Talks stalled

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Progress in talks aimed at ending the crisis at the Dominican Republic Embassy here appeared stalled for the weekend and some countries whose diplomats are captive inside reportedly were pressuring the Colombian government to speed up a settlement.

The government said the next round of talks had been scheduled for Tuesday morning, but a Foreign Ministry spokesman said earlier in the day there was little hope they would settle the embassy takeover, which enters its 32nd day on Saturday.

He said talks likely would continue through next week, which is Holy Week, and probably into the week beyond.

Among the hostages are U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio and papal nuncio Monsignor Angelo Acerbi.

Chacon alive

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Robert White said Friday that prominent leftist leader Juan Chacon had been killed, but Chacon later emerged from hiding and told reporters he was fine.

The U.S. Embassy issued a statement later that White had based his comments on information given him by two government sources that morning.

An embassy source who asked not to be identified, said earlier said it obviously was a foul-up. "We got the information from senior sources in the El Salvador government that in the past have been reliable. The ambassador based his statement on that information," the source said.

Leftist guerrilla activity claimed 10 more lives overnight, authorities said, raising the death toll to 37 in this troubled Central American nation in the previous three days.

Strike over?

DENVER (AP) — About 35,000 of the original 55,000 striking refinery workers nationwide will be back on the job once ratification has been completed on a number of new agreements, an oil workers union spokesman said Friday.

However, Jerry Archuleta, spokesman for the Denver-based Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, said no agreement has yet been reached with the major oil companies of Texaco, Mobil, Chevron and Conoco, which employ about 18,000 OCAW members.

The strike began Jan. 8 when an impasse was reached during reopening talks allowed in a two-year contract which expires Jan. 7, 1981.

Revocation asked

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A special city prosecutor has asked a court to revoke the suspended jail terms of nine firefighters, including three union officials, because of the recent strike. The action could send them back to jail.

Prosecutor John R. Gibson filed the motion Thursday in Jackson County Circuit Court. Hearings on the motion were scheduled for April 10 and 11.

John Germann, president of Local 42 of the International Association of Firefighters, said the union would appeal an unfavorable decision. Germann was among the nine firemen who were convicted of contempt of court for taking part in a "sick-out" last December. Their sentences were suspended in February.

Four killed

GENOA, Italy (AP) — A crack para military police squad stormed a terrorist hide-out here Friday, killed four alleged Red Brigades urban guerrillas in a wild shootout and seized a cache of arms and a "hit list" of 3,000 persons, police reported.

A 39-year-old police officer, Rinaldo Bena, was shot in the face and lost his right eye in the pre-dawn operation, police said. He was reported in serious condition at a nearby hospital.

Heavy, sulfur-smelling smoke and ash rise like a plume from Mount St. Helens, near Cougar, Wash., Friday. Following weeks of earthquakes which opened a new crater near the mountain's peak, the volcano erupted, sending a column of gas as high as four miles. (AP Laserphoto)

Washington volcano still belching ash

By BRUCE BARTLEY

COUGAR, Wash. (AP) — Stirring to life for the first time in more than 120 years, Mount St. Helens throbbed with explosions and belched gas and volcanic ash four miles high Friday as mudslides and avalanches scarred its snow-covered slopes.

Plumes of steam and gas were blown as high as 20,000 feet, nearly two miles above the 9,877-foot peak. Brownish-gray ash spread from the mountain's northern snowfields to an area on its southeast face and the rotten-egg odor of sulfur hung in the air around the mountain.

"The mountain continues to boil around," said Sam Frear, spokesman for the U.S. Forest Service in Vancouver, Wash. "What's happening is that explosions and eruptions that vary in intensity and duration — sometimes lasting a minute, sometimes 45 minutes — are issuing from the new crater near the summit."

Dense clouds shrouded the volcano most of the day, bedeviling scientists who were trying to determine what was happening.

But later, two geologists went by helicopter to the ash-covered upper slopes of the volcano late Friday and collected samples of the fine, black ash, to be analyzed for clues to mountain's actions.

James Moore and Don Swanson, with the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park, Calif., landed at the 5,500-foot level.

"We saw only one explosion," said Moore, "and there were no lava flows. The snow on the east side is covered with ash. The erupting crater is almost exactly on top of the summit and the ash could be blowing either way."

"Ash is very important," said Swanson of his samples, "because they tell us whether there is new molten material being erupted.... Mount St. Helens has the potential to be hazardous but we are seeing nothing now to enable us to predict a (larger) eruption."

A third USGS geologist, Bob Christiansen, said at an afternoon news conference in Vancouver that the new crater near the summit had behaved consistently since early morning with "intermittent, mildly explosive activity which is likely to continue for a while."

"If it continues its current behavior it's not going to damage anything."

Sporadic, moderate earthquakes continued and several large fissures cut across the summit around the new crater.

"The mountain, with all these new cracks and holes, is getting awfully hot," said Joel Aggergaard of the state Department of Emergency Services.

A crater originally described as 250 feet by 200 feet was formed Thursday when the mountain roared to life for the first time since 1857. The crater was enlarging as its sides continued to heave and crumble but the bad weather prevented exact measurement, Frear said.

After appearing to settle down late Thursday, at 2 a.m. Friday the mountain convulsed again, sending a lightning-streaked "eruptive plume" 10,000 feet into the cloudy sky. Lightning sometimes forms in the clouds rising out of volcanoes as dust particles create static electricity.

Sporadic seismic activity, with quakes averaging 3 on the Richter scale, was reported Friday. The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs.

Numerous mudslides rolled 1,000 to 2,000 feet down the mountain as snow melted.

For Cougar residents, fear is in not knowing

By LES BLUMENTHAL

COUGAR, Wash. (AP) — The once complacent residents of this hamlet in the Cascades grew uneasy Friday as Mount St. Helens rumbled, hissed and belched foul-smelling fumes.

So did rangers of the U.S. Forest Service who work in these woodlands and the law enforcement officials obliged to stay to keep others out.

"If I could see something, I would not be as frightened," said Keith Christensen of the U.S. Forest Service, "but I couldn't see much. I was a little shaky."

Christensen and Chuck Tonn, a forest service recreational assistant, said they were five or six miles from the base of the 9,877-foot volcano on the northern side when it began belching gas and volcanic ash in the dark early Friday.

A Washington state highway, which meanders past Spirit Lake toward the northern flank of the peak, was blocked by authorities at Camp Baker, 30 miles west of the mountain's timberline.

"When we got there, there was a column of smoke coming from the top," Christensen said. "There was no glow but a lot of noise, hissing and popping."

"You could feel the ground shaking if you held onto something. There was no doubt about the sound. It was a rumbling noise from the mountain like steam from a teakettle and popping like popping rocks out of the ground."

Until Friday, the most apparent threat to Cougar seemed to be flooding in the event of mudslides into Swift Reservoir. Most residents still felt they were on high enough ground to withstand a flood even if the earthen dam were breached.

Pacific Power & Light Co. continued to release water from Swift Reservoir to lower the pool for a safety margin, said Glenn Gillespie, a spokesman for the Portland-based utility.

Many of the people living here could benefit significantly from the attention focused on the area — or go broke.

The start of the fishing season is only three weeks away and store owners, motel operators and service station managers say an opening day crowd of 3,000 anglers is not uncommon in the Yale Valley.

Budget-trimmers to vote on additional outlays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats and Republicans on the Senate Budget Committee vied to outdo each other as budget cutters Friday, vowing to hold the line on 1980 spending in programs ranging from defense to agriculture.

However, as the committee adjourned after a daylong meeting, it appeared likely to relent on many of its earlier decisions and put in $10.1 billion in additional outlays.

An amendment by Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., to add that amount was scheduled for a vote Monday when the panel resumes considering the overdrawn 1980 budget and a proposed balanced budget for fiscal 1981. The 1980 fiscal year began last Oct. 1.

In a series of tentative votes, the Senate committee agreed to raise the 1980 budget ceiling only $4.4 billion, compared with the $20 billion that its chairman, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, had proposed.

If allowed to stand, the panel's votes could provoke a serious financial crisis for the government which exceeded the 1980 budget ceiling last month and is confronted with a freeze on new spending.

Muskie, D-Maine, has proposed increasing the permitted 1980 spending level from the $54.7 billion approved last fall to $56.7 billion. Last week, the House Budget Committee also recommended $56.7 billion.

However, when Senate Budget

Committee Republicans demanded that the 1980 budget be held to the $54.7 billion level, Democrats joined in, voting to hold spending to the original 1980 figures, or only slightly increasing the numbers.

Complaining about the panel's refusal to increase foreign aid, Johnston said, "You're literally taking the food out of the mouths of refugees."

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, responded, "If we keep spending like this, we're not going to have an economy that's viable."

In the most surprising move, the committee voted to restrict defense spending to the originally approved amount despite the impact of higher-than-expected inflation on military programs.

Calls for hostage trial renewed

Successful removal of shah's spleen reported

By The Associated Press

Former Irish Foreign Minister Sean MacBride returned to Tehran Friday to discuss the U.S. Iran crisis, and the deposed shah's move from Panama to Egypt prompted a leading Iranian clergyman to issue a new call that the American hostages be tried as spies.

It was announced in Cairo that a team of surgeons supervised by Dr. Michael DeBakey of Houston had removed the shah's cancerous spleen in an operation Friday night at an Egyptian military hospital and the ex-monarch was in stable condition and doing well.

MacBride told reporters in Tehran he returned to Iran at the government's invitation to discuss the hostages "and the situation" in general, but would not elaborate. Although MacBride was reportedly invited by Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, government officials had no comment on his presence.

The 71-year-old MacBride, winner of the 1974 Nobel Peace Prize and the Soviet Union's Lenin Prize, visited Tehran last December in an unsuccessful mediation attempt. At the time he said he had his own plan for an international commission aimed at ending the crisis.

A U.N. panel subsequently appointed to investigate the shah's alleged crimes left Tehran on March 11 without resolving the impasse or seeing the hostages. The 50 Americans inside the occupied U.S. Embassy and three at the Foreign Ministry on spent their 146th day as hostages Friday.

In northwest Iran, the government for the second day battled rebellious Kurds seeking greater autonomy. Estimates of the number killed ranged from 13 to 20. Sources in the Kurdish city of Mahabad said government jets and helicopters bombed and strafed the nearby village of Dolehpestan, but that rebels inflicted heavy casualties on army troops.

The new threat to try the hostages was delivered in a sabbath sermon by Hojatolislam Ali Khamenei at Tehran University.

"We will certainly try the hostages in order to ensure the extradition of the shah," Khamenei said. Other Iranian leaders, angered over the shah's move to Egypt, have renewed demand the hostages be tried for alleged espionage against the revolution. Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said Wednesday the hostages would not be tried.

Khamenei also called Egyptian

President Anwar Sadat an "agent of the United States" for granting the shah permanent sanctuary.

"America must know that the question has not ended by smuggling the shah to Egypt," said Khamenei, who leads the heavily attended weekly prayers in a mosque at downtown Tehran University.

In Cairo, there was tight security on the Maadi Military Hospital, where the shah underwent surgery for the removal of his spleen. He has stayed in a second floor suite of the hospital since arriving Monday from Panama.

DeBakey, in a telephone call to the Baylor Medical College in Houston at 5:40 p.m. EST, said the splenectomy had just been completed by a team of Egyptian and American doctors and he "was very satisfied with the effectiveness of the team and with the shah's condition."

Doctors in New York removed the shah's gallbladder and treated him for lymphatic cancer late last year. An Egyptian physician said Wednesday cancer had spread to the spleen.

Bani-Sadr, who has failed in previous attempts to transfer custody of the hostages from the militants to his government, was quoted by CBS News as saying he had planned to try again before the shah left Panama.

Sloan faces challenger in re-election bid

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a two-part series examining the candidates and issues in Places 4 and 5 of the Midland City Council in the April 5 election.

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

When Tom Sloan decided two years ago to run for Midland City Council, he said he thought he owed Midland something. Apparently, he still feels in debt to the city because he's trying for another two years in the Place 5 position.

Opposing Sloan is Raul Salazar who is promoting Michael Harrington's Democratic Socialist Coalition out of New York.

Salazar could not be reached for an interview.

