Horizon effort begun on campus

By Ginger Pope
Staff Writer

Texas Tech officials welcomed faculty and staff to participate in the Horizon Capital Campaign on Tuesday after an afternoon reception.

Campaign officials hope to raise $10 million from Tech faculty and staff, and they announced nearly $8 million that already has been donated.

Officially kicking off the campaign on campus serves as an invitation and a thank you from Tech officials.

"We want to embrace faculty and staff into this campaign," said Tech Chancellor John Montford. "They have been quite generous already, and it is imperative they feel they are a part of the campaign."

Faculty and staff all give something to the university just with their work, said Robert Baker, faculty/staff campaign chairman and director of natural science research lab.

"For those who work here, the university is our life," Baker said. "This effort on campus gives faculty and staff a chance to practice giving financially."

Baker has donated $1 million to the campaign.

Not everyone on campus can give right now, he said, but there are some who have reached a point of financial maturity, and hopefully these people will donate.

The campus portion of the capital campaign has been conducted by volunteers in each of the university's departments to inform people about the purpose of the campaign, Baker said.

Money raised during the campaign will go for university development. At least $100 million will be earmarked for faculty enhancement, including endowments to establish professorships and fellowships.

Currently, the total amount of the Horizon Campaign stands at $253 million. A separate campaign for faculty and staff of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center will be launched later this year. The goal of the campaign is to raise $300 million.

Students vote for 24-hour visitation

By Christi Biddy
Staff Writer

The Residence Hall Association announced last week's results of a vote on a tentative visitation policy Tuesday night. About 1,200 students voted in favor of 24-hour visitation with no restrictions.

Amy Maynard, RHA co-adviser and a graduate assistant for the department of housing, was surprised the vote was so one-sided.

"I thought it'd be a little bit closer," Maynard said. Maynard said many of the voters who voted for 24-hour visitation with no restrictions were probably freshmen.

She was pleased, though, for the input of the students. "I'm glad to see we had a good turnout," Maynard said. "The reason the vote was put out was to find out what the students thought."

While the RHA council executive members indicated the 24-hour visitation with no restriction is what will be proposed to the RHA council, they also said not all of the votes were officially recorded yet.

"We still have to finish counting the (Gordon/Bledsoe/Sneed) vote," said RHA President Ryan Klemer.

Klemer, a music and business major from Canyon, wanted students to know the result of the vote did not guarantee a change in visitation.

"Just because they voted for 24-hour (visitation) doesn't mean that it's going to happen," Klemer said.

The visitation policy now will be written by the executive members of the RHA council. The measure then will be approved by the council as a whole. After approval by RHA, the proposal will be submitted to James Burkhalter, director of housing and dining services.

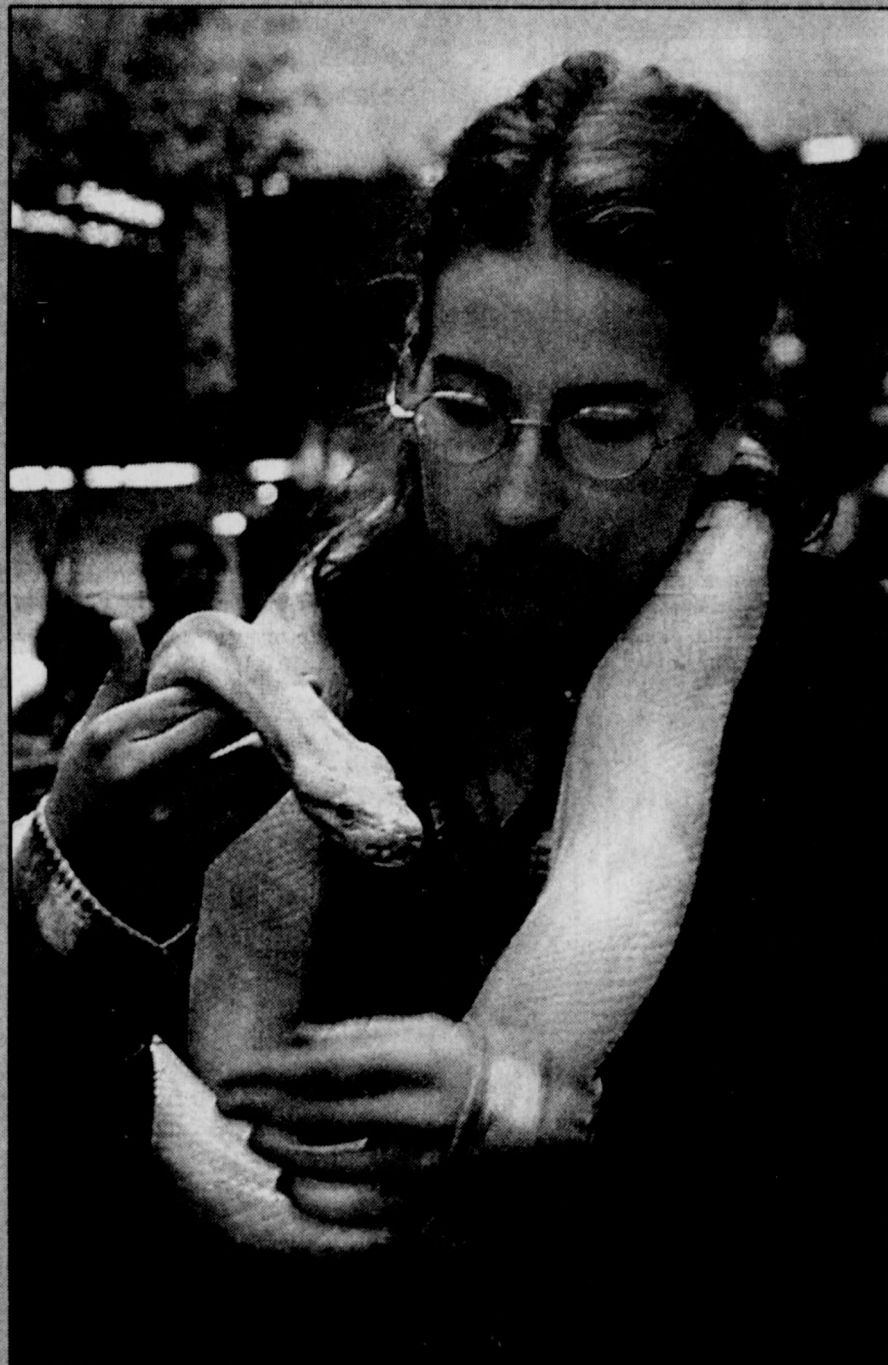

If the proposal is approved by Burkhalter, it will be submitted to Robert Ewalt, vice president of student affairs.

