Drug connection has Big Spring residents upset over concert

TYLER (AP) - An "inmate" doctor involved in a flap over a Willie Nelson concert once illegally dispensed drug prescriptions to Nelson and his celebrity friends, records

John Marcus Young, 41, an Athens radiologist, provided a wide variety of prescription pills to Nelson, his wife and several other country and western singers.

The popular physican quietly pleaded guilty to unlawful possession and dispensing "narcotic controlled substances" and was sentenced last January to three years in federal in Big Spring, Young has become embroiled in a controversy swirling around a Nelson benefit scheduled there Sunday night.

Among the recipients of Young's prescriptions were country and western singers Waylon Jennings, Johnny Rodriguez and Sammi Smith, rock singer Steve Fromholz and Playboy Playmate Kelli Murphy.

U.S. Attorney John Hannah of Tyler described Young as a "celebrity groupie" who did not benefit monetarily from his drug dealings.

Hannah said he reportedly earned $160,000 annually from his radiologist

A substantial portion of Young's medical records, including the reports of investigating officers, were

Said Justice: "Your friends believe in you. I'm not certain that some of the people who had written me would have done so if they had known all that was in this report.'

Justice did not order the records sealed but federal, state and local officials said he preferred that they remain secret. The judge denied Young's appeal for leniency. "Prisons can't be reserved for the poor, the uneducated or persons without standing in the community," he said. "In instances where it is merited, the rich, powerful, professional and others in positions of prestige must also withstand imprisonment."

Justice sent the once-bearded doc-tor to the federal minimum security camp in West Texas, where he played a key role in luring Nelson to Big

John Allman, superintendent of the federal camp, confirmed that Young contacted Nelson about the benefit and was probably responsible for his acceptance.

"But Mr. Young is not running the show," he insisted. "He is not making any money out of it. He is merely advising civilian Junior Chamber of

He also insisted there is nothing irregular about Young working out-

Allman said he is aware "there's people upset" but "I hate to ruin a good cause because somebody has a personal feeling about an inmate.'

He said he also was aware of the narcotic link between Young and Nelson and others, but perhaps not to the full extent.

The documents show Nelson and wife, Connie, obtained a wide variety of amphetamines, barbiturates, sedatives, diet pills and painkillers between 1975 and 1979.

None hurt as bomb explodes in casino

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) - Police today hunted three suspects in a bombing that blew the side out of a Lake Tahoe hotel-casino during a botched attempt to extort $3 million in $100 bills from the gambling house.

The FBI, meanwhile, said the sophisticated design of the complex bomb, which sent plumes of smoke skyward and showered debris over several blocks when it was accidentally detonated by a robot, may offer clues to who built it.

Late Wednesday authorities issued an all-points bulletin for three suspects driving a black late-model car with California license plates. A California Highway Patrol spokesman said it was not known where they were headed. Agents tried to meet the ransom demand to save the posh resort, but the bomb exploded Wednesday during attempts to dismantle it. The blast made rubble of the $20 million casino's bottom floors and blew out most of the windows in the 12-story

The blast came more than 30 hours after the bomb, encased in a blue steel box inside an IBM computer carton, was first discovered at Har-

Strike leader calls for temporary halt

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Polish strike leader Lech Walesa appealed today for a temporary halt to the spread of the strikes to give the communist government time to settle the labor crisis.

It is not good to have Poland terrorized," Walesa said. "The people must have food. If we don't get results in three to four days, then let the strikes spread."

He said he would go on state radio and television to make his appeal. Walesa, chairman of the Gdansk area Joint Strike Committee, made the announcement at the request of government negotiators in an emotional speech while perched atop a gate at Gdansk's Lenin Shipyards, the unofficial strike headquarters.

Dissident sources earlier reported that the work stoppages were continuing to spread beyond the Baltic seaport cities where they began Aug. 14.

According to the communist regime's top negotiator, the governers' demands, but progress has yet to be made on the key question of free trade unions.

A recorded message by Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski, who has been trying to end the walkout, did not elaborate on the government's concessions. It was broadcast by Gdansk radio after Andrzej Gwiazda, one of the strikers' negotiators, told reporters, "There is general agree-

House by house, the south and east sides of Midland are being scrutinized in a study for the Objectives for Midland program to determine what needs to be done to improve those sections of the city. The preliminary data will go to the Urban Land Institute which will recommend ways to alleviate problems of those sections, Mike Williams told the Midland Chamber of Commerce board on land and who doesn't, he explained. The Objectives program talked about industrialization of that area, Williams said. This study of the tax records will help to identify large open tracts of land that might possibly be used for industry.