Looking back, Sloan said his two years have been "pretty eventful"

with the completion of Midland Center, Central Fire Station, renovation of Midland Regional Airport and initiation of a new Senior Center.

On top of that were the Magnatex controversy over location of a shopping center and annexation. The latter was approved earlier this week by the City Council despite objections of residents in the proposed area.

"Magnatex and annexation were the two most gory experiences I've had on that council," he said. "I think you need people on the council who are willing to face those situations."

"Annexation ultimately will be good for everyone," Sloan contended. "I think now we should consider it on all sides, especially the window areas. They (city staff) say it's a problem area, but I think we should annex it and work on those problems."

The windows are pieces of land in the south part of Midland surrounded by the city but not considered to be a part of this municipality.

Sloan was one of three council members who voted the past two years in favor of accepting Community Development funds from the federal government. If re-elected, he would vote the same way again, even though he agrees with his opponents that the rental subsidy portion tied to the money isn't a good deal.

"Some people are deserving (of rental subsidy) and are working as hard as they can, but they can't make ends meet," he said.

A fear that the federal government

Approval of 3 1/2-year contract ends long shipyard labor dispute

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Blue-collar workers at the giant Newport News shipyard approved on Friday a $300 million, 3 1/2-year contract negotiated by the Steelworkers union. The settlement capped nearly three years of labor turmoil, including a bitter 12-week strike.

Steelworker organizer Jack Hower said the vote to ratify the contract, which carries a no-strike clause, was 4,939 to 1,646. The union and shipyard announced they had reached a settlement on March 13, and the proposal was presented to the union's members last Sunday.

Newport News City Manager Frank Smiley said the new contract should have a "long-range stabilizing" effect on the city, whose economy largely revolves around the shipyard, an affiliate of Tenneco, Inc.

He pointed out that Odessa recently received a grant from HUD for slum clearance. Midland, however, wasn't eligible for any of that money since the Tall City doesn't take CD funds, Sloan explained.

Lawyers for Jimmy Chagra, fined and sentenced to prison on "continuing criminal enterprise" charges, speak to reporters Friday on the steps of the El Paso federal courthouse.

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — While his family watched, flamboyant high-stakes gambler and convicted drug dealer Jamiel A. "Jimmy" Chagra Friday was sentenced to serve 30 years without parole and was ordered to pay fines of $125,000. His lawyers, who told U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions Chagra was not a smuggling "kingpin," said, "We're looking forward to an appeal."

Sessions sentenced Chagra to 30 years in prison and fined him $100,000 on a continuing criminal enterprise charge. The judge also sentenced him to 15 years and ordered him to pay a $25,000 fine on a cocaine charge. The sentences were to run concurrently.

Prosecutors said they would pursue that charge when in a April 4 court hearing. Goodman told Sessions his client is "not a kingpin" and fled because "he was victimized by the publicity."

Prior to sentencing Chagra, in a dark blue pinstriped suit, bent over and kissed his mother. "You look so handsome," she said. Chagra, well known at Nevada gaming tables, was convicted by a federal jury in Austin Aug. 14, 1979 for continuing criminal enterprise.

The order from District Court Judge William Myers Jr. was in line with recommendations from a panel named to arbitrate the reward.

Protests mark TMI anniversary

By The Associated Press

Fifty-six anti-nuclear protesters were arrested Friday at the New Jersey headquarters of the utility that owns the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in one of several demonstrations marking the first anniversary of the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident.

At Middletown, Pa., about 200 people, including reporters, gathered in a yard just a few hundred feet from the damaged Three Mile Island plant.

The nuclear foes lit white candles and sang a protest song at 4 a.m., exactly the time when a series of mechanical breakdowns and human errors triggered the accident on March 28, 1979, and radioactive gas escaped from the plant.

The plant now sits virtually silent on a speck of land in the Susquehanna River, 10 miles from the state Capitol in Harrisburg. It has become a symbol of anti-nuclear activism around the world and was the focal point of protests across America and Europe.

Peaceful anti-nuclear observances were conducted at power plants and utilities in Connecticut, Virginia, California and Texas and more were planned throughout the weekend.

About 200 people demonstrated peacefully at the corporate headquarters of General Public Utilities in Parsippany, N.J., and 56 of them were arrested after entering company property.

Some of the protesters jumped a 4-foot snow fence and others tried to shoulder through police lines. Police carried away some of the demonstrators and loaded them into buses. Those arrested were being charged with criminal trespass.

About 40 people demonstrated outside the gates of Northeast Utilities in Berlin, Conn., and two women handing out pamphlets were arrested for interfering with employees entering the facility, authorities said.

At Three Mile Island, area residents paraded before a microphone to express fear and anger over the accident. One of several signs and banners read: "Close TMI Or We'll All Die."

"Now's the time to talk about that monstrosity just behind me. I hate that plant. I hate that plant," said Terry Roth of the anti-nuclear March 28 Coalition, which organized the two days of commemorative observances.

"Shutting down that plant is one of the most important things of my life," she added.

A woman who said she survived the atomic bombing of Hiroshima 35 years ago called the crowd "hibakkusha," a revered Japanese word that means survivor of a nuclear catastrophe.

"Although my health is now weak, I have come all the way from Hiroshima to here to appeal for a world that is free of nukes," said 59-year-old Chisako Odoriba through an interpreter.

Some speakers carried babies, shed tears or spoke in trembling voices.

"My life has been a total disaster since the accident. I'm tired of being lied to. I feel like a hostage in my own home," said Barb Nace of Harrisburg.

Callin Patterson, an 11-year-old Harrisburg girl, added, "So called accidents like TMI affect children the most. We don't want to grow up thinking that someday we may get cancer.... We don't know whether to believe grownups anymore."

Earlier, in the pre-dawn chill, flames flicked from the white candles of protesters as they sang: "Someone's crying Lord, kumbaya; Stop the venting Lord, kumbaya."

Chance for probation 'good' for some juveniles, Martin says

By KAY HORD-CRITES
Staff Writer

Juveniles, certified and tried as adults in Midland County, have a better than average chance of getting probation because of their youthful age, say the county and district attorneys.

"I think there are some (cases) where they had very good reason for giving probation, and there are others where they copped out," said District Attorney Vern Martin.

"And this county has a reputation for doing that (giving probation) more than some counties.

"If we really think this guy is a career criminal, and career criminals start out at 12, it's frustrating for us not to be able to do any more than that (get probation). I would say we have rarely been unsuccessful in having something done.

"In many cases it's (probation) probably justice. In some cases it's not, and these are the ones that frustrate us," he said.

Although Martin said it was difficult to discuss juvenile cases in general terms, he said that "unless it's very inappropriate, juries are going to give them probation.

"But I'm not going to say the juries are always wrong."

Martin said that years ago he had represented a juvenile in such a case.

"I personally tried one of these cases and the jury gave the guy probation. This was a case where the guy had a terrible record, but the state couldn't prove it."

Once certified, a juvenile's past record is inadmissible as evidence. County Attorney Les Acker currently faces a case involving the question of certification.

A 16-year-old youth has been charged with attempted murder.

Acker said that he and the juvenile probation office both felt it best to keep the youth in juvenile courts.

"A factor in my decision is that if we did try for certification and the judge did certify him, which I have some doubts about, we would try him as an adult. And our experience has been that because of their youthful age, they get probation, which is what happened on the last case we had three weeks ago.

"We did certify him and sent the case up to district court. He pled guilty and received 10 years probation.

"We've had others like that."

In the case facing Acker now, the 16-year-old is already on probation.

"If we did this (certification) on this one, and he got probation like the others, then he really wouldn't have received any punishment at all, because he's already on juvenile probation."

So, instead, Acker is asking that the youth's probation be revoked and that he be sent to the Texas Youth Council. Acker said the youth probably would be sentenced to a year in TYC and would most likely be sent to Gatesville, TYC's maximum security facility.

Acker also said he was not recommending certification because this particular youth had never been sent to TYC.

Part of the certification process requires the county attorney prove that there is no other method of rehabilitating the youth.

"He's never been to TYC. Maybe that would do him some good," Acker said.

to insure they will not be stopped by someone else," Adams told an impromptu news conference in the governor's reception room.

He called the unmarked car program "very effective," and said the truckers' citizens band radio network is abuzz with word of the "unmarked Smokies" in Texas.

"The reports I'm getting show we're stopping a large number of trucks," he said. "And out in West Texas the major advised me we pulled over three cars doing over 90 miles per hour."

An old Thunderbird nestled on the side of a highway near Austin picked off 50 speeders in a recent two-hour period, he said.

DPS official says unmarked cars won't 'pull over' offending vehicles

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Col. Jim Adams of the Department of Public Safety assured First Lady Rita Clements on Friday that her widowed and divorced friends do not have to worry about being stopped on the highway by persons posing as drivers of unmarked DPS vehicles.

Mrs. Clements told Adams some of her friends who drive alone wanted to know how they could determine if the driver of a vehicle that pulled them over is a DPS trooper or an imposter.

Adams explained to Mrs. Clements that the unmarked cars are generally used to house the concealed radar. When a speeder is detected, he said, a marked DPS car makes the stop.

Midland Industrial Foundation names officers

New officers were elected and the past year's work reviewed when members of the Industrial Foundation of Midland Inc. gathered Friday for their annual meeting.

Howard D. "Rocky" Ford was elected to a second term as president of the organization. The president of Rocky Ford Moving Vans, Inc. he served as president of the Foundation in 1979. Ford was president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce in 1976 after serving as vice president of the chamber and as a director from 1972 to 1974.

He has served as president of the national Movers and Warehousemen's Association and president of the Southwest Warehousemen's Association. Ford has been a member of the Downtown Lions Club since 1948. He also is a member of the First Christian Church of Midland.

Other officers elected include Harrell Feldt, vice president, M.A. Cappadonna, vice president, Tony A. Martin, vice president, Charles Fraser, treasurer, and W.H. "Bill" Collyns, secretary. C. Winston Barclay is immediate past president.

Elected as assistant secretaries were Jim Alsop, Doug Henson, Fred Tyler and Grant Billingsley.

Seven new directors were approved to serve in 1980. T.L. Cauthen, Joe Campbell, W.J. Mewhorter, Bill Thomas and Robert Southerland will serve three-year terms. W.L. Barnes and Bill Hickey were elected to two- and one-year terms respectively.

Parker Humes and Joseph J. O'Neill III were recognized as directors retiring from the board in 1980 along with Wilbur Yeager Jr. who served as treasurer.

Property transactions in Midland Industrial Park during 1979 included the sale of four tracts and two existing facilities totaling 16 acres.

New firms locating in the park during 1979 were Lydick Roofing Co., Woodman Distributing Co. and American Coldset Corporation. E.J. Hughes, Inc. and WPC, Inc. expanded their operations already located in the park.

Directors were told that French Tool and Manufacturing, which acquired 22 acres in Midland Industrial Park in January was working toward a May opening of its new manufacturing facility.

The meeting also included an update on PPG Industries and Michelin Tire Corporation projects.

PPG Industries' schedule calls for construction to begin during the last half of 1980 with an anticipated opening in early 1982. Michelin now plans to begin construction of its plant by mid-1981 with completion hoped for by late 1982 or early 1983.

In addition to considering capital expenditures in the existing Midland Industrial Park, the directors were briefed on the newly-formed Midland Industrial Development Corporation.

This group will work with Midland County Commissioners in issuing industrial revenue bonds in Midland County.

Arafat suggests diplomacy, calls for war against Israel

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat, visiting India as a newly recognized head of government, said Friday that diplomacy was the best way to solve the three-month-old Afghan crisis, but called for volunteers to fight Israel.

Two days before, India conferred full diplomatic recognition on the PLO and is treating Arafat as a head of government during his two-day official visit here.

Egypt's President Sadat to arrive in U.S. April 7

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt will arrive at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland on April 7, the White House announced Friday.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin will arrive here April 13, a day after he arrives in New York.

The two Mideast leaders will confer separately with President Carter on the stalled autonomy talks for Palestinians.

Both leaders will be accompanied by their wives. White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said.

Sadat plans to leave Washington on April 10, Powell said. He did not know whether the Egyptian president would leave the United States at that time, foreclosing the possibility of a joint Sadat-Begin summit with Carter if the need should arise.

