The Cuban president did not answer the Costa Rican offer Sunday immediately or lift the ban he imposed Friday on flights to the Central American country. But he did allow 32 of the would-be exiles to fill empty seats on an Iberia Airlines flight from Havana to Madrid.

Since most of the Cubans who crowded into the Peruvian Embassy's grounds two weeks ago want to go to the United States and flights between Havana and Miami would be difficult to arrange, Costa Rica offered to give the refugees temporary haven until asylum could be arranged Relatives of three other hostages also were planning to go to Tehran this week, according to a group in Lawrence, Kan.; that arranged Easter services for the captives by three U.S.

Another American who defied Carter's travel ban was Dick Gregory, who arrived in the Iranian capital Saturday. Rock Newman, a member of the Howard University staff who also is in Tehran, said Gregory hoped to meet with TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Maj. Saad Haddad's Christian militiamen in southern Lebanon are embarrassing allies for the Israeli government. But it continues to support them because they are a deterrent to Palestinian attacks on northern Israel.

U.N. peacekeeping troops are locked in a deadly confrontation with Haddad's forces for control of three Lebanese villages. One Irish soldier died last week after being shot in the murdered.

The 6,000 U.N. troops moved into the volatile strategic region above Israel's northern border two years ago to replace Israeli forces that occupied southern Lebanon to drive out Palestinian guerrillas who returned there after the Lebanese civil war.

Though the U.N. Security Council ordered the force to take control of all Lebanese territory south of the Litani River, the withdrawing Israelis turned over a narrow border strip to Haddad, a former Lebanese army officer who shared the Israeli aim of keeping Palestinian guerrillas out of the area and proclaimed his territory "Free Lebanon" in defiance of the Lebanese government in Beirut.

Psychic says everyone has ESP

By PATSY GORDON Staff Writer

Martin McCann has traded pulling pints for peace.

McCann, from County Wexford, Ireland, believes that anyone who knows the techniques of extra sensory perception (ESP) can use them to make their lives happier and more

After McCann became acquainted with these techniques, he was "more financially successful" and ultimately sold his pub in Ireland to travel and explain the simple methods of using ESP in everyday life.

The former publican is in Midland as part of his lecture tour in the United States sponsored by the Inner Peace Movement, a non-profit organization based in Washington, D.C.

Assisting him are Dora Watkins of Hobbs, N.M., and Anna Coleman of Midland, both IPM associates.

Having studied for the priesthood in Glasgow, Scotland, where he also took courses in psychology, McCann came back to Ireland and bought the small pub near Wexford. Four years later, the Inner Peace Movement held an introductory meeting in Dublin and was able to recruit McCann. The teachings, he said, are much in line with what he had already stud-"For example, I always knew that a person had an aura, except in religion it's referred to as our soul and scientists call it our electro-magnetic energy," he explained.

Those in the movement believe all persons have extra sensory powers which manifest themselves in one or more areas - intuition, clairvoyance, prophecy or feeling. Feeling is McCann's area of power. "The intuitive person will pick up a thought and hear it, while the visionary will pick up a thought and see it. Then there is the prophetic person who receives a thought as a knowing, and the one who picks up a thought and translates it into a feeling," explained McCann.

McCann pointed out that 80 percent of people's emotions and thoughts are not their own, but come from others. The strapping man said, "Once we discern that each person lives primarily by one of these personality types and partially by the other three, we can begin to understand ourselves and those around us.

According to McCann, "Basically everyone is searching for answers outside of themselves, from people they feel know more about them than they themselves do. Nobody knows better about ourselves than us, and we can tap this wisdom at any

With counseling, said McCann, "We help people find answers within themselves. There is a saying in IPM that goes like this: 'If you give a hungry man a fish, he'll be hungry tomorrow. But if you give him a fishing pole, he'll never be hungry again.

The key point is helping people realize they are psychic, McCann explained.

McCann's introductory lecture will be presented at 7 p.m. today in the Holiday Inn, 1900 W. Wall Ave. Admission is $2 per person. Counseling will be available after the lecture.

ATLANTA (AP) - An appeal by Bert Lance's attorney to the emotions of the jurors who begin deliberations in the bank fraud case today was "most improper," the presiding judge says.

U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moye Jr. said he would instruct the jurors to disregard defense appeals to sympathy, religion or prejudice in reaching a verdict.

After a 14-week trial, the jurors must digest testimony from 175 witnesses, including Lance himself. They will have thousands of bank records available for their inspection and

In his closing statement, defense attorney Nickolas Chilivis urged the jurors to consider the effect of conviction on the pride and honor of Lance, a former U.S. budget director.

"If you find him guilty of anything, anything at all," Chilivis said, "you will have ruined the reputation, the life and the character of one of the South's finest men.'

Chilivis sprinkled his argument with references to religion - he said the government's attorneys might have prosecuted the authors of the Gospel for perjury — and suggested that prosecutors from Washington might not understand how banking is done in the South. The chief defense attorneys are all Georgia-born, while the prosecutors are from the North and Midwest.

Unce a top adviser to President Carter, Lance was indicted in May 1979 along with three fellow north Georgia businessmen. Of the 19 counts to be considered by the jury, 12 involve Lance. He is charged in 10 counts with misapplying bank funds and in two counts with making false

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Israeli soldiers shot and wounded two Arabs today in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, claiming Arab villagers had attacked their car with stones and clubs, a spokesman for the military government said.