The proposal would have to be approved by both Burkhalter and Ewalt before it will be submitted to the Board of Regents for final vote, Maynard said.

"We're still quite a few steps away," Maynard said. "It will all depend on the Board of Regents."

The RHA also received recognition this weekend. The council won the School of the Year award at the Texas Residence Hall Association convention in College Station.

Professor returns to alma mater, chairs department

By Tara Nishimura
Staff Writer

After 27 years, Gilmour Reeve will return to Texas Tech as chairman of the department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Reeve received two degrees from Tech, his bachelor in science in physical education in 1969 and his master's of education in 1972. He received his doctorate in philosophy from Texas A&M in 1976. Reeve is a professor at Auburn University and will begin his position at Tech on June 21.

Reeve said he accepted the chair because of the position and the location.

"When administrative employment came up at Tech, it was something I felt very close to," Reeve said. "I knew I'd feel comfortable there."

Ruth Maki, department chair of Psychology and chair of the search committee, said the committee looked for a person with good research credentials and vision.

"We were looking for someone who would have a vision about where the department could go," Maki said.

The search committee chose several candidates, and the HPER faculty voted for their chair.

"The HPER faculty voted so that's how he came out on top — a clear choice among faculty," Maki said.

Reeve said society is starting to focus on health areas, and he wants to position HPER to become involved.

"Our areas of Health and Physical Education and recreation are well positioned to take advantage of the emphasis on health going on in the population," Reeve said.

Reeve wrote over 60 journal articles, technical reports and book chapters.

"He was by far the strongest in the pool. He has tremendous research experience and some real good ideas," Maki said.

Reeve said his research focuses on the psychological aspects of human performance.

"One of the things I see at Tech is that there are one or more colleagues I know I can work with to keep my research going even though I'll be doing some administrative work," Reeve said.

SGA runoffs today

Texas Tech students will go to the polls again today to vote in a runoff election for the Student Government Association executive offices.

Students will be able to vote beginning at 9 a.m. Polls are located at the University Center, Holden Hall, agriculture sciences, architecture, business administration, English, human sciences, mass communication, law and the mathematics buildings. Polls close at 7 p.m.

Candidates for the office of president are Stefani Williams and Douglas Jeffrey IV. The candidates for the office of internal vice president are Carrie Evans and Nikki Pollard. The candidates for the office of external vice president are Ashlee Thames and Cassius Johnson.

First of three charged in dean's shooting

HOUSTON (AP) — A 22-year-old was sentenced Tuesday to death for the 1997 slaying of Texas Southern University's education dean, Irma Malloy.

Calvin Wilson McGee showed no emotion as the verdict was read.

"It's such a tragedy that my mother, who would have dedicated all of her life to education and to the plight of the black male, would have had her life taken by a black male," said Darryl Malloy, one of the victim's sons.

Jurors convicted McGee on March 3. They deliberated eight hours before sentencing him to lethal injection.

McGee is the first of three suspects to be tried in Malloy's Oct. 1, 1997 carjacking death.

Bill would make city of Austin a capital district

AUSTIN (AP) — A Houston lawmaker said the state needs to take over the city of Austin.

Rep. Ron Wilson has filed a bill to create a "District of Travis" akin to the District of Columbia.

The idea, first proposed in 1884, has been the subject of unsuccessful legislation over the years.

But Wilson, D-Houston, said such a district is needed in order to make the capital city more friendly to state government.

"There's an attitude in much of local government here that they aren't responsive nor responsible to anybody else outside of Austin, that basically they're doing us a favor by having the Capitol here," Wilson said.

The proposal is a constitutional amendment, which would require approval by a two-thirds majority of both chambers in the Legislature and then would have to be endorsed by voters.

Tech Habitat chapter receives donation

By Greg Okuhara
Staff Writer

Efforts to help families in Lubbock received a small boost Tuesday night. The Kiwanis Club donated $300 to the Texas Tech Habitat for Humanity chapter.

The Tech chapter has been building houses for the underprivileged in East Lubbock.

Reggie Colley, president of the East Lubbock Kiwanis Club, said the donation is small but shows the appreciation of the students' work.

"It's small in comparison to what it should be or could be with some proper planning," Colley said. "It should be more and it could be more, but we're proud of the work they're doing."

The Kiwanis want to support any activities that help out the neighborhoods in their area.

"This was a project that hit close to home," Colley said. "They're coming in helping single-parent families, families that haven't owned a home that haven't had the opportunity to own a home or otherwise wouldn't be able to own it."

The Kiwanis are eager to assist improvement projects in their area, Colley said.

"We felt it was a good project, and we wanted to support it as much as possible."

Dominick Casadonte, a chemistry professor at Tech and chapter adviser, said every donation means something to the volunteers.

"It will be used, I guarantee, for a very worthy cause," Casadonte said. "No donation is too small. That $300 will go very far toward providing materials for buildings we are currently building."

The Tech chapter has built 15 houses on Hickory Street, an East Lubbock street, in the past four years. When the project first began, there was one house on the street. Now, it looks like a neighborhood, Casadonte said.

Volunteers have put a lot of effort and work into building the homes for families in need.

"We normally get approximately 30 people per week to help us," Casadonte said. "We've put in 2,000 hours in the past two years. This is a tremendous opportunity that we have to provide affordable housing to families who really need it."

The chapter has set a goal of building one house per year. The houses are built for families who need more room for their families and who can't afford to move into a house with adequate room.

"We finished one last September for a working mother with six children. They were living in a one-bedroom apartment. So, you can imagine their joy at moving into a four-bedroom house," Casadonte said.

"We like to say we're providing a help-out, not a hand-out," Casadonte said.

Those who wish to volunteer can call the University Center Activities office at 742-3621 or Corey Wall at 762-3425 to schedule a time to work.

Amtrak bets future on new high-speed rail service

NEW YORK (AP) — Amtrak unveiled a new high-speed train Tuesday that is designed to whisk passengers at 150 mph between Washington, New York and Boston and revitalize the railroad by competing with airlines on such trips.

Named "Acela" (uh-SELL-ah) to hint at both acceleration and excellence, the new trains will travel between Boston and New York in three hours — an improvement of 90 minutes over the current trip — and from New York to Washington in as little as 2 1/2 hours, a savings of a half-hour. Service is to begin in November or December, and Amtrak officials hope it will be a model for similar trains in the Great Lakes, the Gulf Coast, California and the Pacific Northwest.

