"It is obvious that the voters have spoken and have given their verdict. This will be the last contest in which I will participate." — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown

'Mad' Eddie Chiles raps bureaucracy

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Eddie Chiles is advocating a sure cure for inflation and for shooting down the encroaching federal government that is breeding socialism and suffocating capitalism.

Chiles is the free enterprise spokesman who popularized the "I'm mad" slogan.

"We need to make changes in government. We have the poorest management in Washington that we have in the world... We must get the big spenders out and get some people in who can tell the truth..."

lashing of the bureaucracy.

On Tuesday, he called for major cuttings in government spending, returning to free enterprise and kicking out socialism, electing "conservative" politicians to public offices and retiring the big spending liberals.

We need to make changes in government, Chiles, 69-year-old, chief executive officer of the Western Oil & Gas Co., told 400 men and a smattering of women at the joint meeting of the Permian Basin chapter of the International Association of Drilling Contractors and the Permian Basin section of the American Petroleum Institute. The dinner was held in Ranchland Hills Country Club.

"WE HAVE THE POOREST management in Washington that we have in the world," he said. "We must change government. We must get the big spenders out and get some people in who can tell the truth."

Chiles, a former Midlander who started his multi-million dollar oil well service company in 1939 at Sea-graves, lashed out at the federal bureaucracy and proposed ways to return this nation to capitalism and free enterprise.

His Fort Worth based international company has annual sales approaching $400 million, has 4,000 employees, services on land wells via cementing, acidizing and fracturing and operates 11 off shore rigs.

Chiles' speech was an elaborate dissertation of his television and radio anti-big government spiels, which he broadcasts over some 660 radio and television stations in 14 states. His free enterprise advocacy has ushered in the increasingly commonplace "I'm mad, too, Eddie!" white and red bumper stickers.

"I KNEW GOVERNMENT does not trust industry," Chiles told the audience that gave him rousing ovations.

Carter, Reagan win two; Gov. Brown calls it quits

MILWAUKEE (AP) — President Carter crushed Sen. Edward Kennedy's campaign comeback with a double landslide in Wisconsin and Kansas, gaining the votes that put him more than half way to renomination in what is now a two-man Democratic contest.

Ronald Reagan strengthened his virtually unbreakable grip on the Republican nomination and stands as the candidate the Democrats almost certainly would have to defeat to hold the White House. He captured Wisconsin's primary election on Tuesday, ran away with Kansas, and said that while he wasn't claiming to have the nomination clinched, "it does make for a substantial lead."

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., a distant third to Carter and Kennedy, said he was through as a candidate. "This will be the last contest in which I participate in 1980," he said.

Rep. John Anderson's Republican campaign hit the skids in Wisconsin. The Illinois congressman had campaigned diligently through the state and hoped Democratic crossovers would fortify his showing. But he placed third, behind George Bush, raising questions about his ability to build a third party candidacy as some supporters urged.

The midwestern primary victories strengthened Carter and Reagan as they head for a Saturday election in Louisiana. Southerner Carter and conservative Reagan are strong there, and virtually certain to add to their towering leads in nominating delegates.

Carter emerged from the Tuesday primaries with a national total of 852 delegates, more than half the 1,666 vote majority he'll need to win at the Democratic National Convention. Kennedy has 427.

Reagan's victories swelled his total to 343 of the 998 it will take to gain the GOP nomination. Bush, the former U.N. ambassador who ran second in Wisconsin and third in Kansas, has 72. Anderson has 57.

Bush and Anderson said they would press their campaigns to overtake Reagan, but that will become ever more difficult as the competition moves to southwestern and western states in which the former California governor looms strong.

Kennedy's next target is the April 22 primary in Pennsylvania, he went campaigning there today after gaining the endorsement of the million-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Stephen Smith, Kennedy's campaign manager, said "I think we will have a strong win in Pennsylvania." Without one, Kennedy strategists concede their chances of catching Carter will dwindle toward slim or none.

Carter let the numbers do the talking. Spokesman Jody Powell said the president termed his victories evidence of "very important and very strong support." Wisconsin campaign manager Curtis Wiley said Carter "was elated at the spread" by which he defeated Kennedy.

It was 56 percent to 30 percent in Wisconsin, 57 percent to 32 percent in Kansas.

Brown had concentrated on Wisconsin for a month, but he got only 12 percent of the vote. He needed 20 percent to avoid losing federal subsidies for a campaign that already was running out of money.

So he conceded the election and the campaign. "The voters have spoken and have given their verdict on my 1980 campaign, and that means that this will be the last contest in which I participate in 1980," he told supporters in Milwaukee.

Brown, who defeated Carter in five late-season primaries in 1976, said he would continue to work for the goals of his campaign. He emphasized that he was out for 1980. At 41, he may be back in four years.

"I haven't dropped out," he said. "That implies I've dropped out of the process. I intend to participate in the process as governor of California."

Brown said his name will remain on the ballot in the California primary on June 3. "It's too late to take it off," he said.

Carter's midwestern victories undid the short-lived comeback Kennedy gained by capturing the New York and Connecticut primaries one Tuesday earlier. The president now has won nine primaries, Kennedy three.

These were Tuesday's results:

Democrats
Wisconsin, with 99 percent of the precincts counted
Carter 348,518 or 56 percent, for 48 delegates

Kennedy 187,109 or 30 percent, for 26 delegates.

Brown 77,246 or 12 percent, for 1 delegate.

The rest was scattered among two minor candidates and the uncommitted line on the ballot.

Kansas, with returns complete:
Carter 108,651 or 57 percent for 23 delegates.

Kennedy 60,649 or 32 percent for 14 delegates.

Brown 9,362 or 5 percent.
Six percent of the vote was for "none of the names shown," the rest was scattered among minor candidates.

Republicans
Wisconsin, with 99 percent of the precincts reporting:

Reagan 360,314 or 46 percent, for 28 delegates.

Bush 274,383 or 31 percent.

Anderson 246,746 or 28 percent, for 6 delegates.

The balance was scattered. The delegates were apportioned on the basis of congressional district showings, since Anderson carried two districts he won delegates. Bush did not win any district and claimed no delegates.

Kansas, with all votes counted:
Reagan 178,068 or 63 percent, for 20 delegates.

Anderson 51,504 or 18 percent, for 5 delegates.

Bush 35,412 or 13 percent, for 4 delegates.

Absentee vote sets record

A new record was set this year in absentee balloting for Saturday's school city hospital-college joint election as 2,770 persons marked their ballot in the Midland Independent School District Administration Building.

Don Furgeson, school business manager, said another 90 ballots were mailed out. Recipients have until 1 p.m. Saturday to return these to the Administration Office.

In the 1979 election, 1,780 persons voted absentee.

Furgeson attributed the high turnout to the fact that Easter falls on the day after the election and many people will be out of town. State law requires the election to be on the first Saturday in April, he explained.

Polls for the general election will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday. Up for election are the mayor's seat, two City Council positions, two school board members, three Midland College trustees and two at-large positions on the Midland County Hospital District board of directors.

Also on the ballot is a $3 million school bond issue for repairs and renovation on various schools.

AN EDITORIAL

It's time for a change

Three men have offered themselves as candidates for Midland's mayor in Saturday's city election.

The three — Martin Allday, Thane Akins and Carl Hollums Sr. — each possess qualities which undoubtedly will prove beneficial to this community. They deserve to be commended for coming forth and offering themselves for this important leadership role.

However, it is the responsibility of the voters of this community to select the one man whom they believe best qualified for the job.

After carefully reviewing the qualifications of each of the candidates and interviewing each personally, it is the opinion of The Midland Reporter-Telegram that Martin Allday possesses the philosophy, qualifications and expertise necessary for the job. We believe he is the candidate who would best serve the interests of all Midland's residents.

The decision was not an easy one. There were many factors to consider and several issues to be resolved.

Not the least of those concerns is the question of the city's position regarding possible future acceptance of federal monies, particularly Community Development funds. During the past, those funds have been rejected mainly due to the federal requirement for inclusion of a rental subsidy program.

We agree with those who believe the less federal control exerted over Midland the better. But by rejecting these funds we are hurting not only those residents in the lower economic bracket who may be able to better themselves with their own efforts but those, such as the elderly and handicapped, who have no means of improving their lot in life.

In addition, Community Development funds can be used for housing rehabilitation, paving, street lights and drainage, and have been so utilized in Midland in the past. The need for such programs now, especially in the south and east sections of the city, is serious.

Midland is a progressive, dynamic city with a bright future. We like to think we don't need to rely on federal funds, administered under the guidelines of the federal government, to take care of our own needs. Unfortunately, despite some local programs, that goal is not being achieved.

Let us be honest. There are poor residents in Midland. Despite the affluence here, their plight is one of hopelessness, and the opportunity of finding and obtaining minimally adequate housing grows increasingly dim.

It's time for a change. We believe Martin Allday's philosophy in this respect truly does represent the best interests of all Midland's residents, including the impoverished.

As for the oil industry, the lifeblood of Midland's economy, Allday is knowledgeable and informed, a result of years of business and legal activities involving the various aspects of this city's economic base.

There are other issues, as well. Midland will face, along with the rest of the nation, major challenges in the future.

There will be questions of providing essential city services. Midland is in a growth period during which our needs must not only be met, but anticipated. We must look to the future with bold visions of what is to come and how we will prepare for it.

There also are the questions of future expansion of the city's industrial base, continued development of adequate transportation services, traffic control and police and fire protection.

Thane Akins has experience on the city council and is a civic leader. We appreciate the service he has given and the contributions he has made to the betterment of Midland. Under previous leadership Midland has prospered and grown.

But it is our belief that this election marks a new era for Midland. And we believe Martin Allday is the best qualified man to lead us as we enter that era.

Estes, Neill uncontested for two hospital seats

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

Pat Estes and Martin Neill are the two candidates running in an uncontested race for two positions on the Midland County Hospital District Board of Directors.

Both candidates, however, say they have taken a serious interest in the future needs of the district.

Completing and staffing expanded facilities at Midland Memorial Hospital and the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center are the immediate future needs of the district, Mrs. Estes said.

Neill indicated management of the hospital's operations would become the future need the district must address.

"The goal would be to try to make the hospital fit the operations," he said.

election '80

"The days of the private hospitals are gone," he added. "The costs and the expertise to run the hospital are too great."

The challenge, according to Neill, would be to try and make the hospital profitable so it would not become a burden to the taxpayer.

But, that doesn't mean the hospital will always make a profit," he added.

Parking at Midland Memorial Hospital will become another challenge for the district, both candidates said.

Neill suggested building a new parking facility with revenue bonds to be paid from parking fees, if current parking becomes overcrowded. This way, he noted, the burden would not be on the taxpayers to pay for the bonds.

"We need to study with a professional the traffic pattern and future expansion of the hospital in its present location," Mrs. Estes noted, "and work out an overall development of the hospital."

Attracting physicians and nurses was an area where "there is an effective professional recruitment program," she said.

However, Mrs. Estes noted the district would be in favor of cooperating with Midland College to train nurses.

Regarding the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center, Mrs. Estes said she thinks no tax increase will be needed to fund its operations.

"It would be an asset rather than a financial deficit," she added.

"I have a great interest in the running of the hospital and the district," Mrs. Estes said of her reasons for filing for the position. "I feel that I know the needs of our people in the district."

Mrs. Estes is currently serving on the board, having been appointed after the resignation of Dr. Michael Burleson last year.

Neill said he is interested in the position because he has always had an interest in the hospital and knew of the complicated nature of operating a hospital in a taxing district.

"I realize the tremendous danger," he noted, "of Father Government."

He noted there needs to be citizens on the board to watch how the taxpayers' money is spent.

Parachute rigger charged in death of officer whose chute failed to open

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — A check of Army parachutes triggered by the death of an officer whose chute failed to open has turned up several sabotaged parachutes, it was reported today.

An Army parachute rigger, 20-year-old Pfc. Alvin Williams, was charged with murder Tuesday in the death last week of Capt. Lawrence D. Hill. After Williams was charged, the Army said it was checking thousands of parachutes.

The News and Observer of Raleigh today quoted unidentified military sources as saying the review turned up several sabotaged chutes. Military spokesmen could not immediately be reached for comment on the report.

Williams, who has been in the Army since February 1979, was being held in the Cumberland County Jail.

He is accused of sabotaging the parachute used by the 26-year-old

Hill, whose main chute failed to open during a routine proficiency jump at Fort Bragg.

In nearby Hope Mills, meanwhile, Hill's mother said she was relieved to know her son did not die from lack of skill.

"I feel it was God's will, but I wanted to know what part man played in it," said Laura Hill.

Maj. Tom Woods, public affairs officer at Fort Bragg, said the 82nd Airborne Division was rechecking several thousand parachutes to see if the alleged sabotage is more widespread.

Army officials say parachutes used in the division since the death have been checked prior to use and commanders have been told to advise their troops of the checks to ease fears.

'Tilting' may mean lava flow

COUGAR, Wash. (AP) — The ground around Mount St. Helens has "tilted" upward, and scientists said if the swelling increases the awakening volcano might spew lava.

Meanwhile, volcanic ash fell in Vancouver, Wash., and Portland, Ore., areas, about 50 miles southwest of Mount St. Helens, after the smoldering mountain issued its most dramatic steam and ash plumes since it started erupting last week.

Loggers outside Cougar, 15 miles southwest of the peak, reported heavy ash falling in the area "like snow."

One good indication of whether a lava eruption is likely is a phenomenon known as tilting, which occurs when a mountain swells under the pressure of magma — molten rock — moving beneath the surface.

The ground near Spirit Lake just north of the mountain bulged upward about a half-inch Tuesday.

The tilting on St. Helens so far has been "insignificant," said Don Mullineaux of the U.S. Geological Survey, but if it intensifies, it is a "good sign" that a lava eruption might be on the way.

An outcropping of rock at the summit appeared to sink at least 200 feet Tuesday as the rock wall separating two craters collapsed, forming one jagged, 1,500-foot wide crater. Mullineaux said it was another indication of "a lot of activity" beneath the mountain.

Mullineaux, who co-authored a 1978 report about the hazards of a Mount St. Helens eruption, repeated his assessment that a full-scale "pyroclastic" explosion — one which would hurl rock and lava from the mountain — was the least likely possibility.

"A series of small eruptions would be more likely than a large, cataclysmic event," he said.

Volcanic ash, already reported in several towns around the mountain, was sent into the air in its heaviest quantities Tuesday.

The ash, which resembles cement dust, could cause minor irritation to nose and lung tissue and can corrode cloth and metal if it is not washed off, said Forest Service officials.

One steam plume shot 20,000 feet above sea level and another followed a mysterious explosion reportedly heard from Centralia, 50 miles to the west, to Goldendale, 70 miles to the east. But Forest Service officials were uncertain whether the blast came from the volcano or was an accidental "April Fools" sonic boom caused by military aircraft.

Ash-laden plumes shot to an altitude of 16,000 feet at 12:34 p.m., 11,500 feet at 12:54 p.m. and 16,000 feet at 7:48 p.m., said Lynn Robertson, U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman in Vancouver. The 7:48 eruption lasted 15 minutes.

The ash fallout in the Vancouver-Portland area apparently came from earlier eruptions at 8:15 a.m. and 9:15 a.m., said Ms. Robertson.

Observation flights Tuesday night carried instruments to try to identify gases responsible for the blue glow that has been reported in the mountain's craters.

The blue flame observed in the two craters, which are expanding and merging into one as their sides cave in, is believed to be burning gas from magma within the volcano, said Mullineaux.

Earthquake activity was reported lessening Tuesday, although there were three quakes Monday night and Tuesday morning which registered at more than 4.5 on the Richter scale.

Mount St. Helens, above, an active volcano near Cougar, Ore., Tuesday spews more smoke and ash — to rain down as far away as 60 miles. At right, particles of ash are enlarged 4,000 times by a special scanning electron microscope at MEI-Charlton, Inc., in Portland. (AP Laserphotos)

Administration 'still guessing' at Iranian stance on hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's chief spokesman, acknowledging the Iranian government is dissatisfied with Carter's latest statement on the hostage crisis, said today "we're still getting conflicting signals" from Tehran.

Press secretary Jody Powell told reporters, "We're trying to determine what the position of the Iranian leaders is." He cited what he termed "conflicting signals on the public record," but did not elaborate.

There was no immediate White House comment on reports that the Carter administration had sent a new private message to Iranian government officials Tuesday night.

Earlier, a top White House official said "we don't know specifically what they're looking for" from Carter.

The official, who asked that he not be named, said Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr wants a new statement of U.S. intentions toward Iran. "We would like to be as helpful as we can," the official said.

But questioned on whether that remark signaled increased U.S. flexibility, the official cautioned against that interpretation. "Obviously, there are limitations beyond which the president cannot go," he said.

The official said U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim talked by telephone Tuesday with Bani-Sadr and then told Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance the Iranian leader was not satisfied with a statement Carter made to reporters early Tuesday morning.

In those remarks, Carter said he was delaying imposition of any new sanctions against Iran in response to a conditional public promise by Bani-Sadr to wrest control of the hostages from the Islamic militants holding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Carter called that promise a "positive development."

But Carter made no specific response to the conditions outlined by Bani-Sadr: that his government would assume responsibility for the hostages only after the United States issued an official statement agreeing to initiate no hostilities or propaganda against Iran.

In fact, Carter repeatedly turned aside reporters' questions on whether he intended to meet those conditions.

Pressed again on that point at a White House briefing Tuesday night, the top official who asked not to be named said: "This government is not aware that it has engaged in any hostile action or provocation.... The president's remarks constitute our statement on this matter. I think I have made myself abundantly clear."

That response came a few hours before the same official relayed the cryptic account of Waldheim's telephone conversation with Bani-Sadr. Carter had expressed hope the 50 American hostages soon would be transferred from control of their captors at the embassy to the Iranian government. But he acknowledged he had no guarantee Bani-Sadr would deliver on his promise to place the hostages under Iranian government control if certain conditions were met.

At a midday speech before a conference of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department, the president declared emphatically that no one in the United States had apologized to Iran for any action during the reign of the deposed shah.

He received prolonged cheers and a standing ovation.

Carter also said the United States had not and will not condone or express any approval of the seizure of the hostages by the Iranian militants, and he warned that American patience was running thin.

The immediate question seemed to be: What precisely does Bani-Sadr want Carter to say and is Carter willing to say that?

The White House official said Carter had set no deadline for the transfer of the hostages, which the U.S. government considers a crucial step toward their eventual release.

The official also declined to say specifically whether Carter had any private assurances the transfer would occur. But he did say the administration's assessment "is not based entirely on public reports."

If the transfer does not occur, Carter left open the possibility of imposing formal economic sanctions against Iran in the future as well as expelling additional Iranian diplomats from the United States.

The president had warned Iran of possible retaliatory measures in a message sent to authorities in Tehran over the weekend, White House officials said.

Eddie Chilea calls for change

Chiles suggested routes to rid the nation of "devastating" inflation, which "is made in Washington (D.C.)... (and) is not made anywhere else. Inflation is made by spending more money than we're taking in. They'll bankrupt this country."

Chiles suggested: —Balance the federal budget by cutting down on spending and lowering taxes. "We're already taxed more than we can pay."

—Eliminate the U.S. Department of Energy. "They could do away with the Department of Energy" and put the department's $14 billion a year budget into building up the nation's defense. Then, Chiles said, the DOE people should be "put in the Army."

—LIQUIDATE THE U.S. Department of Education. "The federal government hasn't done anything but what they ought not to be doing. (Youngsters) can't read. We need to get the government out of schools," cut the federal budget by $10 billion and put the education bureaucrats in the Army.

"We need to get God back in the schools, and we need that very badly."

—Decrease the government's influence. "We need to get the federal government's cotton-picking hands off of energy: coal, oil and gas, nuclear (power), electricity," and then let the managers, technicians and other skilled workers in the free enterprise system take charge.

—Elect conservatives. "The right kind of people" should be elected to public offices. "We've got to find out who the liberals are — the people who are defeating us."

Then, the liberals must be voted out of office, and the conservatives must be brought in to "stop give-away programs. And it so happens that most of the liberals are in the Democratic Party, and most of the conservatives are in the Republican Party, except for (Illinois Senator and presidential hopeful) John Anderson."

—Re-institute capitalism to its fullest. "We've got to get rid of this trend toward socialism."

—Stop courting President Carter. "Big oil" is funneling money to Carter, apparently asking for favors. "That's just like feeding an alligator, hoping he'll eat you last."

—Shun federal handouts. Each city, for example, must withstand the temptation of taking easy money from the government. "It's easy to say, it's harder to do."

CHILES THEORIZED that the United States is in the "apathetic" stage in its evolution. The country is dangerously close to bondage after 200 years in which the nation fought off an earlier bondage, developed a spiritual faith, grew in liberty, reveled in abundance, and then degenerated to selfishness and complacency just before sinking into another depraved step — apathy.

"I think we are a nation divided against ourselves. We are part free and part controlled. We are part capitalists and part socialists."

Nevertheless, Chiles exuded hope for the people and the nation if only the citizenry would defy big government, return to faith in God, and re-capture the spirit and practice of the free enterprise system.

CHILES SAID his campaign to save the country from socialism and from big-spending liberals is rooted in his own success in the capitalistic system.

"I love this country, this Midland. I don't expect to gain anything (in his "I'm mad" broadcasts). I'm not running for office. I want to give something back to the system that has given so much to me. I realized the American dream, (but) I'm afraid the American dream has been turned into a nightmare."

