TESCO spokesman not sure of impact of latest rate hike

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

A spokesman for Texas Electric Service Company said the company is not sure what the recent rate increase will mean for customers' bills.

Shug Bowlin of the Midland TESCO office said although news media reported the increase would be about 10 percent — or an increase of $69 million — TESCO officials won't be sure of the actual percentage until after the Public Utilities Commission approves the electric company's proposals.

TESCO's proposal to the PUC in April asked for a 17.7 percent system-wide increase, or $123 million.

Bowlin said the PUC in Austin tentatively approved the utility to charge customers 50 percent for construction work in progress which they have been paying, instead of the 100 percent TESCO requested.

In addition, PUC has approved allowing TESCO to keep 15.5 percent returns from its equity to use in paying its taxes, interest, stockholder dividends and a certain amount of retained earnings (it currently has no retained earnings).

Also, the commission approved TESCO's charging users for 1½ million barrels of the 2 million barrels of fuel in reserves for emergency use. The users have been paying for 1 million barrels. All of these items were approved to be included in TESCO's new rate base.

Bowlin said the specific recommendations from TESCO on the "redesign" of its rate base must also be approved by the PUC.

Those specific recommendations will go before the commission Thursday, Bowlin said. The PUC still has the option of shooting down details of the proposed increase.

Bowlin said the new rates will go into effect sometime during October, November or December, but he said they won't be sure until the PUC approves the package.

Fuel rates will also increase in January when a 20-year fuel agreement with Old Ocean Fuel will run out. "That's the last of our cheap gas contracts," Bowlin explained. TESCO is already seeking a new gas supplier from the "open market," which Bowlin said will bring the fuel costs for the individual family up about 8 miels per kilowatt hour.

More specifically, he said, for a family which uses 1,000 kilowatts at a current fuel cost of $8, will pay about $16 in January for the same amount of fuel. Overall, Bowlin said, fuel costs will double.

Bowlin said the last rate increase at TESCO was in November 1979.

"A lot of people think we got a rate increase in April," he said, explaining that TESCO originally filed for the current increase in April. "It takes about 180 days for (an increase) to be effected," Bowlin said.

He said the next time TESCO could file for another revenues and expenses increase would be in April 1981, but that increase would again take until fall to be fully approved and in effect.

Congress passes spending measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, accepting Senate compromise wording on public funding for abortion, today gave final passage to a bill to provide emergency funding to keep the federal government running.

The House adopted the Senate language on voice vote without debate, sending the stopgap-spending bill to President Carter for his signature.

The prompt House action averted a continued financial crisis for the federal government, much of which was left without the authority to spend money today when the new fiscal year began with the emergency-spending bill tied up on the abortion issue.

Despite the congressional impasse that technically left most of the federal government without operating funds today, signs of any real difference were hard to find in Washington.

Referring to similar financial crises in the past, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said, "I never did see the government stop."

"The law says you can't operate at a certain day and they (federal officials) always blink at that. ...I hope they continue to."

Virtually the entire government's authority to spend money expired on fiscal New Year's Day — Oct. 1 — as the emergency appropriations bill was ensnared in a dispute over new restrictions on payments for poor women's abortions.

When the buck stopped on Capitol Hill at midnight, some government agencies went into neutral — carrying out only activities needed to protect life and property — while others operated normally.

But overall there were few signs of a government coming to a halt.

"This is kind of a transition day for us," said Don Smyth, spokesman for the Labor Department. "Today the impact is nil. Everybody is here and everything is going on."

President Carter was campaigning in Michigan and New York, but he issued a statement through the White House urging Congress "in the strongest possible terms" to adopt a resolution to get government funds flowing. Failure to act, he said, "will cause an interruption of services if not rectified promptly."

At the Justice Department, callers to the public affairs office were told by secretaries: "This office is in the process of being closed down. If you are in the government and have a question about the closing, please call the office of legal counsel in the Justice Department or the Office of Management and Budget. We are not answering questions that deal with routine Justice Department questions ..."

Although some federal agencies are threatened with a shutdown almost every year because of money difficulties, it never has happened to virtually the entire government.

The hangup came when the Senate voted early this morning to soften a House proposal — tied to the emergency money bill — that would have sharply limited the number of times Medicaid funds could be used to pay for abortions in cases of rape and incest.

Because the House had quit for the night before the Senate made the change, the bill was delayed at least until the two bodies return later today.

Spot checks at a number of government agencies today showed that: — The Federal Aviation Administration said air traffic controllers around the country had reported to work as usual.

— Officials at the Energy and Interior departments said they had prepared lengthy memos describing how to shut down the agencies.

Loss of Hormuz oil would raise gas price

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — If the United States should lose the 2 million barrels of oil a day it gets through the Strait of Hormuz, the price of gasoline at the pump could increase 90 cents a gallon over the next two years, according to a Texas Railroad Commissioner.

Commissioner Mack Wallace told 800 directors of the Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts Tuesday that such a cutoff also would reduce U.S. economic growth by 2.3 percent and add 2.5 percent to the nation's inflation rate.

Wallace said the future of U.S. security and its economy depends on oil because the nation consumes more than 16 million barrels of oil a day, 7 million barrels of that imported. He said most of the imported oil comes from countries that are unstable and some of them are antagonistic to the United States. Another war, even a limited one, would require huge quantities of oil, he asserted, and the nation does not have enough oil for national security.

He told the audience that 2 percent of the population would pollute anything to make a dollar and another 2 percent are environmentalists who oppose any growth. He said the voice of the great majority in between the two extremes should be heard.

"Raise your voice," Wallace urged. "The word is production, wildcatting, rebuilding America. Instead of encouraging more production in America, we have put up roadblocks at every turn.

"We close off potential rich oil lands for wilderness parks. We delay production to protect wolves, lizards and weeds. We declare our commitment to doubling coal production in America and then proceed to stop it."

Regardless of how fine the nation's military equipment is, Wallace said, it is nothing but expensive junk without fuel to operate it.

Bodies of volcano victims discovered

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Salvage crews cleaning up the devastation wrought by the May 18 eruption of Mount St. Helens have found the bodies of three more victims of the volcano's most powerful blast.

The bodies were found Tuesday in two cars encased in a mudflow near Weyerhaeuser Co.'s Camp Baker, a logging camp severely damaged during the eruption, said Cowlitz County sheriff's Sgt. Doug Mayfield.

The discovery brought the confirmed death toll from the southwest Washington mountain's eruption to 34. There are 32 more names on the list of missing people.

Iran says it will keep strait open

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iran declared today it intends to keep the Strait of Hormuz open to shipping as its ground forces continued holding out against Iraqi invaders in oil-rich Khuzestan province.

Meanwhile, black smoke kept curling from a burning natural gas line hit by Iranian warplanes that bombed a Baghdad power plant, and three foreign reporters were expelled for their coverage of the attack.

The Strait of Hormuz, the narrow channel forming the entrance to the Persian Gulf, is the bottleneck through which much of the West's oil supply was funneled. Iranian officials have threatened to expand the war if other Arab states aid Iraq, and the Pentagon has sent four special radar-equipped planes to Saudi Arabia to provide an early warning system in case of attack.

Noting this, Iran's official Pars news agency said that "in the past few days, several governments under the pretext of expressing their concern over the possible closure of the Strait of Hormuz, are considering interfering in the region of the Persian Gulf."

The statement added: "The government of the Islamic Republic of Iran, in full cognizance of its international obligations, wishes to assure the international community that Iran shall not hesitate in any effort to keep this waterway in full operation.

"Despite our current relationship with the hostile government or governments of the area, the government of the Islamic Republic of Iran guarantees to do its share to maintain this waterway open."

The Iraqi news agency said today that the smoke funneling over the city was from the Dora Hilla natural gas line juncture that fed the power plant attacked Tuesday by Iranian Phantoms. It also said reporters for Agence France-Presse, Madrid's Diario 16, and Amsterdam's De Telegraaf were expelled for reporting damage to a nuclear research center hit in the attack. It said they hadn't seen the damage themselves, and relied on accounts by others.

Iraqi ground forces were reported still meeting fierce resistance at the four major cities in Iran's Khuzestan Province, and the 10-day-old invasion appeared to have bogged down.

An Iraqi captain escorting reporters on a tour of the central sector of the 300-mile invasion front told them Iraqi troops had pushed into parts of Ahwaz.

Planes to help protect Saudi oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States sent sophisticated radar and command planes to Saudi Arabia out of fear that desperate Iranian leaders might attack the Saudi oil fields that supply America with the largest part of its oil imports, officials say.

The four planes give the United States the ability to more closely monitor ship and air traffic in the Persian Gulf and could be used in any attempt to help defend the Saudi fields.

That scenario was outlined by U.S. officials who declined to be identified as the reason for acceding Tuesday to the Saudi request for the modified 707 jets, known as AWACS.

The Carter administration is worried that Iran's religious leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, might order an attack on the Saudi fields if the war goes badly for Iran and it appears Khomeini might fall, the officials said.

"He is very irrational," said one U.S. official. "And virtually every Arab country is in favor of Iraq."

Officials said the Iranian navy is considered unable to block the Strait of Hormuz, the 29-mile-wide entrance to the Persian Gulf. But Iranian planes are capable of striking the oil fields of nearby nations, such as Saudi Arabia or the other gulf countries, they said.

The United States has remained publicly neutral in the 10-day-old war and has backed efforts in the United Nations to bring about a ceasefire, but President Carter has said the strait must remain open to international tanker traffic.

In addition to possibly helping in any defense of the Saudi oil fields, the four planes also will help demonstrate that the United States can be counted upon by the Saudis, U.S. officials hope.

"The purpose of the deployment is to lend support to a friend of the United States in response to what we consider a legitimate defense need," said State Department spokesman John Cannon.

There was no way to judge the impact of the planes upon the fate of the 52 U.S. hostages held by Iranian militants. United States officials have publicly reminded Iran several times since the war began that it will be held responsible for whatever happens to the hostages.

In Tehran, meanwhile, the Iranian parliament, which dropped consideration of the hostage issue when the war began, took up the question again Tuesday and agreed to set up a special commission to study the question. But the commission will not have the power to make a final decision on the Americans' fate.

Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie met Tuesday with Iraq's foreign minister, Saadoun Hammadi, and said later he had stressed U.S. determination to defend America's friends in the Middle East and to prevent an escalation of the war.

The meeting was the highest-level session between U.S. officials and leaders of one of the two nations since the war began.

In Washington, Congress was told that the war won't affect American oil prices unless the fighting spreads and a "panic psychology" takes hold.

Pete Luitweiler, a vice president of Gulf Oil Co., told a House Government Operations subcommittee that worldwide oil stockpiles will cushion the impact of the war. One Exxon official estimated the current world stocks at 500 million barrels above normal.

"It is rather obvious that there will be (price) increases if this thing continues," Luitweiler said, but "the high inventories will soften the blow."

They specialize in digging up dirt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marty Franks is 29 years old and went to Princeton. At Carter-Mondale headquarters, he is in charge of digging up dirt on Ronald Reagan.

Tony Dolan is 32 years old and went to Yale. At Reagan-Bush headquarters, he is in charge of digging up dirt on Jimmy Carter.

From the evidence at hand so far in this presidential campaign, it is clear that both are having a field day.

Part of the business of running for president is tearing down the other fellow. Franks and Dolan provide the crowbars.

It is nothing they're ashamed of doing, but it isn't something candidates brag about, either.

Franks' job is to find materials in Reagan's past that can be used to portray the Republican candidate as a trigger-happy radical: a man who would get America involved in war and destroy the Social Security system.

Dolan's job is to make President Carter look unimpressive. The White House is a bully platform from which to run for president, and Dolan is trying to pull the platform out from under Carter.

When candidate Carter says the choice between Carter and Reagan is a choice between peace and war, he backs it up with a fistful of old news clippings that Marty Franks has dug up.

They show, Franks claims, that over the years Reagan has called for committing U.S. forces to eight world hot spots, from North Korea to Panama.

And how does the Reagan campaign respond?

With Tony Dolan's research: he comes up with five old Carter quotes on the use of troops, the use of atomic weapons, even "pre-emptive strikes."

In this line of work, there is no statute of limitations. A candidate's words can be brought back to haunt him 20 years or more after they were spoken.

Dolan has dug into Carter's "record of personal attacks, innuendo and outright smears" that goes back to his first campaign for governor of Georgia in 1966.

And Franks' shop is still quoting something Reagan said on Oct. 27, 1964 — five presidential election campaigns ago — to prove that Reagan thinks Social Security ought to be made voluntary (a step some experts think would destroy it).

On the surface, it would seem that Franks has the easier job. Whether or not you like Jimmy Carter, you know what kind of a president he will make.

You can't be as sure about what kind of president Reagan would make.

But Dolan feels that Carter is falling into a trap by being mean to Reagan. He says his research can show that Carter has been mean to his competition in every political race of his career. He thinks he is teaching people something new about their president: that he wins elections by smearing the opposition.

Dolan says Carter's attempts to portray Reagan as a racist and a warmonger are backfiring. He says they have made Carter's own tactics an issue. He calls it "the meanness issue."

"It may be one of the greatest blunders in Carter's life," Dolan says. "You just should never underestimate the decency of the American people."

Chief of Police Mariann Parthemore, 26, may not intimidate you with her appearance, but she's the only cop in the West Texas town of Clint. Anyone who doubts she means business may ask the football player she ran down, threw to the ground and handcuffed. (AP Laserphoto)

In Clint, she keeps the peace

CLINT, Texas (AP) — In some parts of Texas, people might scoff at the idea of a 5-foot-5, 130-pound woman serving as the only law officer in town. But no one is scoffing in Clint these days. At least not to the face of Chief of Police Mariann Parthemore, 26, the lone cop in this town in far West Texas.

"I have had to prove to the citizens of Clint that I can maintain myself in a physical situation, that I don't back off from arrests because I'm female," the tough-talking redhead says. "I can defend myself on a hand to hand basis."

She made believers out of many of the 1,250 residents of this town 20 miles from El Paso when a young football player she was trying to arrest sized her up and decided to run for it.

She said she tried to be nice, but "niceness only goes so far. I had to go after him. I just had to grab him around the back. He started to fight. I just threw him to the ground and put the handcuffs on him."

"To be honest, I was winded," she now concedes. Since she was hired in July, "the town has accepted me surprisingly well," said Mrs. Parthemore, who studied police administration and criminology at Sul Ross State University before she quit to get married. She is divorced and has two sons, Eugene, 5, and Daniel, 1.

"I've found that a man proves himself once and he's in. A female officer has to prove herself over and over again," she said.

She has drawn her .38-caliber Special Colt Viper twice in the course of her duties "but thank God I've never had to fire it."

Her jurisdiction includes this city's 16 square miles, and she starts her day by patrolling the school area. "Crime prevention is nine-tenths of my job. When people see me, they slow down."

Mrs. Parthemore said when she first visited Clint, "I applied for something safe like a clerk. But the next day they called and asked if I wanted to be a police officer, and I said yes."

The pay is $606 a month, and the job is a temporary position funded by the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. But if Mrs. Parthemore can pass a 10-week course at the Sheriff's Academy beginning in January, she thinks the City Council will allocate funds to pay her salary and give her the chief's badge on a permanent basis.

If so, she says her professional goal will be fulfilled.

"People who get into this small-town police career usually die with their badge on, and I would just as soon do the same thing," Mrs. Parthemore said.

Report criticizes Texas communities

AUSTIN (AP) — Both the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation and Texas communities have failed, so far, to "deinstitutionalize" the care of the mentally ill and retarded.

That was a key finding in a report released Tuesday by the Texas Research League, which was asked to make the study by the state agency.

The privately financed research group said the MHMR board had adopted a goal of a "unified, comprehensive and integrated delivery system of care and treatment that will be community based, wherever feasible and in which the clients will, whenever possible, be treated at the community level in the least restrictive level."

However, the report said "thus far, Texas has fallen far short of that goal. There is no system (of care and treatment) in the usual sense of that term, just a large number of relatively autonomous and independent agencies and institutions doing their own thing in a largely uncoordinated fashion."

"Many patients are inappropriately placed in institutions without proper screening to determine whether or not they could be cared for in 'less restrictive' surroundings," the report said.

"Many are released from the institutions without coordinated plans for their treatment and supervision in their home communities."

MHMR officials, however, have "begun to address the department's problems and needs effectively, and a period of stability in that leadership is needed badly, after long years of rapid turnover," the league said.

The report pointed out that MHMR is the state's largest agency with 28 separate institutions and programs, 30 community MHMR community centers, 200 outreach programs and 30,000-plus employees.

FBI agent testifies in Brilab trial

Defense pecking away at government evidence

HOUSTON (AP) — Defense attorneys began pecking away at government evidence when an undercover FBI agent took the stand in the Brilab trial of Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton and Austin attorneys Donald Ray and Randall Wood.

Prosecutors played the last of a score of tapes recorded by an FBI informant and two undercover agents during Tuesday's proceedings.

Then defense attorneys spent several hours in cross-examination of Michael Wacks, a government agent who posed as a representative of Prudential Insurance Co. during the wide-ranging investigation.

Under the questioning of Roy Minton, Clayton's attorney, Wacks admitted he had never heard nor seen anything that would link the powerful Texas political figure with any criminal acts.

But, Wacks said, there had been rumors and hints that Clayton, then seeking an unprecedented fourth term as speaker, might be open to political payoffs.

When asked to nail down the rumors, Wacks said a Dallas lawyer had said Clayton once flew 16 black legislators to his family farm in West Texas in an effort to sway them to his side in a speakership battle.

The FBI agent said, however, that he had not checked the accuracy of the report.

Wacks said former state Rep. Joe Allen, now a Baytown banker, had indicated in some conversations that Clayton might accept a payoff.

Minton asked, "Did Joe Allen say the speaker would accept a payoff?" Wacks answered, "No, but he didn't advise us not to approach Speaker Clayton."

And, the FBI undercover agent said he believed from various conversations that Bob Johnson, a widely known Texas political figure and a member of the Employees Retirement Board, might or might not take money to influence what insurance company would get the rich state health insurance contract.

The retirement board awards the contracts for state employees' insurance coverage.

Clayton, Ray, Wood, and L.G. Moore, regional director of the International Operating Engineers Union, were indicted June 12 by a federal grand jury on charges of extortion, bribery, conspiracy and racketeering, arising from the Brilab investigation of an alleged insurance kick-back scheme.

Clayton, Wood and Ray are now in the third week of their trial before a seven-woman, five-man jury in the court of U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor Jr.

Moore is to be tried later. Informant Joseph Hauser, and undercover agents Wacks and Larry Montague, posed as representative of Prudential during the 10-month Brilab operation, so named for "Bribery-Labor."

Hauser now is serving a 30-month sentence for insurance bribery.

The four Texans were the first to be indicted in the investigation that covered several states.

Wacks insisted repeatedly that from conversations with Moore, Ray and Wood, he believed Johnson "at some time, could be acceptable to a bribe. I also thought he could be influenced by Wood and Ray."

The agent said it was possible that Moore and Ray "had been lying to me."

In the last of some 50 tapes played to the jury, Moore told Wacks that Clayton was expecting some financial help from the insurance company to assist in electing House candidates who would support his bid for re-election as speaker.

Moore said to the undercover agent, "I had a call from the speaker. He's got an X-number of people picked out for help. He requires about $10,000."

The first witness called by the prosecution after the tapes was Richard S. Walsh, a vice president of Metropolitan Life, the company that carried the state employee health insurance for three years.

Walsh testified that he had "no complaints about the way the new contract was awarded to Blue Cross-Blue Shield. They simply had a lower bid."

He also was asked if he had ever made a payment to a politician to get the original contract, and he answered, "No sir."

Clayton is accused by the government of taking a $5,000 bribe to use his influence on the state insurance contract.

The speaker, who once had his eye on the 1982 governor's race, said he took the money from Moore, but thought it was a campaign contribution and planned to return it later.

Companies still want rate hike

AUSTIN (AP) — Automobile insurance companies have asked the State Insurance Board to reconsider its Sept. 16 order denying them any increase this year in the rates they may charge.

The Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office said in a motion for rehearing the board's action would result in "unjust, unreasonable and inadequate" car insurance rates.

Insurers had asked the board for a 28 percent average statewide increase, which would have brought them $379.9 million a year in higher premiums.

The board's actuaries recommended an 18.9 percent increase, worth $257 million a year to the companies.

Down to the wire

President Jimmy Carter has money problems. And what's more, they could cause him to lose his job.

With the presidential election only five weeks away, the nation's economy holds a tremendous bearing on this political campaign's outcome. The subject of economics, of course, has a lot to do with any presidential election. It just seems that this year the subject of economics may have a little more clout than usual.

The 1980 recession has been unusual. The downturn in the economy was quick and sharp, then the slide tapered off and took a long time to bottom out. Now the progression toward recovery looks as though it'll be even slower.

Inflation has leveled on a double-digit plateau and, according to some economists, will be there for a while. Interest rates, too, remain exceedingly high. What all that information translates into at the polls isn't really certain at this point.

But it could spell political disaster or triumph for either President Jimmy Carter or Republican challenger Ronald Reagan.

According to The Research Institute of America, Inc., every bit of economic news that shows a retreat from the current recession is beneficial to President Carter. On the other hand, every time inflation appears to be turning for the worse, the president loses in popularity and credibility — and that could translate into lost votes at the polls Nov. 4.

Reagan has been attacking the president's economic policies, of course. He charges that Carter has talked big about containing inflation without actually doing anything and that recovery from recession with inflation still at a high level accomplishes nothing.

Each man holds out economic arguments on principles that many times, it seems, could interest only economists. The American people merely want results. Both candidates now must convince those same people they have the magic inflation-fighting formula to put the nation's economy back in the pink.

But the economy doesn't seem to be paying any attention to those arguments. It keeps rocking along on its merry way, climbing hills and descending into valleys.

On that roller coaster ride sits the political fortunes of, at least, two men. Recently, nationwide polls have indicated that Reagan is slightly ahead of Carter in the race for the Oval Office. They also indicate that most Americans feel Reagan would handle the nation's economy better than Carter.

That looks good for Reagan and bad for Carter. But polls don't win elections. Elections are the sole domain of the voters.

And if 1980's economic news so far can be any indication of how the presidential election's going to go, it will be a see-saw battle right down to the wee hours of Nov. 5.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 1, the 275th day of 1980. There are 91 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Oct. 1, 1949, Mao Tse-tung proclaimed the People's Republic of China.

On this date: In 1800, Spain ceded Louisiana to France in a secret treaty.

In 1908, Henry Ford introduced his famous "Model-T."

In 1936, General Francisco Franco was proclaimed the head of an insurgent Spanish state.

In 1968, the Vatican called on all Christians to begin dialogues with atheists, including communists.

Ten years ago, Vice President Anwar Sadat succeeded Gamal Abdel Nasser as president of Egypt.

One year ago, Panama's flag was raised over the Canal Zone, ending 75 years of American jurisdiction in the area.

Today's birthdays: President

Jimmy Carter is 56 years old. Pianist Vladimir Horowitz is 76, and actress Julie Andrews is 45.

Thought for today: Victory belongs to the most persevering — Napoleon Bonaparte, French soldier-emperor (1769-1821.)

Tindall court ruling presents future problems for vets

BOSTON — Michael Tindall never denied the government charge that in 1974 he helped smuggle hashish from Morocco to Massachusetts. But he got off in federal court here last week because the jury believed his defense that the experiences he had in the Vietnam war three years earlier caused him to be insane during the three months he was occupied in the smuggling episode.