"We know we have a product here that will absolutely knock the socks off the competition," Amtrak President George Warrington said at a gala opening attended by more than 1,000 employees. "USAir, Delta, General Motors, Ford, you name it, only Amtrak's Acela will provide a very special journey for customers who will travel downtown to downtown."

In addition to pledging speed, Amtrak promised an unparalleled service. Acela's snub-nosed, silver-and-turquoise trains will have business-class seats with audio and power jacks, special check-in areas and concierge service, plus dining cars with meeting tables, upgraded food and beer on tap. The schedule has not been set, but Amtrak officials said it probably would maintain most current stops, including Baltimore, Philadelphia, New Haven, Conn., and Providence, R.I. The railroad will also retain its slower Northeast Direct service.

A one-way trip will cost about $130 to $140 each way between New York and Boston or Washington, an increase from the current Metroliner express fare of $114 but still less than the $199 walk-up fare charged by US Airways and Delta Air Lines. They are the two primary airlines offering shuttle service between Washington, New York and Boston.

Delta spokeswoman Kay Horner said: "There's a lot of traffic in the corridor and Delta offers a different product."

Amtrak projects that Acela will boost its market share in the busy Northeast Corridor from 12 percent to 15 percent annually, or about 14.3 million passengers total. It also expects Acela to generate $180 million in new profits its first full year of service.

A cash influx is important because Amtrak has not turned a profit since being founded in 1971. The General Accounting Office reported that the railroad lost an average of $47 per passenger in fiscal 1997, renewing criticism in Congress. In 1997, the House and Senate passed legislation requiring that Amtrak become self-sufficient by 2002. They provided a $2.2 billion cash infusion in 1997 and have been approving steadily declining subsidies since then.

"For years our critics have sat on the sidelines waiting for the high-speed rail program to fade."

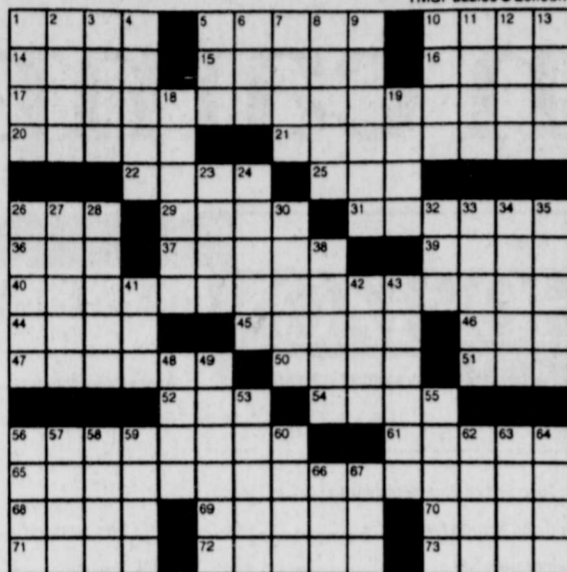

George Warrington
Amtrak president

"For years our critics have sat on the sidelines waiting for the high-speed rail program to fade. We will continue to disappoint them," Warrington said. "In fact, we are using the lessons learned on high-speed rail to improve all our services across this country. Acela will be a catalyst for America's 21st century rail renaissance."

Effects of scary movies can linger for years study says

DETROIT (AP) — If "Jaws" scared you out of the water or "Psycho" changed your shower habits, a study suggests you probably aren't alone.

A survey of 150 students at the Universities of Michigan and Wisconsin found that one in four had some lingering "fright" effect from a movie or TV show they saw as a child or a teen-ager.

Some people who saw the thriller about a man-eating shark never went into the ocean again, said Kristen Harrison, a University of Michigan communications professor who co-wrote the study.

And "Psycho?"

"There are people who shower with the door open, even though they're quite sure there isn't a killer in the house," Harrison said Tuesday.

Ninety percent said they were scared by a TV or movie from their childhood or adolescence; 26 percent said they still experience "residual anxiety."

The younger children were when they were frightened, the longer the reaction lasted.

Ranny Levy, president of the Coalition for Quality Children's Media in Santa Fe, N.M., said her own 27-year-old son was frightened of taking a swim in the sea a few years ago and blames it on seeing "Jaws" as a boy.

"He had to force himself. He really identified it with watching 'Jaws' when he was little," she said.

Shelter needs furnishings

Women's Protective Services is promoting the program Adopt-a-Room Sponsorship fund raiser to help furnish a new shelter. The fund raiser will help furnish 60 bedrooms, 48 bathrooms and 24 kitchens.

Kelly Roach, development director for WPS, said she would like to see some of the organizations at Texas Tech be involved with the fund raiser. "We really need the rooms filled up," Roach said. "We know there are people at Texas Tech who would like to help."

Roach said, instead of performing a service such as painting a room, WPS is looking for organizations to donate specific items for the rooms.

Items vary from blankets and lamps for the bedroom to pot holders and potato peelers in the kitchen. Roach said the reason for the move to the new facility was because the old shelter was no longer suitable for the families living there.

"It's in really bad shape," Roach said. "We'll be able to serve more clients in the new facility."

Organizations wishing to donate money can sponsor an entire quad for $10,000 or partner with another group for $5,000 each. Individuals can take items to the University Center Activities Office, Room 228 in the University Center, by March 20.

Roach said items could be brought to the WPS's Dream Drive from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on March 20 at KLBK TV, 7400 University. For information, call WPS at 792-7295.

Alcohol-related accidents expected to rise over break

By Apu Naik
Staff Writer

This Spring Break, thousands of Tech students will drive the Texas highways with plans of partying and drinking all week long.

But as a recent study conducted by the Texas Department of Transportation revealed, if drivers do not become more cautious of their alcohol consumption, record accident, injury and death numbers will once again be achieved in Texas.

Last Spring Break, 914 drivers between the ages of 18 and 24 were involved in accidents, where alcohol was attributed as the cause.

Of those accidents, some 400 drivers were seriously injured, 11 died and in addition, killed and hurt their passengers.

Ten passengers between the ages of 18 and 24, who were riding with those intoxicated drivers were killed last March, and 294 more were seriously injured, TDT reports state.

Karen Gibson, a spokeswoman for the TDT, said the severity of drinking and driving during Spring Break in Texas can never be underestimated.

