the more than 100 persons detained following a New Year's Eve riot in which at least 18 persons were injured and businesses vandalized.

About 10,000 revelers had streamed onto city streets to welcome the new year. Trouble broke out shortly after midnight Tuesday and rioters ran amok for three hours, Police Lt. Charles Nearpass said there was some looting and "extensive" property damage caused by as many as 4,000 rioters. Some of the rioters even chanted anti-Iranian obscenities.

Most of those detained by police were placed in civil protective custody for a few hours and were released later in the day. But at least five others faced misdemeanor or felony charges ranging from fighting to battery with a deadly weapon, inciting riots, and possession of stolen

Seven officers were hurt but none had to be hospitalized. Local hospitals reported treating 11 riot victims. All but one were released. An unidentified man was listed in serious but stable condition at St. Mary's Hospital.

A pawnshop was looted and damaged. A barber shop, a small restaurant, offices and some casinos had broken windows, Nearpass said. But large casinos in the immediate riot area had all their windows intact. Police had

RENO, Nev. (AP) - Police have released nearly all of cordoned off main casino entrances in the riot area. Windows of many cars were smashed, including windows of several police cruisers and two paddy wagons. No total damage estimate was immediately available, although the pawnshop reported a loss of about $20,000 in

> "They just went crazy ... they were acting like animals," pawnshop manager Dennis Mack said in describing how rioters poured into the shop, stole guns, jewelry and other items, and broke out windows.

Nearpass said the rioting was "much worse" than a 1961 New Year's Eve riot in downtown Reno which involved about 1,000 persons.

Police Chief James Parker said-he called in about 300 officers and ordered tear gas after initial violence broke out and "I figured they weren't going to leave."

After the riot started, some people in the mob produced placards and started chanting anti-Iranian obscenities Others recited the Pledge of Allegiance. Nearpass termed the anti-Iranian activity more of "an afterthought." He said the initial trouble was caused by "booze" and "a spontaneous combustion type of thing.

Nearpass said rioters threw "rocks, bottles, anything they could get their hands on." A bonfire was built at a main intersection - fueled partly by New Year's Eve party hats, police said.

Party politics warming up

GOP head raps Carter's Iran policy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Party rivalry in the 1980 presidential campaign has warmed up with Republican National Chairman Bill Brock saying President Carter's policy on Iran is aimed at fooling the American people.

The GOP leader said Carter's only real policy in handling the Iranian crisis is "a policy of deception." Brock accused the president of failing to develop a foreign policy that would 'discourage a repetition elsewhere of the barbaric actions taken in Iran." In a statement Tuesday, Brock also said ratifying the SALT II treaty with the Russians after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan is "unthinkable."

Elaborating on the statement in an interview today on ABC-TV's "Good Morning, America" program, Brock said Carter has practiced deception by speaking of "the policy of pa-

"But patience is not a policy," he said. "It's a non-policy, it's a policy of weakness, it has gotten us into trouble around the world

Brock said Carter "has demeaned our national defense, weakened this country internationally, insulted our allies and brings treaties to the Senate asking for further arms negotiations with the Soviet Union in the face of all that's happened with Soviet actions throughout Africa, throughout Southeast Asia, throughout the Middle East, the disruption that they fomented in Iran ... and now an outright invasion of Afghanistan."

In his statement Tuesday, Brock stressed he was not withdrawing from the joint statement he and Democratic National Chairman John White issued a month ago to illustrate American solidarity in support of Carter's actions to free the hostages held in Tehran since Nov. 4.

Waldheim meets with Iranians

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim talked with Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh for nearly three hours today, but there was no sign of a breakthrough for the American hostages, now in their 60th day of captivity.

The Iranian government, meanwhile, moved part of its estimated $13 billion in foreign accounts from banks in Europe to other nations as a precaution against possible U.N. sanctions, said Ali Mavi-Rad, head of overseas finances for Iran's central bank. He did not say how much was moved.

"We had an exchange of views over the hostage crisis," Waldheim said after his meeting with Iran's foreign minister. Ghotbzadeh told the secretary-general at the end of their ses-"Your ideas have helped," but did not elaborate.

This afternoon Waldheim was scheduled to visit a museum of atrocities allegedly committed under the regime of the ousted shah.

"I've come to see what I can do," the secretary-general told a reporter as he arrived at the Foreign Ministry for his first meeting with Ghotbza-Waldheim told Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's foreign minister and others on his arrival Tuesday: "I hope to find the means and the ways to solve the crisis." But he added: 'You cannot expect from such a first visit to solve immediately all problems. You have got to be realistic."

He cited U.S.-Iranian relations, "the grievances of the Iranian people in relation to the previous regime," and the seizure of the U.S. Embassy and its staff among "the very serious problems that will have to be discussed if the way can be paved for the solution of the crisis."

Ghotbzadeh reiterated before Waldheim's arrival that he considered the secretary-general's visit a fact-finding mission only, to hear Iran's case against the United States and Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, and not one of mediation and negotiation. Although Waldheim said he had information indicating Khomeini would receive him, there was no indication from officials in Tehran that this would happen. Meanwhile, the students who seized the U.S. Embassy on Nov. 4 reiterated their unchanging position — that the hostages would be freed only if President Carter returned the shah to Iran for trial. They said they would not talk with Waldheim unless Khomeini told them to and that he would not be allowed to see any of the captive Americans.

The government TV service coupled its pictures of Waldheim's arrival on a split screen with an amputee and two dead children it said were victims of SAVAK, the shah's secret

"This is a New Year's gift offered by the TV staff on the occasion of Mr. Waldheim's arrival," the announcer

The U.N. Security Council gave Waldheim a new mandate Monday to try to win the release of the hostages - put at 50 in number by the State Department, 49 by their captors and 43 by three U.S. clergymen who visited them over Christmas. But if he fails to get them freed by Jan. 7, the council will meet then to vote on a U.S. resolution now being drafted to impose limited sanctions against

The Soviet government was one of four that abstained in Monday's U.N. vote. Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said on Tuesday that the U.S. 'steps to impose an economic blockade on Iran give rise to the profound indignation of the Iranian public." But thousands of Afghan residents of Iran demonstrated outside the Soviet Embassy in Tehran and the Soviet Consulate in Mashad Tuesday, protesting the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan. They hauled down the Soviet flag and burned it, but Iranian revolutionary guards drove them off when they tried to invade the embassy.

Meanwhile, the shah in an interview with a British newspaper was quoted as saying he was, "coming round to accepting that he is answerable before some form of international tribunal," possibly at the United Nations in New York.

The London Daily Mail said the deposed ruler was interviewed on the Panamanian island where he has found asylum and told its correspondent: "I would be content, happy, to be judged by what I believe was

Soviet troops launch new Afghanistan drive

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) - The Soviet invasion force in Afghanistan was reported today to have launched an all-out drive to eliminate resistance as the United States mobilized a diplomatic offensive in response to the Russian intervention in the Central Asian country.

Karachi's English-language newspaper Dawn quoted informed sources in Islamabad, Pakistan, as saying the Soviets are on the move to clear pockets of guerrilla resistance, block escape routes, and crush all opposition to the puppet regime the Russians installed in Kabul last week.

