'Trying to get into the clearing was a problem," Max Anderson said of the landing. "The helicopter pilots helped us get out of the trees."

He apparently referred to Canadian armed forces helicopters who had been stationed in the area since early this morning to await the landing. Maxie Anderson, in a navy blue parka and a green striped turtle-neck shirt, was ferried by helicopter to the airport at Matane, where he embraced his wife Patty. His son stayed with the balloon.

Asked what his next goal was, the elder Anderson replied, "I think I'm going to go home to bed."

Anderson, who won fame two years ago with two other men by becoming the first to cross the Atlantic in a balloon, said crossing the continent was

Cuba's indirect apology noted by Bahamas

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) - Cuba indirectly apologized today for the sinking of a Bahamian gunboat by Cuban MiG warplanes, but insisted its fighter pilots thought they were attacking a "pirate ship.

Bahamian Prime Minister Lyndon O. Pindling termed the claim "a cover-up" but said he would accept the Cuban statement as an apology. "There's no way that they could mistake two ensigns and a Bahamian national flag as a Jolly Roger flag," said Pindling, who was returning to the Bahamas today from London.

In Washington, the State Department issued a statement saying the initial reports indicated Cuba was guilty of a "gross violation of interna-tional law."

U.S. Coast Guard and Bahamian forces were searching for four miss-ing seamen from the Saturday night sinking of the 103-foot gunboat Flamingo just south of Cay San Domingo, the Bahamian National Security Council said.

The incident was sparked by the seizure of two Cuban fishing boats suspected of poaching in Bahamian waters.

"If the boat sank was a Bahamas patrol boat, we sincerely regret the incident," the Cuban government said in a statement published by the Communist Party newspaper, Granma. The statement was broadcast by Havana radio and monitored in Miami.

"We will never be arrogant with the Bahamas," the statement said. "It is a small country recently arrived at independence and they always can count on our solidarity and our respect.'

Though the statement did not respond directly to Bahamanian demands for reparations, it did say Cuba wanted the incident "properly clarified and settled friendly and honrably between the authorities of Cuba and Bahamas." Cuba said its MiGs were called out after one of the two boats radioed that it "was being attacked by a pirate ship." The fighter pilots opened fire when the "pirate" ignored signals to stop, the statement said.

"could be the one sunk by our aviation.

Cuba said 12 of its fishermen were missing. Bahamian authorities said only eight were in custody.

Told of the Cuban statement, Pindling said, "It would be just good sense and decency to accept that as an apology." The Bahamian council said that after the sea incident, Cuban jets, a transport plane and a helicopter made simulated rocket runs just above the treetops of Duncan Town for several hours Sunday morning. The settlement is located on Ragged Island, some 65 miles north of the eastern Cuba coast.

The helicopter landed, then took off without incident, according to a 5page statement the council issued early today after a 12-hour meeting in Nassau.

The statement said the Flamingo "was of classical naval design, was painted gray naval colors, was flying the Bahamian flags and bore other marks of identification that would clearly distinguish her as a government.ship." the council protested.

The government gave this account:

The two Cuban fishing boats were seized 11/2 miles south of Cay San Domingo, a tiny island midway be-tween Ragged Island and Cuba. Eight Cuban fishermen were arrested, the statement said.

The security council said the ves-sels were "within the undisputed territorial waters of the Bahamas."

One boat was towed, and defense force sailors took over the second for the trip back to Duncan Town, some 30 miles to the north

Two Cuban MiG jets began firing machine guns at them, but turned back after a few minutes, the government said. No one was injured at that point, but the jets returned a short time later, firing what were believed to be rockets. The Flamingo was hit and took on water rapidly. The crew abandoned ship and swam toward one of the Cuban fishing boats as the jets continued strafing the waters.

trip. There were tough times, Anderson said. Their water froze when temperatures outside the gondola plummeted to 40 degrees below zero.

"We lived for three days on oxygen," he said. Anderson said he got a "little sick" last night from a heavy meal and high altitude.

When the 20-story tall balloon's landing ropes got caught in trees on the edge of the landing site, helicopters moved in and blew the airship free with their "In the Atlantic you just get up and go," he said. "There is no altitude

Because of the hilly, wooded terrain of the area, Anderson, 45, and his son, 23, apparently considered landing in the river. But after dawn they decided they could make the clearing.

