North Sea oil rig

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) - Divers hammered on the hull of an upside down oil workers' "floating hotel" today looking for survivors of the worst disaster in the North Sea oilfields

Purse snatcher 'working' downtown, police say

Staff Writer

Someone is "working" Midland's downtown office buildings, "just waiting for an opportune time to steal a purse," according to Det Capt

A recent rash of purse thefts in large office complexes has prompted police to issue a warning to women. 'If they are going to be out of the office for even a second, lock that desk up with the purse inside it. If they see a suspicious person in the building, be sure and notify the Police Department and let us check it Three such thefts within the past month have resulted in the loss of $454, as well as credit cards and check books. In two of the incidents, the purses later were found in men's rooms, either in the building where the theft occurred or at a downtown hotel "It may be more than one person (stealing purses downtown) but on these particular cases one person is involved," Ray said Ray said the man involved, who was seen in at least one theft, carried a brown coat over his arm and probably hid the stolen purses under that until he could reach a men's room and rifle the purse's contents. "I think he is doing it nearly every day. He is in the downtown area and looking for an opportunity, and there are so many people just roaming around those buildings that it's an easy opportunity for anybody who has theft on their mind to make an easy score.

"Most secretaries for some reason leave their purses under their desk instead of locking them in a drawer. I guess it's easier to get to, but it also makes it easier for the thief to get to.

"A thief in the day time will very seldom take time to break into a desk It makes more noise, takes more time and there's a greater chance of being caught." "I think a lot of people probably have a tendency to believe that most people are honest and aren't going to steal a purse from their office. So they go out for coffee. People won't walk into your office when you're not there. That's kind of a violation of your privacy, and people just don't violate your privacy.

"Except thieves.

against rental subsidy. He wants to continue the City Council's reputation of standing out from the crowd by refusing to accept federal handouts.

Part of his opposition is based upon a law signed by President Carter in October 1978. According to Lynch, that law states that by 1981 the total

Greenwood citizens question five school board candidates at forum

By DAVID CAMPBELL Staff Writer

GREENWOOD — Five candidates for the two positions on the Greenwood Independent School Board were on the firing line Thursday night during a forum in the Greenwood School

Greenwood voters questioned candidates for 90 minutes on subjects ranging from cafeteria operation to performance of administrators in the school district. Candidates for Place 1 on the Greenwood school board are John Underwood, Ray Hunsinger and the incumbent, Bob Evans. Incumbent Chris King is being challenged by Leroy Ledford for

In the three-minute opening remarks, Ledford told the 100-plus crowd there is more dissent and disharmony on the school board today than there has been in the last 10 years. That dissent, he said, will ultimately affect the education process in the district

GOAL OF THE board, Ledford explained, is to put education first. Personal differences should not be allowed in decisions regarding the quality of education

Hunsinger expressed in his opening remarks that the main qualification of any school board member is to provide a means of open communication beween the school board and the community

Underwood noted he doesn't favor changing Greenwood's dress code or standards of discipline

As a businessman, Underwood said, his experience would help the board since similiar situations exist in the operation of a school as in a busi-

Incumbent Evans told voters he feels he has done a good job as a 14-year board member

He stated he was able to keep the cost of taxes and expenses in line with acceptable public standards. "The greatest thing we have in Greenwood is the school," stated incumbent King.

During his 14 years as a school board member, King said he has become familiar with the school's operation and has gained knowledge in what the school needs.

"I'M NOT IN favor of changing the dress code or the strict standards of discipline for students or teachers," he proclaimed.

The first question from the audience referred to Ledford's opening remarks on the board's harmony or lack of it.

"I would vote as an independent and not let any outside influences control how I would vote," Ledford offered as a means of keeping harmony on the school board.

However, King noted "we work together even though we may dissent on tion, Hunsinger said.

"I believe the men who are presently on the board have used the best judgement in all the decisions which have been made," he added. Responsiblity of a board member, in King's opinion, is to find and select the administrator who can operate the school.

When the man does not do the job according to the standards of the board and the public, he said, then he should be fired.

Evans explained an additional duty of a board member is to "check for himself to see if that policy is being executed."

Three other candidates said the board's role is to set policy, and the application of that policy is the role of the administrator.

THE BOARD'S January decision not to renew Superintendent Mel Williams' contract forced the candidates to state their positions on the sub-

And King said he was on "the school board that made some decisions that needed to be carried out."

Another issue which brought responses from the candidates concerned the community's use of the school facility.

Evans stated "we would like to keep this for the taxpayers and those who live here since they are the ones who are paying the bills." People wanting to use the facilities should "go through the channels" and get approval from the administration. he added. Hunsinger also agreed with Evans that the school should be used by those who pay the bills. But students are the first priority, and members of the community are second.

"THE SCHOOL IS the only thing we have out here," Underwood said, "but anyone who wants to use this school should go through channels. But it should be open.

King noted the school board is the authority which determines the use of the school's facilities.

Regarding the cafeteria's financial condition, Hunsinger suggested the district employ an outside consultant to study the situation and make recommendations.

Lunch prices, though, may have to be raised, he warned.

Evans explained "You have a lot of things to consider, including inflation and the fact that the district hasn't raised prices for two to three years.

"It's about time we need to raise prices, especially when you have a deficit and the school board has to put in over $500 a month to balance the budget," the incumbent stated.

Bonds for two of the men, Rees Bernard Ray, 43, of Houston, who was defended by famed Houston attorney Percy Foreman, and Ray Edward Hines, 50, of Woodlands, had been set at $100,000 for each of three counts. Artist fights to close nuclear plant Maine Yankee EDGECOMB, Maine (AP) — When Raymond Shadis talks about the land he cleared or the fruit trees he planted, he also talks of how he and his wife "had every intention of growing old" on their 100-acre farm beside the sea. But that was before his dispute with a powerful neighbor, two miles away in Wiscasset. The neighbor is Maine Yankee, the state's only nuclear power plant, and Shadis, 38, hopes to help shut it down through a statewide referendum.

The referendum, to be held later this year, will mark the first time a state has voted on a proposal to close a nuclear plant. Other states have considered proposals to restrict future nuclear development, but none has gone so far as to consider closing a reactor already in operation.

The referendum campaign has meant a dramatic change in lifestyle for Shadis, his wife, Pat, and their six school-age children.

Instead of working on his century-old farmhouse or mending fences, he's been coordinating the efforts of hundreds of volunteers who collected more than 55,000 voters' signatures to force the question to referendum

For a person who describes himself as private and apolitical, life has turned into a succession of public hearings, debates and media appearances. 'We're on the ragged, thin edge of subsistence. We've spent our full time on this since last June, and we're a low-income family to begin with," said Shadis, a New Jersey-born artist who specializes in wood and metal sculptures for

Shadis and his wife, who he met in her native West Virginia, migrated to Maine in 1968, seeking to fulfill their dream of finding a farm near the

They bought an abandoned farm house and three acres in 1970, a time when Maine Yankee was still under construction. "We were aware of this very powerful neighbor, but we shunted it to the back of our minds as much as possible," Shadis recalled.

The 840-megawatt plant, which supplies roughly one-third of Maine's electricity, went on line two years later. As the years passed, said Shadis, his confidence in nuclear energy eroded, taking "a sudden drop to zero" following last year's accident at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania and the earthquake safety shutdown ordered for five other plants, including Maine Yankee.

The Shadises' activism is being mirrored around the country this weekend as anti-nuclear groups - bearing such names as "March 28 Coalition," "Remember TMI Coalition" and "Cleveland Mobilization for Survival" - plan rallies and marches to mark the anniversary of the radioactive leak at Three Mile

The Shadises contend the Maine Yankee reactor endangers their health and the environment, through the threat of a sudden meltdown or the gradual release of low-level radiation.

'We can't reconcile staying here year after year, with the constant dosing that the children get with the regular emissions, never mind the unplanned ones," said Mrs. Shadis.

If they're so concerned about their nuclear neighbor, why not move?

They probably would leave if the referendum question were defeated, said Shadis. But he added that no place along the entire Maine coast offers absolute safety, especially when a Canadian reactor in New Brunswick goes on line in a

A proposed bill that would outlaw generation of power through nuclear fission in Maine will go to referendum if rejected by the Legislature — an eventuality accepted as a foregone conclusion by everyone concerned. The vote would take place either during the Nov. 4 general election or at a special referendum in summer or early fall.

Radiation detected near nuclear plant

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A small amount of radioactivity has been measured in vegetation northeast of Carolina Power & Light Co.'s Brunswick nuclear plant, utility officials say.

Meanwhile, the No. 1 unit at the plant was shut down Wednesday less than two days after it was restarted because of some water leakage.

The radioactive Cesium 137 detected in vegetation had been released Feb. 22 from the plant near Southport, Ben Furr, CP&L vice president for nuclear operations, said Wednesday.

Off-site monitoring equipment did not pick up the radioactivity, but vegetation sampling has revealed a "slight but measurable amount of radioactivity" that does not "represent a health hazard," Furr said in a prepared release.

The February release resulted from the failure of a tube in an oil-fired auxiliary boiler at the plant, he Dayne Brown, chief of the state radiation protection division, said his office plans to collect vegetative, biological and soil samples to confirm the radioactive leak. "I am doubting very seriously that we'll see any biological traces at all," he said. "The levels they quoted based on vegetation sampling are indeed Brown said Cesium-137, a byproduct of the fission process, has a half-life of 30 years, meaning half the amount will be present after 30 years, and half that amount in another 30 years. Meanwhile, CP&L spokesman Mac Harris said the No. 1 unit at the plant went off line again before being completely restarted.

"During the start-up we developed, inside the containment area, some water leakage," Harris said. "There are technical specifications as to how much leakage you can operate with and, although this was below those specifications, we elected to bring the unit back down and do the repairs

The No. 1 unit shut down automatically Sunday when a water-level indicator gave an incorrect reading, triggering a shutdown.

Within the next couple of days Midlanders should be receiving their 1980 census questionnaires in their mailboxes.

Most of the city's residents will receive the standard questionnaire which includes 19 questions concerning age, sex, number in the family, education and so

About one in every five households, however, will receive a longer version which includes about 65 questions.

Every Midland resident should promptly complete the census form and return it to the census office by next Tuesday or as soon thereafter as possible.

Federal law requires every citizen to answer the census. All information gained via the census is strictly confidential and is used only by the Census Bureau.

But for Midlanders there are other reasons — good ones — for completing the census form and returning it to the bureau as soon as possible. /

The constitutional purpose of the census is to provide a basis for reapportionment among the states of seats in the House of Representatives. Additionally, many states also use information obtained by way of the census for redistricting purposes.

On a more local level, census data can help to spur expansion of Midland's industrial base and to help the community grow economically. Through use of data collected by way of the census, new firms may choose to locate or relocate in Midland.

Lubbock regional census officials are concerned currently because of a lack of applicants in Midland to fill census positions here. About 200 qualified workers will be needed in the Midland-Odessa area for the census followup which is scheduled to begin about April 14.