The Soviet troops are engaged in a massive anti-guerrilla movement in the provinces of Nuristan and Kunar, which border the Chitral district of Pakistan and where the Soviets suspect the Moslem guerrillas are operating, the paper said. Up to last week's Soviet-led coup in Afghanistan, the two provinces were inaccessible to Afghan government forces. But now the well-equipped, modern Russian army units are fighting to make major headway there, the report said.

The Soviet occupation forces are using steep-climbing mechanized columns to battle the anti-government forces, which are operating from the mountainous regions with small and outdated arms, the newspaper

It also said the Kremlin regards this winter as crucial in its offensive against the Moslem guerrillas, who lately have gained both in numerical strength and captured territory.

The few Western reporters in Kabul, the Afghan capital, were not being allowed to send any information out. But following the Soviet-supported coup last Thursday that installed Afghanistan's third communist government in 20 months, Soviet troops have been reported under attack in the northern, northeastern, western and southern parts of the country.

Passengers arriving in Istanbul, Turkey today aboard an Afghan Airlines plane reported hearing gunfire near Kabul until Tuesday afternoon. We could hear the rattle of sub-machines in remote suburbs of Kabul, sometimes involving intense flareups," said Jasjatsing Sandau, an Indian businessman based in London.

Dutch couple working for the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization said there was "intense shooting between Russian soldiers and snipers reportedly from the Afghan armed forces." But they said the gunfire died down late Tuesday and "all was calm overnight and this morning."

No confirmed estimates of casualties were available. Diplomats in New Delhi, India, or Afghan rebel sources in Pakistan reported 250 Soviet troops killed or wounded in Kabul during the coup; more than 200 Soviet soldiers and 63 Moslem guerrillas killed in fighting in the Konar district, facing Pakistan's historic Northwest Frontier; 35 Moslem guerrillas and a num- tween Soviet and Afghan army troops ber of civilians killed in Soviet air attacks in the northeast, and 400 guerrillas, a Soviet general and large numbers of Soviet and Afghan troops killed in fighting last Saturday in the northern province of Takhar, on the Soviet border.

The Pakistani newspaper Jang said the Moslem rebels claimed the capture of a military base at Chighai Serai, on the Pakistani border near the Khyber Pass, after a three-day battle in which an Afgh)n army brigadier general and nine other officers deserted to the rebels. The paper reported fighting beat Barikot, also near the Khyber Pass, and said Soviet forces recaptured a post in Badakshan province, near the Soviet and Chinese borders, after 90 hours of fighting and heavy casualties on both sides.

A Western diplomat in New Delhi said he had reports of clashes between Soviet and Afghan troops in Kandahar, in southern Afghanistan: Jalalabad, between Kabul and the Pakistani border, and Herat, in the western part of the country, where at least 60 Soviet troops were killed in an uprising last March.

Gold price soars to $562 an ounce

LONDON (AP) - Gold soared to $562 an ounce by noon today in the biggest advances ever seen in a single day's trading. Gold was up $37.50 an ounce and silver jumped $8.

The buying fever was attributed by dealers to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and the continuing Iranian crisis, making the world appear less safe than it has for years.

It's at times like these that the world's big investors head for precious metals to protect their assets.

There's no limit in sight," said one London dealer, as gold hit $562 at Monday gold closed here at $524.50. Silver rose to a record $40 from 32 at Monday's close. Copper, tin, lead and zinc prices also climbed sharply. 'It's very, very difficult to see anything turning this market now - there's a distinct lack of sellers," said a dealer at Sharp Pixley Ltd. In London. "The problems in the Far East are making everybody go for precious metals. Silver has nearly doubled in the last month," he said.

The biggest buyers of gold bullion during the 1979 boom were Mideast oil

To put today's gold advance in perspective, it was recalled that the metal sold for just $35 an ounce for some 30 years before 1970. When President Nixon took the United States off the gold standard in 1971, the price began a climb that saw it break through the $200 barrier in the summer of 1978, $300 a year after that, $400 last Sept. 28 and $500 last week. The price more than doubled in 1979, gaining $298.125 in London.

Complaint filed against teens

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) - Two teen-agers shot a couple to death because they wanted to collect juvenile insurance and inheritance money to buy new highpowered cars, authorities claim in a criminal com-

The complaint, filed in San Jose Municipal Court, alleges that Clarence Johnny Garcia, 19, and Todd Martin Gjevre, 15, had plotted for nearly two weeks to kill Gjevre's parents so they could purchase a Pontiac Trans-Am, a Dodge Charger, another car and possibly a new home.

Garcia was arraigned Monday in Muncipal Court on two murder charges and a conspiracy charge.

Deputy District Attorney Bob Masterson said Garcia and Gjevre both have been charged with conspiracy and the murders of Gjevre's mother, Sandra Kay Gjevre, 36, and stepfather, Ernest Blair Gjevre,

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Officials say an unventilated space heater may have caused the deaths of four persons, including two children, and left a fifth person hospitalized in poor condi-

James Bernard Satterwhite, 14, discovered the four bodies Tuesday and found his mother unconsclous after he climbed through a window at his mother's one-story frame house because he was unable to rouse anyone inside.

Bobbie Fay Satterwhite, 30, was rushed to the hyperbaric chamber at Brooks Air Force Base's School of Aerospace Medicine, where she was listed in poor condition Tuesday.

"We found a small gas heater burning in the living room. It should have been ventilated outside, but it wasn't," said arson Capt. Dan Davila.

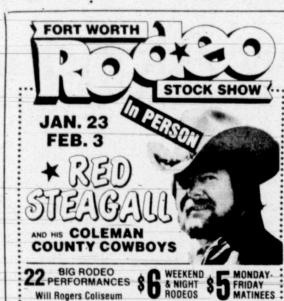

The victims were identified as Roy T. James, 33, Guadalupe Rodriguez, 23, and her two children, Lisa, 7 months, and Bonnie, 3.

Davila said Mrs. Satterwhite probably survived because she was on the floor. He explained that heated gas rises.

Unions to seek large wage increase in '80

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor contracts affecting more than 3.8 million of the 9.4 million workers covered by collective bargaining agreements expire in 1980, according to Labor Department esti-

With inflation running at a 13 percent annual rate and a recession expected in 1980, large wage boosts and increased job security are expected to top labor's demands.

Although President Carter's 1979 guideline limiting pay raises to 7 percent a year is generally viewed as too low in the face of current inflation, administration inflation-fighters hope to dissuade unions from pressing demands to catch up fully with infla-

Government economists contend that such large raises would only lead to still more inflation. National contracts affecting 60,000 oil refinery workers, 316,000 steel and aluminum workers, 550,-000 telephone company employees, 41,000 longshoremen and 66,500 aerospace workers are among those up for renegotiation during the year. Many of those talks could result in strikes, labor relations experts say. The first major walkout could come as early as next week, when the first year of an oil industry contract expires with the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union. Robert F. Goss, president of the oil workers, faces a Jan. 8 strike deadline for reaching a pattern settlement with the oil industry on 400 separate contracts that cover 60,000 of his members.

