New Iranian statement anxiously awaited here

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - The influential Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti told a news conference in Tehran today that he hoped Iran's new statement on the American hostages would lead to a quick solution to the crisis.

But Beheshti, leader of the hard-line Islamic Republican Party, would not reveal details of Iran's demand for U.S. financial guarantees that could lead to release of the 52 Americans, in their 410th day of captivity today.

Beheshti said the U.S. reply to Iran's four conditions and modifications of the American position proposed by Iran, "can give both sides a very acceptable solution to the problem.

He said the U.S. response needed "some necessary corrections," but would not go into details of the Iranian position. Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai said Tuesday Iran sought "financial guarantees" from the United States and that the hostages could be freed by Christmas if the U.S. government gave the guarantees. Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, appearing on NBC TV's "Today Show" was asked about Behesh ti's statement.

"Corrections to them (the Iranians) could be something substantive, or it could be something technical, or it could be something involving the modalities of implementing an agreement; we really don't know which it is.

"Sometimes they put these significant points in the context of something insignificant in order to try to persuade us to take

In Washington, U.S. officials were awaiting the Iranian message to see if Iran is softening its demands for release of the hostages. Jody Powell, 'President Carter's chief spokesman, and other U.S. officials were trying to avoid raising any hopes following Rajai's statement.

A senior White House official who declined to be identified said the United States did not expect to hear from the Algerian intermediaries until the weekend. "If there really was a breakthrough, we would have gotten a signal from the Algerians by now and that has not come," the official said.

Rajai said Iran's statement represented a "final reply" in the negotiations. The answer was expected to be relayed through Algeria, which has been acting as intermediary in the negotia-

In Tehran, Algerian Ambassador Abdul Karim Gharieab said that the Algerian diplomats still had not received a copy of the Iranian response, but they expected to "very soon.

Rajai's remarks Tuesday raised the possibility that Iran would be satisfied with an American guarantee that it would try to meet the demands rather than complete fulfillment of Iran's original four conditions for release of the Americans.

Iran wants a pledge that the United States will not interfere in Iranian affairs, return of the wealth of the late shah and his family, unfreezing of Iranian assets held in the United States and dropping lawsuits against Iran in U.S. courts.

From the U.S. government's viewpoint, it is legally powerless to satisfy Iran's demands for return of the shah's wealth, which Iran puts at $32 billion. The United States has also maintained that it cannot cancel all legal claims against Iran that have been filed by U.S. banks and companys who say they have lost investments in Iran because of the Islamic revolution.

Although he would not discuss details of Iran's latest position, Beheshti again raised the possibility of trials for the Americans if the United States fails to agree to Iran's conditions.

Asked what the next step would be if the United States argues that legal problems prevent compliance with the demands, Beheshti replied: "Then the next step should be explained by the government or Majlis (parliament). Maybe there will be a trial of these 52 Americans and the aim of this trial is to show the world more details about the American policy in Iran and the domination through this policy."

Haig's nomination drawing criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ronald Reagan's choice of retired Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. to be secretary of state is already drawing sharp criticism from Democrats upset with Haig's role six years ago as Richard M. Nixon's last chief of staff.

Haig, who staunchly defended Nixon during the final days of the Watergate scandal, will also face questions on how he will handle the State Department job as the first ex-general to take the post in more than three decades.

Reagan announced another potentially controversial Cabinet appointment Tuesday, naming New Jersey construction executive Raymond Donovan as labor secretary.

Donovan, who managed the president-elect's New Jersey campaign, was chosen despite the Teamsters union's public support for his chief rival, Betty S. Murphy, former chairwoman of the National Labor Relations Board.

The 2-million-member union was the first and largest labor organization to endorse Reagan. The two nominations left Reagan with five of 15 Cabinet-level jobs still to fill. Reagan aides said other - and possibly all remaining Cabinet posts would be filled by the end of the week.

Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston, D-Calif., warned that Haig's appointment could mean an early end to Reagan's 'honeymoon' with Congress. "It will provoke a serious controversy that will jar the harmony that has prevailed since Ronald Reagan's election.'

Cranston said Senate confirmation hearings would examine Haig's role in Watergate, the Vietnam War and circumstances surrounding the pardon that Nixon received from President Gerald Ford after resigning from office in 1974.

City council eyes sewer crunch near air terminal

The sewage treatment plant at Air Terminal was constructed during the 1940s by the Air Force, according to Lowe. The flow now is at 100,000 gallons per day, but "the system is getting old and it will soon be needing to handle half a million gallons per year for the school district. If school board members, administrators and supporters can persuade Midland voters in a bond election this spring, then the district may get a new elementary school to relieve already crowded classrooms. But, if the Midland voter says no to the bond election, many parents may see their children squeezed into alreadycrowded elementary schools.

Either way is expensive, he warned. The new plant would also have to be staffed and run 24 hours a day. But if a line is laid to the main plant, it will be about 91/2 miles long and the city will have to dig into a caliche base.

During Tuesday's meeting, Kay Sowders, Mary Beck, Mollie Bedrich and Katherine Nichols, representatives of the Emerson Elementary Parent Teachers Association, presented to the trustees a resolution urging construction of a new elementary school.

In her comments to the board, Mrs. Sowders, president of the Emerson PTA, explained that during the first week of school, 512 children were officially enrolled at Emerson. However, last week that number had grown to 551 students, she reported. "The most affected areas are the kindergarten through third grade

"We would anticipate a bond election in the spring for the construction of a new elementary school," said Ed Runyan, trustee president.

"I feel bad for the city and the school district that we have crowded school conditions," said Trustee Parker Humes.

And he noted it would be hard for some people to believe that there are crowded schools. "But, we invite them to go to the schools and see children squeezed into a room that at one time was closet space. Trustee Johnny Warren mentioned that major reconstruction work for DeZavala Elementary might be included in the bond election. 'Don't put it (new elementary school bond election) under a lot of other things," suggested Mrs.

In another action, trustees approved $29,816 in change orders for renovation work at Midland High School

Final inspection of the renovation will be conducted in January before it will be accepted by the school district.

Also approved by the trustees were bids for shop equipment totaling $21,-494 and flooring for the Midland High School auditorium costing $6,355, and an independent audit of the 1979-80 financial records.

Donnelly Hawkins, a 75-year-old retired plumber, cleared a plot on the family farm a few years ago and planted a crop of Virginia pines. He sold his first trees wholesale to the Tomball Optimist Club, which sells the trees at about half the price charged on commercial lots.

Hawkins said the Christmas tree project "just kind of grows on you. Lanny Dreesen of the Agricultural Extension Service office in Houston, said Christmas-tree growing sprouted in this area in 1972 and the project was such a success it has spread to other areas of the state. Dreesen says a Texas crop of Virginia pines cost about $2,000 an acre with a maximum of 1,299 trees an acre. The Virginia pines, he says, adapt well to the Texas climate and need only three to five years of growth as opposed to 15 years for other varieties.

Christmas tree farms in Texas are now found in Montgomery, Walker and Harris counties; near Quitman in Wood County; in Sacul in Nacogdoches County; near Ben Wheeler in Van Zandt County; at Laneville in Rusk County and near Jacksonville in Cherokee County.

Conjugal visits may be allowed

Federal prison rules cover many areas

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - For the first time, federal prison rules may allow some inmates to have sex with their visiting spouses.

The way for such visits, which might begin as soon as several months from now, was opened Tuesday when Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti issued the first-ever comprehensive federal standards for the operation of prisons and jails. Deputy Attorney General Charles

B. Renfrew said the biggest departure from past operating practice was a rule for extended stays by visiting family members. Renfrew said sexual intercourse between between an inmate and his or her visiting spouse may be included in such visits. Renfrew has long been an advocate of conjugal visits - which could include sexual intercourse - as a means of reducing violence, homosexual attacks and sexual tensions in federal institutions.

Emphasizing that final plans had not yet been worked out, Renfrew said in an interview, "At this point the conjugal visits will probably only be by family members." He said conjugal visits by boyfriends or girlfriends "present some other problems."

Renfrew said the conjugal visits might be tried first at the federal correctional institution in Butner, N.C., and eventually extended to all 43 federal prisons.

"We'll probably start at Butner because it's a relatively new facility and has tried a number of innovative programs for prisoners," Renfrew said.

The 352 rules announced Tuesday cover all aspects of prison operation, and they represent mandatory objectives for the federal system to meet by 1984. The standards also suggest guidelines for state and local penal

The new rules cover the size of cells, health and safety, food services, security, inmate discipline, inmate training and mail, and other many other areas.

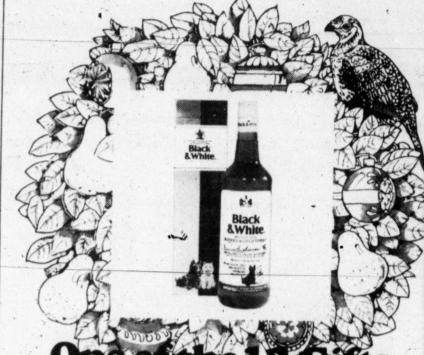

Ultimately, Renfrew said he would like to see greater use of furloughs of up to three days, so that inmates could visit their families at home. Those furloughs, already in use in some federal prisons, are authorized by the new standards as well. At a news conference Tuesday, Ci-viletti said, "These standards raise our objectives for our institutions, not for the coddling of prisoners but so that we have a better chance of protecting society, so that people perhaps in the future will come out of prison less disruptive, less alienated, less likely to cause enormous harm to law-abiding and peaceful citizens." Norman A. Carlson, director of the federal Bureau of Prisons, said that

40 federal prisons are substantially in compliance with the standards now and that it would cost $20 million over the next four years to complete com-

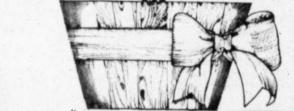

The attorney general pledged that the federal government would not use its powers under a new law to sue state and local prison officials for violating prisoners' rights if the state or locality is complying with the federal standards or is making a goodfaith effort to achieve compliance.

Midland's there-ain't-ever-going-tobe-a-white-Christmas weather continued Wednesday and the weatherman was predicting warm afternoons and only cool nights at least through Thursday.

The somewhat unusual mid-December weather has sent the mercury climbing in recent days and, probably, has toned down the Christmas spirit in the Tall City and elsewhere in he Permian Basin.

The forecast offers no hope for "wintery" weather immediately. Low temperature tonight should drop to near 40 and the high on Thursday should be in the upper 70s. Winds tonight will be light and vari-

from the southwest at 10-15 mph. Tuesday's high temperature was 71

pringlike degrees, but still that fell ort of the record for that date - 80 degrees, set in 1946. Low this morning was 37. Record low for today's date is 18 degrees, set in 1932.

No precipitation was recorded at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport for the 24-hour period ending early this morning. That left the monthly rainfall accumulation at 1.15 inches and the yearly total so far at 17.76 inches.

"WE'RE TAKING an inordinate amount of time on things that aren't relevant...that contribute absolutely nothing to the case," the judge has said more than once.

The defense attorney took exception and charged that the court's "continuous harassment of defense counsel has precluded a fair trial."

The court responded. Why the state has stood by and let you ramble and chase rabbits I can't understand," Judge Pickett said.

The defense attorney stood firm and said "It may be that I am incompetent and inept," but said that he is using his best judgment - judgment gained in more than 30 years of trial court practice.

MRS. McPETERS IS accused of hiring Rex Shanks, 27, of Abilene and Wayne Jennings, 19, of Wichita Falls to kill her husband along a road between Midland and Odessa last July 28. All three are charged with murder, and the penalty for the crime ranges from five years to 99 years or life in prison.

Shanks became her companion on a 10-day fling that began on July 19 -Mrs. McPeters' birthday - after she and McPeters were separated in Abiene following a marital quarrel. She took their son, D.J., and car with Mrs. McPeters testified that she had last seen Shanks in high school days in Abilene in the early 1970s and apparently recounted old times.

The fling included drinking, some hot-check writing, living in motels and eating at fast food places in Abia lene and Odessa and traveling to Wichita Falls and back.

Jennings, a roofer, was a friend of Shanks. Under threat of self-incrimination, he testified that Mrs. McPeters had promised him $7,000 and a Mustang sports car to fielp Shanks kill — "get back" — at her

But Jennings' wife, Tammy Karlic Jennings, 22, testified that Shanks and not Mrs. McPeters - had offered her husband the money and car to assist in the killing and had talked about McPeters' life insurance money. Both, however, said that initially they thought talk of McPeters' death was a "joke."

"He (Shanks) was enthused about doing something," Mrs. Jennings testified. "He didn't like Mr. McPeters. because he was Mrs. McPeters' husband.'

In testifying in her own defense, Mrs. McPeters said that she did not plot the death of her husband and did not offer money to Shanks or Jen-

She was vague in explaining why she left her husband and took up with Shanks.

"I really don't know," the widow testified. "Just having to put up with him for four years." She said that her husband sometimes mistreated her and their son and that her intent was to divorce her husband. Mrs. McPeters, who said she had left her husband in times past but returned to him, said she left on that last time on July 19 when he failed to acknowledge her birthday.

"I JUST FELT neglected," the widow said. Earlier in Tuesday's proceeding, the defense attorney had subpoenaed Shanks to testify in Mrs. McPeters' defense. But Shanks, who sports the tattoo of a black-widow spider on his right arm, declined to waive his rights under the Fifth Amendment and chose not to subject himself to self-incrimination.

Odessa bond election fails

ODESSA - Ector County residents voted down a proposition to build "Centennial Center" Tuesday night with only 21.48 percent of the registered voters turning out to vote.

The proposition failed by only 506 votes - 5,699 were opposed to the idea, while 5,193 were in favor of the center, according to Ector County Clerk Lucille Wolz.

Even though proponents of the bond election pushed television commercials and radio and newpaper advertisements to get out the vote in favor of the center, the $19:9 million bonds required to build the downtown center were turned down.

There are 50,813 registered voters in Ector County, but only 10,938 voted in the election Tuesday, according to Mrs. Wolz.

Junior high student, 13, tries to poison teacher

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - A 13-year-old junior high school student has been charged in a juvenile court delinquency petition with aggravated assault after allegedly poisoning her teacher's coffee, officials say. The teacher, Neal A. Schwabauer, 34, of Newton, was treated at a Wichita hospital and released Monday after taking a drink of coffee-spiked with a highly toxic solvent, authorities said. I have been threatened before, but 99 percent of the time they (the students) are bluffing," said Schwabauer, who spit out most of the sip of coffee when he detected a strange taste. "This time it wasn't a bluff. The Truesdell Junior High School student, who was charged Tuesday, acknowledged putting ethylene dichloride in Schwabauer's coffee when he left his shop class for a moment, authorities said

The girl was not identified because of her age. Investigators said bottles containing the liquid are marked clearly as poison. The teacher said fumes from the solvent can be fatal.

The substance normally is kept in gallon containers under lock and key, school officials said, but a small amount was being used by students to bond acrylic plastics

Schwabauer said he had written a disciplinary note on the girl last week for non-performance in class. He said she may have been holding a "It may have been just a stunt," he said. "Or she may have been

City Council honors hero

The ceremony only took a few minutes, but it was out of the ordinary for the Midland City Council

Shortly after lunch Tuesday, the City Council called to the public's attention thé actions of Joe O'Neal who went into a burning house last Friday and rescued four children. O'Neal and his wife attended the meeting where a resolution commending his action was adopted by the council.

Mayor G. Thane Akins commented, "We talk a lot about citizen involvement and caring for other people. O'Neal is one who put everything on the line for other people. If this man hadn't done what he did, the four children wouldn't be alive

A resolution commending him for his "heroic action" and signed by the City Council was handed to O'Neal while the audience, council and city staff applauded - a rarity in the history of council meetings for everyone to agree upon one thing

This is one fire that just won't give .

A warehouse fire at A.C. Drilling Co., 10 miles west of Midland on U.S. Highway 80, first flared about 12:20 a.m. early Saturday morning. Fire units remained at the blaze until 5:30 a.m., using 11,000 gallons of water. The fire rekindled at 6:30 a.m., and firemen spent another 90 minutes and 500 gallons of water putting out the flames.

The remains rekindled again at 8: 20 a.m., only 20 minutes after firemen had left the scene. They returned and spent four hours pumping 4,500 gallons of water on the flames. Everything was properly watersoaked for awhile anyway.

Then, at 12:11 a.m. today, the fire started up again. Firemen were at the , scene for a little over two hours and used another 1,500 gallons of water to

A matter of pride

It's happened again. Midlanders have opened their hearts and their pocketbooks to help their fellow man.

The United Way volunteers excelled this year, shattering the challenging 1980 goal of $1,150,-

The results of this year's campaign are further proof of the continued committment of Midlanders to helping those around them. Perhaps that, more than anything else, is the true measure of a city.

Recently, Dr. Robert Boynton Smith, senior minister of First Presbyterian Church, served as one of the speakers at a Leadership Midland session. He noted the spirit of Midlanders in helping others, as well as to help Midland itself.

Fortunately, looking at all our civic and social programs, there is a high degree of voluntarism in Midland. That, too, is a feather in the city's cap, so to speak, and a credit to the people living here. Their willingness to get involved. and to take an active role in community life is helping to change things for the better in Midland and to ensure a brighter future for

That voluntarism evidenced in the campaign this year, along with the high level of giving by Midlanders from all walks of life, reinforces the conviction of Midlanders to put "their money where their mouth is" when it. comes to supporting the agencies and institutions that help make life worthwhile for all Mid-

That is true because United Way agencies do not serve merely one segment of Midland's population. They serve Midland's young and they serve its old. They serve its single people and its families. They serve its poor and they serve Midlanders of better means.

United Way of Midland cuts across all classes and economic and racial levels of people. That is one of the factors that make United Way such an attractive agency for contributors.

It may be a cliche of sorts, but in this instance we think it fits perfectly. The support for United Way evidenced in this year's campaign is one of those wonderful facets that help make the Tall City even taller than the glass and steel structures for which it is

United States needs economic 'spring cleaning' session

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Nick Thim mesch is on vacation. His guest columnist for today is George Weyerhaeuser, president of the Weyerhaeuser Co.)

By GEORGE WEYERHAEUSER

No family, corporation or country can afford over the long-term to spend beyond its income. But the United States has placed itself in a dangerously vulnerable position by doing exactly that.

Every year since 1970, with the exception of the recession years of 1973 and 1975, when U.S. purchasing power was reduced, our country has imported more than it has exported. Each of the past three years, our international trade deficit has stood at about $30 billion.

Were it not for sales abroad of renewable agriculture and forest products, which together pay for about two-thirds of America's imported oil, we would be even more deeply in the red. The domestic steel and automobile industries have been particularly big losers to foreign competition.