Begin plans to depart on April 16, Powell said. Further details were not available.

Mickey Cappadonna, longtime trustee for the Midland Memorial Hospital, says in endorsement of Martin Alday, candidate for Mayor of Midland, "Martin Alday has the courage to tell folks when he disagrees, even with friends. I recall, several years ago, when we on the hospital board were trying to raise $10 million from private donations for hospital expansion. I made our plea to the past presidents of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. At the end of my 30 minute speech, Martin stood up and said, 'Mickey, you folks have worked yourselves to the bone trying to raise money for the hospital. It's time we all helped. What this county needs is a hospital district.' You know the rest of the story. Martin Alday was one of the people most responsible for the formation of our present Midland County Hospital District. Martin Alday is a thinker and a doer. He will make a good mayor."

Little hope left for missing

By JOHN GALE

It was a nice birthday present for Christine Head — her husband, 40-year-old Peter Head, flew home to Aycliffe, England, Friday night. He is one of the survivors from the capsized North Sea platform. (AP Laserphoto)

Survivors describe scene as offshore oil rig capsizes

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — "We were all thrown back against the wall, and the lights went out. People panicked as everyone was reaching for the doors. I believe quite a few were trapped inside because the doors were jammed."

Olav Forsheim, 35, a Norwegian worker, thus described the scene in the movie theater aboard the floating apartment complex for oil workers that capsized during a storm Thursday in the worst accident in North Sea oilfield history.

The alarm went off at 6:30 p.m. on the Alexander I. Kielland oil platform. It had been a normal working day for the 228 men aboard the platform.

It was 10,000 tons in weight and longer than a football field, outfitted with hotel-like accommodation, restaurants and an up-to-date gym. Some men had just finished dinner, choosing between the six desserts always available. Fifty workers were enjoying a brand new film.

Forsheim said he heard "explosions" as he sat with friends in the packed theater.

He managed to get himself to the upper deck, which was already half submerged in water and located a storeroom. He grabbed some warm clothes, a pair of overalls and a life jacket. It was then he realized the only way he would survive was to swim to another rig 45 yards away.

"It may sound an easy task to swim such a distance, but I can assure you it wasn't. Freezing water, violent winds and heavy waves broke my strength down almost immediately," Forsheim recalled.

Forsheim was halfway there when he was plucked from the sea by a rescue basket.

Tony Sylvester, 35, a British worker and father of three, had been in the theater, too.

"It seemed to me a big wave had hit it, followed by another short one," Sylvester said. "It was listing right over."

It took between 10 and 15 minutes for the rig to capsize. There was one jolt that shifted the platform 45 degrees in the air. Then it stopped, and "everybody thought that was it," Sylvester said.

They were wrong. The worst was yet to come.

"It suddenly toppled right over and everybody was in the sea," Sylvester recalled. "It was terrible. Everybody was vomiting."

Once in the water, he spotted boats. "They couldn't pick us up, the boats, the supply boats. I managed to get into one of these life dinghies," he said.

"Everybody was climbing up to the top that could make it and clinging on. Nobody knew what to do," he said.

Six others also sought shelter. They bobbed in the gale-lashed seas for three hours, using their shoes to bail out the buckets of water streaming inside. "It was very cold," Sylvester said.

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — Rescue officials held out little hope Friday night of finding alive any of the 101 men missing from an oil workers' apartment complex that overturned in a fierce North Sea storm. The biggest air-and-sea search since World War II located 38 bodies and 89 survivors in the wind-swept waters before it was suspended at nightfall.

Divers pounded on the hull of the huge platform where the men slept, ate and rested in the hope that some workers might have found an air pocket and survived the capsizing Thursday night in the worst disaster in North Sea oilfield history. There was no response reported from inside. Underwater television cameras aided in the search.

Stavanger police chief Carl Wendt, rescue operation leader, said there was now little hope of finding more rig workers alive in the water.

"We're still hoping, but we're not too optimistic," Per Vassbotn, a spokesman for Norwegian Prime Minister Odvar Nordli, told a news conference.

RESCUE OFFICIALS noted that with the sea temperature just below freezing, the chances of survival for anyone still in the water were virtually zero. They noted that the last group of survivors brought ashore were picked up about 11 a.m. (5 a.m. EST). None had been spotted since.

More than 2,000 people manning scores of ships, planes and helicopters searched throughout the daylight hours for possible survivors from the capsizing of the oil platform Alexander I. Kielland. Norwegian officials stressed that the 45 vessels involved in the rescue mission would stay in the area overnight. The air search was scheduled to resume at first light.

The 4,000-square-mile search area has been split into four sectors, each commanded by a warship.

Phillips Petroleum Co., which leased the 10,000-ton platform the size of a football field 100 miles west of here, said 228 people were aboard. Phillips spokesman Per Erik Bjorklund and the Stavanger police chief gave identical figures for the dead, missing and surviving.

NO AMERICANS were aboard, the British Foreign Office said. It listed among the workers 170 Norwegians, 35 Britons, three Finns, 1 Spaniard and 1 Portuguese, but had no nationalities for the others.

Officials refused to speculate on the cause of the accident. The Norwegian Cabinet called for an immediate inquiry.

Helicopters ferried survivors to hospitals here. Most escaped serious injury and were treated for exposure.

One Phillips spokesman said the accident would affect offshore drilling in the North Sea, one of the most treacherous jobs. "It will slow down for sure," said Wert Jansen, the oil company's press officer in Stavanger.

Resembling a huge floating block of apartments five stories tall, the rig contained a kitchen, recreation room as well as sleeping facilities. Oil workers, who earn between $330 and $660 a week depending on their skill, live on these platforms for weeks at a time. Oil divers, handling the most dangerous jobs, can earn $8,800 for a month's work.

NO OIL DRILLING equipment was on board the rig that capsized, but it was connected by a bridge to a production rig nearby. Officials said the Kielland had been checked by its insurance company last September and was due for a complete overhaul in July.

The storm, producing winds up to 60 mph and 20-foot waves, occurred about dusk. Some men had finished supper and were in the movie theater. Others were in their rooms relaxing or sleeping.

One of the five air-filled stabilization legs collapsed, the rig listed at about 40 degrees for 10 to 15 minutes, then turned over in 240-foot deep icy water. All that could be seen of the huge platform was its four remaining legs sticking up out of the water, the rest of it was submerged.

"We have never had accidents like this to my knowledge in any part of the world," said Bill Boys, Phillips' Norway manager.

MANY OF THE SURVIVORS ferried to Stavanger had spent up to three hours in the water, said one of the doctors who carried out medical checks as the men arrived at Sola Airport.

Scores of men were thrown into the water or were pushed off into one of the five lifeboats with which the platform was equipped. Some men swam to safety on the production rig lying 60 yards away. Others were swept away in the turbulent 30-foot seas.

"Suddenly we heard a big explosion, and there was chaos," said Norwegian Olaf Shothien, who was trapped in the theater.

"Minutes later, the rig went over. Men were trying to get out the room and then everyone tried to get into the water."

The Edofisk oilfield, one of seven operated by Phillips in that area of the North Sea, started production last September and was producing 30,000 barrels daily until Thursday.

Fifth body recovered

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A fifth body has been recovered at the site of an offshore gas well blowout that injured 29 workers.

A sixth worker was still missing as investigators probed through the wreckage Friday on the Pennzoll platform about 100 miles southeast of Galveston.

The fifth body was brought to Galveston early Thursday and had not been identified.

Two bodies were recovered immediately after the early Monday explosion and fire.

Two burned bodies were recovered later and were identified by W.E. Korndorfer, the Galveston County medical examiner, as Robert Smith 22, Lake Charles, La., and Jerry Jaucier, 37, Columbia, Miss.

Soviets say rig fire finally out

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet firefighters have put out a two-month-old fire on an offshore oil rig in the Caspian Sea, the newspaper Trud reported Friday.

Trud said there were no casualties and all oil workers on the rig were evacuated by sea. Heavy storms hampered efforts to put out the blaze, it said.

The rig is in the Bakhar field, some 19 miles from Baku.

Small oil spill's source sought

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP) — The Coast Guard said Friday it would board tankers as far away as New Orleans and Galveston, Tex., to find the source of an oil spill off Fort Pierce.

The thin spill, 25 miles long and 75 yards wide when first spotted Thursday about 10 miles off the Florida Atlantic coast, quickly started breaking up and posed no apparent danger to beaches, said Coast Guard spokesman Mike Ayres in Miami.

Luling first city in state to welcome Magna Charta

By GREG THOMPSON

LULING, Texas (AP) — The watermelon capital of the world turned out with marching bands and bunting Friday to welcome the priceless, 765-year-old Magna Charta — its most famous visitor since Franklin Roosevelt made a campaign whistle stop in 1932.

The one-day visit to this obscure town of 5,000 was the first stop in the document's month-long tour of five Texas cities.

The ancient charter, considered the basis of legal and just freedom for English-speaking countries, has made only three other trips away from its permanent home in England's Lincoln Cathedral.

It was sent to the cathedral in 1215 after the historic agreement between King John and his barons. It is the best-preserved of the four remaining copies sealed by the king.

It is so valuable it was stored with the American gold supply in Fort Knox during World War II. "It's not unique, because there are three others, but it's priceless," said the Rev. Oliver Fiennes, the dean of the cathedral who is traveling with the document.

Luling was properly impressed with its distinguished visitor.

The Luling High School marching band was on hand to play God Save The Queen and the Star-Spangled Banner. A bagpipe band from nearby Austin also serenaded the more than 250 persons at the opening ceremony.

The town's mayor, the state representative and Fiennes made their presentation from a bunting-draped platform built for the occasion by Luling high school agriculture students.

Students from more than 15 area schools were based in throughout the day to file through the small parish hall of the local Episcopal church and view the parchment document in its heavily guarded, bullet-proof, 560-pound display case.

McKay's Restaurant even put in a special British menu for the day in honor of the visit.

Officials expected more than 4,000 persons to view the document before the day ended.

Such pageantry here is usually reserved for the annual Watermelon Thump, the summer watermelon festival that attracts some 100,000 over a three-day period.

"It's going to be a great asset to the town, publicity-wise. It's also very educational for the school kids," said retired attorney E.P. Slater, who said he couldn't remember a more significant visitor to Luling since then-presidential candidate Roosevelt made his brief stop.

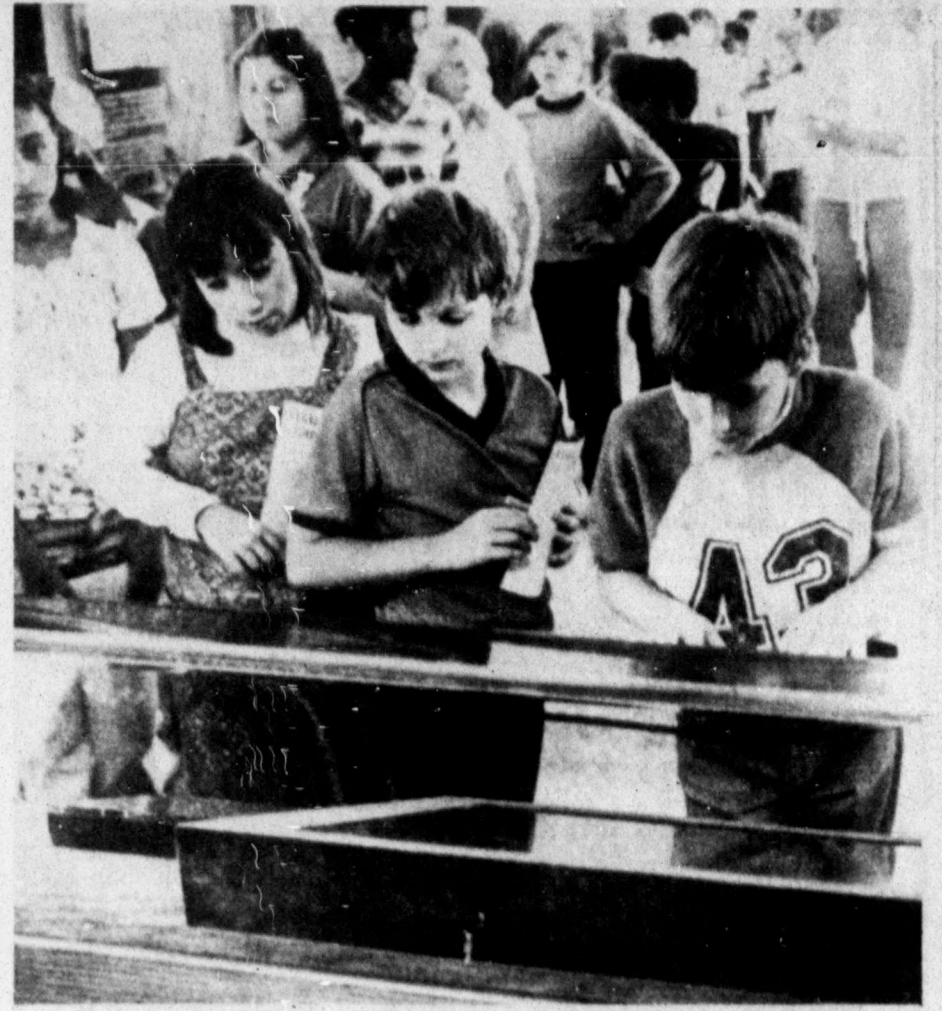

"We're trying so hard to get this town to grow. This is really significant," said Jim Dekle, director of the Chamber of Commerce.