One survey has taken a look at retail stores in the south and east sides. The results showed that "people in our target area feel prices at those stores are too high, the employees are courteous and the shops are clean," said Williams. "But what concerns us most is that residents aren't shopping at stores in their Preliminary housing surveys have revealed that "there are a number of unpaved streets in the target area and then a number of paved streets that have no houses on them."

Nine members of the Urban Land Institute will take the preliminary data gathered by Williams, study it and make recommendations on projects when the panel comes to Midland for a week starting Nov. 14. Of the nine members, eight are from the private sector, he said, and the ninth is from the public sector.

Yeager, of 4310 Princeton Ave., was injured at 1:56 p.m. in the 4600 block of West Wall Avenue when his vehicle and a vehicle driven by Larry Frank-lin Stover, 5706 McKnight St., collided. Both were eastbound on Wall when the wreck occurred.

Yeager was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital by ambulance. He was treated and released.

His car was towed away by Reid's Wrecking Service. At 5:23 p.m., Yeager reported that he and his wife went to Reid's parking lot to retrieve some personal items from his pickup. As he did, a man approached and grabbed the items out of Yeager's hands, officers were told. Yeager said he pushed the man and the man began striking him about the head, shoulders and back with a 24-inch flashlight made of aircraft aluminum.

Another traffic accident injured a Midland woman Wednesday night.

John Paul Prado, 1111 S. Camp St., No. 9, was northbound on Big Spring Street. Martha Harris Swindell, 713 S. Jackson St., was eastbound on Wall Avenue. The two vehicles collided at the intersection. Ms. Swindell was treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room.

A Midland man was taken to Odessa Medical Center following an early morning accident today on Interstate Highway 20. Roberto Cornejo, 24, of Midland was eastbound on I-20, as was a trucktractor driven by Charles Sparks of Georgia. Apparently, Cornejo's vehicle had a blow-out and the two vehicles collided around 2: 45 a.m.

Also in the chamber session, Bill Collyns said the Industrial Foundation has purchased another 200 acres for a new industrial park south of Midland Regional Airport. The first 50 acres will be ready for development in the near future. The industrial park at the southwest corner of Midland is almost filled with only a few spots left for small industries.

President Ray Moudy advised the directors the city's portion of the chamber budget was cut by $29,000 during the City Council meeting Tuesday. Councilman Steve Davidson replied the decision to cut "was not a vote against the chamber.'

Moudy explained the $130,000 the chamber will get is coming out of the city's hotel-motel tax. That tax is 4 percent, but the chamber actually is only getting 1 percent, he said. The other 3 percent is going to retire bonded indebtedness on Midland Center.

Because of the cut, Moudy said the chamber will have to limit activities of the economic development division. It's that division, he added, that works to bring in other industries to Midland.

The board was advised that Federal Express will be starting service at Midland Regional Airport soon. The firm gives overnight delivery of packages, Moudy explained. A news conference will be held later to announce the program.

Most children talked about riding a bus, eating in a large room with fellow students, having to walk to and from one place in a straight line or napping on a cool floor.

Wednesday marked the birth of the Bunche Early Childhood Center which houses kindergarten classes from Travis and South elementary

"It's a moustache," Roger proudly proclaimed. On separate sides of the class-

Recess remains the ideal activity of school children. The swings were the object of much debate as to who would get swung and when. One playground toy receiving much attention consisted of a plastic milk carton cut in the form of a scoop and a tennis ball. The children would throw the ball high into the air and try to catch it with the scoop.

"As a kindergarten teacher, you make do with what you've got," a teacher said of the toy. "In my house, I have things like that scattered all over the living room floor.

Riding the bus to school was quite an experience for one kindergarten student and her mother. According to several students on the bus, the ride produced a tearful departure for the two, even though the mother rode with her daughter on the bus.

The mother quickly discovered that the more she cried, her daughter responded equally. As she was becoming embarassed with the situation, the mother subdued her emotions.

It was probably the first time the two had parted - daughter going to school for the first time and mom realizing her little girl was not that little anymore.