"At some point in their lives, three out of every five Americans will be involved in an alcohol-related driving accident, whether they are the driver, the passenger or just an innocent victim," Gibson said.

"College students are more likely to be involved with drinking and driving accidents than any other single demographic."

A record year for Texas' drinking and driving accidents and fatalities was 1997 when nearly 30.4 percent of all traffic fatalities in Texas were drinking and driving related.

In addition, 30 percent of those drivers involved in fatal alcohol-related crashes in 1997 were under the age of 25, and those drunk drivers hurt an additional 17,879 people who were not drinking at all.

In 1997, Lubbock county had a total of 344 DWI-involved accidents, with 18 total deaths as a result of those accidents.

Lubbock County Texas Highway patrolman Bill Schneider, who has spent the past 18 years patrolling highways in and around Lubbock county, said drinking and driving has always been a problem in Texas, but holiday seasons such as Spring Break only makes the situation worse.

And in addition to the prospect of injuring one's self or others, Gibson said college students need to recognize the severe punishments individuals place themselves in jeopardy of receiving as a result of reckless drinking and driving.

"During the month of March, more than any other time, law enforcement is most critical of drinking and driving because of the increased possibility of offenders," Gibson said.

Drinking and driving laws in Texas have increasingly stiffened over the past couple of years, as legislators have adopted various zero-tolerant legislation, which have increased the penalties for underage drinking.

The TDT reports that "minors who buy, attempt to buy, possess or consume alcoholic beverages face a fine of up to $500, require attendance at alcohol awareness classes, community service and loss of their driver's license."

And even though the legal blood-alcohol limit remains at .1 percent, a new piece of proposed legislation might change that figure to .08 percent.

The TDT reports alcohol can affect driving at much lower levels.

"Even at blood-alcohol concentrations as low as .02 percent, alcohol affects driver performance by reducing reaction time and slowing the decision-making process," reported the TDT.

“College students are more likely to be involved with drinking and driving accidents...”

Program to help students find experience, future jobs

By Melody Ragland
Staff Writer

The Family Financial Planning program in Texas Tech's College of Human Sciences is giving its students what they need to enter into highly successful internships and careers.

Jerry Mason, associate professor, credits the success of the program to the students.

"(Businesses) like the personal service and really like Tech students," he said.

Family financial planning students begin their road to success the day they step foot into the program.

As freshmen, Mason has students create their resume.

Seniors are required to create electronic resumes and post them on at least 10 different web sites.

Mason said a representative from different financial companies visit the campus and students

“It had a humbling effect on me.”

every week.

Most students agreed the program had prepared them for their internships.

Stephanie Smith and Carolyn Wragg, both senior family financial planning majors from Lubbock, worked for companies outside of the United States.

Wragg worked for an insurance company in Holland.

She said the hardest part of her internship was the differences in language.

Both Smith and Wragg said what they learned in class helped them during their internships.

"Through the classes, I feel prepared to go out in the financial industry," Smith said.

Tim Lowry, senior family financial planning major from Abilene, said all the classes work the student to the point of an internship.

"Some Tech students are getting internships most people can't get without five-years experience," he said.

Danny Walker, a senior family financial planning major from Corpus Christi, said he was prepared for his internships but did learn from his experience.

"I think internships teach you what you don't know about the real world," he said.

"It had a humbling effect on me." Mason said the students do the networking.

He said, in the past, most of the students were the first intern at the companies, and the companies have continued hiring the same student or other people from the program.

He said the purpose of the internships are for the students to gain experience they need for the future.

"We match up students with opportunities where they can gain the best possible experience and insight," he said.

"We want to make sure we turn out people who won't mess up your finances."

The Family Financial Planning program offers a minor and a bachelor's degree. The program is in the process of creating a master's of business administration for finance and financial planning.

NBC invests millions in home shopping

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC is entering the world of fake furs, pasta cookers and porcelain figurines with its first investment in home shopping.

NBC parent General Electric Co. said Tuesday it is buying a minority stake in ValueVision, the third-largest home-shopping cable network, hoping to tie the companies' TV and Internet businesses into one powerful retailer.

NBC will try to take advantage of its relationships with cable operators to get ValueVision shown in more homes.

ValueVision International Inc., an 8-year-old company based in Minneapolis, is shown in 21.8 million U.S. homes.

Under Tuesday's deal, GE will buy up to 19.9 percent of ValueVision for $56 million. GE also has the option of raising that stake to 39.9 percent.

Seamen rescued after 10-month ordeal

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND (AP) — The last 12 crew members stranded aboard a rusting cargo ship came ashore Tuesday, ending a 10-month ordeal during which they staved off scurvy and suicidal thoughts and caught rain water and fish to survive.

The seamen were the last of a 23-man crew from Karachi, Pakistan, to leave the Delta Pride, a broken-down freighter that has been anchored about four miles off the south Texas coast since just before Thanksgiving.

Tuesday, the Immigration and Naturalization Service said the crewmen could remain in the country for up to 30 days while they iron out travel plans and other details.

They will stay temporarily in a Catholic-run refugee center.

For 18 months, the 740-foot Delta

Pride delivered millions of dollars' worth of coal, bauxite, scrap iron and grain to England, Asia and Texas on behalf of different government agencies.

The ship's owner, Tri-star Shipping Lines of Karachi, went bankrupt.

A financial dispute with Mexican officials followed, leading to the seizure of the ship's documents and the crew's passports.

The Delta Pride made it to U.S. waters Nov. 24.

But U.S. officials denied the ship permission to pull into port because of mechanical problems and because it lacked a certificate guaranteeing payment from its owners if the ship caused any damage.

Crew members couldn't come ashore because they didn't have passports.

Vacation causes reflection

Do my eyes deceive me or is it already March 10? That's right ladies and gentlemen, Spring Break is almost upon us.

Where has the semester gone? It is time to abandon all your books and worries for a week and dive into five days of nonstop rest and relaxation (aka partying).

Whether your destination is Colorado, South Padre, Mexico, Las Vegas or (if you are like me) a relaxing week at home, one thing is for sure — Spring Break is a welcome sight for every student on this campus.

Kevin Preas
Columnist

Here's a scary thought. For many people on this campus (myself included), this is their last Spring Break — the last hurrah.

After this year, no more Spring Break.

Have you ever thought about what it is going to be like with out a Spring Break? We have had a Spring Break since we started school.

Anyway, this idea got me to thinking about how much things are about to change in the next year.