Our country's national security and economic well-being - and, in turn, the preservation of our free institu-- will be determined in large part by whether we are able to turn our trade deficit into a trade sur-

What needs to be done? As a nation,

- encourage new investment in competitive sectors of our economy;

- improve our productivity and avoid overburdening our industrial base with excess regulation;

develop an export mentality (less than 10 percent of U.S. manufacturing companies have steady export busiwork ceaselessly to reduce overseas barriers to our exports; and - set new priorities among government, business, labor and agriculture to build U.S. exports. All of this will take time. If we stick with it, however, such a positive program will have far larger payoffs than quick, protectionist fixes, which might, in the short-term, reduce our deficit but would add to inflation and set off international trade wars. Much of the remaining protectionist sentiment in the United States is based upon a mistaken impression that American and other raw materials are exported to "cheap labor" nations that manufacture and return to us goods of less or comparable quality at bargain prices. If there was ever any basis for that impression, it has disappeared in the basic industries during the past few decades.

The U.S. is now a net importer of nonrenewable raw materials. Wage and benefit rates for workers in the companies of Western Europe and Japan with which these Ameri-comparable to those here. Their energy and raw material costs tend to be considerably higher can industries compete are generally than those faced by U.S. industries. And the competition between the foreign and domestic goods in these categories tends to be based as much on quality as price.

Imports allow American consumers to have the widest possible selection of the world's production of goods, not just our own, from which they can choose the best quality at the best value. Where American goods cannot compete in this market, most often it's simply because America has penalized capital formation for investment in more productive manufacturing capacity, while discouraging long-range research.

In most of Western Europe, and in Japan, capital formation, research and productivity have been prime national goals since World War II. Governments a 3 the private sector have worked tog, ther to increase economic competitiveness in these countries during that period.

On the other hand, during much of the same period, government and industry in the United States have had an adversary relationship. Until very recently, mention of capital formation as a national goal for the United States would have resulted in raised evebrows at best, and, at worst, scornful laughter.

Ims has changed. But in some sectors the protectionist, quick fix of limiting imports still has respectability. Even stranger, in some quarters and for some products, there is still sentiment to limit exports; as well.

Yet, only by significantly increasing exports of those American products still competitive in the world market can we slow the erosion of the dollar while American industry rebuilds. L'urthermore, a growing numof U.S. jobs depend on exports, as well as imports.

One out of four jobs at Weyerhaeuser in this country is dependent on export markets. Our most successful, competitive companies and industries are equally dependent. Our country must have oil, nickel, tin, chromium, bauxite, aluminum, cobalt, manganese and other essentialmaterials that can only be secured

To buy them overseas, we must sell overseas. We must strengthen the dollar, create new jobs, and restore our economy to stable and steady growth. This can only be done by keeping the international marketplace open and by doing the things domestically that will help us compete in that marketplace.

As usual, the American people are ahead of their leaders. Every publicopinion poll I've seen indicates that they want free trade and that they want to do what is necessary to get our economic house in order. Public will is there. A bipartisan coalition in Congress is urging adoption of an action program. President-elect Reagan owes it to us to offer the same, beginning with his January Inaugural office that is so exquisitely careful in the wording of its letters to Con-'Most of the people are not qualified," said one of the few Russian Service employees with a solid back-

RATHER BE RIGHT: All but overlooked in the Democratic gloom and Republican euphoria of the lame duck session of Congress was a slim, bespectacled, silver-haired member from Illinois: Rep. John Anderson. He encountered no hard feelings

among his colleagues in the House, and received many warm accolades for his quixotic, presidential campaign - which he still thinks was "the greatest experience of my life. (Thanks to the vote he rolled up and the federal financing it brought, the campaign will not be, as he observed on election night, "the most expensive experience of my life.") Anderson is currently sorting through a number of writing and teaching possibilities, and says his major interest now is foreign affairs. Though he still professes to believe in the two-party system, he has decided to remain an independent. He would like to see regional presidential primaries replace the present system, which he believes is too expensive and too cumbersome

Looking back Anderson says he re grets "some of the strident things we may have said in the campaign, but not the positions we took; I think they were right.

Man suspected in wife's death freed year-old man was ordered freed from jail after authorities found no physical evidence linking him to the death of his wife, whose dismembered body was found at a wrecking yard here.

Floyd Baker was jailed Dec. 1 after the head and body of Linda Sue Baker were discovered. He was charged with murder four days later, lost his job and the custody of his two children and was evicted from his home.

He emerged from Potter County jail Tuesday bitter over news accounts and angry with the sheriff's

Two arrested following spree

SEMINOLE - Two men were in custody in the Gaines County Jail here early this morning following a Tuesday theft spree which led them from Andrews County to Gaines County

Sheriff's deputy Jon Key said the men allegedly stole a 1980 Chevrolet pickup from the Florey Store convenience grocery in Andrews and drove north to a Phillips tank farm 12 miles outside of Seminole.

The two men then held two workers in the Phillips yard at gunpoint and stole a 1980 Chevrolet truck around 4 p.m. Tuesday, leaving the Andrews pickup at the site, according to Key. Sheriff's deputies apprehended the two men en route to Seminole at 5:05 p.m. Tuesday. The men have been charged with aggravated robbery and theft, however their names were withheld this · morning pending questioning, Key news media. There's only one side being presented. It's not right. It's not fair," said Baker

State District Judge George Dowlen ordered Baker's release after deputies testified they had no physical evidence linking him with the slay-

The charge against Baker was to be dropped today, said Potter County District Attorney Tom Curtis.

A Potter Grand jury took no action against Baker when it considered the case last week, and Curtis said the case would not be presented again unless new evidence was developed.

Sheriff's deputies testified Tuesday that the only evidence linking Baker to his wife's death was a statement from the couple's 7-year-old son,

Deputy Carl Haidle had testified at an earlier hearing that the boy told authorities he saw his father kick his mother, beat her with a hammer and then cut her up

Baker said the boy probably developed his story after listening to detectives talking about the case.

"I think most children have pretty vivid imaginations and they have been hearing different things from different people. I'm sure they overheard some of the conversations" of the detectives, he said.

He said he had last seen his wife Nov. 16 and reported her missing the next day. "I loved my wife very much," Baker said.

"The most important thing is to get my kids back. To get some kind of life re-established and get them over the loss of their mother," he said. Child welfare officials had taken custody of Monty and his 5-year-old brother, David, after an emergency hearing Dec. 3. A hearing for permanent custody will be held in early

Victim withdraws testimony, but rapist denied new trial

"We don't drop cases on the whim of the victim," prosecutor Steve Hawkins said Tuesday.

Defense lawyers had argued that Kenny Burns, 23, should not have to spend 20 years in jail because of testimony from someone who had switched stories.

"Don't put that man in the penitentiary on the whim of the victim," said defense lawyer Herbert Moncier.

But Circuit Court jail. Judge John Crawford ruled that "a criminal offense is not a lawsuit between a victim and a defendant.'

The state is the plaintiff, he explained, and she was angry at Burns. the district attorney controls the prosecution.

"It is not within the control of the victim or any other individual to prosecute or not to prosecute, and obviously cannot be and should not be and is not so in this state." Crawford said. After their motion for a

Nov. 24, testifying that she and Burns had engaged in foreplay — not intercourse — the night

But Hawkins and District Attorney General David Ballard told the judge at the recantation hearing that the teenager had told them she felt a 20-year sentence was too harsh for Burns and feared for his life in

Crawford said he had found Ms. Noah's demeanor at the trial was that of a "careful witness," while at the recantation hearing, she was "on occasion flippant with a grin or smile on her face ... silly ... laughing."

Arab-Americans urge release of assassin 'hero' Sirhan

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - Sirhan Sirhan, the convicted killer of Robert F. Kennedy, is "a hero to the people of the Middle East" and should be released, an Arab-American group

M.T. Mehdi, president of the New York-based American-Arab Relations Committee, Tuesday called the 35-year-old Sirhan a "political prison-

He said Sirhan, a Jordanian, would be welcomed "with open arms" in Iraq, Libya and Jordan.

Sirhan is highly regarded by Arabs, Mehdi said, because his target, Kennedy, brother of the late President. John Kennedy, was a proponent of military aid to Israel.

Sirhan, however, is "remorsefulabout his (Kennedy's) family,'' Mehdi said.

Mehdi said he would ask California's Board of Prison Terms to hold a special meeting as early as January to consider Sirhan's release. Sirhan already has been turned down for parole three times, most recently on Monday. He is eligible for parole in September 1984.

The board's executive officer, Robin Dezember, said it "almost never" holds a special meeting.

He described Sirhan as "an excellent prisoner ... a model inmate who has done very well in prison," adding that the parole date "could even be reduced a couple of months.

His next parole hearing date is in Sirhan, held since the June 1968 assassination in Los Angeles of Kennedy, a New York senator and presidential candidate, "has paid for his

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today cancelled nationwide protest marches planned by clergy-oriented hardliners against the secular moderates of President Abolhassan Bani-

The 80-year-old patriarch of Iran's revolution said in a radio address to his 36 million countrymen his cancellation orders were issued to preserve Iran's national unity in the war against Iraq.

Khomeini described the war situation as "critical," called the Iraqis "enemies of Islam" and said no divisive reactions by the public were permissible "even if I or my portrait are insulted.

This appeared to be a reference to the tearing down last week of the portraits of Khomeini's chosen successor, Ayatollah Hossein Ali Montazeri, from the walls of Iran's northeastern town of Mashhad.

It was the Mashhad anti-clerical demonstrations by the moderates that touched off the call for the protest marches on Thursday in all cities of Iran against Bani-Sadr's supporters, who were described in clerical leaflets as "American stooges" and "fifth column agents of the Iraqi

Sixty-eight members of Iran's Parliament signed a petition Tuesday accusing Bani-Sadr of disclosing secret parliamentary discussions about the war and calling for an investiga-

The accusation came after a series of articles were published in the Enqelwb Islami newspaper in Tehran, run by supporters of Bani-Sadr.

An editor of the paper said although the petition was aimed at the president it did not mention him by name, instead accusing "those who disclose these issues as harming and weakening the Iranian army."

The deputies said the articles written about the "confrontation of the army with the enemy ... and the mistakes it made ... could lead to the weakening of the army's morale," the

The petition appeared to be the latest salvo in the continuing power struggle between Bani-Sadr and his chief rival, Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai.

Iran and Iraq each claimed battlefield successes today but war communiques clearly showed the 87-day-old conflict on the northern end of the Persian Gulf was bogged down in a winter standoff.

Iraq claimed it repulsed a tank-led Iranian assault near the key highway town of Susangerd in Iran's southwestern oil province of Khuzistan and an Iranian attack in Iran's western

The Iraqi command claimed 34 Iranian troops killed, six tanks destroyed and one helicopter gunship shot down. It conceded five Iraqi deaths.

Iran's official Pars news agency claimed 52 Iraqi troops killed in the western region of Gilan Gharb and around the refinery city of Abadan, 300 miles to the south. It conceded three Iranian soldiers killed

Although war claims could not be independently verified, it was clear that neither side made any ground

Western military analysts believe rain and snow will block any tideturning offensive at either end of the battlefront in the five-month winter season that ends in April.

Today was the 410th day in captivity for the 52 American hostages in Iran. On Tuesday, Rajai said they could be freed by Christmas if the U.S. government gave the Tehran regime a "financial guarantee." Jody Powell, President Carter's chief spokesman, and other U.S. officials played down the statement, although the mood at the State Department was more upbeat than it had

One U.S. official said he wouldn't be surprised if there were a "hooker" in Rajai's statement but said he believes the hostages will be home soon. Today was the Americans' 410th day in cap-

Rajai's statement appeared to mean Iran might release the hostages before the United States fulfills the ransom demands, which include a call for the return of the late Shah

Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's wealth. It was not clear whether the guarantee would require eventual full U.S. compliance or merely a good faith effort to meet the demands.

A major obstacle to ending the crisis has been that the U.S. government is legally powerless to satisfy Iran's demands for the return of the wealth

New Salvadoran rule shares same old problems

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — El Salvador has its third government in a year - this one headed by a civilian - but diplomatic sources say there is no guarantee it will be more successful than the others in ending terrorism and reviving a shattered economy The new government reduces the membership of the governing junta from five to four, dropping the most liberal member, Col. Arnoldo Adolfo Majano, and naming one of its two Christian Democrats, Jose Napoleon Duarte, as president

Duarte is the third civilian to hold the office in half a century. The other two were Dr. Rodolfo Cordon, who lasted for four months in 1962, and Arturo Araujo, who was allowed nine months in 1931. The military and the Christian Democrats shaped the new government last weekend. The speculation here is that some of the more rightist elements in the military may also be ousted as a concession to liberals who wanted to keep Majano.

The military still holds ultimate power, however, and its marriage to the Christian Democrats appears to be more one of convenience than of "The military needs the Christian Democrats for international credibility and the Christian Democrats need the military to control the nation. That's why the military hasn't just taken over," said a diplomatic specialist.

Majano was the driving force behind land reform and other changes designed to defuse the left-right violence in which 9,000 people have died this year. The reforms angered many rightists who lost their holdings because of the changes.

Majano was one of two military men on the junta. The other, Col. Jaime Abdul Gutierrez, remains as vice president and military commander in chief.

The two colonels led the coup Oct. 15, 1979, that ousted Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero's military government. They changed the civilian members of their junta early this year, along with most of the Cabinet, but the violence increased.

Walesa warns against further strikes

GDANSK, Poland (AP) - Lech Walesa, leader of country.' the independent labor movement, warned today the time was not right for further strikes in Poland. 'Society wants order right now," Walesa told reporters following ceremonies in Gdansk and Gdynia commemorating workers killed by police and troops in December 1970 food price riots.

'We have to learn negotiations instead of strikes," Walesa said, adding that strike threats raised public concern about transport and other problems.

Walesa's remarks, made to reporters in the dingy offices of his Solidarity labor union, reflected appeals from union, Roman Catholic Church and government leaders for calm and national unity as the nation honors victims of the 1970 violence.

During ceremonies Tuesday night unveiling a memorial to 1970-victims, Walesa told a crowd of several hundred thousand people that he wanted Polish workers "to be careful and responsible in the name of our country.'

Walesa told the press conference today that Solidarity, which elaims the support of 10 million Poles or nearly a third of the nation's population, did 'not want to overthrow the system.

"Every system is good which serves well the interests of the people," Walesa said.

The press conference followed a pre-dawn Mass in nearby Gdynia, near the spot where troops opened fire on workers 10 years ago as they crossed a bridge leading to the local shipyard. Organizers of the Mass said the service began at 5 a.m. because that was the hour Polish tanks rolled into the area to confront the workers.

The Mass was one of several memorial services scheduled in the coastal area in honor of the 1970 victims. The highpoint came Tuesday evening with the unveiling of a 130-foot monument erected by workers at the Lenin Shipyard.

The workers stood in gusting winds and freezing rain for the dedication outside the shipyard in the Baltic port of Gdansk. Some 5,500 men in yellow hardhats policed the crowd and checked the identities of everyone entering the barriers they built of

President Henryk Jablonski led other other government officials, relatives of the slain workers and representatives of Solidarity, Poland's biggest independent union, in laying flowers at the base of the floodlit monument - three giant steel crosses with sculpted anchors spiked to their arms. Mindful of the threat of Soviet intervention, leaders of the independent labor movement, the Roman Catholic Church and the Communist Party all appealed for calm and national unity.

Walesa quoted a recent pastoral letter from the Polish bishops that said, "It is not permissible to undertake any action that would expose our motherland to the danger of a threat to freedom and statehood." Then in his own words he called on his countrymen "to stay alert in defense of security and preservation of sovereignty of our motherland" and 'to be careful and responsible in the name of our

Mayors say Israelis hurting own cause

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - Israel is hurting its own cause by taking harsh measures against moderate Palestinians who are willing to live side-by-side with the Jewish state, say two Arab mayors expelled by the Israelis from the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

Mayor Mohammed Milhem of Halhoul, who was expelled on Dec. 5, charged in an interview Tuesday that Israel is attempting to muzzle, discredit or expel politically influential West Bank Palestinians.

He said Israel wants to "isolate the leadership from their people in the hope the people will bow to autonomy and Camp David." Milhem and Mayor Fahd Qawasmeh of Hebron have come to New York to put their case before the U.N. Security Council, hoping to bring international pressure on Israel. 'If I were an Israeli, I would tell the Israeli politicians, 'Stop it. You are endangering the lives of our future generations, and we don' want to be holocausted every 40 or 50 years," said Milhem. 'We don't want it either. "We want to live with the Israelis, two states, side by side. We want an innocent state. We will prove to the world that the Palestinians want to live in peace.

We don't want tanks. We don't want Phantoms or Milhem and Qawasmeh call themselves moderates opposed to violence, but Israeli authorities charge that they incited unrest on the West Bank. They were expelled in May, hours after Palestinian guerrillas ambushed and killed six Israelis in Hebron, but were were allowed to return in October to appeal the expulsion. On Dec. 4, the Israeli Supreme Court upheld the legality of the expulsion order but urged Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government to allow them to retwrn to their homes. The government, however, deported them to Lebanon the next day.

While the two mayors say they are not members of any of the guerrilla organizations that make up Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, both regard the PLO as the "sole legitimate representative" of the Palestinian people Fiszbach said the party had taken "the way of summer led by the Gdansk shipyard workers.

Gasoline prices pumped up to highest level, AAA says

Gasoline prices have surged upward during the past month to erase the price declines posted during late summer and autumn, according to the Texas division of the American Automobile Association in Houston.

A survey of 418 service stations in Texas by the AAA indicates that average prices for motor fuel have risen by up to 2.1 cents a gallon since Triple-A's last survey on Nov. 19. The price increases were the greatest recorded since last April, and most prices are now at or above the highest levels ever recorded in Texas.

The survey results indicate fuel availability will be good during the forthcoming Christmas and New Year's weekends, with supplies fairly tight on the holidays themselves but ample throughout the rest of the weekends.

Nearly three-fourths of the stations will be closed on Christmas Day and nearly all those closing on that day will also close a week later on New

A spokesman for AAA said it has been the pattern in previous years for most stations to close on these days. but no problems have resulted because traffic is usually light.

"Traffic will probably be heavier than usual on these days, however, because they are the first days of long weekends," the spokesman said. "We are recommending that anyone driving long distances on Christmas Day or New Year's Day not let their gas tanks fall below half-full, especially if they are driving through rural areas not served by Interstate highways." On both holiday weekends, fuel availability will improve dramatically after the first day. The survey shows that 52 percent will be open Friday night and other weekday nights; 78 percent will sell gas on ingit.

Saturday night; and 63 percent will be open on Sunday during both holiday weekends

In the Midland-Odessa area, 36 percent of 14 stations surveyedwill be closed after 8 p.m. on weekdays and 7 percent of those will be closed after 6 p.m. weekdays. However, 43 percent of the stations will be closed on Sunday during the holidays.

