Independents plan to pull trucks out of capital today

WASHINGTON (AP) - Independent oil producers planned to pull their trucks out of the city today, leaving lobbying as the only remaining activity in their protest against the proposed "windfall" profits tax.

Bud Stewart of Muskogee, Okla., said the demonstrators decided to drive about 40 pump trucks and other vehicles past the White House on Wednesday 'just to show we're in town and to acquaint the people of the capital with what real oil field equipment looks like."

Hand-lettered signs on the trucks proclaimed "Kill Unfair Tax" and "Let Us

The independents, who decided to come to Washington without the participation of their major trade associations, scheduled a meeting today with about a ozen legislators in place of an outdoor rally originally on their schedule.

They are seeking an exemption from the tax for the first 1,000 barrels a day produced by an independent operator, claiming a tax would serve only to discourage domestic production. 'I'm not saying we won't make any money, period (if the tax passes)," Oklahoma state Rep. Charlie Morgan of Prague said. "What we're saying is we're going to have the premature plugging of numerous wells in this country. The Senate passed the exemption sponsored by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, but it was removed when a conference committee compromised between House and Senate versions to produce the proposed $227.7 billion tax bill.

The bill is designed to reclaim part of the revenue going to oil producers as a result of President Carter's decision to lift price controls from domestic produc-

Bud Wright, a petroleum engineer from Portland, Texas, said he came to Washington to support increased domestic production because false reports have predicted its decline since 1912.

'We ought to have incentives by our government to drill for American oil," he Leaders of the protest, sparked by Oklahomans, have claimed about 400-500 persons from at least seven states traveled to Washington for the event.

Wednesday, Oklahoma State Rep. Charles Morgan, owner of a Prague oil well service firm and an organizer of the protest against the windfall profits tax bill, met with Energy Secretary Charles Duncan.

He said while Duncan didn't make any firm commitments, Morgan got the impression he was sympathetic.

Morgan wants the administration to urge Congress to reject the windfall profits tax bill, so better provisions for independents can be in-

However, R. Dobie Langekamp, deputy assistant secretary of energy, said it would be a little unrealistic at this late date to expect the administration to press Congress to reopen the compromise which has been fa-

'windfall" tax more acceptable to the oil industry.

Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, seeks to send the bill back to a Senate-House conference committee to exempt from the tax the first 1,000 barrels of oil pumped each day by an independent producer. Backers of the bill say such a move, if successful, probably would kill the tax.

'This would be the one positive factor in what is basically a negative bill for increasing energy supply," Archer said. The compromise measure already provides for lower tax rates for independents, which drill most of the nation's exploratory oil and gas wells. The bill survived an earlier GOP-led assault Wednesday by a 232-180

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the House ready for a final vote, Republicans are leading a last-ditch attempt to make President Carter's proposed a vote on an amendment to let an oil producer escape most of the new tax by re-investing profits in energy exploration or production.

Approval of the compromise tax bill today would send the measure to the Senate for final congressional action next week.

The bill is a major part of Carter's energy program, which, in turn, is a basic element in his plan for fighting inflation. The tax is designed to win political acceptance of Carter's program to phase out federal price controls on U.S. crude oil. He has begun decontrol to provide greater incentives for increased domestic production which, in turn, would reduce reliance on imported oil. The compromise tax worked out by a Senate-House conference committee would cost the oil industry an estimated $227.7 billion in the 1980 When combined with existing state and federal taxes, the new tax would leave the industry about $221 billion of the $1 trillion decontrol is expected to cost consumers during the decade.

The tax would take from 30 percent to 70 percent of each future price increase above last year's levels. The House spent most of Wednesday debating how to spend the $227.7 billion. The lawmakers finally agreed to keep the non-binding formula worked out by the conferees.

That sets aside 60 percent of the money, or $137 billion, for possible income-tax reductions during the 1980s. Twenty-five percent would be earmarked for helping low-income Americans pay rising fuel costs.

'Door still open,' says Vance

U. N. panelists optimistic hostages will be freed

By the Associated Press

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance says "the door is still open" for U.N. efforts to help free the American hostages in Tehran. And two members of the U.N. investigating commission express optimism despite their failure to see the captives in the U.S. Embassy.

"The door is still open and I will be keeping in touch with the secretary-general," Vance said as he left for meeting at U.N. headquarters in New York with Kurt Waldheim and the five members of the investigating Another official of the Carter administration said earlier: "We have no false expectations about the chances the commission can do something positive. But we have no very desirable options either." Vance said he felt the work of the commission — which spent 17 days in Washington Wednesday night after Tehran investigating the revolutionary regime's charges against the ousted shah and trying in vain to see the hostages - was useful, but he declined to say what it might do

> "I am counseling patience," he de-clared. "I believe that this is the best course to follow. As I indicated, the door is not closed, and I think we should continue to pursue this opgerian U.N. Ambassador Mohamed Bedjaoui, said, "I am optimistic, and we have some reasons," but he de-clined to elaborate. Another member, Louis-Edmond Petitti of France said, We are full of hope."