Jagielski replied on Gdansk radio and TV Wednesday night that "these demands have to be discussed within the present trade union" setup, which is controlled by the state. He resumed talks at the shipyard today with Walesa and striking workers greeted the premier with polite "good mornings" in contrast to their previous stony Meanwhile, informed sources said at least two factions had emerged with the 19-member leadership of the strike committee. They said one faction wanted to reach a compromise on the demand for free trade unions, while the other wanted to hold out for further concessions. It was not known how many members favored compromise or whether that faction included the most influential strike leaders.

LANCASTER, Texas day-care center that (AP) — A justice of the peace has ordered a Baptist church congregation evicted for failure to pay its debts, but the pastor of the churchschool says he's going to stay put - regardless of the court ruling. "I don't believe the courts of our land will put a Baptist church out if it can prove it's trying just as hard as it can," said the Rev. Herschel Williams, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church.

Justice of the Peace Vernon Chowning, however, could - and did order the pastor and his church to start packing their bags.

The eviction order came Wednesday after testimony indicated the church is in default on $40,000 to $50,000 in bond payments to the Modern Church Financing Com-

The company foreclosed on the property in July after the unpaid debts had piled up. In August, the property was sold and company officials filed for eviction.

"There are bondholders not in any way affiliated with that church. To them it's just an investment," company attorney Terry Cozby said. "Those bondholders have a right to enforce their debt - even to a church."

But to enforce that spokesman Ray Steed. debt, the company will have to go over the pastor, who stands firm in his belief that money is not the issue - it is a battle between right and wrong, he said.

"We have not said we don't owe money. We do," Williams said. "We have done everything in our power to pay ... But I make no apology for saying I think God put us in the school business."

Williams staunchly added what he believes is God's will would prevail and keep the school and

Carter to announce economic recovery program

'Tax relief' expected in election-year package

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's new economic recovery program, to be announced today, would create about 900,000 additional jobs in the next two years, administration sources say.

Carter's election-year program also is expected to seek tax relief for individuals and businesses, including a tax credit to offset virtually all the $13 billion increase in Social Security payroll taxes in 1981.

The plan, which will total about $30 billion in fiscal 1981, is "basically long-term, but that doesn't mean there won't be short-term benefits,' one top administration official said Tuesday.

One long-range initiative, administration sources said, will be a proposed 3 percent annual increase in federal spending, instead of tax incentives, for research and development. Most of the money would go to private firms, not government agencies.

But to battle the current recession and stimulate new jobs, Carter reportedly will propose:

-$500 million to $1 billion in "countercyclical revenue sharing" funds that would go to localities where unemployment has reached a certain high level, administration sources say.

-A 13-week extension of unemployment benefits for jobless workers, according to congressional sources briefed by the White House. Benefits currently run up to 39 weeks.

-An extra $1 billion in loans and loan guarantees for the Economic Development Administration in fiscal 1981 and another $2 billion in fiscal 1982. This money would go to revitalize distressed companies and locali-

—Additional spending for job retraining programs through the Department of Labor and for energy conservation and weatherization programs run by the departments of Energy and Housing and Urban Development. Carter aides have refrained from the president's own promise three weeks ago that his program "will put millions and millions of people back to work in new jobs, exciting jobs and stimulaing jobs."

But a top administration official said this week the program probably would create "450,000 jobs next year over and above what we would otherwise get, and probably another 450,000 (jobs) the following year."

About 8 million Americans now are unemployed. Total spending authorization for these programs could reach $5 billion to $7 billion, but actual outlays in fiscal 1U81 would be aout $2 billion to $4 billion, dhese sources say. This will increase the projected fiscal 181 deficit beyond $30 billion, % ar

Carter aides have refrained from the president's own promise that his program "will put millions and millions of people back to work...." But a top administration official did say the program could create "450,000 jobs next year...and probably another 450,000 (jobs) the follow-

from the balanced budget proposed by Carter only last winter. Moreover, that deficit does not take into account proposed major tax revisions affecting individuals and businesses, the key element of Carter's

Sources said Carter will urge Congress to lessen substantially, but not eliminate, the "marriage penalty," a quirk in tax regulations that results in married persons with two incomes paying more taxes than two single

The president will urge that the tax changes be enacted after the election and go into effect Jan 1, sources said. If Congress doesn't act until next year, the revisions should be retroactive, the administration says.

Although Carter's economic plan is described as part of a long-term strategy to revita!!ze American industry, it carries a heavy dose of politics.