The Andersons had announced their landing plan in a radio message that was monitored aboard the plane taking Mrs. Anderson to the remote area.

Fundamentalists win majority in Iran's parliament

By The Associated Press

Hard-line Islamic fundamentalists including advocates of spy trials for the American hostages have won a majority in the new Islamic Parliament which Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini says will decide the fate of the captives, Radio Tehran reported.

The official Iranian radio said that with returns in from all but 25 of the 247 seats being filled now in the Majlis, or Parliament, the Islamic Republican Party had won a total of 110 and Moslem fundamentalists running as independents had won enough more to give the IRP a majority.

The IRP won 50 of the 98 seats decided in the first round of voting March 14. In runoff elections in 149 other districts Friday, Radio Tehran said the IRP had won 60 of the 124 seats decided by noon Sunday, and most of the others went to independents.

The Majlis at full strength is to have 270 members, but the runoffs in 23 districts were postponed because of unsettled conditions or charges of irregularities in the first round of voting. But the constitution provides that the legislature can convene as soon as two-thirds of the members, or 180, are elected.

Khomeini and other leaders of his revolutionary regime have said that the Mailis will decide what is to be done with the 53 members of the staff of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran who today are spending their 191st day as hostages. But no decision appears likely before late June or July.

The U.S. government had hoped that supporters of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr would win a sizable bloc of seats since he is considered a pragmatic moderate who wants to end the hostage crisis so he can get on with trying to restore the shattered Iranian economy. But many of the Islamic fundamentalists want the hostages tried as spies unless the United States forces Egypt to return Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran and also turns over the royal family's holdings in the United States.

The Swiss Embassy in Tehran, which represents the United States there, said it was pressing the Iranian government of information on a 54th American prisoner, freelance writer Cynthia Dwyer of Buffalo, N.Y., but has not been able to find out where she is being held.

Mrs. Dwyer was reported arrested last Monday night by three revolutionary guards in Tehran, and a local newspaper said she was accused of being a CIA spy. Informed sources in the Iranian capital said she was turned over to the Foreign Ministry on Tuesday. Elsewhere:

The White House denied a report in the London Sunday Times, quoting Irish diplomat Sean MacBride, that presidential aide Hamilton Jordan and Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh "messed up" an agreement MacBride and New York attorney Leonard Boudin had nearly completed with Bani-Sadr for the release of the hostages.

Rebels claim control of East African nation

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Rebel military officers led by Uganda's army chief of staff claimed control of the East African nation today but for the time being let President Godfrey Binaisa keep his title and the presidential residence where he was under the protection of Tanzanian troops.

An aide claimed Binaisa was still exercising his presidential powers and was conferring with officials at his residence in Entebbe, on Lake Victoria 21 miles from Kampala, the capital.

A spokesman for the rebels led by Brig. David Oyite Ojok said the military commission of the Uganda National Liberation Front, the political coalition that named Binaisa president 11 months ago, "is in charge and in control of the security and stability of the whole nation." He said this meant Binaisa was no longer in charge of national security.

There was speculation Ojok was acting on behalf of former President Milton Obote, a close friend who has been living in exile in Tanzania since Idi Amin ousted him in 1971. Rumors have been circulating for weeks that Oiok, who is believed to command the personal loyalty of a large part of Uganda's 5,000-man army, was planning a coup to return Obote to power.

But Obote denied there was going to be a military coup or that he would accept an invitation from the army to take over.

"I'd rather go to the people," he said.

Obote said earlier he would return to Kampala from Tanzania on May 27 to run against Binaisa in the presidential election later this year.

The military commission appeared to be moving cautiously in its attempt to strip Binaisa of his powers. Some observers believed it was unsure of the reaction from the 10,000 Tanzanian troops who remain in Uganda after driving Amin out a year ago.

Binaisa, a lawyer who spent most of the Amin years in exile in the United States, received Tanzanian support when he succeeded Yusufu Lule, Uganda's first postwar president who was forced out in a power struggle between civilian and military factions after only two months in office. But Binaisa has failed to curb inflation, large-scale corruption and repeated waves of revenge killing and armed robbery.