Current average full-service prices for Texas (with November's prices in parentheses) are: regular $1.19.7 ($1.18.5); unleaded $1.23.6 ($1.22.7); premium $1.28.0 ($1.25.9); and unleaded $1.28.7 ($1.27.7). Average selfservice prices are: regular $1.12.7 ($1.11.6); unleaded $1.18.3 ($1.16.8); premium $1.21.9 ($1.19.9); and premium unleaded $1.24.6 ($1.24.1). The average price of diesel fuel is $1.10.7, compared to $1.08.4 in November.

The AAA spokesman said the highest prices recorded previously for the various grades of motor fuel are: full-service regular $1.19.7, unleaded $1.23.7, premium $1.25.9, premium unleaded $1.27.5; self-service regular $1.14.8, unleaded $1.19.4, premium $1.21.5, premium unleaded $1.23.3; and diesel $108.6.

Midland-Odessa average prices for full-service stations are $1.19.3 for regular and $1.23.3 for unleaded, with no report for premium unleaded

For self-service pumps in the Permian Basin area average prices are regular $1.12.2 and unleaded $1.16.8, with no figures recorded for the premium unleaded. Average price for diesel fuel is $1.05.2

The survey revealed that leaded premium gasoline has nearly disappeared in Texas, with fewer than 7 percent of the stations surveyed sell-

JAW unsure about wage freeze

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) - Leaders of the United Auto Workers union say they're willing to renegotiate their current contract with Chrysler, but they can't predict whether workers will agree to the troubled automaker's request for a 22-month wage

Reinstitution of draft possible in '80s: Brown

By ROBERT E. THOMPSON Chief, Washington Bureau Hearst Special News Service

Washington - Outgoing Defense Secretary Harold Brown said today it may become necessary in the mid-80s to reinstitute the military draft because of tightening competition for the services of young men.

'The number of people reaching age 18 is going to decrease," said Brown. "...and the military is going to have to compete for people. In the mid-80s, conscription may become necessary.

In addition to fewer 18-year-olds, competition also could be accelerated by the differential between money paid to service personnel and money paid in the private sector.

At a breakfast session with reporters. Brown also said he shoulders much of the blame for the erosion of skilled manpower in the armed services as a result of continued low pay over recent years. Although the military chiefs of staff did foresee the dire effects of low compensation on the quality of military personnel, Brown conceded that he personally failed to anticipate it until 1979 when the big erosion" became apparent. But the Defense Secretary vehemently denied that the United States has a "poor military.

"I do not believe that charges that our military are a bunch of boobs, junkies, even drunks and incompetents, are justified," said Brown. He contended that military personnel at all levels are dedicated, capable and professional when compared to any other profession.

Although many critics have complained that voluntary military service has sharply lowered the quality of individuals entering the armed services, Brown said he does not accept that conclusion.

"I do not blame the lack of a draft for a poor military," said the secretary. "We do not have a poor military.

Brown acknowledged, however, that increased pay has improved the retention rate among skilled individuals. He also contended that an improved public attitude toward military personnel has proved "very important" in retaining top individuals. He said "attitude and money" can go a long way toward improving the armed forces - but returned to his prediction that conscription may become necessary within a very few years because of a declining number of 18-year-olds and financial competition from the private sector.

Looking back over his four years in office, Brown claimed the most important accomplishment of that period was that we stayed at peace for four years" despite provocation to intervene militarily in Latin America, Africa and the Middle East. 'That is an easy thing to dismiss, said Brown, "except when it doesn't happen.

Brown also said that beginning with the last years of the Ford Administration and running through the Carter Administration, the government has turned around seven or more years of decline in our military effort.'

Brown added: "We participated in and helped shape a conception among the American people that the United States did need to be strong and have a response to nearly 20 years of Soviet buildup. The American people have come to such a consensus."

Among other achievements, Brown noted that "real progress" has been made in getting America's allies the NATO nations and Japan - to increase their defense expenditures. He also cited as accomplishments the development and-or deployment of a variety of new weapons systems, including the MX missile, the cruise missile, the trident missile and the stealth technology.

The greatest failure - and biggest disappointment-said Brown, was failure of the Carter Administration to win ratification of the SALT II

courses

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin has scheduled three courses in Midland for the spring semester - two in education and one in finance.

Registration will be from7 to 9 p.m. Jan. 13 in the Lee High School library.

Finance 610, Business and the Public Interest, Free Enterprise, will meet 6-8:45 p.m. Tuesdays in LHS room 405. Classes will begin Jan.

The course may be used as one of the elective courses in the master of business administration program. It also provides data that is basic for secondary school courses in free enterprise.

Students taking the course will explore perceptions of business, business response to community, state and national issues, and press reports of business attitudes toward free enterprise.

The two courses in education include a reading practicum and a course on culture and learning.

The reading practicum, Pedagogical Studies 692, will meet 6-9 p.m. each Wednesday beginning Jan. 21 in Room 401 at Lee High School.

Dr. G. Peter Ienatsch, associate professor of pedagogical studies, said the practicum is a fieldbased course providing a wide range of experience.

The course requires the application of diagnostic and teaching strategies to students with reading problems in kindergarten through 12th

He noted the course applies to a master of arts degree in reading and to reading specialization certification.

Culture and Learning, Pedagogical Studies 695, is a study of the interrelationship of culture and learning. Scheduled 6-9 p.m. each Wednesday beginning an. 21, the s will examine en viconmental influences on socialization, cognition and achievement. Instructor is Dr. -Clarence Kron, professor and chairman of pedagogical studies. Kron noted the course applies as elective credit in the masters degree program in educational administration and may apply toward a masters in reading on the elementary and secondary levels

Off-campus courses are also scheduled in Big Spring, Andrews, Pecos and Pyote, in addition to the almost 380 courses being offered on the Odessa campus.

Enrollment at UTPB is open to students who have completed 60 hours of coursework at any accredited community college, senior college or university.

5th court to hear case on state literacy testing laws

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - If Johnny can't read, write or do simple arithmetic, must his high school award him a diploma? Many states have passed laws that say no, but the issue of enforcing them remains in the courts.

On Monday, a three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals will hear arguments in a Florida case that may well provide the answer - perhaps after a Supreme Court examination of the

The 5th Circuit is based in New Orleans, but the panel will hear the case in Atlanta.

At issue is not only whether taxpayers are getting their money's worth from public education, but also whether literacy testing unconstitutionally discriminates against minorities who have historically received inferior educations.

In addition, the state is concerned that U.S. District Judge George Carr may have set a bad precedent in declaring that the state's competency testing program may not be enforced until minority students have been given a chance to catch up.

"Everybody's watching this case," says Stephen . Hanlon, an attorney for (Tampa) Bay Area Legal Services, the federally funded poverty lawyers who sued over Florida's controversial literacy test.

"There are 36 other states with some form of competency testing program," he said, "but Florida was the first state to try to deny diplomas to students who didn't pass.'

Florida's testing program also was the first challenged in court.

To the chagrin of Florida officials, the U.S. Justice and Education departments filed a joint friend-ofthe court brief on behalf of the black plaintiffs:

State educators describe the two-part exam as a test of minimum skills necessary to function in society - like calculating sales taxes on small purchases. After a trial, Carr ruled that the questions are not culturally biased.

The test was first administered in 1977, but not a single diploma has been denied so far because of the court challenge triggered by the disproportionate failure rate among blacks.

Seventy-eight percent of Florida's black 11th graders failed either the math or the communications section that first year. At the same time, 25 percent of the white juniors flunked at least one part of the test. Those who fail have three more chances

Last year, Carr ruled in Tampa that the state must wait until 1983 before high schools can use the literacy test as a prerequisite to earning a diplo-

He said the delay was necessary to make sure the last "taint of segregation" is removed from public schools. In Tampa, full integration of schools wasn't completed until 1971.

that the educational system provide ample notice of literacy-test rules so students and teachers can prepare, the judge also ruled.

Despite Carr's ruling on cultural bias, Florida Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington was upset about the delay and appealed

"We're concerned about the possible precedent established in Judge Carr's ruling that the educational system must give notice before changes are made," says Howard Friedman, spokesman for the state Department of Education.

"If we have to wait four years to implement the functional-literacy test, how long will we have to wait before we can change the questions on the test? Twelve years? For us, the implications are much broader than the test alone.'

Moreover, the state's attorneys note that the state recognized many illiterate students were poor or disadvantaged, and the Legislature provided money for remedial instruction for those who failed the

At the hearing, attorneys James D. Little and Judith A. Brechner are expected to present Florida's arguments. Attorney Roger Rice of the Center for Law and Education in Cambridge, Mass., is scheduled to give oral arguments for the other side. Lawyers opposing the test acknowledge their cause is unpopular with most parents, but they've attracted a wide range of support from civil rights

Meanwhile, both blacks and whites are improving on the tests, which are given but not used as a criteria for graduation. Last year, 86 percent of the white students and 47 percent of the black students passed both sections But the plaintiffs argue that that suggests only that a four-year delay in enforcing the law may not be

'As long as the test produces a racially discriminatory impact, then the constitutional questions of fairness are valid," says Hanlon.

Burnham takes big lead

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) - Opposition leaders and foreign observers are crying foul over voting irregularities as a slow count plods toward a certain election victory for socialist President Forbes Burnham's party.

Returns from six of the South American nation's 10 regional districts gave Burnham's People's National Congress 165,521 votes, or 75 percent, in the election Monday of a new Parliament, The tally also included absentee ballots from Guyanese abroad.

Cheddi Jagan's communist People's Progressive Party had 47,887 votes, or 22 percent, and the right-wing United Force had 5,732, or 3 percent. A PNC victory in the election of the 65-member

Maxie Anderson plans global balloon flight

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — When 19th Century novelist Jules Verne wrote "Around the World in 80 Days," it seemed unlikely that man could travel so fast. Now two balloonists are hoping to make a similar air voyage in a tenth of that time.

Appropriately enough, Maxie Anderson and his co-pilot, Don Ida, have named their balloon the "Jules Verne." "It should be the longest, fastest, highest balloon flight ever and an adventure worthy of Jules Verne himself," Anderson said Tuesday in announcing the venture. Anderson, 46, is a veteran long-distance balloonist and was one of three men who completed a trans-Atlantic balloon crossing in 1978. He and his son, Kris, made the first non-stop balloon trip across North America earlier this year. 'We will attempt to circle the globe non-stop, but we'll complete the voyage even if forced to land a time or two," Anderson said.

Anderson, of Albuquerque, and Ida, of Denver, said during a news conference they plan to launch the helium-filled balloon from Egypt in February or March. Anderson said the flight should cost about $200,

The balloon will fly in the jet stream at altitudes of 25,000 to 30,000 feet, reaching speeds up to 150 miles an hour, the balloonists say. Average speeds could exceed 100 miles an hour, permitting the balloon to cover 20,000 miles or more in eight to 10 days.

At launch, the balloon will measure about 110 feet long and 80 feet in diameter. The balloonists will ride in an unpressurized gondola, 14 feet long and 10 feet wide, that is designed to remain upright and afloat if the balloon should be forced down at sea.

Sufficient food and water will be aboard to last 20 days. Anderson said he and Ida could run into political problems during their

He said they will attempt to fly south of such countries as Iran and Iraq, which are at war. He also said talks are being conducted with China in an effort to get clearance should the balloon be blown across that country. Ida said he and Anderson hope to reach the Pacific Ocean from Egypt without flying across Afghanistan, Iraq, Iran or the Himalayas.

'The 6,000 miles from Egypt to the Pacific should the toughest part of the flight," Ida said. The two hope to enter the Pacific south of Japan and then float far to the north, perhaps to Alaska, before arcing down across Canada and the

The trajectory is difficult to forecast beyond that point, they said, but the balloon is most likely to traverse the central part of the United States, then cut up along the Atlantic seaboard to a point off Newfoundland. The, balloon would then cross the Atlantic Ocean, Europe and the Mediterranean Sea, the balloonists said.

Troopers reinforce Miami police

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — One hundred Highway Patrol troopers from throughout Florida will report for temporary duty in Dade County next month to help police cope with a crime wave blamed in part on the huge influx of refugees this year.

While some members questioned the effectiveness of the move, Gov. Bob Graham and the state Cabinet on Tuesday unanimously approved the program, to last at least 30 days.

A request to extend the aid another month will be considered Jan. 12.

Two die in gang war

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - Young hoods from New York City are being blamed for helping spark a war between two Hartford youth gangs which has taken at least two lives in the past week

Members of the rival gangs, the Savage Non ads and the Ghetto Brothers, contacted Police Chief George Sicaras on Tuesday about the possibility of arranging a meeting to establish a truce.

The latest killings marked the end of a truce arranged earlier this year after a previous spate of violence. At least two deaths have been blamed on the latest war and police were investigating the possibility that a third killing was gang-related. "Some of the gang activity is being caused by outsiders," Sicaris said. He repeated police assertions that the two gangs have loose connections with gang "chapters" using the same names in New York and that some gang members travel back and forth over the 120 miles between Hartford and New York.

The body of 15-year-old William Rios was found Sunday on a deserted stretch of road in suburban Newington. He was killed by two gunshot wounds to the head and two to the body. Newington police officials in pleading for assistance.

Dade County Commissioner James F. Redford ties. said the troopers are needed until the county and free up local police to fight crime. He said Dade law enforcement agencies were caught undermanned when an estimated 90,000 Cuban refugees settled in Dade County following the 'Freedom Flotilla" boatlift, which began in April.

Bill Talbert, executive assistant to the Dade County manager, said that the county has 340 vacancies in its police department, including newly created positions, and Miami has about 200 vacancies. Both governments, however, are having a hard time filling the positions, citing court orders requir-

Firemen facing charges after woman's death

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Fire Chief Andrew Casper says as many as 10 of his men may be charged with misconduct in an investigation of reports they took their pumper to an abalone dinner the night a woman burned to death near their station, the San Francisco Chronicle reported today.

According to the Chronicle, Casper said the men of Engine Company 22 were driving back from a four-hour dinner at a Richmond District firehouse when they heard a "second request" for help the night of Nov. 23. The firemen were still at their dinner when a block from their firehouse. Casper said the men may be charged Dec. 24 before the Fire Commission, with a hearing to begin

January 14, the paper said. The Chronicle quoted Loretta Earley, 32, who tended bar across the street from the burning building, as saying she saw Louise Jenkins, 66, try to push out a fourth-floor window, then dash back into the burning structure. The elderly woman died in the

Ms. Earley said by the time the fire trucks arrived "the whole right side of the building was on fire." "They responded, but they responded late," the chief was quoted as saying. "If the facts substantiate the charges, there are grounds for very strong disciplinary action.

In a letter to the Fire Commission, Mayor Dianne Feinstein, called the episode "a shocking dereliction of duty," according to the story. "I remember no more serious allegations in the Fire Depart-

Casper was quoted as saying men from both the engine companies were under investgation.

According to a report submitted by the Fire Department to the Mayor's Office last week, the four firemen if Engine Company 22 took their pumper about a 11/2 miles to Engine 31 for the dinner to eat abalone, a shellfish considered a delicacy, caught by other firemen the day before.

Casper said the first report of the fire came at 9:38. p.m., and engines and trucks from other companies headed for the fire two minutes later. Company 22 "could have responded within one to three minutes,"

Union chief slain by 'delivery' man

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Union leader John J. McCullough, who was under investigation by a federal organized crime strike force, was shot to death by a man who entered his home posing as a flower deliverer, officials say.

McCullough, 60, president of Roofers Union Local 30, was dead when police arrived at his home Tuesday, authorities said.

According to police, McCullough was shot six times with a .22-caliber pistol as he talked on the telephone in the kitchen of his home. The assailant had delivered two poinsettias, police said. McCullough's wife, Audrey, 59, who also was in the kitchen, notified authorities. By the time police arrived, the assailant had escaped in a van, detectives said. Joel M. Friedman, assistant U.S. attorney in charge of the federal task force on organized crime and racketeering here, said McCullough had been under investigation for some time. Friedman declined, however, to release details of the inquiry The Bulletin, quoting an unidentified federal source, said McCullough had been a long-time associate of reputed mob leader Angelo Bruno, who was killed in March.

The source said McCullough may have been slain at the order of the New York crime family of the late Carlo Gambino because it opposed his union organizing efforts in Atlantic City.

McCullough first came to public attention in the early 1970s when the roofers led a fight against non-union labor in the suburbs

The campaign climaxed in 1972 when several hundred union workers caused extensive property damage at a Valley Forge building site being developed by an anti-union contractor. The resulting trial was the longest and most costly in the history of Montgomery County.

Several roofers convicted in connection with the incident began serving prison terms this year.

What to look for in a winter coat

County E'xtension Agent Home Economics

Buying know how for today's winter coat can make you one of those "fabulous winter coats" you've always wanted to own.

A winter coat is the most expensive single clothing purchase for most people. Although a coat may not be purchased each year, it's important to choose one that meet your needs to get the most for your money.

GET MAXIMUM WARMTH

For maximum warmth, look for these design features HOOD that fits closely around he

DOUBLE-BREASTED STYLING or a wide fron overlap on lapels will make the coat less likely to flip

FLARED SKIRT on a woman's fulllength coat will provide extra insulation while she's standing and full cover while she's sitting. EASY FIT will allow the coat to go over heavy sweaters or suits. Finally, you may not be able to find any coat that includes all the above features, but a warm coat will have many of them.

LAYERS ENSURE WARMTH

Also, in looking for a coat, think about the layers you'll have for ensuring warmth. There are three key layers: a protective outer layer, an insulative middle layer and a breathing layer underneath.

BREATHING LAYER

Regular daytime clothing worn under coats serves as the breathing layer usually. This provides comfort and allows perspiration to move away from the body, especially if the clothing is made of absorbent fibers, such as cotton or rayon. In the coat itself, the main concerns are the protective outer layer and the insulative layer.

PROTECTIVE LAYER

A coat's outer protective layer acts as a wind barrier, and it can shield against rain or snow. Also, it must be an attractive, fashionable fabric. This layer doesn't have to be thick, but it must block the wind. It has a "bonus" feature if it's water repellent, too (not waterproof). Materials with protective characteristics are: tightly woven nylon taffeta, ripstop or sharkskin fabrics. - polyester and cotton blends or 100 percent textured polyester twills and poplins.

-Leathers, on the other hand, such as calfskin, pigskin and sheepskin, are good wind barriers, but they may be damaged if exposed to rain. Manmade films, such as vinyl and polyurethane, are made to imitate real leather, and they are wind and water repellent, but they may stiffen and crack in cold weather.

WATER REPELLENT

Water-repellent finishes are often added to polyester/cotton blend coat fabrics. These finishes help fabrics resist stains and moisture, and they allow them to "breathe" or transfer air and moisture to the outside. On the contrary, waterproof finishes seal the spaces between yarns in fabrics and make garments more uncomfortable as a result.