"This is a real treat for Luling. There is a lot of pride here among the people, especially the congregation in our church," said the Rev. Robert Greene, the local Episcopal pastor and the man instrumental in arranging the Magna Charter's tour of Texas.

Greene readily acknowledges that the document's visit to Luling was his payoff for the hundreds of hours of work he put in to arrange the tour.

"Important things need to happen in small towns as well as in major cities," he said. "My town deserves it."

During a casual meeting last year in Lincoln Cathedral, Fiennes asked where Greene thought the next Magna Charta exhibition should be. Greene, of course, suggested Texas.

Three of Luling's elementary school students examine the priceless, 765-year-old Magna Charta, housed in a bullet-proof case inside a glass-topped viewing stand. Their town, population 5,000, was the first in Texas to see the historic document. (AP Laserphoto)

38 choir students earn high ratings

Thirty-eight Midland junior high school students received Division I ratings in the Junior High School Choir Solo and Ensemble Contest held recently at Alamo Junior High School.

Soloists earning a Division I rating from Alamo Junior High School are Jimmy Corrales, Anna Diaz, Mike Elliott, Genny Garner, Suzie Harmon, Shalina Harris, Deidre Howard, Johnny Kirkpartick, Rene McLeod, Jill Miller, Lori Neatherlin, John Porterfield, Tracy Sherman, Lori Thompson, Brett Tubbs, Kevin Williams and Victoria Wilson.

Goddard Junior High School soloists earning a Division I rating are Debbie Barela, Michele DeFrance, Jill Giebel, Liz Libby, Maria Lopez, Ricky Pertile and Tim Relaford.

Soloists earning a Division I rating from San Jacinto Junior High School are Andrew Garza, Dana Holley and Lisa Daniels.

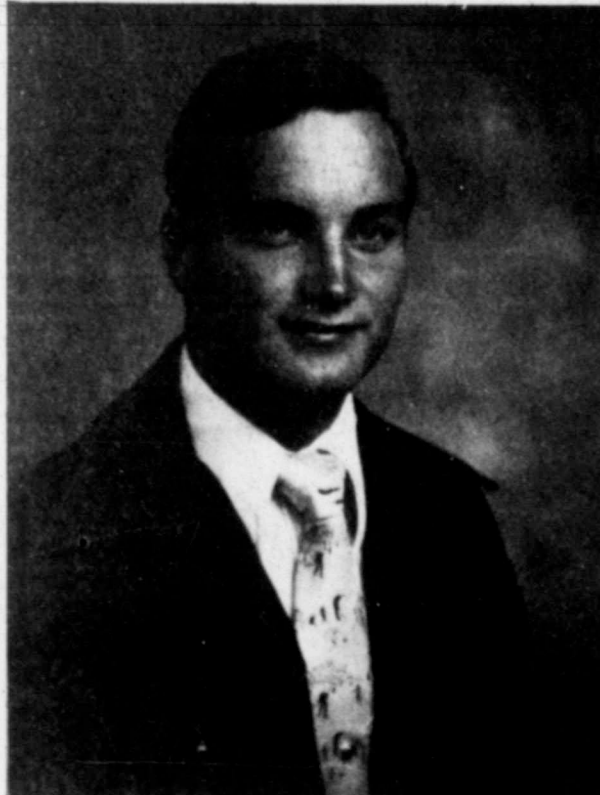

The 8th grade madrigal from Goddard Junior High School won Division I honors in ensemble competition. Those student involved with the madrigal are Tony Deluce, Lillie Freeman, Marsha Goodson, Jill Giebel, April Paris and Tim Relaford.

The treble trio of Amy Johnson, Maria Lopez and Anne Spangenberg, all from Goddard, took Division I ratings.

The treble ensemble No. 2, also from Goddard, took Division I ratings in ensemble competition. Debbie Barela, Michelle DeFrance, Kim Deramus, Liz Libby, Maria Lopez and Melissa Simmons were members of the ensemble.

Those students receiving the "Judges Choice Solo or Ensemble" recognition were Tracy Sherman, Alamo; Debbie Barla, Jill Giebel and Tim Relaford, all of Goddard.

The Goddard No. 2 treble ensemble was also honored.

Jeff Ryan, 18, son of Phillip and Margaret Ryan, 4312 Sentinel Ave., has been named Junior Jaycee of the month by the Midland Jaycees. Ryan, a senior at Lee High School with a 4.6 grade average, is chairman of the Student Council, a member of National Honor Society and Junior Engineering Technical Society. He will attend The University of Texas at Austin upon graduation.

'Texas Triangle' rail legislation discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill encouraging the development of a Texas Triangle passenger rail corridor hit the House floor Friday among complaints about the overall proposal's fiscal responsibility.

The triangle between Dallas-Fort Worth, San Antonio and Houston is one of 13 corridors that could become eligible for $105 million authorized by the bill for design and equipment to improve passenger rail service.

"We're talking about spending more money, more money, when all you hear from the people back home is cut spending," Rep. Jim Collins, R-Texas, said.

"If America has much more good causes out of Congress, we're going to bankrupt this country," Collins, a Dallas conservative, concluded.

The bill also sets up a $75 million federal loan for employees of the bankrupt Rock Island Railroad and authorizes $750 million to complete development of the Northeast Rail Corridor between Washington and Boston.

A vote is expected early next week.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth has said his interpretation of an Amtrak and Department of Transportation study shows the Texas Triangle fourth most promising among the 13 corridors.

The three routes Wright ranked ahead of the Texas Triangle - Los Angeles-San Diego, Washington-Richmond and New York-Buffalo - already have regular but limited service.

Prep academy one of vanishing breed

By MARK FORSTER
The Los Angeles Times

CARLSBAD, Calif. — Capt. Ernie Bond twirled his ceremonial saber in the air before the 50 uniformed cadets standing at attention and bellowed, "Forward, march!"

The cadets moved in ranks of five. At the drum major's whistle, a 24-member military band struck up an enthusiastic but slightly off-key march.

When the cadets reached the end of the football field, Bond turned them around and the procedure started again.

Despite the military trappings, the marching cadets were not soldiers. For 17-year-old Bond and the corps of teen-agers he commanded, the exercise was the weekly drill at the Army-Navy Military Academy in Carlsbad, the only remaining military prep school on the West Coast.

IN ITS IMMACULATE white classrooms and dormitories on 13 acres, the 70-year-old boarding school preserves the traditional kind of military prep education that emphasizes traditional academics, hard-line discipline and moral values.

While other military schools around the nation failed, opened their classrooms to girls or dropped their military character, the Army-Navy Academy survived the protest years of the Vietnam War era with nothing more serious than a temporary drop in enrollment.

Today, the junior and senior high school program flourishes, with 290 boarding students and 18 day students from Southern California, other parts of the United States, Mexico, Iran, Europe, Saudi Arabia and several Latin American and Far Eastern countries.

The school has a waiting list of parents willing to spend almost $6,000 annually to board and educate their sons at the academy.

COL. WILLIAM CURRIER Atkinson, a drawing, courtly native Tennessean, recalled with mild agitation the early 1970s, when enrollment slackened at the academy.

"During the Vietnam War, that was what wrecked it," said Atkinson, a proud octogenarian who has been with the Academy 55 years as a teacher, administrator and president.

"Oh gad, they turned against us," the colonel said. His is an honorary title; his military enlistment was canceled when the World War I armistice was signed. "It started in the university and went on down to the teen-agers. They didn't want any part of the military."

Atkinson, who attended Sewanee Military Academy in Tennessee and who has spent his life in military prep education, sees the schools rebounding after that bleak period.

"THEY ARE GETTING popular again," the colonel insisted. "They are coming back right now because of the parents recognizing the need for them. It is a regulated life."

But the outlook is not bright for the few remaining academies. Nationwide, military prep schools dropped from a peak of 163 in the early 1960s to about 50 across the country today according to the Association of Military Colleges and Schools in Washington.

The association director, retired Maj. Gen. Clifford B. Drake, blamed the decline on a shrinking school-age population and the economic pinch.

To some of the boys, enrollment at the Army-Navy Academy is less than voluntary, and life in a military setting is tolerable at best.

JIM TIPPENS, a diminutive 15-year-old sophomore from Glendale, Calif., said his parents enrolled him in the school this year because of poor grades in public school.

"Definitely I'd like to go back to public school," Tippens said while getting his blond hair cut to the required length — above the ear and off the collar — in the campus barbershop.

Steve Markle, another 15-year-old sophomore, said he hopes to leave the academy once his family is settled in a move from Carlsbad to Bakersfield, Calif.

"I'm really sick of it," said Markle, a boarding student. "It ruins my friendships in Carlsbad because they call us 'jarheads.'"

MARKLE SAID HE especially resents the tough discipline and school policy that forces students to wear the academy uniform at all times.

"These are the only clothes you can wear and that's not very fair," he grumbled. "I've been having trouble because my attitude is so bad. I got in trouble because I was ditching."

But there are also students like Eric Parkinson, a tall, handsome 18-year-old from Orange County who is student body president and the highest-ranking student officer, battalion commander.

Parkinson, who said he enrolled after he visited an older brother at the school, praised the academy for its superior academics and the sense of accomplishment and camaraderie it instills in the cadets.

ATKINSON LEADS twice-weekly devotion for cadets, and every boy is required to attend a weekly religious service in his faith at the nondenominational chapel overlooking the private campus beach.

Boys attend classes in blue striped uniforms, drill, pursue advancement through military ranks and must enroll in a Reserve Officer Training Corps program supervised by a retired Army major. The U.S. Army also assigns a noncommissioned officer to the school to teach leadership classes.

Despite the military emphasis, students have no legal commitment to a military career. Only one boy a year usually seeks to attend one of the country's military colleges, to which the school may nominate a student without a congressman's assistance.

The day begins at 6:40 a.m. when cadets assemble for a flag-raising ceremony before breakfast. Formations also are held before lunch and dinner.

TWO HOURS OF STUDY are required from 7 to 9 nightly, and lights are out at 10 p.m. Class changes and formations are signaled by a bugle tape played over the school's sound system.

"We call ourselves an old-fashioned school and our courses are old-fashioned and we teach in the same old-fashioned manner," Atkinson said.

"We've had our problems, very definitely. I've watched that come along from the time of the hippie movement. Any schools in the nation that say they haven't been hit, whether it is public or private, they don't know what's happening."

Discipline against drug offenders nabbed by school officials is sure and sudden. The day after Parkinson reported a student smoking marijuana, school administrators expelled the boy in the presence of his father.

ACADEMY OFFICIALS bristle at the suggestion that the military school attracts youngsters with discipline problems.

Parents must sign statements that their sons have never been in serious trouble, and prospective students must sign statements that they are attending voluntarily.

But establishing the sincerity of those signed statements by parents and their sons is difficult to do.