Tanker, freighter collide; All crewmen reported safe

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — An empty oil tanker and a freighter collided and burst into flames in the fog-shrouded Gulf of Mexico just off the Texas coast today, but all the crewmen on both ships jumped to safety, the Coast Guard said.

Coast Guard Petty Officer Kenneth Harry said 35 crewmen from the tanker Amoco Cremona were plucked out of the water after the collision with the freighter Mason Lykes. It was not known immediately how many crewmen were aboard the freighter.

One injured crewman, apparently suffering from smoke inhalation, was taken to a Galveston hospital.

Fog had reduced visibility to about one-half a mile at the time of the collision, Harry said.

The crewmen who jumped overboard as explosions and fires erupted on both ships were picked up by commercial ships and a Coast Guard vessel.

The tanker was empty, Harry said. The fire apparently was fed by its own fuel.

The collision occurred about one and a half miles off the Galveston jetties, near the entrance to the Galveston Ship Channel. The ship channel was closed to traffic because of the collision.

Five killed in fire

CHICAGO (AP) — Five persons died early today when fire broke out in a basement and swept rapidly through a four-story apartment building on Chicago's West Side, authorities said.

A spokesman at Mount Sinai Hospital said the dead included a man, a woman and three children.

An injured woman also was taken to the burn unit of Cook County Hospital. One man was being treated for smoke inhalation.

Slightly cooler temperature to accompany dust, wind

The Permian Basin will have slightly cooler temperatures with its dust and wind Thursday, the weatherman said.

Fair tonight and Thursday and a little cooler Thursday is the best part of the official forecast from the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport.

Winds should be only about 15-20 mph tonight, but should shift to the northwest and increase to 15-25 mph Thursday.

Low tonight is expected to be in the mid-40s with the high Thursday in the lower 70s.

Despite the humidity this morning, no rain is mentioned in the forecast, so the April total likely will stay a perfect zero.

The .78 inch annual total is almost an inch below the area's normally dry early spring average, according to the weatherman.

Tuesday's high was a pleasant 72 degrees with the overnight low a very mild 57. Record temperatures for comparison are 99 degrees set in 1946 and 29 set in 1938.

Greenwood school candidates agree—differently

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a two-part series on candidates for Places 1 and 2 in the Greenwood Independent School District.

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

GREENWOOD — The three candidates running for Place 1 on the Greenwood Independent School District Board of Trustees agree on most issues.

However, John Underwood, Bob Evans and Ray Hunsinger have different approaches to the issues.

The issue of Greenwood Superintendent Mel Williams, whose contract was not renewed in January, was not considered a major point in the race by the three hopefuls.

However, selection of an administrator will be one of the most important decisions the school board will have to make sometime this year. All three candidates said the most important criteria for the new superintendent should be experience.

election 80

Fourteen-year incumbent Bob Evans said he hoped the new superintendent would be firm and very strict.

Evans explained the superintendent would need to continually keep the board informed of new developments in state laws.

In addition to experience, challenger Ray Hunsinger noted that diplomacy — the ability to "get along" with people having various views — would have to be an important asset for an administrator.

The other challenger, John Underwood, added that the administrator needed "fresh ideas" to meet the "growing pains" of the district.

"The board should not visit the school on a regular basis," he said regarding another issue. "However, it is not a bad idea to visit the facility randomly."

Nonetheless, Evans noted he did not favor board members going to the school to ensure board policy is executed.

He said "a board member has no authority except when functioning as a member of the board in a capacity which complies with the open meetings laws."

Ray Hunsinger, not Bob Evans, mentioned in Thursday night's candidate forum that the additional duty of a board member should be to check periodically with the school to ensure board policy was executed.

Expansion and additional water supplies for the school were listed as important future needs by the candidates.

Presently, admission to Greenwood is growing at a rate of about 80 students a year, according to school statistics.

Construction of an addition to the elementary school is taking place, Evans said.

However, there may be a need to construct an intermediate school, he added.

All candidates noted the school board would have to seriously consider purchasing more land to allow for expansion of school facilities.

They also noted that the present water supply would have to be expanded to meet demands of the growing student body.

Open communication between the board and teachers was an idea all candidates endorsed.

Underwood said there is a need for more meetings of this nature in which teachers can express their needs and problems openly and without fear.

The candidates agreed that higher teacher salaries was an issue since "we (the district) lose a lot of our teachers to Midland," Underwood and Hunsinger noted.

The board would have to examine the need for teacher pay raises if they (raises) were coming from the tax rolls, Evans said.

He added that the state periodically raises salaries in relation to the teachers' length of service.

Hunsinger noted that he would like to emphasize more vocational education programs for students who do not want to go to college after graduation.

But those programs would require large expenditures for teaching equipment and instruction, he explained, which the current budget could not handle.

Underwood also predicted that a vocational education program would be a future need of the school, but not immediately because of finances.

"I would like to see more (foreign) language (courses) with respect to the fact that every American should be able to speak two languages," Evans said of future curriculum needs.

Discipline and the closed campus policy was another issue the three candidates said they would continue if elected.

But because of the school's growth, Hunsinger noted that discipline might not continue in its present form.

"At some time in the future, there may have to be some easing of the present discipline policy," he said.

Underwood noted he was in favor of the school's discipline policy, but he doesn't want it carried to extremes.

Violence continues in San Salvador streets

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftists shot up the Guatemalan ambassador's car but failed to kill him and set off bombs in the U.S.-Salvador Cultural Center. Meanwhile, two Dutch TV reporters were shot and slightly wounded by men they described as soldiers.

THE LEFTISTS fired 12 bullets into the ambassador's car as they passed the Guatemalan Embassy in a pickup truck Tuesday. None of the bullets hit Ambassador Carlos Lemus Gallardo or his chauffeur, but they broke the car's windows, injuring the envoy with flying glass.

It was the third attempt to assassinate Lemus Gallardo in the last three years. Authorities blamed the latest try, and the others, on leftists who oppose Guatemala's government because it supports El Salvador's Junta.

The U.S.-Salvador Cultural Center was invaded by 15 masked youths armed with automatic weapons. They set off three bombs, causing minor damage and no injuries to the center's secretary; the only employee present.

Rudy van Buren, a member of the Dutch crew, said they had eaten dinner about three blocks from the hotel where they were staying, and were preparing to return to the hotel about 10:30 p.m.

"Two soldiers saw us as we got into the car, and we started to drive away. The soldiers stopped us and asked what we were doing," van Buren said.

HE SAID THEY told them they were going to their hotel, "they gave us the sign to go ahead, but as we got about 20 to 30 meters away, they began firing."

"They shot about 10 times. We couldn't stop because we were afraid they would kill us. They knew we were press because we had international press written on the side of the car."

Jose Napoleon Duarte, a civilian member of the junta that overthrew President Carlos Humberto Romero Oct. 15, injured by official count. Most of the victims were trampled but some were shot.

Casanova, "if that is the truth, this is nothing but a crime" and those responsible "must be found, arrested and immediately brought to justice."

But he added there would have to be an investigation first. "Something happens. Let us first find out what happened," he said.

DUARTE SAID security forces were patrolling the streets because of a series of bombings in a wealthy neighborhood Monday night, and that they had been authorized to stop cars and check them.

"There are guerrillas in the streets," he said. But he said "journalists have the right of going around," and that it is a "sad, grave, dangerous" situation when reporters are shot.

San Salvador has been especially tense since Sunday when bombs and gunfire stamped thousands gathered for the archbishop's funeral at the main cathedral, leaving 31 dead and 150 injured by official count.

Reagan coming to West Texas April 9

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan will be in Texas April 9 for rallies in Lubbock and Amarillo.

Midland's Ernest Angelo Jr., state chairman of Reagan for President, said the rallies would add new impetus to the growing Reagan bandwagon in Texas.

"Gov. Reagan considers Texas one of his most important states," Angelo said. "It will be decisive not only in terms of winning the Republican nomination but also the general election in November."

Let's all vote Saturday

When Midland voters go to the polls Saturday they'll find two or more candidates for nearly every position open in the city election, Midland Independent School District, Midland Junior College District and Midland County Hospital District.

Midlanders will be electing a mayor, two councilmen, two school trustees, three junior college board members and two hospital district board members.

All the candidates are to be commended for offering to serve their fellow citizens for that is precisely what time spent in local government means. Their candidacies speak well of commitments to Midland, their desire to become part of the leadership here and to help this community prosper and to go forward in the 1980s.

Reimbursement for such service is minimal. For the most part compensation they receive is only nominal and, thus, the service they perform actually is a contribution to the city and its people.

Most of the candidates are well qualified to hold positions which they are seeking. Several have prior experience serving in leadership roles. By seeking office, all have exhibited their interest.

Additionally, voters are being asked whether they want the Midland Independent School District to issue $3 million in bonds to be used for major repairs, improvements and renovations to existing school facilities.

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has endorsed the issuance of those bonds. The needs are real. This would be money well spent and the cost of waiting will be tremendous. Funds would be earmarked specifically for making our educational plants better facilities for our youth. Little else is so important.

The Reporter-Telegram, additionally, has published several series of articles detailing both the bond election and the four other upcoming elections. We hope they have helped Midland residents to become as fully informed on all the issues as possible.

But simply becoming aware of the issues does not satisfy the full responsibility of the voter in this society in which we live.

The last step is to make your voice heard. Go to the polls and cast your vote. Little time is required to do so.

The right to vote is said to be a privilege. That's true. And it's a privilege enjoyed by far too few people in today's world.

So, go to the polls Saturday and cast your ballot. We all benefit when you do.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, April 2, the 93rd day of 1980. There are 273 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On April 2, 1917, President Woodrow Wilson asked Congress to declare war on Germany, saying the world must be "made safe for Democracy."

On this date: In 1792, Congress established the United States Mint.

In 1882, outlaw Jesse James was shot and killed by a member of his gang in St. Joseph, Mo.

In 1932, Charles Lindbergh turned over $50,000 to an unidentified man in a Bronx, New York cemetery as ransom for his kidnapped son. The son was later found murdered.

Ten years ago: Government and postal union negotiators agreed to a 14 percent pay increase for postal workers.

Five years ago: South Vietnamese forces continued to retreat in the face of onrushing North Vietnamese troops. Fighting was reported in all provinces ringing Saigon.

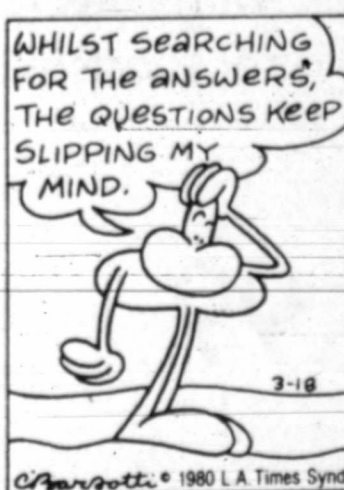

One year ago: A government nuclear official said the core temperature in the crippled nuclear reactor at Three Mile Island had dropped significantly and a gas bubble had decreased dramatically.

Today's birthdays: Actor Alec Guinness is 66. Television actor and producer Jack Webb is 60. Actor Buddy Ebsen is 72.

Thought for today: Never trust a man who speaks well of everybody. — John Churtoon Collins (1848-1908)

Israeli right-wingers' extremism could be black mark

WASHINGTON — If Jimmy Carter doesn't have enough trouble, he's now confronted with plans by a band of right-wing members of Israel's parliament (Knesset) to stalk Menachem Begin and Anwar Sadat when they confer with Carter here on the complicated Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.

According to a Washington Post dispatch from Jerusalem, the right-wing "truth squad" will also try to pressure candidates for the U.S. Presidency to make solid commitments to Israel in advance of the election, with the clear implications if they don't, American Jewish voters will hear about it.

I can't remember a situation wherein members of any foreign parliamentary body had the gall to come to the United States, attempting to interfere with the American political process in this fashion.

Certainly, this Israeli right-wing group which resembles, say, the Young Americans for Freedom or perhaps even the John Birch Society, represents a small sector of Israeli political opinion. If they carry out what they claim they will, Carter, Israel and the American Jewish community will be embarrassed, and the peace negotiations could be sent back.

Evidently, the group believes that once an American President is elected, Israel will be forced to make concessions offensive to these Jewish hard-liners, so the time to strike is now — before that President is elect-

The group will work with several ultra-nationalistic American Jewish organizations to demand: a freeze on the implementation of the peace treaty; a review of the accords by which Israel returns the last third of the Sinai to Egypt; and removal of Egypt from the West Bank autonomy negotiations. The report is that this coalition plans to launch an extensive media campaign to get candidates to make long-range commitments to Israel, in response to these demands.

Well, Begin himself, in his most nationalistic moments, opposes such jingoism. But the group argues that by making a fuss in the U.S., they will create the impression that Begin is under great pressure back home to hang tough, when he is asked to make concessions.

"We have to do it now, before the elections," insists Knesset member Geula Cohen, one of the organizers. "All Israelis know what it is like the first year after an American election."

Her assumption is that Israel must deal with the American voters, not the American government, in order to work its will. This amounts to interference with the American election system, and should be denounced for what it is.

Can you imagine the uproar here if, say, Christian Democrat members of the Italian parliament rushed into Washington to pressure Congress and presidential candidates into pledging not to allow federal funding of abortion? Or, if their Irish counterparts came to extract the solid promise from the same aspirants for the U.S. Presidency to cut all tariffs on Irish imports, especially for spirits? Or, if members of Mexico's Senado or Camara de Diputados arrived threatening to go to Hispanic-Americans if a presidential candidate wouldn't agree to drastic changes in the U.S. immigration policies? Such blackmail actions would be justly regarded as outrageous and absurd.

The U.S. taxpayer has been extraordinarily generous to Israel. No nation gets more foreign aid from the U.S. than Israel. No nation is more genuinely concerned about Israel's security and well-being than the U.S. No President has worked harder to establish peace for Israel than Carter.

Each election year, there is all sorts of posturing on Israel by candidates for the U.S. Presidency, and most of it is a craven appeal for Jewish votes. At times, it becomes disgusting. True, once the President, the Senate and the House are elected, a more temperate view of the Middle East evolves. Given our strong feelings for Israel and our pledge to its support, the U.S. must still take a broader view of the Middle East, and every President has had to do that — without any damage to Israel, by the way.

But the extremism of extraordinary groups like the right-wingers from the Knesset, and some of their fans in the U.S., hurts Israel in the long run. It would be a bad day for Israel when American voters decide they have had enough. Americans generally are middle-of-the-road people, want to be fair, are sympathetic to Israel, but can slowly change their minds. We should be given a little breathing room — especially from foreign interests — when we enter the polling booth.

ART BUCHWALD

Pollsters getting ulcers while questioning voters

WASHINGTON — Well, the pollsters blew it again. To my knowledge none of them had any idea that Teddy Kennedy would win in New York and Connecticut by such a large margin.

You would think the pollsters would be humble about it — but they are not. They're angry.

Harris Gallop, a man who makes his living taking the pulse of the country, said bitterly, "We're not at fault. The American people are lying to us."

"I can't believe it," I said. "Why would a person lie to a pollster?"

"It's part of the malaise in the country. People are angry and bitter and they don't trust their leaders. So they're taking it out on us. They figure if they don't tell us the truth about how they're going to vote it could screw up the 1980 presidential election, which they're not too thrilled about to start with."

I was shocked to hear the news. "All of us in this country were brought up to respect the Flag, love our country and tell the truth when a stranger with a clipboard asks us who we are going to vote for. Have we lost our moral compass?"

Harris replied, "It appears that way. I guess you could blame it on the 'me' generation. In the past Americans considered it their duty to tell a pollster the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. They were aware that their responses affected the lives of candidates, campaign managers, the media and the public. The American system cannot operate if its leaders don't know what the public will do.

"Today when you stop a man on the street and ask him who he's going to vote for, you're likely to be told, 'It's none of your damn business.' It's gotten so bad that people don't even know who's going to win a primary until all the ballots have been counted."

"That's terrible," I said. "It not only makes you people look like fools but it keeps everyone in suspense. It's no fun to follow a primary and not know who is going to win until Election Day."

"Well, that's what's happening. People now prefer to be kept in suspense, and they know the best way to do it is by not leveling with the pollsters. I'm aware of several cases in New York where registered Democrats told me they didn't know who they were going to vote for, and then went into the booth and pulled the lever for Kennedy."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

What's the real status of national defense?

WASHINGTON — One reason the SALT II treaty is probably dead in the water is that Carter administration officials can't seem to get their stories straight. In fact, Defense Secretary Harold Brown apparently lied to Congress on the crucial issue of U.S.-Soviet equality in military muscle.

Brown said one thing at a public hearing last Dec. 13, and quite another in secret written testimony submitted to the Senate Armed Services Committee on the same day.

The discrepancy is disclosed in a confidential report prepared for Republican members of the House Budget Committee, which was reviewing the Pentagon budget requests. A Defense Department spokesman told my associate Dale Van Atta he could not discuss Brown's testimony, but the House analysis pretty well speaks for itself.

Brown's public testimony: "Real Soviet spending for defense has nearly doubled (since 1963). Because we were very much stronger than they (were) at the outset of that period, we retain an approximate equality of military power."

Brown's secret testimony, according to the House report: "The United States has already slipped into a position of relative inferiority in the areas of strategic nuclear forces and theater nuclear forces." The House report notes that this is "the first time that any U.S. government official has ever made such an admission."

The president himself has sent contradictory signals to Congress on the question of Soviet strength.

Carter in September: There is no need for a 5 percent increase in the defense budget, he told Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., in a private letter. Three percent would be enough.

Carter in December: An increase of 5.6 percent is needed. Secretary Brown, in his secret material, said that adoption of the president's requested increase would enable the United States to "regain equality with the Soviet Union" in both long-distance and short-range nuclear forces, according to the House report.

So from "approximate equality" and a small increase in defense spending, the administration had suddenly decided that the United States was "relatively inferior" to the Russians in nuclear strength and would need a healthy budget increase to "regain equality." And this was before the shock of the Afghanistan invasion.

Brown's gloomy prognosis indicated that the administration's game of catch-up ball with the Soviets would probably go into extra innings. Long-distance missile parity might not be achieved before 1986, the secretary warned, while equality in short-range nuclear power would take till 1990.

Brown did not address the third criterion of military strength — conventional, non-nuclear forces, like tanks and infantry — presumably because the United States isn't even in the same ballpark on that score. "There already exists universal agreement that our conventional forces (at least in Europe) are unable to match Soviet and Warsaw Pact forces," the House analysis notes.

COVER YOUR ACT: The Energy Department's bureaucrats are apparently more concerned with protecting themselves from criticism than in finding out why American consumers are being gouged by domestic oil producers.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability (COWPS) made an exhaustive study of domestic refinery costs and the profits that Big Oil was raking in. The report of the administration's principal inflation-fighting body concluded that the refiners were making their huge profits without violating federal price guidelines.

But COWPS managed to step on Energy Department toes by recommending three courses of action — that the government become sole importer of foreign petroleum, that an audit be made of the oil companies and that an "in-depth" investigation be made of Big Oil's costs-vs.-profits situation.

This implied criticism of the way DOE was policing the oil industry infuriated the department's brass hats. At a White House meeting, they insisted that the "critical" chapter of the COWPS report be deleted. They even threatened to put out a dissenting press release if this were not done.

So to assuage the wounded pride of DOE's paper shufflers, COWPS backed down and scissored out the offensive material.

Rep. Ben Rosenthal, D-N.Y., is not satisfied. He said he's "anxious to know why COWPS deleted the portions of its report which DOE insisted be deleted, and what this portends for future administration efforts to combat energy inflation."

WATCH ON WASTE: Trying to save $500 million in annual production costs, congressional printing officials want to raise the subscription price of the Congressional Record by $25 a year. What they diplomatically left unsaid was that Congress could save a bundle by trimming the speeches — spoken and unspoken — inserted in the Record each day for hometown consumption. Like the three pages of praise for National Bicycle Day — at $393 a page.

While housing in the inner cities is a continuing problem, officials of the Housing and Urban Development Department jettied off to Greenland last year for a week-long seminar on "human settlement in the Arctic." The trip cost the taxpayers $6,500.

"That's tantamount to perjury! What can you people do about it?" I asked.

"Pass a law that if you lie to a certified pollster in the street or on the phone, your ballot doesn't count."

"That's a good idea, but how would you find out that they weren't telling the truth?"

"We'd poll their neighbors and relatives to find out how they really voted."

"Won't that cost money?"

"Perhaps. But if we keep going the way we are, we'll be out of business anyway. What you have to understand is that those of us in the polling business are not just involved in politics. We make our big money working for private firms which are test-marketing new products. If a woman is going to lie to us about which candidate she is going to vote for, what is to prevent her from giving us a cock-and-bull story about the type of soap-flakes she uses to wash her pantyhose?"

Mark Russell says

Ronald Reagan should consider one of Jimmy Carter's recent actions to be a personal favor — the action? Carter's decision not to decrease aid to the elderly.

Reagan gave some Midwestern farmers the impression that he wasn't too versed in agriculture issues. He not only didn't know what "parity" meant, but then he said that he always wanted to milk a silo.

Some items in the budget, instead of being abolished, will only be reduced. For example, the Meals on Wheels program will now be called Snacks on Wheels.

The government is finally getting wise to the fact that we are all overusing our credit cards. Lincoln said it best — "A plastic house divided against itself cannot stand. Not even until the date of expiration."