So elated was Tindall that, during a champagne victory party, he described the verdict as "official recognition that the U.S. government drove boys crazy in Vietnam in an immoral war. The verdict lifted a weight from me and from thousands of other Vietnam veterans."

So now we have a generation of veterans who can claim to be will-less robots, and thus whatever they do, blame it on Vietnam.

In Tindall's case, the question of guilt or innocence turned on whether PTSD — Post Trauma Stress Disorder — can stick with a veteran for months, or whether it is more likely to cause him to act irrationally for a much shorter length of time.

The jury decided wrongly in the Tindall case because it sure looks as though it responded emotionally to that tangled ordeal called the Vietnam war by giving Tindall a vote of sympathy.

One defense witness, Ricki Lee Benedict, himself twice convicted of dope smuggling, told how he and Tindall, as young helicopter pilots, killed men, women, children, and cows, using horrible weapons like cluster bombs, and tried to steady themselves afterwards by drinking liquor and smoking marijuana.

Tindall by Benedict's description was a patriot who became disillusioned, especially after he heard Nixon or Kissinger — he wasn't sure which — tell lies about Cambodia, and after he came to believe that the CIA was allowing heroin to be sold to our troops. The defense complemented Benedict's rich tale of gore and frustration in Vietnam with a showing to the jury of photos of dead Viet Cong and also with a reading of Tindall's letters home by his father. The jury ate this stuff up.

The government made sense by arguing that even if Tindall was afflicted with that exotic acronym, PTSD, how come it took three years to manifest itself, and how come it lasted three months while he was smuggling dope?

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Laxalt charged with helping kill rights bill

WASHINGTON — The confidential files of the late Howard Hughes allege that Ronald Reagan's campaign chairman, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., once secretly killed a civil rights bill at the request of the erratic billionaire.

The Hughes documents state that Laxalt, while he was governor of Nevada, lobbied behind the scenes to kill an open housing bill which Laxalt pretended to be supporting. The documents also claim that Laxalt killed the legislation after Hughes promised him "unlimited financial support."

Laxalt vehemently denied any suggestion that he was even asked to work against the fair housing bill, much less that he actually did so. "That's pure B.S.," he told my associate Gary Cohn. "I wouldn't have responded to that request."

The documents alluding to Laxalt's alleged role in the defeat of the housing legislation in April 1969 are among thousands reportedly stolen from Hughes' Los Angeles headquarters in 1974 and later obtained by author Michael Drosnin. His book on Hughes, "Citizen Hughes: In His Own Words — How Howard Hughes Tried to Buy America," will be published next year by Holt, Rinehart & Winston.

As I reported in a previous column, the Hughes documents also allege that Laxalt helped Hughes build his Nevada gambling empire in return for the billionaire's promise to give him a job and eventually make him president of the United States. Laxalt's law firm received $72,000 from Hughes after Laxalt left the governorship.

The Hughes papers clearly show the billionaire was a bigot. In one memo after the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King in April 1968, Hughes ordered his chief of staff, Robert Maheu, to resist the "tremendous pressure ... to adopt a more liberal attitude toward integration, open housing and employment of more Negroes.

The billionaire recluse acknowledged that his attitude was "not very praiseworthy," but explained, "I feel the Negroes have already made enough progress to last the next 100 years, and there is such a thing as overdoing it."

One year later, Hughes read a newspaper article reporting that Laxalt was supporting a fair housing bill, which was expected to pass only because of the governor's influence.

"Please read all — every word — of this article," Hughes wrote to Maheu. "This worries me ... What worries me most is that I am just hovering on the brink of further huge investments in Nevada, and Laxalt's friendship is an important part of this decision." If Laxalt pushed the bill, wrote Hughes, it would be a "peculiar friendship."

He then got down to cases. "Please call (Laxalt) or ask (Hughes lobbyist Tom) Bell to contact him at once ... Tomorrow may be too late ... You may send Laxalt through Bell absolutely unlimited assurances of unlimited financial support. He does not need the colored vote and I want him to know this loud and clear."

The open housing bill was killed the next day in the State Senate finance committee by a 4-3 vote. Maheu wrote Hughes: "Tom Bell just called to

ART BUCHWALD

To find a vice president just check 'Yellow Pages'

WASHINGTON — You don't hear much lately from the vice presidential candidates, George What's-his-name, and Fritz You-know-who-I-mean. The problem is that all the media are zeroing in on Carter and Reagan, and not paying attention to the men who could be only a heartbeat away from the presidency.

I was starting to worry about this so I decided to find out where they were.

My first call was to Reagan Headquarters.

"Is George there?" I asked.
"George who?"
"George Bush."
"Just a minute, I'll see if someone in the office knows him."
The voice came back on the phone a few minutes later.
"Is he a volunteer or a paid employee?"

"He's Reagan's running-mate. He was selected after Gerry Ford turned Reagan down."

"The name does ring a bell. Let me transfer you to somebody who might know where he is."

Another voice came on the phone. "Reagan Headquarters, personnel department."

"Yes, I'm trying to locate a George Bush, who is Ronald Reagan's running-mate."

"You'll have to be more specific than that. Do you have a description or a Social Security number, or anything?"

Art Buchwald

"He's rather tall and thin and looks very much like an Ivy Leaguer. I don't have his Social Security number and the last time anyone saw him was on the platform with Ronald Reagan at the Republican National Convention in Detroit. He was holding up Ronald's hand."

"We've had dozens of politicians holding up Ronald's hand, and we have a lot of people working for Reagan who look like they're Ivy Leaguers. Does he have any scars?"

"Well, he ran against Reagan in the primaries so I imagine he does. But he's covered them up since Reagan chose him as his running-mate."

"He doesn't show up in the computer. Have you called the Red Cross?"

"No, I thought I'd check with you people first on the off-chance you might know."

"We can't keep track of everyone working for Reagan. They come and they go. Why don't you put an ad in the paper?"

"I don't want to find him that badly. But if he turns up will you call me?"

"You have to be kidding. We're running an election campaign, not a missing persons bureau."

I decided to see if I'd have any more luck with Fritz Mondale. I called the Carter Headquarters.

"Any news on Vice President Mondale?" I asked.

"No, should there be?" the voice said.

"You don't happen to know where he is right now?"

"If he isn't at a state funeral for some foreign leader, he's probably opening a post office somewhere. He only comes around the office to pick up his mail."

"But is he still Carter's running-mate?" I asked.

"As far as I know. But you had better check that one out with the White House. They never clue us in on what they're doing from one day to the next."

"I'd like to get in touch with him if I possibly can."

"Have you looked in the Yellow Pages under Vice Presidents? He might be listed there."

"I hadn't thought of that. You've been a big help."

"Don't mention it, and if you find him, would you tell him to call his wife. She said he forgot to pay the electric bill this month."

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

Jimmy Carter attempted to link Ronald Reagan with racism because of Reagan's use of the so-called code words "states' rights." Here are some more code words which often turn up in political speeches:

"My fellow Americans." — This greeting, accompanied by a wink, is a code word for "We've got to stick together before all these foreigners take over the place."

Another expression is "These bagels are delicious." — That's a code word for "I prefer them to those lousy grits I had yesterday and, incidentally, I'm behind Israel 100 percent."

Another code word is "These grits are delicious" — which really means "The bagels I had yesterday almost broke my teeth."

"I'm for a strong Navy." — This can either mean "It's great to be here in San Diego" or "It's great to be here in Norfolk."

Iraq-Iran battlefield is oil-rich province

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The battleground in the Iraqi-Iranian war is a province of oil, mountains and deserts that the Iraqis call Khuzestan and the Iraqis Arabistan.

Arabs in the area launched a guerrilla campaign for more autonomy shortly after the revolutionary regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini came to power in Tehran in February 1979.

Pipelines from the oil centers of Khorramshahr and Abadan were sabotaged and terrorist attacks hit public utilities, Iranian military installations and government buildings.

The rebels called themselves the Arab Revolutionary Organization in Arabistan, the same name the Iraqis use for the province.

Although Iran and Iraq are both Moslem countries, the Iraqis are Arabs while Iran is dominated by the non-Arab Persians. Since its invasion, Iraq has appealed to the Khuzestan Arabs to rise up against the Persians.

Iraqi officials assert there are 4.5 million Arabs in the province while Iranian figures indicate about one-third of the province's population of 3 million are Arabic-speaking.

Khuzestan is the size of West Virginia with an area of 24,000 square miles. The province is mountainous to the east and contains large sections of uninhabited desert near the Gulf. Its agriculture is limited to dates, citrus, rice and vegetables and one of the Arabs' complaints is that it remains largely undeveloped despite being the main source of Iran's wealth.

"There is little industry or development of any kind and Arabs have a hard time getting good jobs or government positions," said an Iraqi diplomat based here.

After initial clashes in Khuzestan between the Sunni Arab minority and the Iranian Shiite majority last year, the Arab activists presented a list of demands including autonomous courts and legislature, recognition of Arabic as the official language and a larger share of oil revenues for local development.

Little headway has been made in meeting the demands, and Iraq is making autonomy for the Arabs in Khuzestan a key demand for a peaceful settlement to the war.

"This is an area which is historically ours and which we intend to keep," said the Iraqi diplomat. "We want no more."

With a pencil, he drew an arc on a map to show the land in question. It stretches from Qasr-e-Shirin in the north nearly to Abadan in the south, carving a crescent out of western Iran about 300 miles long and 80 miles broad at the widest point.

Wayne Nutt

Wayne Nutt, 53, 2104 Western Drive, a U.S. Postal Service clerk, died Tuesday in a Midland hospital following a brief illness.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Thursday in Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Ross Payne, pastor of Cotton Flat Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Nutt was born March 7, 1927, in Ballinger and attended school there. He served in the U.S. Navy in World War II. Nutt moved to Midland in 1946 and worked for Ohio Oil Co. and Bethlehem Steel Corporation before he joined the U.S. Postal Service in 1961. He was a clerk at the Graves Station.

Nutt was married to Margaret Yeats in Midland on July 2, 1949. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge, was a 32nd-degree Mason and was a member of the First Baptist Church of Ballinger.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Tommy Nutt of Midland; his mother, Mertie Wetsel of Midland, and a brother, Keith Nutt of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Lula P. Price

Services for Lula P. Price, 87, of Midland were to be at 2 p.m. today in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Allen Lowe of Memorial Christian Church officiating. Burial was to be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Price died Monday in a Midland nursing following an extended illness.

Pallbearers were to be William Blackman, John Casey, George Degefender, Joe Feagan, Mark Guinan and Bo Harrison.

Kenith D. Dennis

DENVER CITY — Services for Kenith D. Dennis, 54, of Denver City, father of Ronald Dennis of Midland, will be at 4 p.m. Thursday in First Baptist Church with the Rev. Bill Merritt, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in Denver City Memorial Park directed by Singleton Funeral Home.

Dennis died Tuesday in his home from natural causes.

He was born Aug. 26, 1926, in Electra. Dennis was a 21-year resident of Denver City. He was a lease operator for Shell Oil Co. where he worked for 33 years. Dennis was a World War II veteran and a member of the First Baptist Church in Denver City. He married Leatrice Rice on Jan. 17, 1949, in Electra.

Other survivors include his wife, a daughter, two sisters, three brothers and a grandson.

Kuykendall died Sunday in Dallas. Born Sept. 8, 1925 in Lubbock, he was a veteran of World War II.

Other survivors include two brothers.

Nuclear plant has blackout

CRYSTAL RIVER, Fla. (AP) — A loose test lead triggered a short-circuit which shut down the Florida Power Corp. nuclear plant at Crystal River and cut off power to thousands of homes around the state, a company spokesman says.

Service was restored soon after the Tuesday outage, said Florida Power spokesman Bill Johnson. The 825-megawatt unit was at full load when the mishap occurred around 1 p.m.

Johnson said about 60,000 customers of Jacksonville Electric and Miami-based Florida Power & Light were affected. Florida Power Corp., based in St. Petersburg, serves some 750,000 customers in 32 counties along the Florida Gulf Coast.

Preliminary investigations indicated that a test lead — a wire with a probe used to test circuits — came loose and shorted pin connections, interrupting the power supply to the channel being tested. It produced a false signal which sent the system into automatic shutdown, Johnson said.

There was no damage to the plant. When the plant 60 miles north of Tampa tripped off line, a standard routine surveillance procedure was being conducted on the reactor protection system, Johnson said.

The nuclear plant resumed operation in August after a six-month shutdown triggered by a Feb. 26 electrical failure in the control room. That accident dumped 43,000 gallons of radioactive water on the floor of the reactor building.

Carter thought Billy's trips private

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter never raised the possibility of expressing official disapproval of his brother Billy's Libyan trips because the president thought the visits were strictly private, the White House says.

In replies made public Tuesday to written questions submitted by the Senate's Billy Carter subcommittee, the White House said the president had disassociated himself in February 1979 from some of his brother's remarks about the Libyan affair.

"Under the circumstances, the president did not feel that any further announcement by him or private statement to the government of Libya was called for," White House special counsel Alfred H. Moses said.

A preliminary draft of the subcommittee's report says "the president should have issued a public statement or sent a private message to the Libyan government that Billy Carter did not represent the United States."

The report, which is being reviewed by individual subcommittee members, is to be released Thursday.

Moses said the White House replies were made public because the draft version of the subcommittee's final report was leaked to the press Monday.

Billy Carter made trips to Libya in September 1978 and April 1979. Under Justice Department pressure, he registered July 14 of this year as a foreign agent for the radical Arab government and reported receiving $220,000 in Libyan money, which he has described as a loan. The subcommittee asked the White House staff if the president considered "the advisability of either a private statement to the government of Libya or a public announcement disassociating himself and the United States from, or disapproving, Billy's second trip to Libya or Billy's associations with Libya, and if so the conclusions reached and the reasons."

In reply, the White House document said the president was not informed in advance of his brother's second trip to Libya. Afterward, Moses said, the president did not discuss with his advisers whether to make a public statement or send a private message to Libya about the matter.

"The president considered Billy Carter's trips to Libya to be strictly private visits involving no governmental function or purpose," Moses said.

Moses also said the president did not discuss with his brother Billy Carter's effort to win an increase in Libya's oil allotment for an American oil company. Since White House national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski already had warned against the deal, "the president believed a further call from him was likely to be counterproductive," Moses said.

The subcommittee also asked whether the president believes he should have been advised in April 1980, when Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti learned of it, that there was an intelligence report indicating Billy Carter was about to receive money from the Libyans.

Moses replied: "The president believes that the correct policy with regard to the dissemination of intelligence information relating to possible law violations by persons close to the president is to leave this decision in the first instance to the heads of the intelligence agencies."

Moses conceded that using the information to discourage Billy Carter from accepting the payments may well have risked compromising intelligence sources or methods.

But overall, Moses said, "the president feels that public confidence in impartial law enforcement was best served by the decision reached not to bring this particular intelligence report to his attention."

Meanwhile, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said they are writing separate views to be attached to the report to be issued by the subcommittee.

TMI seeks rate boost

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The operator of the Three Mile Island nuclear plant is asking the courts to grant an emergency $35 million rate increase denied by state regulators last month.

Metropolitan Edison Co. announced the Commonwealth Court petition Tuesday, saying its financial troubles since the March 1979 accident, the worst in the nation's commercial nuclear history, made the rate boost necessary.

Met Ed asked the court to set aside an adverse Aug. 28 decision by the Public Utility Commission and "to grant relief justified by the circumstances," said company spokesman Blaine Fabian.

The $35 million emergency rate increase request was included in a $76.5 million increase sought by the company in July, he said. A final PUC decision in that rate case could take until late 1981.

Meanwhile, Fabian said, inadequate revenues already have forced cost cutting, including a reduction in coal inventories, a halt to construction activities and furloughs of 700 workers.

"We're operating on short-term credit," he said.

Asked if Met Ed might be forced into financial reorganization, he replied: "That's what we're trying to avoid."

The Commonwealth Court petition filed Monday marked the second time in less than a week that Met Ed sought judicial reversal of a PUC directive.

Last Friday, a federal judge in Harrisburg refused to issue an order immediately vacating the PUC's order that customer revenues not be used in the cleanup of Three Mile Island, which has been shut down since the accident.

Greece threatens NATO pullout

WASHINGTON (AP) — If no new formula for its participation in NATO is reached "within the next few weeks," Greece will be forced to pull out of the Atlantic alliance for good, the country's foreign minister is quoted as saying.

"We do not want to do it," Constantine Mitsotakis said in an interview with the Washington Post conducted at the United Nations and published today. "But Greece must return to the alliance or it must withdraw its application for a return before the Greek elections next year."

Greece withdrew from NATO's military wing in 1974 to protest what President Constantine Karamanlis said was the Nixon administration's failure to stop Turkey's invasion of Cyprus. Greece has since taken part in the alliance's political activities and has joined in some military maneuvers.

eastern Mediterranean.

Mitsotakis is said to have relayed his government's warning to Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie earlier this week at the United Nations.

Mitsotakis' comments represent the first time the Karamanlis government has said publicly and explicitly that it is unwilling to face the 1981 Greek elections with the NATO issue unresolved. However, the Carter administration reportedly has been receiving private warnings to this effect since June — warnings that have grown more urgent since the military coup in Turkey last month.

In 1976, Greece applied for readmission to the alliance. But that move has been blocked by a dispute between Athens and Ankara over Greece's insistence that it be given operational control of Aegean air and sea lanes.

Mitsotakis was quoted by the Post as saying that if no agreement can be negotiated soon, Greece will be forced to take over the four American military bases on Greek soil. Among those bases are an important naval installation and an electronic listening post that keeps track of Soviet military movements in the Secret mission ends in barn

BROWNFIELD, Texas (AP) — A six-man commando team trying to slip secretly across the South Plains apparently lost its bearings and wound up cold, damp and hungry in a farmer's seed barn several miles east of their destination.

They had been instructed "to get in and out without notice." Instead they were detained by sheriff's deputies and had their pictures displayed on the front page of the local newspaper.

Team members were dressed in camouflage fatigues without rank or unit insignia and armed with automatic weapons, pistols and knives.

A congressman's aide said the men may have been participating in a series of training maneuvers on orders from the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"I've been working on this all day. An Army liaison major told me today (Tuesday) it's definitely tied in to the Joint Chiefs of Staff," said Don Richards, an aide to U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock. "It was part of training exercises in California, Texas and Kansas."

The team was dropped at a Brownfield airport Friday with orders to get to an auxiliary Air Force base nine miles north of town "without notice," said Army Maj. Tony Caggelano at the Pentagon Tuesday.

But early Friday morning, Ruben Martinez said he noticed the men on his isolated farm and "it got me and my wife and kids kind of scared."

"These two Army boys showed up at my door in ponchos asking if they could use the phone," Martinez said. "They shouldn't be down here in the country and I didn't know who they were and nowadays you can't trust anybody, so I said no."

Martinez said the "secretive" men made him nervous but he told them they could change clothes in his cotton seed barn.

"They wouldn't go away," said his wife, Rachel, 36. "They were standing outside trying to look in and we were looking out at them. We locked our doors and everything, but they just kept knocking on our door and saying 'Open the door, we'll show you our

"I said don't open the door, they don't look like Army guys to me. And they didn't have any business out here in the country."

Martinez said the men stayed in the barn several hours "just walking back and forth in the pasture and back to the chicken house."

So he called the Terry County Sheriff's office. Brownfield News editor Don Arnwine heard the call on the police monitor and went to investigate.

Arnwine met the sheriff's squad car returning from the farm and noticed some military personnel in the car. He followed them back to the sheriff's office and photographed the men.

At that point, Arnwine said, a sheriff's deputy told him, "I want that film." Arnwine refused.

He said he was told it was a matter of "national security."

"Your boss will hang if the pictures are printed in the paper," the deputy said.

Arnwine ran the story Sunday after getting little, if any, information out of the various military branches.

Sheriff Homer Parker would not talk about the incident.

"You talk to the Army. They told me not to say anything and I don't intend to. I didn't ask why," he said.

The men were released to the custody of an Army officer a few hours later.

Martinez said he was a little worried about calling the sheriff, but the weapons scared him.

"They had six machine guns and seven guns, all loaded," he said. "The sheriff's (deputy) made them get all the shells out. They were big bullets, too. I know what machine guns look like, because I've seen them in movies and television. And they had these big knives, and I saw one grenade ... you know, a little bitty round thing like you see in a movie when they throw a grenade."

"They weren't talking much, that's for sure. They were keeping quiet. I still feel kind of worried about it. I wondered if I did right or wrong by calling the sheriff."

Vietnam more conciliatory on MIAs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vietnamese government is showing a more conciliatory attitude on missing American servicemen and on refugees in an apparent effort to blunt criticism of its military presence in Cambodia, U.S. officials say.

Two weeks ago, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said the United States will support the Khmer Rouge in the United Nations, despite what he described as an abhorrent record on human rights during Pol Pot's 3½ years in power. To do otherwise, Muskie said, would give legitimacy to the Vietnamese occupation of Cambodia.

American officials also believe there is substantial international support for a proposed resolution by the Association of South East Asian Nations calling for the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia and for an international conference on Cambodia.

Perhaps because of these developments, U.S. officials speculated, Vietnam has been unusually responsive to recent U.S. appeals on both the MIA and refugee issues.

Since the end of the Vietnam war, about 300,000 Vietnamese have come to the United States, half in the first few weeks after the communist conquest.

An average of 25 to 30 Vietnamese now are allowed to leave for the United States each week.

Current negotiations, conducted through the United Nations, envision a much higher departure rate, U.S. officials said.

Both countries have compiled lists of potential emigres from Vietnam, but in many cases the names put forth by the United States do not correspond with those names appear on the supplied by Vietnam. Lists of both countries, about 1,800 common according to officials.

Birth brings damages

FORT WORTH (AP) — Defense attorneys say an appeal is being considered for an osteopath ordered to pay $1.5 million to a couple whose daughter was born with brain damage.

U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon said the case was the "most serious and complicated" he had heard in his eight years on the federal bench.

Roger and Delores Haught, who now live in Oklahoma, filed the suit against Weatherford, Texas osteopath Dr. John Maceluch and his associate, Dr. William Martin, a medical doctor.

Treasure trove of art totally hidden in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — There's a treasure trove of art along one of New York City's busiest thoroughfares, totally hidden from the daylight visitor.

At dusk and the end of the business day, however, merchants close protective metal gates down over their storefronts, revealing huge murals that bring new life and color to what was once a drab night scene along Harlem's 125th street, transforming ominous barriers against crime into works of art.

The man behind this ambitious urban beautification effort is a Panama-born artist, Franco Gaskins, whose paintings are also on view in the more traditional surroundings of downtown art galleries.

For the past 18 months, Gaskins has been changing the face of this famous street with gallons of acrylic paint and lots of imagination.

It all began when the owner of a fashion boutique, tired of facing a sea of graffiti on his iron security gate every morning, called in Gaskins to do something about it.

While the owner simply wanted a fresh paint job — a task the painter admits he wasn't too proud to undertake — the artist in Gaskins said, "Why not do something more creative?"

"My first inclination was to paint a snow scene on the gate," Gaskins remembers. "But then I thought, why not a spring landscape that would bring a little warmth to one of our typical Harlem winters?" To the owner's surprise and ultimate delight, he painted a pastoral scene, replacing garish spray-can paint scrawlings so typical of the New York scene. The graffiti have never returned.

