Yugoslavians, world leaders bid farewell to Josip Broz Tito

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Packed onto sidewalks and blanketing hillsides, Yugoslavians by the hundreds of thousands bade farewell today to President Josip Broz Tito in a funeral marked by military pageantry and vows to protect his legacy of independent communism.

Guns fired salvos in salute as the flag-draped oak casket was borne by an honor guard of generals and workers from the rotunda of the Parliament to a gun carriage for the funeral procession. It rode down Belgrade's tree-lined streets past kings, presidents and throngs of Tito's countrymen to his grave in a garden overlooking the city.

Before the procession began, Stevan Doronjski, head of the collective leadership that succeeds Tito as Communist Party chief, described Yugoslavia's break with the Soviet bloc in 1948 as "one of the turning points in the history of our movement."

It was "alien to the spirit of socialist Yugoslavia to tie itself to any power bloc," Doronjski said. "Tito saw this quite clearly and he deeply believed that the very existence of the blocs increased threats to the world."

Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev was there to hear the speech, seated across the broad avenue from the Parliament building with scores of other foreign leaders.

Tito's widow, Jovanka, who had been out of public view for three years, stood weeping between Tito's sons by other marriages, Zharko and Misha.

Tito, who led his Partisan guerrillas to victory over the Nazis in World War II, turned Yugoslavia into a communist nation and successfully defied Soviet dictator Josef Stalin, died Sunday after a long illness. His funeral came the day after the 88th anniversary of his birth.

The man who led Yugoslavia for 35 years bequeathed his one-man presidency to the presidents of the six Yugoslav republics and two autonomous regions, and his party leadership to a 24-man collective.

After Doronjski's eulogy, a Belgrade choir sang Tito's favorite revolutionary and folk songs.

Then the procession began — Tito's bier, followed by members of his family, members of the government and collective leadership, and survivors of his World War II guerrilla army. Military units followed with 20 funeral wreaths and 365 colorful battle flags, fluttering in a warm spring breeze.

As the procession moved down the wide Knez Milosa Avenue on the three-mile procession, huge crowds of Yugoslavs, including both aging wartime veterans and young people who knew no other national leader, stood by silently. Many wept as the carriage rolled by, pulled by a small military car.

On nearby hills, thousands more jammed into the streets to catch a distant glimpse of the procession. Some had been waiting since before dawn.

Yugoslav MIG-21 and Hawk jets swooped past in salute to the commander-in-chief.

The same street was used for the procession of assassinated King Alexander in 1934, the last big state funeral in the Balkan capital.

The late president's tombstone was to bear the inscription "Josip Broz Tito, 1892-1980."

The foreign mourners included four kings, 34 prime ministers, 31 heads of state and scores of ministers, diplomats and political leaders.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale headed the American delegation, sharing the limelight with Brezhnev and Chinese Chairman Hua Guofeng. British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt were present, but French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, like President Carter, stayed home.

Responding to European criticism of Carter's absence, a White House official said the president had other matters to attend to. Another U.S. official in Washington said it was considered inappropriate for Carter to be "showboating in Belgrade while Rome burns," a reference to the crisis over the U.S. hostages in Iran.

There were major absentees, too, among the representatives of the movement of non-aligned nations, which Tito founded along with President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt and Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India. President Anwar Sadat, Nasser's successor, was missing, and so was Cuban President Fidel Castro, the current president of the movement. But Nehru's daughter, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, came from India.

GOP urged to bolster policies for the West

WASHINGTON (AP) — The West will vote Republican in the 1980 presidential election but the party should promise to reverse Carter administration policies on western issues just to make sure, GOP platform writers were told today.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, in remarks prepared for a GOP platform hearing, predicted the party would do as well in the West as in 1976, when former President Gerald R. Ford carried every western state but Texas and Hawaii.

But Stevens, the assistant GOP leader in the Senate, went on to say it was "imperative" that the Republican platform contain a pledge that "basic rights of citizens of the West will be preserved."

"The party should make clear its commitment to solving western problems with western solutions to ensure that its broad support in the West continues unabated," Stevens told the platform committee.

The hearing was the eighth of 10 the committee is holding. The remaining two will be in Chicago May 23 and New York June 6. The 108-member panel will meet July 7 in Detroit to write a platform for submission to the GOP National Convention the following week.