"The school maintains they do not accept discipline problems from other schools, but that's bull," said a parent whose son recently graduated.

FOR GOOD GRADES and good behavior, cadets are rewarded with high rank that earns them light duty, extra time off and other privileges. Only students with the rank of sergeant and above are permitted to keep stereos and televisions in their small two-bunk rooms. Other students must be content with radios.

Troublemakers find themselves scrubbing urinals, sopping floors or marching with rifles as punishment for rule infractions. The duty is meted out by an adult commandant, either on his own or on recommendation of student officers.

Even minor slips can sometimes earn the student cadets dreaded ED, or extra duty.

Whether for education, discipline or as a good place to learn English, the academy has remained a popular school among wealthy foreigners, particularly Mexicans. Foreign students make up about 20 percent of the cadet population.

Atkinson said Iranian students have been under severe pressure since the revolution in that country toppled the shah's regime under which their families flourished.

ONE IRANIAN STUDENT at the academy had an uncle executed by the Khomeini regime, and the half-dozen Iranian students are unsure of their futures, he said.

Foreign students at the academy have included sons of Middle East oil sheiks and Latin American coffee barons.

The academy's continued existence can be credited partly to its nonprofit status for tax purposes and a wealthy benefactor's donation in the 1940s of most of the land the academy now occupies.

A diminutive, silver-haired man with a carefully trimmed moustache, Atkinson dresses in an olive-green Army uniform and gold-braided officer's hat.

"I'm not against the public schools," he explained. "I'm all for them. But honest to John, I do feel that somewhere along the line they are missing the boat as related to the challenge confronting them, and I'm talking primarily about the foundation in English and math and reading."

Reflections on putting up a stiff front

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — If we can put a man on the moon, I was telling myself only the other day, why can't our computerized technology come up with a formal dress shirt that doesn't put the wearer in danger of a fractured skull?

Why hasn't the Surgeon General required these ruffled booby traps to carry a government health warning?

I don't ordinarily talk to myself at such length about such profound issues, but it is hard to find an audience when you are down on your knees in a hotel bathroom searching for a shirt stud. Besides, the sort of language I used to make my point after striking my head on the sink upon rising was not suitable outside the privacy of our local family cinema.

Unlike Fred Astaire or Mr. Hudson, I am not to the manner born where white tie and tails are the uniform of the day. The last time I assumed this absurd costume was at my best Army buddy's first wedding, which was three divorces, two trial separations and four meaningful relationships ago.

But now the Gridiron Club of Washington, that exquisite cut-glass vase that enshrines in its glitter the flower of American journalism, had summoned me to sit at the same table — No. 4 — as Chrysler chairman Lee Iacocca, Associated Press chairman paraphernalia and showing no signs of shirtfront trauma.

The cocktail party in advance of the dinner and show was scheduled for 6 p.m. I permitted myself one hour to vest. This was the first mistake. It took 20 minutes to figure out how to put on the vest, which had neither back nor sides.

Mandelbaum's Bar Mitzvah Palladium, from which I rented the attire for less than half of what it would have cost to hire a draft substitute in the Civil War, had not provided an instruction sheet.

There was no cummerbund, either, but when I tried to borrow one from the hotel assistant manager, just a glorified bellhop really, he informed me in icily superior tones that such a cincture was not de rigueur with white tie and tails.

"Why do you think a cutaway is called a cutaway?" he sniffed, as if trying to detect the presence of alcohol at my end of the house phone.

The rented raiments came with an envelope full of costume jewelry that had the grayish pale pallor of oysters left too long on the counter. After a good deal of deep breathing and sucking in my gut, I managed to affix one of them into the holes midway down the shirtfront, achieving at last a juncture of that severely starched garment.

Unfortunately, the object I had selected to perfect this union was a cufflink; not only that, but the holes I selected were not mutually compatible, one being higher than the other.

My efforts to force the cufflink into a shirtstud hole had disastrously enlarged that aperture — both of them in fact — so that when the proper studs were inserted, they went all the way through and fell to the floor.

One of them rolled under the bed. And that's where I should of stood, to quote the immortal Joe Jacobs, instead of going into the bathroom to take advantage of the better light and the mirror over the sink.

It was in retrieving this second fallen stud that I received the nasty crack at the back of the head, which bled profusely down the back of my wing neck collar.

Try as I might, and cuss as I did, I soon became convinced there is no one short of an Olympic class contortionist who can bend his elbows in such a way as to fit a thumb and forefinger inside that collar or, trying the other direction, up beneath the shirtfront to attach that final stud.

I tried spreading the shirt out on the bed, with all of the studs already affixed, and crawling into the garment, reverse Houdini-style, but there was just too much pot to squeeze between the pleats. I nearly smothered in what a coroner's jury would have had to conclude was suicide by ruffles. With great effort and a tipped over Scotch bottle, I finally extricated myself from this bejeweled handman's mask and called room service for a beer, since by now the cocktail party was well advanced.

For a fiver, the minion who brought me solace and sustenance was pressed into service as a valet. He figured out how to affix the studs without too much difficulty, but in the process of attempting to trim the sails of the white tie, which listed to port and hung below the adam's apple, he managed to pop the collar button.

It bounced once in the sink and then disappeared down the drain.

We saved the day by cannibalizing my carnation and using its straight pin to breach the gulf of the wing necked collar.

That evening, I believe I was the only Gridiron guest to chat with the ambassador from the People's Republic of China while undergoing acupuncture of the throat at the same time.

Everyone knew I was a newspaperman, however. The paper clip securing the carnation was a dead giveaway.

Workers due layoff benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department ruled Friday that 13,365 Ford Motor Co. workers in New Jersey and Missouri are eligible for special layoff benefits because their jobs were threatened by competition from foreign car sales.

At the same time, the department rejected a claim for similar benefits for 8,500 General Motors Corp. workers in Kokomo, Ind.

Under the Trade Act of 1974 workers found to have either lost their jobs or to face layoffs because of increased imports are eligible for federal benefits that include up to 70 percent of their average weekly wage for one year.

The Labor Department said 5,100 workers at Ford's Mahwah, N.J., assembly plant and 5,800 at the Kansas City plant may apply for the benefits.

Petitions for the aid were filed by the United Auto Workers union in January.

Both plants produce Ford Granadas, Mercury Monarchs and pickup trucks, and Mahwah also assembles Ford Fairmonts and Mercury Zephyrs.

Trade Act benefits were denied workers at GMM's Delco Electronics Division plant.

Mulligan's Stew

Jack Tarver and, there at the head table, in the jug-jawed shadow of Dr. Zbiginew Brzezinski, within the gracious arc of Jody Powell's sly smile, at the feet of Defense Secretary Harold Brown, Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall and other luminaries too numerous to mention. Researchers years ago forecast volcanic blow

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens, which began thumping with earthquakes last week and is now spewing ash, was considered the "most likely" of Washington state's five volcanoes to blow, according to the U.S. Geological Survey.

The other four volcanoes in the state are Mount Rainier, Mount Baker, Glacier Peak and Mount Adams.

"Although dormant since 1857," survey researchers Dwight Crandell and Donald Mullineux predicted several years ago, "St. Helens will erupt again, perhaps before the end of this century."

The peak "has been more active and more violent during the last few thousand years than any other volcano in the (continental) United States," they said.

In making their prediction, Crandell and Mullineux noted the biggest threat to life and property would not come from lava, which rarely gets far from a mountain, or even ash, though St. Helens has been a prodigious producer of ash.

Instead, they said, the most danger could come from mudflows, triggered high on the mountain by melting snow and earth tremors, roaring down the mountain and slamming into one of the three hydroelectric reservoirs on the Lewis River just south of the peak.

Crandell and Mullineux estimated a mudflow could send as much as half a million acre feet of water spilling over the three dams on the Lewis River, one of which is only about five miles from the mountain.

That much water, they said, could devastate the Lewis River Valley and even cause flooding in the Columbia River.

They said even through Portland, Ore., is 20 miles above the Lewis River Valley, it is essentially on tide-water and could be threatened by such a catastrophe.

St. Helens' history probably extends back 37,000 years, Crandell and Mullineux said.

By studying volcanic deposits, they estimated almost all the visible part of the mountain had built up since 500 B.C. and the upper part within the past few centuries.

Of the state's five volcanoes, St. Helens appears to have been the biggest ash producer, according to Crandell.

An eruption 3,500 years ago laid down two feet of pumice ash 50 miles from the mountain and a blowup 450 years ago pumped out pumice that accumulated up to five inches deep 50 miles from the mountain.

In both cases, the wind carried the ash eastward over the mountains in a track that would miss the cities of today.

Influenza deaths still epidemic, but declining

ATLANTA (AP) — Deaths from influenza and pneumonia have occurred at epidemic levels for the ninth consecutive week, but the latest figures reflect a decline, the national Center for Disease Control reported Friday.

In the nine-week period ending March 22, the CDC said the 117 cities in its surveillance network reported 5,750 pneumonia and flu-related deaths — 1,350 above the expected level.

For the week ending March 22, there were 600 reported deaths linked with flu and pneumonia, or 150 more than the expected number. That compares with 700 deaths the previous week, or 200 above expected levels.

Only Michigan, Nebraska and Virginia reported widespread outbreaks to the CDC, while Delaware, North Carolina and Oregon reported regional outbreaks.

Widespread outbreaks are those that occur in counties where the majority of a state's population lives, while regional outbreaks are those in counties with less than 50 percent of a state's population.

Influenza B continues to predominate this year's flu outbreaks, the CDC said.

Cats' camouflage ability causing show breeder plenty of problems

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Show-cat breeder Sylvia Boyd has something of a problem with the wily cousins of the Siamese that are known as "colorpoint" cats. The problem is camouflage.

The colorpoints, beige and brown with blue eyes and speckled whiskers, blend in all too well — with almost anything. Once one of her colorpoints seemed to be missing, but after a two-hour search he was found in her lingerie drawer under some nightgowns. "They hide on windowsills and behind drapes," she says. "You'll walk through a doorway and you've got a shriek, because you've just slammed the door on a cat."

So why does she keep them? Not for financial reasons, she says, although a kitten that sold for $250 two years ago brings $350 today. Nonetheless, she went $6,000 in the hole in 1978, she says.

No, it's an ego trip for some, a matter of prestige, she says — but it's socialization and companionship for Mrs. Boyd. Some of her cats drift into her bedroom each night, and for her, that's happiness.

"To have three or four or five cats circled up around your head, the sound of that purring, the warm, soft body that's there because they choose to be — that can wash away the frustrations of a day," she says.

Based on the True Story

One of the sons of the Karl U. family of Point Loma, Calif., sits in the family bomb shelter that has long ceased to be used for what it was created for during the Cuban missile crisis. It later was used for a family room and as a bedroom. But since the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the family has been thinking of using it for safety once again. (Los Angeles Times Photo by Melanie Kaestner)

Fallout shelter shows signs of years

By DAVID SMOLLAR
The Los Angeles Times

SAN DIEGO — Had nuclear war erupted during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, the scenario for the Karl U. family called for six months underground in their $9,000 fallout shelter.

Seventeen feet below the surface in a bedroom-size room, 10 people would have remained in darkness pierced only by flashlight illumination, existing on stored water and canned food. Six bunks and a portable toilet were envisioned as the only physical comforts.

But the United States and the Soviet Union settled their differences peacefully then and the threat of war faded along with the shelter's morbid potential.

The family removed the stocks of food in 1963 and, by adding carpeting, paneling and electricity to the concrete shelter, converted it into an extra room.

The family's four children used it over the years as a playroom, a party room, a band practice room and now as a bedroom, complete with waterbed. A poster of a dove celebrating the 1969 festival at Woodstock — "music, peace, love" — decorates one wall.

But recently, with events in Iran and Afghanistan renewing cold-war tensions, Mrs. U. has begun once more to think of the shelter's original purpose.

"I tell you," Mrs. U. said, "the first day I read about the 50 hostages, then I had the shelter in the back of my mind."

Mrs. U. asked that the family's last name not be used. Her husband, a nuclear physicist at General Dynamics, died two years ago.

"My friends all know about the shelter. That's all right," she said, "But we don't want to publicize it so that people come by and ask things."