"My phone rang the next day — from another merchant wanting a painting on his gate — and it hasn't stopped ringing since," Gaskins recalls.

After 35 or so gates, Gaskins says, landscapes remain the easiest to do. The average 10-by-10-foot gates take approximately four or five days to complete when work can be done only before or after business hours. But on a Sunday, when businesses are generally closed, Gaskins can complete one of his "gate paintings" in one day.

Viewing one of his murals from a distance, the impact is stunning. A close-up examination reveals the difficulties the artist must overcome in transferring his ideas, not onto canvases, but rather onto an expanse of accordion-like metal where no part of the surface is completely flat.

First, months and sometimes years of urban dirt and grime must be removed from the gates, a task which Gaskins and his assistants accomplish with a household detergent.

Following this cleaning process Gaskins applies an overall background wash in a color dictated by the theme he has in mind. After sketching in the details with charcoal, the real work begins. Hills, clouds, valleys, trees, buildings, monuments, geometrics and figures emerge through deftly applied acrylic paint.

"I've always used acrylics," Gaskins says. "It dries fast, it's more flexible than oil paint and the colors last forever."

With a touch of whimsy he can usually incorporate some element into a mural that identifies it with the type of business behind the gate. A setting sun in one, for example, is actually a phonograph record establishing that the business inside is a stereo shop. A colorful rainbow sweeping across another work ends in a painter's brush, meaning, of course, there's a paint store behind the shutters.

Gaskins' tour de force is three gigantic murals commissioned by the F. W. Woolworth Co. for the company's large 125th street unit.

One vast panel depicts the black man's heritage and shows a proud African king and his subjects before imposing monoliths and temples. Another, "Harmony Among the Races," features people representing the races of mankind. In his third mural, Gaskins returns to his landscape theme.

Gaskins says he will not be happy until he's painted one full block of 125th street completely.

Rare plant threatened with extinction by bikers

WALDEN, Colo. (AP) — A plant so rare it has no household name is threatened with extinction because its sandy habitat is being pounded into pavement by dirt bikers, federal officials say.

Only about 117 of the plants, called "phacelia formosula," were found during a count this summer in North Park, a wind-swept plain encircled by mountains which is thought to be the only place in the world where the plants grow, said Karen Wiley-Eberle, Bureau of Land Management botanist.

The federal government is now taking steps that could lead to protection for the plant, a relative of the scorpion plant.

Ms. Wiley-Eberle said a botanist first discovered the plant in 1918 and made vague records about where it could be found. When Ms. Wiley-Eberle finally located the area, she found it laced with motorcycle trails.

She says she never has seen any riders, but residents in nearby Walden reported they had seen motorcyclists in the area.

Two new types of mortgages proposed by feds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Home Loan Bank Board proposed two new types of mortgages Tuesday aimed at helping low- and moderate-income Americans buy a home.

One proposal would allow a buyer to get a lower-than-usual interest rate by agreeing to let the lender — a savings and loan association — share in the "profits" as the home appreciates in value.

The second plan would provide a lower level of monthly payments at the start, which would rise gradually, and the interest rate on the mortgage could be raised or lowered periodically. This proposal would result in an increase — rather than a decline — in the size of the homeowner's mortgage for the first few years.

The bank board, which oversees federally chartered savings and loan associations, agreed to allow the public to comment on the proposals until Dec. 1. A sharply adverse reaction could kill the new mortgage options.

Jay Janis, chairman of the board, noted that many Americans have been priced out of the market by rising interest rates and inflation in home prices.

"In the last two years, average costs for the homebuyer — including interest, principal, insurance, taxes, maintenance and utilities — have risen by 42 percent; the household income of homebuyers has risen at an annual rate of about 11.5 percent," Janis said.

Here is how the plans would work, according to the bank board:

—The "shared-appreciation mortgage" would be like most of today's conventional or government-backed mortgage — for up to the first 10 years. Money would be borrowed for a period of up to 40 years and payments for principal and interest would remain level each month. But the lender, because of the "shared" provision, could afford to lend at considerably below existing interest rates.

If the home were sold during the agreed-on period, up to 10 years, the lender would share in the increase in value, or appreciation, of the property since the mortgage was closed. The lender's share — limited to 40 percent — would be agreed on in advance.

If the property were not sold during the agreed-on period, the lender would be bound to refinance the balance of the mortgage and the lender's share of the appreciation at the then-prevailing interest rate.

As an example, the board said, a standard, fixed-rate $50,000 mortgage taken out today for 30 years at 13 percent interest requires a monthly payment of $553. Cutting the interest rate to 9.5 percent would reduce the payment to $420.

In return, the buyer eventually would give to the lender a share of the home's increase in value.

—The second proposal is even more complicated, combining two relatively new types of mortgages.

Lenders already are writing mortgages whose monthly payments are lower than normal but gradually rise to a predetermined point over a period of years. This is a graduated-payment mortgage.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY

The late great Groucho Marx was born this date, and a finely tuned sense of humor can aid your efforts to move forward in career, business during the coming year. Make the most of a variety of new opportunities to increase personal income. Partnerships of all types are under favorable auspices, and new acquaintances are attracted by your obvious honesty. Mate may claim that you are very loving but not particularly romantic!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A recognition of basic values helps you to make gains in a different money market. Be responsive to requests from loved ones. An older relative or in-law could be feeling neglected. Plan small family get-togethers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): This is a poor time to force an employment issue. Keep a low profile at work. Financial backing could suddenly become available for those who own businesses. Be both energetic and direct around individuals in positions of authority.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be wary of friends bearing unexpected gifts. What they will want in return might not be worth it. Luck may provide a new opportunity to increase earnings. Misunderstanding with mate should be quickly straightened out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Any lapses or errors will receive prompt attention from your critics today. Distractions abound! Be careful not to let them interfere with routine work responsibilities. Loved one may decide to make friendly overture to a new acquaintance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Guard against wishful thinking where financial matters are concerned. Assets need special protection. Learn to be a comparison shopper at all times. Any special arrangements or reservations for the coming weekend should be double-checked.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A buoyant mood will be immediately apparent today. Try to get caught up on a backlog of correspondence. Study provides valuable resources for advancing career interests. Artistic pursuits are under favorable auspices.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Respond to newcomer's offer of friendship. If traveling, a contact could be made that will have a profound effect on a business decision. Use a common sense approach to resolve family misunderstandings, disputes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An outpouring of love and support from mate is very reassuring. This is an ideal day for creative endeavors. Buy any extra supplies that might be needed. An evening shopping expedition can net some real bargains.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A new book or thought could be so engrossing that you neglect a responsibility. Romance can be overpowering! A little good luck goes farther than imagined. Share a confidence with a discreet loved one, family member.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A short trip may be part of the day's busy plan. Call a friend for information if going to a place for the very first time. Unnecessary delays can blunt an appetite for hard work. Tackle most complex tasks first.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An atmosphere of excitement may be present today. Delay the pursuit of pleasure until after hours or career will suffer. The company of someone new can be very pleasing tonight. Choose a familiar restaurant if dining out.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Schedule may have to be accelerated today. Do not resist the efforts of a higher-up interested in making changes. You could be hovering on the brink of an important self-discovery. Get together with an old friend who shares your ambitions.

1949 murder indictment against ex-GI dismissed

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Thirty-one years ago, an ex-GI named Howard Unruh killed 13 people with his Luger on the streets of Camden and was sent immediately to a mental hospital. Now a judge has dismissed the murder charges, ruling that Unruh was denied a speedy trial.

Superior Court Judge Charles A. Rizzi dismissed the 1949 murder indictment on Tuesday but stayed his order pending an appeal. The dismissal could be the first step toward Unruh's release from the mental hospital where he has been confined since the slayings, said Camden County Prosecutor John Mariano.

Unruh, 59, was sent to Trenton State Psychiatric Hospital on Sept. 7, 1949, the day after the slayings. The 12-minute spree, which began at 9:30 a.m., was then the worst mass street killing in U.S. history. His relatives blamed the massacre on Unruh's war experiences.

Gunfire hit 16 people and 13 died, including a 6-year-old boy who was sitting on a barbershop hobby horse getting a haircut.

Unruh had left the apartment he shared with his mother and walked down a street in east Camden's Cramer Hill section. First, he entered a shoemaker's store and shot the cobbler, said police and witnesses.

Then he walked down the block, mechanically opening shop doors and firing the German pistol. The last bullet killed a newly married woman standing in her husband's tailor shop.

"The street looked like a battlefield," said Detective Marshall Thompson. "River Road was littered with dead and dying."

Unruh walked home and barricaded himself inside. He exchanged gunfire with 50 policemen and surrendered after they lobbed tear gas canisters through the windows.

He reportedly told police, "They had been talking about me for some time and making derogatory remarks about my character. I had been thinking about killing them for some time."

An angry mob surged up the street as he was led into a patrol wagon.

Police later found an "arsenal of weapons" in his room and a well-worn Bible that neighbors had seen him reading in the streets.

Unruh, a sheet metal worker, enlisted in the Army in 1942 and spent three years with a field artillery unit in Germany and Austria.

His brother James told reporters after the shootings: "Since Howard came home from the service, he didn't seem to be the same. He was nervous. I don't know how this shooting ever happened, or why. But I certainly know it is due to my brother's Army service."

His father, Samuel, called the killings a "terrible tragedy" that could happen "in the family of any returned veteran." He said his son's mind "must have cracked."

Unruh did not stand trial, although he never formally was judged incompetent. A psychiatrist, however, had said Unruh was insane.

The decision to send him to a mental hospital rather than to a jury enraged relatives of the victims. "He should have gotten the chair," said Elizabeth Jane Day, whose husband was killed. "The defendant's insanity does not deprive him of his speedy trial right," Rizzi said Tuesday. "There is only one remedy for a speedy trial violation and that is the dismissal of the indictments."

Public defender James Klein was seeking dismissal so Unruh could be transferred from the maximum security facility to a less restricted one for better treatment. Klein said he was not seeking Unruh's release. "All medical opinions up to now have said Unruh is incurably insane," he said.

But Mariano and Assistant County Prosecutor Denis Wixted said that since the indictments no longer are pending, a psychiatrist could find Unruh cured at any time.

Unruh, who was 28 at the time of the killings, has been diagnosed as schizophrenic with paranoid and catatonic manifestations. A psychiatrist who has treated Unruh for 22 years said he saw no chance for release: "He is still dangerous if released into society."

Shell presents check to United Way

A check for $6,447.76 was presented to the United Way of Midland by Shell Oil Co. officials at a presentation held Tuesday.

Walt T. Weller, division operations manager for Mid-Continent Division of Shell Oil in Houston, and Roger Guthrie, division manager of Shell Pipeline in Midland, made the presentation to Don Evans, campaign chairman for this year's United Way campaign.

"Shell Oil is delighted to participate in the United Way of Midland's campaign," Weller said. "We consider it our duty and a privilege to contribute in any way we can."

Although Shell Oil has reduced the number of its employees in the Midland area, over the past years the company has continued to make substantial corporate contributions to the United Way of Midland.

Upon accepting the check, Evans remarked, "We appreciate the contribution from Shell Oil. Shell is a splendid example of the private sector's social consciousness and willingness to do something about the needs of our community."

The goal for this year's United Way Campaign is $1,150,000, a 12.3 percent increase over the amount raised last year.

To date, United Way volunteers have raised $278,100, or 24.2 percent of the goal.

Germany claims link between Nazis, Libya

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — "Fairly reliable information" indicates links between Libya and the neo-Nazis picked up after the Oktoberfest bombing, Governor Franz Josef Strauss of Bavaria is quoted as saying.

The Bavarian Interior Ministry said there also appeared to be links between the Military Sport Group Hoffman and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The Munich newspaper Abendzeitung quoted Strauss as saying that Karl Heinz Hoffmann, 43, or other members of his militant group sold trucks to Libya and were paid for them by Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi.

Hoffmann and five other members of the banned neo-Nazi gang were arrested after the Oktoberfest bombing Friday that killed 12 people and injured 213, but released for lack of evidence.

A spokesman for the Bavarian Interior Ministry said Hoffmann traveled from Munich to Damascus via Beirut July 13 and returned to Frankfurt two days later.

Several members of his group crossed the Austrian-German border in a convoy of trucks and trailers July 26 en route to Lebanon. On Aug. 8, Another convoy traveled to Syria, the spokesman said.

He indicated that Hoffmann earned part of his money by selling obsolete army material in the Middle East. He said possible links of the Hoffmann group with the PLO were mentioned in his ministry's annual report published in July.

Meanwhile, the Hamburg tabloid Bildzeitung said intelligence sources were considering the possibility that a Briton killed in the Oktoberfest attack was the second man responsible for triggering the blast.

Authorities had said they believed Gundolf Koehler, a West German student affiliated with the Hoffmann group, was responsible for the attack. Koehler was killed in the blast.

"In the immediate vicinity of Koehler's body, the mutilated Englishman Errol Vere-Hodge, 23, was found — terrible splinter wounds in his chest, one leg torn off," Bildzeitung said.

It said British and West German intelligence services were checking whether Hodge, who lived just outside Munich, planned to hide the bomb with Koehler's aid in an Oktoberfest beer tent.

Dissident's trial begins

MOSCOW (AP) — An editor of an underground journal has been handed a three-year suspended sentence and another went on trial today charged with "defaming" the Soviet Union, court officials reported.

Viktor Sokirko, who was arrested Jan. 23, had been charged with defaming the Soviet state and social order. Dissident sources said he pleaded guilty and was sentenced Tuesday to a three-year suspended sentence.

Another editor, Valery Abramkin, who was arrested Dec. 4, went on trial in Moscow today on the same charge. The maximum penalty is three years in prison.

Sokirko and Abramkin were members of the editorial board of Poisk, an underground journal founded two years ago. Six issues of the publication appeared with articles on a wide range of civil, political, social, economic and cultural issues before authorities clamped down.

A total of eight dissidents have now stood trial over the past month either for defaming the Soviet Union or on the more serious charge of anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda.

Penalties have ranged from suspended sentences to 11 years in labor camps and internal exile, the term handed religious activist Alexander Ogorodnikov earlier this month.

54 Midlanders receive special awards for Special Olympics

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Emotions hung heavy in the air at Midland Center Tuesday night as 54 members of Midland Association for Retarded Citizens waited for the special presentations.

Just before 9 p.m. Tuesday night, these 54 Midlanders were awarded medals for their participation in the Special Olympics.

Begun in 1969 by Eunice Kennedy Shriver, the Special Olympics offers young, mentally retarded individuals the opportunity to compete in sports among their peers. These athletes compete on the local, state and national level, just as athletes in other sports. This year, Midland ARC even sent some of its special athletes to Austin for the state meet.

TUESDAY NIGHT was the first Special Olympics Awards and Recognition Banquet for Midland. The banquet began with the Special Olympics motto: "Let me win, but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt."

Midland's brave competed with the help of sponsors, social workers and many volunteers at their schools and in the city during the school year and summer. And Midland produced 54 winners in track and field events, swimming and bowling.

In addition, the Special Olympics offers other sports such as soccer, basketball and football for the athletes.

Besides the individual athletes, persons who have helped with the Special Olympics — from coaches to the Teen-agers for the Association of Retarded Citizens (TARC), from financial sponsors to parents — also were honored.

"It's a very special event for all of the athletes to be recognized here tonight," said Jack Blackstone, president of the Texas Association for Retarded Citizens and guest speaker at the dinner.

"I THINK THERE'S a lot about the Special Olympics that means a lot to each of us," he continued. "It represents a special part of people."

Blackstone said, "They're special people to us (and the Special Olympics) ultimately helps them believe in themselves."

Blackstone said parents who were involved with Special Olympics shared a special closeness and sense of pride in their retarded children. Volunteers share that pride, he said, when they see "how excited they (the parents) are to watch their child compete and when they watch that child cross the finish line. Just to have their daughter or their son achieve a victory — a victory that they didn't think was possible."

Blackstone said, "The Special Olympics program in Texas is the second largest in the country." He added that the Special Olympics "state track and field events (in Austin) had more athletes than at the Moscow Olympics."

Special Olympics "is a beginning point in our community to recognize these people in our community. I'm looking forward to seeing the day our bowlers compete with the professional bowlers," he added.

BLACKSTONE, who has been president of the Texas ARC since July 1977, also said he hoped one day retarded citizens could be admitted to country clubs to continue their recreation and sports enrichment.

Mayor G. Thane Akins also declared Tuesday Special Olympics Day in Midland at the banquet.

In the bowling event with coach Monica Adkins, assistant coach George Ann Powers and parent coach Puff Aycock, winners included Susan Adkins, Laura Ashford, Judy Aycock, Bonita Barber, Mike Fisher, Jerry Flack, Drew Freeman, John Graf, Allen Green, Lajuana Harper, Nancy Harwell, Kevin Kemper, Kathy Kirkpatrick, Jerry Lakey, Viola Martinez, Sammy Newton, Leonard Porter, Holly Tucker, R.L. Wallace and John Wynn.

Also, Suzie Keller, Kevin Kemper, Tracy Klatt, Bobby Kuykendall, Kathy Martinez, Ivy McGruder, Alfreda Merritt, Pat Mosley, Mary Ortiz, Chris Poteet, Tommy Ramirez, James Roberts, Buck Simmons, Freddie Smith, Steve Synatschk, Holly Tucker, R.L. Wallace, Terri Wilingham, Bryan Wilson and Bradley Wortham.

Athlete Holly Tucker competed and won in all three divisions.

Leaks critic under investigation

By JIM ADAMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the harshest congressional critics of leaks about the Pentagon's Stealth technology is himself under investigation for allegedly leaking classified information about Soviet missile operations.

The House Armed Services Committee was to hold hearings today on charges that Rep. Robin L. Beard, R-Tenn., a member of the panel's investigations subcommittee, issued a press release Sept. 18 based on classified information "furnished him with a clear understanding of its classified nature."

The allegation was made by Rep. Bob Carr, D-Mich., also a member of the subcommittee.

"He's a liar," Beard said of Carr on Tuesday.

Beard said he did not know the information was classified. He said he got it from a congressional employee he will not name, who told him the information would be in an Aviation Week magazine article then being written.

"It did not occur to me that it would be classified," he said.

Beard said his purpose in publishing the information was to criticize what he thought were Soviet violations of arms limitation treaties and to ask the Armed Services Committee to investigate them.

Beard has been outspoken in his criticism of the Carter administration over the Stealth leaks. Stealth is the Pentagon code name for technology it has developed to disguise U.S. aircraft so that they cannot be detected by enemy defenses.

Beard called news leaks about Stealth a "blatantly political" attempt by President Carter to portray his administration as strong on defense in the face of Republican charges he had let U.S. military preparedness slide.

Irrigation settlement reached

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A federal court settlement Tuesday cleared the way for irrigators in western Kansas and seven other states to claim millions of dollars in income tax deductions for pumping irreplaceable water onto their crops.

The settlement was reached by U.S. Justice Department attorneys and lawyers for three western Kansas irrigators who filed the case in 1978 in U.S. District Court in Wichita.

The agreement specifically covers water taken from the Ogallala Aquifer, an underground deposit of water that stretches from southern South Dakota into Texas. Scientists have said that extensive irrigation is draining off the water supply.

The settlement requires the Justice Department to seek a formal ruling from the Internal Revenue Service allowing irrigators in Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming and South Dakota to claim the income tax deductions.

Attorneys representing the irrigators said the settlement could lead to more than $50 million in annual income tax deductions for irrigators in Kansas alone.

They compared it to depletion allowances allowed for other declining resources such as oil.

Pat Regan and Mike Doering, the Wichita attorneys representing the Garden City-area Gigot family that filed the suit, said that from a tax point of view, the settlement is one of the most significant tax decisions ever to affect farmers in the Midwest.

"We could easily be talking about more than $1 billion in potential depletion deductions over the life of the aquifer, just in Kansas," Regan said. He added that the figures become "mindboggling" when totaled for all eight states.

Justice Department lawyers acknowledged the settlement but would not comment on how much the tax break would cost the government.

Regan said that in 1981 deduction claims could be staggering because landowners would be able to claim deductions for the past three years.

Lee High's homecoming parade slated Thursday

Lee High School Band will feature its annual homecoming parade beginning at 6 p.m. Thursday in front of Theatre Midland on Wadley Ave.

The parade will travel down Wadley Avenue to Midkiff Street and onto Neely Avenue in front of the high school.

This is the second year the homecoming parade will be scheduled during the evening hours so more people can attend, according to a band spokesman.

The parade will include the Lee Freshman Band, the Goddard Junior High Band and the Alamo Junior High Band in addition to the Lee High Band.

The band members will arrive at LHS about 7 p.m., when they will begin the bonfire and pep rally for Lee's Friday night game against Odessa High School. Friday's game begins at 8 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Style show to provide pediatric equipment

The Oct. 16 style show sponsored by the Junior Woman's Association is to benefit two projects of the club.

A portion of the benefits will go to the Midland Memorial Hospital pediatric equipment fund and the rest will go for a scholarship endowment to Midland College.

Officers of this year's association are Mrs. Allen Hitchcock, president; Mrs. David Rogers, first vice president; Mrs. Tommy Dillehay, second vice president; Mrs. Clarence Chandler, recording secretary; Mrs. Art Miller, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. James Johnson, treasurer.

The third annual event is to begin at 11 a.m. at the Midland Hilton. Reservations should be made by Oct. 10 and are available by calling 697-1004 and 697-2704.

Several outstanding features of the show, titled "The Total Look for Autumn '80," is the appearance of designer Alexix Kirk, Coty Award winner, who will show is exotic accessories; commentator Suzanne Brien, a former Midlander who is now living in New York and is associated with Kirk; and fashions by Victor Costa.

Costa's holiday line will finale the show. These evening costumes are typically Costa, rich in design and detail, and will be one of the highlights of the afternoon. These fashions and furs will be found at Pappagallo's immediately following the show. Libby Johnson, a representative of Christian Dior, will also be at the

You can patch a hole in the wall and make it look like a professional job. It's really easy, although the task sounds difficult. All the homeowner needs for the job is a knife, piece of gypsumboard and patching compound. Also, you might want to use a saw in one of the steps.

Briefly, you'll just make a well-fitting "plug" for the hole and glue it to the wall with the patching compound.

First, mark a neat rectangle around the damaged area so you can cut a rectangular-shaped hole in the wall. It's easier to patch a neat slope than to patch a jagged hole—so all you're doing here is making the hole a workable shape. Then cut the neat rectangular-shaped hole in the wall.

Next, take a piece of gypsumboard for the patch and make it the same shape—but two inches wider on each side than the hole at FIRST, because you'll save its frontside for a "patching margin" which sticks to the wall holding the plug in place.

"Patching margin" is the part that sounds "tricky", so you'll need to know how it works before you start.

Before you do any cutting at all, look at the gypsumboard. It has a "paper cover" on the frontside and on the backside.

After you've done all the steps below, you'll see that the frontside paper has a special role—it will be the "patching margin".

That's why at FIRST you must make the gypsumboard two inches wider than the hole on all sides—to save that frontside paper for the "patching margin" job it will do.

The frontside paper will remain two inches wider on all sides to form the "patching margin", but eventually the backside paper and the gypsumboard itself will fit the hole in the wall. Steps to make that happen are below:

To cut the gypsumboard, first LAY the rectangular PLUG you just cut out of the wall with the damaged area ONTO THE GYPSUMBOARD. Draw around the outside edges with a pencil. DO ALL OF THIS ON THE BACKSIDE of the gypsumboard.