The oil industry is highly automated, and the companies say a strike would have no short-term impact on fuel supplies. Later in the year, the success of the United Steelworkers' unique no-strike bargaining arrangement with the basic steel industry, called the Experimental Negotiating Agreement, will be tested as the two sides replace three-year contracts that ex-

Under the agreement adopted in 1977, the union and industry will submit unresolved issues to arbitration. This year's bargaining, however, is expected to be tougher than anticipated because of steel mill closings and worker layoffs caused by increased sales of imported steel.

The largest single contract expiring in 1980 is the Bell Telephone Co. agreement with the Communication Workers of America. It runs out in August and covers 500,000 workers. tAlso expiring in August is a contract covering 50,000 electrical workers at Bell's manufacturing arm, Western Electric.

Statistical Abstract 'mirror of America'

WASHINGTON (AP) - For the price of a thick paperback book, the U.S. government can and will supply answers to millions of questions most Americans never thought to ask.

Things like which animals are on the endangered species list, whether men or women are more likely to wear contact lenses and how much money various groups of workers make.

In addition to a new section on threatened and endangered wildlife species, other new tables in this year's edition of the "Statistical Abstract of the United States" have titles such as "coffee, aspirin and sleeping pills — users and non-users" and "credit card usage by family characteristic."

In short, the book tries to be, as one reviewer once wrote, the "mirror of America." This year's edition, released Sunday, is the 100th to be put out by the federal government.

Among the tables, charts and essays in the 1,057-page volume, one finds that: -Five million of the 7 million contact lense wearers in the United States in 1977 were women. -In 1978, the highest average hourly earnings among U.S. production workers went to coal miners ($9.53), blast furnace and steel production workers ($9.41) and petroleum refinery laborers ($9.32). —Nuclear power stations produced 12.5 percent of the nation's electricity in 1978.

The facts and figures cover topics from agriculture to banks, education, health, income, parks, population, trade and transportation. There also is a chapter on similar data from foreign nations.

Copies of the abstract for library or home use are available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C.,

Sheik's Beverly Hills home gutted by fire

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) -Fire early today gutted the gaudy Sunset Boulevard mansion of a Saudi Arabian sheik who once shocked his neighbors by painting flesh tones on front-lawn statues of nudes.

Sheik Mohammed Al-Fassi, 25, and his 20-year-old wife, Sheika Dena Al-Fassi, were reportedly out of the country when the fire broke out Tuesday night and raged for three hours, officials said.

Ector trustees approve method

ODESSA - A new election method approved by Ector County school trustees Monday should give better representation to citizens throughout the county, officials said.

The new system, which must be approved by the U.S. Justice Department, will have four single-member positions and three countywide, at-large posts on the board. The current system has all members elected countywide.

The single-member positions will be based on the four county commissioners precincts.

Young mother charged in bathtub drownings

LEESBURG, Fla. (AP) - A mother has been charged with drowning her three young daughters in the bathtub of the family's mobile home,

Lake County officials say. "They're better off in heaven," Diane Evers, 23, was quoted by authorities as saying after the New Year's Day deaths. Neighbors said the young woman had been despondent and had been undergoing psychiatric treatment. Mrs. Evers was being held without bond on three charges of first-degree murder, Bill Hamner, public information officer for the Lake County sheriff's office, said today.

Al-Fassi's father, Dr. Sheik Shamsuddin Al-Fassi, paid a reported $2.5 million for the four-acre estate in 1978 and estimated the value of the home at $7 million after extensive improvements and redecoration by his son and daughter-in-law. Witnesses said much of the structure as well as the controversial statues remained standing after the fire, but said the house was gutted.

"The fire kept springing back. There's a copper roof on the place that made it hard to fight the fire," one witness said. Fred Tartuino, Beverly Hills Fire Department battalion chief, would man killed not speculate about the cause of the blaze but said there "appeared to be two separate fires, in the attic and the northwest corner of the house." He refused further comment on the investigation The sun-reflecting roof that Al-Fassi installed cost an estimated $1 million. The roof trapped the blaze inside the home, where it raged from the ground floor in the east wing, then through the second floor and attic for several hours.

A crowd of at least 500 spectators gathered to watch the fire at the mansion, located at the corner of Alpine Drive and Sunset Boulevard. The cause of the fire was under investigation. It was battled by Beverly Hills firefighters aided by engine companies from Los Angeles. The huge 58-room house attracted wide attention when his Al-Fassi went on a redecorating spree that sent the community into shock.

He painted the exterior green, added the sun-reflecting copper roof, planted bright plastic flowers in front and used flesh-colored paint on the nude statues in the front lawn.

It was all visible to passersby and tourists, who added the mansion to their lists of "must sees" in Southern

Indian campaign

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and reports that the United States will sell arms to Pakistan are getting some last-minute attention as the Indian election campaign ends.

Singh also criticized the expected supply of U.S. arms to Pakistan, Afghanistan's eastern neighbor and India's traditional foe. "We know they will be used against us," he told a campaign rally.

Other leading candidates took up the new issues, but after two months of campaigning they were not expected to have much influence on the 361 million voters, more than 80 percent of them illiterate. Many observers believe former Prime Minister Indira which one communist, Prime Minister Hafizullah Amin, ousted his communist mentor, President Nur Mohammad Taraki, was "engineered by the Americans." He said this led to a "chain reaction" — the overthrow of Amin by Soviet troops and the Americans lifting their embargo on arms for Pakistan.

Stephen said he rejected the Russian "excuse" that the Afghan government requested the Soviet intervention. He said the test of Soviet intentions would be how long the forces stay.

Mrs. Gandhi's reaction to the Afghan crisis was that "the whole area is destabilized, which is very dangerous for us. We do not believe in intervention by any nation in the affairs of The Foreign Ministry called in U.S. Ambassador Robert F. Goheen Monday to ask him about U.S. national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski's statement in an interview Sunday that the U.S. government is prepared to resume the sale of weapons to Pakistan because of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. Goheen left Tuesday for consultations in Washington, and a U.S. Embassy spokesman said the trip had been planned for weeks. But he said the Soviet action in Afghanistan and the possibility of resuming weapons shipments to Pakistan were expected to be discussed.

Japan was strongly criticized by the United States because some of its companies bought spot Iranian oil in Europe last month for up to $44 a barrel. Since then, however, Japan's position has been to support American pressures, thereby endangering its own prospects of purchasing large quantities of Iranian oil this year. It has promised to support the American stand so long as European countries also do so. Last Saturday, the government's powerful Ministry of International Trade and Industry advised Japanese oil company representatives to be prudent in negotiating with Iran for anything above the new normal price

But early Monday, the ministry, citing the reports on the two British companies, advised Japanese negotiators it would sanction purchases for about $30 a barrel. American officials were promptly notified of the switch in an apparent effort by the Japanese government to avert new criticism in Washington.

A Japanese official said Tuesday that word of the authoritative sources in the British government. It was understood that U.S. Officials had asked Japan and European countries to prevent payment of any price much higher than the $28.50 fixed by Iran after the recent meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries Caracas.

But no precise dollar amount was set as too high and it was not clear Tuesday whether the $1.50 premium would be regarded by the United States as enough of a price breakthrough to warrant formal complaints.