INSULATIVE MIDDLE LAYER

The insulative quality of a coat holds "still" air close to the body Again, most coats are more comfortable if they're made of lightweight fabrics, and this is just as true for the insulative middle layer as it is for the protective outer layer. Good insulative fabrics are wool and wool blends in flannels, tweeds, gabardines, herringbones or houndstooth.

Outer good insulators are foam laminate, flocked, quilted, fur and pile

High Sky has annual fund raising drive

High Sky Girls Ranch, located 3 miles northwest of Midland, is in the midst of its annual fund raising drive. Money raised in the drive provides major support for the girls' needs, according to David Maley, executive director of the ranch. 'Christmas, as one song says, 'Tis the season to be jolly.' A time when people put aside day-to-day activities and let their thoughts turn to their families, their friends and the deeper meanings of this special time. For High Sky Girls Ranch, all of 1980 has been 'a season to be jolly'. Why? Because the community has cared and that caring has been put to work in the lives of 30 girls," said Maley.

'We want the community to know that the contributions could not only help to contineu the program at High Sky, but could communicate a very powerful message to the girls," he

Maley said that the Ranch is really a "team" of people whose job it is to see that this message and its positive effects continue. "Not only for the girls of this Christmas, but for the hundreds of young ladies this "team" will be called upon tp serve for Christmases yet to come," he noted.

High Sky is a non-profit residential child-caring agency incorporated for the purpose of serving the needs of young ladies and their families throughout Texas.

Established in 1963, and licensed by the department of Human Resources, the Ranch has a capacity to care for 31 girls ages six o 18 years. Referrals to the Ranch are accepted from the Department of Human Resources, Juvenile Probation and private sources such as parents and families.

Girls live in one of three cottage units under the direction of a homeparent couple. The goals of cottage living are many; to provide for each girl the love and understandiang o a family, the security and stability of a christian home environment and the opportunity to learn the resonsibilities necessary for living a happy, successful adult life. The Senior Cottage provides this unique opportunity "for the older girls to experience the responsibilities of being on their own while still living on campus.

Individual, group and family counseling are provided by the professional staff of High Sky, as well as oncampus tutoring and remedial reading programs in conjunction with the Midland Independent School Dis-

High Sky Girls Ranch is funded totally through individual gifts and

"There are 30 young girls at High Sky Girls Ranch who would love to have a merry Christmas like the rest of us. $50 would give a girl a good Christmas with the things most of us take for granted," Maley said. "Giving is part of Christmas too, help those who are not as well off and you may find more of the true meaning of Christmas. Call High Sky Girls Ranch today and say 'Count me in.'

Uses for neglected toys

DEAR HELOISE:

Christmas will soon be here, so now is the time to clear away those neglected toys. What to do with them always presents a problem, so here are a few suggestions.

Leave some at places you visit often where suitable toys aren't always available - for example, at the homes of grandparents, couples with babies, or grown children. You also could distribute them to church nurseries, doctor's offices, etc. - places which you frequent.

This will make your visits considerably more enjoyable. Children who are entertained and busy seldom are problems and it's amazing what fun the "reunion" is.

Another suggestion is to make a car basket - toys with lots of parts are especially good entertainment on

Or, you can make a "time for a change" box and bring it out for a mid-winter switch. Having something different to play with can be just the ticket for a child who is cooped up

"Trade" with your neighbors too. (Caution: children must realize this is permanent.)

Recycle toys by using them to make lamps, mobiles, wall hangings, etc. Children love these room decorations. Linda

And I love you for writing - and for your timely suggestions. Sure helps to get rid of the clutter once in a while. - Heloise

Bills, appointments left hanging when Congress adjourns

By SOLL SUSSMAN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The end of the 96th Congress squelched a number of Texas nominees and proposals affecting the state, at least this time

Bills can be re-introduced, without prejudice, when the 97th Congress starts its two-year session next month

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said he plans to make another attempt to get construction aid for border school districts to help them handle the influx of legal aliens.

The bill that included an authorization for $45 million in the special border school aid was defeated by the House in the last days of the unusually long congressional session, which ended Tuesday.

Two Texans nominated for federal judgeships were among those nominees blocked by Republicans ready to take over the White House and Senate leadership and put forward their own choices.

A confirmation hearing never was held for state District Judge Pete Lowry of Austin, nominated to fill a vacancy in the Western District of Texas.

Bentsen, who had recommended Lowry's nomination to President Carter, said he "certainly" regretted the turn of events that prevented his confirmation. "He's a very able man. I'm disappointed that the Senate didn't act on it," the senator said. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, has said it will be several months before Republicans are prepared to make local nominations. He will be consulting Vice President George Bush and Texas Gov. Bill Clements on candidates to fill the state positions.

The long pending nomination of Houston lawyer Andrew Jefferson for a position on the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals also expired when Congress ad-State Rep. Matt Garcia, a Democrat from San Antonio, asked to withdraw his nomination as commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service after Carter lost the election. The nomination had been delayed in the Senate Judiciary Committee, preventing his confirmation. Hearings never were held on two bills introduced late in the session by Tower and Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Texas, to net federal aid for local school districts educating illegal alien children.

The bill authorizing compensation for damages the massive Ixtoc I oil spill caused along the Texas coast passed the House but did not progress once it reached a Senate subcommittee.

Its sponsor, Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Texas, said he was disappointed by the measure's death.

"I think the people of the Texas coast have really been short-changed," the Victoria congressman said. He did not seek re-election.

The proposed Galveston deepwater port was among the public works projects from Texas that did not obtain funds during this congressional session. A pre-authorization reimbursement for $25 million for the project passed the House but stalled in the

Dear Dr. Solomon: Over the past six months I have reduced the amount I smoke from three packs a day to one pack, and I think I'll have broken the habit completely in another few months. But this is only indirectly related to my question. JEL

I have noticed advertisements that advise cigarette smokers to use a vitamin C supplement, and I would like your opinion. Are you in agreement with that recommendation? -

Mr. T.J.J Dear Mr. J.: This is one of those questions for which a "yes" or "no" answer is not possible; however, there are certain facts that may help clarify the issue and help you decide whether a supplement may be advisable for you.

First of all, the recommended dietary allowance for vitamin C can be obtained from a single juice orange, and it is therefore apparent that a supplement ordinarily is not needed for anyone with a satisfactory diet. However, studies have shown that the vitamin C levels of cigarette smokers are lower than those of nonsmokers, and that there is a direct relationship between these levels and the number of cigarettes smoked. Moreover, these studies have shown that increasing the amount of vitamin C in the diet can overcome the lower levels in smokers Although the solution may seem obvious - that is, increase the amount of vitamin C in the diet there is a possible hitch. There is evidence that a highly acid urine causes nicotine to be excreted more rapidly, and that this, in turn, may lead a person to smoke more cigarettes as a means of restoring the level of nicotine in the body. In fact, urine alkalinization is one part of the treatment I use in my private practice to help people stop smoking.

In any event, for some individuals, increasing vitamin C intake by means of a supplement may simply lead to an increased desire to smoke.

For these reasons, it is not possible at this time to recommend for or against a vitamin C supplement for smokers who have adequate diets. The decision would have to be made on an individual basis, and a discussion with your doctor seems like the best first step.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I agree that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. But if a person's arteries already contain fatty deposits, can anything be done about it? - Russ

Dear Russ: There are some indications that the process of atherosclerosis can be slowed down or even reversed. Researchers working with monkeys have found that significant increases in the animals' cholesterol levels produced atherosclerosis and heart attack. When the cholesterol level was decreased to a certain point, the atherosclerosis did not progress. And, finally, when the cholesterol was lowered still further, the amount of fat lining the inside of the blood vessels actually decreased. The significance of these findings is the indication that all of us have some degree of control over the risk factor associated with coronary artery dis-

Who are the people most likely to favor social policies or legislation that could pave the way for mercy killing or the encouragement of suicide among the senile elderly or the handicapped?

According to Dr. Paul Cameron, a social psychologist from Lincoln, Neb., they're the people who aren't getting much satisfaction out of their own lives and who regularly indulge in self-destructive

Cameron bases that assertion on the results of a survey ofmore than 2,000 people ranging from 12 to 96 in which 13 percent of respondents favored pulling the plug on life-supportsystems within 24 hours of instituting treatment and 7 percent favored encouraging suicide among the old and defective.

Food allergies may lead to some violent behavior

By DARLA WELLES Copley News Service

Is it possible that certain food allergies can result in violent behavior? Quite possible, according to Dr. Bernard Rimland, psychologist, researcher and director of the Institute for Child Behavior Research in San Diego, Calif.

Rimland, a specialist in children's behavioral problems, advocates the theory of orthomolecular therapy, which holds that imbalances in the brain caused by insufficient nutrients or excess toxins - alcohol, drugs, dangerous chemicals from the environment, or foods to which a person is allergic - can cause behavioral disturbances.

He estimated that as many as 60 percent of people suffering from a variety of afflictions — ranging from migraine headaches to learning disorders to outbursts of violence - may have problems that can be traced to allergic reactions to foods or exposure to environmental pollutants.

He further suggested that many of those disorders can be alleviated or cured by eliminating the toxins or supplying the needed nutrients to restore the body's natural, healthy bal-

While he did not suggest that nutritional imbalances or exposure to irritants are the only factors in the development of violent personalities, he said biochemical factors should not be overlooked in the search for causes and cures. Conventional wisdom holds that allergic reactions are manifested only in physical terms, such as rashes sneezing, difficulty in breathing and upset stomachs, he said.

That theory assumes that the brain is separate from the body and not subject to irritation by toxins or weakening by nutritional deficien-

Rimland, however, says the brain can be influenced by such factors, which he holds can cause inflammation, swelling and pressure or can dull or distort functioning of the brain's delicate communication system. He said some of the most common toxins, besides alcohol, drugs and environmental chemicals, are those producing allergic reactions to a number of commonly consumed foods. Among those are milk, eggs, wheat gluten, chocolate, corn, peanuts, sugar and the phosphates in preserved meats such as bacon.

Many of those are already known to cause physical symptoms of allergic response in many people, but have only recently come under scrutiny by the medical community as possible causes of behavioral disorders.

He said more than a half-dozen books by medical doctors examining the topic, and many others by lay authors, have been published in the past two years.

Most recommend water fasting to detoxify the system, followed by gradual reintroduction of suspect foods to determine allergic response. Rimland believes such therapy, while still highly controversial, will eventually find a respected place in the treatment of physical problems and behavioral disorders alike.

Exercise may improve health of elderly in several ways Runners have reported anecdotally By LEW SCARR for years that their abilities to deal Copley News Service with intellectual problems seem to be sharpened while they run. Birren's Physical exercise not only may im-systems, but also may slow down Dr. James E. Birren, a prize-win-

Stone returned

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) - It took a curse to do it, but a stone marker missing from a nature trail since Halloween is back at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Phil Heath, a Granite City, Ill., firefighter, returned the marker after finding it in the yard of a neighbor.

Bob Williams, associate professor of education, promptly recanted a curse put on the thieves which he said would cause their bodies to shrivel slowly until next Halloween.

"They should be OK," Williams said. "Only the right legs should have shriveled a little by now. I always start with the right leg because a group of thieves with short right legs is more obvious than a group with shriveled arms. An Alton, Ill., fourth grade ecology class had placed the stone in honor of a retiring teacher. The stone carries an inscription warning mankind that modern technology is disrupting the findings may support these subjective Birren, dean of the University of California's Leonard Davis School of Gerontology, said he has produced the first hard evidence linking exercise to improvement in thought processes in the aged.

The class had collected aluminum cans to buy the stone and travel to the school to erect it.

He said he has found that the thinking ability of the older fit person is improved during exercise to the point where it is greater than that of the 25-year-old who is not physically fit and who is not exercising.

Birren said he thinks exercise influences a modulating system in the central nervous system by speeding signals to thebrain faster.

He tested 80 persons who were 60 years old and 60 individuals in the 20-to-30 age group. Each group was separatedfor fitness by their ability to pedal an exercise bicycle for 30 minutes to a degree that their basal heart rates were raised 20 and then 40

While they were exercising, Birren said, they were fed visual information on a screen which they had to process in limited periods of time.

They were tested against themselves and against other less fit persons by their reactions as they lay down, stood and sat.

"This shows a new linkage between physical exercise and behavior," Birren said, "but we don't know yet how much activity is important.'

He said he believes that three months of regular exercise may produce positive effects. But he has studied only the short-term effects of acute exercise. He next wants to study the effects of regular exercise on the thought processes.

Judge trying to avoid hung jury in policeman's civil rights trial

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - After two days of at the end of a police chase. They said the beating jury deliberations without a verdict, the judge in the civil rights trial of Charles Veverka says "the one thing I don't want out of this case is a hung jury."

The jury was to resume its discussions today, exactly one year after the beating of black businessman Arthur McDuffie. Veverka, a former Dade County, Fla., policeman, is charged with conspiring in the death of the insurance executive.

Jurors had deliberated for more than 11 hours over

U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler said he would explain the time and expense needed to re-try the case when the jurors returned today. "I'll tell you, gentlemen, the one thing I don't want out of this case is a hung jury," Hoeveler told McDuffie, 33, was beaten Dec. 17, 1979, allegedly Veverka, 30, testified earlier this year against four other white former officers in a state trial stemming from the death. After a jury acquitted the officers, a race riot erupted in Miami and claimed 18 lives. Veverka, who testified under immunity from prosecution on state charges, was the only officer indicted on federal charges.

Government witnesses said McDuffie was beaten was made to look like a motorcycle accident.

Veverka was charged with conspiracy and being an accessory after the fact in the beating and coverup. He could receive maximum punishment of 26 years imprisonment and $21,500 in fines

The government's key evidence against Veverka was a sworn statement he made in Miami on Dec. 26 1979, admitting he falsified six police reports to make McDuffie's death look like a traffic mishap. He said in the statement he watched "six to eight" other Dade County officers beat McDuffie unconscious with flashlights and night sticks. Defense attorneys argued that it was Veverka who first exposed the beating and coverup to author Jury foreman Pat McNamara, sales manager of an electronics concern, sent two notes into the courtroom during the deliberations Tuesday; one asking whether the vote had to be unanimous on all four counts of the federal indictment and another asking whether the vote had to be taken by secret

In response to a question from Hoeveler late Tuesday, McNamara said the jurors had been unanimous at one point in a verdict on one count. He said that was later reversed.

Miami police ready for trouble

MIAMI (AP) - Dade County police don't anticipate trouble, but say they'll be prepared if problems erupt when a verdict is returned in the federal trial of ex-policeman Charles Veverka, who is accused of civil rights violations in the death of black businessman Arthur McDuffie.

When a hoax telephone call was received Tuesday afternoon reporting an innocent verdict in the Texas trial, the Dade County Public Safety Department put a contingency plan in motion.

No police officers were called out, said police spokesman Henry Weatherspoon. But he said the central police district - responsible for law enforcement activities in the area where rioting broke out last May - was immediately informed of the bogus

Weatherspoon said someone called Public Safety Director Bobby Jones' office at about 4:30 p.m. and said Veverka had been found innocent.

Actually, the jury continued deliberating until about 7 p.m. before being sent home by the judge. They convened again this morning.

The caller identified himself as being from the U.S. Marshal's office in San Antonio, where the trial was moved because of racial tension in Miami, Atlanta and New Orleans

Veverka, who testified under state immunity in the Florida trial last May, is on trial on charges he sought to violate McDuffie's civil rights by falsifying police reports of the man's death.

Four of Veverka's former fellow Dade officers, all white, were found innocent of all state charges in connection with McDuffie's death by an all-white jury May 17. Within hours of those verdicts, the predominantly black northwest section of Miami was rocked by rioting which continued for three days. Eighteen people lost their lives and more than $100 million in property was destroyed.

Weatherspoon said Dade County police are not anticipating riots if Veverka is acquitted. But he said police are prepared for "any possible trouble that might arise.

"The Public Safety Department is aware of any possible trouble that might arise out of a decision that might be made by the jury," he said. We are sort of anticipating any problems by having people avail-

When police got the hoax phone call, "we were concerned," he said. "We were keeping an eye, keeping a check on the area. We were prepared.'

Weatherspoon said that in May police were not ready for the havoc that ensued after the innocent verdict was reported. This time, police have arranged to have major news services covering the trial call the department as soon as a verdict is

Husband charged in transsexuals death

Robert Fox, 41, was arraigned by Superior Court Judge Patrick McGann Jr., after the siege at his home here. He was taken to Monmouth County Jail in Freehold in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Fox surrendered without resistance after his younger brother, who was not identified, entered the two-story frame house shortly before midnight Tues-

Before his surrender, a police officer spent 10 hours negotiating with Fox by telephone.

"We talked about many things as the night went on," said Detective Thomas Hilliard, who has received special FBI training in hostage negotiations. Hilliard said Fox was very upset and threatened to kill himself several times as the two discussed the shooting death of Jean Shelley Boushard Fox, 34, the former Donald Shephard. Mrs. Fox's body was taken to Freehold Area Hospital shortly after her husband surrendered. An autopsy was being held today, said Monmouth County Prosecutor Alexander Lehrer.

Mrs. Fox, who had undergone two phases of sex-change surgery, was shot Monday, but police didn't learn of the incident until a Tuesday phone call from Fox's 19-year-old daughter, Jeannie, Lehrer

Authorities said Fox and his wife began fighting as the woman packed for a trip to Canada for the final was to be financed by Fox, who had raised the money with a second mortgage on his house, Lehrer said.

As he helped his wife pack, Fox discovered letters the woman had written to a former lover, a Toronto man, and a dispute ensued that ended in the shooting, Lehrer said.

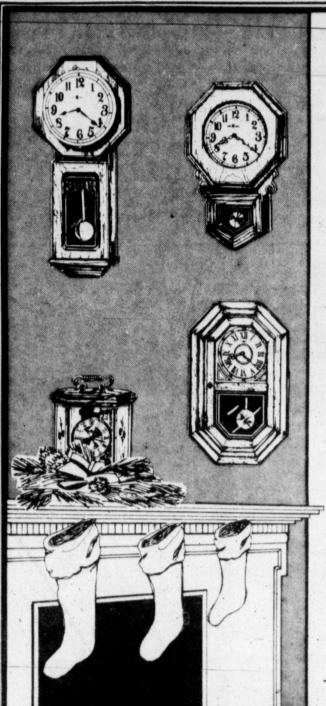

Mrs. Fox's body, partly covered with a quilt, was found between a bathroom and hallway, near a wall splattered with blood, police said. A fully loaded handgun was found on a dresser and additional ammunition was found in the house, authorities

Lehrer said Fox, a truck driver with the Nicholas Inc. fuel company of Woodbridge, had met Ms. Boushard, a native of Toronto, in Canada last summer after her two operations and married her two

Texas Tech begins search for coach

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech athletic officials say they will immediately begin the search for a new head football coach to replace Rex Dockery, who has quit to accept the vacant job at Memphis State Uni-

Dockery announced Tuesday he would forego the two years left on his Red Raider contract to accept a fiveyear deal at Memphis State that reportedly will pay him $85,000 a year. Tech Athletic Director John Conley said preliminary steps for the selection of a new coach are under way.