"I have been thinking now about fixing up the shelter," although her children believe it would be pointless.

After almost 20 years, substantial work would be needed. The hand crank to operate the ventilation system has been misplaced. The bunks are gone. The shelter leaks during heavy rains.

And there are ants. Its disuse mirrors that of the shelter program nationwide, which, after the tensions of the early 1960s, has received little attention or funding from government officials and the public.

Bob Lacy, operations officer at the San Diego County disaster preparedness office, estimates that only about 120 of the county's more than 250 public fallout shelters are stocked with supplies.

The office has no list of private shelters, because federal authorities never recognized shelters that hold fewer than 50 people.

"I suppose that they (federal authorities) figured if there was one identified on a block, 200 or more people might try to get in and the owner would have to shoot them," Lacy said.

Lacy said that today nuclear disasters are far down the list of priorities for emergency services.

Sindona guilty of bank fraud

NEW YORK (AP) — Italian financier Michele Sindona, a former vegetable peddler who built a $500-million financial empire, has been convicted of 65 counts of fraud in America's largest bank failure.

Sindona, whose two-month disappearance last year delayed the start of his trial, was found guilty by a federal court jury of looting the Franklin National Bank of $45 million, causing its collapse.

He was acquitted on one count which accused him of corrupting a former high Franklin bank official to help him in a conspiracy.

Each count carries a maximum five-year sentence in federal prison. U.S. District Judge Thomas Griesa set May 6 for sentencing. Sindona will appeal.

Sindona, 59, was the 13th former Franklin official convicted in connection with the 1974 bankruptcy of the Long Island-based bank. He had been director of the parent firm of the bank, the 19th largest in the U.S. with assets of $3.3 billion, and a member of the international executive committee.

The Italian-born financier showed no emotion as the jury of six men and six women returned its verdict in the sixth day of deliberations. The trial began Feb. 6.

Sindona is wanted in Italy on charges that he stole or misused $225 million from two banks he controlled in Milan, causing them to go bankrupt prior to the Franklin National collapse.

Sindona stirred an international investigation when he vanished Aug. 2 while walking along Manhattan's Fifth Avenue. He reappeared Oct. 16 and said he had been kidnapped at gunpoint by Italian terrorists who wanted information about corrupt Italian politicians and businessmen.

The government argued Sindona was in Europe in disguise during those months. Outside the courtroom, Assistant U.S. Attorney John Kenney, chief prosecutor, said Sindona fled to avoid trial and returned only because he feared authorities had learned his kidnapping was a hoax.

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Can dead live again?

The Father has life in Himself, and has granted His Son to have life in Himself.

And to judge the sins of all mankind because He is the Son of Man.

Don't be so surprised! Indeed the time is coming when all the dead in their graves shall hear the voice of God's Son,

And shall rise again—those who have done good, to eternal life; and those who have continued in evil, to judgment.

But I pass no judgment without consulting the Father. I judge as I am told. And My judgment is absolutely fair and just, for it is according to the will of God who sent Me and is not merely My own.

When I make claims about Myself they aren't believed.

But someone else, yes, John the Baptist, is making these claims for Me too. You have gone out to listen to his preaching, and I can assure you that all he says about Me is true!

But the truest witness I have is not from a man, though I have reminded you about John's witness so that you will believe in Me and be saved.

John shone brightly for a while, and you benefited and rejoiced.

But I have a greater witness than John. I refer to the miracles I do; these have been assigned Me by the Father, and they prove that the Father has sent Me

John 5:26-36

JOHN 6:63 "THE WORDS THAT I SPEAK UNTO YOU, THEY ARE SPIRIT, AND THEY ARE LIFE."
"If your worship is a dead, dry experience of wandering in a faithless and WORDLESS wilderness, then you must make a decision! Remember the Bible is a letter from the Heavenly Father written to each of us personally. Consistent, anointed teaching from its pages will create life and enthusiasm in our lives."

Methodist women hold call to prayer, self-denial

The United Methodist women of Hollowell United Methodist Church, 400 S. Marshall St., will hold one of their most important annual observances, the call to prayer and self-denial, at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

The Women's Division of the Board of Global Ministries of the United Methodist Church sponsors the call to prayer and self-denial. "Ministries by and with Women" is the theme for this year.

In the United States, the offering will be used for projects such as ministries with women in prison which offer educational and arts courses and legal services to women prisoners; ministries with women in crisis which work with battered women, prostitutes and displaced homemakers; peer support groups for single parents and teen-age mothers, and women's health and employment services.

Approximately 1.5 million women in 33,000 local units in all 50 states are expected to join in the observance. Last year, the offering totaled $815,161 which was an increase of 11 percent over the previous year.

FCC approves sales

MONAHANS — J.L. Hull, station general manager, Friday announced the Federal Communications Commission has approved the sale of KMOB-TV, Channel 9, of Monahans-Odessa and KWAB-TV, Channel 4, of Big Spring to Permian Basin Television Corporation. The approval of the station's sale to Permian Basin Television Corp. has been pending since early 1979. PBTC expects to transfer control to take place on or about May 15.

Alamo charges downgraded

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Misdemeanor charges of desecrating a venerated object have been downgraded against three avowed Maoists-Chicano rights activists who occupied the roof of the Alamo for 40 minutes March 20 and removed the Texas flag.

Basin program 'a priority'

LUBBOCK — The Boards of Regents of Texas Tech University and the Health Sciences Center voted Friday to put funding of the Permian Basin Regional Academic Health Center as a priority item in their requests for money from the State Legislature.

The motion reaffirms earlier legislative budget requests and followed comments made by Senator E.L. Short of Tahoka and Representative Richard C. Slack of Pecos about the Permian Basin Center.

Short said, "In the 66th Legislature the conference committee did appropriate money for this project. And, even though the governor in his budget to the Legislature had requested funds for this project, these funds were vetoed."

Texas Tech had requested $2 million for construction and $700,000 for operations for the Permian Basin Center. The senator noted that the people of Ector County approved a $20.4 million bond issue partly because of future plans to affiliate with the Texas Tech School of Medicine.

He also pointed out that the proposed teaching hospital had spent $650,000 in expanding educational and obstetrics space to accommodate the expected teaching functions. Ector County also purchased more than six acres of land for construction of the academic facility for the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center.

In light of these efforts, Short said, "I would respectfully ask for a commitment by Texas Tech University to establish the Permian Basin project as an important priority."

Slack supported Short's suggestion.

SAMSCO renovatin gets 'reprieve'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A $3.6 million state office building project in San Antonio, opposed by Gov. Bill Clements, gained a reprieve Friday from Attorney General Mark White and the State Purchasing and General Services Commission.

The project has been controversial since 1975, when Speaker Bill Clayton rammed the $900,000 appropriation to buy the vacant SAMSCO foundry through the House.

Clayton reportedly put his power behind the SAMSCO deal to repay the late Rep. G.J. Sutton for rounding up black votes for Clayton's speakership race.

The building is in the heavily black district Sutton represented and which his widow, Lou Nelle, now represents.

White said it would be legal to renovate only part of the 78,000-square-foot building if the budget for renovation won't cover the whole thing.

The commission gave San Antonio architect O'Neil Ford's firm until late April to redraw plans to eliminate projected cost overruns of $68,000.

At one point in the nearly three-hour commission hearing, Ford told Dedman, a Clements appointee, he was "prejudiced" against the project.

Time is important, because a contract must be let by Aug. 31, the day the appropriation for fixing up the building expires.

Clements had questioned the project in the past, and Mrs. Sutton said he told her flatly Thursday morning he was against it.

"He is definitely opposed. He said we are on different sides," Mrs. Sutton told reporters.

Opulent Shanghai nightclub reopened

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

SHANGHAI, China (AP) — China has reopened the ritzy old French Club where foreigners may dine on pheasant by candlelight, play billiards in an oak-paneled room and try their skill at video and pinball games of "Speed-Race" and "Star-Trek."

The 53-year-old institution, a monument to arts nouveau and deco, is also expected soon to dress its Chinese waiters in coat and tie and its waitresses in traditional close-fitting garments. Until recently both styles were spurned as decadent and feudalistic.

The club, where ordinary Chinese once never set foot, today issues a stern word to its foreign guests: "Visitors are requested not to get drunk, create disturbances and violate the public order."

A pale blue bastion of Western commerce and sophistication in old Shanghai, the club, now called the Jing Jiang Club, reopened for business last Dec. 15.

It had been closed for more than 13 years during the tumultuous and anti-foreign period of the cultural revolution and following interval of unrest.

Today it seems tame, almost deserted in the slack tourist season, but visitors and management think it has potential as Shanghai's small foreign community grows and tourism flourishes.

"Since the downfall of the Radical Gang of Four, we are trying to develop tourism," said Pai Tsung Jen, manager of the Jing Jiang Hotel, which owns the club.

"We soon discovered a lack of recreation for tourists and business people. We decided to reopen the club."

Pai said that he himself, a distinguished, longtime hotel manager, suffered the same fate as the club: he was "put away" for three years during the cultural revolution.

The club today is open only to foreigners, overseas Chinese and Chinese with special permission. It is also open for special Chinese and foreign conferences and displays.

In the absence of foreign guests, the young Chinese staff and curious guides and interpreters cluster about an array of blinking, beeping video games in the bowling alley.

For 2 yuan admission ($1.50), guests may dine in an oak-paneled room where waiters serve fresh caviar and small, elegant dishes such as breast of pheasant for 5 yuan.

They may bowl in the perfectly preserved alley where the wooden lanes are hand-polished to a gloss and attendants in white return the vintage bowling balls.

In silent, carpeted rooms they may read Western periodicals, play mahjong, billiards or table tennis. They may also swim in an Olympic-sized indoor pool where white wicker tables and chairs are arranged in a 1920s-style cafe that would have delighted F. Scott Fitzgerald.

On special occasions the palatial club removes the iron bolt from its vast-oval ballroom, the Roseland of Shanghai. More than 100 couples can comfortably glide on its springy wooden floor beneath a lighted oval of artglass. An old Steinway stands on the stage.

Development plans call for two outdoor tennis courts, a sauna, indoor gymnasium and garden cafe.

On a good night, the club handles about 700 persons.

After 1949 the club for foreign businessmen was used only for government guests and conferences. It was closed, however, in May 1966, during the cultural revolution. At that time it was regarded as a pernicious relic, although it is rumored a few high officials stayed in its few luxurious rooms.

Pai says the staff has been selected for its good manners and good looks and soon waitresses will be wearing either traditional Chinese bright colored jackets or dresses.

Today's waitresses still wear baggy pants and rumpled white jackets.

Fossils examined for clues to weather, ecology of past

By BILL GREER

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Aroused from their grazing by a pursuing predator, perhaps a saber-tooth tiger, a herd of llamas panicked and rushed headlong across the landscape and over a 50-foot ledge to a quick death on the rocks below.

The bones of the llamas remained undisturbed in the ravine for approximately 15,000 years until recently, when a scientist from the University of Texas at El Paso began exploring the area, which is now southeastern New Mexico.

The scientist, Dr. Arthur H. Harris, believes that by identifying the animals present in the area 10,000-30,000 years ago, through excavation of their bones, it might be possible to roughly determine the weather conditions and ecology of the area.

Applying his work to the future, Harris says, "some believe we are headed into another ice age. What we can find out studying these fossils from the last ice age may tell us what we have to look forward to."

So Harris digs up

bones from small birds and studies fossils of giant ground sloths, llamas, camels and horses that used to roam the far southwestern edge of the nation.

The quest led the professor of biological sciences studies to the bones of animals trapped in area caves.

Harris, 48, says, "We've been looking into what plants, animals and climate were like in the past 10,000 to 30,000 years. Most of the material we are working with comes from cave deposits in southern New Mexico and Texas."

"We are working particularly with deposits from Dry Cave, located about 15 miles west of Carlsbad, N.M."

Harris says he and his students have found more than a quarter of a million bones, bone fragments and teeth in area caves.

He explains how so many animals ended up as fossils in Dry Cave:

"The way that cave lies, animals approaching from one direction came upon a vertical fall-off before they knew it. At the time these things were deposited there was a 30-to 50-foot sheer drop.