Some other OPEC countries such as Algeria and Libya were reported Tuesday to be raising prices well above $30 while others, such as Iraq and Saudi Arabia, were keeping their new prices below that level.

spinoff complete

SAN ANTONIO - The largest corporate spin-off of its kind in U. S. history has been completed with formation of Valero Energy Corp. The new company, headquartered in San Antonio, has projected annual sales of more than a billion dollars and assets of approximately $700 million. Its 22,282,560 common shares are held by approximately 20,000 shareholders of record and will begin trading on the New York Stock Exchange (symbol VLO) on Jan. 2, 1980. Valero Energy is made up of one of the largest intrastate natural gas pipeline systems in the U.S., several smaller Texas gas pipelines, and a gas utility division in South Texas. The company's total pipeline system of about 8,000 miles sells one out of Estoril Producing Corp. of Midland every four cubic feet of gas marketed in Texas and about one out of every 100 cubic feet of gas sold throughout the world. Gas processing plants operated by Valero Energy extract propane, butane, ethane, and other natural gas liquids.

These liquids are marketed to refineries as fuel and to petrochemical plants for use in manufacturing petrochemicals. Valero Energy services the entire state of Texas except the Panhandle region. Its customers include most of the state's large municipalities, utilities, and large industrial firms. Part of its gas also is sold in the interstate market. Bill Greehey, Valero Energy's president and chief executive officer, in a letter to stockholders says creatin of Valero Energy is "only a begin-"Management intends to move forward as quickly as possible to meet what we know are some key needs," Greehey says. "Among these needs are the need to offer stockholders a competitive return, the need to provide customers a stable supply of energy at competitive prices, and the need to provide producers a strong and reliable market for their gas.' Greehey says growth will be important to the new company in meeting these key needs. Part of the growth will come from expansion of the company's pipeline network, "which probably has the broadest deployment of any pipeline system in the state; whatever new gas becomes available, we want to make sure that we have good access to it for the benefit of all who depend on compa-Growth also will come ink the company's non-utility operations, Greehey says. An example is the recently announced plan to expand the company's gas-processing capabilities through investments in more-efficient technology and construction of new facilities. Valero Energy also has begun work on a $43-million gas-storage facility and is putting together an exploration and production staff.

Greehey expects Valero Energy to play an important role in the country's efforts to solve the problem of the approximately 20 per cent shortfall between total energy consumption and total energy production in the "I do think that Valero Energy has a useful and productive role to play.

We have a lot of experience in dealing successfully with problems, and we have some good tools to work with which we are going to improve. I believe we have a positive contribution to make.' Valero Energy was formed under terms of a settlement agreement between its former parent company, Coastal States Gas Corporation, an their customers. Carter's oil price decontrol program underway; marginal oil not included

By JOHN M. BERRY 1980, The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Still another large oil price increase began to take hold in earnest this New Year's Day but it did not coming from OPEC; it was decreed by President Carter last spring ordered the gradual removal of price controls from oil produced in this country.

The main part of that process begins Tuesday. Before it is over in October 1981, it will cost consumers at least 10 cents and possibly 15 cents a gallon more for gasoline, home heating oil and other petroleum products. In 1980, it will cost nearly as much as the last price increases that OPEC just promulgated. This government-granted price increase became an issue last year between Carter and Congress. It was to recover part of the proceeds from decontrol that Carter proposed his "windfall profits tax" on oil, still pending in a House-Senate confer-

The price increase also has become perhaps the leading issue betwen Carter and his top challenger for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. Kennedy regularly blasts the president for driving up further the energy prices that are already the bane of the economy because they will allow the goverment to dismantle a cumbersome regulatory system that seriously has distorted the American oil market. His aides also ask this question in regard to Kennedy: how would the senator deter consumption, if not through higher prices. Most experts say the only realistic alternative is to limit use by law, which means some on grounds that the higher prices are sumers from decontrol is an exceedingly complex job involving assumptions about world oil prices, profit margins at refineries as well as the corner gas station, and the normal decline in production from older oil wells. The White House announced Monday that Saturday Carter signed an executive order delaying the second, smaller step in decontrol of oil from so-called marginal wells until Congress completes action on the oil tax. Most of the oil from such wells was decontrolled last June. A top White House aide called the minor delay "a shot across the bow" of Congress to remind the conferees that decontrol and the tax are, in fact, linked even though decontrol already is underway. Several White House and other administration officials stresssed, however, Carter has no intention of backing away from decontrol no matter how much political heat the president gets from Kennedy or other sources.

States, some administration energy experts believe the average cost of crude to U.S. refiners will be in the neighborhood of $32 a barrel. In comparison, so-called lower tier domestic crude oil - essentially oil from wells discovered before 1973 will be selling for about $6.80 a barrel

creases are fully reflected in the prices of crude oil reaching the United

this month. Upper tier oil, mostly that discovered since 1973, will go for about $14.50 a barrel. In other words, lower tier oil is selling for about $25 less than uncontrolled oil, and upper tier is about $17.50 less. Of course, when Carter decided last April to begin the decontrol process something his economic advisers had been urging for some time - the gap between those prices and world prices was far smaller. In April, U.S. refiners paid an average of less than $16 a barrel for imported oil, not including transportation. That was only about $3 a barrel more than the upper tier price in those days, and about $10

last month beginning with a $6 a barrel boost by Saudi Arabia. In one sense, the OPEC hikes have sharply increased the ultimate cost of deconof the coming increases in U.S. crude prices on decontrol. The average price of upper and lower tier crude was already going up 10 percent a year under controls. And about 17 percent of U.S. production was already free of controls, coming either from stripper wells — wells producing less than 10 barrels a day — or from government-owned naval petroleum reserves.

Under executive orders issued during 1979, all oil coming from wells drilled since Jan. 1 is free of controls. According to Department of Energy estimates, about 200,000 barrels a day of that oil is now being produced.

In addition, about 750,000 barrels a day has been moved from the lower tier to the upper tier classification because of partial decontrol of marginal wells. Other amounts of oil was switched from one tier to another under other decontrol provisions.

of all upper tier oil will be decontrolled each month between now an October 1981. In February, 9.2. percent of all upper tier oil can be sold for the market price, and so on. Since lower tier oil is moving to the upper tier at a rate of about 3 percent

a month, some part of the cheaper oil will, in effect, go all the way from

As of Tuesday, however, 4.6 percent

By one estimate, the part of decon-trol beginning Jan. 1 will increase the total cost of crude oil to U.S. refiners by about $29 billion between now and the end of the decontrol period. Should world oil prices shoot up again, the figure would be higher.

unanimous in uring that domestic crude prices be allowed to rise to world levels. Controls, they said, encourage more consumption and, by lowering the average price of petrole-um products, give OPEC more leeway to raise its prices for crude. Furthermore, artificiallay low prices for U.S. crude has delayed investment in alternative forms of energy such as solar and synthetic fuels from coal, they argue. With controls, different barrels of oil carry very different legal price tags. This has led to some selling of lower tier oil as higher-priced upper tier or even imported oil. Since different refiners normally would end up with quite different average costs for crude oil, an elaborate system of payments among refiners had to be set up to try to maintain a competitive balance.