Binaisa on Saturday fired Ojok as the No.2 man in the army command, blaming him for military brutality to civilians, and named him ambassador to Algeria. But the military commission rejected the dismissal.

Binaisa's lines of communications to the people were cut on Sunday when Ojok's troops seized the government radio station in Kampala, barred the president from broadcasting and also took over the central postoffice.

"The military authorities are the ones making announcements on the radio," said an employee at the broadcasting center. "We don't know what is actually taking place."

Libyan students establish people's bureau' in embassy

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) - A group of 150 Libyans, most of then: university students, took over the Libyan Embassy here today and formed a "people's committee" to handle its administration, police reported.

The group, chanting slogans hailing Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy, declared that the embassy will now be called a "people's bureau."

The Libyan ambassador to Turkey, Saaddedin Abushwereb, said he had turned over his duties to a five-man committee chosen by the Libyan nationals in Ankara. The envoy said he would return to Tripoli.

A similar incident was reported in Vienna today. A caller who identified herself as an Austrian employed at the embassy told The Associated Press that members of a people's committee from Libya had taken over the embassy and transformed it into a People's Bureau.

'Everything happened suddenly. We ourselves do not know what happened. The old embassy staff was ordered to leave and the members of the people's committee took over,' she said.

The takeovers appeared to be in line with the orders Khadafy issued last fall for takeovers of Libyan diplomatic missions elsewhere in the world. At that time several Libyan embassies in European capitals, including those in London and Rome, were turned over to the so-called "people's committees."

automony suspended, President Carter is meeting with America's ambassadors to Cairo and Tel Aviv for a review of the obstacles to reaching a settlement by the May 26 target date.

Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie summoned the envoys home over the weekend for today's session with the president, although U.S. officials insisted there is no crisis. "The meeting is urgent only in the sense that May 26 is fast approaching," said one official, who asked not to be identified.

The new secretary of state is due to fly to Brussels Tuesday for a meeting with West European foreign and defense ministers. He will then go on to Vienna for talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

"The president wanted to see him before all that," the official said of the reason for the meeting with Muskie. Ambassadors Alfred L. Atherton Jr., who is based in Cairo, and Samuel W. Lewis, in Tel Aviv, returned over the weekend. Sol Linowitz, Carter's special Mideast mediator, is joining the two and Muskie at the White House session.

The negotiations had been set to resume today in Cairo, but instead Egyptian President Anwar Sadat ordered a suspension to consider the situation. He is due to make a speech to the Egyptian people Wednesday, and U.S. planning could be affected by any surprises he might announce, including the possibility that he will take over as prime minister from Mustafa Khalil, who is also the chief Egyptian negmtiator at the autonomy

Both Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin have indicated their willingness to extend the autonomy talks beyond May 26, the target set under the September 1978 Camp David accords.

Khalil said last week that the only points on which there had been agreement in the now-suspended talks were the importance of continuing negotiations and formation of a ministerial committee to discuss security.

One option open to Carter for stepping up the pace is to hold another summit meeting at his Maryland mountain retreat with the Egyptian and Israeli leaders. But officials here said such a move was unlikely. The object of the negotiations is to translate Begin's promise of autonomy for 1.2 million Palestinian Arabs living under Israeli control into reality. The major obstacle is how to deal with Israel's security concerns.

Egypt wants a council to be elected by the Palestinians vested with legislative and executive powers while Israel ends its military control over the west bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza district.

Israeli has indicated its willingness to set up a Palestinian police force, but wants it subordinated to Israeli authority. Behind Begin's negotiating position is a fear that a strong Palestinian authority would evolve into a state threatening Israel's existence.

32nd year for Mummers

Summer Mummers is getting it together again as the production begins its 32nd year as the longest-running melodrama in the state.

At 8 p.m. today, the final tryout session will be held in the Summer Mummers Hall, 206 S. Colorado St.

On Sunday, the first organizational meeting was held along with tryouts for this year's production, "Pettifog-gery in the Pines" or "She was Bred in Old Kentucky But She's Only a Crumb Here.'