'Lenten Gag'

To The Editor:
Your series from the Newspaper Bible must be your idea of a "new twist" in journalism in which you endeavor to bring the scriptures to those of us who otherwise would not understand it (most of us do have a Bible.) But I wonder if the levity of your version or the modernization of your language makes it any more understandable, readable or religious.

If your newspaper, and the others around the country who are going along with the "Lenten Gag," were really trying to help us find the "truth," (in this case Christian) you would not be promoting John's Gospel, the latest and thus the most remote from the actual life of Jesus.

As a matter of fact if you really wanted to help us to find this Christian truth and the "true" gospel of Jesus you would send your reporters back to the original sources of which there are still many as yet unreported. Even Matthew and Luke were not primarily interested in proving that Jesus walked on the water therefore he was chosen the Master, or performed many miracles, therefore he was the chosen Messiah.

It just seems to me that there is too much reporting that the Bible said Jesus did to help us all get on the good side of God. If Jesus were to be resurrected following Easter Sunday he would no longer recognize his own greatness. I have always felt that the news media had other objectives than the reinforcement of the religious doctrines of its readers.

The 'new math'

To The Editor:
Last night I heard the great news from President Carter. The "windfall profits tax" is good for the country and will reduce our dependence on foreign oil.

We have already been told that approximately 15 percent of this "windfall" will go toward developing and producing more domestic energy. What happened to the axiom "a whole is equal to the sum of all its parts?" This "new math" is really confusing. Can we be made to believe that 15 percent of 227.7 billion dollars can produce more energy than 100 percent of it? Also, he failed to say whether this 15 percent is of the gross 227.7 billion dollars, or what is left after administrative costs of the "middle man."

Another confusing thing is that Mr. Jack Anderson stated in his column of March 10, 1980, and I quote, "his windfall tax proposal would leave half of the oil profits untaxed." This is untrue, and a request from Mr. Anderson for an explanation went unanswered. I assume from this that he had no defense. This is typical of the biased reports from much of the news media on the excise tax (possibly a confiscation of property.)

I hope that we remember this "new math" in November and vote accordingly.

Vote for change

To The Editor:
The time has come for the public to prove to our government we want a change. It seems the politicians only listen to us just before an election, so I suggest voting against all incumbents. A partial replacement will not make our point.

When an elected official starts telling the public what we can or cannot do, such as President Carter telling the athletes they will not go to Moscow, then that official no longer understands his function. A quick inspection of our income tax returns makes it quite obvious that our representatives think the cure to all their problems is to raise more taxes.

Well, I am tired of the working people solving their problems. They have that backwards too. We have much to gain and little to lose, so vote for a change. "I'm mad too, Eddie!"

I wonder...

To The Editor:
Mr. Reese's expressions of racial bias are so outrageous that they are ineffective, but I wonder if The Reporter-Telegram is not being had in paying this man for the privilege of publishing, on the editorial page, his vicious, venomous anti-Arab invective.

Texas man torches Census form, leads protest against national count

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Libertarian Jeff Hummel said he was standing up for his right not to be counted when he torched his census form Tuesday. "If I came into your house and said I was going to fine you $100 if you didn't tell me how many people were living there, you'd throw me out," Hummel said as he debated a heckler.

Hummel, a self-styled anarchist, attracted a small crowd on the University of Texas campus as television cameras rolled and he put his ciga-

What better way

To The Editor:
As a concerned parent, teacher or taxpayer, are you alarmed about the many conspired programs that are infiltrating the public schools? What better way is there for the humanist (communist) to gain a one world government than through our children?

Many teachers who would otherwise speak out against such programs as immoral films, sensitivity training, busing, psycho-drama, free dress, third force, child advocacy and many other programs won't anymore than they will stop contributing to the United Way, as many people are forced to do, if they wish to keep their job. I'm just thankful we still have some Christian teachers and principals who know what's taking place in the system and not afraid to admit it.

I say let's start by first protecting our children, cleaning up our school board by replacing them with Christians who are more concerned with morals being taught to our children and not afraid to get rid of all these mind-conditioning materials, immoral films and textbooks. Even if it means schools not having the government funds — I say who needs them! Are not our children more important than being subjected to all this government authority of replacing morals and God with no values at all — no absolutes — and instead of education using psychology and picture shows?

Just wait...

To The Editor:
I refer to Mr. R. Phiffer's letter of March 30, to the editor. If he thinks the school district received a large increase in tax revenue from over-evaluation of our property two years ago and several million dollars worth of new property construction on the tax rolls, just wait until he finds out that under Senate Bill 1060, House Bill 1161 our taxes are automatically going up some more in 1981.

Right now the tax office is in the process of re-evaluating again from county line to county line under these new tax laws. This law mandates that we will be taxed on 100 percent of this new evaluation, not 75 percent as we are now.

In dollars and cents, this means that your local tax bill will automatically increase by 33 percent even if your house evaluation stays at its present figure, and the taxing agencies do not lower their rate. The school district will automatically receive a 33 1/2 percent increase in tax money and that should be ample to cover their long neglected maintenance needs without a bond issue. I haven't heard any school official or board member mention LOWERING the tax rate, have you? Perhaps they plan to purchase more land with their windfall profits in 1981.

Note of thanks

To The Editor:
I am enclosing a copy of a letter I sent to Mayor Angelo. I thought it might be suitable for the "Letters to the Editor" column to give a public thank you to those involved with it: Dear Mayor Angelo:

The Museum of the Southwest joins me in expressing our deep appreciation to you, the City Council, the Chamber of Commerce and the Midland Center advisory board for providing The Midland Center. It is a magnificent facility and one for which Midland can be proud.

AUCTION '80 was a tremendous success, and the Midland Center helped make it so. We would particularly commend Mr. Jimmy R. Dike, manager of the Midland Center. A great part of AUCTION '80's success is directly attributable to the Midland Center and the managerial abilities of Jimmy Dike.

Up with lawyers

To The Editor:
I resent Thane Akins' implication that there is something "wrong" with being a lawyer. More than half of the 39 delegates who signed the U.S. Constitution were lawyers, which hardly prevented them from being outstanding leaders.

Mr. Akins should focus on campaign issues not on irrelevant and unfair innuendoes about an entire profession of people.

Covering up?

To The Editor:
Re: The recent statements by two school board candidates relating to school discipline.

According to Mr. Ramsoure "in the 20 years I have been with the school district we have not had an incident of students attacking teachers or the use of foul language in our classrooms."

Either someone is covering the facts from Mr. Ramsoure or he needs some information. I taught for five years in our school district. These are a few of the things I have seen or have witnessed:

1. I heard the foulest language I ever hope to hear while I taught school. At the time I was teaching, some of the worst of it happened to have come from a Bible class. I found it almost impossible to control because there was little back-up for my position that foul language does not have a place in schools. Not all of it was directed at teachers, of course; but its mere presence is degrading.

2. On one occasion a small group of students "ganged" at my classroom door between classes. While their teacher stood there, they refused to let me leave the class before their class began. I did discuss the problem about the other teacher, but the "taste" lingered on.

3. Students were eating, smoking, spitting tobacco all over the school. One administrator actually was perturbed because I asked him to put a stop to the tobacco spitting in the halls so that other students could make use of the trash cans and water fountains.

4. The windows of my home have been bashed in. So have the doors.

5. My husband's car was pushed through our garage door, causing us to have major repair work done on that.

6. My car was damaged in the parking lot.

Some teachers have never faced any situation like this. But many have, and many have quit just like me.

No 'power play'

To The Editor:
As a member of Penny Angelo's steering committee for her school board campaign last year, I take extreme offense at M.E. Burns' statement that Mayor Angelo "ran his wife" for that office in an attempted "power play" to take over the public schools. Perhaps M.E. Burns should check his facts before writing false accusations to the public!

Penny Angelo was urged by many friends and supporters who felt that the west side of Midland and the Lee High area in particular was not (and still is not) proportionately represented on the School Board. If anything, Mayor Angelo hindered her decision and, therefore, hindered the beginning of our campaign planning. The Angelos agonized for weeks before Ernest finally gave in and said he would not stand in her way! In NO WAY was he attempting a "power play," as M.E. Burns accuses.

In fact, those close to the Mayor knew he was going to be very involved in the national elections and was not going to run for mayor again. Had we been at liberty to make those decisions public, the ridiculous rumor created by those in opposition that the Angelos were trying to run Midland would have been completely invalidated and probably had a great effect on the election outcome!

Our preferences

To The Editor:
The American Automobile Industry is amazing! They have seen the energy crunch coming since the early seventies. They have seen the Japanese and Germans capture a little more of the market each year. And what do they do? They continue to produce large, gas-guzzling cars with a variety of options which add much to the basic car price.

Instead, one would think they'd manufacture cars that would compete with the Datsun, the Honda, the Toyota and the VW on the open market; but they do not. And now they are going to the U.S. government, asking it to limit the influx of foreign cars, so the American consumer will have no choice but to buy what he has already indicated is a less than desirable choice.

Instead of crying about a wrecked industry and the loss of thousands of jobs, it's high time the Mo-Town executives reassessed their own approach to the problem. For seven years the American car-buyer has been telling Detroit what they want, through their purchases of compact foreign models. And as soon as the auto industry awakens to the obvious, they'll start marketing attractive, reliable, economical automobiles that will recapture the American market. At least, they oughta.

Eye for Midland

To The Editor:
I served on the Midland County Commissioner's Court from 1951 to 1967. During that time, I knew no one with a better eye for Midland's future than Martin Allday. Long before most people had even thought about building a county library or a local college or buying some choice land for rights of way, Martin Allday had seen these possibilities and was working hard to get them for Midland. He knew then and he knows now what is good for Midland. He worked then and he's working now to improve the lives of Midlanders.

In light of Martin's near perfect qualifications for mayor, I am not surprised that one of his opponents has felt the need to talk about an issue that has nothing to do with this campaign. What does surprise me is that this opponent has talked about an issue which does not even score him any points. Specifically, he has talked about who knows and who does not know the oil business. He's trying to say that Martin does not know it, but I know from experience that Martin does. On more than one occasion, Martin's knowledge of the ins and outs of the oil business has helped me a lot. Implications that Martin doesn't have that knowledge are plumb silly.

Martin Allday has been pushing for the betterment of Midland ever since he moved to town 28 years ago. Midlanders must feel darn lucky and proud right now that they have the opportunity to elect him mayor.

Telling it like it is

To The Editor:
I saw on TV last night where Martin Allday had listed on the required Candidate's Financial Report that he had received about $19,000 and that his opponent, Thane Akins, had received only $150. I checked with the City Secretary's office where these reports were filed and found out that almost 200 people had contributed to Allday but that Akins had reported only one contribution for $150! That's "it" folks. Who do you believe? The same TV report indicated Akins had spent no money for his campaign!

I understand that the election laws require a candidate to list all contributions received and expenses made. I admire Allday's political guts in listing all of his contributions — even down to the smallest amount. I may be politically naive, but I want a mayor who tells it like it is — up front. That's the kind of guy Midland can trust and needs. I intend to vote for him on Saturday.

Professional look

To The Editor:
I just spent some time in Washington, D.C., working for the independent's exemption from the windfall profits tax. While there, I was shocked by the way some Washingtonians treated oil men like me. Rather than carefully consider what we had to say, they treated us like greedy, thick-headed idiots, simply because we were "oil men."

When I returned to Midland a few days ago, I was equally shocked by the attacks on my mayor candidate — Thane Akins — was making on another — Martin Allday. Rather than deal with legitimate issues, Akins discounts Allday's candidacy simply because Allday is a "lawyer."

More than anyone else, we in the oil business know how foolhardy and unfair it is to discount a man on the basis of his profession. We know that a man should be judged on his merits and not on some simple-minded conception of what he does for a living. I am confident that Midlanders in general and Midland oil men in particular will rise above Mr. Akins' empty attacks and cast their ballot for the best qualified candidate, Martin Allday, on April 5th.

Robert A. Dean
Midland

EDITOR'S NOTE: The television report was not up to date. Latest candidate spending reports, which were published in The Reporter-Telegram Tuesday, showed Martin Allday received $25,670 in contributions from more than 190 people while Thane Akins reported receiving $9,494, including a $2,000 personal loan and contributors totaling 25. This was not the final report, however. That will be issued following the election.

Those who know

To The Editor:
During a time in which our nation is suffering from economic, moral and governmental woes, we are looking for a leader of highest integrity, moral responsibility and uncompromising leadership. This week we will have the opportunity to select such a man to lead our tiny section of the world.

Those of us who know Thane Akins recognize these qualities in him. Those who don't know him need only look to his record as community leader and city councilman. He can be seen as a man of utmost integrity who can direct the future of Midland with idealism tempered with fiscal responsibility. Having been associated with Thane and Jean Akins for the past seven years, I can confidently endorse him as the type of mayor Midland needs for the 80's.

Those who know Thane Akins will be at the polls Saturday casting their votes for him, and for Midland.

No new concerns on Stacy reservoir

COLEMAN — No new concerns over the Stacy reservoir were expressed here Monday when the U.S. Corps of Engineers sought to determine the scope of its environmental impact statement on the reservoir.

Col. Donald Palladino, a Fort Worth district engineer, conducted the hearing in Coleman County Courthouse. About 100 persons attended, but only six commented on the proposed Stacy Dam reservoir.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District, which holds a permit for the Stacy project, has filed for a permit under Section 404 of the federal Clean Water Act. Palladino said only documented and environmentally relevant evidence would carry weight.

The Lower Colorado River Authority, which has been chief opponent of Stacy Dam, intervened at the hearing. L.C. Meyers, attorney for LCRA, claimed that CRMWD was building the reservoir only as a cooling pond for Texas Utilities Services, Inc., with whom the district hopes to sign a contract.

He also argued that no consideration had been given to the hydroelectric potentials of the dam, no flood control factors had been proposed and impact of a pipeline to the Midland-Odessa area on the environment should be considered. He suggested the Corps delay its report until LCRA's appeal of the Stacy permit is decided by the courts.

James T. Padgett said his family, which has lived in the area for a century, would have 3,000 acres inundated with water as part of the project.

"I hate to get run out by people fronting for a public utility," he said.

Padgett's wife, Lillian, wanted to know if the Colorado River at Stacy would have "stagnant water like below Spence dam."

Their son-in-law, Robert S. Morris of San Antonio, raised several questions about engineering, potential effects on highways, water tables and adverse effects of high wage scales on the area the dam will be constructed.

Effects of Stacy on Matagorda Bay was a question raised by Murray Walton, representing the National Wildlife Institute, a private environmental group. Although the Highland Lakes chain is between Stacy and the Gulf, Walton expressed his worry that flow of the river into the Gulf would adversely affect the shellfish industry.

Ross Jones of Coleman, speaking for the Central Colorado River Authority, said that while some people unfortunately would be dispossessed or inconvenienced, the project holds a tremendous benefit for Coleman and West Texas. Any environmental changes, he said, would be beneficial by providing recreational opportunities.

Palladino set April 14 as the deadline for submitting other statements or extending remarks. The most optimistic projection for a preliminary statement is mid-October, he said. A final ruling could come in February 1981.

O.H. Ivie, general manager, and other representatives of CRMWD, attended the hearing which consisted of less than 30 minutes of testimony.

Assisting Palladino were David B. Barrows, ecologist who heads the permits section, and James Chandler, biologist, who will help write the environmental statement.

Government, guerrillas promise indefinite holdout over hostages

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Both the guerrillas holding 27 hostages in the Dominican Republic's Embassy and the Colombian government say they will hold out for months — "as long as the students in Tehran," said the guerrilla negotiator.

The leftists and the government scheduled their ninth negotiating session this afternoon, the 36th day of the siege. The guerrillas were to respond to proposals presented by the government Tuesday.

Reliable government sources said the proposals were:

— To invite the Inter-American Human Rights Commission to Colombia to attend military trials scheduled for some 300 suspected guerrillas and to investigate allegations of torture and human rights violations. The government said Tuesday night that the invitation has already been sent.

— To transfer the trials from military to civilian courts. Removing them from under military law could lead to freedom for some of the suspects who have been in jail more than 180 days without trial.

— To invite Amnesty International, the human rights watchdog group, to observe the trials. A spokesman in London for Amnesty said it would be willing to take part in moves to free the hostages but had received no invitation.

The guerrillas of the leftist M-19 organization originally demanded that the Colombian government free 311 jailed leftists but later reduced the number to 28. A Cabinet spokesman said Tuesday there was no possibility of a change in the government's stand that to free the 28 by executive order would be unconstitutional, and their cases would have to be disposed of by the courts.

The masked woman who represents the guerrillas in the negotiations told the newspaper El Espectador by telephone that the leftists were prepared to hold out as long as the young Iranians who have held the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and 50 American hostages for nearly five months.

The hostages in Bogota include U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio and 18 other foreign diplomats.

Gunman robs service station

A black male toting a pearl-handled pistol robbed the Kent Oil Co. Station, 3310 W. Wall Ave., of $125 Tuesday night, according to police reports.

Michelle Bailey, the station-store clerk, told officers the man entered the store around 8 p.m. He went to a soft drink case in the northeast portion of the store, opened the case door but didn't find anything, said Ms. Bailey.

He then came to the counter and bought a package of cigarettes.

The man walked out of the store, but then turned around and came back in, pointing a blue steel .38-caliber revolver at Ms. Bailey, police said.

The man demanded all of the money, which Ms. Bailey gave him, and he fled eastbound on foot.

The man was described as a black male, 5-foot 3-inches tall, 200 pounds, approximately 25 years of age, wearing a short afro hair cut, tan shirt, red and white striped pants and tennis shoes.

Armed trio going before court

Three armed juveniles arrested Monday night during an apparent elementary school burglary will "go before the court," said a Midland police department juvenile division spokesman.

The cases were taken to the county attorney this morning and will be presented in juvenile court. The hearing date has not been set.

The three juveniles, ages 16, 15 and 13, were arrested after Officer Lindy Therwanger responded to a burglar alarm at Pease Elementary School, 2100 N. Benton Ave., around 8:31 p.m.

Principal Mamie Williams and Officer Therwanger entered the school to search the building and heard a loud noise coming from the office.

Therwanger saw a youth peer around a wall, run back into the office and then into the teachers' workroom. The patrolman entered the office and ordered the youth to come out. Two juveniles walked out, and Therwanger heard another noise from the workroom.

He looked inside and saw another youth behind a soft drink machine which was lying on its back. The bottom door of the machine had been pried open, and the youth was dropping something inside the machine. A .38-caliber revolver was later recovered from inside the machine.

A 22-caliber revolver was found in one youth's pocket, and the third had three knives taken from the principal's desk drawer.

The juvenile division spokesman said the school would take its own action regarding one of the juveniles, who attended Pease Elementary.

New Yorkers coping with strike

About 80 percent fight traffic, make it to work

NEW YORK (AP) — New Yorkers denied subways and buses worked their way back to their jobs in growing numbers today, with thousands streaming over Manhattan's bridges in long caravans of bicycles and pedestrians.

On the second day of simultaneous strikes over wages by the city transit system and the Long Island Rail Road, cars were bumper-to-bumper at gateways to the city at rush hour and police reported traffic twice as heavy as on Tuesday.

At one point, FDR Drive was stacked up for 43 blocks and one traffic control officer complained, "There's no place to put them."

The heavy influx of traffic, most of it arriving before 8 a.m., created bottlenecks that led to accidents that caused worse bottlenecks.

City officials said not only did more cars descend on Manhattan, but they were carrying more people. And Tuesday's trickle of cyclists and hikers on the bridges developed into a cascade today.

Even on Tuesday, when traffic was relatively light, a survey of Manhattan businessmen showed more than 80 percent of their employees made it to work.

Many commuters who stayed home Tuesday only to hear reports of light traffic and few travel problems tried to return to work today.

Traffic Commissioner Tom Guthrie termed today's traffic "worse and heavier" and said an even heavier jam is likely Thursday.

While the traffic was worsening, so was the outlook for a quick settlement. Richard Ravitch, chairman of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority met with mediator Walter Gellhorn, but only to discuss ground rules under which the talks can be resumed.

While many big businesses brought their people in by chartered buses, helicopters, ferries and fishing boats, more people were seen walking and pedaling today and police routed cyclists and hikers into separate lanes on the busy bridges. Many seemed to be enjoying the adventure.

"I think it's been wonderful," said Barbara Stankowski, 35, who parked her car at Long Island City and strode over the Queensboro Bridge to her job at the Holland Society at 58th Street and Lexington Avenue. "People are talking to each other as they walk, some drinking coffee, and even enjoying it."

A Red Cross volunteer unit from the Richmond First Aid Squad of Staten Island set up a water canteen and emergency first-aid station at the Queensboro Bridge.

"So far, just two Band-Aids, for blisters on a guy's big toe," said Dave Corsover, one of the volunteers.

Many New Yorkers urged city officials to hang tough in the negotiations.

"Let them stay out — we can do it!" one commuter shouted to Mayor Edward Koch as the city's chief executive greeted Staten Island ferry passengers Tuesday with gestures of encouragement.

"Even the criminals are cooperating," Koch quipped later after police reported declines in every major crime category as New York coped with its first transit collapse in 14 years.

But there were reports of price-gouging as hustling entrepreneurs found city dwellers desperate enough to pay double for a rental bicycle or midtown hotel room.

The impact of the first day of the strike was difficult for many businesses and city officials to assess because it came amid the two-day celebration of Passover for New York's 2 million Jews.