Economists virtually have been

Getting rid of all this, however, will be expensive to oil consumers. Administration officials, backed by most economists, are convinced firmly it's

The results of the 1980 census will tell the 1981 Texas Legislature how legislative and congressional districts should be changed to accommodate a 15 percent increase in population and a shift from rural and central city areas to the suburbs.

This, of course, is of tremendous significance to all Texans.

It is reported that some legislators think the 1981 legislature will give big city lawmakers the edge when it divides up the 150 state House seats, 31 state Senate positions and 24 congressional seats after the census.

On the other hand, there is a feeling that the century-old dominance of rural legislators over their big city brethren will contin-

Anyway, census questionnaires will be mailed on March 28 to 90 percent of Texas households. Door-to-door counts will be made of the 10 percent not reached by questionnaires. It is said that where forms are not mailed back, the Census Bureau will collect the information door-to-door.

And the bureau has promised it will furnish the necessary information for redistricting to the legislature by April 1, 1981.

From then until regular session adjournament at the end of May, the legislators will be engaged in reshuffling legislative and congressional districts.

CHARLEY REESE The Middle East is where Western Civilization began

ORLANDO, Fla. - A year ago I was at the Church of the Nativity which is built over the stable where Christ was born in the town of Bethlehem. It is just south of Jerusalem in the West Bank and it was cold and raining that day. The roof of the church leaked.

Actually, the church is divided into three sections, each in the custody of a major Christian denomination. The Protestants, being late arrivals in the Holy Land, are left out in the cold literally. They get the courtyard for a Christmas Eve service.

Bethlehem is an Arab city now and all of this Christian activity takes place under the protection of Jewish soldiers. The Arabs in Bethlehem are by a narrow margin Christian. They have refused to annex an adjacent refugee camp and extend city services to their Arab brothers because these particular brothers are Moslems and that would tip the balance in the next city election to the Moslem candidates

The Arab guide was gushing in his praise for the kindness and generosity of the Israelis. The Israli colonel who was in the group smiled. He is a Sabra and has lived among the Arabs all of his life. He was at Kfar Etzion in 1948 and he remembers how the Arabs who came for free medical aid at the clinic came back one day and butchered the nurses. He is not as impressed by Arab rhetoric as American diplomats and journalists

The Middle East is where Western Civilization began, where all civilization began if you believe the Bible. This one inhospitable little region has produced three of the world's five major religions. It may, in one of those great ironies, also be the place where the end of Western Civilization begins. It is certainly a bomb in search of a fuse.

If you look at what's happened since Jesus was born and at what might happen in the near future, you might well wonder if the buiness about peace on earth and good will toward men isn't just a piece of sky pie. There hasn't been much of neither since that night in Bethlehem.

When I was a kid that bothered me a lot. It seemed clear to me then that either God had fallen down on the job or else had a mean streak. That seemed to me the only possible explanation for all the misery and evil in the world. I suppose every kid faces the same question at some point.

For what it's worth, I finally realized that preserving the flesh is not God's business. That's out job. He is not going to stop anyone from fighting or killing, much less take sides in our petty disputes. He has given us volition, so that we can decide to fight or not fight; he has ordered the universe and given us a mind with which to understand it so that if we discern the rules and follow them, we can have both peace and health. But he is not our personal valet. The worst thing you can say about God is that he fixed it so we can get what we think we want.

I'm breaking my own rule in writing this. I don't usually write about my personal beliefs for the simple reason that nobody is interested in them. Nor am I trying to peddle them. What I am trying to do is to share with you during this Christmas season the way I cope with all the bad news we print during the year.

You see, if you can believe in God and in the eternal nature of the universe, then you understand that on a cosmic scale nothing really bad can ever happen to you. If you don't, which is to say that if you believe your fate and you body's fate are one in the same, then I'm afraid the news is very bad indeed.

God is concerned with the eternal and our bodies are depreciating assets. God does not care whether we adopt a long term depreciation schedule or a short one. I doubt if he cares if we blow up the planet. It's only a small one and he has lots more.

I wouldn't bet two cents on the chances of peace on this earth and I don't hink Jesus would either if he were around today. After all, he was a very shrewd observer. Bethlehem was full of swords in his day and now it's full of rifles.

But if you read his words, he wasn't talking about that kind of peace. The kind of peace he was talking about is still available, always will be, is free for the asking, and is absolutely immune to even nuclear attack.

That's something to celebrate.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Did Shah manipulate U.S. policy?

By JACK ANDERSON

associates of the Weather Under-WASHINGTON - Out of the Iranian ground by wire taping, break-ins cesspool, an ugly question has bubbled to the surface: Did the shah of And because of this situation, Iran use his oil billions to manipulate American policy? there wll be those who say his

Sources close to the deposed shah tell me he used to operate a subterranean system of graft, kickbacks and payoffs that extended from his palace guard to some of the mullahs who now oppose him. The same sources claim his foreign policy, too, was based on bribery, graft and manipulation

A startling array of prominent Americans were on his gift list. His man in Washington, Ardeshir Zahedi, dispensed envelopes stuffed with cash, Persian rugs, expensive jewelry, Longines watches, cans of caviar. bottles of champagne and the services of prostitutes. For top officials, there were even juicier enticements. Consider these conflicts of interest:

CASE NO. 1 — The shah, seeking money to finance his dreams of empire, became the driving force behind the astronomical leap in oil prices. Saudi Arabia, however, offered to block the ruinous 1974 price rise if the Nixon adminstration would intervene with the shah Top secret documents show that the administration's foreign policy star, Henry Kissinger, was responsible for blocking any interference with the shah. So with Kissinger's connivance, the great oil gouge began. Soon the oil billions began pouring into the shah's coffers, much of it by way of the Rockefeller-run Chase Manhattan Bank. The shah also bestowed other multibillion-dollar benefits on the Rockefeller interests ranging from oil deals to real estate ven-

It's no big secret that Kissinger came to prominence through the Rockefeller route. His biographers, Marvin and Bernard Kalb, describe him as "one of the crown jewels in the Rockefeller diadem." After guiding U.S. foreign policy for eight years, Kissinger returned to the Rockefeller fold where he is now advising Chase Manhattan on foreign investments.

CASE NO.2 - William Rogers was secretary of state when the decision was reached to build up the shah as protector of American interests in the Persian Gulf area, rather than face the difficulties of having the United States look after these interests more directly

Rogers joined in the process of arming the shah to the teeth, flattering him to the ears and commiserating with him over his revenue problems in bankrolling the vast responsibilities Washington had encouraged him to undertake.

Within three months after Rogers left the State Department in late 1973, he turned up as a director of the shah's Pahlavi Foundation. Rogers' law firm was also retained by the CASE NO. 3 - No American ambassador could have been more solicitous toward the shah than was Richard Helms. As ambassador to Iran during the crucial 1973-77 period, Helms behaved as if he were representing the shah, rather than the American people.