Today was the 131st day of captivity for the approximately 50 Americans held by young Moslem militants in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Waldheim and the U.S. government hoped that in return for listening to the Iranian regime's recital of evidence of the shah's alleged crimes, the commis-sion would at least be allowed to see all the hostages and that the publication of the panel's report would be followed speedily by the release of the

These hopes were torpedoed on Monday by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolution, who endorsed the refusal of the young militants to permit the meeting except on terms rejected by the U.N. commission. The commission left Tehran and with Waldheim said it would issue no report until it was allowed to return and see the cap-

Meanwhile, Khomeini had said the new Iranian parliament being elected Friday and on April 4 would decide the fate of the hostages, and President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and other leading officials said the legislators would not be organized to take up the matter before mid-May.

Small amounts of money left over by the six participants in the Single Family Mortgage Finance Program will be combined and given to one participant to get the maximum usage of the $35 million.

Partly cloudy, warmer in Friday's forecast

It'll be fair tonight, and Friday should dawn partly cloudy and a little warmer, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Tonight's low temperature is expected to drop into the upper 30s. But on Friday the mercury should climb into the lower 70s, the weatherman said.

The winds that were expected to blow out of the northwest at 10-15 mph today are predicted to become light and variable tonight.

Wednesday's high temperature was 72 degrees, far short of the record high reading for that date of 88 degrees, set in 1967.

This morning's low reading was 31 degrees — barely freezing, but much warmer than the record low 14-degree reading for this date set in 1932.

Eternal life is in Him, and this life gives light to all mankind.

His life is the light that shines through the darkness—and the darkness can never extinguish it.

God sent John the Baptist as a witness to the fact that Jesus Christ is the true Light

John himself was not the Light; he was only a witness to identify it.

Later on, the one who is the true Light arrived to shine on everyone coming into the world.

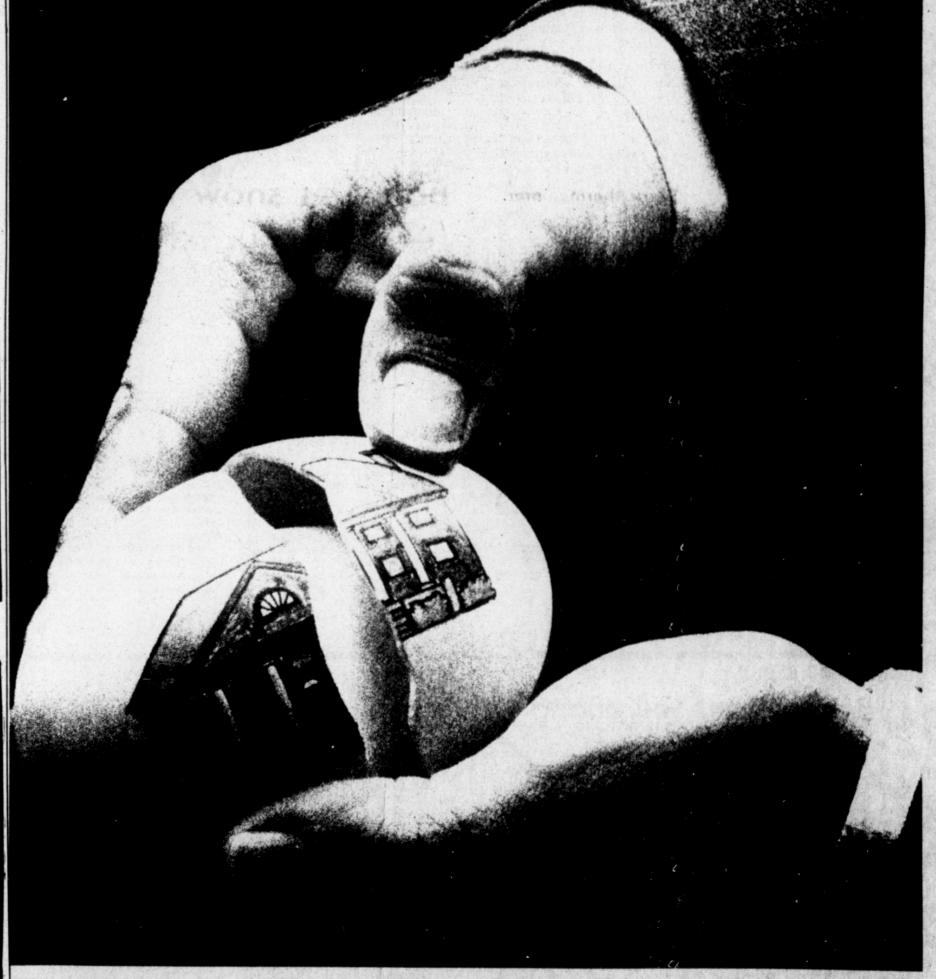

But although He made the world, the world didn't recognize Him when He came.