Written by local melodramatist Randy Hicks, the script calls for such characters as Ezekiel G. Godsend, a heroic trailblazer; Daniel Boondoggle, his loyal sidekick; Caressa Comelylass, a beautiful heroine from Kentucky; Polly Esther, the heroine's matronly aunt; Pierre LePutrid, a deceitful agent of France; and his Indian henchman, Sweet Sioux.

Directing the melodrama will be Art Cole. Executive producers are Jim Salners and Susie Hitchcock. Managing producers are Ann Hath-away, Joe Hathaway and Jerry Rauterkaus. Cherry Jones will direct the olio

In addition to actors, volunteers are needed to appear in the olio as dancers, singers and comedians. Also needed are people to sell popcorn or novelties, usher, work in the box of-fice, work lights or at a variety of other jobs.

Musicians who would like to play in the Mummers band also are urged to attend tonight's session. Newcomers to Midland and college students home for the summer are invited to the meeting.

Summer Mummers will open June 27 and play each weekend through Aug. 30.

Cuban refugee total at 36,000

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) - A sudden resurgence in the Cuban boatlift has swelled the number of refugees reaching the United States to 36,000 and also claimed another victim.

After a three-day lull possibly caused by thunderstorms along the Cuban coast, more than 5,300 refu-gees arrived Sunday. It was the largest single-day influx of the three-week "Freedom Flotilla."

Also arriving was the body of the seventh Cuban-American to die on the 90-mile route.

The body of 58-year-old Rafael D. Trujillo was picked up by a Coast Guard cutter from a 24-foot boat en route to Key West from the Cuban port of Mariel with no refugees, Coast Guard officials said.

"The boat apparently had lost its way and the crew was disoriented," said Lt. J.G. Nimick. "They say tugboat pulling a barge and went over to ask directions.

boats considered dangerously unsafe or suspected of engaging in profiteering could face legal action.

Among the boats detained was the 99-foot America, a South Carolina party boat that carried 600 refugees. Capt. Tom O'Toole agreed his boat was overloaded but said he didn't have a choice.

they said: 'When you're in Cuba, you do what the Cubans tell you to do.' I don't know if they were joking, but they told me if I didn't keep my mouth shut they were going to name my boat

O'Toole said many of his passengers were "political people" with some "hard-core criminals," including a couple of men he suspected were mental cases. The Coast Guard cutter Dauntless picked up his suspected hard-core criminals, whom he had ordered to remain above deck during the voyage. Many of the young men said they were from Combinado Del Este, a large Cuban prison. Other arrivals said they were former inmates who had been told they could either leave Cuba or return to jail.

Despite the large influx, federal officials kept the refugees moving throughout the day, as buses sent them to waiting families in south Florida or to planes bound for Eglin Air Force Base in the Florida Panhandle or to Arkansas.

Immigration officials have begun allowing South Florida families topick up arriving relatives at Key West, bypassing the holding centers.

Winds tonight should be westerly at 10-15 mph.

Coast Guard cutters picked up 260 refugees from overloaded vessels Sunday, and the Navy amphibious assault ship Saipan carried 134 refugees picked up by Coast Guard helicopters.

Four boats were detained by federal officials over the weekend after is set to approve the first balanced federal budget in 12 years, but the final vote was delayed until late tonight to allow senators a long weekend for campaigning. The Senate abandoned last week's drive to finish action on the $612.9 billion 1981 spending package after ending a 17-hour session that began Thursday and spilled over into early Friday morning.

To give the 34 senators up for reelection extra time to stump for votes, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., delayed votes on the remaining 15 budget amendments until late this afternoon.

Debate on the amendments, however, was scheduled to begin earlier. Byrd also said he expected a final vote late tonight on a proposed balanced budget for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

Byrd acknowledged he was avoiding votes Friday and early today to give senators facing re-election this fall - 24 of whom are Democrats - a chance to hit the hustings.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who is up for re-election himself, criticized the Democratic leadership for scheduling major Senate business only three days a week to give campaigning senators four-day weekends.

jamming the work of the Senate into three days to take care of the senators from Eastern states who are running for re-election," Goldwater complained.

Under the Budget Act of 1974, Congress faces a deadline of Thursday for completing work on the target budget for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

Byrd also noted that prompt action is needed to permit uninterrupted spending for food stamps, black lung benefits and refugee aid.