"They may have been paying attention to something that was chasing them, fallen into the fissure and been killed by the fall or trapped and unable to get out.

"A small herd of llamas all fell in at one time," he adds.

He says bones of small animals were left in the caves by predatory birds who regurgitated them. "Working close to the present (back 15,000 years) gives us a good handle on what the climate was like and what led to the distribution of plants and animals and what led to the present climates."

Harris says studies of the sagebrush vole, a small rodent, show that the mouse-like animal once lived in this area but moved north to the Great Basin. Harris says the move indicates the climate along the border in the late ice age, about 15,000 years ago, was cooler and wetter in the summer and milder with more precipitation in the winter.

He says another animal used to determine past climatic conditions is the yellow-bellied marmot. The furry little marmots now live in the mountains of northern New Mexico. They were abundant in southern Arizona and New Mexico in the cooler, moist days 1,500 decades ago. They are now extinct in that area. Weather moved them north.

Seven persons face arson indictments

By ELLEN HADDOW

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Seven persons have been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of operating an arson ring that bilked insurance companies of nearly $300,000, U.S. Attorney Edward Warin said Friday.

The 18-count indictment alleges the seven bought houses, mobile homes and small businesses, insured them and then set them on fire.

The ring allegedly operated for three years in Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Tennessee and Arizona, Warin said.

Most of the fires "were written off as accidental" following initial investigations, said Mike Hoch of the Omaha Police Department's arson unit.

Alleged to be the ringleader is Eugene Gamst, 53, St. Paul, Minn. He is accused of setting up an adjustment business and lining up his co-conspirators to buy property and set the fires.

Two of the seven were arrested Friday in Omaha. They are Phyllis Ellen Stonys, 39, and David Riddpath, 34, both of Omaha.

Another, Faustino Selvera, also known as "Mexican Frank," is in prison in Leavenworth, Kan., on a drug conspiracy conviction.

The other three are being sought by the FBI. They are Marisa Lemm, 37, formerly of Omaha and last known to live in Los Angeles; Val Bolton Maghee, 39, also known as Valentine Di Blosio, formerly of Omaha and last known to reside in Phoenix, Ariz.; and Paul M. Gamst, the alleged ringleader's 28-year-old son, whose last known address was St. Paul, Minn.

Eleven persons from the five states are named as unindicted co-conspirators.

Alamo, Glenn win track titles

San Angelo Glenn captured two team titles and Midland Alamo won another as the first day of competition in the Tall City Junior Relays came to a close at Memorial Stadium Friday.

Alamo won the seventh grade girls division with a sturdy 164 points while Midland Goddard was second with a 120-point effort. But Glenn put away both the eighth and ninth grade girls titles. Glenn edged out Midland Alamo, 153-139, for the eighth grade title and defeated Midland Lee, 143-129, to win the ninth grade girls title.

The boys take over today in three divisions of competition. Field event finals begin at 9:45 a.m. and 10 a.m. with the running preliminaries. Running finals are set for a 1:30 p.m. start.

In Friday's action, four athletes turned out to be double winners. In the seventh grade competition, Diane White of Goddard won both the triple jump and long jump while Alamo's Cheryl Long took both the shot put and 80-yard hurdles.

In the eighth grade competition, Glenn's B. Lopez won both the 1320-yard run and the 660-yard title and Midland Lee's S. Ochotorena was a double event winner in the ninth grade after winning both the 1320 and 660.

Atlanta topples Orioles

By The Associated Press

Biff Pocoroba drilled a one-run single, and Mike Lum drove in another run with a sacrifice fly to give the Atlanta Braves a 4-3 exhibition baseball victory over the Baltimore Orioles Friday.

The victory was Atlanta's third straight over the Orioles, the defending American League champions.

Pocoroba slugged three singles, including his eighth-inning, bases-loaded hit that broke a 2-2 tie. Lum followed Pocoroba to the plate and sent Chico Ruiz home with his sacrifice fly.

KEVIN BELL'S disputed grand-slam home run led the Chicago White Sox to a 9-4 win over the Kansas City Royals. Bell's homer, which the Royals argued was foul, came off loser Craig Chamberlain in the fourth inning, wiping out a 2-1 deficit and setting up the victory for Chicago starter Richard Dotson.

Al Oliver collected four hits and three runs batted in, then scored the winning run as the Texas Rangers beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4. Oliver's outburst, which included a double and his third home run of the spring, lifted his exhibition batting average to .400.

RELIEFER BRUCE SUTTER singled in the winning run in the eighth inning as the Chicago Cubs defeated the San Diego Padres 4-3. The game marked the spring debut of Cubs catcher Barry Foote, who had been sidelined with muscle spasms in his back.

First baseman Jeff Newman knocked in six runs on four hits to pace the Oakland A's to a 14-5 win over the Cleveland Indians. Newman smacked the three-run homer with none out in the first inning off Cleveland starter and loser Bob Owchinko.

Bill North led off with a walk and hit a two-run double in the sixth inning as the San Francisco Giants scored nine runs in the first en route to a 15-8 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Roy Smalley and Rob Wilfong led the 18-hit Minnesota attack with three runs batted in apiece in the Twins' 16-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. Cincinnati also lost 2-1 to St. Louis on an unearned run, but held the Cardinals to four hits.

ROY HOWELL drove in three runs with two singles and a double as the Toronto Blue Jays scored six runs in the first four innings en route to a 6-5 win over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Elliott Maddox had five hits and drove in five runs as the New York Mets defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 15-8. The New York Yankees' game against Florida State was postponed due to rain.

ANDRE DAWSON and Ron LeFlore drove in two runs each, and Chris Speier included a home run among three hits as the Montreal Expos defeated the Houston Astros 8-1.

Mike Caldwell held the San Diego Padres' B team to one hit in six innings while pitching the Milwaukee Brewers to a 6-3 victory.

Boston met Detroit at a night game in Lakeland, Fla.

In night action, Jason Thompson belted a pair of home runs and Richie Hebner hit another homer as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Boston Red Sox 12-9.

Clint Hurdle (10) of the Kansas City Royals is safe at home as Chicago's Bruce Kimm is knocked over at the plate during exhibition game Friday in Fort Myers, Fla. The umpire signals Hurdle safe on the play. (AP Laserphoto).

Simmons wins discus again in Angelo

SAN ANGELO — Midland High's David Simmons failed to set a discus record here Friday during the first day of action in the San Angelo Relays, but his toss of 187-feet and eight inches was his best throw of the year and kept him the state leader in the event.

James Lary picked up another point for the Bulldogs with a sixth place 155-4 in the discus.

But outside of that, Friday was not a good day for either Midland High or Midland Lee as very few qualified for today's running finals.

Billy Taylor produced a 10.09 in the 100-yard dash for the third best qualifying time while Lee's Arthur Williams had a sixth best 10.13. Today's run will be in meters.

Midland High's Jerry Zachery had a third best in the 110 hurdles with a 14.79 while Lee's Michael O'Neal had a 15.23. Lee's Mike Ybarra qualified in the 400 with a 52.4, earning the last berth and Williams was third in the 200 with a 22.44.

Lee also qualified both relays with a sixth best 43.68 in the sprint relay and a 3:21.89 in the 1600 relay.

It was not known at press time why the qualifying was so slim from the two teams. Notable names not listed among qualifiers were Phil Carleton in the 200 or 400, Keavin Harper in the 800, Robert Schuler in the 1600 run or Taylor in the 200.

Midland High owns the first day lead with 11 points while meet favorite and defending champion Killeen is tied for second with El Paso Eastwood with 10 each. San Angelo owns nine points. Only two field event finals were held Friday in the AAAA division.

The meet resumes today at 12:30 p.m. with the remaining field event finals and 1:30 p.m. for the running finals.

Rebels, Pack see baseball action today

The Midland Lee Rebels entertain Big Spring and the Midland Bulldogs hit the road today in San Angelo in District 5-4A baseball games at 2 p.m.

Lee, 3-0 in the 5-4A race and 6-8 on the year, will most likely see senior righthander Wade Cartwright on the mound today.

Midland will throw either Mark Hewitt, a junior righthander, or senior lefthander Paul Cox at the 0-3 Bobcats in San Angelo. Midland is tied with Odessa Permian, Abilene and Abilene Cooper for second place with a 2-1 5-4A reading.

The Bulldogs are coming off an impressive 14-0 victory over Abilene last Tuesday while Lee took a big 5-4 10-inning victory over Abilene Cooper in its last loop outing.

Permian is at Cooper and Abilene at OHS today in other games.

Staubach milks suspense over retirement decision

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

DALLAS (AP) — The voice on the other end of the telephone was muffled in a heavy foreign accent. Secretary Jerri Mote strained to hear the caller in the offices of the Dallas Cowboys.

"Es Roger Sta-buck going to play thees yer?" the caller demanded. "Mr. Staubach is supposed to make an announcement Monday," Mote replied.

"I gonna cancel my season teekets if Roger Sta-buck no play for the Cowboys," the voice threatened. "Sir, we just don't know," Mote said.

WITH THAT the caller broke into laughter and said "Mote, you're so dumb. Don't you know me by now?" The practical joker, of course, was Roger Staubach, who will announce Monday whether he retires after 11 years in the National Football League.

Staubach is milking the suspense to the last minute. "Roger is kind of enjoying the buildup" to Monday's 11:30 p.m. press conference at Texas Stadium, said Doug Todd, the Cowboys' public relations director.

AS OF midweek, Staubach hadn't cleaned out his locker at the Cowboys' practice field on Forest Lane. Dozens of shoes were in there, along with a windbreaker. A shelf held a prize supply of a Staubach staple, peppermint sticks.

"Roger has told me he was going to retire for the last three years," said fullback Robert Newhouse. "He told me again the other day he is going to retire. I will say this is the first time he has ever called a press conference."

"I'd say 90 percent of the players believe he is going to retire. But he could still change his mind — that's just the way he is."

STAUBACH WAS knocked unconscious five times last year — one such a stunning blow that his legs were momentarily paralyzed. He underwent a series of tests recently from a number of specialists in New York City and Dallas. Staubach has joked that the tests proved he was capable of calling his own plays, a luxury never allowed by Coach Tom Landry.

Should the 38-year-old Staubach retire, the Cowboys would be in good shape at quarterback with Danny White and Glenn Carano.

"We'll miss his leadership," said Newhouse. "We always knew Roger would find some way to win."

Should Staubach retire his storied career will close with two ironies: —He never made All-Pro although he was a Super Bowl MVP, played in four Pro Bowls, and led the Cowboys to two Super Bowl championships. —He completed his last pro pass to a guard.

Midland's John Denton third in PBA national championships

STERLING HEIGHTS, Mich. (AP) — Southpaw Johnny Petraglia sneaked past Jay Robinson to claim the top-seeded position Friday night going into the finals of the $100,000 Professional Bowlers Association national championship.

Petraglia clinched the top position by shooting 256 in his next to last game and 235 against second-place Robinson, of Van Nuys, Calif., in the last match, to finish 61 pins ahead.

The PBA national championship is the only title that has eluded Petraglia, a 33-year-old bowler from New York.

The other qualifiers for tonight's finals besides Petraglia and Robinson included John Denton of Midland, Texas in third; Sam Zurich of Centerport, N.Y., in fourth; and Gary Dickinson of Fort Worth, Texas in fifth.

Petraglia averaged 231 for 56 games at Sunnysbrook Lanes while posting a match game record of 16-7-1. He will await a challenge from one of the four lower seeded qualifiers to bowl for the $15,000.

"I expect I'll need to bowl a game of at least 240 to win," Petraglia said. "This is the only big title I don't have, so it is going to be a very important 10 frames."

In the opening match of the finals, Dickinson will meet Zurich, a 23-year-old right-hander who fired two 300 games during the week. The winner of that match meets Denton.

The winner of the second match advances to face Robinson, and the winner of that semifinal game earns the right to meet Petraglia.

Air time for the ABC-TV finals is 2:30 p.m. CDT today.

Texas Christian nabs lead in golf tourney

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — David Sann shot a 65 Friday to give Texas Christian the first-round lead at the Morris Williams college golf tournament.

Teammate Mike Larson added a 68 and the Frogs checked in at 272, 12 under par. Closest challengers in the 23-team field are host Texas, Oklahoma State and Houston, all tied at 279, 9 under par.