"Time is of great importance, but we don't want to go off and make a quick decision just to be making one,' Conley said. "We want to get the best possible man we can get.

Conley said he would submit a list of as many as six-candidates to Tech President Lauro Cavazos in the near

'We feel we have a situation here that is a heck of an opportunity, and I'm not necessarily talking about a young coach," Conley said. "Plus, I'm not going to rule anybody out just because they are from a different area of the country.

Dockery coached three seasons at Tech, compiling a 15-16-2 record, including a 7-4 year in 1978 when he was named Southwest Conference coach

But Texas Tech sources said Dockery was given a "win or else" ultimatum by the university's board of regents after a 3-6-2 season in 1979 and a 5-6 campaign this year.

In announcing his decision to move to Memphis State Tuesday, Dockery said Tech "has been good to me."

"It was a hard deciion to make," Dockery said. "But it's best for my family and my future and I have to go with this decision at this time.

Dockery, 38, was offered a five-year contract after meeting with MSU President Thomas Carpenter and athletic director Billy "Spook" Murphy. Dockery reportedly will receive a base salary of $45,000 to become MSU's 17th head coach, plus a television show worth $40,000 a year. He reportedly receives a base sala-

MHS girls rally to whip Cranes

The Midland High girls basketball team shut down the Crane Golden Cranes' inside game in the fourth quarter to pull out a 56-45 win Tuesday night on the Bulldogs' home

For three and a half quarters, Crane's Gloria Gonzalez rolled over and around Midland's defense for 22 points. In the fourth quarter, Midland forced the Cranes to shoot from the outside and not allow Gonzalez to get hold of the ball, except for a rebound or two. As a result, Gonzalez could only come up with a free throw in the final period. It was a nip-and-tuck affair for three and one-half quarters. Midland scored the opening bucket only to see the Cranes match bucket for bucket the rest of the quarter. Connie Caton hit a free throw as time expired in the first quarter to give the Bulldogs a 9-8 advantage.

In the second quarter, Gonzalez got loose for eight markers for Crane. Jance Littlefield retaliated with six of her team high 16 for the Bulldogs as the teams went to the dressing rooms at half tied 25-25.

With three minutes gone in the third quarter. Gonzalez had tossed in four buckets as Crane forged to a 33-29 lead. It was at that point the Bulldog defense became much more aggres-

Missy Larrrmore hit from the outside to cut the lead to two. Larremore intercepted the inbounds pass and hit Littlefield for an easy two to knot the game at 33-33. Crane turned the ball over and Shelia Christian put an offensive rebound down to give the Bulldogs the lead. Crane recorded another score just before the end of the quarter to trail 41-35 heading into the final eight minutes of action.

While Midland's defense was dominated one end of the court, Diane Hogan, back after missing a game with a sprained ankle, was flipping in six of her 12 points to help keep the Bulldogs comfortably in front.

In the final two minutes of play, Leslie Park and Denettee Parker combined to drive the Cranes to distraction with their tough defensive Seventh-ranked Ohio State stood in the way of that goal Tuesday night and paid the price of South Alabama's ambition.

"If we had Ohio State across our jerseys, we'd be in the top five," Jaguars Coach Cliff Ellis said after their 76-67 upset of the Buckeyes on their own floor. The Jaguars, 6-1 and unranked this

Houston and Arkansas rolled to easy victories and Baylor lost as Southwest Conference basketball teams opened the week's competition against non-conference foes.

Houston beat Pepperdine, 94-81, Arkansas defeated Centenary, 78-64, and Baylor lost to Texas-Arlington, 94-80. Houston's Rob Williams had 31 points and teammate Clyde Drexler grabbed 16 reboundds as the Cougars beat Pepperdine, 94-81. Scott Hastings and Darrell Walker scored 17 points each as Arkansas took an easy victory over Centenary,

A six-point outburst in only seven seconds spelled doom for the Baylor Bears as they lost to Texas-Arlington, 94-80. Baylor held a 41-36 halftime lead, but the Mavericks got hot in the second half, outscoring the Bears,

The six-point outburst came after Ralph Mcpherson hit a driving layup and added two free throws, including one on a technical foul against Baylor Coach Jim Haller, and Jeffrey Stewart hit a quick jump shot. The outburst gave the Mavericks a 70-62 Central Catholic in the opening

"IF I HAD left Herb in the game, he would probably be laying out there with a broken leg or something. This is a big weekend for us and we need Johnson fresh," Stephenson said. Naturally, the fans wanted to see more, if not for the possible 40 points, then because Johnson was the only Bulldog hitting all night. The rest looked like a carnival as balls went up, but failed to fall.

The Pack hit only 36 percent from the field as a team and if it hadn't been for Johnson's 17 field goals, the game might have even been close.

Johnson started slowly, missing his first five shots, but ended the first quarter with 14 points. He had 22 points at the half and then exploded in the third period when he hit for 15 points. In the third period, Johnson's seven field goal rampage gave the Bulldogs a 12 of 17 shooting eye. But the reserves in the fourth period, hit only four of 24 shots.

Defensively, however, the Bulldogs were on top of their game, stealing, rebounding and hustling. Booker Mackey was again a ball hawk and Steve Miller was hurling his body all over the court. However, only Johnson hit in double figures.

THURSDAY WILL begin a big weekend for the Bulldogs. Midland High surprised the state a year ago by winning the prestigious San Antonio tournament, which is regarded as one of the best in the state. It runs three days and has 32 teams in it. San Antonio's Optimist annually bring in the top teams in the state to face their own local schools.

Sweetwater was led by James Whisenant with 17 points while Gilbert Gerst had 11 and John Van Dever had 10. Midland High is now 11-0 on the year while Sweetwater fell to 7-8.

Midland High also won the junior varsity game, 61-39, as the Bullpups increased their record to 7-1. Scott Sears led the way with 11 points and Rob Franklin had 10.

Mets hire Rusty Staub to gain some consolation

NEW YORK (AP) - Rusty Staub, who is the closest to 3,000 hits of any active player who hasn't already passed that plateau, has returned to New York in hopes of reaching that milestone as a Mets player.

The National League team, shunned in favor of the New York Yankees by Dave Winfield, the biggest prize of this year's free agent re-entry draft, gained some consolation in signing Staub. The 36-year-old first baseman-outfielder came to terms on a three-year, $1 million con-

"The goals I have set are not statistics for one year," Staub said after the signing was announced Tuesday. "I have some things I want to achieve in a career. Three thousand hits is within reach. I'm the closest to it right now.

Staub, who has 2,547 career hits, was with the Mets for four seasons from 1972-1975 and set a club record for runs batted in with 105 in 1973 when New York won the National League pennant. He was traded to Detroit after the 1975 season, then went to Montreal, his second tour with the Expos, and the Texas Rangers.

"I'm sorry I've been gone so long but it was not my idea in the first place," said Staub, who operates a New York restaurant. "I'm happy to be back, not only in New York, but with the Mets." Staub began his major league career in 1963 with the Houston Astros. .

Dallas needs only to defeat Philadelphia by 25 points

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

If the Dallas Cowboys beat Philadelphia 28-3 next Sunday, they'll win the National Football Conference's Eastern Division title. But if they win only 27-3, the Eagles will wear the crown. That's what it's coming down to in the final weekend of the National Football League's regular season. Tie-breaking, the National Football League's contribution to the pro sports mystique, comes into play one week before the playoffs begin.

In the American Conference, seven teams - Buffalo, New England, San Diego, Oakland, Cleveland, Houston and Pittsburgh - are in the scramble for the three division titles and two wild-card berths.

Los Angeles, with its 38-14 Monday night victory over Ballas, settled one matter (it clinched an NFC wild-card and eliminated Detroit from contention) and clouded another. By beating the Cowboys, the Rams made not only the outcome of next Sunday's Philadelphia-Dallas game pivotal, but the score as well. The Eagles and Cowboys will be battling for the Eastern Division title. Minnesota has won the Central crown. Atlanta has won the West.

The Eagles are 12-3, the Cowboys 11-4. If Dallas had won on Monday night and pulled back into a first-place tie, it would have been a simple matter of the winner next Sunday getting the title, the loser settling for the wild card. Now, though, there's a magic number, 25.

If the Cowboys lose, of course, Philadelphia is the division champ. But, wait! Even if the Cowboys win, Philadelphia can end up the champion if Dallas' margin of victory is less than 25 points. Here's why. They'd end up tied head to head, overall and against division, conference and common nonconference foes, bringing up the fifth tie-breaking step - best net points in the division. The Eagles have outscored their NFC East opponents by 92 points, the Cowboys have outscored them by 42. So there's a 50-point spread.

If Philadelphia loses but only by, say, 21-14, it's still ahead of Dallas in that net-point category. If Dallas wins by more than 25 points, it overtakes the Eagles in net points and wins the tie-breaker - and the

on the nose, leaving the teams tied in division net points, up comes the sixth tie-breaking step, best net points in all games. Philadelphia now plus 170 to Dallas' plus 135, would fall to plus 145, Dallas would rise to plus 160, and Dallas would be the champ.

That brings us to four possible NFC first-round playoff matchups on Dec 28, when only the wild-card teams meet while the division champs take the weekend off.

If Philadelphia beats Dallas and Atlanta beats Los Angeles next Sunday, the Rams, 10-6, play at Dallas, 11-5, Cowboys earning the home field on their better record.

If Philadelphia beats Dallas and Los Angeles beats Atlanta, Dallas,

11-5, visits Los Angeles, 11-5, the Rams playing at home thanks to their 38-14 victory over the Cowboys. If the Cowboys beat the Eagles, whether by fewer than 25 points or more than 25, Los Angeles is the visitor in the wild-card game, traveling either to Dallas or Philadelphia because it would have the poorer record, regardless of whether or not it beats the Falcons.

The Indiana Pacers have got to learn to let a sleeping Doc lie. The Pacers were coasting along with a 13-point lead over the powerful Philadelphia 76ers Tuesday night then forward Mike Bantom made a big mistake: He got Julius Erving angry.

"You don't want to get guys like the Doc upset," observed Billy Cunningham, coach of the Philadelphia 76ers, because they just take it upon themelves to win the game. Bantom got Julius upset and he just asked for the

And when Erving - alias Dr. J, or the Doc - asks for the basketball, anyone with any sense gives it to him. The Sixers did just that, and Erving responded with 14 points in the final ix minutes as Philadelphia outscored ridiana 22-7 to pull out a 109-107 vic-

It was the seventh consecutive victory for the Sixers, whose 30-4 record the best in the National Basketball Association.

Erving, who led the Sixers with 30 points, called the come-from-behind victory over Indiana "a real chalenge, probably the hardest we can play. Things just fell into place. We had to gamble to win, and I'd sure hate to rely on gambling every night."
"I suppose the turning point was when Erving asserted himeslf," said thdiana Coach Jack McKinney. They're a good enough team to take dvantage of your mistakes - and we ad just enough mistakes to lose."

Bantom, Indiana's defensive standbut, had Erving contained until their lare-up in the final period. "Bantom aid I was grabbing him," Erving elated. "He threw a couple of elbows, and I told him to quit it.

He also took charge. With Indiana leading 100-87 midway through the final period, Erving scored a basket and a free throw. After Bantom scored for Indiana, Erving hit another basket and Bobby Jones scored six straight to bring Philadelphia

After Bantom scored again, Erving reeled off seven straight points, including a three-point play that put the 76ers ahead 105-104 with one minute remaining. After an exchange of baskets, two free throws by Erving with eight seconds gave Philadelphia a 109-106 lead.

Indiana's Johnny Davis was fouled with fours seconds to play. He made the first free throw, then intentionally missed the second. Indiana center Clemon Johnson got the rebound, but his shot at the buzzer rolled off the

Spurs 89, Mavericks 83

San Antonio squandered an early 16-point advantage and a 14-2 Dallas spurt gave the Mavericks a 77-76 lead before guards George Gervin and James Silas combined for 10 straight points to put the Spurs back in front. Gervin, the three-time NBA scoring champion, finished with a game-high Hawks 131, Nets 114 Atlanta scored a season-high 45 points in the first quarter, including 16 by John Drew, and coasted to its fifth straight victory.

New Jersey, losing for the fifth time in a row despite a career-high 28 points by rookie guard Darwin Cook, trailed 45-18 after the first 12 minutes and came no closer than 11 points

Knicks 112, Jazz 97

Bill Cartwright and Campy Russell scored 22 points apiece and five other New York players scored in double figures as the Knicks handed Utah its sixth straight defeat. Jazz forward Adrian Dantley, the NBA scoring leader with a 32.1 average, led all scorers with 36.

Bulls 96, Bullets 94

Guard Reggie Theus grabbed the rebound of a missed shot by backcourtmate Ricky Sobers and sank the winning field goal for Chicago with two seconds remaining. Theus led the Bulls with 23 points.

Clippers 97, Lakers 92

Center Swen Nater's 22 points and 14 r5bounds helped San Diego snap the Lakers' five-game winning streak despite 32 points by Lakers pivotman Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who made 15 of 18 field goal attempts.

Kings 133, Nuggets 118

Kansas City's guards dominated Denver as Otis Birdsong scored 36 points and Phil Ford added 30 points and 16 assists. The Kings led by just three going into the final period but pulled away thanks to a blistering fast break keyed by Ford.

'Sloppy fat' Fields moves in at tackle

HOUSTON (AP) - Rookie offensive tackle Angelo Fields, termed as 'sloppy fat,"in one pre-draft scouting report and unaggressive in another, would likely get a different rating from the Pittsburgh Steelers and Green Bay Packers.

Fields, who had spent most of his rookie season learning from all-pro Leon Gray, was thrust into a starting assignment against Pittsburgh two reeks ago when Gray went out for the season with an Achilles tendon in-

"I was nervous," Fields recalled. "I'd been watching the Steelers on television the past few years and here I was playing against them. All kinds of things went through my head."

Fields put his fears aside however and played the best two quarters of his young pro career and put together another good game Sunday in the Oilers' 22-3 victory over Green Bay.

The second round draft choice from Michigan State will get his second start Sunday when the Oilers host Minnesota with a chance to win their first American Football Conference Central Division title and advance to the playoffs for the third straight

The Oilers have been a "left-handed" team throughout the year, running behind the All-Pro left side of the offensive line that included tight end Dave Casper, Gray and guard Bob Coach Bum Phillips didn't change with Fields in the lineup.

"This was an important game for me," Fields said following Sunday's victory over the Packers. "It helped my confidence, especially when they ran to my side just like they did with Leon. I felt like I was part of the team. I can relax now and just work on improving myself."

Fields reported to training camp at 347 pounds and now is playing with a trim 330 pounds on his 6-6 frame. After spending most of the season learning from Gray, Fields also dumped his lack of aggressiveness tag against L.C. Greenwood of the

"The kid's an opportunist," Oiler line coach Joe Bugel said. "When his time came, he played like a bear. He made a believer out of a lot of people. The Steelers threw plenty at him, but he didn't break. Was I surprised? No, because I was him in practice."

Fields, who played only his senior year on offense in college, also had to convert from the right side of the Oiler offensive line. All his previous experience had been on the right

"I like playing on the left side better because I'd left handed," Fields said. "I made some mistakes on the right side. I started slow this season. I was a slow learned on the techniques.'

In the final Associated Press regular season poll, Washington was ranked behind University of Southern California, No. 12, and UCLA, No. 15, although the Huskies captured the Pacific-10 Conference championship. Washington beat USC in Los Angeles and didn't play UCLA.

Michigan, the Rose Bowl opposition, also went 9-2 but the Big Ten Conference champions were rated No. 5. In addition, the Huskies had only one player chosen, placekicker Chuck

Nelson, to the Pac-10 all-star team. Stanford's John Elway was the conference's first team quarterback and Flick was picked to the second team. "What do you do?" Flick shrugged.

'Maybe the Pac-10 coaches (who picked the all-star team) wanted to get some of their ball players on the team to make them feel their year was complete even though they didn't win the championship.

"Well, I think that's a bunch of garbage. I think a lot of our guys deserved to make the first team.

real estate developer appeared to have the inside track today as the Chicago White Sox board of directors met to renew their attempts to sell the American League franchise.

Jerry Reinsdorf heads a local 30person group that has offered $20 million for the team — the same amount offered by Edward J. DeBartolo Sr., the Ohio multimillionaire whose bid to buy the club was approved by the directors twice only to be rejected by AL owners. Andy McKenna, acting chairman of the board, said Tuesday that when today's meeting got under way his "guess" was the directors would "reopen discussions with Jerry Reinsdorf ... If the discussions are smooth, I'd guess he'll be the purchaser of the ballclub. The directors were expected to abandon DeBartolo formally. His extended purchase agreement expired at midnight Monday. William Farley, a Chicago financier and partner in the Reinsdorf group, might withdraw much of his financial support. Farley has been critical of lucrative contracts given to free agents Ron LeFlore and Jim Essian and also has told McKenna he has reservations about a reported deal with a cable television firm to televise White Sox home games. "We should review those (player) contracts and the TV contract, and I haven't had the opportunity to do that," Farley said Tuesday. "From my point of view, that is a prerequisite before the board announces anything.

If he is not satisfied on those and other points, Farley said, he has told McKenna and league officials that the new application "may go to the league without Farley.

The amount of Farley's financial support never has been disclosed. Reinsdorf, 44, said he could consummate the deal without Farley's investment if necessary.

A late bid for the team was offered by another local group headed by trucking magnate Harry Newberger and organized by Socrates Babacas, a Massachusetts salesman.

That group says it has arranged for a $25 million loan - $3 million for operating expenses and $22 million for the purchase of the club.

Newberger and Babacas met Tuesday with McKenna and two other Sox directors, Phil Bloom and Gene Fanning, to discuss their bid.

Falcons still celebrating

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP) - Two days after the Atlanta Falcons clinched the first National Football League division title in their 15-year history, Coach Leeman Bennett still was having difficulty explaining his feelings.

"It's very difficult. I've been asked that many times since we won Sunday and I've given the general cliches, you'know, I'm happy and pleased," Bennett said Tuesday at his weekly news conference. The Falcons, 12-3 after winning their ninth straight last Sunday with a 35-10 triumph over San Francisco, close out the regular season Sunday against Los Angeles, the team that had won seven successive Western Division titles before the Falcons broke the string.

"What does it mean to our future?" Bennett asked. "I hope it gives us a cornerstone. It proves to the squad, the staff and the people of Atlanta that if we play as well as we can, we can continue to win the division.