Even in His own land and among His own people, the Jews, He was not accepted. Only a few would welcome and receive Him. But to all who received Him, He gave the right to become children of God. All they needed to do was to trust Him to save them.

Time to ban the ban

The inflexibility of a federal law which requires the Food and Drug Administration to seek an absolute ban on substances found to cause cancer in laboratory animals is difficult to understand.

JAMES N. ALLISON (1902-1975)

The absurdity of that requirement was brought to light when it was determined that saccharin, an artificial sweetener used by many millions of Americans including diabetics, caused cancer in laboratory animals.

It was in 1977 when Canadian tests detected a relationship between saccharin and bladder cancer in laboratory rats. Under the federal law, the FDA was required to ban the suspected car-

It wasn't until a short time later that some bright bureaucrat realized the potential tragedy that awaited if saccharin was pulled out of the market.

Millions of individuals who rely on the substance to make their lives a little more pleasant virtually would have been left without a sugar substitute had the ban been effected.

But Congress, aroused by the cries of outrage from diabetics and others who depend on saccharin, blocked the ban ordered by the FDA.

Now we've learned more about saccharin and our new-found knowledge once again points up the need to revise the federal law requiring the Food and Drug Ad- charin, could create more health ministration to ban substances

The new information was gleaned from two studies, one conducted by researchers at Harvard University, which have failed to establish any link between consumption of saccharin and the incidence of bladder cancer in humans.

The validity of those tests is emphasized by the fact that nine previous studies on the effects of saccharin reached similar conclu-

Certainly we have given the federal government the responsibility of — in effect — protecting us from ourselves in respect to dangerous foods and drugs. That isn't a responsibility that's to be taken lightly, otherwise it would be a worthless power.

But it's also ridiculous to require the FDA to absolutely ban any substance that causes cancer

More information is needed. We need to know more about the applicability of animal tests to human beings.

Until we have that information in hand we should give the Food and Drug Administration something more than just the authority to seek absolute bans.

That type of inflexibility, as ilthe Canadian test results on sacproblems than it might prevent.

Oil price increases demand careful study

WASHINGTON — A lot of people are starting to get suspicious that the price of gasoline and oil in this country bears no relation to what is really going on in the OPEC countries.

This, of course, is not true. The oil companies have a very scientific method of computing fuel costs and are extremely careful in justifying every price increase in their fuel.

This is how one oil company does it, and I'm sure the others follow similar

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Canadian crime lords basking in Florida

WASHINGTON - South Florida and its Latino-flavored capital, Miami, have long been a mecca for tourists and pensioners seeking escape from the winter cold of the Northeast and Midwest. But beneath the tropical sun, the swaying palm trees and the rococo glitter of boomtown Miami, there's an ugly, cold-eyed underworld that skims its multibillion-dollar profits from the city's prosperity. Narcotics, prostitution, currency laundering and smuggling are the principal sources of this illicit wealth. For a price, you can get just about anything you might lustrated by the initial reaction to want in Miami — from the acquisition nation of an unwanted one.

While Chicago and New York mobsters have been baking in South Florida's sunshine — and raking in illegal cash — since the days of Al Capone, a new element of organized crime has been quietly moving into the area in recent years from farther north. Canadian syndicate members have found a happy hunting ground in Miami and other South Florida communities.

A confidential intelligence report prepared by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement a little over a year ago offered this ominous picture of the Canadian Connection:

'Based on economic conditions in Canada, Florida can expect a tremendous increase in Canadian crime activities." Though most of the organized-crime activity is still concentrated in northern Dade County and southern Broward County, the report predicted that "it is likely the Canadian criminal influence will expand to St. Petersburg, which is also a favorite vacation spot of legitimate Canadi-

A CHANGING WORLD:

Brian Grant will change your mind about young people

By JOHN PINKERMAN Copley News Service

When members of the older generation protest that "young people just aren't any good anymore," they have not had the refreshing experience of knowing 20-year-old Brian Grant of Norristown, Pa. And, when Onalee McGraw, nationally famous author and family relations authority, decries what she calls the decline of family values, she hasn't met Brian's parents, sisters, brother, grandfather and "my uncle in Pensacola.

Brian is 6-foot-2, a football and basketball player with a keen interest in attending the U.S. Naval Academy or at least finding the proper path to a career as a Navy pilot. I met this young man at Grand Canyon National Park amid pouring rain, snow, fog and clouds that were too low to permit me to complete a news assignment and still fly out safely - the only two airlines simply wouldn't risk flying.

Brian and I were on the same canyon west rim bus tour (on which we could see almost nothing because of fog) and I noted the problem of flying out to Las Vegas and on to Palm Springs. Without hesitation the 20-year-old said to the 66-year-old, "Why don't you ride with me? I'm on my way to San Diego.

