Buy American

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.
Editor-in-Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

A proud announcement was issued in Tokyo recently. It said that in 1980 Japan will build and sell more cars and trucks than the entire American auto industry combined. If true, it will be the first time in history spanning three-quarters of a century that the American car industry has not led the world in vehicle production.

HEARST

During the past week we began to see evidence of how the U.S. auto builders plan to react to this challenge to the world dominance. Some billions of dollars worth of research have gone into the new U.S. models — G.M.'s "Budget X" cars; Chrysler's new line of "K-cars"; Ford's complete line ranging from the Escort to the Lincoln Continental; American Motors' "Tough Americans" line.

A preliminary look shows that the new models did well for the domestic industry, in the compacts — many of them front-wheel drive — the mileage rating equals or exceeds the rating in the foreign compacts.

Knowing American tastes, the "Big Three" have even come up with full-efficient models on their big cars — Cadillac, Lincoln Continental, Chrysler Imperial. These are the big babies, as in the pre-gas shortage days, but they are governed by precise computers which automatically handle fuel injection and the efficient use of the transmission.

Cadillac, for instance, still has eight cylinders, but it uses all eight only infrequently when they are genuinely needed. A computer measures fuel injection efficiency, and if there is sufficient power, it cuts out two of the cylinders, making it a six-cylinder car. When the Caddy gets onto the highway and a computer over-drive takes over, the number of cylinders functioning in the vehicle can drop down to four. The other "Big Ones" operate on just about the same principle with, of course, individual variations.

So, welcome back to the marketplace made-in-America-cars. Little ones, middle-sized ones and big ones. Most of us who have been auto buffs all our lives, think the Detroit people know the American market, have judged the public's broad demands accurately, and are setting the scene for a big turn-around this fall and winter.

This is not the fault of American workers or of American manufacturers. New efficiency-oriented production facilities give the Japanese an edge over our aging equipment. Their workers toil no harder than ours, perhaps even less.

Pricing remains a major concern.

Editor's Report

New '81 cars are hardly on the market and prices are rising.

General Motors has this week raised prices 2.5 per cent on the '81 models, causing the Budget "X" Car to cost $6,335, which is $238 more per vehicle than had been planned. This just a month after having raised prices 3 to 10 per cent.

Chrysler's hubbub over its Budget "X" Cars obscures the fact that the company needs to sell 700,000 models just to break even. Chrysler cars range from $4,988 for the Dodge Colt or Plymouth Champ, to the biggest Dodge, Mirada, intended to sell for $7,444. On to the Chrysler's New

Effects of September rains linger

Washed-out roads, flooded businesses, drenched cotton fields and new lakes.

After last month's record rainfall, Midland County residents were glad there were only 30 days in September as many persons are still feeling the effects of the rain a week after it stopped falling.

Oilfield trucks and cotton trailers rumbling along Garden City Highway outside of Midland receive a daily reminder of the 9.70-inch rainfall which set a record as the wettest month since 1932, says the National Weather Service.

A large puddle surrounds two businesses and three mobile homes like a medieval castle float.

According to one Garden City Highway business, the West Texas sun and some helpful businesses may be the only way to get rid of the water and dry up the reddish mud.

Sam Walker, owner of Quadco, offered his generous supply of water to several oilfield service businesses to pump into oilwells.

His business and other structures are at the bottom of a depression where water from the countryside and south Midland settled into it.

A culvert under Garden City Highway near his business can't drain the body of water because of the natural contours of the land which allows the water to collect in that area.

AND SO it sits washing against his building and Brown's Wire Rope business. Walker said Brown was worse off than he since the water has flooded the entire floor of Brown's white metal building.

Flood insurance will not cover some of the damage to his property. Walker noted, since his insurance company considers it only to be rising water, not a flood.

However, he said the company is checking into a state program which might provide some relief.

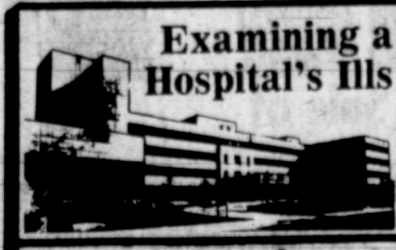

Walker considers himself lucky since the water came within one inch of coming inside his offices. When he

Financial woes continue at Midland Memorial Hospital

By SUE FAHLREN
Staff Writer

Financial problems are nothing new to Midland Memorial Hospital. In 1977, the financial situation was so bad it was resolved by an independent consultant firm that the money

Examining a Hospital's Ills

part one of a five-part series needed to restore and renovate the hospital — enough to get the necessary Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals' (JCAH) approval — could not be raised through donations.

Until then, the hospital had been a private entity, run solely on donations and patient fees. But, with at least 22 violations of the JCAH's standards and its approval in the air, MMH had to do something.

Aside from the renovations, the hospital also needed almost $1 million to clear its indigent care debts.

In September 1977, when Midland voters approved, the creation of the Midland County Hospital District, a board to represent that district's wishes and the sale of $10 million of revenue bonds, it also approved $1 million of that figure to clear up the unpaid indigent debt.

But now, three years later, the hospital district is in trouble again. The indigent and bad debt payments are getting out of hand, by some standards, and hospital officials are not sure exactly why.

THIS YEAR, THE board of directors of the hospital approved a gross revenue operational budget of $17 million for the 1980-81 fiscal year, which began Oct. 1. Slightly more than $2 million will come from local taxes to be used for other expenses, including indigent care. However, a raise in the room and services rates will provide much of the additional money for the operational budget.

The tax money, directors explained, will go to retirement of the revenue bonds and to the capital improvements budget for new and renovated equipment. The remainder of that money will go to indigent care.

Indigent care will cost taxpayers up to $480,000 this next fiscal year. But, the bad debts will cost all paying patients much more during the next year.

For this new budget, hospital officials have reckoned $1.5 million for bad debts within the operational budget. Monthly, that figure comes to

EDITOR'S NOTE: Although an outstanding facility in many aspects, Midland Memorial Hospital and the Midland Memorial Hospital District have their problems. For several months, one of the chief problems has been in the area of finances, including an increasing number of monthly bad debt "write-offs."

A special write-off package in excess of $333,000 was approved to be removed from the hospital's books in August, followed by an additional $105,000 in September.

Although the hospital has been taking about five to nine more patients daily than expected in the budget estimates, it still is operating at a $168,551 deficit for the year-to-date.

The 1979-80 budget for up to Aug. 31 allowed for a surplus of $33,406. Adding in the deficit, this means the hospital is operating about $201,957 below budgeted figures.

In addition, the hospital has under gone a number of personnel changes — including the position of administrator and chief executive. Many of the department heads and administrative personnel have tenure of less than one year.

This five-part series, which follows a comprehensive two-month study, will give close attention to the problems of the hospital and hospital district while attempting to provide readers a balanced view of the situation, its background and where Midland Memorial Hospital is heading.

Currently for the 1979-80 fiscal year, the bad debt average is about $104,000 a month. Indigent care costs for the current fiscal year are running about $33,000 a month.

One of the major problems with indigent care and bad debt payments is that few of the hospital officials even understand the technical differences in the two types of debts. Even fewer taxpayers understand the situation.

IN THEORY, indigent care patients are those who have met certain criteria proving they are unable to pay their hospital expenses. As to what those criteria are, few know. There is, however, a specific dollar amount on income which an indigent family receives, according to Jane Hall, supervisor of the admitting office.

Many of these indigent patients make more money than welfare or Medicaid allows, yet they have so many expenses and other liabilities that they cannot afford the average hospital surgical stay of $350, plus $150 a day — not including doctor's payments.

Patients are interviewed upon admission to the hospital as to their abilities to pay. Some patients need only to have their insurance coverage checked, while others without insurance or without adequate insurance, must undergo a more detailed account of their finances.

Bad debts, on the other hand, are payments which are not made. Frequently, these bills are several months — even a year or more — old. Also, the figures frequently represent the difference between what the patient's insurance claim has paid and what was left up to the patient to pay.

Sometimes, the figure represents much more than the insurance payment difference. Sometimes the bills are total bills which the patient has not paid either because he is unable to or because he feels he is not obligated to pay.

AS DIRECTOR Martin Neill said, some of the bad debt cases may just be patients who could legally be indigent patients, but because of pride or because they were afraid of the type of care they would receive if they admitted indigence, they do not apply for the funds.

Further, Neill said, the patients do not always know what options are available to them to pay their bills — such as credit unions where they work.

In addition, patients on the bad debt lists are sometimes only transients who come through town, need medical care and are admitted to the hospital. After their dismissal, there is no way the hospital can collect on the debt because it cannot locate the former patient, interim administrator Robert Bash said. Many of the patients are accident victims, or other patients who are admitted through the emergency room.

One other non-paying possibility exists and that is a feeling of non-obligation. As director Thomas Ingram said, some of these patients are "reputable citizens" who can afford to pay but don't.

The "why-should-I-pay-when-others-don't" syndrome seems to be a growing one. Robert Abernethy, assistant administrator of finance, said, "It's an attitude not only in Midland, but an attitude nationwide that 'health care is owed me.'"

Many of these descriptions are the only insight hospital officials have received — or have been able to give — for the continuing mounting money problems of the hospital district.

Few answers are available — even to board members — as to where the money actually goes.

One of the more frequent explanations of officials is that the hospital — since it is a public entity — cannot refuse service to anyone. For this reason, they say, there will always be

Ship burns off Alaska coast

All passenger rescued

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A luxury liner on a 30-day cruise to the Orient caught fire Saturday in the Gulf of Alaska, sending more than 500 people — many of them elderly Americans — onto surging and chilly seas in lifeboats, the Coast Guard said. All were rescued in slightly more than 13 hours.

The last lifeboat of the passengers was unloaded on to an oil tanker-turned-rescue ship as darkness fell, and as weather in the area deteriorated.

Coast Guard spokesman Ray Massey said it was not known how many passengers were brought aboard the tanker, which was scheduled to begin steaming immediately for Valdez, a port city just east of Anchorage.

"I've got good news for you. They're all off, they're all off," Massey said. He said it was the largest single-ship rescue in modern history.

After its passengers had been removed, the Holland America Cruises liner Prinsendam continued to burn. Coast Guard Cmdr. Rich Schoel, chief of the Coast Guard's search and rescue branch in Juneau, said flames from the fire, which began in the engine room, were shooting through the deck of the ship by Saturday evening.

Schoel said the ship was equipped with adequate fire-fighting systems, and expressed surprise that it wasn't able to contain the fire when it broke out in the engine room.

Deteriorating weather conditions hampered the rescue effort. Clouds and fog lowered visibility as waves surged up to 12 to 15 feet. Water temperature was reported to be 47 degrees and the air temperature was in the low 50s. Winds whipped up to 25 to 30 knots with higher gusts, said Coast Guard spokesman Lt. Phil Johnson and Chief Ray Massey.

One passenger, Eleanor Farnsworth, 68, of Scottsdale, Ariz., said that she and her fellow passengers were rousted from their cabins at about 1 a.m. Saturday and told to dress warmly and go to the deck.

She said they spent five hours "just milling around" before the order to abandon ship was issued around dawn.

She added that she spent seven hours in a lifeboat.

"Nobody panicked," she said. "Everybody was cool, and very cold."

MMH has two unique boards

Midland County Hospital District has a unique governing system. Before Midland Memorial Hospital became a public facility, its rules and regulations were set by the Board of Governors of the hospital.

The board of governors was made up of major contributors to the hospital. Established in 1950, the board saw to the operation of the hospital for 25 years. It was responsible for finding funds for continued maintenance of the hospital as well as for new equipment and renovations of the building.

It utilized a second board — the board of trustees — to see to the day-to-day operation of the facility and to report to the governors for final approval on recommendations on personnel, expenses and other matters.

The trustees — originally 12 in number, now 16 — were each selected by the governors for a four-year term. The trustees became involved in setting policy for the hospital.

THEN, THE CHIEF administrator would carry out those policies in the operation of the hospital.

In September 1977, the hospital district was formed and a board of directors — elected district representatives — was established. The five members of the board of directors essentially took over the governing position of the board of governors, which now numbers 28 in size. Each of the governors is appointed for a four-year term by the existing board members.

The governors' functions turned almost solely to raising funds for the hospital. With tax funds available for the indigent care patients — formerly a major expense at the private hospital — and for the equipment and renovations in the hospital, the governors could concentrate their efforts toward raising money for selected projects and specific expenses.

The directors — each elected to a two-year term — set up a management agreement with the trustees for the hospital's operation. The directors then would be the decision-making, public board for the hospital.

Currently, the board of directors includes Edwin H. Magruder Jr., president of the board; Dr. Henrie E. Mast; Thomas P. Ingram; Patricia Ann Estes; and Martin Neill.

AS IT STANDS now, the board of trustees sets policies for the hospital; the board of directors ratifies those policies and trustees' suggestions; and the board of governors is made up of those founding members of the hospital who continue to raise community funds.

The board of trustees currently includes only 15 members as a replacement has not been named for retiring board member Rosalind Glenn. Current members are Tevis Herd, president; Gene Abbot; Robert Bledsoe; Roy Campbell; Mickey Cappadonna; John Dorn; Richard Gibson; John Grimland; Dr. James McGee; Dr. Arnold Meckley; Ray Moudy; Margaret Purvis; James Ramsoure; Doug Schaubauer and George Veloz.

Both the board of trustees and the board of directors meet monthly. The board of governors meet annually — in January — to go over the status of the hospital.

The trustees meet the third Wednesday of each month; the directors meet the Thursday following the third Wednesday.

The trustees' meeting is open to the press at their discretion, but its records are closed to media as the board is not considered a public body — because it is appointed rather than elected. It is in these meetings that all the background concerning internal operational issues is presented.

THE DIRECTORS' meeting is also open to the media and its records are open. Citizens can speak before the directors — provided they make arrangements to be put on the agenda 10 days before the meeting they wish to attend.

The directors have final approval for such things as the budget, the monthly write-offs and staff privileges for doctors. They also set the tax rate each year. And the decisions they make are often rubber-stamp approvals of recommendations given them by the trustees, sans release of the background information.

Members of the board of directors are on committees with members of the board of trustees. They attend separate meetings with those committees and may also attend the trustees' meetings. The trustees can also attend the directors' meetings.

In most instances, however, only the president of the trustees attends the directors' meeting to give a report on the board's work. Sometimes, however, several or all of the directors attend the trustees' meeting.

The hospital administrator must report to both boards each month on specific problems, suggestions and events the hospital has under gone that month. He also acts as a spokesman for board questions on operations.

Until June 1980 when he resigned, Wayne E. Ulrich was the hospital's administrator for almost 12 years. Currently, Tribrook employee Robert Bash is acting as interim administrator until the new administrator arrives in Midland.

Friday, the board of directors voted to approve the appointment of Ray Branson, a former pharmacist and assistant administrator in Oklahoma, as the new administrator. He will begin his position by Nov. 1.

patients who will not — or cannot — pay for the hospital services.

Abernethy, for instance, told board members at the August directors meeting, "This is basically an open-door hospital. We do not turn down admissions."

BASH ECHOED Abernethy in a later interview. "Nobody can refuse an emergency admission." However, he he added, in a situation like Midland's, "5 to 7 percent is pretty realistic."

Even at that, Midland is still spending 2 percent more of its income on bad debts than is "realistic."

However, Abernethy said, "I think to get bad debts to 5 percent is a very ambitious goal. That's not to say it can't be done, but..."

IT HAS BEEN argued that Midland is a growing community with more people moving into town daily. Therefore, there are more patients who must be treated in the emergency room for non-emergencies because they cannot get in to see a doctor since many in Midland have closed practices. Yet there are people leaving the community as well.

Further, many of the people who are moving to Midland are involved in the oil industry and are easily able to pay their hospital expenses. So why the increase in bad debts?

A review of hospital finances during these last two years may shed some light on the subject — as well as reveal some inconsistencies and questionable activities among hospital employees and officials.

Retarded home fire under investigation

NAPERVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A fire swept a third-floor lounge and hallway area in a home for retarded adults early Saturday, killing three male residents, fire officials said.

The blaze in the Little Friends Community Living Facility was spotted around 2 a.m., Fire Chief Arnold Hodel said, and was extinguished 15 minutes after firefighters arrived.

The victims, whose names were withheld pending the notification of their families, died of smoke inhalation, a spokesman at Edward Hospital said.

One victim, who apparently was trying to escape the blaze, was found in the hallway, while the other two victims were found in a bedroom near the lounge, authorities reported.

Richardson resigns as special ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elliot L. Richardson has resigned as special ambassador and U.S. representative to the Law of the Sea Conference, the White House announced Saturday.

President Carter said in a letter to Richardson that he accepted the resignation with reluctance.

Richardson, who has served presidents in many capacities dating back to Dwight D. Eisenhower, said in a letter to Carter he wishes to return to private life now that he believes work on the law of the sea agreement is close to being completed in late 1981.

"Although several important issues remain to be settled...there is now every likelihood that the convention can be completed and opened for signature before the end of next year," Richardson wrote.

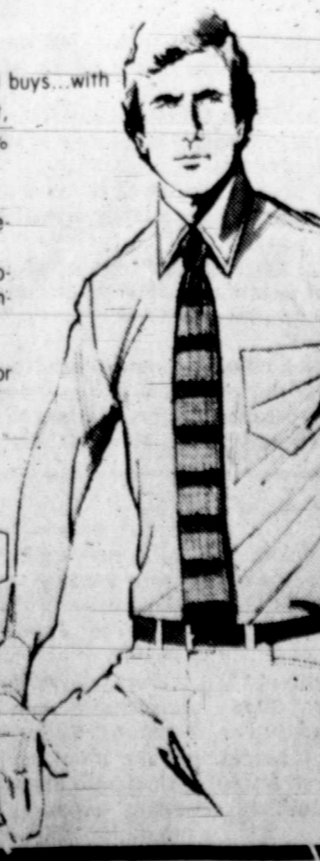

Carter named Richardson to the post in 1977 after he served as U.S. ambassador to Great Britain.

Chevron increases wholesale prices

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chevron U.S.A. Inc. announced a wholesale price increase of 3 to 4 cents per gallon nationwide Saturday for gasoline and other petroleum products, signaling higher retail prices at the pumps.

The recent Saudi Arabian crude oil price increase of $2 per barrel was responsible for the increases, according to spokesman Jerry Martin.

While the wholesale increases were effective immediately, Martin said he was unable to estimate how much retail prices would increase because of varying price structures in the states.

Chevron said the price of its regular and supreme gasoline were increased 3 cents per gallon, unleaded gasoline went up 4 cents per gallon and gasohol 3.6 cents per gallon.

The wholesale price for No. 1 and No. 2 diesel and heating oils and jet fuel also increased 3 cents per gallon.

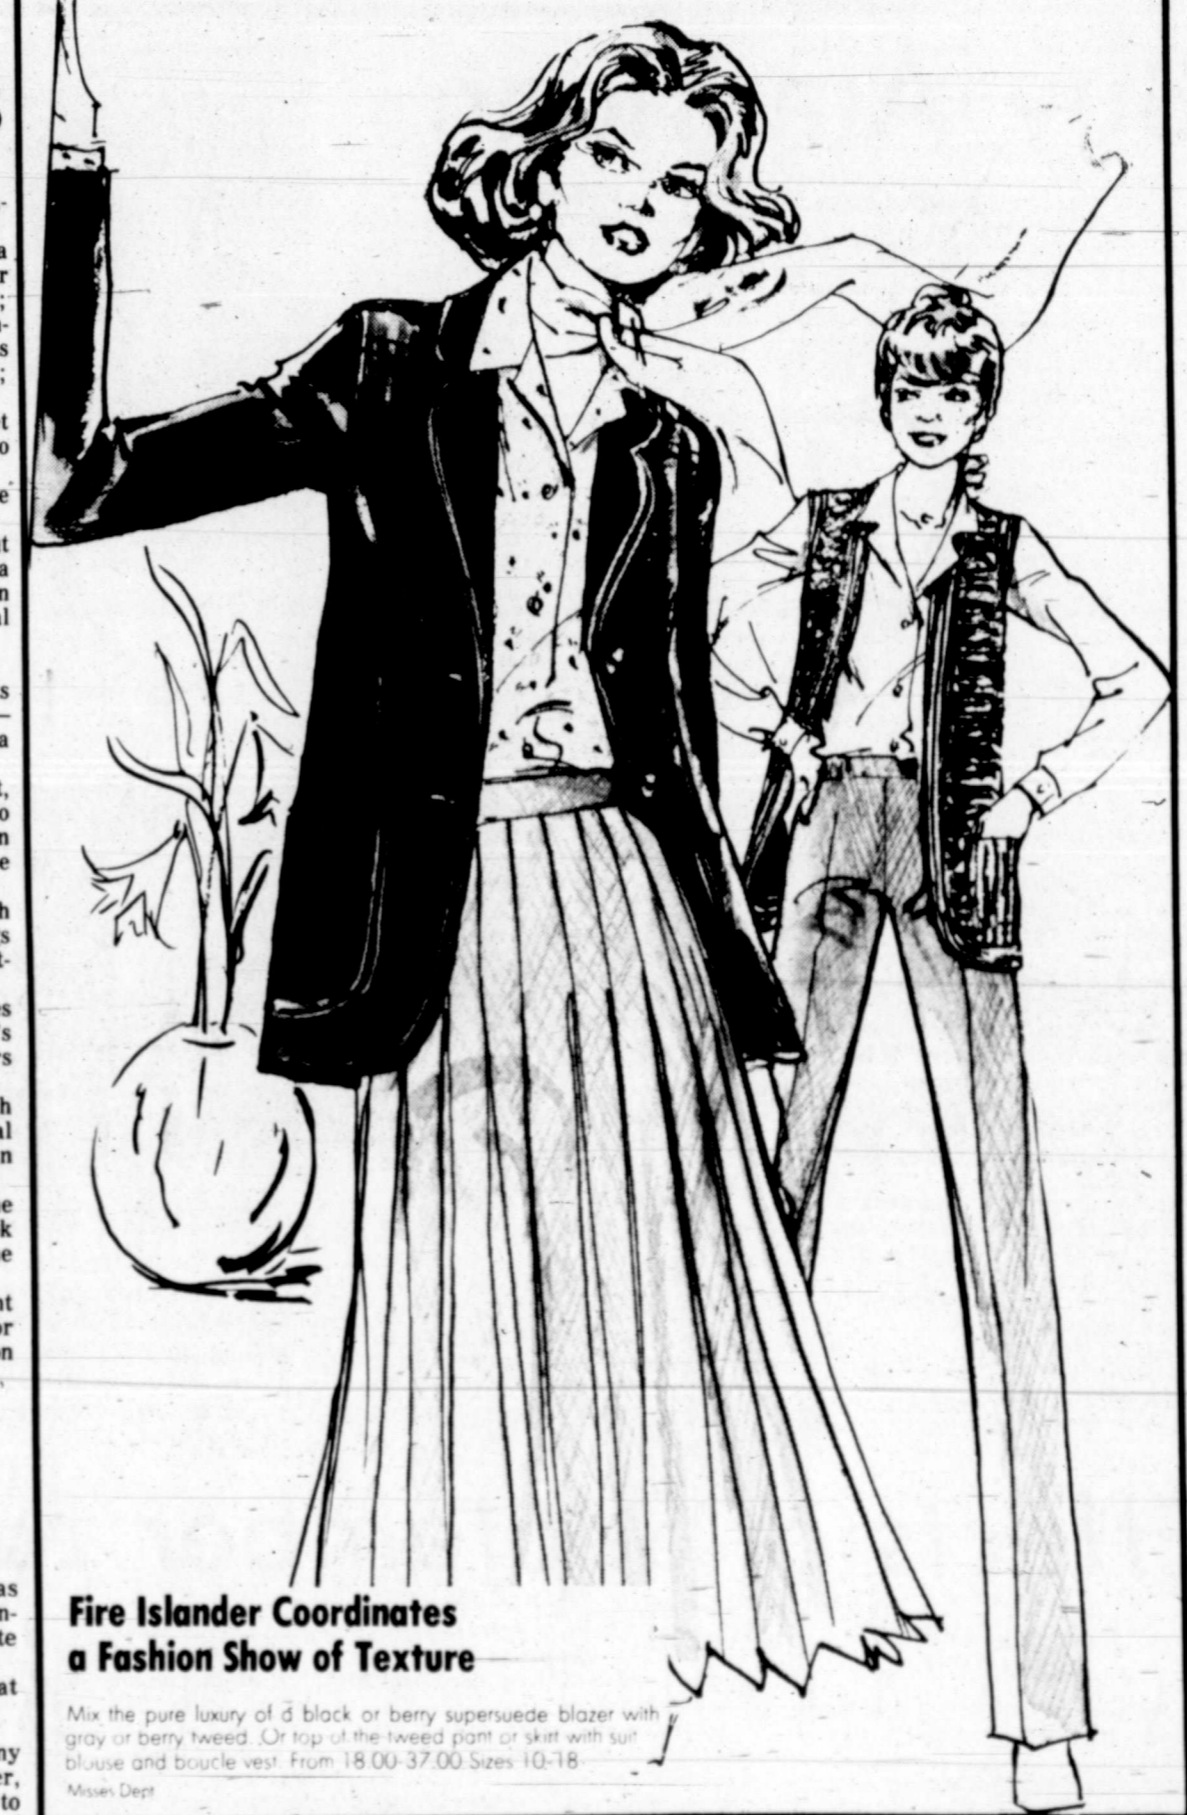

Martin said Chevron's increase had nothing to do with the Iran-Iraq conflict, however.

The Saudi Arabian government increased its benchmark crude oil price to $30 from $28 per barrel, retroactive to Aug. 1, an announcement made before the Iran-Iraq conflict began.

Chevron's price hikes follow its announcement Sept. 18 that it reduced the price of its gasoline by 2 cents per gallon nationwide.

Tour operator threatens Miami Beach hotels

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Tour operator Harry Goodman, who has brought about 100,000 Britons and $70 million worth of business to South Florida this year, is hopping mad at Miami Beach hotel owners because they won't provide 400 free rooms for travel agents over Thanksgiving.

So Goodman, the president of Intasun, is threatening to "take my business to Orlando" unless hotel officials here find some way of accommodating the British travel agents.

"I appeal to Miami Beach," Goodman said in an address Thursday to a convention of tourism officials. "Don't take things for granted."

"Look at the future. It might cost you a few dollars this year, but it will be worth it in the long run."

The problem, tourism officials say, is that the eight facilities Intasun contracts with are booked solid at Thanksgiving — and many of the guests holding reservations are Goodman's customers.

"There's no reluctance on the part of beach hotel owners to provide free rooms, it just so happens that they're full," said Ted Griffin, director of the Miami Beach Visitor and Convention Authority. "It's an unfortunate misunderstanding."

Last Month, Goodman asked Griffin to find him 400 rooms for the travel agents, but when Griffin called a meeting of the eight hotel owners, only three attended.

More professionals 'burned out'

Professor cites intensified job pressures

By STEPHEN FOX

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He's tired all the time, often calls in sick, has trouble concentrating, snaps at co-workers, opposes new ideas and is generally depressed and cynical about the job. He's burned out.

And there are more such cases of burnout now than ever, says Dr. Eli Glogow, their numbers increasing in almost all professions among executives forced to deal with intensifying job demands along with life's normal ups and downs.

"It's hitting education, business, all kinds of public and private sectors," says Glogow, associate professor at the University of Southern California's School of Public Administration. "It's a terrific waste of manpower and it's increasing."

Symptoms range from heavy drinking to argumentativeness to zombie-like behavior, says Glogow, adding that burnout is something most people recognize when they see.

"People who work with someone who has burned out know it intuitively," he said in an interview. "It's a kind of physical as well as emotional fatigue caused by excess stress and strain on the individual in which the individual really begins to wear out."

Most people who burn out don't get much help from their employer, said Glogow, although more sophisticated companies know that burnout hurts both the employee and the bottom line.

"Sometimes the individual is conscious of it and sometimes not," he said. "Drinking, tranquilizers and drugs are ways they cope with it. Very few organizations are doing anything to help them."

that will increase. There will be more programs to help them."

"There's no simple way to prevent burnout, said Glogow, because what drives one manager over the edge doesn't always bother the next guy."

"It's highly complex because it's so individualistic," he said. "You cannot say that if this thing happens to this guy he's going to be a burnout. Each of us responds to the same kind of event differently." People who have more say in what's happening on the job are less likely to burn out, Glogow said, adding that a bad boss can affect many employees.

"The leadership you work under is terribly important," he said. "A leader who doesn't allow two-way communication, who does not allow you to have a say in what's going on — this can cause excess stress."

Brilab jury learns name of the game

HOUSTON (AP)— Three weeks ago, during opening arguments of the Texas Brilab trial, Assistant U.S. Attorney Ron Woods told members of the jury they would learn many things about state politics.

Since then, the seven women and five men have had a free public education in how the Texas Legislature operates, mainly because one of the defendants is the Speaker of the Texas House.

On trial are Speaker Billy Clayton and two Austin attorneys, Donald Ray and Randall Wood, accused of accepting bribes in an insurance kickback scheme.

The government claims Clayton took $5,000 and the two attorneys a lesser amount to try to reopen bidding for the multimillion-dollar state employee health insurance contract.

Two special agents, Michael Wacks and Larry Montague, posed as representatives of Prudential Insurance Co. in the FBI undercover operation Brilab operation along with federal informant, Joseph Hauser, now serving a 30-month prison term for a bribery conviction.

As testimony developed in the opening three weeks, the jury got a seminar on politics, Texas style.

They have learned new words and phrases, and been made aware that getting a piece of legislation put up for a vote is not just a simple matter of saying yea or nay.

For example, they now know that a "snorting post" is the microphone in front of the speaker's podium where House members may make their appeals for or against various bills.

The jurors have learned that politicians must report all contributions of $50 or more and list the names and addresses of the donors.

There also is a common practice when House members run for speaker, one of the most powerful positions in the state, to accept campaign contributions on behalf of other members who might be expected to support the speakership bid.

These donations generally are made directly to the candidates but the donor usually makes it clear that the money is coming from one who wants to lead the House during the next legislative session.

All these fine points of legislative operations have been brought out in testimony.

Above all, the name of the game in politics, as this jury has learned, is compromise.

The black, zig-zag lines show the proposed routing for traffic on Industrial Avenue. This will keep through traffic out of the Garfield intersection, giving traffic on Front Street more time on traffic lights.

Rerouting traffic topic of meeting

Rerouting part of traffic on Industrial Avenue will be considered by the Midland City Council at its Oct. 14 meeting as a means to alleviate problems with an overload of traffic and timing of traffic signals.

Fred Baker, director of public works, explained the problem comes at the intersections of Industrial and Front streets with Garfield Street. The traffic lights on Garfield must coordinate all the traffic on the two intersecting streets.

Because of this, said Baker, there are 19 separate signal phases on the lights at these two intersections. One of the "go" phases is only six seconds. The proposed change would reduce the phases to 13 with the least amount of "go" time being 10 seconds. The change, if approved by the council on two readings of an ordinance, would take traffic on Industrial Avenue and put it down Cotton Flat Road, over on Florida and up to Johnson Street, thus bypassing the Garfield intersection.

There won't be any through traffic at the traffic light on Garfield and Industrial, said Baker. Traffic from businesses along that strip will be routed north or south onto Garfield, he explained.

Getting to businesses along that strip of Industrial between Cotton Flat Road and Johnson Street will mean going a little bit different route, said Baker. Coming south down Garfield, the traffic will turn right onto Industrial Avenue and may stop at any business west of Garfield with no problem. However, if someone wants to get to a business east of Garfield, the driver will have to go onto Industrial to Cotton Flat, use the proposed route to Johnson Street, and then back east on Industrial.