The strike by 33,000 bus and sub-began after negotiations broke down between the Metropolitan Transportation Authority and the Transport Workers Union and the Amalgamated Transit Union. Later, strikes shut down the Long Island Rail Road, stranding 180,000 suburban riders, and four bus companies in the borough of Queens left another 200,000 passengers looking for rides.

Negotiators for the MTA and the unions were meeting today in an effort to resume stalled talks. No new talks were scheduled in the LIRR dispute.

Thousands of New Yorkers cross the Brooklyn Bridge early today, heading for work in the city's downtown area on Manhattan Island. About 80 percent of the city's workers reported in today, despite a transit strike. (AP Laserphoto)

In budget-cutting endeavor, Postal Service may stop Saturday delivery

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, choosing to hit customers at the mailbox instead of the pocketbook, now is considering elimination of Saturday deliveries as the only practical way to meet proposed budget cuts.

ing, unless postage rates are increased sooner than anticipated.

Bolger said he has ordered task forces to study the effects of reducing mail deliveries from six to five days a week and the impact of that on labor relations.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger told the agency's governing board Tuesday there appears to be no way to maintain six-day mail service, despite President Carter's recommendation for a much milder budget cut than what Congress is considering, unless postage rates are increased sooner than anticipated. Just a week ago, Bolger told the House Budget Committee that cuts aimed at balancing the federal budget to help tame inflation would mean either elimination of Saturday mail or faster rate increases.

Car company bares plans for layoffs

DETROIT (AP) — Layoffs in the U.S. auto industry are falling, but the biggest producer says it plans to idle more workers in the coming months.

The five U.S. automakers said Thursday they will have about 183,200 production workers idle next week compared with more than 202,000 this week. But 167,700 of next week's total will be on indefinite layoff, up from 161,500 this week.

General Motors Corp., which also announced an easing of terms for dealers in an effort to stimulate orders, scheduled production cutbacks for another four plants in addition to those already announced.

Assembly lines will be slowed at Pontiac, Mich.; Fairfax, Kan., and the Chevrolet truck chassis plant in Detroit. An entire shift will be dropped from the body plant at Pontiac.

Slower line speeds had been announced earlier for the Flint, Mich., truck plant and the car plant at Janesville, Wis.

The Janesville plant will work Monday and then close until April 14, with layoffs for 3,500, and will reopen with 850 fewer employees.

Elsewhere, 825 workers will be laid off from the two Pontiac plants and 700 at Fairfax, effective April 14, and 60 at Detroit on May 5. The previously scheduled elimination of the second shift at Flint will be coupled with a slowdown that will mean 3,700 indefinite layoffs starting next week instead of 3,200.

Next week, GM should have 85,300 on indefinite layoff, against 81,600 this week, with only the 3,500 Janesville workers temporarily out, compared with 14,700 this week.

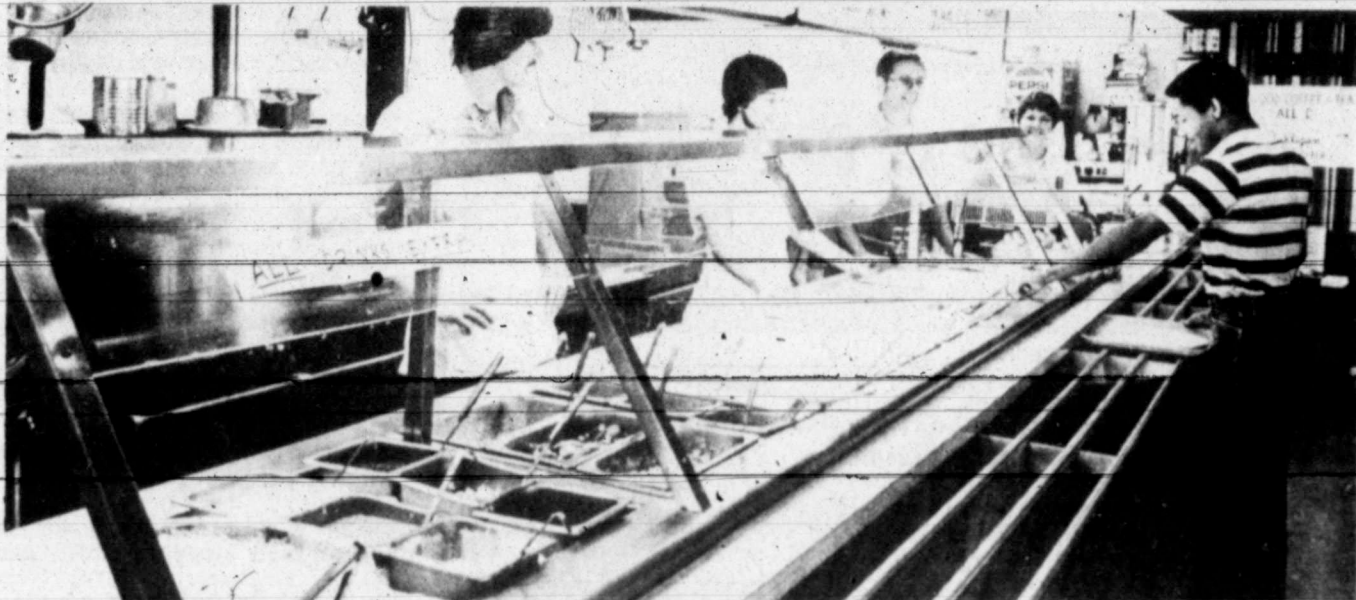

Both Chrysler Corp. and Ford Motor Co. said they would run all their active U.S. assembly plants next week. This week, Chrysler had 3,100 workers on short-term layoff and Ford had 19,250.

Chrysler said its indefinite layoffs climbed from 39,200 to 39,800 while Ford reported no change in its total of 38,500. Ford's total will be increased by 1,900 with the dropping of the second shift at the Wixom, Mich. luxury car plant next week.

Eastman Kodak cuts some prices on some X-ray and graphics film

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Eastman Kodak Co. has quietly rolled back some of the prices on X-ray film and graphics film, reflecting the recent fall in the price of silver, Kodak officials confirmed Friday.

Prices of X-ray film were reduced 9 to 13 percent and graphics films by about 10 percent earlier this week, said Kodak spokesman Tim Elliott. Both types of film are high in silver content. Reductions were effective immediately, so that orders shipped on the day the cutbacks were made were sent at the reduced prices.

Kodak "is watching the silver situation very closely" to determine whether other films and papers should be reduced, Elliott said.

When silver rose from its steady price of $6.80 per Troy ounce in late 1978 to a high of almost $50 per ounce earlier this year, Kodak increased all of its film prices including those for commercial and amateur photographic films and photographic paper.

Jean Stapleton, Carroll O'Connor

Archie wants to kill Edith off

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Edith Bunker, who drove husband Archie crazy for years in the hit television series "All in the Family," is finally going to be stifled — permanently.

A production source says the character, one of the most beloved on the small screen, probably will die in a show next fall. Edith, as played by JEAN STAPLETON since 1971, was a shrill "dingbat" to bigoted Archie but displayed an open-hearted common sense to millions of viewers.

Edith has made only sporadic appearances since the show became "Archie Bunker's Place" this season. Miss Stapleton's desire to leave the comedy series was the prime factor in the decision to move the show from the Bunker home to Archie's tavern.

CARROLL O'CONNOR, who plays Archie, "said he wants to kill her off," according to a source with NORMAN LEAR'S Tandem Productions.

O'Connor has said Edith will not be on "Archie's Place," if the series is renewed by CBS for next season. O'Connor's production company owns half of the show.

The details of Mrs. Bunker's demise have not yet been decided upon.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Toddler JAMES CARTER was smiling at the Easter bunny, but some of the folks in the White House garden were keeping a close eye on his divorced parents.

CHIP CARTER, son of the president, and his ex-wife CARON appeared together at the White House on Tuesday. Mrs. Carter appeared first, along with James and mother-in-law ROSALYNN, then Chip Carter came over and exchanged a few words with his ex-wife, who reportedly is engaged to be remarried.

James has been visiting his dad here for the past several days. The 3-year-old got to sit on an adult-sized bunny's lap and accepted colored Easter eggs from two organizations.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — ALEXANDER HAIG JR., now president of United Technologies Corp., is undergoing "routine" heart surgery today, company officials say.

Haig was to undergo the elective operation at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital in Houston. Chief surgeon was to be Dr. Denton Cooley of the Texas Heart Institute.

Haig served as former President RICHARD NIXON'S chief of staff and as commander of NATO forces before taking the post with the Hartford-based corporation.

The company gave no reason why the surgery was necessary.

NEW YORK (AP) — How did the rich and famous get around on the first day of the Big Apple's transit strike? Just like everyone else...some of them, anyway.

GREG EVIGAN, who drives an 18-wheeler on the TV series "B.J. and the Bear," was pushing a bicycle around town Tuesday to see for himself what effect the nation's largest transit strike would have.

Also rolling on two wheels were playwright ARTHUR MILLER and theatrical producer MORTON GOTTLIEB, whose current hit is "Romantic Comedy," starring ANTHONY PERKINS and MIA FARROW. Gottlieb had two bikes stolen last year, including one he left outside the William Morris Agency.

"You know agents. Always taking a percentage," he quipped. But SAM LEVENE, acting in the yet-to-open play, "Horowitz and Mrs. Washington," rode to work by limo, and movie producer JEROME GARY rode to work on his home — a converted lobster barge.

Gary, who co-produced "Pumping Iron," docked the barge — which is decked out with sauna and Oriental rugs — and jogged the rest of the way to his office.

Defector goes home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Friends of a Russian ballet dancer who defected to the United States in January are surprised by his apparent change of mind and return to the Soviet Union. State Department officials said Yuri Stepanov returned to his country Tuesday evening aboard a Soviet Aeroflot airliner.

Stepanov had defected in January and was dancing with the New Jersey ballet until about 10 days ago, friends said. At that time, he went into New York City, visited a Russian-language bookstore, and then spent several days at the Soviet Embassy in Washington. Shortly after that, friends said, he told American officials he wanted to return to Russia.

"I'm absolutely sure he wanted to stay in this country," said Yuli Vzorov, one of Stepanov's former teachers in the Soviet Union. "He was absolutely glad to be out of the Soviet Union and told me he had been planning to his defection for five years."

"I can't see any good in (an appeal) because everybody is thinking about the poor Kenons," Barrow said.

The couple lost the house in a county auction last July. The man who bought it paid $102 plus interest and back taxes. "It was good news, the best news I've had in eight or nine months," said a delighted Mrs. Kenon. "I've done suffered for this for a long time."

The couple can now think about sprucing up the five-room, wood-shingled dwelling or installing central heating to replace the single space heater they use for warmth during brisk North Florida winters.

They must pay a Callahan investor the $102 plus interest he paid for the house and the $2.92 in 1979 taxes he paid, the judge said.

Willis said he was shocked by the "grossly inadequate" price paid by investor John G. Barrow, who petitioned the Gadsden County clerk to put the couple's property up for sale because they failed to pay $3.05 in 1975 taxes.

Barrow had offered to sell back the property for $10,000. He allowed the Kenons to live in the house while the case was pending.

The attorneys told Willis he should overturn the sale because the Kenons never knew they owed any back taxes and faithfully paid their taxes in other years. They said Kenon thought he was exempt from taxation because of the state's homestead exemption.

The lawyers also blamed the county clerk for not notifying Kenon and his 63-year-old wife before the house was sold at auction. The clerk's office says a notice was mailed.

Pakistan aid request withdrawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has withdrawn its request for aid to Pakistan, effectively ending its aborted effort to shore up that country's defenses after the Soviet military move into Afghanistan.

Officials at the Office of Management and Budget said Tuesday that the administration quietly decided not to ask Congress for money for Pakistan in the revised 1981 budget proposal sent to Capitol Hill this week.

In the original 1981 budget proposal, submitted in January, the administration had indicated it would ask Congress for a supplemental appropriation of $400 million in emergency economic and military aid to Pakistan over a two-year period.

But things have changed since then. "It's not going forward," one State Department official said of the aid request. "The momentum is all in the other direction."

Another official, who also asked not to be named, said that while the United States is still in contact with Pakistan, "there are no talks going on that I would dignify by describing as negotiations."

The Pakistani aid proposal was hastily formulated after Soviet troops moved into Afghanistan Dec. 27. The fear at the time was the Soviets might roll on toward the Persian Gulf.

The Russian action coincided with a low point in modern U.S.-Pakistani relations. All aid except food shipments was suspended last year because the Carter administration felt Pakistan was secretly trying to develop nuclear weapons.

In view of the emergency situation in neighboring Afghanistan, President Carter announced that he would ask Congress to waive laws that prohibit aid to countries trying to build nuclear weapons.

But the administration was shocked a few weeks later when Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq denounced the American offer as "peanuts."

The American plan was predicated on the theory that Pakistan would realign its forces from the Indian border to meet the potential Soviet threat. The Pakistani army is concentrated on the Indian border, with only thin ranks on the Afghan border.

But Zia wanted the United States and other Western countries to finance an entire new wing of the Pakistani armed forces, a multi-billion dollar proposition. Zia said he would be better off without U.S. aid unless it was much more substantial.

Despite a well-publicized visit which featured presidential national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski brandishing a rifle at the Khyber Pass, the two countries could not reach an agreement. Brzezinski said Pakistan's desire to rely on its Islamic neighbors for assistance "suits us fine."

Then Agha Shahi, Zia's foreign affairs adviser, made a speech suggesting Pakistan was still interested in the economic aid package. But administration officials said Tuesday that Shahi's speech came too late to mend the rift that had developed.

By the time Shahi made his speech, the administration was embroiled in its budget-cutting effort, and the Soviets appeared to be bogged down somewhat in Afghanistan. The aid request was left out of the budget. Officials said they hoped Pakistan would get help from countries like Saudi Arabia and China, and they said the United States would allow cash sales of arms if the Pakistanis could find the money elsewhere.

Couple regains home lost for delinquent tax

QUINCY, Fla. (AP) — Fedo and Hattie Mae Kenon, who lost their modest home because of a $3.05 tax delinquency, have regained ownership after a judge said the tax sale price was "so grossly inadequate as to shock the conscience."

The 65-year-old man, who can neither read nor write, and his wife were told Tuesday in a ruling by Circuit Judge Ben C. Willis that they could have back the $7,500 home they built 19 years ago.

The couple lost the house in a county auction last July. The man who bought it paid $102 plus interest and back taxes.

"It was good news, the best news I've had in eight or nine months," said a delighted Mrs. Kenon. "I've done suffered for this for a long time."

R.S.V.P. SATURDAY

Midland, Texas 79701

Dear Midlander:

This Saturday, you will have an opportunity to select a new Mayor for our city. I hope you believe I am the best candidate to represent you as Midland's Mayor during the next two years.

The 1980's are to be years of great opportunities for Midland. The oil industry will continue to grow, and the "Headquarters City" of the Permian Basin will be a vital part of that growth. Midland's quality of life and sound business atmosphere will attract more community-minded, clean industries. We must take advantage of these times and extol Midland as a city of excellence and pride.

My friends know I am a responsible conservative. Through the years, my actions have often demonstrated that I deplore "federal control" of our local government. Also, I dislike the idea that we pay our tax dollars to the federal government to provide development funds for other cities, while receiving none of these funds for our parks, streets and sewers. As long as we can truly retain local control and administration of the funds, I am in favor of accepting Midland's fair share for needed improvements such as parks, streets and sewers and for Midtran and for the airport.

At the very heart of my campaign is my genuine conviction that Midland needs a city government which will keep the city clean, take care of our streets and provide for amenities within a sound and affordable budget. I intend to work very hard to see that the city government is responsive to your needs.

I have been involved in the growth and development of Midland for 28 years because I truly care about our city. It has always given me a tremendous sense of satisfaction to join with others in our community and, through hard work, see our dreams for Midland become realities.

Now, I want to be your Mayor. I have no political ambitions; I have no desire to perpetuate the philosophies or ideas of any particular group. I simply want to use whatever God-given abilities I have to help Midland and hope that you will give me that opportunity.

Sincerely,

Martin L. Allday

Landowners lose exemption bid

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

RANKIN — Members of the Upton County Landowners Association lost their bid to be exempted from the taxing Upton County Water District Tuesday when State District Judge Lawrence Fuller of Monahans ruled in a summary judgement that the landowners could not be excluded from the district.

The judge, following 3½ hours of arguments from attorney on both sides, also ruled that the 1977 legislative act which created the district was constitutional.

"I am very opposed to a summary judgment," the judge said in his ruling, in which he essentially ruled that the lawsuits filed by the landowners had no merit. "I've grown up believing that people ought to have their day in court," he told approximately 100 protesting landowners. "This case is going to be appealed."

He was right. For an hour following the hearing, the landowners in a closed meeting plotted their strategy to appeal the case to a higher court. "The (water) district won Round One, but it's 15-round fight," Roy Johnson, one of the landowners' two attorneys, said following a closed meeting.

THE LANDOWNERS maintain that the water district is unconstitutional and that they should be exempted from it and its taxing powers. The landowners, headed by Linda Dusek of Midkiff and Joyce Smith of Midland, maintain that they would not benefit from the district, which was created to pipe potable water to the Upton County towns of Rankin and McCamey, which are about 18 miles apart.

Proponents of the water district contend that both cities, which have a combined population of about 4,600, are running out of drinkable water, which is high in nitrates and salts.

But the landowners reason that Upton County water is no worse or no better than any other water in West Texas.

"The water in Rankin is as good as any water in West Texas, with the exception of El Paso," which is worse, said landowner-agricultural consultant W. Ray Smith of Midland. Smith said that it's "not true" that Rankin and McCamey are running out of water. "It's not the quantity of water but the quality of water" which concerned the water district. "All they've got to do is drill one more water well, and they'll have plenty of water and water as good as that in Midland and Odessa."

HE NOTED THAT the underground water in Midkiff in northeast Upton County is no better than Rankin's water.

"Everybody's drinking it; nobody's fussing. It's better than the water in Odessa," Smith said.

Mrs. Dusek, who, with her husband Carlos, farms at Midkiff, said "nobody had decided to back down. Everybody is just as gung-ho as ever," she said of the landowners.

Only a smattering of townspeople were at the hearing.

"If they are so desperate for water and need it, why aren't they here?" she asked.

In the hearing in the packed courtroom, the landowners' attorneys, Roy Johnson of Fort Worth and Paul Phy of Dallas, were pitted against the water district counsel, S.G. Johndroe III and John Gray, both of Fort Worth. The district's third and initial counsel, Upton County Attorney John Meneefe of McCamey, for the most part sat silently on the sidelines.

JOHNDROE, WHO said the water district's intent is to pipe in potable underground water to Rankin and McCamey, said "the quality of water (supplying the towns) is deteriorating with the increased flooding" of old oil wells with brine and by salt from the Pecos River.

The bill which authorized the water district was drafted by Dallas attorney Pete Tart and Meneefe and was sponsored in the Texas House by Republican Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland and in the Senate by Democrat W.E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland.

But apparently no townspeople from Rankin or McCamey were in Austin when the bill, which the landowners claim is unconstitutional, was passed.

"None that we know of," said John-

Linda Dusek of Midkiff, right, president of the Upton County Landowners Association, and Joyce Smith of Midland are among association leaders who are seeking exclusion from the Upton County Water District, which, they claim, would tax without representation and which would only benefit people in the towns of Rankin and McCamey. (Staff Photo) droe. "No, I haven't heard," said Meneefe.

"If any of them (townspeople) had come down there, when they got back they would tell everybody in Rankin and McCamey about it," said Judge Fuller.

JOHNSON, SPEAKING on behalf of the landowners, said that the act provides "no benefit to landowners in the rural areas" but that the act gives the water district the right of eminent domain to condemn underground water if necessary to furnish the two towns with potable water. But Phy said the act, which he claimed is amiss, fails to give a clear statement of purpose.

"Sometimes the legislators can abuse their discretionary powers," Phy said.

Earlier, Judge Fuller had noted that "we're not (always) proud of them (legislators)," but later said "I better retract" that statement when he found out that Snelson sponsored the bill in the Senate. "I like him."

Johndroe said the water district is not obligated to hold public hearings to question the validity of the act.

Union ratifies contract negotiated with Cosden

BIG SPRING — Members of the International Union of Operating Engineers ratified Monday night a contract negotiated by union representatives and Cosden Oil and Chemical Co.

A previously tendered contract had been rejected March 25. The IUOE retained the right to strike at midnight Monday.

Both sides said they were satisfied with the contract settlement. It affects about 550 employees at the Big Spring refinery, a subsidiary of American Petrofina.

The new contract calls for a 43-cent per hour wage increase retroactive to Jan. 8. This hike comes after a 6 percent wage increase previously was negotiated. Under this provision, the union can negotiate a wage increase in December for 1981.

Proposed medical coverage will have a $25 deductible. The next $1,500 for hospitalization is paid at 100 percent by the company's insurance.

The contract calls for an 80-20 co-insurance coverage which operates until the employee pays $500. At this point, Cosden's insurance company pays 100 percent of the hospital's charges up to $1 million.

This type of insurance coverage will help a union member avoid having to pay exorbitant costs due to a major illness.

Lampasas man listed in satisfactory condition

A 22-year-old Lampasas man was listed in satisfactory condition in the critical care unit of Midland Memorial Hospital after jumping into the path of a pickup Tuesday evening.