The shift from care-free college student into responsible, working man is already showing.

I can remember when a Saturday night at J. Pat's meant one thing. My fake ID worked, and I was out for a night of heavy drinking and meaningless conversation.

Last Friday night, a buddy of mine and I sat and talked about which companies we wanted to interview with and where we wanted to work.

I know I'm getting older because the hangovers take longer to get over and they are fewer and far between.

What happened to me. I heard it is called maturity. What a reality check.

At least for one last week this spring, we can all go out and have a good time and not have to worry about the future, or even what we have to do when we get back.

Have a great break and come back in one piece.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Students warn others about employers' unfriendly tactics

To the editor: I recently have become unemployed from a certain telemarketing firm that I will refrain from naming for libel reasons. But let me tell you my hair-raising story. I came to work at this company in October of 1998. After two weeks on the job, I knew I was not going to be a retiring employee in 40 years. But unfortunately, because I'm a full-time senior at Texas Tech, my employment options aren't wide open, so I was stuck at this firm for five months.

There, I witnessed things ranging from extremely rude customers to drug solicitations. As a telemarketer, I was aware of the stigma that comes with the title but at times, what people said over the telephone was ridiculous over-reaction.

The drug activity there was rampant. I heard the marketing representatives asking the sales managers if they wanted to get high. I was even approached by a girl who nonchalantly gave me her number in case I ever wanted to do acid with her.

When I was dismissed, I was done so unjustly. I was told to go home because I had not been properly trained for a project. I wasn't able to go into the proper training class for my shift because I had classes during that time.

I was told it would be no problem to get my job back. Since I grew to hate my job throughout those five months, I didn't try. I felt a great sense of serenity, not to mention relief when I informed them I didn't want the position.

I was sitting pretty until my rage for the company was riled again. I tried to pick up my final check for the two days I worked during that pay period, and I was told I had no check.