I accepted the invitation with gratitude, then proceeded to enjoy 10 consecutive hours as Brian skillfully maneuvered his car through snow, sleet, occasionally flooded highways and plenty of mud.

Those 10 hours were as illuminating and educational as any I have ever spent. Brian was most interested in talking about his family but I was able to draw from him some facts about himself. He is a young man out of high school aiming to "look over California colleges as possibilities." He has worked as part of a road gang on highway construction, as a supermarket clerk, as a gas station attendant "where I learned all kinds of things about both cars and people" and he has had his own wood business - getting a U.S. Forest Service permit, cutting dead trees, splitting the sections and doing his own market-

He is a sports fan. "Oh, you're a football fan, too," he said. "That's great. My father and I love to go see the (Philadelphia) Eagles, and we watch the Flyers in hockey and the Seventy-Sixers in basketball — but I really like college basketball bet-

Perhaps I appeared as the grandfather type, as Brian frequently talked of important things he had learned from his granddad and from his uncle, a former Navy man living in Pensacola, Fla. Although away from home only five days at the time I met him on his cross-country adventure, he was homesick for "my little brother" (age 13). And, he was a combined version of being homesick and having consideration for others.

"Gee, I called my mom last night (St. Valentine's Day) and it was great. And, I talked with my grandmother on her birthday the day be-Also, he kept asking the time during our trip, wanting to phone his father "when I know he'll be home from work" as a construction engineer. "And, I guess I'd better call my sister in Sacramento so she'll know I'm OK and will be up to see her." Brian deplores the use of pot by young people and doesn't smoke or drink. He is one with his head square on his shoulders: He keeps his car in topflight state of maintenance, keeps records on both the cost of his trip and on interesting sights encountered, even jumping out of the car at a traffic light to photograph a Palm Springs sign reading "Bob Hope Drive." He has a special gadget in his car that will thwart potential auto thieves.

Personal observation persuades me forcefully that Brian is a model young man and it would do a lot of good for other youths — and parents — to know him. I have never met his parents but 10 hours with their son persuades me just as forcefully that Mr. and Mrs. Grant know the value of family life and how to bring up their children, despite the pessimistic views of family-relations expert McGraw.

If there still is any doubt on your mind about Brian let me inform you that about midway in our 10-hour drive, he decided he would not take me directly to San Diego as would be best for him, then let me find my way

Palm Springs. He decided to take a detour and did - depositing me within 15 feet of where my car was parked at the Palm Springs airport.
To my protests, he said, "Why not?

I've enjoyed your company." And, to crown this generosity, he offered to put the chains on my car, not realizing they would wear out by the time I reached mountain-level snow en route to my 5,300-foot-level home. And, as for payment for rescuing me from being marooned at the Grand Canyon, he was adamant about taking nothing and truly embarrassed when I forced bling - and the comparative youth of their members. Most are in their 30s and 40s. The confidential report concludes that "with the intensity of present activity it can be predicted that Canadian groups may soon rival the degree of influence (exerted) by the U.S. La Cosa Nostra families operating in Florida." Footnote: One interesting racket the Canadians are mixed up in is the smuggling of Italian aliens from Canada to work in pizza parlors through-out Florida. The Italians then marry

U.S. citizens to stay in this country.

OLYMPIC OUTPOURING: Although Jimmy Carter serenely insists he has the full support of the American people for a boycott of the summer Olympics in Moscow, the U.S. Olympic Committee reports that its mail shows a decided list in favor of U.S. participation.

The upset victory of the U.S. hockey team over the Russians at Lake Placid seems to have inspired many of the letter writers. They reason that the best way to punish the Soviets for their aggression in Afghanistan would be to send the strongest possible U.S. team to the summer games, in the expectation of besting the Russian athletes on their own turf. The committee also reports that direct-mail contributions are coming in at roughly twice the rate of a year ago - though of course donations would be expected to increase in an Olympic year. The committee conceded that some members of the public seem to be responding to the president's boycott call by not sending

Congress seeks U.N. vote answers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Refusing to give Congress internal details, the Carter administration says a public inquiry on the U.S. vote for a United Nations resolution condemning Israel's settlement policies might hurt Mideast peace negotiations.

The State Department said Wednesday that President Carter "cannot" comply with a proposed resolution demanding details on his consultations on the vote because of executive privilege.