Then, mark a two-inch wide boundary around all four sides of the plug outline. This boundary marks the "patching margin".

Now you're ready to cut out your new patch—which is still two inches wider on all sides than the hole in the wall.

To do this, score and break or cut through the gypsumboard with a saw. Be sure to cut or saw around the outside boundary of the patch, leaving the "patching margin" border attached or intact.

Now you have a piece of gypsumboard that is two inches wider on all of its sides than the rectangular hole in the wall.

Once you've done that, the next step needs CAREFUL CUTTING—you'll be scoring the backside paper and breaking the gypsumboard to FIT THE WALL HOLE.

Be careful NOT TO CUT THROUGH THE FRONTSIDE PAPER, which will become your "patching margin". Remember this frontside paper must stay intact—as part of the piece of gypsumboard.

This frontside paper will stay the same size as it is now—two inches wider than the patch on all sides. It will stick to the wall as a border around the hole, while the gypsumboard underneath and the backside paper will actually fit into the hole and form the plug for the hole.

To do this careful cutting, score the gypsumboard first. To score it, use a sharp knife to cut through the BACKSIDE paper along that first boundary you marked.

There's no need to apply pressure since you're cutting through the backside paper surface—and not through the gypsumboard yet.

After you've scored through (cut through) the backside paper, move the two-inch "patching margin" over the edge of the table and gently push down with the hand, breaking the gypsumboard along the scored edge.

Now, peel the excess backside paper and gypsumboard away, leaving the "patching margin" on the frontside intact.

Now you're ready to plug the hole. Spread patching compound on the wall around the opening and inside the edges.

Press the patch plug you've just made firmly in place. Hold it there a few minutes until the patching material has "set".

Finally, you'll want to finish the patched area to match the existing wall. Apply patching compound to the entire area. Smooth the material out beyond the edges. Feather the edges so the patch is level with the surface of the wall.

Remove excess patching compound and let the area dry. Reapply another coat of patching compound if shrinkage occurs. Sand the area and, if needed, add texture to match the existing wall.

Prime, if necessary, before painting. Then paint the area—and your wall should "look like new".

Send recipes in for recipe section, contest

It's time to dig up that favorite recipe for The Midland Reporter-Telegram's annual recipe contest and cookbook section, "Recipes '80."

This year's edition will be published as a tabloid supplement to the newspaper Sunday, Nov. 16. It will feature scores of recipes submitted by readers.

Valuable prizes and cash awards for winning entries will be given in each of eight categories. Watch the newspaper for details to be announced.

The categories of recipes will be: (1) Salads; (2) Meats, Fish and Fowl; (3) Casseroles, Vegetables and Side Dishes; (4) Breads; (5) Cakes; (6) Pies; (7) Candy and other Desserts, and; (8) Miscellaneous.

Winners will be announced in "Recipes '80" on Nov. 16. Deadline for entries will be Oct. 16.

All entries will be judged by a panel of professional home economists not connected with the newspaper. The judges will select the best recipe in each category.

Readers are asked to submit only one entry. Entries should be typewritten and all measurements and instructions clearly stated. Any recipes that are unclear will be disqualified.

Each entry should be clearly labeled at the top with the entrant's name, address, telephone number, the name of the recipe and category entered.

Send entries to "Recipes '80," The Midland Reporter-Telegram, P. O. Box 1650, Midland, Texas 79702.

Due to space limitations, recipes will be accepted for the special edition on a first-come, first-serve basis. Therefore, duplicate recipes will not be accepted, so send your recipe in NOW.

The contest is open to everyone in The Reporter-Telegram's retail trading zone except employees and agents of The Reporter-Telegram and their families.

Homemaker's contribution must be considered in divorce suit

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — When courts divide up property in a divorce, they must consider the value a homemaker gives a marriage, not just each partner's financial contribution to the couple's assets, the state's Supreme Court has ruled.

The decision upheld the 1977 Illinois divorce law provision ordering courts to divide property between marriage partners.

contribution, we caution against placing too much emphasis on monetary contributions," a unanimous high court said Monday.

The Newtimer's Bridge Group met at Ranchland Hills Country Club for bridge and lunch.

The winners were Inez Jefferies, first; Natha Patterson, second; and Coney Thomas, third. May Stringer was a guest.

CHAPTER BS OF THE P.E.O. SISTERHOOD

Chapter BS of the P.E.O. Sisterhood held its first meeting of the fall in Midland Country Club.

Mrs. Donald A. Ross entertained 27 members and a guest, Mrs. Charles L. Dougherty, with a luncheon in the Garden Room preceding the meeting.

The next meeting will be Oct. 8 in the home of Mrs. M.E. Grimwood.

SAGEBRUSH EXTENSION HOMEMAKERS

Sagebrush Extension Homemakers Club met in the home of Connie Griffin, 4700 Erie.

Sharon Hillis, Midland County extension agent brought the program "Women and Credit."

Attending the meeting with Mrs. Hillis was her assistant, Cindy Mann. Mrs. Hillis explained the duties of the assistant agent and how Extension Homemakers Clubs began.

Ima Jean Cook conducted the business meeting. The club discussed a project for the coming year and voted to meet Oct. 2 in the home of Mary Lee Washburn to finalize plans for Annual Day Oct. 10.

Meeting was followed by a sandwich luncheon served by Mrs. Griffin.

MIDLAND JUNIOR WOMAN'S CLUB

The members of the Midland Junior Woman's Club kicked off their 1980-81 year with a picnic and evening of social activity for their husbands at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Tom McIntosh, 2813 Lockheed.

The first meeting of the year was held in the home of Mrs. R.C. Doss. Plans for upcoming meetings and socials were announced. President Karen McIntosh said that the theme this year will be "A Woman for All Seasons."

A report was given about Story Hour at the Midland County Library which is sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club. Story Hour is on Tuesday mornings at 9:30 a.m. at the library.

The club will again give the proceeds from the spring Parade of Homes to support the Palmer Drug Abuse Program. During the meeting, Bob Savage of PDAP gave an informative talk on the work-of PDAP in the Midland area.

After a short history of Junior Woman's Club by Jane Malaise, the meeting was adjourned and a basket lunch was served.

One million divorces

Approximately one million couples divorce every year in the United States, says Cindy Wilson, a family life education specialist.

She is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

Also, there are another one million permanent separations and desertions each year, she says.

Dance set here

Proceeds from a western charity dance Saturday in Midland will go toward research and care for children suffering from cancer.

The fifth annual Western Charity Dance sponsored by Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority begins at 9 p.m. at the American Legion Hall, 501 Air Park Road.

Shade Country, a local Western band, will provide the entertainment. Tickets are $10 a couple and $6 a person.

The sorority chapters sponsoring the dance are Beta Omega and Beta Eta. Members are also providing opportunities to win a pair of lizard skin cowboy boots which were donated by Western State Bank and a gold bracelet donated by Christiani's Jewelers. More information is available from any sorority member or at the dance.

St. Jude's was founded in 1962 by entertainer Danny Thomas who was concerned about childhood cancer, most notably acute lymphocytic leukemia. Research and child care has since saved the lives of thousands of children and treatment developed at St. Jude's is being used throughout the world.

Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority is focusing their efforts on neuroblastoma which annually attacks one in every 100,000 children and is uniformly fatal unless detected at an early stage.

Coast Guard proposes rules for ship channel

HOUSTON (AP) — The Coast Guard has announced publication of proposed rules that would require all vessels traveling through the Houston Ship Channel to use its traffic safety system.

"The proposed regulations are intended to minimize the risks of collisions, ramming and groundings, thereby contributing to the safety of people and property," Cmdr. Kenneth Thompson, director of the Vessel Traffic Safety System, said Tuesday.

Public hearings on the proposed regulations are scheduled Oct. 28 in Houston and Oct. 29 in Galveston.

DEAR ABBY

A rose by any other color...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A reader wrote in to say that a co-worker had planned to carry a bridal bouquet of black roses. She asked, "Is this proper? And don't black roses symbolize death?"

You replied, "Black roses? You're putting me on!"

Abby, just because you've never seen black roses doesn't mean that there aren't any.

The Tidings, a Catholic publication recently carried an article titled, "A Priest Who Grew Roses." The priest, the Rev. George Schoener, also was a botanist who gained a nation reputation for having developed numerous new strains of roses, of which the beautiful coal-black rose was one.

The Salem, Ore., Journal conferred the title of "El Padre de las Rosas" on Father Schoener in 1936. Thought you should know. Adios.—CARLOS G.

DEAR CARLOS: Gracias. And all along I thought with Gertrude Stein that a rose was a rose was a rose.

Unfortunately, I limited my research to California rose-growers, none of whom had ever heard of a black rose. I should have called Gerry Frank, my friend in Salem. He knows all there is to know about Oregon products.

Ten whacks for Abby with a long-stemmed American beauty—thorns and all.

DEAR ABBY: We invited a family of six to spend Labor Day weekend at our summer place. The children ranged from 7 to 17 years old. (We have no children.)

The children helped themselves to whatever they found in the fridge at all hours of the day and night. The first day they ate nearly everything we had planned to serve for the entire weekend.

On Sunday we invited some neighbors in for Sunday buffet. The visiting children got into line first, loaded their plates up ate fast, and came back for seconds before some of the adults even had a first helping! Their parents either didn't see or didn't care what was going on.

After these weekend guests left, I could have kicked myself for not having found some way to control the situation.

Needless to say, this family will never be invited back. How would you have handled it?—MAD AT MYSELF

DEAR MAD: Probably much the same way you did—or didn't—handle it. It's awkward to discipline young guests when their parents are present and look out the window.

Since 20-20 hindsight is always useless, your decision never to invite them back is understandable.

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe I've actually joined the "I-never-thought-I'd-be-writing-to-Debbie-Glennon" club, but here I am.

You recently wrote, in praise of the tape recorder: "If we could hear ourselves as others hear us, many of the world's ills could be cured. So, if you're living with a whiny child, a screaming (or nagging) mate, or someone who says 'Ya know' a lot, get it on tape!"

Abby, how right you are! When our son was 16, he came home from a party drunk. I taped the teary, maudlin, incoherent monologue he recited in my presence that night and played it back for him (privately, of course) the next afternoon. He was ashamed and appalled. Had he not heard it himself, he never would have believed how he sounded.

Today he is a healthy, well-adjusted, 24-year-old man who takes an occasional drink—but never to excess. Sign me...A LOVING DAD

Lee homecoming activities set

Robert E. Lee High School Homecoming will be Friday at Memorial Stadium highlighting the game between the Robert E. Lee Rebels and the Odessa High Bronchos.

The homecoming duchesses for 1980 are Lori Breeding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Breeding; Stacy Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Lewis; Aretha McGruder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Couette; Pam Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Taylor; and Laura Walters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.M. Walters. They were elected in an all school election from over 50 senior nominees.

The duchesses will be honored in a parade along with many other organizations Thursday at 6 p.m. The parade will begin at Theatre Midland on Wadley Ave. The Lee Band will turn on Midkiff to Neely. The parade will conclude at the west parking lot on the Lee Campus with a bonfire following.

In another general election, the student body will elect the homecoming queen from the five duchesses. The queen will not be announced until halftime at the game Friday night.

Groups join forces on joint project

National Urban League and National PTA will launch their first joint project Thursday at Urban League Headquarters in Detroit.

Targeting on improving the quality of education in the urban environment, the two organizations initially will explore ways of working together most effectively to utilize their diverse resources.

Copley News Service

According to NEXT magazine, the major credit cards, having found their way into virtually all the nation's pusher wallets and purses, are about to lose many of the very cost advantages that made them so popular. A survey by Payment Systems, Inc., a subsidiary of American Express, predicts:

—The imposition of $6 to $12 yearly fees because bank card issuers say their credit card operations are just barely making money.

—The gradual erosion through 1985 of the 30-day-no-interest grace period, which means you'll have to pay your 18 percent (or possibly a reduced rate) from the day of purchase.

—Increased emphasis on profits, even if that means raising standards for eligibility, limiting issuance of new cards and tougher payment schedules such as those recently announced by Citibank.

In Rhode Island, Industrial National Bank has already slapped a $10 annual fee on its credit-card accounts.

But a spokesman for Interbank's MasterCard predicts most issuers will try to avoid annual fees as long as possible. "Nobody really wants to be the first on the block," he says. Some harbingers: Union Planters National Bank in Memphis, Tenn., recently told its card holders they will have to cough up $5 when they exceed their line of credit, $5 for a late payment and $10 if their check bounces.

And in New York, Citibank announced a 50 cent monthly fee on inactive credit-card accounts and on accounts paid in full on months with no new charges the following month. But it dropped the plan when card holders protested.

Instead, in one of the more imaginative twists in the profitability game, Citibank is now considering paying card holders interest on what it calls "credit balances." The catch is that you have to put more up in advance than you expect to owe. Citibank will then deduct your monthly payment. You earn interest, at a rate not yet determined, on the excess, turning the credit card into a sort of savings account.

Such varied programs will make it increasingly worthwhile over the next few years to shop around for the best credit-card deal.

Bankers seem sanguine about the prospect of losing some credit-card business. They hope the new "disincentives" will reduce inactive accounts (from 33 to 15 percent, PSI predicts) and discourage what they call "non-revolvers" — card holders who pay up late enough to take advantage of the grace period but too soon to incur interest charges.

If the grace period is eliminated and annual fees become the rule, "non-revolvers" and others who now use credit cards mainly for convenience, rather than for installment credit, may want to switch to debit cards, where you'll have a lower annual fee or no fee at all.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Stain resistance isn't proof

DEAR HELOISE:

I recently bought a blouse made of synthetic fabric which had a "stain-resistant" label in it. However, somehow, I got a stain on it which will not come out, despite all my efforts.

Why the label if I still have trouble with spots? — Joyce Akers

Another thing our friends at the Guild advise against is improper rinsing of laundry detergents from garments which have these stain-resistant finishes, as this will greatly diminish their effectiveness also.

I hope these few tips have been of some help in clearing up any misconceptions you and others may have had concerning these finishes, and our thanks to the Guild for their expert advice.

And, don't fail to seek the advice of your favorite dry cleaner when you need help with a stain. As always, the sooner the better! — Hugs, Heloise

The tape picked up all those short little hairs and he avoided an early bath. Smart kid, huh! — Terri Finch and Nathan, Age 5 a hint or a problem write to Heloise in care of this newspaper. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Many garments are appearing on the market these days with a "stain-resistant" label, but you have to keep in mind that stain-resistant does not mean "stain-proof," according to Milton Yablon, president of the Guild of Professional Dry Cleaners.

He further says, "Stain resistant finishes applied to fabrics during the manufacturing process will NOT prevent a garment or household fabric from staining. It will merely prolong the amount of time it takes for a substance to penetrate the fibers."

In other words, dear heart, if you don't get to the stain pretty pronto, you could be in for a heap of trouble, label or no label.

Not only this, these stain-resistant finishes can be harmed, or affected, by laundry detergents, chemicals, heat, abrasion and no telling what else, over a period of time, thus losing some of their "resisting" powers.

So, for this reason, if you do accidentally spill something on your clothes, and cleaning solutions are not available at the time or, are not convenient to use, wipe the spot with a rather damp cloth immediately (use cool water) or blot up as much of the stain as possible.

This will serve as a temporary measure to help prevent setting of the stain and many times, is all that's needed to remove it, if done promptly.

DEAR HELOISE: If you've ever had a dog, you probably know how exasperating it is to try to give him a pill. Here's how I solved the problem.

I get a half slice of luncheon meat and fold it around the pill, then give it to the dog while holding the other half slice before his nose.

He gulps down the first piece with the pill in it with no trouble because he's so anxious to get at the second piece.

It really works, especially when the dog is hungry. — Joan

Aren't dogs always hungry for people food! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: My 5-year-old son came up with a good idea...

After I had finished cutting his hair, all the short hairs were sticking to his neck and itching and I couldn't brush them off. He suggested transparent sticky tape.

BUSINESS MIRROR Small business support is safe for politicians

In their study, for the Center for the Study of American Business, they say one of the most serious threats to small firms is the need to make big capital expenditures to meet environmental or safety standards. Typically, they say, a small company must rely on relatively short-term debt to finance its operations...

The White House now has a "small business advocate," and early this year it threw a huge conference on small business that produced 60 recommendations, 11 resolutions and a reaffirmation of goals. The Small Business Administration busily schedules get-togethers on small business topics, the latest of which, "A Conference on Small Business and Senior Citizens," was completed in Phoenix last week.

In Denver last month the National Governors' Association unanimously committed itself to "cooperation in working at both state and national levels to encourage growth and development of small business." And nothing less than a substantial volume could list all the legislators, mayors and city officials who have orated on their undying devotion to the principles and accomplishments of small business.

Why, then, does small business continue to feel harassed by the very institutions represented by mayors, governors, senators and presidents? One obvious answer is that conferences, recommendations, resolutions and promises don't of themselves solve problems. Another is that many officials seem ignorant of small-business needs. And a suspicion also exists that perhaps the bureaucracy is somewhat out of control.

Two esteemed researchers, Kenneth W. Chilton and Murray L. Weidenbaum, document what seems to be a naive belief on the part of some government policymakers and much of the public that the regulatory system is neutral with respect to the size of the business firm.

commitment last fall — until Mrs. Byrne embraced Kennedy. Goldschmidt denied any political motivations in his grantmanship, declaring, "I will not fly over Chicago dropping money for this election." The next day the city and its suburbs received $91.8 million in federal transportation grants. A few days later, Mrs. Byrne visited the White House and said she's ready to campaign for Carter.

Because Goldschmidt's department dispenses considerable grant money for transit, highways, railroads and other transportation projects, he has become among the most political of the Cabinet secretaries. One day he may be in Detroit, announcing a Carter program to aid laid-off auto workers and financially pressed dealers. The next day he may be in Canton, Ohio, or another city in a key battleground state, announcing a transit grant.

This sort of thing has prompted independent candidate John Anderson to comment: "Here is President Carter using the incumbency like no other president before him. There are more federal grants pouring out of Washington today than ever before, as if that were some great cornucopia being emptied all over the country." In other recent moves which appear aimed at bolstering Carter politically, the Agriculture Department dropped efforts to head off a pre-election increase in federal milk price supports, and the administration, fearful of a fight with business and labor, has postponed a scheduled revision of its voluntary wage-price guidelines program until after Nov. 4.

Another big advantage for the incumbent is how he can make those paid television commercials which have a large influence on the electorate. Reagan commercials to date mainly have been low-key "talking heads," as they are called, with Carter simply speaking into a camera about the issues. The first Carter commercials, on the other hand, have been full of presidential drama. Carter first employed the strategy earlier this year when he said he had to stick close to Washington because of the seizure of the American hostages in Iran and the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. In doing so, he avoided a debate with primary challenger Edward M. Kennedy and outtook him in the polls. When Kennedy began making a strong showing late in the primaries, the president declared these crises manageable and went campaigning.

One was the transfer of a parcel of federal land to Chicago that will allow construction of a new international terminal at O'Hare International Airport. Carter was close to making that. Process Superintendent Dave Myers said the blaze broke out about 1:30 a.m. in the gas compressor area of a "fluid catalytic cracking unit," used in the oil production process. Myers said the injured men were operating the unit at the time. There was no explosion, he said, just a flash fire which was brought under control by company personnel within 45 minutes.

WESTLAKE, La. (AP) — A fire in a production unit at a Conoco Inc. oil refinery early today injured three men and caused an undetermined amount of damage, the company said. Temple holds lead in AP prep grid poll

By The Associated Press Temple in Class 5A, Bay City in 4A, Breckenridge in 3A and Pilot Point in 2A rolled on as the top-ranked teams in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll in a light week of action with only 26 of the 50 ranked teams playing games.

The only blemish suffered by any of the ranked team's was in Class 2A where No. 5 Tidehaven was tied by Ingleside and dropped to the No. 9 position this week.

There was minor shuffling in 5A and 4A however.

Temple, Plano and Port Arthur Jefferson remained the big three in 5A following open dates last week but Brazoswood leapfrogged from fifth to fourth place ahead of Highland Park. Brazoswood defeated Bellaire 35-0 and Highland Park blasted Denison 35-10.

Bryan, No. 10 last week, moved ahead of Eules Trinity into the No. 9 spot this week.

Beaumont Hebert, the Class 4A runnerup last week, dropped to fourth after a 14-10 victory over Houston Forest Brook and Gregory-Portland and Gainesville each moved ahead of Hebert.

Wichita Falls Hirschi also moved from 10th to ninth and Paris dropped one spot.

Breckenridge remained the most popular vote getter in any classification, receiving 22 of the 24 first place votes cast in 3A by the AP panel of Texas sports writers and sportscasters. There were no position changes in 3A.

The big battle in 3A was for second place with Childress holding off No. 3 Hallettsville by a mere one point, 193-192. Hallettsville got two first place votes to none for Childress.

Shiner, Panhandle, Dublin and Seagraves all moved ahead of Tidehaven following its tie.

Astros, Expos spoilers

Dodgers down Giants in 10 innings

By The Associated Press For more seasons than they can remember, the Montreal Expos and Houston Astros have been playing the roles of spoilers.

This season, though, they're learning how the other half lives — and loving every minute of it, despite the mounting pressure of a pennant race.

"We're loose and we know the championship is within our grasp," Andre Dawson said after the front-running Expos defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 Tuesday night and hung tough in the National League East.

"We have to go out and apply ourselves and use the talent we have," added Dawson, who had two of three Montreal triples against the Cardinals. "It's fun but it's also hard work. And we can't afford to make mistakes."

The Expos thus maintained their half-game advantage over the Philadelphia Phillies, 14-2 winners over the Chicago Cubs.

The Astros, meanwhile, beat the Atlanta Braves 7-3 and maintained a two-game advantage in the West over the Los Angeles Dodgers, who beat the San Francisco Giants 6-3 in 10 innings.

"If we keep knocking them off one at a time like this, we'll be OK," said Houston's Terry Puhl. "Atlanta can hit the ball, and once they start hitting, they can be awesome. But we came through when we had to."

Elsewhere in the NL, San Diego edged Cincinnati 3-2 and New York beat Pittsburgh 3-2.

Triples by Rodney Scott and Dawson ignited a five-run, sixth-inning rally for the Expos.

With the Expos trailing 2-1 and Cardinal starter Bob Forsch, 11-10, rolling along with a four-hitter, Scott blooped a hit into left field with one out in the sixth and wound up on third when the ball caromed from charging Leon Durham. Rowland Office brought Scott home with the tying run on an infield out.

Dawson then stroked his second triple of the game and Gary Carter followed with a run-scoring double, putting the Expos ahead 3-2. Warren Cromartie was intentionally walked and Larry Parrish followed with a three-run homer, his 15th of the year.

Astros 7, Braves 3 Jose Cruz hit a three-run double and Nolan Ryan shut out Atlanta for 51-3 innings before needing relief help as the Astros defeated the Braves.

Ryan, 11-9, scattered eight hits and struck out eight to give him a career total of 3,100 strikeouts, fourth best in the major leagues. Ryan left in the sixth after yielding four hits and three runs.

Cruz's blow came in the fifth after Doyle Alexander, 14-10, had loaded the bases on walks to Joe Morgan and Puhl and a single by Enos Cabell.

Phillies 14, Cubs 2 Unbeaten rookie Marty Bystrom won his fifth game since coming to the NL on Sept. 1 as Philadelphia walloped Chicago.