Stevens was scheduled as the lead-off witness, to be followed by other members of Congress and by a panel from the aerospace industry.

On Friday, the committee will hear from Sen. John H. Chafee, R-R.I., a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, who will outline suggestions on intelligence policy. Chafee has been pushing for legislation making it a crime to disclose the names of U.S. intelligence operatives working abroad.

Stevens, who has endorsed former California Gov. Ronald Reagan for the GOP presidential nomination, sharply attacked the policies of President Carter toward the western states.

"In less than four years, this administration has done more damage to the West and its residents than all the past administrations," he said.

He said the platform should "guarantee the continuation of traditional uses on federal lands; ensure that evaluation and utilization of federal lands for resource activity will be permitted; reflect the needs and concerns of residents of the West; and respect the authority of states to exercise their sovereign responsibilities in the area of public lands."

Woman cabinet minister executed by Iranians

By The Associated Press

A woman cabinet minister who served under the shah was executed by a firing squad before dawn today in Tehran's Evin Prison, along with another woman and a man, Tehran Radio reported.

Meanwhile, Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr indicated today he will name a prime minister within a few days, a move seen as strengthening his political position. He told an Iranian journalist of his intention and a source close to the president said the appointment is expected this weekend.

The executed woman ex-official, Esfand Farrokhr-Parsa, former minister of education and training, was found guilty of "plundering public funds, causing corruption, spreading prostitution in the ministry of education and training, cooperation with SAVAK (the shah's secret police), dismissing struggling educators, participating in getting laws against the people approved and making education and training dependent on the colonial culture of imperialism," the radio said.

Mrs. Farrokhr-Parsa served under Amir Abbas Hoveida, the former prime minister who was executed in April 1979, two months after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolution ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Tehran Radio said the other woman executed this morning, Fatemeh Sa-deqi, was found guilty of "purchasing innocent girls, selling society's honor and spreading prostitution," and that the man, Ali Shojai, was found guilty of heroin and opium charges.

Another woman, an American, who was arrested Tuesday in Tehran on charges of spying for the CIA, may be free-lance journalist Cynthia B. Dwyer of Buffalo, N.Y., her husband John said.

The husband, an English professor at Buffalo State College, said he had been unable to reach his wife who was staying at the Tehran Hilton. He said the hotel told him she checked out Monday without leaving a forwarding address.

Muskie is confirmed

He will be principal advisor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edmund S. Muskie's Senate colleagues are signaling President Carter that they want Muskie to be the unchallenged voice of American foreign policy once he is sworn in tonight as secretary of state.

Before voting 94-2 to confirm Muskie's nomination Wednesday, many senators said U.S. foreign policy has been severely damaged by the open, highly publicized conflict between former Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's national security adviser.

Muskie said he will approach his new duties positively, asserting his office's once traditional primacy in foreign affairs rather than challenging Brzezinski to battle.

Muskie told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that as he enters his new office his first and most important priority is to establish the fact that "the secretary of state is the principal adviser to the president on foreign policy issues."

"He must have the primary responsibility for recommending our foreign policy course and seeing that the president's decisions are implemented," he said. "President Carter has made clear he expects me to play this role and I intend to do so."

Muskie told reporters later that his determination to be the principal foreign policy architect "has not been challenged" by Brzezinski or anyone else on the White House staff and that there "seems to be agreement" on his role.

At the confirmation hearings, senators made clear that they believe the Vance-Brzezinski conflict damaged American interests and that a Muskie-Brzezinski struggle would equally be destructive.

During the first three years of the Carter administration, Brzezinski often took positions that were perceived as "hard line," especially regarding the Soviet Union. Vance was deemed to be more moderate and conciliatory and resigned after his opposition to the attempt to rescue the hostages in Iran by military force was overruled.

"I think we have developed a mischievous system that often leads to two secretaries of state," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the committee chairman.

"I think we sound a very uncertain trumpet when foreign countries see public disputes between the secretary of state and the president's national security adviser in the White House. I just hope we can change our procedures. It is damaging our foreign policy and spreading confusion abroad."

Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., saying he wanted to "send a signal" to Carter, told Muskie that Brzezinski should be compelled to lower his profile and be restrained from giving interviews and appearing on television.

There is a peed, Sarbanes said, "for a more anonymous staff person" advising the president.