Traffic coming north on Garfield will be restricted to going through the intersection at Industrial or turning right. It can't make a left turn onto the street, said Baker.

"It's going to be a little bit out of the way," he admitted. "The problem is that traffic backs up on Front Street during peak hours. Some people have had to sit through three and four traffic lights at that intersection," he explained.

By reducing the number of phases on the traffic signal, each phase will be longer, and especially the one at Front and Garfield Streets, he said.

Counts taken by the city's traffic department have shown that Industrial Avenue handles only about 10 percent the amount of traffic that Front does. For example, about 6,737 vehicles travel east on Front during a working day, while the same way on Industrial shows only 662 vehicles.

The intersections of Garfield with Front and Industrial have been a problem for a long time, he said, adding that traffic lights installed there in 1976 only seemed to make it worse.

And since then, the traffic volume has "increased dramatically."

If the ordinance is passed by the council, Baker said the traffic department will install ceramic buttons and 4-foot posts to keep motorists in the right lanes.

Effects of September rainfall linger

"It's not that I'm really damaged," he said of the water's inconvenience. "It's just aggravating."

Walker estimates the deepest part of the puddle is two feet. At a glance, the amount of water on both sides of Garden City Highway could cover the playing surface of Memorial Stadium.

Even that is small compared to several low spots in the county which are being filled with run-off water from surrounding Ector and Martin counties.

AIRPLANE ENTHUSIASTS flying over the county have reported the southeast part of the county is dotted with filled playa lakes.

And Monahans Draw, which crosses Rankin Highway, is funneling water to any low spot in the county. County residents have reported that the draw is flowing more like a river, which it hasn't done for several years.

During the earlier part of last week, swollen rivers inundated Rankin Highway, making it impassable.

Water from a cotton field still runs over the intersection of FM 1213 and County Road 1160 South. About 50 yards along County Road 1160 South, the water rushes into the countryside like a New Mexico mountain stream.

About 1 1/2 miles east from that intersection near a rifle range one can easily observe a lake. Part of a caliche road lies underwater, serving as the link between two large bodies on either side of the road.

Despite the standing water, Midland County's cotton crop was not extensively damaged by the slow drenching rains, said County Agricultural Extension Agent Charles Green.

Odessa boy killed

ODESSA — A 10-year-old Odessa boy was killed Saturday afternoon when he was hit by a 1972 blue Mercury Bobcat traveling north on Clendenen Street.

Johnny Martinez Lujan of 8415 Larry St. in Odessa was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Jimmy Harris at 11:15 a.m. Saturday, reported the Department of Public Safety.

The boy was walking north on the west side of Clendenen St., about .3 of a mile north of W. 16th St., when he was struck by the vehicle, said the DPS. The vehicle had swerved and hit Lujan, throwing him 108 feet.

According to a DPS spokesman, the driver stopped the car momentarily, then left the scene at a high rate of speed.

Name of the driver is being withheld because he is a juvenile, said the DPS.

The accident was investigated by DPS officer Jerry Villalobos. Charges have not been filed in the incident.

Yorker at $10,303 and the Chrysler Imperial at $18,311.

Whether great numbers of American buyers can or will get the new U.S.A. '81 models, or will be able to scrape together the money to buy them, remains to be seen. It is expected that prices on the latest foreign models will be posted higher within the next few days or weeks. Toyota already has announced raises of 6.1 per cent or $361 over the price level for its 1980 models.

My romance with the auto has never wavered through the years, because of my father's close relationship with the new Detroit industry, as well as columnist Arthur Brisbane's wide acquaintance with the industry's leaders, I acquired an early and intimate knowledge of American cars.

I met them all — Sloan, Kettering, Knudsen, Henry Ford, Walter P. Chrysler, and the others. They dined and were entertained by Pop and

UAW cuts staff

DETROIT (AP) — Layoffs in the U.S. auto industry totaled more than 215,000 last week, but the car companies aren't alone in making cuts: The union representing the idled workers has cut back, too.

A "number of" employees of the United Auto Workers union are being laid off because of tight finances, says Ray Majerus, the union's secretary-treasurer. Most who will be cut are union organizers, he said.

The cuts are the first since 1970, when the UAW trimmed 100 union staffers because a 67-day strike against General Motors Corp. left the union in debt.

Majerus said dues payments have declined for several months because of auto industry layoffs.

Mom, and nurtured our fascination with their new industry.

Faced with today's problems, my father would most certainly have advised: "Buy American." This is not hyper-patriotism. Most countries instinctively protect their own workers and their own capital, by touting domestic products.

It is again our turn at bat. There should be no foreign quotas, no restrictions, no duty barriers. Let us solve our basic problem ourselves, by getting more capital information into the U.S. auto industry. We can then take all comers, especially on our own turf.

My old and valued friend, Paul MacNamara, formerly head of all Hearst magazines' promotions, then affiliated with David O. Selznik in his heyday, whose mind is a most prolific idea factory, has come up with a typically original one for launching the '81 models.

He has suggested, simply, that the National Automobile Dealers' Association provide new cars to take voters to the polls on election day, Nov. 4. Each car would have an American flag fastened to a place on either the left or right front bumper, signifying that going to the polls is the heart of the American process, and, that, coincidentally, these are the newest U.S.-built cars.

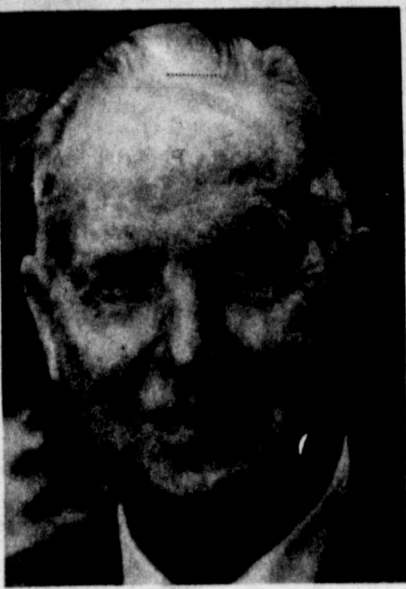

Ford and General Motors already have endorsed the program. A phone call to Lee Jacoca's office indicates that Chrysler also is interested. All seem to like this double-edged promotion — First, of the American system, second of the American industrial effort.

Under the circumstances, any idea is worth a try, particularly a natural like this. The auto industry is most important; upon it depend our other industries as steel, rubber, fabric and chemicals. Involved are millions of American jobs.

Do your part — Buy American.

Hostage issue imponderable factor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beneath the charged rhetoric and traded insults of Campaign '80 lies the smoldering Iranian hostage issue which many feel could yet be the deciding factor in the presidential campaign.

But because of the emotional and intangible aspects of the hostage crisis, triggered by the Nov. 4, 1979 seizure of the American embassy in Tehran, neither President Carter nor his major challengers, Ronald Reagan and John B. Anderson, can assess how the continuing crisis will affect the election.

Ironically, the first anniversary of the hostages' capture is Election Day.

Republican Reagan is talking of an "October Surprise" — what many of his followers feel will be the release of some or all of the 52 hostages by an Iranian government bent on manipulating the U.S. presidential election.

Reagan himself said "if that will help bring the hostages home, fine ..."

They're somewhat skeptical. This is a very unique situation."

In the Carter camp, many field coordinators in the president's reelection campaign say that if the hostage crisis remains unchanged between now and the election, the situation will be one factor voters consider when choosing the next president — but probably not a decisive factor.

"It's an imponderable," said Joel McCleary, Carter's New York field coordinator. "Who can guess how it will be treated out here. It's like playing with a chemistry set and no labels are on the chemicals. We're pouring them together here, and we don't know what the mix will produce. Also, it's not a stable electorate out there."

On the other coast, Tom Sullivan, an official in Carter's California field office, agreed.

"It's certainly on people's minds, but it's hard to know what the effect will be," Sullivan said. "People realize that the situation is outside the control of anyone in this country and that we're dealing with religious-seized alive, 'it will certainly play in the presidages are released alive, 'it will certainly play in the president's favor.'"

And, "it will certainly play in the president's favor."

And a hit will certainly play in the president's favor."

And a high-ranking official in Carter's national campaign headquarters, asking not to be identified, expressed what also is a widely-held view, saying that "if the hostages are killed, it will really hurt us."

Reagan's comments on the hostage situation came last week during an interview with The Associated Press in which he wondered aloud whether Carter will pull an "October Surprise." Reagan said that Carter has "been pretty industrious about using the incumbency of this campaign ..."

The GOP standardbearer added that because of his outspoken views that American should have stood by the late Shah of Iran, the Iranians "are not exactly supporters of mine."

Reagan's advisers charge that Carter has exploited the hostage issue for campaign purposes, insisting he has been unrealistically optimistic in some cases and inconsistent in others.

They point to the morning of the important Wisconsin primary last April 1, when the president went on national television to report progress towards freeing the hostages.

They also cite a recent campaign trip to Texas, where Carter expressed optimism about the situation by saying that recent statements by Iranian government officials "might very well lead to resolution" of the crisis.

A few hours later, Carter's secretary of state, Edmund S. Muskie, said he was "extremely cautious" about the chances of a speedy resolution to the crisis. And the next day, Carter told a television reporter in Atlanta that "there is no prospect at this time for an early resolution" of the stalemate.

"The American people can see through that," said another Reagan adviser who didn't want to be named. "We'd all be glad to have the hostages back, but we'd surely ask why in God's name it took so long."

Blind newsdealer is victim of early morning robbery

NEW YORK (AP) — A 52-year-old blind newsdealer was robbed of lottery tickets and cash worth more than $500 early Saturday at his Bronx stand, but said he was determined not to give in to thieves.

"I got no choice," said Mace Laurence. "I always say I'm going to stay there till they kill me. I know it's a lousy thing to say, but what do you do?"

Laurence said he had arrived at his small wooden stand at the Grand Concourse and Fordham Road about 4:30 a.m., as he does six days a week, to take delivery of the morning newspapers.

A few minutes later he heard two young men moving about outside.

"They opened the door," he said. "One guy jumped in and the other stood outside. I said, 'Look I'm blind what you want.' One guy said, 'Keep your mouth shut.'"

Laurence said the youth reached in his pocket and took $450 in cash he had planned to give to a friend later to take to the bank. The youth also grabbed lottery tickets worth about $80; despite a plea from the youth outside to give the money back, the newsdealer said.

Then the pair, who did not mention if they were armed, fled.

Police at the 52nd Precinct said later they were looking for two youths with Spanish accents, but little else to go on.

Laurence, who was not hurt, had cataracts as a child and has been blind since suffering a detached retina in one eye and worsening sight in the other in the early 1960s. He opened the stand in 1965.

He said that in 15 years, he has been robbed only once before, when a youth bumped him and took some minor articles.

Congress making questionable news

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 96th Congress, more than any in recent history, is becoming as notable for its performances off the House and Senate floors as on, amid recurring reports of questionable conduct.

During the last nine months the toll has included one member expelled after a bribery conviction, five others still under indictment, another beginning a prison sentence, several admitting serious drinking problems, and one agreeing to a special treatment program after being accused of soliciting sex from a teen-age boy.

Although congressional misbehavior is nothing new — scholars say there probably was more of it early in the century — the 96th Congress has taken on greater taint as one scandal after another has emerged.

Last week on what some congressional aides have called "Black Thursday," Rep. Michael "Ozzie" Myers, D-Pa., was expelled from the House of Representatives because of his bribery conviction in the Abscam scandal. He was the first congressman to be thrown out since 1861.

The next day, Rep. Robert E. Bauman, R-Md., a leading conservative, agreed to a court-imposed treatment program, after facing government charges that he solicited sex from a 16-year-old boy in a Washington bar frequented by homosexuals.

Bauman was allowed to plead innocent to the solicitation charges and blamed his troubles on alcoholism. He was only the latest of a rash of congressmen who have publicly admitted problems with alcohol, often at a time when they faced accusations of other misconduct.

Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C., who is on trial now in the Justice Department's Abscam bribery investigation, told a jury his judgment was impaired during his meetings with undercover FBI agents because of heavy drinking.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., while being "denounced" by the Senate over charges that he cheated on expenses and diverted campaign money to personal use, also admitted to problems with liquor. Reps. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., and Joe Wyatt Jr., D-Tex., have made similar public confessions, saying they are now cured of their alcoholism.

In July, Rep. Charles Diggs Jr., D-Mich., entered a federal prison in Alabama on a three-year sentence for taking payroll kickbacks. Earlier he had resigned from Congress, having been censured by his colleagues.

Another congressman resigned under pressure last January.

Rep. Daniel J. Flood, D-Pa., at the time charged with conspiracy, bribery and perjury, cited health reasons for his departure that ended 16 terms in office. In February, the 76-year-old Flood was placed on a year's probation after pleading guilty to the conspiracy charge.

Although the away-from-the-chambers record of the 96th Congress may be tainted with recurring scandal, political scientists say its record is probably exemplary when compared to the activities on Capitol Hill in decades past.

"I believe that from the 19th Century and up until around World War II, things were a lot worse," says Professor Norman J. Ornstein of Catholic University, a close observer of Congress. "Congress is a lot cleaner now, probably cleaner than it's ever been."

In the past, Ornstein said in an interview, there was much greater visible alcoholism, wilder sexual escapades and "clearly a lot more bribery" among members of Congress. Those foibles, however, were often not made public.

Ornstein and other scholars believe the Watergate scandal prompted a closer look by both journalists and law enforcement officials at government misconduct.

The 1974 Tidal Basin episode of former Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., provided another watershed. The Arkansas congressman's admitted alcoholism and involvement with stripper Fanne Fox forced Mills' resignation, and the press then began paying closer attention to the private lives of public figures.

Disclosure of congressional misconduct has had only mixed impact on voters, however.

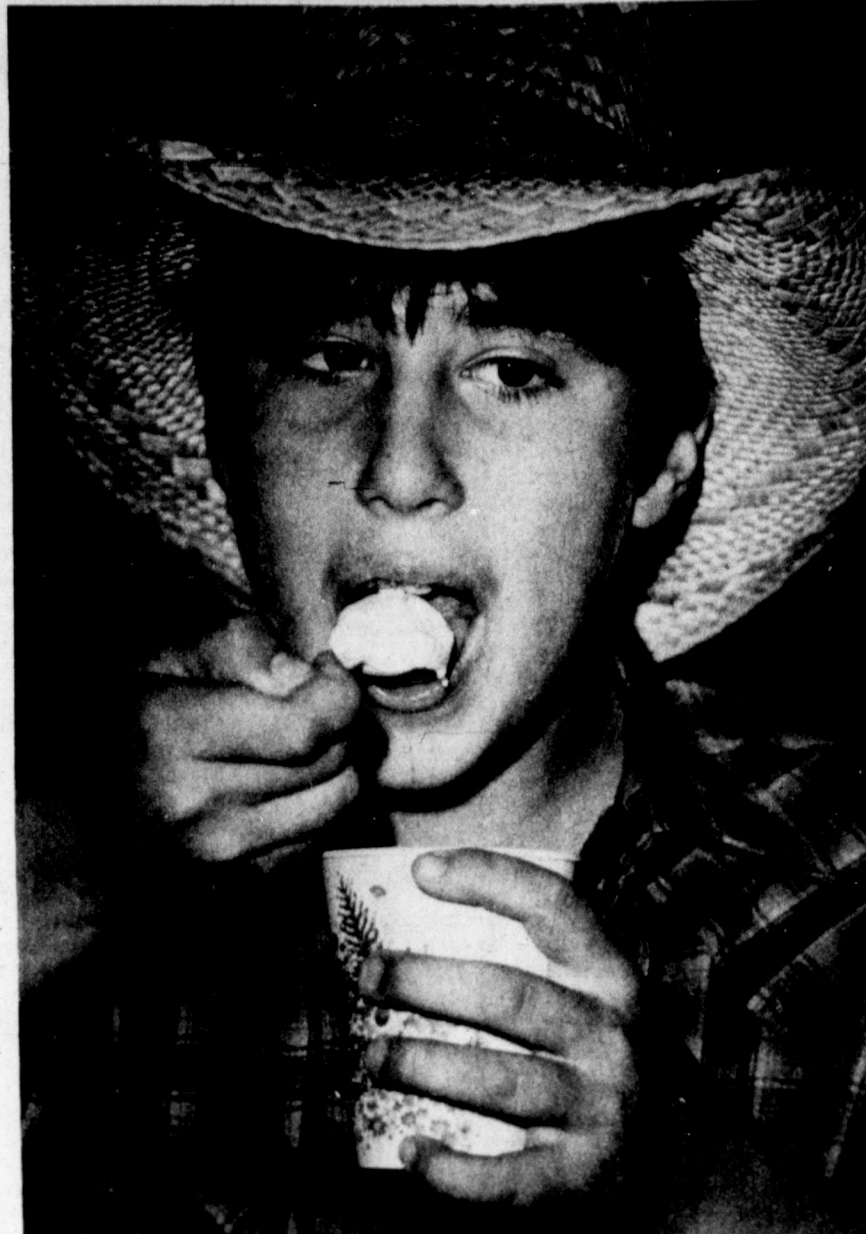

Last month, Rep. Richard Kelly, R-Fla., blamed his indictment in the Abscam cases for a primary defeat. But other congressmen facing trial in the Abscam case — Reps. Jenrette, John Murphy, D-N.Y., Raymond Lederer, D-Pa., Frank Thompson, D-N.J. — won primary battles.

Despite their problems, Diggs was re-elected only later to resign; Talmadge won a tough primary this year in Georgia; and Flood prior to his resignation was named "Man of the Year" back home in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

A forgiving constituency returned Rep. Frederick W. Richmond, D-N.Y., to Capitol Hill after he acknowledged an incident of homosexuality that led to a charge of soliciting sex for pay during the 95th Congress.

And in Ohio, former Rep. Wayne Hays, a Democrat who in 1976 quit after it was disclosed he kept Elizabeth Ray on his House payroll as a mistress, was elected to the state General Assembly. He reportedly is talking about returning to Washington.

One reason voters tend to forgive could be that Congress is not so unlike society in general. "I do not believe people in Congress are any more or less venal or weak than the country as a whole," Ornstein said.

PLO wants Russians out of Afghanistan

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Islamic representatives from 38 countries and the Palestine Liberation Organization on Saturday moved to have the current U.N. General Assembly call for a Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan. Pakistani Foreign Minister Agha Shahi, who presided over a private meeting of Islamic officials and PLO observers, read reporters a communique announcing creation of an open-ended committee to draft a resolution on Afghanistan for submission to the assembly.

The PLO, which cannot vote in the assembly, is a full member of the Islamic group. Shahi said the committee was "instructed to bear in mind the principles set forth in the previous resolution of the Islamic Conference of Foreign Ministers." That resolution, adopted at meetings in Islamabad, Pakistan, last May, demanded "the immediate, total and unconditional withdrawal of all Soviet troops stationed on the territory of Afghanistan." The Soviets have poured an estimated 85,000 troops into Afghanistan since last December to help the Marxist regime in the capital of Kabul fight anti-communist Moslem insurgents.

The U.N. General Assembly shied away from mentioning the nationality of the interlopers when it voted 104-18 with 18 abstentions last Jan. 14 to call for "the immediate, total and unconditional withdrawal of all the foreign troops from Afghanistan."

That resolution was adopted at the assembly's sixth emergency session, arranged after the Soviet Union vetoed a somewhat similar resolution in the Security Council.

China says U.S. violated agreement in Taiwan move

PEKING (AP) — China's official news agency declared Saturday that the United States had violated a U.S.-China agreement by giving diplomatic privileges to Taiwan's representatives in the United States.

The Xinhua agency said "there is no doubt" that the action "will hurt the feelings of the Chinese people and give rise to widespread concern and indignation in China."

The United States broke diplomatic relations with Taiwan, seat of the rival Nationalist Chinese government, to establish formal ties with Peking last year. Xinhua noted that the U.S.-Peking agreement stated that the United States would maintain "only cultural, commercial and other unofficial relations with the people of Taiwan."

Under an agreement signed Thursday in Washington, representatives of the United States and Taiwanese private institutes that handle Washington-Taipei relations will be entitled to almost all the benefits ordinary diplomats receive, even though their mission technically is unofficial.

Xinhua said, "under the agreement, the unofficial representatives of the United States in Taiwan and vice versa are made official diplomats in everything but name."

It called this "an undisguised violation of the principles for the establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and China."

Xinhua said the institutes that handle U.S.-Taiwan relations, as private organizations, "have no rights to offer each other the privileges similar to those accorded diplomats."

For the last few months, the Chinese press has denounced

U.S. Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, saying he clearly wants to restore U.S. relations with Taiwan to "the official and government level."

In a meeting with three American newspaper editors on Friday, however, Vice Premier Wan Li said that while China was very much interested in Reagan's statements on Taiwan relations, it realizes that the U.S. elections are an internal matter and is not taking any position."

Meanwhile, China is trying to persuade Taiwan to unite with the mainland, although its overtures so far have been rejected as "sugar-coated poison."

China's mountaineering association offered Saturday to help Taiwanese mountaineers planning to climb Mt. Everest from the Nepal side.

Shi Zhanchun, vice president of the association, offered the Taiwanese data collected by Chinese expeditions to the top of Everest from the Chinese side in 1960 and 1975.

Iraq may forget about cease-fire

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq warned that a cease-fire it planned to begin at dawn Sunday would be shattered if Iranian attacks continued. Iran has already rejected the U.N. Security Council's cease-fire call.

Iraqi Defense Minister Adnan Khairallah announced the proposed three-day cease-fire hours after Iranian jets attacked fog-shrouded Baghdad on Saturday in retaliation for a series of Iraqi air raids. Both Persian Gulf countries also claimed victories by their ground forces in battles for key Iranian cities.

Khairallah told reporters at a news conference here the Sunday cease-fire was contingent on the cessation of Iranian hostilities, military buildups and anti-Iraqi propaganda.

"If they agree, we hope we will reach a peaceful solution," he said. "If they persist in fighting, then we will go on fighting after we prove to the international forum that we respect the (U.N.) Security Council resolution."

Khairallah also charged Israeli jets participated in an attack on an Iraqi nuclear research facility Tuesday, but he refused to present evidence of the claim. Israel denied similar charges Friday.

Meanwhile, Iran's revolutionary leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, issued a new warning Saturday to Arab countries against aiding Iraq and again rejected an Iraqi cease-fire in the 13-day-old war.

Tehran Radio said Iranian firing squads had executed 15 people in the war zone for espionage and treason.

King Hussein of Jordan, the only Arab leader to openly support Iraq and to offer military assistance, went to Baghdad Saturday to personally assess the war situation, a palace spokesman said.

Western diplomats in Baghdad said the war seemed to be settling into a static situation, but still packed a potential for spreading beyond Iraq and Iran.

In the Iranian oil port of Khorramshahr, jubilant Iraqi soldiers swarmed through the streets despite Iranian artillery and sniper fire. AP photographer Zuhair Saade said there was Iranian resistance in the eastern part of the city, but the Iraqis seemed to have firm control of the port area.

There were no new developments on the fate of 52 American hostages held in Iran since Nov. 4, although Iran's Parliament has named a committee to examine the hostage issue.

Low-flying Iranian Phantom jets pierced morning fog over Baghdad Saturday and Iraqi anti-aircraft and missile batteries opened fire. Explosions were heard to the south and west of the capital, but there was no information on whether the Iranian planes had bombed Baghdad. One resident said his home was hit by machine-gun fire.

Iraq claimed later in the day that it shot down three Iranian jets over Baghdad, as well as two over Basra and four more on other sectors of the front. Iran, without offering details, said it lost "two pilots" during the day.

It was the first Iranian air raid on Baghdad since Tuesday when the American-built Phantoms hit an electric power plant in the Iraqi capital and damaged a nuclear research center. The raid again demonstrated that Iran's air arm retains capability to penetrate deep into Iraq.

The Tehran military command said the raid was launched hours after Iraqi MiG jets attacked seven Iranian cities over a 500-mile stretch of Iranian territory.

Iraq, which has said it achieved its main military goals, was attempting to consolidate its gains along a 300-mile front that at some places penetrated 50 miles into Iran.

Both sides issued conflicting reports on battles for the vital Iranian oil port of Khorramshahr on the disputed Shatt al-Arab waterway at the northern tip of the Persian Gulf. There has been no first-hand, authoritative information on the numbers or disposition of troops engaged in the war or on the seriousness of damage each side claims to have inflicted.

For example, Iraq claimed to have shot down 189 Iranian jets and destroyed 118 Iranian tanks. Iran claimed to have shot down 110 Iraqi jets and destroyed 702 tanks and armored personnel carriers.

The Iraqi command said its troops were holding on to Khorramshahr and other "liberated territory" in Iran's oil province of Khuzistan. But Iran claimed "complete superiority on all fronts."

President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr of Iran claimed Iraqi forces had been driven out of Khorramshahr, but that the city was still being shelled by Iraqi artillery. An Iranian military communiqué called the battle for Khorramshahr in the last 48 hours "one of the bloodiest battles and most glorious epics of the Moslem nation."

The communique spoke of "fighting the enemy hand to hand and from trench to trench," but claimed "control of all of Khorramshahr." Iranian losses were listed as 23 dead and 106 wounded.

Fighting also was reported at Abadan, the Iranian refinery city near Khorramshahr, at Ahwaz, capital of Khuzistan Province, and at Dezful, a key road and rail junction 150 miles north of Khorramshahr. Iraq claimed its army fought "a decisive battle in the Dezful area and now stands as proud victorious heroes deep in Iranian territory."

The Tehran Radio report on the execution of "15 Iraqi intelligence service elements and traitors" at Susangerd, northwest of Ahwaz, indicated that Iraq appeals to "Arab brothers" in Khuzistan Province may have gained some supporters for the Iraqi invasion.

Israel's Gur says military ability of Iraq, Iran poor

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The military ability displayed by Iran and Iraq in the Persian Gulf war has been "unbelievably poor," according to a former Israeli chief of staff.

Mordecai Gur, who oversaw the rebuilding of Israel's army after the 1973 Mideast war, said in an Israeli Radio interview Saturday that both Iran and Iraq have failed to take advantage of their sophisticated weapons and large armies during 13 days of warfare.

"The use of aircraft is very poor, the use of anti-aircraft missiles is unbelievably poor, and the use of ground forces, for the time being, is in no proportion to the tanks and other ground equipment they have," said Gur, who retired from active military service in 1978.

Israel has been closely monitoring the Persian Gulf fighting and is especially concerned with Iraq, which has been in a state of war with Israel since 1948 and sent troops to fight against the Jewish state in the 1967 and 1973 wars.

On Friday, Israel denied French press reports that Israeli aircraft were involved in the Iranian attack on an Iraqi nuclear reactor site last Tuesday.

Gur said the Iranian bombing run was "very poor" and said it was a mistake to dispatch a small number of planes on such an important mission. "I believe they did it because they don't know how to operate with bigger numbers," he said.

"We hear that the Iranians intend to do it again," Gur added. "If they do it with three or four attacks, I believe they will achieve at least part of their objective."

Gur said that if Iran should succeed in destroying Iraq's French-built reactor site, it would be "an achievement for the whole Middle East."

Israel has not hidden its concern over Iraq gaining a nuclear capability. But it has denied French charges that Israeli agents were in-involved in two sabotage attempts against the Iraqi project in which a nuclear scientist was murdered and key reactor components were damaged.

Gur conceded that the war would give both Iraq and Iran some military experience that could be employed against Israel in the future. "There are some lessons they will learn from the experience: Some tactics, the use of masses of power, coordination between planes and anti-aircraft missiles and all the air defenses," he said.

"But based on what we have seen during the past two weeks, it would take both armies a very long time to gain any sophisticated knowledge of the use of the modern forces at their disposal," he said.

Explorers seek volunteers

Kick-off for a local drive offering the Explorer Scouting program to young people in the Midland area will be Oct. 14.

Persons over 21 interested in volunteering to lead the Explorer groups should attend a meeting at 7:30 p.m. that day in Midland College Student Center.

The Explorer program is designed for young men and women aged 14 and up. The program offers a variety of activities, including camping, outdoor sports and career interest events.

Each Explorer unit, which consists of five or more members, may choose to pursue a special interest such as high adventure, search and rescue, western lore or a career interest field. Annual area-wide events include a road rally, a winter ski trip and the Explorer Olympics.

GOP team briefed on Mideast

MIDDLEBURG, Va. (AP) — Carter administration intelligence officials gave Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan and running mate George Bush a briefing Saturday on the recent developments in the war between Iran and Iraq.

Bush called the discussion "pure intelligence" and said that neither he nor Reagan intended to use the information "as ammunition to criticize President Carter."

CIA Director Stansfield Turner and other top intelligence officials spent more than two hours with the GOP candidates at Reagan's rented estate in Northern Virginia.

Bush, who headed the CIA himself during the administration of former President Gerald R. Ford, said he was impressed with the information that was received at the private briefing. But Bush also said it did not change his general view of the situation in the Middle East nor would it cause him to stop criticizing Carter's general handling of foreign policy over the last 3 1/2 years.

"I feel better informed about the world. I can't tell you I feel more optimistic about it," said Bush, who spoke to reporters waiting outside.

The vice presidential candidate said he and Reagan asked several questions about the U. S. hostages in Iran but there was little discussion on this subject.

Reagan declined to discuss the briefing with reporters, although as he walked Bush to a helicopter, Reagan characterized the session as "most interesting."

"We're just getting information we didn't have before," he said.

While Bush generally praised the quality of the intelligence received, former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, an occasional Reagan foreign policy adviser, questioned the importance of the briefing in light of what he suggested was the poor state of U. S. intelligence.

"The value of the briefing can obviously be no better than our overall intelligence," Kissinger said. "But since that's the best information that's available to our senior officials, that's the best we can do."

Kissinger did not attend the CIA briefing, but conferred with Reagan and Bush earlier in the day in a session that also included former retired Gen. Alexander Haig, former commander of NATO, and Adm. Thomas Moorer, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Saying "we obviously have an intelligence problem," Kissinger suggested the CIA did not even know in advance that an Iraqi attack on Iran was imminent.

Reagan has suggested in the past the war would not have happened had the Carter administration done more to support the government of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who was overthrown in the Iranian revolution of early 1979.

Kissinger said the briefing would be useful in helping Reagan "to know which areas of sensitivity he should avoid in the national interest and it will keep him from making an inadvertent mistake."

For Bush, the session may have brought back recollections of a similar briefing four years ago. It was the intelligence briefing that Bush, then the CIA director, gave Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter.

Elderly woman held as terrorist

GENOA, Italy (AP) — Caterina Picasso, 73, nicknamed "Machine-Gun Granny," says she's a political prisoner and a member of the left-wing terrorist group the Red Brigades, according to police reports.

She is being held in prison on charges of illegal possession of arms. "I am a brigatista (a member of the Red Brigades)," she was quoted as telling police. "And I am a political prisoner."

Police who raided Mrs. Picasso's house Thursday were surprised to find her there. "Can you imagine?" one policeman said. "We thought we were in the wrong apartment when, instead of finding the Red Brigades armed to the teeth, we found this old lady."

Police believe Mrs. Picasso, who wore jogging shoes, a baggy sweater and a long skirt when she was arrested, housed a terrorist suspect whom she referred to as her nephew.

Rain filling up area reservoirs

Runoff from late-September rains has revolutionized the water outlook for this area of West Texas.

Reservoirs supplying cities from Sweetwater to Odessa and Snyder to San Angelo picked up 214,000 acre feet of water during the week.

Cities supplied by the Colorado River Municipal Water District were the greatest beneficiaries in terms of volume, but Sweetwater had the greatest blessing in terms of relieving pressure.