It is designed as Carter's answer to Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan's proposal for a 10 percent, across-the-board cut in individual income taxes, effective Jan. 1.

The jobs segment is aimed at Carter's own party, and especially at Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who wants $12 billion in new employ-

That call evolved into a platform plank at the Democratic National Convention and caused "a serious dilemma for us," an administration official said.

Most of the initiatives would require congressional approval and will not be sent to Capitol Hill until after the election, administration officials

To encourage corporate investment and promote industrial productivity, Carter is expected to propose more generous depreciation allowances on new plants and equipment.

In addition, he is expected to offer two other tax plans aimed at helping companies in particular economic distress:

-An extra-fast tax writeoff of new investment, above and beyond the base depreciation change, for companies in high unemployment areas that can qualify for a certificate of necessity under criteria yet to be formulated by the administration.

-A refundable investment tax credit on new machinery and plants to companies that are losing money and thus not paying corporate taxes.

Administration officials said the programs would definitely help the troubled auto, steel and rubber industries. But they insisted that the tax changes would not be limited to these sectors.

Bay State battles auto theft ranking

By STEVE WILSON

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts, the nation's perennial car theft capital, is trying to stamp out its once-every-eight-minutes heists by infiltrating organized rings, punishing young "joyriders" and unmasking phony insurance claims.

"Automobile theft has reached a crisis stage in the commonwealth," says a gloomy report by a gover-nor's task force. "(It) has become a crime that must be ranked with narcotics trafficking as a major national crisis.'

For each of the past 15 years, Massachusetts has had the highest auto theft rate in the nation. In 1979, when the Bay State's rate doubled the national average, more than 60,000 cars were reported stolen - a rate of almost 1,100 stolen cars for every

By comparison, No. 2 Rhode Island had 807 thefts per 100,000, according to the latest FBI figures. North Dakota, the safest place for a car, reported 148 thefts per 100,000.

IN BOSTON ALONE, 10,230 cars were stolen in the first six months of 1980. Even Mayor Kevin White's personal or city-owned cars have been hit by thieves 10 times in eight years. Authorities hope a law going into effect in October can deflate the theft rate. The new statute has

-It mandates one-year prison terms for second time offenders. -It requires thieves to compensate car owners and insurance companies for losses.

—It outlaws filing phony theft reports on auto heists staged to collect insurance money.

Many car thefts are blamed on "joyriders," youths who get their kicks taking a spin in a hot car. "For some teen-agers, stealing a car is a recreation, like baseball is for some other groups," said Michael Donovan, assistant to the Boston police commissioner. Donovan's car has been stolen

One oft-cited explanation for the theft rate is that first-time offenders are charged with a misdemeanor rather than a felony.

"You steal a $10,000 car and it's a misdemeanor; you steal $100 and it's a felony," says police Capt. William Pendergast.

CAR THIEVES in Massachusetts stand only a one-in-six chance of getting caught; of those who are convicted, two in three never spend a day in jail, according to the task force report.

At a public hearing in Boston last spring, one young thief admitted stealing 5,000 cars and being arrested 15 times. Another said he stole 8,000 vehicles, was arrested five times but never convicted. "It's like a pat on the back and go out and do it again," he said.

The cost is staggering. Yearly, Americans lose $683 million in unrecovered cars, nearly $1 billion in insurance costs related to car theft and more than $60 million for accidents involving stolen cars. In Massachusetts. the annual cost of vehicles not recovered is over $50 million. Losses in cars recovered but damaged or stripped for parts exceeds $38 million. An additional $10 million is lost in stolen contents or access-

The toughest part of the car theft battle may be against organized rings running steal-to-order parts rackets and sophisticated insurance frauds.

"It's not a joyriding thing when a tremendous percentage of the late model cars are never recovered," said an FBI agent in Worcester, who probably 50 operations going (in Massachusetts)

A COMMON GIMMICK: A criminal buys a damaged vehicle and switches its title and license plates to a stolen car. Presto! A hot car becomes legitimate.

We need strict seven-days-a-week dedication to auto theft," said George Luciano, state public safety secretary. "That means full-time undercover work - infiltrating gangs and organizations."