Bystrom, 22, worked seven innings and gave up just four hits while striking out six and walking four.

Dodgers 6, Giants 3 Pedro Guerrero belted a three-run homer in the top of the 10th to lead Los Angeles over Pittsburgh.

Angeles over San Francisco. It was the Dodgers' 35th come-from-behind victory of the year, and the 22nd game they have won in their final at bat.

The Dodger comeback began in the ninth, when they scored twice on RBI singles by Guerrero and Steve Garvey to tie the game at 3-3.

"People have to give us credit tonight," said Garvey. "Knowing that Houston had won, we could easily have given up. This was one game that showed a lot of heart."

Padres 3, Reds 2 Gene Tenace drilled a tie-breaking solo homer in the sixth inning as San Diego edged Cincinnati behind John Curtis' eight-hitter.

Curtis, 10-8, recorded his sixth straight victory and seventh in his last eight games. Charlie Leibbrandt, 10-9, victim of Tenace's homer, was the loser.

Mets 3, Pirates 2 Pete Falcone scattered seven hits and Alex Trevino drove in two runs, including the tie-breaking run with a sacrifice fly in the seventh inning, to lead New York over Pittsburgh.

Randy Crawford posts net win in USTA/Penn

By TED BATTLES Five of the top 16 seeds in the 64-player USTA/Penn National Circuit field were sidelined in Tuesday's first round of play, but No. 1 seeded Randy Crawford came through, after a hesitant start, as expected.

Crawford, former All-America from Texas Christian University, dropped his first set to Tim Kohlberg of New York, 6-7, but then rallied for a 6-4, 7-5 victory.

Highest seeded player to fall was Rohun Beven, No. 7, who bowed to Rob Hunt 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. Others to bite the dust were 10th seeded Curt Stadler, No. 11 Bill Cispkay, No. 14 Jeff Simpson and No. 15 Maurice Hunter.

Play continues today at the Midland High courts with eight singles matches scheduled at 10 a.m. and eight more to follow immediately after the conclusion of the first matches. Doubles play begins at 3 p.m.

The tournament concludes Sunday with singles and doubles finals at the Racquet Club.

The Midland Tennis Club sponsored tournament is the second segment of the season's sixth circuit. The top 32 players after the first four tournaments in the segment will qualify for a fifth, Masters, tournament, which will be held at Wichita Falls, following stops in Abilene and Beaumont.

One of the surprise contenders is Rick Meyers, who hadn't played on the satellite tour until last week in El Paso. The former Abilene Cooper-Texas Christian star not only entered, but won and Tuesday he joined Crawford in today's second round by beating Mark Saunders 6-1, 6-4.

Second seeded Fred McNair, Chevy Chase, Md., won over Wesley Cash 6-3, 6-2 while Erick Iskersky, No. 3 seeded, defeated Danny Oleson 6-4, 6-1.

Meyers won the MTC Fall Tournament last year when it was more of a collegiate open and Iskersky took the title in 1977.

McNair, who won the French Open doubles championship in 1976 and the 1977 Grand Prix Masters title as a partner of Sherwood Stewart, will team up with Mike Estep to form one of the top doubles teams.

Meyers picked up 32 circuit points for his victory at El Paso and if he can convert that into a spot in the final 32 of the year's final segment, that will be an automatic ATP point. In fact, if he were to win the segment, it would mean 18 ATP points, which move him up some 75 to 100 places in the world rankings and closer to one of the 110 spots on the Volvo Grand Prix tour. That, of course, is what the sacrifice and scrambling on the satellite tour is all about.

Tuesday's results in the USTA/Penn National Circuit matches at Midland High: Randy Crawford (1) def. Tim Kohlberg 6-7, 6-4, 7-5; Nigel O'Rourke def. Brian Hall 6-1, 7-4; John Botica def. Zimmer awaits future after tonight's game with Orioles

BOSTON (AP) — Manager Don Zimmer of the Boston Red Sox expected to learn his future with the club today, perhaps after tonight's game with the Baltimore Orioles. "I don't know what is going to happen," Zimmer said following Tuesday night's 11-6 loss to the Orioles at Fenway Park. "I wouldn't want to say I'm being fired and then find myself rehired. I just don't know. However, they had an organizational meeting today (Tuesday) and the manager usually attends it. I wasn't invited." Although most observers figure Zimmer will get the ax, neither Zimmer nor club officials would speculate Tuesday night whether he would be back in 1981. "I expect to be told some time Wednesday," Zimmer said during Tuesday night's game with the Orioles.

'Gold Rush', Homecoming activities stir football fans

Football excitement is running rampant this week at both Midland High and Midland Lee as Friday's District 5-5A opener near.

Midland High travels to Odessa Permian Friday for an 8 p.m. encounter at W. T. Barrett Stadium, and the school has unleashed its new "Gold Rush" theme to help kickoff the district season.

All Midland High fans are urged to wear something gold for the game in Odessa. The new theme will be carried out for the entire season and promoters are hoping that "gold" clad fans will become a fixture at all future games.

The new theme is being pushed by MHS booster organizations, including band, Key Club, Pack Backers, Booster Club and student council.

A shimmering "Gold Rush" logo is currently being prepared to be displayed at MHS games, and there will be other promotional efforts as the season progresses, including a panning for gold before Homecoming. The Midland High Booster Club has many "gold" oriented items, including decals, T-shirts and hats.

Meanwhile, Lee fans will be celebrating Homecoming 1980 this week. Lee High students will stage a Homecoming parade Thursday at 6 p.m., which will conclude with a giant bonfire behind the vocational building at the school.

The parade will begin at 6 p.m. Thursday at the Midland Community Theatre on Wadley. The parade will move west to Midkiff before turning south to Neely. At Neely, the parade will turn west again and end at the school. A giant pep rally, complete with bonfire, will follow.

Lee will also crown a Homecoming Queen Friday at half-time of the Odessa High-Lee football game at Memorial Stadium. That contest is also slated for an 8 p.m. start.

Tickets for both games went on sale today at the Midland Athletic Office, located at the northeast corner of Memorial Stadium. Tickets will be on sale through Friday.

Yankees slipping while Orioles are surging

By The Associated Press The New York Yankees are slipping, the Baltimore Orioles are surging. The American League East has a pennant race once again, and Orioles Manager Earl Weaver is having trouble concentrating.

"What was the score of our game?" Weaver asked after the Orioles whipped the Boston Red Sox 11-6 Tuesday night while the first-place Yankees were dropping a seesaw 12-9 decision to Cleveland.

Those results cut the Yankees' lead in the AL East to 2 1/2 games. It's still a sizeable margin, since New York has only five games to play and Baltimore four. But for the Orioles the outlook is much brighter than it was as recently as Saturday, when they trailed by 5 1/2 games.

"We were listening to it in the dug-out," Weaver said of the Yankee game. "Rick Dempsey had the radio on so loud I couldn't think. I'd hear a cheer at the end of the dugout, then I'd hear moans — the guys wouldn't let me concentrate."

"But that's half the fun of a pennant race. The other half is winning."

In other games, the Oakland A's beat the Chicago White Sox 5-1, the Kansas City Royals edged the Seattle Mariners 7-5 in 14 innings, the Detroit Tigers topped the Toronto Blue Jays 5-3 and the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the California Angels 4-2. Minnesota at Texas was rained out.

Baltimore staked Mike Flanagan to 10 runs in the first five innings, breezed by Boston and turned its attention to the radio for reports on the Yankee game.

"We tuned in for the three-run homer that made it 9-8," said Orioles shortstop Mark Belanger, referring to Dennis Werth's seventh-inning homer that gave the Yankees a brief lead. "Then Super Joe came through."

Rookie Joe Charboneau's RBI single tied the score and started a four-run eighth-inning rally that gave the Indians the victory.

Baltimore got 15 hits in beating Boston, including home runs by Ken Singleton, Eddie Murray and Dan Graham. But Belanger was looking ahead.

"There's nothing much we can do," he conceded. "We just have to try to win our last four in a row."

Indians 12, Yankees 9

Even though the Yankees have lost more than half their lead in just four days, Manager Dick Howser is staying away from the panic button.

"We're still three up in the loss column," Howser observed. "They still have to come get us."

"They can't come much tougher than that. We're not used to losing these kind of games," said Howser, whose club allowed eight runs in the second inning, fought back to lead 9-8 only to lose as ace reliever Rich Gosage surrendered four runs in the eighth.

After Charboneau singled home the tying run, Mike Hargrove delivered a two-run single and Ron Hassey, an RBI single for the Indians.

A's 5, White Sox 1

Rickey Henderson broke Ty Cobb's 65-year-old AL record by stealing his 97th base for the A's. Only two players have stolen more bases in one season — Lou Brock of St. Louis stole 118 in 1974 and Maury Wills stole 104 in 1962.

Royals 7, Mariners 5

George Brett slammed a three-run home run off Mike Parrott in the 14th inning to snap Kansas City's eight-game losing streak. He went 3-for-6 to raise his batting average to .387 and he also boosted his RBI total to 115, a club record.

Tigers 5, Blue Jays 3

Alan Trammell, who had five hits on Monday, continued to feast on Toronto pitching with a pair of home runs Tuesday night. "I've never hit two home runs in a game before, not even Little League," said the 22-year-old shortstop.

Brewers 4, Angels 2

Ben Oglivie took over the AL home run lead with his 39th of the season for Milwaukee, a two-run shot in the first inning.

Bob McClure didn't allow a hit in 52-3 innings and posted his 10th victory in five decisions as a starter, with a save from Mike Caldwell. McClure, 5-8 overall, made his major league start on Sept. 1 after 2 1/2 relief appearances in six seasons.

5-5A poses same questions and answers?

Until now, the 1980 football season has had its share of high points and low points, but it still seems as if we have been living in limbo of time to come.

Time has caught up with us, however, and Friday night "THE SEASON" begins. It doesn't really matter now if your favorite District 5-5A team is 0-3, 3-0 or somewhere in between. It's a time of new beginning.

Playoff hopes swirl like fantasies in a dream. Friday night we will know if daring to dream is a positive or negative. We can't put it off any longer.

The old saying in the Little Southwest Conference is that you can't win a title with two losses. So a loss on opening night is already close to ringing the death knell for all involved. An opening 5-5A loss is like having one foot in the grave. You can still come back to life, but chances are you won't.

So, the first step into league warfare always seems to have added importance. Either win quick, or learn to live on the brink for the rest of the season. Here is a look at 5-5A's opening night.

ODESSA HIGH AT MIDLAND LEE: The Lee Rebels have designated this one as Homecoming, and there probably is not a better time for it.

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Many think both teams have a shot at the title, but both are considered dark horses.

From past games, this one has to be figured as a virtual tossup. Four of the past five games have been decided by a mere one-point margin, with Lee winning three of the last five. In 1977, OHS won by a 13-7 margin, but even that game was decided in the last three seconds when the Bronchos won on a 90-yard TD pass. In 1976, Lee lost to OHS, 15-14, but went on to win the district title. Anyway you look at this game, it has never been one for the faint of heart. Odessa High leads the series by a 12-9 count. Both teams need to win Friday to boost dark horse hopes.

MIDLAND HIGH AT ODESSA PERMIAN: There is no more important game on the schedule for Midland High. The Bulldogs have had more hopes dashed after this game than any other matchup in the district. Permian has won 18 of the 21 meetings between the two schools, and when the Panthers win, the Bulldogs seem to falter badly. Just knowing that they can beat Permian could be the glue MHS needs this year for a title run.

Mojo is undefeated as usual at this stage. Mojo is favored again Friday, and they should be until MHS can prove different. The Purple Pack has not beaten Permian since 1973 when the Bulldogs pulled off a 21-8 upset under John Reddell at Memorial Stadium. That victory ended a 22-game winning streak by Permian. But Permian has dominated the series, usually winning by big margins. If MHS is to be a true contender, they must win this one.

ABILENE HIGH AT BIG SPRING: Big Spring is sky high after winning two of three games against AAAA teams, but optimism must be tempered when thinking about the gruesome 5-5A schedule. The Steers have lost 37 straight district outings, a 5½ year drought that has set all kinds of negative district records. In 1974, the Steers defeated Abilene Cooper, 12-7, for their last league win. That drought figures to continue Friday against the Eagles.

The Eagles have shown an ability to score a lot of points this season, and led state ranked Temple, 21-0, this year before falling apart in the fourth quarter. AHS has the ability to defeat anyone on the right night.

SAN ANGELO AT ABILENE COOPER: The defending champion Cougars have more than enough muscle to make a repeat title bid, but few think any team can go through this year's schedule undefeated as Cooper did a year ago. However, Cooper should stand head and shoulders above San Angelo Friday. Cooper's test will come much later. Cooper has had some close calls this year, including a squeaker against AAAA Brownwood, but they are a power to be concerned with.

There was a time, and not in the too distant past, that San Angelo's only worry was how to beat Odessa Permian. But the Bobcats have fallen on hard times, and they now worry about getting into the win column against anyone. The way it looks now, San Angelo may be playing Big Spring in the season finale with last place at stake. That one could be Big Spring's chance to end that dreadful streak.

In short, Friday night is a new beginning — 1980 style — but it is easy to see that the same questions are on the lips. If there really is to be a new beginning, there will have to be some different answers to the questions.

Baylor sophomore grabs SWC honors

The Baylor University media guide says Charles Benson could be the surprise of the Bear defense in 1980. He was Saturday night.

The sophomore from Houston Aldine was a backup middle linebacker last year but was shuttled to defensive end in spring training. It was a move with a golden touch by head Coach Grant Teaff and defensive coordinator Corky Nelson.

Benson sacked Texas Tech quarterback Ron Reeves six times in Baylor's 11-3 victory over the Red Raiders to earn The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week award in a close race with Rice linebacker Robert Williams, who swarmed all over Louisiana State with 18 tackles.

The 6-foot-3, 237-pound Benson made a total of 14 tackles, 10 of them unassisted. He had seven tackles behind the line of scrimmage for 30 yards in losses as Baylor set a school record by branding Tech with a minus 36 yards rushing.

"He's inexperienced but will get better and better with each game," said Nelson. "Charles could play all seven defensive front positions but he's the prototype defensive end." Benson, defensive tackle Joe Campbell and All-American linebacker Mike Singletary paralyzed the Red Raider offense.

Benson said he learned pass rushing techniques from Andrew Melon-tree, defensive player of the game in the Peach Bowl and now with the professionals.

"I watched his pass rush technique," said Benson. "Against Tech most of the time the blocker would anticipate outside rush and I would take him inside."

Chuck Muncie is excited about being with Chargers

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Running back Chuck Muncie, obviously happy to be traded to San Diego after disciplinary problems in New Orleans with the Saints, says he expects to help the Chargers win a Super Bowl berth. Coach Don Coryell says he accepts the challenge of molding Muncie into a team player and will use him Sunday against the Buffalo Bills.

"Sure, it's a gamble," Coryell said after uncle arrived Monday night. "It's a gamble we're willing to take."

Midland, Permian tangle in doubleheader

A big doubleheader between the Midland and Odessa Permian sophomores and junior varsity football teams Thursday, highlights action this weekend.

Permian's sophs, sporting a 3-0 record, take on the Midland High sophomore unit which is 2-1, at the MHS practice field at 4 p.m. while in JV action, Thursday, Permian (2-0), square off with the Midland Bullpups (2-0) in Memorial Stadium at 7 p.m. in a game of unbeaten teams.

While Midland and Mojo are squaring off in Midland, the Midland Lee JV (1-0) takes on the OHS JVs (2-1) at Joe Coleman Field in Odessa on the OHS campus.

Big Spring (0-2-1) plays at Abilene (2-1-0) on Saturday afternoon while Abilene Cooper and San Angelo are open.

Last week, San Angelo edged Abilene Cooper, 7-6, to bring it's JV mark to 3-1 while OHS beat Monahans and Pecos disposed of Big Spring. Those two scores were not available.

In sophomore action last week, Odessa Permian blasted the Midland Lee sophs, 29-0 while OHS beat Fort Stockton, 14-6 and Abilene's sophs beat the Wylie JV, 27-7.

Games this week besides the MHS-Permian sophomore game Thursday, finds Cooper playing Abilene at 10:30 a.m. All other sophomore units are open. Big Spring does not field a sophomore team.

WBL seeking commissioner

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The primary order of business in today's meeting of the governors of the Women's Professional Basketball League was to select a commissioner to succeed Bill Byrne.

Byrne is stepping down to avoid conflict of interest in his new role as owner and operator of the WBL's new franchise in Tampa Bay.

Governors of the 13-team circuit also will consider the status of the Milwaukee Express.

Mail drawing set

A second mail drawing will be held in early November for the Cotton Bowl game, but fans may begin to order now.

Tickets are $15 each, no limit on the number. Each application must include $1 handling fee and $2 for more than 20 tickets. Checks should be made payable to the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, P.O. Box 47420, Dallas...

USC ready to battle Sun Devils

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's our school's 100th birthday. It's Homecoming. It's our first conference game of the season, against the only team to beat us in the last two years."

University of Southern California Coach John Robinson, ticking off reasons his fourth-ranked Trojans should be amply motivated for Saturday's game against Arizona State, added, "I think we'll pay attention."

The Trojans are 3-0 in 1980 and riding a 23-game unbeaten streak. Only Alabama, which has won its last 24 outings, currently has a longer string. Arizona State, which handed Southern Cal its last loss, 20-7 in 1978, brings a 2-1 record into Saturday's meeting in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

"We're proud of the fact we don't lose very often," said Robinson, whose record at Southern Cal is 45-6-1. "While we don't talk about revenge — I don't think hate has any place in sports today — we do talk about payback."

Odesa teams leading 9th grade standings

Odesa Nimitz and Odesa Crockett continue to lead the 9th grade football race with unbeaten records after three games while in the 8th grade standings, Nimitz is also on top with a 2-0-0 mark followed by Midland San Jacinto and Midland Alamo with 2-0-1 records.

In games last week in 9th grade action, Crockett edged past Midland Lee Maroon, 16-12 while Nimitz shut out Midland Gold, 16-0. Odesa Hood posted a 12-6 upset over Lee White while the Odesa Bonham-Midland Purple game was called off due to wet grounds and the game may be made up at a later date.

Alamo and Midland Goddard battled to an 8-8 tie to highlight 8th grade action last week while San Jacinto blanked Odesa Bowie, 24-0 in the main. Nimitz shut out Bonham in a game of Odesa elevens while Odesa Blackshear posted a 12-6 win over Crockett. Hood was open.

Holmes facing can't win situation

LAS VEGAS, Nevada (AP) — Larry Holmes approaches the defense of his World Boxing Council heavyweight championship Thursday night in something of a can't win situation.

If he defeats Muhammad Ali, he knows critics will say Ali, at age 38, is over the hill making the victory a hollow one.

If he loses to Ali, he knows critics will say Holmes never was much of a champion anyway, beating inferior opponents on the road to the throne.

Holmes is fully aware of the Catch-22 situation. "I will win," he says rather matter-of-factly, "because I'd rather have them say I beat an old Ali than a young Larry Holmes."

Holmes is one month short of his 31st birthday, not exactly young by sports standards. But he is eight years younger than Ali and those years could make a difference over the course of 15 rounds.

"I'm young and strong and full of endurance," said Holmes, dipping into a little Ali-type poetry. "He needs insurance."

Well, maybe not insurance, but certainly Ali will need all his tools Thursday night. And the suspicion in Holmes' camp is that two years away from the ring will have rusted those tools for Ali.

Since Ali won back the WBA version of the title in September, 1978, he has been idle. Over that same period, Holmes has won seven fights and none of those bouts have gone the distance.

"This is the fourth fight this year," Holmes said. "I've been very active and I'm good."

And yet, there are those people around the fight game who wonder just how good Holmes really is. Critics point to his flatfooted, straight-up style. He is not what you would call fast, certainly not as fast as Ali was in his prime.

The list of people he has beaten is hardly awe-inspiring. His last two defenses have been against Leroy Jones and Scott Ledoux, a pair of journeyman heavyweights. Ali laughs at the names and rattles off his own list of opponents — a heavyweight who's who that starts with Sonny Liston, includes Joe Frazier and Ken Norton three times each, George Foreman, and a host of others. "I've been in so many wars," Ali sighed. "This is his first pressure fight."

Orr suffers injury again
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Highly regarded freshman running back Terry Orr suffered a dislocated shoulder in practice Tuesday and probably will have to undergo surgery, University of Texas coach Fred Akers said.

"The doctors will evaluate it some more, but I would have to say it is probable he will have to have surgery," Akers said after the workout.

Orr was one of Texas' most recruited players last spring after finishing his high school career at Abilene Cooper. His shoulder injury was a recurring one. He first injured it in a practice for the Texas Coaches High School all-star game last summer at Houston.

There was no contact in Tuesday's injury, Akers said.

"He hurt it when he made a sudden twist. When it comes out that easy, and with it in a harness and taped up, well it kind of tells you something," Akers said.

"When he was hurt at that all-star practice, we figured it would be just a matter of time, even though Terry worked real hard to rehabilitate it," Akers added.

"It's really a shame if surgery is indeed needed. He's a quality football player."

Pack gals win again
Midland High's girls volleyball team pushed its record in District 5-A Tuesday night by coming from behind to beat Odesa High at the MHS gym. The Bulldogs lost the first game 12-15, but then rallied for emphatic 15-5, 15-5 wins.

The wins give Midland a 3-2 district record going into Thursday's game with tough Abilene Cooper at the MHS gym. The MHS Junior Varsity boosted its record to 4-1 by virtue of a 15-1 and 15-10 victory over Odesa's JV.

There was no contact in Tuesday's injury, Akers said.

Permian nudges Lee girls teams
ODESSA—Odesa Permian survived a tough opening game to win 14-11 and then went on to a 15-5 victory over Midland Lee in District 5-A girls volleyball action here Tuesday night. Lee is now 0-5 in district.

Lee's JV girls bowed to Permian in a couple of notly-contested 16-14 and 15-12 games. Lee is on the road Thursday for Abilene High.

ACU jogger hit by automobile
ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A member of last year's Abilene Christian University cross-country jogging team is in satisfactory condition after being struck by a car while she was jogging.

Police said Alba Lopez, 20, of Sweetwater, was struck about 6:30 a.m. Tuesday while she was jogging with two other girls near the ACU campus.

Orr suffers injury again
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Highly regarded freshman running back Terry Orr suffered a dislocated shoulder in practice Tuesday and probably will have to undergo surgery, University of Texas coach Fred Akers said.

Jay Leonhart is a sideman to many stars

NEW YORK (AP) — A sideman, the dictionary says, is a band member "other than the leader or a featured soloist." But you rarely know them by name unless you're in the music business. Case in point: Jay Leonhart, a bass player, one of the top sidemen in town. He's in the band on NBC's David Letterman Show. When Liza Minelli tours, he's one of the first guys they call to back her. He's worked with singers like Tony Bennett, Mel Torme, backed actor Michael Moriarty's vocalizing. He's played in the Thad Jones-Mel Lewis Band, with jazz greats like Barney Kessel, Jim Hall.

Rarified heights. How does a sideman get there? "It's being seen on stage with a performer, being heard, people hearing about you, people playing with you," says Leonhart, 39. "There's no way you can promote yourself. "You simply must play well, be sober, be on time and in tune. If you get fired, it's because you're not doing the job or you're not there to do the job."