Lake J.B. Thomas and Lake E.V. Spence together picked up 122,400 acre feet for the week. Of this, 39,200 acre feet flowed into Lake Thomas, putting its elevation to 2,233.40 feet and 32.35 percent capacity with a content of 66,000 acre feet.

Vertical gain for the week was 13.4 feet, and from the low point of the year 23 feet. September gain was 42,500 acre feet and for the year 64,200 acre feet.

Lake Spence gained 83,170 acre feet during the week to reach elevation 1,874.56. This is six feet higher than it has ever been and with a content of 232,200 acre feet, it is 47.54 percent of capacity. September gain for Spence was 132,000 acre feet and for the year 157,700 acre feet.

Vertical foot gain for the week was 11.5 feet and for the year 22 feet.

Almost as important as the volume is the improvement of quality in Spence water, which will come up about 150 percent from September inflow.

Moss Creek Lake and Powell Creek Lake, small reservoirs which fit into the CRMWD supply, picked up 2,000 acre feet for the week.

Moss Creek gained half of it by rising seven feet to elevation 2,332, making a content of 2,650 acre feet.

Powell Creek rose 10 feet and gained 1,000 acre feet to reach 1,450 in storage. It will be pumped into Moss Creek Lake and the catch will result in a substantial electric power savings over water which otherwise would have had to be pumped from Lake Spence.

Lake Colorado City jumped 15 feet to elevation

2,073.80 and went 3/4 over the service spillway. This was the first time since 1969, when it flowed over the spillway for 24 days.

The lake contained 31,900 acre feet an increase of 16,400 for the week.

The companion reservoir, Lake Champion, gained seven feet and 16,400 acre feet to reach elevation 2,065.

Lake Sweetwater gained 3,000 acre feet to a content of 4,000 acre feet. Lake Trammel gained 2,000 acre feet to a maximum content of 3,000 acre feet and Lake Oak Creek picked up 13,800 acre feet to put 20,000 acre feet in storage which is about half the capacity.

The Twin Buttes Lakes near San Angelo came up by 20,000 acre feet to leave 72,000 acre feet in storage.

North Concho Lake came up by 16,000 acre feet to put 35,000 acre feet in storage and Lake Nasworthy gained around 2,000 acre feet to 11,000 capacity feet.

However, 7,000 acre feet had to be released to prevent flooding from Lake Nasworthy.

Boy better after surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After spending nearly his whole life in a hospital and running up $1 million in bills, 3-year-old Houssam Birkhirmer can breathe easier.

Houssam, who suffers from a rare brain disorder that prevents him from breathing normally while he sleeps, went home Friday from Children's Hospital in Hollywood after doctors implanted a battery-operated device beneath his skin to electrically stimulate a key nerve.

"It's wonderful what the doctors have done," the boy's mother, Cecelia Birkhirmer of Pomona said. "It will be easier on all of us now that we have Houssam home. We will all breathe easier knowing that he does."

Her husband, Jim, 38, owner of a bar in suburban Walnut, added, "At this point we're just tired, but I don't think we will ever be able to really sleep at night without worrying about him."

The Birkhirmers' battle to save their son already has cost more than $1 million — and they have no insurance. They say they have received financial help from Crippled Childrens Services and donations from friends.

Houssam is only one of 21 known cases in the United States of people suffering from Congenital Central Hypoventilation Syndrome — also known as Ondine's Curse. When a person suffering from the malady goes to sleep, the brain stops sending breathing commands to the nerves, diaphragm and lungs.

So far, doctors say, the problem is incurable and can lead to brain damage, heart problems and possibly death.

"He would turn blue," Houssam's father said Friday. "One time I went to check him and he had turned almost black."

"I picked him up, threw him down on the bed as hard as I could three or four times, then my wife called the paramedics. They managed to get a faint heartbeat."

He was treated in an iron lung with a respirator hooked up through an opening in his windpipe.

"But as he got older, he resisted the respirator and would pull it out at night," Mrs. Birkhirmer said. That's when doctors decided to implant the device Sept. 11 to induce normal breathing through electrical stimulation of the phrenic nerve, which sends signals to the diaphragm.

Carter meets with Pakistani

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq of Pakistan conferred Friday with President Carter and wished him "all the best" in his re-election campaign.

There was no immediate word on what they had discussed during their private session, but after the meeting, Carter praised Zia's role in attempting to help negotiate a settlement of the war between Iran and Iraq.

The president said Zia's recent trips to Iran and Iraq "to try to limit the combat, the loss of blood...is of greatest importance to us all."

Carter also praised Pakistan for taking in "hundreds of thousands of refugees from Afghanistan" and stressed that a 1959 mutual defense pact between the two nations would take effect "if Pakistan should be in danger."

McQueen in Mexico; Seeks help in Laetrile

SANTA MARIA, Mex. (AP) — Cancer-stricken actor Steve McQueen has been taking the controversial substance Laetrile, as well as other drugs, at a resort hospital south of Tijuana, a Mexican doctor confirmed Saturday.

But Laetrile is "only a small part" of the therapy the 50-year-old McQueen has undergone the past 2½ months at General Hospital Santa Maria, Dr. Rodrigo Rodriguez said in an interview.

"I do not know what Mr. McQueen's personal motivation for coming here was," Rodriguez said, "but when you speak with him you find — and it's true in all cancer patients — that there comes a time when the situation seems helpless. It is then that they begin to look toward alternative therapy."

It was disclosed last week that McQueen has mesothelioma, a rare form of lung cancer many doctors regard as incurable. The actor had denied reports of the cancer for six months in order to spare his family "and to retain my sense of dignity as...I thought I was going to die," according to a statement from his Hollywood publicist.

Rodriguez said that when McQueen arrived at Santa Maria, the actor had been told he had "only a few weeks to live. I do not give my patients a time estimate like that," he said. "Cancer is already a death sentence to the patients — there is no way that anyone knows what date someone will die."

Rodriguez said McQueen, who was not available for an interview, also has been taking a Japanese vaccine made from bacilli usually used in the treatment of tuberculosis "which we have found very helpful building up the (patient's) immunities."

Rodriguez maintained McQueen has improved considerably since transferring to the converted resort hotel from a Los Angeles hospital earlier this summer.

"In the beginning, he would just be dropped over his bed; now he lies down," the doctor said. "Before, he was in such pain he could hardly move from his bed to the chair. Now he walks around the grounds and drives his car through the swimming pool sometimes. He is even able to jump into the swimming pool sometimes."

"His attitude has changed, too," Rodriguez added. "He's not full of self-pity, as before."

The doctor said the program at the 18-month-old hospital includes exercise, psychotherapy and detoxification to rid the body of what Rodriguez described as the everyday poisons people take in in the form of unhealthful foods or living habits.

The facility is perched on a bluff on the Baja California peninsula about 75 miles south of San Diego.

McQueen, like every other patient at the 150-room facility, had to complete a 2,500-item computerized questionnaire before entering the hospital, which was developed by former dentist Donald William Kelley of the International Health Institute in Dallas.

The questions range from "Do you suffer from frigidity?" to psychological questions on whether the patient is afraid of the dark, feels angry for no reason, or suffers from insomnia.

Rodriguez said McQueen was moved from one bungalow to another Friday after it was learned he was in Santa Maria.

Rodriguez said there have been flocks of reporters standing outside the locked hospital gate at various times since Friday, but there has been no influx of fans looking for McQueen.

Oswald imposter theory rejected

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — There's no merit to the claim that the body in the grave of Lee Harvey Oswald is that of a Soviet imposter, Dr. Michael Baden, a consultant to the House Select Committee on Assassinations, said Saturday.

Baden, who is chief medical examiner New York City and associate professor of pathology at New York University, said that in 1977, his panel looked into claims that someone had impersonated the man accused of killing President John F. Kennedy.

He said he found the claims "spurious and without merit."

A British author has alleged there were inconsistencies between the autopsy performed on Oswald following his killing 17 years ago, and Oswald's military records.

The military records show Oswald several inches taller than the autopsy found, and indicate a scar behind the ear that was not found in the autopsy, the author claimed.

Blacks, Klan hold marches in Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Blacks protesting the shooting of a pregnant woman and Ku Klux Klan members supporting gun sales held separate demonstrations on Saturday.

Three blacks were arrested and charged with carrying concealed weapons, but they apparently were not part of either march, said police Sgt. Perry Martin.

Twenty robed Klansmen, some of them wearing hoods, marched peacefully in the Klan march, which was organized as a show of "white solidarity" for the Jackson Police Department. Jackson police have come under heavy criticism from blacks after a white officer shot to death an armed, pregnant black woman on Aug. 29.

"We are tired of bowing to the nigger," said Gordon Gale of Pica-yune, grand dragon of the state Klan, as about 150 followers cheered and 250 others watched at the Hinds County Courthouse.

Also attending the Klan rally was Bill Wilkins of Denham Springs, La., imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

About 100 persons, including state Rep. Aaron Henry of Clarksdale, president of the NAACP in Mississippi, quietly watched the march and rested on firearm violations as they walked along a sidewalk near a march called by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and Delta Ministries. That march, attended by about 150 people, was held to protest the woman's death, and was the fifth protest over the shooting in the last five weeks. Those arrested were identified as William Brown, 27, Robert Owens, 28, and Kojo M. Owusu, 25, all of Jackson.

The three have been released on $500 bond, Martin said.

The marchers carried signs reading: "Must we have another Miami?"

Manila hotels bombed

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Urban guerrillas bombed four hotels Saturday night, injuring a dozen people in the latest phase of a terrorist campaign to topple the eight-year-old martial law ruler, President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

The "April 6 Liberation Movement" claimed responsibility for the attacks and warned tourists to avoid the Philippines. The explosions injured two U.S. servicemen and an Australian tourist, authorities said.

The bombs went off as Manila was preparing to host a world tourism congress meeting next month that is expected to attract several hundred delegates from more than 100 nations.

They also coincided with renewed violence in the southern Philippines that left five people dead and dozens injured in two separate grenade attacks, police said, adding that they had arrested four suspects.

The government is fighting a Moslem rebellion for self-rule in the south.

The Manila bombings, caused by small charges, damaged restrooms in the seaside Philippine Plaza Hotel, the Century Park Sheraton and the Manila Peninsula.

The fourth hotel bombed was the Marlman Mansion outside Clark Air Force Base in Angeles City, 50 miles northwest of here. Military sources said a bar near the air force base also was hit, but Angeles police could not confirm the report.

Police identified the wounded Americans as Navy Petty Officers 2nd Class Daniel Pierce, 24, of Texas, and Jeffrey Gullidge, 21, of Washington state. Neither their conditions nor their hometowns were available.

The April 6 Movement has vowed to carry out guerrilla war in the cities until it has brought down Marcos' regime.

The government claims the guerrillas are financed by U.S.-based Filipino dissidents led by Marcos' chief political foe, former Sen. Benigno S. Aquino, who now lives in the United States.

A communique left in a telephone booth near the American Embassy

here said the bomb targets were luxury hotels "owned by known Marcos cronies... which are 'watering' holes of the members of the Marcos oligarchy."

It said the bombings were to show Marcos "he can no longer control the people's anger" and to warn all foreign tourists, "especially the organizers of and delegates" to the tourism convention "not to come to the Philippines in these times of crisis and turmoil."

It was the fourth time the guerrillas struck the capital in less than seven weeks. Eighteen government and private buildings were bombed in August and September, killing an American woman and wounding 30 other people.

The two grenade-throwing incidents in the southern Philippines occurred Thursday and Friday in Domingag Town, Zamboanga Del Sur, and in Tagum, Davao.

Police said an unidentified man hurled a grenade into a crowd in Domingag, killing one and wounding eight, while several men in a jeep tossed four grenades into a Tagum market, killing four and wounding more than 20.

Terrorists kill guards in Spain

VITORIA, Spain (AP) — Terrorists believed to be members of the Basque separatist organization ETA killed three paramilitary civil guards with machine-gun fire in the northern Spanish town of Salvatierra de Alava Saturday, police said.

The new terrorist attack came only 24 hours after three policemen in civilian clothes were killed by hooded gunmen in Durango, near Bilbao. The gunmen were also believed to be ETA members.

The new killings brought the death toll in political violence in Spain this year to 98. The ETA, which wants to separate the Basque region from Spain, is blamed by police for about 70 of the slayings.

BIG SPRING — The Wallace Hereford Ranch will hold its seventh annual Production Sale of registered Hereford bulls and cows at the ranch 10 miles northeast of Big Spring and off Texas Highway 350 Oct. 17.

The Wallace Hereford Ranch is billed as producing "one of the largest straight-bred herds in America."

"Our cow herd has been selected on conformation and milking ability," noted Wallace. "Most of the cows are Straight Anxiety fourth breeding. We maintain a commercial herd to get carcass date on our young herd bulls."

The sale stocks include 39 bulls, as well as 14 females bred to Superior 434.

Wallace's reference sires include Lamp Sup Diamond 241, V Bar Li Domino L602, Axtell Domino 26, N Lamp Diamond 284, Diamond Bar W2, Axtell Domino W713 and Superior 434.

Stock donations 'easier'

ABILENE — When the Cattlemen's Round-up for Crippled Children started 21 years ago, it was easier for stockmen to donate cattle to the West Texas Rehabilitation Center than cash.

"It still is," says Brian Richards, manager of the Fort Chadbourne Ranch near Bronte and great-grandson of the late Conda H. Wylie, founder of the Cattlemen's Round-up.

Richards is optimistic about the sale and about cattle prices in general, probably because his area has not been as dry as some parts of West Texas.

Cattlemen support the round-up through good and bad years "probably because the facility does the most good for the money spent on anything in our area," said Richards. "People around here see the results, see that the Rehab Center is doing good for people, so they are willing to donate to this when they won't donate to anything else."

Those wishing to make a pledge may contact the West Texas Rehabilitation Center, 4601 Hartford, Abilene, Texas 79605 or call 915/692-1633.

A sheep-and-goat sale will be carried out Monday at the Junction Stock Yards; a special auction will be held Wednesday at the Coleman Livestock Auction; a farm equipment sale Nov. 8 at Clyde and a special auction Nov. 12 at the Brownwood Cattle Auction.

'Cotton Report' broadcast

ALTUS, Okla. — The cotton-promoting Cotton Board has implemented a new radio network show, "Cotton Report," on 60 radio stations, including 23 in Texas, in 12 cotton-producing states, according to Murray R. Williams, Cotton Board chairman.

In the Midland area, the radio program will be aired over Lamesa's KPET, Big Spring's KHEM, Seminole's KIKZ and San Angelo's KGKL at 6:10 a.m. each Tuesday.

Farmer's role 'minor'

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A U.S. Congressional study of trading in cattle futures shows that meat-packing industry executives are the big winners, while farmers only have a minor role.

The staff study by the House Small Business Committee looked at transactions by about 1,000 large traders in live and cattle feeder futures on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange from January 1978 through April 1979.

No information on individual traders was revealed, but they were broken into groups, such as farmers and ranchers, food retailers and officers of commodity futures brokerage firms.

Some of the findings for the 16-month period are startling.

"The average officer of packing, meat processing, grain and commercial feedlot companies was by far the largest futures trading gainer with average profits (of) $2,465,217," the report said.

The total profit gained by 22 separate officers of companies was about $56.7 million, the report said.

The next most successful group of traders was 59 officers of brokerage firms, averaging $804,000 apiece.

Trader accounts included in the study held 50 or more contracts during the period, with some holding up to 1,000.

According to the study, "Accounts with 500 to 1,000 contract positions...would face gains or losses of $200,000 to $400,000 for each one cent per pound change in the price of cattle."

Securities laws prohibit the officers of publicly owned corporations from using their inside information for stock trading. But no such laws apply to commodity trading.

Similar laws also apply to stockbrokers, but not commodity brokers.

During the period, the report showed, farmers never owned more than about 7 percent of the cattle contracts. Farmers were also among the least active traders while officers of companies were among the most active.

Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, the committee chairman, commented on the report saying that "the cattle futures contracts still fail to meet minimum requirements necessary to make them a justifiable economic tool and as presently constituted, they do more harm than good to farmer-feeders as a whole."

Midland area soil wet to bedrock following rain

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent — Agriculture

The soil in Midland County is about as wet as I have seen in the 31 years I have served as county agent in West Texas.

We define soil moisture in terms of percent field capacity which is the amount of water a soil will hold against the pull of gravity. Sandy loam soils, on the average, will hold about 1½ inches of water per foot. Most of our soils are now wet to the bedrock.

The question has been asked of me several times this week, "Did the rain cause any damage to agriculture?" Well, there was some minor flooding, mostly in the playa lakes and draws, and some soil washing, but, generally, the rain just soaked up a lot of mighty dry soil and broke up a dry spell that had a lot of farmers and ranchers worried that another long term drought such as experienced in the fifties was in the making.

If you were a cotton producer you couldn't help but wish that at least some of the rain had come in July and August, but you would also know that the deep moisture would go a long way to improving the outlook for the 1981 crop. This moisture was really too late to help this year's cotton yield and it may, in fact, cost a little in terms of quality loss and increased harvest costs.

But, generally, you would have to say that it was a mighty good rain.

WE TALK A LOT about problems that affect plants in West Texas. A little pest called the nematode is near the top of the list of troublemakers for home gardeners.

Nematodes are small, microscopic, worm-like animals that live in the soil and feed on the roots of developing plants. Their damage is observed as decayed spots on the roots, stubby roots, enlarged root tips, sparse root systems or galls on the roots.

Although several types of nematodes are found in vegetable and flower gardens, the root knot nematode which causes galls or swellings on plant roots is the most damaging. Plants infested with root knot nematodes usually are stunted, yellow in color and often die prematurely.

Nematode control is based on resistant varieties, soil fumigation and cultural practices. Whenever possible use resistant varieties in nematode-infested soil.

Tomato varieties having resistance to root knot nematodes include Big Set, Bonus and cherry tomato Small Fry.

Some cultural practices help reduce losses to nematodes. Rotations involving corn, onions and garlic reduce nematode numbers as these crops are resistant.

A cover crop such as cereal rye grown during the winter months helps reduce nematodes. Do not use common rye grass as it may become a weed problem. After the first killing frost, plant the cereal rye in the garden area occupied by the cold-resistant vegetables.

Rye roots act as a trap crop for nematodes in the soil. A trap crop is one in which the nematodes enter the roots, but due to the physiology of the roots, nematodes cannot undergo further development and will be killed.

When the cover crop is worked into the soil one month before planting the spring garden, the organic matter content is increased and an organic acid is produced which is toxic to nematodes.

Use of Vapam in flower beds and gardens is the only effective chemical treatment currently recommended by the Texas Agriculture Extension Service for controlling nematodes.

Apply Vapam with a hose-on sprayer using one quart per 100 square feet of garden space. After applying Vapam to the surface, immediately wash the chemical into the soil by applying one-half inch of water to the garden area. Apply the water twice during the next 48 hours. Leave the soil undisturbed for seven days before tilling. Wait an additional two weeks to plant.

If the Vapam is applied during high temperatures and low humidity, additional watering during the first 48-hour period after treating increases the chemical's effectiveness and prevents excessive loss to the atmosphere. The soil temperature should be above 50 degrees and below 90 degrees F. when treating.

Farm populations declining at slower rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. farm population declined at a slower pace in the 1970s than in the previous decade, according to government figures.

Although the decline appears to be slowing, farm residents in 1979 accounted for only about 2.8 percent of the nation's total population.

A joint report Friday by the Census Bureau and the Agriculture Department shows that the farm population in 1979 was 6.2 million, a decline of 4 percent, or 260,000, from the 1978 estimate.

Commenting on the decline in population estimates from 1978 to 1979, Vera Banks, an Agriculture Department demographer, said "such a decline may represent a slight variation in the sample rather than a real decline in the total farm population."

The report shows the number of farm residents fell more slowly during the 1970s than in previous decades.

Between 1960 and 1970, farms lost an average of 4.8 percent of their residents per year. Between 1970 and 1979, the figures show, the average annual rate of loss was 2.8 percent.

In 1920, when the government first made a separate estimate of the farm population, 30.1 percent of the American population lived on farms. The proportion fell to 15.3 percent by 1950.

Ms. Banks added that compared to the rest of the nation, the farm population has proportionally fewer women, more whites, more husband-wife families and a higher fertility level.

In addition, she said, the average age of farm residents is higher than the non-farm population and their average income is lower.

Meanwhile, farm income for 1978, the latest year for which figures were available, posted a larger increase than did the income of nonfarm families.

The 1978 median income for farm families represented a 16.5 percent increase over the 1977 median, the figures show. Meanwhile, the median for non-farm families increased only 2.1 percent.

However, the income of farm families lagged behind that of non-farm families.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of U.S. economists and statisticians will tour China from Oct. 7-25 to study Chinese agricultural economic planning and methods of measuring crop and livestock production.

Howard Hjort, the Agriculture Department's director of economics, policy analysis and budget, will head the team which is part of a continuing series of exchange visits of U.S. and Chinese scientists, trade groups and economists.

The Oil and Gas Industry... just another great part of Midland...a great city!

Finding and producing oil and gas is no simple or inexpensive task. It takes many people, equipment, and many hours of hard work. It takes geologists, geophysicists, land people, and others to examine the odds, try to second guess mother nature, lease the land and decide exactly where to drill. It takes welders and construction people who build the equipment needed to drill a hole over a mile, straight down. It takes drillers, roughnecks, truckers and others that do the backbreaking work in harsh climate to play out the slim chance of success. Yes, finding oil and gas is a gamble, but that's one of the things that makes Midland great and...at the First National Bank of Midland, we're proud to be a part!

13th bubonic plague victim now confirmed

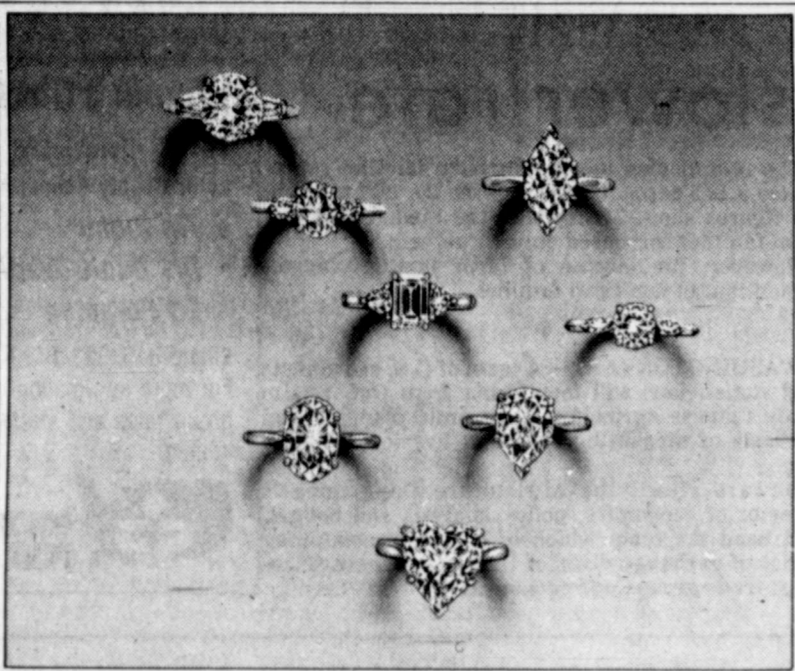

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — A Santa Fe County woman has become the 13th New Mexico resident to contract bubonic plague this year, making 1980 the second-worst year on record for the disease in the state, health officials say.

Dr. Sandra Lapham, epidemiologist for the state Health and Environment Department, said the victim is a 47-year-old woman who is recovering at her home in Pojoaque.

The woman became ill Monday with a fever, headache and muscle ache, and then developed a painful swelling in the groin, the epidemiologist said Friday. On Wednesday, a local physician diagnosed the illness as the non-communicable bubonic plague.

Three of this year's victims died after contracting the infectious pneumonic form of the plague.

The woman is the 99th human plague victim in New Mexico since the first case on record was confirmed in 1949. The peak year was 1975 when 16 cases were confirmed.

For the one of a kind woman, a one of a kind diamond.

Hardly a woman alive doesn't dream of owning a dazzling diamond solitaire. Some get one on their wedding day — some on an anniversary. One thing's for sure, the day they unwrap a diamond solitaire is a day they'll never forget. For the widest selection and absolutely the finest quality available, come see our solitaire collection.

Murder suspect uses many names

CINCINNATI (AP) — A man wanted for questioning in connection with the shooting deaths of at least six blacks around the country does not go by his real name and is from Alabama, the FBI said Saturday.

Tony Schiappa, FBI spokesman in Washington, said Joseph Franklin's original name was James Clayton Vaughn Jr. and he is from the Mobile, Ala., area. He also is known as John Paul Franklin and Joseph Paul Franklin, Schiappa said.

Authorities have said they want to question Franklin in connection with the deaths of a white woman and black man in Johnstown, Pa., two black youths in Cincinnati, two black joggers in Salt Lake City, a black man and white woman in Oklahoma City and the wounding of civil rights leader Vernon Jordan Jr. in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Meanwhile, the Los Angeles Times and Pittsburgh Post Gazette reported Saturday that the 30-year-old Franklin uses various names.

The Los Angeles Times said it learned that Franklin, who is white, changed his name in a Maryland court four years ago so he could "emigrate and join the armed forces" of the white supremacist government of Rhodesia. Before changing his name in 1976 he was involved in a number of minor scrapes with the law including weapons violations and charges of disorderly conduct which he feared would prevent him from emigrating, the newspaper said. It was not known if Franklin ever traveled to Rhodesia, the paper said.

Authorities told the Times that while Franklin is not a formal suspect, he is a "very, very important figure" in their inquiries.

According to the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, police in Johnstown, Pa., want to question Franklin in connection with the sniper deaths of a black man and white woman from Johnstown. Detective Thomas Hubbard told the paper that several people allegedly have placed Franklin in the western Pennsylvania town at about the time of the June 15 shooting.

Although FBI agents and several police agencies in other cities across the nation also want to question Franklin in connection with shootings, none have filed any charges.

Alfred E. Smith, agent in charge of the FBI's Cincinnati office, said Franklin was not a fugitive although he'd escaped from Florence, Ky., police Sept. 25. The Florence police charged Franklin with possession of a stolen car, but dropped the charge after he escaped since it was learned the auto was purchased in Lexington, Ky.

So far, officials in Cincinnati, Salt Lake City and Oklahoma City are seeking Franklin for questioning in various incidents.

NOW meeting may change posture on presidential race

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Sunday's final session of the National Organization for Women will feature debate of a resolution that would actively oppose the election of Republican Presidential candidate Ronald Reagan, withdrawing the group's official opposition to President Carter.

The resolution would rescind action taken by NOW's board of directors last December to actively oppose Carter's re-election, but withheld outright endorsement of the president. In fact, the complicated resolution, hammered out during a spirited hearing at the NOW issues conference, endorses no presidential candidate although it does support the women's rights plank of the Democratic Platform.

Journalism students try for scholarships, grants

SAN FRANCISCO — During the 1980-81 academic year, journalism students at 78 colleges and universities throughout the United States will compete for $103,650 in scholarships and grants offered by the William Randolph Hearst Foundation.

Now in its 21st year, the journalism awards program consists of six monthly writing competitions and one photojournalism contest. Monthly winners in both categories will travel to San Francisco in May 1981 to compete for major scholarships.

Participating from Texas will be Texas A&M University, Texas Christian University, Texas Tech University and University of Texas-Austin.

During the school year, 60 monthly scholarships are awarded. These grants range from $100 to $1,200. Eighteen scholarships are awarded in the finalist competitions and these range from $500 to $2,000.

The foundation matches all scholarships with grants of the same amount going to the schools and colleges of all winning students.

The program is conducted under the auspices of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism. Deans and professors from the 78 colleges represent the AASDJ in monitoring the program.

This year, as in the past, distinguished journalists from noted publishing organizations volunteer their services in judging the monthly entries. Next May they will meet in San Francisco to evaluate the student finalists who are then given special assignments and must compete under deadline conditions.

Nationwide consumer education effort begins today

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Ignorance may be bliss in poetry, but it's expensive in real life.

President Carter has proclaimed today through Saturday as Consumer Education Week and schools, government agencies and community organizations have planned special programs to help people learn their rights and responsibilities in the marketplace.

Events include a consumer fair in Washington, D.C., a poster contest in New York City and workshops for teachers in Los Angeles and San Diego.

How much do you know about the laws that protect you? Here are some questions and answers, based on information from the federal Office of Consumer Affairs, you can use to test yourself.

Q. You apply to a large bank for an installment loan. The bank turns you down. Does it have to tell you why?

A. Yes. As a rule, banks must give you a "yes" or "no" answer on your request, in writing, within 30 days of the time you submit the completed application. If the loan is denied, the statement must include an explanation or must tell you that you can get such an explanation if you ask for one within 60 days.

Q. Your air conditioner makes funny noises. The warranty provided for free repair and the manufacturer tried to fix it during the warranty period. Now, two weeks after the warranty expired, the noises are back. Can you get further free service?

A. Yes. If you complained about the problem during the warranty period and the problem was not fixed, you're entitled to free repairs.

Q. A neighbor says your car has been recalled. How can you find out if the report is right?

A. Call the toll-free Auto Safety Hotline operated by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. You can learn about recalls and report defects. The number is 800-424-9393, except for Washington, D.C., residents who should call 426-0123.

Q. A bill collector keeps calling you at home about a debt you owe. You can't pay the bill right now because of an emergency. Is there anything you can do to stop the calls?

A. Yes. Write the bill collector a letter explaining the circumstances and asking him or her to stop bothering you. The collector must stop calling, although you still owe the money.

West Germans go to polls Sunday

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Nearly 40 million West Germans will vote Sunday in parliamentary elections from which Chancellor Helmut Schmidt is likely to emerge as Western Europe's strongest national leader.

Late surveys predict Schmidt's Social Democratic Party, or SPD, and its coalition partner Free Democrats, FDP, will win almost 53 percent of the vote in balloting for 496 seats in the Bundestag, or parliament. Its members select the chancellor.

Such an outcome would enable the left-liberal coalition to maintain its decade-long grip on power and possibly expand the 11-seat margin it enjoys over the conservative alliance of Christian Democrats and Christian Social Unionists — CDU-CSU.

It would also give Schmidt another four years at the helm of Western Europe's most populous and richest nation, assuming the Free Democrats remain in the coalition until the next scheduled election.

Schmidt's opponent for chancellor is Bavarian Premier Franz Josef Strauss, a colorful, controversial conservative known for his opposition to communism and his open support for rightist regimes in Chile, South Africa and elsewhere.

The burly, bull-necked Strauss, who served as defense and finance minister in the 1950s when Schmidt was an obscure provincial official, has appeared unable to shake his 30-year image as a right-wing saber-rattler and convince voters he could do a better job as chancellor.

A survey taken in the last week of the campaign by the Allensbach Institute found 44.5 percent of the 1,739 voters questioned supporting the Christian coalition; 43.5 percent for the Socialists; 9.2 percent for the Free Democrats, and the rest for environmentalists, Communists and other minor parties.

Allensbach also found that 56 percent of those surveyed preferred Schmidt as chancellor, compared with 32 percent supporting Strauss. But later surveys have also shown as many as 13 percent of the electorate might switch their vote at the last minute.

The Allensbach survey pointed to a 1.5 percent gain for the FDP in the last two weeks, apparently at the expense of the two larger parties.

Led by Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, the FDP considers itself the philosophic cousin of Britain's Liberal Party and appeals primarily to well-educated, middle class voters in their 30s and 40s.

Although it rarely wins more than 8 percent of the vote, the FDP wields power as a "swing party," providing the parliamentary majority for one of the two major groups.