We hope the applicants will come forward and agree to work in the census follow-up. An accurate count is needed in this 1980 enumeration because we will have to rely on these statistics throughout the decade.

Hopefully all Midland residents will answer their census questionnaires promptly and return the forms to the Census Bureau. It is important to the Tall City that they do so.

Carter's Mideast policy wrong on three counts

President Carter's Middle East pol-icy, which can be fairly described as anti-Israel, is wrong for three reasons: (1) it is not in our national interest; (2) it is hypocritical; and (3) it is dumb.

It is not in our national interest because it weakens and therefore threatens the survival of Israel. Israel just happens to be our only ally in the Middle East, the only country which has offered us permanent bases; the only country which we can count on for ports and airfields; the only country which shares our philosophy and values; the only country which has a stable government; and the only country which has the military capability to protect our interests in the area.

There is not one Arab country which is an ally. There is not one Arab country which will give us permanent bases. There is not one Arab country which we can count on for temporary bases. There is not one Arab country which has an army worth wanting on your side. There is not one Arab country which has a stable government. There is not one Arab country which shares our philosophy and values. There is not one Arab country which even likes us over to the Soviet Union. We shall also be contributing to the death of many, many Arabs because I guarantee you when little Israel goes, she's going to take a lot of people with her.

The Carter policy is hypocritical. The Palestinians have no just claim to the West Bank or to Gaza. The land, taken from the Turks by the British, was promised for a Jewish homeland. Historically, it is Jewish. Furthermore it was taken by Israel only after Israel was attacked by the Arabs. The best way to settle that dispute is to leave it entirely up to the Arabs and Israelis to work out.

It is hypocritical to make such a stew over the West Bank while being silent about the Soviet occupation of Eastern Europe, the Ukraine, the Baltic States, and several other nations. It is hypocritical because Mexico has a better claim to the Southwest which we took in a war than the Palestinians have to Judea Samaria. which they took in one war and lost in

It is stupid because it is an attempt to appease the Arab oil barons and anybody who knows anything about Arabs knows that they view concessions, reason, and restraint as weakness, if not insanity. The more you give in, the more they demand and the more they hold you in contempt.

President Carter deserves to be impeached on this issue alone. At the request of Saudi Arabia, he stopped buying oil for our strategic reserve. He even quietly agreed to pay them interest on the money they deposit with us to buy arms.

We may have to buy Arab oil and pay their exorbitant price, but we do not have to like it. Least of all, we do not have to jump through hoops on their orders. There is no more disgusting spectacle in the world than the present craven, foot-kissing of the Arabs which President Carter and Western European leaders are

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Sen. Long tried to exploit budget attitude

WASHINGTON - It's no secret in Washington that Sen. Russell Long is an unabashed champion of Big Business, and particularly Big Oil. The Louisiana Democrat makes no attempt to pose as the populist successor of his father Huey (The Kingfish) or his Uncle Earl Knowing all this, Democratic liberals were still astounded by Long's behavior at one of the series of closed-door meetings among congressional party leaders and White House officials. The sessions were intended to make good on Jimmy Carter's promise to fight inflation by balancing the federal budget.

Far from joining in the general bite-the-bullet attitude toward favorite programs that characterized the meetings, Long tried instead to exploit the budget-cutting sentiment to bestow goodies on his friends in the corporate community

'He moved right down the Chamber of Commerce agenda," said one stunned participant. dering government of Emperor Haile

What particularly outraged the liberals was that they had been agreeing, reluctantly, to cuts in longcherished social programs for the supposedly greater good of budget balancing. Perhaps naively, they hoped to see the same spirit of sacrifice on the part of their conservative colleagues.

They were cruelly disabused when the 61-year-old chairman of the Senate Finance Committee showed up at the third of a week-long series of meetings - held, ironically, in the Capitol's LBJ Room, named after the man who succeeded in pushing through many of the social welfare programs that were being dismembered there. The meetings were closed to the public to prevent pressure from the affected special interest groups.

But Big Business didn't need its lobbyists in attendance. It had Russell Long. "There are two powers in the Senate," the senator's staff is fond of saying: "Jesus Christ and Russell Long.

ers from the temple, however, the Senate's less-than-divine power refused to consider any moves to make Big Business share some of the burden of the balanced budget through

One suggestion was to have corporations predict their profits more accurately, a move that would bring in an estimated $4.5 billion a year in taxes. Long would not hear of it. Another proposal was to have banks keep better track of interest on savings accounts, which would create an estimated $3.3 billion in additional revenue. Long said it would be too great an inconvenience to the banking community - which has been most vociferous of all in calling for a balanced budget.

"It was incredible," one congressmen who was there told my associate Peter Grant. "Everyone else in there

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column was written prior to Tuesday's New York primary election.

NEW YORK - Flushed by happy anticipation of yet another primary election massacre of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, President Carter's political operatives in Washington were chilled by this warning from Mayor Edward Koch: Jimmy faces a "nipand-tuck" battle with Ronald Reagan for New York in November. "It's going to be very close," said

Koch, advising the president to get out of the Rose Garden and up to New York for personal campaigning. That is shattering news for Carter strategists, who had considered this state as already won against Reagan. The mayor's warning reflects political reality. The expected ease of Carter's primary win over Kennedy hides the president's unhealed wounds over Israel, aggravated by budget cuts of aid to New York City. Moreover, secret explorations have begun into running Republican Rep. John Anderson as the New York Liberal Party's candidate for president - a move that would make it much harder for Carter to carry a state he cannot afford to lose What is happening here is part of a nationwide pattern: Carter's string of one-sided primary wins derived less from his strength than Kennedy's weakness. Kennedy's failure to launch a credible New York campaign led many supporters here to stay home rather than waste their otes.

But anti-Carter Democrats who last summer pleaded with Kennedy to enter have not embraced Carter. An extreme case is Manhattan Borough President Andrew Stein who admits "Teddy was not the man I thought he was." As for the president, Stein told us: "I don't see how I can vote for Carter." Other pro-Kennedy politicians may be less candid than Stein but are scarcely less hostile toward Similarly, the opinion by Carter's political high command that the president has recovered from damage suffered when the U.S. supported the United Nations resolution critical of Israel is based on polls that show no Jewish leakage to Kennedy. That is partly testimony to the ludicrously inept campaign for Kennedy here. State Atty. Gen. Robert Abrams, an early Kennedy backer asked at the 11th hour by the senator's managers to help get the Jewish vote, urged material exploiting the (U.N.) fiasco be mailed quickly to 1 million New York Jews. Preparation was anything but quick, and a cash shortage reduced the mailing to 250,000. At the last minute, a serious factual error was spotted in the material, and the entire mailing was scrapped.

One Democratic leader supporting Kennedy admits that even with a smooth-functioning campaign "Kennedy could not be salvaged" among Jewish voters. The hostility toward him because of Chappaquiddick from older, lower-income Jews equals anti-Kennedy outrage anywhere in the Bible Belt.

Furthermore, Vice President Walter Mondale has worked overtime in New York following the U.N. controversy. Addressing a Cambodian refugee awards ceremony by the Jewish service organization, B'nai B'rith, Mondale changed the subject to reassure the Jewish leaders present of the president's support for Israel. Applauding Mondale warmly, they did seem reassured.

But outside the Jewish elite, few are reassured. Rank-and-file Jewish voters, however unfairly, express renewed doubts about how Carter as an evangelical Christian regards Jews. The tension continued when Carter national campaign chairman Robert Strauss referred to vocal Jewish critics as "emotionally hysterical nuts" and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance refused to totally condemn the now famous U.N. resolution.

Yet is it possible that traditionally liberal New York Jews could vote for right-wing bogeyman Ronald Reagan? Indeed it is, say Democratic leaders. Koch, who publicly com-plains about "Arabists" shaping Carter's Mideast policy, told us: 'Reagan is very strong on Israel." With Irish and Italian voters moving toward the Republicans lately, no Democrat can carry this state for president without solid black and Jewish votes.

Thus, Carter's problems are difficult enough without the John Anderson phenomenon. Anderson-for-President buttons abound in Greenwich Village, that weathervane of the trendy left. State Liberal Party leaders have begun seriously talking about denying their ballot line to Carter and giving it instead to Anderson, which could cost the president New York's vital electoral votes.

Mayor Koch's advice to the president is to publicly rebuke his "Arabists" and hit the New York campaign trail. But New York Magazine's report of a White House aide's venomous remarks against Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan for non-support of Carter in the primary suggests a mindset that the president has weathered the worst in New York and need not kowtow to Moynihan or any other Democratic leader here after Tuesday's voting. On the contrary, Carter's real problems with the Big Apple are just beginning.

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's campaigners claim President Carter's political bubble has burst now - but even if that proves true, they have a long way to go to make the Democratic challenger the beneficiary.

For it will take more than a Carter slump to give Kennedy the delegates to win the party's nomination. The president's campaign would have to collapse in the 25 primary elections still

The arithmetic is with Carter, and it stayed that way even after Kennedy's landslide triumph in New York's primary Tuesday. The upset that rejuvenated the Kennedy campaign still did not reach the margin the challenger must set to overtake Carter's delegates; loser Carter came away with 42 percent.

To catch Carter, Kennedy will have to gain just over 62 percent of all the Democratic delegates yet to be chosen. That's a tall order, and it will become taller if, as seems likely, Carter gains a majority of the 112 delegates to be chosen next Tuesday in Wisconsin and Kansas.

There are other ingredients, of course, and they are political morale and momentum. Should Kennedy succeed in dealing Carter a succession of defeats — like those the president handed him in the early going — the mood of the campaign could indeed turn, and the numbers might follow.

But it probably would take a third force, a candidate or a bloc of uncommitted Democratic delegates big enough to deny a pre-convention nominating majority until delegate commitments lapse, which cannot happen until after a first convention ballot.

That isn't likely, either. Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, the third man in the campaign, has yet to win a single delegate. And only 13 are uncommitted so far.

Kennedy has been arguing all along that Carter's support was fragile and would come unglued when the voters concentrated on soaring inflation and foreign policy lapses instead of crises like those in Iran and Afghanistan.

Polling place surveys indicate that happened in New York. Carter's public opinion analyst, Patrick Caddell, called it a protest vote rather than an affirmative vote for Kennedy.

Motives are debatable; numbers are not. And if the numbers should run against Carter in future primaries, it will be a signal of Democratic trouble that could benefit the Republicans. For Carter has a commanding delegate lead, with 745, or 45 percent of the votes he needs to win the nomination. There are

2,188 delegates still to be chosen, and if Carter can capture 921 of

Some of them already are guaranteed him in Minnesota, Washington and Oklahoma, which have not completed the count in delegate-selection caucuses won by the president.

Kennedy has 385 delegates. Reversing that margin will be far more difficult for Kennedy than it would have been in the days when his late brothers were running for president. The Democratic Party, in the name of reform, has run its last three campaigns under rules that generally award delegates in proportion to popular votes in the primaries, virtually guaranteeing a share to the loser. That makes sharp swings in support doubly difficult. Kennedy four more delegates than the president there. The reform rules also require that delegates stick with their commitments at least through one convention ballot, which means Kennedy couldn't woo away disenchanted Carter delegates no matter what happens in the rest of the primary

Former smoker almost anti-smoker

By ELLEN NIMMONS Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) -Yes, I occasionally think about smoking. No, thanks, I don't want a cigarette. I became a non-smoker a year ago, wising up after thousands of morning coughs, cancer warnings and too much bad breath.