Married to a former jazz singer and father of two kids, Leonhart took up bass at age 14 back home in Baltimore. He taught himself how to play by watching, listening and emulating. Later, he studied with classical musicians, then with Ray Brown, the poll-winning jazz bassist. Then he came here in 1961, studied more and joined the ranks of unknown, scuffling sidemen. He quit after a few years, though: "I was miserable." Much of that he blames on a bout with pills and alcohol. Then came a radical career change that in time led him back to music. He spent to fly, he said, got a commercial ticket and learned four years piloting charter flights out of Washington, D.C., in light planes. The discipline of flight turned his life around. "The day I took my private pilot's test, I realized you cannot screw around and do something seriously. I realized, if I can't fly a plane stoned, I sure can't play a bass stoned."

He kept his playing chops up during this period. One day in 1968 the love of music proved too much: "I quit flying, I said, 'Wait a minute, I'd rather play bass in New York, work clubs. Flying, I'm becoming a bus driver.'"

Whereupon he passed up a scheduled job interview with Eastern Airlines at Newark Airport, "kept on going to New York, and that was it." He's been gigging around here ever since, making a good living. The full-time sideman also now is a part-time bandleader, running a group called "Jay Leonhart & Friends." It periodically plays clubs here, and makes its national debut Thursday on the Letterman show.

In it, Leonhart sings his own songs, a blend of jazz, loping rock, funk and a dash of gospel. They are, well, unique. They concern salamander pie, a famous lady marathon runner for whom "records get broken with a subway token," Bo Diddley, an upbeat, autobiographical song about kicking drugs. Stuff like that.

His goal: "I want to hit the commercial market with non-commercial stuff." But he's happy as a sideman. He's not possessed of a fierce desire to see his name in lights. "If it happens this year, or 10, 20 years from now, or never in terms of getting big, no problem," he says. "We'll be successful if we're playing and entertaining people."

Albany home of world's largest movie film script

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The world's largest collection of motion picture scripts lies not in Hollywood or New York City. The scripts are in Albany — a city whose reputation for celluloid normally comes from the reams of red tape New York state's bureaucracy churns out each year.

The scripts — 53,000 in all, plus 20,000 files on other motion pictures without the actual dialogue and camera directions — are all that remain from between 1921 and 1965, when New York was censoring films shown in the state.

During those 44 years, six reviewers from the Motion Picture Division of the state Education Department required a print beforehand of each film, along with the dialogue.

The films were returned, but the scripts were saved. They now occupy 1,500 cardboard boxes on the 11th floor of the New York State Museum here, and are available to adults Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., for reading and remembering. "As far as we know, Pennsylvania was the last state to keep its large collection intact," said Zita Eastman, a museum employee. "But it destroyed all but a fraction of its collection because it took up too much space. What we have here we believe to be the largest collection of its kind in the world."

Here one can delve into the celebrated history of American motion pictures, from the first talking pictures of the 1920s to the films that stirred the censorship battles of the '50s. Many of the scripts are from long-forgotten films, but scattered in the collection are the diamonds of the glamorous age of American filmmaking, like "Gone With The Wind," "Grapes of Wrath," "Little Caesar," "All Quiet on the Western Front" and many others.

About 13,000 of the scripts are in foreign languages, ranging from Yiddish to Indonesian, complete with English translations.

Another point of interest for film buffs is the exhaustive file kept by the state on the battles the Motion Picture Division waged over what its members felt was the questionable content of some films.

On one side in these showdowns stood the division, bound by law to cut out of films anything "tending to corrupt morals" or "incite to crime." On the other stood the motion picture promoters who realized, as they do today, it never hurts to use promises of sex or violence on the placard to build up a film at the box office.

Typical of these fights was the problem the division found with a 1938 film, "School for Husbands," which starred Rex Harrison. The movie was advertised as a "Hilarious Bedroom Farce In The French Manner — It's Sensational," and a film "Where The Bed Is The Entire Plot."

The motion picture division, its brow wrinkled, ordered the promoters to cut out that billing. It also ordered about two dozen suggestive lines of dialogue taken out of the picture.

The division censored about 7 percent of the movies it saw in those 44 years, said Richard Andress, an archivist for New York. If film distributors objected, they could appeal to the Board of Regents, then the courts. Andress said a few appeals went to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"The Motion Picture Division was a big money-maker," Andress said. "It charged so much for viewing each thousand feet of films — usually three dollars — and at the end, the film got a leader to tack onto the start of the picture saying it had been approved. The division brought in an average of $500,000 a year."

Starting in 1957, the U.S. Supreme Court began to undermine the power of state film censoring boards with a series of freedom of expression rulings.

When the court struck down the censoring of a Scandinavian film, "A Stranger Knocks," in 1965 and declared New York's film regulation law unconstitutional in the process, the division quietly went out of business.

The division's last director, aptly named Hugh Flick, insisted the films be turned over to the New York State Library. The scripts languished in an old warehouse until 1978, when they were moved to a nook in the state's office building complex, the Empire State Plaza.

Sidekick, mom star in 'Butterfly'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ed McMahon and June Lockhart, otherwise known as Johnny Carson's sidekick and Lassie's mom, will play husband and wife in "Butterfly." The daring 1930s love story, from a story by James Cain, stars Stacy Keach and introduces Pia Zadora in her movie debut. The movie, directed by Matt Cimber, is now in production in Nevada.

CANTON'S READY-BUILT HOMES To Move Into Your Lot

Any designer partial to spiral staircases could have a field day at Tenneco Inc.'s Petro-Tex Chemical Plant in Houston. Brooks Valls, a plant safety specialist, inspects a large spherical storage tank from the stairway that wraps around it.

HNG Oil completes prolific Atoka discovery in Loving

HNG Oil Co. has completed a prolific Atoka gas discovery in Loving County, 10 1/4 miles northeast of Mentone.

The strike, No. 1-6 Ludeman, completed for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 44.6 million cubic feet of dry gas per day.

The potential was taken on the zone behind casing perforations from 15,702 to 15,731 feet after an 8,000-gallon acid treatment.

The wildcat was drilled to 17,170 feet. Operator set 4 1/2-inch casing on bottom and plugged the hole back to 16,581 feet.

The Atoka lime was topped at 15,503 feet on ground elevation of 3,204 feet.

Other tops include the Delaware, 5,260 feet; Bone Spring, 9,224 feet; Wolfcamp, 12,250 feet; Strawn, 14,900 feet; and Morrow, 16,360 feet.

Wellsite is 1 1/2 miles southeast of Getty No. 1-12-26 Brunson, recently completed Morrow discovery and 1,320 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 6, block C-26, psi survey.

It also is 1.2 miles southeast of Getty Oil Co. No. 1 Brunson, discovery well of the Brunson (Ellenburger gas) field.

The drillsite is 1 1/2 miles east of dual Ellenburger and Devonian production in the Beal field.

The project, 1/2 mile southeast of Barstow, is to be drilled 660 feet from northeast and northwest lines of section 39, block 33, H&TC survey.

Contract depth is 5,800 feet.

Exxon Corp., operating from Midland, announced location for an 18,200-foot project to test the Fusselman 7/8 mile northwest of the Quibar (Fusselman gas) field of Ward County, 2 1/2 miles north of Barstow.

The new test, No. 1 Irene Evans, is 1,320 feet from southeast and southwest lines of section 187, block 34, H&TC survey.

Winkler Explorers Bob Yates Oil & Gas Co., Inc., of Midland announced locations for a pair of 5,300-foot wildcats in Winkler County, nine miles southwest of Wink.

No. 1 Superior-State is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 48, block 20, University Lands survey and 3/8 mile northwest of the War-Wink (Delaware) field which produces at 5,088 feet.

The company spotted No. 2 Superior-State 1,980 feet from north and 860 feet from west lines of section 48, block 20, University Lands survey. It also is nine miles southwest of Wink and 3/4 mile northwest of the War-Wink (Delaware) pool.

PECOS RE-ENTRY Conoco Inc. announced plans to re-enter a former producer assigned to the Elnisore Multipay Field of Pecos County, 25 miles south of Fort Stockton.

Operator will plug back to 7,400 feet for tests as a wildcat in the Caballos zone.

It is the No. 1-5 Allison. Location is 1,980 feet from the central north line and approximately 200 feet from the central west line of section 5, block 170, TTRR survey.

The old total depth is 13,000 feet.

DEEP REEVES TEST Gulf Oil Corp., operating from Monahans, spotted loation or a 17,300-foot project in the Worsham-Bayer (Ellenburger gas) area of Reeves County, 17 miles southeast of Pecos.

Scheduled for tests of the Ellenburger, it is a north offset to production and 1,320 feet from north and west lines of section 15, block C-4, psi survey.

It will be drilled as No. 6 State School Board "ZZ."

FISHER WILDCAT An 8,000-foot wildcat has been spotted 5 1/2 miles southwest of Longworth in Fisher County.

It is Kirby Exploration Co. of Houston No. 1-6 Barry. The drillsite is 640 feet from the most northerly north line and 1,880 feet from the west line of section 6, block Y, T&P survey.

It is 3/8 mile east of a 5,308-foot-dry hole and 7/8 mile northeast of a 6,706-foot failure. It also is 3 1/2 miles north of the Sweetwater (Canyon) field.

CROCKETT EXPLORERS Three wildcat operations have been announced in Crockett County by Allen S. Garrett of Carlsbad, N.M.

The projects are 10 miles south of Iran.

No. 1 Gay Brook is a 1,900-foot test 467 feet from north and 1,370 feet from west lines of section 59, block 1, I&N survey. Ground elevation is 2,174 feet.

The location is 1 1/2 miles south of the two-well Haflaw (Queen oil) pool and separated from it by two dry holes, one bottomed at 1,786 feet and the other at 7,776 feet.

Garrett No. 1 Miriam, a 1,850-foot wildcat, will be drilled 467 feet from north and 3,416 feet from west lines of section 61, block 1, I&N survey. Ground elevation is 2,209 feet.

The site is 5/8 mile south of the Haflaw field.

Garrett No. 1 Carrie will be drilled to 1,900 feet one mile east of the Millard field and one mile south of the Haflaw field.

It is separated from the Haflaw field by a 1,786-foot dry hole.

Drillsite is 467 feet from north and 965 feet from west lines of section 60, block 1, I&N survey. Ground elevation is 2,142 feet.

UPTON RE-ENTRY Rainbow Petroleum Inc. of Houston will re-enter a 10,590-foot hole in Upton County and cleanout to total depth for tests as a wildcat.

To be operated as No. 1 Brown, it is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 8, block 41, T-5-S, T&P survey, and 14 miles northeast of Crane.

The project is the former Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1 J. T. Brown and others, the depleted Wolfcamp gas opener of the Davis field. It is 1/2 mile north of Ellenburger production in the same field and 5/8 mile northeast of Wolfcamp production.

It also is 1 1/2 miles north of the pool's Pennsylvania oil production.

LUBBOCK TEST S. E. Cone Jr. of Lubbock No. 1 Henry Lawson is to be dug one location east of a southwest extension area to the Edmisson (Clear Fork) field of Lubbock County, three miles northwest of Lubbock.

The 5,700-foot test is 467 feet from north and 36 feet from east lines of section 22, block JS, EL&RR survey, abstract 1435.

U.S. Air Force guarding cargo meant for Iran

McGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N.J. (AP) — It's cleaned, counted and painted, but more than $2.5 million worth of Iranian-owned equipment and cargo won't budge from storage here.

The bullet-proof jeeps, helicopter parts and other military items are under guard, Air Force officials said Tuesday. Pending a government order, the equipment will just sit here as it has since the American hostages were seized in Iran last Nov. 4.

"The more it sits here, the more the equipment needs to be worked on," said Lt. Col William Bertino, a liaison officer to Iran who has been relegated to guarding the equipment.

In 1975, the late Shah's government initiated a plan to load American-made goods onto more than a dozen jumbo jet flights each month to Iran. The setup was the only one of its kind in the United States, Bertino said. No other countries have similar agreements for transporting goods from here, he said.

Keeping the material ready for action is a big business being funded with Iranian money. The Shah's government paid the United States more than $5.1 million which has been used since then to continue the operation, Bertino said.

But the last jet flight to Iran took off from New Jersey the day the hostages were seized. By executive order, President Carter then froze Iranian assets in this country and three Iranian Air Force officials working here were expelled.

Under the Shah, Iran built a storage warehouse on a 132,000 square-foot lot just off a runway, Bertino said. The U.S. Air Force was authorized to hire an American company to load Iranian planes and maintain the Iranian equipment.

The cargo includes eight armor-plated, bullet-proof jeeps, a complete helicopter broken down into parts, copper mining equipment, wiring and boxes of electronics equipment, said Maj. Bob Andrews, the base spokesman.

Bertino said about two weeks ago the equipment was moved from the warehouse to a hangar about a mile away "in anticipation that the building might be made available for Air Force use."

WRAMS Inc., the company hired by the Air Force to maintain the Iranian equipment, was created in 1977 when the Iranian contract became available, said company president Peter Rodriguez, a retired Air Force master sergeant.

Five WRAMS workers in blue uniforms were sitting idly by an airplane loading device Tuesday in the hangar. The hangar's $3,200 monthly rent comes from the original $5.1 million contract with the Shah's government, Bertino said.

"I wish we had more to do," said WRAMS foreman Joseph Gadois. "We used to be real busy, but who knew what was going to happen with the (Iranian) revolution?"

The loaders are freshly painted in yellow with their abbreviations changed from the Shah's "Imperial Iranian Air Force" to those which stand for the revolutionary "Islamic Republic Iranian Air Force."

Rodriguez said the Air Force reduced his company's $900,000 annual contract by two-thirds once the flights stopped.

"You see a skeleton crew now, but we still have to keep everything ready," he said, noting his original staff totaled 37 workers.

Bertino said he doesn't know what will happen to the equipment and cargo once the Shah's original contract is exhausted sometime next summer.

"But once we run out of (Iranian) money, the whole operation here stops," he said. "After that, I just don't know."

Air Force officials survey part of the Iranian military supplies on Tuesday that are embargoed at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey. The equipment including helicopter parts and bullet-proof jeeps have been held at the base since the American hostages were taken in Iran last November. (AP Laserphoto)

Iranian student protests banned

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Further demonstrations by Iranian students on the Arizona State University campus have been banned because of disruptions, a school dean says.

Dean of Students Leon Shell said Tuesday the ban is a result of Friday's confrontation between Iranian and American students during an anti-U.S. demonstration.

Shell said the action was not a ban on freedom of expression but was designed to protect the physical well-being of students, the educational process and the university.

"At this time, the university is not able to authorize any demonstrations involving placards, pickets or signs by the same student organization that demonstrated last Friday," Shell said. "The (Iranian) students are in a position to find other forms of expression, but we feel the elements that were present Friday have not changed.

"If they were to change, the university is in a position to evaluate the circumstances," he said.

About 25 Iranians, including several American sympathizers, were escorted to a classroom building by campus police Friday when their demonstration against the Iran-Iraq conflict turned into a violent confrontation with other students. The building was sealed for the protection of the Iranians after students began grabbing signs and shouting obscenities at the protesters. Several fights broke out and campus police declared the gathering an unlawful assembly in order to deter the violence.

Shell said an investigation of the incident is under way.

Three photographers from the State Press, the student newspaper, have filed charges of criminal assault against Iranian students, who have not been identified. Police and university officials are using photographs to identify the Iranians.

Polish unions planning nationwide strike Friday

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Independent union leaders say they are going ahead with a one-hour nationwide strike for higher wages Friday despite the government's claim that their demands exceed increases promised in the Gdansk agreement.

Deputy Premier Kazmierz Barcikowski accused the labor leaders Tuesday of breaking the Aug. 31 agreement that ended the massive wave of strikes for political reforms as well as higher pay.

Andrzej Kolodziej, vice chairman of the independent Solidarity union federation, said his organization would not cancel its call for a 60-minute walkout at noon Friday to support demands for more pay increases than the government is willing to grant.

Barcikowski in a TV appearance Tuesday accused the unofficial unions of "dragging out" wage negotiations with excessive demands. He said the government was honoring its end of the Gdansk agreement but the unions were demanding increases "exceeding greatly the levels agreed upon in the settlements."

"We cannot meet such pay rises," he said. His statement was the first mention in the government-controlled media of the walkout Friday.

Solidarity is led by Lech Walesa, the leader of the Gdansk shipyard strike that touched off the labor upheaval in August. It called the brief work stoppage as a show of strength to support demands for bigger pay increases and more access to the media.

Some independent labor leaders claim that, although progress has been made generally in the wage talks, some local Communist Party officials and plant managers refuse to meet with leaders of the new union movement.

In an attempt to wean away support of the strike, the government on Monday announced 8 million workers would get pay raises this month. On Tuesday, the Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu said the increases promised in the Gdansk agreement "is on the way to realization. It will be accomplished in January 1981."

Sporadic strikes for higher pay began in July after the government increased the price of meat by cutting off the subsidies that kept it down. For some weeks, they were settled quickly by grants of 15-percent wage increases. But the Gdansk strikers demanded a 40 percent hike, to increase the average wage of $170 a month to $237, as well as the right to form independent labor unions, the right to strike and other political reforms.

Guerrillas attack jeep

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Security forces in the occupied West Bank searched today for Palestinian guerrillas who threw a hand grenade and fired several shots at an Israeli army jeep during the night, a spokesman for the military command said.

The guerrillas fled when the driver, who was not injured, returned the fire near the village of Taiyiba, 10 miles north of Jerusalem. The army put a curfew on the village.

On Sept. 1, three West Bank Arabs were wounded when their truck was ambushed on a remote mountain road in the area.

Weight Watchers spa offers exercise

The Los Angeles Times
SANTA ROSA, Calif. — Barbara Nichols, a former Army medic, is lolling in the sun, a nearby swimming pool reflecting in her sunglasses. She sips a Perrier and lime cocktail. This is her first spa experience.

"I'm 35 pounds overweight," Nichols said, her bathing suit bulging in all the right places and a few wrong ones. "I feel comfortable here because everyone isn't skinny the way I hear they are at other spas," the 27-year-old Nichols added.

No, everyone at this health-and-beauty retreat is not skinny. A lean, bikini-clad woman at poolside is an exception, certainly not the rule. Most of the guests at the world's first Weight Watchers Spa appear to be about 20 pounds overweight. Some are a wee-bit plump; others are huge. One admits she wants to lose 75 pounds. Another says she signed up to stay eight weeks at the spa before she had even seen the 6 1/2-acre facility. "I expect to leave looking like a bag of bones," she said.

Neither woman has been to a Weight Watchers meeting. In fact, says activity director Joan Hambly, most of the first guests have never been to one of the meetings that were originally founded by Jean Nidetch in 1963. Ernest Schwartz, a San Francisco physician and owner of this spa, is not a member of Nidetch's tribe. Neither is Hambly, nor is Alice Grant, the exercise director.

"This is not an intensive Weight Watchers meeting," stresses Hambly. "We leave that to individual groups around the country. We emphasize exercise in combination with a Weight Watchers diet." Schwartz explains that holding any type of W-W meetings would be in conflict with his licensing contract with Weight Watchers International Inc.

"Our goal," Schwartz explained, "is to show people what Weight Watchers food is like, and to offer them all the luxuries of a spa — at a price that won't kill them." Price for a week's stay is $27.50.

As with most spas, Weight Watchers Spa has a barber shop, beauty parlor, saunas, steam rooms, massage rooms, a jogging track and tennis courts.

Though the spa is located in the heart of Northern California's wine country, no alcoholic beverages are served in the Weight Watchers-legal dining room. There are special dishes such as Weight Watchers pancakes or French toast at breakfast. Weight Watchers chili con carne or chicken salad at lunchtime, and cornish hen with spiced black cherry sauce and spiced peach pudding at supper.

Nobody talks about calories. In typical Weight Watchers style, there's a "portion of this and a half portion of that." ("Portion" is part of the dietese Nidetch developed as part of her eating plan. Most portions are determined by using the official Weight Watchers scale.) Chef Alon (Skip) Sears says he cooks according to rules set by the Weight Watchers kitchen in New York. No sugar. No salt. No baco. No sausage. Pressed for an answer, Sears says the diet totals about 1,200 calories a day.

While the official Weight Watchers weight-loss program does not stress exercise, the spa does. The activity schedule includes different exercise machines on the premises. Alcie Grant, a svelt gymnast, directs the exercise program. "We don't want anyone to feel discouraged," she emphasized. "If they were to see skinny me telling them that they can look great by the end of the week, they'd get discouraged. I tell them to think of this as a learning center — a place where they can learn how to move, then take the exercises home with them."

From Nichols: "I'm disappointed that this place is right on Highway 101. It's noisy."

When a reporter visited the spa, lunch included: small — very small — green salad with Weight Watcher-legal dressing; a scoop — a small scoop — of cold haddock salad; a half glass — of skim milk, and unlimited cups of coffee. (The reporter went away hungry — certainly feeling leaner — and stopped next door to the spa to buy a Snickers bar.)

NEW YORK (AP) — "Treasures of Ancient Nigeria," the exhibition now at the Metropolitan Museum of Art here, is rich fare for both eye and mind. The collection is simply stunning to look at, while its background is an intriguing part of art history.

There are about 100 objects in the exhibition, representing seven cultures spanning more than 2,000 years. They are carried out in terracotta, bronzes of various copper alloys, ivory and stone, in distinctive styles, displaying highly refined workmanship.

The cumulative effect is of delightfully surprising variety. There are straightforward representational works, as well as more abstract designs, with one single theme outstanding: the treatments of the human head or bust, in lively, elegant interpretations rendered with sophisticated techniques.

The novelty of the collection lies in several factors. It has been rare for this regional African art, in these materials and of such antiquity, to be recovered and collected, let alone exhibited far away from its home ground. Wooden sculptures not much more than a century old have often represented for Westerners the major strength of African art.

Henry Winkler Stacy Winkler Lady Jane Wellesley

Lady Jane leaves BBC; 'Fonz' becomes father

LONDON (AP) — Lady Jane Wellesley, 29, former companion of Prince Charles, has quit her job as a publicity officer with the British Broadcasting Corp.

The BBC confirmed Tuesday that Lady Jane, daughter of the Duke of Wellington, resigned after a union row when she replaced a colleague to publicize a new drama series.

Lady Jane worked for the BBC for five years as a researcher and publicist. Her only appearance on camera, as an interviewer on an arts program last year, was lambasted by critics.

Lady Jane was widely tipped in the early 70s as the future Queen of England after being seen regularly with Prince Charles.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The only comment from the hospital nursery was a thumbs-up "Aaaa!" But it said it all. The Fonz was a father.

Stacey Winkler, wife of television star Henry Winkler, gave birth to a 7-pound, 12-ounce girl Tuesday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. The baby, named Zoe Emily, is the couple's first child.

"She is absolutely beautiful and we couldn't be happier," said Winkler, star of ABC's "Happy Days."

Winkler, 33, and his wife were married May 5, 1978. Mrs. Winkler has a son from a previous marriage.

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Former Kansas Gov. Alfrez M. Landon was undergoing further examination by his personal physician today and could leave Stormont-Vail Regional Medical Center sometime Thursday, according to his wife.

Landon, 93, was hospitalized last Thursday with a high temperature and general weakness. His wife, Theo, said the 1936 Republican presidential nominee continued to rest comfortably, but still was not up walking.

"They say everything looks fine, but he's got to do some walking before he can leave here," she said, adding that Landon's personal physician is due back from a vacation today and will check him over.