The FDP decision to leave the coalition with the Christian Democrats in 1969 brought down the government of Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger and installed the Socialists in power under Willy Brandt.

That has been the only change of government in the 31-year history of the Federal Republic of Germany.

Sunday's balloting will mark the end of one of the bitterest postwar election campaigns, stained by personal insults and invectives.

Commentators have complained that the campaign has been short on substantive debate. Strauss has attempted to make foreign policy a main issue, accusing Schmidt of mismanaging Ostpolitik — relations with Communist Eastern Europe — while loosening ties to the United States.

But Strauss has also said he would not renounce treaties with the East bloc and would continue trade ties with the East.

82-year-old chaplain still at work

By SUSAN M. KNIGHT
The Arizona Daily Star

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — During World War II, he played an accordion while a tiny monkey named "Skeeter" sat on top. The Rev. Rupert "Chappy" McCaon always had a smile on his face and a kind word for the soldiers.

Now, 82 years old and still serving as a chaplain, Chappy, as he prefers to be called, makes his daily rounds with only a bow tie for a prop. But he still smiles and offers kind words.

Ministry has been the focus of most of his life, which has included stints as an encyclopedia salesman and an author.

But Chappy has never ignored his passion for music. He plays the tuba at least twice a week for the Shriners' Band and for Beaver's Concert Band. "I'm still a professional accordion player, too," he added.

Though he retired in 1965 as chaplain of the local Veterans Administration hospital, Chappy returned to the field in a part-time capacity 12 years later, serving as chaplain 20 hours a week at St. Mary's Hospital.

"It's not what the chaplain says or does so much, but it's just the fact he's there," Chappy says.

Although he worked in Missouri and South Dakota churches before the war, Chappy has spent most of his ministry as a hospital chaplain. From field hospitals during war years to veterans' hospitals to St. Mary's, Chappy's goal has been the same — to bring faith and hope to people.

Serving enlisted men gave him the greatest satisfaction, he said. So Chappy wrote a book about his wartime experiences, which he called "Sometimes We Laugh, Sometimes We Cry or Tell It To the Chaplain."

His "calling" began long before the war years. When Chappy was a young man, he served as song leader for a cousin who was an evangelist, traveling around Iowa.

"I was always interested in religious work, and I didn't want to only play second fiddle," Chappy said of his decision to enter the ministry.

He landed several preaching jobs on his own and discovered he was quite good at it.

Just before the end of World War I, Chappy entered the Students Army Training Corps, which put him through a 90-day intensive-training course in France.

When the war ended, the Army paid Chappy's college tuition at Drake University in Des Moines. He earned bachelor's and master's degrees in Divinity.

After serving in several churches and working as a door-to-door salesman, Chappy joined the Civil Conservation Corps. His new job entailed traveling about 800 square miles in Montana and North Dakota, providing religious services.

Iran-Iraq war sets off Saudi Arabia alarms

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Iran-Iraq war has set off alarm bells in Saudi Arabia where the oil fields of the Mideast's largest producer are exposed to air raids and sabotage attacks.

With air and sea battles raging near its borders, Saudi Arabia turned to Washington for four sophisticated radar planes known as AWACS that will help bolster the defenses of the desert kingdom of 8 million inhabitants.

Arab and Western observers here say the war once again pointed up Saudi Arabia's vulnerability — economically, politically and militarily. "Saudi Arabia has been extremely worried by what the regime in Iran has been doing and saying. This thing about exporting their revolution has worried the Saudis and the rest of the gulf nations as well," one Arab diplomat said.

The reason for the concern is 125,000 Shiite Moslems in the eastern provinces of Saudi Arabia, who belong to the same sect as the Iranian revolutionaries who brought Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to power in February 1979.

Although Iran is Moslem, it is Persian and not Arab. But Khomeini tends to speak in the name of all Islam and aims appeals at Shiite Moslems in several Persian Gulf countries, including Iraq, which are ruled by Sunni Moslems.

Shiites demonstrating in favor of Khomeini clashed with Saudi troops near the oil towns of Ras Tannura, Khafji, Abqaiq and Safwat last Nov.

27, according to Arab press reports at the time.

The demonstrations followed the two-week takeover of the Grand Mosque in Mecca by Islamic radicals. The takeover, which ended Dec. 4, embarrassed the monarchy and tarnished the prestige of Saudi Arabia, guardian of Islam's holiest shrines at Mecca and Medina.

"These incidents pointed up two separate internal problems: The potential for unrest among the Shiites and the opposition of young militant Islamic purists to the excesses of the royal rulers," one analyst said.

In response to the internal dissension, the Saudi rulers — who belong to the Wahabi branch of Sunni Islam — cracked down on television programming and cinemas. They also imposed a strict dress code on foreign women.

The power of the ulema — religious leaders — was enhanced, several top government and military officials were replaced, opposition groups were more closely monitored and security increased at the vital oil installations.

There has been no recurrence of Shiite unrest or other internal dissension reported since then. But sources say the Saudis are still worried about potential problems if the Iranians emerge victorious from the war with Iraq.

Sources in the gulf this week said that Saudi Arabia and other gulf nations had quietly put their troops on alert and moved in more anti-aircraft guns to guard the oilfields in response to the Iran-Iraq war.

"The installations are all above ground and exposed," one expert said. "The security forces can probably deal with sabotage from the ground but the fields are certainly exposed to air attacks."

The concern stemmed from Iranian threats to blow up gulf oil fields if they lost the war and to attack Arab regimes that were giving behind-the-scenes support to Iraq in the war.

Oil is virtually the only source of income for the desert kingdom, which pumps 9.5 million barrels a day and provides the United States with 20 percent of its oil imports. It would be a severe blow to the Saudi economy if the war spread to other areas of the Persian Gulf and cut off oil shipments.

Privately, the Saudis expressed concern about the threats and admitted stepped up precautions had been taken. But Saudi Defense Minister Prince Sultan Bin Abdul Aziz said in an interview published here Saturday that "we do not fear such threats because the kingdom has power to defend itself if necessary."

Saudi Arabia, with a five-year development plan of $235 billion, spends more on defense and internal security than any other sector, about $20 billion in the current year. Saudi oil sales have been estimated at more than $90 billion a year.

Weekend brings smog relief

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The weekend brought the promise of some relief for Southern Californians who have suffered through five days of thick smog and sticky heat.

But officials warned that despite the easing of conditions which trapped the pollution inside the mountain-ringed South Coast Air Basin, it may take several days for the thick cloud of smog to dissipate.

In Imperial County, a crop duster's plane crashed in heavy fog early Saturday morning about five miles northeast of the town of Imperial, killing the pilot. The plane burst into flames on impact, sending off clouds of toxic fumes from its load of chemical pesticide.

The pilot was identified as Homer V. Ward of the tiny community of Calipatria along the Salton Sea.

Glenn Wyler of the Air Quality Management District in suburban El Monte said the inversion layer — atmospheric conditions that act like a cap holding the smog inside the basin — raised to 2,000 feet Saturday.

"Ordinarily, that is enough to help bring a little more relief than it has," Wyler said. "But because of the stagnation condition, it is taking a little longer than usual to bring down the smog levels."

During the smog siege last week, the inversion layer of warm air was as low as 800 feet.

Second-stage smog advisories were issued for five consecutive days, from Monday through Friday, as the tea-colored cloud squatting over the populous region got increasingly thicker and residents curtailed many outdoor activities as they found it harder to breathe comfortably.

The second-stage advisories require commuters to form car pools and businesses to reduce emissions.

This week's string of consecutive second-stage smog alerts was the year's longest. Eight straight days of second stage alerts were recorded in September 1979, the longest stretch in more than 20 years.

Belgian government quits

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Premier Wilfried Martens announced the resignation of the Belgian government Saturday after coalition partners failed to agree on new tax measures and steps to cut government spending.

Martens, a Christian Democrat Party member, announced collapse of the coalition and called on King Baudouin to discuss a new government. Martens and his left-center coalition will continue in a caretaker role, the announcement said.

The king was expected to consult leading politicians before announcing a new premier designate.

Martens' fragile government was formed in 1979. Last April, Martens offered his resignation after he failed to gain senate approval of a constitutional reform measure aimed at solving Belgium's long-standing language feud between the Flemish-speaking north and the French-speaking south. In May Martens was persuaded to continue in office.

Collapsing of the coalition came when agreement could not be reached on measures to finance a deficit in Belgium's social security system totaling $1.2 billion. Belgium has a wide-spread system of medical insurance, unemployment benefits and pensions for the aged. The government has attempted to impose limits on unemployment allowances and medical insurance, but has been blocked by trade unions and the Socialist Party members of the coalition.

Belgium, with a population of 10 million, has watched its export markets shrink and Belgian industries argue high labor costs have priced its products out of the market.

$14,000 earned in horse sale

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A horse sale in this West Texas city Saturday that benefited a center for physically-handicapped people raised $14,922.15, a spokesman said.

The 21st Cattleman's Roundup for Crippled Children sold 41 horses, with proceeds going to the West Texas Rehabilitation Center, a private non-profit organization, media director James Hallmark said.

A gelding donated by former Dallas Cowboy Walt Garrison brought in the highest single total, with its $770 price tag. Texas ranchers across the state donated livestock, he said.

The sale, the second in a series of six, brings the proceeds total to $194,623.

The third sale will be a sheep and goat auction in Junction Wednesday.

Braniff to cut pay of employees

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International employees may be asked to take a 10 percent pay slash to help the recession-damaged airline fight inflation and lower costs, a Braniff spokesman says.

However, airline spokesman Jere Cox said Friday that discussions about possible pay cuts are still in the early stages.

Union representatives for the approximately 10,000 employees who would be affected have initiated meetings to search for a less-painful remedy for the airline's financial woes.

The Teamsters represent about 5,000 of the workers. Other unions involved are the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, the Air Line Pilots Association and the Association of Flight Attendants, Braniff said.

Union spokesmen would not comment on additional issues being discussed.

Braniff announced plans in July to reduce flight personnel, attributed to a decline in air traffic, through attrition and unpaid leaves of absence.

Reports said about 500 pilots and 800 flight attendants would be phased out in the reduction effort.

The airline, which had a net loss of $44.3 million in 1979, posted a $69.6 million loss for 1980's first half.

Dog best combat weapon for crime since fingerprints

By KAY CRITES
Staff Writer

T. Patrick Cahill

Most dogs used by police forces are donated, T. Patrick Cahill, well-known trainer of police dogs, told his audience Friday night following a reception and dinner in his honor at Midland Center.

"And they're usually unwanted puppies. Bobby wants a puppy for Christmas. Then it gets older and he has no training and bites the mailman."

Cahill, a native Englishman who served with Scotland Yard for 27 years, has also served as chief instructor of the Baltimore Police Department dog unit and chief instructor and director of training for the Washington, D.C. Police Department unit. During the past week and this week, Cahill has been working with Midland's three dogs and their trainers.

"A little more experience on the officers' part and a little more practice on the dogs' part," and Cahill said he would expect to see Midland's dogs at the national police dog trials, which he judges.

Midland's three Schutzhunds are an exception to the rule on dogs quoted by Cahill. Not only are they not unwanted puppies (they were shipped from Germany at a cost of $7,000 to $10,000 each), they are not German Shepherds — the most common breed used for police dogs.

Worldwide, Cahill said, German Shepherds are used about 98 percent of the time for two reasons: because the supply is far greater than other breeds and because of the psychological advantage.

"You dress a 6-foot man in a police uniform and he can walk down the street and nobody's going to molest him. You dress a 5-foot-6 man in a uniform and everyone wants to take him on. You walk down the street with a German Shepherd, and nobody's going to bother you."

"I'm sure you can have a poodle who does just as good work, but can you imagine a policeman walking down the street with a poodle?"

The biggest problem with police dogs, said Cahill, is not really convincing criminals about how mean the dogs are; it's convincing citizens that the dogs aren't vicious.

"We have no problem in convincing the criminal element how bad our dogs are. We have to convince the citizen how safe our dogs are. People have the wrong impression of our dogs. They are safer than a lot of the strays running around here," he said.

London instigated the modern use of the police dog about 30 years ago. "They were used on a six-month probationary period in Hyde Park for muggings, as you call them over here, and that type of crime during that six months dropped 97 percent."

"I don't think there's a department in England now that doesn't have dogs."

"I think — and I have had supportive evidence of that — that since the instigation of police dogs they are the finest weapon to combat crime since fingerprints."

Besides finding drugs, bombs and people possibly hiding from police, "sniffing dogs are being used to find oil leaks," Cahill said. "Save yourself a few dollars by getting yourself an oil sniffing dog and find your oil leaks," Cahill joked.

"A dollar spent on a dog is well spent," he said.

Inflation war not over: Anderson

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Rep. John B. Anderson wondered aloud Saturday whether political manipulation was involved in the Carter administration's release of a Labor Department report showing the first drop in wholesale prices in 4½ years.

Campaigning in California, Anderson told a news conference he doesn't believe the economic figures released Friday signal an end to inflation, adding that "there is more bad news to come."

The independent presidential candidate was asked about a report — put out by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics — showing a 0.2 percent drop in wholesale prices in September. The dip resulted partly from a change in computation methods, in which discounts for cars and trucks at the end of the model year were taken into account for the first time as a seasonal factor.

Anderson stopped just short of accusing the administration of juggling figures to help President Carter's re-election campaign.

But he said: "This is the first time that the Labor Department has ever included the impact of year-end auto discounts and rebates in the numbers that they compile on the producers' price index, and I would make the added observation that it is a little bit strange that it occurs right now — one month before the election."

"For the president to suggest, as he has done, that on the basis of this single statistic we can now say that his economic policies are working and promise the basis for a healthy and non-inflationary recovery, I think is campaign rhetoric," Anderson added.

Janet Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics, had acknowledged on Friday that if the auto discount factor had not been introduced, wholesale prices would have shown an increase of 0.4 percent last month, still a slowdown of the sharp increases reported in July and August.

"This is absolutely the correct price," Ms. Norwood said, denying that the change was politically motivated. "It's unfortunate that it (the change) came now," she said.

Ms. Norwood said the change stemmed from a decision "more than a year ago" to use the actual prices paid to producers for their finished goods.

The department said in a statement that "data limitations" prevented the Bureau of Labor Statistics from reflecting discounted auto prices in the past.

Wholesale price information is contained in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for Finished Goods, which reflects the price of goods ready for sale to consumers. The index also includes prices at other stages of production, the crude and intermediate levels.

The Labor Department also reported that unemployment dropped to 7.5 percent in October, compared to a 7.6 percent rate the month before.

Anderson said that prices of 1981 automobiles are running $1,000 per unit more than the close-out prices on 1980 models, which he said will send the wholesale prices spiraling once more in the next monthly report.

The White House had issued a statement late Friday, saying:

"The fight against inflation is far from over, and the economic recovery is still in its early stages. But the president believes that today's economic data, and those of the past several months, indicate that his economic policies are working ..."

In Erie, Pa., Rosalynn Carter called the report "good news for us. We are winning the war against inflation." And Vice President Walter F. Mondale, stumping for Carter in Castro Valley, Calif., said the figures show the administration's economic policies "are beginning to work for all Americans" and "demonstrate that we're making progress against inflation and the economy is picking up."

Earlier Saturday, Anderson said Carter's economic policy is "a disaster on inflation" and that Ronald Reagan offers only more high inflation and rising interest rates.

Taking his quest for votes to the annual convention of the National Savings and Loan League, Anderson said he is the only major candidate for president offering "a serious approach" to fighting inflation because he is the only candidate opposing tax cuts.

The congressman confirmed he has not yet completed negotiations for campaign loans, which Anderson had said earlier he expected to announce by the weekend.

Cooperation of gays vital to vaccine trials

NEW YORK (AP) — Once every week or so, Charles Cole presents himself at the New York Blood Center for technicians to jab his vein with a needle and remove about two pints of precious blood.

He's paid well for the privilege — $50 a session. But Cole volunteered for the bloodletting before he knew there was any money involved.

It's not that Cole's blood contains some rare curative power. Quite the opposite. It carries circulating particles of a virus that causes one of the world's most stubborn and widespread diseases.

Yet Cole, 30, is proud to make the donation. An avowed homosexual, he is among thousands of gay men across the country who have helped in the development of a new vaccine that makes hepatitis B a preventable disease.

"I had what felt like a bad case of the flu — this was in 1978 — so I went to a doctor and took a test and he said, 'You have hepatitis.' Basically, since then it's been one long recovery," said Cole last week as he lay in a blood donor's chair, tubes running to and from his right arm.

Cole is among the 10 percent of the estimated 200,000 U.S. hepatitis B victims a year who become chronically infected, and now he's a hepatitis B "carrier." His blood contains circulating particles of virus and may continue to do so for years.

It is from Cole's blood — and the blood of hundreds of others like him — that Merck Sharp & Dohme, a pharmaceutical company, makes the experimental vaccine which could be marketed by 1982.

Technicians extract the liquid part of the blood, called plasma, which contains the virus, and the rest is returned to the donor's body. The virus is also carried in the saliva, semen and milk.

Homosexuals also were the volunteers in the first large-scale study of the vaccine. Results of the test on 1,083 New York men were announced last week. They showed the vaccine virtually eliminates the risk of hepatitis B, the most serious of the three known forms of the viral liver disease and the cause of one-third of all cases.

Dr. Wolf Szmuness, coordinator of the study, credited cooperation from New York gay groups with helping to make the test a success.

"Once the vaccine is licensed, the U.S. public really should congratulate the gay community," said Dr. Donald Francis of the U.S. Center for Disease Control's Hepatitis Division in Phoenix, Ariz.

"They were interested and involved in this way back when we didn't know much more about this vaccine," said Francis, who helps run a similar testing program with more than 1,000 homosexuals in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, Denver and St. Louis.

Gay men make an ideal study group because they are about 10 times more likely than other people to get hepatitis B, in part because they tend to have many sex partners. The high rate of infection means doctors can use a smaller group and still be sure the vaccine works.

Francis said the gay volunteers tended to be educated professionals — nearly a quarter had graduate degrees — who followed instructions faithfully and stayed available for followup.

"We had one fellow who moved to Houston after seven months of the study. He required about five more blood drawings, which he had done at his own expense and mailed the blood specimens in," said Dr. Richard Sadosky, a gay activist physician involved in the study.

In New York, the Gay Men's Health Project, a Greenwich Village venereal disease screening clinic, helped find volunteers for the trial and was the site for most vaccinations.

Gay newspapers drummed up support for the project and 40 gay volunteers handed out literature on the street, Sadosky said.

Some men volunteered to test the vaccine, while others, like Cole, who were ineligible because they had already been infected, agreed to give blood to make the vaccine.

"I thought it was terrific," says Cole, who works for a cable-TV video tape distributor. "If I could help just one person not to have to go through what I went through, it would be worth it."

Three dead in homicide-suicide

CARROLLTON, Ga. (AP) — A LaGrange man apparently shot his estranged wife's sister and her husband before turning the gun on himself in what authorities called a double homicide-suicide, police said Saturday.

Grady Jones, a 53-year-old businessman who had been charged with arson Wednesday, died of a gunshot wound to the chest, said Carrollton Police Sgt. Mike Bradley.

Bradley added that officers found the bodies of Nolan Fletcher, 60, who died of gunshot wounds to the head, and his wife, Alice Mallory Fletcher, in her 50s, who died of multiple gunshot wounds to the head and chest.

"It looks like a double homicide, then a suicide," Bradley said. "Now we're going to look for the motive."

Mrs. Fletcher's sister, Rachel Mallory Jones, was separated from Jones last May.

Sellers could relate to his character

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

The message at the hotel when he arrived in London read:
Jerzy Kosinski,
"You have invaded my privacy with your book. I am very upset. My car will be by for you."

Chauncey Gardiner

Kosinski recognized the name immediately. It was, as far as he knew, not the name of a person, but rather that of the main character in his book, "Being There," which had been released in the United States in 1971 and was now being released in Britain.

Next came the phone call.
"I decided that I might as well settle it on the spot," Kosinski said in a recent interview concerning the movie "Being There," which is showing through Friday at the Westwood Theater.

Kosinski explained he has never been one to avoid confrontations, but "when a white Rolls Royce with a television set on the back seat" drove up, "I decided I was dealing with a maniac."

THE RELEVANCE of the TV set is only apparent to those who are familiar with "Being There," which centers around the supposedly fictitious character of Chauncey Gardiner, whose life knowledge has been gleaned from television.

Kosinski explained that the Journal of the American Medical Association "recommended this book in an editorial as the first book in this country describing a new condition (unsane) which emerged with the advent of massive watching of television."

Kosinski further describes the condition as one in which people "can't tell anymore what is serious and what is not, what is profound and what is not, who is well-meaning and who is not," which is a part of the central theme of his comic fable, "Being There."

An example of unsanity for Kosinski occurred in California at the time he wrote the book.

A political candidate's own opinion poll showed that 86 percent of the people who voted for him didn't know his views at all, Kosinski said, explaining they reportedly "voted for him because he appeared sincere on television. This is unsanity."

After settling into the Rolls' back seat, Kosinski was driven to a small Italian restaurant. He was escorted to a table occupied by a man sitting behind a newspaper. When he put the paper down, Kosinski saw a stranger wearing dark glasses.

THE MAN SAID, "My life will never be the same from now on. You have taken from me the essence of my life."

Kosinski, who had lived by his own wits as a child in Nazi-occupied eastern Europe and, at 22, as an associate professor at a state-controlled Stalinist university behind the Iron Curtain, had spent two risky years forging his credentials for a visit to the United States. Despite his background, Kosinski did not know how to respond to the stranger.

The stranger continued, making a remark that was to stay with Kosinski for a long time, "There's nothing in him that I'm not and there's nothing in me that he's not."

Kosinski said, "I've never seen you before and I never plan on it again."

But, there was something familiar about him. Then he started worrying.

Author Jerzy Kosinski

Peter Sellers as Gardiner in "Being There."

Although Kosinski had lived in the U.S. since 1957 — working at odd jobs for a year until he learned enough English to secure a Ford Foundation Fellowship — he had spent a lot of time in England.

At 27, he wrote the first of his two non-fiction books on collective society which was serialized by The Saturday Evening Post, condensed by Readers Digest and published in 18 languages.

After his second book was published, he married Mary Weir, the widow of a steel magnate from Pittsburgh. Their 10-year marriage, which ended with her death, moved Kosinski into the world of industry, big business and the Who's Who society roster.

Because of his extensive world traveling, "there was just the slightest possibility I might have met this man before," Kosinski said.

THE STRANGER then said, "If a movie was going to be made some day of this book, then I would have to play him (Chauncey Gardiner) because, if I don't play him, then he would play me."

At this point a small girl walked up to the table and said, "Mr. Sellers, may I have your autograph?" And so, it was only Peter Sellers doing what he knew best.

"His whole life was a life of imitation. He was certainly prepared to fool Kosinski," Kosinski said, laughing.

But this was just the beginning of an eight-year endeavor on Sellers' part to play the role of Chauncey Gardiner.

It was a friendship of persecution, Kosinski said, explaining in a good humor how Sellers sent him stationary, calling cards, letters, post cards and gifts all marked with the name of Chauncey Gardiner.

"I have never wanted my books to become films and I have had hundreds of offers," Kosinski said.

Kosinski said his other novels, such as "Blind Date," and "Passion Play," deal with obsessive characters who are very complex, but Gardiner "has no drive. He lets himself be moved by whomever moves him from outside."

Although he really didn't want to, Kosinski finally said yes because "I liked him. He was so committed to it."

Besides writing the screen play, Kosinski had final approval on all aspects of the film.

"If you refuse to make a film for eight years, it's not going to be a lover or a one-night stand," he said. "It's going to be a marriage with no divorce in sight until it's finished."

WHILE WATCHING Sellers, pacemaker intact, filming at the Biltmore Estate during the year's coldest months, Kosinski was "quite impressed."

"Peter Sellers was complex only in terms of the roles he played. He could not conduct a complex conversation. He was terribly ill at ease unless asked to imitate a role, and that he could do better than anybody in the world."

The reason he wanted to do Gardiner was because, as Kosinski explained, "Suddenly, for the first time in his life, he found a character he could in spirit relate to instead of just imitate."

"Chauncey Gardiner began by imitating from the visual image, whereas Peter Sellers began by imitating for the visual image."

The movie is well executed. Sellers' performance is outstanding with the humor not being slap-stick at all. It may well be Sellers' most humorous and at the same time most serious role.

As Sellers said, after making "Being There," "I don't have anything else I have to do. Chauncey is my Hamlet."

'Catch Me' cast adequate

Midland Theatre's current production of "Catch Me If You Can" is a well written mystery thriller. At least it seems to be. However, at times it's hard to tell. It appears that the actors have not quite caught it yet. Of course, Friday was the opening

It is easy to believe that Deborah Hopper Fell has professional experience as a singer and dancer and not necessarily as an actress. Her cutesy manner of portraying Elizabeth is just a bit too smug to be believed. But this is her first role and, with that in mind, she has potential.

night so, hopefully, with seven more performances left they will learn their lines and improve their timing.

This does not mean that neither Kozman or Mrs. Fell do an adequate job because they do. But that's exactly what it is — adequate. There is no real sense in their portrayals of them getting into their roles because it's obvious that they are acting.

The plot revolves around Elizabeth (Deborah Hooper Fell), a wife who disappears and then reappears, or at least appears to reappear. Her husband, Danny (Jess Kozman), insists she's an imposter.

Don Liscum as Sidney has some very good lines and, if his accent and his facial expressions had not been exaggerated, he would have been quite convincing.

It is up to Inspector Levine (Leonard Caryl) to unravel who's who and what's what. Other characters include Father Kelleher (Bill Schneider), the caterer Sidney (Don Liscum), Danny's boss Everett Parker Jr. (Bill Shaner) and his lovely companion (Mary Anderson). The director is Don Bachmann with settings by Michael Warburton.

Although Mary Anderson and Bill Shaner both have small roles, they are like a breath of fresh air because they are so believable.

Now, all or none of the above may be true because none of what appears to be necessarily is. Of the leading characters Caryl is the most convincing. Even though he forgot several of his lines Friday and kept calling Mrs. Corbin (Elizabeth) Mrs. Parker, he still carries his role well and comes the closest to actually becoming the person he is portraying.

After all, overdoing facial contortions and mannerisms are not always the actors' fault. Striving for overall realism in a production is among the director's responsibilities.

Bill Schneider as the Father also does a convincing job of acting the part of the stereotyped Irish priest. New to Theatre Midland's stage are the two characters who play the honeymooning couple. That statement in itself might be sufficient to say it all, however Jess Kozman's acting credentials date back to the age of 13. That is an amazing tidbit of knowledge because it seems he would have developed more stage presence by now and would have learned how not to overdo facial expressions. However, such seems not to be the case.

The set design for this two-act play is attractively arranged. It is believable as a wealthy man's mountain getaway.

The play, originally produced in Nice and then in Paris in 1960 as "Trap For a Lonely Man," was written by French playwright

A Review

Robert Thomas. It was adapted in 1965 for Broadway, where it ran for 103 performances, by Jack Weinstock and Willie Gilbert, who had also worked on "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

That year it won a special citation from the Mystery Writers of America for the originality of its plot-twists and its ending.

For those intricate plot lovers who enjoy good lines, this production is well worth catching — if you can.

AREA REPORT

Greenwood students join Quill & Scroll

GREENWOOD — Seven seniors and a junior at Greenwood High School recently were inducted into Quill & Scroll, an international honorary society for high school journalists.

Selected for doing superior work on either the Roundup, the GHS yearbook, or Le Raconteur, the GHS student newspaper, were seniors Greta Black, Charlotte Gatlin, Carol Hendriex, Cindy King, Mickey Somers, Deanne Womack and Terri Wood and junior Philip Higgins.

Priscilla A. Williams, the newspaper and yearbook adviser, conducted the induction.

Prior to the ceremony, a potluck supper was held in the school's Home Economics kitchen.

Retirement to be honored

STANTON — Mrs. L.C. (Hope) Hazlewood Sr., a founding director and secretary-treasurer of Wes-Tex Telephone Cooperative Inc., will be honored for 30 years of service to the rural cooperative from 3 to 5 p.m. today at the co-op's headquarters off the Midland Highway.

The occasion will mark Mrs. Hazlewood's retirement from the cooperative, which was founded in 1950. She was instrumental in providing rural telephone service to the co-op's 2,800 subscribers in a nine-county area of West Texas.

Counties served by the rural telephone service are Martin, Midland, Dawson, Howard, Glasscock, Reagan, Sterling, Mitchell and Borden.

School to hold open house

STANTON — Open house at Stanton's new-and-refurbished elementary school at 901 W. Broadway St. will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. today.

The complex, which includes six above-ground classrooms and a junior high band hall on top of the existing and remodeled eight underground classrooms, houses classes for kindergarten through fourth-grade students. The two levels are connected by a ramp.

The new building and the remodeling, which in part was to correct water-leakage problems with the underground plant, was funded by a $500,000 bond issue.

Hosts at the open house will include members of the Stanton Independent School District's board of trustees. They are Delbert Dickenson, president; Terry Franklin, vice president; Jeanene Wheeler, secretary; and Mary Sale, Johnny Louder, Chuck Elmore and Fred Hernandez.

Annual crafts festival scheduled

RANKIN — The third annual Rankin Homecoming Arts & Crafts Festival will be held Oct. 25. Those interested in setting up booths may contact Angela Teichelman at 693-2390.

Cycle-Fest concludes today

FORT DAVIS — Cyclists in the Mile-High Country of Fort Davis will be challenging themselves and their machines to some hill climbing and two-wheel sailing in scenic country today in the second day of the third annual Davis Mountains Cycle-Fest.

The Fort Davis Tour follows a route which was approved for qualifying Olympic cyclists in 1974.

Today, the cyclists were to challenge themselves to the two-mile endurance ride up the 17-percent grade of Mount Locke, which is site of the McDonald Observatory.

The annual ride is sponsored by the Lubbock County Wheelmen of the American Wheelmen and Prude Ranch, in cooperation with Peyton's Bikes of Midland-Odessa and Hunchinson Cycles of Lubbock.

New assessor-collector named

LAMESA — Leland Miller, Dawson's county tax assessor-collector since 1957, has retired from the post and has been succeeded by Diane Hogg — the first woman to hold the tax job in Dawson County.

When Miller took office in 1957, the property valuation in the county was $18 million. Today, the valuation is set at $83 million.

Most of the increase has come from oil production, residences and businesses, he said.

DEAR ANSWER: I purchased a money order at a local bank and mailed it with an order to a company.

The company has not received the order nor the money order — lost.

The money order has not cleared the bank. The bank says stop payment can't be made on money orders purchased at the bank and the procedure is to purchase a "lost bond" from an insurance agency.

It gets more involved. Answer, and please let me know what the insurance agencies have to say about this and the cost. Will the cost of the "lost bond" be a one time charge or a continuing annual charge? — D.B.

ANSWER: We checked with a Midland bank and with an insurance agency.

The bank is the source of the information for the answer to your question.

The bank where you purchased the money order needs the date and number of the money order. Then, with the SIoux FALLS, S.D. (AP) — If you're trying to sell drugs, common sense should tell you the last place to do so is the police department.

Tell that to Jerry Cyr, a 24-year-old Sioux Falls man who was arraigned Thursday on charges of selling one ounce of marijuana to Sioux Falls police cadet David Lauck.

Cyr, who worked in the police department's communications room, allegedly approached Lauck last month and asked the cadet if he wanted to buy some pot.

The deal was sealed, Cyr was fired and a warrant was issued for his arrest. The charge Cyr faces is a misdemeanor, punishable by a maximum fine of $1,000 and one year in jail.