In one classified cable, he urged the State Department to "tidy up as much

David. If Israel returned to 1967 borders and a Palestinian homeland were established, Iraq would still denounce the existence of "the Zionist

as possible anti-shah elements in U.S." before a visit from the shah. Helms also asked whether an antishah newspaper in Washington could be closed down. The department's lawyers replied that the paper was protected by the First Amendment.

When Helms finally resigned as ambassador, he told colleagues at the embassy that he was leaving "to make some money." Not long afterward, he quietly opened a consulting firm in Washington for the ostensible for foreign interests seeking to do business in the United States. He called his firm "Safeer," the Iranian word for "ambassador.

His biggest spending client - you guessed it — was Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi. One of Helms' assignments was to find a suitable state for the shah in the Virginia countryside. Helms submitted appraisals of five palatial, multimillion-dollar estates. This message was received about one of them: "I think the shah would really enjoy this estate," with a description of the antique and classical furniture

CASE NO. 4 - Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., a power on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, became one of the Senate's most stalwart champions of the shah. After the shah was ousted and condemned to death by the new revolutionary government, Javits helped push through a Senate resolution assailing the shah's death sentence.

This Senate resolution, according to Iranian souces, helped to persuade Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini that the United States was unalterably committed to the shah, thus heightening the distrust and hostility that precipitated the Iranian crisis.

Back in 1974, the senator's wife. Marion Javits, quietly signed on as a $67,500 public relations consultant to Iran Air. Confidential papers show that the shah's aides considered this a cover for a pro-shah lobbying effort. The papers note, among other political observations, her husband's 'great influence" in the Senate.

The papers indicate that the shah shelled out $507,000 to the senator's wife. This not only is far more than she acknowledged receiving, but she also disclaims knowledge of any intent to use her as a lobbyist. She looked upon her work for the shah strictly as cultural and commercial, she said. But she resigned after the press exposed her financial ties to the Footnote: Both Rogers and Helms had "no comment." Kissinger denied that the Rockefeller-shah financial ties ever influenced his foreign policy judgments. He had no knowledge of their business dealings, he said at the time of the 1974 price negotiations.

INSIDE REPORT:

Iraq's Baathist socialists no longer outlaws of Arab world

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

BAGHDAD, Iraq - In the Mideast's political realignment forced by the Camp David accord, Iraq's hard-bitten leftist leaders are reaching for domination over the Persian Gulf's conservative oil monarchies a profound shift in the power balance of this vital strategic region.

Baghdad is no longer a backwater. and Irag's Baathist socialists are no longer outlaws of the Arab world. fortified financially by fabulous oil revenues and ideologically by Baathist dogma of Arab unity, the Iraqis have partially achieved leadership over kings, sultans, emirs and sheiks on the Arabian peninsula. As for the future, Iraq's leaders consider these hereditary regimes rich, soft and unlikely to endure.

The rise of Iraq has been intensified by Iran's disappearance as a coherent political and strategic force. But the heart of Iraq's new eminence is Camp David. Instead of being isolated for rejecting the Israeli-Egyptian accord, Iraq has replaced Egypt as the Arab pacesetter.

That new dominance distresses U.S. officials, who refer to Iraq's leaders as "a band of thugs" and contend their centralized socialist bungling has been redeemed only by bountiful oil money. Yet, it is U.S. sponsorship of Camp David that not only freezes U.S.-Iraqi relations but enables Iraq to expand its influence. President Sadam Hyssein, the Iraqi general who this year added titular to longtime actual power, would like to assume the radical Arab leadership exercised in the 1960s by Egypt's Nasser. He may have an older role model: Saladin, reputedly born in the same town as Sadam Hussein. Just as Saladin expelled European Christian crusaders, so does Iraq's strongman seek to extinguish Western "imperialist" vestiges - especially Israel.

This has enabled Baghdad to supplant Cairo in Arab leadership. But the new collaboration with the gulf states in rejecting Camp David is not viewed as permanent by Iraq. "We now have Arab 'solidarity," Tariq Aziz, a deputy prime minister and leading Baathist theoritician told us. "but this is not Arab 'unity.' That will come when all the Arab states have similar political, economic and social Since Iraq obviously will not copy Saudi Arabia and the gulf emirates, Tariq Aziz wants them to be "similar" to Iraq. How? "By internal forces," he replied, quickly adding that Baathist socialists in these countries will be helped by Baghdad. Baathist socialist - revolutionary but anti-communist, Islamic but radi-- is backed by Iraq's 300,000man, Soviet-equipped armed forces, now the area's strongest. Despite Iraq's "solidarity" with the Arab neighbors, Baghdad is viewed with concern by the hereditary states. Kuwait, rich and weak, particularly worries about unsettled Iraqi border claims.

Worry they might, considering the historial determinism privately expressed by one influential Iraqi in describing the gulf states, including Saudi Arabia: "These are weak regimes. They live on the surface of life. They are so rich that, really, they are abnormally rich. They cannot survive this way." Iraq, wielding a dynamic ideology, exudes a political self-confidence lacking in the gulf. Iraqi officials point to differences between using oil revenue to finance private London spending sprees or to subsidize Arab revolution. Thus, while gulf states cut back oil production, Iraq's leaders want no reduction (though technical factors may slightly cut levels here).

Iraq's oil reserves, second only to Saudi Arabia, are a trump card against Egypt's chronically ailing economy. The Baathist slogan here: While Egypt needs the Arab world, the Arab world does not need Egypt.' Iraqi officials chortle that Egyptian immigrants pour into the prosperous entity." "If every other Arab state recognizes Israel," one Western diplomat predicted to us, "the Baathists here would still say 'no, never." Baghdad, not Cairo, would be in isola-

The future of the gulf and all its oil, then, is linked irrevocably, along with everything else that matters in the Mideast, to Israel. If Baghdad's revolutionary thrust toward the gulf worries Washington, it is U.S. policy at and after Camp David that has fueled the rise of Iraq.

Rotterdam blaze kills 11

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) - Fire gutted a three-story house in Rotterdam early today, killing 10 relatives and a boarder, police said. The dead were a woman, her two daughters and their six children, a nephew, and a man who lived by himself on the first floor of the house.

Police said rescue efforts were hampered by treacherous ice on the roofs of adjoining houses. The cause of the fire was under investigation.

Twentieth Century-Fox Studios names Sherry Lansing productions president

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sherry Lansing, senior production executive for the movies "China Syndrome" and "Kramer vs. Kramer," is the new productions president at Twentieth Century-Fox.

The appointment of Ms. Lansing, 35, to the position was the latest in a series of top level changes at Fox since the departure of Alan Ladd Jr. as president of the film division last July.

Alan Hirschfeld, the company's vice chairman and chief operating officer, announced the move Tues-day, saying Ms. Lansing will be responsible for the production and development of all Fox feature films

She replaces Sandy Lieberson who resigned last month. Lieberson was a vice president when Ladd resigned, and took over many of his responsibi-

Hirschfield said that Ms. Lansing "brings to us an ability to attract and relate to the creative filmmakers who are so critical to the success of a major studio today." She will report directly to Dennis C. Stanfill, Fox's board chairman and chief executive officer.

Ms. Lansing recently left Columbia Pictures after serving as senior vice president of production since 1978. She had joined the company as vice president of production in November 1977.