Those programs are running out of money because Congress has exceeded its budget ceiling for the current year. That ceiling would be raised as part of the 1981 budget package.

A House-Senate conference committee was to meet this afternoon to consider a two-year, $6.5 billion expansion of the food stamp program, which helps feed about 21 million Americans.

However, a $3 billion appropriation to pay for that expansion must await final action on the budget package before it can go to the full House.

The Agriculture Department has said that unless more money is approved for food stamps by Thursday. the program will be cut off June 1. Many lawmakers, however, see some leeway in that timetable.

the budget, the Senate showed a clear willingness to back up its Budget Committee's guns-over-butter spending priorities.

Only one significant change was made and that would divert $700 million from so-called "categorical" grants to the state portion of general revenue sharing, an embattled $1.7 billion program the House wants to kill.

Unlike general revenue sharing, which a state can spend for whatever purpose it decides, categorical grants are given to states to carry out goals specifically mandated by the federal government.

The House approved its version of the 1981 balanced budget last week, recommending $611.8 billion in spending with less than the Senate favors for defense and more for social programs.

The House approved $147.9 billion for defense, $7.8 billion less than the $155.7 billion contained in the Senate package. President Carter has requested $150.5 billion for defense in his proposed $611.5 billion 1981 balanced budget.

When the Senate completes work on its budget, a House-Senate conference committee will be convened to work out differences.

Bryant claiming enough votes for House Speaker

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - After some surprising last-minute endorsements Rep. John Bryant has declared that the 1981 House speakership is in his pocket, even though the makeup of the House has not yet been decided by voters.

Bryant's office announced Sunday that Rep. W.S. Heatly, D-Paducah, and Rep. Bill Caraway, D-Pasadena, once a candidate for speaker, had thrown their support to the liberal Dallas Democrat.

"I'm convinced he (Bryant) does have it," Heatly said when reached late Sunday by phone. "I figured it was about time I announced my intentions. The damn train is moving and they are going to get some steam

It takes a vote of 76 - a majority of the 150-member House - to elect a speaker.

Bryant's aide, Carlton Carl, said Bryant now has more than 80 firm commitments "in terms of people who will, with as absolute certainty as anybody could have, be in the next Legislature."

Caraway was the only representative other than Bryant who said he was a candidate for speaker whether Speaker Billy Clayton made a serious bid for an unprecedented fourth term or not.

Welder jailed

on rape charge

A 21-year-old Midland welder was arrested this morning in connection with an alleged Sunday morning attack on an 18-year-old Midland woman at a northside apartment complex.

Arlan Morett, whose address was listed as Route 4, Box 13F, was arrested about 7:45 a.m. today at 1904 Garden City Highway. Earlier he had been charged with rape on the docket of Peace Justice John Biggs, who issued a warrant for Morett's arrest. According to a police department spokesman, the rape occurred shortly before 4 a.m. Sunday at a northside apartment complex.

The woman told police she and her attacker had been introduced by friends. She said the man was going to take her home and that on the way he stopped to go into his apartment.

It was at that location, she said, that she was attacked.

Morett was booked into city jail on the rape charge shortly before 8 a.m. today.

his car while driving to his office in Venice, across from this mainland suburb. Several passersby and shopowners witnessed the assassination, which occurred a few hundred yards from Albanese's home that he had left minutes earlier after kissing his pregnant wife.

Police said a young man and a woman fired at least 15 bullets into the police official through the side windows after his car came to a stop on a narrow street blocked by a pickup truck left by the terrorists.

The assailants fled in a waiting red Fiat, brought by two accomplices, and left behind the stolen grey truck, police said.

The death of Albanese, 10th police officer killed by terrorists and 18th victim of political terror in Italy this year, was claimed by the Red Brigades in an anonymous telephone call to the newspaper Il Gazzettino.

Red Brigades, Italy's most feared terrorist group, kidnapped and killed former Premier Aldo Moro in 1978, and claimed last week's kneecappings of a reporter in Milan and of an official of a state agency in Rome.

Police sources said the latest string of terrorist attacks appeared to be a Red Brigades attempt "to prove its vitality" following major police crackdowns in northern Italy that netted more than 100 terrorist suspects in the past few weeks.

The arrests reportedly were made on the basis of information provided by some jailed terrorist leaders who turned informers.