The accident occurred around 5:50 p.m. According to a Department of Public Safety spokesman, Roy Olivares of Lampasas was walking north in the southbound lane of traffic on Midkiff Avenue, 3.2 miles south of Interstate Highway 20.

Joe Carlton Teagarden, 22, of Box 2496 was driving southbound on Midkiff. Teagarden moved into the northbound lane to avoid Olivares, when Olivares jumped into the path of the vehicle, according to the DPS.

Olivares was struck by the vehicle's right side mirror. He was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital with head and facial injuries.

Ripping off roadside barricades no joke

Someone in the city of Midland has a penchant for black and white, reflectorized road barricades. They must; they keep stealing the ones in the 4800 block of West Wadley Avenue.

And although it may initially seem humorous, it's had serious consequences. "It creates a heck of a traffic hazard," said Fred Baker, director of public works for the city of Midland.

The 4800 block of West Wadley Avenue is a dead-end street, except for a little one-lane dirt path continuing on west.

The absence of the barricade was at least partially responsible for an accident late last week in which four people from Andrews were injured.

Baker said the dead-end street is marked with a sign and the barricade. There are no street lights in that area. The driver didn't see the sign. And the barricade had been stolen.

Baker also said the barricade had been re-erected immediately after the accident. It remained for six hours before disappearing.

"The guy in the sales home for the developer out there called and said 'hey, you know that barricade you just put up? Well, it's not there anymore.'"

The first barricade was erected in 1979. Baker said he could not say when that barricade disappeared. The first indication it was missing was the accident last week.

"I guess someone wants the lumber. There are people out there building fences all the time and these signs have 2-by-2s and 4-by-4s in them."

"And it really would not have taken but a few minutes to take it down."

"They were only nailed together, and it would just be a matter of taking a large hammer and knocking them down."

According to Baker, another barricade has been erected — but with a new twist.

This one will use metal poles embedded in concrete, and the black and white reflectors will be bolted onto the poles.

"That will, I think, certainly make it a bigger job to remove the things," he said.

Specialist to investigate Zion power plant leak

ZION, Ill. (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is bringing in a radiation specialist to investigate the release of what was described as a "small amount" of radioactive gas from the Zion nuclear power station, the NRC says.

The agency also said Tuesday it was looking into the alleged failure of Commonwealth Edison Co., to notify the NRC for more than 12 hours after the incident occurred at about 6:45 p.m. Monday.

Jeff Kratz, Commonwealth spokesman, said the incident was the result of a "valving error," that allowed cooling water from a reactor to flow into a tank, causing the gas to be released and then vented outside the plant.

Arson evidence noted after power plant fire

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — Evidence of arson has turned up at Consumer Power Co.'s unfinished Midland nuclear plant which was hit by fire last week, a state fire marshal says, but an official ruling has not been made.

"I don't think we'll ever place the cause as accidental," Sgt. Lewis Draper, fire marshal at the Michigan State Police Bay City post, said Tuesday. "At this time, the cause is considered to be undetermined until we come up with more information."

Draper said there "are indications of intentional sets," but would not elaborate. He said a report on the blaze could come in two weeks at the earliest.

The March 26 fire, the second in four days at the plant, destroyed 23 trailers used as workers' housing at the construction site. Damage in the early morning fire was estimated at more than $300,000, said Consumers' spokesman Norman Saari.

The first fire, about 300 yards from the second, caused about $10,000 damage to a temporary office complex used by Bechtel Power Corp., the plant's main contractor.

Midland fire marshal Norman Carter said the two fires were not believed to be related. An investigation has found no evidence of arson at the first blaze, he said.

Zachery delivers in 9th

By BOB DILLON Sports Writer

Jerry Zachery singled past a drawn-in infield in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday to guide the Midland Bulldogs to a 7-6 victory over the Odessa High Bronchos at the Memorial Stadium diamond.

The come-from-behind District 5-4A victory keeps Coach Tim Whalen's Purple Pack in the running for the first half championship.

ZACHERY HAD blasted a 390-foot triple in the seventh inning when the Bulldogs came back from a 5-2 deficit to score three runs to tie the game and send it into extra innings.

Odessa's Junior Cobos, who had been out all season with a broken collarbone, was brilliant for six innings in only giving up only two hits. But the Pack came back to pull out the hard-earned victory.

"I was pleased with the way the kids came back and in using 18 players, everybody contributed to the victory in some way," said Whalen afterwards.

The victory gives MHS a 3-2 5-4A record to stay one game behind Midland Lee, Abilene and Abilene Cooper.

Cobos was sailing along and it didn't look good for Midland until the Bulldogs scored one run in the sixth and then came up with that three-run outburst in the seventh.

OHS TOOK a 3-0 lead off starter Mark Hewitt in the fourth inning. Two errors by the Bulldogs opened the gates along with singles by Hector Sanchez, Billy Rumbaugh and Mark Valdez. Mark Clifton walked with the bases loaded and Kevin Decker plated another run with a sacrifice fly to right.

Midland countered with a single run in the bottom of the fourth when Portillo walked, stole second and scored on Gann's liner into center to make it 3-1 in favor of the Bronchos.

A single by Gary Weatherford and double by Rumbaugh gave Odessa a 4-1 lead in the fifth and the visitors increased it to 5-1 in the sixth on a base

Rebels struggle past Odessa Permian by 5-4

By RICHARD VINCENT Sports Writer

ODESSA—More than once during his illustrious career, Midland Lee baseball coach Ernie Johnson has been heard uttering his motto: "I'd rather be lucky than good."

Well Tuesday afternoon at the Odessa Permian field, with April Fools Day hanging over its head, Lee tried its darndest to give the Panthers an important District 5-4A victory. But alas, Lady Luck was watching the Rebels and they—despite six errors that led to three Permian runs—escaped by the hair of their chinny chin chins, 5-4.

Afterward, Johnson was more thankful than pleased. "I'm tickled to death to win," he said, "we were kinda sloppy and missed a lot of signals and messed up, but we still won."

AND AT THIS stage, that's what counts. The Rebels now are 4-1 in district (7-8 overall) and still in the thick of the chase with a pivotal game against Abilene High set for Saturday. Permian slipped to 2-3 in 5-4A and 8-7 overall.

Junior Alan Koonce, the ace of the Rebels' staff, did his thing quite well Tuesday after a somewhat rocky start and upped his record to 4-1. The righty allowed eight hits (five of which were scattered over the last six innings) and just one earned run while whiffing 10 and walking none.

Loser Kevin Williams, who owns one no-hitter this season, had nothing to be ashamed of. He yielded 12 hits, but had the Rebels completely baffled for four frames—Williams, 4-2, notched five strikeouts and walked none.

ALL THE damage done by Lee came after the Rebels found their backs to the wall, 3-0.

In the fifth, catcher Tom Morrison smacked a leadoff single to right. He then went to third when shortstop Randy Velarde reached on a throwing error by Permian third baseman Mike Fowler. Billy Gilliland fanned before Robert Perez, who was the Lee hero at the plate, ripped his second double, chasing Morrison home from third. Later, the score became 3-2

Minor Leagues play

By TED BATTLES Sports Editor

MESA, Ariz. — Regardless of what the major leagues face in the way of a strike, the minor leagues will play ball on schedule.

"Whether or not there is a strike, minor league salaries must be paid or the major league club loses control of the player," Chicago Cubs Farm Director C.V. Davis said.

"Of course, for some organizations it will be a burden to keep the farm systems operating with no revenue coming in from above," he added, "and if the strike is for a prolonged period, we would just have to see how it would affect them, but for some clubs it would be tough..."

THERE ALSO seems to be some confusion as to which players would have to abide by the strike. For example, Henry Mack, who pitched for Midland last year, is under major league contract, but was farmed out to Wichita last week. "As I understand it, it's up to me. I can play or not," he said.

ONE CLUB official pointed out that a player like Mack is really "between a rock and a hard place. He'll be expected to observe the strike."

But even informed sources with Chicago can't agree on the ground rules. One says, "Anyone farmed out can play in the minors," while another contradicts, "only if he was farmed out before April 1."

Ex-Midland Cubs infielder Steve Macko and outfielder Carlos Lezcano were still on the Chicago roster April 1, just before the next scheduled trim job. So both felt they would have no choice but to observe the strike even if sent to Wichita.

Although Steve says, "I agree with what the Player's Association is trying to do, I voted to strike and will not play in the event of the strike." It has got to be a dilemma.

THE FORMER Baylor infielder is on the verge of his first big league season only to have the thrill of a lifetime spoiled by discord over which he has no control.

Likewise, Lezcano, up from Class AA for a courtesy look, fell into the kind of break so unlikely that a movie script writer would blush at the conveniently coordinated sequence of events.

Carlos, after a poor winter in the Puerto Rican league, has burned up the Cactus League with his hitting and defense and is on the verge of winning the job over last year's discontented and limping incumbent.

THEN, THERE is the case of Dave Geisel, the one-time Midland Cubs lefthander from Tonawanda, New York, for whom a strike might be a blessing in disguise.

"I haven't thrown a ball all spring and I still haven't been able to find what's causing the soreness in my elbow. I go in for another test this week, but they've got to do something with it. I'm out of options so they can't send me back to Wichita...I just don't know what they'll do...and a strike just might provide the lifesaving time he needs."

Cougars, Eagles nab 5-4A wins

Abilene and Abilene Cooper took District 5-4A baseball victories Tuesday to stay in first place with Midland Lee in the first half of the race.

Cooper took a 4-1 victory over the Big Spring Steers while Abilene downed San Angelo Central, 7-3.

The Cougars, Rebels and Eagles are all 4-1 in league play going into Saturday's games.

Kyle Stuard pitched for Cooper and aided his own cause with a triple while Eddie Locke struck out 10 Bobcats in leading Abilene last San Angelo.

Two strikes on agenda

DALLAS (AP) — Taking dead aim at management's wallet, the Major League Players Association has called not one, but two strikes against baseball.

And the surprising part is that neither of them is coming on Opening Day, which had seemed to be the logical target. Instead of endangering the start of the regular season, the players chose a two-pronged attack that they hope will do the greatest possible economic damage to the owners.

The owners, however, struck back at the players' pocketbooks, saying they would leave training camps open but refusing to pay meal money, allowances and hotel costs.

The players said Tuesday they would cancel the final 92 games of the spring training exhibition schedule and then they promised that unless a new Basic Agreement is negotiated by midnight on May 22, they not play games starting the following day.

The canceled exhibitions include lucrative intrastate series in California between the Angels and the Los Angeles Dodgers, and in Texas between the Rangers and Houston Astros. And, for their second strike date, the players chose the weekend before Memorial Day, traditionally one of baseball's largest revenue periods.

"We're trying to hurt them in the pocketbook as deeply as we can," said Mike Marshall, who doubles as player rep for the Minnesota Twins and the American League. "We refuse to allow them to generate any more money before Opening Day."

"I'll be on strike Wednesday and I'll be off strike on Opening Day," Marshall said.

Many players had expressed a sentiment for striking immediately rather than waiting until the season is under way.

Robnett working for 5-4A meet

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Sports Writer

With the District 5-4A track meet only a week away, Midland Lee and Midland High will hold a practice meet at Memorial Stadium Thursday at 3:30 p.m. And there are still some questions to be answered.

For instance, Midland High's Jeff Robnett, a 5-4A sprinter of note, has begun running again after a foot collapsed on him at Pecos during the second meet of the year. Robnett may not run Thursday but MHS track coach Johnny Williams says that Jeff has started a workout schedule. The layoff has hurt Robnett's chances for the 5-4A meet, but there is still hope that he can nail down another regional berth for the Bulldogs.

And at Midland Lee things are not quite as desperate, but they are trying to figure out just what individual event to place talented Phil Carleton, who has won points in three events this year. They would also like to find a way to score some more points in the field events, an almost must if they are to find a way to defend the 5-4A track title they won a year ago with the most talented Rebel team in history.

LEE COACH Sam Volpe stated this week that Carleton will probably be entered in the District 5-4A 200 meters. "It's really a tough decision to make. We think his chances at district would be better in the 200 meters than the 400, but it will be a different story when the regionals roll around," Volpe said.

Carleton is also a mainstay on both Lee relay teams, but Volpe is trying to decide whether to run him third or at anchor on the mile relay team. Volpe is looking at Kevin Harper as the possible anchor man.

Lee will also keep an eye on hurdler David Piccolo, who has been week the past week or two due to sickness. Piccolo has not performed well in the last two meets, but he is a major threat in both hurdles and the Rebels need points from Piccolo next week.

Midland High has few questions concerning David Simmons in the shot put and discus and Billy Taylor in the 200 and 100. Both have been winners this season and Simmons is regarded as having a good shot at a state discus title this year. However, one only has to remember what happened to Simmons last year in the district meet when he failed to win a regional berth after a left handers wind skunked him. MHS' James Lary was one that benefitted from the ill wind that blew last year, and he should be working hard after knowing what can happen in a 5-4A track event.

SIMMONS WON two discus and one shot put title over the weekend. He had a 187-9 at San Angelo for his best throw of the year and he set a meet record at Hobbs with a 181-11 1/2 and won the Hobbs' shot put with a 58-10. Lary placed third in both events at Hobbs.

Taylor placed third at Hobbs, but is considered as having good shots at winning regional berths in both the 100 and 200 meters at the 5-4A meet in Abilene next week. Taylor's 10-6 is one of the top times in West Texas in the 100, but he has not run the 200 meters in three weeks.

Lee's Arthur Williams is another young sprinter, a junior like Taylor, who is expected to be in the fight for a 200 and 100-meter regional berth. He has come a long way in his first track season. Lee also hopes miler Robert Scholer can return to his 4:24 form in the 1600 meters.

Midland High's Jerry Zachery, who got off to a slow start with a hip injury, is rounding into form in the high hurdles and won his first race of the year at Hobbs last weekend with his best time of 14.6. Bruce Fisher also won his first race of the season with a 42.1 in the intermediate hurdles.

Lee would also like to see some improvement from Michael O'Neal in both the high hurdles and long jump. In San Angelo, O'Neal had a jump good enough for third place, but was called for a bad foul for rolling out of the pits, not a violation. He did get in the high hurdle finals and is improving.

JAY MOTTER is improving in the pole vault with his best of 12-6 last week and Jim Kemper has had a 13-3 this year for the Bulldogs. Both will have to improve on those marks before the district meet.

And there are always a few surprises along the way in the district meet. It sometimes brings out the best and worst of the worst and best. Andrews' fine track team may join the action, making it a triangular meet, but as of Tuesday afternoon, it was not known if the Mustangs would participate or not.

Minnesota owns best spring mark

Rob Wilfong's two-run triple in the eighth inning lifted Minnesota to a 5-3 win over the Chicago White Sox Tuesday, giving the Twins six last-inning victories in the exhibition season.

The Twins' 15-6 exhibition record is the best in the major leagues. Reliever Doug Corbett pitched two perfect innings to get credit for the victory.

Two games — Toronto versus St. Louis and the New York Mets versus Cincinnati — were cancelled due to rain.

Carney Lansford and Tom Donohue drove in two runs apiece and Bobby Grich had four hits to lead the California Angels to a 9-6 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Lansford homered with no one on base in the fifth, singled in the seventh, and added another base hit to drive in one of five Angel runs in the eighth inning.

Dave Revering belted his third home run of the exhibition season and Mike Heath hit two triples as the Oakland A's defeated Seattle 8-3 in a game stopped in the fifth inning because of high winds.

Fred Lynn's sacrifice fly drove in a first-inning unearned run that gave the Boston Red Sox a 1-0 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Rick Sweet's pinch-hit homer in the ninth inning snapped a 4-4 tie and powered the San Diego Padres to a 6-4 win over the San Francisco Giants.

Spurs, Rockets open NBA playoffs in Houston tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — With roller coaster regular seasons behind them, the Houston Rockets and San Antonio Spurs start over tonight in the first game of their best-of-three National Basketball Association playoff mini-series in The Summit.

Houston's Del Harris, completing his first season as head coach, watched the Rockets career through a season that was filled with injuries to key personnel from start to finish.

The Spurs, the defending NBA Eastern Conference Central Division champions, likewise sputtered under two coaches. At one point, the Spurs lost eight consecutive games and then put together seven victories in nine games to clinch a playoff berth.

"This is my time of the year because this is definitely for the money. I don't care who they put against me. I'm going to be ready. And whoever guards me had better be ready."

San Antonio Coach Bob Bass, who replaced Doug Moe during the season, said Houston's home-court advantage won't be that important in a brief series.

"The home-court advantage is not as prevalent in the playoffs as it is during the regular season," Bass said. "During the season, it's always a two-or-three-game trip. This is just over there and back."

Harris, who has had to improve his starting lineup throughout the season because of injuries, expects center Moses Malone to be back in the lineup tonight despite an ankle sprain suffered in the regular season finale against Indiana.

Now, both teams are ready for the new season.

"I understand the reason we had the season we had," said Spurs forward George Gervin, the NBA scoring champion for the third consecutive year. "That's why it doesn't bother me. We had our chance to sit on top of the Central Division for two years, now we have to regain the crown another way."

That has been the story of the Rockets all season and the major reason they did not equal last year's 47-35 record, Harris said.

"There was nothing I could do," said Harris, whose Rockets finished 41-41. "My moves were primarily dictated by our injury situation."

hit by Marl Clifton, a wild pitch by Doug McLean and sacrifice fly off the bat of Decker.

The Bulldogs scored one run in the sixth when Portillo legged out an infield hit, stole his second base of the game and came home after Ismael Tavezze bobbled Bobby Stovall's single in right.

THEN CAME the seventh inning. Russell Wickman was safe on an infield hit and Frank Garramone reached safely on another error by Tavezze. Shawn Mowles, pinch-hitting for Paul Cox, singled sharply past first to score Wickman, making it 5-3. Darrin Matlock came in to hit for McLean and went down swinging, but Portillo scored pinch-runner Teddy Bartley on a grounder with Mowles alertly breaking up a possible double play. Zachery's triple tied the game. Odessa scored a run in the top of the ninth off Steve Miller. Weatherford tripled past Gann in center when Gann tried to make a shoestring catch and scored on Sanchez' sacrifice fly to left for a 6-5 lead, but the Pack wasn't dead yet.

In the bottom of the ninth, Mowles singled past second when Weatherford broke the wrong way on the ball. Miller walked and Portillo singled. Tavezze' third error enabled pinch-runner Justin Morett to score, setting up Zachery's game-winning hit. OHS Coach Ronnie White brought in an extra infielder, giving the Bronchos only two outfielders, but the ball skipped over Weatherford's glove and Miller scored the winning run.

MILLER PICKED up the victory in relief of McLean to give MHS a 6-7 season record. OHS, meanwhile, has lost eight in a row after going 5-0 in pre-district play and the Red Hosses are 0-5 in 5-4A competition.

Tewell, Pate trying again

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Doug Tewell and Jerry Pate, the winner and loser in a playoff showdown for the Heritage title, will try it again this week in the $250,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

"I'm still in a state of shock," the 30-year-old Tewell said after scoring his first career victory in a one-hole playoff Monday in the rain-delayed final at Hilton Head Island, S.C.

"I don't feel like I got beat. I feel like I beat myself," said Pate, who hit one in the water and made bogey on the playoff hole.

Those two head a surprisingly strong field for the Greensboro event that gets started Thursday on the 6,984-yard, par 72 Forest Oaks Country Club course.

The old event often is bypassed by golf's more illustrious performers who take the time to put the final touches on their preparations for next week's Masters.

This time, however, the 144-man field includes six of the top 10 money-winners for the year.

Strike is confusing

By The Associated Press

Tuesday's decision by major league baseball players for an on-again, off-again strike is as confusing as Abbott and Costello's "Who's on first" comedy routine.

The Major League Players Association executive board, in a move aimed directly at the wallets of baseball's owners, voted unanimously to cancel the remaining 92 exhibition games but to return to the field on opening day, April 9.

The board also voted to allow players to stay in training camp and to play intrasquad games until the regular season begins. But that will be up to the owners, and that's where the confusion begins.

Capitals capture 6-2 ice victory

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The Washington Capitals are in "last place" in the National Hockey League and doing their best to stay there.

In this case, last place is the final spot among the 16 teams that will qualify for the postseason playoffs — an honor the Capitals have yet to achieve in their five-year history.

Tuesday night, Robert Picard assisted on three third-period goals to pace Washington's 6-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins, a triumph that kept the Capitals in the race for the Stanley Cup playoffs.

In other NHL games Tuesday, Toronto edged Hartford 5-4, Buffalo beat

Atlanta 5-2, St. Louis downed Chicago 5-2, Philadelphia and Quebec played a 3-3 tie, the New York Islanders and Minnesota tied 1-1, Vancouver shut out Edmonton 5-0 and Los Angeles nipped Colorado 4-3.

Bengt Gustafsson gave Washington a 1-0 lead in the opening period after taking Rolf Edberg's pass from behind the net. The Caps dominated the first session, outshooting the Penguins 14-4.

Washington increased its lead 62 seconds into the second period as Paul Mulvey knocked in Mike Gartner's pass. After Pittsburgh's Dale Tallon tallied on a deflection of Rick Kehoe's shot, Edberg pushed in a puck that had stopped on the goal line.

With a little help in the sixth from Permian in the form of an error by leftfielder Jimmy Morris, the Rebels went ahead for the first time, 4-3.