The insurance agency we contacted had to say that writing of "lost bonds" is very difficult and it was suggested you contact a bonding agency.

DEAR ANSWER: Is there a "Hot Line" number so that adopted children can get information to locate their real parents? — M.W.

ANSWER: The only number we could determine is the Child Welfare Unit of the Texas Department of Human Resources, 683-5411.

DEAR ANSWER: I've just learned that Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. is not governmentally owned, but is a private corporation.

Where are they located? I'm a newcomer to Midland. — Andrew Schmidt.

ANSWER: The address of this agency, which insures deposits in banks, is 550 17th St., N.W., Washington, D.C., 20429.

DEAR ANSWER: Please, any information about scorpions?

What chemicals will destroy them? Do you spray inside, or the foundation of your home outside? How harmful is their bite? What treatment should be administered? How do they get in the house? And if there is one should you look for more?

My concern is for one 3-month-old baby. — No Native Texan

ANSWER: A Midland exterminating company says an aerosol spray bomb, Dursban, is the chemical you need to use around the foundation of your home. It depends on the individual as to how harmful the bite of a scorpion can be. It could be very painful to some, and in other cases, the individual could be allergic to the bite and would need medical treatment.

The exterminating company said scorpions "walk in the house around pipes and breed under the house or in an attic."

Also, if you see one, normally there are others, "because they are establishing residency."

Baylor hands Cougars third loss by 24-12

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

WACO — Just when it seemed like Mike Brannon time had arrived for Baylor, mild-mannered Jay Jeffery emerged, cloak flowing behind him in the gentle fall breeze, from the phone booth here Saturday night and led Baylor's rambunctious Bears to a 24-12 Southwest Conference victory over Houston before 40,000 fans.

Although you can't tell it without an SWC record book, Houston is the defending conference champion and the Cougars made motions like they weren't ready to surrender the title quite yet.

Despite being bloodied at every corner, the Cougars did manage to maneuver into range for 33 and 32 yard field goals by David Humphrey for a 6-0 lead in the second period.

Baylor's offense had sputtered and coughed like a cigarette addict and after Humphrey's second field goal with 2:40 left in the half, it looked like coach Grant Teaff once again would have to call on third string quarterback Mike Brannon to snap the Bears out of their offensive doldrums.

Jeffery must have realized it too. He whipped the Bears 85 yards in seven plays for a 7-6 halftime lead, dashing for 25 to his own 40, passing to split end Mike Fisher for 30 yards to the UH 30 and then after a six-yard pass to Midland's Phillip Ward, drilling leaping wingback Mike Holt on the numbers with a 19-yard TD pass.

In the third period, the game seemed bound for something of rout proportions as Jeffery guided the Bears 55 yards in nine plays, to set up a 34-yard Robert Bledsoe field goal. Jeffery twice converted on third down with a 12-yard pass and a 31-yard quarterback draw keep.

Moments after the kickoff, tackle Joe Campbell pounced on a stray Brent Chinn pitchout at the Houston 16 and Walter Abercrombie converted it into a touchdown on first down for a 17-6 lead.

Houston wasn't yet ready to die. They drove 48 yards with an interception with fullback David Barrett scoring with 1:06 gone in the fourth period from the six. And when Chinn was too long with his 2-point pass it remained 17-12.

Baylor responded to the challenge by driving 71 yards with Abercrombie, going over 100 yards for the 10th time in his career and third time this year, doing most of the work, but running back Alfred Anderson, who scored the clinching touchdown against Tech last week, grabbed the attention.

Anderson, on one play, committed two cardinal sins and got away with it, although if he had been playing for Vince Lombardi, he might have been rubbed out on general principal. First, he tried to pick up a fumbled pitchout instead of falling on it. Then he appeared in desperation to throw McNeil it would have been a touchdown.

On his touchdown run, Anderson said, "Phillip (Midland's Phillip Ward) got the block that let me get outside for the touchdown."

Mike Fisher, who caught five of Jeffery's passes for 90 yards, explained Baylor's turnaround before half. "The guys up in the press box figured out what Houston was doing defensively and we stopped testing plays and concentrated on what would work."

Looking ahead, "That makes us 4-0 and everybody will be up for us now...Do you think they might put our game with SMU next week on TV?"

With Jeffery hitting 10 of 16 passes for 146 yards and rushing for another 85 yards, Baylor won its first game over Houston since 1963 and the four season opening wins marks the Bears' best start since 1960 when Baylor posted an 8-3 record and played Florida in the Gator Bowl.

Davis, Farrow gain net finals in USTA/Penn

Marty Davis will take on Juan Farrow at 1 p.m. today at the Racquet Club in the Midland Tennis Club sponsored USTA/Penn National Circuit tournament, which closes out week of action.

Davis and Farrow won their way to the finals Saturday by taking semifinal victories as the field became an eye-ball to eye-ball affair for today's finals.

Davis, the ninth seeded player in the tournament from San Jose, Calif., ripped New Zealand's Jeff Simpson Saturday, 6-1, 6-3. Davis dominated both serve and volley game Saturday and never allowed Simpson to get into his game.

However, the feature match Saturday was between Juan Farrow, the fifth seed in the tournament from St. Louis, and Bob Blaze, the 20-year-old from Battle Creek, Mich. Blaze's performance was his best tournament effort on the satellite tour, but he couldn't overcome a slow start against Farrow Saturday.

Farrow, who was once sponsored by tennis great Arthur Ashe, jumped to an easy 6-2 first set victory before Blaze rallied for a 6-4 margin in the second set. The third set was a real battle. The pair were tied at 4-4 in the deciding set when Blaze's serve deserted him. Farrow broke serve and then won his own serve in four straight points to take the semifinal victory and the right to meet Davis in the finals. Blaze had defeated No. 2 seed Fred McNair on Friday.

Davis also gained a berth in the doubles finals with partner Chris Dunk. They defeated Tracy DeLatta and Tim Garcia, the top seeds, 6-4, 6-4. Dunk and Davis were seeded fifth.

In the other semifinal doubles match, Simpson teamed with Rohun Beven for a hard fought finesse match against Fred McNair and Mike Estep, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4. McNair and Estep were the No. 2 seeds while Beven and Simpson were seeded fourth.

There will be an admission charge of $1.50 per person for today's 1 p.m. finals at the Racquet Club. The doubles match will follow the singles action.

Either Davis or Farrow will earn $1,120 for a championship. The runner-up will receive $560. The doubles winners will split $448.

Saturday's losers in the semifinal singles matches each earned $308. The USTA/Penn meet has been held by the Midland Tennis Club as their 20th annual fall invitational tournament. Players in the tournament are trying to earn points for entry into the major pro circuit.

Dodgers down Astros Garvey's homer sinks Houston, 2-1

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles first baseman Steve Garvey had not hit a home run against Houston all season until his blast in the fourth inning lifted his club to a 2-1 triumph and sent the National League West into the final day of the regular season today with the Dodgers trailing the Astros by one game.

"Pressure is what the game of baseball is all about," said Garvey after the Dodgers edged the Astros by a single run for the second straight game.

Houston came to Los Angeles needing one victory in three games to clinch the division but now must win today to prevent a one-game playoff Monday.

"I think Nolan Ryan got his fastball out a little bit. He started me with a curve and then came the fastball. I was sure it was gone when I hit it," Garvey added.

The score was tied 1-1 at the time and left-hander Jerry Reuss shut out the Astros the rest of the way, scattering seven hits.

Asked about the two straight Dodger victories and their effect on Houston, Garvey said, "I'd be concerned. They have a one-game lead but we have momentum."

"Yes, I'd be concerned."

Dodgers center fielder Pedro Guerrero made a key catch in the ninth to retire Jose Cruz even though he had trouble with the lighting.

"It wasn't so much the sun, but it was the smog and the white shirts of all the fans," said Guerrero.

Guerrero misplayed a hit to center in the fourth inning that brought in the lone Astros run.

Garvey had three hits overall for

Should the Dodgers defeat Houston a third straight game today, they would conclude the regular season in a tie and force a playoff game here for the championship on Monday.

Garvey's homer to lead off the fourth inning broke a 1-1 tie. In the second, Garvey led off with a bloop single and scored the Dodgers' first run on a two-out single by Derrel Thomas.

The Astros tied the score in the fourth when Jose Cruz singled, stole second and came home on Art Howe's two-out single to center.

Reuss, 18-6, matched his career-high in victories with his eighth win in 10 decisions. The Los Angeles left-hander walked one and struck out a season-high seven.

Nolan Ryan, 11-10, took the loss, his eighth in nine career decisions against Los Angeles. Ryan has not defeated the Dodgers since 1968 when he was with the New York Mets. Ryan did not walk a batter and struck out nine, giving him 200 for the season.

Garvey's three hits gave him 199 for the season, the most in the National League.

Aggies thump Tech, 41-21

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Quarterback David Beal, a senior starting his first game, weaved for four touchdowns and Leandrew Brown intercepted three passes and recovered a fumble as Texas A&M thrashed Texas Tech 41-21 Saturday.

A&M scored three touchdowns within 2:52 of the second quarter — each set up by a key defensive play by Brown — for a 31-0 lead.

Tech scored just before halftime on Ron Reeves' 11-yard pass to 150-pound wide receiver Jamie Harris and twice in the third quarter on a 10-yard toss to running back Greg Tyler and a 37-yard heave to Renie Baker.

The A&M victory before 65,490 partisan fans erased concern that a recent drug investigation, resulting in the dismissal of three Aggie players, would hurt the team's future performances.

Coach Tom Wilson inserted eight new starters in his line-up — four each on offense and defense — as the Aggies captured their Southwest Conference opener and raised their season record to 2-2. Tech fell to 2-3 and has lost both of its SWC games.

Beal, a sub to Mike Mosley for most of his career, raced 20 yards for the first score and also had touchdown runs of 9 and 25 yards in the first half and a 32-yard scoring sprint with 3:38 remaining in the game.

Beal finished with 202 yards total offense, running 11 times for 73 yards and completing 12 of 18 passes for 129 yards.

The loss may have been extra-costly to Tech as Reeves suffered a hand injury and back-up quarterback Mark James sustained cracked ribs.

Trinity downs Lobos

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Alan Rousseau and Kenny Sykes combined for 253 yards rushing and three touchdowns to lead the Trinity Tigers to a 21-20 Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association victory over Sul Ross Saturday night.

Eddie Wright of the University of Houston, goes up the middle for two yards and a first down against Baylor Saturday night in Waco, but the Bears still won, 24-12, to stay unbeaten on the year in four games. (AP Laserphoto).

Yankees capture Eastern Division

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson crashed his third home run in as many games this month, a tiebreaking three-run shot in the fifth, to power the New York Yankees to the American League East Division title with a 5-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the opener of Saturday's doubleheader.

Jackson's 41st homer of the season and 410th of his career capped a four-run rally that wiped out a 2-1 Detroit lead and eliminated the second-place Baltimore Orioles, who played a two-night doubleheader against Cleveland.

It was the fourth division title in five years for the Yankees, who saw a 9½ game lead in mid-July dwindle to one-half game by late August. They pulled away again by winning 21 of 28 in September and their first three in October.

The Yankees will begin the best-of-five American League playoffs on Wednesday in Kansas City against the Royals, the team they defeated for the AL pennant in 1976, 1977 and 1978.

Bobby Brown started the Yankee fifth with a one-out single. Willie Randolph also singled, with Brown moving to third when center fielder Rick Peters slipped on grass wet from Friday night's rain.

Peters aggravated a hamstring pull and had to leave the game. Brown scored the tying run on Bobby Murcer's sacrifice fly, and Oscar Gamble kept the inning alive with a walk. Jackson then walloped a 1-0 pitch from rookie Roger Weaver, 3-4, into the upper right field stands, an estimated 75-80 above the 353-foot sign.

The blast made a winner of Rudy May, 15-5, who scattered six hits in seven innings. He retired the last 10 batters he faced after Jim Lentine's fourth-inning single put the Tigers on top 2-1. It was the eighth consecutive triumph for the 36-year-old left-hander, the best one-season streak of his career.

Rich Gossage allowed two hits over the final two innings for his 33rd save. Jackson's 110 RBI matches his 1977 total, his first year with the Yankees. While with Oakland, he drove in 118 in 1969 and 117 in 1973. He has homered in his last four games.

The Yankees took a 1-0 lead in the first when Randolph walked, went to third on a single by Murcer and scored as Gamble hit into a double play.

Detroit tied it in the third on Peters' single, a balk and Alan Trammell's double. Tom Brookins opened the Tiger fourth with a single, stole second and scored on Lentine's single.

The Yankees have been in first place since May 14, and Saturday marked the 155th of 179 days this season they have spent at the top of the standings.

The Tigers won the nightcap 7-6 as Lynn Jones drove in four runs with a single in the third inning and a bases-loaded triple in the eighth.

Jackson, who leads the league in homers by one over Milwaukee's Ben Oglivie, was the only Yankee regular to play and managed one hit in three trips, an RBI triple in the first inning.

The crowd of 55,410 was the largest since the renovated Yankee Stadium opened five years ago. The Yankees became the first major-league team to show an increase in attendance for eight consecutive years, and Saturday's crowd set a club record of 2,591,538. The Yankees need 29,089 in today's regular season finale to break the American League mark set by the 1948 Cleveland Indians.

Porkers thunder past Frogs

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Fullback Darryl Bowles scored four touchdowns and the much-maligned Arkansas offense got well as the 14th-ranked Razorbacks whipped Texas Christian University for the 22nd straight time Saturday 44-7.

Arkansas, which made a total of 46 first downs in its first three games, set a school record with 37 first downs against TCU, including a record 29 on the ground.

Arkansas, which averaged 297 yards per game in its first three outings, netted 282 yards and 16 first downs in the first half alone while building a 24-0 lead.

The Razorbacks scored on six of their first eight possessions and on wound up a yard short of a first down at the TCU 5 on one of the other two.

In fact, after those eight possessions, Arkansas had 434 yards total offense with 39 minutes gone in the game.

It was ironic that Bowles scored his four touchdowns up the middle because Arkansas coach Lou Holtz had expressed concern about the Razorbacks' lack of an inside running attack. Bowles scored on runs of 1, 8, 9, and 15 yards.

TCU's defense should not take all the blame for Arkansas' production. The Razorbacks went 35 yards and 56 yards for touchdowns in the final minutes of the second quarter when the Horned Frogs were unable to move the ball and had to kick into a

Penn State beats Missouri

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Paul Lankford intercepted two passes to set up two Herb Menhardt field goals in the third period and quarterback Todd Blackledge romped 43 yards for a fourth-quarter touchdown to give 17-ranked Penn State a come-from-behind 29-21 victory Saturday over ninth-ranked Missouri.

The previously unbeaten Tigers, with Phil Bradley throwing touchdown passes of 31 and 53 yards, led at halftime 21-16 but fell flat after intermission.

Lankford returned his first interception 33 yards to the Missouri 33 yard line and Menhardt followed with a 27-yard field goal to cut Missouri's lead to 21-19.

LSU polishes off Gators

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Alan Risher came off the bench Saturday to pass for one touchdown and half-back Jesse Myles ran two others in as fumble-prone Louisiana State knocked off 19th-ranked Florida 24-7 in a Southeastern Conference football game.

LSU's starting signalcaller, Robbie Mahfouz, was taken out after fumbling twice in the first series. In all, LSU fumbled 12 times and lost five of them.

Florida lost its starting quarterback as well as the game, which left it 3-1, 1-1 in the SEC. Quarterback Bob Hewko, hit hard in the first quarter, led the game with an injured right knee.

LSU, now 3-2 overall and 1-1 in the SEC, scored first with a 30-yard field goal by David Johnston.

stiff breeze. TCU had the football six times in the first half and never put together more than two first downs. The Frogs did not cross midfield until it was 38-0 in the third quarter.

Bowles ended with 87 yards on 15 carries. James Tolbert, a junior who played fullback and tailback, had his first 100-yard game as a Razorback with 111 yards on 20 carries.

The Razorbacks came out smoking, moving 80 yards in 12 plays, all on the ground. Arkansas was so effective, that it never faced a third down in the drive.

The Razorbacks reeled off 17 points in the second quarter. Ish Ordonez' 19-yard field goal made it 10-0 with 13:18 left in the first period.

Arkansas lost the ball on downs on the TCU 5 on its next possession and the Frogs punted for their 3. Arkansas took over at the TCU 35 with 4:41 left in the half.

Quarterback Tom Jones threw to tight end Darryl Mason for 13 yards on third-and-11 and then Bowles covered the final 19 yards in two plays. His 8-yard touchdown run came with 3:07 left in the quarter.

TCU ran three plays and punted 29 yards and Arkansas had the ball on its 45 with 1:18 left.

David Haynes broke loose on a draw play for 26 yards and, after a penalty against the Frogs, Jones got the ball to Haynes on a screen pass. The play covered 15 yards to the Frogs' 9. On first down, Bowles picked his way through several defenders for the touchdown.

Arkansas is 3-1 on the season and 1-1 in Southwest Conference play. TCU is 0-4 and 0-2 in SWC.

Longhorns blast Rice Owls by 41-28

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas halfback Rodney Tate scored two first-half touchdowns and quarterback Donnie Little broke the game open with touchdown bombs of 57 yards to A.J. Jones and 73 yards to Lawrence Sampleton as the fifth-ranked Longhorns blasted Rice 41-28 Saturday night.

The Longhorns had to fight for survival in the fourth quarter when the Owls went to their passing game and former starting quarterback Randy Hertel, who came off the bench and completed two touchdown passes and ran in another score.

Little, who raked Rice's secondary throughout the game, hit Jones on a 57-yard scoring pass play early in the third quarter when Texas had a first down and 45 yards to go.

Late in the quarter Little threw a perfectly executed bootleg play that completely fooled the Rice defense.

The Owls, attempting their second upset in a row after beating Louisiana State last week, struck with 38 seconds in the half when cornerback Odis Mack intercepted a pass by Rick McIvor and returned it 41 yards for a 21-7 halftime margin.

Texas' first touchdown drive of the third quarter started at the Longhorn 33. The touchdown pass to Jones came after Little complete a 47-yard pass to Maurice McCloyne to the Rice 21 before a loss and consecutive 15-yard penalties pushed Texas back to its own 43.

Texas now is 4-0 for the season and 2-0 in Southwest Conference play. Rice dropped to a 1-3 record in its opening conference game.

Sooners smash records in 82-42 win over Buffs

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Senior halfback David Overstreet rushed for 258 yards and freshman George "Buster" Rhymes scored four touchdowns as 12th-ranked Oklahoma smashed a series of offensive records in crushing Colorado 82-42 Saturday in the Big Eight football opener for both teams.

The 124 combined points made it the highest scoring game in NCAA history.

Sooners generated 876 total yards to establish an all-time NCAA Division I-A record, and also bettered the previous rushing standard with 759 yards on the ground.

Overstreet, who had been held to a disappointing 90 yards rushing after two games, exploded against the Buffaloes, setting up two touchdowns with runs of 84 and 53 yards and scoring himself on a 37-yard pass from J.C. Watts.

Junior quarterback Darrell Shepard of Odessa, Tex. scored 2 touchdowns and sophomore halfback Chet Winters two more as the Sooners boosted their season record to 2-1. Colorado dropped to 0-4.

Oklahoma threatened to make it a runaway by picking up 20 first downs and 389 total yards in the first half. But Colorado stayed close, getting a 100-yard kickoff return from freshman Walter Stanley and capitalizing on two OU fumbles to get two more scores and pull within 34-21 at intermission.

But the Sooners took firm command in the third quarter with four touchdowns, and then tacked on three more in the final quarter.

USC escapes with 23-21 victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Gordon Adams threw for 226 yards and a touchdown and Eric Hipp kicked three field goals Saturday as fourth-ranked Southern Cal held off upset-minded Arizona State 23-21 in a Pacific-10 Conference football game.

Adams completed 20 of 29 passes and Marcus Allen gained 133 yards on 36 carries and scored a touchdown for the victorious Trojans, who avenged a 1978 loss to the Sun Devils that was the last defeat for Southern Cal.

The Trojans currently are on a 24-game unbeaten streak.

Southern Cal, favored by two touchdowns, was ahead most of the contest, but just barely.

Arizona State trailed 23-14 with less than five minutes to go, but narrowed the margin to two points on a 14-yard scoring pass from quarterback Mike Pagel to tight end Ron Wetzel. The touchdown came on a fourth-and-2 play.

Southern Cal, 4-0, opened the scoring in the first period on a 2-yard burst by Allen to cap an 82-yard drive. Arizona State came back to tie it in the second period on a 3-yard scoring pass from Pagel to wide receiver John Mistler.

But the Trojans rallied for 13 points before intermission, with Hipp hitting

Aggies whip Red Raiders

Beal had most of his success running behind right tackle Tim Ward, 6-5 and 281 pounds, but whirled through a big hole on the left side for his final touchdown as the Tech defense had pulled in close on fourth-and-one.

"This is a like a dream, really," said Beal. "I owe it all to the coaches for having the confidence to put me in."

He said the last game he started was for his Russellville, Ark., high school team when it defeated Fort Smith Southside in his senior year.

He has played twice this year — his fourth and final season — but only after A&M trailed 42-0 and 25-0.

Beal said he thought of quitting after his sophomore year at A&M, but "I didn't want to be thought of as a quitter." He said, despite his success Saturday, if he had it to do over again he might go to another school.

Cowboys are 13 point favorites over Giants

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys were 13-point favorites today to whip the New York Giants, their annual National Football League patsy. Even in 1960, Dallas' winless first year as an expansion club, the Cowboys found their only moment of glory by tying one team — the Giants.

In fact, Dallas' first franchise victory — in the 1960 preseason — was against guess who.

The Giants and Cowboys have met 37 times and New York has won just nine. There have been two ties.

Dallas has won 11 consecutive games over the Giants, dating back to 1974 when Bill Arnsparger's team managed a 14-6 victory in Texas Stadium.

Coach Tom Landry of the Cowboys, a former player and assistant coach at New York, has no explanation for the mastery of his old team.

"New York always plays us well," said Landry. "We seldom beat 'em bad. They are always a scrappy group."

The fast-sinking Giants of Coach Ray Perkins desperately need a victory over their National Conference Eastern Division rival. While the Cowboys are 3-1 and tied for the division lead, the Giants are just the opposite.

Perkins has promised some lineup changes following a 28-7 rout by Los Angeles last Sunday.

Halfback Billy Taylor was expected to return from a knee injury to provide some punch to the lackluster Giant ground game. The longest run from scrimmage this year by New York is Phil Simms' 14-yard scramble.

Simms sprained the back of his knee in the Ram game but will start as the Giants continue their killer schedule which has them meeting

SW Texas is upset

THIBODAUX, La. (AP) — Junior Dwight Walker leaped up for a last-minute acrobatic reception to score the winning touchdown as Nicholls State upset Southwest Texas State 24-21 in a college football game Saturday night.

With less than 2 minutes to play, quarterback Tim Bailey lobbed the ball 16 yards into the end zone and Walker came up with it after the ball was tipped by a Texas defender.

Alabama rolls

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Freshman Linnie Patrick set up touchdowns with runs of 60 and 38 yards as top-ranked Alabama smashed Kentucky 45-0 Saturday, enabling Paul "Bear" Bryant to become only the third coach in college football history to win 300 games.

The Tide, rolling to its 25th consecutive victory, struggled throughout a sluggish first half but turned the game into a rout by striking for three touchdowns within a span of 2:20 early in the final quarter.

Bryant, a coaching legend who was raised on a farm in Arkansas, lifted his career record to 300-77-16. The triumph left him only 14 victories away from the all-time record held by Amos Alonzo Stagg.

MONTREAL (AP) — Mike Schmidt's two-run, 11th-inning homer gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-4 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday and the National League East Division championship.

Pete Rose opened the Philadelphia 11th with his third single of the game, and after Bake McBride fouled out, Schmidt lined his home run over the left-field fence to snap a 4-4 tie.

It was the 48th of the season for the major league home run leader and boosted his National League RBI lead to 121.

The victory sends Philadelphia against the winner of the West Division, either Houston or Los Angeles, in the best-of-five series, starting in Philadelphia Tuesday night.

Tug McGraw, 5-4, stopped the Expos cold Friday night and came on in the ninth and did it again Saturday.

In the two games in which he appeared, McGraw allowed only one hit while facing 16 batters.

Stan Bahnsen, 7-6, took the loss in relief.

The Phillies tied the game 4-4 in the top of the ninth on Bob Boone's RBI single off reliever Woody Fryman. The single sent home Bake McBride, who had reached first on a forceout grounder and taken second on a slow roller by Mike Schmidt.

The Expos had gone ahead 4-3 with a two-run rally in the seventh helped along by a pair of Philadelphia errors. Chris Speier hit a routine pop fly with one out that second baseman Manny Trillo dropped for an error.

Ron LeFlore, who has been sidelined with a broken wrist, ran for Speier and stole his 95th base, continuing onto third when catcher Keith Moreland threw the ball into center field.

Jerry White, whose two-run homer in the third had given Montreal a 2-0 lead off Larry Christenson, hit a sacrifice fly to score LeFlore for 3-3. Rodney Scott capped the rally with an RBI double.

Trailing 2-1, the Phillies went ahead in the seventh on four consecutive singles, including a two-run hit by Greg Luzinski.

The game's start was delayed three hours and 10 minutes by rain.

Stanford takes 35-21 victory

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — John Elway threw three touchdown passes, giving him 11 for the season, and led 15th-ranked Stanford to a 35-21 victory over his father's suicidal San Jose State football team Saturday.

San Jose, coached by Jack Elway, outgained the Cardinals 267 yards to 163 in the first half but trailed 14-7 at halftime. The Spartans lost the ball three times on interceptions and twice on fumbles in the half.

Stanford, 4-1, opened the second half with a 76-yard touchdown drive, scoring on Darrin Nelson's 1-yard run, and went ahead 28-7 less than four minutes later.

After Nelson's touchdown, Tim Kearse of San Jose muffed the kickoff and was tackled at the Spartans 1-yard line.

Reds defeat Braves

CINCINNATI (AP) — George Foster blasted his 25th home run, and Frank Pastore became the winningest Cincinnati pitcher this season as the Reds defeated the Atlanta Braves 3-2 Saturday.

The Reds have now defeated the Braves in 15 of 17 games this season.

Cincinnati scored three runs in the third inning. Dave Collins walked and stole second, his 79th steal of the season. He took third on catcher Bruce Benedict's throwing error and scored on Ken Griffey's sacrifice fly. Ron Oester walked, and Foster slammed a two-run homer.

Pastore, 13-7, spotted the Braves three singles in the first two innings and then retired 13 in a row until Rafael Ramirez singled in the sixth. Pastore scattered six hits and struck out seven.

Cubs blank Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Lynn McGlothen pitched a four-hitter and Bill Buckner drove in two runs with a homer and a single as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-0 Saturday.

Chicago scored three runs in the fifth off Pascual Perez, 0-1, making his second major league start.

Mike Tyson and Mick Kelleher singled and moved up on McGlothen's sacrifice. Carlos Lezcano was hit by a pitch to load the bases, and Steve Dillard drove in the first run with a sacrifice fly.

Buckner singled up the middle to score Kelleher, and the final run of the inning scored when third baseman Kurt Bevacqua mishandled a pickoff throw from catcher Tony Pena.

The Blue Jays won the opener 7-6 in 11 innings, a game which lasted 4 hours and 38 minutes, the longest in the American League this season, despite a homer, three doubles and a single by Dwight Evans.

Chisox trip Angels

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Morrison drilled a three-run homer, and Lamarr Hoyt and Ed Farmer combined on a seven-hitter Saturday, leading the Chicago White Sox to a 4-2 victory over the California Angels.

Hoyt, 9-3, struck out four and walked three in eight innings. Farmer yielded one hit in the ninth and earned his 30th save of the season.

Rangers top Mariners

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — An error by shortstop Mario Mendoza gave the door for four unearned runs that opened Texas' lead in the sixth inning and Rusty Staub, John Grubb and Buddy Bell later hit home runs as the Rangers routed the Seattle Mariners 11-6 Saturday night.

John Butcher, 3-3, allowed five hits and struck out six in the 6½ innings he pitched for Texas. Jon Matlack came on to quell a Seattle rally and earned his first save.

Jerry Coleman to get ax

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Jerry Coleman, first-year manager of the San Diego Padres, will be fired at the end of the season, according to a story in a San Diego newspaper.

Coleman, in San Francisco where the Padres are completing the season with a three-game series that ends Sunday, said he knew nothing of the story in the San Diego Evening Tribune.

"As far as I know, there will not be a decision made on me or my staff until after the end of the season," Coleman said by telephone.

In San Francisco, there was an unconfirmed report that Coleman was going to return to broadcasting with the Padres. The former New York Yankees second baseman was a broadcaster for the team until he was chosen to succeed Roger Craig as manager last season.

KENNY REDIN'S

Fin & Feather

Continuing with the hunting dog story, we will focus on the most popular hunting dogs — the pointers and setters.

These are the dogs for grouse, quail, pheasants and partridge — the game birds of field and forest.

They are point dogs. At the scent of a game bird they "lock up" in place, a portrait of quivering suspense as the dog waits for the hunter to come up and flush the bird.

Such pointing is part of the bird dog's character. It's an inbred trait that is refined by training and is a lifelong reason for being, from the time the small puppy points a butterfly in the kennel to that bittersweet day when the old dog enters a covert on trembling legs and points his last pheasant.

Best known of the pointing bird dogs are the English Pointer and English Setter. The first is a rangy, hard-going, short-coated dog, the great southern quail dog with field devouring gallop. He's at his best in big country where he can range well ahead of the guns in search of coveys of quail, sharp-tail grouse, Hungarian partridge or pheasant.

The English Setter, long-coated and affectionate, is an ideal partner to the pointer in such open country, but is probably at his best in closer cover. The English Setter makes a classic ruffed grouse and woodcock dog, bred to range hardwood ridges, low alder runs and abandoned farmlands. He takes to closer work than the big pointer, and the setter's long coat not only wears better in the brush and briars, but also equips the dog for harsh winter weather.

There's nothing else like it, especially in quail country where you can watch a brace of bird dogs stretch out with their long, swinging casts well ahead of the guns. They work in high gear, quartering the big fields tirelessly against the wind, intent on striking the covey scent. Suddenly, in mid-stride, one of the dogs hits the brakes and slides into an intense point. A moment later, his brace-mate, a stylish setter fifty yards away, comes to point in honor of the first dog's find. In an instant, the action has frozen into a tableau of breathless suspense.

The hunter comes up, gun at ready, and steps past the pointer toward the hidden covey. The dog is vibrating with tension, each muscle drawn wire-taut, nostrils dilated with the rich scent of the birds a few yards ahead. It's one of the great moments in sport, with suspense building into an explosion of wings and gun. If there is a bird down, the dog retrieves it on command.

There are other pointers and setters although none are as well known as the foregoing breeds. The setter tribe also includes the Irish Setter, Llewellyn Setter and Gordon Setter — beautiful dogs that have largely disappeared from the American field. Other pointers include the "continental" breeds such as the German Shorthaired Pointer, the German Wirehaired Pointer, the Hungarian Vizsla and the German Weimaraner. All are short-tailed, short-coated and tend to be less wide ranging than the typical quail-bred English Pointer.

There are setters and pointers of all breeds meant for show purposes only. But we are talking about field-bred dogs that love to hunt, with inbred hunting traits that are refined by training and experience. If the desire to hunt and a good nose are lacking, no amount of work will make a good gun dog.

If the dog is a born hunter, has a good nose and its fair share of schooling along with a lot of field mileage, it has the makings of a great hunting companion. That is why it is important to have a dog out of proven hunting stock, with or without papers. Such a dog is more likely to develop into a hunting partner.