Shortly after today's shooting, workers left their plants in the industrial area of Mestre, shopowners lowered shutters and students abandoned class to join a spontaneous protest march against terrorism through downtown streets.

Some laid flowers on the scene of the murder, the second in this northern town within four months.

Fire destroys Midland house

An early-morning fire here today totally destroyed a Midland residence and an automobile, according to fire department reports.

Firemen were called to 5031/2 N. Mineola St. shortly before 3 a.m. today. When the four responding fire department units arrived at the scene, they found the residence blaz-

It took firemen about an hour and a half, and 2,000 gallons of water to bring the fire under control.

A car parked under a carport at the address was destroyed, fire officials said. The house is occupied by Carlos Martinez, they said, and owned by LeRoy Ellis, 503 N. Mineola St.

The fire also slightly damaged the main house at 503 N. Mineola St.

According to fire department reports, possible cause of the fire was a cigarette.

critically hurt LOS ANGELES (AP) - Robin Cranston, son of U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston remained in critical condition today in the intensive care unit of the UCLA Medical Center following an auto accident in which he was dragged 20 feet, authorities said.

The 32-year-old Cranston injured his head after being struck and dragged by the van Saturday night, authorities said. He underwent surgery following the accident, a hospital spokeswoman said.

David Lawrence, a friend of Cranston's, said he was waiting in his car in front of Cranston's West Los Angeles home when Cranston knocked on the driver's window and said "Let's go," Los Angeles police Sgt. Robert Troutt said.

NEW YORK (AP) - In Beverly Hills, where Ferraris, Lamborghinis and Bentleys are as common as palm trees, a wealthy accountant who wanted something a bit different or-dered a $55,000 Evolution I — a car custom-designed by Pierre Cardin.

The accountant is among the wellheeled few who are keeping the luxury car market alive - if barely - at a time when American auto sales are collapsing.

"As far as our share of the luxury market, we're doing better now than a year ago. There are fewer total buyers in this market, but we're getting a good share," says a spokesman for Cadillac in Detroit.

Catalina Rodriquez

Car production

declines further

The five U.S. manufacturers now plan to build only 1,696,000 cars from April through June, the industry weekly Ward's Automotive Reports said Saturday. It marks the sixth time since early March that production plans have been trimmed. The latest figure is 21/2 percent less than last week's production estimate of 1,744,000 cars; 20 percent below where second-quarter plans stood in early March, 2,120,000 cars; and 31 percent below the output of last year's second quarter, 2,-460.000 cars.

May production now is estimated at 544,000 cars, close to the 542,000 produced in May 1961. In 1961. 1.55 million cars were built in the second quarter.

In March of this year, manufacturers thought the usual spring selling season was upon them and planned 2,120,000 cars, 14 percent below the 2,460,000 produced in the 1979 second quarter. The latest cut wеге try likes a 60-day supply of cars on dealer lots to give buyers an adequate variety to look at.

Chrysler's inventory climbed the most, swelling from 77 days to 121 days. Among the Big Three companies, GM stocks were the trimmest at 67 days compared with 59 days a month earlier. Ford's rose from 60 days to 92 days, and the company has begun offering customer rebates again in an effort to clear the lots

But Rolls Royce sales in the United States will be down by only about 100 from last year's 1,100, said Reg Abbiss of Rolls Royce, Inc. About onethird of the British-produced cars are sold in the United States, he said.

"It's a mixture of old and new money," Abbiss said, "celebrities, pop groups. The biggest sales in the United States are in Newport Beach and Beverly Hills, Calif."

The cheapest - if that's the word -Rolls Royce is the Silver Shadow II, which sells for $85,300. The Corniche convertible is the most expensive at $148,400.

Mercedes-Benz sales in the United States were down 2 percent for the first quarter, a spokesman said. Thirteen percent of the German cars are sold in the United States. The price range is $17,500 for the 240D to $43,000 for the 450 SLC.

Sports car sales are down too. According to Ward's Automotive Reports, sales of Alfa Romeo for the first quarter this year were 747. For the same quarter last year, 896 were sold. Lancia sales totaled 631 in January, February and March after 447 for the same quarter last year.