In fact, I'm almost an anti-smoker now - indignantly shunning elevators carrying filegal smokers, wailing about co-workers' smelly cigaretts butts and bringing out my lone ashtray at home only for the best of friends.

1980 grads will find more jobs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - This year's college graduates will find more jobs available than the class of '79, the Texas College Coordinating Board says.

Vocational-technical graduates have an even better outlook, with demand exceeding supply of graduates by as much as 40 percent in some occupations, the board said Thursday.

Overall, 1980 college graduates will find the outlook "good," the board said in its latest employment opportunities report, with an estimated 36,-480 to 44,050 jobs available for the 40,300 new graduates with bachelor's

The 48,520 vocational-technical graduates, such as those trained by junior colleges and Texas State Technical Institute, will have a shot at between 57,940 and 69,360 jobs.

The report is valid until March 31,

1981, and will be sent to all high school counselors, all college placement of-fices and some public libraries. John Cobb, director of the board's college graduates.

"The level of educational attainment during the past 10 years has continued to rise in the state's labor force. There are more jobs open now which demand a college education, largely because of the increasing growth of technology," Cobb said.

He said there has been a leveling off in the number of graduates in certain overcrowded fields.

Cobb said both elementary and high school teachers will find more job openings this year than in 1978, with supply roughly equalling demand.

There has been a continued rise in the demand for engineering, science and business graduates, largely because growth in the industries that employ them has exceed the number of students majoring in those fields.

The Coordinating Board said the job market is expected to remain stable through 1983, with opportunities in certain fields - including com-

The board issues its periodic sizeups of demand for various kinds of graduates primarily to help students choose careers and college majors.

"Once the facts about career opportunities are made known, the educational market place will adjust itself to changing student needs," Cobb

Newsreels donated to university

NEW YORK (AP) — The visual record of the century, as captured by the roving cameras of 20th Century-Fox's newsreel teams, has been donated to the University of South Carolina's new $40-million arts center.

The gift of 60 million feet of film from the old Fox Movietone News, which gave theatergoers the news of the world from 1919 to 1963, will provide daily three-hour screenings at the center.

Films ranging from the first newsreel - a silent showing a breathless steeplejack episode and President Woodrow Wilson - to the atom bomb's mushroom cloud and the burning of the Hindenburg were shown at a new media screening Thursday.

In addition to donating the films, Fox will spend several million dollars to copy the older footage, now on deteriorating, flammable nitrate stock, on to new safety stock. Dennis C. Stanfill, Fox board chairman, called the all over the world.

Attending the luncheon at which the gift was announced was Lowell Thomas, who narrated the newsreels for two decades.

Thomas, who will be 88 next month and is still active after a lifetime as a radio and television commentator, world traveler and lecturer, reminisced about flying over burning Berlin in World War II, and watching the coronation of King George VI from a front seat vacated because "J.P. Morgan fell ill while shooting at his spot up in Scotland.'

The university president, Dr. James B. Holderman, said he welcomed the donation from Fox "with a sense of awe at the magnitude and the quality of the gift.'

He said students, visitors and even people of other nations — via satellite — will be able to "see the history of the world unfold before their very eyes."

DENVER (AP) — The pilot of a twin-engine airplane reported icing problems and difficulty maintaining altitude shortly before the craft crashed and burned in a snowstorm southeast of here, killing all 10 persons aboard, authorities said.

The Beechcraft King Air, owned by Lufkin Industries Inc., was taking customers to a tour of the firm's Texas plant when it went down Thursday afternoon minutes after taking off from the Arapahoe County Airport.

Killed in the crash were the son of the company's president, two company pilots and seven representatives of Denver-area oil companies, said Lufkin spokeswoman Virginia Allen. The company manufactures oil field equipment.

Kennedy decides to gamble on risky, late Wisconsin drive

WASHINGTON (AP) cratic National Conven- West Virginia, Pennsyl-- Fresh from unexpected primary victories in New York and Connecticut, Sen Edward M. Kennedy has decided to gamble on a risky late hour drive to win in Wisconsin as well

After three months of spending almost no money and personally appearing only once in Wisconsin, Kennedy will campaign hard throughout the state this weekend — in what some of his aides see as risky

In addition, campaign aides say there will be a television advertising blitz and a heavy schedule of appearances by Kennedy surrogates Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., and former Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey.

"It's a high risk roll of the dice,'' said one knowledgeable Kennedy worker who asked not to be identified.

The risk, Kennedy aides say, is that the Massachusetts senator will make a big investment in Wisconsin, lose to Carter, and blunt the momentum built up after New York and Connecti-

Bush raps Carter policy

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) - George Bush is labeling President Carter naive and an appeaser for "backing, filling and handwringing" in dealing with the continued captivity of Americans in Iran.

"I know appeasement is a tough word," Bush said using a term commonly applied to the concessions made to Germany's Adolf Hitler by Britain's Neville Chamberlain in the days before World War II.

To applause from audience after audience, Bush repeated his call for a tougher stand on Iran as he campaigned across the state for next Tuesday's Wisconsin primary election.

Bush planned to begin today by jogging with a few members of the Green Bay Packers before going on to speeches at St. Norbert's College and rallies in Oshkosh and Sheboygan.

Mondale woos Texans

HOUSTON (AP) - Vice President Walter Mondale praised President Carter's record, Robert Kennedy Jr. invoked his family's name and both asked for party unity as they wooed Texas Democrats Tuesday night.

"Stand behind the man who stood behind you and return Present Carter to the White House," Mondale told approximately 1,200 party members who turned out for a $125-a-plate fund raising dinner honoring Texas Democratic party chairman Billy Goldberg.

Mondale, who has been on the campaign trail since November for the president, flashed the "thumbs up" sign before telling the audience, "We must face the real problems that exist in the real world today -no matter how painful.'

Kennedy, stumping for his uncle, Sen. Edward Kennedy, said, "There are 129 Kennedy grandchildren, and every one of them is a Democrat.'

Brown keeps on running

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he is putting his "whole career on the line" in Wisconsin, but a loss there does not necessarily mean Brown will drop out of the Democratic nomination sweepstakes.

Brown demonstrated an ability to continue campaigning in a hopeless cause in 1976, when he spent $80,000 for a nationwide television address three weeks after Carter had enough delegates for a first ballot nomination.

Brown, too, was the last holdout to concede defeat to Carter at the 1976 Democratic National Conven-

Third-party try expected to draw Carter voters

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Ronald Reagan's political advisers are all but rupbing their hands with glee over the prospect of Rep. John Anderson running a third-party presidential cam-

In their view, it would draw votes from President Carter in critical areas, particularly the Northeast, if Carter is the Democratic Party's

"Carter ought to be more concerned about it than us," said Frank Donatelli, Reagan's political coordinator working here on Wisconsin's Republican primary election next Tuesday.

Reagan wound up two days of campaigning in Wisconsin on Thursday for the state's 34 Republican national convention delegates and returned to Los Angeles. He will be back in the state on Monday.

Anderson has not made clear what he would do if he cannot overtake Reagan and George Bush in the race for the nomination. But he has indicated he is studying the possibility of running an independent campaign rather than support Reagan, whose conservative philosophy is often at odds with Anderson's more moderate

Whenever asked whether he would accept Anderson as a running mate, the former California governor has said that it is not a question of his accepting Anderson, but rather one of the Illinois congressman accepting

"He's expressed a preference for Teddy Kennedy over us," said Donatelli, observing that Anderson has refused to say unequivocally that he will support the Republican nominee regardless of who he is.

Because Reagan's appeal is first of all to conservatives, his political aides are confident that Anderson offers them no threat as a third-party candidate.

'He's running pro-abortion, for less defense spending, pro tax increase," said Donatelli. "He would appeal more to liberal Democrats than to moderates and conservatives. I really can't see where he would take substantial votes from us.

In terms of political strategy in a Reagan-Carter race, with Anderson running a respectable third-party campaign, the congressman's role would lead Reagan's organization to "refine our targetting," Donatelli

It would mean, he explained, that Reagan could aggressively focus on blue-collar votes in the Midwest and Northeast. And, while Anderson might draw votes from Carter in those regions, "there isn't one state Anderson could carry," the political aide said.

But, Donatelli said, in a close election, if Anderson "gets a few percentage points in the Northeast, it could be a real problem for Carter.'

While Reagan aides say that they are not yet planning an election strategy that includes an Anderson thirdparty attempt, Donatelli says such an effort "would be a big factor."

While the race for the GOP nomination continues, Donatelli has this advice for Anderson: "Getting a third party on the ballot is not very easy." He may be thinking that Anderson

Reagan outpacing his 1976 efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ronald Reagan almost dislodged a sitting president from the Republican presidential nomination in 1976, and this year he is far ahead of the pace he set back then.

Already he's carried three key states he lost to then-President Gerald Ford in 1976 primaries - New Hampshire, Florida and Illinois. Reagan has won eight primaries so far this year to three for George Bush, and his victories indicate a broad range of support he lacked four years ago - from rural New England to the industrial Midwest to the deep South.

And if the past is any guide, his best is yet to come - his home ground in the West.

Bush supporters point out that Reagan didn't win his first primary in 1976 until about this time in the campaign. They say his recovery then is proof that it's not too late for someone else - read that George Bush - to come back

Bush rebounded somewhat this week with a victory in the primary in Connecticut - where he had family political ties - but Reagan walked away with New York's delegate elections.

But the circumstances in 1980 are dramatically different than at this stage four years ago when Reagan stemmed the Ford tide and ultimately won 44.9 percent of the total primary vote and came within 59 convention votes of the nomination.

This year's victory in Illinois was important for Reagan because it represents the populous, industrial Midwest which he barely scratched in 1976. Four years ago Ford carried Illinois with 58.9 percent of the vote, and many observers were counting Reagan out of the race.

Florida also was a key state with 51 convention delegates and it demonstrated early the strong southern conservative support Reagan needs for nomination. He got 57 percent of the Florida vote, to Bush's 30 percent. In 1976 he lost to Ford by 47.2 percent to 52.8 percent.

New Hampshire was more important to Reagan for its psychological boost than for its few delegates. Four years ago he had been favored to win the nation's first primary but lost to Ford by less than 1 percent.

This year he entered New Hampshire in considerable peril after being beaten by Bush in the Iowa caucuses and Puerto Rico and trailing in the polls. His solid 50-23 percent victory vaulted him to a commanding lead in the nomination race.

Ford captured almost all of New York's delegates in 1976. On Tuesday, Reagan scooped up 73 delegates there and left Bush only 6.

But the real evidence lies in primaries yet to come, many in the West, where Reagan was virtually invincible in 1976 and looks to be just as strong this time.