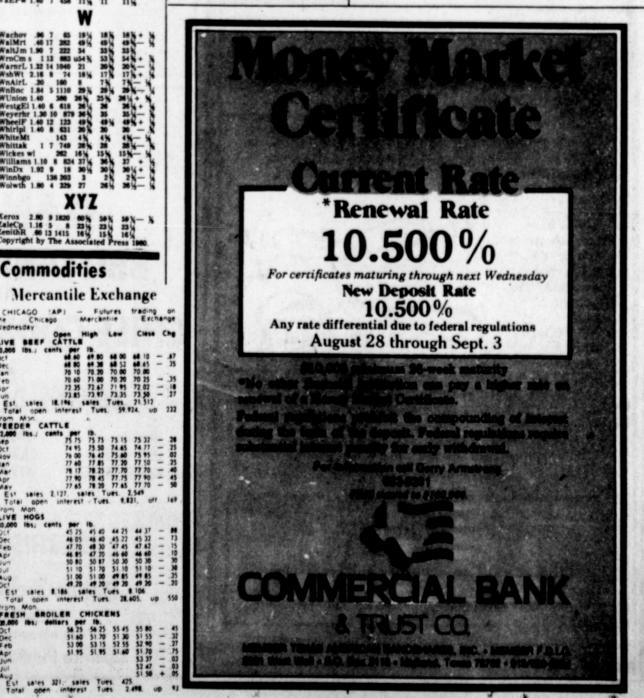

The soaring cost of auto parts is a big incentive for thieves. Many stolen cars are hauled to "chop shops" and stripped by specialists with the speed of raceway pit crews.

A study by the Alliance of American Insurers shows the parts of a standard 1979 car are worth 41/2 times as much as the assembled car.

The new statute also aims to crimp insurance fraud. Industry sources estimate up to 25 percent of all reported thefts are phony. Some owners torch their cars; others register and insure cars that don't exist, then report them stolen.

Thefts and fraud mean higher insurance rates for all. Each year in Massachusetts, over $12 million is paid out for fraudulent claims.

'Middle Age Crazy' modern morality play

MIDDLE AGE CRAZY is based on the Sonny Throckmorton song about a man "40 years old, going on 20." He's Bruce Dern, a successful Houston contractor with a wife who pumps up their sex life to keep him satisfied. But that isn't enough. His concern over aging prompts him to trade in his Olds for a Porsche and to have a fling with a Dallas cheerleader. Director John Trent and writer Carl Kleinschmitt have done a slick job of concocting a bitter comedy that is in reality a modern morality play. After experiencing the fleshly pleasures, the husband realizes that his old life wasn't so bad after all. Bruce Dern gives the best performance of his career, and Ann-Margret is ideal as his perplexed wife. The film's only drawback is an uneven tone, perhaps because locations were shot in Houston and interiors in Canada under tax-shelter financing. The rating is R, with strong language, a nude gogo dancer and pervasive sexual themes.

Motion Picture Association of America rating definitions:

G - General audiences. All ages admitted. PG - Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.

R - Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.

X - No one under 17 admitted. Some states may have higher age limits.

Fort Worth may vote

on movies

FORT WORTH (AP) - Fort Worth residents may get a chance to go to the polls to decide if the city's cable television franchise winner will be permitted to show Rrated movies.

Mayor Pro Tem Dick Newkirk said he is considering asking the city council to hold a special election to determine the content of movies shown on cable televi-

A similar election was held at Mesquite. Residents of the Dallas suburb turned out in record numbers to reject a proposed ban on R-rated movies. That election involved a hard-fought campaign between groups in favor of the R-rated movies and a church-oriented group opposed to them.

Newkirk made the remark about a possible special election after Morgan Woodruff presented the council with a petition bearing the signatures of 212 persons who want the R-rated movies banned. It was the second such petition presented to city offi-

Woodruff, who contended the movies are "indecent," said such a special election would be the "most forthright solution" to the issue.

Rejecting arguments that the city should not attempt to legislate morality, Woodruff said, "R-rated movies are no more than corruption."

NEW YORK (AP) - When Michael Cogswell finishes a 2,100-mile trek along the Appalachian Trail - making meals, drinking spring water, hiking as far as 28 miles a day — he intends to start first grade Michael, 6, is halfway to becoming the youngest person ever to walk the entire trail, from Maine to Georgia. His mother and stepfather, Reina and Jeff Cogswell, are also looking beyond their Appalachian journey: they hope for a lifetime of romantic Jeff Cogswell is 33, a beefy former yacht deliverer whose mustache serves as a lid for a broad smile. He says he's always had a penchant for adventure - bicycling cross-country, floating on a flatboat down the Mississippi, crossing the Pacific on a Polynesian canoe without food, water or navigational aids.