Some luxury cars have been harder hit. Robert M. McElwaine, president of the American Imported Automobile Dealers Association, said Porsche sales for April were down 44 percent from April 1979 and Jaguar sales had plunged by 40 percent. The Porsche ranges in price from $16,700 to $37,900. The Jaguar XJ12 four-door sedan is about $25,000.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What is meant baby's bowels. by "congestive heart failure?"-Ms. K.D.

Dear Ms. D.: "Heart failure" refers to a condition in which the heart is unable to pump the required amount of blood. This often leads to congestion because of fluid accumulating in the abdomen, legs and lungs.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My sister tells me I should cut down on my daily intake of eight to 10 cups of coffee while I am nursing my baby, since caffeine can be transferred from the mother to the infant. Is this true? What about other drugs? -- Mrs. J.K.L.

Dear Mrs. L.: Just as the fetus may be affected by drugs used by a pregnant woman, so, too, may a newborn infant be exposed to drugs secreted through the mother's milk. Caffeine is one of these drugs.

Not all drugs that are detectable in the mother's milk are necessarily harmful to the nursing infant. On the other hand, even small amounts of a drug can adversely affect a baby who is exposed to it during the course of several feedings over an extended period of time.

The concentration of a drug in breast milk is related to the amount in the mother's blood. This, in turn, depends on such factors as when she took the drug, the form in which it was taken, and the amount and kind of food she has eaten. Potentially dangerous drugs are not limited to those only obtainable by prescription, but include some over-the-counter preparations as well. Some of the ingredients found in laxatives, for example, are believed to affect the

In regard to hard drugs, a nursing mother who uses heroin may cause her baby to become addicted, too. Conversely, if the mother takes methadone, a drug used to treat heroin addicts, the infant may be enabled to avoid withdrawal symptoms. This is not a recommended form of treatment because babies have been known to die from methadone received while nursing.

Among the standard drugs known to be passed from nursing mothers to their babies is phenobarbital. This drug affects the baby in the same way it affects the mother -- that is, it makes him drowsy. Caffeine, on the other hand, has an opposite effect.

One of the more common drugs, reserpine, which is widely used in the treatment of high blood pressure, is said to cause weight loss in nursing children whose mothers take it. Even so popular a drug as penicillin, if absorbed by an infant over a period of time, might eventually lead to the development of an allergic reaction. What all this points up is the advis-ability of discussing with your physician the amount of coffee you are accustomed to consuming, as well as any prescription or over-the-counter medications you may be using. You will then know whether the caffeine or any other drug you may be taking poses a danger to your baby, and be able to act accordingly.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore. Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Cheer up; God has it under control

I have spoken of these matters very guardedly, but the time will come when this will not be necessary and I will tell you plainly all about the Father.

Then you will present your petitions over My signature! And I won't need to ask the Father to grant you these requests,

For the Father Himself loves you dearly because you love Me and believe that I came from the Father.

Yes, I came from the Father into the world and will leave the world and return to the Father." "At last You are speaking plainly," His disciples said,

Wetland dumping fast becoming major problems for many U.S. ports

By GARRY MITCHELL

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) - A barefoot wader in a farm pond giggles when that oozy stuff squirts between his

William H. Black only frowns.

As an engineer and chief administrative officer of the Alabama State Docks, Black must find suitable areas to dump more than one million cubic yards of that oozy stuff each year.

Scooped from the bottom of the Mobile River ship channel by the Army Corps of Engineers, the ooze is called dredge material. The channel must be dredged to maintain a depth appropriate for ship traffic.

But Black is running out of places to dump dredge material, a common problem for many ports.

'If we don't use Pinto Pass, the port of Mobile will close in a couple of years," Black says.

Pinto Pass is a tiny stretch of land connecting Pinto Island with Blakeley Island, both located across the river from Mobile at the harbor's entrance

Myrt Jones, president of the local Audubon Society, charges that the use of Pinto Pass "is a political maneuver to gobble up more wetlands.'

"That's asinine," Black counters.

"We're caught in the middle," says Sam Green, spokesman for the Corps of Engineers. "Federal law requires us to maintain that channel.

From Green's office overlooking the harbor, a nearly full disposal site can be seen on Blakeley Island.

"We can get about one more dump-ing there," Black says.