The sweatshirt is very much the "in" thing from West Coast designers for this fall, but the new sweat set will find the shirts hancy for everything but a workout in the gym.

Fall fashion advice for men: be traditional, wear a sweatshirt

By TIMOTHY HAWKINS The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — For men who want to be in fashion this fall, the French, Italian and New York menswear designers all have the same basic message: dress traditional. This means preppy looks. Or the kind of style the Duke of Windsor made classic. Or even something as simple as the Madison Avenue gray flannel

The message from California designers is also back to basics. But when they say dress traditional, the translation is more likely to be: wear a sweat shirt.

This classic top, part of California's "dress casual," tradition shows up in several lines here — a kind of West Coast version of the button-down shirt that will be a wardrobe basic in the East this fall.

"Of course, sweat shirt now has a broad definition — anything with a crew neck and a blouson feeling," says designer Van-Martin Rowe.

HIS SWEAT SHIRTS are done in new fabrics such as mock crocodile satin, or color-spliced wool knit or rayon challis with sunglasses airbrushed on the chest. "You don't wear these sweat shirts to the gym," he says. "You wear them everywhere else." Rowe shows his sweat shirts as the separate that ties his line together. They're worn under his zip-front wool knit sailing parka or under his lightly constructed sport jacket sewn with vertical cording on the chest. They're worn over small-collared button-down shirts, or over his jump-suits trimmed with twill tape.

A. Smile's new "soft wear" line includes sweat shirts and sweat pants souped up with such prints as bunches of balloons, kites, cartoon characters, sneakers and roller skates. There are also styles in a soft, wrinkled gauze and in a waffled fabric in bright colors. "They're cleaned-up sweat looks you can wear during a business day," says A. Smile's Jay Kester. "These are ideas that would be difficult to sell in New York or Chicago, but not here."

A. Smile's most innovative look for fall is its Western and baggy jeans done in vertical channelquilt denim, bright engineer stripes and hound-stooth checks. It is no accident that A. Smile's line looks right for spring-summer as well as fall. 'What's fall?' asks Kester. "We have almost no seasons in the West."

IN ADDITION TO HIS strong preppie statement for fall (the best is his oxford shirt with polo-style knit collar), J. Rodolfo's Joey Jimenez has done bold-colored sweat shirts appliqued with geometrics or trimmed at the sleeves, neck and waist in off-white.

Madman's Steve Mills has two lifestyle themes in his line: the spectator-sport look and the prep-classic look. For active and inactive sports, there are sweat pants with piping, canvas pants with elasticized waists and ankles, and airbrushed sweat shirts. Madras shirts, button-downs, chino pants, cable knit and Fair Isle sweaters are for the new preppy. For new wavers, Mills says he's doing a loose-cut '40s style shirt in rayon and challis prints and polka dots.

punchers of the past will look more like country squires and dude ranchers this fail. "This is traditional, investment clothing," says Levi's Lee Walczak of the David Hunter line, which includes tweedy jackets with hacking pockets and leather buttons, tweedy vest and pullover sweaters, rich plaid shirts, velour turtlenecks, and navy blazers. For the sake of comfort, Levi is also introducing a new fabric in bottoms. Called Fabric in-Motion, it's a stretch polyester and cotton fabric that shows up in jeans and corduroys.

There is a rich elegance to Morgan Ayres "relaxed" line for fall. The looks here include bomber jackets in lamb suede, shearling or silk, corduroy cavalry pants with leather trimmed pockets, a quilted evening blazer to be worn with black leather tuxedo trousers with a contrasting leather stripe down the leg. There are luxurious sweaters, one with a loose turtleneck and quilted leather yoke, another in cashmere with a shawl punchers of the past will look more collar to the waist and kangaroo

TRADITION HAS NO PLACE in Richard Alkire's "avant-garb" de-signs. He does a diamond-quilted bomber lacket with roll cuff sleeves to be worn with matching chaps that attach at the belt. Also short wool zip front jackets with a signature loop at one shoulder and color-splicing at the back yoke. Alkire's sweat shirt is done in wool or an angora wool blend and is styled like a football jersey in his fall colors — burgundy, plum, mustard green, khaki and black. He shows his sweatshirt with his highwaisted pants that balloon at the thighs and narrow to the calf. Alkire's most innovative look may be his Oriental-inspired one-piece jumpsuit which features a fly front and roll cuffs at the ankles and wrists and an obi-like belt at the waist. It's a look an Easterner would appreciate not the New England preppie but the off-duty

Role of music said important

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The antiseptic and dehumanized future often described in science fiction could become a reality if that future world is planned by a generation deprived of the beauty of music in schooling today, says a Syracuse University dean

Douglas M. Soyars of the School of Music says the tendency of school districts to discard music programs as "frills" because of tight budgeting could develop into a major national problem.

"If the current threats to eliminate music from high school programs are carried out on a broad scale, the future could look pretty bleak," he warns. "Imagine a generation that has grown up without the cultural education now offered in the public schools, and without the sensitivity to beauty. Then, I think, we would face a cold, stark, almost inhuman kind of existence in the United States."

Sleep termed key aid to fighting sleep disease

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) - The human brain works far differently while the bodysleeps than during wakefulness, and fatal malfunctions may be seen only during slumber, according to a Stanford University scientist.

"Not only does the brain work differently during sleep but the unique machinery of sleep can itself develop a unique set of malfunctions - the true sleep disorders," said William C. Dement.

He said these sleep diseases, often life-threatening, may appear only during sleep and offer doctors no symptoms while the patient is awake.

"It has no message." Forsyth says. "I am not a messenger for humanity. What I basically try to do in my books is tell a good story. Sure, a character may on occasion utter a sentiment I agree with but that's self-indulgence. After all, there are other characters who say things that I utterly disagree with, but as long as what they say goes along with what 'The house was built in 1780, but it's been modernized and remodernized over the years. It has about 20 rooms, but we only live in 9 or 10."

He says he has used much of the time he has lived there working on the house to improve it.

"I also do a lot of work on the grounds, chopping down trees, digging out the roots. I know it doesn't sound like much but the days do fill themselves in the country,' he says.

Police save man pronounced dead

SOMERVILLE, Mass. (AP) - The doctor told two policemen fighting to save a heart attack victim that it was too late, the man was dead. But after the man with the black bag left, the "dead man" coughed and began to breathe. "You could actually hear the guy go 'Eccchhh' and start breathing again," said motorcycle patrolman John Conway. "It was great."

Conway and his partner, Joe Fahey, were called to the aid of 65-year-old Leonard Mallett, who had collapsed outside his house on Wednes-

When they arrived, they found Mallett lying unconscious, the apparent victim of a heart attack. After checking for vital signs, the two began to administer cardiopulmonary resuscitation, known as CPR.

That was when the unidentified doctor ar-

He can even raise the dead!

Then the Jewish leaders were all the more eager to kill Him because in addition to disobeying their Sabbath laws, He had spoken of God as His Father, thereby making Himself

Jesus replied, "The Son can do nothing by Himself. He does only what He sees the Father doing, and in the same way. For the Father loves the Son, and tells Him everything

He is doing; and the Son will do far more awesome miracles than this man's healing! He will even raise from the dead anyone He wants to, just as the Father does. And the Father leaves all judgment of sin to His Son,

So that everyone will honor the Son, just as they honor the Father. But if you refuse to honor God's Son, whom He sent to you, then you are certainly not honoring the Father. I say emphatically that anyone who listens to My mes-

Archbishop's death latest in line

By GARY R. PEDERSEN

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The assas- in this capital between the military and leftist sination of Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero, an guerrillas, and a number of leftist leaders have been outspoken advocate of social reform, is the latest act quietly murdered. in a leftist-rightist terror war that has claimed more than 700 lives this year in El Salvador.

Just recently the archbishop himself had said that most of the victims were "innocent farmworkers slain by the military and rightist forces.'

Right-wing terrorists were suspected of shooting the archbishop Monday night as he celebrated Mass, although no group claimed responsibility. Both rightist and leftist groups have conducted their own brands of terrorism in the political strife that has dominated Salvadoran life inrecent years. Leftist groups resort to guerrilla-style attacks, strikes, occupations of public buildings and kidnappings. They have raised more than $85 million for their "war chests" by kidnapping dozens of wealthy businessmen, diplomats and government officials in the past four years. Sometimes the kidnap victims

South African Ambassador Richar Gardner Dunn has been held by a leftist guerrilla group since Nov.

On the other side are secret right-wing killer squads who torture, bludgeon, strangle and shoot scores of leftists each month, according to police, diplomats and human rights officials.

These authorities claim rightist elements are also responsible for blowing up government offices in an apparent effort to delay agrarian reforms.

The right seldom, if ever, acknowledges its acts. But sources say the rightists are fighting a terrorist argues that the changes do not go far enough. war in the belief they are stopping a leftist drive for a Marxist government in this nation of 4.8 million.

Three known rightist groups are the White War-riors Union, ORDEN (the Spanish word for 'order"), and the anti-communist Front for the Liberation of Central America.

Diplomats say the groups are made up of off-duty or retired military men and seem to be allied with

This month, there have been numerous shootouts

"It looks like an extermination campaign to get us all," said Hector Bernabe Recinos, an organizer of the leftist Popular Unified Action Front.

"This murder campaign is forcing us (leftist leaders) to go underground. We are all scared, but it won't stop us."

When a few moderate colonels led the Oct. 15, 1979, coup to oust rightist President Carlos Humberto Romero (no relation to the slain archbishop), they said they acted to end rightist repression, bring the left and right into the political process and end the threat of civil war between the extremes.

Even though the junta established by the colonels pushed through sweeping land reforms and nationalized banks to make credit easier for all, it has been unable to stop the political violence.

Junta member Col. Adolfo Majano said last month that violence would no longer be tolerated from either political extreme. The government imposed a state of siege, forbidding political gatherings and banning unauthorized public gatherings, all in an Diplomatic sources said rightists were responsible for blowing up Agriculture Ministery offices in the past month and leftist guerrillas ambushed several national guard convoys.

These sources said the right believes the banking and land reforms are communistic, while the left Archbishop Romero had called the reforms "a positive step" but added "without an end to the right, the program will never work."

Romero was a spokesman for the poor. He had denounced violence from both the left and the right. But the right considered him pro-left, apparently because he said the right has more culpability in the current problems. The Front for the Liberation of Central America claimed it blew up the Roman Catholic Church's radio transmitter earlier this year, the one Romero had used to broadcast his Sunday sermons. Catholic officials said 72 sticks of dynamite, wired to a clock, were found in a briefcase in Romero's church in late February.

THANE AKINS is a petroleum engineer and City Councilman, NOT A LAWYER

THANE AKINS is the only candidate in the Mayor's race who is in the oil business and who has SERVED IN CITY GOVERNMENT!

N the past seven years, when Midland has seen the period of its most remarkable growth and progress, THANE AKINS was an integral part of the decision-making process that contributed to that orderly growth.