Your dog need not be a flashy, big-running, field-trail wonder. It's enough to have an honest dog with traits typical of the breed, wanting to hunt with plenty of chances to do it. It's even better if you can do some of the training yourself. A young hunter and young dog may not be the sharpest bird-finding and bird-shooting team, but you can bet they will teach each other a lot while they are growing up together.

You can buy a dog that already has had training. This may not cost as much as you think, and you may be ahead in the long run.

Muhammad Ali becomes old man against Holmes

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Both fighters walked out of the ring with their titles intact. Larry Holmes was still the heavyweight champion of the world. Muhammad Ali was still The Greatest.

In the end, Ali stood against the ropes with his hands down and Holmes punching him at will. But the Caesars Palace crowd didn't seem to realize what was seeing. There were mutters, scattered boos. But mostly it just sat there.

They had come to see a great fighter pull off a miracle and instead they saw an aging man. It may not have been much of a fight, but it was history.

The end of Ali's great career was written the minute the opening bell sounded. If you want to really see a fighter do what the other man in the ring does, ignore the hands and feet and look at the eyes.

The dull, almost frightened expression on Ali's face as he walked towards the first of the many left jabs that Holmes was to throw Thursday night showed that he was not going to win that fight. He knew it.

Ali said Friday that, "The only way I could have won was by knockout." He said he knew that as soon as the first round was over.

But that tired man who received an almost gentle, respectful beating at the hands of the World Boxing Council heavyweight champion is still Muhammad Ali, and that adds a note of special sadness to what happened Thursday.

Holmes said he did what he had to do to win the fight. But he let it be known that it meant a lot more to him than just another ring battle.

"I'll never forget being part of this and I owe it all to the legend himself — Muhammad Ali," Holmes told a packed press conference. "He owes boxing nothing and boxing owes him everything."

In the Ring record book, Ali's 60th professional fight will read: Oct. 2 Larry Holmes Las Vegas L 11.

The "L" came when Ali failed to answer the bell for the 11th round. But the fight was already lost. The three judges had each awarded Holmes all 10 rounds.

"I'm glad it was stopped," Ali said. "I couldn't have taken four more rounds."

That was apparent to trainer Angelo Dundee. He wanted the fight stopped, other cornermen wanted it to go on. But manager Herbert Muhammad gave the call from his ringside seat. Stop it.

"It was the hardest thing I ever did in my life," Dundee said of the decision to stop the fight. There was a great man sitting in that corner when I stopped the fight."

But that great man was sitting there staring into space, obviously unable to continue that night. Now the question is whether he tries to continue in the ring.

Early Friday morning he told a television audience he would fight again. "I shall return," Ali said.

But later in the day he was not so sure. He said he would have to have a physical before making any decision. "I have to make sure I'm right."

And throughout the boxing world came advice that Ali never fight again.

Promoters Bob Arum and Don King both said he should never fight again. But King did say that he would arrange a match for Ali if that's what Ali wanted.

But no matter what course Ali takes, boxers will be fighting his legend for years.

Ken Norton, who fought Ali three times, was talking to reporters after the bout. "It was sad," Norton said. "Yeah, he was the greatest," one of the writers said.

Norton sharply corrected the reporter: "He IS the greatest."

Montana is place to be when elk season arrives

A big bull elk, six massive ivory-tipped points to a side, stood near the lattice-like stand of lodgepole pines. His grey and milk-chocolate cape glistened in the fading light of a snowy, cold October day.

The heavy four-foot beams were battered and splintered from the rigors of battling other bulls for harem rights during mating season.

"He's mine," I whispered to my partner Davis Haffa. David had filled his tag earlier with a good five-point bull. He had been my bird dog since we hung this bull.

I dropped silently to the snow-packed cover and wiggled into a good sitting position, shouldered my Remington model 700 .30 .06, squeezed and watched the bull go down beyond the flame of my rifle muzzle.

The old bull rolled over, floundered in the belly deep snow, struggled to his feet, plunged downhill and out of view before I could get off another round.

David and I followed the blood sign and moments later found the bull bedded in a thicket less than 100 yards from an old overgrown logging road.

I raised my head above the deadfall. I was behind the bull and the bull was looking right at me, he regained his feet ready to move off again.

I laid the rifle barrel over the deadfall, dug my knees and feet into the snow, picked up the old bull's shoulder in my scope and slowly squeezed off the finishing shot.

Fortunately, I was able to drive my four-wheel drive suburban, with all four wheels chained up, to a spot on the logging road less than 100 yards from where the elk dropped. With the aid of a marvelous mechanical aid called a chain hoist or coffee hoist and a 100-foot long piece of wire rope, we had the bull loaded, intact, by dark.

A decent bull by most hunter's estimations, his antlers are the only ones I've kept from the seven bull elk I've tagged.

This little tale is really an expression of frustration. This fall will be the first elk season in many a year that I will not be in the woods amongst them.

For those of you who have the time, there is still opportunity and time to plan and execute a fall hunt in many states that have good, huntable populations of elk.

The successful hunt I described took place on the perimeter of the famous Bob Marshall Wilderness Area in Northwestern Montana.

The elk are rutting now. So we've missed what is referred to by many as the bugle season or trophy hunt.

The September bugle hunt is also archery elk season in Montana. I love it. I haven't been successful as yet, but the pursuit is a thrill.

Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Idaho and Wyoming are excellent choices for an elk hunt. I have tagged four bulls in Arizona. The San Carlos and Fort Apache Indian reservations are the top areas in Arizona for quality elk hunts.

Perhaps Howard Hill Longbow or 6 mm Remington rifle will assist me in a good hunt on Texas whitetail in lieu of an elk hunt. I do have elk to my credit but I'm shamefaced to admit, I have not tagged a Texas whitetail.

U.S. women golfers win Amateur crown

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — The United States, with Carol Semple and Judi Simpson Inkster shooting sub-par final rounds, won the ninth Women's World Amateur Golf Team Championship Saturday by seven strokes over defending titlist Australia.

Semple, the 31-year-old 1980 Curtis Cup team member who played on the victorious U.S. World team in 1974, shot a 3-under par 71 with eight birdies and five bogeys over the 5,940-yard, par-74 No. 2 Course at Pinehurst Country Club to all but nail down the victory.

Later, Inkster, the 20-year-old 1980 U.S. Amateur champion, shot a 1-under par 73. Patti Rizzo, 20-year-old Amateur runner-up, closed with a 76 but still was the low scorer in the four-day tournament.

Under the rules of the competition, each of the 28 nations could enter three players but only the two low scores were counted each day to determine the team's daily score.

The country with the lowest aggregate, the United States with a 588, over the four days won the championship. The defending champion Australians, who won this biennial event in Fiji in 1978, started out Wednesday with a 1-stroke lead, but the United States tied them on Thursday and then jumped into a three-stroke lead after the third round.

The victory was the seventh for the United States since the event was begun in 1964, with France taking the inaugural and the U.S. the following six before the Australian victory.

Rizzo had a four-day total of 73-70-75-76-294, two under par, to win medalist honors even though no individual awards are given. She was two strokes better than Australia's Edwina Kennedy, four strokes better than Mart Figueras-Dotti of Spain, and five better than Australia's Lindy Goggin.

Mrs. R.D. Bridges, the non-playing captain of the Australian team, said she was very pleased with the play of Kennedy, Goggin and Jane Lock.

"One always concedes that a team playing on its home ground has a knowledge of the playing conditions and gets marvelous support from the gallery," she said. "It was a tremendous test of golf this course. One needs to know its subtleties."

Following the United States and Australia in the team scoring were France and Spain tied for third place with four-day totals of 610.

Navy posts win

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Fullback Kevin Tolbert ran for two touchdowns and quarterback Fred Reitzel passed to tight end Curt Gainer for another to carry Navy to a 21-0 victory over Boston College Saturday.

Tolbert's touchdowns on runs of eight and seven yards came midway through the third quarter of what had been a tight defensive battle. The only previous scoring came in the second quarter when Navy moved 47 yards in four plays to take a 7-0 lead. A 39-yard pass from Reitzel to wingback Greg Papajohn set the stage for the 4-yard scoring pass to Gainer.

Navy's defense, ranked first in the nation going into the game, was the key to the Middies' third victory in four games.

Eusebio Pedroza defends title with split decision

McAFEE, N.J. (AP) — Eusebio Pedroza successfully defended his World Boxing Association featherweight crown Saturday with a split decision over challenger Rocky Lockridge.

The 5-foot-5 Lockridge, four inches shorter than the Panamanian champion, sparred with Pedroza on an even basis until the 10th round, when he began to tire and his punches began missing their mark. He came back strong in the 11th, but Pedroza started the 12th round with a series of strong body punches and uppercuts that wore down the challenger.

Judge Harold Lederman of the United States scored the fight in favor of Lockridge 144-142, but Panamanian judge Rudolfo Hill scored it 147-141. Pedroza and referee Stanley Christodoulou of South Africa had Pedroza ahead 149-139.

Neither Lockridge, 124, nor Pedroza, 126, was knocked in the nationally televised fight at Great Gorge resort.

Early in the fight, Lockridge had the champion on the ropes and came out ahead in an exchange, but Pedroza countered and forced the action back to the center of the ring.

Pedroza picked up the pace, ducking frequently and causing Lockridge to take wild swings that missed the mark.

It was Pedroza's ninth title defense since 1978, while Lockridge was taking his first shot at the crown.

Harvard topples Army by 15-10

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Quarterback Brian Buckley, who seriously injured his knee in the fourth quarter, scored two third-period touchdowns to lead undefeated Harvard to a 15-10 victory over Army in a college football game Saturday.

Buckley, a 6-foot-3, 195-pound senior, scored on runs of 67 and 1 yards as the Crimson won their third game of the season. But Buckley went down in the fourth quarter, suffered possible torn cartilage and probably will miss the rest of the season.

The Cadets, in suffering their second straight setback after two victories, saw their quarterback, Jerry Bennett, intercepted four times as he only completed seven of passes for 128 yards before giving way to T.D. Decker in the third quarter.

Decker, who was last year's starter for Army, accounted for the Cadets' lone touchdown on a 1-yard keeper that capped a 46-yard, nine-play drive in the fourth quarter.

Yale nips Air Force

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Yale tailback Rich Diana rushed for 136 yards and quarterback John Rogan threw two scoring passes to lead Yale to a 17-16 victory over Air Force, which fell short on a two-point conversion attempt late in the game.

What turned out to be the game's deciding play came with 46 seconds remaining in the third quarter. Trailing by one point, Air Force went for a two-point conversion after scoring a touchdown on a 47-yard pass from reserve quarterback Marty Louthan to wide receiver Dennis Moore.

But on the extra-points attempt, senior running back Bob Renaud was stopped short of the goal line.

Yale improved its record to 3-0, while Air Force is 0-4-1. The teams had been tied 10-10 at the half.

Ronald Reagan still leading with one month to go

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — One month from a showdown at the polls, Ronald Reagan is rated the leader for nearly enough electoral votes to wrest the White House from President Carter — but the outcome hinges on closely-contested, populous states of the Northeast, the upper Midwest and Texas.

An Associated Press survey of political leaders, campaign strategists and state public opinion polls showed Reagan the leader in 25 states with 236 electoral votes. That's just 34 short of the 270-vote majority that would install a new Republican administration.

The survey showed Carter leading in 11 states and the District of Columbia, with 131 electoral votes. Carter now has the edge in crucial New York, a state he said he cannot afford to lose.

That does not necessarily foretell the outcome. Early October leads can slip away into Nov. 4 deficits, and tossup states still hold the balance of electoral power. Furthermore, close contests loom in virtually every battleground state.

While independent John B. Anderson's vote could tip the outcome between the major party nominees in pivotal, northern-tier states, the Illinois congressman does not appear to hold the lead for any electoral votes.

Thus there is virtually no prospect Anderson can emerge as a third force in the electoral college and deadlock the election. If he does win a state, it could be Massachusetts or Connecticut, where he now ranks with the leaders.

The new survey compares with a Sept. 5 assessment that showed Reagan ahead for 212 electoral votes, Carter for 90. So both candidates gained ground, but Reagan's margin held with little erosion during the first month of intensive campaigning.

Fourteen states with 171 electoral votes are rated tossups, with no clear leader at this point.

Reagan now is rated the leader in Ohio, Michigan and New Jersey, with a lead of 63 electoral votes among them. The earlier survey had classified them as tossups, and they remain close. Carter gained the advantage in New York, for 41 electoral votes which are crucial to any combination that could forge a Democratic electoral majority.

At the same time, an early Reagan lead in Illinois appears to have dwindled, and those 26 electoral votes now are in the tossup column. So are the 26 votes of Texas, and 17 in Florida, both Democratic in 1976, and both hotly contested this time.

Florida is a prime target in the Reagan campaign to crack what was Carter's solid South. Reagan also appears to hold the advantage in Mississippi, while Louisiana and Alabama are rated among the tossup states.

The survey reflects this situation:

New England

Massachusetts (14 electoral votes): A close race in a state vital to Carter. A new poll calls it a three-way dead heat and says voters would prefer the president over Reagan 2-1 if Anderson were not on the ballot. Democrats think Anderson supporters will shift to Carter in the final weeks.

Connecticut (8): A tossup. The latest survey shows Reagan with 29 percent of the likely vote, Carter with 28 percent and Anderson with 27 percent.

Maine (4): A poll published Sept. 27 in the Bangor Daily News shows Carter and Reagan in a virtual deadlock. Both sides believe they can win.

New Hampshire (4): Reagan holds a commanding lead.

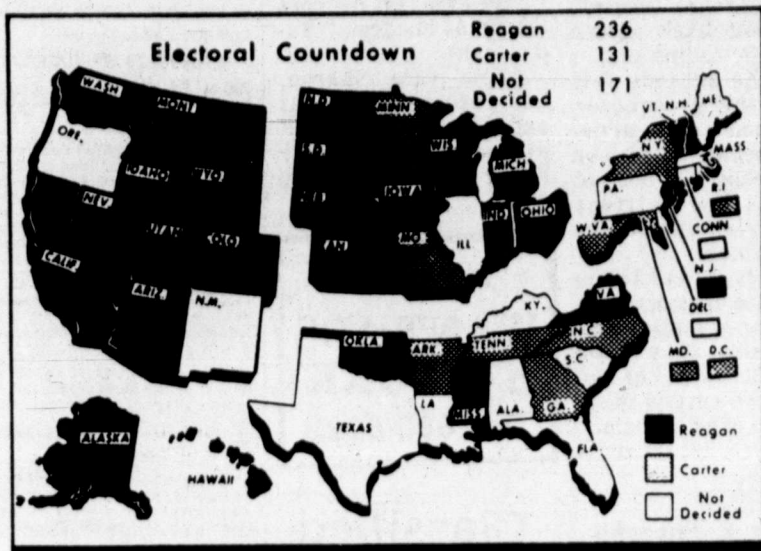

Rhode Island (4): Surveys show Carter leading in a state that normally goes Democratic. Anderson could hurt Carter, but his support appears to be slipping.

Vermont (3): Solid Reagan territory.

Northeast-Middle Atlantic

New York (41): Carter says he can't win without New York, where he now appears to hold a shaky lead. Anderson shares the Liberal Party ballot with Sen. Jacob K. Javits, and could cause Carter problems.

A Newsday-Gannett poll rates Carter the leader with 35 percent to 29 percent for Reagan, 15 percent for Anderson. Anderson was taking four votes from Carter for every three he takes from Reagan.

Pennsylvania (27): Close and crucial to both sides. Reagan and Carter campaign both claim the lead. A Pittsburgh Post-Gazette poll said Reagan had a 7-point lead; an NBC News poll said Carter was ahead. Unemployment is high in western Pennsylvania, and so is the undecided vote. That region could be the key to the outcome.

New Jersey (17): Reagan is rated the leader; Carter strategists say he probably is 5 to 6 percentage points ahead now. Democrats are counting on a late swing of Anderson supporters into their column. Robert Strauss, Carter's chairman, says New Jersey "is a winnable state, believe it or not."

Maryland (10): Carter is considered ahead, although both sides call it close.

Delaware (3): A tossup. Reagan could gain from the coattails of GOP Gov. Pierre du Pont IV, who is expected to win landslide re-election.

District of Columbia (3): As sure a thing as there is for Carter, who got nearly 82 percent of the Capital vote last time.

The South and Border States

Florida (17): Close, but a promising target for Reagan in Carter's South. Good news for Carter — Democratic Gov. Bob Graham has rescinded his earlier advice that Carter stay away until the refugees were resettled.

North Carolina (13): Republicans say it is too close to call, but an early September poll made it Carter 46 percent, Reagan 33 percent.

Georgia (12): Carter appears safely ahead in his home state.

Virginia (12): Close, with the current edge to Reagan in the only Southern state the Republicans won four years ago.

Missouri (12): Carter's campaigners say they'll win by about the same, slim margin that gave him the state four years ago, 60,000 votes.

Louisiana (10): A tossup. Carter gained an important ally when former Gov. Edwin Edwards went to work for him — in part to keep his own hand in for another gubernatorial bid in 1983.

Tennessee (10): Carter appears to have a slim edge. One survey showed Reagan narrowly ahead in bellwether Carroll County, but by a margin so slim as to make it a dead heat.

Alabama (9): The president led in a late-September poll, but even Democrats say the state could go either way.

Kentucky (9): An early Reagan lead appears to have dwindled, putting the state in the tossup category. Democrats plan a late campaign blitz.

South Carolina (8): Another southern tossup; Carter has campaigned here, Reagan will, neither side can point to evidence of a meaningful edge.

Industrial Midwest

Illinois (26): A tossup in a pivotal state where Reagan had appeared the leader. Anderson could be the difference; if he attracts a sizeable vote in his home state, it is to Reagan's advantage.

Ohio (25): Reagan is rated the leader once again with Anderson's vote a potential key. One poll shows Reagan leading Carter 35 percent to 29 percent, with 36 percent undecided.

"In Ohio, we are behind and we shouldn't be," said Strauss.

Michigan (21): Polls indicate Reagan leads Carter by about 4 percentage points, but the 36 percent undecided hold the key. Gov. William Milliken, a Republican, says "I know the margin will become tighter and tighter."

Indiana (13): Democrats are braced for a possible Reagan landslide — which could mean trouble for the re-election effort of Democratic Sen. Birch Bayh.

Wisconsin (11): Reagan now is rated the leader, with Anderson draining away support that might otherwise be Carter's.

The Farm States

Minnesota (10): Carter leads in the home state of Vice President Walter Mondale.

Iowa (8): Reagan led in a late-August Des Moines Register poll, and there's no sign of a shift.

Kansas (7): Reagan has a commanding lead.

Nebraska (5): State politicians look for a Reagan landslide.

South Dakota (4): Strong Reagan territory, with state interest focused on the challenge of Rep. James Abdnor to Democratic Sen. George McGovern.

North Dakota (3): Reagan is the solid favorite.

The Southwest

Texas (26): Crucial and close: Democrats claim Carter has caught up with Reagan, Republicans say not. Both have campaigned extensively in the state.

A Sept. 7-10 poll by Texas Monthly magazine showed Carter leading by 8 percent. Gov. Bill Clements, Reagan's campaign chairman, calls the poll "blatantly in error," and says a survey for the Reagan organization in late August gave Reagan a 9-point lead.

Oklahoma (8): Even Democrats look for an easy Reagan win.

Arizona (6): The latest poll gives Reagan a 2-1 lead, and Democrats have virtually written off the presidential contest to concentrate on state races.

New Mexico (4): Republican chairman Jack Emmons says a Reagan lead has dwindled to the point that undecided voters will determine the outcome.

The Mountain States

Colorado (7): Reagan appears well ahead.

Idaho (4): Gov. John Evans, chairman of the Carter campaign, says Reagan will win.

Utah (4): Pollsters give Reagan a 3-1 margin here.

Montana (4): Republicans say their polling shows Reagan 30 points ahead; Democrats say the margin is half that. Either way, it's Reagan country.

Wyoming (3): Both sides agree Reagan would carry the state now; Democrats cling to the hope that Carter can close the gap.

The West

California (45): Reagan leads in the state that twice elected him governor, but Carter's people say they are gaining. They say they've budgeted $2.5 million here, but Republicans suspect little of it will actually be spent — they figure Carter is trying to decoy Reagan into putting more of his own resources into holding his home state.

Pollster Mervin Field, whose early September survey rated Reagan the 10-point leader, says that despite voter reservations about the former governor, Carter "really doesn't have any constituency here."

Washington (9): A Seattle Times poll in early September showed Reagan ahead by 10 percentage points, but the Democrats claim Carter is closing fast.

Oregon (6): The race is a tossup in a state Carter lost by fewer than 2,000 votes.

Hawaii (4): The latest poll, in early September, gave Carter 42 percent, Reagan 28, Anderson 15. The outcome is likely to be closer than that.

Alaska (3): Reagan is running far ahead.

Nevada (3): The state Democratic chairman estimated Reagan was leading Carter 3-2 — and now thinks the margin has widened.

Mormons say families imperiled

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball, opening a conference marking the 150th anniversary of the church's founding, warned on Saturday that an erosion of family life will cause society to disintegrate "into nothingness."

"We know that when things go wrong in the family, things go wrong in every other institution in society," Kimball told the two-day Semiannual General Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

"Society without basic family life is without foundation and will disintegrate into nothingness," he said.

Another church official, meanwhile, warned that the church's welfare system was being taxed at an "alarming" rate by recession-plagued members. Church leaders appealed to members to continue giving 10 percent of their incomes to the church, as required for temple entry.

The prosperous and rapidly growing 4.6 million member church was founded by Joseph Smith Jr., who said he was instructed by God and Jesus Christ to establish "the only true and living church on the face of the earth."

Kimball, like the church's 11 previous presidents since 1830, is considered by members a prophet who receives revelations from God.

"Total chastity before marriage and total fidelity after are still the standard from which there can be no deviation without sin, misery and unhappiness," the 85-year-old Kimball said in the raspy whisper that has marked his speech since surgery for throat cancer more than 20 years ago.

He and other church leaders maintain ratification of the federal Equal Rights Amendment would erode family unity. Mormon women are barred from the church's lay priesthood, which is held by all worthy males 12 and over. No advance texts of conference sermons made reference to the proposed constitutional amendment, which would ban discrimination based on sex.

ERA supporters, including excommunicated Mormon feminist Sonia Johnson, plan to picket the conference Sunday to protest the church's opposition to the ERA.

Mrs. Johnson, a 44-year-old Sterling, Va., housewife, was excommunicated in December for what church leaders said was her claim that Mormon leaders hate women. She said she was excommunicated because of her activities as co-founder of Mormons For ERA.

Kimball said that since 1970, the U.S. divorce rate has climbed more than 65 percent and the number of unmarried couples living together has risen by 156 percent. He added, "Delinquent adults still tend to produce delinquent children."

The church has traditionally placed strong emphasis on families, which members believe are sealed together for eternity in sacred Mormon temple rites.

need for members to give 10-percent of their income to the church.

"My brethren and sisters, again I say, tithing is a law of God and is required of his followers. To fail to meet this obligation in full is to omit a weighty matter. It is a transgression, not an inconsequential oversight," he said.

Bishop Victor L. Brown told the same session the church's welfare system is being taxed at an "alarming" rate during the current economic downturn.

"At the present rate of demand, the church resources will be almost expended in a short time," Brown said. "Many of our members appear to feel that when difficulty comes, the church will come to their aid, even when they could have prepared themselves had their priorities been appropriate."

The Associated Press reported earlier this year that the Mormon Church has an estimated gross annual income in excess of $1.3 billion, or at least $3.5 million a day. Church leaders decline to make public the actual figures.

But Kimball, in a rare reference to the church's finances during his tithing reminder, assured members that, "As you are well aware, the church does not engage in deficit spending. The sacred funds of the church are carefully budgeted so that the expenditures never exceed the income."

Synagogue bombing draws protests

PARIS (AP) — Police armed with extraordinary search and seizure powers arrested 13 right-wing extremists Saturday for questioning about a bomb blast at a synagogue that killed three persons and injured 12.

The arrests came while thousands of French Jews and their supporters demonstrated against a wave of anti-Semitic violence that culminated in Friday night's explosion.

Police acting on orders from President Valery Giscard d'Estaing deployed all available manpower in an immediately identified.

At a ceremony in the damaged Union Libérale Israelite synagogue, Alain de Rothschild, president of the Committee of French Jewish Organizations, read a message to Giscard d'Estaing. It criticized the "passivity of the authorities, the indifference of our leaders and the inexplicable impotence of the police" in the face of rising anti-Semitic violence.

Friday's bombing was the sixth attack against Jewish sites in Paris in a week. No one was hurt in the other

Banker indicted for embezzlement

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas banker indicted on charges of embezzling $250,000 by making loans to a phony business began spending money freely 16 months ago, the Dallas Times Herald reported.

The indictment was returned Friday, accusing Johnny Earl Johns, 39, of "stealing $250,000 from Gary Hutson on Sept. 15." Hutson was Johns' supervisor in the factoring department of the First National Bank of Dallas.

Senior bank officers referred all questions to spokesman Jerry Bennett, who said only that the bank suspected more money might be missing and that Johns was bonded and the bank expected to lose no money.

A neighbor in Hurst, Wendell Smith, told the Dallas Times Herald that the Johns family moved into a modest house in February 1979 but began spending money quite freely in May.

"He bought a speed boat that must have cost $15,000," Smith told the newspaper. "First, he bought a black Corvette, then he bought a Toronado, then after a few weeks he traded it in on a red Corvette. And he bought a four-wheel-drive Blazer, too."

By November, the newspaper said, Johns had moved into a new house which neighbors said was worth twice as much as the previous one, and three weeks ago moved again to a subdivision where residents said houses were selling for more than $150,000.

Johns, a bank employee for eight years, had not been seen since bank officials called him in for questioning Sept. 25, said Assistant District Attorney Richard Zadina.

Bank officers told Zadina they discovered "dummed-up invoices" involving loans to a nonexistent company, Superior Mattress Inc., he said.

Johns' work involved lending money to the bank's largest customers based on the customers' accounts receivable, Zadina said.

Johns issued loans Superior Mattress, using false invoices to validate the nonexistent company's accounts receivable, and the money went into Johns' account at another bank across the street, Zadina said.

But the scheme fell apart, the prosecutor said, when a clerk in the bank became suspicious when Johns told her not to press the mattress company on an overdue loan payment.

That is when Johns was called in by his superiors for questioning, said Zadina. He told the bank officials that he had to retrieve certain documents to explain the discrepancies, left the room and was not seen again, the prosecutor said.

"He even left his coat behind at his desk," Zadina said.

Johns' wife, Sharon, has refused comment and was reported by relatives to be "under heavy sedation" Friday night.

Striking bus drivers get firing threats

DALLAS (AP) — Amid threats of mass firings for striking transit workers, leaders of the four Dallas municipal employee associations have agreed to an unprecedented mass meeting Tuesday to talk about pay.

Strikes by public employees are illegal in Texas, but the bus workers voted in mid-week to stage "individual job actions" to protest their recent pay raise. The result was a crippled bus service, the city's only mass transportation system.

Officers of the four employee groups — representing firemen, policemen, the bus system employees and some city hall workers — met at the headquarters of the Dallas Police Association to agree on the Tuesday gathering.

"The main reason we are meeting is to discuss our common problems," said DPA President Dick Hickman. "We are all city employees and we are united in this effort."

About 600 transit system workers walked off the job Wednesday, according to their union officials, after deciding the city's 7-percent pay raise was not enough. The walkout snarled downtown traffic Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, leaving the city's bus riders stranded and forcing them to drive their cars to work.

Normally the city runs 404 buses a day. The best of the bus system has managed since the walkout was 62 buses on Thursday.

Friday's three-hour, closed door meeting involved Hickman, Dallas Professional Fire Fighters Association Vice President Robert Vaughn, Amalgamated Transit Union Local 1338 President B.J. Simmons and Gray McBride, business agent for the Dallas Public Employees Association.

Simmons said he welcomed the offers of support from the other employee groups and hoped the joint meeting would convince city council members to become more involved in the Dallas Transit System dispute.

"The city council members have an obligation to get up off their tails and see what the problem is," he said. "They need to find out why 600 or 700 transit workers are willing to give up their jobs in order to fight for a decent salary."

DTS managers resolved Friday to start firing employees who had not returned to work Sunday. DTS board chairman Ken Milligan said the bus system's work agreement permits dismissal of any employee taking part in a work stoppage who misses more than five consecutive days on the job.

"They haven't done anything and can't do anything that we haven't anticipated," said Simmons. "They've been saying they're going to fire us every day."

Meanwhile, the DTS board voted to place full-page advertisements in both Dallas newspapers Friday, denouncing the bus system workers for what the ads called an "illegal work stoppage" that is "neither a fair nor a rational approach" to the pay problem.

The ads cost $11,466, much to Milligan's surprise.

"Our intent is to try to get as much information to the public as possible and I'm glad we did it," he said, "but I doubt anyone had an idea how much it would be. We might have taken out a half-page ad had we known ..."

"It looks pretty bad, doesn't it?" countered Simmons. "Here the transit system says it doesn't have enough money to give pay raises, but then they've got $11,500 to run ads in the paper."

"Why couldn't they take this money and give it to the employees?"

One member of the transit system staff said the one-time expenditure wiped out nearly half the annual DTS advertising budget.

SAUDI ARABIA (AP) — An explosion spread poisonous gas through an oil rig on a Saudi Arabian island and killed 19 people, Saudi oil industry sources said Saturday. They blamed the explosion on a technical malfunction unrelated to the Iran-Iraq war raging about 150 miles away.

Sources in the giant Arabian American Oil Co. said the accident occurred Thursday on a tiny Persian Gulf island off the east coast of Saudi Arabia in an area known as As Safaniyah. They said most of the victims were Saudi oil workers.

As Safaniyah is 150 miles south of the disputed Shatt al-Arab waterway, site of heavy fighting in the 13-day war between Iran and Iraq.

A statement issued in Tulsa, Okla., by the Reading and Bates Co., which said it owns the rig, said Timothy Berry of Rayville, La., an American who worked as an assistant driller, was among the dead.

The company said the deaths were caused by poisonous hydrogen sulphide gas released in the blast.

The Saudi Petroleum Ministry declined to comment on the American report saying an official statement would be issued later.

The Aramco sources, who did not wish to be identified, said the blowout also caused a fire, which had been brought under control.

Reading and Bates said there had been no fire but the gas was hampering efforts to control the well. It added that experts, including oilwell firefighter Red Adair, had been dispatched to the island to cap the rig.

The rig itself apparently was not damaged by the blowout.

Equipment used in a duplicate bridge game.

By NANCY LORD
Lifestyle Writer

Bridge, a game of memory, concentration and skill, is as popular today as ever. Its attraction is especially big in Midland, with hundreds of players belonging to several clubs.

Some of these clubs include Newtimers Bridge Club, Oldtimers Bridge Club, Midland Country Club Bridge Club and Permian Basin Duplicate Bridge Club, which has over one hundred members. In addition, some of the senior citizen groups often play bridge.

There are basically two types of bridge—party and duplicate. In party bridge a new hand is dealt for every round, and much depends on luck in the way the cards fall. Duplicate bridge adds a new challenge by having players compete with all other players on the same hands.

To play duplicate bridge for points, a player must be a member of the American Contract Bridge League. Every serious duplicate bridge player's dream is to become a "Life Member" of the league through the accumulation of a certain number of points.