And it said the resolution demanding the information would not serve negotiations now under way in Carter's "search for peace in the Middle

"We feel strongly that this unfortunate episode should not be allowed to undermine these negotiations," Assistant Secretary of State J. Brian Atwood told the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

At the urging of its chairman, Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., the committee agreed to delay action on the resolution. Zablocki said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will be called later to give details in closed session. Later in the day, the State Department issued a statement saying the United States deplores a reported decision by Israel to expropriate 1,000 acres of Arab land near Jerusalem for new settlements. The land is within Jerusalem municipal boundaries established by Israel after the 1967 war. However, those boundaries never have been recognized by the United States and U.S. officials said the new statement is not meant to touch the Jerusalem issue. State Department spokesman Hodding Carter noted that the United States has long regarded the portions of Jerusalem captured by Israel in 1967 as occupied territory and taken the position that its future should be decided by "It is of the utmost importance to avoid any unilateral action which undermines these delicate negotiations or prejudges their outcome," spokesman Carter said. The March 1 United Nations vote that created the furor was on a resolution calling for Israel to dismantle its settlements in territory it has occupied since the 1967 Mideast war, including settlements in Jerusalem.

President Carter said two days later that the U.S. vote was a mistake stemming from an internal breakdown in communications and that U.S. policy toward Israel and the Middle East is unchanged. He said the United States had not intended to vote for the resolution unless all references to Jerusalem had been removed.

However, sponsors of the proposed congressional resolution said Congress must determine whether the vote was a mistake or — Carter's denial notwithstanding — a change in U.S policy.

Atwood said Carter cannot provide details on sensitive consultations on foreign relations because that is "a field entitled to the highest category of executive privilege."

Meanwhile, Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's national security adviser, said at a news conference that new procedures emphasizing written instructions are being adopted to prevent mistaken U.S. votes at the United

But Brzezinski told reporters it is impossible to totally avert mistaken votes "with formal arrangements," saying there might be circumstances in which urgent decisions have to be made by telephone.

'I cannot guarantee that fool-proof arrangements can be contrived to prevent this," he said, "but one way is to make certain that decisions are based, time permitting, on paper rather than on the telephone and that proper staffing, time allowing, is undertaken so that the necessary concurrences are

Moore spoke at the service in a hushed voice, without wearing the Lone Ranger's mask or the mask-like dark glasses he has used in recent public appearances. When cameramen approached after his eulogy, the 72-year-old Moore quickly put on the dark glasses.

Born Harold Jay Smith, he was given the nickname Silverheels by his grandfather because of his unusual high-kicking running style. An athletic 6-footer, he first came to Los Angeles in the early 1930s with a professional lacrosse team. When he turned to acting in 1938 he used the nickname professionally. His name was legally changed in 1971.

Tom Shelley, a long-time friend, business associate and part-time agent for Silverheels, said that after Silverheels suffered a stroke 51/2 years ago, "Three things kept him alive: His tenacious, warrior-like, fighting, full-blooded Mohawk spirit; his heart, the biggest part of him, and Mari, his wife."

- Robert S. Strauss, political operator nonpareil, has also served Jimmy Carter as a diplomat, honing skills he employed anew when accosted here by two prostitutes

Strauss, the president's campaign chairman, emerged from his limousine at campaign headquarters on the night of the Massachusetts and Vermont primaries and was solicited at once by a pair of streetwalkers.

STRAUSS had gone to the headquarters to hold a news conference on the New England primaries. But he hardly got to talk about the voting in Massachusetts and Vermont Reporters were more eager to talk about the international furore over Carter's disavowal of a U.S. vote for a U.N. resolution that condemned Israeli settlements on occupied Arab lands.

The campaign chief reported he first learned Monday about Jewish objections to the vote from Rep. Sidney R. Yates, D-Ill. Strauss said he immediately placed calls to Vice President Walter F. Mondale and to Hamilton Jordan, the White House staff chief.

Mondale returned Strauss' call and, within a few hours, Carter issued his now-celebrated statement branding the U.S. vote as a mistake.

Ford looking more like candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) — As four active candidates for the Republican presidential nomination ready for tonight's GOP debate in Chicago, the "phantom candidate," Gerald Ford, is carrying the party's attack on President Carter and talking like he wants to run. The former president, who delivered a biting attack on Carter's policies Wednesday night, accepted an invitation to meet today with the president at the White House.

"I don't know what he wants to discuss," Ford told reporters. "He asked me to come over, and I assume we'll talk about what he wants to talk about.'

The former president received a rousing reception when he told a GOP congressional fund-raising dinner that "this country is in deep, deep trouble," and that he is determined to drive Carter, the man who defeated him in 1976, from office.

"Carter must go," he said. "My soul, single purpose, politically or otherwise, is to get President Carter out of the White House and to replace him with a Republican president.

"The nation is in peril," he said. "The Carter policies are the villain. His economic program has been a disaster. His energy policies have been misguided and ineffective. His foreign policies have been contradictory, erratic and dangerous."

Ford earlier Wednesday conferred privately with his closest political advisers and said he will decide after next Tuesday's Illinois primary whether to challenge frontrunner Ronald Reagan for the nomination.

The four GOP contenders in tonight's debate are expected to have something to say about a potential Ford candidacy. They are Reagan, George Bush, John B. Anderson and Philip Crane.