BOSTON (AP) — Six days after intestinal surgery, Rose Kennedy, the 90-year-old matriarch of the Kennedy clan, is up and around and "may be released from the hospital at the end of this week," a hospital spokeswoman said.

The mother of Sen. Edward Kennedy and the late President John F. Kennedy underwent surgery on Thursday to remove a blockage in her intestine. Doctors described the operation as routine.

Convictions overturned because mother's visit denied

NEW YORK (AP) — The murder conviction of two teen-age brothers has been overturned by an appeals court on grounds that police refused to let them see their mother before they confessed to killing a grocer whom they robbed of $39.

The four-member panel of the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that Emanuel Rivera, now 21, and his brother Candido, 22, be retried or released. They are serving sentences of 15 years to life at Rikers Island here.

The youths were arrested July 25, 1975, for questioning in the shooting of Christian Jimenez, owner of a grocery store in the Coney Island section of Brooklyn.

Then 16 and 17, the boys lived in that neighborhood with their mother.

The youths' mother made two visits to the Coney Island police precinct after their arrests but before their confession at 1 a.m. the following morning, the panel said. Each time, her request to see them was refused.

The court said it previously has held that "when a suspect is still a minor residing in his parents' home and still reliant on him or her for guidance, the police have an obligation to establish and maintain procedures so that the suspect is not deliberately or inadvertently held beyond the reach of his parent."

The two were convicted by a jury on Oct. 20, 1976, and sentenced by State Supreme Court Justice Irwin Brownstein.

Fans honor James Dean's death on 25th anniversary

By LISA LEVITT

FAIRMOUNT, Ind. (AP) — To his aunt, he was "just Jimmy," but to 1,000 fans who gathered here and in California on the 25th anniversary of his death, actor James Dean was the symbol of disenchanted youth in the 1950s.

Dean "created one of this century's most unique inventions — himself," actor Martin Sheen, who has called the leather-jacketed movie rebel his inspiration, said Tuesday.

"He was a cultural hero," said Nicky Bazooka, a motorcyclist wearing wrap-around sunglasses and a black shirt bearing the white numbers "9-30-55."

"If you grew up in the '60s, it doesn't mean much. But those of us who grew up in the '50s didn't have anybody to say what they said in the '60s," said Bazooka.

Then along comes James Dean, as bad off as the rest of us, and he says it for us all: The establishment's a bunch of crap."

Dean, who died at the age of 24 in an automobile accident in California on Sept. 30, 1955, still lives in the minds of his admirers.

He hit national stardom in three films — "East of Eden," "Rebel Without a Cause" and "Giant." But the people who knew him best didn't think he was unique.

He was the kid-next-door — "just Jimmy," said his aunt, Ortense Winslow, 79, who raised him after his mother died in 1940.

Doris Moorman, married the day Dean was born, hasn't seen Dean's movies since they first came out in the mid-fifties. And even though her family knew the actor well, she visited the Fairmount Historical Museum that houses much of his memorabilia for the first time on Tuesday.

"I don't know why people come every year. It's nice, but I still don't understand it," she said, eyeing one of the dozens of portraits of Dean donated to the museum by admirers.

The tiny museum above the Western Auto Store on Fairmount's main drag was packed with visitors who stood in line to buy James Dean buttons, T-shirts and postcards.

Later, hundreds walked more than a mile in 80-degree heat to Park Cemetery to toss flowers onto Dean's hill-top grave.

Meanwhile, in California, two dozen fans gathered in Cholame, near the spot where Dean died when his sports car smashed head-on into another vehicle.

Army authorities holding alleged suicide accomplice

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — A female soldier claims she helped Pfc. Tammy M. Meza-Luna commit suicide but Army officials aren't saying if they believe her.

Maj. Ned Marrs, an Army spokesman, wouldn't reveal the name of the alleged accomplice Tuesday, saying she is in custody and that an autopsy must be completed before any charges might be lodged against her. He disclosed, however, that an administrative discharge for alleged homosexuality is pending against the 23-year-old woman.

"There is nothing that would lead us to believe that Mrs. Meza-Luna's death had anything to do with homosexuality," he said.

The body of Mrs. Meza-Luna, 19, of Rochester, Minn., was found Monday at Fort Story, hanging by the neck from a tree, two days after she gave Virginia Beach police information about drug dealing at a nearby trailer park. Police, denying she was an undercover agent, have said there is no evidence to link her death with the information she provided.

Marrs said the soldier in custody told military investigators Mrs.

Meza-Luna asked her to tie her hands behind her back; slip a rope around her neck, and tie the rope to a tree.

Mrs. Meza-Luna's body was found by her husband, Manuel, in a wooded area behind the fort's female enlisted barracks. Marrs said her hands were tied behind her with a military belt. He said he found her on her toes leaning away from the tree.

If Mrs. Meza-Luna's death is ruled to be a murder, local civilian courts would have jurisdiction, said Deputy Commonwealth Attorney Paul Sciorino.

Commonwealth Attorney Andre Evans said under state law, if the death is ruled a suicide, the woman in custody could be charged with manslaughter or accessory to manslaughter, both of which carry maximum five-year prison sentences.

Affidavits supporting police requests for two search warrants were filed Saturday with the Virginia Beach Circuit Court. The affidavits reportedly contain information Mrs. Meza-Luna gave Burglary Squad Detective D. F. Kerr.

Many callers protest telecast of 'Playing for Time'

By C.W. MIRANKER
Associated Press Writer

CBS affiliates across the nation were besieged overnight with telephone calls about the telecast of "Playing For Time," with many callers angry that pro-Palestinian actress Vanessa Redgrave was chosen to play a survivor of a Nazi death camp.

Demonstrators picketed stations in Philadelphia, Denver and Detroit. But other viewers praised the made-for-TV movie, based on the life of former Auschwitz prisoner Fania Fenelon, as "one of the best things on television."

Some 200 people demonstrated in Philadelphia outside CBS-owned WCAU, which received about 1,500 calls of protest.

Five protesters outside KMGH-TV in Denver waved signs that said, "Why Vanessa Redgrave?" and "Was she acting when she was with the Palestinians?" The Denver affiliate said it received 68 calls in favor of the show broadcast Tuesday night and 56 against it.

Meanwhile, 2,000 Jews gathered for an "Israeli Cabaret" at the Stephen S. Wise Temple in Los Angeles. "This is our attempt to lure people away from their TV sets tonight," said temple spokesman Robert Feldman.

CBS disregarded Miss Fenelon's feelings by broadcasting the program, Feldman charged, dubbing the network the "Callous Broadcasting System."

Miss Fenelon, a Parisian cabaret singer who played in the death camp's orchestra, felt that Miss Redgrave should not have played her.

But another Auschwitz survivor, Edith Fiedler of Lehigh Acres, Fla., said she was not offended that Miss Redgrave won the part.

"People should not forget," said the 75-year-old Berlin native. "I went into a school one time and the children asked me 'What's this?' " she said, pointing to the numbers tattooed on her left forearm. "This is Auschwitz. I will tell you about it."

In Baltimore, where CBS affiliate WMAR-TV reported heavy response both for and against the show, Rabbi Mark Loeb said on the station's nightly news he was sorry Miss Redgrave was cast. But he said the show was good and he chose to watch it because of its content.

At WLNH in Providence, R.I., only one out of every 30 calls praised Miss Redgrave. Program director Charlotte Halls appeared on the late news to say that despite the protest the station felt it was important to show what the Holocaust was like.

The lone telephone caller to WSPA-

TV in Spartansburg, S.C., said "they had never been so moved. It was the most magnificent program they had ever seen," receptionist Joyce Kelly said.

The CBS affiliate in Atlanta, WAGA-TV, reported seven calls that praised the program as "one of the best things on television," while seven protested Miss Redgrave's portrayal of a Jew "considering her political ideas," a spokeswoman said.

WDVM-TV in Washington, D.C., refused to release detailed information on the reaction it had encountered. But one telephone operator said that many callers praised the station for not "buckling under" to pressure to cancel the program.

Compared with other television specials and shows like "Dallas,"

"Playing for Time" got little response from viewers, according to a telephone operator at KMOX-TV in St. Louis.

WTVJ-TV in Miami reported some 250 calls. "We weren't overwhelmed," said station manager Doug Barker. "If the local newspaper misprints our listing for the football game on Sunday, we would get more."

American archbishop 'didn't challenge' birth control policy

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Archbishop John R. Quinn of San Francisco said today he had not challenged the Roman Catholic Church doctrine on contraception in a speech to the synod of bishops but had suggested possible ways of making the teaching better understood and more readily accepted.

"Because of confusing reports about the American bishops and about the substance and intent of my speech to the synod of bishops on Monday, I find it necessary to make some clarifications," Quinn said in a statement released by the Vatican press office and the synod.

"In the first place, neither I nor the American bishops conference rejects or challenges the doctrine of the Catholic church on contraception," said Quinn, chairman of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops of the United States.

"I stated this in my speech and I repeat it now. Neither I nor the American bishops conference are calling for a change in the doctrine of the Catholic Church on contraception.

"In my speech I offered proposals to the synod for dealing in a constructive way with the personal and demographic problems of the modern world which must be recognized if they are to be dealt with. The intent of my speech was to suggest possible ways of making the church's teaching on contraception better understood and more readily accepted."

In his speech, Quinn suggested the Vatican initiate a study on the birth control issue. He said he accepted "Humanae Vitae," Pope Paul VI's encyclical which reiterated the church's opposition to all forms of birth control except the rhythm method of sexual abstinence. But he said it is possible there are "nuances and clarifications" and "greater pastoral insights" which will help remove "the impasse which is so harmful to the church."

Quinn told the synod that a study made at Princeton University showed nearly 71 percent of American Catholic women used birth control methods condemned by their church, only 29 percent of American priests believed artificial contraception was intrinsically immoral, and only 26 percent would deny absolution to those using it.

Quinn's speech was interpreted by some observers as an attempt to put pressure on Pope John Paul II to change the church's stand on birth control.

Italian Cardinal Pericle Felici, a ranking conservative in the Vatican Curia, told the worldwide assembly of bishops Tuesday the last word was said on the subject by Pope Paul VI in his encyclical and added: "There is no need of rediscussing it, no need to pay attention to statistics because statistics don't signify anything."

Television evangelist quitting 'Roundtable' Christian group

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Television evangelist M.G. "Pat" Robertson, saying he would rather focus on spiritual matters, has quit The Roundtable, a Christian organization that has become increasingly political in recent months.

Citing "confusion in the public mind as to my role in political matters," the founder of the Christian Broadcasting Network confirmed Tuesday that he had resigned.

The Roundtable, a non-denominational organization that provides information on moral issues to church and business leaders, recently sponsored a rally of political conservatives and fundamentalist preachers in Dallas aimed at getting Christians involved in politics. Robertson, who addressed the August rally, said in his letter of resignation, "God has been leading me in a different course."

"We are now faced with the desperate need for a spiritual-moral revival in America. I have nothing against how other ministries see their roles; each must do as it believes best."

"My role, and that of CBN, is to focus on the spiritual mission of reaching people for the Lord Jesus Christ, and helping to bring a spiritual-moral revival in America through all the means of communication at our command. We intend to avoid anything which could cause confusion in the accomplishment of that mission."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Best diet 45 percent carbohydrates

Dear Dr. Solomon: I know that I will have to reduce my intake of calories if I expect to lose weight. What I don't know is what percentage of the calories I do consume should come from carbohydrates, how much from fat and how much from protein. Can you help? — Tina

Dear Tina: Most people are able to lose weight on a calorie-restricted, balanced diet in which 45 percent of the calories come from carbohydrates, 35 percent from fat and 20 percent from protein.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am in my first pregnancy and have been talking with friends who already have children about what I might expect. There seems to be a difference of opinion among them about such matters as when to start the infant on solid foods. Assuming I will be breast-feeding, are there any general rules to follow in introducing solid foods? — Sue

Dear Sue: Solid foods should be withheld until an infant is at least three months old, and can even be delayed until much later without causing any ill effects. If introduced too early, they can lead to allergies and set a pattern for overeating and obesity in later life. Solid foods should be selected on the basis of nutritional value rather than taste. The addition of sugar and salt to commercially prepared baby foods should be avoided.

It is a good idea to introduce foods one at a time, continuing it over the course of a week before another food is offered. In this way, if some food intolerance or allergy occurs, the specific item can be identified. Many pediatricians recommend rice cereals as the first food to be offered infants, then fruits and vegetables, and finally meats.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My mother has come to live with me following my father's death, and my husband and I would like to do whatever we can to make her last few years as pleasant as possible. From the standpoint of diet, are there any problems common to elderly people that we should be aware of? As far as I know, she is in good health. — Mrs. T.F.

Dear Mrs. F.: Although one should be careful not to generalize, elderly people often are affected by alterations in their sense of taste and smell which diminish their enjoyment of food. This, in turn, may lead to poor eating and nutritional difficulties. The situation may be further aggravated by dental problems such as loss of teeth, gum disease or trouble with dentures. Some older people have diets deficient in calcium, iron or fiber.

Any diet, of course, must take into account the individual's specific needs. The nutritional requirements of an elderly diabetic, for example, are different from those of an elderly but otherwise healthy person. The best assurance that your mother's needs will be met is the positive attitude you reflect in your letter, and your husband's support of your efforts.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Marriage 'second best'

In all you do, I want you to be free from worry. An unmarried man can spend his time doing the Lord's work and thinking how to please Him.

But a married man can't do that so well; he has to think about his earthly responsibilities and how to please his wife.

His interests are divided. It is the same with a girl who marries. She faces the same problem. A girl who is not married is anxious to please the Lord in all she does and does. But a married woman must consider other things such as housekeeping and the likes and dislikes of her husband.

I am saying this to help you, not to try to keep you from marrying. I want you to do whatever will help you serve the Lord best, with as few other things as possible to distract your attention from Him.

But if anyone feels he ought to marry because he has trouble controlling his passions, it is all right; it is not a sin; let him marry.

But if a man has the willpower not to marry and decides that he doesn't need to and won't, he has made a wise decision.

So the person who marries does well, and the person who doesn't marry does even better.

The wife is part of her husband as long as he lives; if her husband dies, then she may marry again, but only if she marries a Christian.

But in my opinion she will be happier if she doesn't marry again; and I think I am giving you counsel from God's Spirit when I say this.

I Corinthians 7:32-40

Ideas on developing liquid fuel flood in 'gold rush' style

By JANE WEISMAN STEIN Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — An Eastern Gold Rush is under way here as thousands of companies flood the U.S. Department of Energy with ideas on how to spend the first shares of a $5.5 billion gold mine to develop synthetic fuels.

DOE is offering the money as an incentive to turn the country's huge domestic coal and oil shale reserves into liquid fuels that can replace petroleum.

Two years ago, there was little interest in producing "synfuels." But today, with world oil prices at $32 a barrel, the $50-to-$70-per-barrel synthetic fuel is becoming more attractive.

"We have been swamped with calls," said Sally Hamill, a spokeswoman for DOE's alternative fuels task force.

Twelve thousand individuals and companies have signed up on DOE's mailing list for information on how to apply for the federal funds that Congress this year decided will be spent over the next decade. Already, hundreds have returned their proposals.

Hamill said 971 firms applied for the first $200 million offered for studies and loan guarantees. DOE financed 110 projects. Another $300 million will be spent in 1980.

"We are hearing from all the major oil and energy companies, but also from small companies in the West that we have never heard of," said R. Doble Langenkamp, deputy assistant secretary for resource applications. He is responsible for the synfuels program.

"The coal reserves of this country are truly staggering. We have at least a 250-year supply of coal," he said.

Langenkamp acknowledges there is only a 50-50 chance of meeting President Carter's goal of producing 2 million barrels a day of synthetic fuels by 1990.

About 400,000 barrels a day is more realistic, he said, because there are no commercial-size syn-fuel plants in operation, and only small pilot plants are under construction this year.

Despite strong congressional support and a proposed $88 billion budget, the federal synthetic fuels program has harsh critics.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said the program threatens air quality because coal must be mined on a large scale. The plants require huge amounts of water, which is scarce in some areas, he said.

Nader said the program was the result of panic buying and gas lines in 1979.

"Congress jumped into it because the people thought we had to do something," said Nader.

Studies show that conservation and solar power are the best ways to save energy, yet the political power is going the other way, Nader said.

But DOE's Langenkamp insists that syn-fuels are compatible with conservation and environmental concerns.

"We are dedicated to a synthetic fuels industry that does not dry up the western slope of the Rockies, deteriorate air quality in Colorado or pollute the ground water," he said.

RINGING THE BELL

Ethnic groups getting small taste of political power

With BOB TIEUEL

We Look at the Red-Black & Brown Experience: According to press reports, American Indians (Red Men) got a taste of political power in the 1980 National Convention of Democrats, and they have said they will be back for a bigger bite in 1984. According to Billie Masters, a California delegate and chairman of the American Indian Caucus, "we had 37 delegates and alternates at this convention and we hope to be twice as big in 1984."

Mrs. Masters, an Oklahoma Cherokee, currently serves on the Democratic Rules Committee and told the press: "We hope to form state caucuses in states with high Indian populations, and perhaps regional caucuses depending on the response we get. And we will try to get one member on each ongoing committee so we can keep informed on what the party is doing."

At the convention, Michigan had the most American Indian delegates with five. South Dakota and Oklahoma had four each. North Dakota had only one. Arizona and New Mexico each had only one, even though they have some 150,000 Navajo people and many others. Mrs. Masters also stated that American Indians and Alaska Natives would have more clout with the Democratic Party if they formed coalitions with blacks and other special interest groups.

Hispanics and blacks working harmoniously together may seem like an idealistic dream but Connie Robles, San Angelo LULAC president, said that was an accurate description of the 1980 League of United Latin American Citizens Convention in Washington, D.C., this past summer. Many cities and states have formed coalitions between minority groups and West Texas is no exception. Created last September, the group covers 42 counties and there are active Hispanic and black members, state Ms. Robles.

The convention passed 48 resolutions dealing with areas such as minority housing and settling Cuban refugees.

Brown Vote Power: A record high voter registration among Mexican-American voters has drawn the attention of President Carter as national Hispanic leader Reuben Bonilla predicted Hispanics will prove the "pivotal vote for Texas" and Carter in the general election. In 1977, registration of Mexican-Americans totaled 485,000 and as we go to press, that figure is over 800,000 with registration drives being conducted by both blacks and Mexicans to the deadline, according to Bellinger sources.

Carter recently told an audience of Mexican-Americans in Corpus Christi that "five million Hispanics are at work today — one out of four in a new job created during the past three and a half years." He also indicated that he was supporting public education for illegal aliens. He told the crowd that employment is up 22 percent for Spanish-speaking Americans and said his economic program will create even more jobs.

Trying to tackle the issue of illegal immigration after a three-year study, the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights recently issued its first non-unanimous report in more than ten years. A majority of the five-member commission recommended against enactment of a statute penalizing employers who hire undocumented aliens. The commission also urged greater protection of detainees' due-process rights by giving them the right to legal counsel at all stages of the deportation process and by making sure they are informed of this right.

"Dear Bob:

"This is my first note to you since someone shot me in the back on May 29. The past three months have been spent in hospitals — not my idea of the ideal summer vacation.... In the coming weeks I'll be back to dealing with the issues that affect all Americans, and especially with those of vital concern to America's poor people, black people and deprived people.

"...Violence can never win in the battle of ideas.... My own experience has left me with renewed commitment to speak out and to fight against violence, oppression and racism in our society.... And when you find literally thousands of people demonstrating their concern about you, it is an added incentive to go on fighting the good fight...."

"Many thanks to all of you."

Court stays two sentences

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Two convicted murderers facing death in the electric chair won stays of execution from the Florida Supreme Court after the panel was accused of distorting the state's capital sentencing process.

In an appeal filed on behalf of 122 of the state's 148 Death Row inmates, death penalty opponents charged the court had "tainted" sentences by using confidential information without the defendants' knowledge.

By a 6-1 vote, the court Monday ordered temporary reprieves for Carl Ray Songer, 30, convicted of killing a state trooper in 1973, and Lenson Hargrave, 25, convicted of killing a convenience store clerk in 1974. The two men were scheduled for execution Oct. 8.

A hearing on the mass appeal has been set for Oct. 27.

Gov. Bob Graham could sign new death warrants for each man if the appeal fails. Both men have individual appeals in lower courts.

In its appeal, the team of lawyers representing the inmates asked the justices to remove themselves from the case and appoint a special master if they disagreed with the alleged facts. The high court said the motion was premature.

"Essentially we've caught the state Supreme Court cheating," said Charlette Holdman of the Florida Clearinghouse on Criminal Justice.

The lawyers said the justices violated inmates' rights by obtaining presentence investigation reports, psychiatric evaluations, psychological screening reports and prison discipline reports without notifying defendants or their lawyers.

They alleged the procedure violated the prisoners' constitutional right to be confronted by the information against them and the opportunity to respond to that information.

Jim Thorpe's daughter seeks to clear his name

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — At about 6:30 a.m. on May 28, 1888, in a one-room cabin south of the town of Bellemont on the banks of the North Fork River in Oklahoma Territory, an Indian child was born.

The boy was of the Sac and Fox tribe and could trace his lineage back to the fierce warrior chief, Black Hawk, who had so bloodily defended his lands against the onrushing pioneers.

The mother named the boy Wa-thohuck, which meant 'Bright Path.' The world would come to know him as Jim Thorpe, the greatest all-round athlete of modern times.

But it also would come to know him as a center of dark controversy that has disturbed his daughter Charlotte, a child of her father's first marriage, more than a little. Disabled and with plenty of free time on her hands, she is devoted to clearing his name.

Thorpe won both the pentathlon and decathlon at the 1912 Olympics in Stockholm, Sweden. But he was stripped of his medals and his name was removed from the record books after it was discovered he had played minor league baseball during the summers of 1909-10.

He was branded a professional for accepting $15 a week to play ball at Rocky Mount and Fayetteville, N.C. It took those striving for Thorpe's reinstatement as an amateur 60 years before the Amateur Athletic Union restored his amateur status.

By then, Thorpe was dead. He died of a heart attack March 28, 1953.

Efforts to get Thorpe's medals and trophies returned and his name reinstated in the Olympic record books were dealt a blow last March when Lord Killanin, then president of the International Olympic Committee, said, "Nobody can do anything about it after all these years."

"Somebody can, and somebody will," said Ms. Thorpe, who was instrumental in the creation of the Olympic Justice for Jim Thorpe Foundation.

The foundation, she explained, is not interested in the return or duplication of the two gold medals, which were presented to the runners-up in the decathlon and pentathlon.

But she does want the two trophies presented to Thorpe, one by King Gustav V of Sweden and the other on behalf of Czar Nicholas II of Russia. The trophies now reside in the Olympic museum in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Her aim is to display the trophies at the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, then put them on a national tour and finally, to present them to the Smithsonian Institution.

The controversy had its roots in 1907, when Glen S. "Pop" Warner already was recruiting from coast-to-coast for his athletic teams at Carlisle, Pa., Indian School.

Thorpe didn't play much that first year but was almost unstoppable in 1908 as the Indians met the best teams in the East.

By then, he stood 5-foot-11 and weighed about 190 pounds. He was a one-man track team for Warner. It was nothing for him to win five events.

Thorpe did not return to school in 1909-10, and it was during this period that he ran afoul of the amateur rule. He always maintained he didn't know he was violating any rules, and he talked openly about his baseball experiences after returning to school.