The uprising began on Koonce's single up the middle. He was lifted for pinchrunner Ricky Wright, who promptly swiped second. Two outs later, Velarde delivered an RBI single to left, which Morris muffed, allowing Wright to score from second. On the play, Velarde hustled to third, and later he rode home Gilliland's single to left.

LEE'S BIGGEST run, however, didn't cross the dish until the seventh.

The groundwork was laid when Perez, who finished the day 3-for-4, lashed a leadoff single to left. He went to third when Cartwright drilled a double into the leftfield corner. With one down, designated hitter Jeff Hicks looped a how-did-that-one-avoid-getting-caught single between the Permian shortstop and left and center fielders, scoring Perez from third.

Permian, which got three of its run as gifts from the Rebels, finally earned one in the seventh, but it was only enough to give Lee partisans a slight scare.

Mike Williams pounded a leadoff single and then flew to third when Fowler blasted a ground-rule double. Williams scored on a wild pitch by Koonce, but Fowler was left standing on third after Koonce fanned the last two batters.

Centerfielder Barry Corley, who collected three hits, made a big defensive play for Lee in the seventh with a running catch of what appeared to be a hit from the bat of Richard Hanfeld.

But that seemed to be the exception rather than the rule on this day, one that saw the Rebels more lucky than good.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Randy Wessinger, 21, a University of Arkansas football player, pleaded innocent Tuesday to a charge of theft of property in connection with the theft of a pizza from a delivery man.

Wessinger was arrested near a dormitory when "one of the officers saw a young man trying to run up and take the pizza from the pizza delivery man," according to the campus police report.

Who will Ali fight?

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The question is who Muhammad Ali will come back against. The fact is Larry Holmes is the No. 1 heavyweight in the world today.

Holmes rules the World Boxing Council share of the planet as heavyweight champion. He has won all 34 of his fights and has scored knockouts in all six of his defenses, the last being an eight-round battering of big Leroy Jones Monday night at Caesars Palace.

Weaver's record is 21-9. He has lost a 12-round decision to Jones and he was stopped in the 12th round last June 23 after a tough effort against Holmes.

Ali says he will come out of retirement against Weaver and then fight Holmes.

Working For Better Schools

He is constantly working to make our schools better and more effective...and he does a good job for all of us. James Ramsoure believes that schools must stress the basic, fundamental skills of reading, language and mathematics, and develop a sound vocational program which fits the needs of those students who do not plan to go to college. Fashion designer to show unique collection here

By SANDI BREEDEN
Lifestyle Writer

For a woman who flunked high school homemaking because her apron had to be ripped out three times by the teacher, Sheila Davlin, fashion designer, has reached a height of success in the clothing industry probably thought impossible by that teacher.

Ms. Davlin is president of the Sheila Davlin, Inc., of Opelousas, La., which specializes in unique clothing for the woman who not only wants to be different, but is.

"This collection is for the gal who is different and doesn't want to be like everyone else. She is her own person doing her own thing," said Ms. Davlin, another of three. "This collection is not for everyone."

All of the clothing and accessories are made of fabric from 20 to 150 years old and all of it is from a foreign country. China and India are the designer's favorite places to get fabrics.

"WHEN WE GO to a foreign country, we do not go where all the tourists go. We go to the back streets and deal with the common people of the country," said the tall, slender woman.

Ms. Davlin said she does not have a hard time conversing with these people even though she does not know their language. "Most people speak a little English, especially when it comes to money," she said with a laugh.

Some of the fabrics she has had shipped to the United States for her clothing industry include ancient wedding robes from China, silk and satin court robes from Japan and hand-embroidered silks and brocades from Nepal.

Ms. Davlin travels to different countries several times a year in order to get the fabric needed for the collection. The Davlin clothing industry does not use American fabrics as a rule. "The Americana look does not fit in with the collection," said the designer who wears only clothes from her collection.

EVEN WITH THE beautiful, antique fabrics used in the collection, the Davlin clothing industry has gone a step further in design. Every piece made in the collection is hand made by women living in Opelousas in what is known as a cottage craft industry, said the designer.

"Most of the women in Opelousas who do our sewing are housewives who do the work at their homes. They are not hassled at all to produce the product. When they come to pick up the fabric and design, they know whatever they get must be completed within a week."

Silk plays a very important part in the Davlin collection and the designer says silk is not as fragile as most people seem to think. "Sometimes the silk has age stains or holes in it and we have to go around that," said Ms. Davlin. "Silk is a very strong material. People always used to wash it and you still can, using the gentle cycle in the washing machine."

The Davlin collection also features accessories such as hand-carved ivory jewelry, handbags, covers for paperback books, address books and even telephone books. Headache pillows filled with potpourri are another unique part of the collection. Quilts and porcelain are an important part of the collection and antiques soon will be. As with the rest of the collection, each is an authentic one-of-a-kind-creation.

THIS ENERGY-BOUND designer obviously has a good thing going. In October she was named Guest Designer at the Dallas Fashion Market and she has been nominated as one of 24 nominees for the "Prex de Cachet". This award is like the Coty award, or in the acting business, the Academy Award, is in the second year of its existence.

The Davlin collection is available throughout the United States, Canada and the Caribbean Islands. Twenty shops throughout the U.S. feature the entire Davlin collection. However many shops have only the accessories, said the designer who on her first trip to West Texas, was fascinated with tumbleweeds when she saw them for the first time Tuesday.

She added that although the collection is available throughout the United States, the Davlin industry is very selective about the shops in which they are featured. The unique collection will be shown at The Shop for Pappagallos in the Oak Ridge Square at Wadley and Garfield Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Ms. Davlin will also be present.

Featured in the Midland show are dresses, handbags, heart- and shell-shaped pillows, headache pillows filled with potpourri, porcelain, Hina dolls and two quilts. One of the quilts is titled "Birds in Flight" and features a background in red silk embroidered with birds from spun gold thread.

The antique buff said she likes to make personal appearances and Midlanders are encouraged to meet her and see the collection.

FIVE MIDLANDERS, the Rev. Sam Hulsey, Sharon Holman, Gail Wilson, Judy Jones and Linda Hammer recently attended a regional meeting of the National Hospice Organization in San Antonio. Hospice Care is a program stressing compassionate care for terminally ill patients and their families.

Discussing her work as a fashion designer at the Petro-Engineer's Wives style show held Tuesday at the Holiday Inn Country Villa is Sheila Davlin of Opelousas, La. Ms. Davlin travels worldwide several times a year to select the between 20 and 150-year-old fabrics used in her collection which features one-of-a-kind-creations. South Korean gives program

Jung Ja Simpson of South Korea presented a slide program on her last visit to her native country at a meeting of the American Association of University Women's International Club.

The group met in the home of Maya Grimes of Japan. Co-hostess was Nita Ivy.

Ms. Simpson said that enormous changes have taken place since she left her native home in 1965. "The threat of war with communist North Korea is very near and real to the people of this little country," she said. "Many tunnels have been built by the north and the south. The people are living in readiness to defend themselves at anytime."

She explained that South Korea is one of the world's poorest nations and that the cost of living is very high. In addition, the country has little oil production and imports all of its oil from Saudi Arabia.

"However, South Korea has oil refineries along its coast and has begun some offshore drilling," she said.

Mrs. Simpson said that, because of the extreme energy shortage, the cities are dark at night. Personal cars are stored in garages, as only official vehicles have access to gasoline which is available there at about $4 a gallon.

Progress in some ways is like the United States and is affecting the cities, too, she said. "Century old buildings have been moved to build old tunnels for subways. These ultra-modern cities are crowded with high-rise apartment buildings. The air is heavy with smog and pollution. Huge department stores offer a variety of international goods."

She said that on Sunday, parts of the city streets are blocked off so that children and their families can enjoy their bicycles without fear of danger from the fast-moving traffic.

She said that the government supplies free education only through the sixth grade and that higher education is paid for by the parents of the children.

"Rice and fish are the main source of food as they are a natural resource," she said. "Greenhouses are filled with fruits, vegetables and flowers. Only in the last 10 years have they started to raise milk cows and milk is a nearly new food. In fact, it costs more than coke," she said.

April 16 will be the next meeting date for the club. Anne Palfreyman, 1508 McDonald, formerly of England, is hostess.

Colleen Scury, 2509 Humble, will host the annual picnic May 23.

AT WIT'S END

Too much optimism

By ERMA BOMBECK

Boy, I thought I knew what optimism was all about until the presidential primaries got underway.

No one loses. I call it "depressive winning." If a Republican candidate gets only 3 percent of the vote, he grins broadly and says, "Those votes represent a real breakthrough. They came from a predominantly Democratic area. I have obviously made inroads."

On the other hand, if a Democrat does poorly at the polls he makes the victory sign, douses himself in champagne, and says, "That is a 5 percent increase in the number of votes I got four years ago. I think there's a momentum going."

All this optimism leaves us with eight candidates all building log cabins — and carriers of depressive winning that could cause an epidemic of optimism.

Depressive winning gets on my nerves. When I am wallowing in self-pity and have no reason to believe that things will get better, just let me alone. I do not want to be cheered up!

I play tennis with a woman who invented depressive winning. Brenda is never depressed over a dead tree, a CLOSED ON MONDAY or OUT OF GAS sign. She always finds goodness somehow in a tax audit, a call from school, or black smoke coming out of her exhaust.

It's tacky, but the rest of us can't resist trying to trap her in a situation for which she has no optimism.

"My washer went out yesterday."

Brenda: "Thank goodness it wasn't on a weekend."

"My son just brought his roommate home."

Brenda: "Thank goodness, it's a boy."

"His roommate is a girl."

Brenda: "You must have a great relationship for him to be so open."

"My husband went out for pizza Saturday and never came back."

Brenda: "At least he didn't ruin your week."

"The rabbit died."

Brenda: "He probably had no family."

"I saw a pregnant moth in my closet."

Brenda: "She's probably dieting."

Believe me, the first presidential candidate who stands up and sobs, "I lost and I'm depressed as heck about it" . . . gets my vote!

Dough art creates exciting scenes

By PATSY GORDON
Lifestyle Writer

Donna Murphy demonstrates the painting of dough art. She is preparing for the next sale of the Paint Daubers slated May 2-3 at Dellwood Plaza Mall. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

She "couldn't put it down," so she put it all together into a profit making proposition.

Midlander Donna Murphy heard her friends say a lot that their children made bread dough figures in the Scouts or other group activities, so she decided to give it a try.

She finds it especially good to use for Easter decorations. "I try to be as original as possible when working with dough. It's very easy with this medium. I like doing things with my hands, and your imagination can really go wild," said the talented woman, a member of the Paint Daubers Club.

She also attempts to recycle materials that are normally discarded. "Jars are a good example. It's surprising how many we throw away," she philosophized.

Mrs. Murphy gives her directions for making the dough, but points out it is difficult to give exact measurements as they vary on different designs made.

"I mix up a batch of dough consisting of flour, salt and water. The dough then is worked on the metal lid of the jar into different designs."

For Easter, Mrs. Murphy made a lid containing dough that was colored with green food coloring and pressed through a tea strainer to make the grass. "This is grass on which three small rabbits sit facing each other. The rabbits' bodies consist of balls of dough placed together; a large one for the body, a medium for the head and a small for the cotton tail. The ears are small strips of dough."

She explains that all dough is attached by wetting the adjoining piece with water. Small egg shaped balls are scattered around in the grass.

The next step is to place the lid in the oven and cook the dough at a very low temperature for a couple of hours, said Mrs. Murphy. "When the dough is completely dry and hard, the eggs and faces on the rabbits are painted. The lid is ready to be coated with a plastic sealer to protect it from moisture."

The exact directions for making the bread dough can be found on salt boxes, in women's magazines or arts and crafts publications.

Mrs. Murphy suggests putting the decorated lid back on the jar to "make great canisters for candy and other things."

The lids, however, are not limited to rabbits, she said. "I have also made rose jar lids, and vegetable and strawberry covered lids." She also has many ideas for Christmas lids to hold all kinds of goodies that are served at that time of year.

"Bread dough can be worked into figures on wooden plaques, free standing figures or my favorite, a hanging ornament," Donna explained.

The ideas are limitless, she said. "Jewelry also is made from forms of dough. As an example, I have made dough crosses for necklaces which were used as awards for children's choirs. As a special project, I made a wall hanging of the Holy Family for the minister of St. Mark's United Methodist Church, my church."

As a member of the Paint Daubers, "I have really found people appreciate handmade items."

Donna and her husband, John, are the parents of two daughters, Heather, 4, and Kimberly, 2. The girls help their mother with the dough craft, while her husband creates with bargello and needlepoint.

Mrs. Murphy's other hobbies include sewing and macrame. She will have samples of her talents displayed at the Paint Daubers sale slated May 2-3 at Dellwood Plaza Mall. Other members will have available different kinds of arts and crafts at the event, to which the public is invited.

Judge rejects group's bid to halt Laetrile tests at clinic

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A judge has rejected a pro-Laetrile group's bid to temporarily halt tests of the controversial cancer treatment on patients at the Mayo Clinic.

U.S. District Judge William Graham said in denying the temporary restraining order Monday that the Committee for Freedom of Choice in Cancer Therapy failed to show there would be irreparable harm if the treatments continued.

The Laetrile organization and founder Robert W. Bradford of San Francisco filed the suit Friday alleging the National Cancer Institute and the Rochester, Minn., clinic conspired to "ensure failure" of the tests for toxicity by using what they claim is impure and potentially toxic amygdalin, known as Laetrile.

Last week, Dr. Saul Shephartz, acting director of NCI's treatment division, said the suit was without basis and that the agency is "fully satisfied with the quality of material we are using."

The suit had alleged that NCI officials "have engaged in a course of conduct designed to pre-determine negative results of human testing of amygdalin; to prevent plaintiffs from having access to full information on testing and to conspire to discredit amygdalin as a control prevention of cancer."

The complaint alleged Mayo and the head of its cancer treatment center Dr. Charles Moertel conspired with NCI to refuse to accept "pure" Laetrile that proponents offered for use without cost.

The clinic began on March 24 treating the first of six terminally ill cancer patients with the controversial compound made with apricot pits in studies to determine if it is toxic. Three patients will receive oral treatments and three will receive injections.

Between 250 and 300 volunteer patients are to be treated at the Mayo Clinic, Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, the University of California at Los Angeles and the University of Arizona at Tucson.

Laetrile is a trademark for a substance derived from the chemical amygdalin, found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds.

Many women are sterilized because of VD, says center

ATLANTA (AP) — An inflammation caused by venereal disease is sterilizing 40,000 to 50,000 women per year in the United States, according to doctors at the national Center for Disease Control.

"There is no question that we are seeing the signs of an infertility epidemic," Dr. James Curran, chief of operational research in the CDC's VD control division, said Tuesday.

Called pelvic inflammatory disease, or PID, the disorder is an inflammation of a woman's Fallopian tubes, which carry eggs from the ovaries to the womb. The tubes can be blocked and sometimes they and associated reproductive organs must be removed.

Curran said the rise in PID cases and resulting infertility had been predicted by the CDC because of the increased VD rate.

"Today's PID problem is tomorrow's infertility epidemic," he said. The sad part, Curran said, is that PID occurs mainly in women ages 18 to 24, who initially do not worry about infertility. A few years later when they want to have children, they discover they can't, he said.

PID is becoming an increasingly serious problem around the world because of the upsurge in venereal disease during the mid-1960s and 1970s, said Dr. Ronald K. St. John, deputy director of the VD control division.

"There are other problems associated with PID, but VD is the main cause," he said. St. John said 15 percent to 17 percent of all women infected by gonorrhea, a major type of venereal disease, will develop PID. Of those, about 10 percent will become sterile, he said.

PID is mainly a complication of gonorrhea and another type of VD known as non-specific gonococcal urethritis, St. John said.

The CDC is hosting an international conference this week on PID to discuss the problem. About 500 scientists from 52 nations are attending the three-day conference, which began Tuesday.

St. John said PID has reached epidemic proportions in Third World countries, so the conference has attracted "a lot of people ... from countries in Africa and Asia."

In the United States, gonorrhea rates tripled from 1965 to 1975, according to St. John. Although the rate has leveled off since 1975, the disease still occurs more frequently than in the early 1960s, he said.

In addition to infertility, PID can cause pain, menstrual disorders and ectopic pregnancy, in which the fetus starts growing in the Fallopian tubes. Ectopic pregnancy can lead to the rupturing of the tubes and other serious problems and can jeopardize the life of the mother, the CDC officials said.

DEAR ABBY

She won't cut the cord this way

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm 16 and pregnant by a married man. (I'll call him Donny.) When we fell in love, Donny said he was separated from his wife but his divorce was coming through "any day," and then we'd be married, so I really wanted to have his baby.

I just found out that Donny is still living with his wife, and there is no divorce in the works. Abby, I never knew love could turn to hate so fast. I'm five months along and now it's too late for an abortion. I don't want to keep this baby now, and I never want to see Donny again.

Donny's wife called me and said she was sorry I was in such a mess. Then she asked if I would let her and Donny have my baby. She said they would pay all my expenses and I could go on with my life like nothing happened.

What do you think of the idea, Abby? No way will I keep this baby, and I don't want to be involved with Donny anymore. Please tell me what to do. — MESSED UP AT 16.

DEAR MESSED: You say you don't want to keep the baby and you don't want to be involved with Donny anymore. A wise decision. Feeling as you do, contact a licensed adoption agency. If you give your child to Donny and his wife, you can expect to be involved with Donny forever.

DEAR ABBY: Four months ago a co-worker fixed me up with her brother (I'll call him Sam), who lost his wife about a year before. I'm a 56-year-old divorcee. Well, Sam and I hit it off beautifully. He's 62, very attractive and has no financial worries.

We have a wonderful time together. I especially appreciate Sam's patient, gentlemanly behavior. Almost every other man I've dated since my divorce has tried to rush me into bed after the first date. Sam never tried to go beyond a good-night kiss.

Sam's sister told me yesterday that Sam is really crazy about me and would ask me to marry him tomorrow, but surgery he had six years ago ended his sex life.

How can I let Sam know that I don't give a hoot about that? — CAPRICORN.

DEAR CAP: Tell Sam's sister.

DEAR ABBY: A minister wrote to say how easy it was for him to get into the homes of total strangers and urged you to warn readers to be more careful. His letter prompts this response:

Ten years ago we invited the public to purchase paper products directly from our company, which is a wholesale distribution concern.

We accepted personal and company checks with demand to verify identifications. Over a 10-year period, we processed over 150,000 checks of which only 14 were no good! (Our total loss was less than $300.)

We are convinced that 99.9 per cent of the people are honest and law-abiding, and our experience proved us correct.

What a shame that the news-media report only on this small percentage of unethical and dishonest people—MINNEAPOLIS BUSINESSMAN.

DEAR BUSINESSMAN: IT'S NOT "news" when people obey the law, love one another and live happily ever after. Crime, corruption, violence and misfortune ARE NEWS.

I, like you, am inclined to expect the best from people, but when you leave your warehouse I'll bet you not only lock the door, you turn on the alarm.

(Are there questions you can't ask your parents? Get Abby's new booklet: WHAT TEEN-AGERS OUGHT TO KNOW. Drugs, sex and alcohol are plainly discussed. Send $2 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby in care of this newspaper.

Pharaoh commanded flood

Did you now that an Egyptian pharaoh could cause the Nile to flood? Well, he didn't really cause this to happen on command. Nor did he possess supernatural power, utter incantations, or twitch his nose to trigger this event. But just as sure as Cleopatra wore heavy eye shadow, the Nile River flooded every year in a predictable manner. Ancient Egyptian agriculture was based on this annual flooding. Since almanac makers and meteorologists were in short supply, the pharaoh's staff included a court astronomer who observed that the flooding began when the star Sirius was the last star to appear above the horizon, just before dawn!

Holy Week visitors cross border in record numbers

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Holy Week travelers from Mexico are streaming across international bridges in traditional, large numbers, immigration officers said Tuesday.

"It's big, believe me. I don't know the exact number because we only count by the month. But there's more this year than last," said A.A. Lachowsky, immigration supervisor at the Brownsville Gateway Bridge.

The annual trek began Friday for visitors crossing the Rio Grande to spend the holiday with friends, relatives or at shopping centers. Most will return the day after Easter.

An estimated 3,000 to 5,000 persons will come across at Laredo each day this week, said L.T. Barr, Immigration and Naturalization Service supervisor.

The Holy Week trip is a vacation for most people, but it started out of necessity earlier this century when the Mexican Revolution of 1910 curtailed the powers of the Roman Catholic Church. Clergymen to this day cannot wear religious garments outside church buildings.

"During the Mexican Revolution when priests and members of the church were persecuted, there was a great migration to Texas and California during Holy Week," said the Rev. Richard Shirley, chancellor of the Diocese of Corpus Christi.

"Here, they could celebrate the last days of Christ, without fear of persecution. It became a religious tradition and every year there is another, great migration."

He said as many as 200 Mexican visitors attend daily Mass at the Corpus Christi Cathedral.

Immigration officials, faced with budget cuts, said they are trying to keep all bridge lanes open. The agency's overtime funds were cut and the number of Sunday and holiday inspectors reduced.

"Holy Week has been traditionally the heaviest week of the year," said LaVerne Nielsen, assistant supervisor at the Hidalgo-Reynosa bridge, south of McAllen.

Merchants look forward to heavy sales this week. They reacted vigorously against both INS budget cutbacks and a proposed change in border crossing permits.