Many of the bridge clubs play at the Allison Bridge Center, named for the late Helon Y. Allison. Mrs. B. L. Crites, president of the board of directors of the Duplicate Bridge Club, said Mrs. Allison was instrumental in popularizing the game in Midland. Mrs. Allison was the first person in the Permian Basin to become a "Life Member" of the American Contract Bridge League.

Persons interested in learning to play bridge may take a course offered at Midland College with Joe Salzman as instructor. Classes are also taught at the Allison Bridge Center by Betty Dickerson and Tony Levin when there are enough interested students.

Mrs. V. V. McGrew sets up the "boards" for a game. She is scorekeeper.

Water samples testing continues for cholera source in League City

LEAGUE CITY, Texas (AP) — Health officials hope water samples taken from three area sewage treatment plants will determine the source of Galveston County's first recorded case of cholera.

Samples were taken this week from sewage treatment plants in League City, Friendswood and Nassau Bay. Officials said potable water supplies in the three communities have not been contaminated.

"With the tests, we should know Thursday if there is a form of cholera in any of the three sewer plants," said Dr. W. W. Kemmerer.

Meanwhile, signs warning residents not to use Clear Creek water were posted along the stream that cuts across the mainland section of this coastal community after officials reported Monday that a 3-month-old League City girl had contracted the sickness.

The child became ill Sept. 15 but recovered without being hospitalized, Kemmerer said.

He said he was unaware until Sunday night that a private laboratory in Houston had found cholera bacteria in a feces sample taken from the youngster. The sample was destroyed before officials determined if an epidemic form of cholera or a less dangerous type existed.

"We must find out where it came from," Kemmerer said. "We want to preclude it from going anywhere else."

Study says penicillin prevents newborn infection

By DANIEL Q. HANEY Associated Press Writer BOSTON (AP) — A shot of penicillin moments after birth will protect babies from dangerous strep infections, a new study says, but more research is needed to make sure the treatment would not make infants susceptible to germs that are resistant to the antibiotic.

and they can pass it on during birth. Among their children, 50 percent became carriers of the germ, compared with 12 percent of those who received penicillin.

In a study of 18,738 babies, doctors found that a penicillin injection will almost completely prevent infants from catching diseases caused by Group B streptococcus bacteria, the most common infections among newborn babies in the United States.

Strep infections can cause breathing disorders, shock, bleeding and meningitis in newborns.

But doctors who tested the new use of the versatile antibiotic say more studies are required to make sure the shot will not predispose babies to more dangerous diseases.

The strep germ, which has become increasingly common, caused death 50 percent of the time in some outbreaks. The incidence of the infection varies from place to place. In the Texas hospital where the study was done, the bacteria caused three or four illnesses among each 1,000 babies.

The study, conducted at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas by University of Texas doctors, was published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

In the first 25 months of the study, the researchers gave penicillin to half the babies born at the hospital. Of the 9,439 who took the drug, only one developed a streptococcal infection in the first three days of life.

Among the 9,299 who did not take penicillin, there were 12 cases of infection.

Almost 27 percent of the mothers carried the bacteria in their bodies,

Seminar to focus on sex discussion with children

A program for parents, "How to Talk to Your Child About Sex", is being sponsored by Permian Basin Planned Parenthood during National Family Sex Education Week next Sunday through Saturday.

Two separate two-hour programs will be held on Monday and Wednesday, 7 p.m. at the Odessa Clinic, 910-B South Grant. The program will be free. Registration is required by calling Planned Parenthood at 563-2530.

"This program is designed to provide parents with information and resources to help them be more knowledgeable and comfortable on the subject of sex education," said Kristen Boelter, director of information and education of Planned Parenthood.

"Since parents, consciously or unconsciously, are the sex educators of their children they need tools to carry out what most people regard as the parent's responsibility," she said.

Research has shown that although a majority of children want to talk with their parents about sex, most of them don't.

"Children benefit from talking with parents, but many keep important experiences and crucial questions to themselves," said Ms.

Boelter. "Parents often report that their own sex education was unsatisfactory, and their approach to sex education in the home is not what they would like it to be."

The program will include a brief lecture and discussion; a film and a review of educational materials.

"This program is designed to increase the tools and resources of the parents so that they can provide the information in conjunction with the moral values that they wish their children to have," said Ms. Boelter.

Cost of having and raising a child escalates since 1977

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raising a child now costs an average middle-income American family $85,000, according to a new report from the Population Reference Bureau.

The Washington-based population study organization said that would be the direct, out-of-pocket expense of seeing a child through birth, 18 years under the parental roof and four years at a public university.

For low-income families the total 1980 cost of having and raising a child was estimated at $58,000.

The study was prepared by Thomas J. Espenshade of the Urban Institute, updating a similar study he prepared in 1977.

Because of inflation, Espenshade reported that the cost of having and raising a child has escalated 33 percent from the $64,000 he then estimated for a middle-income family.

For low-income families, he said, the increase was 32 percent, from a 1977 figure of $44,000.

And that's not the end of the bad news. As Espenshade noted, his calculations make no provision for future inflation.

Thus, these figures "could not be used to gauge what parents could expect to spend on a child born in 1980. To be more realistic, these estimates should be adjusted for expected future inflation," Espenshade said.

In addition, he noted that these are only the direct expenditures made on the child. Also to be considered, he said, is the income the mother usually forgoes by reducing her labor force participation.

Adding this estimated lost income to the direct costs, Espenshade reported, "we obtain a total economic cost confronting American families in 1980 that varies on a per child basis from slightly more than $100,000 at the low-income level to nearly $140,000 for middle-income families."

Housing was the biggest component in the cost of raising children, followed by food and transportation.

For a typical family in the north central states, the cost of child raising (not including college) divided into 33.9 percent for housing, 24.6 percent for food, 16.5 percent for transportation, 7.8 percent for clothing, 5.1 percent to medical care and 1.4 percent for education with the remainder divided among a wide variety of costs.

In making his calculations, Espenshade assumed that a child would attend a public, state-supported university, not a private one.

According to the report, the West is the most expensive place to raise a child.

Espenshade calculated that it costs $79,215 for a moderate-income family to raise a child to age 18 in a rural, non-farm area of the west. This figure does not include the expense of child-birth or college costs. For a low-income family in this area the equivalent expense is $55,019.

By contrast, a moderate-income family in a rural section of the north central states faces expenses of $64,246 to raise a child to age 18, and it's

The rural non-farm costs in the South are $75,027 for moderate income and $43,056 for low-income and in the Northeast it's $77,952 for moderate income and $51,502 for low-income.

In cities the costs differ somewhat. For a low-income city family, the cost of raising a child to 18 is $43,312 in the Northeast, $47,068 in the South, $50,109 in the North Central states and $52,057 in the West.

For a moderate income family, the comparable figures are $68,898 in the North Central area, $72,878 Northeast, $74,568 in the South and $76,288 in the West.

Espenshade defines a low-income family as one with after-tax income of $14,000 to $18,000 a year and middle income as $22,500 to $27,500.

Government agencies don't define upper, middle and low-income categories. However, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates a family budget (spending, not income) for four persons to be $12,585 for low-income, $20,517 for intermediate and $30,317 for upper income.

Surgeons remove wire from man's heart

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Rex Henderson thought he had the flu when he came down with severe headaches, high fever and nausea. X-rays revealed his troubles were caused by a piece of wire imbedded in his heart.

Doctors say the 23-year-old brickmason's apprentice was lucky he didn't have a massive heart attack in the meantime. And they say he probably would have died if doctors hadn't shot him full of antibiotics for his "flu."

Henderson's ordeal began Aug. 13 as he was sweeping grass from the patio of his family's home. Nearby, his 16-year-old sister was pushing a power mower across the lawn.

As he crouched over, Henderson heard a noise like a gunshot coming from the mower and felt a sharp pain at the back of his arm.

"After it hit me, I went inside and cleaned up," he recalled. "Then I had to lie down. I had a bad headache and it was almost like I was in shock. It felt like I had been shot."

Henderson said he went to a Lima medical center to have X-rays taken of his arm, which had swelling from shoulder to elbow. The X-rays revealed nothing unusual, but doctors gave Henderson a large dose of antibiotics.

The swelling disappeared, but he began to get headaches and had a fever of 104 degrees.

"I told the doctor I hadn't been off the couch since the first day," said Henderson. "He said it was likely I had the flu and gave me another shot of antibiotics."

"I lost 15 pounds in two weeks. I didn't eat for 10 days and I had some chest pains," he said.

While visiting his mother — who was hospitalized for gall bladder surgery — several weeks later, Henderson had the family doctor give him a chest X-ray. A foreign object was spotted in the chest region.

He was admitted the same night and examined by five specialists who determined a wire of some kind was lodged in Henderson's heart and had been carried there from the vein of his arm.

Henderson was scheduled that night for open heart surgery at the Medical College of Ohio in Toledo.

"When I walked into the hospital and gave my name, the nurse's jaw dropped. From what Lima had told them about my case, they were expecting me to come in on a stretcher," he said.

During a five-hour operation, surgeons removed an inch-long piece of copper wire "as big around as a pencil lead."

Doctors said they were amazed Henderson hadn't suffered a massive heart attack days earlier.

Mr. Ray and Audrey Childress receive mail from many who have been convinced by their interesting presentations that sewing can be a successful experience. I never dreamed that fitting was anymore than taking in or letting out a seam until you made it scientific. I learned more about my figure in three hours than I've known in a lifetime. The only Sewing Show I've seen that I can easily put into practice after I got home - and it works because you made me so aware. There are so few fitting problems with your pants, I actually wore my first pair. I now make all my pants from your pattern and never try on anymore. I've learned to design all new waist-bands I see from your marvelous waistline teachings. I wish you both lived next door. My friends are so envious of my professional sewing since learning your fabulous common sense methods. I can't imagine where you've been all my sewing life. I could never express enough gratitude for making my sewing a better experience after 22 years of my hit and miss ways. Commercial patterns are great, but you make it a joy. Oct. 16 marks the official termination of Planned Parenthood's fund raising campaign which began on Aug. 15. The results of this campaign will be announced at this meeting by Margaret Chappell, president of the board of directors for Planned Parenthood.

Planned Parenthood entered its first major fund raising drive due to recent federal and state financial cutbacks. This agency is attempting to raise $95,000 for 1981 in order to continue providing health care services to local residents. Many low-income women in the Permian Basin receive no medical care except for the services which Planned Parenthood provides.

As of Sept. 26, Planned Parenthood had reached over $28,000 of its $95,000 goal. A group has been formed called "Friends of Planned Parenthood" in Odessa. This group endorses Planned Parenthood as a needed health agency.

The group members are Mary Anderson, President of Church Women United; Bob Bryant, Mayor of Odessa; Richard Abalos, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Perry, Frank Childs, Bill Elms, Mrs. Bryan Henderson, Margaret Burton, Wesley M. Hardin, Mrs. Robert B. Cox, Mrs. Bill Quillen, Mrs. J.L. Barnett Jr., Tom Poole, Gem Meacham, Mary Hope Armstrong, Waleed Saleh, M.D., Kirby J. Tatum, M.D., John E. Bauman, M.D., Dr. and Mrs. T.S. McIntire and Bob Chappell, M.D.

Services provided by Planned Parenthood include physical examination, birth control education and provision, cancer screening, pregnancy testing, venereal disease screening, counseling on all areas of family planning and educational materials and programs. Women also receive information on nutrition, dental care and referrals to other service agencies in the local areas. The examinations are done by local doctors and nurse practitioners.

Planned Parenthood has clinics in Odessa, Midland, Big Spring, Lamesa, McCamey, Seminole, Ft. Stockton, Andrews, Wink, Monahans and Pecos.

AT WIT'S END

The Ma Bell blues

By ERMA BOMBECK

We got our phone bill this month and if one more of our kids "reaches out and touches somebody" they're going to bring back a broken hand.

The phone company ads make phoning look like such a pleasurable experience. Grandma and Granddad are both poised over the receiver listening to their grandchild burp. An entire band is jammed in a phone booth calling the tuba player who had to stay at home with his lip in a cast, and college friends call coast to coast with tears in their eyes to describe a Western sunset. Maybe it used to be that way. But that was before Grandma and Granddad realized the burp cost them $9.12. It was before the band cashed in their airline tickets to make the call. Before the friend realized it was cheaper to take a bus out to see the sunset than to talk about it.

All I know is telephoning long distance at our house has become as much fun as an anxiety attack. I appear with subtle reminders: a watch, a timer and a calendar with the date circled. My husband grumbles, "Let's give him back to his natural mother... Ma Bell!" While a voice from the extension breathes heavily and keeps repeating, "Get off the phone. I'm expecting an important call."

Our phone bill has prompted me to put together a set of rules for placing long distance calls in the future.

Before placing the call, go to the bathroom. Blow your nose and get a drink of water. Read the weather report of the town you are calling to eliminate "What's the weather like?"

Figure out the time zone to conserve conversation on "What time is it there?"

Fight with brother before dialing.

Don't play games like "Guess who this is?" Place pencil and paper next to phone and put dog outside.

Put note on door saying, "I am on phone. Come back later."

Place call. Laughter costs dollars. Save it until you're off the phone.

Don't repeat. If someone says, "I love you" there is no need to say, "I love you too." A simple "Ditto" will do it.

Animals and babies are a waste of time on the phone. They never bark/laugh/talk/sing anyway until they hear the dial tone.

I gave my son the rules and suggested he not call so much, but start writing letters.

Last night I heard him reading a letter over the phone.

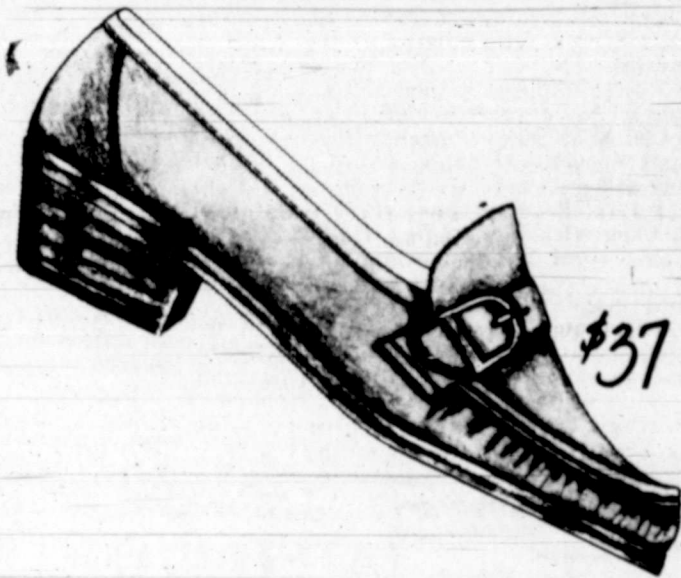

It's my fault. I should have told him he had to mail it.

The programs, which are also sponsored by Educational Testing Service and World Book-Child Craft International, Inc., will also be held in Canyon Oct. 13 at West Texas State University and in El Paso Oct. 16 at the Public School Administrative Office from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Teachers, counselors, school administrators and parents from public, private and parochial schools are encouraged to attend.

"The decade of the eighties," says Hester Herbster, president of the Texas PTA, "will find parents re-examining their roles as the child's first and most important teacher and becoming more directly involved in the educational process." A recent Gallup Poll even predicts that "the next great advance in education will come when parents and teachers work as a team."

Dr. Keith Osborn, keynote speaker for the Canyon and Midland conferences will address the group on the role of the parent in education during the 1980's. Currently a professor of elementary education at the University of Georgia, Osborn formerly served as the first national director of Head Start and was a member of the planning committee for the popular TV series "Sesame Street". He has written numerous articles for parents and professional journals on innovative programs for early childhood education and on the effects of TV violence on children.

What types of experiences can parents provide their children to motivate them to succeed in school? How can the results of standardized tests be useful to the individual child? What are some of the issues in education today which directly or indirectly can affect the quality of education the child receives? These and other questions will be addressed in group sessions designed to inform parents and professional educators on issues concerning parents.

Presenting workshops in these areas will be Dr. Val Flores, with the educational Testing Service; Jeanne Lewis, Texas PTA membership chairman; Mickey Hall, Texas PTA Region I vice president; Clifford Schmidt, Texas PTA Region II vice president; Mary Tiffin, Texas PTA recording secretary; Alvis Bentley, executive director, Texas PTA; Colene Bohn, program director, Texas PTA; and Deanna Scott, educational consultant for World Book-Child Craft International, Inc.

District presidents participating in the conference include Mrs. Garland Howard, District 8; Mrs. Gains Temple, District 14; Mrs. John Lynch, District 15; and Mrs. Charles Pruitt, District 17.

Rebuking statements that the parent doesn't care about the child's education, the PTA, at both state and local levels is actively working to inform the public of opportunities for parents who DO care about education in the 80's.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Preserve bath soap with box

DEAR HELOISE: I keep a bar of bath soap in a soap dish one would normally use when traveling (a box type with a lid that you can close when not in use).

Our family showers more than we tub bathe, and as a result, the shower water would melt away the bar of soap in almost no time, and would create an abundance of soap scum on both tub and tub.

With this type of soap dish, you can keep it closed whenever possible, yet handy and out of the water's reach. The soap lasts much longer and, best of all — no mess!

Just want to take this opportunity to thank you for your fantastic column. I can't remember how many times I've sent silent blessings your way. Whenever I'm in a "jam," your hints are always there to save the day! — Mrs. Barbara Calise

Oh! Bless you for those bodaciously kind words! And for a super, nifty hint! Those who dislike melted soap as much as I do, are gonna love you for this little slick trick! And...so do I! — Hugs, Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT DEAR HELOISE: If we have to get even with someone, get even with someone who did something nice for us! — A.H.

DEAR HELOISE: Fishermen's plastic limp nylon fishing line is a must in the house (comes in rolls). I use it to hang cut glass ornaments, Christmas ornaments, plants (depending on weight) wind chimes, etc.

Can't even see those lovely things suspended... — Mrs. Dorothy Nichols.

DEAR HELOISE: Will you please remind folks who do hand sewing to avoid "parking" their needle in the spool of thread? Pushing the needle through the threads will weaken or break the strands in the thread throughout the spool.

Instead, push a very short pencil into the spool, then you can use the eraser as a miniature pin cushion. — Ardella

DEAR HELOISE: Make the warmest mittens ever out of those 'sad' wool sweaters which are unwearable after we were careless and washed them in water which was too hot.

The nicest ones can be cut out of the sleeves, using the ends of the sleeves as cuffs for the mittens.

I use tiny round elastic to thread through the wrist part if needed. Several good pairs can be made out of one sweater. — Beth Wagner

DEAR HELOISE: If you save the margarine and butter wrappers (I keep them in the butter tray in the refrigerator) they usually have just enough butter to grease a pan, or butter a potato for baking, etc.

And, you don't have to get your fingers all greasy doing it. — Mary Hagberg

DEAR HELOISE: A thoughtful gift to welcome someone new in town is a personalized map of the city.

Mark the schools, churches, shopping malls and supermarkets on the map which are in their area. Tie a ribbon around the map and it makes a nice little gift — welcome, too. — Charlene Lenz

THIS COLUMN is written for you...the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise in care of this newspaper. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Eight more suspected cases of St. Louis encephalitic reported

HOUSTON (AP) — Health officials say they are optimistic Harris County's outbreak of St. Louis encephalitis is on the "downhill slide."

"In previous outbreaks, the arrival of cooler weather has brought a sharp decline in cases," said Dr. Robert A. MacLean, acting director of the Houston Health Department. "I think we're definitely on the downhill slide."

MacLean's remarks came after county health officials reported Thursday that eight more people are suspected of contracting the mosquito-transmitted virus.

All eight, ranging from ages 17 to 88, were hospitalized last month for treatment of headaches, fever, stiff necks, muscle weakness and nausea and then released, officials said.

Twenty-nine confirmed cases and 24 suspected cases have been reported since May by county health officials. One person has died of the illness, and another is believed to have been killed by the virus.

FDA warns of using chemical for arthritis treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government this week warned consumers against buying industrial-strength DMSO, a controversial chemical now sold on street corners and at some gasoline stations, for treating arthritis, bursitis or other ailments at home. Although another variety of DMSO is approved by the Food and Drug Administration for use in animals and in treatment of one rare human disease, FDA has not found it safe or effective for arthritis or bursitis. James W. Swanson, FDA regional director in Seattle, said the agency can't vouch for the purity or quality of the DMSO being sold in these unusual settings, for it has not yet tested as an approved drug would be. The effects of using industrial-grade DMSO, which is generally stronger than the variety used in approved treatments, is unclear. But FDA has received reports about chemical use of the chemical in irritation-type burns associated with concentrated DMSO. Side effects found to occur with tests include nausea, headaches and skin rash.

"See what's behind the Green Door"

Helping Hands child help program expands to all elementary schools

It happens all the time. A child walking home from school encounters a large dog who is showing signs of threatening attack. What does he do? Help may or may not be available, but if he sees a Helping Hand poster, then he knows he can get assistance. The Helping Hands Program, initiated by the Parent Teacher Associations in conjunction with the Midland Crime Prevention Unit, gives a child an opportunity to get help while en route to or from school. This may involve situations where he encounters this problem with large dogs, bullies, sudden illness, accident, or if he is lost. And, in particular, if he should encounter an alarming stranger and/or a frightening situation. The poster is an illustration of a green hand displayed in a home or business window and is the symbol adopted by the Midland Crime Prevention Unit. People involved in the Helping Hands Program volunteer to serve as additional eyes for the local law enforcement agencies. "With the increase in the Midland city population and the influx of families with children unfamiliar to the area, local citizens need to rely on each other for the protection of their children," said Judy Cummins, Helping Hands chairman. Co-chairman is Jackie Hamilton. "This is especially true because of the increase in reported incidents of indecent exposure in and around the schools," said Mrs. Cummins. Last year, seven of the 19 Midland elementary schools participated in the program, and this year all of the schools are participating. The Midland Crime Prevention Unit and the City Council PTA want to initiate a Helping Hands Program in all 19 elementary schools, said Mrs. Cummins. A committee has been formed to coordinate a citywide effort in the schools and community to assist in providing a safer environment for the children. This committee will serve as a coordinating unit for the local PTA's in order to accomplish the citywide Helping Hands Program goals. The signs are being donated to the Midland Independent School District by the Downtown Lions Club. Roy Gwyne has done the printing. The do's and don'ts for volunteers of Helping Hands will be printed on the back of the sign in both English and Spanish. Sgt. Lalo Camarillo and Officer Robert Barnes of the Crime Prevention Unit, and Office Joe Ortiz of the Traffic Division show the film, "Dangerous Strangers," to students and explain the Helping Hand program to them before the posters are sent home to the parents. Persons interested in volunteering assistance in this program should call their neighborhood school for more information.

DEAR ABBY

No sailing into sunset with 'someday' man

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Six months ago I met a lovely gentleman while traveling with a tour group through Europe. He is 65 and I am 63. I've been a widow for a number of years, and he lost his wife a year ago. All our waking hours were spent together, so consequently we came to know each other very well during those months. We discovered that we had just about everything in common and loved being together. Neither of us believes in a "spend-the-night" relationship, yet the chemistry between us is unmistakably electric. So what do I do with a man who says he loves me, but prefaces every remark about marriage with a "maybe, someday, when and if"? Abby, I care deeply for this man and he says he loves me, yet here we are, two lonely people with so much to give each other, while I'm in my house, and he's in his. His concern with the calendar and making sure a proper length of time elapses before he remarries astounds me. How many years does he need? And how much time do we have left? Sometimes I think I'm wasting my time on this "someday" man, and I should try to make a new life for myself while I'm still attractive enough to find someone who could fill this lonely void in my life. What do you suggest?—LIVING ON PROMISES DEAR LIVING: Come Thanksgiving, talk turkey and let him know that all you want for Christmas is a little gold ring. And if this man who says he "loves" you isn't ready to make a commitment, tell him it was nice knowing him—then book another tour. DEAR ABBY: I'm 28, recently married to a man who is 51. OK, so there is a rather "ugly" (to some people) story behind this. I went to work for him two years ago. We fell in love. He was married, but I did NOT break up his marriage. It was a marriage in name only for several years, but he saw no reason to get a divorce until after he met me. I will give him credit for being honest. He didn't ask me to sneak around and see him for an hour in hotel rooms. He simply told his wife he wanted his freedom, paid her off, and that was it. The day his divorce was final we were married. So what's my problem? He has a 24-year-old daughter who hates my guts. This little snip calls me "Mom" every chance she gets when others are present. Abby, I am only four years older than she, and she calls me "Mom" just to make me seem older. I find this very irritating. I'd like your opinion.—IRKED DEAR IRKED: If I were you, I'd settle for "Mom."

Causes of reactions cited by authors

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Some people can drink wine only when no cats are present. At least, that's what allergist Dr. Alfred Zamm and Robert Gannon, associated professor of English at Penn State, claims in their book, "Why Your House May Endanger Your Health."

The reason: a person allergic to cats may react only when "triggered" by a mold-based beverage, like wine or beer.

Among other possibly unsuspected situations that could cause allergies they discuss:

Allergic to house dust? The tiny house dust mite may be the thing that's giving you trouble. The dust in most homes contains the microscopic arthropod, and it's often the culprit in causing allergic sniffles.

You may be suffering from the "moody mother syndrome" and not even know it. That's a sensitivity to gas from a cooking range which, say the authors, often causes kitchen-air pollution worse than a California smog.

BEEBE-YOUNG

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Leon Beebe of Midland announce the engagement of their daughter, Rhonda Gail Beebe, of 3329 W. Wadley No. 6, Midland, to Rodney Jarrell Young, Jr., of 2700 N. Midland Drive No. 805.

The bridegroom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jarrell Young of Abilene.

The couple will exchange wedding vows at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 1 in the First Baptist Church chapel here.

The bride-elect attended Texas Tech University. She is employed by Core Laboratories, Inc.

Her fiancé also attended Texas Tech University. He is employed by Flintkote Supply Co.

DINSMOOR-ROOP

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Dinsmoor, 2000 Seaboard, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lacy Dinsmoor to Clarence David Roop, both of Breckenridge.

The bridegroom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald W. Parks of Cisco.

The couple will exchange wedding vows at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 1 at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity.

The bride-elect is a 1975 graduate of Midland High School and has attended Southwestern Oklahoma State University and Texas Tech. She is employed by R. E. Dye Mfg. Corp. in Breckenridge.

Her fiancé is a 1970 graduate of Cisco High School. He has a B.S. in wildlife and fisheries science from Texas A&M University. He is also employed by R. E. Dye Mfg. Corp.

School volunteer workshop set

Preparing for the Volunteers in Public School (VIPS) training workshop Wednesday at Midland Theatre are, from left, Dorris Redfern, co-chairman; Glenda Pruitt and Nancy Watts, co-chairman. They will participate in a skit. The workshop is from 9 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. and is hosted by the Commercial Bank and Trust Co. Featured speaker will be Dr. Alvin Granowski, nationally recognized reading specialist who will discuss "Back to Basics." The public is invited. Workshops for volunteers will follow Dr. Granowski's address. (Staff photo by Brian Hendershot)

VIPS continues to grow in Midland. The Volunteers in Public Schools (VIPS) program will hold its fall volunteer workshop Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. at the Midland Theatre, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

Keynote speaker will be Dr. Alvin Granowski, nationally known reading consultant. He will speak on "Back to Basics."

The event is being sponsored by Commercial Bank & Trust Co., VIPS and the Midland Independent School District administration. It is open to all Midland school parents and interested citizens. Persons not participating in the workshop are also welcome to hear Dr. Granowski's speech.

Schedule will include registration and coffee at 9 a.m.; Dr. Graowski's speech at 9:30 a.m., a choice of four volunteer workshops at 10:30 a.m. and a closing session at 11:15 a.m. with a skit presented on the theme, "VIPS tips on being a successful volunteer."

A prize of $25 will be awarded to the PTA with the best attendance. McDonald's is giving coupons for free apple pie to "lucky" workshop participants.

These participants will have a choice of attending four workshops on being a volunteer in the classroom, library and office; Carver—Head Start program; Partners in Reading program; and SPARK program.

VIPS is a major project of the Midland City Council PTA, which encourages participants to grow by learning to better understand the schools; by sharing their talents; increasing their understanding of young people; and learning new skills.

Primary goal of VIPS is to improve the quality of education in Midland's public schools by increasing citizen interest and involvement.

This workshop is being held in conjunction with Midland Public School Week. Persons interested in the VIPS program of volunteering in the schools can contact their neighborhood for more information.

Where have all the Waves gone?

NATCHITOCHEs, La. (AP) — In the dark days of World War II, more than 700 Navy officers safe on the beaches suddenly found themselves sent to the cruel sea — displaced by officers in skirts.

The women were called WAVES, short for Women Accepted for Voluntary Emergency Service. It was 1943. They wore snappy blue uniforms with perky little hats, and they were as bright as new pennies.

At that time, war and the Navy made for a dramatic change in a young woman's lifestyle.

Now, a couple of one-time lieutenants junior grade who were in that first WAVES class, Carol Wells and Deanie Johnson, want to locate the other 774 for a study.

"We want to assess the impact of naval training, the war, and trace the different course our lives took because of that strange thing," Mrs. Wells says.

"We think we are healthier and smarter and what not. We think we benefited. But there is no telling," she says.

The Navy was no help to the two women. It said it had no idea where all those WAVES went after the war.

"Furthermore, the Navy is not a bit interested. The women came when they were needed, then they went out, and that ended that," says Mrs. Wells, now an assistant archivist at the Northeast Louisiana University library.

So, like mice nibbling into a big cheese, they started with 12 of the 776 names and thus far have located 170.

"We wrote to the 12 and asked them who they know from the class, then we wrote to the new names and asked them who they know," Mrs. Wells says. "It keeps expanding."

"The problem is," she says, "there will be little pockets of friendship around that we won't get a handle on and that we may never find unless they contact us."

She and Deanie Johnson, now a member of the NLU sociology department, have a social survey in mind — but it depends on whether they can find most of the 776 women still living, and also whether they locate a foundation willing to finance the research.

So far, the Pericles Foundation Award Committee for the Society for the Study of Social Problems, in Buffalo, N.Y., has chipped in with $500. NLU has put in another $500.

It's possible to encroach on a roach

Certain species of cockroaches produce as many as 400,000 offspring in a one-year life span. Scientists estimate that if all young cockroaches born within a two-year time span lived, their weight would outweigh the planet Earth.

"Not reassuring thoughts for the homeowner or apartment dweller plagued by these prolific breeders," says Tom Tuttle, Entomology Section Manager of the Johnson Wax Biology Center. "Most recent statistics indicate that Americans spend over $322 million a year trying to combat household pests. An additional $514 million is spent on professional exterminating services by people whose insect problems have reached epidemic proportions."

Tuttle reports that people who take a preventive approach are the ones most likely to win the battle against household pests. Insects are attracted by food spills, crumbs, dark, dusty corners and accumulated dirt, litter and moisture. A regular housecleaning routine and immediate attention to unexpected spills or dirt are essential to insect control.

Many insects enter a home through cracks in foundations and cracks and crevices around windows and doors. Calk all cracks and be sure doors and windows are tight-fitting and screens are in good repair.

Regular use of quality insecticides is another important step in controlling insect infestation. "Consumers should marshal the various insecticides available to them — both the quick-killing knockdown sprays and long-acting residuals — into a carefully executed game plan," says Tuttle.

Knockdown insecticides quickly penetrate an insect's body and literally stop bugs in their tracks. Knockdowns come in two types: airborne, dispensed into the air to kill flying insects on contact; and direct spray for eliminating crawling insects.

Residual insecticides are equally effective in eliminating household pests but unlike knockdown sprays, they are not generally formulated to kill insects instantly. Long-acting residuals may remain effective for 60 days or longer. When sprayed directly into areas where roaches hide and breed, they continue to kill new insects as they emerge from the egg capsules.