He said an untenable situation arises when Brzezinski permits himself to be questioned about his foreign policy views on television and then cites executive privilege to justify his refusal to be questioned by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Muskie bade farewell to his life as a senator in a short and emotion filled speech immediately before the vote.

He said that the Senate has shaped his life and added: "I want to say to you that I can't think of anything that could more surely generate a drive for excellence on my part than the awareness that I must now meet your test of my final performance."

The Senate responded with a standing ovation.

HUD suggests more forms to housing group

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Forms, forms and more forms was the conclusion of a management review of the city of Midland Housing Authority by the Dallas area office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Fred Kester, secretary for the authority, discussed changes recommended by the review officer when the Housing Authority board met Wednesday in City Hall Council Chambers.

In looking over the list of changes suggested by the reviewer, Kester cited using a new application form for Hillcrest Manor, making residents complete a new form each year for continued occupancy and stopping the practice of making copies of residents' Social Security checks to verify income.

Kester said he was told it is against the law to make copies of a federal check, which applies to Social Security checks.

After listening to the suggestions, board member Gene Abbott quipped, "Did they recommend you get another file cabinet for all these forms?"

Kester later commented that "it's not as bad as it sounds."

He added that the review officer chastised him for not submitting to HUD a quarterly report on civil rights complaints lodged against Hillcrest Manor. "But we haven't had any complaints, so I haven't filed a form," he explained.

Hillcrest Manor, an apartment complex constructed with HUD funds, offers rental subsidies to low-income elderly and handicapped persons.

A proposed budget for fiscal year 1981 was approved by the board. That budget calls for $78,400 in receipts and $89,250 in expenditures. In the expenditure category, however, is included $15,000 for a sprinkler system to be installed, said Kester.

The deficit will be paid from a (See FEDS SUGGEST, Page 2A)

Balanced budget near approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is well on its way to writing the first balanced federal budget in 12 years, but a skidding economy threatens to throw it out of whack before the ink is dry.

Some economists now fear the recession could push unemployment to 9 percent — the high-water mark of the 1974-75 recession — and turn the $2 billion surplus in the House budget into a $40 billion deficit.

ly defeated two liberal attempts to trim the Budget Committee's proposed huge increases in defense spending while restoring some money cut from social programs.

The defeat of the two major liberal alternatives means the House and Senate almost certainly will go into conference later this week with wide differences over defense and social spending.

Another moon found for Jupiter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Photos snapped by the Voyager 1 spacecraft have disclosed a 15th satellite orbiting about 94,000 miles above the cloud tops of the planet Jupiter.

It is the second new Jovian moon discovered by the pair of Voyagers that swept past the planet last year. The other was detected in photos taken by Voyager 2.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported Tuesday that the new satellite, temporarily identified as 1979 J2, was identified by Dr. Stephen P. Synnott of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif.

Synnott was examining Voyager 1 photos relayed March 5, 1979, just before the spacecraft made its closest approach to Jupiter, when he noticed "a shadow stepping across the face of Jupiter where no shadow should have been," NASA said.

By studying other transmitted images, Synnott found evidence of the satellite in seven other photos and was able to calculate its size and orbital path. He reported it is 43 to 50 miles in diameter and that it circles Jupiter once every 16 hours 16 minutes on a path between the orbits of the satellites Amalthea and Io.

Synnott said he first noticed the shadow while searching the photos to confirm the orbit of the satellite found in images transmitted by Voyager 2 last July 8. That moon, temporarily labeled 1979 J1, first showed up as a star-like object in an area where there were no known stars. It is 19 to 25 miles in diameter and orbits about 38,000 miles above the Jovian clouds.

The finding of the 14th and 15th moons add to an impressive list of Jovian scientific observations made by the twin Voyagers. Among the discoveries are a ring of particles around the planet, considerable volcanic activity on Io and tremendous bolts of lightning in the planet's atmosphere.

The two Voyagers are now enroute to Saturn, with Voyager 1 slated to fly by that planet next November and Voyager 2 to follow in August 1981. Voyager 2 then is to continue on to an encounter with distant Uranus in January 1986.

Shuttle won't break even until 1985, officials say

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It will be 1985 before the space agency breaks even on the space shuttle, officials say.

The orbiter's first 40 flights will cost the National Aeronautics and Space Administration millions of dollars.