FROM 1973 to 1976 THANE AKINS was a member of Midland's Planning and Zoning Commission, also serving as its CHAIRMAN. THANE AKINS was then elected to your City Council in 1976 and again in 1978, and served as your MAYOR PRO TEM in 1978 - 1979. EXPERIENCE as in all endeavors, is very important. Please keep in mind that THANE AKINS has played a vital LEADERSHIP ROLE in your city government. He has contributed greatly to Midland's past and present success and knows what it is going to take to keep Midland "a great place to live" in the FUTURE. "As your City Councilman and Mayor Pro Tem, I always voted not to raise > taxes in the last four years and successfully supported a reduction of your taxes twice during that period! I believe we must keep Midland free of outside influence by avoiding Fed> eral programs that involve Federal control. Let's keep Midland moving forward through Citizen Involvement in the 80's so that we will have a safe and prosperous place to live. I would appreciate your vote on April 5th."

Sincerely yours, There Aking

Here's What THANE AKINS Stands For:

- * Keeping taxes low (Taxes have been reduced twice in the last four years with Thane's support & leadership)
- * Keeping Midland free of outside influence by avoiding Federal programs that involve Federal control (ie. Conservative, locally controlled government.)
- ★ Cooperation with and support for the oil industry.
- * Respect and support for our law enforcement agencies.
- ★ Continuing improvement of our streets, traffic control and downtown PARKING.
- ★ Close cooperation with all other government entities in the Permian Basin to avoid duplication and to make sure that Midland is always treated fairly.
- ★ Promoting diversification of industry in our area.
- * Planning and Zoning that will provide continued orderly growth and development of Midland in the FUTURE.

Birdwatching: Dermatologist's interest goes far beyond skin-deep

By TIMOTHY HARPER

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - Sharon Lantis says she used to be an "amateur birdwatcher," content to get no more personally involved than the little but loud canary caged in her living room.

But now Dr. Lantis, a dermatologist at the University of Wisconsin-Madison's student health center, has an interest that goes beyond skin-deep. For the past two years, she has doing volunteer work at the International Crane Foundation in Baraboo.

And last month she spent three weeks and $2,000, traveling to a remote part of a Japanese island in an effort to persuade the natives to go along with a proposal to save an endangered bird species.

Dr. Lantis, who became intrigued with the foundation two years ago after she was asked to look at a rare bird's even rarer skin rash, used spent at least one full day a week UW's semester break to travel to Sado Island off the western coast of Japan.

An island with popular tourist areas, half of Sado is remote high-lands and valleys overgrown except for a few scattered centuries-old villages and rice fields.

The wilds of this area are home to five of the world's remaining seven crested ibises. The majestic bird is pinkish white, two feet tall, has a long curved beak and is something special

More protected and more rare than the American eagle, every ibis is, by Japanese law, a national monument. The bird is prized as an almost mystical symbol of ancient Japanese cul-

Dr. Lantis learned of the ibis' plight while doing some typing for crane foundation officials who, though the bird is not technically a crane, were trying to help save it.

She became caught up in efforts to arrange with the Japanese govern-ment for the Sado Island ibises to be captured. Officials hope that in captivity, away from animal predators and human disruptions, the birds will be able to breed — something they haven't done in the wild since 1973.

However, the proposal has been blocked by opposition among natives who fear that these birds, like several others in an ill-fated series of captivity experiments in Japan a decade ago, will die if captured.

With the blessing of crane foundation officials and supporters in Japan, Dr. Lantis and Kyoko Matsumoto, a native of Japan returning to her homeland after working at the crane foundation, undertook their informal informational tour of ibis country.

They visited villages and talked to a number of conservationists, public officials and villagers to reassure them that past problems with captivity conditions had been solved.

Negotiating session flops

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) - A scheduled three-day should open on schedule April 9 whether or not an negotiating session between representatives of major league baseball owners and players turned out to be a two-day waste of time, says the head of the players'

The talks, aimed at formulating a new four-year basic agreement between owners and players, broke off abruptly Thursday, and today's session was canceled.

The meetings will resume Sunday in Palm Springs, Calif., with the help of a federal mediator requested by Two days later, the Players Association's executive board plans to meet in Dallas to determine if and when a strike will be called. "I regret they saw fit to waste yesterday, today and

Wednesday or today.' Ray Grebey, the chief negotiator for the owners. He said free agent would be required to give up a player, it was Grebey's decision to recess the talks until Sun- rather than an amateur draft choice, in return. The Grebey said the owners asked the Federal Mediation from that selection process. and Conciliation Service to participate in the negotia-agreement has been reached. Miller hinted that the owners may have asked for the mediator shortly before the players' strike decision is due so that players might delay any action until they can re-assess the situation. The talks - about 30 in all - have been hung up on several owners' proposals, some of which Miller contends don't belong on the table. They came in with a demand that no player can be offered more than a one-year contract if he has less than five years of sevice," Miller said. "They don't have to offer more than (a one-year contract) now. They want us to take over management's responsibility." The major issue to be resolved is an owners' proposal tomorrow," Players Association executive director Mar- to adjust the amount of compensation a team receives vin Miller said Thursday. "There was no bargaining after losing a free agent.

Miller had met for about two hours Wednesday with Under the owners' plan, a team signing a highly-sought agent's new team could protect only 15 of its players and Conciliation Service to participate in the negotia-tions, and reiterated their contention that the season agency system," Miller said.

Pate long over due for win

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - By his own account, Jerry Pate is overdue for a victory.

"I'm at the stage of my career where I should be winning and winning consistently," said the young man who won the 1976 United States Open as a pro rookie.

Pate failed to win at all last year, the first time he's gone through a full season without a title on the PGA tour. "I didn't like that. I didn't like it

"I just haven't been very consistent. A couple of times last year I played well, but somebody just played better. I've had trouble with my concentration. I don't know what it is. If I did I'd correct it.

'I've just eased up too much at and fight until they run up the flag and somebody says it's over."

But Pate had no trouble at all, not with concentration, not with his game, not with the how ing winds, in the first round Thursday of the $300,-000 Heritage Classic.

He fired a 5-under-par 66 that gave him a two-shot lead.

"Under the conditions, it may be the best round of the year," said John Mahaffey, who was tied for second.

The conditions were dreadful. Rain that threatened from the gloomy clouds over the Harbour Town course never materialized, but the temperatures were chilly and made more biting by gusty, 30 mile per hour

"It was a nasty day, a day when it times. I've got to just stick in there was very difficult to score, very difficult to get the ball close," said Tom Watson, the defending champion and outstanding player in golf for the past three seasons. "That 66 is an excellent round of golf."

Pate missed only three greens in the difficult conditions and saved par on all but the 18th, where he made his

Mahaffey, who beat Pate in a playoff for the 1978 PGA national championship, birdied that hole with a 35-40 foot putt to gain his share of second.

Leonard Thompson also shot a 68 despite a double bogey on the 12th hole, where his second shot was deflected out of bounds by a pine cone.

At 69, two under par, were Doug Tewell and George Burns, who birdied three of his last four holes when the cold and the winds were at their

Golf only 1st to go at SMU

It's not so much that Southern Methodist University dropped its men's golf team, it's what must inevitably follow that is of concern as Athletic Director Russ Potts wields the ax freely basketball at the expense of all else.

It's no secret that SMU baseball is on Potts' list of expendables...and tennis, both non increases in the football and basketball budget, Potts claims, "Not only are these our only revenue producing sports, but they are areas where we can be nationally ranked...We have to compete in these sports. Since Title IX is "the law of the land", SMU will comply by increasing its women's pro-

It's an inflation-induced financial bind many colleges are finding themselves in these days, only most haven't washed their linen in public.

STILL, SMU has done well at the gate in football the last two years, going by announced attendance figures, and the Mustangs' overall athletic program is still hurting. It prompts one to wonder how Texas Christian University and Rice University manage to maintain full-scale programs. Neither the Frogs nor Owls have fared as well at the gate in football as SMU, yet there is no visible evidence of minor sport distress in either Fort Worth or Houston, though it may well be there, waiting for an SMU to lead the way.

That, of course, is speculation. However, until TCU or Rice begin budget saving by shaving sports, one still must wonder they manage to do

Of course, baseball coach Steve Adair is upset over the possibility that baseball may be next. Attempts are being made to save the sport through private individual donations, but Adair intimates that SMU may be in trouble, period. He points out cutbacks are being made in academic programs.

SOMEHOW, one senses an overall aurora of controlled panic in the SMU atmosphere that could be as deadly to football and basketball as the endangered minor sports.

The arrival of the Cowboys in the early 1960s and their sustained level of success has been the biggest factor in SMU's increasing athletic woes. Before the Cowboys, the Cotton Bowl was an automatic selfout for the Mustangs. Now they have to claw and scratch for every fan. As if that wasn't enough, an NBA franchise will begin doing business in Dallas next season. Some say it won't go...but out at SMU it's remembered they said the same thing about pro football 20 years ago.

Brett inking brings discontent

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) - The Kansas City Royals, in their efforts to keep All-Star third baseman George Brett financially happy, have triggered rumblings of discontent among other veter-

The Royals are negotiating to extend Brett's contract, and many of his lesser-paid teammates feel the front office should extend them the same courtesy.

"We know no one on this club is going to make a higher salary than George. We accept that," said second baseman Frank White.

"But when a guy is making $600,000 or $700,000 more than you are, you get a funny feeling. Are they going to take care of one guy, or everybody who helped build this team?"

The Royals are negotiating to extend a five-year contract that Brett signed in 1977 for an estimated $300,000 a year. Reports are that his new contract will be closer to $800,000 or $900,000 annually. EARLIER this week, White announced that he wanted to renegotiate his contract — which runs through the 1983 season — or be traded to a team willing to pay him more than the $150,000 a year he now reportedly receives.

"I feel I can't afford to play the next three years underpaid. A pat on the back isn't enough," said White, a three-time Gold Glove winner. "If they don't do something, they're going to risk losing a lot

Many of the Royals have long-term contracts, and the front office's past position has been to negotiate on a reasonable level so as to keep the salary structure in balance.

But Kansas City lost its first two players - pitcher Al Hrabosky and shortstop Fred Patek - to free agency over the winter, and some of the veterans feel the Royals' salary structure no longer is in

'I'll whip him, then tears will come'

By WILL GRIMSLEY

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) -"Muhammad Ali? I don't want to have to fight him - he's my idol," said Mike Weaver. "But if I have to, I will. I'll whip him and then tears will come in my eyes."

This comment may seem a mite premature but it is in no way presumptuous in the mind of the powerfully-built ex-Marine known as "Hercules" who took up boxing strictly by accident and now is within a step of the heavyweight championship — at least one version of

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Four-time winner A.J. Foyt, who holds virtually every Indianapolis 500 record, entered four cars Thursday for the May

The 45-year-old Texan, the most successful driver in championship auto racing history, will be one of seven former winners seeking spots in the 33-car starting field. No other Indy race has ever included more than six former winners.

Entries were received earlier from defending champion Rick Mears and former winners Al and Bobby Unser, Gordon Johncock, Johnny Rutherford and Mario Andretti.