He said the Rams, who captured a wild-card playoff berth Monday night with a 38-14 victory over the Dallas Cowboys, would have something to prove to the Falcons, who edged Los Angeles 13-10 earlier in the season on a last-minute 54-yard touchdown pass from Steve Bartkowski to Alfred

'We're pleased about the NFC West championship for the team, the Smiths (the club's owners), and the city of Atlanta,," Bennett said. "It's a great feeling when you realize that there is competition in the division like the Los. Angeles Rams.

"Now we must go back to work. A victory in Los Angeles is important because it would guarantee home field advantage throughout the playoffs, but it would also keep the momentum which we have built throughout the season," he said.

"This will be a new experience for our players and staff, because it seems as if we have played under pressure every week because of our 1-2 start. We still have a young team while Los Angeles is a well established team that has won year after year," said Bennett.

In addition, the Falcons never have beaten the Rams away from Atlanta-Fulton County stadium and Los Angeles has dominated the series 21-5-

The Rams also could get the homefield advantage for their wild card matchup if they defeat the Falcons and the Cowboys lose to the Philadelphia Eagles. Bennett said he will give the Falcon

By ALAN GREENBERG (c) 1980, The Los Angeles Times

He has been back at defensive end for nearly a full season now. Back to knocking down passes with bandaged hands that seem to scrape the sky. Back to catching ballcarriers with hi giant strides, enveloping them in the web of his 88-inch reach as a spider does a fly Ed (Too Tall) Jones did all those things before, during his first stint with the Dallas Cowboys, but not quite often enough to satisfy management, The rap was that Jones would help vou beat Pittsburgh and Los Angeles in December but he wasn't much good against St. Louis and Washington in October. Now, there are worse reputations to have, but don't try that line of reasoning on Jones. Unless you are at least 89 inches away.

A Los Angeles-Dallas phone hookup seemed safe enough.

"I've never understood how I could be perfect all the time," Jones said. "I'm very consistent."

FINALLY, THAT'S what the Cowboys are saying. Even Coach Tom Landry, who tosses compliments around like manhole covers.

"Ed has always played the running game strong," Landry said, "but he has been making the plays back inside, which he hasn't made before. He seems to be playing at a more consistent rate than he has in the past. In the playoffs in 1978, he played as good as anybody does. He tended to get up for the big games. Now he tends to play week in and week out much better than he did.'

Jones isn't so sure. "I can't say I'm doing a better job," Jones said. "I don't see myself doing very many things on the field I couldn't do before...Maybe people are just noticing me now.

For the uninformed, Ed Jones is 6-9, 270 pounds and moves faster than bad news. Which, to opponents, he is. And he did not acquire his size recently; he's been this way since high school Leaving a football game without no ticing Jones is like leaving Paul Newman without noticing his eyes.

LAST, SEASON, the Cowboys noticed. Jones' absence, that is. While they struggled, he lived across the street from New York City's Museum of Natural History, trying to make a bit of his own. No longer willing to deny his lifelong dream, Jones quit football to take up boxing. He had his Super Bowl ring, but what he realy wanted was the world heavyweight Championship belt. He'd traded the pomp and pageantry of football-mad Dallas, where nearly every momma wants her babies to grow up to be Cowboys, for sleazy 42nd Street and the Times Square Boxing Club.

The plan was to start slowly, learn the fundamentals. The plan was 40 fights in 30 months. That would prepare Jones for fringe contenders. Then a year of fringe contenders that would prime him for the top contenders. Then, if it worked, maybe a title bout. Stranger things have happened.

'Too Tall' Jones is satisfied?

In his first fight, Jones took a left hook to the face. He was sitting on the canvas at the time. Still, he got up and won. The fight, but not the crowd. Because he was a 'name' before he ever put on the gloves, Jones' fight was on national TV. Hell, even Shirley Temple did some private auditions before they put her on camera. For Jones, crowds felt considerably less empathy. He was awkward. And booed.

JONES REALIZED he was still miles from nowhere, but he thrived on his new routine. Except for three winter months, when he moved to Los Angeles, he lived in Manhattan and trained under Murphy Griffith, the uncle of former welterweight and middleweight champion Emile. Weights were out, stretching was in He ran six to eight miles daily, dropping his weight from 270 to 238.

"Murphy wasn't the kind of trainer who says, 'Here's a big strong guy, we'll teach him to throw a right, try to knock everybody out,' "Jones told Texas Monthly. "Jabs, hooks, uppercuts...I was learning it all, and if you're enjoying learning something, it doesn't necessarily matter if you're not the best in the world. Who knows what would have happened? Eventually. I'd have been a contender. I'm sure of that." 'Physically, I think he has what it takes to be a good boxer," Angelo Dundee wrote. "When he was playing defensive line, he showed good lateral movements. You need that mobility in boxing, too. The peripheral vision you need in football to see plays develop and the refelexes you need to react are important in boxing, too. But there's a different rhythm to boxing. A fighter has to develop a particular coordination between his feet and his upper body. He has to learn how to step. In terms of learning the game, he is in kindergarten."

BUT KINDERGARTEN probably was never this lonely. Although he is a quiet, private person, Jones says what he missed most about football was the camaraderie with teammates. Especially on the road, where Jones found one to be the loneliest-

No longer. Jones quit boxing after a little more than a year. After six fights, six wins, and an income that has been estimated to be at least, $200,000.

"Things went smoother than I anticipated," Jones said. "In the ring, and financially."

Then why quit? Jones won't say, other than a cryptic allusion "that there were reasons that I couldn't control." He says it had nothing to do with things financial or physical, or because his mother wanted him to.

The separation over, Jones is back with the Cowboys with far greater. enthusiasm. But for him, boxing remains an unforgettable affiar.

Before, I was playing football and wondering whether I should or should not (box)," Jones said. "It was like trying to concentrate on two things. Now, I feel at peace with myself. I experienced what it feels like to feel totally happy when I was boxing. That's soemthing a lot of people don't, ever do. It made me feel complete.'

Complete is what Jones again made the Cowboys defensive line. His return to left end allowed Landry to switch John Dutton from end to tack le, where he shares time with 13-year veteran Larry Cole. And it means that opponents are finding it harder to avoid right end Harvey Martin and All-Pro right tackle Randy White. It's enough to make a ballcarrier want to pull up lame in pregame drills.

JONES SAID it took him almost no time to feel comfortable playing football again.

"Being away a year is nothing for a defensive lineman," said Jones, 29. "As a defensive player, all you've got to do is learn the game plan and go out

Rankin dominates 6-A star squad

Rankin High School dominated the District 6-A football race in 1980 and the undefeated Red Devils didn't do badly on the all-district first team.

Five Red Devils were named to the squad, including four two-way selections. Leading the way for Rankin was James Barrett, named as an offensive guard and a linebacker; Barrett's running mate at guard was Michael Peterson, who was also named as a defensive down lineman; Todd Ratliff, only a sophomore, was named as center on the offensive team; Denny Latham earned honors as an offensive tackle and defensive down lineman; Terry Turner, another junior, was tabbed as a running back and punter on the offensive team while named as a defensive back on the defensive squad.

The Greenwood Rangers had three representatives named to the select group. Homer Lopez, a junior, was tabbed as a split end on offense and as a defensive back; Phillip Higgins, a junior, was honored as an offensive tackle; and Tommy Pyle was named as an end on the offensive unit.

Meyer says McMahon much like Bob Griese

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Southern Methodist football coach Ron Meyer, who helped develop Purdue's Bob Griese 15 years ago, puts Brigham Young quarterback Jim McMahon in the same class - and the Cougar offense in a class of its own.

"McMahon is in Griese's class, maybe better," Meyer said Tuesday as the countdown continued toward Friday night's Holiday Bowl meeting with Brigham Young.

But, he added, "no one compares to Brigham Young offensively. No one is as refined as they are.

Taking up where Marc Wilson left off, McMahon set 26 NCAA offensive records this year while becoming the first major college passer to throw for more than 4,000 yards. He finished with 4,571 yards passing and an incredible 47 touchdowns.

Meyer's 8-3 Mustangs, who tied for second place in the Southwest Conference, will try to slow a steamrolling Cougar offense that averaged 57 points per game in its last five out-

The nationally televised game promises to be a high-scoring affair similar to last year's finish when Indiana overtook Brigham Young for 38-37 victory.

"It may be that this game — like a National Basketball Association game - comes down to the last team to have the ball," said Meyer, whose Mustangs are 11/2-point underdogs to the 12th-ranked Cougars.

"BYU's the best football team we'll face this year," Meyer told San Diego area media members.

Brigham Young, 11-1, hit its stride at midseason after an 25-21 seasonopening loss to New Mexico. Finishing with 11 straight victories - the nation's second longest streak -Brigham Young averaged 47.5 points per game and 535 yards in offense.

Cougar Coach Lavell Edwards sized up the Mustangs, 8-3, as Brigham Young's toughest-ever opponent, and "they'll certainly be the most physical team we'll face.'

Asked to compare Southern Methodist to one of the top club's in the country, Edwards quipped: "the Pittsburgh Steelers. "I dread to think what they'll be like in another year - with all those young kids back," he said. Continuing, he said Southern Methodist closely resembles the Oklahoma State team that beat BYU 49-21 in the 1976 Tangerine Bowl.

"Oklahoma State had Terry Miller at running back. BYU has Craig James and Eric Dickerson. There are tandem like that," said Edwards.

Pitt better than 'Dogs?

PITTSBURGH (AP) — He's seen the top-ranked Georgia football team in person, and he's seen third-ranked Pitt on film.

And Coach Jim Carlen of South Carolina, which meets Pitt in the Gator Bowl on Dec. 29, gives the third-ranked Panthers of Coach Jackie Sherrill the edge over Vince Dooley's Georgia Bulldogs.

'I think Pitt's a better football team than Georgia, and I think Dooley should be voted coach of the year because they've had an awful lot of breaks," Carlen said.

Carlen, whose 8-3 team lost 13-10 to Georgia, went on to explain in a telephone interview Tuesday with the Pittsburgh media.

"In our part of the country, they (Georgia) beat Clemson on an intercepted pass and a punt return. In our game, we fumbled the football with a chance to go in and win. "I congratulate the Georgia team and take nothing away from them, but you start comparing personnel and it's not even close.

"Pittsburgh's got 12 or 15 top college football players. All you've got to do is ask the pros. They'll tell you they've got more pro football prospects on the Pitt team graduating this year than any team in the country.'

Carlen didn't go so far as to call Pitt the No. 1 team in the country.

"If somebody asked me to vote right now for the top team in the country. I think there'd be three of them - Florida State, Oklahoma and Pittsburgh." he said.

Asked later to elaborate on his comparison between Pitt and Georgia, he responded:

"I don't want to read in the paper, 'Carlen says Georgia is not good.' That's not what I've said. I give newspaper people a pointed answer and I get stuck in the back.

Carlen is still smarting from a New York Daily News report which appeared just after South Carolina running back George Rogers won the Heisman Trophy. The paper reported Rogers had said football contract for him. Carlen said he merely was serving his coach offered to negotiate a pro

as a protective screen for Rogers in dealing with prospective agents.

"That's trash right out of the New York Daily News," Carlen said Tuesday. "They sell newspapers and all they are dealing is in trash. They're not the NCAA and I'll continue to buffer kids from agents."

Gannett to field-test national newspaper

WASHINGTON (AP) - Saying research indicates Americans hunger for more information, the chairman of one of the nation's largest newspaper groups has announced plans to field-test a new daily, national newspaper next year.

Allen H. Neuharth, president and board chairman of the Gannett Co., said Tuesday that the newspaper, tentatively named "U.S.A. Today," could go into publication by 1982 if the advertising and readership test is a

He said no decisions have been made on the newspaper's format.

Neuharth also announced his company is setting up a Washingtonbased satellite communications network which could be used for many purposes.

The Gannett Satellite Information Network will establish a transmitting facility in Springfield, Va., capable of communicating with receiving stations across the country.

Neuharth said possible uses for the system might include:

and advertising for supplements to Gannett's 81 daily and 22 weekly or semi-weekly newspapers.

-Providing special programming for the company's 20 television and radio stations.

-Transmission of advertising for use on billboards provided by the company's outdoor advertising divi-

-Providing local, regional or national cable television programming. Neuharth said the field test of the new national newspaper will not in-

"Preliminary research indicates the concept has gotten a sponse," Neuharth said. He declined to discuss what specific needs the company plans to fulfill, explaining, "Then you'd know what we're going to design." He said the proposed new paper will not affect the basic product of the company's other newspapers or their editorial policy.

Newspaper industry analysts said it and would not be easy for Gannett to be attract readers and advertisers to a file. national newspaper.

Fitness fantasia is a National YMCA patented and certified fitness program which has been designed to provide the participant with a safe and beneficial means of achieving optimal cardiovascular fitness

The YMCA instructors, who are nationally certified and experienced, teach choreographed moves and dances to popular music. This fitness program increases flexibility, improves respiratory system, strengthens heart, lungs and circulatory system as it tones, trims and firms the skeletal muscle system. Classes are available morning, afternoon and eve-

Ladies body control introduces the participant to fitness concepts, calisthenics, and limited aerobic activity. The emphasis is on all components of fitness. Our experienced instructor will teach proper technique and body position to assure each participant of muscle toning and weight control.

Yoga is a system of attaining physical fitness and health through slow, smooth, and controlled movement. The results of a yoga program are very individual, but a successful participant will be committed to a daily practice of yoga, including breathing, limbering, balancing, stretching, toning and relaxing exercises.

Belly dancing is another popular way to improve your health, lose weight and tone muscle. Participants will find that their coordination and balance will improve and the muscular control and exercise in the dance will have a trimming and firming effect on their figure.

Ski fitness is for beginners and expert skiers alike. Participants will strive to develop sufficient physical fitness to enable the individual to participate successfully, safely and enjoyably in the sport of skii-Men's exercise class Tuesday and Thursday, 12: 15-12: 45 p.m., and the co-ed exercise class, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 5:15-6:15 p.m., is an introduction to fitness concepts and techniques.

All classes are taught by certified and experienced instructors who are interested in supervising your fitness program.

Body control and exercises classes will begin the week of Jan. 5. Fitness fantasia, belly dancing, yoga and ski fitness will begin the week of Jan. 12.

LEE HIGH SCHOOL CHATTER Seniors win Powder Puff football game

By DEBBIE FOSTER, JANET LANDENBERGER AND MARTHA WENTWORTH

For the second year in a row, congratulations go to the senior class of '81 for coming out on top in the Junior Council Powder Puff football game.

The game was played on Lee's practice field Sunday. Great effort was put forth by both teams but the seniors won the game, 20-14. The juniors will have another shot at the title next year. Both teams would like to thank all the great Rebelmen who helped coach and referee Sunday, and at all the

Dixie has been represented very well by Robert Schooler who is rated among the top 35 runners that participated in the 5,000 meter race. Robert traveled to San Diego, Calif., last Saturday to compete in the Kinney Cross Country Championships at Balboa Park. There aren't enough words to express our pride in Robert's placing 12th in the nation. He was the top runner in our region, beating out Houston's own Guane Gui. CONGRATULATIONS FROM ALL

Speaking of winners, our Rebel roundballers really took charge against Sweetwater Tuesday night in the Rebel gym when they won by a score of 62-34. This win evens the Rebs' season record at 5-5. High scorer was Olen Smith with 12 points and ten rebounds. Other double figure men for the Rebs were Darius Berry and Alan Dunson. CONGRATULA-

Alaska's only railroad declares war on cars

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - In a black-bordered box buried on an inside newspaper page, Alaska's only railroad declared war against motorists. The object in dispute is a bridge spanning the Nenana River in the rugged Alaska Range.

The Alaska Railroad wants the 482-foot railroad bridge at Ferry all to itself. It doesn't want its rails used as a road anymore.

To make its point, the railroad warned earlier this month in an advertisement that it is putting spikes on the bridge to discourage those who drive across it to get from the Parks Highway to the road on the other

"People drive their cars or snowmachines across the bridge ... with no reference to the schedule of the trains," said the railroad's chief counsel, David Roderick. "We've had eight near-misses there in the past three to five years. If we hit somebody there ... there goes the bridge. The Parks Highway links Anchorage and Fairbanks. To the east is the river and then, on the other side, is the 13-mile Old Jackson Road, a

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Abraham Lincoln was president when Josh Steele marched off to war from his Mississippi farm to defend the Confederate States of America. The Civil War ended 115 years ago with Robert E. Lee's surrender at Appomattox, but Josh Steele's second wife, Doshia, and a scattering of other elderly widows still survive, fading links to the antebellum South.

Most of the women were the second wives of widowed soldiers; many provided the elderly veterans with sec"I was just a little girl when I first duced by her great-nephew, Elvis saw my husband," said Mrs. Steele, Presley. 96, who lives with her 76-year-old daughter near Fulton, Miss. About two dozen Confederatewidows are known to survive throughout the South. Grateful states and at least one private fund have granted them pensions ranging from-$100 a month to Mississippi's four widows to $355 to Alabama's lone survivor.

Mrs. Steele's past connects with the 20th century in a way her Confederate husband never dreamed about - the "Elvis was a good ol' singing boy," recalled Mrs. Steele's daughter, Lillian Robinson. "He wasn't singing that rowdy stuff then. He was singing in church. ... He would still come (to visit) once he started singing on the radio, but it got so he just couldn't come, the way people would follow after him."

Steele's military records show he enlisted in Company G of the 43rd Mississippi Infantry in 1862. He came home in May of that year on furlough but was arrested because an officer thought he was absent without leave.

discharge, and when he died in the early 1900s, he left his widow 80 of his 600 acres, his gray horse, his hogs, his cows and his mule. "It was hard for a while after his death," said Mrs. Steele. "I was used to being waited on. ... We had to work in the fields."

Mississippi's other surviving widows, each of them getting her husband's monthly $100 pension check, are Bessie Winstead, 92, of Yazoo City; Lula Mae Hosey, 92, of Stringer, and Katie Nelms of Corinth.

All were born in the 1800s. Daisy Cave, 92, of Sumter, S.C. admitted that her marriage to Henry convenience, but said love blossomed anyway.

"I needed a home and he needed a cook, but if I'd known him for 10 years I couldn't have got a better man," said Mrs. Cave, who still gets a Confederate widow's pension of $2,400 a year from South Carolina.

Cave was a prosperous planter when he married. But hard times came and he left his wife and their son, Ben, only a small pension when he died at age 87 in 1929.

Mrs. Cave, the only surviving Confederate widow in the state, never remarried.

"I got such a good man the first

Mrs. Cave told her husband she never wanted to hear about the war. But Ben listened to his father, and remembered. Today he tells how his father was 17 when he ran away to join the Confederate Army. He spent much of his three-year hitch stationed near Charleston. Officials in Arkansas, Texas and Virginia say no more war widows survive there, but the five known to live in Florida receive $234.43 each month. Enrollment in the pension program ended in 1917 "because a lot of young women were marrying old soldiers," said Lew Dennard of the

Retardation: Limitations in the ability to learn

By JAMES BOGLIANO, M.S.