He said the villagers claimed they mistook the uniformed soldiers for nomadic tribesman they blamed for a series of thefts near the town of Dhahiriya, 10 miles southwest of Hebron. Three soldiers were slightly injured in the incident. The soldiers were traveling in a civilian car when the Arabs pelted it with stones, forcing the driver to stop, the spokesman said. The soliders got out of the car, identified themselves. and fired several warning shots in the air, he said.

Rocky Flats Coalition planning civil disobedience protests later

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — Some members of the Rocky Flats Coalition say they will return to the nuclear weapons plant or another federal facility this summer to hold civil disobedience protests similar to those that sparked mass arrests in 1978 and

But civil disobedience was not a part of this year's weekend protest, now an annual event. Protesters did not return for the sit-ins that followed two earlier protest rallies.

Instead, they held workshops on nuclear disarmament.

Demonstrations in August would mark the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki during World War II. Protesters said a federal building in Denver could be the target or demonstrators could return to Rocky Flats, where plutonium components for nuclear warheads are

"You can't really plan these things, but I hope to be back here in August," said former Pentagon analyst Daniel Ellsberg before he addressed a legal rally Saturday that attracted at least 10,000 persons to Rocky Flats.

In 1978, a total of about 170 persons were arrested on Jefferson County trespassing charges. In 1979, about 270 persons were arrested and convicted on a federal trespassing charge. This year, organizers hoped to attract more support by eliminating the disobedience.

The Colorado State Patrol and Rockwell International Corp., which operates Rocky Flats for the Department of Energy, estimated the crowd at just over 10,000. Organizers of the rally claimed 18,000.

The protesters, dressed in T-shirts and cutoffs, spun plastic discs and flew kites during the speeches. To one side, a group of Rockwell employees filmed the gathering and mugged for cameras with flamboyantly dressed protesters.

Barry Commoner, presidential candidate of the Citizens' Party, called Rocky Flats "a symbol of the nation's need to march toward nuclear disarmament."

Republican presidential candidate John Anderson, an Illinois congressman, sent a message that "we need to reduce a potential threat of nuclear war through stabilizing our economy, reducing our energy dependence and implementing a clear and consistent foreign policy." The statement that did not address the issue of closing or converting Rocky Flats.

A telegram from Democratic presidential contender Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said, "We must commit ourselves to holding the nuclear arms race and ending the spread of nuclear weapons technology." He did not specifically adress Rocky Flats.

The debate concerned the constitutionality of the federal statute allowing Medicaid financing of abortion only if a pregnancy threatens the mother's life or if it resulted from rape or incest. The restriction, first enacted in 1976 and renewed every year since, is known as the Hyde amendment for its originator, Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill.

Medicaid is the federal health insurance program for the poor.

Dooling, writing the more comprehensive of the two trial court decisions, ruled that the Hyde amendment violated the constitutional rights to due process and equal protection of the law.

Faculty cheating may have increased scores

some faculty members in the Kansas City school about the extent of the David Burket. district could have prompted dramatic increases in student scores on an eighth-grade basic report. Some teachers say that district officials encouraged what some faculty members thought was improper assistance to students by changing the way the state test was administered this year, the Kansas City Star reported in a copyright story Sunday.

The teachers also said district officials applied heavy pressure on staff members to raise scores. The pressure was so great that some school administrators and teachers thought they might lose their jobs if their students did not score better on the test than they did last year, the teachers told The

The newspaper said it conducted interviews last week with more than two dozen counselors and teachers in six of the district's 10 junior high schools.

The cheating allegedly occurred on the Missouri Basic Essential Skills Test, which includes sections on mathematics, language and reading and government and economics. It is designed to measure whether eighthgrade students can apply academic skills to everyday life.

District officials said 37.3 percent of the students tested passed all three sections of the test this year, compared to 29.2 percent in 1979.

When asked about the charges, Wayne Dotts, assistant superintendent for secondary education, said he saw nothing wrong with teachers helping students interpret test questions and select answers.

"I hope they helped them during the test," said Dotts. "The test is a learning situation."

court grounds during the arguments. Cleveland schools in court

CLEVELAND (AP) -The Ohio Board of Education, which once called federal court proceedings a "collateral sideshow" to integration, is going to court today for hearings to determine if it is liable for the intentional segregation of Cleveland's public U.S. District Judge

Frank J. Battisti is trying to resolve an issue that has been pending for more than six years and on which he has twice A finding of liability would mean the state would have to share in the costs of integration and in planning and implementing the court's orders. The Cleveland school budget for 1980 includes about $25 million in desegregation-related expenses.

A lawsuit seeking to desegregate Ohio's largest public school system was filed before Battisti in December 1973. At that time, there were 145,000 pupils in the district, 57 percent of them black. Today, there are about 90,000 pupils in the Cleveland public schools, about two-thirds black.

On Aug. 31, 1976, Bat-tisti found the state and Cleveland school boards liable for intentionally segregating Cleveland schools. The matter was returned to him by an appeals court, however, to make sure the ruling complied with U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

The state argued that any constitutional violations were solely the result of actions by the Cleveland school board and that it (the state) lacked the power to assign students, hire faculty or select school sites.