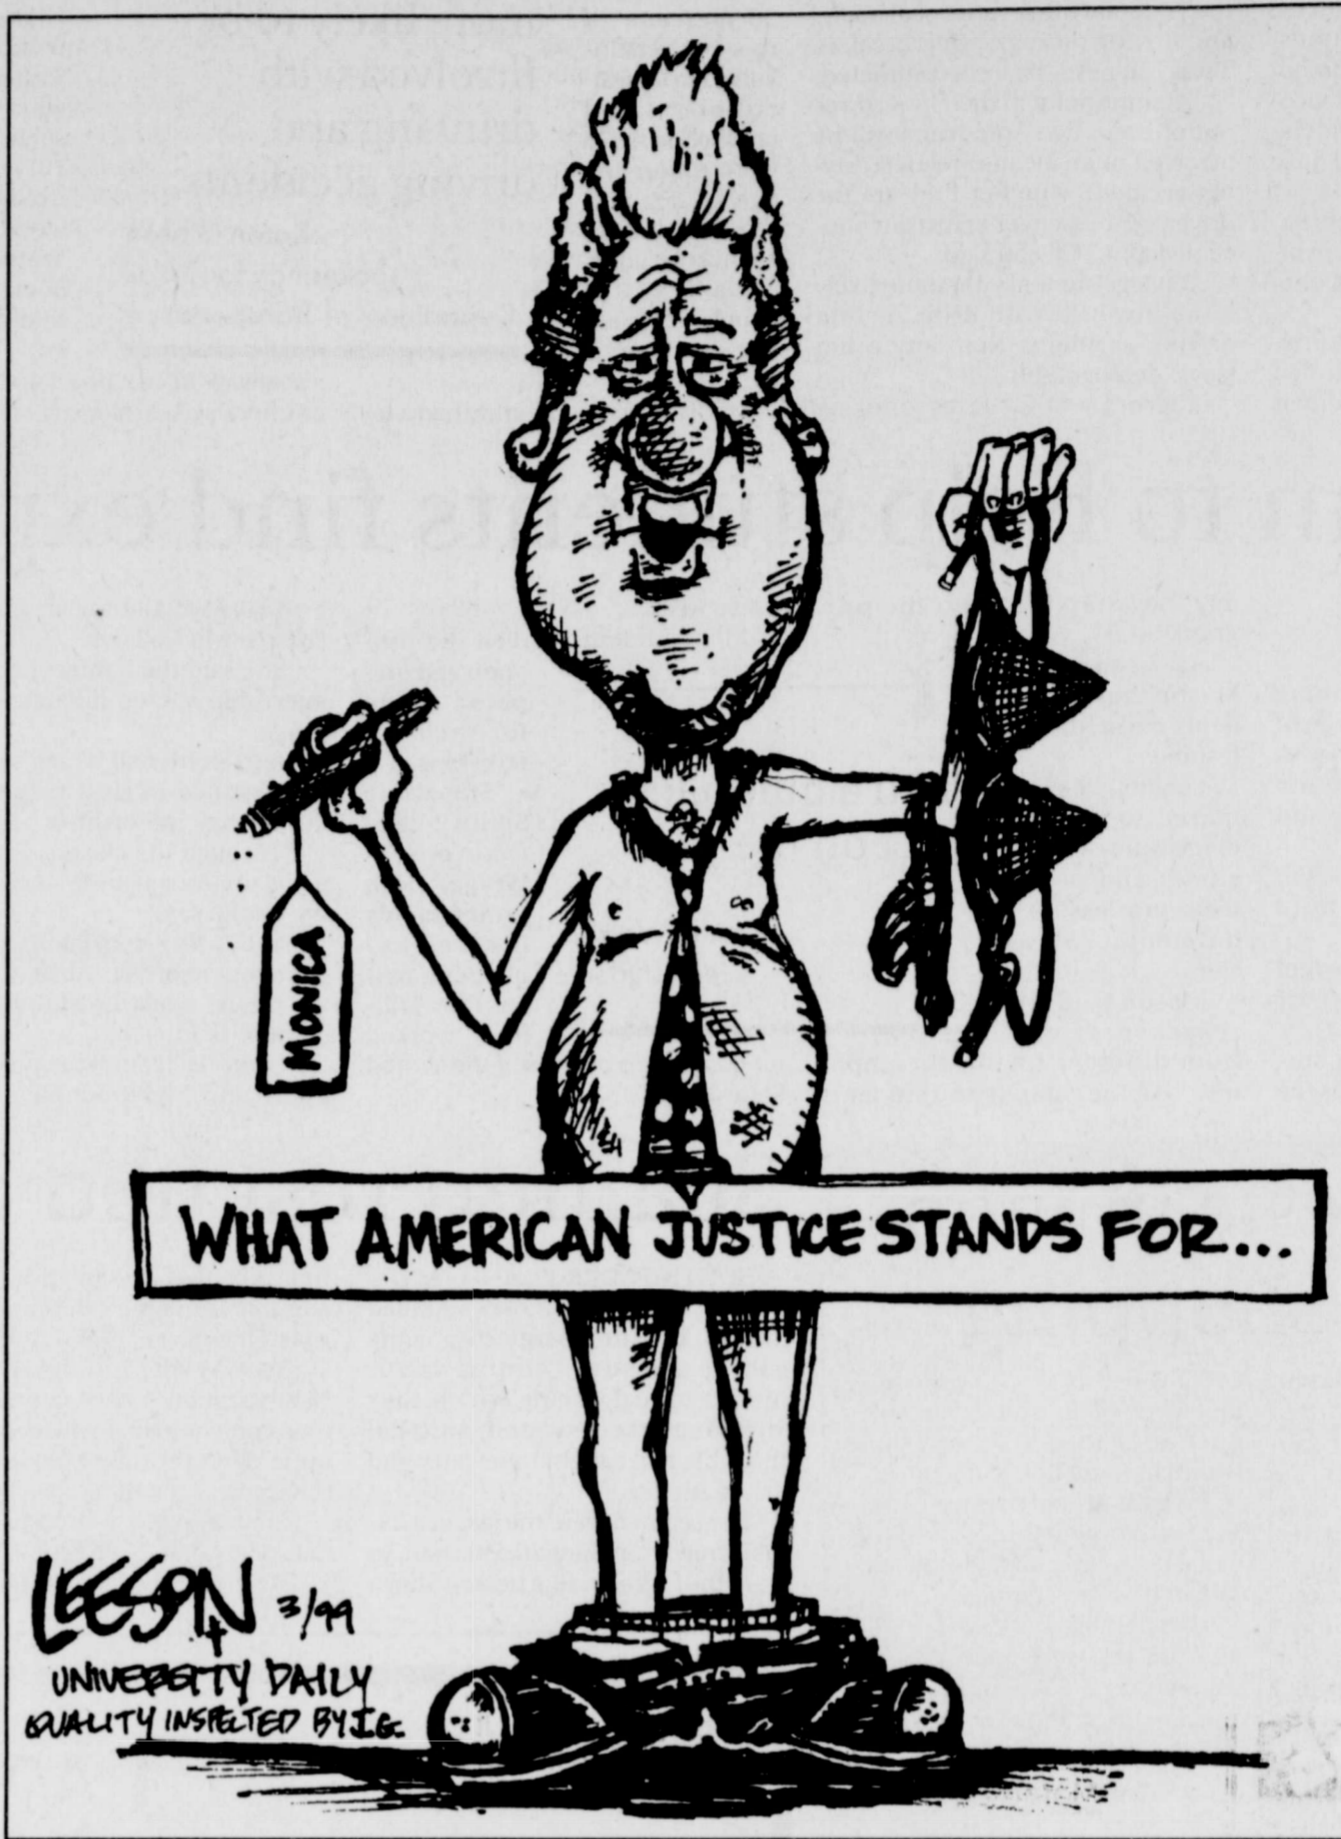

This confirms their reputation that they do not really care for their employees. They are cheating me out of my last dollars.

This letter is only to warn you, whoever you are, to be careful of what you get yourself into. Not every firm is honest in their claims of employee satisfaction.

TRAFFIC AND PARKING UPDATE

We've noticed a couple of references to parking on campus in the paper over the past several weeks and would like to address these concerns.

Feb. 1 Letter to the Editor — "Students Need Parking Exceptions for Loan Lines"

On Feb. 1, a student voiced his/her frustration over continued enforcement of the 30-minute parking spaces around Drane Hall, while hundreds of students waited in line for financial aid checks. While we would like to be able to provide parking for those students, it just is not practical.

There are only about 21 of these spaces in that vicinity, and if enforcement was suspended, there would be absolutely no turnover.

In reality, what would happen is that 21 folks, i.e., employees in the area, students going to class, etc., would have a place to park for the entire day, eliminating even the possibility of a space opening up for use.

This same letter referenced a 15 percent pay raise for Traffic and Parking employees. We wish. However, the legislature is currently considering a 5 percent pay increase for state employees next year.

Since our funds are not appropriated by the state, we must cover these increases in our budgets with traffic and parking fee increases. We have to protect our rates at least 10 months ahead of the actual fee implementation date. This is necessary to give us time to obtain approval by the Board of Regents, to update our Traffic and Parking regulations and parking maps and to distribute this information. Traffic and Parking employees will receive the same increase as other Texas Tech staff members.

Feb. 23 Letter to the Editor — "Student Throws Hat in Ring for SGA President"

In this letter, a reader questioned the bus routes, and who funds them. For those of you who do not know, your Student Government Association, with the input of students, develops the bus routes each year. If you have questions or concerns about the bus service, please share them with your elected representatives. They have always been open to new ideas.

Also, the letter stated, "I also think the dumbest thing facing students is the parking situation. How hard should this be to fix?"

We request that this individual or anyone else that has any recommendations to "fix" or even improve parking, please let us know. We are always open to suggestions as long as they are in the best interest of all our customers (students, faculty and staff) and not an individual or small select group. Please help us out by sending us your suggestions.

Relocation of Traffic and Parking Office

A few months ago the Traffic and Parking operation was relocated to facilities on Fourth Street.

The Enforcement Office, responsible for releasing towed vehicles, is now located at 2901 Fourth Street, which is the Texas Tech University Police Department. The tow yard is in a secured area right behind the Police Department.

The main office for Traffic and Parking (this is where you would register your vehicle for a parking permit and/or pay parking tickets) is located next door at 2903 Fourth Street in the new Administrative Support Center. (For a reference point, the building is directly across the street from the Heritage Apartments) This new location is more accessible to students, and there is plenty of parking.

We urge you to share your concerns, questions, suggestions and other input with us. Information gained through this input may be used to correct inefficiencies and promotes positive customer relations.

We look forward to you input! Please contact us:

STATE VIEW

Houston Chronicle on the Italian cable car accident:

A U.S. Marine pilot, Capt. Richard Ashby, has been acquitted of charges in last year's flight accident over an Italian ski resort in which 20 civilians were killed when Ashby's plane cut the cable of a cable car.