He settled down to deliver yachts last year, and met Reina, 23, a cashier at a Miami sandwich shop. They married a month later.

"Everybody wants to meet someone and fall in love and live happily ever after," said Cogswell. "I had met a lot of girls, but none who would want to pick up and just seek adventure."

Reina is different. "I like the idea of escaping from the hustle and bustle and the crime, and going out and doing things. And this way, we can all be together as a family all the time," she said.

They sold everything they owned - their car, their home in Miami, all their belongings - and set out on the trail April 1. The Cogswells are making their journey in two parts. First, they hiked from the trail's southern terminus to its midpoint in Harper's Ferry, W.Va., arriving there Aug. 10. To avoid New England's capricious autumn weather, they plan to drive arriving at Thanksgiving. The hike, they said, was to be a tune-up for other adventures. The question was whether to take Michael, Reina's son by a previous marriage, or send him to stay with his grandmother in California. Michael made the decision: he wanted to go. Officials for the Appala-chian Trail Conference say they believe the youngest "through-hiker" (one who hikes the whole trail) to have made the journey in one trip so far

"One day," said Cogswell, "Reina asked me how to spell 'relief.' Before I could say anything, Michael said, 'R-O-L-A-I-D-S.' I couldn't find a rope to string him up with, so I decided to take him along, where there would be no more TV ...

"At first, I didn't know if Michael would be able to do it or not. I fully expected to have to send him home after a week," he said. And at first, Michael did have his problems. He tired easily and fell a lot - "584 times so far," said his mother. "We've been counting." But then, Cogswell said, came a "transformation." The 40-pound, blond youngster now carries his 8½-pound pack without a whimper. He's learned the names of 20 wildflowers and how to cook the dehydrated camp meals. He says he likes watching the "Peter Cottontail" rabbits, but still misses television.

One day, in the Smoky Mountains, Cogswell heard his son screaming so loud he thought "he'd been bitten by a snake or caught by a bear. He wouldn't stop screaming, and I thought about what you see in the movies and I slapped him. It worked."

Michael pointed in the direction of "big black thing." It was the first wild boar he'd ever seen. "It scared me half to death," said the boy.

For only the third time in his life, Michael saw snow and threw snowballs. He slept in a firehouse-hostel in Waynesboro, Va., and climbed on the trucks, quite an occasion for a boy who wants to be a fireman when he grows up.

He lost a baby tooth along the trail, and the "tooth fairy" put a toy truck and two quarters under his sleeping bag.

"Even the Easter Bunny found him along the trail," Cogswell said.

DC-9 Super 80 gets certification

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — McDonnell Douglas Corp. received formal certification from the Federal Aviation Administration for its DC-9 Super 80 airliner amid protests from pilots over the plane's crew

McDonnell President John Brizendine, who accepted the certificate from FAA Western Regional Director John Mattson during a brief ceremony this week at the company's plant here, defended the two-person crew of the new airliner. "The DC-9 Super 80, as all DC-9s have been, is designed to be operated by a crew of two," Brizendine said. "The airplane is designed from the ground up for that. The workload of the Super 80 is a very significant percentage reduced from the work-load of earlier DC-9s. We are satisified it's safe and the FAA is satisfied.' John O'Connell, president of the Airline Pilots Association, which contends three people are needed to operate the new airliner, said in Washington that the union will consider a nationwide work stoppage to protest the FAA certification.

ALPA sued the FAA Monday, seeking a court review of its certification procedures and alleging that the agency "has permitted undue and improper manufacturer influence, domination and control over the certification process."

Mattson, however, said the FAA had imposed strict requirements on the new airliner and said the Brian D. Mohr, M.D.

More unemployment funds asked

WASHINGTON (AP) - Jobless Americans would be entitled to higher state unemployment insurance payments for a longer period of time and with fewer restrictions under a package of recommendations issued by a national commission.

The proposals put forth this week by the National Commission on Unemployment Compensation call for increased government spending — financed through higher employer taxes — at a time when Congress, the Carter administration and state governments are seeking ways to hold down their

The commission was created by Congress in 1976 to propose changes in the nation's unemployment com-

The proposals include raising average payments by 20 percent or more, increasing the maximum number of weeks of eligibility from 39 to 65, bringing more people under the system, standardizing programs from state to state, increasing employer tax rates and aiding states facing severe deficits because of high unemployment.