Texas traffic toll far below estimate

By The Associated Press

At least 29 persons have died on Texas roads and highways since the grim holiday count began, but the total was still far below the Department of Public Safety estimate for the 102-hour period that ended at midnight Tuesday.

DPS officials, using statistics from past years and current trends, predicted 56 persons would be killed on Texas highways during the holiday weekend.

The DPS put every available trooper on duty and emphasized keeping drunken drivers off the roads, said DPS spokesman Richard Grimmett. A final count on the total number of Texas highway fatalities was expected before sometime U.S. road deaths

By The Associated Press

Traffic accidents during the four-day New Year's weekend took 477 lives — a toll exceeding advance estimates by the National Safety Council.

The highest toll for a New Year's weekend of the same length was 481 in 1969.

The safety council had estimated 360 to 440 persons might die on the nation's streets and highways between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Tues-

During a non-holiday weekend of the same length at this time of the year, 480 deaths could be expected, the council said.

A year ago, 355 people were killed during a three-day holiday period.

The record New Year's weekend toll was 564

Golden Gate Park attracting larger, noiser crowd

By PHILIP HAGER The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO - For more than a century, Golden Gate Park has been San Francisco's pre-eminent outdoor refuge - undeniably among the best, if not the best, urban parks in the

Now more than ever, its lush meadows, winding trails and groves of cypress, pine and eucalyptus offer precious moments of escape to hikers, cyclists, runners, picnickers, horsemen, birdwatchers, concertgoers and countless others.

But this easily accessible, 1,017acre retreat in the west part of the city is also showing disturbing signs of decline. The park, once the shelter for thousands who fled the 1906 earthquake and fire, is revealing its age its deterioration accelerated by neglect and overuse.

Budget cutbacks have seriously affected the park's maintenance and an unprecedented private fund drive has been launched just to acquire shovels, rakes, tree pruners and other tools for its ordinary upkeep.

"We've done a lot of budgetary 'pulling in' with the park - but we're 'pulled in' as tight as we can go," said Amy Meyer, vice president of the city's Recreation and Park Commission. "The whole Bay Area region uses this park...People need a resource like this in and near their community.

The drive to save the park is underscored by a growing realization here of its importance as a community asset - particularly in an energyconscious era when more and more people will be seeking recreation closer to home.

"I just can't imagine people accepting a decline in the quality of their park," said Michael Painter, a landscape architect who serves as president of a volunteer group called Friends of Recreation and Parks. 'Certainly in these times, the opportunity for free - or at least, low-cost - recreation gets more important all the time.

The signs of the park's decline are diverse. For example:

-Its dense forests, showing their age, are beset by disease and decay. According to a recent survey by the state Department of Forestry, of its 33,342 trees, nearly one-fifth are in 'poor, dying or dead condition" - a ratio that officialssay is "very high" for parks. Insect damage is common and large branches have been falling serious hazzard.

-Garbage and litter have gone uncollected for days, restrooms and other facilities have been vandalized repeatedly and routine maintenance and gardening tasks postponed in the absence of a sufficient work force and adequate equipment. In some instances, gardeners have been required to postpone their work to go clean up after litter bugs.

-Traffic congestion has worsened as commuters from the suburbs park their cars along park roadways, then take public transit to work. Large numbers enter the park to take advantage of its museums, lakes, playgrounds, gardens, concert halls and other attractions. In four months, 1.4 million persons came to see the King Tut exhibit at the de Young Museum, reducing the grass on the museum concourse to dust.

-The relative serenity that prevails in the park has been jolted by a massive onslaught of roller skaters along its main thoroughfares. As many as 25,000 skaters - many armed with radios and tape-recorders - have emerged in the park on Sunday afternoons, causing a wave of protests not only from strollers, cyclists and nature lovers but also from residents of nearby neighborhoods bothered by the skaters' blaring

Such clashes among competing interests have intensified the problem of overuse, in the view of recreation and park officials.

"There's big conflict over what the park should be for," said Deborah Learner, coordinator of the park department's master plan program. 'On one side you have the concept of the park as a sea of tranquility, a chance to get out into the woods and forget your cares. Now, on the other side, you have a departure from the original intent of the park - with disco roller skating being the height

The area that is now the park was once part of an area known in the 1950s as the "outside lands," much of it consisting of windswept sand dunes near the Pacific Ocean. After the city won title to a portion of the area, the board of supervisors invited Frederick Law Olmstead, the designer of New York's Central Park, to inspect the site. Olmstead took one look at the barren shifting sands and recommended the city look for an alternative location.

Nonetheless, the board went ahead with its plan and in 1870 the state Legislature passed a bill establishing Golden Gate Park. Through the years, the park prospered, despite continuing problems with drifting sand and maintaining an adequate water supply. In 1894, 2.5 million people visited the park in the California midwinter fair, helping establish what is now its worldwide reputation.

The Music Concourse and the Japanese Tea Garden, popular attractions at the fair, were retained permanently for the park.

But now, as the park department's Learner points out, the park's fragile environs are beginning to suffer from increasing urban pressures - overuse, congestion and vandalism. "You'll find trash and broken glass everywhere," she said.

Beyond that, the park is simply suffering from old age. Many of the trees planted before the turn of the century have reached the end of their lifetimes. Maintenance equipment is outdated, worn out and in short supply. The park's antiquated, inefficient irrigation system needs to be recon-

Officials, responding to increasing demands for action, have prepared plans for new parking restrictions and have considered seeking alternative locations for weekend roller skat-

But their biggest need, they say, is for more funds to support the park. In the wake of the property tax-cutting Proposition 13, the park's annual budget actually dropped to $3.6 million this year from $3.9 million last year. Gardening and maintenance jobs have gone unfilled.

The city is seeking federal and state aid for the park but the price tag for restoration will be high. A projected 25-year reforestation plan for example, would cost at least $6 million, according to officials.

Meanwhile, private efforts to help save the park have been intensified. Friends of Recreation and Parks recently financed a $400,000 rehabilitation of Children's Playground - and saw the playground's use quickly

Americans, Chinese like longtime friends

By JOHN RODERICK

PEKING (AP) - After 12 months of formal diplomatic relations, Americans and Chinese treat each other more like old friends than longtime enemies — even though there have been ups and downs since last New Year's Day when Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping raised his glass to toast the new Sino-American era in California champagne.

Some major issues remain to be resolved at the official level between Washington and Peking, but 1980 is seen by both sides as a year of prom-ise, one in which Chinese-American trade will make its delayed takeoff and the process of normalization will be brought to a conclusion.

Textile, maritime and air-travel agreements are still hanging and the Chinese are not entirely happy over Nationalist Taiwan, which they claim

The piece which has not yet been fitted into the puzzle is the Chinese-American trade agreement. In the first flush of recognition, the two countries signed cultural, educational, science and postal agreements.

But the trade pact proved a knotty one, largely because the Chinese couldn't understand why it had to contain so much technical language. Finally, and still not quite convinced, they signed it in July with a U.S. promise that it would be acted upon speedily by Congress.