Foyt, who has driven here each year since 1958, will try to become the first driver ever to compete in the 500 in four different decades. He notched his first Indy victory in 1961 and added triumphs in 1964, 1967 and

Blazers usher Clippers from NBA contention

By The Associated Press

"Isn't it ironic?" asked Kermit Washington. It was 101/2 months ago, May 13 to be exact, that the San Diego Clippers announced the signing of Bill Walton as a free agent. "I not only visualize a championship here, I expect it," the 6-foot-11 center told a nationally televised news conference.

Not this year. With Walton on the sidelines — as he as has been for most of the season — because of will recurring problems with his injured foot, the San Diego Clippers were eliminated from contention for the National Basketball Association playoffs Thurs-

Fittingly, they were eliminated by none other than the team Walton left behind, the Portland Trail Blazers, who assured themselves of the sixth and final Western Conference playoff berth by beating the Clippers 96-93.

Meanwhile, two playoff berths remain open in the Eastern Conference. New York could have clinched one Thursday, but the Knicks dropped a 103-101 decision to the Philadelphia 76ers. The Washington Bullets, another contender, also lost, 118-111 to the Cleveland Cavaliers.

The Knicks, who have finished the regular season with a 39-43 record, need help to make the playoffs. If Washington, 37-43, loses one of its remaining two games, the Knicks make it. If Washington wins both it finishes in a tie with the Knicks and the Bullets would make the playoffs because of a better intraconference record.

Ingram named coach of year

Doug Ingram, former City of Midland Swim team coach, was named Coach of the Year after his Indian River, Fla., Community College team won the National Junior College Swimming and Diving championships recently at Fort Pierce, Ingram's Pioneers accounted for five of the nine new records as IRCC beat Daytona Beach, 719-673, for its sixth straight title. IRCC's Rick Walker, who set records in the 500 and 1650 yard freestyle events was named Swimmer of the Year. This was Ingram's first year as head coach at IRCC.

Y begins girls softball

The Central YMCA has started registration for its Pee Wee and Girls' softball programs, but if you haven't signed-up yet, you'd better hurry. Registration for the girls' program, open to those in grades three through six, ends today. The Pee Wee program, open to boys and girls grades three through six, will hold registration through Monday.

The Pee Wee division games will be played Monday nights. Games for girls in fifth and sixth grade will be played Tuesday nights and for girls in third and fourth grades on Thursday nights. Teams will be formed on the neighborhood school grid basis.

For further information, contact Gene Babon at the Central YMCA, 682-2551.

Alamo Y registers swimmers

Registration for swimming classes and all other classes at the Alamo YMCA will be from March 31 to April 5. Genie McCartney, Alamo aquatic director, said adult swimming classes are now being offered. Classes for all ages are available, starting in the morning with Introduction to Water for toddler and at various times during the day, tadpole classes will be offered for preschoolers plus progressive programs youngsters six and over.

Slo-pitch deadline is Monday

ODESSA - Entry deadline is Monday for the Odessa men's Class C United States Slo-pitch Softball Association qualifying tournament, scheduled for April 12-13.

Entry fee is $85 and teams will hit their own balls, which must be USSSA stamped. The tournament is open to the first 32 teams, and all teams must be registered with the USSSA prior

The teams that finish in the top two in the tournament advance to the USSSA midwestern division championship, Labor Day weekend in Lawton, Okla. Also, the top eight finishing teams proceed to the USSSA western zone state championship, Aug. 16-17 in Amarillo.

The rosters of all qualifying teams will be frozen with the option to add three players on or before July 15. For more information or to sign-up, contact

Jim Edwards at 697-1561 or 697-1267. Trophies will be presented to the first place team and team members, and to the second, third and fourth place teams. Also, a most valuable player award and 10 all-tournament trophies will be given.

SPORTS WITH A LIVING ROOM VIEW Tate, Holmes fight, but Sugar Ray hogs show

AP Sports Writer

The step-by-step process of reunifying the heavyweight boxing title now has reached the stage of the two champions fighting different opponents on the same night - but in different cities — on the same television network.

While looking toward the time when John Tate and Larry Holmes try and knock the crown off each other's head, ABC has the two heavyweight champs as part of a four-fight, four-hour TV extravaganza Monday night.

At 7 p.m., World Boxing Association light heavyweight champion Marvin Johnson defends his title against Eddie Gregory at Knoxville, Tenn. Then WBA heavyweight champion Tate meets Mike Weaver in a 15-rounder, also at

The next fight has Sugar Ray Leonard, the World Boxing Council welterweight champion, defending against David Green of England at Landover, Md. And the finale, emanating from Las Vegas, will match WBC heavyweight champion Holmes against LeRoy Jones

ABC SEEMS to have locked up any possible heavyweight merger fight - with or without Muhammad Ali - along with any title bout in between. Yet when it comes to wearing the heavyweight crown, ABC does not feel two heads are better than one.

champion. ABC has the rights to the winner of Holmes-Jones against the winner of Tate-Weaver — the unification fight - in August or September, plus first refusal on any interim fight of the two

Monday night winners. Personally, Spence would rather not see Ali return to the boxing wars - even though a comeback bout would be highly rated and ABC would have first refusal on it. That stems from ABC's coverage of Ali's phenomenally rated re-match victory over Leon Spinks in September 1978 at New Orleans.

Club.

"Of course we have no control over whether Ali comes back or not; it's totally his decision. But I think too much of him and his record to see him jeopardize what he's done," said Spence. "I would hope Ali would remain retired.' It was Spence who was instrumental in getting Ali's first TV fight on ABC - the bout against Ron Lyle at Las Vegas in 1975 - for $1 million, a small amount these days. "It's close to impossible for a network to make a profit by doing an Ali fight now," said Spence, referring to the multimillion dollar purses. "Over the years, we've lost a considerable amount of money from Ali's fights - even though we have had some rather good ratings and aesthetic nights.

But if Ali does come back, Spence's preference is for the live bout to be shown on closed circuit, with ABC getting the tape for later airing. His next choice would be for the fight to be live on ALI'S retirement has certainly not kept boxing off TV. But four straight hours - prime time is only three - is rather unusual. The extra fight hour arose because ABC made a deal for three fights, "then the Sugar Ray fight came up," said Spence. "We considered Sugar Ray as a separate entity, but ultimately decided to couple it with our heavyweight night. Sales were a major

Leonard, who was made a prime time star by ABC, will occupy the 10-11 slot, the premium TV time. ABC's forecast is for that period to have the night's biggest audience - a rating of 24.4 (percent of total sets watching). Commercial time will be $120,000 for that hour, the most expensive of the night.

On this night of big fighters, it is somewhat ironic that the smallish Leonard will be getting the best exposure.

Bob Arum, promoting the two Knoxville fights, strongly urged - and ABC agreed - that those two bouts be staged back-to-back so screens in the Knoxville arena showing the other TV fights would not have to be raised and lowered.

That left Leonard for either before or after the Knoxville fights. Since the weakest TV draw is Johnson-Gregory, ABC relegated it to 8 p.m. and Leonard got the 10 p.m. showcase.

No one ever bounded into major league baseball with a more resounding hit barrage than Ralph A. Garr, the real life roadrunner - not Cobb, Musial, Ruth, Williams, Aaron, Mays, Pete Rose or Bill Terry. It was virtually the most glittering opening act in the annals of the game, 813 hits in his first full four years, an annual tattoo of 219, 180, 200 and 214

Only Ty Cobb matched it. Musial had 20 fewer for that period, Mays, 135 less, and Aaron nearly 100. Williams was not even close

They were measuring Ralph for a suit at Cooperstown before the ink was dry on his bonus. Even Ty Cobb's lifetime 4,191 hits seemed hardly safe.

In 1974, Ralph Garr's .353 led the National League in batting. He led the runnerup by 32 full points. He had 100 hits by June 1 that year and the league record of 254 by Lefty O'Doul and Bill Terry seemed about to fall. A late-season injury stalled him at 214. But he had barely missed the batting title in 1971 when he hit .343 with 219 hits, and in 1972 when he batted .325.

RALPH GARR was as hard to get out as an impacted tooth. He didn't require strikes. He hit anything that didn't hit him first. He utilized every part of the ball park except the outfield seats (his few home runs went between, not over, people).

Wee Willie Keeler "hit 'em where they ain't." Babe Ruth hit 'em where they'd never be. Ralph Garr hit 'em where they couldn't get. He once had eight straight hits, and four of them never left the infield. If the third baseman played back, he dropped a bunt. If he played in, he chopped it over his head. He went down the first base so fast, the first baseman didn't dare play the hole. On balls hit to deep short with no one on, the shortstop threw to second Ralph Garr once stole 63 bases in the minor leagues and 35 in the majors. But, on the Atlanta and Darrell Evans coming up next, stealing a base was like putting a pail full of water in an ocean.

Heights. Warner Bros. even gave him permission to that the lineup that had Ralph Garr on it?"

use their copyrighted nickname "The Roadrunner." It was good publicity for them, they figured.

AND, THEN, life began throwing curves. The man who was supposed to be chasing Ty Cobb was suddenly chasing a spot in the starting lineup. The Cooperstown Express couldn't get a through track out of Georgia. The fast start had run into a big

What happened? Well, the Braves had lost their power source. Aaron, Cepeda, Carty all left. Suddenly the team didn't need a roadrunner, it needed a home run trotter. Ralph Garr began to look at better pitches. And to miss them. The man who got ,000 hits in a little over his first five years in the big leagues got only 500 in his next four. The Braves traded him to the Chicago White Sox, which is sort of a halfway house, a rest home for high-priced disappointments. Reject Manor.

Never to be confused with Tris Speaker in the outfield in the first place (he made 52 errors in his National League career), Ralph Garr played more and more infrequently despite batting .300 two years in a row with Chicago. It was Goodby, Ty Cobb, and Hello, Utility for Garr.

The White Sox didn't have any plans for him. The White Sox didn't have any plans for the White Sox. They released Ralph Garr to the Angels for mere cash last September as the California team was bucking for the pennant.

IT'S always sad when a player who once used to say "I am this team" is reduced to saying "I think I can help this team," the utility man's prayer, but Ralph Garr thinks he sees the ghost of seasons past on the score card now. "You know, it's hard to get notice when you're on a team that isn't going anywhere," he reminds you. "Your abilities tend to get overlooked.'

The Angels look to Ralph Garr more like a reincarnation of those early Atlanta teams when he used team with Henry Aaron, Rico Carty, Orlando Cepeda to look like a threat to Ty Cobb. A lineup with Don Baylor, Dan Ford, Carney Lansford, Rod Carew, Bobby Grich and Joe Rudi on it looks to But that was all prologue. That was scene-setting Ralph Garr like an ideal spot for a little more road for the emergence of Ralph Garr, Superstar. Life running. In fact, even though Ty Cobb is now safe, he was to be a parade down Broadway, autograph thinks it might be a situation where someday somesignings, books, calls from Johnny Carson. Saudi Arabia, Iran face off of price

By The Associated Press

Saudi Arabia and Iran have faced off on oil prices, with Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinfar promising an increase on April 1 and the Saudi Oil Minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, saying he does not "see the reason for any increase."