The INS wanted to do away with a 72-hour permit and instead require Mexican visitors to wait up to three months for a "counterfeit-proof" card.

The agency abandoned plans for new permits and will continue honoring the temporary cards.

The Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce has prepared special signs identifying merchants who will accept pesos this week.

IDABEL, Okla. (AP) — Investigators probed smoking rubble today in an effort to find out what caused a Tuesday fire that did $1 million damage to this city's only junior high school.

The Gray Junior High blaze is the latest in a string of unexplained fires that have scorched the racially troubled town.

"We've had our share of them — and then some," said Idabel Mayor Rex Helms.

Racial violence sparked by the slaying of a black youth behind a whites-only club left two more persons dead, four wounded and thousands of dollars in property damage here Jan. 20.

Since that time, several suspicious blazes have destroyed two school buildings and several businesses.

John Clary, an Oklahoma Ku Klux Klan leader, said the Tuesday fire was "most definitely" related to the racial turmoil. Clary, 20, of Moore said "klansmen probably will be in Idabel Saturday either to demonstrate or distribute literature."

"He wouldn't be welcome as far as the city's concerned," Helms said.

Helms said local investigators have been looking into the "unusual amount" of unexplained fires since January, but he said there isn't any evidence the blazes were linked to racial unrest.

The pre-dawn blaze Tuesday destroyed a section of Gray Junior High despite the efforts of local firemen and firefighters from Broken Bow, Hugo and Valliant.

Witnesses said the wind-whipped flames were swirling through the second story of the block-long, two-story brick building when the first trucks arrived.

Fire Marshal Mike Green said the fire apparently started in an auditorium.

The firemen managed to save a newer classroom building, the school gymnasium and cafeteria after the fire was reported at 4:30 a.m.

Schools were closed this week for spring break. School officials said classes will resume Monday in the sections of the junior high building that escaped damage.

Grades nine through 12 have been housed in a new building at another location since 1978.

Idabel Fire Chief Bill Gilbreath, who said the damage estimate in the fire was $1 million, said Tuesday night it was "still so hot we can't get in there and do any investigation."

"So far, we haven't determined any cause on it," he said.

A vacant school building on the other side of Idabel was heavily damaged by fire Feb. 6.

KKK discussing Idabel trip

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma Ku Klux Klan members are scheduled to meet tonight to discuss a possible Saturday trip to Idabel.

Klan Kludge John Clary, 20, of Moore said Tuesday he and fellow Klansmen will decide whether to stage a march or simply hand out literature.

"If we get a big turnout, then we can have some kind of demonstration," he said. "Otherwise, we'll just be robbing out and handing out literature."

Idabel's junior high school burned Tuesday, and Clary alleged the fire was "most definitely" related to the far southeastern Oklahoma town's past racial problems.

Fire investigators haven't determined whether arson was involved in that fire.

Idabel was the site earlier this year of racial turmoil that left two persons dead, a number injured and thousands of dollars in property damage.

Clary angered Iranian students by passing out Klan pamphlets at Oscar Rose Junior College in Midwest City earlier Tuesday.

He said he might try to get Texas Klansmen to help organize the white supremacy group's activities in Idabel.

Campaign gives sober Americans chance to laugh

DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a year which, so far, has given Americans very little to applaud or laugh about, presidential candidates are coming up with lines that are drawing cheers and getting a few guffaws.

And while audience reaction to good one-liners is a tenuous test of the mood of the nation, studying it is more fun than public opinion polling.

Is President Carter in political trouble? He ought to hear voters splitting their sides laughing at jokes told at his expense.

GOP front-runner Ronald Reagan refers to the Republican campaign debates and wonders what it would be like if the Democrats got together:

"There'd be Jerry Brown, who's on both sides of every issue," a line that draws a few snickers. "There'd be Teddy Kennedy, who's on the wrong side of every issue." Loud laughter and cheers. "And there'd be Jimmy Carter, who doesn't know what the issues are." At that, audiences invariably explode with laughter and cheers.

Another sure-fire line used by Reagan is his reference to President Carter's first fireside chat: "You remember, he wore a sweater, which prompted someone to observe that he was the first president to begin his term by pulling the wool over his own eyes." — in farm communities and in big cities, they love it.

The Kennedys always have preferred jokes aimed at themselves and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy holds to that tradition. He likes to tell union audiences about his first Senate race and how, during a broadcast debate, his opponent turned to him in the closing seconds and said, "Kennedy, you've never worked a day in your life." Time ran out before Kennedy could reply. The next day he was campaigning at a plant gate when a burly worker approached him and said, "I heard what they said about you last night and let me tell you, you haven't missed a thing."

What are the issues that excite audiences?

One of the best applause lines in American politics for the past several years has been a strong, clear statement in support of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment. No matter what the region, whether the area is rural or urban, whether he is in a state that has ratified the amendment or not, a politician knows he can get a big cheer by declaring his support for ERA.

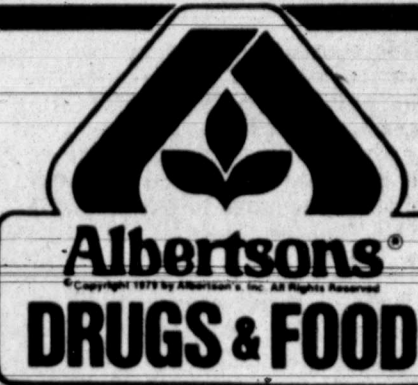

But the cheers for ERA don't seem to have moved the amendment any closer to ratification by the states.

The draft draws a big cheer no matter what position a candidate takes. Audiences leap to their feet applauding when Reagan or Kennedy declares his opposition to Carter's registration proposal. The reaction is just as favorable when Vice President Walter F. Mondale or George Bush speaks in favor of registration.

Kennedy always gets a good response from a line critical of Carter's decision to lift price controls on domestic oil. He says the move was justified by the president on the ground it would increase production. Kennedy then notes that Mobil Oil Co. purchased Montgomery Ward and then delights audiences by asking: "And how much oil do you think Mobil Oil Co. has found drilling in the aisles of Montgomery Ward department stores?"

British comedy at Theatre Midland filled with laughs

Laughter filled Theatre Midland as the action in the play, "No Sex Please, We're British," began to unfold. And it didn't stop until the lights went out and the show was over.

The plot revolves around a newly wed couple, played by Debra Eden and Bob Hammond, who inadvertently get on the mailing list of a Scandinavian pornography house. The bridegroom not only works for a very proper and stately British bank but also lives above said institution. The third leading role is played by Randy Hicks, a fellow bank employee and friend who is unwillingly drawn into helping the newlyweds out of their dilemma.

This comedy, written by two Englishmen, is full of double entendres, puns and a variety of interesting characters. The lines are so good that any theatre company that couldn't pull it off should quietly fade away and leave the stage to someone else. The Theatre Midland production is well done.

Of the three principals, Hicks carries his role the best, thoroughly convincing the audience that he is, in fact, Brian Runnicles, the bumbling and put upon friend.

Miss Eden, as Frances, is a talented actress. However, in this role, she overplays her grimaces to the point that the audience is always aware she's acting. Admittedly, this comedy situation is conducive to surprised looks, side glances and hastily covered up expressions, but enough is good and too much is just too much.

Hammond, as Peter, carries his role well, selling the audience at least three-fourths of the time on the fact that he is the distraught proper British gentleman trying to get himself out of a difficult situation before his career is buried under an avalanche of falsely assumed improprieties, all the time frustrated by the knowledge that his grave is getting deeper and deeper. His British accent is well carried throughout the production.

The supporting cast does an excellent job especially Glen Thomason, as Needham the bank examiner. His performance is so classy that, were he a restaurateur, he would surely receive a four star rating.

Although the set is attractively designed, it looks more like a Texas apartment than an English flat.

— GEORGIA TEMPLE

Appearances may be deceiving and jumping to conclusions are two cliches which aptly describe what has caused, from left, Randy Hicks, as Brian Runnicles, and Bob Hammond, as Peter Hunter, to be in this precarious position in the currently running Midland Community Theatre's production of "No Sex Please, We're British." Final performances are scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. Reservations may be made by calling 682-4111 or going by the box office at 2000 W. Wadley Ave. (Staff Photo by Brian Hender-shot)

Byrne-Chicago love affair sours quickly

By SHARON COHEN

CHICAGO (AP) — It was a tempestuous affair — a woman in love with a city, its people enamored of her, their expectations piqued by fresh promises.

When Jane Margaret Byrne won the mayoral election on April 3, 1979, the city cheered her like a champion. Cabbies spotting her on the street honked their horns. People stopped to shake her hand.

"Be assured," she said on inauguration day, "that I did not become the mayor of Chicago to preside over its decline."

But a year later, the love affair has soured and decline is what many people sense in Chicago. The 82 percent mandate Mrs. Byrne brought to City Hall has crumbled. Public opinion polls indicate widespread disenchantment with the mayor.

To be sure, Mrs. Byrne, a tough-talking, poker-faced 45-year-old Irishwoman, still has supporters who regard her as a decisive, gutsy leader.

"The mayor is an extremely quick study. I found her to be a very decisive woman," said School Board President Catherine Roher.

But critics of Mrs. Byrne — dubbed "Mayor Bossy" by a newspaper columnist — call her a deceitful, mercurial and precipitous leader who has created chaos in the nation's second-largest city.

The mayor "talks first and thinks later," says Louis Masotti, a Northwestern University professor who headed her transition team. "She's got an ego a mile long and two miles thick."

"In her first year as mayor, strikes in Chicago closed schools, shut down public transportation and left the city with only bare-bones fire protection.

Chicago's once-strong credit rating has tumbled and the Democratic Party organization — the famed machine that worked so dependably in the decades when the late Mayor Richard Daley was at the controls — has broken down.

Daley, Mrs. Byrne's political mentor, built a reputation for running a stable city. But stability has disappeared since Mrs. Byrne pulled a stunning political upset by beating former Mayor Michael Bilandic and an army of patronage workers in last year's Democratic primary.

And some blame Mrs. Byrne. "Daley was a classic bureaucrat," said Milton Rakove, a political science professor at the University of Illinois' Chicago campus.

"Jane's not a good bureaucrat. Daley ran the politics like a politician. He ran the city like a mayor. Jane runs the city like a politician, not like a mayor."

way for a taxi fare increase.

She immediately found herself facing a tangle of labor, fiscal and political problems. It is how Mrs. Byrne has addressed those problems, and how she may have exacerbated them, that has kicked up so much controversy in her still-young administration.

Mrs. Byrne had campaigned on a promise to give firefighters a written contract, a change from the long-standing agreements that relied on handshakes.

One top city labor leader, who asked not to be identified, said that promise changed the tenor of contract negotiations. Talks bogged down, and firefighters struck.

"She (the mayor) has fomented labor unrest," independent Alderman Martin Oberman charged angrily.

"There's no reason on earth why that strike had to take place," said Masotti. The city, Masotti said, wanted the mayor to display "some signs of class and finesse" in her dealings with the firefighters. Instead, he said, she "confronted them."

"The mayor doesn't cajole or persuade, said Masotti. "It is all pound, pound, punch, punch, punch, hit, hit, hit."

But Mrs. Byrne's tough demeanor during the strike also earned her points. Indeed, some city officials said her confrontation tactics with the unions are essential if Chicago is to survive.

Alderman Roman Puckinski said Mrs. Byrne deserves credit for instilling a sense of fiscal responsibility lacking in previous administrations.

CBS pulls even with ABC

NEW YORK (AP) — With the World Series and the Winter Olympics down and the Academy Awards show to come, CBS has pulled even with ABC in the race for first place in the prime-time ratings.

Both networks have an average rating of 19.5 after CBS won the competition for the week ending March 30 with a rating of 20.3. CBS has managed to hang on despite ABC's broadcast of the two major sports programs.

ABC is expected to score, however, with the upcoming Oscars show, which begins at 9 p.m. EST this year instead of 10 as in the past.

CBS's most recent weekly triumph came with plenty of help from the premiere episode of "Flo," the spinoff from "Alice," which tied for first with another CBS series, "M-A-S-H."

The rating for "Flo" and "M-A-S-H," two of seven CBS series in the

A.C. Nielsen Co.'s Top 10, was 30.3. Nielsen says that means of all the TV-equipped homes in the country, 30.3 percent saw at least part of each of the two top-rated shows.

CBS' rating for the week was 20.3, with ABC second at 18.5, and NBC third at 15.8.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 20.3 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to CBS.

ABC's highest-rated program for the week was "That's Incredible," in fourth place, while NBC's best, "CHiPs," was 10th.

NBC's broadcast of the NCAA basketball championship game between Louisville and UCLA was something of a ratings disappointment, finishing at No. 23 for the week. Movies in general did not fare particularly well during the week.

"City in Fear" on ABC was 22nd, "The Ordeal of Dr. Mudd" on CBS was 39th, and the first installment in NBC's repeat of "Jesus of Nazareth" was 45th.

NBC, meanwhile, had four of the five lowest-rated shows, starting with "From Here to Eternity" in 62nd place and followed by No. 63 "United States," No. 64 "Pink Lady and Jeff," and No. 66 "White Paper: The Hispanics."

cies cheaper than ordinary whole life.

The economy has dictated this kind of policy," said Jim Norman, board attorney who drafted the rules governing indeterminate premium life.

Veit said Aetna's indeterminate premium policy costs about 10 percent less than its guaranteed premium whole life policy.

"It's a better policy for the consumer. Any time you offer a better policy for the consumer, you sell more and make more money," Veit told reporters.

Rules approved by the board require companies to give the maximum premium equal prominence in its advertising with the initial non-guaranteed premium that will be lower because interest rates are so high.

The biggest variable in redetermining premiums will be the money market, which determines the profitability of insurers' investments.

Rising interest rates should mean lower premiums, while a decline could raise them.

Inflation-era insurance pegged to money mart

AUSTIN (AP) — Insurance companies begged the State Insurance Board on Tuesday to let them sell a new kind of life policy that gets cheaper when the money market rises.

The board obliged — deviating from its usual slow-paced style — and cleared the way for "indeterminate premium" life insurance in Texas.

"We'll be out there today!" exulted Aetna's vice president for life insurance, Kenneth Veit, who earlier had pleaded with the board to act quickly.

C. Dean Davis of Austin, attorney for Philadelphia Life, said the company "will be marketing it before the week's out."

Southwestern Life and Travelex also told the board they were anxious to start selling the inflation-era coverage in Texas.

Chinese panda fighting for her life in London

LONDON (AP) — Edward Heath on a visit to China in 1974.

There are only 11 other giant pandas in zoos outside China. The animals are notoriously difficult to keep in captivity.

Jones said Ching Ching was suffering from an internal disorder which had left her stomach "grossly distended" by masses of gas and had affected her heart.

"By Friday things were very serious and we really thought we would have a dead panda by Saturday," he said.

"We carried out an emergency operation and she started to show a slight improvement. We are mildly optimistic at the moment but obviously she has got a long way to go.

"She is now having to be force-fed intravenously on the operating table in the zoo's hospital for about three hours a day. She also started to eat again on her own yesterday. But she is finding charcoal biscuits hard to swallow after a lifetime of her favorite dish, bamboo shoots."

The zoo first noticed that the cuddly looking, black-and-white animal had a problem a year ago, since then it has become acute. Ching Ching's weight has dropped from 168 pounds to 133 pounds.

She and Chia Chia are both 7½ years old. Her illness made the zoo postpone plans to try to mate them to produce the first giant panda born in captivity outside China.

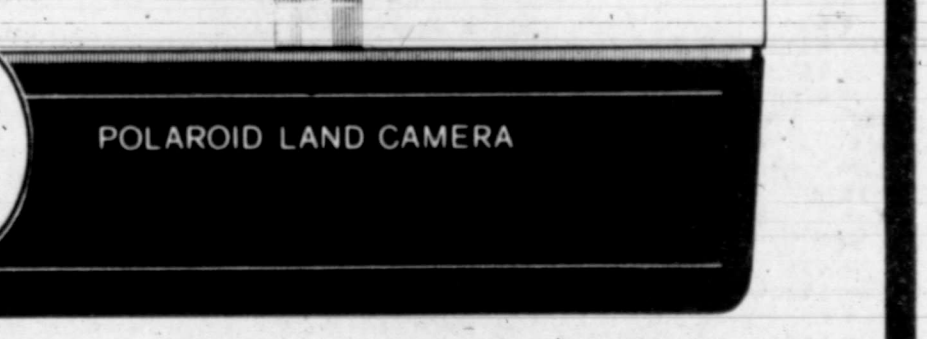

Her would-be mate is one of the few Londoners apparently unconcerned by her plight. With no health problems himself and tucking into his daily bamboo shoots, "he hasn't missed her at all," Jones reported.

Ching Ching's head keeper George Callard said: "It's really very upsetting. But I'm quite optimistic she will pull through."

"She knows me and all the people who work with her. When I saw her in the hospital she recognized me and gave a little bark."

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Those born today are action-oriented and work hard for everything they receive. Doris Day shares your birthday and not only has she had a busy film career, but she also gives many long hours to helping promote the protection of animals. This will be a hectic, fun, and fulfilling year for you, as you lay the foundations for important future successes. Any foreign dealings could prove more time-consuming than anticipated. Trust and patience are crucial to romantic, marital bliss. Others live up to your expectations, so show your love and confidence.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You mark time today while planning for the future. Afternoon is excellent for clinching smaller business deals. Welcome suggestions from younger associate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Reading magazines, journals helps you keep abreast of latest developments in your field. Mate, spouse seeks extra attention. Plan happy surprise for coming weekend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

Stick to priorities even if others try to make claims on your time. Be charming but firm with one who is obstinate. Do not allow yourself to be hurried when considering a letter or contract.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Influential person is greatly impressed by what you can do. Distant affairs require careful handling. Romance flourishes for both singles and marrieds.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Good day for buying, selling. Old unsolved problem surfaces and requires special attention. Negotiations entered into today can mean long-term gains.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Answer important letters. Return all phone calls. Extra money may be forthcoming now due to another's error. Make sure it is yours to keep before spending it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Devote spare moments to solving small personal problems. Money situation eases due to stroke of good luck. All looks fair and clear on the romantic horizon.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Give more attention to domestic matters. Curb that tendency to be a loner. Creative work is satisfying now and could lead to second income. New acquaintance shows admiration for your intellect.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You come to an important decision in your private life. Use discretion and diplomacy in wooing one who is shy. Be ready to compromise if relationship is to flourish.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Pay special attention to tax matters and any long-term debts. New decision can be beneficial but does require some time to be put into effect.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An emotional reaction is right on target but has no place in business dealings. An associate who claims everything seems upside down, needs encouragement, not commiseration.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Show more understanding about the needs of teen-agers. Know that your having confidence in them means more than any words of advice. Avoid making any heavy emotional demands of mate, spouse tonight.

clubs at trick two. West won the king and the fate of the contract hinged on his next play. If he plays the ace of diamonds, all will be well for the defense. But it would be wrong to lay down the ace if South still has the guarded king of diamonds, for this might give declarer his game-going trick. What to do?

Actually, the outcome of the hand rests not on this trick, but on what card East played to the first trick! If he carelessly followed suit with a low diamond, it would mean that he probably started with three cards in the suit and that declarer held the guarded king.

East's correct play at trick one is the six of diamonds. When West wins the king of clubs, he can see that all the missing diamonds are lower than the six. Therefore, East must be starting an echo in diamonds at the first trick, showing an even number in the suit and encouraging continuation. Armed with this information, West can lay down the ace of diamonds with confidence, fully expecting to drop declarer's king and then run the diamonds to defeat the contract.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Vitamins, life essentials, no substitute for protein

Dear Dr. Solomon: Will you please publish a list of vitamins that provide energy? I have been feeling rather low lately, and would like to recharge my batteries. — Lex.

Dear Lex: If you have not been feeling well lately — and from your letter I can't tell whether you mean physically, emotionally, or both — why not see your doctor? There are at least 13 vitamins, each of which serves a specific purpose within the body. They do not furnish energy themselves, although they do help convert foods into energy.

Vitamins are composed of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, and sometimes nitrogen. Vitamin B12 also contains cobalt. While these elements are essential to life, the human body requires them only in extremely small amounts. For example, one ounce of Vitamin B12 is sufficient for the daily needs of almost five million people.

Instead of dosing yourself with vitamins, why not let your doctor determine what's bothering you and prescribe accordingly? If some vitamin deficiency is the problem, the solution may be as simple as a nutritious, well-balanced diet. If the problem is more serious, prompt medical attention, rather than self-diagnosis and treatment, becomes even more important.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My mother, who is 85 years of age, has been instructed by her doctor to take a potassium supplement. Although ordinarily an excellent patient, she complains that the medication tastes bad, and she has not been taking it as directed. Is there any way the potassium supplement can be made more palatable? — Mrs. B.F.S.

Dear Mrs. S.: Although potassium chloride has a naturally salty taste, it can be made quite acceptable by mixing it with any of a variety of beverages. The supplement comes either in liquid or powder form. If the doctor has prescribed the liquid form, it should be kept refrigerated until it is to be used. Your mother can then mix one tablespoon with four ounces of cold water, juice or another beverage. If the powdered form has been prescribed, your mother can dissolve it in four ounces of a beverage in the same fashion.

The particular beverage used can be varied from day to day or even during the same day. For example, your mother can choose to mix her morning dose with fruit juice and her evening dose with another type of drink.