Between 1970 and 1977, Cohen said, 1.24 percent of employers' total payroll costs went to pay for the compensation program. Under the commission's recommendations, the percentage of payroll costs would rise to no more than 2 percent by the end of the Congress and state legislatures would have to change laws to adopt the commission's proposals for changing the unemployment compensation system, which is administered jointly at the state and federal

Interior Department lifts moratorium on tar sands

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Tuesday's lifting of a 15-year Interior Department moratorium on tar sand leasing opens up an energy resource three times bigger than Alaska's North Slope oil fields, say Utah officials.

The Department of Energy estimates 30 billion barrals of oil are trapped in tar sands stretching from Asphalt Ridge in the northeastern corner of Utah to its coal-rich cen-

Ninety-eight percent of all known

tar sands in the United States are found in Utah - and 70 percent of those are on 500,000 acres of federal property.

Utah - through Gov. Scott Matheson and state science adviser James Bunger - had been pushing Washington to end the tar sands leasing moratorium and to clear up questions about royalties, pricing and other factors which they feel have held up commercial development. The delay lasted 15 years because government officials kept wrangling over the problem that prompted the moratorium in the first place: a law which says a company with a federal oil and gas lease can't develop any tar sands it finds, and a company with a tar sand lease can't develop oil and gas if it finds them along with the tar

The moratorium was lifted because of a solution to the problem contained in an Interior Department-backed bill now working its way through Congress.

"Considering most of the resource is on federal lands, the state's hands are a little bit tied," says Bunger. Anything that has to do with tar sand development has to have federal concurrence, if not initiative."

Tar sands have been compared to a giant oil spill. Crude oil trapped in Utah sandstone resembles asphalt. On hot days, a thick, black ooze flows from some tar sand deposits. The oil in tar sands lacks the lighter elements found in conventional oil deposits, elements which make a regular oil field much easier to tap. To extract the heavy crude from tar sands, scientists have developed a variety of processes, either to pull it from the ground or treat it after strip mining Usually, the oil is separated from the rock by fire or steam. One company is even using something like a giant microwave to free the

Bunger cautions that while Utah tar sand deposits will be important in the nation's effort to develop energy resources, ultimately they will yield only a fraction of the country's energy needs. The United States imports some 7 million barrels of oil a day toward its daily consumption of 16 million barrels. If all the oil can be extracted from 30 percent of Utah's known tar sand deposits, the yield will be only 9 billion barrels - roughly the amount of oil that the nation consumes in 11/2

Oil can be extracted from tar sand for about $30 a barrel, which compares favorably with the current price of foreign oil, $30-$35 a barrel, says Bunger.

Utah has also been pushing for more federal research money, especially for extraction techniques based on strip mined material.

RRC reports crude

AUSTIN - Texas crude oil production totaled 76,418,288 barrels in June, according to a preliminary report released by the Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division.

Texas oil production averaged 2,-547,276 barrels daily in June, down from 2,564,794 barrels daily in May. The June allowable totaled 104,309,-

However, only 10-to-15 percent of Utah's deposits can be mined that way, says Reece Madsen, manager of Sohio's tar sands project on Asphalt Ridge. The rest of the oil will have to be separated from the sandstone underground, then pumped to the sur-Marcus Faust, an aid to Rep. Gunn McKay, D-Utah, says he knows of 13 companies that are ready to go with various tar sand extraction programs as soon as the Interior Department works out the details of its new leasing program. Limited commercial production could begin as soon as 1983, he said, but output would probably be only 5,000-8,000 barrels a day.

McKay is sponsoring a bill endorsed by the Interior Department that hopefully will clear up some of the confusion over leasing policies.

Faust says the bill proposes a combined hydrocarbon lease that allows a company to develop whatever it finds. He says the bill, which has already passed the House, goes before the Senate Energy Committee next Alex Oblad, a professor at the University of Utah, says development of tar sands that can be surface mined should go ahead as quickly as possible. Utah would like federal help in building a pilot plant on state land. Oblad maintains a commercial plant processing strip mined tar sands would be no more polluting than a

But since many of the deposits closest to the surface are near national parks, monuments and other protected areas, it may be difficult to build a surface processing plant that would meet federal clean air requirements.