Moinfar, in a Tehran Radio broadcast monitored Thursday in Kuwait,

Mexico ups price of gas

MEXICO CITY (AP) - The Mexican government announced Thursday that it is raising the price of natural gas exported to the United States from $3.625 to $4.47 per 1,000 cubic feet, effective immediately. Foreign Minister Jorge Castaneda said the new price is "exactly the price the United States is paying this minute for Canadian gas." Jorge Serrano Diaz, the president of Pemex, the Mexican state oil monopoly, said earlier this month that Mexico would not sell gas to the United States "for one cent less" than Canada.

Castaneda said U.S. Undersecretary of Energy Leslie Goldman and other officials agreed to the new price during a two-day visit to Mexico City this week.

The United States imports about 300 million cubic feet of gas daily from Mexico and nearly 10 times that much from Canada.

The United States and Mexico reached an agreement last year on the export of Mexican natural gas to the United States after two years of price negotiations. Mexico reserved the right to renegotiate the price every three months.

Inspector says charges said prices would rise 'y an unspecified amount. A publishe 1 report in a Kuwaiti newspaper and sources in New York said the rise probably would be $2 a barrel.

Kuwait, meanwhile, is raising the price of some of its oil by $5.50 a barrel April 1, industry sources said in New York.

Crude oil prices doubled to around $30 per 42-gallon barrel in the past year. The last round of increases began late in January with a $2-a-barrel increase by Saudi Arabia, which produces one-third of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' oil.

But Saudi Arabia apparently is not going to follow the Iranian and Kuwaiti moves. Yamani, speaking to reporters in Ottawa after a meeting with Canadian Energy, Mines and Resources Minister Marc Lalonde,

'Well, I cannot really talk on behalf of Iran, but I think the market now is coming down, and I don't see the reason for any increase. We cannot oppose what the Iranians will do for themselves, but we don't follow

Yamani, who battled with Moinfar over oil prices during an OPEC oil ministers' meeting in Venezuela last December, said earlier this week that Saudi Arabia would continue its oil output at 9.5 million barrels a day in the second quarter unless market conditions "returned to normal." On Thursday, Moinfar said, "We are going to raise the price of our oil on April 1, but the amount of the hike will be announced and customers of Iranian crude will be informed of the new price on the same day. tively making its basic price $32.50 a barrel. At the end of 1978, its oil sold Kuwait as of April 1 will charge

British Petroleum Co. Ltd. a $5.50-abarrel premium on half the oil it receives, while the rest will continue to be sold at the normal posted price of $27.50, industry sources said.

A U.S. oil executive said his compa ny recently rejected a Kuwaiti offer of oil at $5 over the official price, while published reports said Kuwait is asking $4-to-$6-a-barrel increases the oil bought Corp. and the Royal Dutch-Shell Group of Companies.

Gulf and Shell would not confirm the reports.

President Carter has barred U.S. purchases of oil from Iran since a group of Americans was taken hostage in the U.S. embassy in Tehran last November, and the United States buys virtually no oil from Kuwait.

The past year's price increases, and warmer-than-normal weather in the Northern Hemisphere last winter, have sharply cut petroleum use in industrialized countries.

In the United States, the American Petroleum Institute said gasoline supplies rose to a record 280.5 million barrels in the week ended March 14 as crude oil stocks reached a record 360.5 million barrels.

The consumption drop has prompted Kuwait and several other producers to impose or plan production cuts totaling 1.2 million barrels a day, or 4 percent of OPEC's late-1979 out-production Thursday as said.

President's import fee plan hits congressional problems

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's plan to slap an import fee on imported oil that would raise gasoline prices 10 cents a gallon is running into problems in Congress.

A House Commerce subcommittee voted 17-3 Thursday for an amendment designed to block the fee by denying the Energy Department funds to administer it the way Carter wants it administered

Carter, who announced the fee earlier this month to encourage conservation, can impose it without congressional approval. But Congress could complicate his decision to have the fee reflected only in gasoline prices by withholding funds for the Energy Department to enforce that approach. The president has not yet signed the order imposing the fee, but is expected to do so soon and has said it will be retroactive to March 15.

Shortly after the subcommittee action, White House press secretary Jody Powell said Carter is determined to impose the fee and, if necessary, would veto the bill to which the blocking action is attached.

"The president asked me to inform you that if this legislation reaches his desk with that restriction in it, he will veto it," Powell told reporters.

The bill to which the amendment was attached is a measure authorizing a variety of Energy Department programs for the fiscal year starting

Opponents of the $10.3 billion import fee claimed it flies in the face of Carter's own inflation-combating pro-"It is incredible that the president is proposing to increase the price of the very product that has already pushed the Consumer Price Index to record levels," said Rep. Dave Stock-The vote by the Commerce energy and power subcommittee was the first blow a congressional panel has dealt to any part of the package of economic proposals the president unveiled earlier this month.

Stockman, main sponsor of the move, said a related attempt will be CROSBY COUNTY made before the House Appropriations Committee to also block the Treasury and Commerce Departcarry out the fee plan.

"We're reflecting the anger of the driving public on these price increases," said Rep. Anthony Toby Moffett, D-Conn, a liberal on the panel who also supported the move. 'It will put so much pressure on Carter that he'll have to move to

However, adminstration allies on the committee said that rather than blocking the fee the action - if it becomes law - could bring higher prices tm heating oil and diesel fuel as well as gasoline.

"I'm not sure who received the body blow - the president or the consumer," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the subcommit-

Dingell said he would try to get the subcommittee vote reversed by the full Commerce Committee, but has not decided on an exact strategy.

Chances of success for the feeblocking legislation appear better in the House than the Senate, where procedural barriers are likely to be thrown in its way by leaders.

Carter's proposal would slap a $4.60 fee on every barrel of imported oil.

Those opposed to the import fee said their intention was not to see the increase passed through to heating oil and diesel fuel prices - despite claims by administration defenders that this could happen.

"It just puts the ball back in the president's court," said Stockman. 'If he wants to put a tax on heating oil in New England, then he can go through with it. Or, he can put his pen down and not sign the order imposing

States get failing grade

WASHINGTON (AP) - A selfstyled citizens' lobby says more than half the nation's states get a failing grade in their answers to questions about efforts to promote energy con-

Common Cause released a list of 14 energy conservation methods Thursday and said 27 states have adopted less than seven of the practices. The group called that "unsatisfactory." But Common Cause' test involved only its' own judgment about what energy conservation methods are worthwhile, leaving out other methods backed by different groups, such as express lanes for carpools and buses and restrictions on downtown

Common Cause said at least 10 of its measures were used by California, Connecticut, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, Oregon, Rhode Island, and Wisconsin.

not checked too closely WASHINGTON (AP) - The Energy Department's deputy inspector general said Thursday that federal enforcers who ordered some $260 million in refunds of oil overcharges have not checked closely to make sure the refunds were actually

The inspector, Thomas S. Williamson, Jr., said that to a large extent, enforcers checking compliance with the refund orders have had to take the violators' word for it. The Office of Enforcement, hampered by funding and personnel short-it was doing what it could to improve

"We are concerned that the same conditions may exist at the five other districts where staffing problems are similar," his report said. 'The cases we reviewed showed a refunds were actually made. "Since this type of settlement is recurring," the report added, "oil firms may be aware of and take advantage of deficiencies in DOE's practices in this regard."

The practice which came under particular criticism was the Energy Department's ordering rollbacks of petroleum product prices, to compensate for previous overcharges to the public. The report said the enforcers were frequently persuaded to give the violating companies credit for price reductions which took place before the refund orders were actually issued. In six cases which were reviewed, it said, overcharges totalled $1,080,606 but the companies claimed they had already refunded $918,177; as a result, the report said, they had to

If so, it would mean that companies claimed credit, as refunds of overcharges, for price reductions they had to provide anyway in normal business

The report said that records of $170.8 million in violation settlements fom July 1, 1975, to April 5, 1979, showed that less than one percent had been verified for compliance, but it said those records "tended to understate the actual extent of verifica-

Saturday, March 29, 1980 YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: Many of those born on this date are ambassadors of good will wherever they go nd whatever they do: Pearl Bailey is one example. You may be another! In the year ahead, Pearl continues to enjoy success in a variety of fields and you now work to expand your horizons, too. Money still will not be as plentiful as you would like, but you find new ways to stretch your income and increase savings. At times, you may feel yourself to be on a bumpy rollercoaster when it comes to romance, but your chances for long-lasting happiness are many. You realize that there is more than one particular person with whom you want. ARIES (March 21-April 19): Exercise special care now where money is concerned. Avoid get-rich-quick schemes. Good day to ponder what you really want and how to get it.

you could build the home life

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Rely on your own instincts, intuition today. Others tend to be unreliable right now. Handle financial transactions with caution. A new acquaintance proves to be good company.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Creative project could get needed backing from prominent individual. Ask questions and expect to get some honest answers. Catch up on corres pondence and matters relating to your personal finances. CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on income, savings and tax materials. Stick to decision regarding money matter. Show kindness to person who makes bid for more

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take care of routine chores. Whenever practical, buy in quantity. It pays to listen to your mate now. Decisions made by partners have fortunate long-term rewards. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept 22)

Expect a surprise today, most probably one connected with home. Sidestep touchy subject matters with family members and friends. Give your physical well-being some serious thought

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22): Family obligations may take precedence today. Allot time and energy carefully to accomplish top priority tasks Seek cooperation of friends, associates.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be careful where large purchases are concerned. What appears to be a bargain may not be for you. Take extra care where others' feelings and emotions are concerned act is your biggest ally. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. Dec. 21): Good idea to tend to household chores before dedicating rest of day to pleasure. Profits from speculation will be smaller than expected. Widen circle of acquaintances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19). Matters in various stages of preparation all move ahead quickly. Do personal errands early in day. Put your artistic talents to work now and they will net you extra income AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Insurance plans, policies may catch your attention today. Investigation could yield a better return on your money. You gain new spiritual insigh from talking things over with someone wise in the ways of the world.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may feel rather lethargic this morning. If so, a short outing gives you new energy and zest! Patience is required in dealing with your elders. Give suggestions to loved ones, but try not to make them sound like commands.

The bidding was normal, and against South's contract of four spades, West made his natural lead of the king of diamonds. East encouraged with a high diamond, and West continued with queen and another diamond, forcing declarer to ruff. A low spade was led to the queen in dummy and a spade was returned to the king.

"Well, I guess I'll never get anything bigger," West remarked as he won the ace. But now there was nothing he could do to prevent rest of the tricks. West was wrong-he declarer from making the fish. By holding up the ace of trumps for one more round, he could have defeated the contract, and it was a marked play for him to do so. Once East has followed to a trump and declarer has ruffed a diamond, West knows that he and declarer have equal length in trumps. If West can force declarer to ruff once more before West has relinquished trump control, West will end up with a long trump. To do this, West must force declarer to ruff another diamond, but he cannot do so while dummy still has a trump to take care of the fourth round of

If West holds up the ace of trumps until the third round, he can then force declarer to ruff another diamond. The six of spades now becomes established for the setting trick.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Stock market gains

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices pushed higher in active trading today as the chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission held an emergency meeting with officials of the New York Stock Exchange to discuss Thursday's turbulent

The meeting between NYSE leaders and SEC Chairman Harold Williams was called because of the wild gyrations late Thursday that followed the collarse of silver prices on commodities exchanges and a surge of sell orders in stock markets.