The shuttle will make money in its fourth year, when rates escalate for commercial and foreign customers, said Chester Lee, head of Space Transportation System Utilization for NASA.

Customers rent the shuttle's cargo bay for $30 million, a price officials said won't cover the cost of early missions. Lee said inflation and a series of delays have driven up the costs.

"We're morally obligated to hold the prices we set," Lee said. "We don't want to scare away future customers or use our advantage as a monopoly."

NASA officials announced earlier this year that the shuttle's first launch from Cape Canaveral won't be before November and possibly not until 1981. The major problem has been the thousands of heat-resistant tiles that form the shuttle's thermal protection system.

The craft is scheduled to fly 478 flights by 1994, averaging about 50 flights a year with a fleet of four shuttles. The first full payload is scheduled now for early 1982 after a year of test flights.

During its first operational run, the reusable spacecraft will ferry a 47,000-pound data and tracking relay satellite into orbit. And Lee said the shuttle was "saturated" with satellite traffic through 1985, with foreign and U.S. customers accounting for 33 percent of the early missions.

So far, shuttle customers already have paid $70 million to reserve space aboard the orbiter.

The European Space Agency's Spacelab will ride piggyback aboard the shuttle in September 1982. Other spacelab missions are scheduled for March and May 1983.

On some missions, the shuttle's cargo bay will be shared by four different users, ranging from RCA and Japan to ARABSAT, a communications satellite planned by a consortium of Arab countries.

Space for 316 small payloads, each weighing less than 200 pounds, has been sold by NASA. Corporate and educational researchers are lining up to reserve space for small scientific packages, paying anywhere from $3,000 to $10,000.

An average customer will save $17 million by launching a satellite aboard the shuttle, Lee said.

Quarantine off

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department announced Wednesday the lifting of a federal quarantine imposed on a commercial bird shop in Virginia after an outbreak of exotic Newcastle disease.

The quarantine was imposed on an aviary in Alexandria, Va., owned by Kevin Smith, after the disease was confirmed in a parrot that died in Camp Hill, Pa.

Investigation showed many other birds had been exposed to the disease.

Nazi got 56,000 votes in North Carolina primary

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Harold Covington lost the Republican primary for North Carolina attorney general but says his 43 percent showing demonstrates that "There are 56,000 people in this state who are either Nazis or fools."

Covington, 26, is the leader of the National Socialist Party of America, one of several groups known generically as the American Nazi Party. And he did, in fact, win 56,006 votes in losing the GOP nomination to former federal prosecutor Keith Snyder of Asheville in Tuesday's primary.

Covington waged the barest of campaigns and came a lot closer to winning than Republican state leaders thought possible. State GOP leaders had disavowed his candidacy. "I don't say it's an embarrassment," said state party chairman Jack Lee. "It's a freak."

"Good grief," said Snyder, the victor, when told of Covington's total. "I'm appalled. I really am... I would hope that it's because I just am unknown."

Covington became well-known in the state by publicly espousing his party's white-supremacy line and vocally defending 16 Nazis and Ku Klux Klansmen who face a variety of charges stemming from the shooting deaths of five persons at an anti-Nazi rally in Greensboro last fall.

"There are many closet Nazis in the Republican Party. Most conservatives are closet Nazis. If you scratch a conservative you'll find a Nazi underneath, just as if you scratch a liberal you'll find a communist," Covington said.

Iowa town on a diet

STRATFORD, Iowa (AP) — Farmer John Bergquist says he's eaten so much lettuce his ears are growing and Kaylen Leeds can be heard mumbling to herself: "I'm not hungry. I'm not hungry."

Bergquist, Ms. Leeds and more than 300 of their neighbors in this central Iowa town of 870 have enlisted in a 4½-month diet called "The Great Stratford Fat-Off."

Begun as a publicity stunt for the community's centennial celebration, it's turned into serious business. Pride is all that's at stake, as the men and women compete to see which sex loses the most.

And all over town, people are tightening their belts and pinning on buttons that plead, "Don't Feed Me."

India to get nuclear fuel from U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is pressing ahead with plans to send India two batches of nuclear fuel despite that country's refusal to agree to safeguards designed to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

President Carter asked the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to approve the shipments Wednesday. Each would fuel India's Tarapur reactor for about a year.