Carter's chief Democratic rival, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, was also in Illinois today campaigning in Peoria the best chance of beating Carter in November. But he said the need to defeat Carter was so great that he would back any Republican nominee, including Reagan.

Just last week Ford, who has held a grudge against Reagan since their bitter primary battles in 1976, said he thought the former California governor was too conservative to beat

Reagan, who grabbed a strong lead in the Republican race with lopsided primary victories in Alabama, Georgia and Florida on Tuesday, said Wednesday that if Ford entered, it would draw votes from all GOP candidates. "I think I understand the strategy of those advising Ford to enter the primaries," Reagan said. "Then no one will have the delegates for a first-round victory." He discounted a recent ABC-Harris Poll that showed Ford as a stronger Republican candidate, saying an earlier Gallup Poll had shown him ahead of Ford.

Bush, discouraged by his triple loss to Reagan on Tuesday, said Ford's time has passed and he should stay on the sidelines.

He also vowed to confront Reagan on the issues in Illinois, where latest polls show him running third behind Anderson and Reagan.

Anderson has been campaigning in Illinois, his home state, for a week, skipping the southern primaries after scoring surprising second-place finishes to Bush in Massachusetts and to Reagan in Vermont. The three southern wins raised Reagan's delegate count to 167, with 998 needed for nomination by the Republicap National Convention in Detroit in July. Bush has 45 delegates and Anderson 13.

Carter, who defeated Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in he same three primaries, now has 283 delegates, with Ford told reporters he felt he had Democratic National Convention in New York in August. Kennedy has 145 delegates.

Carter has stayed home, refusing to campaign actively because of troubles in Iran and Afghanistan and is relying on campaign proxies.

Patrick Lucey, Kennedy's deputy campaign manager, said it is "entirely possible" that Kennedy will win a majority of the 179 Illinois delegates, although polls show Carter with a wide lead.

Ford, meanwhile, is flying to New York later today to address a dinner. He will return early Friday to his home in Rancho Mirage, Calif., to assess his chances of overhauling

To date, Ford doesn't seem to have received the broad-based support he said last week he would need to jump in. Republican governors cancelled a meeting here today intended to discuss a possible Ford candidacy, reportedly because of a poor response. The former president said after meeting with his political advisers Wednesday that he had not even made up his mind even privately about whether to run, but added, "I'm always an optimist in a political

Baker would be GOP's vice presidential nominee

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Sen. Howard Baker says he would accept the Republican Party's vice presidential nomination if it was offered by the GOP presidential nominee.

"Of course I would accept it," Baker, who dropped out of the race for the GOP presidential nomination week ago, said in a interview published in Thursday's editions of the Memphis Commercial Appeal. "Anyone in that position would be obliged to accept it," Baker said. "You'd be pretty damn hard put not

"But I will not campaign for it." Baker said he would not accept an offer to share the ticket with anyone while he was still a candidate for the nomination. The offer, he said, would have to come from the man Republicans eventually choose to head their

Faced with disappointing finishes in the early primary races and a mounting campaign debt, Baker withdrew from the presidential race March 5.

Questioned at the time about a possible vice presidential nomination, the Senate minority leader said he had a "disinclination for the vice presidency."

"I intend to do exactly what I think I should do, and that is to return to my duties as Republican leader of the Senate, to try to continue that group as an effective unit, to try to campaign for Republican senators and to gain control of the Senate," he said at

Baker said Wednesday he had not ruled out the possibility of endorsing a candidate for the GOP nomination. "But," he added, "I have no intention of doing so at this moment."

Home brew goes in tank as moonshining returns

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - The backwoods science of moonshining is coming back, this time in a grassroots, legal effort to beat the rising costs of common gasoline.

Farmers throughout the country are using or trying to use corn, wheat, potatoes, sugar beets, barley, oats and even watermelons to brew alco-

The modern moonshiners say that with little modification, any gasoline engine can run on alcohol. And they're not talking about the muchtouted gasohol, which is usually a mixture of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent high-proof alcohol.

They're talking about ethyl alcohol, as low as 150 proof, or about 25 per-

The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, which used to chase moonshiners through southern hills and swamps, is now apologizing for the red tape necessary to set up private

Federal regulations permit backyard distillers who post a $100 bond to make up to 2,500 gallons a year, but they cannot sell or give away the alcohol and must add other liquid gases to it to render it undrinkable. Any brew that leaves the still in drinkable form is taxed at $10.50 a

ATF spokesman Howard Criswell said no fuel distillers have been arrested so far for failing to denature their brew: "People who are getting producing fuel."

By the end of February, the government had issued 2,200 special permits to distill fuel, nearly all of them to individual farmers.

A national alcohol fuels hotline in Colorado reports it is taking 300 calls a day with requests for information. Each caller gets a book called "Fuel From Farms.