Not surprisingly, there are some bitter reactions to the verdict rendered in North Carolina.

One of the most bitter results of the case has been the issue of fair compensation to the families of the victims.

The Pentagon says each of the families was given $5,000 after the accident to help cover travel and burial costs. Each family also received $60,000 from the Italian government, which was reimbursed by the United States. And the United States paid $20 million for material damage to the people of the Italian valley in which the accident occurred.

The families, however, feel they deserve more and are asking for $5 million per victim.

Technically, the United States is within the law in letting the case work its way through Italian courts.

Under the protective umbrella of the NATO agreement, damage claims must be made initially in the state where an accident occurred.

The problem with that is that with the glacial pace of the Italian court system, resolution of the case could take a decade or more.

The $20 million damage payment was appropriated by Congress, but an effort to get an additional $60 million for the relatives failed.

The truth is simply that the United States must bear some responsibility.

In times of crisis we come up with larger sums to aid even our enemies on humanitarian grounds. Some more fair and forthcoming compensation to our friends seems well in order now.

Crayola to change name of 'indian red'

EASTON, Pa. (AP) — Crayola is changing the name of its "indian red" crayon to avoid misunderstandings over the color's origin.
 Crayola says indian red was based on a reddish-brown pigment commonly found near India.

The manufacturer has gotten complaints from teachers who say students think the color has to do with American Indians.
 "Little children take words and names very literally," said Louise Cosgrove, an art teacher in Allentown. "To them, they think indian red is the color of a Native American's skin."

 Suggestions for the new name will be accepted over the next three months.
 Indian red — with a lower-case

"i" debuted in the Crayola lineup in 1958, when the 64-crayon box was introduced.
 The name change is only the third in the 96-year history of Crayola, a division of Binney & Smith.

Fastpitch opens home schedule — finally

By Brent Dirks
Staff Writer

After six weeks racking up frequent flyer miles traveling across the United States, the Texas Tech fastpitch softball squad returns home with a doubleheader against New Mexico State starting at 1 p.m. today.

Both games will be at the Tech Rec Softball Fields by University Medical Center. Admission is free.

"We are very excited about having our first home game," said Tech coach Rene Luers-Gillispie.

"It's been real tough on the girls. They've been working hard to keep their grades up, and they've been doing a good job with that. It takes a lot of wear-and-tear on them.

"When you think about being on the road from the first of February until now, six weeks is really a long time."

The Red Raiders (13-15 overall) are looking for more consistent play this season.

Even with wins over top-rated programs like Oklahoma State this season, Tech has struggled in the first part of the season, losing three of four games last weekend at the University of Arizona Tournament in Tucson, Ariz.

The Red Raiders hung tough with Arizona, losing 4-0 and had a 3-0 lead against nationally-ranked LSU before falling 4-3.

Tech is 10-1 this season after scoring the first run.

"That's the hardest thing," Luers-Gillispie said. "A lot of it has to do with the mental game and staying tough all seven innings, every pitch. Most of the time it's been offensively where we are struggling. Defensively, we're playing tough."

But after the Red Raiders find consistency, Luers-Gillispie said Tech can get back on track for the remainder of the season.

"We've got a good program and

"We need to take them like a top 10 team."

Aimee Weathers
Tech softball player

team." Luers-Gillispie said. "I think the level of competition and the road trip have been tough on the girls. We've got one week left of that, and then we'll be able to get back to the normal routine."

The Red Raiders played in a tournament sponsored by New Mexico State earlier this season but have yet to face the Aggies on the field.

"They're a good solid ball club," Luers-Gillispie said.

"They have a new coach this year who brought in some great JC kids to fill in the holes he has. They played well in their own tournament, winning the consolation bracket. We can't take them lightly."

Left fielder Aimee Weathers said the Red Raiders are glad to be in Lubbock for the doubleheader against the Aggies.

"We're very excited to have our first home game and relax instead of being in a town that we don't know," Weathers said.

"Hopefully, we can have some fans out here."

Weathers said Tech needs to come mentally prepared to overcome the consistency problems so far this season.

"I think we just need to mentally prepare ourselves for games and just feed off hits," Weathers said of turning around the season.

"When someone gets on, we need to get hits whether it be a dinky hit or an over the head hit."

And against New Mexico State, the Red Raiders can't take the games against the Aggies lightly, Weathers said.

"We need to take them like a top 10 team," she said. "We need to look at them like Arizona, Fresno State or any other team like that. We just need to pounce on them early."

Preparing for spring break road trips

Spring break getaways are just a few days away for most students. You plan your clothes and your agenda but what about those snacks for the trip? Think twice before you fill the goodie bag with high fat items. Here are a few ideas to keep the calories and cost down:

Apples and oranges pack well and do not really require refrigeration. Raisins and other dried fruit are sweet, filling and a great source of iron. Pretzels are low calorie but the salt makes you thirsty for sweets. You can pack a box of cereal like rice chex or crispix, too. Do not forget the crunchy fresh vegetables like carrots, celery, broccoli and cauliflower.

A bag of bagels can make a break-fast snack or a lunch sandwich. It's a lot less fat than donuts. Bagels pack well even if they have been on the bottom of the bag.

Take water. Freeze several bottles of water and put them in the cooler and drink them as they melt.

String cheese keeps well and can be eaten by itself or sliced on a sandwich.

Hard candy and Sweet Tarts have less calories than chocolate and many other candies.

Stopping at a roadside picnic table with homemade sandwiches will give you more nutrients than a trip through the fast food drive-through. Save some of the packets of mustard and mayo so you can make a tasty sandwich on the go.

Remember, it is better to take a 10 minute rest when you start to get drowsy than to try to eat your way to the next town. Jog around your car, do jumping jacks, stretches and whatever else it takes to get the blood flowing to your head again. Place the cooler where the driver can easily get to it if everyone else is sleeping or if you are by yourself. Always wear your seat belt!

Team trap and skeet offered

Intramural Sports is taking entries for the two-person team trap and skeet shoot through March 24. Entries will be accepted in the Rec Sports Office during regular office hours from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The shoot is set for 1 p.m. March 27 at the South Plains Gun Club located one mile north of the Reese Center entrance gate. All shooters may enter both trap and skeet divisions.

The $3.50 fee per round of 25 birds is payable to the Gun Club. Two person teams of men, women or mixed may compete in this event. Contestants must provide their own gun and ammo or ammo may be purchased and guns rented at the gun club. The rules of play are the Amateur Trapshooting Association rules and the rules of the National Skeet Shooting Association. Winners of both will be awarded intramural championship t-shirts.