Colbert's margin shrinks

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Jim Colbert was saying all the right things, all the gracious things. "The best player in the game won this tournament," Colbert said. "There is no question about that."

But unknown to Colbert there was a very considerable question about the margin of victory in Tom Watson's front-running defense of his title in the Tournament of

While Colbert was speaking, that margin was being trimmed from five shots to three. Watson was assessed a 2-shot penalty after he had completed his final round Sunday. It merely changed his score from 71 to 73, his total from 274 to 276, his winning margin from five shots

It was only an exercise in arithmetic. In no way did it change the outcome of the tournament. But it could

"If I'd been leading by one, it would have changed things," Watson said. "I wouldn't have won."

The penalty arose from some television-relayed advice Watson passed on to Lee Trevino during their finalround play. Trevino was struggling. Watson told him, on the 13th hole, that he was playing the ball too far forward in his stance.

Herman Mitchell, Trevino's caddy, was wearing a live television mike. NBC announcers heard the comment and rather casually passed it along to the viewing audience as a sidelight, an illustration of how players aid

But it's illegal. A viewer in Ojai, Calif., telephoned to question the legality.

Jack Tuthill, Tournament Director of the PGA Tour, questioned Watson about it in the scorer's tent. Watson readily admitted he'd done it. And he was penalized two

"I was wrong. I wasn't thinking," Watson said. "I violated the rules. It's a violation of the advice rule. I accept the penalty. The rules are there to be followed. I violated them. If I'd been leading by one, if it had changed the outcome of the tournament, I still would have accepted the penalty."

Even with the penalty, Watson won easily. He started the day in front, stayed in front and finished in front. It was the third victory of the season for the man who has been the game's outstanding performer the past three seasons. It marked the fourth time since 1978 that he'd made a successful title defense. The 21st victory of his career was worth $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000 and boosted Watson past Arnold Palmer and into third place on the all-time moneywinning list behind Jack Nicklaus and Trevino. He now has $201,525 for the year, $1,872,958 for his career.

Sabres expel Black Hawks

AP Sports Writer Buffalo Coach Scotty Bowman can't be sure which team his Sabres will face in the National Hockey League playoff semifinals. But he couldn't be surer about which team he'd rather

After his Sabres had eliminated the Chicago Black Hawks with a comeback 3-2 triumph Sunday night, Bowman said: "It would mean a lot to me personally if we play Montreal - not because I used to be their coach, but because of the great talent and history they have.

to shoot for. Right now, it's something the Canadiens are shooting for as well. Montreal, which lost the first two games of its quarterfinal against the Minnesota North Stars at home, has rallied to tie that series with consecutive victories — the latest a 5-1 decision in Bloomington, Minn., Sunday night.

Having regained their touch, the Canadiens seem just as eager to join Bowman's Sabres in a semifinal shootout.

'We're a team with a lot of pride," said Montreal goalie Michel Larocque, who backstopped the Canadiens' victory Sunday night. "It's a new series now. We are the champions. It is not over until the final game for

Incredible Bird sinks 76ers

BOSTON (AP) - Billy Cunningham sat and frowned as he studied the statistics sheet, a piece of paper the Philadelphia coach hardly needed to identify the flying object that had done such damage to his team.

"It was Larry Bird, plain and simple," said Cunningham. "He hit shots that were just incredible. He was out at the three-point line, coming off screens and burying everything he shot."

Bird, Boston's brilliant rookie, connected on 15 of 30 field goal attempts, scored 31 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead the Celtics to a 96-90 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Sunday, tying their National Basketball Association playoff series at one victory apiece. The next two games of the best-of-seven Eastern Conference finals will be played in Philadelphia Wednesday and Friday nights.

"We had to win today," said Bird, who was still beseiged by newsmen in the Boston lockerroom an hour after the final buzzer sounded. "Our backs were to the wall. If we had lost and gone to Philadelphia two down, it would have been very tough to come back."

So, faced with what at least approached a must-win situation, Celtics Coach Bill Fitch changed his strategy a bit. He kept his reserves anchored to the bench and went with his starters for as long as possible. Bird and center Dave Cowens played 46 minutes apiece, Nate Archibald 42, Chris Ford 40, Cedric Maxwell 38.

"It's the playoffs," Fitch explained. The Celtics didn't build much momentum Sunday, but they did do enough to win. They dominated the first half, taking a 53-38 lead with 2: 37 left in the second period behind 21 spurt made the halftime score 54-50, and three baskets by Sixers center Darryl Dawkins tied it at 62-62 with 6:21 to go in the third period. But Philadelphia couldn't get a basket for the rest of the quarter, was outscored by Boston 12-2 and could come no closer than the final six-point margin. Julius Erving led the Sixers with 24 points, while Maxwell contributed 17 points and 15 rebounds for

Snakes, gators get Kern in end

BOSTON (AP) — Hey, Jim Kern, maybe 40-year-old Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox is more dangerous than snakes and alligators - at least on the baseball field

Kern, the American League's "Fireman of the Year" with the Texas Rangers, got off a witty line Friday after walking Boston's Fred Lynn to pitch to slugger Jim Rice in the ninth inning.

"Pitching around Lynn to get to Rice is like jumping out of a boat full of snakes into water filled with alligators." Kern said after preserving a Texas victory by getting Rice to ground into a game-ending force.