The new relations went through some dark days when the Carter administration held it up at the insistence of some advisers wishing to link it to the Soviet trade agreement. Each contains a vital clause which would make it more profitable to sell goods to the United States.

It took a China visit by Vice President Walter Mondale in September to clear the air. His pledge to get the bill moving in Congress, combined with a $2 billion credit, wiped the frown from Chinese faces.

One of the consequences of normalization is a mad rush by thousands of Chinese to get visas for study or visits to the United States.

Chinese eager to see relatives separated for 30 or more years line up as early as 3 a.m. at the U.S. Embassy to apply for visas. A large backlog is piling up, delaying the day of departure for many.

To alleviate the logiam, and make room for a staff doubled from 30 to 60

since January, the United States has asked the government for new buildings, or land on which to build. So far, there has been no result.

One of the lesser problems which also has stirred up a bit of heat in the new association is that of human rights. Committed to a policy of human rights, the Carter administra-tion expressed shock at the 15-year sentence given human-rights activist Wei Jingsheng in October.

All these issues and others now are being more fully reported because of the presence of U.S. news correspondents in Peking and Chinese reporters in Washington.

There were these other happenings over the past year of renewed American-Chinese friendship:

The advent of Madison Avenue in the People's Republic. Billboards and newspaperss now advertise a wide range of products, among them Kodak, Xerox and Marlborough ciga-

-Charlie Chan, Gregory Peck and Julie Andrews have become national stars as "golden oldies" of Hollywood are shown for the first time.

-The invasions, all baffling, of Bob Hope (the Chinese hadn't heard of him), Muhammad Ali (boxing doesen't exist), and Art Buchwald (China has no humor columns). —The triumphal receptions of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, violinists Isaac Stern and Yehudi Menuhin, and in other venues, a professional woman's softball team, as well as pro and amateur basketball teams. American tourists and businessmen, often hard to tell one from the other, fought for reservations on crowded planes and trains, doubled up in second-rate hotels, but emerged happily, with trophies from prosper-ing Friendship Stores. The biggest trophy was an entire Soochow rock garden, acquired in replica by Mrs. Vincent Astor for the Metropolitan Museum in New York. Carried away by it all the other day, a dignified Chinese official of exalted rank rose to propose a farewell toast to his new American friends.

"Down the hatch!" he cried. End Adv PMs Mon Dec. 31.

New air terminal to open, begin serving Peking travelers

By JOHN RODERICK

PEKING (AP) - China takes a giant step toward the age of the jumbo jet today. It is opening a new $32 million air terminal for Peking.

Gaulle Airport in Paris, the terminal is built to handle 1,500 passengers an hour in contrast to a maximum of 4,000 in an entire day at the old terminal next door

Two 8,400-foot runways are designed to receive wide-bodied jets. but officials showing the terminal to a group of foreign reporters could not say when they would begin to fly into the Chinese capital on a regular

China will receive three jumbo jets from the Boeing Co. in Seattle in February. The jumbo jets of other international airlines are expected to be using the airport at that time.

The terminal reflects nothing of a political nature, unlike the old terminal, which is dominated by a giant painting on its outside of the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

The motif of the new terminal is a series of panels and murals that center around China's minorities and spectacular nature scenes. One mural of the water-splashing festival of the Thai minority depicts a graceful Designed by Chinese architects and engineers, the airport will use landing equipment purchased abroad.

Begun in December, 1974, at the suggestion of the late Premier Chou En-lai, the terminal has 60,000 square feet of floor space, about four times that of the old one.

It has a basement and three floors nd its fixtures are modern but rious.

At the outset, both domestic and international flights will be using the new building even though the control tower will continue for a while in the old one. Eventually, the old will service domestic flights only. Things will be on a trial-and-error basis," said an airport official. "It will take us a while to get the operation running smoothly.'

Pilots using the new runways already have encountered a problem. It turned out to be too smooth, making it slippery, and had to be made rough with the technical help of Japan Air Lines. A similar problem exists within the terminal where marble floors make walking somewhat hazardous.

Another is that heated hangars for servicing planes have not yet been constructed. Work has just begun on them.

A smaller blemish was noted by a Cuban correspondent. He noted that his native island was depicted, on the time map, upside down.
A hotel of 300 beds, already in operation, is part of the airport complex. A bus service, taxis, and eventually a subway, will connect the airport to central Peking, 18 miles away.

Midland College to resume Adult Basic Education classes Free adult education classes re- directed by Jean Schwisow, is open

It's not too early to plan tax return

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Federal income tax forms are appearing in mailboxes along with post-Christmas bills, and employers soon will be handing out W-2 slips, signaling the approach of April 15.

The tax deadline may seem a long way off, but it's not too early to start thinking about your return — particu-larly if you expect a refund. The earlier you mail in the forms, the sooner you will get your money. The first thing to decide is whether you want to prepare your own return. The Internal Revenue Service regularly reviews the forms in an effort to make them easier to understand, but studies show that many people still find the paperwork too confusing.

The IRS will do all the calculations for you if you use the short form -1040A - or if your adjusted gross income on the long form -1040 — is under $20,000 and you meet certain other conditions. In all other cases, however, you have to complete the return before you send it in.

If your financial life is relatively simple - if most of your income, for example, comes from wages and the tax has been withheld by your employer — you should be able to handle the job yourself.

If, however, you have complicated money matters by making a major purchase like a house, for example, or by getting married or divorced, you probably need help. (If you itemize deductions, the cost of the help usually can be deducted on the 1980 return you file in 1981.)

There are several sources of aid, including the IRS itself. You can call one of almost 60 toll-free IRS telephone numbers or visit one of the nearly 1,000 agency offices. There is no charge. As a general rule, the IRS will not actually fill out your return for you. IRS employees will, however, answer questions about the rules and regulations and can provide help with arithmetic problems.

There is no guarantee that the answers you get from the IRS will be correct. According to "Help: The Indispensable Almanac - 1980," an IRS survey found that the agency's tax preparers made mistakes on more than three out of four returns checked. A similar error rate was found for other experts, including professional and commercial tax pre-

There are several types of commercial and professional tax preparers. The most widely used are the national tax services like H&R Block. Training programs vary widely and so do error rates. Ask about the educational experience of employees and whether the office is open throughout the Local tax services are often parttime operations that open in February or March and disappear after April 15. They may be less expensive than national services, but they may not be available to handle complaints or problems after the filing deadline.

Certified public accountants -CPAs - have the most training and undergo the strictest testing. They are more expensive than tax services, with fees running anywhere from $25 an hour on up, but you may find them worth the price if you have a particularly complex return. Unlike commercial tax preparers, CPAs are allowed to represent you before the Internal Revenue Service. By law, anyone who prepares your return for you must give you a completed copy of the return. He - or she - also must keep, for three years, copies of all returns or a list of taxpayers for whom returns were prepared. The copies or list must be available for IRS inspection. The preparer must sign all returns and must include on each one his identification number or that of his employer. Beware of any tax preparer who guarantees you a refund in advance, suggests that you lie on your return, or tells you to sign a partially com-pleted form. Be careful, too, of someone who offers you an "instant" refund; it is usually nothing more than a loan and you have to pay interest on it - often at a high rate.