Innertube water polo champions crowned

The 1999 innertube water polo season was as wet and wild as previous seasons.

The championship March 4 saw 2207 Main Street battle arch-rival Barracudas for the Co-Rec championship. After a hard-fought battle, 2207 Main Street was the victor with a score of 12-5.

Although defeated, The Barracudas needed to make sure they still had enough energy for the men's championship later that night. The top ranked Blue Marlins tried to take advantage of the worn out Barracudas, but the lesson learned in the Co-Rec championship was enough to fuel the Barracudas to an upset win with a score of 11-4. Rec Sports would like to thank all those who participated in innertube water polo this season.

Bench Press Champions

Twenty-one men lifted in the inaugural bench press competition held March 4 at the Student Rec Center. Participants weighed in and were placed in weight classes. Each participant then attempted three lifts. Their weight was subtracted from each lift to calculate a positive score.

The winners were:

- Weight class
140 - 149: Scott Hancock - 685 lbs. (+254.5 lbs.)
150 - 159: Kevin Northrop - 775 lbs. (+305.5 lbs.)
160 - 169: Jarrett Hollier - 580 lbs. (+251 lbs.)
170 - 179: Lovell Dinky Williams - 1035 lbs. (+489.5 lbs.)
180 - 195: Danny Jackson - 810 lbs. (+271.5 lbs.)
200 - 209: Phillip Beasley - 545 lbs. (+130 lbs.)
210 lbs. and up: Chun Lambert - 690 lbs. (226 lbs.)

Be safe, smart and healthy during spring break.

Tech swim club competes strong

The Texas Tech Swim Club overcame tough competition to win the Baylor Lonestar Invitational Swim Meet in Dallas.

Ryan Ferrel, John Janak, Kellye Kirkpatrick, Julia Ness, Rachel Straub, Megan Thomas, Clayton Thomas and Amy Vogt swam national qualifying times.

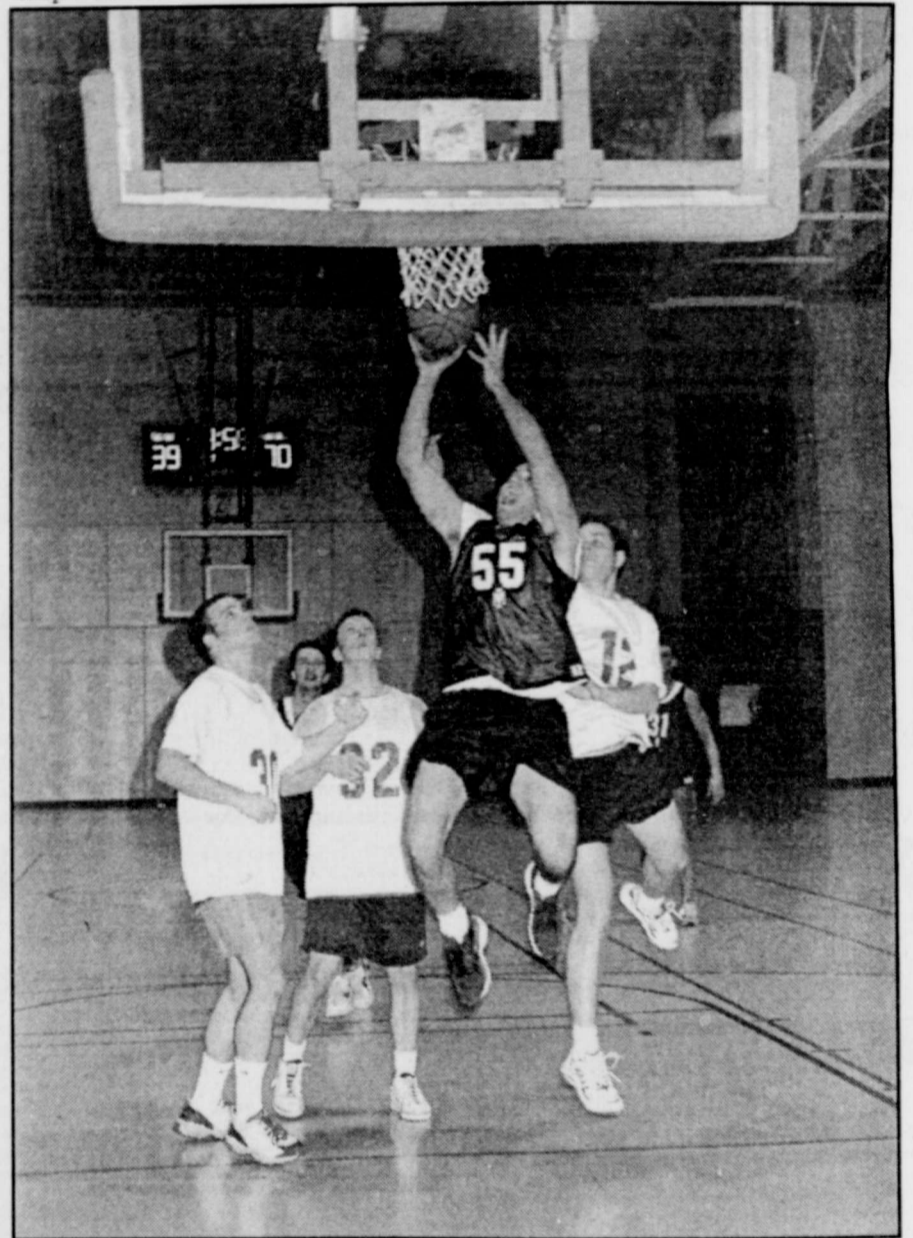

The swimmers qualified for the 1999 Short Course National Championships in Santa Clara, Calif. this May.

The swim club's next meet is the 1999 South Central Zone Championship in Austin. For more information on the swim club, please stop by the Aquatic Center or call 742-3896.

Rapelling workshop tonight

Recreational Sports' Outdoor Program is sponsoring a rapelling clinic tonight at 5 p.m. in the Student Recreation Center. Students will get the opportunity to rappel down a 25 foot wall in addition to learning about equipment, proper procedures and safety concerns.

This workshop is a basic learning experience and is intended for beginners who have never rappelled. The workshop cost $3 and interested persons should come to room 205 of the Student Rec Center at 5 p.m. for sign-up. Additional information can be obtained from the outdoor shop at 742-2949.