When the count ran to 2-0 on Lynn, we decided to put him on intentionally," Kern explained. "I wasn't pitching around Lynn. I wanted to reduce a count to 0-0.

Kern allowed only three hits in an unusually long job of 5 1-3 innings until he walked Rick Burleson with one out in the 11th inning of a 5-5 tie Sunday. Burleson then raced to third on Lynn's line single off the left field

Texas Manager Pat Corrales strolled to the mound to talk to his ace reliever. It was agreed to walk Rice intentionally and try to get Yastr-zemksi to hit into a double play. The strategy backfired. Yaz ripped Kern's first pitch into right field for the game-winning run in Boston 6-5

"I was very surprised when they walked me because they had gotten me out easily in my three previous times at bat," Rice said. "It showed the old man (Yaz) no respect, also."

When I walked up there, I thought they'd bring in (Sparky) Lyle," Yastrzemski said. "When they didn't, I was looking for a fast ball all the way. When they walked Rice, it gave them more options, a play at the plate or any base.

"I couldn't take any chances in that situation," Corrales said of the intentional walk. "You really can't play for a double play, but I knew that if we didn't get one the game was over. Kern had good stuff, but they had a couple of breaks."

Tom Burgmeier, a 36-year-old lefthander, picked up the victory, his first decision of the season. With two saves, he suddenly has blossomed as Boston's ace in the club's 5-4 record.

Burgmeier bailed out reliver Dick Drago of a one-out bases-loaded jam in the seventh inning. Then he blanked the Rangers on just two hits the rest of the way.

Big Red Machine continues to grind up NL opponents

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

It may be time to break up the Cincinnati Reds and shake up the Atlanta Braves.

Even another so-so pitching performance by Cincinnati ace Tom Seaver and the benching of Atlanta sluggers Bob Horner and Gary Matthews couldn't derail the Big Red Machine or get the Bumbling Brave Brigade untracked Sunday.

The result, thanks to George Foster's tie-breaking two-run homer in the eighth inning, was a 5-3 Cincinnati triumph, the 10th in 11 games for the fast-starting Reds — including seven # of eight from Atlanta — and the ninth Wild throw beats and a homer.

By Associated Press Bill Castro was determined to go to third base, at all costs. All it cost was the ballgame.

With New York Yankees on first and second and no outs in a 5-5 game Sunday Castro relieved Jerry Augustine for the Milwaukee Brewers. When Bob Watson bunted, Castro pounced on the ball, whirled and fired to third.

The throw was perfect and in time to retire Willie Randolph, but there was a hitch - no one was near third base to take the throw. The ball rolled into left field, resulting in two runs for the Yankees, and when Reggie Jackson followed with a home run, they were on their way to a 9-5 vic-

"I made up my mind to try for the man at third no matter what. I think I got the ball there in time," said Castro "I thought the ball was hit hard enough so that there was no way the pitcher could field it," said third baseman Sal, Bando, explaining why

Brewers for Yanks

While the Brewers-Yankees was decided by a fielding lapse, it was dominated by homeruns. Rick Cerone, Randolph and Eric Soderholm connected for New York in addition to Jackson, while Sixto Lezcano and Ben Ogilvie homered for the Brewers to help wipe out an early 4-0 lead for the Yankees.

Starter Ron Guidry was less than sharp, but Ron Davis, who relieved him in the sixth, retired all 11 men he faced to collect the victory. Davis, 1-0, did allow a sacrifice fly to Paul Molitor that gave the Brewers a brief 5-4 edge in the sixth.

White Sox 9, Orioles -Harold Baines, who broke a 1-for-25 slump with two hits Saturday, got four more Sunday His third double of the game with one out in the ninth preceded singles by Marv Foley, Mike Squires and Harry Chappas as Chicago scored three times.

In the nightcap, Henderson stole home in the first inning and broke a 1-1 tie with a two-run triple in the third.

Royals 9, Tigers George Brett and U.L. Washington slammed home runs and Pete La-Cock drove in three runs as Kansas City handed Detroit its eighth loss in nine games since an opening-day victory.

The Royals built a 6-0 lead with a five-run first inning highlighted by two-run doubles from Willie Aikens and La-Cock, and Brett's solo homer in the second. The Tigers made it close with a five-run second of their own, but a sacrifice fly by LaCock, Washington's homer and Willie Wilson's RBI single put the game away.

-Dave Lemanczyk gained his first victory since last July 28 and Otto Velez slugged a three-run homer to lead Toronto over Cleveland.

Velez's homer came in Toronto's four-run first inning. Damaso Garcia had an RBI single to finish the inning and he had a sacrifice fly to close the Jays' scoring in the

Twins 4, Mariners 3-Roy Smalley drove in two runs with a homer and a double and Mike Cubbage had a two-run homer as Minnesota held on for a 4-3 victory over Smalley gave the Twins a 1-0 lead with a first-inning double and Cubbage's homer erased a 2-1 Seattle lead. Smalley's solo shot made the score 4-2 before a homer by Bruce Bochte made it close again.

George Bjorkman's 10th inning home run lifted the Arkansas Travelers to a 13-12 victory over the Tulsa Drillers in a Texas League baseball slugfest Sun-

In other Texas League games, San Antonio beat El Paso, 6-1, and Shreveport and Jackson split a doubleheader. Shreveport won the first, 3-1, and Jackson won the second, 3-0.