The market continued to recover today, with the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rising 4.10 to 764.08 by noon. On Thursday, the Dow was off by more than 25 points late in the day and down by just 2.14 at the close.

Independent oil and precious metals issues led the upward movement today. The gains came as Citibank and First National Bank of Chicago announced they had increased their prime lending rate by one-quarter point to 191/4 percent.

Spiraling interest rates have been cited as a major reason behind the preciousmetals price drop that sparked a stock market plunge and later recovery Thursday.

The plunging price of silver, which sparked rumors that the wealthy Hunt family would be unable to meet their borrowing commitments to the brokerage house of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc., sent the market into Thursday's Silver recovers a bit after slide

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of silver recovered a bit today from a frantic slide that brought the price to a seven-month low on Thursday.

Trading in silver for delivery in April opened at $13.00 an ounce at the Commodity Exchange in New York, but then fell to $11.40 an ounce, still up from the $10.80 price Thursday when markets the $10.80 price Thursday when markets went into a frantic slide tied to a huge sell-off of billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt's holdings.

The Commodity Future Commission this morning rejected a request by the Bache Group Inc. to suspend trading in silver futures. A spokesman said, however, that the regulatory agency would continued to monitor the market closely.

Thursday's close was down $5 from the previous day and the lowest at the Comex since Aug. 31 last year when silver closed at $10.48 an ounce. In London, bullion dealers set the silver price this afternoon at $14 an ounce, off slightly from Thursday's $14.50 price.

Gold also rallied slightly in European trading, hitting $490 an ounce to close at $486.50 in Zurich and $480.50 in London, both up from the previous day. It traded at $479.50 on New York's Comex, up $16.50 from the previous day.

In New York Thursday, prices of gold and platinum followed silver's trail to a sharp drop. The price of gold was bid at $475 an ounce, down $22, at Republic National Bank late Thursday. Contracts for spot delivery of platinum fell $25.40 an ounce to $482.60 at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

The Bache Group Inc., whose subsidiary handles many of the Hunt family's commodities accounts, announced after the close of most trading Thursday that it had sold off "most of Hunt's silver positions" in the futures market after the Hunts failed to meet a $100 million margin call the previous day. Hunt could not be reached for comment.

Fears that Hunt might sell some of his huge silver holdings emerged Wednesday with his announce-ment in Paris that he and four other men with large holdings of silver were seeking to borrow money by issuing bonds backed by more than 200 million ounces of silver.

The move was seen by some traders as evidence that Hunt, who apparently was the largest buyer of silver as the metal soared upward from $6 an ounce 15 months ago, needed money and might have to sell some of his bullion if the bond issue could not be arranged.

Fears escalated later Thursday, when Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc, a Bache Group subsidiary, said the drop in silver prices had resulted in calls for additional margin - notice to put up more collateral against loans - from "certain customers," which they "have failed to meet and may be unable to

The Hunts own 5.6 percent interest in Bache Group. Because of the problems with the commodities futures accounts, the Securities and Exchange Commission suspended trading in Bache stock through April 5.

Bache officials said the suspension would not affect their ability to do business or appreciably affect their financial position.

Analysts say many traders have been forced out of commodities futures positions recently by the cost of margin calls and high borrowing costs, but the liquidation of the Hunt holdings was far more dra-As prices decline, those who hold contracts to buy in the future must come up with additional funds to keep a fixed amount of margin relative to the cost of the whole contract.

That has snowbailed recently as gold prices fell from a peak of $875 an ounce during trading on Jan.
21 in New York to less than half that price now; silver lost 80 percent of its value since its peak of $52.50 on the same day, and platinum tumbled from $1,085 on March 5 to $482 an ounce Thursday.

Prime rate raised to 19 1/4 percent

NEW YORK (AP) - Citibank, the nation's second-largest bank, today raised its prime lending rate to a record 19¼ percent.

The increase in the rate charged on loans to the most credit-worthy corporate customers was the sixth during March. Rates have shot upward as the government has moved to tighten credit as a means of fighting inflation and slowing the economy. The rate had been 19 percent, a rate first charged 10 days ago. In mid February the rate was 15½ percent, but it began moving up sharply after the Federal Reserve Board again tightened credit. It stood at 16% percent at the beginning of March. The new increase makes it even more expensive for businesses to raise cash. Many commerical and industrial firms must pay rates higher than the prime rate, with some now paying effective rates of more than 25 percent. The prime rate does not directly affect the rates on consumer loans, and in many states those rates are now far below the prime rate as a result of state President Carter has called for limitations of consumer credit and he and the Federal Reserve Board have acted to make it more expensive to extend such credit. As a result, many banks and other lenders have imposed new restrictions on such credit, making it more difficult to obtain.

Before last August, the prime rate had never risen above 12 percent, the peak set during the 1974 credit crunch. But since August the rate has moved up-frequently and many analysts think it will top 20 percent within a few weeks.

Telepathic sex torture suit thrown out of court

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A young man's $20 million lawsuit claiming a "Charlie's Angels" star had tortured him sexually with telepathic messages has been thrown out of court.

Orange County Superior Court Judge Ronald Prenner on Thursday dismissed 23-year-old Mario E. Arballo's suit against actress Jaclyn Smith, noting that an identical suit by Arballo in Los Angeles County suffered the same fate.

Acting as his own lawyer, the one-time college student said the television star has continually contacted him telepathically since March 29, 1977, with suggestions of "deviate sexual acts."

The messages began when Arballo saw her on a Muscular Dystrophy telethon, said the Buena Park

Miss Smith was not present in the courtroom

The suit alleged that the actress had persistently enforced her authority on sex, bestiality and sod-

Arballo presented a six-page document entitled, "Witchcraft Trials," to support his case, but the judge said it cited no case law.

"It's been a long time since there's been any cases on this," Arballo replied. Prenner also refused to rule on a countersuit filed by Miss Smith's lawyer Harry L. Michelson that would have prevented Arballo from filing any furcode red." It is the beginning of a nuclear emergency, and the federal government wants the public to know about it within 15 minutes.

Since the Three Mile Island accident, one year ago Friday, states have been ordered to produce plans for handling emergencies at nuclear power plants One rule proposed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission is that no more than 15 minutes pass before 90 percent of residents living within 10 miles of a nuclear plant are notified of

In New England, officials responsible for the safety of almost 1 million people living in the shadows of the region's six atomic power plants say the proposal is unnecessary and far too costly.

Wes Williams, New Hampshire deputy director of Civil Defense, calls the NRC requirement "absurd" and impossible to implement without spending millions.

The NRC picked the 15 minutes out of the air and they cannot justify the need. We want to know what's the big rush." he said.

Williams and other safety officials say they can alert and move people in their own way.

"I'm not worried about getting people out if there's an accident at Maine Yankee. We'd handle it just like we do the traffic every Fourth of July," said Ben Fitzgerald, police chief in Wiscasset, a town just three miles from Maine Yankee.

In Brattleboro, Vt., six miles from Vermont Yankee, Police Chief Reginald Belville expressed similar confidence: "If there's a real disaster, we won't need any 300-page plan to get the people out. We won't even have to push hard. They'll be getting out of town on their own without too much shoving from me. For years, the backbone of the nation's notification and evacuation program has been the "Paul Revere" system where police cars, fire trucks and other emergency vehicles with sirens cruise the streets and bark instructions over loudspeakers.

Local authorities say notification times for New England's plants even with swollen summer populations - are good enough.

Protesters light candles near TMI

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) - Exactly one year to the minute after the nuclear accident at Three Mile Island, a crowd of some 200 persons who had gathered early today outside the crippled plant lit candles and sang a song of protest.

"Someone's crying Lord, kumbaya; Stop the venting Lord, kumbaya," they sang after lighting the white candles. They stood in the front yard of a house several hundred feet from the nuclear power plant that was severely damaged last March 28 in the worst accident in the history of commercial nuclear power. The accident began at 4 a.m. that day, and the plant, located on an island in the Susquehanna River, has become a symbol of anti-nuclear activism around the world. References to venting in today's singing were the result of a proposal by plant operators to purge some radioactive krypton gas from TMI's severely contaminated reactor containment building.

The plant is now virtually silent, having been shut down by the accident, which resulted when a series of mechanical failures and human errors triggered overheating of the TMI reactor.

"It is really eerie just coming here and seeing the towers," said Marge Clement, a local housewife who has become an anti-nuclear activist since the accident.

"I've been here before, but not at this hour of the morning, and it's scary," she said gazing across the river at the plant's enormous cooling

William Vastine, 66, a retired minister from New Cumberland, passed out the candles and began lighting

"This is the candle of truth and light and justice," said Vastine, who founded the local anti-nuclear group TMI Alert even before the accident occurred.

'It's a light of commitment for the world, and the eyes of the world are on Harrisburg," he said, referring to Pennsylvania's state capital, 10 miles

Besides the demonstration here, people from across the nation were gathering today to underscore their belief that nuclear power is unsafe.

"The accident at TMI is not over." was the theme of the March 28 Coalition, organizers of today's vigil, march and religious service and a rally and nationally televised debate on Saturday.

In the meantime, two officials who found themselves thrust into the Three Mile Island crisis one year ago Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh and Harold Denton of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission - are still caught up in issues stemming from the accident. Denton, chief of reactor regulation for the NRC, has spent the year trying to resolve problems raised by TMI. At a news conference Thursday, he compared the venting issue to tooth decay. "It's not going to get any better. It's not going to be a lot worse tomorrow," he said.

But Denton urged a decision, calling the issue "urgent." Thornburgh towers, illuminated only by red air- agreed, saying the "decontamination process simply must go forward." But he added "the most pressing question is which of the (krypton) alternatives is safest."

The radioactive gas is trapped in the 203-foot-high building housing the ruined reactor and some 700,000 gallons of badly contaminated water. No one has been inside since the accident, and the krypton would severely restrict the time workmen could spend there while working on equip-

The NRC has recommended venting the gas into the atmosphere over a 30- to 60-day period rather than risk leaks or equipment failures. The proposal has been greeted with mistrust. skepticism - even threats of riots

"I realize the level of what I call psychic stress and the fact our numbers aren't believed by everyone,' said Denton. But alternatives such as freezing the krypton or filtering it through charcoal would take too long or cost too much, he said.

Controlled venting would have "an inconsequential health effect," he said. "Some people compare it to smoking one cigarette or drinking two ounces of wine.

Federal studies say the radiation released during the accident posed no health hazards. But on Thursday, a team of medical experts began investigating hypothyroidism — deficient activity of the thyroid gland.
