay was acidized with 1,500 gallons and fractured with 8,500 gallons.
Total depth is 8,370 feet in the Mississippian, 4 1/2-inch casing is set at 8,353 feet and hole is plugged back to 8,165 feet.
The well is 1 1/4 miles northwest of other Morrow gas and upper Pennsylvanian gas production.
Wellsite is 1,980 feet from south and 1,650 feet from east lines of section 36-17s-24e.

ROOSEVELT WELL
The Peterson, South (Pennsylvanian) field of Roosevelt County gained a new well with completion of Phillips Petroleum Co. of Odessa No. 1 Lambirth "B".
The operator reported a 24-hour flowing potential of 268 barrels of 51.5-gravity oil and two barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 1,625-1.
Completion was through a 1/2-inch choke and perforations from 7,664 to 7,828 feet after a 750-gallon acid treatment.
Hole is bottomed at 8,000 feet, 5 1/2-inch casing is set at total depth and plugged back depth is 7,850 feet.
Wellsite is 675 feet from north and 360 feet from east lines of section 2-6s-26e and 10 miles southeast of Elida.

17 wildcat sites staked in 12 West Texas areas

West Texas oil and gas exploration activity has been given another big boost with the announcing of 17 wildcat projects in 12 counties.

John L. Parish of Andrews reported location for a 4,700-foot wildcat five miles north of Midland.
The operator will attempt to reopen the depleted Midland Farms, Southeast (Grayburg) field at No. 1 Brown.
The project is one location east of the field's depleted discovery well and 660 feet from south and west lines of section 9, block 39, T-1-S, T&P survey.

REEVES EXPLORER
Conoco Inc., operating from Midland, staked No. 1 Moore as a 14,000-foot wildcat in Reeves County, six miles northeast of Balmorhea.
Drillsite is 1,200 feet from north and 2,500 feet from west lines of section 73, block 13, H&G survey. It is 5 1/2 miles northeast of the depleted Balmorhea (Wolfcamp gas) field and the same distance northwest of the depleted Weinache (Delaware) field.

ANDREWS WILDCAT
Phoenix Resources of Oklahoma City No. 1 Mary K. Evans will be drilled as a 12,700-foot wildcat 19 miles southwest of Frankel City in Andrews County.
The prospector is 2,100 feet from south and east lines of section 25, block A-51, psi survey.
It is 1/2 mile west and slightly north of a 12,400-foot dry hole and 1 1/4 miles south of the depleted Stateline (Ellenburger) field.

MITCHELL AREA
Ranger Operating Co. of Graham spotted its No. 1 Charles Williams as a 7,800-foot explorer six miles southeast of Colorado City in Mitchell County.
The location is 467 feet from north and 1,667 feet from west lines of section 88, block 26, T&P survey, abstract 761.
The drillsite is 2 1/2 miles northeast of the shallow Champion Lake (Yates gas) field. There are several shallow dry holes in the area.

BORDEN LOCATIONS
NRM Petroleum Corp. of Midland No. 1 Clara is a new 9,800-foot wildcat 4 1/2 miles northeast of Vealmoor in southwest Borden County.
The project is 660 feet from south and 860 feet from west lines of section 14, block 32, T-3-N, T&P survey.
The drillsite is adjacent to a 7,985-foot dry hole and 3/4 mile north of the Vealmoor (Canyon) field.

Tesoro Petroleum Corp. of San Antonio spotted location for an 8,300-foot wildcat in Borden County, 16 miles northwest of Snyder.
Operator staked location for No. 1 Ainsworth 660 feet from north and west lines of section 326, block 97, H&TC survey.
It is 3/8 mile southwest of a 7,890-foot failure and 3/4 mile west of the Hataway (Strawn) field.

GARZA PROSPECTOR
H. W. Hendon Jr. of Fort Worth No. 1-55 Rex Robinson has been staked as an 8,000-foot wildcat 24 miles northeast of Post in Garza County.