The Travelers held what appeared to be a commanding lead until Tulsa exploded for 6 runs in the eighth and three in the ninth to send the game into

Luis Gonzalez had a two-run homer and Tulsa teammate Fla Strawn had a solo homer in the Arkansas countered in the eighth with a two-run homer by Felipe Zayas, but most of their offensive power came from Dale Pennial, who had 6 hits in as many trips to the plate.

Ray Williams, 1-0, was the winning pitcher. Jack Lazorka, 0-1, was the loser.

Four straight walks and a single off losing pitcher Joel Crisler gave the San Antonio Dodgers a 2-0 lead in the second inning and they never trailed in a 6-1 victory over El Paso.

Crisler is now 1-2. The winning pitcher was Byron Holton, 3-0.

Chile Davis' solo homer was the difference as Shreveport beat Jackson, 3-1, in the first game. Glen Fisher was the winning pitcher for the Captains. The loser was Randy Brown.

Paul Cacciatore hurled a two-hit shutout for Jackson in the second game as the Mets took a 3-0 victory. Ken Perry and Rick Lane had 2 hits and drove in one run each to pace Jackson in the nightcap.

Dr. Jerry Argovitz, a former dentist from Houston, claimed credit Sunday for plans to form the National Football League Players Union that will try to seize control of the player association from Ed Garvey, current head of the National Football League Players Association. Argovitz told the Detroit Free Press that he met with several agents in Los Angeles nearly two weeks ago to form the Professional Representatives Organization. PRO will seek to win support from NFL players in a drive to oust the NFLPA as the league's sole bargaining unit.

Playing for uncle no problem By ROSS NEWHAN The Los Angeles Times

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times..."

ANAHEIM, Calif. - Minnesota shortstop Roy Smalley is a former USC philosophy major who, refusing to waste those endless hours on the road, often reads from the 100-volume set of literary classics his wife gave him as a Christmas present.

"I want to push myself to my limits," he said, "and I believe that in 15 seasons you can throw away seven or eight years through idleness."

Smalley is familiar with Charles Dickens, but he would not apply the opening line at "A Tale of Two Cities" to his 1979 season, though it did seem to embrace both the best and worst of times.

The league's leading hitter with a .373 average on June 30, Smalley slipped from high to reverse, batting only .187 over the second half to finish at .271. He had 104 hits in his first 279 at bats, 64 in his last 342. He batted .217 (25 for 115) in July, .200 (22 for 110) in August and .145 (17 for 117) in September. He drove in only 39 runs during those last three months after driving in 56 during the first 2 1-2.

season that Smalley dwells on negatively.

In a recent interview, he said that while the second half of 1979 was both "hell and painful, as a learning experience it was one of the best things that ever happened to me ... In retrospect, I'm very proud of it. I feel played very well."

He played well enough that Manager Gene Mauch, who is also his uncle, wrote Smalley's name on the lineup card for all 162 games. He played well enough to bat 17 points above his career average and to lead the Twins in five offensive categories, includ-ing home runs (24) and RBIs (95). The Twins set an American League record with 204 double plays, and Smalley set a major league record for shotstops by participating in 144. He set a league record with 572 assists and led all shortstops in assists, putouts and total chances. Incredibly, the Gold Glove was awarded to Boston's Rick Burleson, but Smalley played well enough to start for the American League in the midsummer All-Star game and was selected to most of the post-season all-star teams. It was a distinguished season, and yet virtually every time Smalley is approached for an interview, the first question is, "What happened?" And the second is, "How can a guy hitting .388 at the end of May hit only .223 after that?"

The questions were put to Smalley's manager.
Mauch said that while Smalley at 27 has reached the the summer before finishing six games back in the point in his career where, like Rod Carew, you American League West. There was frustration write his ame in the lineup every day and say, "Well, isn't that good, that meaning .388 for an entire summer. "And last year," Mauch said, "because it was his first experience with it, too many things got in his way. He had never before had pens and micro-phones in his face for an hour and a half every day in every city. Guys like Pete Rose thrive on attention but Roy has to put a lot of thought into playing.

He needs time to prepare himself mentally.
"When he didn't get it last year, his mental fatigue turned physical and I didn't give him the rest I should have. But then right up until the time (Ken) Landreaux got hurt (in late September) we had a chance to win it. Roy didn't want out (of the lineup) and I certainly didn't want him out because it would have weakened us at two positions."

SAID SMALLEY: "I was flattered that he still had me in the game, doing what I was doing, hitting my .180, rather than playing without me while I replenished myself for a day or two. I'm proudest of the way I continued to play during that whole second half. Obviously, No. 4 (Mauch) thought I was still doing the job or I wouldn't have been in there. I don't think it's the player's responsibility to go to the manager and ask out. Those decisions are the man-

In this case, of course, Mauch is more than Smalley's manager. He is his uncle, the brother of Smalley's mother, Jolene, and the brother-in-law of his father, Roy Sr., now owner of a Los Angeles janitorial service and formerly an infielder with the Cubs, Braves and Phillies.

Mauch acquired his sister's son in a 1976 trade with Texas, and it has not always been easy for either uncle or nephew, particularly in 1977 and in the first half of '78, when Smalley's struggles brought accusations of nepotism from fans.