Several companies are selling stills or equipment to build them.

A North Carolina-based national magazine, Mother Earth News, says its alcohol fuel seminars in the Midwest and South have attracted up to 1,000 people per session. The magazine has sold thousands of alcohol fuel kits at $45 each, including a "motor permits for stills are serious about fuels cookbook," chemicals and plans for a wood-burning still.

Richard Freudenberger, associate editor of the 850,000-circulation magazine, said one of alcohol's prime benefits is its lack of pollution, with hydrocarbon emissions 87 percent lower and carbon monoxide 95 percent lower than in gasoline.

Jerry Wilkerson of Provo, Utah, a 44-year-old former moonshiner turned non-drinking Mormon, has logged 33,000 miles in eight months in his mostly alcohol-powered pickup lecturing Americans on the advantages of brewing their own fuel.

With cost estimates for moonshine gas ranging around 50 cents a gallon - less when the leftovers are sold for high-protein animal feed - Wilkerson predicts low-proof alcohol will be competing directly with gasoline in a few years.

"There's no way the oil industry can compete," says Wilkerson, who demonstrates a solar still he says anyone can build for about $130. Last year's model cost only $22, But Wil-kerson says the new design — a door-sized unit of wood, glass, metal pipe and black Astroturf — is better.

"If I have my way, in five years this country will not need to import one drop of OPEC oil," says Wilkerson, a father of eight who lives off Navy disability retirement.

Wilkerson, who studied engineering technology in college, says it took a lot of "trial and error" to develop the right formula for the fuel. He says such problems as alcohol's lower vapor pressure, which makes it tricky to start engines in cold weather, and its corrosive effect on engines because of its water content can be overcome with further experimenta-

verdict in Pinto trial

As the deliberations went into the fourth day, chief prosecutor Michael Cosentino refused to discuss whether he would pursue the case if the jurors deadlocked.

The automaker was charged with three counts of reckless homicide in the 1978 deaths of three teen-age women whose 1973 Pinto exploded when struck from behind by a van. It was the first criminal prosecution of a manufacturer for an alleged product defect.

Prosecutors argued Ford knew the Pinto's fuel system was likely to leak in rear-end collisions but sold the cars anyway. Ford argued during the trial the Pinto was as safe as other subcompacts of the time. Although it faced a maximum penalty of $30,000 if convicted, Ford reportedly spent $1 million to mount its defense. Jurors were sent home for a break shortly after 3 a.m. EST today after returning to the courtroom to tell Pulaski Circuit Judge Harold Staffeldt they doubted it would help to continue deliberations. Asked if further discussion in the morning would produce a verdict in the 10-week trial, foreman Arthur Selmer replied, "I don't believe it would." Staffeldt asked them to keep trying. "If you should fail to reach a decision, the case is left open and unresolved," Staffeldt told the panel earlier, when they asked for further instruction.

Tax-cutting probably heads the list. Stock speculation and real estate still rank high. Money market and similar funds, some paying more than 17 percent for deposits of as little as $1,000, are popular.

So is spending, the idea being that value is maintained better with goods than dollars, although spending simply for a good time — "let's spend today, because we'll be broke tomorrow" — can be

Peter Gutmann, economics and finance professor at City University of New York, estimated last year that $220 billion, or 10 percent of Gross National Product, was conducted in such unrecorded, untaxed

He maintains the underground economy is growing with every increase in taxes. And, of course, taxes are rising, not through new legislation but because families are moving into higher tax brack-

Gutmann lists three common types of untaxed transactions, the first of which is the skimming of cash receipts by an owner or operator, a practice he claims is partcularly significant in small business. Next, he lists the practice of paying cash to an employee working "off the books." The employee gets undeclared income and evades income and Social Security taxes; the business saves Social Security taxes, jobless insurance taxes, bookkeeping and reporting expenses, payroll taxes, medical insurance and pension costs. Gutmann's third category is made up of businesses that pay suppliers in cash, completely or in part. It is done, he says, to make the business seem smaller and to keep purchases consistent with the low gross and few employees that the business reports to the Bartering, or exchanging goods and services with little or no money involved, has become popular throughout the country. In fact, the practice has been institutionalized in the form of barter clubs.

While small or infrequent transactions aren't likley to attract much notice, the possibility does exist that sometime in the future the activities of clubs might be considered commercial transactions, and thus taxable. So far, however, they seem to serve the Speculation, especially in low-priced over-thecounter stocks and in some American Stock Exchange listings, has grown. There are few tax advantages in stock speculation. In fact, if a price rises swiftly the speculator might be inclined to sell inside of a year, and thus be forced to pay taxes as ordinary income rather than at the lower capital gains rate.

Still, the practice is popular with those who feel runaway inflation demands that they make spectacular profits. They view any income interest as merely keeping pace, at best. They seek "real"

Clements says mistake not to sue

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements says he thinks its a mistake for the oil drilling company he founded should not seek to recover damages from Mexican firms operating the runaway oil well in the Bay of Campeche.