Thorpe made everybody's All-America team in 1911-12 as tiny Carlisle became a national power. The Indians lost just one game each season.

Thorpe, whose exploits were well known by then, easily made the Olympic team. Just as easily, he dominated the pentathlon and decathlon.

In January 1913, the storm broke over Thorpe's head. He was asked only to return the medals, but he angrily shipped back the trophies also.

On Feb. 1, 1913, he signed with the New York Giants baseball team. Thorpe lasted six years in the majors, winding up his career at Akron, Ohio, in 1928 when he was 40.

Throughout this period, he had been playing professional football in the winter, starting with the Canton Bulldogs in 1915 for the then-enormous sum of $250 a game.

Thorpe was in a class by himself in pro football. He finally retired in 1929.

Open house set at Stanton school

STANTON — Open house at Stanton's new and-refurbished elementary school at 901 W. Broadway St. will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The complex, which includes six above-ground classrooms and a junior high band hall on top of the existing and remodeled eight underground classrooms, houses classes for kindergarten through fourth-grade students. The two levels are connected by a ramp.

The new building and the remodeling, which in part was to correct water-leakage problems with the underground plant, was funded by a $500,000 bond issue.

Hosts at the open house will include members of the Stanton Independent School District's board of trustees. They are Delbert Dickenson, president; Terry Franklin, vice-president; Jeanene Wheeler, secretary; and Mary Sale, Johnny Louder, Chuck Elmore

SEATTLE (AP) — An aerospace firm is studying the feasibility of establishing a "service station" in space.

With a $400,000 contract from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Johnson Space Center, the Boeing Co. has started studying the practicality of an orbiting space operations center.

The orbiting spaceport, as Boeing is calling it, would be used as a base for construction and repair work on satellites, telescopes and other space paraphernalia, study manager Gordon Woodcock of Boeing said Tuesday.

"The spaceport would provide an orbiting facility and crews to check out spacecraft before they go out on missions," Woodcock said. "It becomes important when you're talking about work on structures too big to put in the Space Shuttle."

Powered by solar arrays — panels which convert sunlight to energy — the spaceport would be 14 feet wide and 40 to 50 feet long, or "about as long as a good-sized trailer house," Woodcock said.

Aerospace designers are looking at a model that would house eight crew members and also provide storage for "expedibles" — fuel, spare parts and other equipment to service space vehicles.

What Boeing is studying is how such a space-age base camp would be designed and what functions it would serve, as well as whether it's economically feasible, Woodcock said.

"There's no doubt of its technical feasibility," the aerospace researcher said. "What we need to look at is the cost-benefit ratio. The question is whether building this and sending it into orbit is a sensible thing to do."

Woodcock said neither Boeing nor NASA have put a price tag or limit on the project. That is one of the unknowns being explored by Boeing, he said.

The spaceport would have three basic functions, Woodcock explained. First, it would be placed about 250 miles above Earth so it could be used as a space-based construction site for spacecraft needing antenna or other items attached that are too large to be transported in the Space Shuttle.

Its second function, Woodcock said, would be "mating spacecraft." The spaceport would provide a facility and manpower for linking or dismantling upper stages from spacecraft.

Storage of repair equipment and in-orbit maintenance are other possibilities for the center, Woodcock said.

The spaceport would be built on Earth in large segments and transported, via Space Shuttle, to the desired orbit. There, crew members of the shuttle would assemble the components with mechanical arms attached to the shuttle.

Boeing has until July 1981 to complete its cost-benefit analysis.

Day of sailing ship hasn't passed

By CHARLES HILLINGER
The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — The day of the sailing ship has never passed for Harry Dring. Even today he is surrounded by them.

A lifelong sailor, Dring, 61, is keeper of the world's largest fleet of historic ships on public display. For 24 years, he has been in charge of acquisition, restoration and maintenance of the national Park Service's collection of old ships at the Hyde Street pier on the San Francisco waterfront.

"I've had this thing about sailing ships since I was a kid growing up on the Oakland, (Calif.) waterfront," Dring the Oakland estuary was lined with laid-up sailing ships waiting for the scrap heap.

In August 1941, Dring signed on the 225-foot Kaulani built in Bath, Maine, in 1899, the last American square-rigger out of 17,000 built to go around Cape Horn. Dring was aboard for the two-year voyage.

"We rounded both the Cape of Good Hope and Cape Horn on the Kaulani," he said.

Dring signed on in Alameda, Calif., then sailed to Aberdeen, Wash., to pick up a cargo of lumber and then to Pitcairn Island in the South Pacific.

Since 1956 to July 1, 1977, the acquisition, restoration and maintenance of the historic ships was a California State Parks project financed by oil royalties. Nearly $2 million was spent on the program during the 21-year period.

In 1977, the ships were transferred to the National Park Service.

Dring has a crew of five shipwrights and 20 deckhands working with him. The old skipper is full of the history of sailing ships and now looks to a rebirth of commercial sailing vessels.

"No one is foolish enough to believe sailing ships will replace modern freighters and passenger liners," Dring said. "But wind power as an auxiliary to power vessels to reduce expensive oil consumption is the coming thing. Japanese tankers are converting to auxiliary wind power this year for the first time." The eight ships in the historic collection are the C.A. Thayer; the Alma, the last remaining San Francisco scow; the Eureka, the old walking-beam, side-wheeler San Francisco ferry; the balclutha, a square-rigger Cape Horn sailing ship built in England in 1886; the Jeremiah O'Brien, the last of 2,742 World War II Liberty ships, still in its original form; the Wapama, the last of 225 wooden steamships plying the Pacific coast, and two steam tugs, the Hercules and the Epiletton Hall.

Favor limiting imports

DETROIT (AP) — About 70 percent of people questioned in a nationwide newspaper survey say they believe foreign car imports should be limited — but 49 percent believe foreign cars are better than domestic models.

Foreign cars have accounted for 28 percent of the U.S. auto market this year and provided strong competition for the slumping domestic auto industry. There has been a push in Congress to limit imports.

Trucks kept from docks

HOUSTON (AP) — Citing damage to local roads, a state district judge has temporarily barred St. Regis Paper Co. from unloading trucks that exceed state-imposed weight limits at its Houston plant.

Judge Arthur Lesher Jr. issued the temporary restraining order Tuesday, and scheduled a hearing Oct. 10.

A lawsuit, filed by Attorney General Mark White's office, said the company has "regularly received" motor vehicles whose loads exceeded state weight limits.

Load limits for trucks range from 20,000 pounds to 80,000 pounds.

cy and the Indiana Stream Pollution Control Board in a suit against the city of Hammond for allegedly polluting Lake Michigan.

The U.S. District Court action accuses Hammond of pumping raw sewage into the lake since June 1, 1980.

The suit does not seek monetary damages, according to Bill Donella, an aide to Indiana Attorney General Theodore L. Sendak, who filed court documents Monday joining the legal action.

It seeks to halt Hammond from allowing contaminated water from its storm and sanitary sewers to flow into Lake Michigan. It also wants the cause of the pollution and how it got into the lake explained and asks for an investigation into the operation of the pumping station from which the pollution entered the lake.

The suit asks for smoke, dye or television tests of the sewers, a report on and elimination of all crossovers between the two systems, removal of contamination, and upgrading of the entire sewage system to prevent such pollution.

The suit also asks the court to order installation of permanent monitoring equipment to keep future discharges of pollution by Hammond from entering Lake Michigan.

WHAT DO YOU DO WHEN YOU CHOOSE TO CARE BUT YOU DON'T CARE TO CHOOSE?

When you give through United Way, you don't feel like you're helping some people at the expense of others. Because your one gift helps support services that cover practically the entire range of human needs. And volunteers — local people like yourself — spend long hours going over budgets and needs in order to decide where the money can best be used. So you don't need to choose, when you just want to help as much as you can.

Thanks to you it works for all of us.

Plots no problem for Jack Higgins

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Higgins, who has written some 40 books under a variety of pen names, seems unlikely to run out of ideas — either for novels or for pseudonyms.

His latest book, "Solo," deals with a famed pianist, also a professional assassin, who in the course of his deadly work accidentally kills a young girl. Her father, a British army colonel, vows revenge.

The idea for the best-selling novel came to Higgins after he witnessed an Arab terrorist shoot and kill an Arab politician in London, the author recalled in an interview.

"It struck me that he fired indiscriminately, and I thought he could have shot any innocent person," explained the 51-year-old writer, himself no stranger to terrorism, having spent his childhood amid the sectarian violence of Northern Ireland.

"I was raised in Belfast, a child from a family very much mixed up in political matters on both sides of the Irish struggle because we're both Catholics and Protestants," he says. "When I was 7, I was only a few yards away from my first bomb going off, and people being blown all over the place."

Higgins, whose real name is Harry Patterson, left Belfast at age 12 to move to England, and living there during World War II provided him with background material for many of his books, including his best-selling World War II thriller, "The Eagle Has Landed."

At 17, after the war had ended, he joined the British Army. "I was in a very elite guards regiment, involved in the early days of the Cold War in Berlin and on remote parts of the East German border." He used the knowledge he accumulated on military intelligence in later novels.

Higgins published his first novel in 1958, supporting himself by teaching until his writing took off.

"The Valhalla Exchange" and "To Catch a King" were best sellers published under his own name, but he has written under many pseudonyms.

"I would say, probably, that the names I selected were always names that had some sort of family connection," he says. "For instance, Martin Fallon is an Irish name, as is Hugh Marlowe."

He also invented the name James Graham because in English publishing circles "there has always been an attitude that Scottish names sound strong, and go down well on the cover of an adventure story."

Higgins maintains a strict writing schedule at his home on the Channel Isle of Jersey, where he lives with his wife and four children.

"I usually start at night at about 11 o'clock and I'll probably do six or seven hard hours during the night so that around six or seven o'clock in the morning I'll finish. It really does add up to a very strenuous writing program over a period of a few weeks."

Higgins says he does no rewriting, but "I read it through the following day — no later than that; I edit and alter tautology errors, and general grammatical errors," he says.

"I write longhand...then my wife still likes, as a personal favor, to type the first draft of my work herself. She makes any comments she feels like making," Higgins explains.

But Higgins has not only written thrillers; he has written some serious fiction too.

"I did some years ago," he says. "I wrote a novel called 'A Phoenix in the Blood,' which I published under my real name. And ironically I was acclaimed by all the right critics, who said I was brilliant, sensitive and had a gift for characterization — a real find on the literary scene. The book went on to sell 1,600 copies...and I went back to writing thrillers."

Higgins believes there is a serious side to "Solo."

He's mimicked birds, animals for 50 years

The Los Angeles Times

VACAVILLE, Calif. — For the last 50 years, people have been listening to Dr. Horatio Q. Birdbath mimic birds and animals on radio, television, records and film as well as produce the zany sound effects of the Spike Jones band.

sects. He croaks like a frog, laughs like a loon, neighs like a horse, roars like a lion, caws like a crow, hoots like an owl, rattles like a rattlesnake and buzzes like a bee.

Birdbath's backyard is filled with birdbaths — the biggest a swimming pool in the shape of a giant birdbath.

And his house is filled with hundreds of stuffed animals and birds each with a voice of its own, thanks to Dr. Horatio Q. Birdbath.

But few know anything about him.

"I'm an invisible man," Birdbath says laughingly at his home on Lovers Lane here, 65 miles northeast of San Francisco.

The shrieks of Cheetah in the Tarzan movies are Birdbath's. He was the voice of the chimp Bonzo in two 1952 films starring Ronald Reagan, "Bonzo Goes to College" and "Bedtime for Bonzo."

Birdbath, 71, is Pierre the Parrot's voice in the Enchanted Tiki Rooms at Disneyland and Disney World.

He has been San Francisco's alarm clock for years as the voice of Rosie, the dog on disc jockey Don Rose's popular KFRC morning radio show.

"Remember the glugging in Spike Jones' rendition of 'Cocktails for Two'? Well, I was the glugging," he confesses Birdbath.

Birdbath was born A. Purvis Pullen but Spike Jones renamed him, and legally he has been Dr. Horatio Q. Birdbath since 1945.

He really is an ornithologist and for years he has been on the lecture circuit for the Audubon Society. He is the founder-president of the 800-member Dr. Horatio Q. Birdbath Bird Club.

He does 300 different bird calls and the sounds of 700 animals and in-

Reagan bracing for big surprise

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

Ronald Reagan says he's "bracing...for an October surprise" spelling freedom for America's hostages in an Iranian attempt to blunt his presidential drive.

The Republican nominee said in an interview with The Associated Press that "there's no way I can tell you" what he would do about the 52 captive Americans if elected.

But "I've wondered whether they will be still there in January," he said. "I'm just bracing for an October surprise" designed to help President Carter.

John B. Anderson, meanwhile, is bristling over defections from his own camp and suggestions from Carter's that he fold his independent challenge in light of his failure to move up in the polls.

And Carter, celebrating his 56th birthday, headed for the production lines of Detroit today after asking his political workers in Washington to rediscover the "fever and spirit" which propelled him to victory four years ago.

"I see no reason why we can't have that crusade," in 1980, Carter said, when "much more is at stake." Reagan campaigned in Pennsylvania today on the heels of a star-studded fundraiser in New York City which pumped $6 million into GOP coffers. Frank Sinatra crooned "The Best is Yet to Come" and pointed his finger at the Republican nominee.

But the president headlined a $1,000-per-plate function of his own Tuesday night. His serenade was "Happy Birthday," sung by a Washington audience of about 1,000 persons.

Carter cracked that if Reagan is elected, the nation will witness the "Hollywoodizing" of Washington, will bill signings at night beneath searchlights and Pennsylvania Avenue renamed the "Avenue of the Stars." The White House, he went on, could become the Brown Derby of the East, where visiting dignitaries leave their footprints in cement poured upon the South Lawn.

Carter's trip to Detroit today was his first return to the city since his visit there on the eve of the Republican National Convention, when he unveiled an emergency aid program for the auto industry. And it follows by one day his announcement of a similar program to help the equally-sagging steel industry. Michigan is among to top five steel-producing states.

The president later was to head for upstate New York, marking his second campaign appearance in the Empire State in three days. Reagan, meanwhile, stumped Pittsburgh and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., after his chief of staff, Ed Meese, scoffed at Carter's steel package, including liberalized tax provisions and extended environmental deadlines, as "half-loaf solutions."

Anderson was in Miami today to wind up what aides say is his last foray into the South.

On Tuesday, the Illinois congressman declared in Chapel Hill, N.C., that he will fight to the end despite a growing perception that he has no chance to win. Carter's campaign manager, Robert Strauss, said Tuesday that Anderson is sliding toward "single-digit" support in the polls, and Vice President Walter F. Mondale said the congressman should quit to keep Reagan from capturing the White House.

But Anderson, who once vowed he would not campaign as a "spoiler," said that "I don't know what the effect is going to be on Nov. 4. All I know is that we are in the race to stay."

As for the defection to Carter by former Under Secretary of State George Ball and other onetime backers, Anderson snapped: "There are summer soldiers and sunshine patriots."

Reagan, in his interview with the AP, declared flatly he would withdraw the pending Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty from Senate consideration. Instead, he said, he would set out to build up U.S. military might while seeking new negotiations with the Soviets to strike a more acceptable balance.

The Republican dealt cautiously with other questions over foreign affairs, including the Middle East. On the war between Iran and Iraq, a conflict for which he said a week ago that Carter was "largely to blame," Reagan deferred detailed comment until he's had "access to more facts than I have now."

As for Carter's assertion that he is a warlike candidate, Reagan insisted that "I don't itch to get my thumb on the button."

Asked why Iran would want to help Carter by releasing the hostages, Reagan said "Maybe just on the basis of some of my criticisms of the Carter administration...and the fact that I have been rather outspoken in my belief that this country should have stood by the shah's government."

Carter pays birthday visit to auto industry workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, who last summer handed auto industry leaders a plan to bolster their ailing business, is going back to the workers today — his birthday — in hopes of collecting a gift of political loyalty.

The president invaded what was temporarily Republican territory last July when he visited Detroit just before the Republican National Convention began and unveiled an emergency aid program for the automobile manufacturers and workers.

Today, he is returning to tour a Ford Motor Co. assembly line and talk to employees outside the plant, continuing a battle with Ronald Reagan, the Republican nominee, for the hearts and votes of blue collar workers.

The president's focus on the auto industry follows by one day his announcement of a program to help the sagging steel industry by extending environmental deadlines and liberalizing tax provisions. Michigan is one of the five leading steel-producing states.

Later stops on Carter's schedule today, his 56th birthday, were Flint, Mich., for a town hall meeting, and Niagara Falls, N.Y., where he will address a New York state convention of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

The New York stop was added because the Carter campaign organization believes it has a chance in the upstate area to catch up with the traditional Republican advantage there and take New York's 41 electoral votes. The president campaigned in New York City on Monday.

During his Niagara Falls visit, the president will sign a bill authorizing a federal clean up of radioactive waste stored at West Valley, N.Y., 50 miles away. He will also sign an agreement under which the federal government will provide $15 million in loans and grants to help meet the cost of relocating families in the chemically-contaminated Love Canal neighborhood of Niagara Falls.

Michigan has seen a weekly parade of top-level campaigners. Reagan visited Detroit on Labor Day, the opening day of the campaign; Vice President Walter F. Mondale was there two weeks ago; George Bush, Reagan's running mate, was there last week.

The contest in the state is close, according to Carter aides. In better economic times, Detroit would be solid Democratic territory. But while Republicans gathered there last July to nominate Reagan, unemployed auto workers were stating they were ready to jump from the Democratic column to vote for him.

Reagan, his Hollywood pals gather for campaign dinner

NEW YORK (AP) — Ronald Reagan, Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and some of their Hollywood pals got together for dinner and helped the Republican Party rake in up to $6 million for its campaign coffers.

It was billed as a Prelude to Victory dinner, a star-studded testimonial to Reagan that was broadcast live by satellite to closed-circuit television screens in 19 cities throughout the country Tuesday night.

"We're not just here to honor Ronald Reagan," joked comedian Norm Crosby. "At $1,000 a plate it's more like worship."

Dean Martin was the host, from a stage in a Beverly Hills Hotel, accompanied by Reagan's running mate, George Bush, and silly songs from the "Republican Boys Choir" — Robert Stack, Pat Boone, Fred MacMurray, Michael Landon, Buddy Ebsen, as well as Martin.

Reagan and his wife Nancy watched the program on a huge screen as they sat side-by-side with Sinatra at a table in a New York hotel.

Former President Gerald Ford shared star billing in Oklahoma City with Wayne Newton. Ford said he and Martin were "very, very lucky. We both got to the podium without falling down."

It was an offbeat night in the presidential campaign, a combination of show biz and politics. Sinatra went onto the stage in New York and crooned, "The best is yet to come" — pointing his finger at Reagan.

With only five weeks remaining until the election, Reagan returned to the hustings today, meeting with small business leaders in New York before going to a city hall rally in Paterson, N.J., and stops in Wilkes-Barre and Pittsburgh, Penn.

Reagan clearly enjoyed himself Tuesday night, and acted a little embarrassed about it.

"To those who might think it inappropriate to have an evening like this when our nation is in such dire straits and great peril, let me say, song and laughter should not be taken as an indication that we lack concern," Reagan said.

He chided Congress for recessing later this week without completing its business for the year, and challenged Carter to "demand that the Congress stay in session until it acts on a tax cut — and I think the Congress was willing to do that."

William Casey, the director of Reagan's campaign, estimated the gross receipts nationwide at $5 million to $6 million. Since Reagan receives $29 million in federal subsidies for his campaign, he is barred from receiving private contributions. The receipts will go to the GOP.

The closed-circuit show was transmitted to Atlanta; Boston; Cincinnati; Cleveland; Denver; Honolulu; Jacksonville, Fla.; Kansas City; Los Angeles; Nashville; New York; Oklahoma City; San Francisco; St. Louis; Tulsa; Wichita; Detroit; Philadelphia; and Washington, D.C.

Seniors will be VIP's at Thunderbird show

REESE AIR FORCE BASE, Texas — High school seniors will receive VIP treatment during the 1980 Thunderbird air show Oct. 12 at the Air Force Base outside of Lubbock. The seniors will have reserve seating and be able to meet and talk with Thunderbird members after the show.

The air show, which is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m., will consist of a 30-minute performance complete with rolls, loops, dives and other maneuvers.

The Thunderbirds is comprised of hand-picked volunteers who have demonstrated the ability to perform their jobs to the team's exacting standards. When a vacancy occurs, a thorough screening of each applicant is accomplished with particular emphasis on the applicant's performance records, appearance and written recommendations. In selecting pilots, flying background and experience are also closely scrutinized.

Officers currently serving on the team are responsible for reviewing the records of each applicant.

Melting pot cook book

WASHINGTON (AP) — It took $1 million, six years and 121 scholars to come up with a 1,076-page book on the cast of characters — from the Acadians to the Zoroastrians — who collectively became the Americans.

The result is the Harvard Encyclopedia of American Ethnic Groups, but it could just as well be called the melting pot cook book.

It identifies 102 ethnic groups who jumped into the pot. Included are those, like the Indians, who were here when Columbus landed; those, like the Spaniards in the Southwest, who became Americans through conquest or purchase of land; and those, like the slaves, who were involuntary immigrants.

The book's publication was celebrated Monday at a luncheon in the Capitol. The research was financed in part by a $310,000 grant from a government agency, the National Endowment for the Humanities, which hopes to recover its investment from profits generated by sales of the one-volume encyclopedia, which sells for $60.

The encyclopedia tells about the origins, migration, arrival, settlement, economic life, social structure, behavior, culture, politics, and more of 102 ethnic groups.

A browser learns, for example:

—That the people of Hawaii are made of "substantial numbers of persons with Polynesian, European, Chinese, Japanese, Filipino, Korean, Portuguese or Puerto Rican ancestry as well as their various intermixed offspring."

—That 19th century blacks, Scotch-Irish, Quakers and Swedish Lutherans were most likely Whigs or, later, Republicans, while French Canadian, German Catholics, Irish Catholics and southern whites were almost invariably Democrats.

—That "the term Scotch-Irish does not refer to people of mixed Scottish and Irish ancestry but to the Presbyterians who settled in Ulster, the northernmost province of Ireland, in the 17th century and subsequently emigrated from there to America."

The Acadians, incidentally, are settlers in Louisiana who came down from the Canadian provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick; the Zoroastrians are adherents of the religion of the Persians before they embraced Islam.

Among the other groups discussed in the encyclopedia are the Alsatians, Amish, Assyrians, Azerbaijanis, Basques, Bosnian Muslims, Copts, Cornish, Cossacks, Gypsies, Hut-terites, Kurds, Pennsylvania Germans, Slovenes, Tatars, Wends and Yankees.

Garcia confirmed as judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's confirmation of Texas state District Judge Hipolito F. Garcia as a federal judge should fill one more gap in the Western District of Texas, where recent retirements have severely depleted judicial ranks.

Garcia is the first Mexican-American appointed to that district, which stretches from San Antonio west to El Paso.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who recommended the nomination to President Carter, called Garcia "an individual of ability and integrity."

The confirmation vote Monday opens the way for Garcia to be sworn in to the post, added to the district in 1978 when Congress expanded the federal judiciary.

The district's ranks were severely weakened by retirements and the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., prompting the district's chief judge to ask for a declaration of a judicial emergency last summer.