Asked if the pressures of the second half of last year were intensified because he was playing for a relative, Smalley replied, "Having Gene as my manager made it easier because I trust him. I know what he thinks of me as a person and player. I respect his judgment, His knowledge of the game.

Hagler KO's Watts in 2

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Top-ranked middleweight challenger Marvin Hagler, having scored a second-round TKO over Bobby "Boogaloo" Watts, says he is marching right toward the championship."

"I'm very glad to finally be getting the recognition I think I deserve," Hagler said Sunday after his win at the Civic Center. "I've fought for the championship. I have beaten nothing but contenders.

'Now I'm showing I'm championship material," he said, and his shot at the championship should come some time this summer. The World Boxing Association has stipulated that the winner of the title fight between champion Alan Minter and former champ Vito Antuofermo must meet Hagler within 90 days of their May 24 bout in London.

Hagler's last bid for the title ended in a draw with Antuofermo last November.

The referee stopped Sunday's nationally televised fight at 2:59 of the second round when Watts went down for a nine count, got back on his feet, then dropped to one knee. The bout was scheduled to go 10

Sonics face LA next (Continued from 1C) hopes Sunday opens Tuesday night in Los Angeles. "Every sportswriter in the country and CBS-TV was in Milwaukee Friday night to bury us," said veteran Seattle forward John Johnson, "but we had a few tricks for the Bucks. "Don't be surprised if we have a few more for the 'Big Fella.' Johnson was talking about the Lakers' 7-foot-2 center, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who led Los Angeles to four triumphs in six regular-season meetings with the Sonics.

Down 3-2 in a best-of-seven series, Seattle came back to beat the Bucks 86-85 at Milwaukee Friday night to set up Sunday's meeting.
"I have an idea who will win the Los Angeles-Seattle series," volunteered Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson, "but I'm keeping it to myself." Gus Williams, who becomes a free agent at the end of the season, sank four free throws in the final 16 seconds to sink Milwaukee's playoff

He gave the Sonics a 96-92 lead with two free throws with 16 seconds remaining and made another pair with four seconds to go for the game's final points. Williams finished with 33 points, sinking 13 of 20 shots from the floor. In the final quarter, Milwaukee opened with baskets by Harvey Catchings and rookie Sidney Moncrief for a 76-70 lead, but Fred Brown, the Sonics' long-shooting reserve guard, sank four long bombs and a pair of free throws.

Lanier, who led the Bucks to a 20-6 regular-season finish for the Midwest Division crown after being acquired from Detroit, had 19 points and 15 rebounds. Marques Johnson led Milwaukee with 22 points but was only 9 of 25 from the floor.

For Seattle, Lonnie Shelton had 15 points and 15 rebounds.

Take medication as doctor orders

Dear Dr. Solomon: Whenever my doctor prescribes medication, he gives me instructions such as to take it with meals, or before meals, etc. What difference does it make how I take the medicine as long as I take it?

— Joe.

Dear Joe: Taking medication is a lot more involved than simply taking medication. The food you eat can make medicine work faster or slower, or even keep it from working at all. Many foods contain chemicals or additives that may make some drugs practically useless, while certain combinations of food and drugs can actually be dangerous.

The way in which food and drugs interact depends on the amount of medication prescribed and the patient's age, size, and the specific medical condition. When food is present in the stomach and intestines, the effectiveness of a drug may be enhanced or diluted because of the time it takes for it to travel through the gastrointestinal tract to the point where it is

One way in which food affects the way medication works in the body is through its influence on the drug's rate of absorption into the bloodstream. Ordinarily, food delays absorption. For example, milk should never be used to wash down a tetracycline capsule since calcium interferes with the absorption of tetrecycline. Similarly, carbonated beverages may cause drugs to dissolve in the stomach instead of in the intestines, where they can be absorbed into the bloodstream more quickly.

To prevent adverse food-drug reactions, be certain to follow your physician's instructions about when to take medication, and what food or beverages to avoid during the time you are on the drug.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I would like to know how your stop-smoking treatment works. Have you determined what the active component is? — Mr.

Dear Mr. L.: Research being conducted at the University of Miami School of Medicine suggests that the active ingredient in a quatenary sufonium salt that liberates endorphins. The endorphins, in turn, go to the brain and neutralize the nicotine receptors, decreasing the desire to smoke

Dear Dr. Solomon: This letter is an attempt on my part to thank you for the enjoyment I have received from your newspaper column. I feel that I can add significantly to your knowledge with respect to the question of avoiding injuring a bad back when one sneezes. You suggested leaning over and putting one's hands on one's knees, but this is a position that is difficult for those of us with back problems

Here is another suggestion: I have found that standing on one leg, knee slightly bent, with the other food raised off the floor, is wonderfully helpful during a sneeze. This position seems to "defuse" the shock that the back gets when two feet are on the floor, and it works for me every

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

The Good Shepherd knows every sheep

I am the Good Shepherd. The Good Shepherd lays down His life for the sheep.

A hired man will run when he sees a wolf coming and will leave the sheep, for they aren't his and he isn't their shepherd. And so the wolf leaps on them and scatters the flock.

The hired man runs because he is hired and has no real concern for the sheep.