The American Association on Mental Deficiency describes mental retardation as "significantly sub-average general intellectual functioning existing concurrently with deficits in adaptive behavior." More simply, mental retardation may be defined as limitations in an individual's ability to learn and his capacity to put this learning to use.

As many as one American out of 35 may be mentally retarded (that's 3 percent of our population) and a mentally retarded child is born every five minutes, which amounts to more than 100 000 infants per year.

Approximately 97 percent of these individuals fall into a category known as mild or moderate retardation. Mildly retarded persons resemble their non-retarded peers, differing mainly in rate and degree of intellectual development. While still young, their retardation is not readily apparent and these children are not usually identified as retarded until they most often merge into the competitive labor market and daily community life.

Retardation of moderately retarded persons is more obvious. Their developmental delay usually is apparent before reach school age. However, community-based education can help moderately retarded persons live a satisfying, productive

The remaining 3 percent fall into the categories of severe and profound retardation. Severely and profoundly retarded persons exhibit the greatest developmental delay. Some severely and profoundly retarded can learn to care for their basic needs and can perform useful work activities with supervision, but others needs constant care and supervision for surviv-

Retardation can occur in any family regardless of race, income or education level. More than 200 causes of mental retardation have been identified. The most common are rubella in the mother during pregancy, syphil-factor incompatibility between mother and infant, malnutrition and chromosome abnormalities. .

Mental retardation and mental illness are separate conditions although they can occur in the same person. Mental illness is often temporary and reversible. It may strike at any time during a person's life. Mental illness causes people to lose touch with reality and emotions often interfere with normal responses.

On the other hand, mental retardation occurs during development or is present from birth or early childhood. It is a lifelong condition, although it may be alleviated through special education, training, rehabilitation and proper care. Mental retardation usually is related to limited intellectual capacity and the lack of understanding of what society expects of its members. Much basic and applied research still is needed in this field of mental retardation for many basic questions remain unanswered. However, we do have the knowledge today to help most mentally retarded individuals to lead happier and fuller lives.

Mentally retarded people feet, think and hope just like everyone else. Despite their limitations, they have more things in common with normal intellectural functioning than they

Wichita Falls has nation's lowest rate of unemployment during October

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) -Wichita Falls had the nation's lowest unemployment rate in October, according to new statistics released by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The agency said the Wichita Falls standard metropolitan statistical area, which includes Wichita and Clay counties and part of Archer County, had an unemployment rate of three percent for the month.

It was the lowest unemployment rate among 214 standard metropolitan statistical areas in October, the report said.

Do you like this story?

NCE again an immense crowd gathered around Him on the beach as He was teaching, so He got into a boat and sat down and talked from there

His usual method of teaching was to tell the people stories. One of them went like this: "Listen! A farmer decided to sow some grain. As he scattered it across his field Some of it fell on a path, and the birds came and picked it off the hard ground and ate it Some fell on thin soil with underlying rock. It grew up quickly enough, but soon wilted beneath the hot sun and died because the roots had no nourishment in the shallow soil. Other seeds fell among thorns that shot up and crowded the young plants so that they produced no grain. But some of the seeds fell into good soil and yielded 30 times as much as he had planted-some of it even 60 or 100 times as much! If you have ears, listen!"

Afterwards, when He was alone with the Twelve and with His other disciples, they asked Him, "What does Your story

He replied, "You are permitted to know some truths about the Kingdom of God that are hidden to those outside the Kingdom. As Isaiah the prophet says.

'Though they see and hear, they will not understand or turn to God, or be forgiven for their sins. But if you can't understand this simple illustration.

Filming looks more like "Great Escape" for frogs

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) - It was supposed to be the filming of John Steinbeck's "Cannery Row" but it looked more like "The Great Escape" as several thousand frogs played hard to get on the MGM back-

About half the 5,000 frogs rented for a swamp scene broke out of their pen overnight and were hopping all over the place when workers arrived for Thursday morning's shooting, said publicist Leo Janos.

By jumping their cue, the frogs prompted a roundup that delayed shooting for several hours.

At $2 apiece the film crew wasn't prepared to kiss the frogs goodbye. Most were soon caught, Janos said. But, he added: "I would assume there will be frogs living on the back lots of

Plantations show Baton Rouge's link with past

By JACK BIESTERFELD Copley News Service

BATON ROUGE, La. - Scarlet O'Hara would have felt right at home in Baton Rouge.

Strains of "Dixie" can almost be heard floating throughthe warm Louisiana air, for this city is rich in reminders of the Old South. This is Plantation Country.

Unlike other parts of the South, it was sugarcane, not cotton, that was king. But like cotton, it created vast plantations, with armies of slaves to cultivate it. And it madethe landowners rich. While their slaves lived in squalor in one-room shacks, the slave owners lived in opulent splendor in their manor houses.

These magnificent mansions provide Baton Rouge with its link to the past. Several dozens of these homes are preserved and open to the public. Some even allow overnight stays in theplantation house, so visitors can get a firsthand view of the good life.

The largest and the most recently restored is Nottoway Plantation, a palatial three-story house overlooking the Mississippi River south of Baton Rouge. Its 64 major rooms comprise some 53,000 square feet. Eight rooms have been restored, and others will be completed soon.

The house was built in 1859 by John Hampton Randolph, an ultra-wealthy sugar plantation owner. He spared no expense in building his mansion. The house was saved from destruction in the Civil War by the kindness of a Union gunboat officer who spared the mansion because he had been a guest there once.

Visitors viewing the plantation for the first time can almost see a horse and carriage pull up to the curving double stairway, and Southern belles in their hooped skirts accompanied by their gentlemen walk up to the hand-carved front door. Twenty-two Corinthian pillars support the Greek Revival facade and the wrought irontrimmed porches that wrap around the house.

Inside, its rooms are richly ornamented. A unique rounded white ballroom, with crystal chandeliers and white marble fireplaces, was the scene of many gala balls and coming out parties for Randolph's eight daughters. The original slave call bell, hand-painted porcelain doorknobs and gas sconces are in place, and much of the antique furniture has been replaced, so the house looks much as it did in the 1850s.

If there were such a thing as a typical plantation house, it would be Rosedown Plantation north of Baton Rouge. The two-story, white columned facade hides the quiet elegance known only to the rich. Guides lead tours through the house and explain in detail about the antique furnishings and the history of the family who lived there.

But it is the magnificent gardens that set this estate apart from the others. Contained in its 28 acres are splashing fountains, hidden gazebos, statuary and brightly colored flower beds framed by neatly trimmed

The house is framed by dozens of century-old oak trees that line the road to the front door, reminiscent of Scarlet's beloved Tara.

Magnolia Mound plantation, in a residential area of Baton Rouge is much more modest than the other plantation homes. But its antique furniture and household items are no less impressive. The house, built around 1791, started as a small farmhouse. As the family's wealth grew, so did the house as the family added more and more rooms.

Out back, a detached kitchen of the plantation has been reconstructed.

The aroma of chicken roasting over an open fire and gingerbread baking in the oven drifts through the air as women in long dresses of the day demonstrate early cooking techniques using old recipes and ingredients similar to those used by their ancestors 150 years ago. Another of the smaller one-story homes is Mount Hope Plantation, also in a residential area of Baton Rouge. This house is filled with Civil War relics and is surrounded by beautiful Oakley House in Audubon State Park north of Baton Rouge, is set apart from the other homes because naturalist James Audubon painted many of his bird pictures while staying there.

Besides tours of the house, the park has a farm museum and nature trails. Naturally, there are thousands of birds of many species flitting about. There are nearly two dozen plantation homes within a short drive of Baton Rouge that are open to the public. Hours vary at each home. 'Superwomen' need new rules to go with new role

By PATRICIA DIBSIE Copley News Service

Many "superwomen" are turning in their capes after a large dose of reality, according to an expert on

"achieving women."

"The old rules just aren't working. The really successful woman is rewriting the book to suit her individual needs," said Sandra Winston, a licensed marriage and family counsel-or and head of her own consulting firm in Los Angeles.

Winston conducts management and employee training programs for women and has worked with many Fortune 500 corporations, including TRW, Lockheed, 20th Century Fox and Control Data Corp.

She is writing a book on the

"achieving woman. "A successful career woman trying to make it up the corporate ladder has to give 200 percent to keep up with her male contemporaries. That same woman is expected to give 100 percent to her husband and children. Winston has conducted more than 200 interviews to see how successful women are in handling the career and family combination. She also talked with high school and college-age women to get their plans and expectations for the future. "I expected more positive feedback from the women in their late 20s and early 30s," Winston said. "I figured I would find more women who had found it all.'

She said she was surprised by the younger women planning to mix success inside and outside the home.

"Quite a few expect to be Supreme Court justices and wives and mothers," she said. "And they think they're going to be able to do it all well. They've bought the media blitz about 'Superwoman.'

"But the women who are out there trying to do it all are in a lot of pain, that 'superwoman' image has done a lot of harm.' The successful woman who has yet to find a mate may be in more trou-

"The successful woman has been told she's threatening," Winston said. "She knows that many men view her as competition and hear them saying 'You don't need anyone.

"Men want an achieving woman, one who's doing something with her life, but yet when many men find this type of woman, they complain she has no time for them.

Winston said that while the man is feeling neglected, the woman often feels crowded by his needs.

'And who can blame either person?" she asked. "Relationships between two professionally successful individuals need special rules to ensure a successful personal relationship, too.'

Winston's solution is simple: "Skip the rules and roles and find a new direction that suits both partners."

Her message isn't for the masses, as she readily admits. She talks more to the fidividuals who are achievers the leaders, not the followers.

That workable relationship usually involves such personal tailoring that it won't suit another couple's needs and wants, Winston said. And there are other relationships that may travel a bumpy road, she said, pointing out that the achieving woman may run into problems with conflicts of values when dealing with

"A mother who has spent her life being a good mother and wife may not understand why the daughter wants more," she said. "She may see the career choice as a putdown.

And she said, there may be in-laws and grandparents who say: 'What do you mean you're going to

What they're hoping to do, Johnson said, is raise the issue before U.S. governmental officials so that a

"The fact is that married people filing joint returns are paying more tax than people who are living together but filing separately," Johnson said.

The tax code states if the wife makes at least 25 percent of the household income the couple will pay considerably more, Johnson said.

"If that's the case at the $40,000 a year level, they formed — complete with prayers flowers and organ will probably pay an income tax of $900 to $1,500 music — there was one thing missing. A state-apmore a year without deductions," Johnson said.

The Rabbi Allen Maller, of Akiba Temple, said he got the idea after he married a couple and they complained their taxes were $1,000 a year more because they were married.

"The more I thought about it, the more I became outraged," Maller said. "There are so many forces that are counterprodcutive to marriage anyway, and I don't think the government should be doing some-

Johnson agreed, saying, "Marriage has enough pressures, especially in an economic sense, without pressuring it more. This is just one more blow to marriage.

So, Johnson said, the licenseless marriages were developed, because the government knew about the problem and yet "was not acting in good faith to remedy it."

Johnson said the service he has put together isn't any different than a service where the marriage is bill might be introduced to eliminate the unfairness licensed, except the union is not registered with the

"Usually I say '... by their promises before God and in the presence of this congregation have made themselves husband and wife....' The key statement there is that the couples marry themselves in the presence of witnesses and God," Johnson said. "We have simply taken off the civil authority."

Couples are then given a certificate, that, Johnson said, looks very much like a license, which reads united in marriage according to the ordinance

Maller said he views marriage not as a legal financial agreement, but rather, a spiritual emotional commitment.

Experts worried by lag in space race

By BOB CORBETT Copley News Service

It has been almost 20 years — the date was May 25, 1961 — since President John F. Kennedy set a national goal of "landing an American on the moon in this decade."

Astronauts Nell Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin beat that timetable by almost two years, putting an Apollo program spacecraft softly on the lunar surface on July 20, 1969. "The Eagle has landed," Armstrong matter-of-factly told the

Today, many experts believe that landing may have represented the high-water mark of manned space exploration, perhaps of the entire space program.

Despite some spectacular successes, the space programhas been allowed, they say, to languish over the past 10 years. The period has been called "The Lost Decade" by Dr. Krafft A. Ehricke, an early-day space pioneer and now head of the Space Global Co., a consulting firm in La Jolia, Calif. Officials of the once busy and proud National Aeronautics and Space Administration agree.

"We're in a holding pattern," according to Christopher C. Kraft, director of NASA's huge Johnson Space Flight Cen-

Right now, NASA has only two solid projects - the acci- fashion. dent-delayed Space Shuttle program and Galileo, a Jupiter orbiting mission scheduled for 1984.

In the meantime, it busies itself launching satellites for other agencies. It seems clear that the glory days are gone. What happened? The United States simply dropped the ball, Ehricke said. It allowed the Skylab program to deteriorate into the fireball that cracked up over Australia. In the meantime, the Soviets have been conducting an active manned program with their Soyuz spacecraft.

"As a result," Ehricke said, "we've missed a lot in the 1970s. We've missed the long-term experience in space that the Russians have made."

Now, even if the Space Shuttle program gets off the ground after two years of delays, it still will take valuable time to catch up in space research, he said. A really determined program, he said, might get the nation on an even basis by

The delay has been costly, Ehricke said, in both time and experience. Space offers tremendous opportunities for industrialization in many fields, he said.

That's what has gone wrong with the space program, he indicated. There should have been a strong follow-up to the Apollo and Skylab programs to utilize space in a real economic ties, almost immediately after it became operational.

The potential, he said, includes such possibilities as the production of biologically pure materials for medicine, highgrade crystals for use with laser technology, better magnets for a whole host of Earth uses and new materials such as turbine blades that can resist high temperatures. Such possibilities, he said, could result from what he calls the "whisper technology" of outer space. Such technology is possible in space, Ehricke said, because it is devoid of thepressures of the Earth environment.

Small forces can be utilized in space, he said. "It's like hearing a conversation in a boiler factory," he said. In the Spartan atmosphere of space, he indicated, those voices those forces — can be heard and used.

So what went wrong? It was a combination of things, according to Ehricke.

"Before you can get returns from spacebound manufacturing or energy production," he said, "you need a developmen

LOS ANGELES (AP) The Coalition on Television Silliness, a littleknown watchdog organization based in Eagle Rock, Calif., has named ABC the No. 1 network in TV silliness for 1980. NBC finished a close second, followed by CBS.

For the third consecutive year, ABC's "Laverne and Shirley" was named silliest series, with an average of eight minutes of unredeeming silliness per episode.

The coalition was founded five years ago by Dr. Norman S. Neer, a local psychiatrist and consumer activist. In announcing this year's survey, Neer said:

Music best in 'Singer'

By BOB THOMAS Associated Press Writer

THE JAZZ SINGER succeeds when Neil Diamond delivers his rivet ing songs, fails when attention focuses on a plot that was hokey when played by Al Jolson a half-century ago. This time Diamond is the cantor's son who defies a five-generation tradition for pop-music fame. Diamond is totally emotionless as an actor, and matching him with Laurence Olivier is a cruel jest, even though Olivier delivers a rare piece of overacting. Lucie Arnaz contributes welcome zest to the turgid happenings. Inexplicably, outdoor scenes are filtered through what seems to be a double layer of smog; interiors are equally murky. Buy the album. Man arrested for threat to bomb two supermarkets

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Police and Texas Rangers arrested a man Tuesday at a vacant lot as he attempted to pick up $25,000 demanded after a caller threatened to bomb two supermarkets, authorities said.

The drop was arranged after a caller threatened to blow up two H-E-B supermarkets if he was not given $25,000, according to robbery detective Charles Mikolajczyk.

H-E-B officials agreed to leave the $25,000 under the only tree in the lot located a few miles from the huge H-E-B office and warehouse center. The site was staked out by three Texas Rangers, two San Antonio Police robbery detectives, two auto theft detectives and a DPS intelligence officer, investigators said.

Mikolajczyk said a car approached the lot about 3:30 p.m. and circled several times before stopping. The man was arrested when he stepped out and picked up the bag.

Charges were pending late Tuesday. Police did not disclose which two of San Antonio's three dozen H-E-B supermarkets the caller said contained explosives. Investigators also declined to say if any money had been placed in the bag. The incident follows a recent extortion attempt in Waco in which H-E-B restocked six supermarkets after an extortionist claimed poisoned items had been placed in three stores.

Four persons later were arrested after a massive dumping of the store's stocks. Spot tests failed to turn up any poisoned items.

Innocent pleas entered for 10 FALN members

CHICAGO (AP) - A federal judge has entered innocent pleas on behalf of 10 alleged members of the Puerto Ricwn terrorist group FALN after their indictment on federal charges of seditious conspiracy, armed robbery and stolen vehicle and weapons viola-

U.S. District Judge Thomas R. McMillen set a tentative trial date of Feb. 3 for the defendants, who refused to take part in Tuesday's arraignment except to declare themselves 'prisoners of war," the proceeding a 'farce'' and the U.S. government 'fascist.

Six male defendants were taken into the heavily guarded courtroom separately, while four female suspects were arraigned two at a time. All were handcuffed and some wore leg shackles.

'This is illegal," declared Carlos Torres, the first to be arraigned. "We demand to be turned over to the proper international authorities ... If anybody should be charged with sedition, it should be your government that overthrew the government of Puerto

The defendants refused to respond when McMillen asked them their nams, whether they understood the charges against them and how they wanted to plead.

They also refused, and either tore up or threw to the floor, copies of the 13-count indictment. They would not accept the judge's offer of court-appointed counsel despite his warning that they faced up to 80 years each if convicted of the charges.

The 10 were arrested in April in the northern suburb of Evanston and have been convicted of state robbery and weapons charges. All refused to participate in their state trials and currently are serving 12-year sentences in state penitentiaries.

Eleven people were indicted by a special federal grand jury Dec. 10 in connection with more than two dozen bombings in the Chicago area since 1975 and other terrorist activities. In addition to the 10 arraigned Tuesday, the panel also indicted fugitive Oscar

Named as unindicted co-conspirators by the federal panel were Marie Torres, who was arrested with the 10 others in Evanston and now is serving a life term in connection with a fatal bombing in New York, and fugitive William Morales

Carter praises 96th Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter says the 96th Congress rang up a "superb record," even though it failed to approve several of his major legislative proposals.

Despite the legislative achievements, the Congress, which finally finished Tuesday, perhaps will be best known as the legislature that ended 26 years of Democratic control and that was besmirched by the Abscam scandal.

Among the accomplishments: approval of Carter's "windfall profits" oil tax, his new China policy and Panama Canal treaties and creation of a new Cabinet post, the Department of Education.

The 96th Congress also passed the far-reaching Alaska lands bill, created a $2 billion fund to clean up chemical hazards and passed a record $160 billion defense bill.

But it failed in a major effort to balance the federal budget and killed several Carter proposals, such as his 10-cents-a-gallon gas tax to conserve fuel.