If the NRC does not heed the president's request, administration officials said Carter is prepared to override its decision. Were Carter to take such action, Congress would have 60 days to veto his decision.

The administration officials, who asked not to be named, said there is a good chance the NRC will reject Carter's request and that many congressmen would try to block any attempt by Carter to override the decision.

Nonetheless, they said, "With a strong effort, there is a real possibility of getting the sales through."

The basis for the decision, the officials said, is an attempt to improve U.S. relations with India at a time when the American position in South Asia is deteriorating.

They cited specifically the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan and the apparent willingness of the government of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to move closer to Moscow.

However, they said Carter's decision to call for the two shipments does not mean he will approve future Indian requests for fuel. The two Indian requests Carter endorsed fell into a "grace period" allowed by law, they said.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Do we really want to reduce inflation?

By JOHN CUNIFF, AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Undergoing a recession without correcting the causes is akin to having the surgeon decide, after he had cut you up, that he'd take a chance and not remove the tumor after all.

That, or its equivalent, is the warning now broadcast by economists who fear that if we fail to correct some obvious and serious ailments during the recession we will condemn ourselves to a repeat performance.

Among the first to be listed is the psychology of inflation. If people continue to expect prices to rise, the economists declare, prices will rise. They'll rise because people's actions will make them rise.

While consumers often are victimized by the poor decisions of those higher up, they do exert tremendous influences themselves. The past few years provide examples of how inflation fears induce more inflation.

People buy in advance of their needs in order to beat price increases. This puts added pressure on the marketplace and the availability of goods. Prices react upward.

They borrow more heavily, knowing that the dollars with which they repay will be cheaper dollars. The borrowed money may be channeled into purchases that otherwise might not be made. Again, pressure on prices.

They cut their rate of saving, reasoning that money left unspent declines in value. This leaves less money available for lending on inflation-reducing, efficiency producing capital spending projects.

Management and labor demand higher wages in anticipation of higher costs, feeding the upward spiral until it becomes a tornado.

None of these decisions is made in isolation from others, because the economy is a linkage of causes and effects as complex as the interacting cells in a living organism. They constantly act and react.

A vital ingredient of the process is confidence, or the lack of it. It doesn't take an economist or psychologist to determine that Americans have lost confidence in economic leadership. They've become cynical.

The reasons aren't obscure. Continued huge budget deficits, and insincere promises by government to do something about them, have left ordinary people aware of government's role in inflation.

Even if the consumer is afloat with confidence, however, he can't do much about prices if productivity doesn't grow. If the efficiency of production falls, inflation ensues.

Simplified, increased productivity means a bigger pie. If more can be produced for less, then everyone can have a bigger piece without taking from the other. There is more to share. Demand pressure is relieved.

While the United States is still said by some economists to be the most productive nation (the contention is contested), the growth of productivity has almost ceased. But demand hasn't. And so prices rise.

This lagging productivity is said by some to be the greatest challenge in U.S. history. Many observers also say it's the most ignored challenge. Factories are outdated by technological or environmental change. They must be updated. Where's the money to do it?

Tied directly to the productivity deficiency, and to the psychology of inflation, and the lack of confidence in economic leadership, is the value of the dollar. It's low. We need to export more. It's hard to do.

In too many respects, partly because of current inflation, American industry is not competitive in the world marketplace. Since 1975, when the last trade surplus was recorded, more than $85 billion in deficits have been run up. The country has had four straight years of red ink.

Declarer was rendered helpless. If he drew trumps, the defenders would collect two more heart tricks and the ace of diamonds.

Have you been running into double trouble? Let Charles Goren help you find your way through the maze of DOUBLES for penalties and for takeout.

The bidding: South West North East 1 ♠ 2 ♥ 2 ♠ 3 ♥ 4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass. Opening lead: King of ♥.

They say in the old country: "The trouble with leading a doubleton is that you never can tell when it's a singleton." Still, there are times when logic can point the way, as this hand illustrates.

We salute the bidding of both North and East. North did not have the values for a bid of three diamonds, which would have been forcing, so he made the only forward-going move available by freely supporting spades.

West led the king of hearts, and East followed with the two. The fate of the contract now hinged on West's next play.

From the auction, it seemed likely that East had a fast trick to justify his raise. If East held the ace of clubs, it was important to cash club and heart tricks before declarer could get discards on dummy's diamonds.