The beverages from which she can choose include carbonated drinks such as orange soda and ginger ale, among others; fruit juices, including orange, apple and grapefruit; and apple cider, lemonade and limeade.

Regardless of the manner in which your mother decides to take the potassium supplement, it is important that she follow her doctor's directions. Normal potassium levels are essential for good health.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I read your item about how to stop smoking, and found it fascinating. Both my doctor and I wrote to you for more information, but we have heard nothing further. Why? — Mrs. C.L.

Dear Mrs. L.: I must apologize for the delay in responding, but frankly, I was overwhelmed by the number of inquiries in regard to that particular column. I have only a small staff, and it will take some time before I will be able to answer the 10,000 people who wrote to me.

Meanwhile, I have prepared a lengthy article for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate explaining the technique, and a medical writer has been commissioned to prepare a five-part series which includes many more details. You may want to check your newspaper to see if one or both of these are being carried.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

ERA reported still facing delay in Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — After visiting state leaders to gauge the chance of success for the Equal Rights Amendment here this legislative session, a Carter administration aide says the ERA may not even come up for a vote.

Linda Tarr-Whelan also found little interest in the president's offer of help in getting the amendment passed.

The Florida legislature's 60-day session begins April 8, and so far no lawmaker has filed a bill to approve the ERA.

After meeting officials in Tallahassee and Orlando last week, Ms. Linda Tarr-Whelan said the chances of a vote this year are slim.

"We're talking about a long-term strategy," she said. The Florida House has voted for the ERA three times, but the Senate has defeated it consistently since 1974.

Ms. Tarr-Whelan offered Gov. Bob Graham help from the president, extending the same offer to House Speaker Hyatt Brown, representatives of the AFL-CIO, the FTP-NEA Teachers Union, Common Cause and the League of Women Voters.

But she said no one asked for help. "I'd be happy to come back if the people would find it helpful," she said.

Debbie DeLee, the governor's adviser on women's issues, said the feeling is that if the proposed amendment is going to be passed, it will have to be done through local efforts.

Ms. Tarr-Whelan said efforts now will be aimed at picking up support from constituencies that have never been active in the ERA, such as business leaders.

"I've known Martin Allday since 1962 when we were in the Jaycees together. Martin has always been resourceful and fair-minded as he would hear both sides of every issue," said Roger Robles, local businessman, in endorsing Martin Allday's bid for the mayorship of Midland in the April 5th election.

Tornado Alley broadens scope

By TIM TUMLIN

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — In the 1980s, Dorothy and her pet dog Toto from the "Wizard of Oz" could just as well be swept away by a tornado in Washington, D.C., as on the plains of Kansas. The nation's Tornado Alley is expanding from a storm-ridden strip of Oklahoma and Kansas to include large areas where no resident can assume safety from a twister, says Dr. T. Theodore Fujita, a University of Chicago meteorology professor studying the shifting patterns of tornadoes.

Last year, 826 tornadoes killed 83 people. The worst storm of the decade, in 1974, spawned 146 twisters that killed 301 people in 11 states — all of them east of the Mississippi River. "The 1970s seem to be very strange," Fujita said. "The centers seem to be just about everywhere." The fact that concentrations exist at all was discovered within the past two months after a nine-year study of 25,046 tornadoes since 1916. And scientists do not know why the traditional concentration is shifting.

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

How can a man please God?

The next morning, back across the lake, crowds began gathering on the shore [waiting to see Jesus]. For they knew that He and His disciples had come over together and that the disciples had gone off in their boat, leaving Him behind. Several small boats from Tiberias were nearby.

So when the people saw that Jesus wasn't there, nor His disciples, they got into the boats and went across to Capernaum to look for Him.

When they arrived and found Him, they said, "Sir, how did you get here?"

Jesus replied, "The truth of the matter is that you want to be with Me because I fed you, not because you believe in Me."

But you shouldn't be so concerned about perishable things like food. No, spend your energy seeking the eternal life that I the Man from Heaven can give you. For God the Father has sent Me for this very purpose."

They replied, "What should we do to satisfy God?"

Jesus told them, "This is the will of God, that you believe in the one He has sent."

They replied, "You must show us more miracles if you want us to believe You are the Messiah. Give us free bread every day, like our fathers had while they journeyed through the wilderness! As the Scriptures say, 'Moses gave them bread from heaven.'"

Jesus said, "Moses didn't give it to them. My Father did. And now He offers you true Bread from heaven."

Police think they know killer of women, but can't prove it

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Former high-ranking Columbus policemen say they believe they know who raped and strangled seven elderly women here but police lack the evidence to bring him to trial. The Atlanta Constitution reports.

The suspect is a 19-year-old black who closely resembles an artist's drawing based on eyewitness descriptions, the newspaper said in today's editions. It reported he served four months of a one-year sentence at the Alto Correctional Institute for a 1979 burglary in Columbus' Wynnton Road area.

For more than a year, the stranger terrorized the fashionable Wynnton neighborhood, home of many elderly and widowed women. The killings began Sept. 16, 1977, and ended April 20, 1978.

The man, who is finishing a two-year probation in Columbus, was a resident of the Wynnton area, where the stranglings occurred, and has provided details of some of the deaths that only the stranger should know, according to former Columbus policeman J.B. Hicks. Hicks, former deputy commander of detectives, said he interviewed the youth several times before and after his arrest on burglary charges, the newspaper said.

The man has denied the crimes and attributed them to a third party.

"He is the only decent suspect we have ever had," said Ronnie Jones, former commander of a 100-man task force investigating the deaths. "Everything about this man fits what we are looking for."

But Columbus police Commander Herman Boone, director of the bureau of investigative services, said: "I can't say this is the man. While we don't have any firm evidence at this time against the man, he remains under investigation."

Both Hicks and Jones are now in private business but still cooperate with the police investigation. No suspect has ever been charged with the crimes.

British town faces meningitis scare

By NIKKI FINKE
Associated Press Writer

SLEAFORD, England (AP) — The nurse knocked on Yvette Dyke's door at 8:45 Monday night and told her to fetch her 6-year-old son Timothy from his bed.

"When she told me why, I started shaking," said the 27-year-old barmaid.

Clad in his motorcycle-print pajamas and still groggy with sleep, Timothy was rushed with 65 other classmates to the Sleaford Medical Center for emergency shots of penicillin because of an outbreak of meningococcal meningitis, an inflammation of the membrane covering the brain and spinal cord.

One 6-year-old in the class, Philip Smith, had died from the disease last Friday a few hours after his doctor sent him to a hospital. Three other children developed the disease over the weekend but will probably recover.

The parents were not told everything Monday night.

"We decided not to tell the families about the death when they came for the injections," said one of Sleaford's five physicians, Dr. Alan A. Hall. "We wanted to protect them."

Many became frantic Tuesday when they read the front-page headline in the Daily Express: "Killer Fever Alert."

"People began wondering why all the children couldn't get inoculated," said Celia Thompson, whose two daughters were not in the dead boy's class and did not receive a penicillin shot.

Families flooded the Sleaford Medical Center with telephone calls. More than 200 mothers brought their children in for checkups. Fifty more were seen by doctors making house calls.

The medical center's phones were still ringing Tuesday night. Dr. Hall was wearily putting on his overcoat to check on another boy with a fever.

"I haven't seen a meningitis case in 20 years," he said. "I understand people for worrying. It works so quickly, there was no way to save the Smith boy. How awful to lose a child."

The inoculation roundup was no easy task in the working-class town of 8,000 whose only claim to fame is that it is 15 miles from Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's birthplace. Many of the young families can't afford telephones or cars. Five of the children were away for the Easter holidays.

Teachers opened up the school for the doctors and copied the addresses of all the dead boy's classmates.

The doctors rang up all those with telephones while nurses went from door to door. Many parents had to walk to the medical center in a pouring rain. Many of the youngsters were still in their pajamas.

Steven Dyke had just gone to the pub for his weekly darts match. His wife, Yvette, was alone when the knock came at the door.

"It was the school nurse and she asked for Tim," said the young mother. "At first, I thought maybe he had a dirty head — you know, lice or something."

"When I heard it was a shot against meningitis, I had to keep myself from a panic. I knew it was best to be on the safe side."

She woke up her blue-eyed, tow-haired son and borrowed a car.

"The place was chock-a-block with mothers and kids, all yelling their heads off. It frightened Tim as soon as he walked in," she said.

"I knew most of the women there, but we hardly said a word to each other. We were all scared sick."

Tim's reaction to the penicillin shot was typical.

"Oh, how he was screaming," said his mother. "He was holding back the doctor's hand, yelling, 'You're not going to do it!' Finally, I had to hold him over my knee and lock my arms to keep him quiet."

Tim woke up crying Tuesday night, tormented by a nightmare about needles and screams.

"He was talking in his sleep, asking, 'Why did those people give me these injections.' He still doesn't know what it was about."

The five children vacationing with their parents were inoculated by 9:30 Tuesday morning.

The doctors believe they have the local outbreak under control. They emphasized that millions of people can be meningitis carriers without any danger. The disease's symptoms include fever, vomiting, a stiff neck, headaches and tiny red spots under the skin.

"People won't be relaxing quite yet, but we can hopefully now feel that the worst is over," said Dr. Norman Miles, chief medical officer for the Lincolnshire county area that includes Sleaford.

"But we'll be keeping a close eye for the next week or so."

"We should avoid federal intervention and begin on our community level, to initiate national policy."

Franc-ly foolish

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — About half a dozen Gainesville merchants report they were fooled by a young man who paid them with traveler's checks for 50 French francs, authorities say.

Each store cashed the checks, thinking they were for $50, police say. A French franc is worth 27 cents.

In each case, police say, a college-age man with no French accent bought something worth about a dollar with the traveler's checks and got change for $50.

The American Express money orders were clearly marked "French francs" and "Bank of Paris," but store clerks cashed them anyway, police said.

Lt. Ron Perkins said it was a crime only if the man represented the traveler's checks as worth 50 dollars.

Program directors warned to fight for Carter's budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shortly after signing three copies of his plan to slash $17.2 billion from the "prudent and responsible" budget he proposed two months ago, President Carter delivered a pep talk and a warning to the officials who will have to fight the battle for a balanced budget.

The troops who assembled in the Old Executive Office Building next to the White House were the assistant secretaries responsible for running the programs most affected by the budget cuts, and no one expected them to rejoice at the prospect of defending reductions in their own operations. But Carter told them to keep the faith.

"He indicated there was a need for consistency and persistence and discipline," said one of the assistant secretaries, who asked not to be identified. "And he said he would regard it as a very serious matter if anyone tries to go through the back door on the Hill to talk to a committee chairman or staff member about circumventing the cuts the president has ordered."

"We want to make sure everybody is singing out of the same hymnal," said White House tactician Anne Wexler as she talked about the administration's determination to have its way with Congress on the budget. "The first debate will be lively and interesting, and the president's position will prevail. But the real effort to dismantle the balanced budget will come later."

White House strategists expect that effort to be made in obscure skirmishes before the appropriations subcommittees that review the budget line by line. That will come after agreement has been reached on the big numbers, the multibillion-dollar target figures that sound like reductions but don't bind anyone to an actual reduction in someone's food stamp allowance or the postponement of a promised highway project in a politically important county.

The subcommittees "really hold the key to this," said Hubert L. Harris Jr., chief lobbyist for the president's Office of Management and Budget. "They have the most cuts to consider and the most pressure on them from outside."

Harris was named to coordinate agency lobbyists from throughout the government as they organize to converge on Capitol Hill. Ms. Wexler is organizing a nationwide campaign to recruit interest group support — or at least to neutralize those groups the administration expects will fight the proposed cuts.

Carter won't try forcing Israel-Egypt settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has no intention of trying to force a Mideast peace settlement on the leaders of Egypt and Israel when he meets with them separately later this month, U.S. officials say.

Rather, Carter is hoping "man-to-man talks" with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel will break a negotiating logjam on Palestinian autonomy and give "renewed momentum" to talks between Israel and Egypt.

Suit blames cop in alien girl's death

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — A Mexican couple is seeking $3 million in damages for the "cruel and senseless" death of their 6-year-old daughter in a pickup truck crash they say was caused by gunfire from a law enforcement officer.

The suit was filed Tuesday in federal court on behalf of Rogelio and Sara Salazar of San Luis Potosi, Mexico. It names two U.S. Border Patrolmen, the Jim Hogg County sheriff and two deputies as defendants.

The couple's daughter, Estela, and a 44-year-old man were killed in a Feb. 27 pickup truck crash.

The Salazars' allege in the suit that one of the officers fired on the pickup after the driver failed to stop at a highway intersection near this border town.

The shots pierced the right rear tire several times, causing the tire to blowout and the vehicle to veer out of control and overturn, the suit said.

The child was pinned under the vehicle, but officers did nothing to remove her, the couple contended in the suit.

Fourteen illegal aliens reportedly were riding in the pickup when the wreck occurred. Mrs. Salazar suffered injuries in the crash.

Salazar is asking for $1.5 million in damages, including medical and burial expenses. Mrs. Salazar seeks $1.5 million for injuries, pain and suffering in connection with the loss of her child.

HUD sends San Angelo City Council ultimatum

Quote from front page of San Angelo Standard Times of MARCH 22, 1980:

San Angelo's city government must choose to become the investigator and prosecutor of housing discrimination against ethnic minorities or lose its $1.5 million Community Development grant.

Mayor Tom Parrett added "I resent it being done by force, more or less by coercion."

Fair housing practices are necessary, he said: "Barring a person from housing is passe - we are past that - but it's a sad little commentary on the times when such things are brought around by regulatory, bureaucratic law."

Parrett said he would have preferred "to handle a thing like that through the fairness of it... out of desire rather than through forced legislation," but said he sees no other choice in view of HUD's demand.

The Midland Reporter-Telegram

Quote from second page of Midland Reporter Telegram of FRIDAY, MARCH 21, 1980:

...For the past two years, the council vote to apply for CD (Community Development) funds with rental subsidy (Section 8) has failed on a tie vote of 3-3.

Allday and Hollums said without a doubt they are in favor of taking the funds, in spite of the federal red strings. Akins said he would apply for CD funds, but without Section 8.

"The ends do not justify the means," said Akins who added that a U.S. senator claims it has created slums across the United States.

New direction for utility firms?

By JILL LAWRENCE

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — By investing in conservation equipment and services instead of new power plants, the owners of Three Mile Island hope to save customers $1.2 billion over the next 30 years.

The shift is outlined in a 200-page energy plan that General Public Utilities Corp. filed last week with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission and the New Jersey Board of Public Utilities.

"This alternate use of capital will mark a new direction for the electric utility industry," GPU said. "It can also serve as a model for the rest of the nation."

In addition to encouraging the conservation with energy audits, weatherization programs and solar demonstration projects, the company will try to persuade its 1.6 million customers to use electricity during cheaper off-peak hours, when the demand is low.

GPU's three subsidiaries — Metropolitan Edison, Pennsylvania Electric and Jersey Central Power & Light — have been pressed for power since the country's worst commercial nuclear accident shut down the Three Mile Island plant a year ago.

While customers would pay for the conservation hardware and services called for in the energy plan, GPU says that price tag will be much lower than what it costs to build new power plants.

GPU believes its plan will halve projected growth in electricity demand by 1990, permitting the company to abandon the scheduled construction of three power plants in the late 1980s.

Through reduced energy costs and deferred or scrapped construction plans, the company expects to save $2.08 billion over the next 10 years. The company plans to spend $580 million on the plan.

In addition, GPU said an estimated 200 million barrels of imported oil would be saved and environmental pollution would be reduced because a large coal plant would not be built.

GPU said it will seek separate approval from regulators in Pennsylvania and New Jersey for each component of the plan, with time-of-day rates and storage water heaters a priority.

Crucial to program are off-peak rates, where customers receive discounts if they use electricity during weekends and from 8 p.m. to 8 a.m. on weekdays. The company hopes to increase time-of-day customers from the present 600 to 374,000 by 1990.

Storage water heaters, which heat water during low-cost off-peak hours and discharge hot water during peak hours, are another important part of the plan.

GPU said 40,000 customers now use the equipment and 296,000 units could be installed by 1990 at a cost of $107 million. Storage space heaters, which work on the same principle, are now used by 40 customers. The number could rise to 77,000 by 1990 at a cost of $170 million.

A large scale solar demonstration program would offer $500 to 1,000 GPU customers who want to install solar hot water heaters, with 500 units installed by 1982.

President ready to sign compromise 'windfall' bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — After an 11-month contest with Congress, President Carter is ready to sign a compromise $227.7 billion "windfall profits" oil tax bill that he called "the key to our nation's first comprehensive energy policy."

Long eager to put his pen on the legislation, Carter scheduled a special signing ceremony today in the East Room of the White House.

"You can leave the ribbons off this one in order to get it down here," Carter told Senate leaders last Thursday after the measure passed on a 66-31 vote.

"This is good news for the country and, I think, good news for the world," Carter told Senate Democratic Leader Robert S. Byrd of West Virginia and the bill's sponsor, Sen. Russell Long, D-La.

In addressing a conference of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department here Tuesday, Carter said the bill will be "one of the biggest construction projects in the history of the world."

The bill is a compromise version of the $294 billion tax Carter recommended last April after deciding to phase out federal price controls on U.S. crude oil in an effort to spur domestic oil production and reduce reliance on imports.

Although often called a tax on "windfall profits," it actually would not apply directly to profits but rather to price increases above 1979 levels.

Decontrol would allow U.S. prices to rise to world market levels and cost consumers an estimated $1 trillion in the 1980s. The tax, retroactive to

March 1, will take $227.7 billion of that "windfall" and, after other federal and state taxes, will leave the oil industry $221 billion it would not have had under continued controls.

Sixty percent of the proceeds from what technically is a federal excise tax, or $137 billion, is earmarked for income tax reduction, although specific legislation would be needed before any tax cut could be enacted.

Another 25 percent, or $57 billion, would help the poor meet rising energy costs after 1981, with $3.1 billion authorized for that purpose next year. The remaining 15 percent would be earmarked for energy and transportation development, originally the centerpiece project for Carter's major energy legislation.

In the fine print, the new law boosts to $4,000 the existing tax credits for homeowners who install wind or solar energy systems.

An unrelated amendment will allow up to $200 of interest and dividends to be tax exempt in 1981 and 1982. Present law exempts $100 of dividends from tax, or $200 on a joint return.

Algeria tells El Paso not to expect current deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Algeria has informed El Paso Co. that it will "not continue deliveries" of liquefied natural gas (LNG) at current prices.

An El Paso spokesman would not say the company's 700 million cubic feet a day of LNG imports had been halted. But David Mackie added, "one could conclude that unless something is worked out very quickly, a cutoff is a distinct possibility."

Algeria provided about 1 percent of U.S. natural gas needs last year. LNG is natural gas which has been condensed in Algeria, shipped in specialized built-tankers and then re-gasified here.

Three Eastern utility systems buy Algerian gas from El Paso — Columbia Gas System Inc., Consolidated Natural Gas Co. and Southern Natural Gas Co.

El Paso said Tuesday the three utility companies believe "a temporary interruption in the LNG supply pending the resolution of outstanding issues between Algeria and El Paso" would not affect operations in their service areas.

El Paso had been buying LNG for $1.95 per thousand cubic feet under an amended contract that expired Monday. Algeria has been demanding its European buyers pay $6.11, or more than triple the old El Paso price, but Mackie said the Algerians have not yet set a price on new sales of gas to the company.

Algeria steps up drive to get more money for its liquified natural gas

By WILLIAM GLASGALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Algeria has stepped up its drive to gain higher prices on its liquified natural gas (LNG), which accounts for about 1 percent of U.S. natural gas consumption.

The exporter, which also sells the highest-priced oil in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, told El Paso Co. of Houston it will "not continue deliveries" of the fuel at the latest price of $1.95 per thousand cubic feet, El Paso said Tuesday.

Algeria has sought more than $6 per thousand cubic feet from European customers recently. The country's LNG exports provided about 1 percent of U.S. natural gas needs last year.

El Paso, the largest U.S. buyer of Algerian gas, imports 700 million cubic feet a day.

Negotiators from the U.S. State and Energy departments and El Paso officials have been holding talks with the Algerian government oil and gas company Sonatrach on the gas price issue, a company spokesman, David Mackie, said in a telephone interview from Houston.

"It's too early to tell" if shipments will be cut off, Mackie said, adding, "no one...has walked away" from the negotiations. The Energy Department refused to comment on the Algerian talks.

The Algerian government said Tuesday it has extended for 15 days the deadline for delivery to El Paso, and that it hoped a new agreement on price would be reached by April 15. Sources in Algiers, however, said Sonatrach could take unilateral action if no accord is reached.

The Algerian natural gas development came as Iran raised its oil prices by $2.50 per 42-gallon barrel.

The increase raises the official price of high-quality Iranian light crude oil to $33.50 a barrel, but is expected to have little effect here because U.S. purchases of Iranian oil have been barred by President Carter.

Iran also charges a premium of $3 a barrel on half the oil it sells under long-term contracts, meaning the average price paid by Iran's major customers for light crude will rise to $35 a barrel from the previous $32.50.

Three Eastern utility systems buy Algerian gas from El Paso — Columbia Gas System Inc., Consolidated Natural Gas Co. and Southern Natural Gas Co.

El Paso said the three companies believe "a temporary interruption in the LNG supply pending the resolution of outstanding issues between" Algeria and El Paso "would not affect operations" in their service areas.