The 96th Congress ended its post-election "lameduck" session after breaking a lengthy stalemate and approving an emergency resolution to restore money that halted at midnight for several federal agencies.

In the compromise, the House gave up its $10,000 pay raise for members of Congress and the Senate gave up more than 150 "Christmas tree" amendments to provide for senators' pet projects, including one to ban nine-digit ZIP codes.

Following tradition, congressional leaders telephoned Carter to tell them Congress was adjourning and he told them the 96th had "a superb record."

Congress was also scarred by scandal, led by the Abscam investigation that led to indictments of one senator and seven House members. FBI agents posed as representatives of fictitious Arab sheiks willing to pay bribes for legislative favors.

Three House members have so far been convicted of bribery in the affair - Reps. Michael Myers, D-Pa.; John Jenrette, D-S.C.; and Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J. A fourth, Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., was convicted of taking an illegal gratuity

Haig was virtually acting president

WASHINGTON (AP) — During the siege of Watergate, Alexander Haig mustered all his diplomatic and tactical skills to keep Richard Nixon's presidency from falling apart. Haig was the closest thing to an acting president since Woodrow Wilson was incapacitated by a stroke.

The White House experience, plus an apprenticeship with Henry Kissinger and 41/2 years as supreme commander of NATO - a job in which the skills of a diplomat are prized even more than those of a soldier - are assets Haig would bring to a new role as secretary of state.

But some of those assets also are among the liabilities that could stand in the way of the Senate's confirming Haig, whose nomination was announced Tuesday.

On behalf of Nixon, Haig arranged wiretaps of government officials and reporters; he manned the front-lines in Nixon's battle to keep his tapes, acting as messenger for the president's orders to fire tape-seeking special prosecutor Archibald Cox; and Gerald Ford said it was Haig who raised the idea of a pardon for Nixon. Haig's advice to Nixon and Kissinger on controversial policies in the Vietnam war could be another stumbling block.

So could be the health of the 56year-old Haig. He underwent coronary bypass surgery eight months

Haig is a retired four-star general, the kind who commanded more desks in Washington than armies in battle, the kind who was happy to eat C-rations with NATO troops in the after-noon and pate with their country's leaders at night

Once a brigade commander in Vietnam, he would be only the second military professional to be secretary of state. George C. Marshall was the

When H.R. Haldeman left the White House in the glare of Watergate, Nixon chose Haig to take over as chief of staff, his right-hand man. "He was steady, intelligent and tough," Nixon recalls in his memoirs. "What he might have lacked in political experience and organizational finesse he made up in sheer force of personality . He knew how to drive people and he knew how to inspire them. According to Nixon, Haig was told at the outset that he would not deal with Watergate, then just growing into full-blown scandal. But the wagons were being drawn around the White House, as John Dean put it, and Haig was the wagon master. In mid-1974, during Nixon's last troubled months in office, Haig often made the day-to-day decisions that came to the

When Haig relayed Nixon's order to fire Cox in what became known as "The Saturday Night Massacre," he told a reluctant assistant attorney general to obey "orders of the commander in chief.

Spiro Agnew blames Haig for pushing him to resign as vice president. When the famed 181/2-minute gap on one tape recording was being explored in court, Haig offered what he called a "devil theory" for the hum that replaced conversation.

"Perhaps some sinister force had come in," he said.

His words made headlines. When things looked blackest for Nixon, Haig urged the president to hang on because resignation would look like an admission of guilt. But later, after hearing the tape on which Nixon acquiesced to the Watergate

Nixon then decided to resign. And the first person he told, before his wife and daughters, was Alexander

Haig. Born in the Philadelphia suburb of Bala-Cynwyd, the son of a lawyer, Haig worked his way through two years at the University of Notre Dame before he entered West Point in 1944. He held a variety of staff assignments in the Far East, Europe and the United States, and earned a master's degree in international relations at Georgetown University

Other military men regarded Haig - either with admiration or resent ment - as a political general. He was a colonel when he went to the White House at the start of the Nixon administration in January 1969 as assistant to national security adviser Kissinger, and he left as a full general to become vice Army chief of staff.

He visited Vietnam nine times for Nixon, headed the advance party that planned Nixon's summit trip to China in 1972 and helped Kissinger through 12 secret missions to Paris during the first rounds of the Vietnam peace

Haig helped Gerald R. Ford make the transition to the Oval Office, then was sent by the new president to command NATO.

Four days before Haig ended that tour, terrorists exploded a remotecontrolled bomb under a country bridge as his limousine rolled over it. Three guards were slightly injured, but Haig was not. His stands on foreign policy are close to those of President-elect Ronald Reagan. Haig has urged, for instance, that the Senate set aside the SALT II treaty and seek a new strategy to counter the Soviet Union's growing nuclear might.

Haig's decision to leave the military in 1979 fueled speculation that he wanted to return to the White House as president. He found insufficient support, however, and decided not to

Haig then went to work as president of United Technologies Corp., the 26th biggest firm in the country, and for the first time in his life, he was making big money, estimated at half a million dollars a year.

New labor boss effective fund raiser for Reagan

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) - In early 1979, Ronald Reagan asked Raymond Donovan to raise $10,000 for the soonto-be candidate's New Jersey campaign. Donovan came back with $175,-

Reagan aides say it was that kind of enthusiasm and loyalty - along with Donovan's close ties to blue-collar workers - that led to Tuesday's invitation to Donovan to join the Reagan Cabinet as secretary of labor.

The 50-year-old Donovan, executive vice president of Schiavone Construction of Secaucus, N.J., has never held elective office or worked for the government, and before he was named Reagan's New Jersey campaign manager, he had relatively little experience in politics.

But Donovan was one of Reagan's most resourceful operatives and helped orchestrate some of the national campaign's more memorable moments.

It was Donovan who persuaded Reagan to kick off his fall campaign at Liberty State Park in Jersey City against the background of the Statue of Liberty and the New York City skyline. It was Donovan who arranged for Reagan to make personal campaign stops in the working class neighborhoods of Donovan's boyhood home, Hudson County, whose political life has been run for decades by a legendary Democratic Party machine. It was Donovan who gave the Reagan campaign in New Jersey a rare entree to both the beer halls of industrial workers and the checkbooks of rich GOP contributers. Donovan enjoys the reputation of a self-made man, one who climbed from the blue-collar district of Bayonne, N.J., to the posh suburban community of Short Hills, but one who has not lost touch with his past. "I don't think Ray Donovan has ever allowed his success or his position in life to cloud his actions when it comes to human beings," said Thomas H. Bruinooge, who was the state campaign vice chairman and Donovan's closest adviser.

Bruinooge said Reagan has known Donovan for six or seven years. But he said it was only during the campaign that a close personal relationship developed between the two.

Donovan lives with his wife, Cathy, and his younger son, Keith, a high school sophomore. His older son, Ken, a recent graduate of Fairfield University in Connecticut, worked as an advance man for Reagan's cam-

Donovan's first real involvement in New Jersey politics was as a fundraiser for state Sen. Raymond Bateman's unsuccessful gubernatorial campaign in 1977. Donovan also worked on the campaign of former Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y.

During the early phases of the Reagan campaign, Donovan stayed in the background. But when John Sears was fired as national campaign chairman, the New Jersey chairman Sears had named, Hamilton Township Mayor John Rafferty, also fell out of favor. Enter Raymond Donovan.

"He had a line right into Reagan without any question. It was without a doubt a personal relationship," recalls State Assemblyman John Rocco. By the time of the Republican National Convention in Detroit, Donovan had become the de facto leader of the state Reagan organization and later was officially named chairman.

Thanks to Donovan's influence, Rocco was chosen as one of a handful of delegates who seconded Reagan's nomination from the convention

And it was thanks to Donovan that Reagan made a brief stop at Mickey Barrett's tavern in staunchly Democratic Bayonne Reagan was carrying a $100 bill from Donovan and, on Donovan's advice, was planning to slap it on the bar and order "a round for the boys." It would be "a playoff on getting the Hudson County vote out in the typical way," said Bruinooge. Unfortunately, the plan didn't work. The tavern was so packed that Reagan was never able to reach the

Brunettes boost magazine sales

NEW YORK (AP) - Blondes flopped, brunettes were hits. Politics was cold, Mount St. Helens was hot. Valerie Bertinelli was the surprise of the year, and Marlo Thomas just kept up the good work.

The game is selling magazines, and putting the right person on the cover can make a big difference in newsstand sales and advertising

Miss Bertinelli was on two of the best-selling covers of the year: an issue of People which sold 500,000 more than People's normal 2.3 million in newsstand sales, and Us, where she drew 850,000 buyers, compared to the average of 712,000.

But, says the Daily News, Meryl Streep was a bust for Ladies Home Journal, Jill Clayburgh was a loser for McCall's and "Charlie's Angels" co-star Cheryl Ladd was a disappointment for Us.

Miss Thomas held the interest of Good Housekeeping readers with her marriage to Phil Donahue. And one blond bucking the trend was Robert Redford, who sold 300,000 copies over the 1 million average as the first male cover star in Ladies' Home Journal history.

One of Time's best sellers was a cover on the Mount St. Helens' eruption that killed 34 people in May. President Carter, on inflation, was the Interest rates inhibit recovery

By ROBERT BURNS AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The upward march of interest rates, now at record heights, is crushing any hope of recovery in the beleaguered auto and housing industries and is threatening to plunge the nation's economy back into a recession, analysts say.

Major banks nationwide, led by Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., the nation's fifth-largest commercial bank, raised their prime lending rates to a record 21 percent on Tuesday.

Wall Street analysts see little chance of rates peaking before year's end. Some, in fact, predict the rates. will continue rising early next year, breaking the economy's sluggish revival and sending it into another re-

"There is a reasonable possibility of the prime rate going up to 25 percent," said Sung Won Son, chief economist at Northwestern National Bank in Minneapolis, the state's largest.

But even a 21 percent prime rate for a sustained period will put intense pressure on much of the economy, most notably the housing and auto industries, analysts said.

Just last week, banks raised their rates a full percentage point to 20 percent, matching the peak reached in April when high rates and the Federal Reserve Board's tight-money policies helped push the economy into a steep but quick recession.

"I wonder how it could hurt worse," said Gerald Mevers, chairman of American Motors Corp. "It's almost ridiculous to say that 21 percent hurts more than 20 percent.

With interest rates this high, potential car buyers are finding it more difficult to get loans, and banks, limited in most cases by state law on the rates they can charge consumers, are shying away from loans because they often are unprofitable at permissible

The housing industry, after a minor recovery in late summer when mortgage rates dropped, also is suffering from the rising rates.

Housing starts last month declined 0.4 percent, the first drop since May, the government reported Tuesday. With mortgage rates reaching 16 percent in some areas, single-family housing starts fell a seasonally adjusted 4.8 percent last month after a 2.1 percent decline in October, the Commerce Department said.

Only continued strength in multi-family housing starts kept the home industry from suffering a greater setback last month, said Michael Sumichrast, chief economist of the National Association of Homebuilders.

While many economists predict another recession, some think a weak recovery may continue, particularly if the Fed eases its policies in response to complaints by troubled businesses.

The prime rate is the rate of interest banks charge on loans to their most creditworthy corporate customers. Smaller businesses usually pay at least one percentage point more rates on those loans also have risen.

The prime rate has jumped at an extraordinarily rapid rate in the past several weeks, rising from a latesummer low of 10.75 percent at some banks and from 14.5 percent on Nov.

Banks have raised their lending rates in reaction to a general increase in all kinds of interest rates. For example, the rate on federal funds uncommitted reserves that banks lend one another - rose as high as 20.5 percent Tuesday.

The rate banks pay on six-month money-market certificates, sold in denominations of $10,000, will rise Thursday to a near-record 15.673 percent, up from 15.319 percent and the highest since March. That rate is tied to rates on Treasury bills auctioned by the government each week. Rates have been rising largely because the Fed has kept a tight rein on bank reserves, allowing strong demand to push up rates. The Fed is seeking to cool inflation by controlling the growth of credit.

Toys hidden in garage go out with the garbage

FAIRFIELD, Ohio (AP) + Carol how much garbage comes out of one Genenbacher thought her garage would be a safe hiding place for a bag full of children's Christmas presents.

Her husband, Chuck, thought the lumpy bag was supposed to be put on the curb with the garbage.

Mrs. Genenbacher didn't remember the cache until about 10 minutes after trashmen made their regular pickup. So she followed the garbage truck to the landfill and searched it for the bag of presents.

That's about 12 tons of garbage, according to Bill Rumpke, who runs a private garbage collection service.

Mrs. Genenbacher and some friends searched about two hours in the cold, muddy landfill recently before retrieving the bag, which contained about $100 worth of presents.

"We're so glad and so thankful. It really meant a lot to us," she said. "Financially, I don't think we could

Chevrolet's advertiser says he's 'happy to be sleazy'

NEW YORK (AP) - An officer of the agency behind an advertisement that implies foreign cars are dangerous says he is "happy to be sleazy" if that's what it takes to get the message

Samuel I. Ratner, vice president of Berger, Stone and Ratner, Tuesday defended an advertisement for the Chevrolet Chevette that a spokesman for the Association of National Advertisers says are "disgusting" and "give the (advertising) business a

The ad, which appeared in some magazines in the Northeast and was paid for by regional Chevrolet dealers, depicts ambulance attendants loading a body into their vehicle. A demolished foreign car is nearby

"But it got 43 mpg!" the copy reads, adding, "In what are your children driving tonight? Is it a car which passed the latest U.S. safety The ad goes on to say that although Chevette passed the tests, several major import models did

An official of Nissan Motor Corp. in USA, importer of Datsun, called the ad "a cheap shot and a travesty in advertising.

A spokesman for General Motors Corp., corporate parent of Chevrolet, said "we're not terribly proud" of the campaign, adding dealers are independent and control their advertis-

Anthony Lunt of the New Yorkbased Association of National Advertisers said the ad is based on somewhat controversial statistics and

The tests cifed were done by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, which crashes cars at 35 mph and examines dummies inside to determine whether human counterparts would have survived.

Lunt said 35 mph is 5 mph faster than the rate at which the federal government stages collisions to determine if a car clears mandatory safety standards. All cars must meet the 30 mph standard to be sold in the United States.

The auto industry magazine Automotive News editorialized: "Would you like to see a picture of a mangled Chevrolet Caprice in a foreign maker's ad? People die in Chevrolets that don't get 43 mpg.

Robert B. Kent, a vice president at Nissan's American subsidiary, told the Wall Street Journal: "Had we chosen to, we could have picked on the Pinto fires and the Omni and Horizon recall problems, but playing on people's fears isn't our style.'

But Joseph Stone, president of Berger, Stone, said "I don't think it's stupid to tell the American public it has a life edge by driving a Che-

Ratner added "If telling the public about this stuff is sleazy and a low blow, then I'm happy to be sleazy."

The vehicles had to be light to save fuel, have air conditioning to attract summer riders and have special controls for safety. They also had to meet air pollution regulations

Some analysts have suggested that the conflicting demands of the various features contributed to the probcracks in their frames. Los Angeles idled all 230 of its Flxibles and Chicago's 215-bus Flxible fleet was inspect-

AP Science Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) - A giant, sleek version of the picturesque old windmills once found on countless American farms has been dedicated near here as an energy source for tomorrow.

"We are dedicating an infant technology with a bright future," said William R. Gould, chairman of Southern California Edison, which financed most of the multimillion-dollar demonstration project.

The windmill, rising nearly 20 stories from the California desert, is designed to generate up to 3,000 kilowatts of electricity, enough to supply 800 to 1,000 homes, Gould said at dedication ceremonies Tuesday. He said it could save 10,000 barrels of fuel The wind turbine generator is a far cry from the old wood-and-steel windmills that once filled stock ponds, irrigated crops and produced a bit of electricity for farmers in the early years of the century. "The principle is the same, but this involves a much more advanced technology," said project engineer Robert

The new windmill's three-bladed rotor - 165 feet in diameter - looks like the engine and propellers of a monstrous airplane. It was designed and built by Bendix Wind Power Products Co., which also contributed to the all-private funding.

The windmill sits atop a, 100-foot tower in an area northwest of Palm Springs where winds average 15-17 SCE's vice president for research and development, Lawrence Papay, called the site the best in the region. But the site didn't cooperate Tuesday. When the windmill's brakes were released, its propellers weren't moved by the soft breeze.

The rotor was finally turned electrically as Gould conceded, "This proves one thing that is fundamental about wind energy - there are times when it is not abundant.'

Scheffler said the rotor needs at least 12 mph winds to start up, though once started will keep going to about 8 mph. Up to about 40 mph, the stronger the winds the more electricity will be produced. He said engineers expect the wind generator to have enough wind to operate aboout two-thirds of an average year and to run at full power just 5 to 8 percent of the time. "Wind is not the solution to the energy crisis by itself," he said. "But it should allow us to reduce our use of high-priced oil when the wind is blow-The Palm Springs windmill is the first stage of SCE's planned wind performance of various electricityproducing wind machines. Papay said SoCal Edison has already requested proposals from private manufacturers willing to participate in a "wind farm" that would

SCE officials were reluctant to discuss the costs of the big windmill, but Papay said he expects the cost of a mass-produced wind turbine generator, including installation expenses,

Abscam informant to testify

WASHINGTON (AP) - The prosecution in the Abscam bribery trial of Rep. Richard Kelly, R-Fla., and two co-defendants has called on a paid FBI informant for what could be days of critical testimony, even though the government itself characterizes the witness as "a thief and a con man." Melvin Weinberg, who won an early release from prison on condition that he cooperate with the FBI, took the stand late Tuesday to relate how he developed contacts which culminated in the payment of $25,000 in alleged bribe money to Kelly in a videotaped meeting Jan. 8. Weinberg testified that he told one eventual middleman, William Rosenberg of Lynbrook, N.Y., that "Abdul Faterprises" - the ficticious name for the FBI undercover operation would pay up to $50,000 for a congressman willing to introduce immigration legislation for an Arab sheik.

But Rosenberg, who already has pleaded guilty to conspiracy in the Kelly case and has promised to testify for the government, responded that he could produce such a congressman at a price of $250,000, Weinberg said.

But, Weinberg went on, Rosenberg refused to identify the lawmaker. Whether Rosenberg ever really had Kelly specifically in mind, or in effect, followed Weinberg's lure of Arab money in a scramble to find virtually any congressman, is a prime point of contention between the government and defense. Government witnesses already years.

have conceded that Rosenberg, portrayed by Weinberg as a man with key political connections, steered the operation in the wrong direction on several occasions.

For example, undercover agent Anthony Amoroso acknowledged earlier Tuesday that Rosenberg once advanced two names of supposedly corruptible congressmen to Weinberg. It turned out there was no one in Congress by either name.

In one videotaped meeting, Rosenberg also mentioned the name of an Oklahoma senator named Kerr as a payoff possibility. Sen. Robert Kerr of Oklahoma has been dead for 15