Boston tops Cleveland to win division title

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird scored 33 points and Rick Robey added 25 as the Boston Celtics dominated the Cleveland Cavaliers 130-122 Friday night to clinch the Atlantic Division title of the National Basketball Association.

The victory insured the Celtics of the best record in the league and gave them a first-round bye into the playoffs. Boston had to survive a fourth-quarter scare by the Cavs to earn the victory.

Cleveland, which trailed by as many as 14 points in the third quarter, closed to 114-110 with a little more than four minutes remaining. Boston ran off a 10-2 spurt to put the game on ice.

The Celtics opened the game and quickly moved to a 10-2 lead as Tiny Archibald hit on a jumper and a drive, and Bird canned a three-point shot. The Cavs, paced by Randy Smith's 11 points, managed to stay close at 34-28 at the end of the first quarter.

The Celtics built a 69-61 advantage at halftime, with Bird scoring 18. In the third quarter, Robey, substituting for the injured Dave Cowens, dominated the inside and scored in 12 points to help Boston stretch its margin to 99-87 going into the final period.

The Celtics made frequent use of their fast break attack, with Archibald ending up with 21 points. Cedric Maxwell contributed 23.

Pacers topple Spurs, 127-122

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Billy Knight scored 23 points to lead the Indiana Pacers to a 127-122 victory over the San Antonio Spurs in the National Basketball Association Friday night.

It was the second consecutive victory for the Pacers, who were eliminated from a spot in the NBA playoffs earlier this week. The Spurs already have locked up a playoff berth.

The Pacers led 67-64 at halftime and were ahead 93-90 at the end of the third. The Spurs closed to 95-94 with 10:47 remaining.

But the Pacers reeled off the next eight points to go on top 103-94 on a free throw by Dudley Bradley with 9:05 remaining.

The Spurs made one last run at the Pacers on a layup by James Silas with 2:31 remaining. That was as close as they came the rest of the way.

Nancy Lopez-Melton sets record

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Nancy Lopez-Melton tied a tournament record Friday with a 5-under-par 66 to take the lead midway through the $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at Mesa Verde Country Club.

After the round, she announced she will consider quitting the tour when she reaches the 30-victory mark. Lopez-Melton's decision could mean that the LPGA might be without one of its top drawing cards within a couple of years.

Lopez-Melton, who has 17 victories in nearly three years on the tour, told reporters that once she's eligible for the LPGA Hall of Fame, she might forego her golf career to concentrate on raising a family.

However, she left the door open for a possible return, saying: "I might come back after I have children."

Lopez-Melton, the LPGA's top money-winner the past two years but in search of her first win in 1980, had a 36-hole score of 138 over the 6,134-yard, par-71 Mesa Verde course. One shot back was Hollis Stacy, who had a 70 Friday for 139.

Two strokes off the pace entering Saturday's third round was Jo Ann Washam, who had her second straight 71. First-day co-leader Cathy Sherk had difficulty handling the gusting winds. Sherk, who had a 68 Thursday, came in with a 73 Friday to give her 141.

Pat Meyers, who shared the first-round lead with Sherk, soared to a 77 Friday which left her well back in the pack.

Veteran JoAnne Carner, who was enjoying one of the fastest starts in the 30-year history of the LPGA with four victories in the year's first seven tournaments, had her second straight 78 and missed the cut for the first time since she turned professional in 1970.

Carner's string of qualifying spanned 236 tournaments.

Four strokes behind the 23-year-old Lopez-Melton were Jan Stephenson, who had her second consecutive 71 Friday, and Amy Alcott, who had a 69. Then came Debbie Massey and Judy Rankin at 143 and Patty Hayes, Donna Caponi Young and Murle Brear at 144.

Lopez-Melton shook off the effects of a triple bogey near the end of her opening round. She charged back with an eagle and four birdies to tie the tournament record set last year by Mary Duwyer.

Lopez-Melton admitted the triple bogey infuriated her. "I was so mad my temperature

Robinson disappointed, angered over hearing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The investigation involving 34 Southern California football players has angered and disappointed Coach John Robinson and led him to recommend that an independent advisor be hired to monitor the academic qualifications of his players. "I have been naive and a Pollyanna," said Robinson, whose teams have won 42 of 49 games, three Rose Bowls and a national title in the last four seasons. "I tried to do the best I could to provide the best possible academic environment for our players. I thought I was succeeding. Obviously, I was failing in some areas. "I'm not going to kid myself any longer. If I find out that my tailback has missed classes the week of the Notre Dame game — and I'm going to be supplied with this kind of information — then he's not going to play against Notre Dame.

"Some people will want to fire me for that, but that's how I'm going to operate. There's also going to be more thought and study to the type of student we enroll here." Robinson made his recommendations to a Southern Cal academic committee looking into the disclosure that 34 football players were enrolled in speech classes last fall that they did not attend. The team academic advisor, Jeff Birren, was fired and debate coach John DeBross resigned after the revelation. The Pacific-10 Conference is withholding credit for a crash course given to 19 players over the Christmas holidays pending its own investigation. Robinson said the problem involves the 15 percent of the football squad which gains admission under a special plan open to culturally disadvantaged students with a high school grades below the university entrance norm. "One thing I'm recommending is that somebody completely outside the athletic department — somebody who doesn't care about 40-yard clockings — must determine that there is something in that below-normal student's background that will make him competitive in the classroom," said Robinson. "Otherwise, he won't be admitted to USC." Robinson made his comments in an interview with the Los Angeles Herald Examiner.

Lee girls win Kermit golf title

The Midland Lee girls' golf team, rather than taking off the week, took a victory at Friday's Kermit Invitational. The Rebels put together a fine 339 winning total, paced by Penny Sutcliffe's 78 (2nd medalist after a playoff) and Michele Marburger's 81 (3rd medalist). Also contributing to the solid team effort were Ellie Mee (86), Martha Wilson (94) and Roxi Barrett (104). Playing as individuals were Christi Orwig (95), Paula Townsend (102) and Karl Watson (108). The Rebels, trailing cross-city rival Midland High in the District 5-4A chase, will try to catch the Bulldogs at the final district meet, Thursday in San Angelo.

Texas raps Red Raiders in SWC tilt

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Second baseman Dean David collected three hits, scored four runs and drove in four more Friday as the Texas Longhorns pummeled Texas Tech 14-1 in Southwest Conference baseball. The 'Horns erupted for five runs in the fourth inning to put the game out of reach, 10-0. Texas got just three hits in that inning, with Tech pitchers issuing four walks to help the Longhorn effort.

Tech's lone run came on a solo homer by Brooks Wallace in the fourth inning. Keith Creel, 10-0, went the distance and got the win for Texas while Tech starter Terry Willis of Midland, was tagged for the loss. Willis is now 3-3 on the season for the Red Raiders.

Texas Tech 14-1 (4-4) Willis, 10-0 (4-4); Moyer, 11; Rucker, Creel and Shannon, W—Creel (10-0); L—Willis (3-3); HR—Texas; David Tech Wallace.

New Jersey bounces 76ers

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (AP) — Mike Newlin scored 21 points, including four free throws in the final minute, to lead the New Jersey Nets to a 99-92 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers in National Basketball Association action Friday night. Before the game was over, Philadelphia learned it had been eliminated from the Atlantic Division race for first place with Boston's 130-122 victory over Cleveland.

Four greats in tourney

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Martina Navratilova, Tracy Austin, Billie Jean King and Evonne Goolagong — the four semifinalist in last week's winter tour championships — will square off this weekend in a $200,000 women's tennis tournament. In Saturday's semifinals of this four-woman event, Navratilova will meet King and Austin will play Goolagong. The winners will meet Sunday for the top prize of $100,000. Navratilova, the top-ranked player in the world, is the Wimbledon champion and the 17-year-old Austin, second-ranked, is the defending U.S. Open champion.

Raiders change signals again over LA move

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Raiders quickly changed signals Friday, first closing down their Los Angeles headquarters and then calling an audible and deciding to continue operations in their hoped-for new home.

On Friday morning, an official of the National Football League team confirmed that the Raiders were moving their furniture and files out of the University Hilton Hotel and telephones were disconnected. But within hours, the play was moving in the other direction.

The broken play resulted from a ruling in Oakland on Tuesday, when Alameda County Superior Court Judge Robert Kroninger verbally issued a ban on ticket sales by the Raiders in Los Angeles. The order wasn't seen by Raiders' officials until Friday.

"To be fully cooperative with the court order that was anticipated yesterday upon advice from some members of the Raiders' legal team in Oakland, the Raiders' offices in Los Angeles were temporarily closed down," said Al LoCasale, the team's executive assistant.

"On receiving the preliminary injunction from Judge Kroninger and reviewing it with all involved attorneys this morning, it was determined that it was not necessary to shut down though certain functions would have to be curtailed.

"The Raiders are not permitted at this time under the court order to solicit or sell season tickets in Los Angeles so the plans for invoicing on all the requests that have been received to date have been stopped."

General Managing Partner Al Davis announced his intention to move the Raiders to Los Angeles last month. NFL owners voted 22-0 with five abstentions against such a move earlier this month. A number of suits by both the NFL and the Raiders are pending.

LoCasale said that the disconnected telephones were ordered back in service, and that callers would be told that while the Raiders cannot take season-ticket orders, names, addresses and telephone numbers would be taken for possible future orders.

He also said that because there would be no invoicing, for now, that the Los Angeles staff wouldn't be as great in number as before.

Bullets keep hopes alive

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Elvin Hayes scored 29 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and blocked eight shots Friday night to pace the Washington Bullets to a 100-80 victory over Atlanta.

The Bullets victory, following two straight losses, kept their playoff hopes alive. Washington now has a 38-43 record. Sixth-place New York finished the season with a 39-43 mark.

If the Bullets beat the Nets Sunday afternoon in New Jersey they will tie New York and earn a playoff berth because of a better record against Eastern Conference opponents. Kevin Grevey, who scored 24 points, made three three-point baskets in the first quarter to give the Bullets a lead they never lost as they beat the Hawks for the third straight time at the Capital Centre.

Hayes scored 12 points in the second quarter when the Bullets built a 53-33 halftime lead and added 15 in the second half.

Coach Hubie Brown of Atlanta was given two technical fouls and ejected late in the second quarter. Dan Roundfield led Atlanta with 16 points. The Hawks' 80 points was the lowest score against the Bullets this season.

Giant linebacker has lymph node disease

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New York Giants announced Friday that veteran linebacker Dan Lloyd is suffering from a disease of the lymph nodes and is currently undergoing treatment.

Physicians attending Lloyd are optimistic about the 26-year-old linebacker's recovery in time for the 1980 season.

The Giants requested that their team doctors and Lloyd not be questioned about the illness.

In 1979, Lloyd became a valuable member of the defense when the Giants switched from a conventional 4-3 alignment to a 3-4 in the sixth week of the season.

MHS girls hold lead in golf play

AMARILLO — The Midland High girls' golf team, tuning up for Thursday's final District 5-4A meet, had the halfway lead Friday at the Amarillo Relays tournament.

The Bulldogs, sitting on a 25-shot cushion, fired a 368 team round featuring Ann Coombes' 85. Coombes had the first round medalist lead.

Patty O'Neill's 90 and Janice Littlefield's 91 didn't hurt. Teresa King carded 102 and Nica Foreman 130.

O'Neill's round earned her fourth medalist while Littlefield was fifth.

Borger and Amarillo High were tied for second with 393 and Amarillo Tascosa was fourth with 400.

The event concludes with today's 18-hole round.

Supporting Martin Allday's bid to be Mayor of Midland in the April 5th election are Debra Steele (center) and Mrs. Jack Steele (left). Debra said "This is my first election since I turned 18. I am excited that I will be able to vote for Mr. Allday for Mayor. I've known him a long time, and I know he knows Midland and has worked hard for it. He has good ideas to make Midland an even better place to live. While I am off at college he's the one I want to leave in charge." Mrs. Steele added, "I'm staying here so what Debra said goes double for me. Martin Allday has the experience and certainly the enthusiasm for the office. He is a fair man so I know he will work for the best interest of all Midlanders."