I am the Good Shepherd and know My own sheep, and they know Me, Just as My Father knows Me and I know the Father; and I lay down My life for the sheep.

I have other sheep, too, in another fold. I must bring

I have other sheep, too, in another fold. I must bring them also, and they will heed My voice; and there will be one flock with one Shepherd.

The Father loves Me because I lay down My life that I may have it back again.

No one can kill Me without My consent—I lay down My life voluntarily. For I have the right and power to lay it down when I want to and also the right and power to take it again. For the Father has given Me this right."

When He said these things, the Jewish leaders were again divided in their opinions about Him.

Some of them said, "He has a demon or else is crazy. Why listen to a man like that?"

Others said, "This doesn't sound to us like a man possessed by a demon! Can a demon open the eyes of blind men?"

Deaf woman makes story of Cinderella become real

By NORM CLARKE

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Deaf since birth, 5-foot-2 Gerri Ehrlich has beaten some big odds in the city known as the "Green Felt Jungle."

Believed to be the only deaf "21" dealer in Las Vegas, the bubbly 26-year-old brunette has cracked a closed society.

closed society.

"It's a Cinderella story," said her mother June, who taught both of her deaf daughters to speak.

"I never dreamed it would ever happen," said Gerri, who overcame an incredible string of setbacks before landing a job at one of the largest casinos in Las Vegas.

Through lip-reading, she communicates with players at her table, most of whom seldom detect her handicap. "Once in a while there are complaints that I don't answer all the questions, but after the pit boss explains to them, they're very understanding," she said.

Her struggle began at birth, with nerve deafness. At age 1½ she almost died of arsenic poisoning when she accidentally swallowed a rat pesticide. Three years ago, when she decided to become a dealer, potential employers rejected her because of her hearing handicap.

"I went through a lot," said the hazel-eyed native of West Van Nuys, Calif. "It takes a lot of energy out of you to become something."

But, she said, "I'm a fighter. I don't feel I'm handicapped."

Instead of isolating herself from the public, Gerri tackled her challenge head-on. But the demand for a deaf dealer in a city that employs 45,000 dealers, 300 new ones per day, was limited.

"She picked a hard way to go," said her mother. "Las Vegas is a tough town to break into."

Making a meager living while working two jobs at a deaf school, she enrolled in a dealing school and went job hunting.

After encountering considerable resistance because of her hearing problem, she finally got a job at one of the smaller downtown casinos.

From there, she moved to the Golden Nugget for more than a year, but quit when a pit boss berated her in front of several patrons. Nine months ago, she was hired by the Hilton Flamingo, on the neon-splashed Strip.

"I flunked my first two auditions. I'd get so nervous. That job meant so much to me. But the people at the Hilton have been just great to me," said Gerri, who, with the help of a special hearing aid, can distinguish music. "I can hear music, but not the words. I love disco because it's got a beat I can hear."

No prayers or eulogie for William Tolbert Jr.

Early Tuesday, as this capital slumbered, a bulldozer crashed through the wrought-iron fence surrounding Palm Grove Cemetery and, in a corner section used for dumping garbage, cut a shallow trench long enough to hold 28 bodies. For two days before then, President William R. Tolbert Jr.'s body had lain unattended on a slab in John F. Kennedy Hos-

In the nearby Israelibuilt executive mansion. the new head of state, a 28-year-old master sergeant, was busy making plans for the new Liberia. He would, he said, end corruption, nepotism and economic mismanagement - promises made by Tolbert when he became president nine years earlier. "There is no need to fear," Master Sgt. Sa-muel K. Doe said. "We are prepared to let the past go quickly into history. There will be no witchhunting. It is our responsibility to build a new society for the benefit of all our people."

But first there were debts to be paid. While jittery soldiers patrolled the streets and, according to some reports, robbed delegations to a Lutheran conference in a room-to-room search of the Ducor Inter-Continental Hotel, the new government announced that 91 members of the Tolbert administration would be tried on charges ranging from corruption to humanrights violations. The trials began

Wednesday in a secondfloor meeting hall at a military training center. The public jammed into the stark, cement-walled room, staring wordlessly at the accused who faced the five-man military tribunal. Overhead fans cut through the heavy, stale air, and outside hundreds of civilians watched gleefully while former ministers were sell Tubman's $2 million paraded through the yacht.

No verdicts have been announced and after a weekend recess the trials are to continue on Monday. Many foreign governments have asked Doe's 15-member People's Redemption Council to show leniency and not repeat the events last year in Ghana, where a military tribunal executed three former heads of state within a few days. But the accused here are not represented by detime they profess their innocence, titters ripple through the courtroom. "Killing Tolbert was the right thing," a youg Liberian spectator at the trials, Joe Wylie, said. "If you want to get a tricky man before he gets you, you shoot him in the head. If you just shoot his leg, he's still going to trick you again some day."

Tolbert - who was shot three times in the head at close range in his bedroom - made several mistakes that have proved fatal, either personally or politically, for many other African presidents

First, he raised his people's expectations and aspiration but delivered little of what he promised. Second, he allowed corruption and the gap between rich and poor to grow beyond the limits that Africans accept as tolerable. And third, he misread the pretense of obedience that African people pay to almost any man with authority as love and respect for him. In the end, he was destroyed by the system he helped create and tried to liberalize.