Federal laws also require the Corps to investigate any alternatives to wetland dumping. Those laws were passed after Pinto Pass was approved as a dumping site. Now the dumping permit must be re-issued to consider he alternatives.

Alternatives to dumping dredge on wetlands include ocean dumping. Black says this method is impractical for the State Docks and very expensive.

Mrs. Jones suggests that the state could better use the dredge material within a 125-mile radius to build roadbeds.

In its evaluation to the Environmental Protection Agency, the Corps wrote: "Destruction of the wetlands within Pinto Pass can be justified based upon, to some extent, the type of wetlands affected, the large capacity of the area, the potential for creation of additional wetlands, and the fact that there are no other more suitable sites with long-term potential."

Pinto could best be described as a fresh water marsh of the outer coastal plain. It is home to muskrat, woodrats, mice, raccoon, opossum, and several species of snakes, turtles, salamanders, and birds, not to mention creatures like clams, snails, grass shrimp, blue crabs, and various fishes.

"Some people are always going to object," Black says. "If we construct an island, some object that you'll change the currents.

Environmentalist challenges to Mobile Bay industrial development go back to the early 1970s, when it became apparent that the upper reaches of the bay were polluted. About 50 industries congregate around the port.

NEW YORK (AP) - The United States is not likely to end its dependence on foreign oil by the end of the decade, but U.S. gasoline consumption will fall by at least 20 percent in the 1980s, a petroleum industry forecast says.

"The economic and political risks and problems" stemming from re-imported oil "will continue over the next 10 years," the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation

Inc. said Sanday. But "the seemingly stantless long-term growth in U.S. oil imports winch Exporting Countries and help unify the cartel's chaotic pricing system.

The projected drop in imports by the United States will stem in part from a decade-long decline in U.S. oil demand, reversing "a rising trend which has been maintained since the beginning of the century," the foundation said.

Major factors in the expected fall in oil consumption will be government moves to encourage use of coal and other alternate fuels, it said.

Saudi Arabia's defense minister, Prince Sultan Ibn Abdel Aziz, was quoted by a Saudi newspaper last Wednesday as pledging the county's "irrevocable resolve" to maintain oil production at its current rate so as not to "hurt the economy of the world."

Meanwhile, the newsletter Petroleum Intelligence Weekly reported Sunday that Saudi Arabia, the main foreign oil supplier to the United States, will maintain its current 9.5 million barrels-a-day oil output at least through the end of this year.

The widely-followed publication said Saudi "authorities at the highest level" approved the policy. Some observers have said Saudi Arabia was contemplating cutting back output by 1 million barrels a day in the second half of 1980 to pacify militant members of the Organization of Petroleum

NEW YORK (AP) - Saudi Arabia, the main foreign oil supplier to the United States, will maintain its current 9.5 million barrels-a-day oil output at least through the end of this year, the newsletter Petroleum Intelligence Weekly said Sunday.

The widely followed publication said Saudi "authorities at the highest level" approved the policy. The publication did not further attribute the report, but a spokesman said it came from people we believe to be 100 percent reliable."

The report appeared less than a month before the scheduled meeting of Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries members in Algeria to set oil prices. OPEC oil ministers met in Saudi Arabia last week but failed to reach a final agreement either on long-term price or production strategies. The Petroleum Intelligence Weekly story was not immediately confirmed by spokesmen for Exxon Corp., Mobil Corp., Standard Oil Co. of California and Texaco Inc., owners of the company that produces three-quarters of Saudi Arabia's oil.

But a knowledgeable U.S. oil industry source, who asked not to be quoted by name, said he was "not surprised" by the report.

Saudi Arabia's defense minister, Prince Sultan Ibn Abdel Aziz, was quoted by a Saudi newspaper last Wednesday as pledging the county's "irrevocable resolve" to maintain oil production at its current rate so as not to "hurt the economy of the world." But the Saudi oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, told a news conference a day later "we don't plan to go over and above" a daily rate of 9.5 million 42-gallon barrels.

Saudi Arabia, which supplies 7.5 percent of U.S. oil needs, "temporariy" boosted output from 8.5 million barrels daily last summer following shortages caused by the Iranian revolution and subsequent oil-production cutbacks.