Many consumers enjoy the thrill of the chase which lets them utilize quick-killing knockdown sprays. They want action products which eliminate pests quickly and easily. But to check home roach problems and keep them under control, Tuttle advises attacking roaches in their hiding places as well.

Long acting sprays which can reach behind baseboards and dishwashers and under refrigerators — all of the out-of-the-way places roaches live and breed — are the consumer's ultimate weapon in the household insect war, says Tuttle. "Crack & Crevice Spray," developed by Johnson Wax chemists, is a residual insecticide with a unique wand delivery system that enables consumers to insert insecticide solution directly into hard-to-reach places. The solution foams to coat the surfaces where roaches crawl and continues to kill roaches for 60 days.

Setting up a home game plan for controlling roach infestations is the best prevention against pests. Tuttle recommends the following steps:

- Use insecticides, both quick-killing knockdown sprays and foaming, residual sprays.
- Don't make your home inviting for uninvited guests. Regular housecleaning and home repair will cut down on insect infestation.
- Empty garbage daily; spray trash cans for extra protection.
- Don't let newspapers and magazines collect in house or basement. They provide the kind of dark hiding places roaches prefer.
- Dust and vacuum regularly. Sweep kitchen floor after each meal or at least once a day.
- Transfer grains and flour to tight-sealing containers for storage.

Economy: A new kind of mental anguish

By JANE SEE WHITE
Associated Press Writer

A middle-aged, unemployed Detroit chemical worker reached a point where he couldn't look his wife in the eye. Every time he did, he said, he burst into tears.

These ARE just two of the cases cited by beleaguered mental health workers around the country who report a growing mini-epidemic of depression, alcoholism and family violence.

As they did in a similar Associated Press survey three months ago, mental health officials lay much of the blame on the continuing strain of dealing with inflation, recession and unemployment.

"Historically, when financial conditions from a national perspective are tighter, we will witness an increased incidence of breakdown," said David Turkot, an Atlanta psychologist.

Wholesale price figures released Friday marked the first drop in that economic barometer in 4 1/2 years, although the Labor Department said the 0.2 percent drop would have been a 0.4 percent increase had the index not included a new factor never used before.

AUGUST'S Consumer Price Index had prices 12.8 percent higher than a year ago, and bank prime interest rates skipped higher this past week, which eventually will make loans prohibitively expensive to many consumers.

In addition, the national unemployment rate is now 7.5 percent. That's 8 million Americans out of work.

"Three out of five people who come to us for help are unemployed. Our volume is up 25 to 35 percent," said Judson Stone, director of the Six Area Coalition Mental Health Center in Lincoln Park, Mich.

"We use unemployment insurance figures for our statistics and they've been so overloaded there with new applicants that they can't get the numbers to us," he explained.

IN BALTIMORE, unemployment was 8.6 percent in August. A month later, 26,200 people there applied for 75 Social Security jobs.

"It is a desperate picture," said Phyllis Diggs, director of the North Baltimore Mental Health Center. She said 15 to 20 percent more people are seeking the center's help this year than last.

"It's been increasing steadily for the last five or six months," she said. "The way it comes out is in more depression, heavy drinking and some family violence."

None of this surprises Thomas Cottle, a sociologist and psychologist at Harvard Medical School who has studied unemployment's emotional impact for 15 years. Cottle calls unemployment "a killer disease."

"In our culture, working is close to the center of life. Our culture teaches that if you don't work in an acceptable way, then you're supposed to be depressed," Cottle said.

"And when job loss lasts... a million symptoms show — tooth decay, kidney failure, alcoholism, sexual infertility."

Man to row solo across the Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Photographer Peter Bird, who has already rowed across the Atlantic Ocean, has started out in an attempt to become the first man to row solo across the Pacific.

Bird, 33, of London, left in the bright orange Britannia II and said he expected the 8,500-mile trip to take him a year. Bird said he would live on dehydrated food and fish and would have radio contact with the outside world only twice a month.

"My plan is to go through the Golden Gate and turn left," he told well-wishers who gathered to see him off.

ROAD TO WEALTH

A good deal of our tax money is used for roads. If the road funds are used wisely, it is money well spent. Communities and even empires can rise and fall on the basis of their roads. Roads carry the lifeblood of humanity, and have human qualities such as arteries and lifelines ascribed to them. Even when civilizations die, their roads may endure. This is certainly true of Roman and Inca roads.

What has this dissertation to do with real estate? Just this — roads (especially highways) increase the value of land in its path. Just as population pressure can create the need for roads, new roads can pave the way for population increases. This, in turn, increases the demand (and the price) of property.

When buying raw land as an investment, take a hard look at available roads and planned highways. It has often been said that if investors just followed the route of proposed freeways in this country, and bought properly-priced future freeway frontage close to population centers, they could make a great deal of money.

If you have any questions on this subject or any other aspect of real estate, feel free to phone or drop in at DON HARVEY Realtors 702 Andrews Hwy. Phone 683-5333. We're here to help! Come in for your free copy of "Home for Living" magazine.

Plan for aliens hinges on visas

By SALLY CARPENTER
Associated Press Writer

Discounting confusion about just which version of a plan Ronald Reagan advocates for dealing with illegal aliens, a Texas Hispanic leader says Reagan's proposal could encourage even more Mexican aliens to cross the border.

Reagan, during a campaign swing through South Texas recently, told primarily Mexican-American audiences in San Antonio and Harlingen that he advocates Gov. Bill Clements' plan for issuing visas to illegal aliens.

However, Clements' plan and Reagan's comments in Texas differ on a key facet — the length of time that an illegal alien would be allowed to remain in the United States on a work visa.

Reagan told a Texas audience: "You document the undocumented workers and let them come in here with a visa — to come here and be a part of it for whatever length of time they want to stay."

In his remarks, Reagan failed to mention that Clements' plan is for renewable, not permanent, work visas. Clements wants to issue permits for three months to a year, after which workers would have to return to Mexico to renew their visas.

The omission caused a minor flap and some confusion, and Clements, who talked to Reagan when he arrived in Texas, later said he didn't believe Reagan meant to say the aliens could stay in the United States without renewed visas.

Jon Ford, a press aide to Clements, says Clements does not feel there is any conflict between Reagan and him on the issue. Ford noted that before Reagan made his South Texas swing, the GOP standard-bearer and Clements discussed the proposal.

However, at a Washington, D.C. news conference earlier this summer Reagan was asked whether he favored allowing an unlimited number of Mexicans to work in the United States on an open-ended basis.

He answered: "I think that this is one of the subjects that will come up if the governments (of Mexico and the United States) go forward with the recommendation made by the four border-state governors along with their counterparts in six Mexican states along the border to the government — for the State Department — for our government to negotiate something that would be mutually beneficial to the Mexican government."

Mark Heckmann, a spokesman for the Texas Reagan campaign, was asked to explain the confusion between what Reagan said in Texas and what Clements says Reagan meant to say. Heckmann said, "My only source on that is what Gov. Clements has said." But he added, "Maybe the statement (by Reagan) wasn't as clear as it could have been."

Regardless of the confusion, Ruben Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, contends it makes little difference whether the workers are issued permanent or temporary visas.

Bonilla called any visa system "unacceptable and unrealistic." "In dealing with the undocumented workers issue, any form of temporary program will simply increase the flow of undocumented workers into America. In addition to the entry of government-sanctioned immigration caused by the visa permits outlined by Reagan, we'll still have the illegal flow," Bonilla said from LULAC's national headquarters in Corpus Christi, Texas.

William J. Chambers, Immigration and Naturalization Service district director in Dallas, said contract labor programs have been tried in the past, with mixed results.

"There are some provisions in the present law for people to come in on a temporary basis to work. It's not used that much, partly because it's a complicated procedure," he said.

Bonilla said he favors a "more progressive" amnesty program than proposed by either the Republicans or Democrats, and one that differentiates between families and seasonal workers who have no intention of remaining in the United States permanently.

Migratory workers should be allowed to stay for the period they desire, but should not be allowed to return to the United States "under some kind of contractual labor program," Bonilla added.

But Chambers said most of the millions of aliens in the United States are leaving their families in Mexico. "Practically all of them do return to Mexico after working for a period of time, to visit their families and friends and return again," he said.

Most Mexican aliens are coming to the United States for jobs, and many are working in construction or restaurants, he said.

Chambers said, "In order to begin to control it... the attraction (of jobs) must be taken from them, in the form of removing the availability of jobs to them."

All parties agree that the root of the problem lies in Mexico. "I do not favor an open border, but a liberal amnesty program for those already here with a strong emphasis on bilateral trade as a long-term solution to immigration. There is no short-term remedy and neither Reagan nor (President) Carter can come up with such a plan," Bonilla said.

In his Harlingen text, Reagan did say the "ultimate solution" would be to help Mexico create an "agricultural and industrial base that offers better opportunities for all the Mexican people."

And Chambers, noting that "there is a tremendous unemployment situation in Mexico," said "the ideal thing would be to improve their situation there, so they wouldn't have the need to come here."

But until Mexico's problems are solved, the United States remains saddled with a "tremendous" alien problem, Chambers said.

"The fact remains that there are extremely large numbers of people in our country that are not of legal status."

Students awarded scholarships

Permian Honor Scholarships have been awarded to three Midland students at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin for the 1980-81 academic year. Former Midland College students Marita A. Mercurio, Robin Newsum and Lynn Sellars were chosen as scholarship recipients.

The scholarships, available to students in the top 25 percent of their high school graduating class, allow students to attend the Permian Basin community college of their choice and continue bachelor degree studies at UTPB.

The program allows businesses to sponsor a student at $300 per year for two years. Another business agrees to sponsor the same student for two years for a similar amount at UTPB.

The scholarships are part of the Permian Merit Scholarship Foundations, Inc., which is headed by J. Conrad Dunagan of Monahans.

Each year the foundation awards more than 40 scholarships to area community college and university students.

Town built from old military base

KINROSS, Mich. (AP) — Kincheloe Air Force Base looked as if it had been hit by nerve gas. Barracks were silent. Cavernous hangars stood empty. Pencils and half-written orders littered deserted desks.

Built in 1941 to protect the nearby Soo Locks during World War II, the base outlived its usefulness and three years ago was closed.

Seven hundred civilian jobs vanished, along with support business for the base's 10,000 residents. It seemed the last nail in the economic coffin of an already depressed area in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

But the gloom has given way to a glow of economic promise. A minimum-security state prison has moved in, providing jobs for 300. The hangars have been converted into a bustling industrial park. A California development firm is touting "Woodside," a 1,200-house project created from the old Kincheloe officers' quarters.

by 1985, 5,000 people will live here, 2,000 of them with jobs created since the Air Force left.

"You're going to have a new community rising out of this rubble," said Risik. "I don't know what it will be called, or if it will be a city, village or chartered township, but there will be a new creation here."

New Town, or whatever its shapers decide to call the community 18 miles south of Sault Ste. Marie and the Canadian border, has no small number of built-in advantages.

THE BASE AIRPORT, now known as the Chippewa County International Airport, has a 300-foot-wide runway 3,500 feet longer than the main runway at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport. The 4,000-acre abandoned base boasts two elementary schools, a modern sewer plant and 29 miles of paved roads. And it's all paid for.

"When it's created, this will be a debt-free community," Risik said. "There will be no debt retirement to worry about."

The 1,000 people living here — both old and new residents — don't seem bothered by the Kinross Correctional Facility, the sprawling minimum-security prison established here after the Air Force left. Two developers even want the state to expand it.

"We answer people's questions, if they ask," said James Nevis, a Monterey, Calif., developer and a partner in Woodside. "We have to answer those questions. The prison is here and the signs are everywhere."

His partner, Charles Lunt Jr., said a bigger facility would mean more jobs and more local business.

"The inmates there are at the end of their terms and they're not a problem," said Lunt. "And if they enlarge, we have more guards, more support business and the prospect of selling more houses."

NEVIS AND LUNT ARE running a slick advertising campaign to sell Woodside. An eight-page color tabloid insert for major Midwest newspapers describes the homes, at prices from $16,900 to $55,000, and highlights the area's physical beauty and nearby tourist attractions, such as Mackinac Island.

"We're trying to do the things that will get people here, like clear cross-country ski trails and build bicycle motocross trails for kids," said Nevis. "We think there are a lot of people who want to leave the cities — if they have a job."

Jobs — critically needed in a county with an unemployment rate of 15.8 percent — are coming. More than 900 people are working at the industrial park, due to efforts by the county board and Economic Development Commission.

"Our incentives can't be beaten," said EDC president Michael McCarthy. "We offer a 50 percent tax abatement over 12 years, low interest loans and developed land at a lease cost of 10 cents a square foot, compared to $2 a foot in large, metropolitan industrial parks."

"But we had to overcome the silly myth that the Upper Peninsula isn't fit for manufacturing," he added. "(We've) shown these people that we're close to rail lines and major highways. And we have a tax rate of 28.5 mills, compared with 75 or 100 in large industrial parks."

CLARENCE WARD, VICE president of Olofsson Fabrication Services Inc., said he had expected to employ 15 people in his steel fabrication plant by the end of his first year.

Court rules against appeal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court ruled Houston had no standing to appeal a $130.6 million rate increase granted by the Public Utility Commission in 1978.

Houston Lighting & Power received the increase for areas outside city limits.

A district court and the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals here both said the city could not appeal the decision, and the Supreme Court agreed in a two-sentence ruling.

The courts said that even though Houston was an intervenor in the rate case before the PUC, it had no "justiciable interest" because the rates applied only outside its city limits.

The appeals court also said a PUC decision by those showing a "special injury" from a rate increase, beyond what any member of the general public would suffer.

But the Supreme Court left that issue for another case, saying its action in Houston's case was not to be interpreted as either approving or disapproving what the appeals court had said.

THE PHOENIX HASN'T risen from the ashes, but it's certainly flapping its wings.

"Who could expect that a community on the northern tier of this country, within a period of three years, would completely replace 700 jobs and fill all the existing buildings on that base?" asked Wallace Bishop Jr., a regional director of the Office of Economic Adjustment, a federal program that helps communities survive military base closures or personnel cutbacks at defense plants.

Robert Risik remembers the first day he came to Kincheloe.

Then city manager of the small tourist town of Manistique, Mich., Risik, 31, was offered the job as director of the Base Conversion Authority, a state agency created to help local officials.

"I came over here and there was a prison, some 100 empty buildings and 1,200 empty houses," said Risik. "I thought there was no way I could screw it up. The situation could only improve."

Risik said the effort has far exceeded his expectations and predicts that

AIMS to hold testing program

The Aptitude Inventory Measurement Service (AIMS) will hold its testing program at Midland College Oct. 24-26, according to Dr. Elizabeth Robinett, MC counselor.

"The AIMS program is a non-profit testing service formed to assist students in determining career choices," she stated.

"It also is an effective means for helping older individuals who are dissatisfied with present occupations and considering a change in careers."

According to Brenda Holder Smith, director of the testing program, every individual possesses a unique pattern of talents. The AIMS testing helps uncover those talents and frequently leads to satisfying vocations.

Testing also reveals sources of discontent with present jobs and the examinee in understanding himself.

"During the testing sessions, participants are given aptitude work samples which measure talent for specific areas," Mrs. Smith noted.

"Some of the aptitudes measured include perceptual speed, finger dexterity, frame of reference, tonal memory and pitch, discrimination, structural visualization, convergent and divergent thinking."

She explained that the work samples are not school or IQ tests, and that there are no pass or fail judgements. The goal is not to score high or low on all work samples, but to discover a satisfying outlet for talents.

The complete testing program consists of 1½ days of group testing, individual testing and conference.

During the conference, the examinee is given the significance of the overall pattern of aptitudes and possible vocational applications.

In Midland the fee is $325 for the testing and evaluation with no additional fee for follow-up conferences held within one year of the original testing. Space is limited and Dr. Robinett suggests applicants make reservations in advance of testing dates. For more information and reserving testing dates call Dr. Robinett at 684-7851, extension 123.

Little known of war scope

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Despite government claims of hand-to-hand combat, tank battles and bombing raids, little is known about the scale of fighting and how much damage is being inflicted in the war between Iran and Iraq, diplomats here say.

Analysts have had to rely on communiqués and radio broadcasts of both sides as well as refugee reports to assess the conflict. Many are skeptical about the claims from both Tehran and Baghdad.

"Knock off the zeroes and you probably have a better idea of the actual damage," said one Western diplomat, referring to Iraqi claims of downing 180 U.S.-made Iranian Phantom jets and Iranian claims of felling more than 100 Soviet-made Iraqi MiGs.

The London-based Institute of Strategic Studies estimates Iraq has 222,000 soldiers, 339 combat aircraft and 2,800 tanks and that Iran has roughly the same number of soldiers, 447 combat planes and 1,900 tanks.

Arab radios have claimed the Iraqis committed three divisions of 15,000 men each to battle compared to two divisions of unspecified size for the Iranians. But the reports have not been confirmed independently.

One reason is that reporters in both Iraq and Iran have not had free access to the fighting front, which stretches from the border town of Qasr-E-Shirin in western Iraq south to the oil center of Abadan — a distance of nearly 300 miles.

In Iraq, some Western reporters have been given escorted tours to within about 3 1/2 miles of the Iranian city of Ahvaz and across the Shatt el-Arab near Khorramshahr. Others have watched smoke billowing from the refineries at Abadan and the Iraqi port city of Basra.

Even so, one diplomat said, they have not been able to confirm the "fall of a single city claimed by the Iraqis" even though it is obvious that fighting is taking place on the Iranian side of the border.

Independent reports from the Iranian side have been even more limited because most Western news organizations were expelled last year. Correspondents who remain appear restricted to Tehran where they also have to rely on official news sources rather than eyewitness accounts.

Satellite reconnaissance undoubtedly indicates what forces have been deployed, but military analysts say that the use of large amounts of ammunition and maneuvering of men and equipment does not necessarily mean great damage is being done.

"Oil refineries and pipelines have been the targets of raids but how badly have they been hit?" asked one diplomat, noting that the air raids did not appear to be systematic.

A top Middle East oil analyst said that as far as the Western consuming nations are concerned the impact of the war outside Iraq and Iran would depend largely on how severely oil pumping stations, gathering plants and loading terminals are damaged.

But no independent observers have been allowed to see those facilities up close nor have government officials on either side outlined the dimensions of the destruction or say how long it would take to repair.

"We know really very little about the damage to either oil industry," the analyst said.

Despite the lack of information, diplomats stress they are taking the war seriously.

"It is serious because so much is at stake for both the combatants and the rest of the world," one said.

The loss of oil imports from the two Persian Gulf nations — which had a combined sale of four million barrels of oil a day before the war — could lead to higher heating oil prices this winter or even a shortage.

A broadening of the conflict, which shows no signs of abating, could also spread into the Persian Gulf itself — paralyzing other oil ports and disrupting the economies of the oil states there, including Saudi Arabia. Those nations depend on oil revenues to feed their people and finance ambitious development schemes.

Closure of the Straits of Hormuz could trigger U.S. naval action to keep the tanker lanes open and a possible confrontation with the Soviets.

Inmates challenge state's claim

BALTIMORE (AP) — Lawyers for inmates at the Maryland Penitentiary have challenged the state's claim that it met a federal court deadline for ending overcrowding at the prison.

In a brief filed with U.S. District Court, lawyers for the Legal Aid Bureau accused state prison officials of stalling for time.

On Wednesday — the deadline imposed by the court to end the practice of putting two men in a cell designed for one — the state filed a letter with District Judge Alexander Harvey II saying it had "substantially" complied with the order.

State attorneys also asked that a January 14, 1979 prisoner reduction decree be modified to increase the number of prisoners allowed at the penitentiary.

They said that at the time the court decree was made, one of their living areas was undergoing repair and its bed space had not been considered by Judge C.

Stanley Blair when he made his ruling.

Blair, who has since died, ruled that the maximum number of inmates at the penitentiary would be 1,003. State officials argued the figure should have been 1,028.

The Legal Aid Bureau attorneys opposed the state's motion to alter the figure, saying the state's contention that the "difference in numerical calculation is based on the renovation

Nuke plant sits near earthquake fault

SAN ONOFRE, Calif. (AP) — A government expert says an investigation has confirmed that the San Onofre nuclear power plant sits near a fault zone which connects offshore with another fault capable of a major earthquake.

The report of the investigation is being sent to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, which is now deciding whether to issue operating licenses for two new reactors being built at the plant.

Dr. Gary Greene of the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park said Wednesday an apparent connection was found between the Christianitos fault and the Inglewood-Newport fault.

Greene and Dr. Michael Kennedy of the state Division of Mines and Geology "don't understand the exact nature of this connection."

"But it is our belief that some sort of connection does exist," he said.

Insurance FACTS

COURTESY OF MIDLAND INSURANCE AGENCY BY LARRY CRAWFORD

Are you in a profession that provides a service to the public? From medicine to architecture, the practitioner must be wary of the possibility of a law suit. In the past years, consumers have become more concerned about the way they are treated and their rights and privileges in a business transaction. Consumer action groups have contributed to a growing awareness that there may be redress in court for unsatisfactory work. This means that the professionals providing the services are more and more often being used for malpractice. One such suit could be financially devastating if you are not properly insured.

Our professionals of MIDLAND INSURANCE AGENCY, 3324 N. Midkiff, 697-4108 give continuing personal service to all our clients, so whatever your particular insurance needs may be, see us soon. We don't work for just one insurance company and, as a result, we can tell you what many have to offer. You can contact Fran Neuhson or Larry Crawford. Open 6 days 8-5.

'Gorgeous Betty' crew, French couple to reunite

DALLAS (AP) — Crewmembers of the World War II bomber "Gorgeous Betty" plan a reunion Oct. 8 with the French couple that harbored them at Vincelottes, France, during Christmas 1944.

The damaged plane was forced to make an emergency landing on Dec. 23, 1944, near the Normandy village after German fighters chased the 9th Squadron of the 17th Bombardment Group that destroyed an ammunition dump laden with buzz bombs at Siegelbach, Germany.

Nearly 36 years later, crewmembers of the plane named for actress Betty Grable will host Pierre and Helene Vaillant at the annual reunion of the 17th Bomb Group.

The 17th, known for its exploits from World War I through the Korean conflict, called itself "The Daddy of Them All" and was the only bomber group that fought against all the Axis powers during World War II.

"We landed on a makeshift runway near the town of Vincelottes," recalls W.H. Van Dusen, a combat photographer aboard the "Gorgeous Betty" who filmed spectacular clouds of black smoke on the successful bombing mission.

Van Dusen said the "Gorgeous Betty" was forced away from five other bombers by German fighters, but escaped when the fighters ran low on fuel. He recalled how the Vaillants took in the entire crew and went about the village assuring other residents they were Americans and not Germans disguised as Americans.

"They didn't have very much, but I remember we went out to a farm and picked up a goat, and that's what we had for Christmas dinner," said Van Dusen, a resident of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

He resumed communications with the French couple in 1978 and invited them to join 500 veterans of the 17th Bomb Group Reunion Association for the annual meeting Oct. 9-11 at a Dallas hotel.

"About a year and a half ago, rummaging around for something else, I found their old address," Van Dusen said. "I wrote to them as well as to the mayor of the town of Vincelottes. Three weeks later, I received a letter from them along with a color photograph."

Bill Baird, president of the reunion group, said the 17th Bomb Group's most famous fliers were Quentin Roosevelt, President Theodore's Roosevelt's son who was killed in World War I, and Jimmie Doolittle of Tokyo-raid fame.

"Sure, we had our heroes," said Baird, a retired physician who lives in nearby Garland, Texas, "but we like to think of ourselves as a group of oil and arms moguls. A lot of us were grease monkeys and bullet and bomb loaders."

Baird said the organization collects no dues, but is rebuilding one of the first Martin Marauder B-26s, which came off the assembly line in 1941, from voluntary contributions.

"This short-winged 'Flying Prostitute' (so named because it had no visible means of support) will be the only one of its vintage that is flyable," Baird said. "We're working day and night to get it ready for the Dallas reunion."

These unidentified members of the World War II bomber "Gorgeous Betty," named for actress Betty Grable portrayed on the plane's fuselage, will be reunited Oct. 8 in Dallas, with the French couple that harbored them during Christmas 1944 at Vincelottes, France. 50,000 arrested

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — More than 50,000 people protesting rising prices in a massive show of civil disobedience were arrested and held briefly in the west-central Indian state of Maharashtra, state police said today.

The statewide demonstrations Thursday, organized by opposition political parties, coincided with the 111th anniversary of the birth of Mohandas K. Gandhi, the late Indian leader who led this nation's non-violence struggle for independence from Britain in the 1940s.

Press reports said the protests were largely peaceful as demonstrators courted voluntary arrest in the tradition of Gandhi by violating government bans on public rallies. Those arrested were released later in the day, the reports said.

Violence was reported in one demonstration at Kolhapur, about 217 miles south of Bombay, where crowds hurled stones at police who swung cane clubs and fired teargas to disperse them. At least 30 people, most of them policemen, were injured in the clashes, according to local reports.

19 persons die in San Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Nineteen persons were killed Thursday in the ongoing violence between leftist guerrillas and government troops in El Salvador, a military spokesman said early today.

He identified five of the victims as peasants fleeing from the fighting and said they were taken off a rural bus and shot, presumably by guerrillas.

The spokesman said guerrilla fighting continued between guerrilla groups and government soldiers near the border with Honduras.

El Salvador's human rights commission estimates more than 6,000 civilians have been killed this year in violence by extreme leftist and rightist groups trying to topple the moderate civilian-military junta government.

Man who hanged self identified

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP) — Woodbury County authorities have determined the identity of a young man who hanged himself in the county jail last July and was later buried in a pauper's grave.

Deputy David Ingalls said Thursday the FBI has matched the man's fingerprints to those of Ronald Eugene Campbell, 23, a native of Lawton, Okla.

Ingalls said an earlier FBI check had proved fruitless, and a second, more careful check turned up the match.

Ingalls said he is waiting for information from San Antonio, Texas, police, about Campbell's relatives.

Campbell, who was known here as Gary Wayne Price, was wanted in San Antonio on a burglary warrant issued March 21.

In May, he was arrested in South Sioux City, Neb., on a larceny charge for allegedly taking a woman's purse.

He was held in the Dakota County, Neb., jail for seven days because the car he was driving had been reported stolen from Hot Springs, Ark.

In July, Campbell was arrested again after a policeman caught him rifling police lockers at police headquarters.

As he was being booked on that charge, he attempted to stab himself in the chest with a pen knife. He was treated at a local hospital and then returned to jail that night.

The next morning he was found hanged in a noose fastened from his jail coversalls.

Authorities were able to learn little about the dead man, except that he had lived in a North Sioux City, S.D., trailer park while working at the Park Jefferson race track exercising horses.

He was buried a month ago in the pauper's section of a city cemetery, after authorities were unable to locate his family.

But now, authorities have learned that he was born Jan. 17, 1957, in Lawton.

Ingalls said Campbell had an arrest record dating back to 1974 when he was arrested on a charge of habitual burglary and theft.

Three years later he faced a charge of possession of LDS and in 1979, he was charged with burglary with intent to commit theft, all in San Antonio, the deputy said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Emphysema can be very disabling

Dear Dr. Solomon: I suppose I should consider myself lucky. My doctor has informed me that my 20-year pack-a-day cigarette habit has given me a bad case of emphysema — nothing worse, so far. Although I have continued to work part-time, there is a serious question about how long I will be able to continue. I would appreciate any information you can provide about the nature of emphysema, and the extent to which it causes disability serious enough to keep a person from working. — Frank

Dear Frank: Although as you suggest there are worse illnesses than emphysema, you are finding out that it can be a very disabling condition. In fact, emphysema leads all other diseases in the degree to which it drains funds from the Social Security system to pay disabled beneficiaries. While diseases such as lung cancer or serious cardiac problems may be a cause of greater concern to many people, emphysema patients tend to live longer and therefore receive Social Security benefits over a greater period of time.

The symptoms of patients with emphysema are related to the fact that their lungs have lost some of their elasticity. While this condition occurs in all people as a natural consequence of the aging process, patients with emphysema have had some of the air sacs in their lungs destroyed. This reduces the surface area available for oxygen to get into the bloodstream. As a result, patients experience shortness of breath when walking fast or running, or when they carry heavy loads. Even laughing, shouting, or talking can bring on a rough cough.

The patient's age at which these symptoms become apparent will depend in large measure on the age at which he or she started smoking. Ordinarily, the disease strikes people in their 50s or 60s, with twice as many men as women affected.

This ratio may change, however, as increasing numbers of women continue to smoke.

Patients often dismiss the early symptoms of emphysema simply as a sign that they are growing older. The danger in such cases is that they will continue to smoke, unaware of the serious, irreversible damage they are causing. Without treatment, the disease will continue to progress until even ordinary activity results in shortness of breath. Eventually, the patient may find it difficult to breathe even at rest.

The main treatment of patients with emphysema is for them to stop smoking. While doing so will not repair the damage already done (lung tissue does not repair itself), it will prevent destruction of additional tissue. Some drug therapy also is available, mainly bronchodilators such as are used by patients with asthma.

A diagnosis of emphysema is best confirmed by means of a pulmonary function test. This shows whether the patient's difficulties are due to emphysema, or possibly, to some cardiac problem that has resulted in an accumulation of fluid in the lungs.

Not every emphysema patient is so disabled as to be unable to work. Your best chance of being able to continue to hold a job is to follow your doctor's advice and hope that continued research eventually will unlock the doors to helping emphysema patients live more comfortably.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21018. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer many questions as possible in his column.)

MENTAL HEALTH UPDATE

Alcohol abuse a major problem

Alcohol abuse and alcoholism are among the most serious of health problems facing this nation. There may be some difference of opinion whether or not these should be regarded as mental health problems, but the fact remains that mental health agencies and practitioners devote a great deal of time and energy to the treatment of these problems.

It is estimated that at least 10 million adult Americans suffer from alcoholism. When one considers that each alcoholic probably affects at least three or four other family members, co-workers or friends, then 40 to 50 million Americans are thereby involved in the problem. The societal costs in terms of lost or reduced productivity, health care expenses, disability payments and other indirect costs of alcoholism are enormous.

Many additional alcoholics have not been diagnosed. They may appear to suffer from a variety of physical problems ranging from low back pain to "nervous exhaustion."

An alcoholic is a person who has control of his drinking. He is addicted to alcohol, and his relationship with others are negatively affected. Many alcoholics deny that they have a problem with alcohol. These alcoholics tend to think that an "alcoholic" is a person who has a worse drinking problem and worse social relationships than they do.

An alcoholic uses other ploys to deny his problem. He may say that he can stop anytime because he has stopped before for several months; he may say that he is not a skid row bum, so he is not an alcoholic. He may blame others for driving him to drink; he may say he doesn't drink in the mornings so he is not an alcoholic. Or he may say that he drinks only beer so he is not an alcoholic. All of these methods of denial serve to protect the alcoholic from having to face the fact of his problem. Many families of alcoholics may participate in these denials.

Alcohol itself is a depressant and is chemically almost identical to ether, which is an anesthetic. Like ether, alcohol tends to put the brain to sleep, but in stages. In the first stage of intoxication, a person's judgment and sense of social propriety are reduced. He may become loud, abusively, vulgar and boisterous. In the second stage of intoxication, his ability to think clearly and his motor skills are reduced. He may slur his speech; his reflexes are reduced; and his memory is poor.

The third stage is unconsciousness or stupor. At this time, the full anesthetic effects of alcohol are experienced and much of the brain has been put literally "to sleep." Only the automatic functions of the brain continue.