SEDCO, who rented the drilling rig the Mexican national oil company, Pemex, has asked a federal judge for permission to sue that company and Pemargo, the drilling contractor on the Ixtoc I well.

"I think that is a mistake," Clements said Wednesday. "SEDCO should not have sued them — any more than Attorney General Mark White should have sued."

Clements' office issued a news release after the governor, who is due to meet Friday with Mexican President Lopez Portillo in Monterrey, Mexico, read about the motion in a newspa-

U.S. District Judge Robert O'Conor has taken no action on the SEDCO motion filed March 3.

SEDCO initiated the matter in O'Conor's court in July by asking that it be released of any liability or that liability be limited to $300,000, the estimated value of the drilling rig.

O'Congr then set an Oct. 20 deadline for the filing of lawsuits in the matter. By that deadline, damage claims against SEDCO, Pemex, and Pemargo exceeded $300 million. Claims were filed by the State of Texas and by South Texas tax jurisdictions, fishermen, and business firms and groups. White filed the Texas action Oct. 19 seeking more than $10 million and contending SEDCO should be liable for up to $50 million in cleanup costs. Clements, although still the principal owner of SEDCO, placed an estimated $100 million in stock in a blind trust controlled by three Dallas businessmen when he took office early last year.

Clements has blamed politics for the suit filed by White.

The Clements statement Wednesday emphasized he has no management ties with SEDCO.

Thermostat control issue in doubt

WASHINGTON (AP) - Government officials are running hot and cold over whether to extend the federal thermostat control program, which expires April 1.

One Energy Department official, Odom Fanning, suggested Tuesday that the program would not continue. But Wednesday, a higher-ranking official, Henry Bartholomew, insisted: 'No decision has been made. We're still working on our options."

Despite the uncertainty, department officials say much has changed since last July, when the thermostat control program was launched with great fanfare. Most importantly, the nation survived the winter. Carter administration officials were very anxious last summer about heating oil supplies, particularly with the key New Hampshire presidential primary falling in

But any threat of a heating oil shortage passed with the surprisingly mild weather, Bartholomew said.

The thermostat control program has cost the government $7.9 million and saved about 150,000 barrels of oil a day, an Energy Department spokesman said. The country consumes about 18.7 million barrels daily, he

The 40.5 million barrels saved since July represents about 2 percent of the amount of oil imported during that period, the department said.

By AMY, ANGELA, BECKY and TRACY

Wow! Did March ever come in like a lamb. But it's gonna go out like a lion. This goes not only for the weather but for the upcoming activities as well.

A few celebrities are in the news this week. Tricia Jowell blew out 18 big ones Tuesday. Laura Weetstein is being sponsored by Midland's Lions Clubs in the finals of the annual Miss Teenage America Pageant to be held in Fort Worth in June. That's Another Roman is in store for Midland High. That's right. Mrs. "T" is going to be mama of three in October. Congrats. We've already started collecting for another billfold. START THINKING! It's time to start thinking what's in store for you next fall. Seniors should check with their counselors about achievement tests for

bulletin board by the attendance office has much information about obtaining scholarships, but your counselor is the best resource. Juniors and sophs should also be thinking about early admission profrom east, section 579, 660 from north and west, Depco-Federal, 2,160 frm grams to MC, SAT and ACT tests, etc. Senior men, bring an open mind, a shut mouth and your body to Mark Blake's house at 7 p.m. if you > may be the last, so be there (804 Huntington). UPCOMING EVENTS - Today's main event is Davis, 1,650 from south, the Choir Contest. We wish you the best of luck this afternoon, and we know you'll bring the sweepstakes

> > The drama department has been busy working on its One-Act Play for the contest. "Private Lives of the Master Race" is predicted to be a real winner this year, and we know Mr. Buchanan and this year's drama department can pull through. Cheerleading tryouts for Varsity 1980-81 will be > > held April 1. That's not much time. It is not a popularity contest, so everyone get out there and show the ol' Bulldog spirit. Student Council president and vice president election will be coming up even sooner, so anyone who is interested and eligible see Mr. Hixon in his office. Attention everyone! For the next 12 weeks from 9: 30 to 10: 30 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church the dynamic Mark Leaverton will be leading a discussion on love and sex which is believable and down-to-earth. You may feel insecure at first, but you'll have a completely different outlook when you depart. Its worth the time.

IN SPORTS, the Bulldog Baseball Team beat the bats off Snyder Monday at the stadium with the final score 10-5. The winning pitcher was Paul Cox. They played Coronado Tuesday and Varsity won with a score of 18-8. Over the spring break they won third place in the Tournament of Champions. Everyone come on out this weekend and cheer on the champs. JV whopped Pecos with a score of 7-5. All right, Bullpups!