When Tolbert became president in 1971, after 20 years as vice president, he rode to his inauguration in a Volkswagen Beetle and wore a white safari suit. It was a symbolic gsture, showing that Liberia, founded in 1847 by freed American slaves, had ended the stuffy, top-hat era of his predecessor, William V.S. Tubman. One of Tolbert's first actions was to

"In a world of rising expectations and accelerated change," Tolbert said in his usual preachbert, aware that only a er's tongue, "the lofty few hundred yards away, goals of national destiny still require and demand that Liberians harness and channel all their resources...in order to achieve a sustained upward thrust for everescalating rounds of distinction - yea, higher heights." Tolbert's overthrow on April 12 underscored the vulnerability of African governments. His omissions and commissions paled in comparison to those of many African presidents. In July, after acting as host to a $100 million African summit meeting that Liberia could ill afford, he was elected chairman of the Oganization of African

During its 133 years as republic, Liberia had been ruled by the 45,000 descendants of the pioneer "freed men" -American slaves who returned to Africa. The national motto "the love of liberty brought us here" suggested that the country's original inhabitants enjoyed something less than equal status. But Tolbert, himself the grandson of an American slave, had taken some noteworthy steps toward developing national unity, had introduced universal voting just days before his death, and had amended the constitution so he could not run for another term, an unheard of concession in black Africa.

The changes were too few and too late for Liberia. The rich grew richer, the poor poorer, and beneath the West African nation's sleepy inertia, discontent seethed, plots were hatched and the jails began to fill with Tolbert's enemies.

On Friday, April 11, the portly and balding Tolbert spent the evening at his downtown executive pavilion on Broad Street, giving a reception for religious and diplomatic guests. He had planned to spend the night, as was his custom, at his official residence in Bentol, 25 miles from Monrovia.

The second phase of the project, to start in 1986, calls for construction of an MHD pilot plant about 10 times as large as the test facility now being built here. DOE expects to spend $2 billion in the 1980s to develop the technology and says it will take 20 years to develop commercial-scale MHD plants. Scientists believe MHD plants should be more efficient than conventional fossil-fueled generators that extract only about 35 percent of the energy from coal and natural gas. MHD plants should be able to raise power plant efficiency to 55 percent or more, they say. The increased efficiency would allow the nation to stretch its vast supplies of coal and MHD plants should produce less air pollution. MHD's greater efficiency is possible because heat from the fuel would be used twice. Gas from the combusted coal would first be shot through the magnetic field of an MHD generator to produce electricity, then would heat the boilers of a conventional steam plant.

In a conventional generator, electricity is produced by revolving a conductor, such as a coil of copper wire, inside a magnetic field. In the MHD process, pulverized coal is heated, seeded with potasstum salt and the super-heated gas becomes the

Program fits new 'theory

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) - While watching the new "Stockard Channing Show" for the third consecutive week, it occurred to me that the show was a lot like my bedroom wallpaper. I didn't particularly like it, but I didn't dislike it enough to change it.

Much of prime time television is that way, and for reason: ABC, NBC and CBS don't want you to like their programs as much as they want you to endure them, to allow a program to just be there in the room with you, like relatively inoffensive wallpaper.

The LOP (Least Objectionable Program) theory, former NBC programming executive Paul Klein called it. Television has become part of the passive environment in most American homes, so the aim is to come up with the least objectionable television, programs people won't be moved to change. Program ratings, upon which the entire commercial TV industry turns, don't measure viewers in a literal sense, but numbers of sets that happen to be tuned to various stations. Which leads to a sort of programming double-negative. It's not what is watched so much as what is not NOT watched that matters. If people aren't watching your flocked pink paisley of a sitcom, you repaper that part of your schedule with a nice, unobstrusive floral pattern of a sitcom, like the one people aren't not watch-ing on the other network. The result is a great drive to the middle.

Thus, for every "M-A-

S-H" or "All in the Family" or "Barney Miller," shows with genuine wit and punch and occasional daring, there are a dozen "Bensons" or "Angies" or "Stockard Channing Shows," programs whose chief asset is that they won't drive you away.

"The Stockard Channing Show" has going for it its star, an accomplished actress whose face delivers more comedy than the script. There is also an inoffensive sostar, Ron Silver, who makes the best of what he is given.

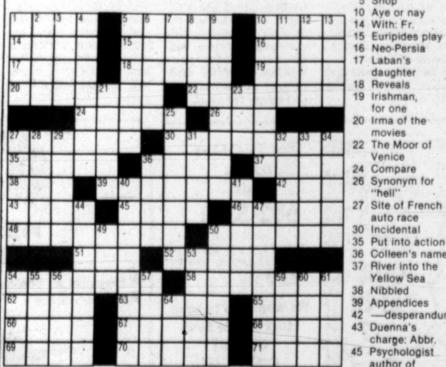

Going against it is a style that is not really a style at all, but a formula. Stockard plays a single lady; Silver is a single man. He is a TV consumer rip-off reporter. She is his assistant, Susan. He puts her down a lot. She rebounds a

They have a dumb secretary and a boss who is a loud-mouthed simp. The stories come off the conveyer belt like so many fenders and headlamps.

In one episode, Susan is sent by Silver to a shady talent agency in the hope of catching the crooks red-handed (after all, yuk-yuk, if the guy says she's got talent, he's GOTTA be a crook,
